A WESTLAND MOTHER won a $100 shopping spree at Livonia Mall after her daughter wrote a Mother's Day essay that tied for first place in a contest held by the mall's merchants association.

Winning the gift certificates was Leona Frazier, 44. The essay was written by her daughter, Michelle Fowler of Belleville. "God Chose Me to be Your Daughter" was the title of the essay.

THERE WILL be other graduation activities next month other than those planned at senior high schools.

Sixth graders at Kettering Elementary School, 1200 Hubbard, plan to have a ceremony marking their graduation from the Westland police department's Drug Abuse Resistance Education program.

The ceremony will be 7 p.m. today in the school. Taking part will be the students who completed the requirements of the 24-week program.

THE WESTLAND Civitan Club, VFW Post 3323 and the city of Westland will celebrate Flag Day with a city hall ceremony scheduled 5 p.m. Friday, June 14.

The public is invited to the ceremony, said a Civitan spokesman.

"If you have a flag that is tattered and torn and not fit for flying, the VFW will gladly accept old flags for disposal," the club said.

PRESCHOOL children eligible for three special programs are sought by the Wayne-Westland school district.

One is the Head Start program, open to 3- and 4-year-olds at no cost to eligible families.

Another is Kids/Plus, a state-funded program for 4-year-olds offered at no cost to eligible parents.

The other is Sparkey, a tuition-based program that provides a variety of experiences for 4-year-olds.

Interested parents should call 595-2476 for more information.

Minister's daughter reported missing

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

The 16-year-old daughter of Westland minister Michael Enersen, who admitted abusing her, was missing Friday from the group home where she had been staying since authorities removed her from her parents' custody March 11.

The girl ran away from the Salvation Army Edwin Denby Children's Home in Detroit and had been missing for 10 days as of Friday, said the child's grandmother, Nancy Esparza of Detroit.

"I'm worried," the grandmother said. "Emotionally she's very distressed. She wants to be placed here in my home, but she can't yet because of the red tape."

Esparza last saw the Enersen girl — who was taken from her parents because she had been abused — about two weeks ago.

"Once before she talked about running away (from the Denby home) but I [illegible] her out of it," the grandmother said. "It's very worrisome."

Esparza said the 16-year-old's disappearance was being investigated by the Detroit Police Department and the Department of Social Services. She said authorities have indicated they have some leads.

"We have been informed and we are investigating," DSS spokeswoman Margaret Anzinger said.

A woman who answered the telephone at the Denby home said she could not comment on the Enersen girl's disappearance.

"You'll have to talk to the DSS," she said.

POLICE REMOVED the daughter and a 13-year-old son from the Enersen home and placed them in foster care after the 36-year-old minister and his 33-year-old wife, Carol, were charged with child abuse in March.

The Enersens pleaded guilty April 25 in Detroit Recorder's Court, and they had been

Students at the Ford Vocational/Technical Center assembled flashlights in an exercise designed to teach them efficiency, problem-solving and teamwork.

Students get lesson on competition

By Leonard Poger
editor

A group of Ford Vocational/Technical Center students found out in an educational setting the importance of producing the highest quality product at the lowest possible price.

In the spirit of fun, a winning team won T-shirts.

But they learned a more important lesson and a fictitious contract for the work.

In real life, it means the group was more competitive than other teams at the Ford Center and would probably survive economically.

THE STUDENTS took part in an exercise Thursday at the Wayne-Westland school district center as part of its new relationship with Ford Motor Co., the first company to join the center's Partnerships for Education.

The new program is meant to make sure that the center's curriculum and training match the needs of businesses and industries, said Greg Baracy, center principal.

Taking part in Thursday's production/competition exercise were morning and afternoon students in the manufacturing technologies curriculum, which includes teenagers from John Glenn and Wayne Memorial high schools as well as adults from other communities.

The winning team was an afternoon group made up of three students that completed the assembling of 18 flashlights at a unit cost of 28 cents. The team's time was 3½ minutes with one defect.

In the morning session, a two-member team recorded a unit cost of 27 cents, but needed 4¼ minutes in two assembly runs. There were no defects.

TRAINERS IN the exercise in the classroom of teacher Barry Swan were Dan Orr and Henry Johnson, UAW Local 900 members on loan from Ford. The two are employees at the Wayne Assembly Plant, on Michigan Avenue near Newburgh.

Inmate sued for cost of term

The troubles for Carol Kwiatkowski, a Westland woman convicted in the attempted murder of her sister in late 1989, aren't over.

She is being sued by the state for reimbursement of her imprisonment at the Florence-Crane Women's Facility in Coldwater.

Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley said Wednesday that the state has filed a civil action against Kwiatkowski, who, along with her father, was convicted in 1989 of assault with intent to murder her sister Anna Kwiatkowski.

Kelley is seeking reimbursement for costs of Ms. Kwiatkowski's incarceration from a bank account she holds at National Bank of Detroit containing in excess of $50,000 and from pension income.

Named as defendants in the civil action, which was filed in Wayne County Circuit Court are Kwiatkowski, 45, currently serving a 15-year prison term; Lucille Rojeski, an aunt who holds the account jointly with Carol; National Bank of Detroit, location of the jointly held bank account; and Detroit Edison Co., Kwiatkowski's former employer and holder of pension funds which are owed to her.

CAROL KWIATKOWSKI and her father Valentine were convicted in October 1989 on charges that they tried to murder Anna, then 34 and suffering from health problems.

According to the Kwiatkowskis' defense, they felt that they could no longer deal with the stress of caring for Anna and decided to kill her, a plan which they attempted to carry out on Aug. 6, 1989, by shooting Anna

Wayne-Westland lays off 5 more teachers

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Wayne-Westland school officials laid off five more teachers Thursday, raising to 132 the number of district employees laid off since April 15 to ease a severe budget crunch. The layoffs will take effect June 30.

The latest layoffs, announced during a special school board session, marked the last time this year that the school board's budget ax will affect teachers, said William Taylor, associate superintendent of employee services.

Other employee groups, including hourly workers, also are not expected to face additional layoffs, Taylor indicated.

"I think it's doubtful," he said.

The school board has made major cuts in its workforce since April 15, laying off 59 teachers, 34 bus drivers, 18 para-professionals, 10 teaching assistants, seven custodians, three mechanics and one secretary.

The cuts will save the district $3.75 million, said district finance manager Elwood (Woody) London. However, a loss of $1 million in state aid will result in a net savings of $2.75 million, he said.

The local district will lose the state aid because of cuts in transportation and the pending one-hour reduction in the high school instructional day, London said.

THREE OF four board members attending Thursday's special session voted in favor of the latest layoffs. Board members Andrew Spisak, Mathew McCusker and Sharon Scott supported the measure, but trustee Sylvia Kozorosky-Wlacek abstained.

County denies 2nd school secession bid

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Canton Township residents trying to secede from the Wayne-Westland school district lost another battle Thursday, as county school officials refused a second secession attempt in one month.

County officials Thursday denied a petition by Riverpark subdivision residents in the Palmer-Sheldon area who want to switch to the Plymouth Canton district, where they say their children would receive a better education.

The decision came just four weeks after an earlier secession attempt by Canton's Greenbrook subdivision was rejected by the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency board of education.

"In all honesty, I have not heard and I cannot believe that the best interest of the students would be served by approving the transfer," county board member Boyd Arthurs said, near the end of Thursday's two-hour hearing.

THE COUNTY board's unanimous vote angered Canton resident Max Mitchell, who vowed that Riverpark residents will appeal the decision to the Michigan Board of Education. Greenbrook residents also have appealed.

"It's very disappointing — very frustrating," Mitchell said, adding that he believes county school officials "are afraid to set precedent" by approving a secession attempt from the financially troubled Wayne-Westland district.

At the county board meeting, Wayne-Westland Superintendent Dennis O'Neill stressed that although only 24 current students would be affected by the Riverpark secession, "the potential for an increase in student enrollment in this area is imminent.

The Wayne-Westland district would lose an estimated $100,000 a year in state aid under the secession, which he said "would negatively affect all Wayne-Westland students."

MITCHELL CHALLENGED O'Neill's statement, saying the new Riverpark subdivision "has yet to contribute extensively to the (school district's) tax base."

O'Neill accused Riverpark residents of seeking "a Band-aid approach" by trying to switch districts to avoid paying higher school taxes. Wayne-Westland school officials are seeking approval June 10 of a 7.75-mill tax increase.

His comment drew a sharp response from Riverpark resident Chuck Hayes, who said during a later address to the county board that the secession attempt "is not about shopping for millage rates, it's about education."

Parent Bob Williams told the county board that Plymouth Canton schools offer a better curriculum and that students there have higher achieve-

Rouge turnout falls short, but worker spirits stay high

By Wayne Peal
Staff writer

There were sunny skies, but heavy rain the night before swelled the Rouge River and may have kept turnout below expected levels for Saturday's sixth annual Rouge Rescue.

Volunteers worked all morning at sites throughout western Wayne and Oakland counties. But while some sites saw fairly heavy turnout, it was slow going at others.

"We do this every year and I'd have to say turnout was lower this year," said Rita Spence of Farmington, a member of Bell Telephone volunteers which helped sign up about 50 workers at the Nankin Mills cleanup site in Westland.

"There was so much on the news earlier about the river being high, I bet that had something to do with it," Spence said.

Although final figures hadn't been tallied, event organizers said overall turnout fell below the projected 7,000 level.

"WE'RE LOOKING at something very close to last year (when about 7,000 people participated)," Friends of the Rouge executive director Carol Weihe said. "But it may be just a little below that." Livonia-based Friends of the Rouge has coordinated the volunteer cleanups since 1986.

Heavier than normal spring rainfall turned the Rouge into a thick, chocolate brown mess at many area sites.

Flooding canceled two Detroit work sites along the Middle Rouge, Weihe said. Elsewhere, volunteers did the best they could.

Some three dozen teenage workers gamely scrambled down a steep river bank to help clear logjams at the Canton/Wayne site along the lower Rouge.

"We'd really targeted another area, but we just couldn't get to it," site coordinator Kim Scherschligt of Canton said.

Area volunteers participated at sites in northeastern Livonia, Holliday Nature Preserve, Westland and at the Western Wayne Conservation Association, near Plymouth Township.

Carol Merritt helped gather debris at the city of Plymouth site behind the Tonquish Manor Senior Citizens Residence. Merritt is a Tonquish Manor employee.

"This is a pretty good way to do something for the community and to meet other people who are interested in the environment," said Don Hartford, an early volunteer at the city of Westland site in Dorsey Park.

A potentially serious accident was apparently avoided later at the Holliday Park site, also in Westland, where two men were briefly pinned under water when a log they were cutting rolled back onto them.

Setbacks, however, did little to dampen enthusiasm.

"IT'S NOT too bad here," said Sheila Majeswski of Westland, who helped out at Nankin Mills site. "We didn't find anything too exciting, like couches or automobiles, but we did clear lots and lots of logjams."

Unlike previous years, many workers steered clear of the river.

"Mostly, we stayed up on the banks," said Craig Schmatz of Plymouth Township, a Ford Motor Co. volunteer who also worked the Nankin Mills site.

Even though turnout was lower, observers from Take Pride in America were still suitably impressed.

"We were very inspired not only by the number of people who showed up, but by the variety, especially with all the children we saw" said Trudy Harlow, information director for the Washington, D.C. group that has five times honored the Rouge Rescue for its volunteer spirit.

Take Pride representatives roamed from site to site, observing cleanup efforts. The group, a promotional effort of 13 federal agencies, is deigned to spur volunteerism. It was the first time group representatives visited the cleanup.

Youngsters appeared to outnumber adults at several sites, including the Canton/Wayne site behind UAW 900 Hall on Michigan Avenue. Students from Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem government classes muddied themselves hauling fallen trees and other debris from the river.

Many of the same students would be scrubbed and fresh a few hours later, said Jenny Masters of Canton. "Our prom is tonight."

Ron Plaskov didn't want to miss out on the Rouge Rescue, so the Tonquish Manor resident used his motorized wheelchair to cart debris to Dumpsters at the Plymouth cleanup site.

Big trouble

Headlee plan lacking support

THE BRUTAL truth is that the Headlee II tax cut proposal has nowhere near the support that Taxpayers United thinks it has.

Its proposed 20 percent, across-the-board property tax cut — with Lansing making up lost revenue to local government — encountered a stalemate recently in the state Board of Canvassers. There was no majority to put it before the state Legislature or the voters, nor was there a majority to reject the petitions as insufficient.

WHAT TAX FOES proposed is a voter-initiated law. TU had to collect 192,000 signatures in six months.

Politically, the rule of thumb is that you collect 30 percent more signatures than you legally need because many will be unreadable, improperly done or otherwise invalid.

Thus, TU should have had 250,000 to be safe. Instead it had only 224,000 when it filed its petitions last Sept. 11. So it was in big trouble from the start.

The plan is named for TU chair Richard Headlee, whose name graces the horrendously complicated 1978 constitutional amendment aimed at limiting taxes. But this plan is somewhat simpler: Cut property taxes by rolling back assessments 20 percent over two years.

TU's fundamental notion is that assessments are rising far faster than the consumer price index. It's a true notion — in some areas of the state, notably the suburbs north and west of Detroit, the Grand Rapids area, the Lake Michigan shoreline and some of the Lake Huron shoreline. The rest of the state, however, doesn't know there's a problem.

TU SHOULD have smelled trouble when gubernatorial candidate John Engler endorsed its plan, and then Governor Engler offered his own plan to cut only school operating taxes.

TU should have smelled more trouble when the state Senate Republican leader introduced a resolution pressuring the Board of Canvassers to approve Headlee II, put it on the May 8 agenda and then failed to bring it to a vote.

For all its understandable fervor, Taxpayers United has big, big trouble on its hands.

Recall drive misuses process

ANOTHER FUTILE petition drive is under way. John Engler is the second governor in a row to be subjected to this firestorm of activity.

Odds are that the drive is doomed. Petitioners must gather 641,000 signatures, three times as many as it would have taken to put the Headlee II tax cut proposal on the ballot. And they must do it in only 90 days versus 180 days for the tax proposal.

We say the same thing about the anti-Engler drive as the 1983 drive against James Blanchard: It's a misuse of the recall process. The recall should be reserved for wrongdoers or those who have become unfit to hold office. It's inappropriate to attempt it against a properly elected official because one disagrees with his political decisions.

Psychologically, a recall drive allows those on the short end of the governor's decision to vent steam, smoke and fire. Politically, it's a waste. Researchers have found the average political activist burns out in about 3.7 years. By the time the next election rolls around in 1994, most anti-Englerites will have burned out, harming their own cause.

People with strong opinions should put them on paper and send them to their legislators. Those with very strong opinions should join the political party of their choice and do the kind of constructive work it takes to get their candidate elected — precinct organizing, mailing, phone calling, contributing, listening to candidates, cheering them on.

Michiganians can best direct the course of government through intelligence and sweat — not the steam, smoke and fire of a doomed recall campaign.

Mother irked by inaction

To the editor:

In a recent letter from Scott Tarwacki, a Franklin Junior High student, he wrote that students need support from their parents, and not just their teachers. Please assure Mr. Tarwacki that my husband and I have also "spent endless hours helping with homework and weak areas." We have also spent time in the past helping in the classroom, and taking an active interest in all three of our children's educations. We attend all conferences, and have made every effort to convey our position to the teachers please inform us when there's a problem so we can work together to get our child back on track. We put our faith in these educators that they were willing to work with us.

My daughter's GPA dropped from 3.0 to 2.1 in a single marking period, and there was no contact from the teacher that there was obviously a problem. Someone wasn't supporting the balance of working together, and it wasn't from our end. We were, and still continue to work with our children at home, even though we are totally frustrated by the school system. The sad part of this is the falling grades could have been prevented. Apparently work hadn't been turned in, and this situation could have been handled by one simple phone call — five minutes of the teacher's time.

A promise was made April 18 by a school board member and the principal of the elementary school to set up a conference. After numerous attempts, all in vain, to contact this same school board member, no return reply has yet been made. No conference has been set up. There is no indication of any concern at all over this situation by either the school board, or the principal or the teacher. We seem to be the ones correcting the problem on our own.

I compliment Mr. Tarwacki on his continued success at Franklin, and hope that he goes on to achieve all of his ambitions. I would also like to point out that he never was a student of this particular teacher. I was led to believe this was the first year this teacher taught fifth graders, and previously had been the art teacher.

It is, however, reassuring to know using Mr. Tarwacki's grades as an example, there are teachers out there who do take the time to work with parents and students together as a team, the way it should be. I'm looking forward to finding such a relationship for the sake of my children, as well as all the students who attend the Wayne-Westland School District.

Wayne

Education is emphasized

To the editor:

As a concerned citizen, I feel compelled to write my concerns about the upcoming school millage election. Cutbacks in federal and state aid have placed the financial burden on individual school districts. Wayne-Westland is no exception.

Today, knowledge doubles every 25 years. Learning the "3 Rs" and getting a good paying job in an auto assembly plant was maybe good yesterday, but not today, and certainly not in tomorrow's world.

Do most parents spend time helping their kids with their homework? Do they devote more than 10 minutes of quality time with their kids each day? Most do not — instead, that added burden has been placed on the school system.

The Mayor's Blue Ribbon Committee is an excellent idea, composed of both members of the S.O.S. (Save Our Schools) and those opposed to the millage; however, their findings and report may be a year or more away, certainly not in time for the June 10 millage election. A published report and any recommendations will be acted upon when finished. In the meantime, put your faith in the school system; these are the people you have entrusted with the education of your children.

What has made this country great is communities like ours and the people who live in them. What are the most important things in your life? I hope it's your children! Where is the future of this country? It's in the young people of today. A long time ago, someone paid for our education (and built the schools). As adults and citizens, we have the responsibility to do likewise.

Before the last school millage election, the Westland Chamber of Commerce set up a debate, complete with cable coverage, as a service to inform the community about the millage. Those leaders opposed to the millage declined to attend the debate.

They did find time, however, to distribute their literature house to house just prior to the election. In time for the schools to respond to their lies and half truths? No, therefore the millage failed.

When the negative thinkers put their literature in your door the night before, (and they probably will) show them where the sidewalk is! Grab your kids and give them a big hug. Tell them, "I love you!" "I care about you!" Then vote!

Mark your calendar for June 10 and put a big note on your refrigerator. Get absentee ballots if you will be out of town. Whatever it takes — vote as if it were the most important election you ever voted in! It just may be.

Allen Brooks,
Westland

Band attire is criticized

To the editor:

I attended the (Wayne-Westland) Memorial Day parade and have a few comments to make regarding the Wayne Memorial High band.

For one thing, wearing shorts and a T-shirt with a message in reference to the school millage was in very poor taste, and out of place at a Memorial Day parade.

Plus, they didn't play nearly as good as they usually do, and seemed to be bored with the whole thing. They showed no enthusiasm or school spirit.

Then behind them just a bit was the John Glenn High band in full uniform and playing as good as ever. Even doing a routine while marching and playing. I was quite proud of them.

If anyone made a statement about how great a band can be and how much spirit they have, it was the John Glenn Band, not the Wayne High Band with the uncalled for T-shirts and unenthusiastic players.

I was sitting next to friends of mine from Wayne and they agreed with me. In fact, they were the ones who commented on the T-shirts just as I was noticing them.

Wayne High's apparel was very much out of place in a parade where we were honoring the people who have served and are serving our country, especially those who have died in service to our country.

Secession bid

ment test scores. He also said a higher percentage of Plymouth Canton students attend college.

"My child should be afforded the opportunity to attend this superior school system," Hayes said.

Parent Michael Janks told the county board he's concerned about Wayne-Westland teachers telling students about the potential loss of busing and many school programs if the 7.75-mill tax increase fails June 10.

"Most students don't even know what a millage is," Janks said.

JOHN GLENN sophomore Kim Springer, urged the county board to oppose the secession because she's a Riverpark resident "and I love my school. I love my friends, and I want to finish high school at John Glenn."

Springer said her family's decision to move to Riverpark was influenced by the Wayne-Westland district, which she said offers as many opportunities as Plymouth Canton.

John Hoben, Plymouth Canton superintendent, told county board members that the Plymouth Canton school board has taken no official position on the attempted secession. However, he said the school district is dramatically overcrowded.

All elementary classrooms, including portables, are being used, he said, and new construction is two to three years away.

scheduled for sentencing on Friday before Judge Harvey F. Tennen.

Their attorney, Mark Kriger, said Friday that the sentencing has been adjourned until June 18 because a pre-sentencing report from the probation department had not been completed by Friday.

The delay emerged because probation officials "can't get ahold of her," Kriger said, referring to the daughter whom he said was needed for information to complete the pre-sentencing report.

Kriger said the teen's disappearance proves what he has been saying all along — that she has behavior problems. Kriger has said previously that the Enersens had experienced problems with the oldest child.

Michael Enersen admitted in court that he beat the daughter, who, along with the 13-year-old son, were born during a previous marriage. The son remains in foster care, his grandmother said.

Michael and Carol Enersen also have four younger children who still reside at home.

WESTLAND POLICE Sgt. Laura Moore has said the 16-year-old girl had been so severely beaten that her buttocks were bloodied.

Carol Enersen admitted in court that she bit her daughter on the hand, confirming Moore's earlier allegations that the child abuse had included human bite marks.

Kriger said the allegations have been overblown. "It's way over-exaggerated," he said Friday.

Meanwhile, the grandmother said she continues to check with DSS officials daily to see whether they have learned of the 16-year-old's whereabouts. Esparza said the girl disappeared from the Denby home with another youngster there.

Esparza's daughter, Cheryl, gave birth to the two older Enersen children during her marriage to Michael Enersen, who remarried after Cheryl died of congestive heart failure in 1978 at the age of 19.

Esparza was cut off from her grandchildren for 12 years and was recently reunited with them after they were removed from the Enersens' custody.

District lays off 5 teachers

Kozorosky-Wlacek has opposed the layoffs, saying school officials have failed to seek other ways to slash the district's budget.

Board members Kathleen Chorbagian, Michael Reddy and Leonard Posey did not attend Thursday's session, though all three have voted in favor of recent layoffs.

Under the latest cuts, the teacher workforce will dip below the 900-mark for the first time in years.

The current 947-member faculty will drop to 888 teachers because of the layoffs, a decrease of just over 6 percent.

Superintendent Dennis O'Neill noted that the cuts will result in a five-hour instructional day — down from six — for all junior high and high school students.

"THE KIDS will be getting one-sixth less of their instructional program," he said, adding that the junior highs are facing their second year of a reduced instructional day.

The cuts also will result in the elimination of the elementary expressive arts program and the loss of busing, among other cuts.

School officials have stressed that the program cuts could be averted if a proposed 7.75-mill tax increase passes in the June 10 election. The layoffs also could be avoided, officials have said.

Kids get lesson

The flashlight assembly exercise was part of a Ford training manual emphasizing building the highest quality product in the shortest time, or at the lowest cost, Orr said.

Each of the six teams was timed, with Orr and Johnson using a formula to determine the unit cost.

The flashlight assembly practice taught the students several important lessons they will need in the real world of manufacturing competition, Orr and Swan said.

Those lessons included small groups of employees working together as a team, problem solving, brainstorming ideas, finding and eliminating wasted motions and improving the quality of the product being assembled.

SWAN SAID the students taking part in the exercise are from the center's new cluster program, which has pupils specializing in one subject but also taking classes in related fields.

The students are in the cluster programs of welding, electronics, computer aided design (CAD) and computer-aided manufacturing.

Baracy hopes other area companies will join the Partnerships for Education program, he said.

while she napped.

Carol was sentenced and began serving her sentence on Nov. 20, 1989. Her earliest release date is Nov. 1, 1993. According to provisions of Michigan's State Correctional Facility Reimbursement Act, the state can take up to 90 percent of income and assests to help reimburse the state for costs.

Kelley said: "By the time this prisoner is released, the state will have run up a bill of $89,220 for her room and board. Convicted felons who have the assets and income should pay their own way."

Carol's father Valentine, died April 29, while serving his sentence at Southern Michigan Correctional Facility in Jackson.

Special Olympics

Athletes go for gold at state games

Local residents joined the more than 3,400 athletes with mental retardation from across the state over the weekend to compete in the Michigan Special Olympics summer games at Central Michigan University.

Competition was held in swimming and diving, track and field events, bowling, gymnastics, weightlifting, team handball, tennis, volleyball and the Motor Activities Training Program.

Prior to the state summer games, local athletes ages 8 and older trained and competed in local programs.

The summer games are part of Michigan Special Olympics' year-round program, according to Lois Arnold, MSO state director.

In Michigan, more than 20,000 athletes participate throughout the year.

"Special Olympics gives people with mental retardation the chance to discover how much they can do and to experience the pride and self-confidence that go along with that," said Arnold.

Special Olympics competition places athletes in divisions based on age and ability. Regardless of skill level, special olympians compete against others of the same, sex, age and similar ability making the competition "fair and fun." The emphasis is on effort, enthusiasm and sportsmanship.

Athletes, volunteers and spectators gathered Friday for opening ceremonies at CMU's Kelly/Shorts Stadium.

First- through fourth-place ribbons are awarded.

Opening ceremonies featured a torch-lighting ceremony, parade of athletes and free concert by the Oak Ridge Boys in CMU's Kelly/Shorts Stadium in Mount Pleasant.

Michigan Special Olympics is a non-profit organization and receives no state or federal funds.

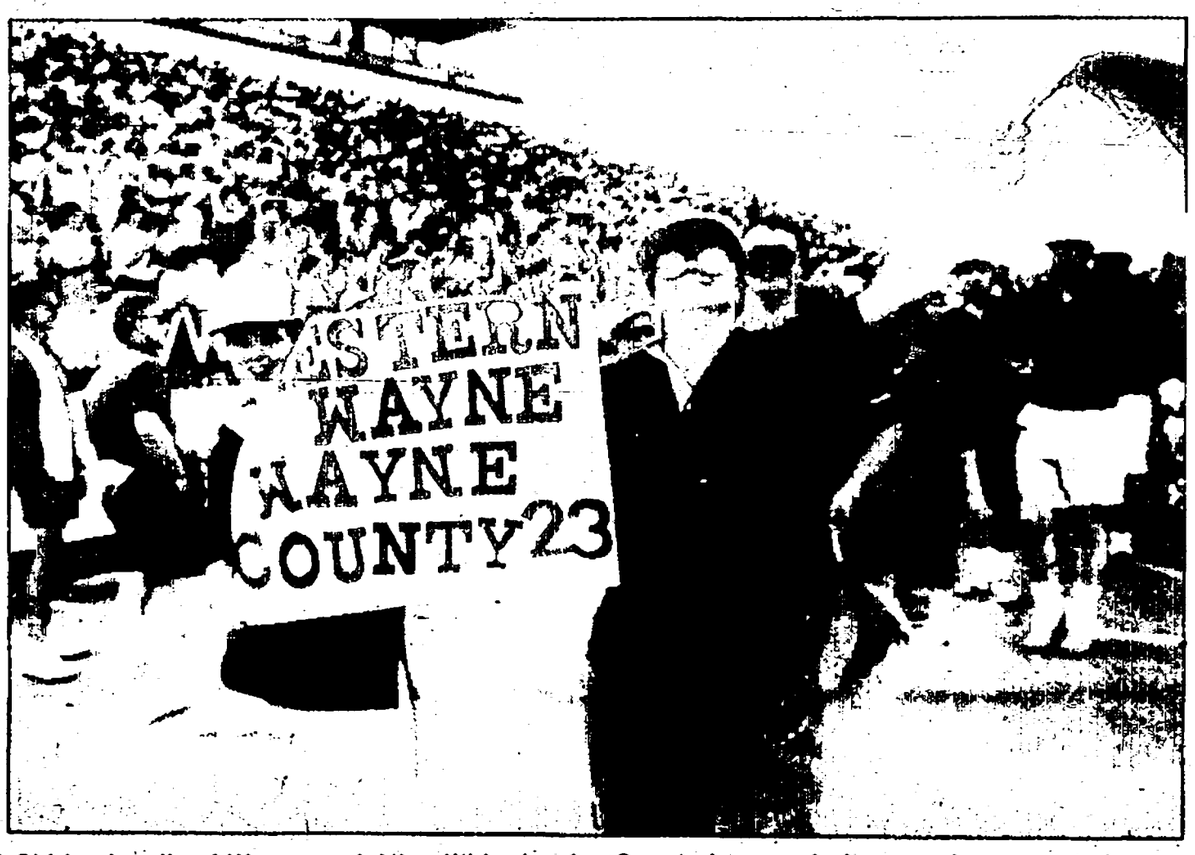
Arnold points out that volunteers — some 12,000 of them — are the backbone of the organization.

Volunteers coach athletes, raise funds and coordinate local programs.

The 1991 games marked the seventh consecutive year of exclusive sponsorship by Spartan Stores Inc. The company has donated more than $1.5 million to the program. It also provides nearly 800 volunteers during the three-day event.

Some stores, including L&L Food Center in Rochester Hills, raised money to send athletes from their area to the summer games.

Clint Miller of Livonia is greeted by JoAnn Kogut (with video camera) of Livonia and Coach Lorel Rigsby of White Lake after the wheelchair slalom on Friday afternoon.



Shirley Ingalls of Wayne and Allen Whipple of Westland carry in the Area 23 Western Wayne County banner during opening ceremonies on Friday at CMU's Kelly/Shorts Stadium.

Richard Raymond of Plymouth is congratulated after getting a second place medal in the 50-meter dash. The track and field events were Friday at Bennett Field at CMU.

Your party deserves a change

Here it is early June, a time when flowers bloom, strawberries ripen and graduation-party hosts and hostesses scour major food magazines for new ideas. Everyone wants his or her party to be special and that's kind of difficult when you serve cocktail weenies along with corn chips and ranch dip.

There's little disputing the fact that a great party begins wth planning. If you plan a graduation party, you can count on the weather being either in the 90s with ditto humidity or ushering in a thunderstorm that undoubtedly will blow all the tents and umbrellas you borrowed or rented into the neighbor's yard, forcing all the guests to huddle in a steamy basement full of dirty laundry and boxes of Christmas ornaments you still haven't put away.

If you plan a graduation party, don't forget you may need an oven larger than the State of Rhode Island to handle the meat, potatoes, beans, vegetables, bread, rolls and hot appetizers. Empty the oven if it has been filled with crud-encrusted pots and pans you temporarily stored there to keep from your guests' eyes.

All kidding aside, a little planning can take those unexpected challenges and turn them into conquered feats.

A GOOD PLANNER will always take the weather into account. Alternate plans, seating arrangements and adequate space should always be available. The difference between a food schlepper and a caterer is that a caterer should always make a pre-site inspection or, at least, give you a list of needed equipment the caterer will/will not supply.

Although food magazines can be a great source for creative ideas, a good planner will have selected and tested all recipes so as not to be surprised when the meatball recipe turns into taco filling. This doesn't happen as much with the big food magazines because their recipes are tested numerous times before publication but, rest assured, get a recipe from a relative or friend and it's bound to happen.

Some of the more trendy foods on the party circuit this year are:

- Salsas: What used to be ordinary salsa in a jar and yellow corn chips has turned into black bean salsa with blue corn tortilla chips. Homemade salsas using fresh ingredients and the discovery of the imported food store make this a sure bet.
- Stuffed Veggies: Everything from stuffed grape leaves to stuffed hearts of palm to mini-stuffed cherry tomatoes, stuffing vegetables is the heart-healthy alternative to wing dings and grape-jelly-coated meatballs. Better yet, you can do this all days in advance.
- Grilling parties: If your yard can handle it, beg, borrow or steal three more barbecue grills and have iced buckets of shrimps, scallops and chunked monkfish at one; brats, Italian sausages and kielbasa at another, and grilled veggies like green onions, eggplant slices, red and green peppers and Vidalia onions, all brushed with bottled Italian dressing, at the other grills. Invite your guests or, better yet, flamboyant relatives and friends to get the grilling going.

Last, but not least, the best planners always remember that, yes, this is a party and all the guests are hoping they will enjoy it. Good party planners will be well prepared, thus allowing the host and/or hostess also to have fun and enjoy the guests.

There's little disputing the fact that a great party begins with planning.

Peter Winitsky and Risa Tisdale, both West Bloomfield High School students, stop in together every day for a Slimmery soft-serve frozen dessert at the American Bulk Food Store in the West Bloomfield Plaza. Slimmery is the word for dessert

By Anne R. Lehmann
special writer

OPEN THE DOOR to one of the five area American Bulk Food Stores and you are treated to what one might call a sensory carnival.

Surrounding you are the smell of spices, the visual display of colorful candies in lucite bins and the sound of coffee being freshly ground.

With a fast-growing clientele, American Bulk Food is establishing a reputation as a testing ground for new products including a wide variety of hard-to-find low-calorie and kosher products.

The stores are owned and operated by Marty Benson, a former pharmacist who listened when his wife suggested he open bulk candy sections in his two Wyandotte pharmacies 11 years ago.

Without intending to, they were test marketing a concept that was so successful he sold his pharmacies and started a chain of bulk-food-concept stores.

BESIDES MARKETING unusual products, Benson, the son of a former ice cream manufacturer, enjoyed innovating his own food creations.

Consequently, Slimmery, a patented soft-serve frozen dessert, was born.

Available in such flavors as double dutch fudge, peanut butter cup and raspberry royale, this swirled confection adds up to nine calories per ounce and conforms to many diet plans.

ALTHOUGH SLIMMERY is now fat and sugar free, it wasn't always that way.

"When we started out, we were sugar free. When everyone started asking for fat-free ice cream, we changed the recipe. The point is we always try to accommodate the tastes and demands of our customers," Benson said.

Besides cups of Slimmery, there are variations on the theme including Slimmery pies, mousse, apple strudel and chocolate cake brownies — none of them weighing in for more than 179 calories.

Four ounces of Slimmery, which Benson admits is made up mostly of air, costs $1.29.

Custom-designed ice cream machines and pure Nutrasweet make the item expensive to produce.

"The pure form of Nutrasweet costs $200 a pound."

ALTHOUGH THE soft-serve frozen dessert makes up a good part of the business, Benson is always branching out.

In recent years he has added a line of 150-calorie muffins and baked goods including 40-calorie fruit bars. Benson developed these recipes and sells the muffin mix in bulk form for $1.99 a pound.

"People can buy the mix and make the muffins at home for so much less money, yet they prefer to buy them from our bakery case."

Benson also collaborates with candy manufacturing companies to develop improved varieties of old favorites, including double dipped chocolate raisins and peanuts.

STILL, THE mainstay of Benson's business comes from the items that fill the bins throughout the store.

"Buying bulk makes sense for so many reasons. We eliminate obvious costs for packaging, distribution and advertising and the savings are passed on to the consumer."

Freshness is another factor that makes buying in bulk sensible. Prepackaged items often wait in warehouses to be shipped. When purchasing in bulk, one buys products in their freshest form, Benson said.

This is especially true of spices, which are more robust when they are fresher. Additionally, spices, a very important ingredient for some recipes, are costly.

Instead of having to commit to a container of a condiment for something that might be used once or twice, buying bulk allows a person to buy quantities by the ounce.

WITH THE beginning of warmer weather, patrons stopping in for bulk items are walking away with a Slimmery frozen dessert.

Though it may look dangerously fattening, the calorie content makes it an indulgence most dieters can afford.

"My wife," Benson said, laughing, "calls it a grand illusion."

American Bulk Food Stores owned and operated by Marty Benson are in West Bloomfield, Rochester, Dearborn, Ann Arbor and Southgate.

Fitness buffs keep in best of shape enjoying meals at World Gym Cafe

Pasta salad and fruit salad are two of the dishes chef Tom Alonzo offers at the cafe in Canton.

BILL BRESLER
staff photographer

By Arlene Funke
special writer

Eating healthy doesn't have to mean a steady diet of carrot sticks and mung sprouts.

Tom Alonzo, chef of the new World Gym Cafe in Canton, is determined to cut fat and eliminate high sodium without sacrificing taste. "Our theme is food for fitness," said Alonzo, 24, of Westland. "I try to get many different spices, to take the place of salt."

The restaurant, which opened last month, sells sandwiches, salads and hot dishes packed in carry-out containers. Packages are labeled with information about sodium, fat, cholesterol and calories.

For example, Alohzo tops a large baked potato with a medley of chopped, cooked tomatoes, zucchini, onions and mushrooms seasoned with basil and thyme. The vegetables are crowned with melted, part-skim mozzarella cheese.

HE BOILS chicken pieces to obtain stock for black bean soup, avoiding salty commercial base. Alonzo's smoked turkey pita sandwich is garnished with a dollop of spicy mustard and cholesterol-free mayonnaise.

The restaurant is nestled in a storefront which is part of the World Gym aerobics and fitness center at Warren and Lilley roads. The gym and restaurant are owned by Tom Kosh, 41, of Farmington Hills.

Alonzo's stated goal is to provide a healthy alternative to the burger-and-fries meal. "Once people try this food, I think they are going to take a complete look," said Alonzo, a 1985 graduate of Plymouth-Canton High School.

For example, the veggie baked potato contains 20 grams of protein, 12 grams of fat, 74 grams of carbohydrate and 571 milligrams of sodium. It has 461 calories. The vegetable pita, at 237 calories, has 9 grams of protein, 42 grams of carbohydrate, 4 grams of fat and 126 milligrams of sodium.

Alonzo became interested in cooking during high school. He studied culinary arts at Johnson and Wales University in Providence, R.I., and hotel and restaurant management at Eastern Michigan University.

THE CHEF, who has worked at several local restaurants, is fulfilling requirements toward becoming certified as an executive chef. He also teaches culinary arts at the William D. Ford Vocational/Technical Center in Westland.

Substituting spices for salt and creating low-fat sauces is second nature to Alonzo, a fitness buff. "I have been doing it at home for myself for a number of years," he said.

The World Gym Cafe, geared to carry-out trade, has only a few tables. Previously, lowfat frozen yogurt was sold there. Yogurt still is on the menu. But the repertoire now includes interesting salads, sandwiches and dishes such as vegetable lasagna and pasta with broccoli and mushrooms.

Prices are reasonable. The veggie baked potato costs $1.85. Sandwiches are in the $3 range. Salads range from around $1.50 to $3.50 for a pasta-and-chicken blend. Hot entrees cost around $4.

Owner Kosh intends to concentrate on establishing his customer base during the next two years, then moving his entire operation to a larger site within a mile or two.

World Gym Cafe is in the World Gym complex at Lilley and Warren roads, Canton, phone 455-7860. Hours are 5 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Monday-Friday; 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Saturday, and 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

MINESTRONE SOUP

1 tablespoon olive oil

4 carrots, sliced
2 celery stalks, sliced
¼ cup long-grain rice
¼ cup elbow macaroni
1 teaspoon basil
1 teaspoon oregano
½-1 teaspoon salt
1 can kidney beans

NEOPOLITAN PIZZA

1 cup warm water
1 package dry active yeast
3 tablespoons olive oil
⅔ cup whole wheat flour
1 ¾ cups unbleached white flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cornmeal
1 ¼ cups Marinara Sauce
1 ½ cups (6 ounces) grated mozzarella cheese
1 ½ cups (6 ounces) grated Muenster cheese
4 cups (12 ounces) sliced mushrooms, sauteed (optional)

Pour the warm water into a large bowl and sprinkle in the yeast. Stir to mix and let sit for 5 minutes. Stir in the oil, then add the flours and salt. Beat with a wooden spoon until well mixed. Turn the dough onto a lightly floured board or work surface and knead for 10 minutes (no less). You will have to keep lightly flouring the work surface to prevent the dough from sticking.

Put the dough in a lightly oiled bowl, then invert the dough so the oiled surface is on top. Cover the bowl with a newspaper and let rise in a warm place (no hotter than 85 degrees) for 1 ½ hours, or until double in bulk. (You can place the bowl in the oven if there is a pilot light, or lightly heat the oven for a few seconds, turn off the heat, then let it sit in the barely warm oven.)

Punch down the dough and knead a few times. Lightly flour your work surface, and with a rolling pin roll the dough into a rectangle large enough to fit your jelly roll pan. Sprinkle the cornmeal on the pan and line with the dough. It is not necessary to form an edge.

Preheat the oven to 500 degrees.

Spread a layer of Marinara Sauce over the dough. Cover the pizza with a mixture of the two 2. Top with the sliced mushrooms, if you wish.

Bake for 15-17 minutes, or until the crust is golden underneath and the cheese lightly browned. (To test the crust insert a knife or spatula under the crust and lift carefully to peek.) Cut into squares and serve immediately. Makes one 17-inch rectangular pizza (serves 4).

Planning parties takes a little work

See Larry Janes' column Taste Buds, Page 1B.

BLACK BEAN SALSA

1 pound black turtle beans
½ medium white onion, sliced
½ small head garlic
10 cups hot water
½ cup chopped cilantro (fresh)

Rinse beans in cold water and place in a slow cooker. Add onions and garlic and cover with hot water. Cover the pot and cook at the highest temperature until the skins are soft — from 4-12 hours depending on the beans. Mash and season to taste with a little salt and fresh cilantro. Serve warm or cold with corn tortillas or nacho chips.

Chef's suggestion: Stir in some chopped tomato or chopped jalapeno peppers for added taste.

Mash and season to taste with a little salt and fresh cilantro. Serve warm or cold with corn tortillas or nacho chips.

STUFFED GRAPE LEAVES

30 canned grape leaves
2 cups finely chopped onion
½ cup uncooked rice
⅓ cup olive oil
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
¼ cup pine nuts (optional)
1 cup finely minced lamb (optional)
1 cup water or chicken broth
½ cup lemon juice

Rinse grape leaves and separate. In a large bowl, combine onion with rice, oil, parsley, nuts and minced lamb. Mix well. Place a generous tablespoon of mixture into center of each grape leaf and roll, not too tightly, securing ends. Place in a heavy pot. When finished rolling, combine water/stock with lemon juice. Mix and pour over grape leaves. Place a heavy plate on top; then cover and cook over low heat about 1½ hours. Serve warm or chilled.

Pinch alfalfa sprouts

Slice each pita in half. Spread each pita pocket with mayo and mustard. Layer with tomatoes, zucchini, lettuce and sprouts. Yield: 8 half-pita sandwiches.

GRILLED LEMON CHICKEN

1 boneless, skinless chicken breast, grilled until done
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
¼ cup chicken stock
½ teaspoon arrowroot
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
½ teaspoon fresh chopped basil
½ teaspoon fresh thyme
Dash of pepper

Bring stock to boil. Dissolve arrowroot in small amount of cold water and add to stock. Add remaining herbs and spices. Simmer a few minutes. Serve with chicken.

Aromatic rices gain popularity

AP — Buying rice once meant choosing between white rice and brown. But no more. Aromatic rices such as basmati, texmati, wild pecan and popcorn rice are growing in popularity right alongside their traditional cousins. Available in fancy food shops and from mail-order houses, these flavorful alternatives can change an ordinary stir-fry into an extraordinary entree, or a simple seafood sauce into a fancy gourmet meal.

To me, one of the pluses of cooking with aromatic rices is the tantalizing aroma. While simmering, each smells like toasting nuts or popping corn. And, believe me, their rich, nutty flavor lives up to their delicious fragrances.

TYPES OF AROMATIC RICES

• Basmati: If rice were judged for beauty, this would be one of the winners for its slender pearl-white grains. A staple in Indian cooking, basmati cooks up light and fluffy. Serve it with curries, Oriental dishes and kebabs.

• Texmati: This rice is the Texas-grown version of basmati, similar in looks, taste and fluffiness. Serve it with the same foods you'd serve with basmati rice, or try it with gumbo, spicy red sauces, and roasted or grilled poultry.

• Wild pecan: No nuts here! The pecan-like aroma and flavor give this delicious rice its name. The grains look like brown rice. For nutty-flavored wild rice, add some pecan rice when the wild rice is half-done. Try it in pilafs or stuffings to serve with grilled poultry, pork or fish.

• Popcorn: You'll think of popcorn when you smell the rice cooking. Its fluffiness makes it ideal for pilafs or rice salads.

COOKING AROMATIC RICES

Follow these basic cooking directions when you plan to serve aromatic rice as a simple side dish. For each cup of rice, bring 2 cups broth or water to boiling. Add rice, then reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 20 to 25 minutes or until the rice is tender and all of the liquid is absorbed.

Meal ends with Chocolate-Dipped Treats

AP - These minty chocolate desserts are great to end a meal.

CHOCOLATE-DIPPED TREATS

One 10-to-12-ounce package chocolate morsels, any flavor
2 tablespoons vegetable shortening (not butter or margarine)
Fresh strawberries or other seasonal fruit, rinsed and patted dry
Pretzels

Combine morsels and vegetable shortening over hot (not boiling) water. Stir until melted and smooth. Remove from heat. (If chocolate begins to set, place over hot water; stir until smooth.)

Dip fruit and pretzels into chocolate mixture, shaking off excess. Place on foil-lined cookie sheets. Chill until set, about 10 to 15 minutes. Gently loosen from foil with a metal spatula. Serve immediately. Makes 1 cup melted chocolate.

Note: Chocolate-Dipped Treats can be kept at room temperature for up to 1 hour. If chocolate becomes sticky, return to refrigerator.

(Recipe from: The Nestle Toll House Kitchens)

CHOCOLATE CUPS

One 11½-ounce package milk chocolate morsels
2 teaspoons vegetable shortening
Twelve 2-inch foil (not paper) baking cups
Minty Mousse (recipe follows)

Combine milk chocolate morsels and vegetable shortening over hot (not boiling) water. Stir until chocolate is melted and mixture is smooth. Remove from heat and let stand until mixture is slightly cooled and thickened.

Spoon about 4 teaspoons of the chocolate mixture into each foil baking cup. Using a small pastry brush, coat inside of cups generously with the chocolate mixture. Refrigerate until firm, about 30 minutes. Refrigerate cups until ready to use. Fill with Minty Mousse. Makes 12 servings.

Minty Mousse

1 cup milk
2 eggs
One 10-ounce package mint-flavored semisweet chocolate morsels
Whipped cream
Mint sprigs (for garnish)

Heat milk to simmering. Place eggs in a blender. With blender running, gradually add hot milk to eggs. Add chocolate morsels to egg-milk mixture. Cover; blend on high speed for 3 minutes.

To assemble:

Place chocolate cups (with foil baking cups) in a muffin pan. Pour blended Minty Mousse into cups. Refrigerate until firm, at least 1 hour. Gently peel foil baking cups from chocolate. Garnish with whipped cream and mint sprig.

ARTHRITIS & AUDITORIUMS
Do not let arthritis keep you from summer festivals and the entertainment offered at the Fox, Pine Knob, Meadowbrook, or the Palace.
Call the theatre or arena box office. Inform the management that you have arthritis and explain your needs such as accommodation for a walker or wheelchair, or to stand frequently to prevent profound stiffness. Ask to have your seat near the washroom, or on the aisle. Inquire if a special entrance is available. Request a map that shows the elevators and the location of handicapped parking.
The law and good business relations encourage management to provide a barrier free access; your questions should receive a satisfactory reply and a prompt mailing of the information you request.
Arrive to the show early. Accept that some employees may not know the handicap provisions of the theatre, and may be more an obstacle to your seating than a help.
Come to the performance with a good attitude. Be proud that you venture into the world, rather than apologetic that you need an assist from others. The greatest difficulty to enjoyment may not be the stairs in front of you, or the crowd rushing about you. Too often the most difficult problem to overcome is your reluctance to set aside the fears within you.

Meeting the challenge of Scallops Linguine family-tested winner dinner

Betsy Brethen

With the ever-increasing focus on eating healthful food and keeping fit, many people are experimenting with different ingredients in order to make favorite recipes lower in fat and calories.

This week's Winner Dinner Winner, Debbie Cox of Livonia, submitted a menu that includes a recipe for Scallops Linguine.

Substituting cornstarch and evaporated skim milk for heavy cream and butter, she succeeded in maintaining the creamy texture and great flavor of a recipe that had long been a personal favorite.

Fresh, steamed asparagus; dinner rolls; and peanut butter pie, made with CoolWhip, complete the meal that has the added benefit of being quick and easy to put together.

COX, ORIGINALLY from Owosso, Mich., received her bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration from Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant.

With her hard-earned diplomas in hand, Cox came to Detroit and began her career with Manufacturers Bank.

Working as a branch manager, she met her husband, Jim, the owner of a landscaping service called Bush Gardens. They eventually married and are now the parents of two young girls.

As with her recipe, Cox has had to make adjustments in her professional life as well, now that she is a mother.

She has been able to combine motherhood with a career successfully and teaches one or two evening classes a semester at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

COX ENJOYS cooking, especially cakes, cookies and anything with chocolate in it.

To accommodate her sweet tooth, she exercises regularly and watches her caloric intake. She enjoys getting together with friends and their children, loves to shop and, when she has a quiet moment, likes to read books on child-rearing.

Thank you, Debbie Cox, for sharing your recipes with us, and congratulations on being selected this week's Winner Dinner Winner. All the best to you and your family. Your support of this column is much appreciated.

ON A final note, as we welcome the long-awaited summer months, I encourage you to send in your family's favorite hot-weather meals.

I am also looking for menus from people who are from or who have lived in countries other than the United States. After all, variety is the spice of life!

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012.

All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

Recipes

SCALLOPS LINGUINE

It's delicious tasting and easy. Your family will swear you have been slaving away to make this wonderful dinner when, in fact, it only takes minutes to put together. Although the pasta should be cooked just before serving, everything else can be made in advance. This recipe serves 5.

8 ounces linguine (or thin spaghetti)
1 pound bay scallops, rinsed and drained
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon fresh or dried parsley, chopped finely
¼ teaspoon fresh or dried dill weed, chopped finely
Dash of salt and pepper
1 tablespoon margarine (or omit, and use vegetable spray)
1 teaspoon cornstarch
⅓ cup evaporated skim milk
⅓ cup Parmesan cheese, divided

In a medium-sized bowl, combine the scallops, lemon juice, garlic, parsley, dill weed, salt and pepper. Toss gently. Cover and refrigerate 10-15 minutes so that the flavors can blend.

Cook the linguine al dente, according to the directions on the package. Drain and rinse with hot water.

Melt the margarine or spray a skillet or large saucepan with vegetable spray. Drain the scallops and cook over medium-high heat for 3-4 minutes, stirring frequently. Sprinkle cornstarch on the scallops, add the milk and heat until bubbly and thickened, about 2 minutes. Add the linguine to the scallops along with half of the Parmesan cheese and toss well, distributing the scallops evenly. Heat the mixture through, top with the remaining cheese and serve.

FRESH ASPARAGUS

Wash and cut the ends off the asparagus spears. Place them in a microwavable dish with a small amount of water. Cover and cook on high until crisp-tender, about 7 minutes.

If not using a microwave, steam the spears in a covered pan of boiling water until they are crisp-tender.

HEAT-AND-SERVE ROLLS

This week's Winner Dinner Winner suggests using Bread Du Jour Bavarian Cracked Wheat Rolls, found in the fresh bread aisle in the supermarket.

PEANUT BUTTER PIE

This recipe comes from the Sweet Onion Restaurant in Mt. Pleasant. It is easy to make and not too heavy tasting.

4 ounces cream cheese, softened
1 cup powdered sugar
Beat the above until smooth, then add:
⅓ cup peanut butter
½ cup milk

Beat until smooth and then fold in 9 ounces of CoolWhip. Place the mixture in a graham cracker Readycrust, extra-large size, and place in the freezer. Freeze until firm. Allow to sit several minutes at room temperature before serving. For an extra taste treat, top with hot fudge.

Notes

Summer's the time to serve cooling mint juleps

AP — Mint juleps, a refreshing warm-weather drink, are traditionally served in sterling silver julep cups, filled with crushed ice, or 8-to 10-ounce glasses.

MINT JULEPS

1 cup sugar
1 cup water
1 bunch fresh mint sprigs (2 ounces or about 2 cups lightly packed)
Crushed ice
Kentucky bourbon

Combine sugar and water; boil for 5 minutes without stirring. Cool. Place mint in a jar with a lid; add syrup. Refrigerate overnight. Remove mint. Keep syrup refrigerated. This will keep several weeks and individual juleps may be made as desired.

For each serving, fill an 8-ounce glass with crushed ice. Add 1 tablespoon syrup, 1 tablespoon water and 2 ounces (¼ cup) bourbon. Stir gently until glass is frosted. Insert straw and garnish with a sprig of mint.

(Recipe from: "Kentucky Derby Museum Cookbook." The Kentucky Derby Museum, Louisville, Ky. $22.)

MINT JULEP

Confectioners' sugar
2½ ounces whiskey
Fresh mint sprigs

Dissolve 1 teaspoon confectioners' sugar with 2 teaspoons water in a silver mug. Fill with finely shaved ice and 2½ ounces whiskey. Stir until mug is heavily frosted; add more ice if necessary. (Do not hold mug while stirring.)

Decorate with 5 or 6 sprigs of fresh mint so that the tops are about 2 inches above the rim of the mug.

(Recipe from: "Jack Daniel's The Spirit of Tennessee Cookbook" by Pat Mitchamore and Lynn Tolley. Rutledge Hill Press, Nashville, Tenn. $19.95.)

MINT ICE TEA JULEPS

2 cups boiling water
2 mint tea bags
4 teaspoons sugar
Crushed ice
4 ounces bourbon
Fresh mint

Pour two cups boiling water over two mint tea bags. Steep for 5 minutes. Remove tea bags. Stir in 4 teaspoons sugar. Allow tea to cool. Fill 4 tall glasses with crushed ice. Measure 1 ounce bourbon and ½ cup cooled tea over ice in each glass. If necessary, add ice to fill glass.

Make low-fat selections in dairy products

Lite success

Florine Mark

June is recognized as National Dairy Month to celebrate dairy products and the importance they play in our daily diet.

Milk and other dairy products supply protein as well as a variety of vitamins and minerals essential for good health.

Vitamin A, vitamin D, phosphorus, riboflavin and vitamin B-12 are among those necessary for healthy skin and hair.

The most commonly known benefit of milk and milk products is calcium — the mineral vital for strong teeth and bones.

WHILE IT'S important to choose dairy products for the vitamins and minerals they provide, it's equally important to choose from the low-fat selections available in today's market.

Many delicious low-fat dairy products can be found in the dairy case for the health- and diet-conscious consumer.

Low-fat and skim milk, reduced-calorie margarine, low-fat and part-skim cheese, and the many low-fat frozen dairy desserts are all excellent choices.

YOGURT, WHICH gained popularity as a "health food" in the '70s and '80s, has been perfected to taste wonderfully good as a snack or frozen treat. Frozen yogurt, which is low in calories and fat and high in calcium and protein, is one of my favorites.

Other low-fat dairy tips to try: Substitute 2 tablespoons plain yogurt for 2 tablespoons sour cream to top your baked potato.

Spread 1 ounce part-skim ricotta cheese on a bagel instead of 1 ounce cream cheese and cut the calories in half.

Spoon into chocolate frozen yogurt (105 calories and 2 grams fat per ½ cup) instead of high-fat premium chocolate ice cream (230 calories and 8 grams fat per ½ cup) for dessert.

Go ahead and celebrate National Dairy Month by choosing low-fat dairy products. Healthy selections make all the difference in fat and calories.

BANANA-YOGURT ORLEANS
Makes 2 Servings

1 tablespoon whipped butter
1 teaspoon margarine
¼ cup freshly squeezed orange juice
1 tablespoon dark rum
2 teaspoons firmly packed light brown sugar
⅛ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 medium banana (about 6 ounces), peeled and diagonally sliced
1 cup plain low-fat yogurt
2 teaspoons grated orange zest

In 1-quart microwaveable shallow casserole combine butter and margarine and microwave on high (100 percent) for 30 seconds, until melted.

Stir in orange juice, rum, sugar and cinnamon and stir to dissolve sugar. Microwave on High for 2 minutes until mixture is reduced by ¼. Add banana and turn to coat; microwave on high for 30 seconds, until banana is heated through (do not overcook).

In small mixing bowl combine yogurt and vanilla. Into each of 2 dessert dishes spoon half of the yogurt; top each portion with half of the banana mixture and 1 teaspoon orange zest.

Markham wines a real value focus on wine

Eleanor and Ray Heald

Every few years since the late 1970s, we have stopped by the humble stone structure of Markham Vineyards just north of the town of St. Helena in the Napa Valley. To be quite blunt about it, we tasted the wines, yawned, mumbled a ho-hum to each other and left as quietly as we entered.

Last year, we blind-tasted the 1987 Merlot and were surprised because it stole the show. Fearing a flash in the pan, we've been tasting Markham regularly and are now prepared to declare the wines consistent, right on target and undiscovered Napa Valley values.

"In 1978, the winery lacked vineyards with premium grapes," remarks winemaker Bob Foley. "It has taken us 10 years of planting and replanting to have vineyards worthy of premium bottlings."

The stone building housing Markham Vineyards was constructed by Bordeaux emigre Jean Laurent more than 100 years ago. It is the fourth most continuously used winery in Napa County. In 1978, Markham Vineyards was founded by Bruce Markham. It was purchased in 1988 by Mercian Corp., a Japanese conglomerate and largest producer of wine in Japan.

TO MATCH its new wine image, the winery is undergoing a massive reconstruction to double the size of its production facility. When the project is completed in 1992, the winery will be 75,000 square feet to accommodate fruit from the winery-owned vineyards. The 85-acre Napa Ranch is planted chardonnay and sauvignon while the 110-acre Yountville Ranch, and the 60-acre Calistoga Vineyard at the base of Mt. St. Helena yield the classic Bordeaux red grapes, cabernet sauvignon, merlot and cabernet franc.

Led by president Bryan del Bondio and winemaker Bob Foley, Markham wines show the excitement of a new breed of California producer, respectful of winemaking traditions but willing to experiment and question the old assumptions.

They approach winemaking like a puzzle, fitting together the interlocking pieces of separate vineyards, clones and vinification techniques into an integrated, complex picture.

In addition to outstanding merlot, Markham produces cabernet sauvignon, sauvignon blanc, muscat blanc and chardonnay. "In the future, I'd like to produce varietal semillon," Foley maintains.

"Both Bryan (del Bondio) and I have technical winemaking degrees from the University of California at Davis, but we believe taste buds can measure much more than the lab. Joe Heitz once told me that chemists make lousy winemakers.

"We determine grape ripeness by walking the vineyards and sampling the fruit. We also watch where the birds are hanging out. This gives us more information about grape ripeness than a refractometer."

A CURRENT tasting of the 1989 Markham Napa Valley Chardonnay ($15) reveals a wine with appley and citrus aromas happily married to solid melony, tropical fruit flavors and balanced oak. It's lush and opulent.

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1988 Markham Vineyards Merlot ($16) is blended with 25 percent cabernet sauvignon offering a solid backbone and unique, complexing interplay with the merlot. This well-structured pour showcases black cherry fruit from start to finish with nuances of fragrant thyme and sage, spice in a delicious rendition.

WINE BULLETIN BOARD

Wine Dinner ($60 per person) with Jim Allen of the Napa Valley's Sequoia Grove Vineyards on Tuesday, June 11, at the Golden Mushroom restaurant in Southfield. Event begins with appetizers at 6 p.m. Three of Allen's lush chardonnays and four of his stunning cabernets will complement the multi-course dinner. For reservations phone 559-4230.

Markham's 1990 Sauvignon Blanc ($10) is complexed by the addition of 25 percent semillon. The wine is finesseful with a generous mouthfeel and refined finish.

Walnuts make a good addition to salads

AP — For a salad that is low in calories, cholesterol and saturated fats — but high in appetite appeal — combine seasonal vegetables and crunchy walnuts.

Walnuts contain fat that is 70 percent polyunsaturated. They are low in sodium, contain no cholesterol, and are a source of protein and fiber, according to the Walnut Marketing Board.

"Aside from their nutritional composition, walnuts are an excellent addition" to salads, the board says, "because their strong flavor has a chameleonlike quality, tasting sweet when paired with fresh vegetables and cheese, or sharp when paired with savory ingredients such as onions and grilled meats."

Basic ingredient substitutions, such as non-stick vegetable cooking spray instead of oil, and creative cooking methods, such as grilling, broiling and steaming, make it possible to add "indulgent" ingredients such as walnuts, low-fat cheese and meats to salads, according to the board.

The Walnut Board asked Harris Golden of Arizona's Maine Chance resort to create a spa salad recipe for at-home cooks. The result: a Sunburst Salad made with slices of summer squash, zucchini, carrot and red bell pepper, topped with walnuts and a sherry ginger dressing.

MAINE CHANCE SUNBURST SALAD WITH SHERRY-GINGER DRESSING

½ cup walnuts, coarsely chopped
2 teaspoons honey
1 large zucchini, cut into slices 2½ inches in length
1 yellow summer squash, cut into slices 2½ inches in length
1 carrot, cut into slices 2½ inches in length
1½ pound Chinese snow peas
1 red bell pepper, cut into slices 2½ inches in length
¾ cup (3 ounces) Jarlsberg "lite" cheese, shredded
Sherry Ginger Dressing (recipe follows)

Combine walnuts with honey in a small bowl; stir to coat. Place walnuts on a greased baking sheet. Roast in a 350-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes. Set aside.

Bring large pot of water to a boil over medium heat. Prepare a large bowl of ice water. Plunge zucchini into the boiling water for 30 seconds. Using tongs or a slotted spoon, transfer the zucchini into the bowl of ice water. Drain on paper towels. Repeat with the summer squash, carrot and snow peas. (Do not blanch the red pepper.)

Place 2 tablespoons of the shredded cheese in a mound on each of 6 serving plates. Arrange zucchini, summer squash, carrot, snow peas and red bell pepper in a sunburst pattern around the cheese. Top with the roasted walnuts. Serve with Sherry Ginger Dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 140 cal., 6.9 g pro., 5 mg chol., 7.8 g fat.

Sherry Ginger Dressing
2 tablespoons peanut oil
⅓ cup rice vinegar
1 tablespoon dry sherry
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
2 teaspoons minced ginger
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper

In a small mixing bowl, whisk all ingredients together. Chill before serving.

Nutrition information per serving: 53 cal., 0 g pro., 0 mg chol., 4.5 g fat.

Coyne boots Spartans into final 4

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Yes, yes, it's true — the best play their best in big games. In Saturday's Class A state regional girls soccer showdown between Plymouth Salem and Livonia Stevenson, the Spartans' Ragen Coyne and Lori Godlewski proved that.

But it's also true that you need a little luck to be a champion.

Stevenson proved that as well. With the match tied 1-1 eight minutes into the second half, Lisa Ferguson headed a shot at the Spartan goal. Keeper Karen Groulx lunged at the ball and was able to get just a piece of it, deflecting it with her right hand enough to keep it out of the net.

But not hard enough to push it out of danger. Jennifer Oleksiak charged in from left wing and — with Groulx sprawled on the turf — drilled the rebound over the bar.

The tie had been maintained. Six minutes later it was broken, but it was Stevenson that did the untying. A corner kick from Coy[illegible] as bobbled and dropped by Salem keeper Jennifer Emmett after she collided with a Stevenson player. Andrea Wittrock knocked the ball into the net and the Spartans were ahead.

COYNE ADDED an insurance goal — her second of the game — and the defending state champs had survived their biggest test of the state tournament thus far, beating Salem 3-1 at Woodhaven HS.

The win puts Stevenson into the state semifinals against Troy Athens, 5:30 p.m. Wednesday at Troy HS.

"I don't know if it was luck or experience," said Stevenson coach Mary Kay Hussey — before admitting that Groulx's save was, very likely, a game-saver.

It certainly turned things around for the Spartans. Indeed, they were fortunate to be tied after 50 minutes. Salem outplayed them in the first half, but it was Stevenson that scored first.

"We played awful in the first half," agreed Hussey. "We were playing kickball, and we're not a kickball team — or at least we're not as successful playing kickball.

[illegible] half, we put the ball on the ground and we played much better."

SALEM WAS more effective in the opening half with a physical style of play. But the Rocks were hurting; leading scorer Erin Harvey was hampered by a knee injury and played sparingly, and Mackenzie Emmett and Amy Krajewski were both hobbled.

Still, they controlled play until a defensive breakdown allowed Coyne, one of the state's top players, to get loose.

A free kick from Godlewski on the left side reached Coyne 10 yards in front of the net as Salem sweeper Gwen Gibbish stumbled on the soggy turf. Coyne turned and pounded the ball into the left corner, making it 1-0 with 14:17 left in the first half.

It didn't stay that way long. The Rocks counterattacked immediately, and Mandy Drummond cashed in after fielding a pass 18 yards out, setting it and knocking it past Groulx to tie it at 1-all with 12:18 remaining in the half.

The Rocks sounded confident at halftime, and rightly so. They started the second half with three good scoring chances (the last was Oleksiak's miss), but didn't convert any.

AND THAT cost them. "We had our chances today," said Salem coach Ken Johnson. "But you've got to put them in the net. All we needed were a few breaks."

The Rocks didn't get many. And after Wittrock's goal with 31:28 remaining put Stevenson ahead, the tide shifted. The Spartans took control and maintained it, with Salem getting just one other true scoring chance — a loose ball that was cleared out of danger by Stevenson's Patty Diamond with 25:00 left.

Coyne got the insurance score with 12:35 left after another free kick from Godlewski. The Salem defense froze, and Coyne made them pay, launching a shot from 22 yards that went into the corner.

"What can I say? She's a big game player," said Hussey of Coyne. "She knows what it means, and she doesn't stop. I think it's her experience in pressure situations. She knows when to dig down."

Coyne was certainly good enough to provide her team with the kick-start it needed this time. The Spartans are unbeaten since losing 5-1 to Salem in the regular season last year. They are 17-0-2; Salem bows out at 16-2-1.

Marlins elude state-ranked Pats

By Brad Emons

Graduation took on added meaning for pitcher Maureen Paulin and her Farmington Hills Mercy senior softball teammates Saturday afternoon.

After spending Friday night celebrating, the Marlins went out and won the Class A district championship Saturday at the Southfield Civic Center with a pair of 1-0 victories over rivals Livonia Ladywood and Livonia Franklin.

Paulin was not overpowering in her 14 innings on the mound, but simply razor-sharp. She had only eight strikeouts, but gave up only four hits and four walks.

"I was up until 3 a.m. because I was excited about graduation, too," said Paulin, who was recently voted the Catholic League's Female Athlete of the Year. "The second game (against Franklin) was very important because they're our big rivals. They've always beaten us. I wanted to beat them bad because they're state-ranked. This means a lot and it feels good because we accomplished one of our goals."

Franklin (19-6), last year's Class A finalists, could not solve Paulin's brilliant pitching after squeaking past Northville in the other semifinal, 4-2.

THE PATRIOTS, Western Lakes Activities Association champions, mustered only two hits off the Mercy right-hander.

"Paulin was very good," said Franklin coach Joe Epstein. "She (Paulin) just doesn't walk anybody. She stays ahead on the count and it seems she throws a strike every other pitch. I thought she was a little quicker in the second game than the first. We felt confident we could hit her, but she pitched a whale of a game."

Franklin's Jenny Mayle, meanwhile, matched Paulin practically pitch for pitch, but was the victim of an unearned run in the first inning.

The Patriot senior allowed only three hits and did not walk a batter. She fanned five.

The Catholic League champions manufactured the only run of the game in the top of the first with one out.

Paulin reached base on a Franklin infield error. She advanced to second on Angela's Mastroionni's sacrifice bunt. Paulin then hesitated on a steal for third. Franklin catcher Tracy Parenti's throw was on time, but shortstop Emily Skura broke late to the bag and the ball grazed her glove and out into left field. Paulin just kept coming around third and scored what proved to be the game-winning run.

"I NEVER THOUGHT it would be a one-run game," Mercy coach Suzanne Brown said. "But by the fifth inning somebody on the bench told me that (first-inning run) would be it.

"We play percentage ball and try to get it down so different people can field it. We've never been blessed with the big hitters, but I think we're solid all the way through our lineup. We're quick and we know what to do."

Epstein prepared for Mercy's ways, but the Patriots' first-inning miscues proved to be too much to overcome.

"They (Mercy) play for one run and they feel they can win with one or two," Epstein said. "I told our girls we needed at least three. I felt going in that one run was not enough. I thought it would be a 4-3 game. We basically made all the plays. We played solid defensively for the most part."

The Marlins, meanwhile, made only one error all day, and that came in the bottom of the seventh of the championship final when center fielder Kathleen Berrigan came charging in on a short pop-up with Franklin pinch-runner Tammy Schaffer on first base.

Berrigan dropped the ball, but had the presence of mind to grab it and force the runner out at second base. Paulin then got Jenny Murray on a pop out to second base to end the game.

"I'M VERY IMPRESSED with our team defense more than anything," said Brown, whose team is 27-8 overall. "In my six years here this the best I've felt about a group as far as knowing the game and making all the right plays. They don't quit and I'm very happy. They've achieved a lot."

The Marlins, however, did not have an easy time with Catholic League rival Ladywood.

The two teams split their four-game series during the regular season.

Mercy tallied its only run against Ladywood pitcher Staci Kowalczyk in the bottom of the sixth on a single by Mastroionni, a sacrfice bunt by Heffernan followed by an infield error. (Pinch-runner Jennifer Banish scored on the play.)

Kowalczyk, a left-hander, allowed only two hits while fanning six as the Blazers bowed out with an 18-15 record.

"I told my team this would be a 1-0 game," Ladywood coach Kim Linenger said. "We hit a lot of balls right at them, we just couldn't find the holes. Their pitcher (Paulin) pitched a nice game. She's been a workhorse for them lately."

In the other semifinal, the Patriots had to struggle to beat Northville, a team they had beaten badly during the regular season by scores 14-0 and 11-1.

THE PATRIOTS scored one run in the third and another in the sixth — both unearned — off Northville pitcher Karen Trepicone.

The Mustangs tied it up in the bottom of the sixth on a two-run double by Kara McNeil, but Franklin came storming back in the top of the seventh on Parenti's clutch two-run double.

"We got a break to win the first game," Epstein admitted.

Six errors, including a costly miscue in the seventh, led to Northville's undoing.

"Those are the type of things that have been hurting us all year," said Northville coach Gail Trepicone, whose team finished the year at 13-12. "But Karen (Trepicone) has been coming on strong the last quarter of the season. She's pitched in every inning of every game."

Mayle won her 19th game of the year (against three losses). She struck out seven and allowed four hits. (Trepicone gave up six hits.)

But the day belonged to Paulin, who is now 19-6 on the year, and Mercy.

"I like to throw a strike before anything else," she said. "I don't really have a variety of pitches. I use a change-up and a rise. I'm not extremely quick, but I rely on changing speeds."

Mercy now advances to the Class A regional semifinals Saturday at Wyandotte, where Observerland's No. 1 ranked team, Garden City (31-2), awaits.

CC gains regional spot

Redford Catholic Central gained what it has been looking for all season — respect.

The Shamrocks, who usually field great teams, started state tournament play (after a somewhat disappointing regular season) unsure of whether they had what it takes to make a good run.

Well, they took a big step after winning the Class A district at Southfield, posting a thrilling 4-3 baseball win over University of Detroit-Jesuit in the semifinal [illegible] followed by a 9-4 victory over [illegible] ville in the final. The tr[illegible] ables the Shamrocks [illegible] advance Saturday (June 8) into regional play in Wyandotte (Memorial Field).

"We haven't been favored to win at all this year," said starting and winning pitcher Bob Kummer. "We just respect our opponents and give 100 percent. That's all you can ask for."

Northville (7-19) wasn't even supposed to make it to the finals after winning only six regular-season games. But the young Mustangs proved to onlookers that they were a much better team than indicated, gaining a little respect for themselves after beating favored Livonia Franklin (14-9) in the other semifinal, 2-1.

THE FINAL started out as if CC was going to make it a mercy game. The Shamrocks scored twice in the first on a pair of bases loaded walks. They added two more in the second on a sacrifice fly and an error.

During both innings they left the bases full.

Northville made a pitching change and didn't give up another run until the bottom of the fifth when the Shamrocks picked up five, highlighted by Scott Kapla's three-run triple.

With the score 4-1 in the top of the fifth, Northville missed a chance to capitalize, leaving runners stranded at second and third base.

Kummer, a junior right-hander, picked up the win to run his record to 8-3. He wasn't overpowering during his 6⅓ innings, but allowed one hit and three earned runs. (He walked five.)

"The coach told me to make sure that I throw strikes," Kummer said. "We played so well in the field. That made it a lot easier."

The only time Kummer really got into trouble was in the top of the seventh inning when he gave up two walks, followed by an error to load the bases.

Kummer was relieved by senior Steve Ross, who promptly walked in a run and then gave up a double to make the score 9-4.

ROSS EXITED with runners at second and third.

With one out, coach John Salter went to ace pitcher Kapla, who retired the next two batters on a strikeout and a bouncer back to the mound to end any Northville comeback hopes.

"The kids battled hard all day," said Northville coach Bob Frellick. "They proved that in the last inning. They played like a team that had a winning record. I'm proud of the way they played today."

CC, meanwhile, advances to face the winnner of the Garden City district.

"We're the kind of team that plays great one day and bad the next," Salter said. "We never know who is going to show up. We're up and down. Hopefully, we'll play better defense and throw better. We've been scoring enough runs."

The down team must have showed up for Game No. 1 as the Shamrocks barely escaped U-D, thanks to the heroics of definite district MVP Kapla (6-3), who inherited a 3-2 deficit.

He worked the final 3⅔ innings, giving up just one hit. It was his fence-clearing homer in the top of the seventh that won it.

"SCOTT DID IT all today for us," Salter said. "He won the first game with his hitting and pitching, and he saved the second game. He is our best all-around player."

CC jumped out to a 2-0 lead with a pair of runs in the first two innings, but U-D got three in the bottom half of the third to take a 3-2 lead.

The Cubs carried that one-run lead until the sixth.

Junior outfielder Dan Gusoff singled, stole second and third, and scored when the U-D catcher threw the ball into left field, tying the game at 3-all.

That set the stage for Kapla, who sent a screaming shot over the left field fence.

Northville captured semifinal on a bases-loaded walk in the top of the sixth.

Franklin coach Jim Karoub decided to make a pitching change with one on and one out and the score tied at 1.

He replaced starter Mike Berry with Dave Roman, but it proved to be costly. (Berry had only given up three hits and no walks.)

GUY WARREN/staff photographer

Aaron Rumberger (right) of Redford Catholic Central slides safely into home plate against Northville in the Class A district baseball final at Southfield.

Roman came on and got the first two outs, but had control problems thereafter. He got flustered after a pair of walks and an infield error that led to the game-winning run.

"I WANTED five good innings out of Berry," said Karoub. "He had 60 pitches and he was throwing a little high. He had only one strikeout and they were hitting the ball off him, but we were making the plays behind him.

"With Roman I thought we'd give them a different look. He could overpower them. He got a little upset on some close calls. I'd do it again. We engineered it correctly, but we just didn't execute it."

Franklin jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the third after a walk, sacrifice bunt and a run-scoring single by catcher Jeff Schaffer. But that's all the Patriots could muster up against Northville hurler Mike Lang, a 6-foot-5 senior who kept hitters off balance with his mixture of a sharp curveball and effective fastball.

"The bottom line is that we couldn't hit Lang," Karoub said. "He struck out seven and we just didn't put the ball in play enough. They outplayed us."

Northville tied the game in the fifth after a single, sacrifice bunt and a double.

"Usually, I just throw the hardball for the first two innings and then I switch to the curve," Lang said. "But today, I got the curve going first. We also played very well defensively."

Saunders hurls C'ville into regional softball

Trivia question: When was the last time Livonia Clarenceville won district softball championship?

Answer: 1979.

The Trojans ended a 12-year drought Saturday, capturing the Class C district title Saturday at the Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher Sports Complex, defeating the host Lancers in the final, 5-4.

Clarenceville (16-3) advances to the Blissfield regional against the Leslie district champion at 10 a.m. Saturday.

"When we started practicing at the beginning of March we never dreamed we'd be here," said Clarenceville coach Wendy Kellehan, who was doused with a cooler of water after the game. "We buckled down and got tough when we had to be. We're so high right now. The players are pleased with themselves and they have reason to be."

Senior pitcher Rhonda Saunders was the hero in the win over Gallagher.

She struck out 12, walked six and allowed only two hits over seven innings. Saunders also helped her own cause with the bat, going 2-for-4 with three RBI.

In the second inning, Clarenceville scored three times to take a 4-1 lead thanks to Saunders' two-run double, scoring Monica Kaipio and Tracy Peterson.

Gallagher tied it up in the top of the sixth, but the Trojans tallied the game-winner in the bottom half of the inning.

Kaipio singled, stole second, took third on a passed ball and scored on another passed ball to give Clarenceville the win.

Clarenceville advanced to the finals with a 9-3 semifinal victory over Detroit Country Day of Birmingham.

The Trojans overcame a 3-0 first-inning deficit.

Saunders held Country Day hitless over the final six innings. She struck out 10 and walked only three.

"Rhonda couldn't seem to loosen up (in the first), but she certainly settled down after that," Kellehan said.

Sophomore first baseman Jodi Graham paced a five-hit Clarenceville attack, going 2-for-3 with a double and two RBI.

Another key to the two-game sweep for the Trojans was the play of catcher Michelle Torres, who threw out three base runners.

"Michelle had some trouble in the first inning (against DCD) with some passed balls, but overall she had a nice tourney," Kellehan said of Torres.

The Trojans will be vying for their first regional crown since the 1978 and '79 seasons, when Karen Oliva led Clarenceville to back-to-back state Class B semifinal berths.

IDA 10, LUTH. WESTLAND 2: In Class C district semifinal action Saturday, the Bluestreaks (21-3) rode the five-hit pitching of Erin Fedor to beat Lutheran High Westland (15-6).

Fedor struck out 11 and walked seven to pick up the win, besting Lutheran Westland starter and loser Christy Pydyn, who allowed nine hits and one walk.

Pydyn and Sarah Love each collected two hits in a losing cause.

Pydyn and Amy Sieloff scored the Warriors' runs.

"They were definitely the better of the two ballclubs," admitted Lutheran Westland coach Ron Gentz. "We had to play well to beat them, but we had a good season."

Spartans show no Mercy

The tears flowed, unrestrained. The season had ended for Farmington Hills Mercy's soccer team, and its finish had not been a particularly happy one.

Marlin coach Deepak Shivraman insisted his team "had nothing to be ashamed of." Considering all Mercy had accomplished — Catholic League and Class A district champions, a 16-2-3 record — Shivraman's claim would seem valid.

But it would have been difficult to convince the Marlins of it Thursday as they trudged off the Woodhaven HS field, heads bowed after absorbing a 5-1 bludgeoning from Livonia Stevenson in a Region II semifinal.

Mercy's record for the season was exceptional. That much is true. The Marlins did not lose to Stevenson because of a series of silly mistakes, or because of bad breaks, or because they weren't properly prepared.

They lost by four goals because Stevenson was four goals better.

THE SPARTANS extended their unbeaten streak to one year-plus. They have not lost since the Western Lakes Activities Association regular season of 1990. The defending state champs attacked from the opening kickoff against Mercy and never relented.

"They've been doing that all season long, coming out hard," said Shivraman. "We knew they'd do that. It didn't surprise us."

What did surprise the Mercy coach wasn't the talent of Spartans like midfielder Ragen Coyne and forward/defender Lori Godlewski. His team was ready for them. But the Stevenson depth — that was different.

"I thought Coyne might have a field day," said Shivraman. "That was my focus. But every time they went to the bench, they were strong.

"Depth-wise, we still have a lot of work to do."

Reaching a depth in skill level comparable to Stevenson's won't be easy, for any team in the state. Which made Thursday's conditions — temperatures near 90 — ideal for the Spartans. Coach Mary Kay Hussey went to her bench early and often.

"THE FIRST half, we weren't tired and I (still) subbed a lot," she noted. "We were able to use our strength on the bench. And I think our fitness level showed."

That it did. Even in less fatiguing conditions, Stevenson's speed can be difficult to contain. In hot and humid weather, trying to slow down all the swarming Spartans borders on impossible.

Mercy was simply a step slow, and it showed on nearly every goal. Before the match was five minutes old, Godlewski fielded a lob pass from sweeper Lisa Thomas, turned and beat Mercy defender Beth Ziobro to the inside, then banged a shot past Renee Larabell. 1-0, Stevenson.

For the next 20 minutes, the Marlins battled. They weren't very dangerous offensively — indeed, until they scored late in the game they did not really threaten at all — but they kept the Spartans bottled up. Theresa Cisco shadowed Coyne and did it well enough to keep her off the scoreboard.

THE MATCH turned in the final 5½ minutes of the opening half. A free kick by Godlewski reached Holly Kimble. Again, Kimble was able to turn and elude the Mercy defender; she beat Larabell to make it 2-0 with 5:18 left in the half.

A corner kick in the final minute of the half led to Stevenson's third score. During the scramble in the goal box after the kick, Ziobro was whistled for a hand ball. Michele Brach converted the penalty kick and, with :29 left, the Spartan lead was 3-0.

Shivraman didn't make radical second-half changes to try and offset Stevenson's advantage. "In the first half, we had stayed back and let them play," he said. "In the second half we settled down, and went out and played our game."

The reason, Shivraman figured, his team played tenatively in the opening half was the opponent. "Psychologically, it's hard to get ready to play against an undefeated team because you're so anxious."

AND, AS Hussey pointed out, Stevenson's unbeaten status was more impressive considering the schedule the Spartans played. "Our experience was a plus," she said. "Our conference is so difficult. (Mercy) just doesn't play a schedule like that."

Even though the Marlins played steadily throughout the second half, they couldn't match Stevenson. And they were tiring. It was evident on both of the Spartans' second-half scores. On the first, Maureen Drabicki merely outran the Mercy defender down the left wing, turned toward goal and scored to make it 4-0 with 20:42 left.

Mercy got on the board with 8:17 left after they were awarded a direct kick from 25 yards out. Kathryn Dudley lofted her shot over the Stevenson wall and into the corner of the net, trimming the deficit to 4-1.

The Spartans closed out the scoring when Shannon Wilkinson took a long through pass and outraced the defense down the middle of the field to beat a diving Larabell with 4:00 remaining.

Glenn baseball season ends, 4-3

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Salem coach John Gravlin opened the packet of information he was given Saturday afternoon to learn who the Rocks will be playing in the regional baseball tournament.

The salutation atop the introductory letter said: "Congratulatons on your district championship."

"I'm getting used to this," Gravlin said after reading that.

Regional appearances have become an annual event for Salem, which won its fourth district title in the last five years Saturday with a 3-1 victory over Plymouth Canton at Ann Arbor Huron.

The Rocks have twice won back-to-back championships, in 1987-88 and 1990-91. Canton, which has lost three of those games to Salem, won in 1989.

"OF THE four, this one is the most impressive," Gravlin said. "We had four great teams in this district and three of the top pitchers in the state."

The second figure should probably be increased to four, also, after Jeff Belisle's performance in the championship game.

After teammate Scott Rodgers threw a one-hitter in the second game to help Salem defeat Western Lakes Activities Association champion Westland John Glenn 4-3, Belisle tossed a two-hitter at the Chiefs in the final.

Canton ace Scott Kennedy outdueled Adrian's Dan Lock in the first game as the Chiefs prevailed with a 3-2, come-from-behind victory.

Furthermore, every team in the tournament had more than 20 wins. Salem advances with a (22-6) record to play the Wyandotte district winner at 12:30 p.m. Saturday in the regional at Wyandotte. Glenn finishes with a 23-3 record and Canton 22-7.

"The difference in all those years is that we've had the better No. 2 pitcher," Gravlin said. "That seems to be it every time.

"THAT WAS a masterful game by Belisle. He's clearly been our No. 2 since midway in the season. There are days Jeff Belisle just heats it up."

Belisle faced 25 batters and threw 87 pitches, 53 for strikes. He struck out four and walked two. Canton's only run came on pinch-hitter Ben Hendricks' solo homer after the Rocks had taken a 3-0 lead.

"The home run was my fault," Gravlin said. "I assumed the kid was taking it and we'd throw one across."

Frank Learned pitched 4⅓ innings and gave up all three runs and five Salem hits but didn't walk anyone. Kennedy returned to pitch 2⅔ hitless innings of relief, striking out six.

"Our idea was to get (Learned) to the point we can come back with Kennedy and have it tied," Canton coach Fred Crissey said. "(Belisle) threw strikes and he didn't give us a lot. We hit the ball but couldn't find the gap."

Learned allowed only one baserunner until the fourth, when Salem scored twice. Eric Nielson led off with a single, and Scott Niemiec and Rodgers had consecutive doubles.

BUT THE key run, according to both coaches, was the one Scott Bright scored in the fifth. He singled, went to third on Ed Gundry's double and scored when the Chiefs made an infield error and a sliding Niemiec beat the throw to first.

"If it's a 2-1 game, there are a lot of things you can do," Crissey said. "If it's 3-1, you simply have to hit the ball and get on base."

"Not only that but you're not going to score many off Kennedy," Gravlin said. "He might be the best high school pitcher I've ever seen. We never faced him for seven, but a Kennedy-Rodgers matchup would have been one hell of a game.

"(Niemiec) didn't have a hit and I guess he won't get the RBI, but it was a clutch at-bat. We teach that in our program. Every time you step up there, you want to have a good at-bat. If you do that, we'll be successful, and I guess we have been."

In the Salem-Glenn game, Rodgers took a no-hitter into the seventh inning before giving up a single to Andy Gagne. But he walked 10 and hit one batter, and the Rockets had numerous scoring chances because of it.

"That was the wildest he's been all year, but he got it done when had to get it done," Gravlin said.

"JOHN GLENN has been his nemesis. It's the only team he hadn't beaten, and a little of that showed today. He got nervous in a some situations, but he dug down deep and stayed with it."

Two walks and the hit batter loaded the bases for Glenn in the fifth, and the Rockets got a run on Mike White's sacrifice fly. Rodgers ended the inning with one of five strikeouts, leaving the bases still full.

Gravlin considered going with a relief pitcher in the seventh when Glenn threatened again, scoring a run to make it 4-3 on two walks, the hit and an error.

"But you know the guy has a no-hitter going, and they know he's been shutting people down," Gravlin said. "They might come after a new guy. They tore up our relief pitching the last time.

"So it's to our advantage if he can stay in it. That says a lot about Scott Rodgers, because Glenn is one of the best hitting teams in Michigan."

The one hit was uncharacteristic of the Rockets, who scored first on Lawrence Scheffer's first-inning sacrifice fly.

"WE'VE BEEN living with (offense) all year," Glenn coach Norm Hoenes said. "We've been getting 8-9 a game and today only one.

"I thought we gave them a run in the first inning and one in the sixth, but we had our chances with the bats and didn't get the hits. I'm not going to put the blame on the defense."

Ed Gundry, who had two of Salem's seven hits, singled in the first, advanced on an error and scored on a wild pitch. The Rocks got the deciding run in the sixth when Rodgers walked and worked his way around on two errors.

"Ordinarily, by then we've scored enough runs to cover up our errors, but today was a tough ballgame and it showed up more than it has all season," Hoenes said.

Gundry slammed an RBI double in the second to give Salem the lead, and Kevin Craggs hit a solo homer in the fourth for a 3-1 advantage.

"When Ed Gundry hit one off the fence, that told us we were going to win the game," Gravlin said. "We were emotionally pumped for the game, but your confidence can turn on or off. When Eddie hit that one, we had a lift and our confidence went sky high."

AARON SCHEFFER went the distance for Glenn, striking five and walking one. Salem had five of its seven hits in the first two innings.

Kennedy pitched a two-hitter, struck out 12 and walked four to beat Adrian. After the first inning when the Maples scored both runs, he allowed one hit and two walks.

The Chiefs got four hits and four walks off Lock, who struck out seven.

Marc Pennebaker's RBI single made it 2-1, and Canton scored twice in the fifth. Chris James tied it with a sacrifice bunt, and Mike Wougamon raced home when Lock made a wild pitch on a strikeout.

Caesars derails Total Travel, 8-5

Redford Little Caesars beat Total Travel, 8-5, Wednesday in a Livonia Collegiate Baseball League game played at Livonia's Ford Field.

Caesars, 1-1 overall, scored four runs in the fifth inning, and reliever Lou McKaig pitched two innings of hitless ball for the victory. Caesars benefited from four Craig Murray walks in a row to rally from a 4-1 deficit to a 5-4 lead in the fifth.

After Total Travel tied the score at 5-5 in the bottom of the inning, Caesars scored two runs in the sixth to regain the lead, 7-5. Jeff Bates started the sixth with a walk, and he went to second base on a passed ball.

Earl Johnson's single sent Bates to third, and Bates scored on another passed ball. Johnson highlighted the inning by stealing home plate for a 7-5 lead.

Total Travel took a 4-1 lead in the fourth inning on a three-run home run by its ninth batter, Jason Lichtman.

Bates and Rich Roy led Caesars' seven-hit attack with a pair of hits each. Each player also scored two runs.

Sisler: man for all sports

By Darren A. Nichols
staff writer

Bo Jackson knows football and baseball, but Bo don't know diddley bout cross country skiing, bicycling, canoeing or road racing.

Del Sisler does.

Sisler, 55, is a third-year participant in the Ridge to River competition in his home town Wenatchee, Wash. He finished second in the Ironman portion with a time of 3:28:14.

The Ridge to River competition consists of three miles of cross country skiing; two miles of downhill skiing; five miles of road running, with the last leg going uphill; 19 miles of bicycling, where speeds can reach almost 55 miles per hour; seven miles of canoeing; and a half mile of running with the paddle and life jacket.

And, yes, all of this is run in the same day.

"I think the Ridge to River competition is great," Sisler said. "It's very strenuous, but you feel good once you've completed it. I got a chance to renew a lot of acquaintances and you pick up some skills."

Sisler, a 25-year veteran as a computer specialist at Ford Motor Co., is a native of Wenatchee and ran track at Wenatchee High School, where he was a middle-distance runner and long jumper. He also ran track as as a freshman at Washington State University.

The distance runner had given running up until age 50 when he missed the competition. And it was that same drive that made Sisler want to join the Ridge to River.

"I JUST WANTED to be more active and I thought I could do well (in competitions)," Sisler said about continuing running at 50. "I started participating in the Ridge to River after my father George sent me the programs for several years.

"In 1988, I decided to run. The only experience I had was running and biking. I had never been in a kayak and I had to learn how to cross-country ski at Maybury (State) Park."

This year's finish, which was 25 minutes slower than the first place finisher and 1½ hours ahead of the third place finisher, was extra special for Sisler.

It marked the last time he would run in the race.

"In January, my father died," Sisler said. "I dedicated this race to him. He was very supportive and he would have liked to have seen me in this one.

"I'm not running in the race any more because it takes me away from home too much. I'll miss the race but I will substitute with some biathalons and some road races."

Sisler trained eight to 10 hours per week for the competition.

What Sisler will probably miss the most are the sites within the Ridge to River race, which are a part of his childhood.

"THE CROSS COUNTRY skiing part of the race is the mountain we used to hike up when we are boy scouts and biking part is through the part of town where I grew up as a boy," he said. "It was kinda harder this year. It kinda brought tears to my eyes. It was great to be back home and to race in front of some of my old friends."

Sisler improved his time each year he was in the competition, which he credits to his improvement in the downhill skiing.

"I bought a roller skiing machine this year," Sisler said. "It simulates what I would expect in the race. My time dropped under six minutes per mile by improved technique."

Sisler also said that he wouldn't have done well without the support of his two children and wife of 31 years.

"(Even though) I spent a lot of time away from home, my family has been very supportive of me," said the Livonian. "If I had a chance to do it all again, I would."

SC athletic budget figures don't jibe

C.J. Risak

A RAGGED GROUP of Neanderthals crouched around a flickering fire discussing their future. It was the year 10,600 B.C. and — much like their ancestors would later do — they deliberated over who should guide them into the next century.

One of the older guys — about 150, maybe 155 (there were no environmental hazards to shorten lifespans back then, except the occasional roving tyrannosaurus rex) — thumped his chest and trumpeted, "I always led well. Look."

He thrust forward his hand, into the firelight. In it was a roughly hewn, hollowed-out piece of wood with water in it. "I have always found water for us. Our cups are never empty," he said.

A younger member of the clan — no more than 135 — waited until the murmuring among his comrades died down. Then, narrowing his eyes, he said:

"Yes — but our cups are never full. Always they are half-empty."

That was the dawn of politics.

FORUMS AND THEORIES have changed since, but the basic rules of political thinking are much the same. The Is the cup half-empty or half-full? adage has been retold countless times. It offers more than a descriptive definition of the difference between optimism and pessimism.

Politically speaking, it illustrates how hard facts can be twisted to suit one's own purpose.

A more contemporary example is currently on display at Schoolcraft College.

Wednesday, I was informed by Adelard Raby, a member of the SC administration, that information I had used in an earlier column regarding athletic scholarship budget cuts was incorrect.

Raby told me the athletic scholarship fund for 1990-91 was $33,600; he added the fund for 1991-92 was exactly the same.

So why the cuts?

It was a question he could not answer. Only the department head, Midge Carleton, could shed insight into that, and she's still on vacation.

IF ATHLETIC DIRECTOR Marty Nowak knew anything regarding the budget, he refused to say. "No comment" was the only answer Nowak supplied.

I requestioned three of the coaches I had interviewed previously, and each of them reaffirmed that there were, indeed, cuts to be dealt with in scholarships — more than 50 percent in some cases.

Right about now, you should be asking yourself what I was asking myself. Like: What the heck is going on here?

There are really only two possible answers. Either costs have risen so dramatically that the same amount of money cannot come close to paying for the same number of scholarships, or the dollars meant for athletic scholarships are being diverted elsewhere.

Raby assured me it wasn't the former. Tuition costs have risen slightly, he said, but "not enough (difference) to make a hill of beans."

SO WHERE ELSE could the money be going? Cost overruns in other areas of the athletic budget (something that doesn't really exist, according to several sources; there is no firm budget for athletics, they say) is a good guess. But are those due to overruns from the past or rising costs?

Again, Raby said he could not answer those questions. And Nowak gave his usual "no comment." Carleton, apparently (hopefully) is the only person who could.

So what's the deal? Is SC's athletic scholarship budget half-empty or just as full as it's ever been?

Both are true, I guess.

So is this, according to coaches: The money they get for scholarships from the school is already gone. Unless there is more adjusting to the budget, coaches will be left to raise additional scholarship funds for themselves.

And if the history of politics maintains its course, there will be a lot of finger-wagging as each group blames the other. The ultimate victims, of course, will be the kids who don't get scholarships and the coaches who will look foolish when forced to renege on promises of scholarships previously made.

PBA qualifiers at Drakeshire Lanes

10-pin alley

Al Harrison

THE PINS WERE really flying last weekend at Drakeshire Lanes in Farmington Hills as the Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) held its regional tournament.

The PBA stages 20 of these events annually. The region includes Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia.

Regional competition is usually a stepping stone for the national PBA tour, and it affords a chance for the younger bowlers to try their skills against the toughest possible competition. This is also a great opportunity for the local classic bowlers to bowl with the PBA without the heavy travel expenses incurred when competing away from home.

In order to bowl in the PBA, it is necessary to meet the standards of the PBA bowlers, pay the entry fees and meet the dress and conduct codes of the PBA.

Among the top bowlers from the Observerland area entered were: Mike Samardzija, John Bryngelson, D.J. Hochstein and Lee Snow, all of Farmington Hills; Mark Stawski and Mark Abelle, both of Garden City; Doug Spicer and Bob Raf of West Bloomfield; Ken Kubit, Dave Myers, David Mahaz and Tim Detherage, all of Livonia.

FRIDAY WAS the first day of competition for the Pro-Am event, in which amateurs can team up with a professional for a special prize fund. There were 73 amateurs competing in four divisions; mens, womens, seniors and youth.

The Pro-Am winners included: Lewis Rowe, 1,564, men's; Barbara Scribner, 1,559, womens'; John Crissman, 1,507, seniors; Shannon Rowe, 1,395, junior girls; Lisa Bishop, 1,455, major girls; Jason Swartz, 1,452, junior boys; and Jim O'Doherty, 1,419, major boys.

The field for qualifying was cut to 24 Saturday. The bowlers had 10 games in which to qualify for the head-to-head finals on Sunday. The surviving competitors included Samardzija, Snow, Stawski, and Tom Shively of Northville.

The head-to-head competition weeded the field down to the final five for the stepladder finals (television format). Samardzija held the fifth and final spot. Snow just missed the cut and took home the sixth place money.

THE MATCH play finals had Mark Aseltine of Flint eliminating Samardzija in a close contest, 218-214. Jeff DeKubber of Grand Rapids then beat Aseltine by a wide margin, 258-206. The third match featured a lot of strikes as DeKubber wiped out Shively, 279-243.

The championship match pitted DeKubber against Kevin Taber of Toledo for the $3,000 first prize. It was DeKubber in the lead all the way until an unfortunate 4-6-7-10 split (double pinocle) occurred in the ninth frame, opening the door for Taber, who took home the championship trophy.

The next regional tournament takes place June 6-8 in Indianapolis. Drakeshire will be the host site again for a future PBA regional. I will keep you posted.

All told, our local bowlers performed very well in this elite level of competition. With a few more lucky breaks, anyone could have won.

• TEAM USA STATE rolloffs are currently underway at Allen Park's Thunderbowl Lanes. There are 23 women and 29 men attempting to advance all the way to the nationals.

Among the contestants are: Kathy Halslip of West Blomfield, David Myers of Livonia, Judy Grewicki, Marilyn Lueck and Ken Kossick of Canton Township, Sally Harris of Westland, and Garden City's Tom Johnston, Garrett Nagle, Larry Walker, Steve Pencola and Paul Hutchinson.

Five women and four men will then advance to the regionals based on actuall pinfall. The ultimate goal is to make "Team USA" and represent the country in international competition.

The regionals will be held in late June and the national finals in late July in Atlanta.

• BRUNSWICK Corp. and Kmart have entered into a long-term nationwide vendor partnership for a varity of bowling products.

Beginning Aug. 1, Brunswick will supply Kmart with bowling balls, bags and shoes. Kmart, based in Troy, is the world's largest retailer of bowling products with approximately 2,100 stores throughout the country.

• FARMINGTON'S Bel Aire Lanes has openings in the youth leagues which start up June 4 and run at 4 p.m. each Tuesday for both regular youth and bumper bowlers. Bel Aire is located on Orchard Lake Road, just south of Greenes Road.

• MERRI BOWL Lanes in Livonia announced its summer open bowling schedule. Monday through Thursday will be "all you can bowl" for $4.95 and will take place between 1 and 5 p.m.

Monday evenings will feature summer singles no-tap. The $11 entry fee includes a mystery game, prize money and the bowling cost.

Rock-n-Bowl for kids only will take place every Friday. Ages 10-15 will bowl 7-10 p.m. The night features prizes, fun and dancing. For more information, call 427-2900.

Fierce Grummans fly at Kalamazoo air zoo

...You'll notice that the Warhawk pictured on the museum's brochure has a female pilot, Sue Parish, a grandmother and one of the museum's co-founders. Parish, a World War II pilot, flew military planes from factory to bases.

NOT ALL the planes in the collection are on view. In the museum's restoration center, "new" old planes are disassembled, meticulously researched and restored with new skins, wiring, etc.

Their future includes flight. At 2:00 p.m. daily during the summer (weather permitting) one of these veterans rolls onto the runway and roars into the air. If you want to see a particular plane in its natural element, try calling ahead to see when it's scheduled to fly.

The museum has engines, uniforms, model planes, vintage photos and memorabilia from both sides of the battle. Dioramas depict air, ground and sea forces in action together. The Veterans of Guadalcanal organization has an exhibit displaying a collection of maps, clippings, photographs and personal diaries.

Visitors can sit in a Link Trainer, see aviation films in a small theater and purchase books, models and T-shirts in the gift shop.

AIR SHOW

The museum's imminent air show has long been one of the most popular air events in the nation. Aging warbirds fly, modern jets soar in precision aerobatics and daredevils walk on wings.

The show commemorates the 50th anniversary of the United States entry into World War II with a mock air battle between U.S. fighters and a Mitsubishi Zero replica.

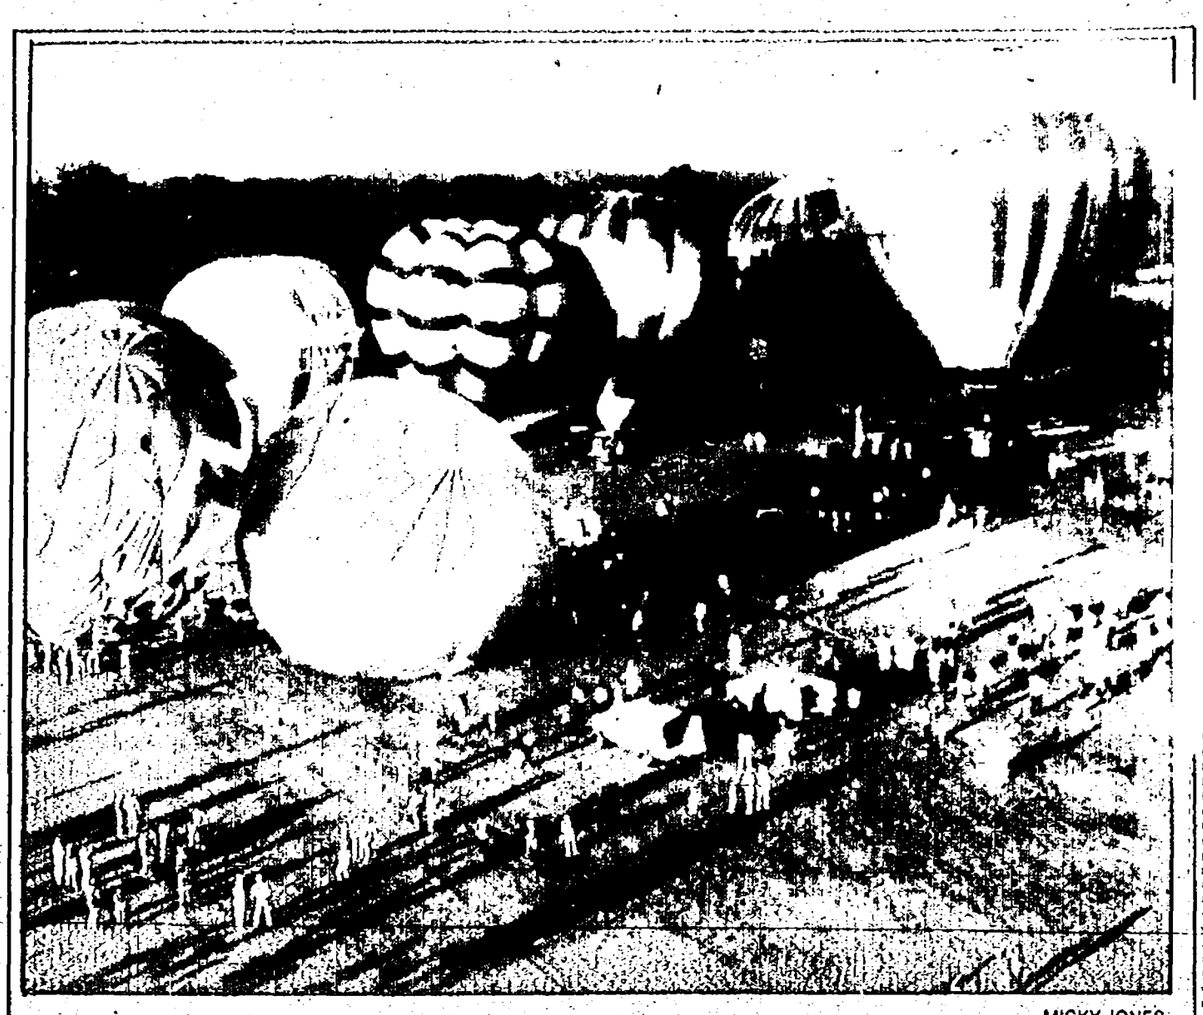
A flying salute to World War II veterans, the show will also pay tribute to the men and women of operation Desert Storm. Proceeds will go to programs for military families and the Kalamazoo High on Heroes Fund.

ON TAP for the event is the U.S. Army Golden Knights skydiving team, set to perform a Saturday twilight show amid fireworks and flares. Also scheduled are the Coors Light Silver Bullet Jet Team, Showcat wingwalking, aerobatics and "Fireflight," the Pepsi Skydance and Skywriter and more.

A special feature of the air show is the "Flight of the Grumman Cats" whereby the museum's Wildcat, Hellcat, Bearcat and Tigercat whiz over the field in formation.

The museum is on the south side of the Kalamazoo Airport and open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday. The museum is closed June 8-9 when the planes are flying in the air show.

For more information, contact the Kalamazoo Aviation Museum, 3101 East Milham Road, Kalamazoo, 49002, or telephone (616) 382-6555.



MICKY JONES

Da balloons boss, da balloons!

The Battle Creek International Balloon Championship and Air Show will fly high June 29 through July 6 at W.K. Kellogg Regional Airport. Comedian Pat Paulsen will be there, once again announcing whether he will run for president. The show will include the U.S. Army Golden Knights parachute team, the Air Force Thunderbirds flying F-16 Electric Jets, the Canadian Forces Parachute Team, a hot air balloon competition, the Chicago Fire Stunt Kite Team, an amusement park and live entertainment. The Battle Creek Hot-Air Balloon Championship is a non-profit organization supported in part by parking and gate fees. Parking is $4 a day; admission is $2 per person per day. Contact the organization at 237 North Helmer Road, PO Box 2019, Battle Creek, 49015-2019, or telephone (616) 962-0592.

Poet was wrong about K'zoo

By Doris Scharfenberg

Glen Miller once had the country stompin' to "I've Got A Gal In Kalamazoo-zoo-zoo-zoo . . ." H.L. Mencken said the name added "barbaric brilliancy to the American map." Carl Sandburg must have reckoned such a moniker had wicked connotations. Although he wrote a poem called the "Sins of Kalamazoo," it is suspected that Sandburg never came to town, let alone sample the local sins.

Residents of today's Kalamazoo proudly pop it all in their tin whistles (kazoos) and blow a tune called "There Really Is A Kalamazoo," debunking the myths and laughing at the bad jokes. The name, they will tell you, comes from an Indian word meaning "mirage of reflecting river."

K'zoo is a walker's place. It's easy to stroll from midtown shops and parks to heritage streets with Italianate, Queen Anne or Sears-catalogue houses. Including Western Michigan University, there are five colleges, dozens of churches, excellent shopping, art theaters, a superb music hall (the late Thomas Schippers, who conducted the Metropolitan Opera, grew up here).

Willow Run air show sports Patriot missile, Blue Angels

Perhaps the most dramatic demonstration of American technology in the Gulf War was the Patriot air defense missile system.

The Patriot guarded both Israel and Saudi Arabia from attack by providing a shield against Iraqi Scud missiles.

And now you can see one! A Patriot from Redstone Arsenal, Ala., will be visible at Air Michigan '91 June 8-9 at Willow Run Airport near Ypsilanti. This will be among the first public displays of the Patriot system.

Manufactured by Raytheon in Andover, Mass., the Patriot was designed to shoot down aircraft but modified to intercept missiles.

The [illegible] consists of several components, all of which are truck or trailer mounted. The whole package can be air-lifted by the C-5 Galaxy or C-141 Starlifter.

The missiles can be off-loaded, road-marched and set up in a relatively short time. The system incorporates self-check and fault diagnostic software, providing rapid location of faulted components and a check for proper operations after repair.

The status monitoring function automatically checks system performance every 15 seconds, assesses detected faults for severity of impact on mission capability and measures them against specific "fight or fix" criteria. It takes a crew of three to operate each Patriot unit.

The Patriot's combat success had a significant impact on the politics of the Gulf War. By providing a shield against Scuds launched at Israel, the United States was able to keep Israel out of the war.

The air show will also feature the U.S. Navy Blue Angels in their F/A-18 Hornets, an F-16 Electric Jet, numerous civilian performers and aircraft on static display.

Advance tickets are available from TicketMaster, Kroger stores and the air show office. Advanced tickets are $8 adult, $5 children (age 6-11). Children 5 and under are free.

Adult tickets at the gate are $11 and children's tickets are $8. For more information, call 482-8888.

Summer events lure boats to state harbors

Boaters won't have to cruise far to find tempting summertime festivals at Michigan's state-sponsored facilities, generally no more than 15 shoreline miles from a Great Lakes harbor.

Boaters can kick back in front-row seats for a fireworks display in downtown Detroit or view a passing parade of lighted vessels in Charlevoix. They can stretch their sea legs during bridge walks in Mackinaw City and Sault Ste. Marie or stroll among Michigan-made arts and crafts in St. Clair.

Most activities, listed on the AAA Michigan 1991 Harbor Guide, are within walking distance of the harbor, a few require land transportation. In addition to the events, restaurants, grocery stores, beaches and picnic areas are a short walk from most harbors.

Boaters will be able to dock at two new state-sponsored facilities this summer in Bay City and Baraga.

But it will cost more to tie up for the evening at all state docks. The Michigan State Waterways Commission's new fee schedule ranges from a flat rate of $15 for boats less than 24 feet long to $1.09 per foot for boats 60 feet and longer. Last year, rates were $14.50 and $1.04, respectively.

Also new in 1991 is a $5 charge for temporary daytime moorage. Pumpout charges remain $4 per connection.

Dock space is rented on a first-come, first-serve basis. However, Detroit's St. Aubin Park will accept reservations on a trial basis this year. If successful, the reservation system could be expanded to other sites in 1992.

The majority of harbors maintain pumpout facilities, restrooms, showers and fuel docks. Other services can be obtained at commercial marinas.

One-horse towns offer more than you know

Compared to Augusta, Marietta is a metropolis with a population of nearly 17,000. It's Ohio's oldest town, home of Marietta College, founded in 1835, and Rossi Pasta.

Rossi Pasta? This is one of Marietta's surprises: a factory producing handmade, all-natural pasta for Nieman-Marcus, Williams-Sonoma, gourmet cooks and, of course, the rest of the world. (Visitors can check out the pastas in the wonderful-smelling retail shop. Others can order by mail.)

Spinach-basil, saffron, black olive, jalapeno and garlic are a few of the selections, and the company is generous with recipes and cooking tips written in a lighthearted style. (Ask for the Rossi Pasta Prima; "A (Simple) Guide for the Kitchen Frail.")

MARIETTA, NAMED for Queen Marie Antoinette of France, was founded in 1788 by veterans of the Revolutionary War and became the gateway to the Northwest Territory (land which later became Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and part of Minnesota) and its first permanent settlement.

The town survived the bloody battles of the last Indian wars (1790 to 1794) and became a busy and prosperous ship-building center and steamboat port.

This part of Marietta's heritage is reflected in the popularity of the Valley Gem, a sternwheeler providing hourly trips on the Muskingum and Ohio rivers, and melodramas presented during the summer on the showboat Becky Thatcher.

Sternwheelers from around the country will race on the river during the Ohio River Sternwheel Festival the first weekend after Labor Day. The festival features live entertainment, fireworks and craft booths along the riverbank.

Marietta is an appealing tree-shaded town in a pleasant countryside of hills, valleys and river views. There are two museums, the Ohio River Museum and the Campus Martius, fine old Victorian houses and some remaining brick streets and alleys.

TROLLEY TOURS of Marietta are conducted regularly, beginning on Green Street near the historic Lafayette Hotel.

Tours are also offered free at the Fenton Art Glass Company, in nearby Williamstown, W.V., where glass is blown and hand-shaped by craftsmen.

The Middleton Doll Factory is another popular place. The dolls, created by Ohio artist Lee Middleton, have faces sculpted from images of real children and are prized by collectors. (An outlet with near-perfect dolls is at 268 Front St. in Marietta.)

For more information, contact the Marietta Tourist and Convention Bureau, 316 Third St., Marietta, OH 45750 or telephone toll-free (800) 288-2577. The Rossi Pasta Factory is at 114 Greene St., Marietta, OH 45750 or call toll-free (800) 227-6774.

Blasting through the white water

The most important thing is teamwork. Keep paddling at all times, even if someone falls out. Getting the person back in the raft is priority number one, but you can't do it until you're past the wild waters.

Don't wear jeans, even if it's cold. You get drenched when you walk into the water to reach the raft, and you haven't even started yet. Soaked jeans are impossible to get off! Most companies will rent wet suits, but you won't need one unless it's really cold.

I had canoed before, but rafting is very different. The raft moves, bends and rolls with the waves. You can feel the rocks scraping under you.

After we conquered several rapids without a scratch, we lost one of our crew, Don VanSickle of Canton, a close friend. Before I knew what happened, he was gone, nowhere in sight.

ALL I could see was white froth with an occasional rock jutting out of the violent water. No sign of Don. Having heard rumors of someone dying on that very river years ago made us forget paddling to find Don. The guide plunged his paddle into the water to see if Don would grab it. No luck.

After what seemed a lifetime, Don's head poked up through the water. All of our safety instruction came in handy as we tried to rescue him. The sound of the water was so loud he couldn't hear us screaming to keep his feet in front of him, although he knew to do it anyway.

Don came out unscathed. When we hauled him into the raft, we sighed with relief and headed for the next set of rapids.

Even though white-water rafting can be dangerous, it's great fun. There's always the anticipation of what lies ahead, like on the uphill trek of a roller coaster. You feel a sense of vulnerability and power at having conquered the waters. I went rafting again this year on a tougher river, the Cheat in West Virginia, and it was more exhilarating. Who knows what lies ahead for next year!

The cost of white-water rafting varies from $50 to $150 depending on the river, the day of the week and time of year. Mountain Streams offer a group discount. If 19 people pay, one goes free.

THERE ARE some minimum age requirements. On the Lower Youghiogheny River, it's 12; on the Cheat, Gauley, Upper Yough, and Tygart's Valley River and the Big Sandy Creek you must be 16 years old. The Middle Youghiogheny is the easiest run, open to anyone 6 or older.

The difficulty level of each river is indicated by "class:" Class I for youngsters and families and Class VI for experienced rafters.

The river rides run during certain times of the year. For example, Cheat River trips are in the spring while Youghiogheny trips are May through September.

Four-man rafts are common, but 10-man rafts are used if the water is high. Lunch is served halfway through the trip.

For more information, contact Mountain Streams and Trails: PO Box 106, Ohiopyle, PA 15470 or call toll-free (800) 245-4090.

IRIS SANDERSON JONES

The play's the thing at Stratford Festival

The Stratford Festival opened officially last week in a flurry of black-tie events and premiere showings. I say "officially" because the plays have been performed daily since the season opened April 29.

That's when the swans were released from their winter quarters behind the arena, the ducks started dropping in on picnic dinners and the water birds began their daily parades across the roads.

By mid May the pedal boats were busy on the Avon River, spring flowers were blooming in the Shakespearean Gardens and the bed-and-breakfast places had their signs out for the summer.

I saw three of this summer's plays during the unofficial preview season: "Much Ado About Nothing" at the Festival Theater, "Our Town" and "Les Belles Soeurs" at the Avon Theater. I didn't get into the Tom Patterson Theater, named after the Stratford journalist largely responsible for launching this festival; the theater was formerly called Third Stage.

I PREDICT that "Les Belles Soeurs," written by Canadian playwright Michel Tremblay and performed for the first time in English, will be the main topic of conversation this summer. It is a funny, angry, loud, unusual play about a group of French-Canadian women who gathered to help paste into booklets the one million gold stamps won by a housewife.

People either love it or hate it, think it has too much swearing or is realistic, etc. Whether you like it or not, you should see it and join the conversation at the Festival this year.

That kind of information is available when you buy a theater ticket, but if you want other important Stratford information you must ask somebody who has been there and knows the bed and breakfasts, the restaurants, the best bookstore, etc.

I pick the brains of all my friends who travel and I would like to pick yours. If you have been to Stratford, Ontario and have a small tip for our readers, read on.

Think small

One-horse towns offer more than you know

Mary Augusta Rodgers is a freelance writer who lives in Birmingham.

Travelers driving south on interstate highways often don't know — or forget — what they're missing as the miles go by and the countryside becomes a blur. Small towns, for instance, can be a refreshing change. Many are interesting, easy to deal with and fun to explore. They're pleasant places for a walk, a little sightseeing and shopping, lunch or dinner or an overnight stay.

Here are two to consider: Augusta, Ky., and Marietta, Ohio, riverboat towns on either side of the Ohio River.

AUGUSTA

Just 35 miles from Cincinnati and I-75, Augusta is a little (population 1,400) world of its own, nestled on the banks of the Ohio River.

The last time we were there, the sky was blue, the river shone in the sunlight, fishermen waited patiently on a shady bank with their lines out, and the ferry from Boudes Landing, Ohio came in to dock with its flag flying in the breeze.

It was such a happy scene that a man strolling down Riverside Drive suddenly stopped and serenaded a woman he didn't know. "Come on-a my house!" he sang. "My house a-come on!"

The woman, sitting on the stoop of her house, enjoying the sun, smiled and waved. "You're off key, but I love it," said singer Rosemary Clooney. ("Come on-a My House" was one of her biggest hits.)

This is Rosemary Clooney country. There's a Rosemary Clooney Street in Maysville, not far away, where she was born. A show of watercolor and oil paintings by Gabriel Ferrer, her son, is on display at Augusta's small but prestigious Piedmont Gallery.

Augusta is also pioneer country, founded in 1797 and built on the site of an ancient Indian burial ground. It's survived wars, cholera epidemics, floods, fires and a blight that finished off the promising vineyards planted by German settlers. (The winery, a massive limestone structure, remains; it's just off Route 8 on the way to Maysville.)

PARTS OF the TV mini-series "Centennial" were filmed in Augusta, as well as "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," made for public television. "Augusta has one of the very few open 19th-century waterfronts left in the country," said Bill Grooms, the producer. "It's a real treasure."

Augusta's oldest remaining house, on the corner of Ferry and Riverside, was built in 1800 by General John Payne, a cavalry officer in the War of 1812. Houses from the pioneer, federal and Victorian periods, graced with flowers, boxwood and brick walks, overlook the river. A 1795 log cabin, known as Broshears Tavern, was frequented by Daniel Boone and Simon Kenton.

The Piedmont Gallery has a fine collection of crafts, folk art and paintings of late 19th century artists from Northern Kentucky. Within a few blocks, visitors will find the Lamplighter Inn and several bed and breakfasts; the Beehive Tavern, which offers regional dishes, like transparent pie and blackberry jam cake; two antique shops; and The Monday Morning Workshop, which sells handmade leather goods and handwoven rugs.

An arts and crafts festival and a sternwheeler regatta occur in Augusta June 28-30, and an event called Heritage Days (historic house tours, a flea market and street fair) is held Labor Day weekend.

The Piedmont Gallery: 115 West Riverside, Augusta, Ky. 41002; (606) 756-2216. Walking-tour maps of Augusta are available at the gallery, the drugstore, the bank and city hall. Augusta is too small to have a tourist bureau, but you can call the city clerk at (606) 756-2183 for information.

MARIETTA, OHIO

Another historic river town, Marietta is situated where the Muskingum River flows into the Ohio; just off I-77, with Parkersburg, W.V. across the river.

K'zoo air zoo plans air show

By Doris Scharfenberg

Wildcat, Hellcat, Tigercat, Bearcat, Grasshopper, Warhawk, Aircobra . . .

The "K'zoo air zoo" hunkers down in a gleaming hanger of its own; a fighting menagerie with engines that purr and hearts ready to take off.

These fierce sky creatures of World War II, gathered at the Kalamazoo Aviation History Museum, take to the sky June 8-9 in the High on Kalamazoo Air Show, but the museum is open year round.

In skins of yellow, green, blue and even pink, the trim fuselages and taut struts evoke admiring stares as their individual exploits are recounted by the guide.

BENEATH BRIGHT banners and flags, you meet such veterans as the Grumman F4F Wildcat, a plane with a victory-to-loss ratio of 6 to 1. The F6F-5 Hellcat (victory-to-loss ratio 19 to 1) turned the tide in the air war over the Pacific. Designed to intercept Japan's kamikazes, the F8F-1 Bearcat never saw service in the war, but served admirably into the '60s.

Also on display is "The Sweetheart of Okinawa" (F4U Corsair), the P-39 Aircobra with an Oldsmobile cannon in its nose, the Douglas A1E Skyraider used in Korea and Vietnam, a Douglas Skytrooper transport, etc. The display even includes a German-built aircraft, the HA 1112 M1L Hispano Buchon.

One of the most stared-at planes on the museum floor has a light pink body, fierce mouth painted with teeth ready to rip into its prey and stenciled eyes (with eyelashes).

The Curtiss P-40N Warhawk, the only U.S. plane to engage Japanese aircraft at Pearl Harbor, turned into a Flying Tiger against the Japanese in China. It is credited with shooting down 297 enemy aircraft, with a loss of 12 planes in combat.

Blasting down the river

By Denise Bahs

I could hear the crashing sound of the approaching rapids as I sat on a swiftly-moving raft on the Youghiogheny River in Pennsylvania. I held my breath in anticipation of plunging into the fierce waters for the first time.

We were paddling like crazy and before I knew it I was staring into the plunging water and the raft was at the mercy of hydraulic forces. We surged downward, crashing through the white water, paddling and praying for our lives.

When the water calmed we looked at each other with exhilaration -- we conquered the wild waters! The first set anyway. Between each set of rapids was calm water, allowing us to catch our breath and revel in the victory.

As a rookie rafter, there were a few things I didn't know: how to dress, what white-water rafting feels like and safety precautions to name a few. I quickly learned.

I went with the Mountain Streams and Trails Outfitters rafting company that runs rafting trips in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland. The difficulty of the rafting depends on the water level, the river, and the time of year.

WHEN WATER levels are high, or when running a difficult river, a professional guide attends each raft. The guide explains paddling procedures and how to handle different rapids. You need to know how to paddle when going backwards downstream, what to do if the raft capsizes, and how to avoid smashing into rocks face first if you fall out.

'Vanishing:' Thrills, chills

By John Monaghan
special writer

Submitted for your approval: A young couple on the road to France stops at a gas station off the highway. She goes in for cold drinks and never returns. Was she abducted? Or has she just entered . . .

It's difficult not to think of Rod Serling when recounting the plot for "The Vanishing." A Dutch import, playing this weekend at the Music Hall Center, puts in feature form the brand of chills and twists that shows like "The Twilight Zone" and "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" once delivered weekly.

The abandoned husband, Rex (Gene Bervoets), doesn't give up on his search. Three years later, he has borrowed money to amount a major media campaign including street corner posters and TV news interviews.

A new relationship with a patient, attractive photographer falls apart because of his obsession. After awhile, it's not so much being reunited with his wife as it is finding out exactly what happened to her.

WRITER/producer/director George Sluzler has a low-key style that savors the unusual plot twists. There is a knockout aerial shot, however, when half-crazed Rex takes to the street and screams for the murderer to show himself.

The villian, by the way, is not your average drooling psychotic. Played by Bernard-Pierre Donnadieu, he's a milquetoast schoolteacher who leads a normal, if unemotional, life with his loving wife and two daughters.

Knowing who aided in the woman's disappearance is not what "The Vanishing" is all about. The question here is: Why did he do it and what the movies

Too many stars spoil the plot of 'Soapdish'

Dan Greenberg

The rush to premiere films for Memorial Day weekend has passed and only one new film is on this week's docket, "Soapdish" (B-, PG-13, 95 minutes).

As all sorts of "real life" intrigue unfolds during filming of "The Sun Also Sets," the film's ficticious soap opera, the program's scriptwriter, Rose Schwartz (Whoopi Goldberg), wonders aloud, "Why can't I write stuff like this?"

The answer, of course, as the movie proves, is that the offstage lives of actors are much more interesting than the unbelievable storylines of their show.

Multiple plots revolve around the set of the daytime drama whose ratings are falling. Driven by pressure from network execs and lust for supporting actress Montana Moorehead (Cathy Moriarty), producer David Barnes (Robert Downey Jr.) takes drastic action.

Moorehead wants him to axe the reigning "queen of misery," the show's star, Celeste Talbert (Sally Field), in order to further her own career. Barnes sees this as a way to boost ratings, but every time he plots to write Celeste out of the show, something foils his plans, whether it is the effects of returning her ex-lover, Jeffrey Anderson (Kevin Kline), to the show or the rise to fame of her niece, Lori Craven (Elisabeth Shue), an extra on the set.

SOUND CONFUSING? That's only the beginning — proving that the phony "real life" of these actors can be more surprising than television soaps ever imagined, and twice as contrived.

There are other sub-plots in both the movie and the soap, and some even manage to surprise the audience. The climactic scene is a live broadcast of the soap opera, which disintegrates into an ad-libre conciliation of both the characters and the actors.

This, and other scenes, leave the audience wondering where the acting ends and the real life drama begins. Some scenes also demonstrate that actors can give more convincing performances off-camera than on, given the proper motivations.

Unfortunately, just as in the daytime soaps, "Soapdish" sports far too many stars for one movie. Potentially excellent performances from Whoopi Goldberg and Carrie Fisher are buried in the proliferation of stars and plots.

The movie begins in the middle and, while this creates the feeling that we are actually watching a soap opera that began long before we tuned in, it also makes it difficult to sort out who's who for the first 20 minutes.

Add an abrupt and sappy ending, and you have either a confusing mess of a movie, or an interesting statement about TV and how it figures into the daily lives of both the viewers and the actors. Sadly, the film's full potential is lost amid the hubbub of the happy Hollywood ending.

STILL PLAYING:

"Backdraft" (C-, R, 130 minutes).

Disappointing, cornball, cliched story of two brothers, both Chicago firefighters.

"Class Action" (C+, R, 100 minutes).

Father-daughter attorneys, Gene Hackman and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, are not a team.

"Drop Dead Fred" (B+, PG-13, 100 minutes).

As our culture continues to shift from print to video, more and more summer vactioners are stopping at video stores instead of at libraries to find something to do during summer's idle hours.

Paramount Pictures is playing right into that trend with its "Great American Writers' Series," released Thursday. The package contains five re-packaged films from their catalog and six new releases, all priced at $19.95.

These major motion pictures were based on work by some of the country's best-known writers. The six new-to-video titles include "Carrie" (1952, no rating, black and white, 118 minutes) which was taken from Theodore Dreiser's "Sister Carrie" and stars Laurence Olivier and Jennifer Jones.

Two Tennessee Williams' works were the basis for "Summer and Smoke"(1962, no rating, color, 118 minutes) and "The Rose Tattoo" (1955, no rating, black and white, 116 minutes).

The former stars Laurence Harvey as well as Geraldine Page while the latter features Burt Lancaster and noted Italian film star Anna Magnani who won a best actress Oscar for this role.

ANOTHER FAMOUS Italian film actress, Sophia Loren, stars with Anthony Perkins in Eugene O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms"(1958, no

Singing blues for love, not money

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

In the course of a performance, Big Dave and the Ultrasonics can throw a lot at you.

There's a saxophonist, a harmonica player, two guitarists, a bassist and a drummer. The band can play soulful houserockin' blues, uptown boogie and gutbucket blues when called upon.

But calling out for Dave can present a problem. The group only has four of them by the same first name.

"When I first started working with these guys, it was kind of confusing at first," said bass player Todd Perkins, one of two Todds in the band. "We pretty much refer to each other on a last name basis.

"In the beginning, when I didn't know everybody, I would say 'harp-playing Dave,' 'sax-playing Dave' and 'guitar-playing Dave.' But there's two guitar-playing Daves."

Sorting out guitarist Dave Farzalo, sax and keyboard man Dave Salvator and harpist Dave Morris may be difficult at first.

AMONG THE Daves, though, there's only one Big Dave. He's Dave Steele, whose throaty growl and stinging guitar licks reveal the heart of a bluesman. Better yet, he even talks like one.

"You have to love it (the blues)," Steele said. "That's all. There's no money in it."

What inspires the blues in him?

"Like everyone, it's women and money," he answers.

THIS IS a passion shared by other band members, who formed Big Dave and the Ultrasonics after three Daves (Steele, Farzalo and Salvator) and one Todd (Nero) moved from Erie, Pa., to Ann Arbor.

Those guys played in The Zip City Blues Band, which performed regularly in Erie's only blues club, the Docksider. Band members possess a wide knowledge of different blues styles — Delta, Texas and New Orleans — and incorporate it into the final stew.

In a short time, Big Dave and the Ultrasonics have made an immediate impact on the Ann Arbor and Detroit club scene. Onstage, the band serves up a searing brand of urban blues.

There's plenty of Daves and Todds in Big Dave and the Ultrasonics, but there's only one person whose throaty growl and stinging guitar licks reveal the heart of a bluesman. That's Big Dave himself, Dave Steele.

Indigo Girls performs Saturday, June 15, at Meadow Brook Music Theatre.

REVIEWS

AGGRAVATION — Treponem Pal

Treponem Pal might seem like a mystical name for a mysterious heavy metal band, and in reality it is. But it is also the French word for the virus that causes syphilis.

Treponem Pal is a perverse, industrial thrash band. The group's latest release is "Aggravation." I think that says it all.

Their style of music lies somewhere between the likes of bands like Slayer and Judas Priest.

The opening track, called "Rest is War," is a grating, energy pack song, that is guaranteed to rock any headbanger's socks off.

This is a band that comes from France, but you might likely guess it came out of the New York City metal circuit by the sound of it.

Vocalist Marco Neves can hit some notes like nails on a chalk board.

Some truly salvageable songs are in this nine-song package. "Out With No Flag" and "Sweet Coma" are pretty decent metallic pieces.

One song in the package was not written by Treponem Pak. It is called "Radioactivity." It is a noxious, stentorian mix written and arranged for TP by the band known as Kraftwerk.

From a country internationally known for romance and elegance (tres chic), Treponem Pal is proud to say it represents "the ugly reality of worldwide culture." Although members never explained this claim to any great depth, it does come through in their music.

They are striving to be a diverse and controversial thrash band. "Aggravation" is a positive step in that direction.

Although their music might not be best suited for everyone, it might be just the thing for you serious metalheads out there.

AWA YIO — Ivan Lins

You're on a tropical beach in Brazil. You have your toes in the sand, a drink in your hand, and you feel grand. In your head you can hear the sounds of a samba/calypso band.

The music on Ivan Lins' latest album called "Awa Yio" will send such images running through your mind.

This is a true South American-style delight, after a while you won't even care that he doesn't sing a single lyric in English. If you want to sing along its possible, just fake your way through.

But you'll probably be interested in knowing that the lyrics are included in both English and Spanish.

Ivan (pronounced E-von) Lins' mission on this album was to expose more people to the native music and culture of Brazil. After some of the lyrics, he provides a brief explanation of some of the myths, expressions and cultural beliefs of his native country.

Sure, the music has been commercialized just a tad, but you'll get the basic idea.

The song "Meu Pais" ("My Country") is pleasurable ballad about the tropical paradise where he grew up. Throughout the song, he sings about some of the popular characters of Brazilian folklore.

Lins was born in Rio de Janeiro, the son of a Naval engineer. Via his father's military career, he ended up spending some formative years in Combridge, Mass., where his musical aspirations took shape.

He speaks of this combination of cultural experiences in his song "America, Brazil — America, Brazil." This is a very upbeat samba.

All together you will find 11 multicultural songs in this package. This one is a must for someone with a hankering for something nuevo y diferente (that's Spanish for new and different).

Stay mum about fantasy

Dear Barbara,

When I was a teenager, I had fantasies of kissing my sister who is two years older than I am. These fantasies always embarrassed me greatly. I thought they were sick and yet I couldn't change them.

Barbara Schiff

I have a son and a daughter who are becoming teenagers. I want to say something to my son to tell him I would understand if he had such fantasies, but I don't know if I should. Maybe he doesn't and will think I am perverted.

What do you think?

Jerry

Dear Jerry,

Your fantasies are normal. They are not sick and you need not be embarrassed. The jokes that are made about teenagers' sexuality are true. They are generally pretty randy and for them, even minimal stimuli can lead to sexual fantasies.

Brothers and sisters are strong stimuli. They are intimate with each other by the sheer fact that they live together.

On the other hand, you are quite right not to say anything to your son. Why place the burden of these problems on someone who might no have them? If you keep a spirit of openness in your home, a spirit that is non-judgmental, then there is a better chance that your son will reveal himself to you if he needs advice.

It seems that you did not find your parents approachable on sexual matters. Is there something they could have done to make you feel less afraid? Think about it. Maybe you will be able to do it for your son.

Barbara

If you have a question of comment for Barbara Schiff, a trained therapist and experienced counselor, send it to Street Sense at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

"Impromptu" (Britain — 1990). The relationship between female French novelist George Sand and composer Frederic Chopin is recounted in this witty, slightly irreverent romantic comedy. The most interesting twist is how the very masculine Sand relentlessly pursues frail Chopin in a complete switch on male-female courting rituals.

"Truly, Madly, Deeply" (Britain — 1991). Compared favorably to "Ghost," this British fantasy fins a widow still mourning her dead husband, surprised when he returns as an apparition.

ALTERNATIVE MOVIE

exactly did he do? A number of possibilities arise.

At the beginning of the film, during their car trip, Rex and Saskia run out of gas in a long mountain tunnel. While she fumbles for a flashlight, Rex rudely starts off for the mouth of the tunnel without her.

From then on, we are left on the edge with the possibility that maybe, just maybe, Saskia left him on her own accord.

WHILE THE question ultimately gets answered, others remain wonderfully ambiguous. "The Vanishing" becomes the kind of challenging film that will prompt long discussions afterward over a cup of coffee. Make it two cups.

"The Vanishing" is also the first film to screen at Music Hall Center as part of City Wide Cinema. The non-profit film group recently left its space at the Tele-Arts Theatre and will now screen films here and at Wayne State University.

This weekend offers an excellent opportunity to see what they're up to, with a Friday night reception and regular performances Saturday and Sunday. "The Vanishing" is the best film City Wide Cinema has gotten its hands on in a long time.

In "The Vanishing," an abandoned husband resorts to borrowed money to mount a major media campaign including street corner posters, to find his missing wife.

rating, black and white, 111 minutes).

Lancaster also has the lead in yet another of these films derived from great American writers. He appears in William Inge's "Come Back, Little Sheba" (1952, no rating, black and white, 99 minutes) with Shirley Booth who won an Oscar for this role.

Booth also stars in the last of these new releases, Thornton Wilder's "The Matchmaker" (1958, no rating, black and white, 110 minutes), the play on which "Hello Dolly" was based.

The five re-packaged titles are "The Great Gatsby" (1974, PG, color, 146 minutes) and "The Last Tycoon" (1977, PG, color, 123 minutes) both by F. Scott Fitzgerald, "A Place in the Sun" (1951, no rating, black and white, 120 minutes), based on Theodore Dreiser's "American Tragedy," Ernest Hemingway's "Islands in the Stream" (1979, PG, color, 110 minutes) and one more from Tennessee Williams, "This Property Is Condemned" (1966, no rating, color, 109 minutes).

A terrific film that didn't get as much play as it deserved, "The Grifters" (1990, R, color, 114 minutes), stars Anjelica Huston, John Cusack and Annette Bening as three con-artists out to grift a buck any way they can. The film was nominated for four Oscars and will be released on video cassette this coming Wednesday.

MAJOR NAMES such as Anjelica Huston usually signal excellent films — but not always. Huston has a good bit of screen time but no dialogue in "Swashbuckler" (1976, PG, color, 101 minutes). The film also features Robert Shaw, James Earl Jones, Genevieve Bujold, Beau Bridges and comedian Avery Schreiber.

Casting a stand-up comic as an 18th century pirate may be a clue to the faults in this dippy pirate movie. It has all the cliches of the genre but none of the excitement.

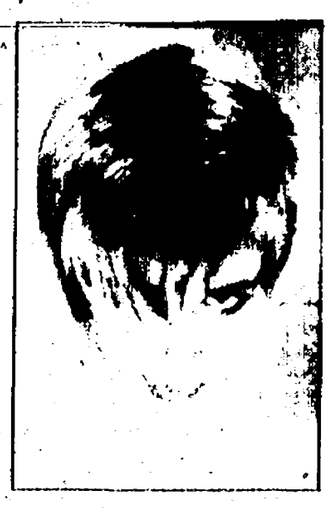
Hair flair

Hairdressers from Mario Max Salon in Farmington Hills have discovered a new tool to achieve new soft and manageable headlines for spring and summer. The razor cuts of the '50s and '60s are back in '90s style.

"The razor is an incredible tool," said Mario Bitonti of Mario Max. "It puts movement into hair that scissors can't. Also razor cuts allow the hair to blend better, producing softer lines."

Mario Max Salon is in Loehmann's Square, Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills.



Big Dave can sing the blues

A recent show at Rick's Cafe had the normally placid collegiate crowd dancing feverishly to the uptown swing of Big Dave and the Ultrasonics. Instead of relying on one tempo, there's a series of musical instrument interplay within the context of one song and to the band's diverse sound.

SOMEHOW IN the litany of name similarities and multitude of players, Big Dave and the Ultrasonics cut through the confusion.

"Every additional player you have, it makes it more difficult because you play less," Steele said. "In a four-piece, your role is pretty much defined. We have four soloists. When one is playing, the others have to step back."

Big Dave directs the traffic.

"He's a subtle leader," Perkins said. "Instead of telling you he doesn't like something, he tells you why he doesn't like something. Usually, it's a pretty good reason."

A LIFELONG blues aficionado, Steele started listening to records when he was young. His favorites are the Kings — B.B., Albert and Freddie. Also, he enjoys the guitar works of Albert Collins and the vocal stylings of Howlin' Wolf and Muddy Waters.

Several covers in the Big Dave set reveal several other influences, including Willie Dixon's "Built for Comfort" and Jimmy Reed's "Bright Lights, Big City."

Uptempo dance blues is the preference in the band's original music featured on a four-song demo. The group plans to record a full-length cassette to release sometime in the fall.

In the meantime, members of the band are busy further establishing its reputation in the blues-rich area of Detroit.

Big Dave is a regular at the Blind Pig and Rick's, where college students congregate. The band has also performed at the Soup Kitchen, where blues purists pull up a stool.

Either way, the music is the same and so are the names.

Big Dave and the Ultrasonics perform Thursday, June 6, at the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor. For information, call 996-8555.

Janine Gardner: If this is Monday, it must be . . .

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Her dog looks like Toto, her 1984 Mazda serves as her pair of ruby slippers. She even experienced her first tornado in Texas recently.

But unlike Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz," comedian Janine Gardner is apparently in no hurry to get home.

That's at least judging by Gardner's frantic schedule, which includes performing 48 weeks out of the year on the road. Gardner and her dog, Kiwi, tool around the country in her Mazda RX 7 that has 243,000 miles on its engine.

"I wrote them (Mazda) a letter telling them I've encircled the globe at least eight times in my Mazda," said Gardner, who performs Wednesday through Saturday at Joey's in Livonia.

"I keep writing them. I would like them to give me another car to test drive. At least they could have done is send me a flier for a free lube job."

Such a nomadic existence is commonplace in the world of comedy. Whereas many comedians bemoan being on the road, Gardner appears to relish a life of hotels, fast food and rest stops.

GARDNER DESCRIBES herself "poor as a church mouse." Any money made from comedy club engagements is often eaten up in expenses, she said.

All of this serves to conjure up cliched images of a woman and her dog facing a cold, cruel world alone. Really, Gardner's comedic adventure perhaps attacks a sexist stereotype that views women as being too naive for such endeavors.

"Men have been doing it for years. There's a lot of benefits. I don't have to make a bed every day. I don't have to do dishes all the time . . . and I get to see the country.

"If I want to see someone who lives four hours away, I just get in my car and go. My sister packs a compass to go to the supermarket."

AFTER CONQUERING a number of jobs, comedy greeted her at age 30. In nearly seven years, she has criss-crossed the country in a whirlwind odyssey.

Onstage, Gardner's humor can be personally revealing.

She jokes about growing up in a dysfunctional family with a mother who was addicted to Valium. She brings humor in being raised Catholic in the Mormon hub of Salt Lake City.

OBVIOUSLY, Gardner's not a "joke machine." She adheres to the belief comics should leave something of themselves with an audience during a routine.

"At first, (comedy) was therapeutic. I feel no one could steal my jokes unless they lived my life. I want my comedy to say something."

On the urging of friends, Gardner plied her comedic talents at a club contest in Salt Lake City. Soon, she earned the title of "Funniest Woman in Utah."

EVEN BEFORE then, though, Gardner remembers being a cutup in the fifth grade.

One of her favorite ploys was to roll up a paper, point it toward the P.A. speaker and call herself out of class. The teacher fell for the trick every time.

In reality, Gardner was merely coping with her environment.

"I felt like I stuck out in a crowd. The Mormons were sheltered people, especially the staunch ones. They were unsympathetic towards me just because of the fact my parents drank coffee and smoked. Some kids were not allowed to play with us because we were Catholic."

Roseanne Barr is also from Utah. It was the "Star-Spangled" singing comedian who gave Gardner her best advice: Write three punch lines and throw the first two away. That way, the most obscure humor will rise to the top.

WORKING IN the male-dominated field doesn't bother Gardner. She has had several jobs outside of comedy where women are the minority, including as a customer service analyst for a company that designed sewage treatment systems.

Yet a few things gnaw at her being a female comedian. For example, few women comedians are booked together on the same bill. At Joey's in Livonia, though, Gardner will appear with Gilda Hauser.

"They use us as sandwich fillers. There's this myth out there that if you're a woman, especially an attractive one, you can't be funny."

Janine Gardner appears Wednesday-Saturday, June 5-8, at Joey's Comedy Club in Livonia. For information, call 261-0555. She also appears Friday-Saturday, June 14-15, at Joey's at the Roxy in Belleville. For information, call 699-1829.

Comedienne Janine Gardner has a frantic schedule, so much so that her Mazda RX 7 has 243,000 miles on its engine.

Lori Lynn Ross has to be careful doing her routine like hanging upside down during a roll. One wrong step and she could break through the fabric covering the wing of Walt Pierce's biplane.

Walking the wings of Ol' Smokey

Stuntwoman has firm grip on aerial life

By Sue Mason
staff writer

You could say Lori Lynn Ross is a drag, not a big drag, but a drag nonetheless. Just ask Walt Pierce. He drags her around on and off.

It's not that she's doesn't like fun. Hey, this woman has done fire dives. We're not talking going through a fiery hoop, but rather setting herself on fire and diving into a pool 30 feet below.

At 4 feet 11½ inches tall and 98 pounds — "I'm little but I'm strong." — she's a a bit of a drag on the wing of Pierce's 1940 Stearman biplane, "Ol' Smokey." Ross, when not working as a stuntwoman in Hollywood, occasionally does the air show circuit with Pierce as his wingwalker.

"I really have a fun time because I enjoy performing," said Ross, a former Southfield resident. "I really have good time out there and when I get off and see that the people have had a good time, it makes it all the better."

Not quite what you'd expect from a woman who at one time studied to be an elementary school teacher and was a high school cheerleader and member of the girls' softball and basketball teams at Southfield High School.

But she admits she's always been adventurous. She began skiing and riding motorcycles at the age of five and on her way to a career in Hollywood picked up rock-climbing, SCUBA diving and high diving.

The 29-year-old Ross was working at a store, selling climbing equipment, when a stuntman mentioned that with her experiences she should consider stunt work. About two months later, while studying for final exams at the beach, she met a another stuntman who said the same thing.

SHE DECIDED to heed their advice and, after graduating from California State University at Northridge, she signed on with the U.S. Professional High Diving Team and marketed herself as a stuntwoman by doing the fire dives, not to mention clown dives, ladder diving and, shades of Acapulco, cliff diving.

Ross, who will team up with Pierce for AirMichigan '91 at Willow Run Airport in Ypsilanti this weekend, has been a stuntwoman for about nine years.

A member of the United Stuntwomen's Association, her stunt work has included such feature films as "Terminator II," "Karate Kid II," "Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure" and "Edward Scissorhands" to name a few. She also has done stunts for such TV shows as "Rescue 911," "Falcon Crest," "Life Goes on" and "The Outsiders."

"I love my work," said Ross. "I started out doing dance and sports as a kid and never thought of being a stuntwoman or dreamed of being a wingwalker."

ROSS HAS been wingwalking for about six years, having learned the art from legendary wing walker Johnny Kazian. She was originally recruited Jim Franklin who wanted a female wingwalker.

"He figured with my diving experience, I could handle the aerobatics and with my rock-climbing experience, I could climb around the plane," she said.

Wingwalking is no easy task. The plane travels at between 80 and 180 miles per hour, so Ross has to be careful how and when she moves around the plane, especially since she wears a safety strap for only about 20 percent of of her 20-minute routine. She wears no such strap when walking around on the wing of the plane, but dons it for acobatic fly-bys.

"It takes a lot of strength to hang on," Ross said. "What people don't realize is that when I move from the upper to the lower wing behind the propeller, I'm in the most vulnerable position. Walt has to power back the plane so he doesn't blow me off the wing."

Ross' routine is very choreographed, very precise. It is learned on the ground before it's done in the air. There are no verbal commands between Pierce and Ross. Communication is by hand signals and eye contact.

Her hardest routine is doing a headstand on the upper wing. She has to flip her body upside down and hang on to a post. With the speed of the plane, she is "literally plastered to the post to where I can't move."

OTHER ROUTINES include hanging on to the plane and shaking hands with the pilot, doing backspins and hanging off the back part of a post on the upper wing.

Her favorite maneuver is doing a cartwheel in the air.

"I walk out to the end of the struts and get to see the crowd as we fly by," she said.

And when it comes to the aerobatics, she in for a "wild ride."

"My body is used to spinning and twisting in the air," she said. "With the loops and rolls, I get to see the earth and the crowd waving at me. It's a wild and exciting time."

But the hardest part is the five-minute or so wait on the ground before the plane takes to the air. She has a one-inch bar that she stands on on the balls of her toes. One step the wrong way and she could end up putting a foot through the wing's fabric skin.

Because of her stunt work, Ross has limited her wingwalking to just three air shows this year. She picked AirMichigan '91 because "Detroit is special for me."

"I HAD SO many wonderful experiences growing up in Michigan," she said. "It's a good time to to get back and reminisce, a really fun time."

Married, Ross describes her husband Dan, who builds custom homes in mainly Beverly Hills and Malibu, as "pretty adventurous." He shares her interest in rock- and ice-climbing, windsurfing and skiing.

But as exciting as her life is, safety is foremost in Ross' mind. She is as picky about who she performs with as she is about what stunts she will do. She doesn't take jobs she doesn't think she can do. As a result her worst injuries have been a few cuts and bruises.

She likes flying with Pierce. He is "a great guy . . . he's at the top of the list," she said.

"Safety is very important to me," she added. "I try to keep my safety record at 100 percent. So far my training has paid off . . . and I've been a bit lucky, too."

Ross' career continues to expand — she plays the part of the mermaid in the soon-to-be-released film "Rocketeer" — and she jokingly blames her parents for it. It's their fault for letting her water ski and ride a motorcycle at the age of five, she said.

But she adds: "I'm glad I had the opportunity to try out different sports. I think it makes me a better stuntwoman."

Stuntwoman Lori Lynn Ross does a one-legged stand on the wing of Ol' Smokey as part of her wingwalking performance.

'Arctic Arc' marks ancient migration

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

THE TENUOUS bond of understanding between the United States and the Soviet Union will soon be strengthened through the vision and effort of sculptor David Barr of Novi.

Barr and his wife, Elizabeth, Jim Pallas, Michigan sculptor, Paul Gray, Chicago art dealer and Dan Kruzyniec of Hamtramck, a video cameraman, will leave for Uelen in the Soviet Union on the Bering Strait early in July. With them will be the second part of Barr's Arctic Arc sculpture project to be installed on a promontory facing the American coastline, some 50 miles across the icy waters.

Barr, who has been working on global projects since 1980, installed the American half of his Arctic Arc in Wales, Alaska, on the westernmost tip of the Seward Peninsula, in 1988. That one is a wood sculpture suggesting a sled with an extended hand. The main wooden beam of the sled is a 30-foot timber weighing about 500 pounds.

The work to be installed next month is a 30-foot-long stainless steel structure, reminiscent of the hull of a umiak, a traditional walrus skin boat, minus the skin. The sculpture, with a hand motif in the ribs of the hull, will be aligned with the equinoxes and summer solstice.

BARR SAID, 'The Arctic Arc is drawing attention to geographical history — the land bridge that's always been there. I'm responding to invisible history. There's nothing there to tell you that the first migration took place there."

His wish to memorialize that momentous ancient migration from Asia to North America, is readily accepted by the Eskimos in the remote coastal villages. "I never had any problem getting the most humble of the villages to understand."

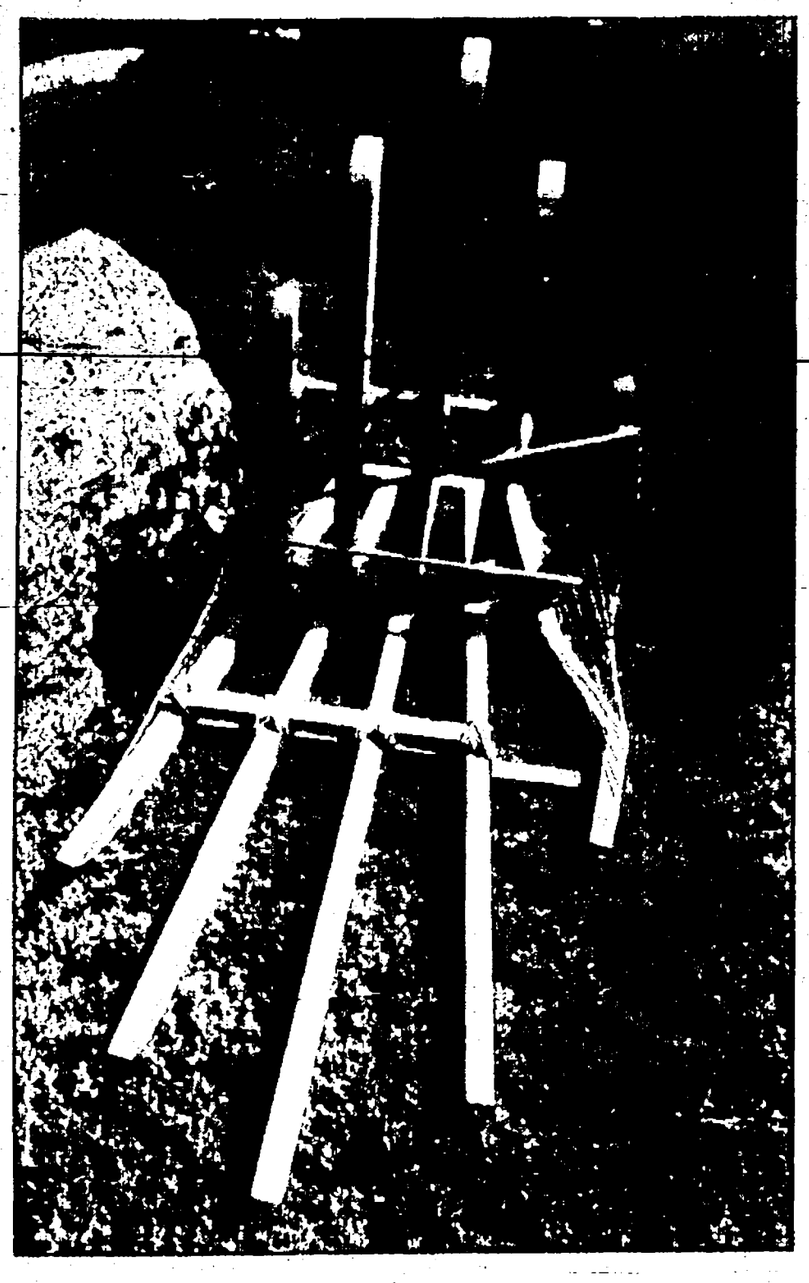
The villagers are aware of the link across the narrow waters. Many on one side have close relatives on the other and until the last few years, when tensions between the super powers eased, they couldn't see each other.

"On the Soviet side, we are going to be assisted by the Elgar Native Corporation in housing and moving around. Here is the Soviet Union in the depths of depression and art is still a priority, cultural exchange is still a priority — and in my own backyard is the most resistance to these ideas . . . the Arctic is the hardest place in the world to live — the temperature is 50 degrees below zero, the wind blows at 50 miles an hour and 12 people live in an area the size of my living room."

Barr acknowledged the valuable assistance he's had in cutting through bureaucratic red tape, getting visas and making things happen, "Sen. Carl Levin has helped me in all these efforts."

Help in the cutting and machining of the sculpture came from Capital Welding of Southfield. The art work was to designed to be assembled like a kit, because the final leg of the journey will be by bush plane from Providenija to Uelen and space will be tight. Northwest Airlines, he said, has been very helpful in scheduling.

ALL OF these projects are strictly out-of-pocket for Barr, no grants, no stipends, "I couldn't do them without a credit card," he said.



David Barr keeps a model of the wood sculpture placed near the coastal village of Wales, Alaska in 1988. It faces the coast of the Soviet Union. He uses an extended hand motif in all of his global works as a symbol of friendship.

David Barr holds ½-scale model of the sculpture he will install in the Soviet Far East coast early next month to complete his "Arctic Arc." Barr called it "a gift from Middle America," adding, "It will be there for 100 years unless somebody decides to use it for plumbing."

'The Arctic Arc is drawing attention to geographical history — the land bridge that's always been there. I'm responding to invisible history. There's nothing there to tell you that the first migration took place there.'

— David Barr, sculptor

Then why does he do it when as he says they are "financially and physically draining." Why leave the beautiful, contemporary home (which he built himself) and the broad lawn and pond, which he has turned into a magnificent sculpture park for his own work?

One of the early projects was to mark the four corners of the globe. Another was "Sun Sweep," a series of sculptures along the U.S./Canadian border. He is already working on "Sun Weep," marking the U.S./Mexican border. In all instances, the response, the connections made with other artists and individuals who have social concerns reward him for his efforts. It is about creating a broader understanding in the world.

"On an intimate level, it helps my own understanding and deepens my experience of things. . . . doing them knocks rigidity, arrogance and certainty out of you — you don't do any of it alone.

"I know that when we get there there will be a number of human stories and a number of human beings that will be with me the rest of my life. Jim Pallas went with me to New Guinea and he's still corresponding with some missionaries we met there."

PALLAS MAY make an accessory piece for Arctic Arc. Four Soviet villagers from around Uelen, two of them artists, are on their way here to meet Barr. He wants them to do some accessory pieces to Arctic Arc — maybe a ring of harpoons.

Well-known native artist, Joe Senungetuk, did a bird for the one in Alaska.

As a studio sculptor, Barr likes to portray the invisible — the subject of some of his his newer works is atomic cloud chambers and atomic particles and their pathways.

Staff photos by Bryan Mitchell

There are references to math and astronomy in many of his large pieces. In his global projects, he adds a spirit of human history, a touch of humanity — and sometimes those are as invisible as atomic particles.

Concert, garden party to aid Arctic project

Two upcoming events will benefit sculptor David Barr's Arctic Arc project. The first benefit will be a piano concert by Vladislav Kovalsky at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 5 at the Southfield Civic Center Pavilion. The program will include a video presentation about the Arctic Arc project. A reception with Kovalsky and Barr will follow the program.

Kovalsky emigrated to the United States in 1980. He has taught at Wisconsin Conservatory of Music, University of Michigan and Wayne State. In 1990 he was appointed artistic director of D'Etre University Conservatory of Music in Southfield. He will perform on the Steinway concert grand that once belonged to Vladimir Horowitz.

There will be a benefit exhibition of the Arctic Arc sculpture 2-5 p.m. Sunday, June 9, at Barr's Novi Sculpture Garden. This Sculpture Garden has been shown in local and national media. Maps will be available at the concert on June 5 and at The Great Frame Up, 215 Peabody, Birmingham.

General admission tickets for each event are $15, students and seniors $7. Concert tickets will be available at the door or from the Great Frame Up.

These events are sponsored by Art Exchange International, a nonprofit organization dedicated to advancing international understanding and cooperation through the exchange of art and culture. Barr said this is the first time a group such as Art Exchange International has come forward to help with his global projects.

Careful clipping saves time later organizing

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q: The other day, my husband tore out a whole newspaper page to keep an article he wanted and tossed it on the counter. I suggested he file it, so he folded the page somewhat and crammed it into the file, letting it hang out both ends of the folder. I removed it, cut out the article with a scissors I had right there, refiled it neatly and tossed the scraps away. Then he commented, "Do you realize how much your time is worth? Why would you waste it cutting out articles?" Do you have any comments?

A: There's something to be said for both sides of your conflicting views. It's true that it's much quicker at the time to rip out a column and stuff it into a file. It's even quicker just to toss it in a pile rather than file it, and I can understand a busy person might think cutting it would be a waste of time.

It's one thing to be a perfectionist, however, and quite another to take the time to do things properly now so you can save time later. What your husband isn't taking into account is the time it takes to deal with that paper later once it's landed in a pile or is just stuffed into a file.

First, by keeping the whole page without even marking the article, a person may waste time later perusing both sides trying to figure out why he kept it is the first place.

On a pile, it will gradually become lost in a shuffle of other papers. When you need it later, you will vaguely know "it's here somewhere," but it will take far longer to find it than it would have taken to cut it out and file it properly in the first place. In the meantime, you will have handled that same article repeatedly while sorting through your stack looking for other papers — another added cost of time.

Or, if you filed it carelessly, chances are you have a habit of filing other items in the same manner. When you just "stuff" papers, at least three problems are created: 1) Space is poorly utilized because "lumps" are allowed to occur, which take unwarranted amount of drawer space, 2) Papers tend to stick out the top, obscuring the folder labels and costing the loss of more time later searching for hidden files, 3) Papers become tattered from hitting the tops, sides and hinges of the files, sometimes tearing the critical information you wanted or even getting caught with other files.

None of the foregoing takes much time on an individual basis, but if your husband lives his life that way, he will find performing innumerable little tasks inadequately at the proper time will add up to cost him incredible amounts of time later, and his life will be out of control.
