Assessment appeals on wane

Proposal A did more than cut property taxes. It has cut the number of hearings requested by property owners who are disputing the amount of their property assessments.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Those 10- to 12-percent home assessment hikes in recent years brought out scores of people seeking appointments before local boards of review, in hopes of cutting back those increases.

But assessment increases are way down, thanks to the passage of Proposal A last year — and so is the number of citizens seeking appointments before local boards of review.

"I would say it's maybe a third of what it was last year," said Plymouth City Treasurer Judy Zirblis.

On Thursday, she reported, "We're just honoring a very few appointments this week. We had four appointments today. Last year it was crammed — We'd have at least 30 appeals in a six-hour session; over six days, 180."

While city officials had set up six days for appeals, "We didn't need them," Zirblis said.

"We've had less than 100 appeals that have showed up in person, possibly another 50 written appeals," Zirblis said. "Last year we had at least 180 personal appointments and 180 written; usually we have 350 written appeals."

Why are appeals down? "Basically because 2.6 percent (the average assessment increase in the city) does not represent that much more in tax dollars for the taxpayer," Zirblis said. "Usually, when the taxpayer is paying only $30 or $60 more than last year, they're not interested in appealing; they just kind of back off."

With fewer appeals to deal with, "At least we can get our paperwork in to the county on time," Zirblis said.

Ideas on changes sought

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

If you've got ideas on recreation programs or facility improvements in the city of Plymouth, get those ideas ready because time is running out.

The city's Recreation Master Plan Committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. April 5 at city hall to discuss possible parks and recreation program improvements. It's not clear if a second meeting will happen before the committee reports back to the City Commission in late April or May.

RECREATION

If anybody has ideas for improvements, "They can call me or write me a letter," said Tom Willette, city recreation director.

In February, the committee headed by Willette and City Commissioner Stella Greene put together a list of goals and objectives. The list was drawn from responses collected last summer to a recreation survey sent to residents, and from committee members' ideas.

Goals and objectives listed by the recreation committee were:

- Cooperating with the school district to use school facilities for recreation programs and exploring possible after-school programs for teens at the schools run by the recreation department.
- Creating a "Friends of Recreation" community group to advise and support the recreation department.

State contribution to local budgets shrinks

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township are getting less money than expected from the state in their upcoming budget years, and local officials say they'll have to keep budgets tight to compensate.

The city is getting $53,968 less than the state-shared revenue formula calls for, while the township is getting $62,000 less. They join communities around Michigan in getting less of an increase in state shared revenue than expected, as Gov. John Engler wants to change the formula to give $1.2 billion to Michigan communities, rather than the $1.3 billion they'd get if the formula was unchanged.

The city is slated to receive $981,538, down from the $1.04 million called for under the former state shared revenue formula. The township is to get $1.82 million, down from the $1.89 million otherwise expected.

Rosemary Harvey, township finance director, said, "$62,000 would pay a policeman or fireman. It just means you have to hold down your costs."

"It's not hurting us as much as it's hurting a lot of the cities," Harvey said, as a greater proportion of state shared revenue goes to cities. The township projects to raise $6.7 million this year toward its general-fund budget.

Plymouth City Manager Steve Walters stresses that the city is not losing money, but is getting less of an increase than expected under the old formula.

While Plymouth is slated to get $53,968 less, "at the same time, we're getting a $50,000 increase from the current level," Walters said.

"It's discouraging to the local units," he said, adding the city, through the Conference of Western Wayne, is lobbying the state to restore the appropriation.

The city projects raising $4.61 million toward its 1994-95 general-fund budget. Reduced state revenue next year won't significantly affect the next fiscal-year budget, Walters said, "because we have projected things on a basis lower than the revenue pattern."

"But costs are inflating, too, and some of our revenues don't grow with (match) inflation," Walters said. Had the state come through with the projected allotment through the old state shared revenue formula, city commissioners planning next year's budget could have considered trimming the millage rate by two-tenths of a mill, Walters said.

"It's bad faith on the part of the state," Walters said, as the state government, which had trimmed money to municipalities during lean times, is trimming again during good economic times.

Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy said, "We're still going to get an increase, even though it's not as much as we're entitled to. If you're getting an increase I guess you can't complain."

Playscape construction near

May 17-21 is construction week for the Plymouth Dream Playscape Project, and organizers are drawing attention to remaining fund-raising efforts to benefit the project.

Pam MacKenzie, fund-raising co-chairwoman, said, "We are quickly reaching our goal of $100,000. With just two more months remaining, we still have several fund-raising efforts in progress."

The Plymouth Newcomers have organized an auction at 8:30 p.m. Friday at the Mayflower Meeting House, Martin Art Studios of New York will provide the art. For tickets, call Lisa Bonaga at 455-3915 or buy them at Beltner's Fine Jewelry, 604 W. Ann Arbor Trail.

Orders are being taken for planting flowers and hanging baskets through April 5 to benefit the project. Call Debbie LaFontaine at 453-6706 or visit the playscape display table Sunday at the Plymouth Kroger store on Ann Arbor Road at Sheldon. Also, a children's cookbook will be available at local businesses in April. Sales benefit the project.

Volunteers are still being sought to build the 15,000-square-foot wood play structure. Child care and food will be provided. Skilled and unskilled laborers are needed to work four-hour shifts during construction week, but even one hour helps. To sign up, call Lisa or Pat Nolan at 454-5574.

Talking Constitution

George Bushnell, president of the American Bar Association, will present an address titled "Let's Talk About The Constitution" at 6:45 p.m. Monday, April 17, at the Mayflower Hotel Colony Room. Dinner is included; cost of tickets is $15 per person. Attendance is by reservation only. Call 453-2375 or 453-8547.

Award presented

The Plymouth Downtown Development Authority announces that its consulting firm, Hyatt-Palma, has presented the DDA an Award of Excellence for outstanding work in the field of business district revitalization.

The award recognizes those "that have excelled in making business district revitalization a reality," said Doyle Hyatt.

Police seek charges in assault

Police are seeking to charge a man with striking an elderly Plymouth Township woman, after she declined to have him do work on her furnace.

Township police were called at 5 p.m. Tuesday to a home on Ann Arbor Road. There, they saw an 86-year-old woman crawling on her lawn after she had been struck twice by a man who on March 10 had inspected her furnace and told her she needed $1,000 in repairs.

After talking with another furnace firm which told her the work was not needed, the man returned to do the work, but the woman told him no, according to the report filed with township police.

He then got inside her house and struck her twice about the face, ransacked files in several rooms looking for cash, and threatened her with a knife, the report continued.

A 24-year-old Fenton man was arrested on a charge of armed robbery in connection with the case.

Blue thief

A Westland man was in the Wayne County jail Tuesday after he was charged in court with stealing $800 from a cash box at the Plymouth Township finance department office.

Brian Spandle, 33, had a not guilty plea entered Tuesday on the charge by Magistrate Eric Colthurst, and was jailed on $1,000 bond.

Township police discovered the theft of $600 from the cash box March 9. In hopes of catching the thief, they placed $200 in the box and marked it with a powder that would turn the thief's hands blue.

After that money was discovered stolen March 11, police questioned some township employees who had access to the money, then questioned Spandle, who worked with a firm cleaning township offices. He confessed the theft to police, according to the report filed.

Thief nabbed

Plymouth Township police are charging a Canton man, 37, with retail fraud after he allegedly stole 92 packs of cigarettes at 11:35 p.m. Thursday from the Mobil service station at 1545 Ann Arbor Road.

An employee said the man approached him at the station saying he had no money and was out of gas, and could the attendant give him some money. When the attendant said no, the thief replied, "Guess I'll have to take these then," picked up a rack of cigarettes and left.

According to the report filed with township police, a witness saw the man get into a blue pickup truck parked on a nearby street and drive away. At 12:01 a.m. Friday, Livonia police stopped the man on I-96 for speeding, noticed the rack of cigarettes in the car and arrested him, the report continued.

Plymouth Township police said Friday they would seek charges against the man in court.

Man arrested in NBD robbery

A Plymouth bank robbery suspect nicknamed "The Ghoul" by the FBI was arrested by agents at a Garden City residence Thursday morning.

William Warwick, 42, a former resident of Boston, Mass., was arrested Thursday before a U.S. magistrate in U.S. District Court in Detroit.

"He confessed to our robbery and six others," said Plymouth Lt. Wayne Carroll. Warwick is suspected in the March 10 robbery of the National Bank of Detroit at Main and Penniman in Plymouth, at which an undisclosed amount of cash was stolen.

Warwick was unarmed and no one was hurt in the incident, which occurred at 4:55 p.m. The other robberies took place in locations throughout the metro area, Carroll said.

Tickets on sale for hockey benefit

Tickets are on sale for the second benefit hockey game between Canton firefighters and police officers and the Red Wings Alumni for a Canton youth in need of a lung transplant.

The first benefit game Feb. 17 was a rousing success with proceeds of more than $13,000 going directly to Greg Unger, 14. The second game is at 7 p.m. Friday, March 31, at the Plymouth Cultural Center Ice Arena.

Greg Unger, who has cystic fibrosis, is in need of a double lung transplant. A number of fund-raising activities, including the first hockey game, have raised about $85,000 of at least $100,000 that is needed for medical costs and costs associated with going to

St. Louis, Mo., where the transplant will be performed.

Knife taken to school

Plymouth police arrested a 14-year-old East Middle School student for felonious assault Thursday afternoon after he brandished a knife in the school gym. No one was injured in the incident.

"We arrested a 14-year-old male who was detained by the administration, who claimed he attacked three students brandishing a large folding knife," said Plymouth Lt. Wayne Carroll.

The child, a Canton resident, was taken to the Wayne County Youth Home.

A hearing before a referee was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Friday in the juvenile division of Wayne County Probate Court.

Teachers' union won't file grievance over change

By M.R. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth-Canton Education Association has decided not to file a grievance after all concerning beefed-up graduation requirements recently adopted by the Board of Education.

The board decided that beginning with the Class of 1999, students must earn three science and three math credits to graduate. The current requirement is two credits in each subject.

The teachers' union initially decided to file a grievance because the process by which the change was made violated the contract.

The graduation requirement issue was referred to the school improvement team at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park. The teachers' contract says that matters handled by the team that affect the entire school building require the approval of 75 percent of the staff before they can be implemented.

"There were meetings of the staff, but they were in small groups, and not as an entire staff," said Chuck Portelli, president of the teachers' union.

"In order to accomplish a building-wide change, at least 75 percent of staff must agree. This was never brought back to us for a vote."

Initially, the PCEA was going to file a grievance over the issue. However, "the PCEA Executive Committee met and considered the board's action to adopt the new graduation requirements. While we strongly protest the process by which the requirements were established for graduation, the committee elected not to pursue a grievance,"

Portelli told Superintendent Charles Little in a letter. "We do not seek to rescind the graduation requirements, rather to implement the process negotiated during bargaining."

The curriculum change never should have been brought to the school improvement team in the first place, since the board has sole authority over such matters, said Maryann Ligato-Freydl, Michigan Education Association executive director.

"Accordingly, it was most unwise to refer to the team an issue that only the board had the authority on which to act."

"The PCEA has chosen to forego a grievance in this instance, but we must insist that the process be correctly followed in the future."

Portelli expressed the hope that administration and the board will "be up front with teachers and tell them right from the get-go how they're doing whatever they're going to do. Teachers at the park believed they were going to vote on this."

The PCEA also resolved with the district an issue involving the severance agreement, expected to see the early retirement of 60-100 teachers this year.

A grievance was filed in January after two provisions were added, without union approval, to forms being signed by retiring teachers.

The provisions — involving workers' compensation and the filing of grievances — "weren't what we agreed to, and they weren't what we signed at the table," said Portelli.

"There were two areas of concern. If someone were going to bring a workers' comp claim against the district, they would lose (according to the form) their annuity."

The second provision prohibited retiring teachers from filing a grievance "for whatever reason after June 30," said Portelli.

"They agreed teachers are entitled to workers' compensation." The second issue was resolved recently to teachers' satisfaction as well, Portelli said.

Computer Club programs Bentley pupils for success

Fifty Bentley Elementary School second-grade students received their official computer licenses on Friday, making them the first-ever Computer Club at the school.

"These 7- and 8-year-olds have worked very hard to learn all they can and prove their knowledge of basic computer language and proper computer use and care," said Nancy Weycker, second-grade teacher and club director. "These students had to demonstrate their ability to use various Apple IIe and Macintosh science, reading, math, and problem-solving programs. By the end of the school year, our goal is to learn over 100 programs."

The students have just finished science reports on the solar system using the Grolier Encyclopedia program in Bentley's computer lab. They are now typing stories and autobiographies using the ClarisWorks word-processing program.

The Computer Club has heard several speakers talk about how they use computers in their jobs. The club is gearing up to learn how to send E-mail messages and access other information.

"I'm excited about introducing the students to the world of cyberspace," said Weycker. "Our first E-mail messages will be to Michael Bentley, a professor in Calgary and the son of Carvel Bentley, the namesake of our school."

"I want to make sure that our Bentley students are comfortable with the new technology and prepared for life in the 21st century," said Weycker. "They might as well start young when their minds are like little 'sponges' and they learn extremely fast."

Ford dealer supports project

By JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

You've got a better chance than playing Lotto, and it's for a community cause.

The Canton Community Built Playscape Project in conjunction with the Canton Community Foundation is hosting an auction of a 1995 Ford Explorer provided by Blackwell Ford, 4100 Plymouth Road.

Proceeds from the auction — at 7 p.m. June 1 at Blackwell Ford — will benefit the Heritage Hideout playscape targeted for construction June 7-11 at Heritage Park in Canton.

The 1995 Ford Explorer has a $27,100 sticker price. Auction tickets are $50 each. "You can buy as many as you want," said Lee Bittinger of Re/Max Crossroads, who approached Blackwell sales manager Len Gossman, and Joan Noricks, foundation executive director, about a benefit auction for the playscape.

Tickets will be available beginning Wednesday, March 22, by calling Bittinger, 453-8700, in Canton.

"This may be the only way to get a Ford Explorer," Gossman said. Because of the sport utility vehicle's popularity, keeping Explorers in stock is difficult. The dealership has about a six- to 16-week wait, depending on the model.

"Blackwell Ford always has been involved in the Plymouth-Canton community. We try to step up to the plate when there's a need," Gossman said.

The maximum number of tickets that will be sold is 2,000, but a minimum of 600 must be sold for the Explorer to be auctioned. If less than 600 tickets are sold, the prize will be $10,000, Bittinger said.

"The odds are extremely good; plus, we are selling them in a short period of time," Bittinger said.

The Explorer to be auctioned is charcoal gray with XLT trim and has four-wheel drive, a luxury package, performance axle, trailer towing package, all-terrain tires, and stereo with cassette. The Explorer will be on display at Blackwell Ford.

Bittinger is also rounding up the business community to help Heritage Hideout by buying major components of the wooden, volunteer-built playscape. Lee and Noel Bittinger contributed $1,000 for the straight tube slide portion of the playground.

"I view it as a way of giving back to the community. It is, in my opinion, a cost-effective way to advertise your business forever," Bittinger said.

For their contribution, the Bittingers and anyone else who buys a portion of the playscape will have their names and company name engraved on a plaque on the particular component.

"Anyone who contributes $1,000 or more will be mentioned on an plaque at the entrance of the playscape," Bittinger said.

Businesses or community groups can join forces to buy a component to reduce costs. For example, Canton firefighters donated $300 toward construction of the wooden fire truck portion of the playscape.

An example of some components and their prices are: haunted castle maze, $3,500; pirate ship, $4,000; tot playhouse, $3,000; dragon tunnel slide, $500; trolley ride, $1,500; wheelchair maze, $300; fire pole, $425; spider web, $800; and swing set, $800.

Businesses are asked to contact Bittinger at 453-8700.

Prime Time readers

GUY WARREN/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Breakfast session: Lowell Middle School students in the Prime Time silent reading program developed by the school's Language Arts Target Group participated in a Prime Time Breakfast on Friday. The event was scheduled to demonstrate the program, geared to increasing students' literacy and to developing their love for reading and literature. The students are Shaun Dean, Stephanie Dean, Joanna Conte, Amanda Conte, Sarah Dean and Danuelle Riopelle. The program, in its third year, includes students, administrators, teachers, custodial staff, secretaries and aides.

Rosemary Harvey, Plymouth Township finance director, said, "The number of appointments is way down, we expected that to be the case."

Township officials last year heard more than 700 appeals. That number is down to around 100 this year. Last year there were three boards hearing petitioners, this year there's two, and both boards are not filled for the whole time," Harvey said.

In Plymouth Township this year, homeowners will see an average 2.48 percent higher assessment. That means the homeowner with a house that would sell for $180,000 — who paid $2,179 last year in property tax — will pay $2,233, or $54 more.

- Continuing Plymouth Cultural Center renovations, including expanding the recreation department office
- More land for soccer fields.
- More talks with Plymouth Township on joint recreation services and facilities.
- Upgrade equipment and facilities in city parks and working with the school district to repair tennis courts at Central Middle School.
- Create more programs for kids in junior high and high school, and ask them for ideas on the programs.

Build a bike path to hook up with the Hines Park path system, re-sod Massey Field and install new fencing and an irrigation system there, and bring the cultural center up to the standards of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

"By no means is the list all-inclusive," said Greene, adding the public may still submit ideas.

The committee staged a public hearing Wednesday to seek input, yet nobody showed — except Mayor Doug Miller.

"The last one we had five years ago we had one or two people; it's not unusual," Willette said.

"At our next meeting we'll go over goals and objectives again," he said, before a report is presented to the City Commission for approval.

Township site plan gets nod

The Plymouth Township Planning Commission took the following action at its Feb. 15 meeting, according to meeting minutes.

The commission delayed final site plan approval for a proposed addition to the Plymouth Salvation Army headquarters, 9451 S. Main, and granted tentative and final site plan approval for the Antonio Building Co.'s industrial district development at Plymouth Oaks Business Park, pending their meeting requirements outlined by Plymouth Township.

CLARIFICATION

A recent story about the settlement of the Plymouth-Canton schools' transportation contract should have said the school board negotiated the agreement in closed session and ratified it in open session.

Eight Mile group receives 2 grants

The Eight Mile Boulevard Association has been designated as a 501(c)(3) charitable organization by the Internal Revenue Service and received two grants totaling approximately $20,000.

The Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan will donate $17,000 to the association to develop a statistical profile of businesses on Base Line between I-94 and I-275.

The study will determine the extent to which businesses on Eight Mile are industrial, commercial or retail and assess employment levels, find out where employees work and where customers come from.

It will also examine what problems these businesses face, to see if they are typical of businesses in general or specific to their location on Base Line.

The Metropolitan Affairs Corp. will give $3,100 for a study of building codes and zoning ordinances and enforcement techniques in the 13 cities and townships that border Base Line.

University of Detroit Mercy students will summarize key features of zoning classifications found on Base Line and of the building codes in the respective cities and townships.

They will look at how member communities enforce their codes and provide information on enforcement techniques.

Arts workshop planned

The Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs will sponsor a free workshop for artists and arts organizations on the National Endowment for the Art's International Program 10 a.m. to noon Friday, March 24, at the Detroit Institute of Arts Lecture Hall in Detroit.

Workshop presenter Penny Ojeda, who is assistant director of NEA's International Program, will be on hand to discuss the program and to identify funding opportunities for participants.

Cable guarantee

Get your money back if they're late

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

In the cable TV industry, where companies are marrying other companies left and right, operators are likewise pledging to be kind to their customers with guarantees of $20 here and $20 there if they goof up.

"All we're doing is putting our money where our mouth is," said Carol Gibson, general manager of Metrovision, which has been purchased by Time Warner Entertainment.

Metrovision provides cable service in Livonia, Redford Township, Farmington and Farmington Hills.

The cable companies, through their trade group, the National Cable Television Association, have agreed to adopt a two-point, money-back guarantee.

■ If they are late for an installation appointment, they will do the installation for free.

■ If they are late for a service appointment, they will credit the customer's account $20.

Some companies are also offering new customers their money back if they request disconnection within 30 days of installation.

Kate Ebli, general manager of McLean Hunter Cable TV, which has been purchased by Comcast Cablevision, said a few substandard operators gave cable a black mark in public opinion, and the guarantee is an attempt to erase that.

"We just need to remedy some image problems that cable TV has had," she said. "We're doing a good job (now), but some people still have a perception problem."

McLean Hunter is the cable provider for Garden City and Inkster residents.

However, no area operators are eager to be known as reformed miscreants of the cable industry.

"Continental has always been committed to excellence in customer service," said Bill Black, spokesman for Continental Cablevision, in a press release. "This guarantee reaffirms that conviction and demonstrates our respect and concern for our customers' busy schedules."

Continental provides service to West Bloomfield Township, Southfield and Westland. The company hopes to add Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township to its stable once it concludes the purchase of Omnicom Cable.

"Customer service is at the forefront of everything we do," said Mike Cleland, general manager of TCI Cable, serving Rochester, Rochester Hills, Troy, Auburn Hills and Oakland Township. "We've been real proactive in improving our service. The more satisfied our customers are, the more successful our business becomes."

Metrovision's Gibson said the cable companies are buying one another as a means of dealing with anticipated competition from AT&T, which plans to offer cable TV and from direct broadcast satellite companies that feed programming directly to customers through individually-owned satellite antennas.

Gibson estimates that there will be just six or seven cable companies when the dust settles.

TCI's Cleland says that the new guarantees, which went into effect March 1, are a reflection of increased competition.

"We know competition is already here," he said. "And there are going to be more competitors."

Wear the patents for a spring shine

Yes, it's your time to shine. Patent leather makes a comeback this spring, and it's back with a passion. A tailored little black patent pump may be a safe shoe choice for Easter Sunday, but a white patent high-heel mule will turn heads.

Pristine, white shoes re-enter the fashion scene after a lengthy rest in the back of the closet. And patent leather accessories also shine in fire engine red, neon yellow, even lime green. For the more demure, baby blue and pale pink patent leather grown-up loafers are afoot at Kenneth Cole in the Somerset Collection, Troy ($125). Reflect upon some of the season's best and brightest:

Many designers are pairing the shine and color of patent with clear vinyl or mesh. Neiman Marcus at Somerset offers an exclusive white or black patent and mesh oversize tote ($150), while Jacobson's in Birmingham, Rochester and Livonia displays a kelly green mini-bag by Paloma Picasso in the same patent/mesh combination centered with her signature "X" ($125). Also spotted at Jacobson's, a dainty-heeled black-patent shoe with clear plastic insets by VanEli ($92).

Find patent shoes in an array of styles including stacked heel granny boots in black ($180) at Hudson's, chunky retro T-strap sandals by Via Spiga ($100) at Neiman's, Gucci slides with clog soles in white, yellow, pink and black ($150) and Perry Ellis slip-ons with mini-check fabric platforms in bright colors ($24) at Jacobson's.

Liz Claiborne even gives the ubiquitous canvas tennis shoe a shiny new black patent leather face ($30) at Hudson's. Since patent leather has a waterproof polyurethane coating, the tennis shoes are perfect for a rainy day. Wear them with your yellow slicker.

Shoes are certainly not the only accessory to mirror the sun this summer. Look for hats, belts, bags, pins and hair ornaments in colorful, shiny leathers and vinyls. Frank Olive's lacquered straw sailor hat features a patent leather band and fusette ($245) at Neiman Marcus, and for play, don a black patent baseball cap from Hudson's ($15).

Belts are skinny and encircle the waistlines of your shaped suit jacket, your barely there sweater set, and your long '80s-style shirt dress. The narrow length of patent is almost a necessity this season. Get it in hot pink, orange, royal blue, white, black and beige at Jacobson's ($19).

Patent leather purses are easy to clean with a damp cloth. Beware of scuff-marks, especially on white. Some sure bets are Jones New York's poodle pink shoulder bag with polished aluminum accents ($65) at Jacobson's, Anne Klein II's large satchel in lip-lack red ($66), tiny structured handbags in geometric shapes by Berganza & Couture! ($25) and Unlisted's mini-backpacks in gold, silver, black and white ($24) all from Hudson's.

Spring's most eye-catching accent is the lifelike patent leather camellia pin. You've probably seen them adorning lapels on Oprah and Company. Even Chanel paraded shiny flowers down the runway. Find them at Neiman's in white, red and black ($25). Patent headbands ($25) and flat bow barrettes complete the look ($25).

One rule of thumb when going for the gloss — don't wear too many shiny accessories at once. Shine on! . . . a couple of pieces at a time.

Sideways strategy succeeds

Eighteen years ago a little shop opened in Plymouth to sell cards and gifts. The right merchandise shown the right way is the key to its longevity.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

The magic of springtime greets customers the moment they walk in the door of Sideways in Plymouth.

As the seasons change outdoors, so do the store's welcoming displays which are part of the overall marketing strategy owner Sharon Pugh employs to keep her customers coming back again and again.

Themed niches throughout the popular shopping spot feature merchandise groupings of everything from Americana decor items to Muffy VanderBear collectibles.

"The way we market our merchandise is by departments. Since 72 percent of American women work outside the home these days, and 98 percent of them do all the shopping, our arrangements make it more convenient for them to come in and go directly to what they need," Pugh said.

"People have far less time to shop. There are more people wanting quality time with all they have to do. They want to stay home, put on a pair of sweats, and cook something special."

That's why one side of this contemporary department store is devoted to home entertaining. Gourmet foods and spices, teas and coffees delivered fresh weekly, drinking glasses and dinnerware offer pleasures that make life enjoyable. Bright solid orange, yellow, green and blue stone-ware place settings are sure to spice up any meal, unusual candles can add to the romance, and scented soaps and lotions help set the mood.

On the other side of the 5,000-square foot store, gifts, cards, wrapping papers and collectibles await customers in search of ideas for a grandchild's birthday or friend's promotion. One-of-a-kind hand-painted adirondacks, floor mats, and

High design tops Yurman's styles

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

David Yurman estimates that he sold about $50 million worth of jewelry in 1994, a pleasing pay-off to years of working metals into designs for the neck, ears and wrists.

The 50-something native New Yorker arrived at Neiman Marcus in Troy, March 3, to kick-off a week-long jewelry department exhibit tracing his career through 1984 when he created the original cable bracelet that became his signature. His pieces have become collectibles, cited by Sotheby's auction house in their overview of the American jewelry design world.

Yurman and his painter-wife Sybil oversee the newest jewelry collections from the 18-foot-long kitchen table in their loft apartment in New York's Tribeca. Son Evan, 13, is known to add his opinion, which is always welcome, according to Yurman.

"I think design is in his genes," Yurman said. "My dad was a belt maker for the clothing manufacturers like Evan Picone. He never considered himself a designer. He simply made belts, but an artistic element was there somewhere."

When he was 15, Yurman got a welding torch from a friend. "My dad let me set it up in the garage. I began making sculpture and jewelry that I sold to friends."

In his 20s, Yurman apprenticed to sculptors Jacques Lipchitz and Theodore Rozak. But "big" projects requiring cranes and engineering were not meant for him.

"I found I worked best in stints of two or three hours," he said. "So I began to apply the techniques of bronze welding to crafting small sculptures."

By 1970, Yurman went from a sculptor to a jewelry designer almost overnight. His wife needed a belt for a dress she was wearing to a gallery opening. So Yurman went into his workshop and fashioned one from brass with small figures.

The gallery owner liked it and told the couple she thought she could sell it. She did. Twenty years later, the struggling young artists struggle no more.

In 1984, Yurman introduced his original cable bracelet a twisted helix of sterling silver with 14 karat gold encrustations of gemstones on its final ends.

Expanding the cable collection, in 1986 he premiered a Gold Cable Collection which took him to the upper echelons of fine jewelry design. This led to in-store boutiques where his entire collections in gold and silver are housed for collectors.

In 1990, Yurman was awarded two patents for the material and design of flexible mesh-like gold jewelry band. Using this gold product, a new collection was christened "Venetian Cable," in 18 karat gold.

Two-thirds of Yurman's business is done through fine jewelry stores, one-third through specialty stores like Neiman Marcus. The silver line is priced between $200-$2,000, the gold line from $400 to $10,000.

After a long work week, he and his wife "like to walk the city, shop, schmooze. Twice a year we go trail riding in the mountains."

soft sculpture works by Livonia artist Debbie Malek, make great gifts that say "you're special." Other areas devoted to Winnie the Pooh, Mickey Mouse, and paper items and tins feature the heart-warming designs of Mary Engelbreit.

On a recent Monday, customers from Toledo, Dearborn and West Bloomfield came to Sideways to shop and browse for the fun of it.

"I like their unique selection of merchandise. They have marvelous cards and the way they exhibit their products is very appealing," said Claire Sobson of Livonia as she sipped a cup of Hawaiian Hazelnut coffee, another perk Sideways offers to create a comfortable environment.

Over the years Pugh says Sideways has grown "methodically and very carefully." Sideways opened in 1977 in 1,000 square feet and Pugh herself the sole employee.

Today Sideways employs 10 sales assistants thanks to a successful business formula: Stock functional and unusual items arranged in orderly, themed displays which are requested by customers and sold during convenient hours.

To assist in the effort, a new computer system installed by daughter, Sigrid Doyle, tracks customers' purchases. Before opening Sideways, Pugh was a nurse. Her retailing bent comes from her mother who owned a yarn shop in Indiana.

"We like to say, the only limit here is your imagination," she said. "If we get a request for a certain item three times in the same month, we order it immediately. We also offer lots of little extras. If people come in with a basket we help them stuff it, wrap it, add a card to get it to its destination."

Pugh is sold on Plymouth as "a historic little town appealing to customers with its honey atmosphere." In fact, she and husband David are in the process of building a second floor apartment on top of Sideways. This will put them in close proximity not only to the store but to the seven other retail rental units they own in the downtown area with a partner.

Sideways offers an annual Christmas mail order catalog and plans call for the addition of a gourmet catalog in October.

Also look for a name change to Sideways Emporium later this year. Sideways is located in downtown Plymouth at 505 Forest Ave. The shop is open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday noon to 5 p.m.

Yurman's work as a designer is complicated by his role as business owner and marketing man. He offered this advice to fledgling designers.

"Invest in sharing the business end with someone you trust," he said. "There is so much detail involved in manufacturing, packaging, shipping, billing and marketing your product," he said.

Yurman's designs are transferred from his drawings into prototypes and finally into collectibles. Five manufacturing "plants" in New York make the jewelry. Looking to the future, Yurman said he only "hopes to do things better... How high is up... he said.

Racetrack gaming bill raises reps' eyebrows

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

State representatives are raising their eyebrows as they study details of a bill allowing horse race tracks to run gambling machines and inter track betting.

Michigan's licensed race tracks say they need expanded gambling if the 42,000-job industry is to survive against the onslaught of casino gambling in Windsor and possibly Detroit.

"No one wants to take a position on electronic gaming until the governor's Gaming Commission reports in the middle of April," said Rep. Susan Munsell, R-Howell, chairwoman of the House Regulatory Affairs committee that already has begun studying the 65-page bill.

"We're on a headlong crash course," warned the Rev. Allen B. Rice of the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems. MICHAP opposed the 1972 lottery question, has opposed gambling at outstate tracks and opposes allowing casino and off-track wagering at horse tracks.

"Citizens are saying: Let the lottery do it, we don't need to tax ourselves. We have a pell-mell desire to save ourselves with more gambling, more gambling, it's unwise public policy," said Rice.

He was alone in opposing the bill at Munsell's March 15 public hearing in a crowded fourth floor meeting room in the State Capitol.

Dr. David Darby of Brighton, president of the Thoroughbred Horsemen's organization, backed the bill, quipping, "I have 30 years experience and have lost thousands of dollars, but I get in free."

Dr. Cynthia Courson of Potterville, who heads the Equine Association, veterinarians who care for horses, said the bill will result in "substantial improvements in veterinarian care" through a fund it sets up for equine research.

Bob Lathrop, of Service Employees International Union Local 79, said business at the major race tracks in Livonia, Northville, Hazel Park and Jackson — has plummeted 20 percent since Windsor opened gambling casinos.

Without the means to compete, our jobs will be replaced by low wage jobs in the casino industry at $4 to $6 an hour," said Lathrop, whose union represents ticket takers, security forces, starters and outriders (track traffic controllers) at the tracks.

The union leader objected only to a section that would give the Swartz Creek track, near Flint, a tax break by shifting the area to a lower population classification.

Fielding the tough questions was Dick Elconin of the Harness Horsemen's Association.

Munsell: What was behind the definition of "city area" as a city of 750,000 and the area 30 miles surrounding it?

Elconin: "The practical effect is to limit tracks in the metro Detroit area." The bill limits the number to three, and those licenses already are held by Ladbroke DRC in Livonia, Hazel Park Raceway and Northville Downs.

Munsell: The bill says two people with an interest in a track can't operate more than one track in the city area. Why?

Elconin: "It's to keep the industry competitive rather than allow one economic interest to take control. For example, one party once had an interest in DRC and Hazel Park."

Munsell: Is there anything to prevent a new track?

Elconin: "There's nothing to prevent a new track. But it must be in business several years before it can get into videogaming (casino gambling). The practical effect is to limit the number of tracks."

A Detroit lawmaker: Does the bill specifically disallow racing in Detroit?

Elconin: "That's the practical effect." Until the early 1960s, Detroit hosted DRC at the State Fair Grounds. DRC moved to open land in Livonia. Of the three so-called "city area" tracks, none is in Detroit.

Munsell: Why does the bill specify the racing commissioner must have two deputies, an executive secretary and three stewards? Why not let the commissioner organize his own staff?

Elconin: "This comes out of a history of acrimony. We left the specifics to Mr. Westrin."

"New products" in the bill are:
■ Simulcasting — broadcasts of live racing from a track outside the state. Elconin said, "Some benefit must go to horsemen in the other state."

■ Intertracking — broadcasts from one Michigan track to another. This would be limited to harness racing because the state has only one thoroughbred (running) track.

■ Electronic computerized gaming device — any machine in which money or tokens are used in a game of chance.

If two broadcast races are available, the track must use the inter-track (in-Michigan) race "to protect the 42,000 jobs," said Elconin.

The bill is sponsored by Rep. Gary Randall, R-Elwell, and cosponsored by 23 other representatives including Munsell, Dan Gustafson, R-Williamston, Willis Bullard, R-Milford, Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, Tom Middleton, R-Ortonville, Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, Eileen DeHart, D-Westland, and Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake.

Where is state tax dollar going?

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Money talks. It shows the world what our priorities are. Here is a quiz about Gov. John Engler's proposed fiscal 1996 budget. Give yourself an "attaboey" pat on the back if you answer any questions correctly.

One tip: It helps to be a tad skeptical.

QUESTIONS

1. Which number will be closest to total state spending?
a) $8 billion. b) $18 billion. c) $28 billion. d) $38 billion.

2. What proportion of the state total revenues will come from federal grants?
a) Zero. b) 25 percent. c) 50 percent. d) 75 percent.

3. Engler boasts of cutting 15 taxes, but which of the following fees does he propose to increase?
a) Hunting and fishing fees by $5.6 million.
b) Administrative fees for DNR permits $1.8 million.
c) Insurer fees and fees on self-insured employers by $9.8 million.
d) Auto emissions inspection fees by $1.2 million.
e) Fire marshal inspection fees of health care facilities and plan review for new health care facilities by $2.4 million.

f) All of the above.

4. Arrange these departmental budgets by size: Corrections, Higher Education, School Aid, Social Services.

5. Voters last November approved a ballot proposal that allows the state to cut one line item by 50 percent. What office? For a bonus, what was the proposal?

6. The governor proposes 3.1 percent more money for community colleges, which are funded by a formula. Will Oakland Community and Schoolcraft Colleges get: a) exactly 3.1 percent? b) more than 3.1 percent? c) less?

7. Engler's plan to end free tuition for Native Americans has received much public comment, but the governor also proposes to "zero out" three other multi-cultural programs. What are they?

8. What is the lowest appropriation per pupil that any public school district will receive? a) $4,200. b) $4,500. c) $5,000.

ANSWERS

1. c) $28.035 billion.
2. b) 25 percent, or $7.2 billion.

3. c) All of the above — and more — for a total of $36.5 million.

4. School aid $8.3 billion, Social Services $7.5 billion, Higher Education $1.4 billion, Corrections $1.3 billion. For the first time in decades, school aid is larger than welfare, thanks to passage of Proposal A, which shifted responsibility to the state.

5. State Appellate Defenders Office, by $2.6 million. Proposal B amended the state constitution to end the automatic right of convicts who plead guilty to appeal their cases to the higher courts.

6. c) Less. OCC is due for 1.1 percent, Schoolcraft for 2.9 percent. Monroe and Kalamazoo top the heap with 10.8 and 10.3 percent, respectively.

7. In Mental Health, the governor recommends deleting "multi-cultural and special needs projects," a pet project of Arab-Americans. In higher education, he proposes to eliminate the King-Chavez-Parks College Day and Future Faculty programs as separate line items but would roll that $2.3 million into each university's unrestricted operating funds.

8. b) $4,532, to be exact.

When a tooth is knocked out, it is not necessary to try to reinsert it. It is best to see a dentist immediately. The tooth should be placed in a container of milk and kept in the dentist's office. # County commission axes staff to balance budget

By RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The Wayne County Commission has eliminated 13 jobs on its staff to bring spending back in line with a budget of about $6 million.

"We just reduced our eating so we could wear the belt we put on last December," said commissioner Bruce Patterson, R-Canton Township.

Commissioners voted 12-1 on March 9 to cut the jobs, including a $92,000/year chief of staff position and a $66,000/year public information director job.

Observer-area commissioners voted in favor of the cuts, except commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who was absent and did not vote.

Three of the eliminated jobs were vacant. The 10 individuals in the other jobs were given 30 days notice and must be gone by April 8.

In addition, commissioners agreed to reduce their personal office budgets from $60,000/year to $50,000/year.

Wayne County deputy executive Michael Duggan said he is "very impressed. They're doing a really good job. It has taken a lot of courage to do it."

The cuts were recommended by a committee chaired by commissioner Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, who also represents Garden City.

Beard: "It was a long arduous task, probably the most difficult thing I've done since I've been a commissioner."

"It was a long arduous task," Beard said, "probably the most difficult thing I've done since I've been a commissioner."

Beard said the cuts were necessary because state government revenue sharing is being cut back and property tax revenues are insufficient to cover expenses.

Others say the movement to cut commission spending began to pick up steam two years ago when commissioners Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, Plawecki and Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe, took office.

McCotter: "Amann made (spending) a big issue out in western Wayne County. Bryan deserves a lot of credit. He was out there in the wilderness."

Along with former commissioner Bryan Amann, the trio complained vocally about spending and accountability.

"From day one when we got down here we were talking about

Patterson: "We just reduced our eating so we could wear the belt we put on last December."

how we couldn't believe the shambles the commission was in," said Plawecki, who also represents Redford Township and Livonia east of Middlebelt.

To the old-timers who said, "This is the way it is, We kind of said, 'So what? This isn't the way it has to be,'" Plawecki said.

McCotter, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township, said Amann should be praised, too. "Amann made (spending) it a big issue out in western Wayne County," he said. "Bryan deserves a lot of credit. He was out there in the wilderness."

McCotter noted that when Richner, Plawecki and himself were elected in 1992, Richner and Plawecki beat candidates backed by Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and McCotter beat an incumbent Republican. None of the new commissioners were beholden to the system, he said.

"We never took the goodies. We never took the perks down here. Our hands were clean to push for cuts."

Beard disagrees. "As far as I'm concerned it was strictly that we had to address that deficit, and we wanted to become more productive, leaner," she said.

Plawecki and McCotter also credit commission Chairman Ricardo Solomon, D-Detroit, for adhering to a frugal course.

McCotter said he made it clear when negotiations to replace former chairman Arthur Blackwell ensued that "I was not going to vote for someone who was going to go through here and start spending money again."

And it didn't hurt that Solomon was already a believer. "He absolutely agreed with it," McCotter said.

"Ricardo led the charge," Plawecki said. "I think he needs to be credited."

"We're not through this yet," Plawecki said. "This is just one big step."

But future cuts will not come easy, McCotter said. "To get another consensus between eight people is going to be another matter," he said. "It's going to be a lot more difficult now."

Double bunking planned for prison

Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, had no objection when the House Judiciary Committee reported out a bill to allow double-bunking of inmates in the Western Wayne Correctional Facility.

"It's neutral in terms of security. Double-bunking has not turned out to be a problem at work," said Law, whose district in Northville and Plymouth townships takes a strong interest in prison security.

The bill will allow Department of Corrections officials to increase the capacity of Western Wayne from the current 500 to 775 inmates by placing two beds in some cells.

"We'll add Corrections staff in the appropriations bill," said Law. "They still can't put cots in gyms or halls. We've just allowed the capacity to go up. Nobody will be in an unsecure place."

Even with the increased capacity, Western Wayne is safer for the community than when the city of Detroit operated it as Detroit House of Correction, he said. "Dehoco had 1,200 inmates with no security fencing when Detroit ran it," said Law.

Provisions for operation of nearby Scott Correctional Facility in Northville Township are unchanged, Law said. "Scott will house females only. Scott is capped at 850 inmates. Scott already has double bunks," he said.

Schoolcraft professors win awards

The National Institute for Staff and Organizational Development has recognized two Schoolcraft College professors, Livonia resident Patsy Hammond and Plymouth resident Gordon Snyder, for teaching excellence.

Hammond, a nursing professor, joined the faculty in 1968 and has been a full-time employee since 1970.

Prior to joining Schoolcraft, Hammond practiced medical-surgical and obstetrical nursing.

In a Schoolcraft press release, Hammond said, "Learning is the responsibility of the student and the student must be an active participant in the process."

"As an instructor, I feel obligated to provide different avenues through learning.

"I encourage students to do their best and to continue learning when formal classes are over. As students apply theory to patient care, I feel I have succeeded as an instructor."

Snyder, a biology professor, has been a full-time faculty member since 1965.

Before joining Schoolcraft, he taught high school biology.

He has conducted research on fossil pollen that was published in the "American Midland Naturalist" and published a book on a mound Indian site study in Ohio.

Snyder received a Presidential Recognition Award in 1991.

Snyder's teaching philosophy is "to create conditions where students are actively engaged in the study of biology."

"I want my students to be active learners. I encourage students to interact with the subject matter in ways that will enable them to learn on their own, to struggle with the complexities of science, to develop their own answers and to share their knowledge with me and their fellow students."

"I attempt to create an open, friendly and supportive atmosphere that encourages students to learn. I let them know that I'm interested in their personal well-being, as well as their academic achievements."

Alzheimer's Patients Sought for New Drug Study
Everyone has some special memories—the day a child was born, a graduation, perhaps a wedding day. Imagine if you or someone you love couldn't recall these significant events. That's the fate of some 4 million Americans who suffer from Alzheimer's disease.
This degenerative condition gradually steals such memories from these individuals. It leaves them unable to recall friends, family or even their own names and addresses—the very stuff that makes us who we are.
A study is under way at Sinai Clinical Neuroscience Center in West Bloomfield to investigate a drug researchers hope will help Alzheimer's patients.
A family member or patient caregiver should call 1-800-567-2585, to inquire about participation. Participants must be over age 45 and must have a history of at least one year's duration with memory impairment. They should not suffer from strokes, epilepsy, insulin-dependent diabetes, brain tumors or active peptic ulcers.
A caregiver must be able to supervise the administration of study medication twice daily and accompany the patient on periodic visits to the study center. All examinations and medications will be provided free of charge to participants for the duration of the study.

Red-tailed hawks get ready to nest

NATURE TRAILS

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

Late winter and early spring is a good time of the year to see hawks along the expressways.

Red-tailed hawks, the most common hawk seen, are pairing and preparing for nesting. Pairs are often seen on the same branch.

This allows easy comparison of the smaller male and the larger female.

Though the red-tailed hawk is by far the most likely hawk seen hunting fields and open spaces along our highways, during winter the rough-legged hawk may also be seen.

Rough-legged hawks, like the red-tailed hawk, are members of a group of hawks known as buteos. They have, in general, a stocky appearance, broad wings for soaring and are some of the larger hawks.

While driving I-75 near Big Beaver in Troy not long ago, I spotted a rough-legged hawk as it flew to perch on a branch. I did not notice anything in its talons, so maybe it was going to rest and hunt from a perch. Often rough-legged hawks hunt by flying low over fallow fields, or areas that had been cleared recently, like the area near its perch.

Their wings are relatively longer than those of comparable-sized buteos, which allows them to fly low to the ground. They often continue quartering back and forth over an area with their lazy flight in a manner similar to that of a northern harrier.

Another habit they share with a different bird of prey, the kestrel, is the hunting behavior of hovering in one place to search an area for food. They can remain over one area for several seconds before they will continue their quartering flights.

Though they have a wingspan of over four feet and stand two feet tall, they feed primarily on small rodents. These are the most common kinds of prey found in the arctic where they nest. When they visit southeastern Michigan due to prey shortages in the north, they continue to feed on small rodents because that is what they are good at finding.

Their small feet also limits their prey selection. But because they spend so much time in the cold north, their legs are feathered to their toes. Feathers on their legs act like leggings for people in cold weather. Snowy owls actually have feathered toes to provide additional warmth in the cold arctic.

If you see a hawk during winter behaving differently than the usual red-tail, it could be a rough-legged hawk.

Discover the pleasure of making your own bread

Americans are rediscovering the importance of bread. The bread you and I were raised on (wrapped in a colorful package with a texture as soft as a marshmallow and just about as much nutrition) is now passe.

Quality bread bakeries are helping change the old view that bread is fattening and full of empty calories. High quality bakeries are producing real bread — bread that is wholesome and nutritious.

People who make their own bread know the special satisfaction that comes from producing a homemade loaf — the satiny feel of the dough when kneaded, the smell of the yeast, the miracle of the dough doubling and tripling in size, the aroma of the finished bread when it comes out of the oven, brown and crusty, and the hollow sound the bottom of the loaf makes when tested for doneness.

While growing up in Wyandotte, we had a neighbor who used to bake bread every Saturday. Mrs. Rossini lived two doors down, but all it took was a bike ride past her house on Sycamore Street to know she was making bread.

Now I have nothing personal against those modern day wonders dubbed "bread machines." As a matter of fact, I got one last year and sent it back. I was more than satisfied with the finished results — all accomplished in less than four hours. The price was right, and it can't get much easier, but I missed something. To make bread in the machine all you had to do was measure flour, salt, liquid, and yeast. But that was just it. I needed to knead.

The machine clunked and rattled as a tiny two-inch steel knob did the work of two powerful hands. The machine heated itself to just the perfect temperature for the first rise as I recalled that sky blue checked dishtowel Mrs. Rossini always used to cover her massive glazed mixing bowl.

The machine baked the bread perfectly and even dispensed of the heat and steam after the baking had finished, not unlike the way Mrs. Rossini would throw in a quarter cup of warm water to "help set the crust" of her bread. The machine was just too good and too easy.

Gratifying task

Few tasks gratify me more than making bread. Plugging in a machine and allowing it to do all the work took away all the fun.

One of the many pleasures of bread making is that the ingredients aren't hard to find or expensive. The utensils you need aren't complicated either.

You probably already have everything you need in your kitchen to bake a delicious loaf of bread. We have all heard people say they wish they had grandma's or a "Mrs. Rossini's" recipe for one thing or another. But chances are, grandma and Mrs. Rossini never had a recipe for the bread they baked. They probably added a bit of this and a dash of that. They mainly trusted their instincts and the feel of the dough.

Breads come alive with a handful of raisins or a spoonful of honey. The older and darker the pan, the more evenly the bread will bake, but a modern day pan will do just fine.

The only "homemade" bread my momma ever made was of the "frozen and let rise" variety. Remember the kind that came four frozen loaves to the bag? Momma would bake two, eat one by herself and serve the other for dinner. The only reason I knew this was once it was my turn to do the dishes and there were two bread pans with only one loaf appearing at the dinner table. With Mrs. Rossini long gone and momma the expert on the frozen variety, I went right to the source — Betsey Oppenheer — who wrote "The Bread Book" (Harper Collins, $27.50) and asked what the secret was to making great bread. Oppenheer responded — "To make perfect bread each and every time you bake, you must learn to trust your instincts and make the bread by feel."

Oppenheer says that bread baking has just four basic steps: activation of the yeast, using the right amount of flour, kneading the dough long enough, and taking care to be sure the bread does not burn.

Sound simple? It is! But for some crazy odd reason, I couldn't get Oppenheer to agree on the fact that to make the best bread, you needed sky blue checked dishtowels and big old glazed bowls.

If you knew someone like Mrs. Rossini, bring back the memory and make a loaf of bread — who knows, you might just start a Saturday morning tradition and the little kids who ride by on their bikes might write about you someday.

EVENT CELEBRATES VEGETARIANISM

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT
STAFF WRITER

According to "Vegetarian Times," 12.4 million Americans describe themselves as vegetarians, though 20 percent of them also say they eat red meat once a month.

Is that called having your steak and eating it too? No matter. They won't be eating animal products March 25 at the Great American Meatout, a celebration of vegetarianism at Oak Park's Community Center, 14300 Oak Park Blvd., just west of Coolidge and south of 10 Mile.

There will be chili, spaghetti, burgers (of soy, not beef) and hot dogs (called Not Dogs), but there won't be a chop or filet to be had.

So while meat is not welcome at this food festival, which runs 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., anyone who's got $2 for admission is. The event is organized locally by HARE (that's Humanitarians for Animal Rights Education) and the Farm Animal Reform Movement.

There will be Meatouts across the country that day. While not all vegetarians have political reasons for not eating meat, HARE members do. They don't like the treatment of animals that are raised for food. They also don't like furs worn as clothing and occasionally protest against it, though never violently or unlawfully, member Mary Melville of Farmington Hills said.

Meatout seeks to educate people about vegetarianism and the politics of eating meat.

The event has proven popular. Last year hundreds waited in a line at the Pleasant Ridge Community Center. The first local Meatout was held in a small Royal Oak Library room, and 300 people attended.

HARE is planning for 2,000

Sterling is silver, but these wines are pure gold

A frequently used phrase in the wine industry is, "wine is made in the vineyard." Nowhere is this truer than at Napa Valley's Sterling Vineyards where growing and buying the finest grapes is the most important factor in the winery's consistent wine quality.

"Grape farming is a dynamic, changing effort," said Cary Gott, executive vice president in charge of vineyards and wineries for The Seagram Classics Wine Company which owns Sterling Vineyards, Mumm Napa Valley and The Monterey Vineyards.

For these wineries, Gott is responsible for wine production from more than 2,500 acres of grapes in Napa and Monterey counties.

"Our vineyards are organized to service our winemakers," Gott explained. "We attempt to have Sterling's winemaker Bill Dyer's eyes and ears in the vineyards as much as possible."

In 1994, Dyer celebrated his 18th harvest. "Many people who entered the industry when I did, built their careers by moving from winery to winery," Dyer said. "I stayed at Sterling and everything has changed around me. It has always been my opinion that wine should show some fruit. I'm not a member of the 'do it to it' school of winemaking."

The spread of phylloxera, a louse destroying grape vine roots, has caused Sterling, like many of its North Coast winery neighbors, to engage in a replanting program. This is a positive in Gott's opinion.

"It explains the dynamism of grape growing," Gott said. "It's not detrimental to quality. As a matter of fact, it may improve quality. Yes, it's depressing to spend so much money on replanting, but we know that this crisis is accelerating the rate at which we incorporate new information and technology into our vineyards."

"Sterling is prepared to make all the correct replanting decisions. We have experimental blocks of several varieties that have aided us in selecting the best variety, rootstock, clonal selection, planting density and trellis system for each vineyard that's replanted."

Sterling has also taken a very active position on low-pesticide farming. Gott believes Sterling has an obligation to protect its employees, consumers and the environment from any unnecessary dangers associated with the use of agricultural chemicals in the vineyard. In the winery, Dyer has taken a "natural" approach to winemaking and no longer uses cultured yeast to inoculate for fermentation. Since the harvest of 1993, he relies on the yeast present on the grape people this year. Many are meat eaters.

It's a lot of ordinary people with families, said Melville, a vegetarian since 1986. "The people who come are not necessarily vegetarians. They're just ordinary run-of-the-mill people."

There will be large quantities of food, but much of it won't be fancy. It will be provided by food manufacturers who support the event. The volunteer organizers are limited by time and budget, so they keep the food simple but tasty, Melville said.

We don't go in for gourmet dishes where people have to spend three hours preparing the ingredients, Melville said.

But there will be entrees, soups, salads and desserts. Local health food retailer, The Good Food Company, will be there, as will the Royal Oak restaurant, Inn Season.

"People's plates are just piled high," she said.

The food will be vegan, meaning meatless and free of dairy products like milk and cheese.

Melville said vegetarianism is growing in popularity in the United States because people see such a diet as healthier. Some vegetarians are motivated by what they consider to be a "less violent" and more environmentally friendly diet.

HARE member Hilma Ruby of Rochester Hills, said she gradually stopped eating meat five years ago while seeking to lower her cholesterol level of 359. She stopped eating red meat, then poultry and dairy products. She said high cholesterol runs in her family. Her cholesterol level is now 222.

Part of the problem is that avoiding meat leaves a void in diets. Vegetarians have to learn to cook differently and with different ingredients. The Meat Out helps to educate people about alternative foods.

"If people are serious about getting off meat and dairy, there are some very good alternatives," said Ruby, 58, a registered nurse. These include wheat and soy-based products like Fakin' Bacon and meatless bologna, ham and ribs.

"We don't miss out on the summer barbecue," said Ruby. "When my grandson was here, he didn't even know he wasn't eating a meat hot dog."

FULL GRAIN BREAD

- 2 cups water
- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- ½ cup honey
- ¼ cup bulgur wheat
- ¼ cup cracked wheat
- ½ cup shredded coconut
- ¼ cup wheat germ
- ¼ cup wheat bran
- ½ cup old fashioned oats
- 2 tablespoons active dry yeast
- ½ cup warm water
- ½ cup hulled sunflower seeds
- 2 large eggs, beaten
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 4½ to 5½ cups unbleached all purpose flour
- 1 egg white beaten with 1 tablespoon cold water (for the egg wash)

Bring the two cups of water to a boil in a medium saucepan. Add the oil, honey, bulgur, cracked wheat, coconut, wheat germ, wheat bran and rolled oats to the boiling water. Remove from the heat and set aside. Stir.

Cover and allow to sit for 45 minutes or until cooled to about 110 degrees F.

In a large bowl, soften the yeast in the ½ cup warm (about 110 degrees F) water. Add the cooled grain mixture, sunflower seeds, eggs, salt and 2 cups of the flour to the yeast mixture. Beat vigorously with a heavy spoon for 2 minutes.

Gradually stir in some more of the remaining flour, ¼ cup at a time, until the dough forms a mass and begins to pull away from the sides of the bowl. Turn the dough out onto a floured work surface and knead, adding a little more flour as needed for 8-10 minutes or until a smooth, elastic dough is formed. Place the bowl in a lightly oiled bowl. Turn to coat the entire ball of dough. Cover with a kitchen towel and allow to rise for 1 hour or until doubled in size. Turn the dough onto a lightly floured surface and divide it in half.

Shape each half into a loaf shape and place into 2 well greased loaf pans. Cover with a towel and allow to rise for 45 minutes. About 15 minutes before the end of the rising, preheat the oven to 375 degrees F. Just before baking, brush the tops of the loaves with the egg wash. Sprinkle with a tiny amount of bulgur wheat, if desired. Bake for 25-30 minutes or until the loaves shrink slightly from the sides of the pan and sound hollow when tapped. Immediately remove the bread from the pans and cool on a rack. Makes 2 loaves.

Recipe from "The Bread Book" by Betsy Oppenheimer (Harper Collins Publishers, $27.50)

JEWISH RYE BREAD

- 3 cups water (room temperature)
- 1½ teaspoons active dry yeast
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 3 cups organic white flour with germ
- 2 cups rye flour
- ¼ cup caraway seeds
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 3 cups organic white flour with germ

Combine the water, yeast and sugar in a large bowl. Let stand 1 minute. Stir with a wooden spoon until yeast and sugar dissolves. Add the 3 cups of white flour and stir until the consistency of a thick batter is reached. Continue stirring for 5 minutes to help form the gluten. Cover with a damp towel and place in a warm spot (draft-free) until the mixture bubbles (about 5 hours).

This mixture can be refrigerated overnight but allow to stand at room temperature for 2 hours before processing.

Take the starter and stir in rye flour, caraway, oil, salt and sugar. Stir with a wooden spoon until well combined. Add enough white flour to make a thick mass that is difficult to stir. Turn out onto a wooden well floured surface and knead, adding more of the white flour until dough is soft and smooth, about 15 minutes. Shape the dough into a ball and place in a lightly greased bowl. Turn the dough to coat completely with oil. Cover with a damp towel and place in a warm, draft-free place until doubled in volume (about 2 hours).

Punch the dough down, reform into a ball and cover with a towel and place in a warm, draft free place until doubled again in volume. (about 1 hour) Punch dough down and divide into 2 loaves. Shape each loaf and place in a lightly greased baking pan or shape into rounds for baking on a stone.

Cover with a damp towel and allow to rise until doubled, about 1 hour. Preheat the oven to 450 degrees F. Place the racks in the center of the oven. Place the bread in the oven and spray the insides of the oven with water to create a steam. Bake for 3 minutes. Spray again with water to create a steam and bake for 12 minutes. Reduce heat to 400 degrees F. and continue baking for 15-20 minutes. Strike the loaves with your finger and if they sound hollow, they are done. If it doesn't bake for 5 more minutes. Transfer to a wire rack to cool. Makes 2 loaves.

Organic white flour is available at local health food stores. Organic white flour with germ is hard to find locally. As a substitute, add "wheat germ" one tablespoon per cup to the organic white flour.

skins to ferment all of Sterling's wines. In winemaking, this is called un inoculated fermentation.

"It's easy to over-attribute quality to a given technique," Dyer contends. "I feel very uncomfortable saying, wonderful things happen, the wine is transformed. It all goes back to a winery's grape source and what the winemaker can do with it. I have excellent fruit with which to work."

Dyer maintains that a winemaker friend accused him of fad winemaking because he has stopped inoculating fermentations. He keeps that in mind, but recalls that in about 8,000 years of winemaking, most of it was done un inoculated.

"I resist the idea that this is a fad," he said.

Sterling Vineyards produces a splendid array of wines, many of which we have been recommended as Wine Selections of the Week over the years. Our current favorites are:

■ 1991 Sterling Reserve ($32) — a blend of cabernet sauvignon, merlot, cabernet franc and petite verdot showcasing great structure and fruit harmony.

■ 1993 Chardonnay ($16) — which is very Burgundian and elegant.

Mark your calendar to meet Sterling Vineyards Cary Gott and taste Bill Dyer's wines at the Ann Arbor Art Association's annual fund-raiser, "Winerest," Saturday, April 8 at Radisson on the Lake in Ypsilanti. A wine and food reception starting at 6 p.m. will be followed by a live auction at 7:30 p.m. Gott is serving as this year's honorary chairperson.

For advance ticket information ($75 per person) call the Art Association, (313) 994-8004. In past years, ticket sales have been brisk, so reserve early if you're interested.

Texturized vegetable protein is the perfect replacement for ground beef in sloppy joes and other recipes. It's fat free and cooks up in seconds. Look for it in natural food stores.

QUICK AND HEALTHY SLOPPY JOES

- 1½ cups texturized vegetable protein
- 1½ cups boiling water
- 2 teaspoons vegetable oil
- ½ cup coarsely chopped onion
- ½ cup thinly sliced celery
- ½ cup coarsely chopped green pepper

2½ cups canned tomato sauce
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons sugar
Salt or tamari to taste

Place the texturized vegetable protein in a large bowl and pour the boiling water over it. Set aside.

Heat the oil in a large saucepan. Add the onions, celery, and green pepper and saute for five minutes until vegetables are tender. Add the remaining ingredients, including the TVP. Simmer for 10 minutes. Add salt or tamari and more chili powder to taste.

Serve the sloppy joe sauce over hamburger rolls. Serves 4.

See related story on Taste front.

WALNUT BURGERS

- 1 tablespoon oil
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1/2 bunch parsley, chopped
- 1 1/2 cups crushed crackers
- 5 eggs (To eliminate egg yolks use 8 egg whites or 12 ounces of egg substitute)
- 6 ounces sharp cheddar cheese (look for lite cheese that has no more than 5 grams of fat per serving)
- 1 cup old fashioned oats
- 1 cup ground walnuts
- 2 celery ribs, chopped fine
- Pinch cayenne pepper

Saute onion in 1 tablespoon of oil. In a large bowl mix onions, parsley, crackers, oats, walnuts and cheese. Add egg and mix until well combined.

Add two teaspoons of oil to a non-stick frying pan. Form mixture into patties the size of a regular hamburger and cook 4-5 minutes on each side over medium heat. Makes 8 large hamburgers.

RAVIOLI WITH BEAN TOMATO SAUCE

- 1 can kidney beans (15 ounces), rinsed and drained
- 2 onions
- 4 cloves garlic
- 4 stalks of celery
- 1 (15 ounce) can tomato sauce
- 1 (15 ounce) can stewed tomatoes
- 30 ounce bag frozen cheese ravioli
- 1 cup low-fat shredded cheese (mozzarella)
- 1 (8 ounce) can mushrooms, drained

Saute onion for 5 minutes. Add celery and garlic. Cook for 5 minutes. Add tomato sauce and stewed tomatoes and simmer covered on low heat for 15 minutes. Boil ravioli according to package directions.

In a 9 by 12-inch baking dish, scoop 1 cup of sauce from saucepan and put in baking dish. Put in 1/2 of ravioli. Cover well with sauce and add remaining ravioli and sauce. Top with cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes to melt cheese. May have one cup of sauce left over. Save for another meal.

GRILLED HALIBUT STEAKS

- 4 halibut steaks
- Marinade:
  - 1/2 cup Teriyaki sauce
  - 1/4 cup sherry
  - 2 tablespoons olive oil
  - 1 tablespoon sugar
  - 1 small chopped onion

Combine marinade ingredients. Pour over halibut and marinate for 4 hours. Grill over direct heat for 7 minutes on each side, basting frequently with marinade. Makes 4 servings.

TIPSY SIRLOIN STEAK

- 1 pound sirloin steak, partially frozen
- Marinade:
  - 1 cup soy sauce
  - 1/2 cup water
  - 3 tablespoons sugar
  - 3 minced cloves garlic
  - 1 tablespoon grated ginger
  - 3 tablespoons Bourbon

Slice steak into 1/2 to 3/4-inch strips. Mix marinade ingredients. Thread steak on soaked wooden skewers, then marinate for 8 hours in the mixture. Grill over direct heat for 2-3 minutes on each side.

RIGATONI COMBINATION

- 1/2 pound rigatoni or other pasta
- 1 onion, chopped

- 1 pound can kidney beans, drained
- 1 teaspoon soy sauce (optional)
- 1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
- 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
- Black pepper to taste

Cook pasta according to package directions. Saute onions, garlic, and green pepper in oil 4-5 minutes or until soft. Stir in tomato sauce, kidney beans, soy sauce, salt, chilli powder, and black pepper. Simmer several minutes. Drain pasta when done and stir into sauce. Serve as is, or add 1/4 cup crumbed tofu or low-fat cottage cheese to each serving to make a lasagne-like dish. Add hot sauce if desired.

To decrease the fat content — saute vegetables in water instead of oil or just brush the pan lightly with an oiled paper towel. Serves 4. Recipe from "Meatless Meals for Working People — Quick and Easy Vegetarian Recipes," by Debra Wasserman and Charles Stahler ($8)

Bill requires prisoners to earn GED

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Prison inmates would have to earn a high school diploma or GED equivalent under a bill passed by the state House of Representatives.

The bill split Republicans and Democrats, liberals and conservatives, as it won 87-16 passage and was sent to the Senate.

"I've talked to the warden at Scott facility (in Northville Township), with 850 female prisoners," said Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, a supporter. "If they get into a program (of schooling), it makes them easier to handle. They pass it along to their children when they visit."

Sponsor Greg Pitoniak, D-Taylor, said the bill wouldn't take effect until two and a half years after passage. "That gives the Department of Corrections two to three years to prepare budgets," he said, answering critics who complained the bill had "indeterminate costs."

"The only ones who are hurt by the bill are those inmates who don't want to get an education," Pitoniak said.

The big battle, however, was not over the bill but an amendment by Nelson Saunders, D-Detroit. The Saunders amendment would have allowed parole for a school dropout but would make the parole conditional on the person's enrolling in a GED course. Pitoniak complained it would "gut" the bill.

The Saunders amendment lost, 30 in favor and 69 against, with 10 absent.

Saunders and supporters like David Gubow, D-Huntington Woods, argued it was "a helluva lot cheaper than warehousing them" at $35,000 a year.

The House's main budget man, Appropriations chair Don Gilmer, R-Augusta, favored the Saunders amendment. "We have a potential of punishing the taxpayers," said Gilmer. "This bill has every intention in the world of costing us a lot of money."

But Judiciary chair Michael Nye, R-Litchfield, replied: "Look at the cost of releasing an individual with no education, no trade, and they commit another armed robbery. Where is the rehabilitation? It is not there."

On the key Saunders amendment, here is how area lawmakers voted:

YES: David Gubow, D-Huntington Woods; Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak.

NOT VOTING: Penny Crisman, R-Rochester; Tom Kelly, D-Wayne.

Coach's wins were off court

He never really expected it. Which in itself is surprising, considering the yardstick with which all coaches are judged: wins and losses.

Dave Bogataj never won at Schoolcraft College. That's why he won't return. And yet, the decision which led to his not returning caught him off-guard. He was still recruiting for SC Tuesday.

It may seem equally surprising that his passing is accompanied by such sadness. After all, the guy only won 70 of 231 games in his eight seasons as SC's men's coach.

That's pretty doggone poor by any yardstick. In his best season, he managed to win only 14 games while losing 15. Hardly the stuff resumes are written with.

So the "mutual agreement" both sides came to resulting in Bogataj's dismissal was based on the simplest of reasons.

And yet, he won't leave a loser. "Maybe nice guys don't win," Bogataj said. "Maybe he's right. Maybe college basketball has become such a numbers game, nothing else really matters."

Number of wins. Number of graduates. Number of fans in the stands. And, above all, number of dollars generated.

Now, at a community college like SC, expectations may be lower in some respects, but they still exist. And those can be brutally hard numbers.

Lost in that black-and-white world is a guy whose fondest memory isn't a major upset of a conference-leading team (something Bogataj's teams managed at least once a season over the past four); rather, "I'm going to miss the kids."

"It's the kids. Some kids who were successful academically, everyone of them, to see how they grew up and changed."

And to know you played a significant part in that process, that's what gratifies Bogataj. What gets lost in the shuffle of numbers is the human side.

Bogataj didn't win much on the court, but he played the game within the rules off of it, helping players succeed academically.

Several years ago, SC officials — in keeping with the NCAA's new course — decided drastic improvement was needed in the athletic department. Not in the victory count; rather, scholastically. Programs were instituted, tougher standards adopted, all making it harder for marginal students to survive.

Certainly they couldn't on basketball alone. Bogataj followed those rules. It wasn't easy; it's common knowledge that each season is a rebuilding one at a two-year school like SC, but for the Ocelots it happened twice a year. That's because at the end of the first semester in early January, several players would be lost to poor academics.

One year Bogataj was forced to recruit a soccer player, Lee Hunt, who was keeping the scorebook for the team, to play because he was so short-handed.

But still, he stuck to the rules — if a player didn't make grades, he was gone. No messing with numbers or "convincing" teachers they made a mistake.

And this year, for the first time since Bogataj became coach, he survived the change in semesters without losing a player. Indeed, he actually added one.

Now, in this bottom-line world, none of this really matters; after all, this season's team was so bad (3-23), some might sarcastically suggest Bogataj would have been better off rebuilding the team in January.

"Three-and-23 is not exactly going to get you into the Michigan Hall of Fame," said Bogataj. He would say it and smile. Always that smile. Through all those frustration-filled seasons, Bogataj would keep smiling. And keep trying.

He never gave up. True, his recruiting efforts — handicapped somewhat by the academic standards imposed — were less than spectacular. But he didn't quit.

Over the years, he found a different way to measure his success. One of the inspirational notes he collected went like this:

A coach never looks at the score to see who won or lost, but counts how many men walked off the court, who started out as boys.

Using that as his yardstick, Bogataj remained optimistic right to the end.

Whether or not he was a good coach caught in a bad situation, or just a bad coach, only time will tell. As Bogataj said, "Wait and see what the next guy does."

But whatever he does on the court, he'll be hard-pressed to match Bogataj's success off of it.

Ladywood blocked in Final 4

■ Livonia Ladywood, which upset Plymouth Salem in the regional, bowed out of the state Class A volleyball tournament Saturday to Port Huron Northern in three games.

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

It was billed as the Portage Northern Invitational, but it was Port Huron Northern that sent Livonia Ladywood packing in the state Class A girls volleyball tournament.

Ladywood, which bowed out at 41-9 overall, never got a chance to meet the three-time defending state champs, as Port Huron Northern gained its first-ever championship final with a 6-15, 15-5, 15-12 semifinal victory early Saturday afternoon at Portage Central High School.

And it was no contest in the finals, as Portage Northern, loaded with four major college recruits, wrapped up an 82-0 season by demolishing Port Huron, 15-8, 15-2, for the Class A crown Saturday night at Kalamazoo Central.

Portage Northern coach Jack Magelssen has now won eight state titles since 1982.

Ladywood, meanwhile, was gunning for its third state crown and fourth championship final under coach Tom Teeters, but fell flat after winning the first game against the Huskies.

"Erin LeSage (a 5-9 junior) outside-hitter had a lot of aces (four)," Teeters said. "But the first game was really not much better than the other two other than the fact that the score was in our favor."

Also adding to Ladywood's hardship was the absence of one of its top three hitters — Stacey Judd. The 5-foot-10 junior was unavailable because she was attending funeral services for her grandfather Saturday morning.

That left all the hitting pretty much up to Anne Poglits.

The 6-3 senior finished the match with 34 kills and two solo blocks, but no other Ladywood player had more than two kills.

"We were rattled by the changes in our rotation," Teeters said. "We didn't have a chance to work on them. It messed up our chemistry. Normally we have three primary hitters and suddenly we were down to two. We had to rely more on defense."

junior, held Ladywood and Poglits in check with her back-row digging and all-around play.

"We started hitting right at her (Wallen) and some of our passes were not on target, but she was tough to avoid," Ladywood starter Debbie Sobczak said.

Brenda O'Malley led Port Huron Northern with 10 kills, but Lori Westbrook, kill-less in the first game, came back to record four in each of the next two games.

"We just beat a good team," Huskies coach Ron Davey said. "After the first game, I was saying, 'Oh, boy.' But it's funny how momentum changes.

"We told our setter that when number 10 (Poglits) was in the back row, we had to go at the middle. But she (Poglits) is a great player because she hits the corners well and is so accurate. It took time to adjust."

The match marked the end of not only Poglits' high school career, but also those of four other seniors: setter Renee Rozell, Christie Soter, Robyn Danczak and Sobczak.

"This is the best season of the four (years) since we've been playing together," Soter said. "This is tough because the team spent so much time together. We were very close."

Poglits will be sorely missed, although the Blazers return six of 11 varsity players next season.

"Anne made the greatest improvement of anybody I've had from her freshman to senior year," Teeters said. "She added something each year. I'll miss watching her, both as a coach and a spectator."

Rozell, meanwhile, was Poglits' primary feeder throughout her final match and career.

"It ended up like that today because we put her (Poglits) in position to hit, and because it's the easiest way to attack," Rozell said.

It's over.

The Dave Bogataj era has been concluded. The coach of the men's basketball team at Schoolcraft College for the past eight seasons will not return for a ninth.

The parting, according to both sides, was mutual. The reason, according to SC athletic director Ed Kavanaugh, was simple: "Dave made drastic improvements in terms of academics. But success as far as wins and losses, we didn't have."

Bogataj, who met Wednesday with Kavanaugh and Midge Carleton, assistant dean in charge of physical education, could not argue. He never had a winning record; the closest he came was 14-15 in 1990-91. His eight-year mark was 70-161 (.303 winning percentage) overall; in the Eastern Conference, it was even worse.

What's more, it wasn't improving — his teams won just 14 games in the last two years, losing 45.

Asked why he was being replaced, Bogataj said, "For change. I can see their point. They wanted to win and I didn't win many games."

Part of the problem were the academic standards applied. Until this season, Bogataj annually lost players at the end of the first semester — in the first week of January — to grades. Which often meant reconstructing the team.

All of which pointed to Bogataj's most serious deficiency: recruiting. Those academic standards, which were strictly enforced, combined with a lack of talent in bordering communities made his job more difficult.

"It's a tough place to recruit at," admitted Bogataj, adding that the better basketball players from the suburbs usually ended up at four-year schools.

And yet, there were some standouts Bogataj coached: Steve Hawley from Westland, John Glenn, Randy Watters, Kwesi McGill, Jarvis Williams, Al Hudson, to name a few. All went on to other schools and have received, or are close to receiving, degrees.

Still, as Kavanaugh said, "There was no pattern of improvement in wins or losses. That's the bottom line."

Kavanaugh said he is currently accepting applications for the position.

On the team

Observer's best: Jeremy Breithaupt, who wrestled for Plymouth Salem at 151 pounds, was a second-team all-Observer selection. Two of his teammates, Scott Hughes at 119 and Phil Mitchell at 134, were selected to the first team. For more on all the area's top wrestlers, please turn to Page 3C.

Former cage stars make post-season marks

BRAD EMMONS

Madness has taken on new meaning for this writer.

Four former All-Observer boys' basketball standouts and one Lady Hill topper were involved over the weekend in the ledo (24-6), the Mid American Conference champs. Ironically, the Rockets are loaded with Michigan players.

Of course, everyone knows Michigan State's chances hinged upon College Player of the Year candidate Shawn Respert (Redford Bishop Borgess).

It also touched me deeply when Respert kissed the huge S at center court as he exited during the Spartans' final home game Saturday with Wisconsin.

What a fitting end to a glorious college career. And don't forget, little brother Mike Respert (Borgess) was also a member of the MSU squad.

Also going to the big dance was UNC Charlotte junior forward Bobby Kummer (Redford Catholic Central). Kummer, who plays a key role for the Metro Conference regular season champion The 49ers (19-9) lost a toughie to Sanford (20-8) of the Pac 10 Friday in Albany, 70-68.

Another participant in the NCAA tournament is Ball State University freshman guard Charles Smith (Borgess), who saw limited action in Thursday's loss against Arizona State.

Also glad to see Pittsburgh forward Chad Varga (Redford CC) back in the lineup in last week's Friday's cliffhanger loss to UConn in the Big East Tournament at Madison Square Garden. Varga missed half the season with a broken hand.

Also, with Eastern Michigan going to the NIT against Bradley, the Eagles were represented by freshman forward James Head (Plymouth Salem) and ex-Borgess player Kareem Carpenter.

Ice shavings

I read recently in USA Today where Livonia Stevenson product Chris Tancill, who starred at the University of Wisconsin and was a member of the 1990 NCAA hockey champions, was called up to the San Jose Sharks of the National Hockey League.

Tancill, who had brief NHL stints with the Hartford Whalers and Red Wings, was a mid-season All-Star pick in the International Hockey League (with Kansas City). Tancill, however, missed his opportunity Friday when the Red Wings-Sharks game was postponed because of flooding.

Also, what a pleasure to see two former Franklin High students, Mike Modano and Mike Donnelly, teaming up with the Dallas Stars.

I really got a kick out of seeing Donnelly pump in two goals in a win last week over his old team, the LA Kings. Donnelly played Thursday night against the Wings at Joe Louis Arena.

This and that

■ Livonian Carrie Cunningham, who played on the women's professional pro tennis tour before going into semi-retirement with a wrist injury, teamed up recently with Ed Nagel, a pro at the Sports Club in West Bloomfield, to win a mixed doubles tournament in Grosse Pointe. Touring pro Amy Frazier was on the losing end in the finals.

Cunningham is now attending classes full time at the University of Michigan.

■ On March 12, I attended the Golf Show at the Novi Expo and what a zoo!

The parking is terrible, plus they were charging $4 to park and $6 admission. But judging by the attendance, golf is not just a booming sport, it's becoming an obsession.

It's becoming more popular by the day. Everybody thinks they're a golfer now.

■ Noticed that former Livonia Bentley and University of Michigan pitcher Greg Everson picked up a save in a recent Tigers exhibition outing. He was also knocked around, too, in another game.

■ Guy Rucker (Westland John Glenn) has been selected to play in Magic Johnson's All-Star Game (formerly the Dapper Dan Classic) next month at the Palace.

The 6-foot-11 Rucker, who has signed with Iowa, will be playing with such stars as Robert Traylor, Terrence Roberson, Albert White, Kevin Garnett and Stephon Marbury.

Get ready, big fella.

■ How wondering? Just could John Glenn running back Brent Washington be left off the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association East-West All-Star Game.

His coach Chuck Gordon nominated the University of Michigan-bound All-Stater, but apparently his votes came up short.

Hard to believe one of the state's top 10 players isn't good enough to make the East squad.

Plymouth Bowl will be missed

TEN-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

It's the end of the line, everybody off!

That same old song is playing again, this time for Plymouth Bowl.

According to manager Rose Engle, the bowling center will close on or about May 1, 1995.

For 32 years, it was the home of 32 lanes and many fine leagues, including the Burroughs 5 p.m. Men's League which was there when it all started, and will still be there at the end.

Let's go back in time some 32 years. It would be 1963 when the then Plymouth Township supervisor felt the township needed an entertainment place that would appeal to the younger element.

He felt a local bowling establishment would be the answer.

In those days, the Plymouth bus originated in Detroit at a bus stop beside the Argyle Bowl. Plymouth riders would wait inside the building on cold winter days.

The supervisor contacted the owner of Argyle Bowl and convinced him to build one in the township. It was a very good run of 32 years, but in business, there has to be a good reason for opening and a good reason for closing and this decision to close is one more loss for the bowling community. The same story happened last year with the demise of Satellite Bowl and West Bloomfield Lanes.

Now it's Plymouth Bowl and Avon in Rochester Hills. The owners, Frank and Sam Mocer and Finley MacQueen, will try to consolidate the leagues in their other Plymouth Establishment, Plaza Lanes.

Most of the daytime leagues will be accommodated, some of the night-time bowlers will also move to Plaza, while others most likely will go elsewhere.

Plymouth Bowl was a haven for senior bowlers particularly, like Jerry Dyke and Verna Wright, who were still bowling in their 90s. Gordon Arthur just turned 90 and still bowls there, senior John Demaree fired a 300 game last year, while just recently, Harold McMahan did the same.

Rose Engle says she is ready to "Stop and smell the roses," time to retire and just take it easy after being with the house from day one. This place will be missed, especially by these seniors. It was their "home away from home."

■ When good friends get together to have dinner and talk about bowling, good things can happen.

Debbie and John Kurliak of Plymouth invited their friends Cindy and Ron Suder of Canton out to eat and then to sub on their team in the Saturday Night Get-togethers at Town 'n Country Lanes at Westland.

During dinner, they were celebrating the 300 game that Ron had shot at Beech Lanes back in December. Debbie and John had never witnessed a 300 game, and were joking about Ron getting another one.

About two hours later, their joke turned to reality as Ron popped another "Perfects."

He followed with 254 but could not quite reach 800 for series, his next target.

WRESTLING

CC, Stevenson place 4 on dream team

BY DAN O'MEARA

STAFF WRITER

Observerland has produced another outstanding class of wrestlers, but one stands above the rest.

Livonia Stevenson senior Craig Martin has been the most successful wrestler in the area the last two years and leads the 1995 All-Observer team.

Martin won a pair of Class A state championships while going 88-0 as a junior and senior.

He is joined on the all-area team for a third straight year by teammates Scott Goldman and Chris Mullett and Redford Thurston's Luley Haddad.

Named to the team a second time are Redford Catholic Central's John Spolsky, Bill Lamb and Dan Krueger, Farmington's Matt Michalaki and Westland John Glenn's Brian Kolb.

Observerland champ Stevenson and runner-up CC have four wrestlers each on the first team, Plymouth Salem two.

Don Berg was named coach of the year after guiding Stevenson to its second straight Western Lakes Activities Association championship, a regional title and a quarterfinal berth in the team tournament.

ALL-AREA TEAM

Matt Michalaki (junior), Farmington: Michalaki placed second in the state at 100 pounds. He was first in the Oakland County tournament and the Plymouth-Saleri, Romulus and Observerland Invitational. He also was a WAAA and regional champion. Michalaki was 42-3 and has a career record of 87-18.

"Matt's success is a direct result of his dedication, intensity and work ethic in the practice room," coach Al Byer said. "Matt is one of the most competitive, determined wrestlers we've ever had."

Dario Ianni (junior), Redford CC: Ianni placed seventh in the state at 106 pounds. He was champion of the Jenison, Observerland, Catholic League and district tournaments. Ianni was 38-9 this year and has a career record of 83-23.

"Dario is one of the very few wrestlers who knows how to keep his weight down by eating the proper foods all during the season," coach Mike Rodriguez said.

Bill Lamb (senior), Redford CC: Lamb placed fifth in the state at 112 pounds. He was first at the Jenison, Salem, Observerland, Catholic League and district tournaments. He was second in the Shamrock Invitational and regional. Lamb was 41-5 this year and 147-18 overall.

"Here is a young man who has learned what valleys and peaks are all about at an early time in his life," Rodriguez said. "Through it all, he has kept his head up. I am proud of Bill."

Scott Hughes (senior), Salem: Hughes placed fifth in the state at 119 pounds. He was co-MVP of the Observerland Invitational, and he also was first in the WAAA and regional tournaments. Hughes was 36-6 this year and had a career record of 101-36 with 71 pins.

"Scott did a very good job for us the past four years," coach Ron Krueger said. "As one of our captains, Scott led by example. It will be hard to replace Scott."

Richard Watson (sophomore), Wayne: Watson was the Observerland champion at 126 pounds. He was fourth in the Mega Conference and Lincoln Park tournaments. He was 21-11 this year.

Phil Mitchell (senior), Salem: Mitchell was the 134-pound champion and co-MVP of the Observerland Invitational. He also was first in the WAAA and fourth in the district; he placed in every tournament, Mitchell had a 36-13 record. "Phil is a very quiet person; we had to force him to talk," coach Ron Krueger said. "Once he started taking charge, his season and our team began to get better. Phil was a good captain and leader."

Luley Haddad (senior), Thurston: Haddad placed eighth in the Class B tournament at 134 pounds. He was the 126-pound state champion last year. He was second in the Observerland and regional tournaments.

Haddad was 51-6 this year and 153-29 in his career. He also is an academic all-star with a 3.6 grade point. "Now that his high school career is over, Luley can take what he has learned in wrestling and apply it to his academic and collegiate goals," coach Bill Cohan said.

Scott Goldman (senior), Stevenson: Goldman placed sixth in the state at 142 pounds. He was a champion at the Salem, Garden City, Shamrock, Observerland, WAAA and district tournaments. He was second in the regional. Goldman was 48-5 this year and finished with a 125-38 career record. "Scott has always set high standards for himself, and he worked hard to achieve them," coach Don Berg said.

Matt Michalaki Farmington, Dario Ianni Redford CC, Bill Lamb Redford CC, Scott Hughes Salem, Phil Mitchell Salem, Luley Haddad Thurston

Scott Goldman Stevenson, Chris Mullett Stevenson, Brian Kolb John Glenn, Ben Lewis Stevenson, Dan Krueger Redford CC

"Scott is special because not only is he a great athlete but a great young man. He will wrestle at the college level; Scott only has to decide where."

Chris Mullett (senior), Stevenson: Mullett placed third in the state at 151 pounds. He was the Observerland, Trenton, Salem, Garden City, Shamrock, WAAA and district tournament champion. He was second at the regional.

Mullett was undefeated during the regular season and compiled a 52-3 overall record. His career total was 122-40.

"The work ethic of this young man set high standards for his teammates and future Stevenson wrestlers," coach Don Berg said. "Chris will wrestle in college and make his mark there as he has in high school. His ability and leadership will forever be remembered."

Brian Kolb (senior), Glenn: Kolb is a two-time Observerland and WAAA champion at 160 pounds. He led the Rockets in team points with 178, which included 18 pins and 72 takedowns. He was 33-6.

"As captain, Brian never let his team down," coach Dave Hill said. "He was always there for them in spirit and body. "One would have to say Brian Kolb was the backbone of the John Glenn wrestling team. He is an excellent wrestler and a fine student with a 3.9 average in very difficult classes."

Ben Lewis (senior), Stevenson: Lewis is a two-time WAAA, district and regional champion, and he won the 172-pound Observerland title this year. He also took first at the Trenton, Garden City, Salem and district tournaments. Lewis was 45-5 this year and finished his career with a 114-40 record.

"Ben is a very solid wrestler," coach Don Berg said. "On the mat, he was one of the best in the state. He never missed a practice and was a leader by example. He will be wrestling at the college level."

Dan Krueger (senior), Redford CC: Krueger won the Observerland title at 185 pounds, was the MVP of the Salem Invitational and also placed first at the Jenison and Catholic League tournaments. He was 33-7 this year, but a shoulder injury contributed to an early exit from the state tournament. Krueger was 105-23 during his career.

"Dan is one of the most unpredictable wrestlers in the room," coach Mike Rodriguez said. "He could pin an opponent in 30 seconds or take him to the limit and win by 15 points. This was evident in his junior year when no one gave him a chance and he placed second in the state."

Craig Martin (senior), Stevenson: Martin, who will wrestle for Central Michigan University next season, won the Class A title at 215 pounds this year and 189 last year.

He was a district and regional winner as well and placed first at the Trenton, Garden City, Salem, Shamrock, WAAA and Observerland tournaments. "Nobody scored by takedown, reversal or nearfall against Martin all season. Martin was 47-0 this year and 140-19 during a four-year career. "Craig is the most outstanding wrestler I have ever coached," coach Don Berg said. "He has been a credit to Stevenson wrestling. I'm looking forward to seeing him wrestle at Central Michigan with some of his teammates."
