Telephone Co. Will Submit Proposal for Better Service

Grievances Discussed by C. of C. Thursday with Officials of the Telephone Company.

The Nebraska Continental Telephone company is willing to install new central office equipment in Ord and give better service, if that is what the community wants.

President C. J. Mortensen presided and first introduced Dr. G. W. Taylor, chairman of the Public Improvements committee which has as other members E. C. Leggett, E. L. Vogeltanz, A. J. Auble, Dr. George Parkins, H. C. James and M. B. Cummins.

To start the telephone discussion Dr. Taylor outlined the situation as it exists and then introduced Mr. Vogeltanz, who read a report adopted by the committee Monday evening.

"We, your committee duly appointed, after making a more or less limited investigation, with reference to the telephone situation in Ord, Nebraska, and rates charged elsewhere, do make the following suggestions and recommendations."

"Because of the very unsatisfactory service which the patrons of Ord have been receiving, we believe that the obsolete equipment should be replaced with a common battery type, and having, to some degree investigated the rates charged in Ord and other towns of like size, and covering more or less the same type of service, it is our belief that the rates charged in Ord, should remain $1.50 for private and $3.50 for business phones; that in addition more satisfactory service should be given with reference to the Burwell and North Loup exchanges, and also free service should be furnished to Arcadia, and that the phone numbers of the North Loup, Burwell and Arcadia patrons should be published in the Ord directory, and permission should be given to the other exchanges to publish the numbers of the Ord patrons in their directories."

"If the Nebraska Continental Telephone Company is unwilling to make the change in the equipment so as to give the Ord patrons the service heretofore outlined at the above rates, then it is our suggestion, that contact be made with an independent telephone engineer and rate expert to obtain necessary facts, valuations and other data to ascertain whether the company is justified in asking for higher rates than those above set forth, taking into consideration their investment in Ord. Assessment valuation having been placed by the company at around $16,000.00, but a value of around $69,000.00 being used by the company in discussing earnings to justify increase in rates."

"It is further our suggestion, that should the data and facts obtained by such independent engineer and rate expert, not justify an increase from $1.50 and $3.50 respectively for private and business phones, in order to obtain the service demanded, that proper action be taken in order to obtain the service to which patrons are entitled to, (commensurate with present times) at the above rates or even lower rates, should the data and facts disclose that Ord patrons are entitled to lower rates."

He then introduced Mr. Leggett, who explained that while in Lincoln on other business a few days before he called on Duane T. Swanson, member of the railway commission, and discussed Ord's telephone problems with him. He was assured by Swanson that the railway commission will, if Ord people desire, send its telephone engineer, rate expert and accountants to Ord to make a thorough investigation of the physical property, rates and financial set-up of the Nebraska Continental's Ord exchange, to determine whether Ord is entitled to better service and what rates should be charged when such service is established. It was at Commissioner Swanson's suggestion that Mr. Schnell was present as an unofficial observer, Leggett said. (Continued on page 6)

Ord Golf Club Elects Board Members for Year

The Ord Golf club members and their ladies and others met at the American Legion hall Monday evening for a covered dish luncheon. About thirty were in attendance and all were enthusiastic over the prospects for a fine golf season.

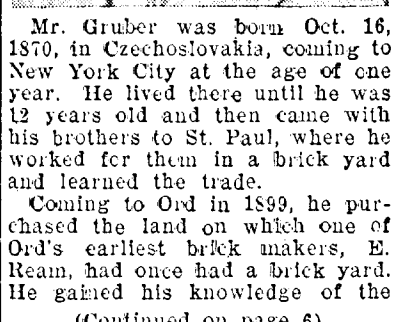

A business meeting was held, with the president, Hilding Pearson as chairman and the secretary, A. A. Wiegardt looking after the minutes. The other member of the present list of officers, the vice-president, is Russell Craven. The report of the past year was read.

Plans for 1941 were also suggested. A five-member board, Miss Clara McClatchey, chairman, M. Biemond, C. C. Thompson, A. A. Wiegardt and Henry Deines, were elected, and this board will elect the officers. The report showed that there were 39 members, and there are also several good prospects.

E. W. Gruber Died Sunday in Omaha, Funeral Today

Was Well Known As Manufacturer of Brick, Also Prominent in Ord Civic Affairs.

E. W. Gruber, 71, prominent in the business and civic affairs of Ord, passed away Sunday in an Omaha hospital, where he had gone in hope of benefitting his health. All possible was done for him, but he weakened steadily until the end came.

Mr. Gruber was born Oct. 16, 1870, in Czechoslovakia, coming to New York City at the age of one year. He lived there until he was 12 years old and then came with his brothers to St. Paul, where he worked for them in a brick yard and learned the trade.

Coming to Ord in 1899, he purchased the land on which one of Ord's earliest brick makers, E. Ream, had once had a brick yard. He gained his knowledge of the (Continued on page 6)

Burlington Railroad to Discontinue Motors

Effective April 21, the Burlington railroad will discontinue motor service on the Aurora-Sargeant and the Palmer-Burwell branches, according to a ruling of the state railway commission last week. The company has sought to do this for some time, but the plan was fought by the towns on both lines.

When it was shown that the trains had been operating at a loss on both lines during the past year, and when it appeared that there was little change of an increase in revenue in the future, permission to remove the motors was granted as requested. Just what arrangement will be made for furnishing Burwell with mail is not known at this time, according to Postmaster Alfred L. Hill, who stated Monday that this arrangement would be made by either the Lincoln or Omaha office of the railway mail service.

1 Coupon Needed for Cookbooklets

One coupon from any issue of The Quiz, plus a dime for each booklet, is all that is required to secure the entire series of Quiz Cookbooklets. Some women have had the idea that they were required to save coupons from each issue of the paper, one for each Cookbooklet, but this is not the case.

This week the booklet on Salads is issued and many women have been waiting for this one. This booklet, and all the ones previously issued may be secured at the Quiz office or the City Bakery in Ord, at Vodehnal's Pharmacy in North Loup, at the Ramsey Drug Store in Arcadia or at Ben Rose's down town office in Burwell. The carrier who brings your paper will get the booklets for you also, if you will tell him what ones you want.

Pierce Elected to Council in Only Contest Tuesday

Beats Burrows 65 to 38 in the Second Ward; Vote Was Very Light in All Wards.

In the only contest at Ord's annual city election held yesterday, A. W. Pierce was chosen councilman by second ward voters and will succeed Guy Burrows, who was elected to the position two years ago and previously had served several terms on the council. The vote was 65 to 38.

Other councilmen reelected without opposition were Frank T. Johnson, 1st ward, and Dr. J. W. McGinnis, 3rd ward.

In the school board election Ralph W. Norman led with 145 votes. Other member elected was M. Biemond, who had 137 votes. Dr. H. N. Norris received 56 votes. Norman was the nominee of both the Citizens and Good Government parties. Biemond was named by the Citizens party and Dr. Norris by the Good Government party.

Mr. Biemond already holds membership on the city council, and since both council and school board meet on the first Monday of each month the meeting date of one will have to be changed. Time of school board meetings is fixed by law, so without doubt the city council will pass a new ordinance to change its meeting night and thereby iron out this conflict.

At the election Tuesday, W. T. McLain was elected police judge and Joe Jirak was chosen for park board member, each without opposition.

The vote was one of the lightest ever cast at a city election in Ord.

North Loup Election

C. D. Knapp led candidates for the village board with 123 votes to win reelection Tuesday. H. L. Gillespie was reelected with 94 votes and Dr. W. J. Hemphill, with 74, defeated A. L. Willoughby, who had 66, and Bates Copeland, who received 48. Elected to the school board were Paul Jones, who had 93 votes, and Clifford Hawks, who had 88. Albert Babcock, with 84, was the losing candidate here.

Beraneck Store Redecorated

Frank Fryzek last week decorated the interior of the Ed F. Beraneck drug store and the store presents a most pleasing appearance with lighter colored walls and ceiling. The fluorescent lighting fixtures installed last winter are being changed to give more light. New window display fixtures have been purchased by Mr. Beraneck and will be used for the first time this week.

11th Loup Valley Music Festival All Day Friday

Afternoon Programs at Both the Auditorium and the Library; Fine Evening Program.

The Loup Valley Music Festival, an event sponsored annually for the past 11 years by the Loup Valley High School association, will be held in Ord on Friday, March 4, with soloists and groups from the ten schools holding membership in the association taking part in programs throughout the afternoon and evening.

For the afternoon program both the High School auditorium and the Ord library building will be utilized. The evening program will be presented at the auditorium.

While this festival is not a competition in any sense, critics from the music departments of Nebraska colleges are employed to point out places where improvement might be made, this tending to help the high school musicians give better performances at district and state music contests which come a little later.

Critics Friday will be Prof. James King, of Hastings college, and Prof. Russell Anderson of Wayne Teachers college.

Committee for the festival is Henry Deines, Ord, M. H. Struve, Burwell, Carroll Nygren, Arcadia, and Delmer Van Horn, North Loup.

M. C. Huff, of Sargeant, is chairman of the afternoon program at the auditorium, which opens at 1:00 with a selection by the North Loup girls' glee club and continues until 4:30 with the glee clubs, choruses and bands from North Loup, Arcadia, Taylor, Burwell, Sargeant, Scotia, Dannebrog, St. Paul, Ord and Comstock taking part.

At the same hours, in the library building, Ray S. Reith, of Dannebrog, is chairman of a program of vocal and instrumental solos and selections by trios, quartets and the other small groups.

W. W. Wills, of North Loup, is chairman of the evening program which opens at 7:30 in the auditorium with a selection by the Dannebrog orchestra. Other evening features will be the St. Paul double sextet, the Scotia girls' glee club, a B flat soloist from North Loup, a baritone soloist from Sargeant, the Arcadia mixed chorus, the Comstock girls' glee club, a piano soloist from Loup City, Ord's madrigal singers and the Burwell band.

Friday will be a big day for Loup Valley music lovers.

Precinct Assessors Hold Annual Meeting

The precinct assessors met Friday at the court house with County Assessor A. R. Brox for their annual meeting. All were present except Ernest Coats, who was kept away by the death of a relative. Robert Fells, fifth in the oral contest, had left before the picture was taken.

Arcadia Rural Mail Routes Consolidated

Arcadia—(Special)— Postmaster Lloyd H. Bulger has received notice from Washington ordering the consolidation of the three rural routes of this postoffice. On April 1, Frank V. White, carrier on Route 1, retired. The consolidation results in discontinuance of rural route No. 3 and reassignment of Glen W. Beaver, carrier on this route, to No. 1, which will be changed in length from 34.40 miles to 62.50 miles by the addition of the south section of Route 3. Route 2 will be changed in length from 35.125 miles to 63.575 miles by the addition of the east section of No. 3. Anton J. Nelson continues as carrier of this route.

Carriers will leave the office at 9:45 a. m., and complete service of their routes before returning at 1:30 p. m.

Grand Island Firemen Will Show Iron Lung

A. A. Wiegardt, secretary of the Ord Chamber of Commerce, received a letter last week telling him that Fire Chief Lingman of Grand Island and a group of his men were planning an inspection trip with their iron lung, including all towns within a reasonable distance of Grand Island in their itinerary.

According to their schedule, the iron lung, transportation truck and power plant will be in Ord next Saturday, April 5, at 4:45 p. m. The mayor and fire chief are making arrangements for their arrival, and it is important that all who are interested in seeing this demonstration be in Ord at that time.

Presbyterians Elected Officers for This Year

At a meeting held at the church Wednesday evening, the members of the First Presbyterian church chose officers for the coming year. Also Rev. W. Ray Radloff was re-elected as minister for the coming church year.

Officers elected were Dr. G. R. Gard and H. T. Frazier on session; trustees, Roy Randolph and Ernest Horner; deacons, Mrs. O. E. Johnson, Mrs. C. C. Dale, Mrs. John Andersen; treasurer, Horace Travis.

Wayne Barber and Billy Weddel are Spelling Champs

Honors for 1941 Spelling Bee Are Won by Young Men from North Loup and Arcadia.

To the surprise of the hundreds in attendance, high spelling honors in the Valley county spelling contest for 1941 went to two boys. This is the first time in years that the boys have taken the high places. The honors were divided, with Wayne Barber, North Loup, winning first in the written contest, and Billy Weddel, Arcadia, taking first in the oral contest.

The North Loup lad did not have an easy time of it, however. The boys were camping on his trail, and the next four places in the written contest went to them, Ruth Bredthauer, Dist. 57, was second, Lillian Genski, Dist. 30, was third, Rosie Psota, Dist. 57, was fourth and Phyllis Babcock, Dist. 1, was fifth.

Barber, also Dist. 1, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Barber; Ruth is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bredthauer; Lillian is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Genski; Rosie is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Psota; and Phyllis is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erlo T. Babcock.

In the written contest most troublesome were the words "allege," "victual," and "mackerel." At that, it is believed that most of the children could have spelled them correctly in their own schools. In many cases the youngsters were overcome by the large crowd and the unusual surroundings, and missed words they really knew how to spell.

Billy Weddel, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Weddel, of Arcadia, is a five time winner in his home district, but this was the first time he placed in the county contest. Second place went to Willard Stowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Stowell of Dist. 6. Third went to Eva King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving King of Dist. 23. Lillian Genski placed fourth in this contest, and fifth place went to Robert Fells, son of John Fells, Dist. 25, southwest of Arcadia.

"Pharynx" was the word that stumped Willard Stowell and gave Billy Weddel the victory. Eva King failed to negotiate "ruffan," "Alimentary" proved too much for Miss Genski, and "equinoctial" eliminated Robert Fells. Wayne Barber just missed the charmed circle by going down on "sergeant" to take sixth place.

A total of 95 contestants from 29 schools participated in the contests this year, as follows: Dist. 1, Donna Portis, Phyllis Babcock, Gwyn Eberhart, Wayne Barber; Dist. 2, Lila Kirby, Lola Severson; Dist. 4, Lester Setlik, Danny Lutz; Dist. 6, Willard Stowell, LaVonne Timmerman, Carl Danczak, Irene Hayek; Dist. 8, Maryann Novosa, Lyle Novosa;

Dist. 14, Mildred Fish, Phyllis Klingler; Dist. 17, Wilma Dee Jobst, Emil Mrkwicka, Paul Laursen; Dist. 18, Elvin Baum, Marjorie Naprstek, Ernest Baum, Viola Vergin; Dist. 21, Ruth Leiningen, Clara Lee Blakeslee, Marvin Larson, Billy Weddel; Dist. 23, Eva King, Billy King; Dist. 29, Marie Hrebec, Frank Bruha, Robert Smolik, Richard Loja;

Dist. 31, Evelyn Papernik; Dist. 34, Joyce Masters, Mary Mason, Junior Arthur, Lorene Zukoski; Dist. 35, Mary Ann Skala; Dist. 36, Charlene Paulsen, Eva Palser, Esther McGee, Helen Mitchell; Dist. 37, Mary Lou Ackles, Maxine Miller; Dist. 40, Kenneth Shibata, Garnet Kokes, Donald Petska, Ethel Nelson;

Dist. 42, Agnes Methe, Bernadine Hellwege, Irene Sonnenfeld, Gerald Sperling, Gloria Graf; Dist. 48, Virginia Kapustka, Delores Jablonski; Dist. 49, Elma Sch, Ernest Rousek, Rosie Bruha, Emil Cepelucha; Dist. 51, J. Charles Smrhal, Ellora Jane Cook, Wilma Lou Zabloudek; Dist. 54, Letroy Noll, Marjorie Mulligan, Melvin Mulligan, Maryann Kirby; Dist. 56, Vance Jeffers, Evelyn Mayfield; Dist. 57, Ruth Bredthauer, Rosie Psota; Dist. 60, Mavis Jean Christensen; Dist. 62, Evelyn Tregrow, Doris Kamarad; Dist. 63, Alfreda Klimek, Irene Dubas, Edna Mae Ruzicka, Virginia Hausen; Dist. 65, Doris Adamek, Edward Adamek; Dist. 71, Lillian Florian, Lillian Klancecky, Louie Florian, Alice Beran.

Sumter Bridge Will Be Reopened Soon

Tracy Hamilton and his bridge crew Monday began work of repairing the Sumter bridge, driving new piling to replace that which was broken when the ice went out this spring. It was estimated that three or four days of work would put the bridge in shape so that it may be reopened for travel, though it still will be unsafe for heavy loads and will be so marked. The bridge has been closed for the past couple of weeks and since it is the only bridge across the river between Ord and North Loup, the public was greatly inconvenienced.

Surplus Commodities Moved to Keown Bldg.

The Surplus Commodities office was moved this week from the basement of the Russell building to the Keown building on 16th street just vacated by the WPA sewing room. Carl F. Sorenson, who is in charge, states that the case load has become so heavy of late that it was deemed advisable to find a more convenient and commodious location.

CANDID CAMERA PROVES THAT SPRING REALLY IS HERE

Cleaning the Yard. Monday afternoon the Boss issued orders to get some pictures showing that spring is really here at last. First on the list came Rev. Clifford Snyder, who is doing what hundreds of others are doing this week, raking the accumulated debris of the past winter from his yard. Who says that a preacher doesn't work?

The Boys Will Play. Yes, the boys like to play marbles the finest of early spring games. Here we see Billy Whelan, Jimmy Fafetta and Dick Arnold, who are finding the game just as fascinating as it ever was. They almost got the photographer into the game, but just in time came the thought of more pictures to be shot and away we went.

Hansen Inspects Plow. Jens Hansen has not fitted shares to plows thirty years in Ord for nothing. Above he is looking at a plow he just sharpened for W. J. Hather, and he guarantees that this plow will turn a perfect furrow without a guiding hand on the handles. Bill is a good plowman, and he wouldn't use a plow that was not in perfect working order.

For additional proof that spring must actually be here, turn to page 6.

WHAT ABOUT STRIKES?

Recently in reviewing the situation President Roosevelt made the statement that, while strikes were having some effect on the National Defense program...

For example, the information was broadcast Wednesday that there were 28 strikes in defense industries at that time, that 50,000 men were idle, and that $600,000,000 in defense work was affected by the strikes.

But, if we do, we find ourselves up against figures which are so staggering as to be absurd. If we accept the president's word for it this six hundred million is only one fourth of one per cent of the defense industries of the United States.

But figures show that the total wealth of the United States is only about three hundred and fifty billion ($350,000,000,000) dollars. Now, still assuming that the president is correct, two thirds of all the wealth of the United States is being used in defense industries.

Let us use a much smaller figure and one which probably is still too high. Let us assume that six billion dollars represents the value of the defense industries in the United States. Then we find that ten per cent of this amount is affected by strikes at the present time.

The government tells the farmer what he can do and what he cannot do. If this is fair, then it is time that the government used the same procedure with organized labor.

It is generally agreed that the strikes in the end, lose money for all concerned. If this is true, why should our nation, in time of stress, tolerate such a condition?

The writer is in receipt of a most interesting chart, known as "Fuson's Chartographic History of the United States." It is the work of Merritt H. Fuson, and is printed in the Daily Journal of Commerce, Portland, Ore.

There is no question but that it is the most concise history ever developed, and is a marvel of accuracy. It begins with the first year of the United States as a nation, 1790, and has important data for every year through, to and including 1940.

The ORD QUIZ

maps at the top showing the size of the United States in 1790 and in 1940.

In the list of items touched on in this chart are: Presidents, party, native state, wars, population, national wealth, per capita national wealth, national debt, per capita national debt, notes, important discoveries and inventions, important historical events, and list of states admitted to the Union.

Through the middle runs a section showing the general economic trend, showing the eras of prosperity and depression, and giving the reasons for them. This is a brief outline of the chartographic history but the only way anyone could form an idea of what it is would be to see it for himself.

Most interesting perhaps, is the national debt as compared to the national wealth. In 1790 the national wealth was estimated at $750,000,000, the national debt was $74,692,115, and the per capita debt was $10. In 1835 the per capita debt had dropped to the lowest in our history, .003 of a cent for each person.

In 1866 the total wealth of the country was a little better than twenty billion, the national debt nearly three billions, and the per capita debt was $70. Following the Civil War this debt was gradually reduced with a barely perceptible increase during the Spanish-American war, until the year 1918.

That year the per capita debt made a sudden jump to $120 and it went to $240 in 1919, the peak during the World War. It showed a gradual drop from then until 1930, when the debt began to climb once more, and climbed from $131 that year to the staggering sum of $326 in 1930. Meanwhile the national wealth dropped from 458 billion in 1920 to about 350 billion in 1940.

In 1940 we were in debt approximately one eighth of our total national wealth. In 1939 the proportion was one twentieth. In 1920 it was also about one twentieth. In the year 1866 it was also about one eighth. At the beginning in 1790 it was about one tenth. Thus we see that, at the beginning of our rearmament program, we are just as bad off financially as we were at the close of the Civil War.

Nothing could bring home to a person more clearly the condition we are in than Fuson's Chartographic History, which gives the plain facts. We are told that facts are merciless. They certainly are in this case. They prove that, if we are to make a success of our rearmament and aid-to-England programs, we must make greater sacrifices than have ever been made in the past.

OUR 59TH BIRTHDAY.

Just ten years after the first settlers landed in Valley county in the spring of 1872, and less than a year after Ord had been organized as a village in 1881, a young man named Will Haskell, who had come to Ord from Chicago, issued the first copy of the Ord Weekly Quiz, April 6, 1882.

The Quiz has been published every week without a break since that time, and during its existence has known but two publishers; the founder, W. W. Haskell, who retired in 1918, and H. D. Leggett, who has been publisher since that time. "Fuson's History of Nebraska," published in 1882, had the following to say: "The Ord Weekly Quiz is a bright and sparkling paper, Republican in politics, and was founded April 6, 1882, by Will Haskell of Chicago. The paper starts out with good prospects of future success."

That prophecy has been borne out by the progress of the paper thru the years. When new and better means of printing developed, the Quiz adopted them, from hand set to typesetting machine, and then to linotype, and finally, to two linotypes. In recent years stereotyping equipment has been installed, and five years ago, photo-engraving.

The circulation, necessarily small at the start, has grown until the press runs at present at practically three thousand copies. The territory served by the paper has grown from Ord and the immediate vicinity until it has reached all corners of the county, extended over into the adjoining counties, and several hundred former Ordites living all over the United States get their Quiz every week.

The Quiz at first was an eight page, five column paper, and only four of the pages were printed in Ord, the paper being shipped in printed on one side with what is popularly known as "boiler plate." The Quiz had an editorial column from the beginning, and ran practically all news items as locals in accordance with the trend of times. The first Quiz contained a number of various sizes, a number of which were business cards, but the present day Want Ad is conspicuous by its absence. Within a year, however, this column made its appearance, and has been an integral part of the paper ever since. The ads amounted to better than half of the home-set material, which was very good for those times.

May 8, 1885, the Quiz changed from a handy size, 5 column paper to a huge "bedsheet" of 9 columns, and from eight pages to four. This paper had the home news on the two inside pages and the boiler plate on the outside. The local papers carried much state and national news then, since only a very few took a daily paper.

The last issue of this oversize paper was printed Dec. 17, 1886, and from then until 1892 it came out in an eight column paper. Dropping then to a six column paper it continued until 1897, and from that time until now it has come out practically all the time in the familiar seven column paper. At present in 12 em columns, it was printed much of the time in 14 ems and 13 ems in the past.

In just a year the Quiz will reach its sixtieth birthday, and that will be something to write about. At present the Quiz is content to be one of the important things that started in 1882 which include also President Roosevelt, the Knights of Columbus and organized labor.

Willow Dell Hereford Farm as It Looked in the Early '90s

The buildings are still there, and look much the same as they did in the early '90s, when this picture was taken. For this reason no one should have any trouble in recognizing it as Willow Dell Hereford farm.

My Own Column By H. D. Leggett

Everyone who has mentioned it, and many have done so, feel that it is a terrible thing to allow so many fish to be destroyed as were destroyed in the Burwell lake bed the past winter. It seems like it must result in much poorer fishing this season. While it had not been thought of and no one was really to blame, it can and will no doubt happen again next winter and every winter if something is not done about it.

It is a club very similar to a P. T. A. organization in most schools. Supt. Ebmler seems to have a penchant for good health of his pupils and along with the many other activities, this organization has taken on a health campaign that is quite remarkable; in fact so remarkable that pictures of the work were put in the Grand Island Independent along with a feature article, and from that feature article, Supt. Ebmler has received dozens of inquiries.

To finance this health program there was some cooperation with the Red Cross and the cooperation of all the people. Carnivals, operettas, freak ball games, programs, plays and membership fees all helped along, with the cooperation of practically everyone in the community.

Does anyone believe that the United States is going to spend 35 to 70 billion dollars to help England lick Hitler and then allow the said Hitler to sink the ships that are carrying the stuff to England? If they do then they will have another guess coming. It would be silly and childish to do that.

So far the administration has been given everything asked for in its defense move and that policy will be and must be continued. So far a round 35 billion dollars has either been asked for and appropriated or is in the process of being provided and those in the know say the total amount is likely to go to 70 billion before the war is over.

I have refrained in recent months from talking shop in this department. When I mailed postcard statements of the January, 1940 Quiz subscription expirations I offered to everyone the privilege of three extra months as a prize or premium for payment BEFORE the expiration. In order to treat every subscriber fair I continued to offer each month for a year, thus giving every subscriber the chance to take advantage of the offer. Yes, I did more than that. I continued the offer until closing time on Monday, March 31, this week, when the offer closed. And believe it or not, almost everyone on the list took advantage of that offer. Now the offer may or may not be made again sometime in the future. I don't know now. But while it lasted it was a whale of a good offer.

And now I am making another good offer. I shall not continue this offer so long and it may be withdrawn at any time. I refer to the dish offer announced last week and repeated this week. I got the dishes from a large manufacturer in Pennsylvania and got a whale of a good price by placing a sizeable order. The company reserved the right to withdraw their price at any time and indicated that they might have to do so at any time. If I am unable to buy more dishes at that price I will have to withdraw the offer.

Now these are not cheap dishes. It is a new ware, the famous IVEK ware, beautiful as well as durable. It is a set of dishes that any housewife would be proud to own. There is not a Quiz subscriber who cannot, if they wish, secure one new subscriber. Many won't do so, but they all could. Many will, but those who want the dishes will have to act quickly. One new subscriber and one renewal, or, if you can and prefer, two new ones and you don't invest one cent of your own money. If your subscription is paid in advance it makes no difference. You want and are going to continue taking the Quiz. It is going to get better and the more subscribers we have the more money we are going to spend to make the paper better. Pay for another year for yourself and send one new subscriber and the dishes are yours.

Nearly every Quiz subscriber has a neighbor, a son or daughter, or other relative who they would like to send the Quiz to. A copy of this paper for a year and a set of the dishes would make a splendid gift for married son or daughter. If you wish, send the dishes away and keep them for a birthday gift. But act now and get a set of these wonderful dishes. Read the ad in this week's paper.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Written by GEORGE GOWLEN

Health as well as Books. Although I mentioned "The Know Your School Club" of the Scotia schools last year, there has been so much publicity in regard to its activities lately that it seems telling of it again would not be out of order.

It is a club very similar to a P. T. A. organization in most schools. Supt. Ebmler seems to have a penchant for good health of his pupils and along with the many other activities, this organization has taken on a health campaign that is quite remarkable; in fact so remarkable that pictures of the work were put in the Grand Island Independent along with a feature article, and from that feature article, Supt. Ebmler has received dozens of inquiries.

To finance this health program there was some cooperation with the Red Cross and the cooperation of all the people. Carnivals, operettas, freak ball games, programs, plays and membership fees all helped along, with the cooperation of practically everyone in the community.

Does anyone believe that the United States is going to spend 35 to 70 billion dollars to help England lick Hitler and then allow the said Hitler to sink the ships that are carrying the stuff to England? If they do then they will have another guess coming. It would be silly and childish to do that.

So far the administration has been given everything asked for in its defense move and that policy will be and must be continued. So far a round 35 billion dollars has either been asked for and appropriated or is in the process of being provided and those in the know say the total amount is likely to go to 70 billion before the war is over.

I have refrained in recent months from talking shop in this department. When I mailed postcard statements of the January, 1940 Quiz subscription expirations I offered to everyone the privilege of three extra months as a prize or premium for payment BEFORE the expiration. In order to treat every subscriber fair I continued to offer each month for a year, thus giving every subscriber the chance to take advantage of the offer. Yes, I did more than that. I continued the offer until closing time on Monday, March 31, this week, when the offer closed. And believe it or not, almost everyone on the list took advantage of that offer. Now the offer may or may not be made again sometime in the future. I don't know now. But while it lasted it was a whale of a good offer.

And now I am making another good offer. I shall not continue this offer so long and it may be withdrawn at any time. I refer to the dish offer announced last week and repeated this week. I got the dishes from a large manufacturer in Pennsylvania and got a whale of a good price by placing a sizeable order. The company reserved the right to withdraw their price at any time and indicated that they might have to do so at any time. Something Different

I very much resented a sentence in LIFE Magazine a few weeks ago. It was in an article about Nebraska, with color pictures of the same fields and farm, taken to show the four seasons of the year.

The particular sentence that made me resentful was written about like this: "Nebraska is a place that is hard to learn to love."

Did you ever have this trouble? I didn't. This prairie state has always seemed attractive to me.

Out around Alliance, I loved the wide horizon, the openness of a landscape which seemed so free. Growing up there made other landscapes, no matter how attractive their furnishings, seem to be pushing me on all sides.

When I came to Ord trees and valleys and hills were new to me, I had never lived among them. And I thought this North Loup valley one of the most beautiful places in the world, and I still think it is.

I am far from the only one to appreciate the beauty of the drive up the North Loup river course. One salesman whose work takes him over a number of states regularly always brings his wife when he makes this drive; they consider it a trip as charming as they can find anywhere.

To go back to LIFE. They did not publish what I would call a "beauty" picture of Nebraska, the Photographer Hufnagle says he sent them several hundred pictures from which to choose for the Nebraska story of seasons on the farm.

Nebraska has so many lovely views. One spot that needs publicity badly, needs a good broad, marked highway built to it is the rarely-heard-of Snake River falls, reputed breathtakingly beautiful. Snake River falls are about 35 miles over in the heart of a sandhill, inaccessible region in the north central part of Nebraska.

Very few people have ever seen them, the majority of us have never heard of them at all. But wouldn't you like to see them? Nebraska isn't going to advertise any more, the legislature decrees. Nebraska needs good publicity as badly as any state in the union. We have lost a portion of our population the last ten years, and much of our good top soil has blown away and left us. It looks as though we were going to have to change our industries or our farming methods a great deal in order for our people to make a satisfactory living.

So I think the world, and we ourselves need to be made more conscious of Nebraska's advantages and beauties. We need that state advertising campaign. We need to be told Nebraska is beautiful. Nebraska is lovely, Nebraska has many advantages and is worthy of more advantages. Nebraska needs help and we need to help her.

We need to build more and better highways, set aside more parks, coax in new settlers, make old settlers happy, pay our university teachers sufficient so that Iowa won't coax all of them away, pay our teachers better and pension them, offer more adult education courses for older people, learn new industries to replace vanishing ones, farmers need new crops to hold down their shifty land and re-enrich it, more stable farm incomes, more canning factories, more cooperative enterprises for farmers, more swimming pools, more vocational training for young people who are not bound for college, teaching or clerical work, more pride in our young, in our record as a state, more self-advertising, more back-patting.

Now you take a deep breath and tell what you think we need. I had my turn. —Irma.

Farmers Checker Team to Play Ord Experts

A group of checker experts from south of town will tangle with the Ord players at the city hall Thursday evening. The farmers have not met defeat in five matches, including one with the Ord group. Ord hopes to smash this record.

Playing for the farmers will be Harry Roth, Ed Burrows, George Clement and Lem Knapp, while Ord will be represented by H. D. Rogers, C. E. McGraw, Bud Bell and Ellsworth Ball. With the chairman of the county board on their team, Ord should win.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

Greenfield, Ia. March 28, 1941.

Dear Quiz: I guess I better send a check for a couple dollars for my subscription. Hope you get it before the dead line. Have taken the Quiz for about 37 years. Don't see so very many names that we know any more but still enjoy reading it. Phil Busby was the only one I recognized in that picture. Spring is backward here. The fields are wet and seepy. Quite a number of Nebraska people live around here. A bunch whose folks live in Ord picked corn near here last fall. Well here is hoping Valley county gets plenty of rain and produces a good crop this year.

Regards to all. Lou Smith, Greenfield, Ia.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

Something a trifle unusual happened a week ago Sunday out at the George Weller farm, when they and the LaVern Durness set down to a dinner of spring chicken. Fried chicken on March 23 is plenty early, but they say quite a number of their flock of 500 chicks are already big enough to eat.

Anybody in the newspaper game, whether it be standard or multi-graph style, can appreciate the job the Ord Oracle staff did Friday afternoon, when they got out a special edition containing the story of the county spelling contest with the names of all the contestants, and the winners in the written contest, and were distributing them before the oral contest was fairly started.

E. E. Edwards, evangelist and solicitor for the Gospel Rescue Workers, was in Ord Saturday, and had many kind things to say about the attitude of the people of this territory toward his work, as well as their willingness to contribute. In the course of his travels he has worked as far east as Illinois, and he says that, while it is apparent that the people there are more prosperous than they are in Nebraska, it is also true that they are not imbued with the spirit of giving as are Nebraskans.

Ira Lindsey had quite a time of it last week when the Lumbar Studio moved to the rooms across the hall in the upstairs of the Kull building. While they were getting organized they did not have any sign on the door, so customers stopped at Ira's door first when they came up the stairs, as it is the first door they came to. However, they don't bother him now since the studio sign has been put up.

Saturday was quite a day for sales, what with the stock sale at the Ord Livestock Market, the regular sale at the Herman Rice lot, the Bethany Lutheran Ladies bake sale and lunch counter at the North Side Market, and the Ord Catholic Ladies bake sale at Pecenk's Market. It was a splendid trade day in every respect, with a huge crowd in town.

 A meeting for the purpose of discussing the establishment of a cannery factory in Burwell will be held next Thursday, April 10. D. C. McCarthy and Oscar Johnson drove to Lincoln Saturday where they learned there is a possibility that the abandoned cannery at Milburn can be moved to Burwell. The plant is owned by the Farm Security Administration. Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Johnson learned that the F. S. A. would consider moving the equipment to Burwell if the farmers will form a cooperative organization and agree to produce a sufficient acreage of tomatoes and other vegetables to enable the factory to operate. They were also told that fifteen percent of the capital necessary to get the plant into operation must be subscribed locally. It is believed that this amount will be less than a thousand dollars and many Burwell business men believe that this money can be easily raised by the persons who are promoting this project. An expert in horticulture from the extension department of the University of Nebraska will attend the meeting where he will discuss the production of tomatoes. A representative from the Farm Security Administration will also be present to explain the procedure of organizing the cooperative and the requirements for getting a cannery here.

WRITTEN BY MRS. ETHEL HAMER

A large crowd enjoyed the donkey basketball game played Wednesday night in the high school gym between members of the high school faculty and the school board and business men. Ten trained donkeys were used in the game, trained so well that at a tap from their master's stick they stopped dead still, throwing the rider off and interfering with the game no end. A number of substitutions had to be made and at the close the score was 24-18 in favor of the school board team.

A large number of youngsters were given rides on the donkeys after school before the game. The donkeys were brought here by their trainer from the southeastern part of the state.

Mrs. B. B. Buten received a box of rainbow mountain trout from a friend in Colorado Saturday morning. The fish were packed in ice and came by express. Characteristically, Mrs. Buten shared them with her friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Clark Roby entertained a number of ladies at a Kensington Wednesday afternoon, honoring Mrs. Myra Thrasher. The afternoon was spent informally in visiting. Mrs. Roby serving a nice lunch late in the afternoon. Mrs. Thrasher left Thursday on the bus, planning to spend the night with friends at North Platte and going on from there to Big Springs for a visit with her sons, Floyd and Harry and their families. Later she will return to Twin Falls, Ida., to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Roy Henderson. Mrs. Thrasher was called here by the death of her brother, T. S. Weed.

Mrs. Jessie Babcock accompanied Mrs. Melva Worth to Grand Island on the Thursday morning motor. There she put Mrs. Worth on the train for Ogalala where she would be met by her daughter, Mrs. Mina Tagge of Grant. She will be cared for in a home in Grant. For several weeks Mrs. Worth has been cared for in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Bohrer but Mr. Bohrer is not very well and they were unable to keep her longer.

Hazel Stevens went to the home of her sister, Mrs. Gilbert Babcock Saturday night and remained till Sunday afternoon. Sunday Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Stevens and Glen, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Stevens and their daughter and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Adamson and two sons, all of Fullerton, spent the day at the Babcock home.

A state truck loaded with partridges was in town Sunday afternoon. The partridges had been caught near Norfolk and were being taken to Benkleman where they will be turned loose. Pheasants will be raised in the Norfolk territory and partridges in the Benkleman territory.

Ida May Babcock returned to Ord on the Monday morning freight, after spending the week end at home. She is employed in the James Ollis home in Ord.

The Curt Morrow family of near Horace spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Asa Clement. Mr. Clement is slowly recovering from the broken hip suffered several weeks ago and is able to sit up for a short time now. Doris Morrow has been assisting Mrs. Clement the past two weeks.

Fred East, 34, who died Wednesday in the state hospital at Ingleside, was laid to rest in the family lot in Hillside cemetery Saturday afternoon. Rev. A. C. Ehret conducted brief services. O. W. and D. F. Barber, Roy Lewis and George Maxson acted as bearers. Chas. F. Shea of Hastings was the undertaker in charge and brought the body up by ambulance. Fred was born in Indiana to Thomas and Elizabeth East, natives of England. Early in life the family moved to this valley and had a part in its building. Fred and his brother Tom were among the pupils in North Loup's school, walking six miles night and morning to attend. His father had the first and only tannery here and his brother, Tom was North Loup's first photographer. All his family but one brother, Herbert, of Lincoln, have preceded him in death. He had a colorful life, had traveled far and wide, in every state in the union and nearly all large cities, as well as many foreign countries. While in England he acted as groom for the fine horses of Colonel William Cody. Once while in San Francisco, he was shanghaied and taken aboard a whaler, where he remained for a year and a half. After the death of his sister, Belle, several years ago, he was left alone, but after his health and mind began to fail, he was taken to a home in Ord where he was cared for till recently when it became necessary to take him to the Ord hospital and later to Ingleside. One of the hallucinations he had in recent years was that Belle had died and been buried and no one had told him. He was always searching for Belle. Herbert East was not able to be present for the burial although he had been to Ingleside after his death.

Thursday evening the North Loup home ec 2 girls gave an informal dinner as a test of their accomplishments during this year's cooking unit. Their theme was Hawaii and a blue and yellow color scheme was successfully displayed in decorations and food. The invitations were decorated with Hawaiian dancing girls and the place cards were made from a Hawaiian guitar pattern. Guests were parents of the class members and the high school faculty. The menu consisted of pineapple juice, roast beef, creamed peas in patty shells, apple salad, dill and sweet pickles, parkerhouse rolls with jelly, cherry pie a la mode and coffee. Two tables were used, Marlon Maxson and Esther Smith acting as hostesses. Dorothy Larkin was receptionist and Adella Waller, Joan Barber and Mary Watts were waitresses. The dinner committee was Etta Dunbar, Dorothy Larkin, Muriel Van Horn and Edith Cox. After the dinner a short program was given. Mrs. Elley played a piano solo, Mr. Van Horn sang "Shorten Bread," Esther Smith sang a solo and the class sang, "Blue Hawaii." Group singing followed. Mrs. Elley acted as accompanist.

Mrs. Dena Lewis and Mrs. Jennie Davis came up from Beatrice Saturday afternoon and remained till Sunday afternoon. They were the overnight guests of Dr. and Mrs. Hemphill and dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Davis. Mrs. Lewis is located at Beatrice now with the state assistance bureau.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Crandall of Curtis spent the week end with relatives here. Mrs. Hazel Stewart and Mrs. Genia Crandall also came up from Omaha Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Stewart returned but Mrs. Crandall will remain in her home for the summer.

A club dance was held Thursday night, the Midnight Frolickers furnishing the music.

Mrs. Carr's Green and the lady from Arcadia who accompanied them on the trip going out are returning with them. Barrel Exploded Friday On Roof of Court House

Considerable excitement was caused Friday afternoon when a barrel being heated on the roof of the court house exploded, blowing out the end, which flew up in the air and landed in the driveway of the Standard Oil station to the southeast.

Ray Bissell and his group of helpers were putting the material on the roof. The barrel was empty except for the material sticking to the inside, and was being warmed to get this out. Bissell had done this many times before and thought it perfectly safe.

A small plug had been removed from the top of the barrel before emptying the material, and it is believed that the blaze ignited the gas accumulated inside the barrel. Luckily nobody was near the barrel when it exploded, and nobody was hurt, although the noise was heard all over town.

—LaVern Duemey, Quiz photographer, recently completed a deal with Herb Nelson for the purchase of his residence property on south 16th street, and plans to move there in the near future.

CANDID CAMERA PROVES THAT SPRING REALLY IS HERE

Trying the Benches.
John Sebesta and Joe Novak figured Monday afternoon was just right to give the courthouse yard benches a tryout, something they had not been able to do for five months because of the long winter. They were not the only ones either. Other were sitting on the benches and wondering when the wall across the street would fall down.

Fitting the Windows.
Bert Needham was busy fitting a large window frame at the Noll Seed company building, but had time to look up to see what the photographer was up to. The Nolls are getting ready for the spring rush and are doubling their show room space, which we will tell you about later. The farmers are planning to plant a lot of seed of all kinds this spring, Bob says.

Farmers Go Modern.
The farmer has gone modern, and these tractor tires received by the Co-Op Oil company prove it, and also prove that the farmer is getting ready for field work. That is Eddie Oetkin, manager, on the left, and James Green, Firestone salesman. The article on the big tire is not for sale. It is Bert Boquet, new handy man at the Co-Op.

Golf Washes His Car.
Monday afternoon was a perfect day for another spring pastime, that of washing the family car. Bill Goff is shown on the job here, and we are betting he didn't lose his shirt in a poker game. He isn't that kind of a guy. It was such lovely weather the last day of March that a man could get along nicely without most of his clothing.

W. A. Anderson Digs.
Mr. Anderson, who dug in his garden eighty years ago, no doubt, is still at it, as you can see from the above picture. He planned to have part of his large garden plowed Monday, but Mr. Cronk inspected it and pronounced the ground still too wet. W. A. says this is the first time he remembers the ground being too wet on April 1.

Dworak Burns Trash.
F. J. Dworak, who fell on the ice in the winter and hurt his right shoulder, did his first work in the garden Monday. He was not able to do much, he said, because his shoulder still bothers him a lot. In summer Mr. Dworak always has one of the loveliest gardens and yards in Ord, and he gets it that way by working early and often.

Bernice Skips Rope.
Miss Bernice Walker was skipping the rope on her way home from school when the photographer saw her near the Presbyterian church. She is only one of a number of little Ord girls who take delight in skipping the rope, especially on a lovely spring day. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Walker, and she takes a lovely picture.

Henry and Joe Fish.
Just two of the countless fishermen who like to get to the river or creek as early in the spring as possible. Henry Stara and Joe Kusek are really enjoying themselves, even if the fish are few and far between. It is great to be in the big outdoors on a lovely spring day, whether you are lucky enough to catch fish or not.

Here Are the Catkins.
Sure harbinger of spring are the catkins that show on the willow trees. Here we have a bunch of them outlined against the bluest sky you ever saw, and before you know it, plenty of the willows will look just like this picture. If you feel cross and out of sorts, take a trip on a sunny day and you "won't be cross at nobody."

Sat. Moving Day for Many Radio Stations

Through agreement with Canada, Mexico, Cuba and Puerto Rico, many stations in the higher frequencies changed their location on the radio dial on March 29. That morning people were surprised at the improvement in the reception of their radios, as much of the interference from nearby stations had been eliminated. This agreement outlawed a number of stations set up just outside the national borders in order to be able to broadcast and still keep beyond the jurisdiction of U. S. radio regulations. One of these especially was the cause of plenty of trouble to stations of less power operating on about the same frequency. Of stations in this territory, WOW and KOWH at Omaha and WNAX at Yankton have not been changed. All other stations have been changed, most of them only a few points on the dial, and the weak stations that serve only their immediate territory are grouped in the same frequencies to avoid higher power station interference. —Use the Quiz Want Ads for quick results.

Catholic Boy Scouts Hold Second Meeting

The second meeting of the Catholic Boy Scouts was held Tuesday evening at the Knights of Columbus hall. The group decided to use neckerchiefs of green as the troop distinguishing mark. They also voted to have a garden on Mr. LeMasters' land east of the river, and that any Scout guilty of infraction of the rules would have to work in the garden alone. Knots and tenderfoot tests were studied. Passing the first part of the test were Eddie Whelan and Kenneth Shibata. Members of the Pine Tree patrol are Billy Pafetta, leader, Eddie Whelan, Martin Piskorski, Jack Malolepszy, Joe Lola and Ronald Donnelly. The members of the Beaver patrol are Raymond Vogeltanz, leader, Kenneth Shibata, Robert Kokes, Archie Wegryzn, Billy Beran and Melvin Edwards.

Will Sing Lead Part in Oratorio, "The Messiah"

Grand Island's Messiah chorus is now rehearsing for the fifth annual presentation of Handel's great oratorio, "The Messiah," to be given in the Liederkranz auditorium on the afternoon of Palm Sunday, April 6. The chorus consists of 125 voices together with an orchestra of 20 pieces headed by Miss Jane Pinder, who is well known in Ord. Soloists for the oratorio are Richard Koupal, Ord young man who is attending University of Nebraska school of music, tenor; Miss Martha McGee, of Gothenburg soprano; Mrs. Donald Duryea, of Grand Island, alto; and William Pfeiffer, of Hastings, bass.

Track Prospects Bright at Burwell

Burwell—(Special)—Track prospects for Burwell, who will defend the Loup Valley championship title which they acquired last year, look exceedingly bright. Jack Anderson, Leslie Chaffin and Frank Hlavica, the three Longhorns who placed in the state meet last year, are all members of the squad again this year and appear to be in the best of trim, according to Coach Wolcott. In addition he has uncovered a new hope, Howard Maxson, who has beaten Chaffin in the sprints. Anderson who won first in high hurdles at the state meet and second in the low has been training several months in the anticipation of making a still better record at the state meet this year. Buzz Grunkemeyer is getting quite adept at tossing the javelin. Micky Simpson, too, is becoming quite skilled in this feat. Bob Sorensen is showing up well in the sprints. However, Burwell is short on relay material. They also lack pole vaulters and shot putters. Gerald Bishop is their best chance in pole vaulting and Chester Alder in heaving the shot. Conlee Swanson and Howard Sitton are also training for this event. Sitton is also Burwell's best hope in the high jump. He will likely compete in the broad jump event. Hlavica, too, isn't so bad at the broad jump. Gerald Bishop is Burwell's best miler. Franssen has been distinguishing himself with the discus. Burwell has an advantage in all track events in that the Longhorns have a cinder track, only one in the Loup valley until Ord's new track is completed, on which to practice.

Telephone Meeting

District Manager Johnson, of the telephone company, then introduced President Clark, who made a statement on the company's behalf. Mr. Clark explained poor service, cross-talk, etc., by saying that Ord has a "mixed type" of service, in which grounded magneto, metallic magneto and common battery service are optional, with a majority of people still preferring grounded magneto because it is cheapest. Even with present equipment better service could be furnished if all people had metallic circuits, he said, but to give perfect service it will be necessary to install complete new central office equipment and probably to build a new building. Clark quoted figures which he said prove that Ord really has low rates rather than high rates, inasmuch as Ord patrons have access to 1,741 stations including those on rural lines and in Burwell and North Loup to which free service is given. He contrasted this number of stations with 940 at Broken Bow and even fewer at St. Paul, in both places rates are higher than in Ord, according to him. The telephone company started a traffic survey in July to determine whether common battery or automatic service should be installed in Ord when improvements are made, Clark contended, but he said that results of this survey have not yet been finally analyzed. As soon as tabulations are completed his company will be in a position to make Ord a proposition for improving the service and will state what rates must be charged. Rates must be approved by the railway commission before they can go into effect, he stressed. A barrage of questions was fired at Mr. Clark when he finished speaking, some of which he answered and some of which he parried. Ign. Klimka, jr., wanted to know why the Ord exchange is valued for assessment purposes at only $16,400 whereas its value for rate-making purposes is claimed at $59,000. Only answer the telephone men made to this question was to say: "You don't put your houses in at full valuation, do you?" Poor service to North Loup was complained about by several, including M. B. Cummins, H. C. James and John Misko. Why the company furnishes Burwell with common battery service at a fraction of the rate charged Ord people for magneto service was another question fired at the telephone men. Extra cost for month-long phone was questioned. The company's practice of requiring payment five days in advance was complained about. Pressed by President Mortensen for a date when he will be prepared to make a definite proposal to Ord, Clark finally said he will have it ready within a week or ten days. Thereupon a motion was made by Vogeltanz and amended by Leggett to authorize a telephone committee to be appointed by Mortensen to receive the company's proposal and have it analyzed either by the railway commission or by an independent telephone engineer with expense in either case to be borne by the Chamber, and then call a general meeting of the Chamber at which the proposal and recommendations will be submitted for approval or rejection. Other speakers Thursday were the railway commission accountant, Mr. Schnell, and J. W. Penas, president of the Garfield Mutual Telephone company, of Burwell, both of whom spoke briefly. After the telephone discussion Clarence Davis reported briefly on the road situation and on Fort Hartsuff and a report of the parking committee was deferred for a month. Adjournment then was taken and luncheon served by Ben's Grill. The meeting enjoyed a splendid attendance. —Mr. and Mrs. H. Amos of Sargent were Ord visitors Monday evening.

business from associations with his brother, Andrew, who had made brick at St. Paul since 1880. Mr. Gruber used the circulating type of kiln which Mr. Ream had used, until 1907. That year he built the large, down-draft kiln in which he burned brick for more than 30 years. It had a capacity of 85,000 brick at one time, and in the early years of his work he found the demand for his brick greater than he could supply. With the depression came a lull in building, and Mr. Gruber wrecked the plant in 1938. Mr. Gruber's first building contract in Ord was the Cernik building on the north side of the square. He also built the Z. C. B. hall in 1908, and the garage building where the C. A. Anderson Motor company is located in 1915. His brick were used for the plain work on the Karly Hardware building, the city hall, the Masonic temple, Auble Bros. building, the Bailey building and the court house. In addition to his work as a builder, Mr. Gruber entered the political field, and on several occasions was elected a member of the Ord city council from the third ward. In this work he was always present at the meetings of the council and was very diligent in looking after the interests of his constituents. In 1897 Mr. Gruber married Miss Katherine Kokes at Geranium. To this union two children were born, Emanuel of Los Angeles, Calif., and Mrs. Lydia Pafetta of Ord, with the widow, survive him.

1942 Farm Program to Be Planned Soon

Farmers representing all sections of Valley county will meet soon with community and county AAA committeemen to draw up recommendations for the 1942 AAA farm program, it was announced by Charles E. Veleba, county committee chairman.

Meanwhile, all farm men and women in the county are invited to submit ideas and recommendations for making their AAA program more efficient and effective to local committeemen or the county office in Ord.

This system of keeping AAA in farmers' hands has been followed since Congress passed the Agricultural Adjustment Act in 1938. Mr. Veleba pointed out. The program as it is now operated by farmers is based upon the recommendations made by farmers in previous years.

In some Valley county precincts there will be meetings called by community committeemen for the purpose of collecting ideas and recommendations for the 1942 program. In others, committeemen will pick up this information through visits with their neighbors. The proposals gathered in these meetings and visits will be summarized and added to those brought out in the approaching county conference. Then the Valley county recommendations, together with those from all other Nebraska counties, will be presented for consideration at the national AAA conference. State and regional representatives of AAA will prepare the docket for 1942 at the national conference, using as a guide the recommendations received from farmers throughout the country.

Proposals for the 1942 program from landlords, businessmen and others interested in farming and the welfare of farmers also will be received at the county office, Mr. Veleba said.

Colors Not New With Season The beautiful colors of autumn foliage are not new at that season, but are there all the time. Leaves have three chief pigments—green, yellow and orange. The most abundant color is green, which dominates and obscures the other tints during the summer. Autumn weather causes the green pigment to disappear, leaving the others.

Lake Erie Most Dangerous
Lake Erie, on account of its comparative shallowness, is considered by some authorities as the most dangerous. J. C. Mills in "Our Inland Seas" mentions that "With its long record of shipwreck and death, surpassed by none of the larger open lakes, Lake Erie is appropriately termed the marine graveyard of the inland seas."

LEGISLATURE ITEMS.
L. B. No. 148, the Matzke bill setting up a Trade School at Millford in the vacant schooler home plant, passed third reading Friday. It is the purpose of this bill to promote the defense program in the interests of developing necessary mechanics for the various war activities. This may prove to be one of those state activities to grow and expand at the expense of the taxpayers.

There are a few lads with us who think they would exactly fit in northeast corner of the capitol (Governor's office). Watching their fence straddling and vote-ducking antics is really amusing.

A couple of well-groomed, dapper young men from the Federal Security Administration recently appeared before the Agricultural Committee, and after expounding about thirty minutes each, using such words as "co-ordination," "re-habilitation" and "Economic Unit," I ventured a whispered inquiry to a colleague as to what they were talking about. "Damfino," sez 'e. "Ditto," sez I.

Only a few state senators favor a sales, state income tax or other methods of augmenting or supplanting the present tax structure, yet the older heads in this body feel that the trend is very definitely in that direction, and unless every tax levying and spending body within the state lops off every non-essential, we shall, ere long, have new and additional taxes imposed.

Yesterday, yours truly was approaching the state house with a very well-informed senator, who paused, and, pointing to the door, made this prophecy: "Before many years have passed, the inscription over that door will read, 'Nebraska Branch of the Federal Government!'"

Signed, J. T. Knezacek.

This picture would be a very casual sight in Minnesota, Michigan or Wisconsin, but many Nebraskans never saw a real bob-sleigh in use. Harry Bresley used this sleigh the past few months in hauling feed and doing chores about the farm. The horses are a span of his fine purebred Percherons.

Populist Party Was Farmers' Protest Against G. O. P., Demos; First Alliance Here in 1886

Fifty-five years ago, Febr. 6, 1886, the first Farmers Alliance organization was perfected in Valley county. It was known as the Valley Alliance, and the meeting was held at the Clement school house, No. 9, at that time located on the southeast corner of Willow Dell farm in Mira Valley. The report of the secretary, J. A. Ollis, jr., was published in the Quiz, and reads as follows:

A meeting of the farmers of Mira Creek was held at the Clement school house on Febr. 6, 1886, for the purpose of considering the advisability of organizing a Farmers Alliance. And, notwithstanding the fact that everybody said, "Oh, the farmers won't organize, and they won't make their meetings interesting if they do," everyone present was deeply interested to leave no stone unturned for the advancement of our cause.

This was not a dull meeting. On the contrary, it was very interesting to all, even to those who were not personally interested. But there were none of that kind when the meeting adjourned. If the man who said farmers can't speak had been present, he would have learned that they can, and they can make a point with less words than some of our "eloquent speakers." The following business was transacted:

W. M. Gray was elected president of the meeting and J. A. Ollis, jr., secretary. After reading the constitution of Cook Co. Alliance No. 1, and discussion on this and other subjects of interest, it was on motion to proceed to organize an alliance.

On motion, it was decided to adopt the constitution of the Cook Co. Alliance. On motion it was decided to vote by acclamation during this meeting. On motion, it was decided this alliance shall be called Valley Alliance. On motion it was decided to proceed with the election of officers.

The following officers were elected: W. M. Gray, president; Harry T. Johnson, vice-president; J. A. Ollis, jr., secretary; A. B. Homnold, treasurer. President then appointed Messrs. Woody, Kety and Armstrong as a committee to prepare a program for the next meeting. A short recess was taken.

An application for a charter was signed by 21 members. On motion, it was decided to meet again on Saturday, the 13th inst., at 7:30 p. m. On motion, the secretary was instructed to send a report of this meeting to the county papers for publication.

The following program for the next meeting was read: Select reading by John Petty; declamation by Robert Armstrong; essay by A. B. Homnold on "Has the government the right to control the management of railroads." To be followed by a general discussion on the question treated on in the essay. Meeting adjourned until the 13th.—J. A. Ollis, jr., secretary.

Because it gives the complete story of the first Farmers Alliance meeting ever held in Valley county, the above should prove of interest. Although the meeting took place 55 years ago, three of those mentioned are still living. The treasurer, A. B. Homnold, is still living at the age of 89 at Rockwell City, Ia. Robert Armstrong, is still living at Kansas City, Mo. The Woody mentioned, Oscar Woody, lives at Arcadia.

The Cook county referred to above should have been Cooke county, and referred to Cooke county, Tex., where the first Farmers Alliance, No. 1, was started ten years before, 1876. This was a defensive league of ranches to protect themselves against border horse thieves. While there was little to fear from horse thieves in Valley county, the organization here was for mutual protection and benefit.

The Farmers Alliance might have continued to wield a powerful influence in public affairs even to the present time, had it stayed clear of union with other organizations, but in 1889 it combined with the Knights of Labor to form the National Farmers Alliance and Industrial Union. As it was, it had a great deal of influence, especially in Nebraska, until the turn of the century.

The Valley county organization entered the field of politics, and in 1890 elected its candidates to office in the county and also in the state. The new party was known as the Populist or People's Independent party, and was strongest in Nebraska and Kansas. When many of its advocated reforms had been adopted by the Democratic party, the Populist party dwindled away and finally ceased to exist.

After the organization of the Valley Alliance, a statement from H. G. Armitage, Kenesaw, Nebr., telling how to organize an alliance, was printed in the Quiz of March 26, 1886. In that same issue was the statement that an alliance, name not given, had been organized in the Beckelthymmer neighborhood west of North Loup.

Also in the same issue of the Quiz appeared an announcement by F. C. Marks, organizer, that a meeting would be called at the Timmerman school house, Springdale precinct, on April 1, for the purpose of organizing an alliance. In the Quiz of April 2 is told of the organization of the Pleasant Valley Alliance in the locality still known by that name.

In the issue of April 9 the following notice appeared: "Notice—Valley Farmers' Alliance, No. 68, will meet every Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, p. m., at the Clement school house, until further notice.—J. A. Ollis, jr., Sec." This is of interest as proving that the first Alliance was already busy, and that the number was 68.

Also in the April 2 issue it was stated that an alliance had been organized the preceding Thursday at the Manderson school house, and officers were elected as follows: President, W. B. Bright; vice-president, Henry Grant; secretary, W. B. Mitchell; treasurer, Perry Pierson. The name chosen was Liberty Farmers' Alliance.

In the same issue was the story of the founding of Springdale Farmers' Alliance, with a total of 17 names signed to the application for the charter. The officers were President, D. Pierce; vice-president, L. Timmerman; secretary, treasurer, H. L. Williams.

Monday, April 5, the Sunny Side Alliance was organized at the Adams school house on Turtle Creek, with A. S. Adams as president, O. Philbrick, vice-president, and H. J. Wells, secretary. There were 16 charter members, only 7 being required.

A Farmers' Alliance was organized at the Barker school house on April 6, with J. E. Paine, president; Charles Rich, vice-president; Robert Preston, treasurer; and T. P. Weed, secretary. April 25 a county organization was effected at McCord's Opera House, with L. M. Timmerman of Springdale as president, and J. A. Ollis of Valley Alliance as secretary.

Thus, in a few short paragraphs, is told the organization and phenomenal growth of the Farmers Alliance in Valley county. The story is of special interest as the alliance movement which resulted in the Populist party got its start and had its greatest success right here in Nebraska. It kept Nebraska Populist where the rest of the nation was Republican, just as it is now Republican while the rest of the nation is largely Democratic.

Human Nature to Resent Pedestrian Regulation

The public long has recognized the wisdom and necessity of requiring automobile drivers to follow certain rules of safety—and of punishing those who disobey. Less widely do people appreciate the wisdom of requiring pedestrians to conform to the rules of safety.

When a man is behind the wheel of a car—a ponderous vehicle capable of damage and hurt to others—he naturally feels a certain responsibility to the common good, and to law. But when he emerges from his automobile, when he is on his own feet and using only the locomotion that God provided for him, the least interference with his progress and maneuvers is likely to arouse resentment. A man is apt to feel he's "got a right" to walk across the street wherever or whenever he wants to, although the same man may not insist that he has a "right" to drive his automobile wherever he wishes.

This is a human—but not very sensible—attitude. The laws which govern the conduct of automobile drivers are designed primarily for the protection of others. But the laws governing pedestrians are designed for their own good.

Furnace Blows Hot, Cold
A Baptist congregation in Kansas City jammed two tons of ice into the church furnace to cool off. It cost $7 but lowered the temperature 11 degrees. Novus Reed, the choirmaster, had the idea.

A six-foot fan in the fire chamber blows heat during the winter through two ducts opening in the auditorium. All the congregation did was to unload the ice in the furnace room and start the fan spinning.

Birkes' Trio Are Being Examined by Omaha Alienists

Defense Gets Court Order to Take Men from Ord to Omaha Jail for New Questioning

By authority of a court order issued by District Judge E. G. Kroger, the three Birkes—John and Willard and their nephew, Richard—were taken from the Valley county jail to Omaha last Thursday by Sheriff Frank Strohl, of Taylor, and Deputy Sheriff Fred Cohen, of Ord. There they are being held in the Douglas county jail while being examined by Dr. G. Alexander Young, noted Omaha alienist and member of the state insanity commission, and by Dr. G. D. Wishong, another Omaha mental specialist.

A. F. Alder, Loup county attorney, and other members of the prosecuting staff, requested that the court order be issued and then notified Sheriff Strohl to take the three men to Omaha. Sheriff George Round refused to surrender the men to Strohl until he consulted County Attorney John Misko and Mr. Misko confirmed issuance of the order by telephoning Judge Kroger.

At the Douglas county jail the three men were issued prison clothing and it was done by Richard and Willard Birkes without protest. Jail authorities had to subdue John Birkes and forcibly dress him in the prison garb when he refused to put it on, said an Omaha newspaper.

The defense attorneys, Thomas W. Laungan and William P. Mullen, of Grand Island, objected strenuously to removal of their three clients to Omaha, and Friday they filed an application for a writ of habeas corpus in an Omaha court.

The prosecution's action in taking the Birkes to Omaha, they charged in their petition, was an illegal one "seeking to elicit from them by physical force, cunning or subterfuge evidence which can be used against them in violation of their constitutional rights."

Hearing on this application was set for Monday morning at 10 a. m. but over the week end jail attorneys had their hands full with John, Willard and Richard Birkes. They went on a hunger strike, refusing to eat a morsel of food, and told officers they were afraid of being doped or poisoned.

Upon orders of the state attorneys the three were held in separate cells. While in the Valley county jail they were allowed to be together.

Monday morning the three were taken into district court at Omaha for the habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Willis Sears. They sat quietly, guarded by six deputy sheriffs, and heard Judge Sears deny the writ asked for by the defense attorneys, after hearing arguments. They were then returned to separate cells in the Douglas county jail and beginning Tuesday were to be examined by the alienists.

Presumably, the three men will be returned to the Ord jail some time this week.

Their trial on charges of murdering Sheriff George Brock, of Loup county, will start in Ord April 21.

Ord Girl Will Be Army Nurse

Miss Olga Vodehnal, registered nurse who has been employed at the Grand Island hospital, has been ordered to report for duty at Fort Francis E. Warren, Cheyenne, Wyo., April 11. She will have a year's duty with the army nurse corps. Miss Vodehnal is a graduate of the nurses' training school at St. Francis hospital, Grand Island.

She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Vodehnal, formerly of Valley county, then of Palmer and now living northeast of Grand Island. She is a graduate of Ord high school, class of 1934, and since her graduation at St. Francis hospital, has been employed in Grand Island, most of the time at Grand Island hospital.

Top Floor Taken from Old Haskell Building

When the Haskell building became dangerous on the south side of the square recently, C. E. Goodband was hired to take down the brick in front as a safety measure to those who passed on the sidewalk outside. However, it developed that this was not sufficient, so he was ordered to take down the entire second floor of the building.

This was done the latter part of last week, the roof being taken apart and the joists sawed off where they are set into the brick wall on the west side, thus protecting the Pafetta building from damage. In its present condition the building should not be dangerous, but it is understood that the Haskell building, at least, will be sold and a new building erected there soon.

Money Needed to Keep Free Milk Program Going

Approximately $50.00 is needed to keep the free milk program in the lower grades of the Ord schools in operation until the end of the school year, said officials of the Ord Business and Professional Women's club yesterday. If individuals and organizations of the community do not help with further donations, no more free milk can be given after next week.

Teachers are enthusiastic about the free milk project, which has been in operation since early last fall. About half of the children get milk free, others bring money from home to pay for it, they said. The weight of under-privileged children has increased uniformly since the free milk plan was put in operation, they have had fewer absences from illness, their nerves appear better and they are doing better school work, says Miss Inez Swain, grade school principal. She would hate to see the plan abandoned.

Only seven weeks of the term remain and it costs about $7 per week to furnish the milk to children who need it. Ord people who want to help may make contributions of any amount to Miss Eunice Chase, club president, Mrs. Zeta Nay, or to any member of the B. & P. W. club.

Ord Livestock and Crops Judges Cop Kearney Contest

L. Geweke Outstanding Judge Among 500 Boys Competing; 2 Teams Win Trophies.

In a judging contest sponsored by the Kearney chapter of Future Farmers of America Saturday, the Ord high school boys won both the livestock and crops cups and Lloyd Geweke was the outstanding judge entered. Five hundred boys took part in various events. Judging livestock, the Ord team placed first with a score of 1,425 points followed by Kearney with 1,469 points. Lebanon, Kas., was third and Sargent fourth.

Lloyd Geweke led the contest, placing first in all classes with a score of 502 out of a possible 600. Leonard Kokes, Junior Dodge and Edward Rousek were other members of the team.

There were 109 boys in this contest, representing 30 Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado schools. The boys judged eight classes of livestock, two each of draft mares, sheep, hogs and cattle. A Burwell boy, Bernard Guggenmos, placed first in horse judging.

In crops judging the Ord team made a clean sweep. Don Guggenmos placed first, Eldon Smolik second and Orel Koelling third individually in all classes. Eldon Lange was the team alternate.

The Ord team scored 5,700 points followed by Lexington with 5,100 points. There were 25 schools entered in this event. The boys judged eight classes of grain and identified thirty samples of grasses and weeds.

In dairy cattle judging George Krajnik placed 8th individually in all classes and Richard Masin placed 13th. Other team members, Don Jensen and Wilson Chatfield, were unable to attend the contest. Six classes of Holstein cows were judged.

250 New Recipes for Meats in New Quiz Cookbooklet

Demand Growing for Modern Series of Recipe Books; 10 Out Now, 10 to Come.

The cookbooklet on Salads released last week has proved the most popular of any Cookbooklet released by the Quiz to date, or else more and more women are learning how wonderful these modern recipe books are, for demand surpassed supply of the Salad book and a rush order for more booklets had to be sent to Chicago. Every Quiz news-dealer who has been handling the Cookbooklets now has a plentiful supply of this popular book, as well as of those previously released.

Today the booklet on preparation of meats goes on sale at all news-stands and at the Quiz office. Official title is "250 Ways to Prepare Meats," but those housewives who get it will find that it is much more than a mere recipe book, for not only does it contain 250 recipes but also it tells how to select meats, how to prepare them for cooking, how to refrigerate them, how to carve them, and gives many helpful hints on serving.

At least 400 women in Valley and adjacent counties are taking advantage of the opportunity offered by the Quiz to build up a splendid kitchen library by getting these little Cookbooklets as they are released. Many more women should do so, for no finer or handsomer recipe books than these have ever been prepared.

They are new, different, profusely illustrated and are modern in every respect. Cooking times are given for gas, electric and other types of fuel stoves in many instances.

If you haven't been getting the Cookbooklets, better start now while the early issues are available.

To date ten bookletlets have been released, including the one on Meats released today, and there are ten to come.

Daily Freight Service Asked

J. C. Van House, local agent for the C. B. & Q. railroad, attended the annual meeting of central Nebraska Burlington agents held Sunday at the Yancey hotel in Grand Island and presented an informal request for daily freight service on the branch line which runs through Ord and ends at Burwell. He was supported in this plea by W. T. Nelson, district representative, and the matter is under advisement.

Tentative plans were made at this meeting for reduction of the minimum freight charge on less than carload local shipments and officers present said that lower freight rates on groceries, etc., will soon be made effective upon one day's notice.

Stamp Plan Adopted by Near-By Counties

The food stamp plan has been put into effect recently by several near-by counties, notably Sherman, Greeley and Howard counties, and Valley county has an application in to have the plan put into effect here. An enabling act passed by the 1941 legislature makes it possible for Nebraska counties to use this plan, which does away with surplus commodity distribution.

Ord, Nebraska

Dear Sir:

I received your letter and your March 26 issue of the paper showing the loss of fish at Burwell. There is no question as to the cause of the loss of fish. Instead of the fish freezing out, they were killed by dynamite. Dynamite was used in both December and January to break up the ice that collected above the dam. The dead fish show that they were killed in this manner. We hope that this will not happen again, as it is hard for us to keep our streams stocked with fish for our fishermen.

Please feel free to write us at any time if there is anything that we can do that will further conservation in your district.

Very truly yours,

W. H. LYTLE, Acting Secretary

Ord City Council Disposes of Many Items of Interest

Engine Insurance, Bus Parking, Tax Sales, Sidewalk Repair, New Sewers, Discussed.

The city council met at regular session at the council chamber Monday evening, with all members and the mayor, city clerk, city attorney and light and water commissioner all present. Also present by Mayor Cummins' request were A. J. Shirley, park custodian, and W. H. Barnard, sexton.

The first proposition discussed was that of having Mr. Shirley use the tractor and new sickle mower in helping Mr. Barnard keep the weeds down in the park, in places where the regular equipment could not be used. This was agreed upon, the oil, gas and Shirley's time while working at the cemetery to be credited to the park.

The park board has purchased a new sickle mower for use at the park, operating from the power (Continued on page 12)

K. W. Peterson Expands, Buys F. V. Anderson Line

By an agreement entered into this week, K. W. Peterson has taken over the F. V. Anderson Burwell-Grand Island truck line permits and will operate the line. He is running temporarily on Mr. Anderson's permits, but will run on his own as soon as the transfers have been made.

The Anderson line is a going concern, and has been running over the route for a number of years. Peterson has bought a new straight job Chevrolet, and will handle the Grand Island run separate from the one already established, with John Shephardson as driver.

Ord Joins Central Nebraska League

According to an arrangement entered into the past week, Ord is to be a member of the Central Nebraska baseball league for the coming year. This will put the Ord boys in somewhat faster company than last year, it is believed. The other teams in the league are Greeley, Genoa, Wolbach, Fullerton and Cedar Rapids.

With the first league games scheduled to start April 27, a drive is being made this week for funds for a new grandstand at the athletic park. It is believed that $200 will be sufficient to build a grandstand large enough to accommodate the baseball loving public, and this will add a necessary improvement to the park.

The first regular practice for the Ord boys was held Sunday afternoon, with about 25 prospective players out. It is believed that a tentative lineup can be given in the Quiz next week. Also, the schedule will be made out by that time, and will also be printed. Walt Douthitt is the manager, and Paul Hubert is president. Henry Zikmund was elected secretary-treasurer, but could not accept, so another man will be chosen for this position at the next meeting.

Irrigation District and Burwell People Deny Lytle's Claim

Only Dynamite Charges Were Set Off 1/2 Mile from Bayou Where Fish Died, Is Claim.

It is impossible that the thousands of fish found dead in Lake Burwell when the ice went out were killed by dynamite, said L. E. Walford, watermaster for the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district, when informed of the contention of W. H. Lytle contained in the letter printed above.

The only dynamiting done during the winter of 1940-41 was done at a point fully one-half mile above the bayou in which the dead fish were found, he said. Two small charges were set off, one on Dec. 24 and one on January 3, at the point of a big sand bar at the head of Lake Burwell, he said. The dead fish were found in a ditch, or bayou, immediately above the earth fill which comprises part of the dam at the lower end of the lake.

Two state game wardens, George Weldeman, of St. Paul, and B. H. Lashmett, of Columbus, came to Burwell to investigate the death of so many fish, stated Walford, and later came to Ord to interview him. Apparently Secretary Lytle's contention is based on reports made by these two game wardens.

At Borden, who has dynamited ice in the Loup river in both Loup and Garfield counties for thirty years, and who did the dynamiting for the North Loup district in (Continued on page 12)

Post Office Equipment Sold to Missouri Man

Ray Streeter and Clyde Current of Sturgeon, Mo., are in Ord today, and this morning they started taking down the post office fixtures in the Milford building, where the Ord post office was formerly located. Mr. Streeter has bought the equipment, and Mr. Current is helping him with the work. Ed Iwanski and Joe Kusek are also helping them.

Mr. Streeter is a man who buys used post office furniture all over the country, takes it to Sturgeon, works it over and makes it as good as new again, after which he sells it wherever there is a market. Thus, the Ord fixtures may go into use again almost anywhere in the United States.

The equipment for the post office was bought by Mr. Milford when he built the building for the post office in 1912. All that was bought at that time was bought new, and some new equipment has been bought since and some replaced as it was needed. Also the vault in the southwest corner and the 15 feet at the south side of the original room was added in the '20s.

State, County, WPA, Asked to Unite on Ord - Ericson Road

Plan to Grade and Gravel Worst 4 Miles Suggested to Board Tuesday by Chamber.

A plan under which the Nebraska highway department, Valley county and the WPA might unite in grading and graveling part or all of the Ord-Ericson road this summer, was suggested Tuesday to the Valley county board of supervisors by Clarence M. Davis, chairman of the road committee of the Ord Chamber of Commerce, and other officers and members of the Chamber.

This proposal calls for the state to place at the disposal of the county preliminary surveys of the route already made, along with complete plans for a state specification highway, and allow Valley county to use these plans as part of the 25% sponsor's contribution toward a WPA grading and graveling project which would make the road, or part of it, as good as any gravelled highway in Nebraska.

L. R. Jones, district highway department engineer, met with Mr. Davis and the Chamber's road committee and later appeared with them before the county board.

Subject to approval by heads of his department, he said that the state would agree to a proposal of this kind provided Valley county and WPA would do their part. Mark Gyger, county WPA head, said such a proposal would in all likelihood be acceptable to his organization.

In addressing the board, Mr. Jones stated that the highway department is giving favorable consideration to the Chamber of Commerce's request that the Haskell Creek road be established as a detour while No. 11 is under construction this summer, and that the state probably will build the three miles of this road in Garfield county that has not yet been graded. Application for federal aid in the amount of 50 per cent has been made, he stated, and if this is granted about $11,000 in state and federal funds will be expended on a straight-line road over these three miles. If the department cannot get federal aid, he said, the present winding road will be re-shaped for use as a detour.

Since cost of reshaping will be only $2,500 to $3,000, if this is done the highway department would be willing to spend a similar amount for structures on the Ord-Ericson road, but if an $11,000 road is built up Haskell Creek the department cannot give financial help, except to furnish the survey and building plans, on the Ord-Ericson road. Valley county is getting more than its share of road work with the No. 11 improvement already scheduled, he indicated.

The Chamber delegation suggested that Valley county set up a WPA project on the Ord-Ericson road extending four miles from the Garfield county line toward Ord and finish this much at least this season. With the state furnishing the plans and the WPA all the labor and part of the materials, cost to the county would not be excessive, it was pointed out. (Continued on page 4)

Cable Breaks, Lights Off 1 1/2 Hour Period

Ord homes went without electricity for the longest period in a good many years when a break in the city's cable near the lumber yards occurred last Wednesday evening about 7:45. Lights around the square and the street lighting service was out of commission only about 15 minutes but it took Chester Austin, Vern Stark and the other city electricians longer to repair the main cable break. Ord's electric service is so excellent usually that trouble of this kind seems worse by contrast, but nobody was seriously inconvenienced by the break.

County's April Draft Quota 3

A quota of only three has been assigned Valley county for April by the selective service board, announces A. A. Wiegardt, clerk of the local board, and the three men who go from here have instructions to report at Omaha on April 24.

They are Leonard E. Tolen, a volunteer; Edward L. Arnold and Theodore I. Youngquist, both from the Arcadia community. These latter two are transferred registrants and are credited to this county, so their induction into service with the induction of Volunteer Tolen will complete Valley county's quota for April.

Quota for May has not yet been set, says Wiegardt, but he anticipates that volunteers will be taken into service during that month and that there will be enough to fill the quota.

Combined Ord-North Loup Choir Will Present Easter Cantata Here Friday Eve

The combined choirs of the Methodist churches of Ord and North Loup, pictured above, will present the Easter cantata, "Our Living Lord," at the Methodist church here Friday evening, April 6, at 8:00. Director is Hilding Pearson, of Ord, accompanist is Mrs. Melvin Cornell, of North Loup. There will be 45 voices in the joint choir, but some of the people were not present when this photo was taken. The same group will again present the cantata in the Methodist church at North Loup on Easter evening.

STRIKES MUST BE STOPPED.

No so long ago a group of WPA workers in Minnesota staged a strike and demanded higher wages. They were getting approximately $30 per month. The president of the United States disposed of the strike by making one of those remarks for which he is famous. "You cannot strike against the government."

CITY ELECTION FIASCO.

Another Ord city election has passed. So far as the legality of the election is concerned, perhaps everything was done according to law. However, this is a good time to call attention to the fact that very few people were actually interested in going to the polls and vote.

WOW'S BIRTHDAY.

Birthdays of human beings have been observed, no doubt, ever since mankind began to live upon the earth. But there are birthdays that have not been observed so long, and one of them was the 15th anniversary of radio station WOW, Omaha, which was observed last Wednesday.

The Nebraska Legislature.

The Highway Patrol and the office of State Sheriff were combined into a state constabulary, with identification and investigation departments. Radio communication with County Sheriffs is made available.

For Regents' Scholarship.

Six Ord high school students took part in a contest last week for the Regents' Scholarship. Those competing were Geraldine Noll, Angeline Koelling, Helen Kathryn Work, Marian Wardrop, Clarence Romans and Jack Weaver.

more before it came into general use. Long distance conversation by means of the radiotelephone became possible in 1915. Due to developments made in the research laboratory of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the wire systems may be used in connection with the radiotelephone, and by this means it is possible to communicate with a ship at sea from any properly equipped station in America.

However, this had no direct connection with the commercial broadcasting stations as we know them today, but was more on the order of the amateur stations that operate on the short wave. The first recorded radio broadcast was at New York city in 1907, when Dr. de Forest broadcasted music. It means of no value to the public, as there were no receiving sets except those of the experimenters.

The first commercial broadcasting station was that of the "Detroit Wireless News Service," inaugurated Sept. 1, 1920. Its purpose was to broadcast news and music to listeners in the vicinity. The idea spread like wildfire over the country, and 3 1/2 years later, April 1, 1923, WOW of Omaha came into existence.

There is no way of estimating the value of such a broadcasting station to the community it serves. The program is sent out, is picked up by thousands of radios over the territory, and nearly all of those benefited accept the program as their just due without any acknowledgment to the station. It takes something like Orson Welles' "Man from Mars," to wake us to the importance of radio.

There is no criticism of the men who were candidates. They are as good as we have, and have proven themselves trustworthy. What the people need is a reason for voting, and the average person's time is too valuable to waste it voting on matters already practically determined.

Proof that people will get out and vote when they have something to decide by their votes is found in the fact that practically twice as many people voted in the second ward in last Tuesday's election as voted in either of the others. There were two candidates for council in the second ward, and only one in each of the others.

Regardless of the quality of men already in office, there should be two candidates for every office at every election. No man is so popular that everybody will vote for him, and those who wish to vote against him have the same right to vote as those who vote for him.

The bill providing for state civil service or merit system was reported out by the government committee to General Ellis for consideration. A similar bill, backed by the League of Women Voters, was decisively defeated in the previous session.

The bill repealing the Old Age Assistance Lien Law was argued and advanced for passage this week.

The bill repealing the State Hall Insurance Law was passed on Third Reading this week. The public hearing showed that too few policies were issued last year.

Well Know Group of 19th Century Ord Men—H. G. Westberg Photo

This week we present another group of Ord men of more than 40 years ago. At least two are still living, possibly others. Most Westberg requested last week that we print this one of men all prominent here at that time. They are, back row, left to right: Photog. Lind and Mr. Westberg. Second row: Sig Milligan, Lou Taylor, W. B. Patten, Vincent Kokke, John Messer. Seated: O. Hurlbert, Kit Carson, Les Trout. In front: Johnny Klinker and John Kokke.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

I am devoting this department this week to an explanation. A small per cent of our subscribers may call it a scolding if they wish. There are between two and three hundred Quiz subscribers in arrears. Some only a few months; some as much as a year; a few more than a year. Being in arrears has become a habit with most of those two or three hundred. A record is kept on each subscriber's card showing dates when they were written by me; dates when they paid, amount paid; excuses and promises they made. Most of the excuses were that they were hard up which I know is true because there has been no time in two years that I have not been hard up and I have had to borrow money to pay my bills but I have not asked the grocer or the daily paper to carry me.

On the west side of his orchard and strawberry patch he has planted a windbreak. First a row of trimmed Chinese Elm, then a row of Chinese Elm that are not trimmed and in front of that a row of chokecherries. All are growing fine. To the east of that he has planted an orchard of cherries. These are spaced the proper distance and of different varieties. They are three years old now and he has lost but one and that one was injured. He does not think the winter has killed any of the trees.

Between these rows of trees he has planted at least five different varieties of strawberries, all marked so he can decide which he likes best. He has Dunlap, Premier, Fairfax, Wazata and Nect. To buy the latter he had to sign a contract that he would not sell or give away or allow anyone to steal any of the plants.

Practically every bit of his land can be and is irrigated. Even his lawn has been leveled and seeded and is to be soaked from the ditch. The large trees on the north side of his place are showing signs of a newer life with their drunks from the ditch after the long thirst. His home is modern and recently redecorated; his car is new, his gun and fishing rod are in perfect order.

What more could a person want, I'd say, especially when you think of the strawberry shortcakes he'll have to live on next summer.

Strawberry Days. Strawberries have been very profitable for those who had them and could irrigate them. Sterling Manchester, with a new patch, took in over $1500 from one acre last year and there is one acre he can always sell them. When Sterling got too many for the local trade he took some to Grand Island and another load to Kearney where he sold them at once.

Another thing that makes the strawberry business attractive is that it gives the ladies of the community a chance to earn a little money for a few weeks. They have a good time picking berries (in spite of the backaches) and some of them make very good wages.

Years ago under the old ditch there were a number of large patches about North Loup and at that time the growers formed a cooperative selling organization and hired a man to act as salesman.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Of course we accepted when we were invited to Westly Hutchins for dinner. I didn't know before that he had a beautiful place. He has ceased his traveling on the road and spends his time now on his little farm west of town. He has bought a garden tractor and can go all over his two acres in about six hours. He doesn't keep a cow or a chicken or a horse, spending his time working on his house and in his strawberries. He said he had strawberries last summer on pancakes at breakfast time, strawberries and biscuits for dinner and strawberries and shortcake for supper.

It all seems rather peculiar when the roads have been so nearly impassable for so long, but much of the moisture ran from the fields to the roads and to the middle of the roads at that. However, in spite of the dry season, the topsell is very wet; so wet that no one has done any farming to speak of. Hopes are better that they have been here for many years, and when all is said and done, that is about all we get out of life, is hope.

Many people think this is a late spring and it seems that way to me too. Most good farmers plan to have their barley and oats sown by the first week in April and this year few of them even have their ground disced.

But Hub Thorogate, one of our old timers, says that he remembers several seasons when there was no field work done until later than this. One year he never did a stroke of work in the field until the fifteenth of April and he was one of the first ones in the neighborhood to start at that. Hub was always a good farmer.

Recently a salesman handed me a circular of a new cream separator he was trying to sell me. In it were nice glossy pictures of the separator in action separating cream from the milk of a half dozen cows, the woman (wife perhaps, perhaps not) neat and smiling at the young man standing nearby in a spick and span uniform suit, as free from weariness as if he were just ready to go see his best gal—if he were not looking at her just then.

March was an unusually damp month, with 11 cloudy days, 11 partly cloudy and only 9 clear. While moisture fell on six different days, the total amount was only .82 of an inch, but this brought the total rainfall, Oct. 1 to April 1, to a high of 3.15 inches, higher than at any time in the preceding ten years.

The figures for the Oct. 1-April 1 period for ten years is as follows: 1940-41, 3.15; 1939-40, 5.18; 1938-39, 2.88; 1937-38, 4.61; 1936-37, 2.45; 1935-36, 4.51; 1934-35, 3.92; 1933-34, 2.63; 1932-33, 5.35; 1931-32, 8.05. Ten year total 47.73. Ten year average 4.77.

It is of interest to note that the last year approximately the moisture of the past winter was in 1931-32, and that our last good crop came that year. The moisture this year is not only more than for any one year of the preceding ten, but it is nearly double the ten year average. If winter moisture counts for anything, we have splendid prospects for a crop.

It seems to be a tremendous job to soak up our sub-soil after the long thirst. Several of the neighbors have been digging (John Krewald and Claud Thomas were two of them) and they report fourteen inches of moisture on the level, below which it is dry as powder and about eleven inches of moisture on a south slope. In a rye field south of the road Claud said there was four feet of moisture below which was dry.

Something Different

Surely fine is the plant-a-tree spirit. I wish we might each of us plant one tree this spring. That would help to replace some of those noble old pioneers that now stand bare and dead. Or which we see being sawed up for fuel.

What can a child do that is more lovely than planting a tree? Planting a tree that will be there fifty years from today for him to show his grandchildren?

What could give a child more the feeling of being a link in the chain of history than to plant a tree?

If we ever have a good crop year or a year when the farmers can afford to paint their houses and barns, some paint salesmen are going to retire on their profits.

I can remember when nearly every farm was kept painted up nicely. Now it is getting difficult to find one that is kept painted.

We certainly can't blame the farmers; eating is just a bit more important than painting.

The newspapers say the government wants to discourage the planting of surplus crops, meaning wheat, corn, oats, etc. And to encourage the planting of more vegetable and side-line crops.

Well, let's see. What vegetables and sidelines can we grow hereabouts and get to market in good condition?

Also, what imports from Europe could we grow ourselves. Since it appears European imports are pretty well shut off.

What can you think of? I can think of paprika, from Hungary. How does one grow that kind of peppers?

Didn't I hear we are getting short of poppy seeds? How do we grow that?

And, let's see, tulips and other bulbs come from Holland, we get no more of them. Is this climate suitable for growing bulbs, though? I understand our northwest coast region is ideal for growing bulbs, so probably this isn't mid enough.

Two or three years ago one of our mail carriers made a good profit on eggplant, growing them in a lot he rented down by the river side, selling his crop on Saturdays locally.

Garden truck seems to do right well, and we know strawberries and watermelons flourish in our valley. Could we raise more of them?

What about chickens and turkeys? From abroad, what do we get from abroad?

Diamonds, can't get those. Tweeds from Scotland, can we raise that kind of wool here?

Telescope lens, the most precisely ground ones in the world, there is, it Belgium, France or Germany? Heck, we can't raise telescope lens!

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

We certainly must have had some "Hot News" in the Quiz last week. The boss ran the press most of the last run, then turned the rest of it over to Kent. Shortly after Kent took over smoke began rising from beneath the press, and he shut it off, grabbed the fire extinguisher and got busy. Daryl rushed to the sink, came back with a kettle of water, which he threw under the press. They got the fire out, but the pressroom was full of smoke, and the boss opined that he made a mistake in trusting the press to Kent, who has only been running it for about twelve years. The Ord volunteer firemen could not have done a better job.

John Mason is a very methodical man. He drives his car up town nearly every day, and he always parks it in the same spot east of the Milford building. His friends check up on his car when they want to know if he is up town.

While we didn't mean to do so, we sure got our friend Hank Stara in hot water last week when we printed his picture down on Haskell (Smith) creek. In the first place, we claimed the pictures were taken on Monday, a day before the opening of the fishing season. Then, Hank even goes so far as to claim he didn't have his fishing permit with him. After the Quiz came out Stara had quite a time dodging a legal friend of his, whose duty it is to see that the law is enforced.

Those same spring pictures also got the Quiz in for some good-natured joshing. We were having a nice spring rain when the Quiz was printed, but by the time it was delivered around town the next day Old Man Winter was back on the job again, and it sure didn't look much like spring. We are thinking of saving those cuts and running them again about the first week in May.

A new variation of that perennial nuisance, the chain letter, is making its appearance in Ord. It is what is known as the apron club, and each recipient is supposed to write a number of letters to new dupes and send aprons to the ladies whose names appear in the letter she received. Like all ideas of the kind, the ones starting it may get something back, but those on the tail end are left holding the sack. Why can't people learn to say "NO."

P. J. Cohen was displaying what was perhaps the first four-leaf clover of the season Saturday morning. He found it on the courthouse lawn, where the clover sowed last year seems to be making a fine showing. The bluegrass sown at the same time with a nurse crop of heavier grass does not seem to have done so well.

Custodian Dave Haight, with the able assistance of Ed Hurlbert and Joe Wozniak, is getting the heavy growth of grass raked off the courthouse yard, and it should present a lovely sight in another week or two. It would hardly be fair to draw a contrast between the present condition of the yard and how it looked this time last year, when it was absolutely bare.

Twin births in the Ed Whelan family were announced this week by Mr. Whelan. The two young ones have been named Patricia and Patrick. They were born March 30th to Patty, prize Golden Labrador retriever owned by Mr. Whelan. Sire of the puppies was a prize winner owned by an Omaha breeder. Worst of it is, duck hunters who have watched Patty work were so anxious to have pups from her that a litter of at least a dozen was needed to supply the demand. But most of them, probably including the Quiz editor, will be disappointed.

Ord Auto Sales Company Gets Large Car Shipment
The Ord Auto Sales company force was busy Monday unloading a shipment of two carsloads or a total of eight new Chevrolets. One car came in over the North Pacific and the other over the Burlington. Four of these are already sold, as follows: K. W. Peterson, special sedan; George Gutshaw, special sport sedan; Mrs. Floyd Hutchins, North Loup, deluxe four door sedan, and Charles Burdick, business coupe.

The unloading of autos is an old story to Ed Gnaster, of the Ord Auto Sales company. He recalls unloading them first in 1915-1916. From 1916 until 1920 he was unloading them regularly at Farwell; from 1920 to 1932 he unloaded them at St. Paul; that year he came to Ord, and he has unloaded plenty of them here. In 1936 more than 100 Chevrolets were unloaded here, some going to dealers in Arcadia and Burwell.

The methods of shipment have changed a lot in that period of time. The first cars he unloaded came knocked down, with the body and chassis as separate units which had to be put together after they were unloaded. Later on it was a common practice to ship them with the wheels off and use various

White Lake Dry Each Decade In the Gobi desert is White lake, called by that name because every ten years it dries up and leaves a white salt surface.

Sportsmen Urged to Buy Wildlife Stamps

National Wildlife week is April 14 to 18th.

Each year conservation-minded Nebraskans join with wildlife boosters throughout the nation in a concrete expression of their faith in the future of America—by purchasing wildlife conservation stamps.

These stamps, beautifully colored emblems of 20 varieties of American wildlife, are distributed by the National Wildlife Federation through the various state organizations, with receipts going to both national and state groups for further salvation work in the conservation field.

It is by these stamp sales that the constructive efforts of the federation in pursuing a sane conservation program are maintained, as the federation is entirely dependent upon this volunteer aid.

Forty per cent of the money stays in Nebraska for local conservation work and 60% goes to the national federation.

Nationally the federation has worked wonders in obtaining successful passage of prudent and far-reaching conservation legislation, such as the Pittman-Robertson act, whereby the excise tax on sporting arms and equipment is directed to the states for upland game recovery work.

In Nebraska, the federation stands at the front in the battle to protect and increase our game. Many are the constructive measures now on our statutes which trace their origin to federation activities.

All sportsmen are urged by Nebraska's federation Chairman, Ernie Bihler to lend a hand to this worthy cause, to purchase stamps to keep federation interests alive and active.

Stamps may be purchased through local federation officials, hardware and sporting good stores or through D. L. Willhite, director of outstate stamp sales, Superior, Neb.; Dr. Merritt C. Pedersen or Charley Anderson, Lincoln, or Ernie Bihler, Omaha.

One sheet of 40 double-size stamps sells for $1.00, while for $1.50 you may obtain a sheet of stamps, a 1941 album, and a picture of a wood duck family for mounting on the album or for framing.

Legislative Committee Plans Four Districts

One of the sources of grief for the legislative committee of the Nebraska unicameral is the redistricting problem. As might be expected, everybody is very free with advice as to how this should be done, but it is apparent that no one arrangement will please everybody. To date no less than 40 plans have been submitted.

The one plan most discussed at present places everything south of the Platte as far west as the west line of Adams and Webster counties, with the exception of Cass, in Dist. 1. Dist. 2 contains Washington, Douglas, Sarpy and Cass counties. The division between the 3rd and 4th districts is along a straight line from the north line of the state to the southwest corner of Sherman, and around Buffalo to unite with Adams at the northwest corner.

The chief trouble with the proposed plan is the wide difference in population in the four districts. Under this plan the first District would include 384,000, the second 286,000, the third 374,000 and the fourth 279,000. On a percentage basis this would be: first, 30%; second, 22%; third, 27%; and fourth, 21%. It leaves the fourth district, most likely to lose in population, with only 21% of the population at present.

Born At Fort Hartsuff.

Pauline R. Hunt, whose father's name was Charles T. Blumentrother, whose grandfather was Charles Meier, was born at Fort Hartsuff according to a letter received from her by the Quiz last week. She says her grandfather was a brick layer and built the school house where she went to school, but she does not recall the name of it. Mrs. Hunt is now 66 years and her home is at Salem, Ore. It would be of interest to know if any of the old timers remember these people.

North Loup

Mrs. Ellen Coombs passed away at her farm home west of North Loup Sunday night after an illness that had lasted much of the winter. Farewell services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Seventh Day Baptist church with Rev. A. C. Ehret officiating. Mrs. Nels Jorgensen, Mrs. Erlo Babcock, Albert Babcock and Dell Barber sang. One Sweetly Solomn Thought, Cast Thy Burdens on the Lord and Not Very Far Away. Mrs. Glen Johnson and Mrs. A. H. Babcock presided at the organ and piano. Burial was in the family lot in Hillside cemetery, with Frazier of Ord the undertaker in charge. Bearers were neighbors and were Jim and Bill Vogeler, Pete Jorgensen, Halsey Schultz, Franklin Bremer and Roy Jacobs.

Ellen Green was the only surviving child in a family of five born to William and Elizabeth Green. She was born at Watson, N. Y., May 23, 1862. While still young she was baptized and joined the Seventh Day Baptist church at Watson, bringing her letter later to North Loup. In 1879 she came with her father and mother to Nebraska, first to Harvard for a short time, then to North Loup. Her father, a veteran of the Civil war, was in very poor health and died a few months after coming here, so Ella began teaching school to support herself, her mother and her aged grandmother. Beside a few terms in the country she taught for seven years in the primary room in town. She was an excellent teacher. Prof. True, who was superintendent three of those seven years said she was the best primary teacher he ever had. One reason for this was because she loved little children and spent much time entertaining the children of the neighborhood. Before teaching further she decided to obtain more education and went back to school, graduating from high school and spending a year at Milton, Wis., in college. While there she took some training in music for she had a natural fine voice.

In September 1900 she was married to George Coombs of Cripple Creek, Colo., and one son, Albert, was born to them. Her husband died April, 1931, and she and her son have lived on the farm home till she was stricken this winter and died April 7, at the age of almost 79 years. She leaves only her son Albert, an aunt by marriage, Mrs. Sabrina Williams, cousins in the east and some other distant relatives here. She was in the tenth generation in direct line from Roger Williams. A good woman has gone to her reward. George Pierce, 33, who has been living in the I. O. O. F. home at York the past three years, passed away there Sunday night. Services were held at Sargent where his brother lives, Tuesday afternoon. A number from the local lodge attended. Mr. Pierce lived in the early days on Davis Creek, with his father's family. His sister taught the first school in the Davis Creek district, when school was held in one room of the Jim Wheatcraft home. In 1900 he sold his farm home to Will Eglehoff and some time later moved to North Loup where he was a familiar figure on the street. His little home in the village was always neat and attractive and many a family enjoyed fresh vegetables from his garden in season. After his health began to fail, he gave up his home here for one at York and has since lived there, visiting old friends in North Loup only a few times.

Mrs. Mable Goodrich, wife of J. E. Goodrich, better known as Mamie Goodrich, passed away at her home in Omaha, on April 3, 1941. She had been ill for the past three or four years with leukemia, and the day before last Thanksgiving was taken seriously with shingles. This and other complications caused her death. Mr. and Mrs. Goodrich owned the drug store in North Loup for many years, where William Vodenka now owns. They sold to Geo. C. Smith and moved to Ord where they also owned a drug store. Later they moved to University Place and then to Omaha where they formed the Goodrich Drug company. Mr. Goodrich passed away 17 years ago. A daughter, Helen, died in 1913. She leaves three sons, Orlo, Howard and Emerson and their families, one sister, Mrs. A. E. Goodrich, who has spent the winter in San Antonio, Tex., and the following nieces and nephews in North Loup: Mrs. Harold Hoepfner, Paul Jones, Clifford Goodrich and Mrs. Harry Barber, also a brother-in-law, John J. Goodrich.

Funeral services were held Saturday at 11 a. m. at the C. C. Haynes mortuary in Omaha and cremation followed at Forrest Lawn cemetery.

At the chapel of the Methodist church in Grand Island Saturday afternoon at 4:30, Rev. Earl Raitt, officiating, occurred the marriage of Miss Louise Williams of Merna and Alwyn Stude, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stude of North Loup. They were accompanied by the bride's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Williams of Merna. The bride wore a dress of powdered blue with dusty rose accessories and carried a bouquet of tallman roses. Mrs. Williams dress was soldier blue and her bouquet was sweet peas. Alwyn has lived all his life on his parents farm near North Loup and graduated from Scotia schools. For several years he has been in the Broken Bow CCC camp where he has recently been made a P. A. It was while in camp that he met his bride who has visited here a number of times with her husband. Some here will be interested to hear of the death of Mrs. Lydia Reutlinger Vance, wife of Rev. Vance, pastor of the Evangelical church in Fullerton. ## State, County, WPA, Asked to Unite on Ord - Ericson Road

This would place a good highway through that portion which has been in the worst shape this winter and spring. If the state is able to contribute $2,500 or $3,000 toward the work, it might be feasible to go ahead and finish up the entire nine miles this summer, the delegation suggested. If not, and the county feels unable to grade and gravel more than four miles this summer, the road will be much farther along than it is now and the 5 mile gap remaining can be completed next season.

Supervisors took no action on the proposal, pending more complete information, but it was suggested that Mr. Jones secure from highway department heads a definite commitment on the use of the preliminary survey and complete plans by the county, and that Mr. Gyger work out in detail cost of the development to the county, so that consideration may be given to the matter at the May meeting of the board.

Under no circumstances can the state consider building the Ord-Ericson road at this time, said Mr. Jones; in fact, the entire secondary road program is held up indefinitely by lack of funds and the state is $2,000,000 short of matching federal funds available for primary roads. It will be several years before Valley county could hope to have the Ord-Ericson road built as a state project, he said. He promised, however, that if the road is built as a county-WPA project to state specifications, the state will take it over for maintenance as rapidly as it is completed.

Chamber of Commerce members are very hopeful that this plan can be worked out satisfactorily and that an all-weather road to Ericson may be partially or wholly completed by fall. Farmers of northeast Valley county who would like to see this road developed should indicate their wishes to supervisors before the May meeting of the board and should appear at that meeting, along with all interested Ord business men, to urge that the plan be adopted.

Eleventh Annual Music Festival a Great Success

Large Groups of Students from Ten Schools in District Were in Attendance.

The feature event of the school year in the line of music has come and gone, and all who attended the sessions at the high school auditorium Friday were well repaid for their time and trouble. It was the eleventh annual music festival sponsored by the Loup Valley High School association.

Beginning at 9 p. m., two programs were run simultaneously, one in the auditorium for the larger groups and the other in the high school library for the smaller groups and the soloists. Supt. C. Huff of Sargent was chairman of the auditorium program, while Supt. Ray S. Reith of Dannebrog presided at the library program.

The festival committee were Henry Delnes, Ord; M. H. Struve, Burwell; Carroll Nygren, Arcadia; and Delmer Van Horn, North Loup. The critics were Prof. James King, Hastings college, and Prof. Russell Anderson, Wayne Teachers' college.

The evening program, with Supt. Wallace W. Willis of North Loup in charge, was held in the auditorium and began at 7:30. This program included the Dannebrog orchestra, the St. Paul double sextet, a B-flat bass solo from North Loup, the Scotia girls' glee club, a baritone vocal solo from Sargent, the Arcadia mixed chorus, the Comstock girls' glee club, a piano solo from Loup City, the Ord madrigal singers, and the Burwell band.

The afternoon auditorium program included girls' glee clubs from North Loup, Arcadia, Taylor, Burwell, Sargent, Dannebrog and St. Paul; boys' glee clubs from Arcadia and Dannebrog; mixed choruses from Scotia, Dannebrog, St. Paul and Ord; bands from Taylor, Comstock, Sargent, Arcadia, Scotia, St. Paul and Ord.

In the library program were: from Comstock, clarinet trio, cornet solo, girls' sextet and girls' duet; from Loup City, solos on bassoon, tuba, trombone, French horn, and soprano and bass vocal solos; from Dannebrog, violin and soprano solos; from North Loup, piano and cornet solos, a baton twirler, boys' quartet, girls' trio and girls' medium voice;

From Burwell, tenor saxophone, trombone, piano and vibraphone solos; from St. Paul, baton twirler, and alto, baritone and soprano solos; from Arcadia, girls' sextet and a tenor solo; from Scotia mixed quartet; from Taylor, girls' sextet; and from Sargent, girls' high voice and girls' trio.

Ord, being the host school, naturally had the largest representation of music students, with well over one hundred; at least one hundred came from Burwell and ninety from Scotia; Loup City had the fewest in number, as those who participated were soloists. Supt. C. C. Thompson estimates that at least 750 music students were in attendance in all.

Grand Island Firemen Demonstrate Iron Lung

The group of Grand Island men arrived with their iron lung at 4:45 p. m. Saturday, and were met by the Ord firemen, who led them into town and around the square with the fire truck, with the sirens blowing to notify the public of the event. The outfit came to a pause on the west side of the square, where the Ord firemen roared off a space so the public could witness the demonstration.

The visiting group included: Chief Mike Lingenman, who designed the truck body in which the lung is carried; Roy Westphal, first aid man; Don Steele, representing the Grand Island Chamber of Commerce; Charley Cords and Julius Boeck, members of the Grand Island city council; E. Krickle and O. B. Bent.

The iron lung is carried in a specially designed truck body, with a special track arrangement by the use of which it can be set out on the ground and made ready for use in record time. The lung is operated by means of a power unit located on the front of the top of the truck body, above the driver's seat.

Literally thousands of people crowded about the vehicle when it stopped on the west side. The city police cut off the block for the time being. After a time the local firemen got the crowd to filing past, and in this way most of the visitors got to see the lung in operation. Much credit must be given Chief Lingenman and his men for their work in constructing this mobile unit, and also for demonstrating it round the territory.

Dorcas Circle Entertains.

An attractive luncheon was given this noon by the members of the Dorcas Circle of the Presbyterian church at the home of their president, Mrs. Keith Lewis. More than sixty guests were seated at small tables which were decorated with fresh flowers and an Easter motif.

The menu was ham loaf with candied sweet potatoes, parker house rolls, relishes and jams. A salad of pears made cunning bunnies on each plate. A delicate dessert of gelatin was accompanied by tiny tea cakes also decorated with spring flowers. Mrs. Richard Teague played soft music during the meal.

Following the luncheon Mrs. Ralph Misko reviewed, most appropriately, "The Good Shepherd" by Gunnar Gunnarson. This new book was written by an Icelandic and is the simple but beautifully told tale of the care of one shepherd after each of his flock. The story could not have been more suitable for a Holy Week telling, which Mrs. Misko effectively gave it.

When You And I Were Young Maggie

April 9, 1931. Miss Mildred Campbell of the Ord city schools, a 5th grader, was the champion speller of Valley county.

April 7, 1921. A. C. Townley was coming to Ord to make a speech for the non-partisan league, but so fleeting is fame that the younger generation don't know who he was.

April 6, 1911. The Bailey and Sons store was gutted by a fire which started shortly before noon, April 5, and which almost completely destroyed the $40,000 stock.

April 12, 1901. Ord's new water works plant was completed and was found satisfactory, except for the fact that the pump had to run very slow on account of the small caliber of the supply pipe. The Standard Oil company shipped to Ord a car of oil pumps and other paraphernalia for their new tank station in Ord.

April 9, 1886. Lefe Miner of Longwood had his leg terribly crushed when run over by the wheel of a loaded wagon.

At the school meeting, Dist. 5, which was then held separately from the village election, Mrs. C. C. Wolf and Mrs. A. M. Robbins were elected in place of H. Westover and M. Coombs, who wished to retire.

NEWS OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD

A recent issue of the Cozad Local contained a two page spread of ads clustered about a photo of the new dehydrating plant, which recently opened there for the manufacture of commercial fertilizer.

A reference sale of the Katherine Hahn estate was held at St. Paul last week, and the property was bid in at a price of $425 per acre. The 160 acre farm is rough, but 92 acres are under cultivation, and it has a fairly good set of improvements.

Mrs. R. A. Haggart, wife of a well known St. Paul attorney, died and was buried there last Friday afternoon. She was a sister-in-law of Mrs. Leslie Mason of Burwell, and the Masons and Mr. and Mrs. Johns of Burwell attended the funeral services.

The Water Users association of Comstock held their annual meeting at the Comstock hall last Monday evening, with a large number in attendance. At the election the same directors, J. D. Rockhold, M. F. Henderson, I. L. Rickett, Vencil Krikac, sr., and E. G. Stone were chosen for another year.

Howard H. Roe has sold the Scotia Register to M. G. Williams, who has been with the paper since 1933, and publisher since April 1, 1936. Mr. Roe bought the paper from Krebs Bros., April 1, 1929, and has been sole owner since that time.

Greeley voters approved a water bond issue at the election last Tuesday by a vote of 140 for and 35 against. The amount is $7,500 and the money will be used to finance equipment for the water department. In the town election, 193 voters were cast, nearly as many as at Ord.

Sawlog Too Large for Mill to Handle

The above picture is of a sawlog that was sent to the Mutual Lumber company mill at Bucoda, Wash. It was so large that it could not be sawed by the mill and was allowed to stand on the flatcar for several years, until it has now been dumped off and local people are working it into wood.

Notes From the VALLEY COUNTY FARM BUREAU

By C. C. Dale

Feeders' Day Ready. Everything appears in readiness at the College of Agriculture in Lincoln for the annual Feeders' Day there on Friday, April 18, when more than 3,000 farm people are expected to hear about the latest livestock experimental work.

Separate programs for the men and women are planned throughout the day. There will be a big baked foods show for the ladies featuring the use of lard. Visiting newspapermen will be feted at a noon-day luncheon and the Block and Bridle club will honor Chancellor Emeritus E. A. Burnett in the evening for his contributions to the livestock industry.

The men's program will open, as usual, promptly at 9:15 in the activities building with Prof. Wm. J. Loeffel presiding. Speakers on the morning session include Walter Tolman, Ed Janike, M. A. Alexander, L. E. Hanson, M. L. Baker, Elvin Frolik and R. R. Thalman. The experimental cattle will be inspected late in the morning.

Howard J. Gramlich and John S. Campbell of Chicago headline the afternoon speaking program. Another feature will include a summary of twelve years of beef cattle experiments by R. R. Thalman who leaves the college soon to manage the McKelvie Herefords in the sandhills. Other speakers include Dean W. W. Burr, Wm. J. Loeffel and A. P. Davies of the American Meat Institute in Chicago.

Miss Margaret Fedde will preside over the special women's program in the morning in the Animal Husbandry Hall. Defense of farm health with gardens, poultry, milk, and meat will be discussed by E. H. Hoppert, J. R. Redditt, P. A. Downs, and W. W. Derrick with Miss Matilda Peters summarizing the information.

J. V. Srb speaks about "Agricultural Defense," at the close of the morning session. Mrs. W. W. Burr will preside over the afternoon gathering. One feature includes the Cass county project chorus in a take-off on a club meeting. New developments in fabrics will be discussed by Miss Mary Guthrie. Martha Logan of Chicago is to wind up the program with a foods demonstration.

The special baked foods contest at Feeders' Day is expected to draw scores of entries. A special prize goes to the first 250 entries. Printed copies of the program for Feeders' Day are available free of charge at the County Agents' office.

Two New Bulletins. Two new bulletins have just been published which are of interest to Valley county farmers. Free copies can be had at the County Agents' office.

One bulletin is Circular 68, "Bromegrass Production in Nebraska." It is a well-illustrated 16-page publication telling about varieties, cultural methods and seed harvesting. The bulletin should be of particular interest to farmers planning on seeding some bromegrass this year. The late A. L. Frolik and L. C. Newell are the authors.

The other bulletin which will interest Valley county farmers is a report on tractor testing at the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station from 1929 to 1940. It is known as Bulletin 30. In addition, to describing in detail the various tests, the publication contains numerous pictures showing just how the work is done at Lincoln.

Free copies of both bulletins are now available.

Depraved Appetite in Cows. If your milk cows are continually trying to eat wood, clothing, dirt or bones—it's probably because of a depraved appetite caused by the lack of phosphorus.

A lot of farmers over Nebraska have reported this condition to the Dairy Department at the College of Agriculture. In answer, Gravers Underberg says any food deficiency resulting in malnutrition may exhibit itself in depraved appetite but the one usually brought to mind is phosphorus deficiency.

Phosphorus deficiency in cattle is likely to occur where the soil is deficient in this element since forage crops and cereal crops raised on such soil will contain less phosphorus, especially in dry seasons. The condition of such a deficiency may be aggravated further by feeding excess limestone, since calcium (lime) and phosphorus are absorbed in a certain ratio and excreted in a certain proportion. In other words, an excess of one of these elements in the ration may lead to a deficiency of the other. The surest way of correcting this "deficiency disease" is by prevention.

Balancing rations deficient in phosphorus with foods rich in this element is one method of prevention. Good food sources of the element are the legumes such as alfalfa clover and soybeans. Also, there is wheat bran, cottonseed meal, linseed oil meal and soybean oil meal or soybeans.

Underberg says a suggested grain ration for milk cows which contains ample nutrients and which will prevent or correct a phosphorus deficiency would contain 400 pounds of finely ground corn or sorghum grain, 400 pounds of wheat bran and 200 pounds of soybean meal or cottonseed meal. This ration can be fed when roughage in the form of prairie hay, sorghum fodder, corn fodder along with a limited amount of legume hay is available. One pound of this grain mixture should be fed for each three pounds of milk produced. As an additional source of phosphorus, steamed bone meal may be fed.

Dairy Calf Sale Ready. Fifty purebred dairy calves will be offered to Nebraska 4-H club members next Saturday, April 12, in Lincoln by some of the better dairy breeders in the state. Holsteins, Jerseys and Guernseys are included in the offering. Plans for the first event of its kind ever held in Nebraska were completed this week. Only 4-H club members will be allowed to bid on the animals and only two calves will be sold to any one club member. The sale is to be held in the 4-H club building on the state fairgrounds in Lincoln.

BURWELL

The Diocesan Council of Catholic Women met at the Sacred Heart hall on Thursday, April 3. Sixty-three women and three visiting priests registered. Mrs. Mike Shonka, president of the local group, and Mrs. Frank Manasil, secretary, conducted the registration in the morning and at 12:30 a delicious luncheon was served cafeteria style. Following the luncheon the ladies retired to the church where a program was given, including the following: Opening prayer by Rev. Thomas Murray; welcome, by Mr. Murray; hymn, "Mother Dearest, Mother Fairest," by the assembly; reading of minutes by Loretta Kusek; roll call and reports of Burwell, Elyria, Ord, Greeley and Spaulding clubs; call to action, by Miss Ke Taylor of Greeley; vocal solo by Eleanor Jo Jablonski, accompanied at piano by Margaret Ann Petaska; talk, "Your Friend, the Pastor," by Mrs. Joe Murphy of Spaulding; solo, "The Holy City," by Rev. Thomas Murray, with Mae Meyers, accompanist; "The Influence of Books," by Mrs. Ed Whelan, Mrs. Verne Porter and Mrs. Stanley Absolon, of Ord; remarks by visiting clergy, Rev. Thomas Siudowski, Ord, Rev. Michael Sczesny, Sargent, and Rev. Constantine Szumski, Elyria. At the close the president, Mrs. Sylvester Furtak, announced the regional meeting of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine to be held in Lincoln April 28 and 29. An invitation also was extended to the ladies to be present at the next D. C. C. W. meeting in Ord in July. The meeting was closed by benediction of the Blessed Sacrament by Rev. Szumski, assisted by Rev. Murray and Rev. Siudowski.

Riverside club met at the home of Mrs. Eben Moss Wednesday with 15 members present and the president, Mrs. Lund, presiding. Project leaders, Mrs. Peas and Mrs. Mattley, gave the lesson on "Discipline or Guidance, the Problem of Parental Control," and it proved quite interesting. Roast turkey sandwiches and dessert were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be the local achievement meeting at the home of Mrs. Neil Woods on April 9.

Ord City Council Disposes of Many Items of Interest

take-off of the tractor. As the present cemetery mower is worn out, and since the company has offered to bring one of their Whirlwind, hand operated, motor powered mowers to Ord to demonstrate, it was decided to have them do this, with the understanding that it would be purchased if found satisfactory in every way.

In the discussion over the park and cemetery situation Mayor Cummins stated that, while he is mayor of Ord, he wants all the units of the city to cooperate whenever and wherever possible, not only to get the work done when it should be done, but also to save the city any unnecessary expense.

Paul Fafetta was present with a representative of the Hartford Insurance company, in which company the city engines have been insured in the past. A new policy was asked for known as a $100 deductible policy, in which the city carries its own loss on any amount up to one thousand dollars. This saves the city $240 per year, and it is thought well for the city to help by carrying a part of the insurance.

Plans were talked for new sewer districts for citizens not now served by sewer systems. The council and city manager are working on a plan whereby new sewer districts can be formed subject to the approval of those citizens affected, as cheap or cheaper than any now in use in the city.

The request of W. F. Williams for bus parking space in front of the new depot in the Oddfellow building on 15th street was granted by a unanimous vote. There was considerable discussion on the parking problem, one member of the council being in favor of center parking and the rest opposed. Mayor Cummins was very much opposed because of the greater danger involved, he said.

L. H. Dillon and Mark Gyger appeared before the board and stated that, because the court house rooms had become congested, they had been requested to make other arrangements for office space, and asked if the council could help them out. Because of the splendid service that the engineer's department has rendered the city, the council favored helping, and will arrange for a room in the basement of the city hall as soon as George Allen can find storage space elsewhere. For the use of this room allowance can be made on some future project.

Arrangements were made for the repair of a bad stretch of sidewalk on east M street. Since both the state and the city have laws against the selling or giving away of tobacco or cigarettes to minors, this matter was brought to the attention of the council by the mayor. No action was taken, as it is believed that none of the local licensees will intentionally break the law in this respect.

The city is going to make a personal canvass of all taxes five years due and place the properties involved in two classes: the buildings in which the owners live will be placed in class 2, and those that are rented for revenue, are vacant, and all vacant lots will be placed in class 1. Then steps will be taken to foreclose all that fall into class 1.

Basketball Season Ends for Grade Boys

The final standing is:

National	won	lost	pts
Black	13	7	650

Green	8	12	400
American	won	lost	pts
Orange	15	5	750
Black	10	10	500
Green	5	15	250

One of the outstanding games of the season was played last Wednesday in the grade school gym between the Green and Black in the National League. The Greens, trailing the league and generally considered the under-dog, showed a fighting spirit that led to a league leading Black 10 to 11. The Greens are to be commended for the true sportsmanship and courage they displayed in winning this game. All boys on the winning teams will be given ribbons.

Among those who went were Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Koupal, Frank Koupal and Mary, Mrs. Emma Hardebrook, Miss Mamie Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Cochrane, Harvey Dahlin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Noll and Mrs. Bess Petty.

Irrigation District and Burwell People Deny Lytle's Claim

December and January, agrees completely with Mr. Walford. He has seen a few fish killed by dynamite in his years of blasting ice jams, he says, but altogether they would not fill a six gallon pail. He believes that any fish killed by dynamite would have been carried down the river.

"Why do you suppose that no dead fish were found in the river in other years, since the ice has been dynamited every year in just the same way as this year?" Borden asks. According to irrigation office records, an ice jam immediately above the dam was blasted during the winter of 1939-40 and no dead fish resulted from that blast.

An investigation made by a Quiz representative in Burwell has failed to uncover a single person who agrees with the state fish and game department's contention. Burwellites are not much aroused over the matter. Most people think loss of the fish was unavoidable and due to unusual circumstances which are not likely to happen again.

Mayor H. A. Phillips, an ardent fisherman who has planted many small fish in the Catamus river and has generally taken an active interest in any plan to provide better fishing, believes that the mishap will never happen again. He believes that snow blew into the lake in the Armistice day storm last November, which formed slush ice which settled to the bottom and forced the fish nearer to the surface than they ordinarily swim. This combined with the 16-degree-below-zero weather of that storm, freezing several inches of surface ice quickly, united to smother the fish.

West of Taylor dead fish also were found in bays after the Armistice day storm and no dynamiting whatever was done there, Mayor Phillips says.

Game wardens who examined some of the fish claimed that because their air bladders were bursted they must have been killed by dynamite. Mayor Phillips says that when the game wardens came to Burwell the fish were so completely decomposed that nobody could tell the cause of death, and that the air bladders decomposed with the bodies of the fish.

Fish sink to the bottom when dynamited, it is claimed by some Burwell people, and when the dead fish were first noticed most of them were floating on top of the water, which proves that their air bladders or "floaters" could not have been bursted by dynamiting.

A. I. Cram, who visited the lake when the fish were first discovered, states that he saw many frozen in the ice, especially at the west end of the pond, and he believes the fish must have smothered.

J. C. Phillips, another Burwell outdoor sports fan, declares that the game wardens "must be crazy." In a deeper pond near the one in which the dead fish were found the fish are alive, he says.

Art Borden thinks that the loss of fish might have been prevented if the sediment from the river had not been allowed to pile up in the lake and dam off ponds. However, Mr. Walford says that the bayou in which the dead fish were found had an opening to the river all winter.

No dynamiting was done by the county or state in Lake Burwell this winter and therefore the only dynamite blasts that could have killed the fish, as Secretary Lytle contends, were the dynamite blasts fired in late December and early January by Mr. Borden. The fact that these were fired a half mile from the bayou and that no open water connected this point and the bayou makes it evident to people here that dynamiting could not have caused the loss of the fish.

Ord Trackmen Bow to Burwellites in Dual Meet Monday

Leach, Cetak, Dahlin Winners of First Places for Ord; Rodeo Boys Are Good.

Coach Tolly had an inkling of what was coming Monday when he confided in a friend that Ord might not win at the Burwell dual track meet. He did not tell that to his boys, however. They gave all they had, but that was not enough to stop the athletes from up the river, who knew it was their day and who were not to be denied.

Burwell excelled in having a good man or two in practically every event except the shot and high jump. They made extra inches and yards when they were needed, and they deserved to win. Jack Anderson took first in both hurdles and the broad jump and ran in the relay to become high point man. Chaffin took first in the 100 and the 220 runs and ran in the relay.

Leach brought home the most points for Ord, with firsts in the pole vault and high jump and third in the broad jump. Cetak took first in the shot and Dahlin first in the javelin.  The name Zenobia has two meanings: Arabic, "her father's ornament," and Greek, "born of Zeus." But the grandeur of her position and the glamour of her beauty still cling to her name.

Mrs. Ida Baker Dies.
 Mrs. Ida Baker, 72, widow of William Baker, died in Seattle Friday. Tentative arrangements are that the funeral will be held in the Full Gospel tabernacle Friday afternoon at 2:30, with interment in the Burwell cemetery.

She was born in Queen City, Mo., and came to Ord with her parents at the age of 9 years. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Mattley. The family later moved to Garfield county and lived on what is now the Loren Butterfield farm, two miles south of Burwell.

Following her marriage they moved to Brewster. In 1899 she and her husband moved 20 miles northwest of Burwell and took a claim on Dry Creek. They lived there about 15 years and then moved to Burwell. Mr. Baker died in 1930, and then she moved to Seattle.

Canning Factory Planned Thursday by Burwell Group

FSA Has Money Available Help Such Projects; 43 Acres Signed for Tomatoes.

Hopes for a canning factory in Burwell soared to a new high Monday when D. C. McCarthy, local FSA supervisor, received a telephone call from Lloyd C. Way of Lincoln, who is in charge of FSA loans to cooperatives in Nebraska, instructing him and the local committee to rush plans for obtaining tomato plants and seeds. Monday evening 43 farmers had agreed to plant 53 acres of tomatoes. Mr. Way will be in Burwell again April 25.

Burwell—(Special)—As the result of the meeting held in the new schoolhouse Thursday night which two hundred people attended Burwellites are hopeful of seeing a cannery built in their town before the end of the summer. Friday and Saturday farmers in the North Loup valley agreed to plant forty-three acres of tomatoes. No canvassing in the country had been done at this time and the farmers agreeing to produce for the proposed plant were the ones contracted on the streets and at the state barn Friday.

A committee composed of O. W. Johnson, D. C. McCarthy, R. H. Douglas, Roy Moninger, Cecil Butts, Charles Lenke, J. Peter Naab, O. A. Norland, and Henry McMullen are making arrangements for obtaining seeds and plants of varieties suitable to this locality.

In addressing the meeting on Thursday evening Lloyd C. Way of Lincoln, who is in charge of the cooperative enterprises in Nebraska which are financed by the Farm Security Administration, said that a cannery can be set up at Burwell if the interest of the public is strong enough. He stated that the Farm Security Administration has two million dollars available for projects in the state of Nebraska and that it was doubtful if it could all be used.

According to Mr. Way, the first requisite for obtaining a F. S. A. loan is proof that the project has a good chance to succeed. "We are interested in seeing that communities are not saddled with impractical enterprises," he declared. He also stated that a community which is granted a loan from the F. S. A. is not obligated to buy any inoperative equipment belonging to this organization even though they have several idle canneries for sale.

Mr. Way pointed out that there are two methods by which a F. S. A. loan may be obtained. There is the straight association loan by which a corporation is formed and stock is then sold and then there is the cooperative plan whereby the farmers borrow the money from the F. S. A. to buy the stock. He said that the stock could be paid for out of the earnings of the enterprise and the F. S. A. would accept the stock as security for the loans. Under the latter plan no more than five per cent of the stock can be owned by one person.

In Mr. Way's opinion it would be the first of July before such a cooperative could be formed and financed but he said that this need not hinder the farmers from planting and raising crops for canning as the plant would be ready for operation by the time the vegetables were mature.

The Farm Security Administration is financing reclamation projects on the north side of the Platte river near Henry and at Mirage Flats in Sheridan county according to Mr. Way, who declared that the F. S. A. intended to do anything which would aid a farming community.

J. O. Dutt, a specialist in the culture of vegetables from the college of agriculture of the University of Nebraska, declared that the soil in the North Loup valley is a fertile, sandy loam well

New Cookbooklet on Vegetables Is Timely for Spring

No. 11 in Series Will Make New Converts; Back Numbers of All Still Available.

Perhaps the most timely in the entire series of Cookbooklets being issued by The Quiz is the booklet on "Fresh Vegetables" which is released this week. The stores are featuring fresh southern-grown vegetables now at lower prices and home-grown vegetables soon will be available, so a recipe booklet that gives new methods of preparing every garden vegetable should prove invaluable to housewives.

The same skill in illustration and in printing that has featured the 10 Cookbooklets hitherto released is apparent in No. 11.

And it is not only a recipe book but also tells how to select vegetables for variety and condition, how to keep them, how to retain their valuable vitamin and mineral content in cooking and the importance of fresh vegetables in the daily diet.

There are 250 new ideas for vegetables in this booklet, which goes on sale today at the Quiz office, at the Ord City Bakery, at Vodelmal's Pharmacy in North Loup, at the Ramsey Drug Store in Arcadia and by Mrs. Virginia Anderson at Burwell.

Method of securing No. 11 is the same as for previous ones. Only ten cents is the cost, unless you order by mail which you may do by adding 5c to cover packing and mailing. And you need a coupon clipped from page 2 of any issue of the Quiz.

The booklet previously released may still be secured by those housewives who have put off starting collection of these Culinary Art Institute recipes. How long the supply of early numbers will last is uncertain, as a few are running low. If you want the books it is not a good idea to put it off any longer.

No Expansion in Wheat Production, Urges C. E. Veleba

America Has 2-Year Supply in Storage Now, Canada Too Has Surplus, He Says.

The wheat situation and the need for a wheat marketing quota referendum on May 31, are not affected by the recently announced expansion of the ever-normal granary to provide certain needed food products, it was pointed out Monday at a Triple A meeting held in the Legion hall by Charles E. Veleba, chairman of the Valley county AAA committee.

He explained that in contrast to the need for more pork, dairy and poultry products, the nation and the world have more wheat than is needed. As a result United States wheat farmers still need measures which maintain income, protect soil resources and safeguard adequate reserves.

"The plan to make more pork, poultry and dairy foods available by using more of the feeds we have stored in the ever-normal granary and the plan to stabilize the wheat market with quotas simply demonstrate the ability of farmers to meet any problem with AAA, whether it is one of increasing supplies or handling surpluses," Mr. Veleba declared.

With a record carryover of 350 million bushels of wheat and a large crop soon ready for harvest, the AAA chairman said this country has a billion and a quarter bushels of wheat in sight for the coming year. This is enough wheat, he said, to take care of United States needs for nearly two years. He pointed to a similar world wheat picture. There is a market for only one bushel out of every three for sale. Canada alone has enough wheat over and above her own needs to furnish Great Britain a two-year supply.

Here in the United States, Mr. Veleba continued, wheat farmers took steps a year ago to insure wheat for defense purposes by an ample domestic supply of maintaining an acreage allotment higher than the market outlook appeared to justify.

"We are able to do this," he explained, "because we had income protection through storage loans and acreage allotments and could call upon marketing quotas if necessary to handle the bigger supplies in an orderly manner."

Other subjects were discussed at the AAA meeting Monday, which was attended by all township committeemen.

Eggs Scrambled as Truck Upsets

Eggs scrambled with cream are a tasty mess in a skillet but when they are scrambled in the back end of a truck the mess isn't so pleasant. That's what happened Sunday morning when a Romanus Transfer truck enroute from Loup City to Ord overturned on a hill. Twenty-one cans of cream and 20 cases of eggs were in the truck and naturally the loss was considerable.

Delbert Benson was driver of the truck and Roy Clement was a passenger in it. Slippery roads and the high wind were blamed by young Benson for the mishap. Clement jumped to safety when he saw that the truck would overturn. Neither young man was hurt.

The eggs and cream had been bought from Pete Kowalski by Frank Piskorski, of Ord. Salvage operations were in progress at the Ord Cold Storage plant Monday, as unbroken eggs were sorted out and placed in new cases. Insurance carried by the Romanus Transfer will pay for the loss.

Ralph Hatfield's Father Dies at Gillette, Wyo.

Sunday Ralph Hatfield received a telegram stating that his father, H. L. Hatfield, had passed away at his home in Gillette, Wyo., that morning. His death was not unexpected, as he has been in poor health for several months. He was 73 years of age. The funeral will be held at Gillette.

Mr. Hatfield leaves his widow and eight children in all, those known here being Ralph of Ord and Mrs. Carol Hoppes of Burwell. They will not be able to attend the funeral. Ralph and his family visited his parents in August, 1939, at the time of their golden wedding anniversary.

Big Demand for Baby Chicks

Bill Goff said the other day that, in addition to keeping their incubators going the limit, they had been shipping in from 2000 to 3000 baby chicks every week, and still had all they could do to supply the demand. Monday at Rutar's Hatchery Mr. and Mrs. Rutar were both so busy filling orders for baby chicks that they did not have time to talk to the reporter. Yes, it certainly looks like this will be a chicken year.

Ord Ag Boys Ahead in North Platte Contests

The Ord Ag boys covered themselves with glory at North Platte when they won five team firsts, two cups and 24 ribbons in the state contest at North Platte to top the contest. There were 34 schools in this contest, held at the Experiment Substation, April 10 and 11.

The Ord boys won first and the cup in the judging of dairy cattle with a team score of 1,430 points, followed by Chappell with 1,272 points. Leonard Kokes placed second individually, and Junior Dodge placed third. Edward Rousek was the other member of the team. The boys judged four classes of Holstein cows and gave two sets of oral reasons.

EDWARD ROUSEK.

In the crops judging contest Ord won first and the cup with a team score of 4,240 points, followed by Stratton with 4,190 points. Eldon Smolik was high in the contest with 1,515 points out of a possible 1,600. Don Guggenmos placed fourth and Orel Koelling was the other member.

In the livestock judging the Ord boys were beaten by Alliance by four points. Ord won first as a team in horses and hogs. Leonard Kokes placed ninth in all classes, first in horses, and second in hogs. The other team members were Edward Rousek and Lloyd Geweke.

Eldon Lange placed first in crops and soils management. The Ord team placed third. Don Guggenmos was the other team member. In poultry judging Ord placed second. Team members were Lloyd Geweke, George Krajnik and Eldon Lange.

Orel Koelling won first on white eggs and second on brown eggs, and Eldon Lange third on white eggs and fifth on brown eggs at the egg show. In dairy products Eldon Lange placed first in butter judging and Orel Koelling second. The Ord team placed first in butter judging. The other team member was Eldon Smolik.

Funeral Home to Be Opened in Ord

LEONARD KOKES.

When Joe L. Dworak was in Ord the latter part of the week he closed a deal with Ed Zikmund whereby the latter becomes owner of the fine Dworak residence property west of the high school, the former Charles Masin residence. The price is announced at $3250.

The building will be completely remodeled for a funeral home, and Mr. Zikmund's son-in-law, George Hastings, jr., will be in active charge. The actual transfer of the property is to take place May 1, and the Wait Donath family now living there will have until June 1 to find a new location, it is understood.

Mr. Hastings is the son of A. H. Hastings, of Arcadia, and has been associated in the furniture and undertaking business there with his father for some years. He formerly conducted a mortuary at Comstock and is thoroughly experienced in this profession.

Infantile Paralysis Chapter Founded Here

Friday afternoon at the American Legion hall the Valley County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis was founded. Charles Veleba introduced the organizer, Dewey Nemetz of Lincoln, and he gave a history of the infantile paralysis movement from the time of its inception in 1933.

He stated that while little is known about the disease, it is known to be on the increase. He said it was more correctly called poliomyelitis, since paralysis did not always occur to persons affected. He stated that the organization was national, non-political, non-profit and well worthy of the support of everyone.

Heart Disease Is Greatest Killer

Heart disease was listed as the common cause of death in the United States by Mrs. C. J. Miller in an excellent paper on modern medicine delivered at the meeting of the Ord Women's club held Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. John Round.

Next in order, said Mrs. Miller, are cancer, kidney trouble, accidents, pneumonia, cerebral hemorrhage and tuberculosis.

As recent developments in medicine she mentioned Vitamin K, used to hasten coagulation of the blood in accidents or operations, which was discovered in Denmark. The University of Nebraska college of pharmacy, in cooperation with the Squibb company, is doing excellent work in the study of curare, the deadly South American poison now used as a treatment for dementia praecox, she said.

Next meeting of the Women's club will be with Mrs. John P. Misko and modern music will be the subject for discussion.

Birkes Trio Back from Omaha, Then Taken to Hastings

Murder Trial Starts Here Next Week, May Turn Out to Be "Battle of Alienists."

John, Willard and Richard Birkes, accused of murdering Sheriff George Brock of Loup county and scheduled to go on trial here next Monday, April 21, were taken to Hastings Sunday by Sheriff George Round, Deputy Sheriff F. J. Cohen and Chief of Police L. H. Covert.

At Hastings they were taken to the receiving room of the state hospital for the insane at Ingleside, where it is understood they are being examined this week by state alienists.

A court order issued by District Judge E. G. Kroger upon petition of Thomas W. Lanigan, chief defense counsel, resulted in their removal to Hastings. The court order requires their return to Ord Sunday.

Last Saturday the trio were brought to Ord from Omaha where they were held in Douglas county jail for examination by alienists employed by the prosecution.

The trial here thus may develop into a "battle of alienists" with all three filing insanity pleas.

Art's Sinclair Station Now Run by Art Daily

By virtue of a deal made this week, Art Daily of Scotia becomes the proprietor of Art's Sinclair Station, formerly run by Art Larsen, and located at 104 15th street. Because the name is the same, Mr. Daily will continue to use the same name as before. He has his opening announcement ad in the Quiz this week.

Citizens Glad To Help

The soliciting committee for the new grandstand at the baseball grounds at the athletic field started yesterday morning to contact the business men and obtain contributions. They talked with nine men and each donated $5, making $45, and were well received everywhere. This indicates that the people of Ord are in favor of having baseball games here, and that they want a place where they may watch the games in comfort.

Hi-Y Banquet Held at High School Monday Eve

The annual Hi-Y banquet was held in the auditorium of the high school Monday evening, with about fifty members and their guests present. The meal was served by Catholic Ladies Circle No. 2. The toastmaster was David Milliken, president of the organization.

Responding with short toasts were Bob Klima, Lyle Norman and Gould Flagg. The speaker of the evening was Hal Cooley, of Arcadia. The other officers of Hi-Y are Clarence Romans, vice-president, and Orville Stoddard, secretary. The meeting was followed by a dance, with the music furnished by the high school orchestra.

Annual Wranglers Track Meet Copped by Burwell Team

Longhorns Score 41 Points and Ravenna 2nd, Ord 4th; 20 Schools Entered Teams.

Burwell literally ran away with the championship trophy at the Wranglers track meet held in Burwell Tuesday afternoon. The Longhorns amassed a total of 41 points, all won on the track with the exception of the two which Fransen contributed when he placed fourth in the discus throw. With this exception Burwell failed to place in any of the field events.

Ravenna with 35 2-3 points was an uncomfortably close second. Mason of Sargent edged out Newbury of Taylor for the individual trophy by a half point margin. Mason failed to win at first in any of the six events in which he placed, but never-the-less gathered a total of 14 1-2 points.

Burwell and Ravenna ran the 880 yard relay in the same time, one minute, 40.9 seconds. They ran in separate heats much to the later regret of the onlookers. The trophy was awarded to Ravenna.

Ord did well in the field events, winning two firsts and a second but registered weakly in the track events, taking only two thirds and a fourth. Christensen gave a spectacular demonstration of the high jump and would no doubt have bettered his record if the weather had been warmer. Dahlin badly outdistanced the other javelin throwers.

Chaffin and Anderson, Burwell high point men covered themselves with glory, winning first in both the events in which they competed. Anderson takes the hurdles in excellent form and Burwellites are anxious to see what he will do at the state meet where he won a first last year. Both he and Chaffin were Longhorn sprinter members of Burwell's relay team, the other members being Frank Havica and Chester Alder.

Taylor had a two man team, Newbury and Harvey, which made an excellent showing. Taylor gathered up 21 2-3 points all of which were won by these two men. Ray of Burwell furnished the crowd with a thrill in the mile race. He let the others set the pace and lagged behind only to speed up in the last lap and win the race.

The meet was one of largest ones to be held in the Loup Valley in recent years. Fourteen schools were represented ranging from Springview which is only a few miles from the South Dakota line to Hebron close to the Kansas border. Clyde Igenfritz, storekeeper of the Wranglers' club, directed the event. Every contestant winning first, second, third or fourth place in any event is eligible to compete in the state meet which will be held in Lincoln. A summary of the results follows:

Total points won by each school: Burwell 41; Ravenna 35 2-3; Sargent 24 1-2; Ord 23 2-3; Taylor 21 2-3; St. Paul 12; Ansley 9 2-3; Atkinson 8 1-2; Scotia 7 2-3; Hebron 7 1-3; Springview 6; Ericson

LABOR ORGANIZERS.

We have no quarrel with a man simple because he carries a foreign name. In the final analysis, we are all naturalized citizens or the children of naturalized citizens, and we are in no way responsible for the class of people from which we sprung.

Everywhere we see outstanding Americans, and many of them with almost unpronounceable names. They came here from all corners of the earth, and it is the mixing of these elements in the great melting pot of liberty that makes America the greatest nation on the earth today.

It is this small number that requires watching. Like the one rotten apple, if given time they will rot the whole structure of our national life. They did not come here to be one of us, but to make one with them in some crackpot plan of un-Americanism, socialism, communism, Nazism, or Fascism.

Strikingly enough, the foreign names connecting back to the countries with totalitarian forms of government are more noticeable in labor organizations, and particularly in the CIO. Even this does not mean that the vast majority are disloyal to the United States government.

In a recent newspaper article appeared the names and pictures of four CIO organizers who were employees in the Ford Motor company's plant, and who as such were doing all in their power to make it tough for the Ford enterprises, already loaded down with huge government orders in the rearmament program.

Their names were: Frank Paletta, Joe Ritviy, John Peltz, Frank Tishler. Paletta is undoubtedly of Italian origin; Ritviy is equally likely to be Russian; both Peltz and Tishler appear to be of Teutonic origin.

The fact that an employer uses non-union men, or that he uses men from some other labor organization is no legitimate excuse for a strike. This is a free country (we hope) and it is every man's privilege to say what union he will belong to.

We have no right to condemn any true American, regardless of the name he bears, so long as he is here to uphold and defend the principles of Americanism. But we have a right to condemn a Bridges, a Paletta, a Ritviy, or any other man who takes advantage of our American freedom of speech to tear down the principles for which our forefathers died.

BUY WILDLIFE STAMPS.

We are right in the midst of National Wildlife Week, the dates of which are April 14 to 19, inclusive. The outstanding reaction of this week is the sale of Wildlife stamps.

This year, more than ever before, we should do all we can to help out the cause of Wildlife in Nebraska. With the progress of the war in Europe countless thousands of animals, birds and even fish are innocent victims of the most terrible blitz in history.

One government project in particular, the shelterbelt, is doing much for small animals and birds by providing adequate shelter for them and furnishing the birds a good place to build their nests.

This added protection is also a life saver for our state bird, the most popular bird in the west today, the western meadowlark. The years of drought have taken their toll, and today the number of these birds in Nebraska is far below normal.

With the draining, breaking up and pasturing of much former swamp land a number of other birds, such as the bobolink and the redwing blackbird, have lost their natural homes. The return of wet weather should do much for them, but the fencing off of small areas of lowlying and comparatively worthless land will give them a new home and a new lease on life.

A good way to increase your personal interest in the birds of our community is to know your birds. There are few, if any, birds in Nebraska who do much harm, and in most cases the good they do offsets the damage.

LET US CLEAN UP. For several years there has been little, if any, incentive to make an effort to improve our yards and homes. Since the drought years, every effort at improving the yard or garden has met with failure.

Many have tried to carry on in the face of great discouragement, and their zeal should be complimented. One by one they have fallen by the wayside, and last year only a very few of the hardiest tried to do anything to improve the beauty of the town.

All bare spots on the lawns should be spaded now, and sowed to grass at the most favorable time. With one good year, every lawn in Ord should look as it did in the days before the drought.

There never has been a time in history when it was easier or cheaper to obtain shrubbery of all kinds to ornament the yard. Bulbs are cheap also. A bed of straw berries would be well worth the trouble. Roses may not have an intrinsic value, but they are worth the trouble for table bouquets.

It is not too soon to think about a garden. Perhaps you have not tried to have a garden for several years, but there is a special reason for having a garden this year. It may be that what we can raise in the gardens of America this year will help materially to make up the deficit caused by sending foodstuffs to Europe.

Do not forget what happened in the World War, how we raised crops on all the vacant lots in Ord and still could have used a lot more than we had. Whether we like it or not, we are dangerously near war today, and we should use good judgment and act accordingly.

Cashes Old Receipts. Thirty-three years ago H. D. Leggett was travelling for a Grand Island wholesale house in the territory from Ravenna to Ardmore, S. D., and often had occasion to travel on the freight.

In rummaging through his old papers recently Mr. Leggett came across three of those old receipts. When the Burlington agent, J. C. Van House, came into the office, he showed them to him and asked if they were good. The agent took them and handed Mr. Leggett the money. Van House says they were the first duplex receipts he had seen in 21 years, but that they are always good for the cash value.

Traffic Fatalities Less. Traffic fatalities, according to Capt. R. T. Schrein of the highway patrol, were less in Nebraska in March than for a long time. Seven were killed during the month as compared with previous lows of nine for each of the months, February and April of 1939.

These Boys "Played Such Beautiful Music" 50 Years Ago

My Own Column

People get mighty impatient at the delays in war material production caused by the many strikes. It seems unreasonable that the administration should allow these strikes to continue week after week at the same time draft the young men of the nation into the army and pay them a little over twenty dollars a month when the strikers, many of them of military age, draw a couple of hundred dollars a month and strike for higher wages.

There are probably a hundred good breakfast dishes. I know a guy who says a cup of coffee and a roll makes a perfect breakfast. I think he is cuckoo. My idea of a perfect breakfast is a stack of white flour and cornmeal pancakes, a generous helping of fresh home-made pork sausage with some of the sausage gravy on the cakes, topped with a nice dash of Michigan maple syrup and a couple of cups of strong, black coffee.

There are supposed to be lots of people who want to work but if you believe that is true, just start out and try to find some of them. One young man, still in high school, solicited a job from me. I told another party who wanted such help. She contacted him and he definitely promised to be on the job at a certain time. Two or three times he made that promise and broke the promise as many times.

Someone, perhaps it was George Gowen, was telling how to make the dough for strawberry shortcake. I agree that the genuine is never made from sponge cake dough. He said to use pie dough but that is wrong too. There is just one right kind of strawberry shortcake dough and this is biscuit dough. Make it three layers high instead of two; heap all the berries each section will hold before putting on the next, then on top put on as many as will stay on; it don't do any harm if some roll off, cut the finished cake in squares about five inches each way, then put a big vegetable dish full of slightly mashed berries on the table alongside the sugar bowl and cream pitcher, just in case someone likes more berries.

While no doubt, a great majority of the American people are sympathizing with the British in their war efforts, they would have been sitting much nicer if they had been honest with us in the payment of their war debts. Most people don't expect them to pay for the help they are getting now but we did expect them to pay before.

I wish someone would bring me a pail of horseradish roots, nice ones to grate. I have been buying the bottled product all winter, but there is nothing like the real article in the spring, the kind that you have to go out of doors to grate and even then you cry like you had just lost your best friend before the job is finished. It makes the blood jump to the job of purifying the system and sometimes it almost makes the hair on your head curl. It is so strong, a little goes a long way.

Some farmers are getting a bit impatient because their barley has not been put in the ground yet, but as one farmer said the other day,

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Written by GEORGE GOWEN

Sure Cure. I met Claud Thomas on the street the other day and although we live only a short distance apart we had to talk a while. I noticed as we gassed he played with a small object in his hand that had been extracted from his pocket.

Cliff Hawkes was recently elected to the school board and the township board (both jobs are very profitable) and he seems to be undefeatable. Bad Knapp surely runs a close second to the doctor as to the number of boards he belongs to, being a member of the co-operative bank board, the Building and Loan, the Cheese factory, the school board and many others.

I am not sure whether I have mentioned it before or not, but in case I haven't, the roads over my way, in Greeley county are not good. In fact the ditches at the sides of the roads are filled to heaping and the water runs down the center, which makes traveling rather slow and precarious.

It was not long until someone asked Mrs. Christensen how the roads were over that way. She really need not have been asked for everyone knows they are like a haunt in the night, but I think people just like to hear us Greeley county people rave and tear our hair over the thoughts of them.

I guess we could have talked such important things for another hour but it came a time I had to get going. I started off and Claud called. "Say, give me back that horse chestnut. I want to try carrying it for a while." Reluctantly I dug down in my pocket and sorted it out from some other junk and handed it over.

Among a few of the denizens of the village of North Loup it seems like there is a contest as to who can hold the most offices, and to date it is the general opinion that Dr. Hemphill is the first prizor. Bud Knapp and Cliff Hawkes are surely runners-up and Art Hutchesin, before his recent death, had them all beat for popularity if getting elected to local offices is any test.

Dr. now is a director of the co-operative bank, the North Loup Building and Loan, the local telephone company, the co-operative cheese factory, was recently elected to the town board and was recently retired from the township board, and this defeat not being a popularity test so it is said, but a little slick politics at the caucus. He seems to win at what ever election he runs.

Ed. now is a director of the co-operative bank, the North Loup Building and Loan, the local telephone company, the co-operative cheese factory, was recently elected to the town board and was recently retired from the township board, and this defeat not being a popularity test so it is said, but a little slick politics at the caucus. He seems to win at what ever election he runs.

Sure Cure Big Source of Income Road Work

Cliff Hawkes was recently elected to the school board and the township board (both jobs are very profitable) and he seems to be undefeatable. Bad Knapp surely runs a close second to the doctor as to the number of boards he belongs to, being a member of the co-operative bank board, the Building and Loan, the Cheese factory, the school board and many others.

Adding the income from all these boards to what they already make, these men should do pretty well and pay a big income tax.

At the guest day club event my wife and Laura Christensen attended and Myra Thorngate Barber took a guest from Scotia, who for some reason, was not introduced to Mrs. Christensen, in spite of the fact they sat at the same table to eat their lunch.

It was not long until someone asked Mrs. Christensen how the roads were over that way. She really need not have been asked for everyone knows they are like a haunt in the night, but I think people just like to hear us Greeley county people rave and tear our hair over the thoughts of them.

Well, so the story goes, Mrs. Christensen answered and really did justice to the occasion. Of course Mrs. C. is a perfect lady and any emphasis she would give her conversation would be more noticeable than even a tirade some might say (I for example). It all went well, the subject finally changing and after the affair was over Mrs. C. found out the strange lady from Scotia was Mrs. Jake Everetts, wife of the county commissioner.

Mrs. C. and my wife talked it over afterwards, and they wondered what they would have said had they known before hand who the strange lady was. Anyway they agreed she said nothing but the truth.

Bud Larsen, Roger Miller, Babbie Marks and Carlyle Williams went to Elyria on the morning bus Friday. From there they went first to the Elyria bridge and then followed the river down for some distance. Bobby then cut over to the road and by walking and catching three rides got home at 12:30. The other boys followed the river down and got home considerably later. They all reported a splendid time.

Edward H. Taylor Dies. Edward Henry Taylor, son of Edward Taylor, sr., who gave his name to the village of Taylor, was buried at Taylor Thursday. He was well acquainted with the characters in Mar Sandoz's "Old Jules" and was once mangled when he fell beneath the hoofs of a herd of wild horses.

Victim of Auto Accident. Mrs. Lew Bobbitts, wife of the Burlington station agent at Sargent was fatally injured in an auto accident 4 miles south of Sargent Wednesday. She and Mrs. H. C. Cochran, also of Sargent were returning from a county women's club convention at Broken Bow. A spike in a rear tire caused the accident.

A THOUGHT FOR EASTER John L. Ward Men cry for peace; the human soul Decries the need of war and plunder; We fear the sound of war drums' roll, The bullets' whine, the cannons' thunder. Yet men are much the same as when The Saviour walked the earthy way; They crucified the Master then; We crucify Him still today. We freemen, born of Freedom's sod, Should fear no foe from o'er the sea; But we must first get right with God, And he will help us keep it free.

Something Different

Really different was the plight of the lady who journeyed away from home with two or three friends. In the city, shopping and going to convention, the women got very tired.

At that moment they spied some bath salts for sale of the new type called "bubble bath." So they purchased some and planned greatly on the refreshment they would take from the several "bubble baths."

The first lady approached her bath with the bubble salts and tipped them into her hot tub. To her dismay the entire crop of bubble bath fell in! They were sorry the bath salts were gone but everyone laughed.

But it wasn't quite so funny when the bubbles came back up the overflow tub pipe. Or up the lavatory. Or over the tub top and over the floor. Or when the hotel management asked an explanation!

A young Ord family was expecting an addition. The parents permitted this one youngster to help with the fun of planning for the new baby.

Of course there were many remarks about what was "good for the baby," since these parents gave a fairly complete explanation to the older child.

And now we hear that, since some seventy per cent of the United States talks our version of English, the midwestern accent is official, no less an authority than the University of Wisconsin issuing the edict. And in case you don't know it, this language department is tops of them all.

W. A. Anderson Now 87. In County Since 1879

W. A. Anderson, who first came to Valley county in 1879 as a young man of 25, observed his 87th birthday at his home in Ord Monday. He may not be as young or as active as he once was, but he is still able to take care of his garden after a residence here of 62 years. Fifty-seven of these years were spent on his place near the high school.

Mr. Anderson lived there eight years before the first high school building was put up on these lots. He was living there when the old building was torn down to make room for the new structure. It is interesting to note that he has always been interested in education, and taught a number of terms of school in various schools over the county.

He still keeps up with the times by much reading, and is better informed on current events than many a man half his age. He picks his reading material carefully, for he says that his time is limited and he cannot afford to waste it.

More than forty years ago Mr. Anderson was experimenting with the raising of sugar beets. He did well with them in a small way, and proved that they were a practical crop for the North Loup valley. He also was strong for irrigation. While neither irrigation or beet raising came in those days, he lived to see them both come to pass here.

Also more than forty years ago W. A. Anderson had the first residence phone in Ord installed in his home. The number was 76, and the cost per month was one dollar. He recalls that Frank Lloyd was in the lumber yard at that time, and the first conversation he carried on was with Mr. Lloyd. Each whispered to the other, to prove that the telephone system was efficient.

Mr. Anderson has had the telephone changed once in that 40 year period, but he has never been without the phone, and his number is still just what it was in the beginning, 76. The price per month has increased to a dollar and a half, and he says that if the price is raised higher than that, he will have to get along without a telephone.

In speaking of his pioneer experiences when he was getting started on his claim in Noble township, Mr. Anderson recalls living for a time in a covered wagon while he was building his sod house. A cold spring rain came up, and for three days he had to sit and shiver in the wagon with no chance of other protection. It was almost impossible to build a fire because all the fuel was wet.

Dove free from China The dove tree was discovered in China in 1869 and introduced into England in 1902. It was brought to the United States in 1904 to the Arnold Arboretum. It is hardy as far north as Massachusetts. The flowers are in dense heads surrounded by very large cream white bracts arranged in such a way as to resemble a white dove.

On Friday, April 4th, at three o'clock, Miss Ruth Willing Jameson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Jameson of Weeping Water became the bride of Joseph D. Weddel, of Omaha, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Weddel of Arcadia. The double ring ceremony took place at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. John Domingo, also of Weeping Water, and was performed by Reverend John Kemp, pastor of the Congregational church of Weeping Water in a setting of ferns and gladioli and a seven branch candelabra. Ronnie Mae Weddel, of Lincoln a cousin of the groom, lighted the candles. The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely afternoon dress of dusty rose in redingote style with navy accessories and a shoulder corsage of orchids. The maid of honor Miss Patricia Schobel of Lincoln, wore a navy blue redingote with a corsage of gardenias. John Tomek of Lincoln acted as the groom's best man and Darrel Randall, also of Lincoln, as usher. A reception was held following the ceremony. Mrs. Weddel graduated from the Arcadia High school in 1937 and is now a junior at the University of Nebraska. Mr. Weddel graduated at Arcadia in 1936 after which he attended the University of Nebraska. He is now employed by Dun and Bradstreet in Omaha.

Wareham Seeks Share of Loup River Water

Charles R. Wareham, formerly auditor of the North Loup Irrigation District at Ord, now general manager of the Sargent Irrigation district, was brought into the limelight last week in his efforts to obtain the allocation of a small share of the Middle Loup river waters for his district.

In a letter written recently Mr. Wareham made the following statement: "The Sargent district believes that 95-5 per cent is not equitable distribution of a river's water as between power production and food production, and for that reason it sees no justification for the Loup district's desire to utilize the surface waters of all central Nebraska."

Attorney Kramer, speaking for the Loup district, stated that it was on the strength of diverting 3,500 feet of water from the Loup river that the Columbus project obtained $13,000,000 from PWA, and the directors obligated themselves to pay the project's operating costs and repay the interest and principal.

Wareham stated that his district wants only 2 per cent of the river's annual flow, and in conclusion he said to Kramer: "It might be advisable to study the matter a little and at least give us a proper hearing. It might be something could be worked out satisfactory to everyone concerned, and not hurt anyone, either."

Tolly's Track Hopefuls Show Promise in Early Spring Work-outs

The spring of 1941 has not been exactly suitable for track stars to round into shape quickly, as only a few rainless days have permitted work-outs and to date there has been little warm weather to take kinks out of winter-wearied legs and bodies. Coach Kosco Tolly and his assistants have some fine material, and some of the performers are shown here.

At top is Leach, who brought home the bacon for Ord in a recent dual meet against Burwell, with a vault of 10 feet 2 1/2 inches. He is new at the game but is improving rapidly.

In the center photo are four youthful sprinters, Stewart, Rousek, Hurlbert and Ferris. They will represent the Chautauqueers in the 100, 220, 440 and 880 yard races but have seen little action yet.

Below are two of Tolly's scanty crop of track veterans. At left is George Cetak, weight man who tosses the iron ball around 40 feet and is improving. He capped his event at the Burwell meet. Harold Christensen competes in discus and javelin events and his performances will win points in most meets.

NORTH LOUP

WRITTEN BY MRS. ETHEL HAMER

The Nolo and Fortnightly clubs entertained at their annual guest day Wednesday afternoon in the parlors of the Methodist church. About eighty ladies were present and listened with interest to an address by Dr. R. H. Loder of the Nebraska Health Department. Dr. Loder spoke on the work of his department over the state and used slides to illustrate. In the past ten years much progress has been made in improving health conditions but according to his statistics Nebraska is 46th in the union in progress. After Dr. Loder's talk, the high school boys' quartet sang, "Come One, Come All," and Grace Manchester gave her reading, the "Closing Day Program." Roll call for the club members was proverbs, current events and quotations on friendship. A two course lunch carried out in the Easter motif was served at small tables. An interesting feature of this was calla lilies made from shaped jelly roll and ice cream. Favors were chocolate chickens in nests. (Continued from page 1) adapted for production of vegetables. He said that this section of the state has a growing season of approximately 150 days which is long enough for all vegetables to mature. He pointed out that irrigation insured a plentiful supply of water.

As unfavorable factors in the production of vegetables in the North Loup valley he mentioned hail storms and hot winds. He stated that the latter hazard could be lessened or overcome by the planting of windbreaks.

Mr. Dutt pointed out that the experimental work which the college of agriculture has done in the production of vegetables has been done at Lincoln, North Platte, Scottsbluff and Alliance but results obtained from these experimental stations should be applicable to the North Loup valley.

A light or medium loam is best suited to the production of tomatoes, according to him. He said that it was important not to allow the soil to become waterlogged as the tomato plant needs air at its roots. Mr. Dutt pointed out that Dr. Werner, head of the department of horticulture of the college of agriculture had carried out numerous experiments testing out over one hundred different varieties of tomatoes to find the kinds best suited for Nebraska. Last year he distributed seeds and plants of the varieties which he believed to be the best to three hundred Nebraska people asking them to report their results to him.

These people reported that they preferred the varieties All Red, Firesteel, Bison, Ruby and Victor. For canning purposes Mr. Dutt recommended the planting of Firesteel, Victor, or Bounty, a new variety recently introduced by the North Dakota college of agriculture. Mr. Dutt said that many of the older varieties of tomatoes had proved to be unsatisfactory in that they failed to set on fruit in hot weather. He declared that these newer varieties set on fruit regardless of the heat. He also said that they were of determinate vine growth explaining that when the vines reached a certain size they ceased to grow and the plant then devoted all its energy to the production of fruit. In contrast the older varieties continued to grow until they are killed by frost.

Ten to fifteen tons of tomatoes per acre can be produced in the North Loup valley in the opinion of Mr. Dutt. He said that he would ordinarily recommend the setting out of plants which had been locally grown in a hot bed as they are more likely to be free of diseases. He stated that there is a danger of introducing diseases when southern plants are used. Sometimes, he said, farmers are successful in planting the seeds directly into the fields. If such a practice is followed he advised immediate planting. He recommended that the farmers plow a furrow in the field and plant the seeds on the south side of the furrow which would afford some protection from the weather. Don't plant the seeds in the bottom of the furrow," he warned, "as that would be putting them right into a frost trap." If plants are used, Mr. Dutt, recommended that they be set out about May 10.

Other vegetables which could profitably be grown for canning in the North Loup valley according to Mr. Dutt include asparagus, peas and sweet corn. He pointed out that the main drawback to growing asparagus is that it takes about three years before a farmer will receive any income from the land. After that the crop never has to be reseeded, however, and produced year after year. He said that experiments have shown that the soil in the North Loup valley is well adapted to asparagus and that the crop made an excellent product when canned.

Pears, he advised, should be planted early, before the first of April or even earlier in order to escape the hot weather. He recommended that sweet corn for canning be planted at different times so that the entire crop would not need to be processed at the same time. Alternating a number of rows of sweet corn with tomatoes would in his opinion furnish protection from the hot winds.

Mr. Dutt frowned upon the production of spinach in this locality because of the soil. He said that it would be an almost impossible task to wash the sand out of the spinach before it was canned. In discussing plant diseases Dr. J. E. Livingston from the college of agriculture declared that most diseases could be avoided by following good farming practices. "Don't plant tomatoes on the same ground two years in succession," he warned. He advised the farmers to buy the best seed available from a dependable source. Bacterial spot rot, and fusarium wilt are the most common diseases in the production of vegetables he said.

H. C. James, of Arcadia, manager of the Loup Valley Irrigation District, who was present, declared that he and the management of the irrigation district would do all in their power to assist the farmers in growing vegetables for the cannery. Val Kuska, colonization agent for the Burlington railroad, urged the farmers to supply the market with quality goods if they organized a cannery. "Don't expect to sell something you wouldn't buy yourself," he continued. Mr. Kuska related that the public will pay an exorbitant price for an article having quality. He related how the Astoria-Waldorf hotel in New York at one time paid a Nebraska Sandhill farmer five cents a piece for potatoes which he raised. The farmer gradually became careless and did not maintain the quality of his potatoes and consequently he lost his market which he now would give almost anything in order to regain. He advised the farmers to keep up quality year after year and after a consumer demand for their products has been built up to be sure to supply it every year. He said that the reason many communities failed to progress was that they were inhabited by too many donkeys, goats, bumble bees and skunks and that community enterprises could not be made to succeed if run by a kicker, a butler, a stinger and a stinker.

Mr. Kuska urged the farmers to practice spring and fall irrigation and not wait until the hot dry summer days to water their crops. Charles Lenker, who at one time operated a cannery southwest of Burwell, when introduced to the crowd declared that his experiences led him to believe that a cannery could succeed in Burwell. Marie Fagan, a Holt county rancher who has had experience in the canning business in Idaho, said that he had examined the plant at Milburn and that he believed the machinery to be excellent. Osee Johnson, boss of the Wranglers club presided at the meeting.

Tunncliff Brothers Place 1, 2, in Track

From the Kewanee (Ill.) Star-Courier, April 9, the Quiz quotes the following, which should be of interest to all Ord and Burwell sport fans:

"As far as track goes at Kewanee high school by classes this year it's pretty much of a two-class affair—the juniors and the freshmen predominating—and breaking it up further it's an amazing brother act.

"The juniors won the annual interclass meet staged Monday and Tuesday nights largely because of lanky Bob Tunncliff, a versatile young man who won no less than 7 first—in the pole vault, broad jump, 440, 100 yard dash, low hurdles, and 200—and ran on the winning relay team.

"The curious part of it, though, is that his younger brother, Ed, a freshman, placed second in every one of these events."

The Tunncliffs dominated the field as freshmen showed remarkable strength to finish a strong second far ahead of the third place seniors and the sophomores.

In a sports column under the rather interesting title of "Fandomettes" Bill Cray has this to say of the Tunncliffs: "We don't know what Ed Tunncliff said to his brother Bob at the conclusion of the Kewanee high two-day interclass track meet yesterday, but we imagine it might have been: 'You could have let me win one event, anyway!' The elder brother, however, wasn't taking any chances on the junior class losing so he poured it on to take seven firsts, letting freshman Ed trail him in each of these events.

"This unique performance, however, was overshadowed by the work of freshmen who easily surpassed the combined total of the seniors and sophomores. All this prompted Coach Helmut Brockman to optimism regarding track in the next few years."

The Roundup, a sports feature in the Chicago Daily News, also comments at length on the unique brother act of the two Tunncliffs.

then. The other three boys are out of the CCC camps, but Ed is a soldier at Ft. Lewis, Wash. —The Harry Christensen family, of Neligh, spent Easter Sunday with Ord relatives.

ELECTRIC WATER HEATING EARNS PLACE IN MILLION MODERN YANKEE HOMES

By H. L. MARTIN (Manager, the Modern Kitchen Bureau.)

Starting the day with a shave in ice-cold water is guaranteed to turn dad's language blue, as well as his face. To make mother's day miserable, there's nothing quite so effective as trying to wash grease stained dishes in lukewarm water. As for sis, when she's dressing for a party—but has to wait for hot water, pat a tank and nurse an old water heater—no wonder her evening's ruined before it's even begun!

That's why it's such a pleasant surprise when these people learn that if their home has electric light, they can also enjoy electric water heating that's just as fast, clean and cheap as electric light.

Imagine a giant thermos bottle that holds all the hot water any family would need, kept at just the right temperature, ready for instant use at any hour of the day or night—silent, clean, requiring no attention. That would certainly solve every hot water problem in every home. Yet today more than a million families enjoy exactly this kind of convenience with their electric water heaters!

There's no waiting for hot water, no tank patting, no turning the heater on and off in these homes. Just as quickly as when we flip a switch we light a room, when we turn a faucet we enjoy instant hot water, kept hot constantly without guesswork or failure. An electric thermostat turns the heat on and off, heats only the amount of water necessary to replace water used. The electric water heater is on the job all day, every day.

Since there's no flame in electric water heaters, there's no dirt, no ash carrying. That's why an electric water heater is as clean as the filaments in an electric light. That's why it saves money, too; there's no waste of heat, since the heat goes right into the water, with none lost through radiation. And cool! With all-around insulation, the electric water heater actually puts less heat into a room than an electric light bulb.

An electric water heater is so smart, so modern in appearance that it fits into any kitchen. Since it does not have to stand next to a chimney and needs no flue or unsightly connections, it can be installed in any convenient location.

Many families put their electric water heater in a closet, because of its perfect safety; or it may be placed in the basement right underneath the kitchen and bathroom, so that the water pipe will rise in a straight line and so increase heat conservation and efficiency.

It is from the standpoint of health, however, that the electric water heater makes its major water contribution to modern living. The health of the entire family is safeguarded with plenty of hot water on tap at all times.

Right now, you can buy a Clark, Westinghouse or General Electric automatic electric storage water heater for only $65.00, installed in your home. Inquire at the City of Ord Light & Water Dept., the best investment Ord ever made. It's your utility—use it!

War Over England and Scotland Described in

Many Letters Received by Miss Nina Nickells

Burwell—(Special)—Many letters of interest from war torn Britain are received regularly by Miss Nina Nickells who toured Europe in the summer of 1939 where she made several acquaintances with whom she corresponds. She also has a number of relatives in England from whom she receives letters.

Letters received from England tell of vast damage done by Nazi bombers but judging from the sentiments expressed the British spirit is far from broken. Letters from Scotland bear scant reference to war damage and life, which is entirely interrupted in England, seems to be going nearly normal in Scotland.

The following are excerpts from an English business man who lives at Hyde. Miss Nickells has relatives living in this same town who are friends of this man. The letter is dated Febr. 2.

"You certainly hustled across the pond just in time as events have turned out. You can convey this message to everyone there that 'The British Lion has never been so determined to stamp out this totalitarian form of tyranny as it is at the present time.'

"You will, no doubt, have read of our recent successes in Libya, Eritrea, Albania and other eastern areas whilst Italy is now on the verge of total defeat and his partner, Hitler, will certainly meet the same fate before next Christmas. What a change has taken place during the last six months when the whole world thought we were doomed, but they did not know the Anglo Saxon people and whatever piffle you hear about our downfall, don't you believe it, for there is only one way of saving democracy and we, with our vast resources and the assistance we are receiving from our empire and the unstinted help the states and your kind and generous president is giving to us, we are heading right for victory which will be nothing short of a miracle, considering the vast number of men and material at the command of that old devil, Hitler. Our teeth are set and our fine buildings destroyed and the loss of life will be nothing compared with the final day of reckoning, which will be a world rejoicing for the many enslaved peoples of Europe."

The next letter comes from Paisley, Scotland. It is written by a young woman with whom Mrs. Lynn Ryan has corresponded since girlhood. When Mrs. Ryan learned that Miss Nickells was going to visit the British Isles she invited her Scotch friend who informed Miss Nickells to come to Scotland and see her, which she did. Since that time Miss Nickells has corresponded with the writer. The letter is dated Febr. 12.

"I have been doing a lot of voluntary work. There has been several cases of diphtheria and the government has introduced an immunization scheme so that all school children up to sixteen years of age could be inoculated against it. It is very important disease of that sort should be kept down when we have to spend nights in crowded air raid shelters. Anyway I did clerical work connected with the scheme and had to go round the schools with the doctor and the nurse. But I took flu and they have had to fill the place. In some of the poor schools the kids are awful and I guess it was there I contracted flu. I am also a fire-watcher. Both Mums, the lady in the next flat and I are firewatchers for this building. We are to be issued steel helmets and we have had all the instructions in using the apparatus and dealing with incendiary bombs. However, I have an uncle who is director of an engineering firm and he is giving me a place there as a typist but I won't start for a while as I am quite worn out after the flu and had it not been such rotten weather I would have gone away for a vacation. The doctor said I should."

"I am not getting any new dresses this spring. I'll just get accessories. You would hardly believe how expensive things have got, and the quality is nothing like it used to be either. Coats which used to cost about six pounds ($30.00) are now about eighteen pounds ($90.00) and there isn't such a thing as a cheap little dress any more. It is the purchases tax that is doing it but of course it is a very necessary way of getting money."

"Aunt Marie is sitting 'dozing'. She is a fire watcher over at the shop on Sunday night and sitting up all night does make you drowsy when you are just back to normal when it's your turn again. Aunt Isa is lucky. Her office has such a large staff her turn comes only one night in every six weeks. But after all it is a great pleasure to do anything for King and Country in its hour of need. Lots of love, Olive."

The next letter was written by a boy 12 years old who lives near Manchester. Miss Nickells sends him American stamps for his collection and hears from him quite regularly.

"When you receive this letter it will be almost Christmas and we in this country will not have the happy times as we have had in the years that have passed, but we shall do our best to remember this very festive time, which I think is the best time in the year, for it brings the spirit of peace and good will and also reminds us of the birth of the greatest of all peacemakers, Jesus Christ Our Saviour.

"We all at home appreciate your kind thoughts realizing that in the face of difficult days of war that there is happiness and joy in knowing the value of Christian teachings."

"Yes, I have so far come through the air raids on England without mishap, although you will know of the terrible havoc in many of the cities in England. We are all confident in the final result of victory and I think that there are signs that we are making progress in this direction and trust that the day of peace is not too far distant."

"I am writing this before going to bed. You would laugh at our bedroom for it is all now changed to something on a 'warlike' idea. You see we sleep in steel shelters. I have one for myself and my father and mother have one for them. Can you picture our dining room? On each side of the room there are two steel chambers, 6 feet long, 3 feet 6 inches wide and 3 feet 6 inches high. They are shaped like a triangle with a flat top. We have a spring mattress to sleep on and when we get inside we hook on a steel door. I forgot to mention that we have electric lighting in them. The idea is in case our house gets blown up, we are some way protected from the falling bricks and debris. It is so very funny and like going back to the stone age, living in a cave."

Meaning of Name Zachary

Zachary is a short form of the Hebrew Zachariah or Zechariah but is used as an independent name. Both mean "remembered by the Lord," writes Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Little is known of Zechariah, Hebrew prophet who wrote the book of the Bible which bears his name, but he was evidently a man of great influence. St. Zacharias was pope in the eighth century. President Zachary Taylor, who died (1850) 16 months after taking office, is the most eminent bearer of the name this country has produced.

Ord Team Will Play in Sherman-Howard League

Ord baseball plans changed somewhat this week, with the receipt of a card by the manager stating that Ord is definitely a member of the old Sherman-Howard league. The present membership is Ord, Arcadia, North Loup, Boelus, Ashton and Rockville and for this reason the name, "Loup Valley League" would be much more appropriate.

Copies of the by-laws will be forwarded to Ord soon. The league is wide open, so far as players are concerned, so long as they are not professionals. The teams have until May 31 to decide upon a roster of 18 men, and this will give ample time to try out all candidates and decide which are the best to keep in the lineup.

The league opens next Sunday, April 20, with the following games scheduled: North Loup at Ord; Rockville at Boelus; Arcadia at Ashton. The game will start promptly at 2 p. m. The following are the Ord players: Don Severson, Axel Jorgensen, Ed Dugosh, Hubert Fox, Henry Misko, Dean Misko, Ernest Piskorski, Harold Christensen, Vernon Nay, Russell Jensen, Cash Pickett, Paul Hubert, Syl Furtak, Raymond Tatlow, Bill Zikmund, Allen Zikmund and Leonard Furtak.

JOHN BIRKES ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Ord's Musicians Win B. B. Contest, Then Snow-Bound

Score 16 Superiors, 1 Good and 7 Excellents to Dominate District Music Meet.

Friday and Saturday brought exciting and satisfying experiences to 125 Ord high school musicians...

Events in which Professor Henry Deines' musicians rated superior were: Girls' sextet, saxophone quartet, trumpet trio, brass sextet, madrigal singing, boys' glee club, choir, band, and the following solos: Alto saxophone—Joy Larsen; tenor saxophone—Marion Wardrop; boys' medium voice—Harvey Dahlin; boys' low voice—Alex Cochran; cornet—James Ollis; bass horn—Adolph Urbanovsky; trombone—Orville Stoddard; girls' medium voice—Patricia Frazier.

Excellent ratings given Ord were for the string quartet, boys' octet, orchestra, girls' glee club, and these solos: baritone horn—Maxine Long; flute—Mary Miller; cello—Orel Koelling. One Ord group, the clarinet quartet, was rated good.

Ord musicians made the trip to Broken Bow in two big busses and several automobiles. Soloists and members of some small groups went over Friday with the larger groups going early Saturday morning, before the snow storm started.

The busses arrived in Broken Bow as snow began to fall but one car of band members driven by Mrs. Wm. Zimmund did not leave Ord until 9 a. m. and had trouble in getting to Broken Bow, reaching there at 3 p. m.

When the blizzard increased in intensity and roads became blocked officials of the contest decided it unwise to permit any of the delegations to leave for home. As many students as possible were taken care of in hotels and private homes but most of them stayed all night in the school house. An entertainment was given for them in the evening, with dancing afterward, and sandwiches and coffee were served practically all night. Students slept on the floors of class rooms, in hallways and in the gymnasium. Broken Bow teachers and the music directors acted as chaperones.

Sunday morning the Ord group found it possible to leave for home by traveling down the pavement to Cairo, then cutting through by way of Dannebrog to No. 11 highway which they hit at Midway and thence to Ord. They reached Ord about noon. The busses went ahead and the cars followed in caravan style and all reached home safely, the students tired but thrilled over winning the contest and happy in their exciting night.

Membership of the small groups that took part in the Broken Bow contest follows:

Girls' sextet—Patricia Frazier, Norma Radloff, Angelene Koelling, Darlene Carlson, Irene Auble, Beverly Davis, Mary Miller (accompanist).

Boys' octet—Lyle Norman, Keith Kovanda, Harvey Dahlin, Gould Flagg, Dean Misko, Eldon Wachter, Warren Allen, Alex Cochran, Margaret Petska (accompanist).

Madrigal singers—Jean Carlson, Beverly Davis, Margaret Petska, Patricia Frazier, Elaine Long, Myrtle Auble, Darlene Carlson, Mary Miller, Elizabeth Kovanda, Lyle Norman, Harvey Dahlin, Eldon Wachter, Raymond Vogelzang, Alex Cochran, Dean Misko, Warren Allen.

Brass sextet—James Ollis, Bill Blaha, Maxine Long, Orville Stoddard, LaVay Umstead, Marjorie Zulkoski.

String quartet—Patricia Frazier, Angelene Koelling, Margaret Petska, Irene Auble.

Clarinet quartet—Myrtle Auble, Darlene Carlson, Vivian Wiegardt, Lydia Mathausser.

Saxophone quartet—Dean Misko, Joy Larsen, Kathryn Work, Marion Wardrop.

Trumpet trio—James Ollis, Marilyn Long, Phyllis Hill.

Scout Officials Hold Very Important Meet

At the high school last night a meeting of Boy Scout executives was held, at which initial plans for the annual Dawn-to-Dusk campaign were discussed and decided upon. The purpose of this campaign is to raise funds to maintain the Boy Scout movement and to further the expansion program which is to make scouting available to every boy in the community.

Forrest Witercraft, regional scout executive and chairman of the Fort Hartsuff district, called the meeting to order and outlined the progress made in the past year, touching also on some of the major events that will be carried out during the coming year.

Stanley Roy of Loup City, who is district financial chairman, then took charge of the meeting. He explained the system of financing the Boy Scout program, and the important steps which will be taken in promoting the community Dawn-to-Dusk campaign. This will begin the morning of May 10 with a kickoff breakfast.

John Misko, last year's chairman, was again appointed chairman for this year by the two Ord troop committees. He will select his assistants and a meeting will be called to outline the campaign program. A representative group of men attended the meeting, including the scout troop committees and scoutmasters, Rev. Clifford Snyder of Troop 194, and Ed Whelan of the Knights of Columbus troop.

Burwell 1st, Ord 2nd in Track Meet

(Special to the Quiz.) Burwell—The Longhorns continued their winning streak when they topped the Loup Valley championship at the track and field meet held in Burwell Tuesday afternoon. Burwell won both the senior and junior divisions. In the latter division Burwell has won the Loup Valley championship for the last five years.

One record was broken in the junior division when Joe Snyder ran the 80 in 2 minutes 15.5 seconds, bettering the old record of 2 minutes, 20.1 seconds which Archie Ray, also of Burwell, made in 1939.

Ord was second in both divisions. The Chantellers made a good showing in the field events but failed to win any firsts on the track with the exception of the junior relay. In the senior division Ord won first in the javelin, shot put and high jump. In the junior division they placed first in the vaulting, discus, shot put, and high jump. Christensen made the best showing contributing 13 points. Burwell's Jack Anderson was the high point man of the meet winning fifteen points. Mason of Sargent, who won the individual trophy at the Wranglers' meet last week, failed to show up as well yesterday, gathering in 11 points. Newbury, Taylor's stellar individual, also earned 11 points, that being all the points made by Taylor in the senior division. His side kick, Harvey, did not participate owing to an injured back.

Burwell made a better showing in the field events yesterday, winning the broad jump, and second places in the javelin throw and high jump and placing in the pole vault and discus. Chaffin, who got off to a bad start, lost the 220 to Newbury, and Cook of Scotia, edged it out of first place in the mile.

A new Jack Anderson is coming up to replace the king of the hurdles, who will graduate this spring. "Little Jack," as he is known to distinguish between them, placed first in the 50 yard dash, in the discus, the broad jump and fourth in the shot and third in the 100 yard dash. He gathered in 18 points for (Continued on page 12)

April Blizzard Blocks Highways, Disrupts Service

Electric and Phone Lines Down, Traffic Halted, As 10 1/2 In. of Snow Fell Saturday.

A freak April blizzard, one of the most unusual storms in Ord's history, hit Valley county and central Nebraska Saturday, and from 8:30 a. m. to early evening a total of 10 1/2 inches of wet snow fell, paralyzing highway traffic throughout Saturday, night and Sunday.

The snow followed an all-day and all-night rain Friday and was accompanied by a strong north wind which reached blizzard velocities at times. Temperatures remained mild throughout the storm.

Telephone and telegraph lines, railroads and the electric light lines shared with highways the paralyzing effect of this late spring snow storm. Mail carriers had to turn back Saturday, and on Monday service was still greatly impeded.

Many reports are heard of motorists whose cars stalled in the deep snow. On a professional call in Garfield county, Dr. A. J. Ferguson's car stalled and he walked to the Elmer Hallock farm for help. When returned with a tractor the car was completely covered with snow, only the radio aerial being visible.

On the Arcadia highway a truck loaded with potatoes was stalled from Sunday until late Monday. Many similar reports are heard.

The value of the Ord and Burwell light plants as a standby service was clearly demonstrated. Interruptions to the service began at about 9:30 a. m. Saturday, and finally the current stopped entirely. The Ord city plant was turned on at 9:50, and ran continuously until 8:50 Monday morning, a period of 47 hours.

Even at that a number of minor breaks occurred over the city, causing work for the city crew, and temporary inconvenience to the patrons. The first of these minor breaks occurred to a lead in the west part of Ord shortly before noon Saturday, and the last came at 10 p. m. The men were on the job promptly and the interruptions were short.

Arcadia, Comstock and North Loup which have no stand-by plants did not fare so well and were without electricity most of Saturday and Sunday.

The weight of the wet snow was too much for the poles on all east and west telephone leads out of Ord, and all country phones were cut off during the day and were still out Monday noon. B. J. Peterson stated that work of making temporary repairs was to start that afternoon, and that all lines should be in working order again within two days. It will take longer than that to make permanent repairs.

The Burlington railroad, because of so many east and west stretches (Continued on page 12)

Will Meet in Lincoln.

The 34th annual encampment of the Department of Nebraska, United Spanish war veterans, will be held at the Lincoln hotel in Lincoln, May 4, 5 and 6, 1941, according to a card received from Morris N. Adams, department adjutant. There are not many Spanish war veterans in this territory, but some of them are E. C. James, Kit Carson and Herb Mason of Ord, and Elmer Kent and Charles Lenker of Burwell.

Passenger Service Ends After 54 Years

Passenger service on the Palmer-Burwell branch of the Burlington railroad ended April 1 and here the motor twin is seen as it returned through Ord on its last run. The railway commission authorized discontinuance of service on that day. Here Agent J. C. Van House shakes hands with veteran motorman W. F. McCormick, of Palmer. Other member of the train crew was M. D. Wilson, conductor, of Schuyler. Passenger service started on this branch in 1887.

These Loup County Ranchers "Had Delusions, Believe God Guided Them"

Burwell Will Get Mail Twice Daily on New Star Route

Robert Hoppes Given Contract to Carry Mail; New Star Route to Taylor Also.

Many changes in mail service went into effect Monday of this week due to the discontinuance of the Burlington motor on the Aurora-Sargent and Palmer-Burwell lines. Of direct interest here is the change in the Burwell mail service, which will now be by star route out of Ord.

The contract for this work was let to Robert Hoppes of Burwell, who has been carrying the afternoon mail out of Burwell for some time. Although Burwell loses a motor passenger service, it gains an extra mail into Burwell in the afternoon, and there is still twice a day bus service in and out of Burwell.

The following is the time schedule: The morning mail leaves Burwell at 8 a. m. and arrives in Ord at 8:30 a. m. It leaves Ord at 8:50 a. m. and arrives in Burwell at 9:30 a. m. The afternoon mail leaves Burwell at 2:15 p. m. and arrives in Ord at 2:45 p. m. It leaves Ord at 3:30 p. m. and arrives in Burwell at 6:10 p. m. Elyria receives mail, service on all trips.

Westerville, Arcadia, Comstock, Sargent and Taylor are serviced by a star route out of Ansley, as follows: Arrive Westerville 7:45 a. m.; arrive Arcadia, 8:30 a. m.; arrive Comstock, 9:00 a. m.; arrive Sargent, 9:30 a. m. Leave Sargent 4:00 p. m.; leave Comstock 4:30 p. m.; leave Arcadia 5:00 p. m.; leave Westerville 6:00 p. m. Taylor will be serviced by star route out of Sargent, as formerly established.

Lee Joyn of St. Paul was the successful bidder on the star route between St. Paul and Loup City, with stops at Farwell and Ashton. The schedule is for six days per week. The mail leaves St. Paul between 7 a. m. and 10 a. m., depending on arrival of the Union Pacific mail, and will make the return trip between the hours of 3:15 and 4:45 p. m.

Paul C. Egle of Central City was awarded the contract for a star route out of Grand Island, servicing Cushing, Wolbach, Brayton and Greeley. This mail leaves Grand Island at 5:30 a. m., with Greeley as the northern terminal, and except on Sunday and holidays will leave Greeley at 4:30 p. m. On Sundays and holidays the return trip will start at 9:00 a. m.

Ericson has had mail service out of Scotia for some time, and Horace will be serviced by this route entirely in the future.

Citizens of Burwell have reason to be thankful that their town is provided with two mails per day, as most of the towns affected by the removal of the motor are not.

Eighth Grade Exams Today. Miss Clara McClatchey, county superintendent, is busy at the high school today where the 8th grade examinations are being held.

Experimental Hybrid Corn Plot in County

Elvin F. Frolik, extension agronomist from the state agricultural college, was in Ord Monday to assist in selecting the field for an official hybrid corn testing plot. They visited several farms in the North and Middle Loup valleys, and finally chose a location on the Wilbur Rogers place northwest of Ord.

The corn, 24 kinds, will be tested there under the direction of the state experiment station. They will plant, thin, and harvest the corn, and calculate the yield. Preparation of the ground will start at once, and the planting will be done about May tenth by a group from Lincoln under the direction of Mr. Frolik.

April Meeting of Chamber Thursday

R. C. Patterson, department adjutant of the American Legion in Nebraska, will be principal speaker at the April meeting of the Ord Chamber of Commerce to be held at 8:00 p. m., Thursday evening, April 24, in the K. of C. hall. Mr. Patterson will make some startling statements on defense problems and the America of today, it is said. Lunch will be served at the close. All Chamber members are urged to be present.

Richard Birkes III, Dr. Round Summoned

Dr. John Round was summoned to the Valley county jail Tuesday to attend Richard Birkes, who was suffering with a very severe cold. His temperature was 102, reported Dr. Round, but he is making a rapid recovery. The evening before Willard Birkes also was ill with a cold. Both blamed their colds on "sleeping with a window open."

Mid-Six Track Meet Here Next Tuesday

Ord's fine new cinder track will be given its official baptism next Tuesday, April 23, when the annual Mid-Six track and field meet in both junior and senior divisions will be held in Ord. The new track is one of the finest in central Nebraska, has a new grandstand and other facilities not ordinarily found. Schools competing will be St. Paul, Broken Bow, Loup City, Arcadia, Ravenna and Ord.

Attend G. I. Meeting.

C. C. Dale, county agricultural agent, and the A. C. P. committee, Charles Veleba, Dave Arnold and R. Clare Clement, drove to Grand Island yesterday, where they attended a joint meeting of the A. C. P. and the agricultural extension service. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss agriculture's place in the National Defense program.

The ladies of the M. E. church met Thursday night at the home of Mrs. E. S. Murray, with Miss Louise Christman and Mrs. Mildred Tunncliff as hostesses. An interesting lesson was presented by Miss Evelyn Kosch.

Jury Empaneled Tuesday in First Loup County Case

Separate Trials Granted Three Men Accused of Killing Sheriff George Brock.

Four farmers, six business men, a retired farmer and a mechanic make up the jury which is hearing the case of John Birkes, accused by the State of Nebraska of having murdered Sheriff Brock, Loup county sheriff, at Valley View on October 16, 1940. The case is being heard at Ord under change of venue from Loup county.

Separate trials were granted Monday morning by District Judge Ernest G. Kroger to John, Willard and Richard Birkes, the three men charged jointly with murdering Sheriff Brock. The state elected to place John Birkes on trial first.

About 1 1/2 days were devoted to getting a jury, and when the jury was sworn in at 2:10 Tuesday afternoon it was made up of L. D. Milliken, Carl Sorenson, A. C. Wilson, Hilding Pearson and John Wozab, all Ord business men; Frank T. Krikac, of Ord, a retired farmer; James Mortensen, of Ord, a mechanic and laborer; E. E. Vodehnal, of Ord, a farmer; Frank Vanclura, of Arcadia, former meat market owner, now retired; George Clement and Guy Sample, of North Loup, farmers; and W. L. Gogan, of Arcadia, a farmer.

Opening statements were made by attorneys for both state and defense after the jury was sworn in Tuesday afternoon.

Rush Clark, assistant attorney general who is helping County Attorney Alder, of Loup county, with the prosecution, told the jury that the state will prove a bullet from a .38 caliber revolver fired by John Birkes was the cause of Sheriff Brock's death.

He further stated that expert witnesses will testify for the state that John Birkes is sane within the legal meaning of the term. Clark admitted that Birkes is a paranoiac and that paranoia is a form of insanity, but said experts would prove that Birkes can distinguish the difference between right and wrong and knew that he was committing a wrongful act when he fired the bullet that killed Brock.

Thomas W. Lanigan, chief attorney for the defense, made a 1 1/2 hour statement in which he said the defense will prove that John Birkes did not fire the shot that killed Brock. He further stated that if evidence introduced by the state should tend to make the jury believe John Birkes did kill the sheriff, that defense testimony will prove to their satisfaction that Birkes is legally insane and therefore could not have known and did not know he was committing a wrongful deed.

Reconstruction of the scene at the Valley View draft registration booth as given by Clark and by Lanigan differed sharply in several vital particulars.

Clark said that state witnesses will testify that Brock laid his hand on Richard Birkes' shoulder and said quietly: "Richard, in the name of the law I will have to arrest you."

Lanigan said that Brock grabbed Richard roughly by the arm, held it high above his head so he could not get at a gun, in the meantime pushing the muzzle of his own .44 revolver into Richard's stomach and pulling the trigger, thereby precipitating the melee in which shots were fired from Richard's gun, Brock's gun and a gun carried by John Birkes.

LITTLEFIELD MONUMENT.

More than 67 years ago, Jan. 19, 1874, Marion Littlefield made the supreme sacrifice when he gave his life in defense of the settlers of the North Loup valley at the historic battle of Pebble Creek.

The story of Marion Littlefield is perhaps the most highly cherished incident in the winning of this part of the west. Today he is still an example of self sacrifice to the younger generation.

Some years ago it occurred to the members of Clifford Clark post No. 298, American Legion, of Burwell, that some kind of a marker should be put up at or near the spot where Littlefield fell.

That monument was built from concrete, with a metal plate bearing the name of Marion Littlefield, and other essential facts.

The natural advantage is with the defenders. As they are forced to retreat the line of defense becomes narrower, and at a distance of 40 miles north of Athens is only about 30 miles from coast to coast.

But now comes the incredible fact that some people of the community, evidently of the younger generation, are committing acts of vandalism on the Littlefield monument.

Because of its secluded location, young people find it a suitable place to carry on questionable parties, where liquor flows freely and tongues wag even more freely and where such things as morals and decency are forgotten.

It is impossible that these young people do not know the purpose of the monument. It follows, therefore, that they do not care.

The whipping post has never been used in Nebraska, but a fitting punishment for such sacrilege would be to tie the offender to the monument and horse whip him until he will never again forget to pay proper respect where respect is due.

MARATHON-THERMOPYLAE. Again the historic battle grounds of ancient Greece resound to the clash of arms. Again the soldiers of Greece are called upon to defend their homeland from the hordes of a foreign power.

The Nebraska Legislature. L. B. 379, the Teachers' Retirement bill, was debated and argued for the past six days.

L. B. 470, gasoline tax exemption for farm power, now appears to be safely headed for third reading and passage.

L. B. 135, known as the Chadron bill, mentioned in last week's letter, was passed on third reading Friday.

From the start it has not looked too good for the defending armies of Greece and England. The time may come soon that they will have to withdraw as they did at Dunkirk.

The spirit of liberty can never die in the land which holds the traditions of Marathon, of Thermopylae, of Salamis. One can almost imagine the spirit of the greatest conqueror of them all, Alexander the Great, fighting today side by side with the modern Greeks.

In 490 B. C., the Greeks under Miltiades met a huge army commanded by Darius on the plain of Marathon. The Persian army broke and fled, leaving six thousand dead on the field, while the Athenians lost less than two hundred men.

In the summer of 480 B. C., the huge Asiatic army approached the pass of Thermopylae, with their fleet moving with them along the coast. Two hundred thousand strong, they were met at the pass by the Spartan king, Leonidas, with five thousand men.

At the time this is written the line of battle is far to the north of Thermopylae, which is in the little province of Achaia, along the east coast and near the middle of Greece.

The Quiz reading public would doubtless be interested in the fact that the winter just closing (we hope) was the longest on official record in the North Loup territory.

It is true that the past winter was not unduly cold, but it broke all records for length of its stay, and we certainly had a plenty of moisture, a precipitation of 10 1/2 inches being recorded by Horace Travis from Oct. 1 until Saturday noon.

It has been a long and in many ways a disagreeable winter, but it will have been well worth while if the Loup Valley can raise a crop once more.

But I resent Bill saying that I weigh nearer 300 than he does 200. I weigh just 235 and he maintains that weight for a year or two and while Bill is almost as tall laying down as he is standing up I would guess he averaged around 185.

I am writing this Saturday morning and you all know how it is snowing, that is, all you Valley county folks. I suggested baked beans for dinner because it was snowing so hard when the Missus wanted me to go after something that I hated to get out in the storm.

As the situation across the ocean gets more serious day by day and it looks more and more like Hitler might overrun England eventually, the situation of the United States gets more serious.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Just when Gene yelled to know why in tarnation I didn't hand in this column, and when I didn't know a thing to write about, I picked up the Clay County Sun and as usual turned to Bill Maupin's Sunny Side Up column first, and found the following paragraphs all ready for me to clip, paste and pass on to the boss:

"Hank Leggett of the Ord Quiz and I have a number of things in common. We both dote on fishing but Hank has the best of us because he can spend two or three months on the Minnesota lakes every summer. I can get away for a week or two at the most, but Hank seems to do Hank more good than it does me. He weighs nearer 300 than I do 200."

"Hank thinks that some of the things of the old days are better than some things now. So do I. He don't think that a leaf of lettuce and a couple of thin slices of banana, topped with a dab of mayonnaise, makes a salad, and neither do I. Hank likes to putter around flowers, but I don't, although I like to see and smell them. Neither of us like professional politicians who are forever mooching their publicity. We think our young folks today are just a lot better, wiser and better able to carry on than the youngsters of our day. We both admit that if our youngsters are traveling a pretty fast pace it is because they have to if they keep up with the old folks."

"In fact, Hank and I have so many things in common that when we get together we have a jolly good time. The trouble is we so seldom get together. That's one trouble with the country today—we are all so tarnation busy that we haven't time for sociability of the old order. What this country needs is a revival of the old Spit and Argy Clubs."

But I resent Bill saying that I weigh nearer 300 than he does 200. I weigh just 235 and he maintains that weight for a year or two and while Bill is almost as tall laying down as he is standing up I would guess he averaged around 185.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Written by GEORGE GOWEN

The Other Side. I hear much talk about the strikes in the country, all of them to date far removed from anything we have to do with. One person that I talked with goes into a tirade when even mention of the labor union is voiced. Another couple, farmers too and renters to boot, are almost insane over it.

I cannot understand why a farmer, one who may be closed out most any year, would be opposed to the labor unions, for when that time comes, if it does, he surely will not be an industrialist or an employer. The labor unions would do a lot more for him than any employer would, wicker as the labor leaders are.

We must bear in mind too that all the literature and propaganda, outside the labor union publications which we cut here seldom are, is strongly against the labor unions and in favor of the employer, and do everything they can to throw a bad light on the labor unions.

We must bear in mind too that there are millions of members in these labor unions, who have fought in our wars and died for our country as bravely as the employers (with all their money) and when we say they are unpatriotic we are talking about (and to) a mighty big portion of our citizenry. It is strange that such a big crowd of people can all be wrong, and the others (a much smaller group) all be right. Bergdahl was not a laboring man.

We must remember that strikes always occur in good times and when there are no strikes, times are apt to be so tough the laborers do not dare to strike.

We must bear in mind too that the laborer is asking for his cut in the tenuous defense cake the government is passing out. We must bear in mind too, even if the labor unions go too far sometimes, that before the unions became so powerful there were sweat shops, child labor, long hours, small pay and every abuse to the laboring man imaginable. If you don't believe it read some of Charles Dickens books or about Jean Valjean and the loaf of bread.

Comparing the laboring man with the soldier, and comparing they talk on the street and in the field, action would be taken at once.

There is no question in my mind but that labor has been abused by employers. Neither is there any question but that organized labor has allowed racketeers to get the upper hand in many instances and abuse employers of labor. Laborers are not all equal. Some are good and conscientious workers, trying to do an honest job, while others are rough necks, loafing on the job and watching the clock and being genuine slackers whenever the foreman is looking the other way. This is, has been and always will be true because men are made that way. But once organized, the employer cannot fire the slacker because the whole bunch will quit if he does. Personally I am bitterly prejudiced against unions because so far as I have been able to learn, they are most unfair. Many employers are also unfair. The solution? Who knows. So far no one has been able to solve the problem. The way things are going, sooner or later civil war may be resorted to and that may not settle the matter.

A prominent senator stated in the senate yesterday that President Roosevelt gave the order a month ago that American supply shipments to Europe be conveyed by our navy. We have been told all the time that this would not be done. I don't believe we should spend billions to prepare supplies and then allow them to be sunk. But, also, I think the administration should be honest with the people, not deceive them. After all the president is only a servant. The people foot the bills. They have a right to know the facts, to be told the truth instead of lies.

The Other Side

Farm Labor News From Afar

their pay, saying the former should be drafted as well as the soldier, why not include the employer too? Why not pay the stockholder and vice-president $30 a month? Don't make us laugh. Why not take their profits and dividends made from these defense contracts?

When we fuss about collective bargaining of the laboring men and their unions, let us bear in mind that there are a few others who do a little "getting their heads together." How about the banks, their rate of interest, their charges, their hours? I hear no complaint about them. Doctors, lawyers, dentists, cream buyers, implement dealers and scores of others seem to have set rates, but when the laboring men get their heads together and try to have a word about what they earn along with the employer, it is a helluva note.

The soldier with his thirty dollars a month, in many instances, is not so bad off either. He has his clothes given him, also his food and shelter. He does not have to know very much, the officers do his thinking for him. In many cases he does better than before he entered the army with his insecure employment and all his expenses to pay.

We live in an immense land consisting of 48 countries, and for eighty years have not had a war. We have strikes and settlements around conference tables and have had a gradual improvement of our poor people until anyone can have an education, until our old can feel secure in their old age even if they have been employees all their life, and until we have the greatest people on earth. Is this not better than wars, industrial wars, social wars such as other, so called, civilized people are carrying on even today.

Farm Labor. Suddenly there has become an acute labor shortage about here. Farmers are finding it very difficult to get help. One young man who works by the month on farms told me he had eight farmers come to him and beg him to work for them this summer. He apparently was quite a good hand and after a week's consideration he finally took his choice. He said to me he couldn't understand why a person had to work on W. P. A.

Another man, a large farmer, was complaining to me asking if the W. P. A. workers were not supposed to take work if they were offered it. I replied I did not know what they were supposed to do but I knew that any that I had asked would not leave that work to come out on my farm.

All the reasons for this I cannot say but here are a few. Most farmers do not or cannot pay as high a wage as the W. P. A. men get. The hours of farm labor are all the way from 10 (never less) to 18, while the hours of the W. P. A. workers are more humane with days off now and then. And, so I hear, once a W. P. A. worker gets off the rolls he finds it difficult to get back on again so, for that reason, he is a little chary about taking other work. And if I were a W. P. A. worker, which I may be soon, I believe I'd look at it just like he does.

Then usually the living quarters for farm laborers are very poor and small, and he is laid off in the winter or his wages cut to nearly nothing and there is no social security. One cannot blame him for not wanting to take that kind of work when he can do so much better in town on W. P. A.

Some of these days, some organizer will get after the farm laborer, there will be a union formed and there will be one more class of people lifted to their feet. Perhaps it might be better to lift them first, but you know, from past history, that has not been the record of employers, that is, looking out for their help only just as far as this help benefits him.

News From Afar. Following are a few remarks of my mother, now visiting us from Long Beach, Calif.

"Although I have seen several booms at different places, I never saw one like now in action in Long Beach. All over the city houses by the dozens are being built. I go to see my daughter every week or so. Between two of these visits, so many houses had been built that I became lost in trying to find her home. "I was told by a man who I thought should know that carpenters earn $16 a day and nail pounders $6 to $10. "It is impossible for me to tell a Jap from a Chinaman, and I was told that few others can tell them apart either. But most of the Japs now claim they are Chinese. There is a strong feeling against the Japs out there and many do not hesitate in saying they will not trade with a Jap under any circumstance. "It rains a good deal out there; nice, gentle rains with no thunder or lightning. For some reason there are apt to be floods but I love these rains and the foggy days; the blue color is so much easier on my eyes than the bright sun for one reason. But I hear more complaint out there about the weather than I do here.

North Loup—The Valley county Bible school convention held Wednesday in the Methodist church was presided over by Mrs. Fred Bartz, vice-president. Rev. Henry Ludemann, of Lincoln, state secretary, was present and spoke at each session. A basket dinner was served at noon and a covered dish supper in the evening. The young people of the territory were present at the evening meal and a young people's rally was held.

The morning session was opened with devotions by Rev. Olsen. A short business session was followed by an address on adult education by Mrs. Evet Smith, of Ord. A discussion followed.

In the afternoon Mrs. Anna Tapan conducted the devotionals. This was followed by roll call, with a number of Sunday schools not responding. Rev. Ehret then spoke on the "Home Helping the Church," and Rev. Adams responded with the "Church Helping the Home."

In the evening the high school gave a half hour of musical numbers that were much appreciated. Rev. Ludemann gave an address and showed a reel of pictures on the work of the churches among Chinese refugees.

Officers for the coming year elected in the afternoon session are: President, Archie Geweke; vice-president, L. A. Axthelm; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. L. Burson; daily vacation Bible school, Mrs. Chas. Weddel, Arcadia; children's department, Mrs. Lawrence Mitchell; adult, Ross Leonard; leadership training, Rev. A. J. Adams; youth, Martha Miller.

Not as many attended the convention as usual because so many farmers are busy in the fields, but those who did attend felt repaid.

No. Loup Without Lights Saturday

(Special to the Quiz)

North Loup—The heavy snow which fell Saturday contained .95 inches of moisture. The snow was very wet and heavy and made the roads bad again. There was trouble with the power line that could not be located and North Loup was without lights most of the afternoon and until about three o'clock in the morning. Stores closed at eight in the evening and Saturday night's show was of course not given. Many people had no lamps and spent their Saturday evening in the candle light or in the dark.

A birthday party in honor of John Anderson was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Anderson Sunday evening. The other guests, all of whom brought well filled baskets, were Mr. and Mrs. Oney Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Anderson and sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Anderson and Merle. The exhibition of motion picture films of the children of Rev. and Mrs. Everett Majors furnished entertainment for the evening.

A novel, and familiar landmark in Burwell was destroyed Monday when F. B. Wheeler cut down the circle of cedar trees in the front yard of the Capek residence. The trees were removed because they shut the sun away from the house, making the interior dark and dreary even on the brightest of days. The trees were planted by Dan Capek forty-one years ago, shortly after his marriage. The trees were some of the first ones planted in Burwell. When the trees were first set out the Capek residence consisted of a small square house and the trees did not stand directly in front of the house. An addition to the east was later made directly behind the trees. The cedars, fourteen in number, are about thirty feet in length. Thirteen were planted around the circumference of the circle and are exactly in the center. The drought of recent years apparently affected the trees not at all as their boughs were a lush, dark green. Passers-by wondered Mr. Wheeler in his work greatly, with protests and demands to know the reason for cutting down the trees.

Valley County Farmers Busy With First Real Crop Year of Decade in Sight

Team Work With Tractors.

The top photo, added later, shows William Conner pulling a seeder behind a tractor and his brother Walter following with a disc behind another tractor. This picture was taken on the Conner place southwest of town, as they were finishing up the day's work just about sunset.

1. William Schauer Discs.
Above is William Schauer, sr., discing in his field near Olean. He has farmed this place 15 or 16 years, has farmed in Valley county 47 years and in all, 53 years. He is discing the field of 17 acres the second time and it is still plenty wet. It is just above the ditch. He will sow it to Kershaw oats using 2 bushels per acre of seed that he grew himself two years ago.

2. Bill Sims Hauls Hay.
This is Bill Sims, employed on the W. O. Zangger farm, hauling a load of alfalfa raised under irrigation last year. It is 3rd cutting. They fed most of it the past winter, three cuttings from a fifteen acre field. That is a 1940 Ford tractor he is using. Bill graduated from North Loup high, class of 1938. He didn't study agriculture there but he is back on the farm and likes it.

3. Darrell White Harrows.
This is the son of Paul White, getting 10 acres of land ready for beet planting while his father was in an Ord hospital recovering from an operation. He uses 5 horses and a 3-section harrow. He said he would keep harrowing until the end of the week or Monday, and would then start planting the beets. Darrell had to quit school in the tenth grade at North Loup because of his father's illness.

4. Loyal Meyers Is Plowing.
This is the way to plow, if you are in a hurry to get the job done, according to Loyal Meyers, above. He has a John Deere tractor and a two-bottom 14-inch gang plow. The ground was still a little soft. This is the E. S. Murray farm north of North Loup. He will put in barley and alfalfa on the ground, which was in cane and corn last year. He is plowing 8 inches deep, and will drill the barley.

5. The Manchesters Level.

Sterling Manchester on the blade and son Everett Manchester on the tractor are leveling 2 acres for strawberries in North Loup. Granddad I. A. Manchester happened along just after the picture was taken. They had an acre of Kellogg's Premier berries last year and picked 7,500 quarts. Everett is in the army aviation and home on a furlough. He is a member of the class of 1937, North Loup high school.

6. Hutchins Hauling Straw.
W. T. Hutchins is the good looking man above, and he is taking the straw off his strawberry field. It is an experimental one, and he has Dunlap, Premier, Fairfax, Dorset, Mastodon, Gem, Wayzata, Fujiyama, Nect, Cresco and Grand Champion. A Lincoln Star lady interviewed him last week. He has been farming two years. He planted a lot of elms two years ago, and they have grown from a foot high to 13 1/2 feet high, and make a fine shelter belt. He has a row of fine looking chokecherries 200 feet long. He is 63 years old, has been in Valley county 57 years. He owns this 34 acre farm west of North Loup and 30 acres north of North Loup. His son Floyd helps him with the farming.

7. Albert Jones Is Drilling.
Albert Jones had trouble finding anybody who would take a chance on farming, so he and his son Lowell are farming together and handling 400 acres with two complete tractor outfits. Here, Albert is using a Monitor drill and a Farmall tractor, is drilling 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 bushels of barley per acre, and can seed 50 acres per day. The ground was just about right, he said. He has owned this farm for 23 years, and lived there before moving to Ord.

8. James Vasleck Discing.
This is a tractor disc outfit run by James Vasleck on the Charles Bals land near Brace school. It is a new Farmall outfit, with what is called a 24 disc, cutting a 16 foot swath. He is discing it here, but will disc again later, and will drill in alfalfa on the ground about May 10. The ground was in cane and corn last year, and it was still plenty wet to work.

Burwell Church to Have Set of Carillon Chimes

(Special to the Quiz)

Burwell—The true hearted in Burwell will soon be called to worship to the strains of "O, Come All Ye Faithful," and other religious tunes played on carillon chimes from the tower of the Congregational church. A week ago no one in Burwell had the faintest idea that chimes would soon ring out over the countryside surrounding their town.

Friday afternoon a small group of women met for a tea in the church parlors. In discussing the expenditure of the money from the spring bazaar, Miss Anna Cameron stated that she favored the idea of setting it aside for the installation of chimes in the church. The others present favored the idea.

Mrs. John Beynon pointed out that her mother-in-law, Mrs. D. S. Beynon and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Helen Blankenship, had already donated ten dollars toward purchasing chimes for the church and that they had agreed to pay the last $20 needed for the purpose.

Others present spoke up saying that they would give $10 toward the cause and in a short time $90 had been raised. Mrs. Lillie Mickel, whose deceased husband operated a music store in Omaha, said that she had a large number of records for a carillon which she would gladly give the church.

Townpeople hearing of the proposed plan have been generous in donations and it is believed that when all of the gifts have been received there will be ample funds for the installation of the chimes which will cost $250.

Jury Empaneled Tuesday in First Loup County Case

It was an example of poor judgment on Brock's part "for which he would be on trial today had he lived," claimed Lanigan.

Defense counsel made a long statement in which the delusions from which John Birkes and his brother Willard have allegedly suffered for more than 20 years were recited.

As long ago as 1913 he had delusions and at that time bought a gun to protect his beautiful sister when he thought men were attempting to seduce her, said the attorney. Later he heard a preacher inveigh against guns and traded his off. In 1917 he entered the army but a few months later was discharged for valvular heart trouble, his discharge bearing the notation "a good and willing soldier."

Later, said Lanigan, when John Birkes tried to get government insurance he was refused, and began to feel the government was persecuting him. This belief was heightened when the interior department failed to permit final proof on the Birkes homestead.

In 1919, he said, the defense will show, Birkes' sister, Mrs. McClintock, was drowned in the North Loup river. John Birkes claimed that her husband insured her for $10,000 and then killed her to collect the insurance, but Garfield county officials refused to hold an inquest and he began to think they also were persecuting him. When his mother died a few years later he made the claim that she was poisoned and again officials refused to conduct an inquest.

For more than twenty years, stated Lanigan, the Birkes' wrote hundreds of letters to the president of the United States, the attorney general, state attorneys, sheriffs, county attorneys and other officials trying to get redress for what they fancied were wrongs, but never could interest these officials. They kept copies of these letters and they, with the answers, will be read to the jury, he promised.

"Why, we have enough material to drag this trial out all summer—but we won't do it," he stated. Birkes' fear of Sheriff Brock began in 1937 when Abe Birkes, a brother, was found in a pasture, apparently trampled to death by a horse. Enemies had kidnapped and murdered him, then thrown the body in a pasture, claimed the Birkes, and asked Brock to hold an inquest. "To hell with an inquest, you'll get none from me," Birkes claims he was answered by Brock.

Later, said Attorney Lanigan, the Birkes were informed that their enemies in Burwell had hired Brock for $2,500 to throw them into a Taylor jail, then burn the jail, thereby exterminating all surviving members of the Birkes family.

At one stage in his life John Birkes took up fingerprinting, studied to be a detective and opened a detective office in Grand Island, sole object being to ferret out his enemies and bring them to justice, Lanigan said he will prove.

The story he told, sounded like a detective novel as he said that John Birkes, while hitchhiking in Texas, was picked up by a man whom he identified as "Schultz," the murderer of the Lindbergh and Mattson babies. He called the man's identity to the attention of the F. B. I. and to parents of the kidnapped children, Lanigan said, and letters will be introduced to prove this.

Birkes had the idea that "Schultz" was hiding out on the Amos Grant ranch adjacent to their own and that he was present at Valley View and did some of the shooting on the day Sheriff Brock was killed, stated the attorney.

He and his brother and their nephew consulted clairvoyants and soothsayers in attempts to ferret out their enemies, and a few months before the Brock slaying they hired a private investigator and brought him to Burwell at a cost of over $1,000 to secure evidence against people whom they fancied were responsible for the deaths of their sister, mother and brother and who they thought were seeking the lives of remaining members of the family.

They also hired an Omaha lawyer and brought him to their ranch only a few days before the shooting on a similar mission, the lawyer stated, and during the trial this lawyer whose name is John Baldwin will be a witness.

Several times Attorney General Clark sought to stop Lanigan's exposition of the case on the ground that it was improper argument but Judge Kroger permitted him to complete his statement. Over Attorney Lanigan's protest, he then permitted Clark to make an additional statement in which the state's position as regards possible insanity of the accused was outlined.

At opening of the session this morning, Judge Kroger ruled that all witnesses should be excluded from the court room until time for them to testify.

First witness called as the state began its attempt to prove John Birkes guilty of murder was Mark Locker, brother-in-law of the slain sheriff.

Under questioning by Clark, Locker testified that his home is near Kent but that at the request of Sheriff Brock he accompanied him to the Birkes ranch on October 1, where Brock had papers to serve involving a claim of $13.40 court costs allegedly owned by the Birkes' to Judge Thurman Smith's court.

Parking the car about 75 yards from the sod house occupied by the three Birkes, Locker said he and Brock approached the house and Brock knocked on the door. All three of the Birkes were inside and invited them to enter.

Locker quoted the sheriff as saying "Looks like we're having a little trouble," and quoted John Birkes as answering "I'm not having no trouble with nobody."

Sheriff Brock then served the paper and after reading it John Birkes began to "cuss," saying he never had been in court in the case involved and how could there be court costs assessed against him. Brock told him, stated Locker, that he would have to drive off some of his horses or cattle to pay the costs, upon which John said:

"Get out of the house, get off the place and stay off." He and Willard grabbed Brock by either arm and hustled him out the door, Locker following, he testified. Willard said, he claimed, "If you ever come back on the place I'll kill you."

Brock told him he had some other papers to serve and might as well do it while he was there, and went back into the house, Locker going out to the car. A few minutes later, he testified, the Birkes again shoved Brock out the door and John Birkes said to him: "Pull your gun, you ... Haven't even got a gun." Locker said that the Sheriff answered. He quoted Willard Birkes as telling the sheriff: "If you ever come back on this place again you are a dead man."

Four days later, on Oct. 5, Locker said he accompanied Brock and

Popular Valley County Couple are Married

All three wore dark suits. Dinner at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony, and last evening a dance was given at the Bohemian hall in Ord, with Art Mason and his boys furnishing the music.

At 9 a. m. Tuesday, April 22, at the Geranium Catholic church, Rev. Michael Sczesny of Sargent performed the double ring marriage ceremony that united Miss Minnie Sich, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sich of Ord, and Joe Heseck, son of Frank Heseck, Arcadia, in the bonds of matrimony.

The bride was attired in a light satin dress with lace inserts and a floor length veil. She had a bouquet of pink and white carnations and carried a rosary and prayer book. She was attended by Miss Angelina Wachter, who wore an aqua voile dress and carried a rosary, and by Miss Virginia Patska, who wore a peach voile dress and carried a rosary.

The groom's attendants were Lumar Sich, brother of the bride, who made the trip here from Iowa to be present at the wedding, and Ed Heseck of Arcadia.

Sheriff Raymond Johnson of Garfield county to the Birkes place again. He stayed in the car while Brock and Johnson approached the house. Before they got there, he testified, the door opened and one of the Birkes hollered: "Drop that gun." Sheriff Brock had a revolver in his hip pocket but not in his hand, Locker said.

The Birkes' would not admit Brock into the house but he read a warrant to them through the window, then turned to walk away with Sheriff Johnson. The latter was called into the house by one of the Birkes and remained there 4 or 5 minutes, Locker testified.

While they were there two other men, Messrs. Bridgman and Ball, rode up on horses but remained near the car, Locker admitted on cross examination by Attorney Lanigan.

Lanigan asked the witness: "Did you hear Birkes say 'put down that gun where we can see it and you can come in?'"

The witness answered "no."

Next witness called was Lloyd Franks, chief of police at Kearney, who testified that in November, 1937 he accompanied the state sheriff to Taylor and had a conversation with John Birkes on the square in Taylor. Birkes had written to Lincoln, Frank said, to complain that his brother had been murdered and the local sheriff would make no investigation. "I am going to get the sheriff," he quoted Birkes as saying. He also said Birkes made the statement he was going over the sheriff's head to have his brother's death investigated. On cross examination by Lanigan, the Kearney police chief said he did not know whether Birkes meant he was going to kill the sheriff or simply bring about his ouster from office when he said he was going to "get him."

Glen Hesselgesser was introduced as a witness to identify five pictures of the exterior and interior of the Valley View store which were placed in evidence by the prosecution and Russell Jensen, Ord surveyor, identified a plat of the vicinity of the Valley View store which also was placed in evidence.

Thurman A. Smith, judge in Loup county, was called by the state to identify three warrants for the arrest of the Birkes' on October 16, submitted in evidence and marked exhibits 7, 8 and 9. He issued them at Sheriff Brock's request that day. Under cross-examination he admitted they were issued at 6:30 in the morning.

First actual account of Sheriff Brock's death came just before noon today when Glen Hesselgesser, county commissioner in Loup county and member of the draft board at Valley View on the day the shooting occurred, was recalled to the witness stand.

Under questioning by Clark the witness related that the draft board gathered at Valley View store before 8 o'clock, that Sheriff Round arrived about 8 and stood around visiting with board members for a while, and that John Birkes and nephew Richard drove up in a car about 8:30 and left their car parked, with John sitting in it, at a point about 20 feet from a mail box in the yard and about 40 feet from the door of the store.

Richard entered the store, sat down at the table and filled out his registration blank, this taking about 10 minutes, the witness said.

As he rose, Sheriff Brock, who had been standing near the door, stepped toward him and in a low voice said:

"Richard, in the name of the law I have to place you under arrest."
"What did Richard do then?" asked the state's attorney.
"He swore," answered the witness.

"Exactly what did he say?" Reluctantly, Hesselgesser said: "As close as I can recall he said 'God damn you.'"

Then, he testified, Richard strode toward the door, Brock grabbed his left shoulder with his left hand, Richard's right hand went down under his mackinaw, he saw Brock reach for his hip pocket and come out with a gun which he brought down on Richard's shoulder, and the two scuffled out of the door. About the same instant he heard a shot ring out, Hesselgesser said, and looking out the door he saw that John Birkes had climbed out of his car, was rushing toward the door and had a gun in his hand. He was swearing and was about half way to the door at that time, said the witness.

A bullet hit a casing of the window behind which he was sheltered, testified Hesselgesser. Asked how many shots were fired during the affray, he stated that 8 to 12 were fired.

All the draft board members except Alfred Scherzberg, who had gone outside to talk to John Birkes, were still in the room. Hesselgesser could not recall their exact positions when the shooting started. Charlie Cronk, a registrant, also was in the room.

In cross-examination the defense asked the witness: "You have stated that Brock struck Richard on the shoulder and then a shot was fired. Could that shot have been fired by Brock?"

"I don't think so," the witness answered.

He testified that he did not see a gun in Richard's hand until he was running toward the car. Attorney Lanigan tried at length to get Hesselgesser to admit that the first shot fired might have been fired by Brock and might have been the .44 bullet that pierced Richard's body, but unsuccessfully.

Probably the high point of the morning's testimony came when Hesselgesser was asked:

"Who was it shot Sheriff Brock and killed him?"

"I don't know," he answered.

Just before the noon recess Hesselgesser, at Lanigan's request, impersonated Brock and with Lanigan impersonating Richard they reenacted the scene in the Valley View registration booth when the scuffle started.

After lunch today the state expected to call Alfred Scherzberg and Charlie Cronk to the witness stand, followed probably by Sheriff Raymond Johnson of Burwell.

Unseasonal Snow Storm Plays Havoc

(Special to the Quiz)

Burwell—The unseasonal snow storm Saturday raised havoc generally in the vicinity of Burwell. It caught many farmers in the midst of preparations for potato planting. Several growers had their seed cut and treated before the storm drove them out of the field.

The high school students participating in the district music contest at Broken Bow were especially discommoded. Burwell's band and glee clubs never appeared in the contest, being needlessly notified Saturday morning that the contest had been called off as it was impossible for the contestants to reach Broken Bow owing to the condition of the roads. Those persons already in Broken Bow did not get home until Sunday morning.

Burwell rated two superiors in the contest. The entries so judged were the girls' octet comprised of Ruth Langstrom, Mildred Hummel, Louella Livermore, Dorothy Dea and LaVonne Johnson, Thelma Sherman, Eileen Phillips and Esther Ballagh, and the whistling selection by Eileen Phillips. Burwell rated excellent and a girls' clarinet quartet and Wanda Carpenter at baton twirling were judged excellent. Most of the students who had planned to enter the contest were disappointed in that they did not get to go to Broken Bow.

Rev. and Mrs. Wylie, who had taken a load of contestants to Broken Bow, became alarmed by the storm and started home before noon Saturday. They were successful in getting as far as Westerville where they spent the remainder of the day and the night with friends and relatives. The Wylies finally got home about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. There was no preaching in the Methodist church Sunday morning nor any in the Lutheran church as Rev. Wagner was unable to get to Burwell from Scotia to conduct services.

Mr. and Mrs. Struve were scheduled to attend a wedding of her cousin in Omaha Sunday. He did not get back from Broken Bow until Sunday afternoon, when they started for Omaha immediately. day afternoon.

Alfred Peterson, a Wheeler county rancher, was stricken with an attack of appendicitis Saturday morning. Neighbors started to Burwell with him at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. By pushing and shoveling they managed to reach the Matt Keefe home eight miles east of Burwell when darkness fell. There they, with a number of other refugees, of the storm, spent the night. They arrived in Burwell 2:30 Sunday afternoon. Dr. Crum operated on Mr. Peterson Sunday evening. He is making satisfactory progress.

The condition of P. N. Petersen remains critical. His son Victor and his daughter, Mrs. Lucy Herzman, both of Bridgeport arrived in Burwell Thursday to be with their father. They returned home Monday. Another daughter, Mrs. Howard Bodyfield, of Ericson, has remained with him constantly since his stroke a week ago Saturday.

Mrs. Vernon Huckfeldt and infant son were released from Dr. Crum's hospital Saturday.

Mrs. Ralph Douglas was the guest of honor at a farewell party given by the Ladies Association of the Congregational church in the home of Mrs. F. A. Johnson Thurs-

Permanent Vat Built North of Burwell, Cattle Brought from 20 Miles Around.

The state veterinarians discovered that most of the cattle in the pasture had contracted scabies from the infected herd. They had already been returned to their owners, which spread the scabies to scores of farms.

If no signs of scabies are found on any of the cattle after a careful examination only one dipping is required, but if any of the stock show any indications they must be run through again ten days later.

The dipping is being done under the supervision of the state veterinarians, Duffy and Bahinsky. Many of the cattle are driven or trucked a distance of twenty miles to get to a vat.

Farm Woman Writes Songs that Have Real Merit

It may interest her friends to know that a well known woman of this community, Mrs. Ewet (Mae Moyer) Smith is a writer of songs, and what is more to the point, songs that sell and are sung.

Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Mae Moyer and taught several years in the Ord schools. After her marriage there was the farm work to do and the two daughters to raise and educate. The oldest, Mildred, is thru college and employed in Washington, D. C. and Betty will soon finish her nurse's course at Augustana Hospital in Chicago.

Since the girls have been away from home Mrs. Smith has found time to indulge in her hobby of writing songs. They are published by American Music, Inc., of Portland, Ore. While she had some initial expense in getting started, the return on her songs to date has offset this expense and what income she has from them in the future will be clear profit.

Writing Mrs. Smith recently, her publishers had this to say of her songs: "We are pleased to report to you at this time that your various songs published by us are constantly gaining in popularity throughout the United States and arrangements have recently been completed whereby over 700 radio stations and all the networks are now licensed to use these beautiful numbers."

She has written a number of them, of which the one given below is a fair example:

Lullaby of the Prairie

Rock-a-bye baby, go to sleep, Mother's little cow-boy needs rest, I pray the Lord your soul to keep, My big, strong son of the West.

Refrain: When you hear the song of the breeze Through the cottonwood trees, That's a lullaby of the prairie, When you hear the coyote howl And the hoot of the owl, That's a lullaby of the prairie; Tomorrow we'll find so many things to be done, So go right to sleep and awake with the sun, Can't you hear the cattle low Grazing to and fro, That's a lullaby of the prairie.

Two other songs written by Mae Smith and on the same subject as the present time are "When I Packed Your State to School" and "Fiddlin' Fool of the Prairie." She writes the words and a lady named Corriac Sprawls writes the music. The songs are all copyrighted and international copyright secured.

Rev. Snyder Addresses Wranglers Monday Eve

Barwell—Rev. Clifford Snyder, pastor of the Christian churches in Ord and Burwell was the guest of honor at the meeting of the Wranglers' club in the Burwell hotel Monday evening. In introducing Mr. Snyder, Boss Johnson remarked according to the Bible no man can serve two masters and that he did not see how one preacher could serve two communities, especially when they were Ord and Burwell, but that possibly Mr. Snyder has reversed the usual condition and is master of both situations.

Mr. Snyder spoke briefly discussing personalities. He sang, "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," which was well received by the Wranglers. County Agent Douglas introduced his successor, Andrew Munson.

O. A. Nord brought up the matter of paying the two attorneys who appeared before the state railway commission in behalf of the late, lamented Burlington motor. It was voted that the committee, formerly appointed to protest against the banishing of the motor, settle the matter according to its own judgment.

Mr. Lavery discussed the highway situation pointing out that he believed it would be wise for the organization to try to interest the state in maintaining the road which the WPA has built up the Calamus. County Attorney Manasill was appointed to contact the governor and the state highway engineer in an effort to interest them in new highways which will benefit Burwell.

McClure To Speak Tonight. H. E. McClure is to be the speaker at the meeting of the Presbyterian Brotherhood in the church basement tonight. He will speak on one of two subjects, either pheasants, which are the subject of his work in Nebraska, or mourning doves, of which he makes a hobby. It is safe to say that Mr. McClure's talk will be most interesting.

BIRKES' TRIAL

Opening of the trial was at 10:00 Monday morning with District Judge Kroger on the bench and a reporter new to this district taking the shorthand testimony. He was Hugh Schooley, reporter for Judge Earl Meyer, of the Alliance district, who is substituting for Judge Kroger's regular reporter, Arthur Bass, who is engaged in reporting work in federal court at Hastings.

At the west side of the counsel's table in the center of the court room were attorneys for the state, headed by Rush Clark, assistant attorney general specially detailed to assist with the prosecution of this case. Seated next to him were County Attorney Alder, of Loup County, and Glenn Runyan, of Burwell, a special assistant.

At the east side were the defense attorneys, Thomas W. Lanigan and William P. Mullen of Grand Island and Ernest Ondracek, of Greeley. At a small table on the east side of the court room were the defendants, John, Richard and Willard Birkes, who were escorted into the court by Sheriff George S. Round of Ord, Sheriff Frank Strohl, of Taylor, and two Valley county deputies, Fred Cohen and Archie Keep. The latter stayed in the court room keeping a watchful eye on the prisoners.

A reporter for the Grand Island Independent, Charles L. Hartley, occupied a desk at rear of the enclosure, with the spectators' benches behind. Bailiff is A. J. Cook. The Valley county clerk of the district court occupied his position at right of the district judge.

At opening of the session Attorney Lanigan presented an application signed by each defendant that they be granted separate trials, and with no argument this application was granted by the judge. He asked the state whom it wished to try first and the answer was "John Birkes." The judge then ordered that Richard and Willard Birkes be returned to their cells, overruling a request by Lanigan that they be permitted to remain in the court room.

Judge Kroger then ordered that the jury box be filled and, reaching into a small metal box which contained cardboard slips, each bearing the name of one of the panel of 36 prospective jurors, Clerk Wiegardt drew out slips and read off the names. First name was that of Joe Schuele, then came Ernest Vodehnal, Harvey Barr, Albert Dahlin, Jis Mortensen (excused because he is over the age for jury service), P. S. Dunlap, Rex Jewett, Frank Vanchura, Oscar Hansen, Frank T. Krikac, Jake Kwiatkowski, Frank John, Charles Bridge.

The judge administered the oath to the panel of 12 jurymen in the box and questioning of jurymen opened.

Judge Kroger began the questioning, using a pattern that was to become familiar to spectators and court attaches as the day wore on. First he asked the name of the juror, his place of residence, occupation, what his family consisted of, whether or not he was familiar with the case and if so whether he was familiar with it through reading about it or through discussion of the case with people who claimed to know the facts about it.

Then came questions as to whether the prospective juror had formed an opinion of the case, and if so whether this opinion was so strong that he was impelled to render a decision before hearing evidence, or whether he was prepared to listen to evidence with an open mind and render a decision on the basis of evidence submitted.

Then Judge Kroger asked each juror if he was prepared to find the defendants innocent unless convinced of their guilt beyond a reasonable doubt; whether they had objections against insanity as a defense; whether the fact that the man murdered was a sheriff would influence them in making a decision; whether they had prejudices against infliction of the capital penalty in event of conviction, and many other questions that continued to form a familiar pattern as the day wore on.

Joe Schuele, who occupied the first position in the jury box, was questioned first by the judge and then by Attorney Lanigan, who gave his heaviest guns to this questioning. Did the juror know the meaning of the words "presumptive," "delusion," "irresistible," "impulse," as used by the judge, asked Lanigan. "No," to each answered Schuele.

To Schuele, Attorney Lanigan posed the question: "If a man had delusions that he and his family were God's chosen people and that God would protect them under all circumstances and that what he did was done at God's bidding, do you feel that man should be electrocuted?"

The judge told the venireman not to answer, upon Clark's objection. "Do you believe circumstances might justify taking the life of a sheriff?" he then asked Mr. Schuele. The juror answered "no," and Lanigan then shot at him: "Then you believe a sheriff is always right?"

"He is elected by a majority of the people," Schuele answered. "He was 'challenged for cause' by defense and after a bit of verbal skirmishing between Lanigan and Clark the venireman was excused by the judge.

In his place was seated Clifton Clark and he too was "challenged for cause" and excused. Henry Stara finally was seated in the No. 1 place and the day wore on. Second jurymen accepted was Ernest Vodehnal, third was Harvey Barr, and after them came Joe Dlugosh, P. S. Dunlap, E. E. Vodehnal, Frank Vanchura, Albert C. Wilson, Jake Kwiatkowski, Frank T. Krikac, Ira Meyers and W. L. Gogan.

Challenged for cause were Albert Dahlin, Rex Jewett, Oscar Hansen, Frank John, Charles Bridge, Lee Mulligan, Joseph Osentowski, Harlan Brenneck, R. L. Lincoln, Elmer Vergin, Charles Krikac, and all were excused. Some had formed opinions which prevented them rendering a fair verdict, others were acquainted with the principals or with some of the attorneys.

For the spectators the trial was enlivened by occasional bickering between Attorneys Lanigan and Clark. The latter constantly interposed objections to the line of questioning taken by Lanigan. It was not proper "voir dire," claimed Clark, which is a Latin phrase meaning preliminary examination, and his objections usually were sustained by Judge Kroger. Then Lanigan would back up and start over again, usually only to meet the same objection by Clark, sustained by Judge Kroger.

Line of questioning taken by Lanigan indicated that insanity is to be used as a defense and argument hinged over use of the term. Clark maintained that the prosecution is not required to prove the defendant sane but only to prove that he knew the difference between right and wrong and knew he was doing wrong when the crime was committed, if it was committed. Each time Attorney Lanigan used the term "insanity" he was called to account by Attorney Clark, whose objections on this point usually were sustained by the judge.

Spectators tittered when Attorney Lanigan asked Frank Vanchura of Arcadia, if the fact that he had been a butcher had tended to create any "cruelty" in him. "I butchered the beef, not the man," answered Vanchura.

The court room crowd laughed again when Judge Kroger, in excusing Oscar Hansen for cause, said: "Sometimes I think you farmers are more anxious to get out in the field than you are to sit on a jury," and followed it up by asking "have you got your barley seeded yet?"

When Clerk Wiegardt drew a slip containing the name of Guy Sample from the box, and it developed that Sample had not answered to roll call in the morning, Attorney Lanigan promptly filed an objection to other prospective jurors being questioned until Sample had been brought into court and seated. Judge Kroger read into the record a statement to the effect that Sample was prevented from coming to court by the bad condition of side roads due to the recent storm, and ordered the next prospective juror, Ira Meyers, seated. Given a chance to question Meyers, the defense at first refused but later reconsidered and Attorney Lanigan questioned him strenuously.

At 4:45 Judge Kroger declared the jury passed for cause and ruled that the state should have 10 peremptory challenges and the defense 12, and that the state should exercise its initial challenge first. He then recessed court until 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Efforts to complete selection of a jury continued when court convened again at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Six veniremen who had not yet been examined were in court, first one called being Kenneth Timmerman. He was excused by Judge Kroger when he stated that he does not believe in capital punishment and so was F. J. L. Benda, who was the next man called.

Chris M. Hansen was excused when he admitted having formed an opinion of the case but George Clement, next in line, was accepted and seated in place of Jake Kwiatkowski, who was removed by the state upon its first peremptory challenge.

Guy Sample was accepted as a juror and was seated in place of Ernest Vodehnal, who was challenged peremptorily by the defense. John Iwanski, last member of the regular panel, was seated in the jury box in place of Ira Meyers, who was challenged by the state, and court recessed while the judge instructed the sheriff to bring in talesmen from among whom a jury could be rounded out.

First talesman examined was L. D. Milliken and he was accepted in place of Henry Stara, who was challenged by the defense. James Gilbert was examined but was excused when he said he thought Birkes guilty. John Wozab was accepted in place of John Iwanski, excused on state peremptory, and James Mortensen for Joe Dlugosh, excused on state peremptory.

Two old business men who admitted having formed opinions, William Sack and Ben Clark, were excused by Judge Kroger, after which Hilding Pearson was accepted in place of Harvey Barr, challenged by the state. Carl Sorenson was seated in place of P. S. Dunlap, challenged by the defense.

At this point the state had six peremptory challenges remaining and the defense had eight but recess was taken while the defense mulled over whether to accept the jury as it stood or continue the examination of other talesmen. Attorney Lanigan announced decision of the defense to accept the twelve men then in the jury box—L. D. Milliken, A. C. Wilson, Guy Sample, Frank Krikac, John Wozab, W. L. Gogan, George B. Clement, Carl Sorenson, James Mortensen, Hilding Pearson and E. E. ## P. E. O.'s and Husbands Hold Farewell Party

(Special to the Quiz)
Burwell—The P. E. O.'s and their husbands held a party in the C. E. Igenfritz home Monday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Duglas who are leaving Burwell the first of May. They will make their home on a farm near Franklin.

A quiz program conducted by Mr. Fenner furnished the entertainment for the evening. Mrs. A. E. Jenks was successful in answering the most questions correctly. The women succeeded in answering slightly more questions than the men. Those answering the questions were awarded pennies. Mr. Fenner donated the jack pot to the P. E. O. and it will be given to the P. E. O. home for the aged at Beatrice.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

To Alec Cochrane the elder, goes the honor of being the first man to walk the street with a straw hat on. It happened thus: Thursday afternoon he was doing some work around the yard, and it was so warm he put on his straw hat. Later he had to make a trip down town, forgot all about the hat, and was seen by various citizens wearing it around the square. That night it rained. It was cool all day Friday, and then on Saturday came the worst storm of the winter. It has been unseasonably cool since then. What a lot of trouble one straw hat can cause!

A lot of things happened in and about Ord during the big storm. For instance, the Henry Desmuis came to town that day, and didn't have too much trouble coming in. On the way home that evening it took them 4 1/2 hours to make 14 miles. Henry says he could have walked it quicker.

The storm was really bad at Grand Island and west. There are a lot of busses running in many directions out of Grand Island, but the Burwell-Grand Island bus line was the only one that got through on every scheduled run, and the busses were practically on time on every run, not more than a half hour off. There are just a few of dozens of interesting incidents that are being told about the biggest April storm in years.

Has Emergency Operation.

North Loup—Bernice Wilson was taken sick Sunday night and Monday evening Dr. Hemphill took her to the Clinic hospital in Ord where she submitted to an emergency operation for appendicitis. Her place in the IGA store is being filled by Mrs. A. C. Hutchins and Mrs. Nels Jorgensen.

Twin Girls Named Through a Want Ad

The story can be told at last. Munday Grandpa Art Meyer of Burwell came into the Quiz office, and handed the Quiz man a most interesting clipping that appeared in a city edition copy of the World-Herald, Jan. 26, and read as follows:

"Twin names wanted—Twin girls recently came to our family, which were a surprise. We have selected one name, but twins have us stumped. A $5 reward will be paid to any one submitting the names we select. Address replies to Box 7199, World-Herald."

The story centers around Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. Day, who were hoping for twin sons in January, and who were flabbergasted when twin daughters arrived. Mrs. Day is the former Jessamine Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meyer of Burwell, and also well known in Ord. Grandpa Howard

J. Day decided upon the ad as a good way to get suitable names. The Days got 400 answers, including one from Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Haught of Ord, who suggested the names of Mrs. Day and her younger sister, Jessamine and Jacqueline. They finally agreed on Beverly Ann and Barbara Lee. One lady had suggested Beverly and another Barbara, so Grandpa Day paid each of them $5 for their help.

The Days could not decide upon names for the twins until after they had gone home from the hospital, and then, two weeks later, Mrs. Day went back for an appendectomy, and the twins went with her. They liked it so well that they stayed a month, and so that is the reason that the story was so long delayed.

E. L. Ball, sr., Writes.

To the Editor of the Quiz: Back in January I had a lot of stuff wrote up, some of it taking up a lot of territory and time, back over 2,000 years!

Those old time notes and pictures appearing in the Quiz starts my memory to work, so many people and things that happened during the 58 years since I first saw Ord.

Stayed all night with W. A. Anderson and wife in their sod shanty on their claim south of the sand flats. We had come up Wallace Creek and sand flats from Scotia.

There the Elm Creek road had become a trail across the sand flats. This trail we turned into, soon going northeast over a few low sand hills into a valley, then over another low hill.

Your road and water picture in the Quiz of March 12 started me on this trail lingo. Amos Harris' homestead was five miles southeast of Ball's ranch.

The Sunday school shown was made up with the T. B. Lane, Joe Nelson, E. Hurlbert, Clint Upham, St Peterson, the Fuson and Ball families, organized in 1895.

I got a lot of kick out of all this, that Igu. Klima is making good the reputation of his former Valley county office holding countrymen, and I am proud of him.

I haven't forgot my last chat with you. I am within two months of 50 years old. I was born in the heat of war, and will most likely pass out in a worse heat of war.

Home of the White Horse Inn

I consider Joe Knezack's Fort Hartsuff bill most important. Joe, if that bill becomes a success, you will have accomplished a long desired hope.

If I remember right it was Maude Goodenow, who bought an old post-office for a keepsake and had it moved to their old home place.

I had a feeling I had missed something. A good share of my life had been spent where roads were trails.

In 1806 his son, my grandfather, was fifteen years old. Later this son served under Andrew Jackson in the war of 1812 from Knoxville, Tenn.

All these years since I have had a pronounced dread of war. My father, like thousands of others, died in rain in the last World war, for now it has to be done all over.

It is a satisfaction to know that the man who aspired to fill the president's place is a man big enough to overlook any disappointments he may have felt and to join the president in this fight for liberty.

I never had any confidence in Russia, and Russia is not far off from the United States' weakest point and Canada's west coast, so near wide open.

I sometimes feel that suspicion is a nuisance after all, but it is used a lot. I am doing little work so I listen to the radio, recall the past, dig back into history, read the papers and wear out the paper reading the Burwell Tribune and the Quiz with all those pictures and notes of "When You and I Were Young."

I haven't forgot my last chat with you. I am within two months of 50 years old. I was born in the heat of war, and will most likely pass out in a worse heat of war.

My seven sons registered in the last World War. Now the 5th son is registered in Canada. The situation is getting more gloomy as preparations increase with shuddering fear.

The Red Cross is very much alive. Rural districts all over are making it a business. At our school a bazaar is held once a month and $15 to $40 is taken in each time.

I was in Edmonton last June when a trainload of enlisted men and some nurses left. Several trainloads had already gone from Calgary and Edmonton.

It seemed the train could never move although steam hissed from the engine and the whistle blew and the bell rang a low, mournful tone for so long before it finally ceased out. The band drowned all else until the train was out of sight.

She says that her father hauled the logs for his cabin from Grand Island, each round trip taking a week. Her cousin, Gladys Stacy Meyers (Arthur Stacy's daughter) was the first white baby born in Ord.

Over at the otherwise well behaved town of Palmer there is complaint that people are disturbing the local picture show with talking and in other ways not specifically named.

Drilling is to be started within six days on an oil well in the vicinity of Neligh, and there is a lot of excitement over the prospect as may well be supposed.

Lieut. Galen Jones of Blair's CCC camp, an inexperienced angler, recently hooked and landed a six pound, three ounce bass at one of the sand pits near town.

A hobo essayed to paint the Ravenna flag pole recently, but, after putting up a number of ladders and falling off once without injury to himself, he finally decided to drink that the authorities ordered him out of town, and the pole is still without a new coat of paint.

R. L. Clinch and F. A. McDermott of Greeley recently bought the F. M. Spalding Lumber company of Greeley and will run it under the name of the Greeley Lumber company.

Charles Radl was auctioneer for a community sale held at the Farmers Union at Comstock yesterday.

John Oschner of Comstock is president of the Loup Valley Associated Chamber of Commerce, having been elected last week.

The Scotia fire department was called to the Bredthauer store last Monday afternoon, when a truck box in the rear was burning.

Cedar county and other places in the state have been reporting a salesman selling an alleged publication called the Capitol Press, which was working in the interests of their monthly assistance payments.

Last week, without any special notice except a statement on the front page, the Howard County Herald completed fifty years of publication.

They're Saying NO!

Beer retailers are frequently asked to violate the law. But they're saying "No" — because they know that a clean, law-abiding establishment is the best "insurance policy" their business can have.

That is why most beer retailers want and cooperate with the Brewing Industry's Self-Regulation program. They want to be among the great reputable majority of retailers who know that good conduct is good business.

You can help us — by patronizing only the reputable places where beer is sold and by reporting to us any objectionable conditions you may observe.

Achievement Days Observed Tuesday
County Meetings Held at Both Arcadia and Ord With Splendid Programs.

Tuesday, April 22, was Achievement Day, and members of all the extension clubs in this part of Valley county were present for the occasion. There were 115 persons in attendance when the program got under way shortly after 1:30 p. m. The meeting was held in the K. of C. hall and Mrs. John L. Andersen was presiding officer.

The first number on the program was community singing, led by Mrs. J. W. Severns, with Mrs. James Ollis as accompanist. Next was a talk by Miss Ellen Anderson, the author of a number of the bulletins studied by the clubs last year. Her talk was interesting and most instructive.

Miss Anderson's talk was followed by more community singing, after which the meeting was entertained by three soloists from the high school. Alex. Cochran sang a bass solo, "Trumpeter," Adolph Urbanovsky played a tuba solo, "Billy Blower," Miss Patricia Frazier sang "The Lady With Delicate Air," Miss Margaret Petka acted as accompanist for all the solos.

Then there was more community singing, after which the members of the H. O. A. club gave the playlet, "Dad Appreciates Mother's Talents." Following this, Miss Dolcie Waterman, past president, gave a talk on "Exhibit Highlights," calling attention to some of the outstanding features of the club exhibits. Mrs. A. A. Wiegard, group chairman, then announced that the 5th annual convention of the Nebraska council of home demonstration clubs would be held at Hastings, June 18, 19 and 20.

Miss Verna Glandt, extension instructor, then called the group leaders to the front of the room for "Leader Recognition." She presented each of the group leaders with a card, and also a potted verberna. In behalf of the clubs, Mrs. Andersen then presented Miss Glandt with a gift in honor of her approaching marriage. Mrs. John Andersen, county chairman, was presented with a gold pin. The meeting closed with a tea.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. John Andersen and C. C. Dale drove to Arcadia to attend the Arcadia Achievement Day program. Mrs. Blinn Wibbels is group chairman for the Arcadia groups, and had charge of the session. The Arcadians had a very lovely program, which opened with a novel flag salute, with a lady dressed as Uncle Sam and children attired as soldiers, sailors and Red Cross nurses.

A lady was dressed up as a grandmother, and gave an "Old-fashioned Album" program. As she looked through the album and described the dresses worn by the early day relatives, these dresses were worn and displayed by ladies on the stage. Old time dresses were donated for this purpose by pioneer ladies of Arcadia, and the changes in dress were shown from very early days down to the present time.

There was a very fine display of hobbies and handicraft. One of the most interesting displays was a bed spread owned by Mrs. John Wall, which is 175 years old. The program lasted for 2½ hours, but nobody realized it was so long, as all were much interested. Both men and women attended the meeting, and there was a much larger crowd than at Ord.

Miss Ellen Anderson, Miss Verna Glandt and C. C. Dale were on the program. Mr. Dale presented each of the group leaders with a potted verberna. The county officers for the extensions clubs are: Mrs. John L. Andersen, county chairman; Mrs. A. A. Wiegard, chairman for the Ord groups; and Mrs. Elmer Wibbels, chairman for the Arcadia groups.

of line, had its telegraph service cut off Saturday, and it was not cleared up until 8 a. m. Monday. The motor made its last two trips on the Ord-Burwell route under difficulties. There were temporary interruptions to the telegraph service on the Union Pacific line, but all business was transacted as usual. Union Pacific trains ran on time during the storm.

The high school students were snowbound at Broken Bow, where they had gone for the district music contest, and Williams did not attempt to make the trip back to Ord with his busses until Sunday. They finally arrived in Ord about noon Sunday, having had to go around by way of Cairo and Hannsberg and up over Highway No. 11 from Midway corner.

The regular bus service was maintained between Grand Island and Burwell, but the busses were somewhat behind schedule. Autos in the ditch were a common sight all along the highways, and most of the country roads were impassable. The heavy fall of snow, and the rain of the day before made a mire of most of the roads.

Weatherman Horace Travis reported a total of 1.11 inches of moisture for the 24 hour period ending at 6 a. m. Sunday, making a grand total of 1.50 inches for the week, and 3.18 so far for April. The snowfall figured 10½ inches Saturday. The total moisture since Oct. 1, was 11.33 inches, compared with 2.91 inches for the corresponding period of 1933-34, and the total of 10.91 for the entire year of 1934.

The snow was so wet that it stayed where it would do the most good. Old timers say that prospects were never better at this time of the year.

Pres. A. B. Clark Proposes Modern Telephone System

Company Would Build Fire-proof Structure, Install Equipment but Would Raise Rates.

A. B. Clark, president of the Nebraska Continental Telephone company, told members of the Ord Chamber of Commerce at their April meeting Thursday night that his company is prepared to build a new fire-proof telephone building in Ord and install completely modern common battery equipment to furnish the best of service but that rates must be raised if this is done.

An additional investment of $28,000 will be required and proposed rates for the new service are $4.25 for business telephones and $2.25 for residence telephones. Present rates range from $1.50 and $3.00 for ground magnet service to $2.00 and $4.00 for common battery service, with most patrons paying $1.75 and $3.50 for metallic magnet service.

The building his company proposes to build would be not less than 25 by 60 feet in size and would occupy the site of the present telephone office, said Mr. Clark. It probably would be air-conditioned.

Cost of the new switchboard was estimated at about $10,000. Every telephone in the city would be replaced with a new monophone of either wall or desk type, he said.

At the March meeting of the Chamber the telephone official had promised a proposal within a week or ten days, which would have given the Chamber's telephone committee a chance to study it and make recommendations as to its adoption or rejection by the Chamber at the April meeting, but increasing costs of all materials due to the defense emergency made it necessary to refigure everything, thus causing a delay, said Clark. He made a special trip to Chicago for this purpose, he said, and returned barely in time to reach Ord for the Thursday night meeting.

Rural telephone service and rates would not be affected if the proposed change is made, he said, but every one of the company's telephones in Ord would be affected. Practically perfect service would be assured by the new system, he promised.

North Loup—George Eberhart and Bud Beebe went to the sand hills after a bad hay Sunday. While waiting for the baler to operate George attempted to crank a tractor and the crank flew off hitting him in the mouth. His lip was badly cut and bruised and several teeth were broken.

Speakers Talk on Defense Program for AAA Farmers

Explain Changes in Program to Meet National Defense Needs and Requirements.

An interesting meeting of AAA precinct committeemen, county committeemen and representatives of the district and state was held yesterday at the Legion hall. The entire program was of special interest because of the part organized agriculture will play in national defense, and because the meeting was held to explain what is expected of the farmer.

At the beginning of the afternoon program County Chairman Charles Veleba explained the program briefly and then called upon Ed Catterson, field man for the agricultural extension service, to explain the present position of the farmer in relation to the defense program.

Mr. Catterson stated that it might seem that the Triple-A has done an about face in the past few months, and that it has changed from crop control to an adjusted crop program. While it is true that our nation as a whole has a plentiful supply of the less concentrated products of the farm, there is a need of the more concentrated products.

He listed among these pork, butter, lard, condensed and evaporated milk and even evaporated eggs. He said the situation now is different from what it was in 1917, and he urged that the farmer produce as efficiently and economically as he can that concentrated product for which he is best equipped.

He said that what our nation needs today is not that every man go in for raising everything he can on as large a scale as possible, but that he increase his efficiency in production. He said that the statement has been made that the efficient feeding of chickens in Nebraska would increase their productivity by 30% without increasing the number of chickens now owned.

Mr. Catterson explained the so-called pegging of prices by saying that when the price of hogs dropped below 9c, the surplus commodities corporation would step in and buy enough to stabilize the price. He said the farm program had changed since 2 years ago, but that two years ago the paper-hanger of Munich was not riding all over Europe, as he is today.

He stated that it is up to the farmer today to farm efficiently or he will go out of business. He said that it was a fairly safe assumption that the prices of today of farm products would be

Spikes Hands Down Decision in Case of Weller Appeal

Value of Weller Farm Reduced to Ten Thousand Dollars for Taxing Purposes.

In a decision handed down Monday of this week, District Judge William F. Spikes decided the E. C. Weller farm should be valued at $10,000 for tax purposes instead of the $18,400 at which it was assessed. This was the case of E. C. Weller, complainant and appellant, vs. the county board of equalization, the county board of supervisors, and the State of Nebraska.

The case in point was the valuation of the 1260 acre ranch Mr. Weller bought last May from the John B. Hager estate. Weller paid only $8,500 for the land. The case was heard in district court at Ord March 3, and the district judge has had the case under advisement since that time.

When the board of equalization met last June Mr. Weller appeared before them and asked a reduction in valuation from $18,400 to $8,500, on the ground that this is the actual value of the farm. The board refused to make the reduction and Weller appealed the matter to the district court.

Attorneys Clarence M. Davis and E. L. Vogelitz, acting for Mr. Weller, are willing to accept the decision, although the reduction is not as much as had been asked, but John P. Misko, county attorney, was of the opinion Monday that he would probably take an appeal.

At the time of the hearing a number of men who know land values were placed on the stand, and gave values ranging all the way from $8,500 to $12,000. Incidentally the average of the various prices given by the different witnesses at that time was slightly under $10,000, the amount fixed upon by the judge as the value of the land.

The outcome of this case is being watched with interest, not only in Valley county but throughout the state, where much of the land is valued for assessment purposes at a price higher than it would bring if thrown on the market for immediate sale. For this reason the case will doubtless go to the Nebraska supreme court for final decision.

Cram's Labrador Wins Omaha Field Trials

Burwell—Dr. Roy Cram's Labrador dog, Jiggs, won first place in the field trials held Saturday at Omaha. The doctor received a beautiful silver loving cup standing about two feet high and a ribbon as awards for his dog's performance. Dr. Cram went to Omaha Friday for the purpose of handling his dog. Jiggs is a litter mate of Cheer, the bitch which won a championship at the show in Minneapolis.

Annual Play Day Thursday in Scotia

The annual play day for the Loup Valley schools was held on Thursday afternoon in Scotia. A bus load of 20 girls with Miss Ruth Kernodle as sponsor and W. F. Williams as driver went from Ord. The games started at 1 p. m., and continued until 4. Representative groups from ten different schools were in attendance. This is the annual play day and the groups mix together in the play, so that it is all for amusement and not on a competitive basis.

Duane Woods was quite seriously bruised last week when he became mixed up with a runaway team and a hay rake. No bones were broken, but he will feel the effects of the accident for some time.

Attempting to Prove Guilt of John Birkes

Staff of prosecutors in charge of the Birkes cases are pictured here. They are A. F. Alder, county attorney of Loup county, at the right, Rush Clark, assistant attorney general, center, and Glenn Runyan, Burwell attorney who is a special assistant. Except for final argument to the jury, the state is expected to complete its case against John Birkes today but still has similar charges against Richard and Willard Birkes to prosecute.

John Birkes Completes Defense Evidence Tuesday, Case Will Go to Jury Tomorrow

These Men Must Decide if Birkes Guilty or Innocent, Sane or Insane

A double question faces this group of men, the jury in the John Birkes case, for when testimony is completed they not only must decide if the defendant fired the shot that killed Sheriff George Brock but also must say whether he was sane or insane, within the legal meaning of those terms, on October 16, 1940. Members of the jury are: Top row, left to right: Carl Sorensen, Lyle Milliken, E. B. Vodehnal, Frank Van-chura, Frank Krikac; center row—William Gogan, A. C. Wilson, James Mortensen, John Wozab; bottom row—Hilding Pearson, George Clement, Guy Sample.

Davis Creek and Springdale Win North Loup Meet

22 Schools Compete in Annual Track and Scholastic Event Held Last Friday.

(Special to The Quiz) North Loup—The tenth annual rural track meet held here Friday gave Davis Creek first and Valley-side second place among two-room schools and Springfield first and Olean second among one-room schools. Twenty-two schools were entered, with a total of 254 contestants.

Avery Noll, Valley-side, was high point student of the entire meet, with 25 of these being won in the scholastic meet. It was a notable fact that he won every scholastic event he entered. He is a tenth grader. Mildred Fish, Olean, was high point girl with 11 points to her credit, 3 1/2 scholastic and 2 1/2 track and field.

Davis Creek had a total of 66 points, only 12 being won in the scholastic while 54 were piled up in the track and field meet. Valley-side had a total of 57 points and won 33 of these in the scholastic and 19 in track and field. This school was outstanding in scholastic contests, the nearest competitor being Deer Creek which had a total of 17 points won in the scholastic.

Teachers at Davis Creek are Eleanor Holmes and Genevieve Wilkie, and at Valley side, Wilma Cook and Minnie Jensen. At Springdale Mildred Timmerman is teacher, and at Olean, Mildred Hrdy. Haskell Creek, third two-room school, was late in arriving and failed to get into the scholastic events in the morning but won 31 points in track and field in the afternoon. Had they been on hand in the morning, the final results might have been different. Springdale had a total of 28 points and Olean 24 1/2.

Supt. Willis feels that this is the most successful meet in the ten years they have been held. The number of schools entered was larger than ever before as was the registration. Faculty members acted as scorers and the tests were given by the grade teachers. Judges were school patrons. Contestants brought basket dinners and hot chocolate was furnished for all at the school house by the Community club. Mrs. Earl Howell and Mrs. Martin Watts made the hot drink. North Loup schools were dismissed for the day and most of the students attended the contests.

Burwell Takes Bassett Relays

Burwell—(Special)—With sixteen schools competing, Burwell had little trouble in capturing the Bassett relays Tuesday. The Longhorns scored 63 1/2 points to 29 1/2 for their closest competitors, Atkinson, Page had 24 1/2, Lynch 20 1/2 and Bassett 18.

Ord High School Golf Team Contests at York

The Ord two-man golf team went to York Saturday, where they contended with similar teams from a number of the larger towns in the state. They did very well, landing in second place behind Lincoln.

The standings of the three leading teams was: Lincoln, 163 strokes, Ord 179 strokes, and Grand Island, 183 strokes. The members of the Ord team were Raymond Furtak and Billy Malolepszy.

Interviews L. B. Fenner. Burwell—(Special)—Miss Lula May Cole, feature writer for a Lincoln newspaper, spent Saturday here interviewing L. B. Fenner about his experiences in Yugoslavia where he spent several months in Red Cross work during the World war.

Rainfall Heavy, Well Distributed in April

Horace Travis is happy these days, and with good reason. For the past six months his work as weather reporter has been a pleasant one, with plenty of moisture to report each month. After the long period of dry weather, he says it is pleasant relief to record something different.

A fine rain last night and early this morning brought .56 of an inch of moisture, and brought the total for April up to 3.77 inches, well above the normal amount. This also brought the total since Oct. 1 up to 11.92 inches, with the two rainiest months, May and June, still to be heard from. The splendid thing about all the moisture is that it has come in such a way that very little has been lost at any time, and the fields are wetter today than at any May 1st in years. It is claimed that, if the soil is thoroughly soaked on the first day of May, a small grain crop and the first cutting of alfalfa is practically assured.

Valley County Spellers Attended State Contests

Friday Miss Clara McClatchey, county superintendent, and Miss Marcia Rood of North Loup took Wayne Barber, Dist. 1, North Loup, Billy Wedel, Dist. 21, Arcadia, and Willard Stowell, Dist. 6, Springdale, to Omaha, where they took part in the Interstate and World-Herald spelling contests. While none got into the finals, they made a good showing and had a fine time.

Billy Wedel took part in the World-Herald contest, and the other two boys in the Interstate. The county superintendents in charge of the Interstate decided not to continue the contest in the future, so there will be none next year. So far as is known at present, the World-Herald contest will be continued.

Miss McClatchey and the boys were guests in the E. H. Petty home while in Omaha, and Miss Rood was a guest of Mrs. John Stewart. They were also taken on a trip over Omaha, South Omaha and Council Bluffs by a friend of Billy Wedel's brother. They also visited Boys Town, and Wayne Barber told his school mates all about it Monday morning, speaking for more than half an hour. What the other boys did has not yet been reported.

Ravenna Winner, Ord High Second in Mid-Six Meet

Broken Bow Takes Jr. Meet; Ord's New Cinder Track Gets First Tryout.

Yesterday was cool and damp, but not enough to dampen the ardor of the Mid-Six athletes who met in the first track meet held on Ord's new athletic field. Five new records were set in the senior meet, and one was tied. In the junior division two of the existing records were tied.

Coach Neil Gallant of Ravenna has a right to feel proud of his boys, who successfully defended their Mid-Six track championship by scoring a total of 58 1/2 points and winning eight first places.

Ord managed to land in second place with 40 points. St. Paul placed third with 23 points, Broken Bow fourth with 20, Loup City fifth with 6 1/2, and Arcadia sixth with 5. Christensen of Ord scored the most individual points with 11.

Ord Loses First Game to North Loup Sunday

Playing with comparatively little practice, due to the wet weather this spring, the Ord team went down to defeat before the expert pitching of Sheldon in their contest with North Loup Sunday. The final score was 13 to 2.

Ord happened to be weak in the pitching department, both Henry Misko and Ernie Piskorski being ineffective. Russell Jensen, who pitched the last two innings, did well enough, but it was then too late. Ord will meet Ashton at Ord next Sunday.

P. E. O. Convention Held in Fremont

The state P. E. O. convention was held in Fremont from Wednesday until Saturday of last week. There were three ladies who attended from Ord, Mrs. C. C. Thompson, Mrs. Mark Tolon and Mrs. L. D. Milliken.

Mrs. A. S. Koupal of Lincoln was elected state president for the coming year. She still is a member of the BB chapter of Ord. The convention next year will be held at York.

Attend Meeting of State Youth Council

(Special to the Quiz) North Loup—Rev. J. A. Adams drove to Lincoln Friday morning accompanied by Martha Miller, Irene King, Grace Manchester and Mary Babcock. They went down to attend the Nebraska Youth Council held there Friday and Saturday. Although the attendance was small, the meetings were very interesting and they feel they received much benefit from them. Friday evening they met in the gymnasium of the 1st Plymouth Congregational church where they played folk games and got acquainted with each other. Saturday morning and afternoon classes were held in the Trinity Methodist church. One class discussed the Youth Council and its problems. Rev. Adams and his party returned Saturday afternoon.

Birkes "Incurable Chronic Paranoiac" Says State Witness

Couldn't Have Known Difference Between Right and Wrong When Shot Fired.

State expectations of proving John Birkes sane and also proving him guilty of firing the shot that killed Sheriff George Brock were given a set-back this morning—and by their own witnesses.

Dr. G. Alexander Young, of Omaha, one of the most eminent psychiatrists in the middle west, testified this morning that Birkes is a "chronic, incurable paranoiac." At the moment of the scuffle at Valley View, if he fired the shot that killed Brock, he could not have known he was performing a wrongful act, said Young in response to a hypothetical question asked him by Rush Clark, assistant attorney general helping County Attorney A. F. Alder with the case.

Birkes was openly jubilant as he listened to this portion of Dr. Young's testimony.

The alienist said Birkes undoubtedly could distinguish the difference between right and wrong at most times but that at the moment of the affray the excitement and his paranoiac delusions inevitably must have overpowered this sense.

To prove Birkes guilty and exact the death penalty, the state must prove him sane in a legal sense—namely, that he knew the difference between right and wrong at the moment the act was committed.

Dr. G. D. Dishong, another Omaha alienist, corroborated Dr. Young's testimony almost in its entirety. Both men were put on the stand by the state, supposedly as rebuttal witnesses to the testimony offered Tuesday by two defense alienists, Dr. Herman Dickel and Dr. Juul C. Nielsen, of Hastings State hospital, both of whom testified in a vein similar to that taken by the Omaha experts.

JOHN BIRKES.

Attorneys Thomas W. Lanigan and William P. Mullen rested their defense of Birkes at 4:40 Tuesday afternoon.

Earlier in the trial the defendant had accused Alfred Scherzberg, of Valley View, as firing the shot that killed Sheriff Brock, and in statements given to Custer county officials soon after the shooting—introduced in evidence here in the form of depositions—he had accused William Cronk and Charlie Cronk of having guns and firing shots during the Valley View affray. To combat such evidence the state introduced four Valley View men as rebuttal witnesses late Tuesday, all telling stories contradicting Birkes' various statements about the affray.

Prospects are at noon today that the state will rest its case immediately after the noon recess. Attorney Lanigan may make a motion for a directed verdict of insanity but it is unlikely that this will be granted. If the case continues, arguments to the jury will likely consume the rest of today and Thursday morning, with the case going to the jury Thursday afternoon.

The state completed its case at 1:35 last Wednesday and from 2:00 until court adjourned Friday evening for the week end the defense had the defendant himself on the witness stand.

When court resumed Monday morning John Birkes again was placed on the witness stand and Attorney Lanigan asked him: "After you were taken to Broken Bow did you make a statement to Mr. Evans, county attorney of Custer county?"

"Yes, he interviewed me next day," Birkes answered. Other people present included the Loup county attorney, A. F. Alder, and For more complete details turn to pages 10 and 9 of this issue.

NEBRASKA'S WAY BEST.

One of the Quiz exchanges, the Ironwood Times, Ironwood, Mich., recently contained a cartoon which was of special interest. It represented a fellow called the Michigan Taxpayer in church, with a long row of deacons, labeled "15 Separate Tax Gathering Agencies," talking up the collection. Mr. Taxpayer says: "Wouldn't it be simpler if I put it all into one collection plate?"

We do not know how total state taxes in Nebraska compare with those elsewhere, but we do know that the average person pays all his state taxes at the one place, the county treasurer's office. It is true that most of us pay a gasoline tax, but it is added to the price of gasoline, and we don't have to be reminded of it every time we pay it. Income taxes are federal, so they don't count in the figuring. Yes, here in Nebraska we pay our taxes in one place, and we get a receipt showing just what part of the tax is for certain uses. It is all right there in black and white, and figured out to the penny. You can look at your receipt and tell how much you paid in taxes for the various items for which you are taxed, and you will have to agree that our Nebraska system is the best.

The items mentioned on your tax receipt are: State and county consolidated, school, school bond, high school, old age assistance, poll tax, township tax, city tax, advertising tax, interest, fee, and the total. Of course nobody pays all these taxes, but they must be included on the receipt, since somebody pays taxes in each column. The printed words at the top of the column tell which tax it is and the amount filled in below tells how much you pay for that item.

Yes, your Nebraska tax receipt does your bookkeeping for you, and the extra work is taken care of at the treasurer's office without any added expense. It is also a fact that taxes are low in Nebraska as compared with the surrounding states, even if they do seem to be too high. It is undoubtedly true that our per capita tax in Nebraska is lower than in Michigan, and we pay it through one agency, the treasurer's office.

THAT ORD-ERICSON ROAD. Away back in the early days of Valley county, W. A. Anderson, A. J. Campbell, W. W. Looftbourrow and other settlers in the northeast part of Noble township needed a way to get to Ord. A road was early established as far north as the Brick school, Dist. No. 23, and from there on pioneer roads were made following the line of least resistance. With a few changes that road exists today as the Ord-Ericson road in Valley county.

The Nebraska legislature of 1919 authorized and established the road then known as No. 51 as one of the State-Federal highway system. No. 51 was the original of present No. 11 and led from Grand Island to Burwell. In 1921 this road was designated as the Grand Island and Black Hills highway. In the year 1920 it was graded all the way thru the county under the direction of W. J. Hather, then county highway commissioner.

At a session of the county board of supervisors held May 22, 1919, Axel Lindhartsen, supervisor for Dist. 1, offered a resolution, the gist of which was as follows: That, in view of the action of the legislature mentioned above, and since the present Sumter road had been laid out and recommended to the state engineer, that a road leading to Ericson along present lines be laid out and placed in condition acceptable as a Federal-State road.

This road followed the present lines, except that it went a mile south from the J. B. Beranek corner to connect with the Sumter road instead of turning west there as it does now, the object being to connect with an established and recommended state road. The vote of Supervisors Rathbun, Vodehnal, Fisher, Lindhartsen, Rowell and Rottenmayer was unanimous for the road, and Chairman Alvin Blessing favored it also.

The record of that session was kept by Joseph T. Knezacek, then county clerk. It will soon be 22 years since this road was designated for improvement, and during that time residents of the northeast part of the county have been faced with the necessity of traveling over a road that has been fair in fair weather, and bad when the weather was bad. What they need is an all-weather road.

In the Quiz last week was outlined the plan whereby the Ord-Ericson road may soon be completed, and residents of both towns will welcome the improvement. Ordites have used that road for several decades in going to Ericson to fish and for picnics. Residents of the Ericson territory have used it in coming to Ord to trade and for county seat business. All should be gratified that this needed improvement is coming at last.

WORK, WAR AND PLAY. Over in Europe Hitler is working late and rising early, planning, planning, selecting the next small opponent to take into protective custody; planning for war, not for peace; planning to destroy, not to build. In Italy Mussolini is crowing over the progress made by his troops following the Greeks retreating before the German war machine.

Neither of these men has a moment for play. We are told that Hitler celebrated his 52nd, and his last, birthday at the front, planning his future moves. Over in Russia another dictator is on the job, watching, watching, watching. He is wondering what Hitler will do next, and when the time is right, Stalin will strike. He, too, has no time for play.

Here in America, we are going through one of the most momentous periods in our nation's existence. Billions are being spent for defense, billions for aid to Britain. No man can say how soon we will be in even deeper, or whether we will weather the storm without the shipwreck of war. This is a time, if ever, that we need perfect performance from all men in public life.

And yet, in a time like this, the president of the United States takes time out to fish. He even takes time out to attend the opening game of the Washington Senators and to throw out the first ball in that game. Not that he could throw it so well, perhaps. We know two or three fellows in Ord who could throw it (the ball) more effectively. But he threw it, just the same.

And did we Americans hold up our hands in horror when the president fished, or when he threw the ball? Shame on us! We not only did not voice our disapproval, but many of us were attending ball games, and many were fishing. Yes, we will get our share of play all through the year, and when the accomplishments are listed at the end, we will find that we did better than the dictator nations.

There are two things we have in America that dictator nations lack. We can play here, and no one man is essential. God pity that nation in which one man is so important that no other man can take his place. Let the president play, if he wishes. He certainly has earned a rest. There are other men who can take his place while he fishes, and they do. If he should quit entirely our nation would go on, just the same.

Our nation is great, because no one man is absolutely necessary. We are great because we can laugh, because we can see the point of a joke, because we can play, because we can go fishing, because we can attend the great American game, baseball. No nation loses its grip on the things worth while so long as it retains its sense of humor, and the greatest humorists of the world has ever known were Americans.

WHAT WOULD THEY THINK.

Now that the latest battles of Thermopylae and Marathon have been fought, we cannot but wonder just what Leonidas and his 300 Spartans would have thought if they could have returned from that land beyond the river Styx and found themselves opposed by the mighty German war machine. They would doubtless have been so filled with terror that they could not have fought at all.

With their antiquated weapons they would have formed no obstacle whatever to the onrushing tanks, and by no stretch of the imagination could they have destroyed a single dive bomber. By the time the foot soldiers, with whom they might have made some showing in hand-to-hand encounter, had arrived, there would be none of them left to fight.

Yet they were the greatest soldiers of their day, and vastly superior to the invading hordes of Persia. Yes, we have come a long way in the art of making war. One wonders just where we would be today if all nations had thrown away their weapons in the day of Leonidas, and applied themselves instead to the works of peace.

Since the beginning of time, when one half of the men in the world killed the other half, we have been killing and being killed, and the slaughter will continue so long as time shall last. In years of peace the world builds towards better things and then along comes an Alexander, a Napoleon, or even a Hitler, and we find ourselves farther back than when we started.

Snow in California

An Octet of Ord's Fairest—Photo by Westberg. Perhaps 35 Years Ago

Shirt waists were all the rage when this photo was taken, and they were very classy indeed, as you will have to admit. Also, you will agree that the Ord girls of that day, were not hard to look at. Now, before you read the next paragraph, look them over carefully and see how many you know.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Written by GEORGE GOWZEN

Salesmanship Profiteering War in North Loup No Fancy Writing

Salesmanship. Rather amusing are some of the sales I made in the little second hand joint I operated for a year or two. I have had a number of experiences like the one I will relate here.

I had a small sideboard around the joint for at least six months and in all that time there was not a buyer who seemed at all interested in it. To my surprise one evening a man, John Doe, was looking it over and asked the price. There were several people about. John, after a few minutes, walked out.

He had no more that left than Dick Smith stepped up and asked the price, looking it over and said he would take it if he could pay for it next week. I said I would sell it to him and that was that.

In less than ten minutes Doe came back and said he guessed he would take that sideboard. I told him I was sorry but I had sold it. He replied, a little plucked, "you just priced it to me and I went and saw my wife and she said to buy it."

I explained that I had sold it since he left to Smith but I know he (Doe) hardly believed me. Smith stepped up then and said, "Oh, let him have it. I didn't know, I was butting in on your deal. I was at a loss to know what to say."

"Now, you keep it," Doe returned and then those men debated a few minutes who would take it, each wanting to let the other have it. Finally Doe left and the sale seemed to stand with Smith.

The next day Doe called me and then saw me too and said as long as Smith was willing to give the sideboard up, he guessed he would take it. His wife wanted it badly. I was rather pleased for this was a cash deal, so I answered, "All right, but I'll see Smith and tell him so you both won't be taking it."

I saw Smith in a few minutes and told him, "Doe has decided to take the sideboard, and I thought I better let you know."

"Oh gosh," he answered quickly, "I can't give it up now. I told my wife and she is all excited over it. I'll have to take it now."

And the funny part of it was I had that sideboard for six months without one person asking the price.

Profiteering.

By some hook or crook my mother, then in Long Beach, bought some two cent stamps thinking they were threes. She did not look at them closely and proceeded to mail her letters with them. One came through to me without a hitch but the second one was held up in the Long Beach post office.

I at once dropped a card telling her to do that no more and when she realized what she had done she knew she had sent a number of letters out with only a two cent stamp on them. She went to the post office there, wanting to put on the other stamp but the clerks there, rather indolently too, she thought, said they could do nothing about it. The sendees would have to mail back the other cent to get the letters. This embarrassed my mother considerably, but she could do nothing about it.

They wrote me a card for the second letter, telling me if I would send them another cent stamp they would then send my letter to me. I did not have a one cent stamp but I did have a 1 1/2 cent one so I put it in a 3 cent stamped letter and mailed it to them. Those folks in Long Beach must be a thrifty lot for they traded the 1 1/2 cent stamp I sent for a one cent, pasted it on my letter and mailed it out. They made 1/2 cent on the deal anyway.

No Fancy Writing Here.

How many of you noticed the color of the snow that fell so wet and thick a week ago Saturday? I was one of those people who was out in the storm. I thought when I got stuck about the tenth time that I was the biggest chump ever. I am not sure about that now looking back. I had been invited out to dinner; my errand was not simply some dinky business deal.

Well, the mud was bad under the snow; the water even ran if there was slope enough. And the snow would ball and pile up in great gobs in front of the car so that every little way I had to get out with scoop and throw it aside.

And there is where I saw the color of it. As I would break the snow apart to scoop it back I would see it was a beautiful light blue, like the sky on a bright day, or like rinse water after it is blueed, or like the color of my wife's eyes when I used to look into them long ago.

I had never seen anything like it and called her out of the car to see it too. I did not know, but it was the heavy amount of water that was contained. The sun had nothing to do with it for the sky was overcast.

Adelaide said she never had seen anything like it either, but she recalled of having read in a story of Alaska, about the blue snow there. At the time she thought it only fictitious, or some author trying to write pretty phrases.

I assured her writers never do that, and especially writers for the Quiz.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

Imagine the trials and troubles of the poor newspaper man, especially when it comes to writing proper names. Last week we had an item which mentioned Elvin Frolik, state agronomist. Not so long ago there lived in Burwell a man named George R. Froehlich. Frolik or Froehlich, they are pronounced exactly alike, but they certainly are spelled differently.

There might be something more to that car number that Sam Marks uses than meets the eye. His number is 47-517. George Round's number is 47-571. In case Samuel should run for sheriff some time and be elected it would be a simple matter to turn the numbers around. While we are talking about it, Sam is certainly built for such a job. He is compact and close to the ground, and the tough boys would have some job shoving him around.

Fishing stories are all in order, so here are a couple of true ones. Last week, to keep from talking about the case, the jurors got to talking about real estate, and somebody asked John Wozab who was doing the most business in that line. He said that Thearon Beehrle was "turning more land than anybody." Asked for particulars he added that he was doing it while digging angle worms.

Friday night Clayt McGrew, Frank Glover and Beehrle went down to the John Masin place east of Ord to fish in a pond there. They had to leave the car, cross the railroad, crawl through a fence, cross a bridge to get to the fishing spot. They had good luck, and Glover caught the best fish of all. When they started back to the car Glover was the last to leave. When he failed to arrive Thearon went back to look for him and found that he was tangled up in the fence so that he couldn't get loose without help. Well, anyhow, he caught the biggest fish, which is something.

Something Different

Once again the Business and Professional Girls' group have done something while the rest of us talked about it.

The milk fund for underweight children was about to give way beneath the strain. Other clubs talked.

The young women assessed themselves a dollar a head and the milk fund was once more solvent and ready for business.

Fred Bell was quite a person. Probably in his time he caused as much conversation as any man in Ord, fooling with his dangerous newfangled contraptions, from which he got such a lift.

In turn, he never forgot Ord nor ceased to love its people. One of his last acts was to telephone to engage the same tables in the park at Long Beach where the Ord group had picnicked yearly, on the same date.

And now his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Perry Bell, better known as Little Ninety Bill, will head the Ord-in-California group, which seems suitable to me.

What a lot of kinds of people it does take to make our world! There's the woman with several children whose husband insists she contribute to the family income, so she has a job. Now one of the children is in reform school, a sad and vicious result of no guidance when he needed it. But show me how the law could legally order that father horsewhipped as he deserves?

There is the girl who had a bad ache in her back. The doctor ordered her to keep an electric pad on it. She minded so well that she burned her back badly, and cursed the electric pad many times in her mind.

A little more examination disclosed the fact that her burns were regularly spaced long marks. Then Gladys tumbled to the fact that her burns were from hot corset stays.

Every year the park and recreation grounds at the northwest corner of our city get a bit more inviting and complete.

The tennis courts, for instance, are getting a good play already. But do all the tennis courts have to be out there?

I would like the tennis courts next door to Dr. Barta's residence to be weeded and marked and ased again. Even if the kids did wake me in the morning and holler long after dark on those courts.

Tennis courts should be so placed that no child has to trudge clear across town to use them. I am not worrying quite so much about the adults.

Isn't that a cunning bird house on the north edge of the golf course. Made to resemble a tiny church.

I am quite fond of those bird houses Bud thinks up. And then hammers up, paints up and hoists up.

Notes From the VALLEY COUNTY FARM BUREAU

By C. C. Dale

Hybrid Corn Intentions.

Acreeage of hybrid corn in Nebraska this year is now expected to exceed that of 1940. It is estimated by Frank Miller of the rural economics department at the College of Agriculture.

About 1,537,000 acres were planted to hybrids in Nebraska last year or approximately 23 per cent of the total corn acreage. Present indications are that 1,737,473 acres or 26 per cent of the corn area will be devoted to hybrids in 1941.

In Valley county, it is thought that there will be an increase in acreage devoted to hybrid corn. Checkup on 1940 corn planting and yields in the irrigated sections here, shows that about 40% of the irrigated acreage was planted to hybrid corn and according to the yields reported by the irrigators themselves, hybrids averaged between 10 and 11 bushels per acre greater than open-pollinated. This includes all hybrids and there were undoubtedly some hybrid varieties planted which are not well adapted to this section.

Interest in hybrids in Nebraska, of course, is greatest in the extreme eastern counties where rainfall has favored corn production. It declines rapidly in the central and western sections. Observers in all parts of Nebraska, except in non-irrigated western areas, expect an increase in the 1941 acreage as compared to 1940.

In the northeastern counties, about three-fourths of the 1940 acreage was hybrid. It is estimated that 94 per cent of the 1941 acreage will be planted to hybrids.

Pastures for Hogs.

Providing ample acreage of pastures for the increased hog numbers as a result of the national defense program is an important problem facing producers now. The most economical production cannot be accomplished without pastures.

Alfalfa is recommended by the extension service as the ideal pasture since it starts early in the spring and continues growth even after the first light freeze. When alfalfa is not available, sorghum and other annual crops can be used to advantage. For very early spring pasture, tall rye is unexcelled.

After this, spring sown oats or barley is ready for grazing. By the time these are gone sudan should be ready and will provide an abundance of pasture until freezing weather. After the spring grain ceases to supply grazing, the land may be plowed, summer fallowed until early fall, and then planted to fall rye. Where rye is planted early in the fall and when soil moisture conditions are good, much later fall and early winter grazing may be had from fall rye.

Experiments conducted at the Nebraska station have shown that a vigorous growth of alfalfa pasture may be worth as much as $70 per acre in terms of corn and tankage saved where grazing is extended over a period of 120 days. In another experiment covering a period of 70 days, the alfalfa pasture accounted for a saving of $28.00 per acre, and sudan $22.00. These experiments showed that sudan in full growth is about equal to alfalfa as a hog pasture. As an average for 30 experiments conducted throughout the United States where a number of different types of pasture were used, the average value of the pastures as represented by saving of corn and tankage was about $30.00 per acre. These pastures were grazed an average of 115 days.

Albert C. Busse Was a Visitor Here Last Week

Albert C. Busse, early day resident of Mira Valley, but who left and went to Madison, Wis., to make his home in 1888, arrived in Ord Wednesday of last week to spend a few days looking up old time acquaintances. He dropped into the Quiz office and visited with John L. Ward, whom he had not seen for 43 years.

He told of the sudden death of his brother-in-law, Howell McGraw, who passed away from heart trouble at his home in Madison about two months ago. Mr. Busse and his sister, Mrs. McGraw, left April 3 and went to Sacramento, to visit another brother, Fred, who lives there. Busse stopped here on the return trip, but Mrs. McGraw remained for a longer visit. This was his first Ord visit in 15 years.

Subversive Elements Active in America Adjutant Patterson Warns in Speech

R. C. (Cat) Patterson, adjutant of the American Legion for the Department of Nebraska, was in Ord Thursday and addressed the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. He came to Ord from Bassett, where he had delivered a speech the evening before.

At the close of the business session President C. J. Mortensen introduced Mr. Patterson, who had for his subject "Americanism." He told of the founding of the American Legion in 1919, and how many Americans doubtless wondered what the Legion boys would do when they came home from war.

He then recited the points mentioned in the preamble to the American Legion, and said that those who had any doubts probably breathed a sigh of relief when they heard it for they know that the boys who had fought the war for democracy were still true Americans, and had not been influenced by what they had seen in Europe.

He said that the boys who had served "over there" had seen other forms of government in operation, and had decided that the American way of life was the best and that it must be preserved. He said that Americanism was the prime motive in the founding of the organization and that it still was its principal purpose.

Of the many activities of the American Legion, the first was that necessary task of rehabilitating the veterans who had been left mental or physical wrecks as a result of the war. Then there was national education week, of which the American Legion was one of the founders.

He told how the American Legion has always been one of the first groups in the field in time of great disaster, their chief duty being that of policing the area and keeping order until the regular authorities were able to handle the situation. He mentioned what happened after the floods in northeast Nebraska as an instance in point.

He spoke of Legion Junior baseball, which taught citizenship through sportsmanship and which had proven a cure for juvenile delinquency in the towns where teams were organized. He mentioned the Boy Scout movement, in which the Legion is sponsoring 3,000 troops in the United States.

Then, four years ago, here in Nebraska the idea of Boys' State was started, teaching a representative group of young citizens the general plan of government. He spoke of the Legion's child welfare program for which the Legion has spent four and one half millions in the past year. For years now, through the Legion's efforts, a program of Americanism has been carried on in the public schools.

Since its founding the American Legion has been working for a program of reasonable national defense for defensive purposes only, and as a result the national defense act of 1920 was passed. However, because of lack of funds the act was ineffective. Now, after more than 20 years we are preparing in haste a program that should have been built through the years, and there is great and unavoidable waste.

He spoke of subversive groups in America, and said that America was at last awakening to the dangers from within, and that the work must not stop. He told of some of the un-American activities in Nebraska, and stated as facts some activities that hardly seemed possible at first, but of which the department had absolute proof. This information, sent in to the department officials, is promptly turned over to the department of justice.

Mr. Patterson made a statement that should be the slogan of every true American when he said: "Freedom of speech should stop where treason begins." He said also that in a time when totalitarian powers are carrying on a total warfare, America needed a total defense program, which means that every man, woman and child should have some part in it, and take care of that part.

He quoted Washington at Valley Forge: "Tonight, put only Americans on guard." Trust no vital part of our defense program to any whose ideas of Americanism are questionable seemed to be the thought behind Mr. Patterson's entire speech. When he closed, his efforts were greeted with great applause.

Judge E. G. Kroger was present and was introduced and spoke briefly along the line of our individual responsibility as citizens. Glenn A. Runyan, Burwell lawyer, was also introduced, but did not speak. At the close of the meeting Ben Clark and his assistant, Gerald Hatfield, served a luncheon of sandwiches, cookies and coffee.

No. Loup a Cleaner Town. North Loup—The clean-up day, postponed a week ago because of the bad weather was held Wednesday. BIRKES TRIAL

Star witness for the prosecution was Alfred Scherzberg, whose testimony came immediately after noon last Wednesday. Mr. Scherzberg was a member of the registration board at Valley View but had not remained in the store while Richard Birkes was registering, instead walking out into the yard to talk with John Birkes, who remained seated in his car.

Mr. Scherzberg was on the witness stand more than two hours. The high point of his testimony came when he related that he saw John Birkes shoot Sheriff Brock in the face. He held the gun about two inches from Brock's face, said Scherzberg, but Brock tossed his head before the gun was fired and the bullet may have traveled six inches before it struck his mouth.

Immediately after this shot he saw a plink froth appear on Brock's lips, said Scherzberg. Under severe cross-examination by Attorney Lanigan, the witness testimony stood up well though there was one point on which his testimony differed somewhat from that given at the preliminary examination held in Taylor some months ago.

Asked how many shots were fired during the affray Scherzberg said there were eight. He did not know who fired, the first two, he said, but he could account for the last six fired. He pointed the finger of blame at Richard Birkes as the aggressor in the scuffle between him and Brock and said that throughout the affray Brock was trying only to disarm Richard.

He further related that after shooting had stopped and Brock was lying face down on the ground, John Birkes stood over him, his revolver in both hands, and pointed the muzzle of the gun at the back of Brock's head. "My God man, don't shoot him again," Scherzberg said he shouted at Birkes. "The man then swung his gun around and pointed it at me, but he did not shoot, he said."

Richard had run to the car, stooped over and holding his stomach, and about that time he shouted "Come on, I got hit," the witness related. The witness following Scherzberg was Floyd Wikie, another member of the draft board, but he had little to add to the actual knowledge of the shooting as he admitted that when he first saw a gun appear in Brock's hand he "ran northwest" in the store room and sought cover.

When shooting stopped he went out on the porch but saw the men standing there with guns so he said to himself, "I came out too soon," and ran back into the store again. Asked how many shots he heard fired, Wikie answered: "I don't know, but I heard 'em all'."

The court room crowd laughed repeatedly at Wikie's testimony and Judge Kroger had to bang his gavel to restore order. Sheriff Raymond Johnson, of Garfield county, went on the witness stand and testified to threats made by the Birkes' against Sheriff Brock before the shooting scene at Valley View store. He also introduced in evidence a section of window casing from the store, bearing a bullet hole which was claimed to have been made by a .32 calibre bullet fired from a gun held by Richard Birkes. A .38 calibre bullet was too large to fit into the hole, it was proved, and Richard Birkes was the only participant in position to fire a bullet at a downward angle into this board, it appeared. The state of course was trying to prove that Richard Birkes had a .32 revolver and John Birkes was firing the .38 revolver which actually killed Brock.

On cross-examination, Sheriff Johnson related details of his conversation with the Birkes' on Oct. 5th when he accompanied Sheriff Brock to the Birkes home and was called into the house after Brock read a warrant to them through the window.

John Birkes brought out a Bible and required him to place his hand on it, then covered the hand with his own, and began telling him that years ago his sister, Mrs. Claudia McClimans, had been killed and her body thrown into the Loup river, a $10,000 life insurance policy being the motive. He had asked Garfield county officials for an inquest but was refused, he told Johnson.

A few years later John's mother became ill, poisoned by medicine given her by a Burwell doctor. She died and John asked an inquest but again was refused.

Then John's brother Abe was killed and his body thrown into the ranch yard. John and Willard hired detectives, secured evidence and took it to Sheriff Brock and County Attorney Alder of Loup county and asked for an inquest but they refused to hold one, so Sheriff Johnson quoted John as telling him, "How long did this conversation take?" the witness was asked by Lanigan.

"About 20 minutes," he answered. "And all this time your hand was on the Bible?"

"Yes," Sheriff Johnson also said John told him they had a reliable witness who told them "if Brock ever got them in jail he would burn the jail over them."

Charlie Cronk, who had come to Valley View to register for the draft and was in fact the next registrant after Richard Birkes, was the next state witness called but was on the stand only a brief time. He could add little to the testimony of Hesselgesser, Wikie and Scherzberg, though he supported their testimony in several particulars.

He was inside the store throughout the affray, he said, and stated positively that the first shot fired came from "outside the window." At that time Richard Birkes and Brock were half in and half out of the door and the sheriff was holding him with his left hand while watching the actions of John Birkes, who at the time had leaped from his car and was moving toward the store.

After hearing Johnson's testimony court adjourned and Thursday morning Glen Fox, sheriff of Custer county, was on the stand. Fox told of his actions in placing the Birkes' under arrest after the shooting and said he found in their possession a 30-30 rifle, a .32 calibre revolver and a .38 calibre revolver, as well as ammunition for all these guns. All were marked as exhibits and introduced as evidence.

After the arrest he took Richard and John Birkes to a hospital in Broken Bow, Fox testified. Dr. Roy S. Cram was the next witness. He was hunting ducks on the Scherzberg farm on the morning of Oct. 16 and was called to Valley View store about 9:30 by one of the Hesselgesser boys, he said. There he found Sheriff Brock lying on the ground badly wounded and after giving him first aid, loaded him into his car and started for his hospital at Burwell. Enroute he met an ambulance summoned from Burwell and transferred Brock to this ambulance, riding beside him to the hospital.

The sheriff died at 12:00, he testified, and upon instructions from County Attorney Alder he examined the body carefully and removed certain bullets from it. Asked to describe Brock's wounds Dr. Cram stated that one bullet went through his upper lip and ranged upward through his brain, lodging at top of the skull just under the skin; another went into his right shoulder; there was a smaller hole in the thumb nail of his right hand, the end of his second finger was split, his third finger was broken, there were powder burns on the second and third fingers of his right hand, and a patch of skin knocked off his right hip by another bullet.

The bullet in Brock's brain caused his death, Cram testified. It was identified and placed in evidence as Exhibit 16. This bullet, identified as a .38 bullet, weighed 137 1/2 grains he said. The bullet from Brock's shoulder, marked Exhibit 17, weighed 137 grains. X-rays and Brock's clothing were introduced as evidence.

Glenn Rubyan conducted the state examination of Dr. Cram and Lanigan cross-examined. Asked if there were powder burns on Brock's face, Cram said there were none. He was asked if had the gun been fired from a distance of less than six inches as was testified to Wednesday, there should not have been powder burns on Brock's face. Dr. Cram answered: "I don't know."

Pressed for an opinion by Lanigan, the doctor volunteered the information that in a suicide he attended a gun had been placed directly against the person's temple and fired, and that there were no powder burns in that case. At this point Mrs. Brock, widow of the sheriff, was placed on the stand. She was accompanied by her youngest daughter, Dorothy, 4, who stood by her side during the testimony. Mrs. Brock identified a .44 calibre revolver as the only revolver owned by her husband and said he was accustomed to carry it with the chamber under the hammer empty, in the interests of safety. After the shooting at Valley View there were two empty chambers in Brock's gun, indicating that he fired only once. Mrs. Brock also identified her husband's hat with a bullet hole in the rim, made during the affray.

Defense objected at this and other times to the inclusion as evidence of the hat and other clothing worn by the sheriff. "They are waving this blood-stained clothing simply to inflame the jury," he contended. His objections were overruled. Other state witnesses were Mrs. Ballard, operator of a hospital at Broken Bow, who testified that the two Birkes were attended there, and Miss Ellice Mosely, a stenographer, who testified that she was called to the Ballard hospital to take a deposition from John Birkes. The deposition itself was marked as an exhibit but its contents were not read to the jury. Miss Mosely and Attorney Lanigan had an acrimonious discussion as he cross-examined her. Court adjourned with her still on the witness stand.

Mrs. Ballard quoted John Birkes as saying "We got the job done, anyway, when he was admitted to the hospital." At 1:30 Miss Mosely took the stand again but Mr. Lanigan said he had no more questions to ask her, and she stepped down. At this point Rush Clark, assistant attorney general, told the court that the state was ready to rest its case except that if the defense desired it would call John E. Murray, a ballistics expert in the FBI, from Washington to testify Friday. Mr. Murray would have to catch a plane at 5 o'clock to be in Ord Friday morning. He produced a letter from J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, describing an examination made of the two revolvers found in the Birkes' possession and the bullets taken from Brock's body. Court recessed while a counsel argued over terms of a stipulation which would obviate the necessity of calling Murray, and finally agreed that the state would put in letter from Hoover in evidence and would be barred from any further expert testimony as regards the guns and bullets. At this point the defense counsel filed motions asking Judge Kroger to direct the jury to bring in a verdict of innocence of first, second or third degree murder on the

Widow of Sheriff Testifies Against Birkes

Thursday morning Mrs. George Brock, pictured here with her youngest daughter, Dorothy, 4, testified briefly as a state witness in the John Birkes trial, identifying her husband's revolver and his hat, which had a bullet hole through it.

With her husband's death, Mrs. Brock was left with six children. Besides Dorothy they are Billy, 6, Thelma, 9, George, 14, Mary, 18, and John, 21. The latter is employed at Alliance but others are all at home. In the appropriations bill now before the Nebraska legislature is an item of $6,500 for Mrs. Brock. This state carries no insurance on its peace officers but when one is killed in line of duty the legislature usually appropriates funds in lieu of insurance. Widow of Sheriff Smoyer of Boone county received only $2,500 when her husband was killed a few years ago.

At his own expense, Birkes testified, he had an autopsy performed on the body of Mrs. McClimans and the doctor found there was no water in her lungs, which Birkes said proved she was dead. Her body was thrown into the river. Richard McClimans was her son but he was legally adopted by the Birkes' and raised by them as Richard Birkes and is now a co-defendant in the murder case.

Birkes also testified to two other deaths in his family, that of his mother whom he claims was poisoned by medicine prescribed for her by a Burwell doctor and his brother Abe whom he claims was "kidnapped and murdered." In each case he accused by name the men whom he holds responsible for the deeds. At only one time Wednesday afternoon did the witness show emotion and that was when he identified portraits of his dead father and mother. Then tears streamed down his face and he wiped his eyes with a handkerchief.

Friday morning court resumed with John Birkes still on the witness stand and he remained there throughout the day. Birkes' testimony Friday morning was less coherent and he appeared to be under greater strain than the afternoon before. Much of his discourse dealt with religious or supernatural subjects and at one point he testified that God came and talked to him. He described "God's voice," and said it was a little louder, a little clearer, than the voice of an ordinary man and seemed to come from a point directly above his head. God promised him a "great gift" and said he would make him "great in the nation," he said.

He said that God had told him who would win the war now going on but when asked by counsel if he could tell the jury what God had told him he said he didn't care to go into that at the present time as he "had promised." He could divulge, though, that "the fate of our nation hangs on the balance," he said. While he was in a cell at the Broken Bow jail, the defendant said, God took him all over the country and he saw everything with "God's eye" which he described. Over New York City, he said, there were 10,000 airplanes, and over Chicago 4,000 airplanes and over Washington 6,000 airplanes and over another city God didn't tell him the name of there were many airplanes also. They seemed to be "patrolling" those cities, he said.

On examination by counsel he told how he had consulted clairvoyants, soothsayers and fortune tellers in attempts to get information that would bring the murderers of his sister, mother and brother to justice. He told about being in Grand Island and being lured to a hotel room by a man, whose car he produced as evidence. This man "could read the human soul," Birkes said. Two lodges in Burwell had paid this man $5,000 to kill him and the man showed him the money in a traveling bag but said he wasn't going to kill him because he could tell he was an honest man and spoke the truth. It was at about this time in his life, Birkes said, that he studied detective work and fingerprinting and sought a job with the Hall county sheriff's office in this capacity, even appearing before the Hall county board of supervisors to offer to do the work for $1,800 per year. The board said if the sheriff wanted such a man he would have to pay him out of his own pocket, Birkes related.

On advice of a fortune teller in Omaha he consulted an Omaha attorney for help in bringing to justice the murderers of his relatives, and this attorney put him in touch with a Kenosha, Wis., private detective who came to Burwell and lived in a hotel there several weeks. This detective reported progress and asked for various sums of money, all of which he paid him, the sum being over $1,000, Birkes testified. At one time he sold 17 he thought he had been treated "worse than a dog."

"Do you still think the government owes you this money," he was asked. "Yes, and I always will until they pay it to me," he answered.

Several letters from the government advising him that the case was closed and ordering him not to write any more letters about it were read. He testified also on attempts he made to prove up on a homestead, his claim having been rejected by the interior department.

A great many of the exhibits were "favorite psalms" which John had copied from the Bible in long hand, several of which were read to the jury by Lanigan. "Do you think the Almighty protects you," asked counsel. "I know," he answered, "being a Bible man." When the shooting was going on at Valley View I called on him to protect me and to protect Richard and he did," he answered.

Three murders have occurred in his family, John contended on the witness stand, and in each case the murderers have gone unpunished through the influence of his "enemies" with county authorities. John had a beautiful sister, Claudia, he testified, and he told how about 1913 he bought a revolver to protect her from men who were trying to seduce her. Later one of these men married her in spite of his objections, he claimed. A few months later he heard a minister preach a sermon against guns and killing so he traded his off.

It was in 1919 that his sister, Claudia, then Mrs. R. L. McClimans, met death, allegedly by drowning in the Loup river though John claimed she was ravished, hit on the head and thrown into the river and named the men whom he claimed were responsible for the act. In 1922, he said, one of these men confessed his part in the murder. He named the man who he said admitted having "poked poison down her throat."

At his own expense, Birkes testified, he had an autopsy performed on the body of Mrs. McClimans and the doctor found there was no water in her lungs, which Birkes said proved she was dead. Her body was thrown into the river. Richard McClimans was her son but he was legally adopted by the Birkes' and raised by them as Richard Birkes and is now a co-defendant in the murder case.

Birkes also testified to two other deaths in his family, that of his mother whom he claims was poisoned by medicine prescribed for her by a Burwell doctor and his brother Abe whom he claims was "kidnapped and murdered." This detective reported progress and asked for various sums of money, all of which he paid him, the sum being over $1,000, Birkes testified. At one time he sold 17 head of cattle to get money for this detective, he said.

Throughout his testimony ran the fear that enemies were going to kill him, his brother Willard and nephew Richard because they were too active in investigating the deaths of their relatives. Once he was warned that a big gang was coming to the ranch to kill them, "100 from Burwell, 100 from Comstock and 100 from Sargent," but he prayed to God for protection and God sent a terrible storm that washed out bridges and kept the mob from assembling, Birkes testified.

Light up to last fall, shortly before the Valley View affray, the Birkes' were active in investigating the deaths in their family and hired another Omaha lawyer whom they brought to the ranch house. Soon after this lawyer reached the house dogs on the ranch barked, and in the fear that enemies were after them the Birkes' turned off their lights, secured guns and crouched for hours at the windows in the dark watching for the killers. They had the lawyer stay under the table so he would be safe, Birkes said.

While hitch-hiking in Texas, where he went to investigate the death of an uncle, John said he was given a ride by a stranger whom he identified as Schultz, the murderer of the Lindberg and Mattson babies. He made the mistake of telling "Schultz" where he lived and later "Schultz" was hired by his enemies to kill him. He was present at Valley View on October 16 and did part of the shooting, Birkes said.

The defendant's testimony was hard to follow, he reverted constantly to incidents that he claimed happened as long ago as 1919 while testifying to other events of more recent date. A letter he wrote to Norman Schwartzkof, chief of the New Jersey police in charge of the Lindberg case, was one of the exhibits. In this letter he offered to identify the Lindberg baby murderer.

More than 250 exhibits, ranging from letters and copies of letters to diaries, psalm books, ouija boards, Bibles and photographs of deceased relatives were entered by the defense and showed to the jury. About 4:30 in the afternoon the defense had finished questioning John Birkes about the background of the case and had brought the scene up to the time of the shooting at Valley View on Oct. 16. At this point the defense suggested to Judge E. G. Kroger that a recess until Monday morning would be in order but the judge directed that testimony continue until 5:00.

The court room crowd, which had been quiet, almost bored, throughout the long day stirred with excitement for most of them had come to hear the defendant's own version of what happened at Valley View on October 16 in the hope it would be exciting. They were not disappointed. He was sitting in his car talking to Alfred Scherzberg when he saw a scuffle start between his nephew Richard and Sheriff Brock, related Birkes. He had been expecting trouble and was watching the door closely, so when he saw the two in the doorway he leaped from his car and started for the store.

When he reached the cement platform Brock had Richard's right wrist held in his left hand, he said. "I ran up and struck at Brock's wrist and said 'let go, let go of him you ----,'" Birkes said, "and just then Brock pulled his own gun out of his right hip pocket and shot Richard through the stomach."

Birkes said he looked over Brock's shoulder into the store and saw a man standing there with a sawed-off shotgun but couldn't tell who it was. "He shot at me and part of the shot hit me here, in the forehead," he said, pointing out the place to the jury. At request of counsel, the man came down from the witness stand and impersonating Brock, with Lanigan playing the part of Richard, he demonstrated how the two were standing and how Brock was holding Richard.

State witnesses had testified earlier that there were no other guns at Valley View that day except the guns handled by the Birkes' and Brock's own .44 revolver, but John Birkes then testified that as the scuffle progressed a man came running around from the side of the store with a gun in his hand. Also, there was a car parked out in front with two men holding guns. "Before God I do not know who they were," he said. Continuing his testimony he said: "Then Scherzberg pulled a blue steel revolver from his pocket and fired a shot and then Richard fell down." A few seconds later, he claimed, Scherzberg had a shotgun in his hands and shot at Richard's head, blowing his hat all to pieces.

"They have that hat with all the bullet holes in it and if there is any justice in this court they will have to produce it here," he shouted. He was admonished by Judge Kroger. Then Attorney Lanigan asked him: "Did you shoot the sheriff?" "I did not kill George Brock and I'll never shoulder George Brock's crime," he answered. "This is the crime the wise man said they would try to hang on me ... but I'll never shoulder Scherzberg's crime," he shouted.

He had been standing at the foot of the witness' box but was instructed by the judge to sit down again. Defense counsel asked him how he was treated while he was in the jail at Broken Bow, and who operated on his wounded finger there. "I was treated like a dog, worse than any dog was ever treated," he said. His finger was operated on by another inmate of the Custer county jail who used a safety razor blade to perform the operation, Birkes testified.

Then, calling for the revolvers which the state contended were used by the Birkes' at Valley View, Attorney Lanigan held up the .38 calibre revolver and asked Birkes: "Is this your gun, did you have it in your possession or use it at Valley View?" "I did not, I never saw it before," he answered. Holding up the .32 calibre revolver Lanigan asked: "Is this your gun, did you have it in your possession or use it at Valley View?" "No sir, I did not, I never saw it before."

"Where is the gun you had at Valley View?" asked counsel. "I do not know, it was in the car when we were arrested, it was in the car and I never saw it since." Asked if he could identify his gun if he saw it he answered that it was a nickel-plated Harrington & Richardson revolver and that one handle was chipped when he dropped it on the cement curb at Valley View.

Reaching into his pocket, Attorney Lanigan produced a revolver, rusty and with some of the chambers filled with sand, and asked Birkes if he ever saw it before. "That's my gun," said Birkes. The defense had it marked and introduced in evidence as Defense Exhibit No. 258. He then asked Judge Kroger to recess the court and after instructing the jury not to discuss the case with anyone or among themselves, the judge declared a recess until Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Car Thief Sent to Reformatory

(Special to the Quiz)
 Burwell—The arm of justice was quickly applied to the young man who stole Anton Zalud's car from the streets of Burwell Saturday night, for in less than 36 hours after the theft he was lodged in the state reformatory where he is serving a term of 1 to 20 years. The young man is Jesse W. Hickerson, 25, an itinerant worker from Louisville, Ky., who had been employed several weeks on the Lou Bohy farm.

He took the car about midnight from in front of the bank of Burwell where it was parked. Mr. Zalud had left the keys in the switch. His little daughter, who had been asleep in the car had left it shortly before it was taken to go to the American Legion hall where her father was attending a dance. The car was found wrecked in a ditch on a side road 1 1/2 miles south of Burwell at about 2:30 Sunday morning by Leslie Westover, one of Mr. Zalud's neighbors who immediately recognized it. Mr. Hickerson was in it blissfully enjoying the sleep of intoxication.

Mr. Westover immediately notified Sheriff Johnson who was already looking for the car. Mr. Hickerson was arraigned before Judge Rose in county court Monday morning where he pleaded guilty. In the afternoon he was taken to Ord where he appeared before District Judge William F. Spikes who sentenced him. Sheriff Johnson took him on to Lincoln. Mr. Hickerson is reported to have served a year in the army where he was released with a dishonorable discharge. The car was towed into Meyers and Manast's garage.

Louis D. Pierce Recalls Some Early Day History

Sunday was April 27, and just another spring day to most of us, but it meant more to Louis D. Pierce. To him it was an anniversary of interest. On that day in 1850, he and others of a freighting caravan returned to Ord from a most interesting trip to the then projected Fort Niobrara in the vicinity of Valentine, Nebr.

Twenty-seven days before, April 10, 1850 they set out from Fort Hartsuff, six men, with five yoke of oxen and one team of horses, each hauling a load of government corn. Mr. Pierce recalls that his load was 2000 pounds, and that he got $1.40 per hundred for hauling the corn, or a total of $28.28 for the 27 day trip.

Mr. Pierce was still a boy then, and his father, hearing what he was planning to do, went to Fort Hartsuff and followed him a day's journey beyond, trying to get him to give it up. It was feared that the men of the outfit would do well to get home alive, and that they certainly would lose their corn and stock to the Indians.

Strange as it may seem, they saw no Indians, either coming or going. They did antelope by the hundreds. They saw no hoes from Ray's ranch on the Graceland all the way to Niobrara. There was no trail most of the way, and they had to pick their road. A heavy snow fell April 17, similar, he recalls to the one here April 19 of this year.

Fort Hartsuff Measure Placed on Preferred List

Thursday the one bill introduced by Senator Joseph T. Knezacek, known as the Fort Hartsuff bill, was reported out of the Sifting committee, and will now come up for disposal by the unicameral.

Due to the fact that the bill as it stands is an enabling act and does not carry an appropriation, it is understood that the members of the senate are looking on it with favor, and those interested believe it will pass.

Tells of Irrigation Conditions in West

The Quiz is in receipt of a letter from A. L. Novak of Chandler, Ariz., a former resident of Ord and Burwell, enclosing a clipping telling of the interesting fact that Roosevelt Dam is full to capacity for the first time in years. Also, for the first time in the history of the project every reservoir in the vast irrigation system is full.

In his letter Mr. Novak tells that they had very little water a year ago. Last September the entire project had only 12,000 acre feet of water, although the total capacity is nearly 20 million feet. Fish were hauled elsewhere by the wagon load. The farmers raised little, or nothing at all. Then in December came a record breaking rainfall, and now they have all the water they need. The Roosevelt Reservoir, located in south central Arizona, was built years ago and was named for Theodore Roosevelt.

Veteran and Tyro Peace Officers at Trial

Peace officers in attendance at the Birkes trial this week include one of Nebraska's veteran officers in the person of Sheriff George Round, of Valley county, at right above, and also a man who is probably Nebraska's newest sheriff, Frank Strohl, of Loup county, left, who was appointed after George Brock's death. Keeping peace between the peace officers in this Quiz photo is Deputy Sheriff Fred Cohen, Valley county.

Plans Go Forward for Burwell Cannery

(Special to the Quiz) Burwell—Farm Security officials in Lincoln interviewed Monday by Osce Johnson, D. C. McCarthy and Charles Leaker gave every assurance that a loan for establishing a cannery in Burwell would be approved and they encouraged the local farmers to rush preparations for planting tomatoes. According to the present setup the Farm Security Administration will not provide a building or pay any installation expenses, but other expenses incurred in operating the factory can be met with loans made by this organization.

It is estimated that it will cost around $1,000 to provide a building and install the necessary equipment. This money must be raised locally. Mr. Johnson, Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Leaker also visited the Two Rivers project near Omaha where they placed a bid on machinery used for canning peas and corn. This abandoned equipment will be disposed of soon and it was thought advisable for the organization at Burwell to buy this equipment when it can be secured at a low figure even though it will not be needed until next year. There is strong possibility that corn, too, will be canned at Burwell this season.

Lloyd C. Way, FSA official, who is in charge of making loans to cooperatives was in Burwell Thursday conferring with persons interested in the founding of a cannery. A group of men went with him to Milburn where they examined the abandoned cannery at that place. They found that the plant was in excellent condition and that it had only operated one half day.

Defense Savings Bonds, Stamps, on Sale May 1

Postmaster Alfred L. Hill has announced that plans are complete for the placing on sale of United States Defense Savings Bonds and Postal Savings stamps tomorrow, May 1. The new Defense Savings bond is similar to the "baby bond," of which more than five billion dollars worth have been bought by more than 2,500,000 Americans since 1935. The bonds are on sale at both Ord banks as well as at the postoffice.

A defense bond may be purchased for $13.75, and in ten years it will be worth $25. Any time after 60 days the bond may be redeemed for cash. These bonds are in denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500 and $1,000 and all are sold at 75 per cent of their maturity value in ten years. For the smaller investor who wants to buy a government bond on the easy payment plan, the postoffice is issuing a new series of Postal Savings stamps in values of 10c, 25c, 50c, $1 and $5. These are kept in an album until the owner has enough to purchase a bond. The stamps do not increase in value but the bonds do.

Storage Locker Plants There are now 26 cold storage locker plants in operation in Indiana.

Nebraska Legislative Items.

On Wednesday, April 23rd, the legislature adopted a motion by which each legislator would pick one bill and give it to the sifting committee. The committee is then to act on those 43 bills to determine what others, if any, will be raised to the head of general file. While the sentiment for adjournment is strong, in all probability there will be quite a number of these bills acted upon before the session adjourns.

Legislative Bill No. 470, the agricultural gas tax refund bill, received the attention of the legislature this week, and was passed on to select file, which ordinarily means that the bill is headed for passage. An unusual number of amendments were offered all toward the end of strengthening the bill in the enforcement of its provisions. From the debate and argument upon this bill, it is considered correct in principle, but considerable doubt exists as to whether such a law can be properly administered. The success or failure of this law depends entirely upon the administration of it. Some of the legislators and many of the lobbyists assert that proper administration is impossible.

Legislative Bill No. 89, the old age assistance lien bill, was passed by the legislature, which bill resulted in the old age lien being destroyed, and in place of it, statutory authorization for the state and counties to file claims against the estate of deceased recipients of old age assistance, which claims shall be a lien on the estate in preference to homestead interest in real property.

Legislative Bill No. 65 was passed, which provides that no one can contribute any cash or other financial assistance to a candidate and the candidate must report all of his expenditures for his campaign other than his traveling and maintenance expenses while campaigning for office.

Legislative Bill No. 12 was passed by the Legislature, which consolidates the enforcement activities of the State Sheriff's office and the Highway Patrol, a saving of about forty thousand dollars annually.

Getting out a column every week is a pleasure when you have the time, but when each day finds many things undone it becomes somewhat of a chore. That is the way it is with me this week, as we are in the thick of Legislative process at this time. Will be seeing you again in print next week. (Signed) J. T. Kneazek.

BIRKES TRIAL

state sheriff, a stenographer, and others, he said.

Attorney Lanigan then began reading a 64-page deposition to him, which had been put in evidence earlier by the state but not read at that time. Questions by Evans and answers by Birkes as taken down by the stenographer, Ellice Mosely, comprised the deposition. Throughout it Birkes complained to Evans that he was in a "stupor," that he was a "very sick man," and in "no shape" to answer such questions. He said continually that he was entitled to an attorney, that he wouldn't answer questions, etc., but finally told his version of the Valley View shooting and the events that lead up to it in much the same manner as he related on the witness stand here Friday.

At one point he was quoted in this exhibit as saying "another man shot Brock—the gun didn't sound very loud." He also said "guns were going off all around." Still later he stated "old man Cronk shot me with that sawed off shotgun and Cronk's boy shot the sheriff."

The conversation ensued on October 17, day after the shooting, and at one point Birkes told Evans "I did not shoot my gun because somebody shot my finger and I couldn't pull the trigger."

He related to Evans that after the Valley View affray he and Richard drove away from the store and stopped at a farm house and told a lady to call a Sargent doctor, then drove to their own ranch. Richard was seriously wounded and he was slightly hurt, so when the doctor did not arrive soon they started for Bassett to find a doctor. On the way they sighted an airplane, and thinking a doctor was in the plane they drove off the road onto a flat and Willard waved a sheet to attract the plane's attention. They were not trying to escape, he said.

Another stenographer's transcript of questioning of Birkes by Evans on the afternoon of the shooting also was read to the jury by defense attorneys. At this time Birkes said "there must have been 20 men at the store."

On direct questioning by Lanigan later, Birkes stated that he bought the .32 calibre revolver introduced by the state late Saturday afternoon, in Grand Island in 1921 and had it ever since.

He testified that only once before has he ever run afoul of the law and at that time was fined $5.00 over a fence dispute.

As to his relations with Sheriff Brock, prior to the Amos Grant suit against the Birkes' last fall, Birkes testified that he first met Brock about six years ago and that Brock told him then he planned to keep an eye on him because Burwell people advised him to. Later he had a few words with Brock over purchase of an inner tube at a filling station where Brock's son worked, but otherwise their relations were friendly enough. After the death of his brother Abe in 1937, which Brock refused to investigate, he began to suspect Brock, however, and when a stranger informed him Brock had been paid $2,500 to throw him in the Taylor jail and "burn the jail over his head" he began to fear Brock.

He testified that when he was taken to Omaha a few weeks ago by the state, to be examined by state alienists, he refused to talk to Drs. Young and Dishong. He thought he had been drugged or poisoned in jail and thereafter refused to eat until advised to do so by his attorney.

"John do you feel that you did anything wrong at Valley View on October 16?" he was asked by Lanigan.

"I didn't do one thing wrong—hit Brock on the hand to make him let Richard go, took the boy home after Brock shot him, just things that any real man would do," he answered. He steadfastly denied shooting Brock and in fact claimed throughout the testimony that neither he nor Richard fired a single shot at Valley View.

It was shortly after the noon recess that Birkes was turned over to the state for cross-examination and Assistant Attorney General Rush Clark at once began to ply him with adroitly worded questions which sought to bring out to the jury the fact that the defendant could distinguish between right and wrong even if mentally unbalanced, this being something the state must prove.

"When your sister was murdered you thought it was wrong and you wanted those who did it punished, didn't you?" asked Clark.

"Yes sir."

"It was wrong for the doctor to give your mother poisoned medicine, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

"And you wanted the murderers of Abe prosecuted?"

"Yes sir."

"You thought it was wrong for them to murder Abe?"

"Yes sir."

He discussed the registration for army service last fall and elicited from John Birkes a statement that John thought it was all right for Richard to register because it was Richard's duty to serve his country if it needed him.

He then asked Birkes if he and Richard had discussed in advance the possibility that Sheriff Brock might be at Valley View and John said they had. He also stated they had no intention of bothering Brock unless Brock bothered them, but, John said: "I wasn't going to let Brock take Richard Listing the firearms at the Birkes ranch, John said there were two .22 rifles, 2 single barrel shotguns, three revolvers and a 30-30 rifle.

"You asked for it and I'll give you the truth—anything you ask," the witness stated.

Asked by Clark what guns they took in the car or in their pockets when they went to Valley View, he said that he was carrying a .32 revolver and there was a 30-30 rifle in the car. He denied having seen Richard's revolver or knowing of his own knowledge that Richard had a revolver.

At one point in his testimony he said in loud tones: "Why didn't you arrest Alfred Scherzberg instead of railroading us three—he's the one you want to arrest."

Asked by Clark if he knew the meaning of "premeditation" he gave a good workable definition of it and said it was worse to kill a man with premeditation than without premeditation.

When told that the state was through cross-examining him and that he could step down, Birkes attempted to make a statement to the jury but had only succeeded in invoking God to witness his truthfulness when he was stopped by Judge Kroger's admonition.

Joseph Votova, federal district attorney at Omaha, was a defense witness early in the afternoon and testified that three times in 1939 or early 1940 he was consulted by the Birkes, who sought to enlist the aid of federal government in ridding down the murderers of their sister, mother and brother. On their last visit they sought to have Stanley Serpe, the private detective they hired, arrested on a mail fraud charge because he hadn't turned over to them evidence he claimed to have collected for them and for which they had paid him an amount variously testified to as from $600 to $1,000.

Another witness was Mrs. Bridget Meuret, who testified she had known the Birkes family for twenty years or more. They always suffered from delusions that somebody was trying to kill them and grew worse after Mrs. McClimans' death, she said. In one house they occupied she mentioned that they had stout bars as well as locks on every door and a shotgun over each door.

Mrs. Meuret was on the witness stand fully an hour.

State and defense attorneys clashed Monday afternoon over permissibility of certain questions. Lanigan, who objected continually to the state's line of cross-examination of Mrs. Meuret, only to be over-ruled, was ordered by Judge Kroger to return to his seat. The climax came when, with Lanigan still on his feet, the court warned:

"That also is over-ruled. If counsel doesn't take his seat he will be fined $50.00 for contempt of court."

Another witness was Thomas H. Meuret, who testified that "John had more peculiarities than anybody I ever knew of," said also that the Birkes' were never out looking for trouble but minded their own business at all times.

A surprise move came when the defense put Richard Birkes on the stand for a few minutes. Frail and appearing even younger than his 21 years Richard testified to being with John when he visited a clairvoyant in St. Louis. Feature of the scene came when the spirit of his mother, which he recognized because he had seen her picture, came to him and kissed him.

Willard Birkes also took the stand and under direct examination said John and Richard returned to the ranch house after the shooting affray with Richard in bad shape and bleeding from head and body wounds. He and John took Richard from the car and he "took care of them," and then went to feed the calves some hay, testified Willard.

After he fed the calves, Willard continued, he went to the car and took a .32 calibre revolver which he identified as the one the state offered in evidence late Friday, and buried it "12 to 15 feet west of a long stack west of the barn." He said he dug the hole in the ground with his toe.

Asked why he buried this particular gun, Willard said: "Fifteen or 16 years ago a wise man told John if he ever got into any trouble, this was the gun to put away."

He testified their other .32 revolver was in the house and that he took the .38 calibre revolver from Richard's pocket.

Neither John nor Richard told him Sheriff Brock had been shot at Valley View and said John explained their wounds by telling him he and Richard had "run into a mob over there."

Cross-examination of Willard had not been completed when court adjourned at 5 Monday, but the state indicated it would attempt Tuesday morning to impeach Willard's testimony because it did not agree in important details with stories told by him when he was interviewed by State Attorney Beck in the Hall county jail after the shooting.

Opening of court Tuesday morning was delayed almost an hour while defense counsel perfected the hypothetical question which they proposed to ask their alienists, Dr. Herman Dickel and Dr. Juul C. Nielsen, of Hastings State hospital, who were ready to testify.

When Judge Kroger called for order, however, Willard Birkes was put on the witness stand for a continuation of cross-examination. He repeated testimony of Monday that he buried John's .32 revolver because John had been told to do that by a "wise man" in case of trouble. The state tried to get Willard to admit that he knew Sheriff Brock had been shot when he buried the gun. He removed five cartridges from the gun and put them in a box before he buried it, he said, but "never told John that." He also repeated his previous testimony that he took Richard's gun out of his pocket and broke it to see if any shells had been shot. It was loaded all around, he said.

Over and over Prosecutor Clark asked the question "who did the 38 belong to," and constant bickering between Lanigan and Clark marked the testimony.

Attempts to impeach his evidence by bringing out different statements allegedly made by Willard in Grand Island failed when Judge Kroger directed the state to abandon that line of questioning.

John M. Baldwin, an attorney, was the next defense witness and testified he was employed by the Birkes to investigate the deaths of their relatives in August. They met him in Grand Island and took him to their ranch home, he said.

As they were discussing the business, dogs kept by the Birkes began to bark and the Birkes told him "the wicked one" was outside. They got out the kerosene lamp, all got guns and went to different windows and told him to get under the table so he would be safe. "I was under the table on my hands and knees for at least an hour in the dark," he said.

On cross-examination Baldwin admitted he had talked to Dr. Young, of Omaha, and told him "Birkes is the craziest man I ever met."

The witness kept spectators laughing with his remarks and the court rapped several times for order. He was a good defense witness.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller were other witnesses, testifying that on Lanigan's instructions they went to the Birkes ranch on October 22 and found the .32 revolver which Willard Birkes had buried in the sand near a long haystack. It was rusty and the handle was chipped, they said. They identified the gun put in by the defense Friday as an exhibit.

Dr. Herman Dickel, resident psychiatrist at Hastings asylum, was the first expert witness called by the state, and he was on the stand several hours. Attorney Lanigan read to him a long hypothetical question in which John Birkes was described and the scene at Valley View recounted, and then Dickel was asked if such a man could know the difference between right and wrong. Dr. Dickel answered positively that he could not.

Birkes is definitely a paranoid, a victim of systematized delusions of grandeur well fixed over a long period, he said.

The defendant "could not distinguish between right and wrong because he believes he is always right," Dickel stated.

Typical of paranoia is that its victims think God talks to them and guides them, he said.

On cross-examination, Dr. Dickel was asked by Clark if a paranoid like Birkes would know it was against the law to kill a sheriff. "He might," answered the witness.

Dozens of questions were asked him but he remained calm and was an excellent witness. Asked what he expected to be paid for his work on this case, Dr. Dickel said "$150.00."

On redirect examination Defense Attorney Lanigan tried to read a letter written by Birkes to President Roosevelt but an objection by the state was sustained. When he tried to quote from the letter he was severely reproved by the court.

Dr. Juul C. Nielsen, a former Arcadia doctor who has been superintendent of the Hastings State hospital since 1934, was the next expert witness. In the 12 years he has been a psychiatrist he has had probably 5,100 insane people under his care, said Dr. Nielsen in qualifying as an expert. He had John Birkes in his hospital for a week and examined him for probably 10 hours altogether, he said.

Asked for his diagnosis of Birkes he said he was a paranoid or suffering from paranoid conditions, and that paranoids are always of a suspicious nature, try to withdraw from association with others and always feel that people are trying to harm them or steal their property. There are three recognized stages of the mental ailment, he said, the first being characterized by suspicion, the second by delusions of persecution and the third by grandiose delusions in which victims think they are "God's chosen people," and execute God's will as revealed by visions or words actually spoken by God.

John Birkes is in the third stage, he said. He also answered the hypothetical question in much the same way as did Dr. Dickel, by saying Birkes could not know the difference between right and wrong because God told him what to do good for three or four years. The effort has been to establish a minimum price to assure the farmer a living wage for his investment.

Regardless of how the war goes in Europe, it is safe to assume that when it is over there will be an enormous demand for food-stuffs of all kinds. At present it must be in concentrated form to get it over there. Every farmer should take stock in what he has got in this defense program.

Warren E. Dolan, state statistician, was next introduced by Mr. Veleba. He spoke of the Triple-A as a remedy for fluctuation in prices. He said that the program was built largely on suggestions that had come out of the field. That it was not a one-man program. That what was wrong with the farm situation during the last World War was the lack of present leadership, such as had been developed today. Triple-A payments to Nebraska farmers since the program started have totaled $184,000,000, according to Mr. Dolan. Under the old system the farmer took his products to market, and asked: "What will you take?" The Triple-A now largely determines the price the farmer receives, and he knows what price he has a right to expect.

He closed by making a plea that the farmer not condemn organized labor because of the strike situation, but rather to look beyond this and see in labor the consumer of the products the farmer produces. He said that labor is now friendly to the farmer and to the Triple-A program.

According to a new plan which went into effect about two weeks ago, Valley and Greeley counties have been transferred from their former Triple-A district and grouped with other counties whose problems are of a similar nature.

The original grouping put these two counties in with Antelope, Boone, Knox, Madison and Pierce. This arrangement made a long, irregularly shaped district, and meant long travel for some who attended the district meetings, which were usually held at Norfolk or Neligh.

"The new grouping puts Valley and Greeley in with Nance, Hall, Howard, Sherman and Custer, and district meetings could be held in the county seat of any of the counties without working much of a hardship on those who had to attend. While there is no change in district officials, it brings a new group of people to Ord from the district office. Thus Ralph Thompson, junior statistician of Douglas county, is taking the place of Bruce Easton; Jake Whitney, Fullerton, replaces Frank W. Reed as farmer fieldman.

Burwell Players Will Give Royalty Play (Special to The Quiz)

Burwell—May 12th has been selected by the Burwell Community Players for the date of their next production, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," a royalty play on which they have been working for several months. The play will be staged in the Burwell school auditorium. The scene of the play is laid in a shabby English rooming house, the inhabitants of which have become sored on the world in general and jealous and spiteful in their conduct toward one another. A mysterious stranger, portrayed by Luther Pierce, arrives on the scene, to show them in a subtle manner the evil of their ways and to encourage them to undertake a complete regeneration of their characters.

Mrs. Luther Pierce is the hard boiled landlady of the rooming house. Miss Nina Nickells plays the part of a maid, recently paroled from prison. Mrs. Marion Bousall portrays the part of a back-biting, thieving, artificial old maid who is one of the roomers. Miss Dorothy Paulin is a widow with social ambitions who has seen better days. Eben Moss is a retired major, suffering financial embarrassment. Miss Huldah Bennett is his nagging and complaining wife.

Miss Alaire Pulliam is their attractive daughter whom they are conniving to marry to R. E. Leach, who portrays the role of a wealthy old codger, who is repulsive to both the major and his wife as well as their daughter, who is deeply in love with a young poverty-stricken artist who is characterized by Philip Beckwith. Marion Bousall plays the part of a poor, talented musician who is about to prostitute his profession. Closs Blake has the role of an unprincipled, money-lending, stingy Jew.

The influence of a poor, unknown stranger with high ideals and faith and trust in human nature is beautiful to see, as portrayed on the stage. The production is being directed by Miss Anna Cameron, who coached the players in "Our Town" last year.

Burwell Players Will Give Royalty Play (Special to The Quiz)

Burwell—May 12th has been selected by the Burwell Community Players for the date of their next production, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," a royalty play on which they have been working for several months. The play will be staged in the Burwell school auditorium. The scene of the play is laid in a shabby English rooming house, the inhabitants of which have become soured on the world in general and jealous and spiteful in their conduct toward one another. A mysterious stranger, portrayed by Luther Pierce, arrives on the scene, to show them in a subtle manner the evil of their ways and to encourage them to undertake a complete regeneration of their characters. Mrs. Luther Pierce is the hard boiled landlady of the rooming house. Miss Nina Nickells plays the part of a maid, recently paroled from prison. Mrs. Marlon Bonnell portrays the part of a back-biting, thieving, artificial old maid who is one of the roomers. Miss Dorothy Paulin is a widow with social ambitions who has seen better days. Ellen Moss is a retired major, suffering financial embarrassment. Miss Huldah Bennett is his nagging and complaining wife. Miss Alaire Pulliam is their attractive daughter whom they are convincing to marry to R. E. Leach, who portrays the role of a wealthy old codger, who is repulsive to both the major and his wife as well as their daughter, who is deeply in love with a young poverty-stricken artist who is characterized by Philip Beckwith. Marlon Bonnell plays the part of a poor, talented musician who is about to prostitute his profession. Closs Blake has the role of an unprincipled, money-lending, stingy Jew.

The influence of a poor, unknown stranger with high ideals and faith and trust in human nature is beautiful to see, as portrayed on the stage. The production is being directed by Miss Anna Cameron, who coached the players in "Our Town" last year.

Improvement Week for Rural Boxes May 5-12
Spring is always hailed by the public as a time to clean up, paint up and build up, so it is appropriate that the first week in May should be designated by the post-office department as a time to do the necessary improving on rural mail boxes, with the cooperation of the owners.

All boxes should be placed in spots easily accessible from the road, should be placed solidly on posts in such a manner and at such a height as to be right for the delivery and removal of mail by the carrier. This height, to suit the late model cars, should be with the bottom of the box 50 inches from the ground, according to Postmaster Alfred L. Hill.

It is especially desirable that the boxes be maintained in such a condition that they will protect mail placed therein, that the names of owners be inscribed on the side of the box from which the carrier approaches, and that the boxes and their supports be kept painted. Nonapproved boxes need not be discarded by the patrons, so long as they are maintained in serviceable condition.

It is of interest to note that the three rural carriers out of Ord travel a total distance of more than 200 miles each day, and that there are about 200 boxes on each route or 600 boxes in all. A little work on the part of each of the 600 patrons of the Ord rural delivery service would do much to improve the service, as well as the appearance of the roads on which the mail boxes are located.

What You Should Know About

READ HOW NEW ENRICHED OMAR WONDER FLOUR MAKES A VITAL CONTRIBUTION TO AMERICA'S HEALTH!

ENRICHED flour has been hailed by food and nutrition authorities as one of food science's greatest triumphs. Because we know that this remarkable improvement in this basic food is of vital interest to you, we bring you authoritative information about this new development.

Q. IS THERE A NEED FOR "ENRICHED" FLOUR?

A. Undoubtedly! Millions of Americans are eating diets that are not adequate in all food essentials. These diets are particularly lacking in Vitamin B<sub>1</sub> and its complex. "Enriched" flour can materially improve this situation in an efficient and economical way.

Q. WHAT DOES "ENRICHED" FLOUR CONTAIN?

A. Enriched Omar Flour contains per pound, according to agreed national standards: 1.66 milligrams of Thiamin (Vitamin B<sub>1</sub>), 6.15 milligrams of Iron in food form and 6.15 milligrams of Nicotinic Acid (a vitamin of the Vitamin B Complex).

Q. WHAT IS THE FUNCTION OF B<sub>1</sub>?

A. Vitamin B<sub>1</sub> is essential to growth. It aids the health of the nervous system. It helps maintain appetite. It helps the body change sugars and starches into energy instead of fat. And since Vitamin B<sub>1</sub> is not stored in the body it must be supplied in the diet every day.

Q. IS IRON IMPORTANT IN THE DIET?

A. Iron is part of every cell in the human body. It helps maintain health of the blood stream. It helps prevent anemia. The body needs an estimated 15 milligrams of Iron daily.

Q. WHAT IS NICOTINIC ACID AND IS IT RELATED TO NICOTINE FROM TOBACCO?

A. Nicotinic Acid is a vitamin of the Vitamin B Complex which helps to prevent Pellagra—a deficiency disease. It is utterly different from Nicotine. Simply because it was first made from Nicotine it was given this unfortunate name. It is found in milk, lean meat, liver, eggs and green vegetables and is no more "acid" than orange juice!

Q. WILL ENRICHED OMAR FLOUR SUPPLY THE FULL AMOUNT OF VITAMIN B AND IRON THAT THE BODY NEEDS?

A. That depends on the amount of bread or similar flour-made products you eat. For example, two or three slices of bread, made with Enriched Omar Flour, eaten at each meal will supply a good portion of the day's requirements. Milk, eggs, meat, cheese, fruits and vegetables will contribute the rest. But remember this: The more foods you eat, in which Enriched Omar Flour is used, the more Vitamin B<sub>1</sub> and Iron you'll get!

GLORIOUS BAKING RESULTS

The appearance and baking characteristics of Omar Wonder Flour have not been changed by enrichment. This famous flour looks the same, acts the same and gives the same delightful baking results that have caused women to call Omar "the bread flour so good it wins cake prizes."

Start using Enriched Omar Wonder Flour now. It's better than ever, gives more food value than ever and at no increase in price. Look for the official Omar "Enriched" seal on the sack.

BETTER 8 WAYS

1. Enriched with two important vitamins.
2. Enriched with Iron.
3. Finer—silk sifted in washed air.
4. Purer, cleaner, milled from washed wheat.
5. More uniform because it is made from especially selected blends of the finest wheat.
6. Extra loaves in every sack according to the testimony of Omar users.
7. Extra savings because it bakes both bread and cakes. You save the difference between the cost of Omar and that of expensive cake flour.
8. Extra baking quality as proven by the number of prizes won by Omar users each county and state fairs.

Vitamin-Enriched Flour Goes on Market Here

Employed by Germany to heighten the physical stamina and mental alertness of her soldiers and denied by Germany to peoples of occupied territories to reduce their resistance to subjugation; found by England to aid pilots of the Royal Air Force to avoid "night blindness" and to bolster nerves frayed by bombing raids; recommended by our own government to be added to the diet of everyone—rich or poor—in an attempt to raise shockingly low general health levels revealed by examination of men drafted for selective service, vitamins made their bow to the public this month in "enriched" white flour. Long recognized by science as essential to health, government and industry are now cooperating to bring life-giving vitamins to everyday living—not as a medicine but as they should be—in food. The millers of America, prompted by the findings of the Committee on Foods and Nutrition of the National Research Council, have agreed to enrich white flour with the vitamins and minerals found to be most generally wanting in diet. Simply by using this enriched white flour in her baking, and by giving her family an ordinarily well-balanced diet, the homemaker can be assured of providing the basic vitamin requirements. Almost automatically vitamin values are added to the diet of families where flour forms the chief staple of diet and to the diet of people, who, though they can afford whatever they want to eat, miss getting proper vitamin requirements through unwise choice or improper preparation of foods. One of the first firms to cooperate, Omar Mills brought to the market this month "Enriched Wonder Flour" fortified with Vitamin B1 or thiamin—the "energy" vitamin essential to body growth in children, to healthy appetite and steady nerves in all; nicotinic acid—the pellagra-preventive factor essential to the proper maintenance of special tissues; and iron—without which the body cannot maintain a supply of red blood corpuscles. Omar is also launching a widespread educational campaign in an effort to answer the public's questions about vitamins and to enlist their support of this important project. Health authorities hail this step as an epochal advance in nutrition history to be compared with the importance of the discovery of diphtheria toxoid and smallpox vaccine in their contribution to longer and more useful life.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.
Miss Marian June Earl is willing to divide her good luck with others. Monday she brought to the Quiz office a four-leaf clover which she had found that day. Let us hope that this means good luck for all of us for the year 1941. All the bad luck seems to have gone Rev. Radloff's way since the Quiz gave him an appendectomy instead of just having his tonsils out. He felt that he should get back into the harness Sunday, as he had been off active duty since Tuesday morning, so he essayed to preach a sermon. The job was too much for his throat, however, and he had to go to bed for a while Monday. He must be careful. We can get along without a sermon or two better than the minister could get along without his voice.

Opens Motor Agency.
Burwell-Guy "Red" Anderson, who has long been associated with the Bredthauer Motor company, is now in the automobile business for himself. He is building a yard south of Dermot Evington's barber shop where he will display new and old cars. He has a Chevrolet agency.
