Former Calhoun EMT sees plane crash killing son, mother & aunt

by Teresa Eubanks, Journal Editor

A paramedic who has responded to some of the worst calls in Calhoun County in recent years was the first on scene at a devastating tragedy Sunday that claimed the life of his 13-year-old son, his mother and his aunt.

Tom Schultz, a Bay County resident who worked for a decade as an EMT with the Calhoun County ambulance service and remains on call part-time with Liberty EMS, now works as a firefighter-paramedic with Jackson County Fire Rescue.

Tom, his brother Patrick Schultz, and several other family members were enjoying the holiday weekend by taking short sight-seeing flights over Calhoun, Jackson and Bay County that morning when the unthinkable happened. The single-engine aircraft crashed moments after takeoff, killing the three passengers and leaving the pilot badly injured with burns over 80 percent of his body.

Melissa Peddie, who serves as Liberty County ambulance director, is a close friend of Tom's, and shared his story with The Journal.

On Sunday morning, Tom and his two youngest sons had just enjoyed a ride in the air with his brother at the controls when they landed and switched out passengers at a small airstrip near the Calhoun County line. They were flying from Maran Airfield at 22303 Longleaf Road in Fountain.

Tom and the boys, Keanu, 6, and nine-year-old Sebastian, got out of the 1974 Piper Cherokee single-engine aircraft; his oldest son, Nicholas Hoang, his mother,

Kathleen Schultz and his aunt, Nancy Moore got in.

Tom's fiancée, Tran, was supposed to fly with them but at the last minute, she got frightened and declined to ride. She stayed on the ground with Tom and the two boys.

According to Peddie, Tom described how his brother went through his routine safety check before returning to the air. He told her the kids, anxious to see the plane go up, tried to rush him but Patrick told them to wait as he continued going over his safety checklist.

Tom, Tran and the boys were watching from the ground when the aircraft - which is owned by a friend of the family - took off.

"He said it cleared the trees, then just dropped and burst into flames," according to Peddie. The aircraft went down at 9:25 a.m. "Tom jumped into a vehicle and drove to the crash site," she said. It was in a remote area, inaccessible by vehicle. He had to run about a half mile to reach the aircraft.

"His brother was out of the plane and trying to walk and begging for help," Peddie said. "He was burned from head to toe."

"I'm hurting, brother, help me," Patrick said. He told Tom the others were dead. Peddie said the skin was burned off the pilot's hands and arms, leading them to believe he had tried to get the passengers out of the wreckage.

"The plane was engulfed in fire," Peddie said. Realizing that nothing could be done for the others, "Tom put his focus on his brother."

Collision sends three to hospital

Three people were hospitalized with non-incapacitating injuries after a head-on collision Thursday in Calhoun County. According to FHP Trooper Luke Johnson, Patty O'Bryan of Clarksville was northbound on SR 71 S when she turned onto SR 73, driving her Toyota Avalon into the path of a Toyota Prius. The driver of Prius, Linda Ruth Best, and her passenger, Martha Broxton, both of Blountstown, were taken by Lifeflight helicopter to an area hospital. O'Bryan was transported by ambulance. The 1:25 pm. collision happened just past Scotts Ferry at The Junction.

An ambulance soon arrived and Tom joined another paramedic in the vehicle as they intubated his brother and did what they could for him. "Tom cried as he worked on his brother, knowing that he couldn't get into the plane to his mother, his aunt and his child," said Peddie.

Tom said that before intubating his brother, "I kissed him on his forehead, told him that I loved him and that I would take care of him." Patrick replied, "I know, Tom."

Patrick was taken to Bay Medical Center and later transferred to the Augusta Burn Center. He remains in "very critical condition," according to Peddie.

The brief, fatal flight was filmed by Tom, who turned it over to the National Transportation and Safety Board for their investigation. Tuesday, he watched the footage with investigators.

He told Peddie until he reviewed the footage he had shot, he didn't realize that the younger boys and their mother were screaming in grief when the airplane disappeared from the sky and smoke began billowing up from the ground.

Firefighters from the Carr Clarksville and Mossy Pond volunteer fire departments responded to the crash site, along with emergency workers from Jackson and Bay counties. "We didn't know what size aircraft it was. We sent everything we could from Clarksville," said Carr Clarksville Assistant Fire Chief Andy Waldorff. "Kinard sent an engine to our fire department as a backup." He described it as a "horrific scene."

Account set up at Centennial Bank to help family after crash

Tuesday morning, Tom Schultz learned that a $5,000 insurance policy on Nicholas that he had been making monthly payments on since 2008 was not valid because he had not been legally declared his son.

Nicholas died along with Tom's mother and aunt in Sunday morning airplane crash near the Calhoun County line in Youngstown.

Tom and Nicholas' mother have been together since the little boy was three and Tom raised him as his own, according to his friend and former co-worker, Melissa Peddie.

Tom and Tran, who have two younger sons, are not married.

Tuesday afternoon, Peddie set up a fund to help with the boy's funeral expenses.

Contributions may be made in the name of Melissa Peddie at Centennial Bank for "The Schultz Family Fund." Checks may be mailed to the bank in Bristol at the following address: Centennial Bank, 10911 NW SR 20, Bristol, FL 32321. Donations may also be dropped off at Centennial's locations in Blountstown and Panama City.

Peddie said that Tom has given a lot to the community in his time with the Calhoun County ambulance service, and worked alongside her in the mud and devastation when four people were killed during the Sept. 2004 tornado that destroyed homes along Parrish

Road near Blountstown. They also responded to the tragic call that resulted in the death of a Blountstown youngster who became entangled in the machinery at an automated car wash.

"He has been here and served us even through the Emergystat days when we didn't get paid, and if we did, the paychecks bounced," Peddie wrote on her Facebook page.

"Let's all pitch in and help him, please."

Altercation leads to the arrest of Bristol brothers after dispute over E-cig

Two brothers were charged with domestic battery following a fight that left both with visible injuries Thursday. They were taken into custody after a deputy responded to a report of a disturbance at 11851 NW Turkey Creek Road, according to a report from the Liberty County Sheriff's Office.

When Shannon Daniels and his brother, Carlee Daniels began arguing over buying their mother an E-Cigarette, the dispute quickly escalated.

Shannon claimed that Carlee punched him in his upper left chest. Red marks were discovered on Shannon's chest area, along with a cut by his left eye, and minor bumps on the back of his head.

Shannon claimed that at one point Carlee pulled a knife, but a witness told the deputy that didn't happen. No knife was recovered. Shannon is claiming self defense.

According to the incident report, Carlee Daniels had been drinking. He claimed Shannon hit him first on his head and that he was defending himself. A large contusion was found on Carlee's head, as well as scrapes on his left side and shoulder and a cut on his back.

A witness said she did not see who started it, but saw the men fighting. She said she was injured on her hand when Shannon knocked a door in.

Since it could not be determined who the primary aggressor was, both men were arrested.

Torn and faded flags should not be displayed in Liberty County

To the editor,

Memorial Day is the day of remembrance for those who have died in the service of the United States of America. Wearing a red poppy, placing a flag at a fallen service member's grave, and flying the flag in cities and towns all around this great country are all things we do to honor those heroes.

I am writing about the flags that have been put up by Liberty County to honor those who made the ultimate sacrifice for our freedoms. In particular, I am writing about the flags in Hosford. To my dismay I was outraged to see not one, but three flags in Hosford put up by Liberty County for Memorial Day that are torn and faded. One of the flags is directly in front of the Hosford cemetery in which many of our veterans lay. This is both a sign of disgrace and disrespect.

The federal flag code states that the flag of the United States is the emblem of our identity as a separate nation, which the United States of America has been for more than 200 years.

When the flag is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem, it should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning.

To the Liberty County Commissioners and public employees, a faded and torn flag is no longer a fitting emblem of the United States. Also, a flag does NOT become torn and faded in a few days of being displayed. As a veteran and a citizen of Liberty County, I was shocked that the County (employees or representatives) would do such a disgraceful thing as to hang not one, but three torn and tattered flags on public display.

I call on the Board of County Commissioners to properly destroy all the flags in an appropriate ceremony that are no longer fitting emblems of the United States of America; and, to replace them with new flags.

Our veterans, active duty military members, and their families deserve the respect and honor.

Sincerely,
Lorra Richards, Hosford

Remembering one man's heart and humor

To the editor,

My tears fell this morning for a man that meant the world to me. I loved "Gene" - I can call him Gene because he allowed me to do so.

This gentle man took it upon himself to take care of my daddy, Jack Revell, during his illness, while I was away in the Army. He would drive him to Lake City for Veteran's Hospital care.

Beyond that, I do not remember Gene not smiling. The guy had that certain movement of his facial features that drew you in.

His expertise with heavy equipment was unparalleled. His knowledge of small engines was uncanny. His sense of humor was beyond reproach.

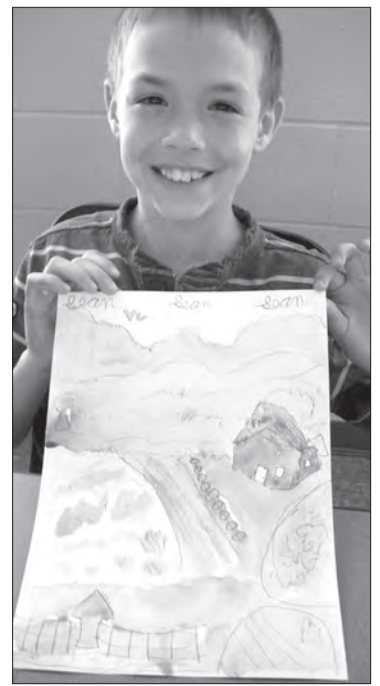

Every lawn cutting season, I would ask

Mr. Gene to refurbish my riding lawn mower, after I had abused it for a year. He seemed incredulous to think that I could not do this chore. He always said, "Boy, don't you know how to do nothing?" Suffice it to say, my mower was always on time.

The last time that I talked with Gene was when he was sitting at the head of my dining room table.

In closing, my heartfelt sympathy goes out to Gene's entire family. Particularly Loretta and Joyce, whom I have had the privilege of getting acquainted with while working together.

He passed as he lived, free on the river.
Sincerely and respectfully,
Danny Revell, Lake Mystic

Wildflower alert

Orange Milkwort

by Eleanor Dietrich,
Florida Wildflower Foundation

See if you can find this small bright orange flower that grows out in the open where the ground is moist along the Wildflower Trail in Liberty County. There will usually be several blooms on this plant that grows about six inches tall; some call them "Bog Cheetos" and when you see them you will know why! The usual common name is Orange Milkwort (Polygala lutea) and it is very distinctive. It will bloom from spring through fall. A good place to look for it is on Forest Road 105; however, it is very common so you will be able to see it on many of the damp roadsides in the national forest. If you look at the flower closely, you will see that the flower head is actually made up of many smaller flowers with an interesting shape. The genus name Polygala comes from the ancient Greek "much milk", as the plant was thought to increase milk yields in cattle.

Girl Scouts thank Calhoun Co. emergency workers with a meal and cookies

The Girl Scout Cadettes of Blountstown were able to cook for the Firefighters and EMS of Calhoun County at their monthly meeting Monday, May 19. On the menu was deviled eggs, spaghetti, garlic bread and chocolate cheesecake.

The girls were not only using this opportunity to thank the First Responders of Calhoun County, but they also earned a cooking badge. Some may have noticed that during the Girl Scout Cookie season this year they were asking for donations to help donate a box of cookies to the First Responders. Donations taken during the cookie season were turned into boxes. They had over 200 boxes donated! At the meeting a representative of each Fire Station was given boxes of cookies to share with their fire station.

The Junior Girl Scouts will soon be cooking for the Sheriff's Office and also the Police Station. They will also receive free boxes of cookies as a thank you for all they do.

Last year the Girl Scout Juniors built the Dog Park behind Sam Atkins Park.

This summer the Girl Scout Cadettes will be doing their Silver Award (120 volunteer hours of service per girl) on a community project. They voted that they want to help revamp the Altha Community Center. They will be beginning this venture in July and any donations or help would be greatly appreciated.

Next school year the Juniors will be at it again. This time they voted to try and cover the playground equipment at Sam Atkins Park and also the Altha Recreation Center. This is to earn their Bronze Award and requires 80 volunteer hours of service per girl.

They are all so excited to get these projects started. "Our troop loves helping our surrounding community and look forward to all the new and exciting things to come," said Troop Leader Brittny Wooten.

If you or your daughter is interested in becoming a part of Girl Scouts or you would like to help or make donations please contact Brittny Wooten (850) 832-6777.

What successful political leaders have in common

A long time ago, I learned from Bill Schneider, a very wise man, that in order to understand American politics, you have to understand the differences between an ideologue -- a believer in a defined ideology -- and a pragmatist -- someone who instead is concerned with practical results. The ideologue believes that what is right works, but the pragmatist believes instead that what works is right. Americans, according to Schneider, are pragmatists who conclude that if something works, it is right.

That helps to explain why the United States has had only two presidents in the last 54 years who served two terms and left office with a job rating of 65 percent favorable: Republican Ronald Reagan and Democrat Bill Clinton. Reagan was elected at a time of high unemployment, double-digit inflation and double-digit interest rates. He promised to cut taxes by one-third, double the nation's defense budget, and balance the federal budget (two out of three ain't bad). But four years later, after inflation was checked by raising interest rates to 21 percent and a recession where U.S. unemployment was the highest it had been since the Great Depression -- Reagan could plausibly run for re-election and carry 49 states on a theme of "It's morning again in America."

Clinton won the White House at a time of then-record budget deficits, so instead of tax cuts, he championed tax increases on the highest-income Americans and a boost in the gasoline tax to close the deficit. Clinton passed his tax bill without the vote of a single Republican in the Senate or House. Under Clinton, the federal deficit was cut, eventually the federal budget even balanced, and the nation's economy thrived, so much so that he in 1996 became the first Democratic president in 60 years to win re-election.

Tax cuts had worked under Reagan, and tax increases had worked under Clinton. Ideologues were confounded by the conflicting results, but pragmatists, who include most Americans, concluded that the totally contradictory "medicines" had both worked.

What Reagan and Clinton shared was a

AMERICAN COLOR

by Mark Shields

Pundit Mark Shields has been on the political playing field since Robert F. Kennedy ran for president in 1968. After years of managing campaigns from the courthouse to the White House, he is now one of the most widely recognized commentators in the U.S.

resilient -- and contagious -- optimism. Each of them, raised in frankly modest circumstances, became convinced early on that he could scale the heights. While Clinton was heir to the optimistic leadership legacy of Democrats FDR and JFK, Reagan was really the first -- along with

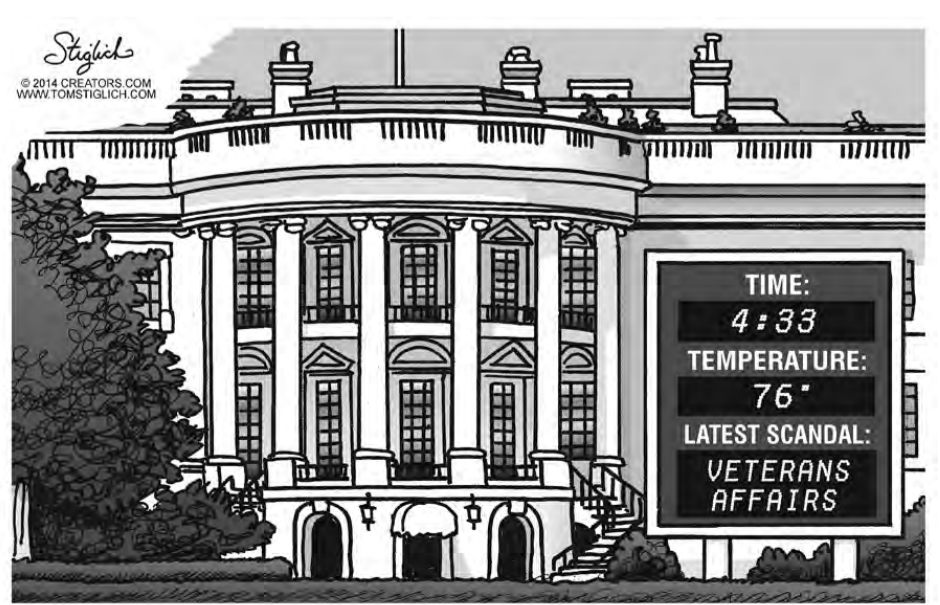

Rep. Jack Kemp -- to put a smiling face on American conservatism, which until then had been quite grumpy.

Conservatives fall into two groups: the five-minutes-to-midnight conservatives who tell us, "Yes, things are bad, but they're going to get a lot worse," and the five-minutes-to-sunrise conservatives who concede how bad things really are but are confident that if we just follow this policy, the darkness will lift, and the warm sun will shine on America.

Contemporary conservatism suffers from an acute lack of cheerful optimism. Missing is that five-minutes-to-sunrise hopeful leader. Nowhere was that gloomy dyspepsia more evident than in the primary victory statement of the Republican Sen. Minority Leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky.

After the obligatory nod to his vanquished primary opponent, McConnell launched into a diatribe against his Democratic opponent, Alison Lundergan Grimes: "My opponent is in this race because Harry Reid and Barack Obama want her in this race. There's a reason ... every Hollywood liberal is sending her a check. It's not because they care about Kentucky, I can assure you of that. It's because they know as well as we do that there isn't a dime's worth of difference between a candidate who puts Harry Reid in charge and Harry Reid himself. A vote for my opponent is a vote for a guy who says coal makes us sick. A vote for my opponent is a vote for Obamacare and a president who sold it to us on a mountain of lies."

That's just a taste of the bile the senior Republican from Kentucky, seeking his sixth Senate term, offered in celebration. No ideas to unite the nation, to heal the economy, to comfort the afflicted. No lift of a driving dream or Reagan's optimism. Just more bile in 2014.

Chipola welding student, Nate Prietz cuts steel with a track torch.

Chipola welding program earns national accreditation

MARIANNA - The Chipola College welding program recently earned accreditation from the National Center for Construction Education & Research (NCCER) through the Southern Company/Gulf Power Accredited Training Sponsor (ATS) audit process.

As the accrediting body for the industry, NCCER establishes the benchmark for quality training and assessments. By partnering with industry and academia, NCCER has developed a system for program accreditation similar to those found in institutions of higher learning. This process fosters national unity among the construction industry while providing a defined career path with industry-recognized credentials. The NCCER accreditation process assures that students and craft professionals receive quality training based on uniform standards and criteria.

The Chipola welding program utilizes state-of-the-art welding equipment, hybrid learning, mobile welding units and simulation technologies. The first class of 20 students in the new program enrolled in January. New students may enter the program during Summer Session II which begins June 23. Registration is June 19.

The program is 1,170 clock-hours which can be completed in approximately one year. Classes are available Monday through Thursday from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Evening classes are expected to be added beginning in August.

Chipola's welding program is made possible through a grant awarded to the Alabama/Florida Technical Employment Network (AF-TEN). Chipola, L. B. Wallace, Northwest Florida State, Pensacola State, and Wallace Community College formed the consortium that was awarded $10 million in a Trade Adjustment Assistance Community College and Career Training (TA-ACCCT) grant. Each college shares a portion of the grant to implement a welding technology program on their campus.

Darwin Gilmore, Chipola Dean of Workforce Development, says, "Welding is a targeted occupation that offers excellent pay and benefits. Workforce Florida projects annual growth of 13,500 jobs in advanced manufacturing and construction, with 75% requiring postsecondary training. The Alabama Department of Industrial Relations (ADIR) lists welding among Alabama's "Hot 40 Jobs" with expected annual growth of more than 2% through 2018."

Byron Ward, Welding Career Coach, says, "The job outlook is very good in the area and especially for those willing to travel or relocate. Starting pay for pipe welders in ship-building is $20 per hour and higher. Local manufacturing plants offer $14-$18 per hour." Eastern Ship Builders in Panama City hires numerous welders and is expected to expand their operation in the near future. Other local employers include Rolls Right Trailers and Anderson Columbia in Marianna. Welding jobs also are available in Tallahassee, Panama City, Jacksonville, Dothan and Mobile, Alabama.

Financial aid is available for students who qualify, with special consideration for veterans. Prospective welding students must earn a minimum score on the Test of Adult Basic Education (TABE).

For information about Chipola's Welding program, call (850) 718-2270, or visit www.chipola.edu.

CHILD SAFETY

DOH: To prevent drowning, practice touch supervision

The Florida Department of Health in Calhoun and Liberty County promotes the proven lifesaving practice of "touch supervision" to prevent drowning. "Touch supervision" means an adult is always at arm's length of a child who is in or near water.

According to the Florida Department of Health's Office of Injury Prevention, Florida leads the country in drowning deaths of children between the ages of 1 and 4. In 2011, drowning was the cause of death of 447 Florida residents. Drowning deaths are often associated with swimming pools and natural/open water, but they may also happen in bathtubs, toilets, buckets, and wading pools.

DOH-Calhoun/Liberty is promoting "touch supervision". "Research has shown that touch supervision is the most effective way to prevent drowning in children," said Director Dr. John Lanza. "It is a practice supported by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the American Academy of Pediatrics, and the Florida Pediatric Society."

'Touch supervision' means an adult is always at arm's length of a child in or near water.

Dr. Lanza explained that "watching" is inadequate to prevent drowning, because the "watcher" may not be close enough to the pool to provide assistance. However, with "touch supervision", the parent is actually sitting on the side of the pool or in the water within "an arm's length" from the child. Touch supervision should be practiced even in situations where a lifeguard is present. A physically capable adult should always remain within an arm's reach to ensure the safety of children around bathtubs, wading pools, swimming pools, and natural bodies of water.

In addition to practicing touch supervision, the CDC recommends the use of these guidelines:

- Fence it off. Install a four-sided isolation fence, with self-closing and self-latching gates, around backyard swimming pools. This can help keep children away from the area when a parent cannot supervise them.

- Make life jackets a "must." Make sure kids wear life jackets in and around natural bodies of water, such as lakes or the ocean, even if they know how to swim. Water wings, noodles, inner tubes or any other air-filled or foam toys are not designed to keep swimmers safe.

- Learn CPR. Learn cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and get recertified every two years. CPR can help a child stay alive with little or no brain damage.

Florida's 'Big Kids' get a safety boost

For several years, Florida has been the most dangerous state for children between the ages of 4 and 10 traveling in vehicles. Florida is currently one of only two states in the nation that lacks a booster seat bill for older children – and the only state that allows 4-year-olds to ride in an adult seatbelt.

Booster seats are needed for the simple reason that seat belts are designed to fit adults – specifically the "average" adult male. When a child under age 8 (on average) or under 4'9" tall and 80 pounds sits in an adult seatbelt, the lap belt tends to ride up onto his or her stomach.

In a crash the belt tightens to keep the child from being ejected. It cuts through the soft stomach and the first bone to stop it is the spinal cord. This is known as "seat belt syndrome." It can cause severe injuries including internal bleeding and even paralysis.

A booster seat "boosts" the child up about six inches so the belt fits below the stomach and can restrain the child properly without causing injury. Using a booster seat reduces your child's risk of injury by about 60%.

In Florida, some kids are about to get a safety "boost." The Florida House and Senate just passed the revisions to Florida Statute 316.613 with Bill 225. If signed by Governor Scott, the new regulations will take effect on January 1, 2015.

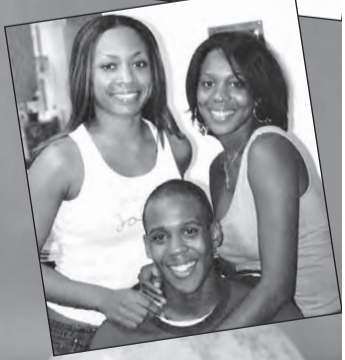

The new law will require children aged 4 through 5 years old to travel in a car seat or booster, NOT an adult seat belt. Unpaid drivers who are not in the child's immediate family, children being transported for medical emergencies and children with a medical condition necessitating an exception are exempt from the law.

While this law by no means provides adequate protection for Florida's older children, it is at least a step in the right direction. By a slim margin, Florida will no longer be the most unsafe state in the nation for child passengers.

If you have a question, please call The University of Florida/IFAS Extension Santa Rosa County, at (850) 623-3868, between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays. Extension Service programs are open to all people without regard to race, color, sex, age, handicap or national origin.

Elect GREG SOLOMON Liberty Co. School Superintendent

PAID FOR AND APPROVED BY GREG SOLOMON, CANDIDATE FOR LIBERTY COUNTY
SUPERINTENDENT

Dear Voters: After 37 years of service to our school district, I am running for the office of Liberty County School Superintendent. Thanks to many of you who have come forth and encouraged me to run. I have many times considered running for this office, and I feel this is the right time. Many times candidates run on the premise of change, and we get the same old thing. This time it will be a historic change. I have worked at every school in the district with success and most of you know that I believe in being firm, fair and consistent. I will bring that same motto to the office everyday as the Board and I make decisions that impact students. We as teachers and parents are molding children for the future. James Baldwin said, "We will either reap the benefits or pay the price for the way we raise our children." I for one would like to reap the benefits. The price we pay will be too high for not educating, teaching manners and asking them to be responsible for their actions or inaction. We've had some bumps in the road the last few years, but I believe I can make the road a little smoother by making sound financial decisions. It would be such an honor to represent you with dignity, integrity and professionalism that the office requires. It's impossible to see everyone as I make my way around the county, please take this ad as my way of asking for your support.

Solomon

The funds he contributed will be used in for the school district's new sports complex project. Duggar will receive a plaque in his honor above a window in the concession stand of the new Liberty County Sports Complex for his generous donation on the project he has been working tirelessly to see become a reality.

Other plaques are still available for those who wish to make a donation. To do, contact the bank or someone at the Liberty County Education Foundation.

FLORIDA HISTORY - UF unearths foundation of only stone mission church in St. Augustine

GAINESVILLE, Fla. --- Large-scale excavations by the University of Florida are underway in St. Augustine of the 337-year-old remains of one of the largest and most ornate churches known to Spanish Florida.

Florida Museum of Natural History researchers have unearthed more than half of the coquina stone and tabby foundations of the church, which was discovered in 2011 and may be the first stone structure completed in colonial Spanish Florida—predating the famous Castillo de San Marcos fort.

Newly discovered architectural features, including a room that possibly served as the friar's residence and other interior rooms, are providing researchers with a window into daily life at the first and longest-lasting Franciscan mission in Florida, said Gifford Waters, Florida Museum of Natural History historical archaeology collection manager.

"This building at the Nombre de Dios mission gives us insight into the late 17th and early 18th centuries, a time period of the mission that is relatively unstudied archaeologically," Waters said. "We hope to gain knowledge of the mission process and how it affected Native Americans. This is also an opportunity to develop a more intimate understanding of historical events that shaped Spanish Florida."

Artifacts dating to the 17th century and other evidence suggests the stone structure is likely the 'La Leche' church commissioned in 1677 by Florida's governor Pablo de Hita y Salazar in honor of the shrine, Waters said.

British soldiers occupied the church in 1702 during their siege of St. Augustine before burning the building. Excavation of the structure's foundation and study of its architecture are offering clues as to how the church was rebuilt, Waters said.

"We have discovered two distinct construction episodes indicating that the 1677 construction was of coquina stone, and it was rebuilt with tabby and coquina rubble from the original church," Waters said. "The excavation has revealed interior partition walls, indicating the presence of distinct rooms within the structure."

These rooms were likely the convento (friar's residence), which was added to the structure when it was rebuilt after 1702, said historical architect Herschel Shepard, who is consulting the excavation team.

"The tabby convento may be one of the earliest tabby structures constructed after the siege in 1702, for we know the convento was destroyed in 1728," Shepard said.

Built outside the protective walls of the city about one-quarter mile north of the Castillo de San Marcos, the structure offers a historical perspective of the British raids nobody has seen until now, Waters said.

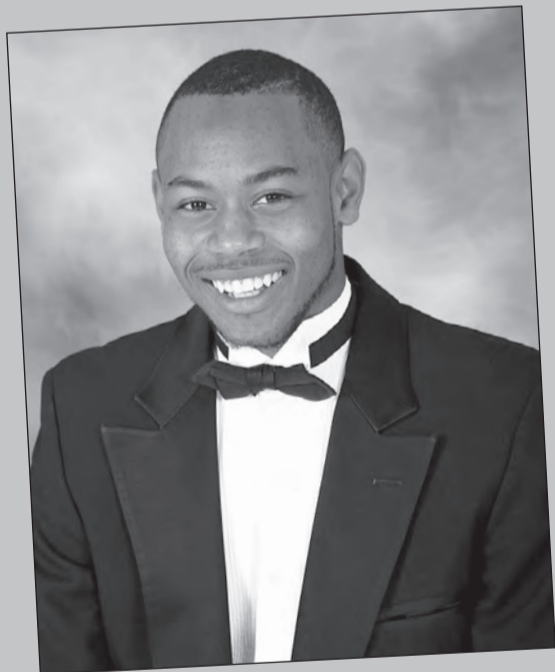

"The historical documents may tell us that the British attacked St. Augustine and occupied the church before destroying it, but it is only through archaeology that we can understand minute details, such as responses to the attacks and how the Native Americans and friars rebuilt their lives," he said.

The Florida Museum of Natural History inspires people to value the biological richness and cultural heritage of our diverse world and make a positive difference in its future. The museum is located at 3215 Hull Road just east of Southwest 34th Street in the University of Florida Cultural Plaza in Gainesville. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday. The museum's current temporary exhibit, "Wolf to Woof: The Story of Dogs," explores the history, biology and evolution of dogs and their special place in human society. River Battalion Cadets place 144 flags in local cemetery to honor our local heroes

On Friday, May 23, Operation "Raise the Flag" began at 8:30 a.m. with 13 JROTC Cadets from the local River Battalion Army JROTC Program placing 50 small American flags on the graves of veterans buried in the Bristol Cemetery north of the Liberty County Court House Annex to celebrate the Memorial Day Holiday.

Last October, Lieutenant Colonel Bob Quint, JROTC Senior Army Instructor at Liberty County High School, approached the local Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) to obtain small American flags to place on the graves of local Veterans buried in the local Court House Cemetery.

LTC Quint said, "I received 144 American flags from the VFW for my Cadets to place on the graves of our local Veterans for the Veterans Day and Memorial Day Holidays. I have taught my Cadets that freedom is not free, and that we as a Nation, owe our freedom and liberty to those that sacrificed the ultimate. My cadets began raising the flags last year for the Veterans Day Holiday and we continued with Memorial Day yesterday. I am very proud of my 13 Cadets for their selfless service and taking the time to help me raise the flags and honor those who served our nation."

Cadet Zane Yore, who helped place some of the small American flags in the local cemetery for Memorial Day said, "To me, Memorial Day is a day for remembering all of the brave men and women that fought for our freedom and made the ultimate sacrifice."

Cadet Jessie West also placed flags last Friday said, "Memorial Day allows us to remember things we forget every day. We are able to live our daily lives because of brave men and women who have and are putting their lives on the line."

Finally, Cadet Makayla Westbrook said, "Memorial Day to me is when we celebrate those who fought and are still fighting for our freedom."

KDYY FISHING RELIEF Fundraising vs 'Fun Raising'

MARY McCLELLAN'S OUTDOORS Down South

Mary McClellan has hijacked husband Jim McClellan's column this week to share her adventures with a group of friends in Pensacola who combine fishing and fundraising. Jim's columns appear weekly in The Journal as well as on his blog, outdoorsdownsouth.com.

Some of the best days of my life recently have involved being a part of a group of 150 ladies, my Mardi Gras group, Krewe du Yayas (KDYY) here in Pensacola.

Our motto is "Live, Laugh, Love" and we do all of those quite well. Aside from the parade float riding, bead throwing and pink wig wearing, we also enjoy raising money for our breast cancer screening charity, Keeping Abreast Foundation. And the way we do that is through a series of fundraising events throughout the year. Lucky for me, one of those events happened this past weekend and it involved one of my favorite past times, fishing.

Since most of you only know me through my husband, Jim's, blog posts (mostly as a nagging wife and creature of comfort), you should know that I am by far the most reserved among my KDYY friends, which is probably why I surround myself with the craziest of them who bring me out of my shell of introversion. So, when they asked me in a last-minute panic to head up our second annual Save the Boobers Fishing Rodeo Friday night captains meeting and party, I thought, "Certainly, they have confused my quiet reserve for actual talents, like organization or something." But like all good people-pleasers with no "no" filter, I said not just yes, but absolutely-I-am-honored-just-to-be-asked yes.

With only six weeks to plan and gather donations, one two-week inclement weather postponement, and hours upon hours of gift basket wrapping, the KDYY part of the rodeo (the Friday night Paint the Lagoon Pink silent auction, mullet toss and merchandise sales) had finally arrived. Five hours later, it was over. Like a flash in the bucket. And that's when it happened.

You know that feeling of relief you get when something you've been hectically planning for comes to an abrupt halt? Well, for us "yes" people, that can sometimes be the most terrifying of moments, and we dread it from the first second that the planning begins. We know it's coming - that immediate adrenaline drop and "what the heck do I do with my life now" moment, and it can be downright debilitating. Those of you who have your priorities in place will just relax a little and get back to the next thing. But again, "yes" people don't know how to do relax. Sometimes though, we are forced to do so, as was the case this weekend. I actually did something I don't normally do - take part in not just the fundraising, but in the "fun raising"! And that meant fishing the following day. Actually fishing in the tournament that I helped plan. Relaxation. What a concept.

Let me just say here that from the moment I sat my butt down into one of those comfy cushioned deck chairs, I could feel the stress float away. Add to that the fabulous company, a good quality fishing rod, and the multitude of red snapper we caught, and I was ready to take on my next "yes" moment. It's amazing to me what eight hours offshore fishing can do because after that, I was a new woman.

Although we didn't win much, we accomplished what we set out to do: have a relaxing, rejuvenating day on the water, and (the part Jim cares most about) came home with dinner.

2013 boating accident stats

Sixty-two people lost their lives in Florida last year in boating accidents, and there have already been 11 deaths so far this year, according to the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC), which has released its 2013 Boating Accident Statistical Report.

The FWC is responsible for reviewing, analyzing and compiling boating accident data for the state. Its statistical report details boating accidents and their causes.

The theme of accident-related messages from FWC staff is clear: Officers want to help keep Florida's beautiful waterways a safe place to boat.

"Often, accidents can be prevented by more careful operation," said Lt. Seth Wagner. "It is critical for operators to maintain a proper lookout and focus on what is going on around their boat at all times."

Failing to have a proper lookout is a leading cause of boating accidents, statistics show.

In fatal accidents, drowning is the leading cause of death.

"There's an easy fix. Wear a life jacket," Wagner said. "There are several styles of life jackets available to boaters that won't interfere with your boating experience and may save your life."

Today's boaters can choose from several models of light and comfortable, inflatable belt-pack and over-the-shoulder life jackets that can be worn while fishing or enjoying the sun, and they do not interfere with boating activities.

Accidents can occur without warning, and if for some reason someone ends up in the water, quite often it's too late to put on a life jacket.

"The leading type of accident continues to be boaters colliding with other boats or objects," Wagner said. "With the number of boaters in our beautiful state, it's important to pay close attention to everything that's going on around you."

The 2013 Boating Accident Statistical Report is now available online at MyFWC.com/Boating; click on "Boating Accidents."

Adoptables

from Alaqua Animal Refuge

HELLO!
My name is
WIZ

My full name is Wizard, but you can call me Wiz. I share this name with the famous Wizard of Oz. I sure wish I was as powerful as that Wizard. My life might have been easier with those powers. Yet, our stories are similar in many ways. Lend me your ear...

My story began at a magical place called Alaqua. They don't have "yellow brick roads" here, but they sure do make a lot of miracles happen. I was born here, just last year. The people here are simply wonderful. They took such good care of me, and soon I was adopted by a very nice family, which I thought was my forever home. Unfortunately, they didn't have enough time to teach me good manners, and as I grew, they felt it best to return me to Alaqua. I have to admit, it broke my heart. I felt that I was not smart enough to be a good dog. I was so sad, and depressed. This is where my story becomes very similar to the story of the "Wizard of Oz".

Just like the Scarecrow, I didn't think I had a brain smart enough to learn to be a good pet. I felt like the "Tin Man", as my heart had been shattered. My spirit had been broken, just as the "Cowardly Lion's" courage had been broken. But, most of all I had no home just like Dorothy. I was missing all of the same basic traits that the characters in the Wizard of Oz were missing.

That is when Alaqua began to get to work with me. Through the love, comfort, and devotion of the humans at Alaqua, I began to realize that they really seemed to care about me. It is amazing how just a little bit of TLC, can mend a broken heart. I also got along well with the other dogs at Alaqua. Recess in the playground brought me a consistent schedule of joy, exercise, and fun. Before too long, my heart began to heal. The best part of that healing, was that my heart also opened to accept the love they gave me, and I was able to give my love in return! It was as if I had a brand new heart, just as the Tin Man found his heart.

I still needed to learn my manners. The nice people at Alaqua tirelessly worked to teach me to be a good doggie. I learned that it was impolite to jump up. They taught me how to get along with the other pups, and how to keep my kennel nice and clean. I was a good listener, and they were patient teachers. Soon, I was able to follow the rules of being a good dog, and a devoted companion. So, I thought, I do have a brain! I just had slow down and listen!

As the weeks passed, I realized that my courage and confidence began to grow. First, you find love and trust, then you begin to learn, and before you know it, you find your courage and confidence. Just like the "Cowardly Lion", once you have a heart full of love, and the knowledge to follow the rules, the courage just happens to follow!

That just leaves me with the biggest of my wishes - a home. Dorothy loved the "Land of Oz", just as much as I love being at Alaqua, but Dorothy couldn't wait to go home Kansas. A family of my own is my greatest hope of all; a family I can love, protect, and devote my life to.

I hope you will come out to Alaqua to meet me. I promise to be the best pup you've ever known. I don't require a lot of maintenance, just a comfortable bed, a couple of good meals a day, and a reassuring pat in the head, and a lot of love. I know you will be happy to have me as part of your family.

It's been a long journey for me, and the road has not been paved with yellow bricks. That magical place called Alaqua is my home, now, and they helped me find my heart, my brain, and my courage. I continue to hope and pray that I will find my very own family, and every chance I have I stop and say to myself, three times in a row... "there is no place like home". Hey, it worked for Dorothy, and with the miracles at Alaqua, I just know it will work for me. I am sure my family is out there somewhere over the rainbow.

Tolar students take part in KINDERGARTEN GRADUATION

W.R. Tolar's 5th grade class completes study of 'Where the Red Fern Grows'

Sky Scott's 5th grade class at W. R. Tolar has just completed a novel study on Where The Red Fern Grows by Wilson Rawls. The story is of a young boy named Billy and his two hounds, Old Dan and Little Ann. A loving threesome, they ranged the dark hills and river bottoms of Cherokee country. Old Dan had the brawn. Little Ann had the brains-and Billy had the will to train them to be the finest hunting team in the valley. Glory and victory were coming to them, but sadness waited too. And close by was the strange and wonderful power that's only found....Where The Red Fern Grows.

This week, after reading the book, the class enjoyed watching the movie where they were joined by a special guest, Mr. Scott's, 12-year-old deer hound, Tubs. Tubs enjoyed the day of pampering as he received treats, scratched ears and a bath by the students.
