What is in a name?

The LaserJet, Officejet and Scanjet products have moved to a new naming structure to make it easier for you to find the device you want—whether it’s time to upgrade or replace existing products. The new printer and scanner naming system also makes it easier to find the right supplies to meet your needs.

New LaserJet and Scanjet products will use the Pro and Enterprise sub-branding, a family number product descriptor, and a model number and a bundle identifier. The model number and supplies selectability number are the only part of the product name that changed with new product introductions. Officejet products use the Pro selectability, a product descriptor, and a model number.

HP LaserJet product descriptor

The descriptor follows the family number, and can be one of five choices:

1. Blank—mono single function
2. MFP—mono MFP
3. Color—color single function
4. Color MFP—color MFP
5. Color Flow MFP—color MFP

HP LaserJet and Scanjet model number

Model numbers are unique for every device. The “m” in the model number means model, not mono, as in previous product names. For example: M275nw, M551xh.

HP LaserJet and Scanjet bundle identifier

a Base	w wireless
b Brazil (country derivative)	x SFP with network, duplex, paper tray
c Channel derivative (c1-c9)	xh SFP with x features plus HDD

f MFP with network, duplex, fax and (possibly a paper tray)	z MFP with more than 2 features. Automatic for flow bundles

LaserJet supplies selectability number

HP LaserJet supplies have a new selectability number that makes it much easier for customers to identify the correct supplies for their product. Color laser supplies have a three-digit + alpha (A, X, D) number, while mono laser supplies have a two-digit + alpha number. Selectability numbers are in addition to HP standard part numbers and do not correlate. Black, cyan, yellow, and magenta all have the same selectability number, and are differentiated by packaging colors and descriptions. For example, “230A” is used for all four colors.

LaserJet character limitation in advertising

If the number of characters is limited in advertising, fact tags and catalogs, the following naming convention is to be used.

Master brand	Descriptor	Model number
HP LaserJet	Blank	M175n
	MFP
	Color
	Color MFP
	Color Flow MFP
