Haifa Mayor Says Bonds Will Help Israel Be Self-Supporting

On hearing that Israel in a few years hopes to be self-supporting and self-supplying after getting a helping hand from its bond campaign in establishing a sound economy, the audience, attending a dinner in behalf of the local Bonds for Israel office last Monday night at the Ledgemont Country Club, purchased an additional $52,000 in bonds which brought to more than $1,000,000 the amount purchased by Rhode Islanders in the first year of the campaign.

Mayor Abba Khoushi of Haifa, Israel's principal seaport, known as the Pittsburgh of the Middle East, told the gathering which filled the club's dining room, that all kinds of minerals had recently been discovered in the Negev area of his country. They include phosphates, copper and sulphur, resources which will be developed with bonds now being sold to aid the country.

"We expect to get through these bonds the tools and the machinery to exploit these resources in world trade," the visitor declared. He said that under the fast development of Israel's economy, cultivation of the land had increased agricultural production from $600,000 to $4,000,000, people in industry has jumped from 69,000 to 119,000 while the population has steadily risen in the past three and one-half years.

Mayor Khoushi was welcomed here by Governor Roberts, who expressed high praise for the work of the local committees in the bond program and for the Rhode Island committee.

$255,000 Pledged at Emanuel Religious School Drive Meeting

A total of $255,000 has been pledged toward the cost of the new Religious School building of Temple Emanuel, now under construction, Samuel Lazarus, chairman of the building campaign, announced at the close of a "kick-off" breakfast meeting held Sunday morning at the Wayland Manor.

The goal set for the campaign is $425,000.

Approximately 70 members of the campaign committee attended the meeting as the guests of Samuel Rosen, president of Temple Emanuel.

The meeting that followed the breakfast was presided over by Lazarus, who is over-all chairman for the campaign to raise $425,000.

Seated at the head table with Rosen and Lazarus were Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen and the following committee officers: Arthur Kaplan and Alex Rumppler, co-chairmen; George Savin, secretary; Irving Fain, treasurer; Adrian Goldstein, publicity chairman; Herman Rosen and Charles Brier, co-chairmen, and Rabbi Israel Goldman of Baltimore, formerly the spiritual leader at Temple

Brothers Meet

CPL. JORDAN P. BERGEL, and PVT. MARTIN E. BERGEL, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Bergel of Evergreen Street, met recently in Germany. Martin arrived in Germany two months ago; Jordan has been stationed there for 13 months.

Emanuel, Rabbi Goldman was guest speaker.

Rosen discussed the inadequacy of the present school accommodations and stressed the need for the new facilities. Lazarus announced that he would sponsor a dinner-meeting Wednesday evening at the Wayland Manor, at which time the groundwork for the complete fund-raising activities would be prepared.

Rabbi Bohnen termed the drive for a new building a "call that comes but once in a generation, not an annual drive."

Hospital Holds Annual Meeting

The new $2 million Miriam Hospital building, now nearing completion on Summit Avenue, will be ready for occupancy "sometime this fall," Benjamin Brier, president of Miriam Hospital, reported yesterday at the hospital's annual meeting.

Although rising costs have pegged the cost of the new hospital—fully equipped and ready to accept patients—at the $2 million mark, Brier revealed that contributions, together with "money from other sources, such as the Federal Government, have brought us within approximately $100,000 of the total cost of construction and equipment."

"We are confident," he added, "that when those who have not yet made their contributions to the Hospital give themselves the opportunity of seeing it and inspecting it, they will be as anxious as those who have already contributed to establish memorials . . . to help make the entire project financially sound."

The new Hospital, Brier noted, will be about three times the size of the old one.

Michael S. Grobsmith, executive director, stated in his report that the new hospital "will be the most important building in town . . . We are going to make it the best possible place to go if you are sick or injured. In epidemic or disaster, it will stand as the . . . (Continued on Page 3)

Sol Schiff to Head GJC's T&I Unit

Sol Schiff, prominent Providence wholesale appliance distributor, this week was named chairman of the key Trade and Industry Division of the 1952 fund-raising drive of the General Jewish Committee.

The appointment was set up by Henry Hassenfeld, general campaign chairman, shortly before his recent departure for Israel.

One of the financial bulwarks of the GJC's annual drive in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal, the T and I Division—as it is commonly known—coordinates the campaign activities of almost a score of businesses and industries in the greater Providence area. Among its major sub-organizations are the textile, jewelry, building materials, food, liquor, drug, furniture, clothing and metal products divisions.

Schiff is president of the Tri-State Wholesalers Corporation, distributors of nationally-known radio, television and household appliance items.

He served as co-chairman of the T and I hardware and electric division in last year's campaign. He has been an ardent worker in previous drives since coming to Rhode Island five years ago from Philadelphia, where he had been active in the affairs of that city's UJA.

Joseph Galkin, GJC executive director, indicated this week that a number of major appointments in the T and I various sub-committees would be confirmed by early June. Present campaign plans call for the organization of both officers and solicitors in every T and I subordinate group by the latter part of next month.

Committee To Try For Bond-UJA Peace

JERUSALEM (AJP) — The Zionist Actions Committee in its closing session here adopted a resolution providing for the establishment of a coordinating committee in the United States with power to eliminate conflicts in the campaigns of the UJA and the Bonds for Israel. The resolution was introduced by Dr. Nahum Goldman, Jewish Agency head, who admitted that Agency efforts so far to effect a settlement of disputes between the two campaigns have not been successful.

Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett, who left for the United States is expected to take a leading hand in the establishment of the coordinating committee.

Mayor of Haifa Visits Prov.; Notes Tremendous Growth of Port City

MAYOR ABBA KHOSHU

The Mayor of the City of Haifa, largest port city in Israel, was very matter-of-fact in giving out figures on the growth of his municipality. He didn't have to be dramatic about them. Haifa's achievements speak for themselves.

For instance, Haifa in 1948—when the State of Israel was established—contained 63,000 persons. Today it has more than 200,000 residents and is still growing!

Despite this phenomenal surge, there is no unemployment in Haifa. All the newcomers have been absorbed into the city's trades and industries. In fact, said Mayor Abba Khoushi (pronounced Hoo-Shee), "we are short of thousands of tradespeople."

Mayor Khoushi visited Providence Monday to participate in a program sponsored by the Providence Bonds for Israel Committee. A native of Poland, he has resided in what is now Israel for 32 years. He was a member of the Knesset until 16 months ago, when he resigned to accept the position he now holds.

Larger Than Paris

One reason for Haifa's ability to absorb huge numbers of immigrants is its immense area. The Mayor said the city covers almost 80,000 acres—"larger than the area of Paris."

Ideally situated along the shores of the Mediterranean Sea, it is a center of maritime activity. Yet, it is not by the sea alone that Haifa makes its way. It contains considerable heavy industry (metallurgics, glass, textiles, chemicals) and is adding more—steel and steel pipes.

Then there are the oil refineries. The oil is brought in by tankers, but the flow soon may be in the opposite direction.

Experts believe that there are oil fields in Israel, and the young nation is conducting experiments in that direction.

So busy is the port of Haifa that although it now is the largest in the country, a new port is being constructed there. In 1948 Israel had four ships of 6,000 tons. Today there are 34 ships of 150,000 tons, a remarkable advance in a four year period.

Growing Tourist Trade

Another industry that is by no means insignificant is the tourist trade. Mayor Khoushi estimated that some 34,000 tourists visited Israel last year, and the number is skyrocketing. Haifa, with the sea on one side, plains on another and impressive Mount Carmel on a third, is a natural garden spot for tourists. A new tourist center is, in fact, being developed on Mount Carmel, where the internationally famous Megido hotel is located.

No wonder, then, that Haifa is capable of absorbing so quickly such tremendous numbers of immigrants. The combination of its present industry and planned expansion seems likely to make it one of the largest and most important cities in the entire Middle East, as well as Israel.

City Expanding

Despite this glowing picture, all is not milk and honey in Haifa and Israel in general. Mayor Khoushi pointed out that while many new homes and "entire streets and suburbs" are now being developed, 34,000 persons still dwell in temporary buildings. Development of industry is still retarded because of lack of capital.

"We have now the very hard task of making the country self-supporting and self-supplying to assure its economic independence," Mayor Khoushi said.

He concluded: "We must convince the people of the United States that we have great hope of being independent in a few years if we get loans which will permit us to buy machinery and tools to exploit our resources."

CHASE FAMILY CIRCLE

The Chase Family Circle held its annual dinner dance last Saturday at the Lindsey Tavern. The slate of officers for the coming year includes: Dick Chase, president; Jack Broadman, vice president; Harvey Asher, secretary; Bernice Chase, financial secretary and Walter Chucnin, treasurer.

These Are The Facts On The Workers' Strike Between Local 122 and the Bakery Owners

We do receive $85 to $90 in wages per week.

Our average take-home pay, however, is only between $65-75 per week. Sometimes it is a little more, at other times a little less.

We DO receive Two Weeks Vacation with pay. We believe, however, that we are entitled to this because workers in all industries today get the same two weeks with pay.

As far as our four holidays with pay are concerned, 10,000 organized bakery workers in New England get an average of between 8 to 11 holidays with pay; and that includes the bakeries in Rhode Island—but not the workers in these bakeries.

Now, about our hours of work -- As you well know, we, the bakers, work nights and sleep days. We have to work on an average of 48 hours per week in SIX days, whereas all other workers --including bakeries--enjoy a five day work week.

Overtime? We receive no overtime, while all workers in other industries receive their overtime over 40 hours per week or on a daily basis.

THIS IS OUR PROBLEM WITH OUR EMPLOYERS

We have been employed in these Bakeries for an average of 30 years (some of us have served 39 years).

We believe that we deserve and are entitled to these benefits, through an established Sick and Disabled Fund, to help us in time of need. Many workers in Bakeries throughout N. E. are presently enjoying the protection of Welfare Funds—but not our members.

Our Organization, Local No. 122, established such a Welfare Fund for our members about a year ago. Now, during our negotiations for a new contract, we are asking our employers to contribute their share, which amounts to only $1.50 per worker per week, to help us build this Sick and Disabled Fund.

We are not asking for an increase in wages! We are not asking for more vacations! Nor any more holidays with pay!

Our dispute lies entirely with the proposal that our employers establish in our contract their contribution towards this established Welfare Fund.

With such a provision, our members would be protected towards some future day when they may be in need.

We ask You, the public: Don't you believe that workers who have given the best years of their lives to these employers now deserve some consideration?

Therefore, we are asking you to help us during our strike by not patronizing these employers.

How to Make Friends

Leo Mindlin, editor of the Floridian, made shocking news this week with his report of an interview he had in Miami with Gershon Agron, publisher of the Jerusalem Post, who has been touring this country.

Mindlin reports Agron as saying he did not care at all what the Americans or British or any other power thought of Israel. Agron is quoted as follows: "We are no longer concerned with the attitude of others. They do not matter. Once Jewish public relations were a delicate matter. It was necessary for us to be concerned over the stand of nations. Now, only our actions are significant." The interview was concluded, says Mindlin, in the Saxony Hotel's lobby. There Agron "gazed languidly at the Saxony lobby's gaudy splendor, murmured something about 'schweineerei' and conspicuous waste and stated in his best Patrick Henry manner: 'If this is hostility, then let us have more of it.'"

You can well imagine what Senators Fulbright of Arkansas, and Wiley of Wisconsin, who have been questioning the proposed grant-in-aid to Israel, will do when they read what this visitor of Israel is saying. It is fortunate that he does not represent official Israel. It would then have serious repercussions.

Neatest-Straddle-of-the-Week

Credit for the extraordinary feat of supporting the MacIver Report on the one hand, and advocating the opposing stand of the AJ Committee on the other goes to the American Council for Judaism. The Council accomplishes this unusual balancing act by praising the "philosophical section" of the MacIver Report and denouncing its "organizational recommendations."

According to the Council's resolution on the issue, the Report confirms its belief that "there neither is nor ought to be a 'Jewish community'; that 'American Jews are not and ought not to be a cultural entity'; and that 'outside of their religion Jews do not and ought not to possess a unity of interests or objectives.'"

On the other hand, says the Council, the effect of the MacIver recommendations as interpreted by the NCRAC and the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds "would be to centralize authority and control for Jews and Jewish affairs, creating an authoritarian Jewish Community . . . The Council therefore regards the position taken by the American Jewish Community in opposition to the interpretation of the C.J.F.W.F. as statesmanlike and wise."

"One Man's Opinion"

Two By Archie

BY BERYL SEGAL

A month or so ago I sat through an afternoon session of a conference held here in Providence by a national organization. This was to have been the high point of the two-day conference. Officers were to be elected, and a guest speaker was to read a paper on a controversial issue. I put everything else aside to be able to attend that session.

Frankly, I was not impressed by the proceedings, and if I can judge facial expressions, neither were the delegates who sat at my table and at the adjoining tables. When people suddenly develop an excessive thirst, and get the urge to wander out of the hall, you may be sure that they have a case of boredom. Whisperings, shifting of positions, traffic in and out of the hall, are sure signs of lack of interest in, and indifference to, the goings on at the head table. Such signs were much in evidence as the session wore on.

But the otherwise dull afternoon was relieved by a speaker who though not scheduled as a featured attraction, stole the show. At least people's faces brightened up a little, and a ripple of laughter ran through the somber hall. It was Archibald Silverman who, when called upon for a greeting on behalf of the local committee, broke the spell of boredom by telling two of his characteristic stories.

In all the years of listening to stories by Archie at meetings or at luncheons, I have learned to look for some significance in each one of his stories. He does not tell them merely to entertain, but to prove a point. They always fit the occasion, and illustrate a premise. If they don't fit, Archie gives them a quick twist and turn to make them serve his purpose.

Here are the two stories Archie told. They are worth repeating.

1. The Perfect Excuse

Speaking of the way people give to various drives, and the ingenious excuses some people devise for not giving, Archie tells the story of the man who was as hard as a rock. Everybody knew that the fellow was financially comfortable, but nobody ever got a penny out of him, and his name was not to be found on any of the lists of contributors to any drive.

Letters of appeal were disregarded. Telephone calls were not heeded. So the committee decided to send an influential man in the community to call on the fellow. Surely he would not dare to refuse Mr. X. What wouldn't Mr. X do to help the drive? So he spared an hour of his busy day, and went to see the prospect. After a long talk and the most persuasive argument Mr. X could muster, the fellow very sweetly replied:

"I am very honored by your visit, Mr. X, and I am in sympathy with your drive, but I cannot give anything. Not this year. You see, I have a poor brother, and he has a big family, and he needs my help. Your own flesh and blood comes first, you know. Charity begins at home, they say."

But Mr. X was mad, and busy as he was, he looked up the poor brother to see whether the fellow told a word of truth.

Yom Kippur she took them to Temple Emanuel, where they heard a cantor sing. "Your grandfather was a cantor," Mrs. Berlin told the children. . . . Mary Ellin asked: "Grandpa Mackey was a cantor?"

Ferene Molnar's "Lillom" received poor notices when it first opened in Budapest. The revivals, however, were hits and brought him world renown. Before he died, Molnar had suffered a heart attack. An old friend who visited him asked about his illness. "This first heart attack will be just like 'Lillom,'" said Molnar. "The revival will be more successful."

Sure enough, the brother was poor, unemployed, and he had a big family to support. But the rich brother never helped him. In fact he had not spoken to him ever since the day, three years ago, when the poor man came to his rich brother to ask his help.

Mr. X returned to the scoundrel and angrily told him how he found out the truth of his alleged supporting of his poor brother.

But do you think the fellow was embarrassed?

Not at all. He merely smiled and called out triumphantly:

"Now you can go back to your committee and convince them that it is useless to waste postage on me. If I wouldn't help my own brother and his family, how can I give money to total strangers who live somewhere overseas? How do you think my brother would feel if he saw me do that? It would hurt his feelings."

A very sound argument, you must admit. Most of the excuses for not giving, or for cutting down on donations, Archie concludes, are just as ridiculous as this "poor brother" line.

2. The Lecturer and the Hay

Some speakers have no sense of time and proportion. They prepare a talk, and deliver it they must, come what may.

Of such orators Archie tells the story of the man who came from the big city for a lecture in a small town, on a stormy day. The hall was empty, and the speaker surveyed the rows of seats from his stand on the platform, and he discovered a handful of hardy souls who braved the weather, and were now scattered all over the hall. The lecturer invited all of his audience to the front row and he addressed all six of them, asking them for advice.

To speak or not to speak? Let them decide.

One of the six stood up and confessed that he knows very little about speeches and lectures, but he knows something about cows, since he has been a farm hand all his life. Now, when a farm hand comes out to the barn at feeding time and he finds only two out of the seven cows in the farm does he punish the two because of the rest who are lingering in the field? Certainly not. He feeds those who are on time and waiting to be fed.

What's true of cows is true of people also.

That sounded reasonable, and the lecturer proceeded to deliver his prepared talk.

After two long hours, the lecturer turned to his audience of six, and wanted to know how they liked it, and would they care to hear more.

Up stood the same farm hand and spoke again of his experiences with cows.

True enough, he explained, I said that I wouldn't let the two cows in the barn go hungry, but I didn't say that I would make them eat all the hay in the hay stack.

The lecturer from the big town took the hint, and picking up the rest of his prepared hay, hurriedly left the hall.

AN A37 FEATURE

Michel Gordey, author of "Visa to Moscow," is a French newspaperman. In Paris at the end of the war he met two GIs who proudly showed him two Chagall water colors they'd bought with their savings. Gordey, who then was married to Chagall's daughter, doubted that the pictures were authentic. He brought the GIs to his father-in-law's studio, where the artist saw that the pictures were fakes. "But maybe something can be done," he consoled the distressed GIs. The artist washed away parts of the pictures and substituted his own work. He added more touches, then washed out the fake signature and made the salvage complete by painting his true signature, "Marc Chagall."

Recently the venerable Sarah Adler was operated on for the removal of cataracts. She's the mother of the tribe of actors and actresses which include Stella and Luther. "At your age, aren't you afraid of an operation?" Stella asked her. Mrs. Adler replied: "We had a saying — 'If you're afraid of bear, don't go in the woods.'" The operation proved successful, and when it was over the patient told the surgeon: "I lied to you. When you asked my age, I said I was 80. I lied because I was afraid if I told you the truth you wouldn't operate." Then she revealed her true age, 94.

Abba Eban, the Israeli Ambassador, was the guest of honor at a UN showing of "The Faithful City," the movie made in Israel. When all the guests were assembled, Ambassador Eban was called upon to speak. "I find myself embarrassed, sandwiched between the newsreel and the feature," he said, "a position more conventionally and appropriately occupied by Donald Duck."

When FCC Commissioner Frieda B. Henneck first proposed new TV channels for visual education, all the other Commissioners opposed her. The commission's new report, allocating 244 TV channels for education out of 2,000 new ones, was almost unanimous. The only dissent, a partial one, was by Miss Henneck, who felt that 11 per cent was insufficient.

Time magazine's personality sketch on Irving Berlin was written by Joel Sayre, with the help of Berlin's daughter, Mary Ellin, who is a Time researcher. She neglected to tell them one story in which she was involved—an aftermath of the marriage between the cantor's songwriter son and socialite Clarence Mackey's daughter. Mrs. Berlin always had their children celebrate the religious holidays of both faiths. One

Note Satisfactory Progress of JCC Membership Drive

The 1952 Membership Enrollment campaign of the Jewish Community Center prepared to enter its second phase—enrollment of new members—this week, as campaign officials pronounced the success of the first, or re-enrollment, phase.

Terminating results of the first phase as very satisfactory, David Meyers, campaign chairman, reported that the Center now has a greater income, as well as a general membership that already is one-third higher than ever before in Center history.

On the eve of the beginning of the second phase, Meyers and his campaign officials noted that unsolicited advance new memberships are being received at the Center in substantial numbers that reveal the widespread interest of the general community, and promise a successful drive. Complete plans for this phase, Meyers said, will be ready in ten days.

Co-chairmen serving under Meyers are Sydney Kane and Milton C. Kay, special prospects; Irvin H. Bornside and Edwin Soforenko, general solicitations, and Mrs. Raymond G. Franks and Mrs. Benjamin Lewis, women's division.

Captains include Mrs. Samuel Markoff, Mrs. William P. Wein-

THE STORY OF TEN LITTLE FREE WORKERS

THESE ARE THE WORKERS

REDDY DOCTOR RAILROADER MINER STEELWORKER FARMER LAWYER GROCER SALESLERK REPORTER

Ten little free workers in this country fine and fair.
But if you cherish your freedom—worker have a care!
Ten little free workers—Reddy was doing fine
Until the socialists got him—then there were nine.

Nine little free workers laughed at Reddy's fate
Along came federal medicine—then there were eight.

Eight little free workers thought this country heaven
But the government took over the railroads, then there were seven.

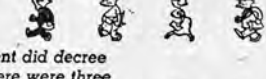

Seven little free workers—'till the miners got in a fix.
Uncle said coal's essential and took over leaving six.

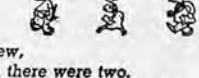

Six little free workers till the day did arrive
The steel mills, too, were federalized—then there were five.

Five little free workers—but the farmers are free no more
The farms have been collectivized—that leaves only four.

Four little free workers till the government did decree
All must have free legal advice—then there were three.

Three little free workers—the number is getting few,
But with government groceries selling food—then there were two.

Two little free workers—our story's almost done,
With clerks at work in federal stores—that leaves only one.

One little free worker—the reporter son-of-a-gun
Mustn't criticize government—so now there are none.

Ten little workers—but they are no longer free
They work when and where ordered, and at a fixed rate you see,
And it all could have been prevented if they'd only seen fit to agree
And work together instead of saying "it never can happen to me!"

SYD COHEN:

Damyankes

Some 15 years ago, George Weiss, then handling the extensive farm system of the New York Yankees, sold rookie Buddy Hassett for three players and $40,000. Immediately, he sold the three players for good profits. Within two years Hassett was sold by the club which had taken him from the Yankee chain, and he wound up once again the property of the New Yorkers.

When Weiss finally closed the books on the deal, he had added $105,000 to the treasury—and still had Hassett.

This month has seen a similar situation come up in reverse, and Weiss' ears must be burning at the open laughter going on throughout the American League.

It seems that last year the World Champs, desperate for a pitcher who could get the ball over the plate and be depended upon for a creditable job behind the Big Three and rookie Tom Morgan, gave up Tommy Byrne and a bundle of cash for Stubby Overmire.

About a week ago, on May 15, the Yankees released Overmire, and who picked him up? The Browns. So St. Louis has the cash as well as Byrne—AND Overmire. Quite a trick.

Did the Yanks really get a bad bargain? Did they take the sort of fleecing they so often handed out to other clubs in past years? Believe it or not, the answer to both questions is no.

Actually, the deal shows that the Yankees' general manager is still far and away the best operator in the game. It reveals that he still has more talent on the hoof than any other outfit can boast.

Tommy Byrne was going very poorly for the World Champs a year ago. His bad control was worse than ever, and he couldn't go more than two or three innings. Fighting to retain their crown while they also built a new club with rookies, New York was forced, reluctantly, to give up on Byrne. It could not afford the luxury of having him start regularly when every game was so vital.

Tommy went to St. Louis, with a cellar outfit where he was under no pressure and had no pennant to worry about—and set about working himself into form. In about a month he started to win—and did his old mates some good by beating the "big" teams. With New York, Overmire turned in a couple of fine jobs that were a big help to Stengel. Both sides were satisfied.

This spring Stubby came up with a sore arm. He did not pitch a single inning. The Yankees' problem was simple. They had an overloaded roster and had to cut down. There was an overabundance of pitchers, good pitchers with their futures ahead of them, who must be rated ahead of Overmire.

The fact that the Browns picked him up was of no concern to New York. What did matter was that the deal had helped the Yanks more than they had anticipated. Byrne has become an Indian scalper, and indirectly, is still "winning" for New York. Overmire served his 1951 purpose.

All over the baseball map they are laughing at New York's recent generosity in strengthening the Senators. They are pointing to the tremendous volume of ex-Yankees who are starring for other clubs. These facts are taken to indicate that the Bronx brain-trust is losing its touch.

The true indication is that New York still has a fair share of a monopoly on the player market. The Yanks system still is feeding more talent to the Stadium than one club can possibly use. The surplus has to go somewhere.

It has happened that trades were made because the heat of the pennant competition made it more practical to get a seasoned veteran to assure that the current pennant race could be won than to go along with a rookie who hadn't yet realized his potential. There are always new rookies to replace those who are sold.

Some excellent young players have been discarded for this reason. Bill Wight was traded for Ed Lopat. Bob Porterfield and Don Johnson, neither of whom had any luck in Yankee uniforms, were traded for Bob Kuzava, who was instrumental in helping win last year's pennant. Clint Courtney, a fine rookie catcher, was traded to the Browns for Jim McDonald, a fine pitcher. That's how Duane Pillette went to St. Louis.

As far as the Washington deal was concerned, New York wanted Irv Noren, a fine center fielder, and a left hand hitter (a Yankee Stadium necessity). More than six players had to be cut from the roster, so the Yanks could afford to give up a lot in return for what they got. Simple mathematics, just as simple as that.

Shea, over 30 years old, wasn't getting a chance to pitch. There were too many young pitchers who must be kept. So the loss of Shea meant nothing. The same went for Archie Wilson. The Yanks figure they traded Jensen for Noren.

Even after this trade and the loss of Jerry Coleman, New York had too many players. Three fine rookies—Carey, Miller and Schaeffer—had to be optioned to Kansas City until room can be made for them. And even that wasn't enough. So Overmire had to be released.

Have the Yankees weakened themselves by their supposed "folly"? Not a bit. Sure, they got off to a slow start, with a very uncertain lineup. Stengel was forced to experiment for a full month, and he had to combat a terrible hitting slump.

One factor saved New York from falling out of the pennant race right at the start. Can't you guess? That factor was the sensational performance of the ex-Yankees—Porterfield, Byrne, Pillette, Jensen, Courtney, Wilson, Deising, Shea, Dyck, Stewart—against top clubs like the Indians.

Now the World Champs are getting straightened out and are climbing.

True enough, there are enough Yankees around the league to make up a pretty strong club. But that does not make New York a dumb outfit. The Yanks are still operating with a surplus—and they always keep better men than they give away.

It would seem like George Weiss and his scouts are still setting the pace.

Beth El Takes Challenge Match

The Temple Beth El Brotherhood's Bowling League completed a clean sweep of the season's tournament and match play with a convincing 12-4 win over Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity last Thursday at Cranston's Legion Bowldrome.

The annual challenge match—between the winners of the two Herald-sponsored men's tournaments—marked the third inter-league triumph for Beth El in as many starts within the last four months.

Despite the score, the match was close for two strings, at which time Beth El led by only 5-3. A sweep in the third string and near-sweep in points for pinfall settled the issue.

The winners' A and B squads won all their strings, while the C team dropped one point. Paradoxically, AEPi's point strength rested with the D team, which included three spare keglers who rolled only because three "regulars" among the top 20 were not available. These spares and the two other D's took two strings and total pinfall.

Nat Alterman of Beth El A posted high three score of 369, followed by Len Goldman, Beth El C, 366, and Vin DeCesaris, Beth El A, 365. DeCesaris had 137 for high single. Besides its two leaders, Beth El A had Alie Shatkin's 349, Al Gordon's 331 and Murray Trinkle's 307 for the top team total of 1721, 77 pins better than its nearest rival.

In all, Beth El's 20 men posted 15 300-plus scores, with 42 strings of 100 or better. AEPi checked in with 13 300's and 35 100's. Beth El A and C each posted 582 for one string.

High three leaders included Jack Bilow, Beth El B, 355; Joe Schwartz, Beth El B, 343; Babe Gertz, AEPi C, 340; Phil Shaulson, Beth El B, 334; Aaron Sutton, Beth El C, 333; Morris Feldman I, Beth El C, 332; Merrill Temkin, AEPi B, 329; Ruby Plushner, AEPi C, 328; Don Cohen, AEPi A, and Al Jacobs, AEPi D, 327, and Howie Fain, Beth El D, 325.

High singles behind DeCesaris were Temkin 134, Feldman 132, Alterman 131 and 130, Shatkin 131, Goldman 130 and 123, Shaulson 129, Gordon, Schwartz and Arthur Flink of AEPi A, 126; Perry Shatkin, Beth El D, 121, and Fain and Bilow 120.

Shevuoth Memorial Services at Emanuel

Services at Temple Emanuel for the concluding day of Shevuoth will be held at 9 A. M. on Saturday, May 31.

Memorial services will be conducted and plaques will be dedicated in memory of Benjamin Alperin, Mary Alperin, Hinda Berman, Esther Blacher, Joseph Cohen, Stella Copeland, James Efros, Celia Korn Feldman, Mary Field, Henry Herman, Jacob Hochberg, Fannie M. Levinson, Samson Nathanson, Martha Rakatansky, Eva F. Raphael, Maurice Robinson, Muriel Fain Sher, George Triedman, Leo Weiner, Florence Wells and Harris Winthrop.

LZ COUNCIL MEETING

The Labor Zionist Council of Providence will meet at 11 A. M. Sunday morning at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel. A report of the third seder will be given.

Beth El Brotherhood Elects Markoff

Arthur Markoff was elected president of the Brotherhood of Temple Beth El, succeeding A. Archie Finkelstein, last Friday evening at the Temple.

Other officers include Benton Rosen, first vice-president; Harold Roberts, second vice-president; Charles H. Miller, recording secretary; Jay Isenberg, financial secretary and James Sanek, treasurer.

The slate of officers was presented by Chairman Kenneth Logowitz at a kiddush following the Brotherhood's Sabbath service.

Elected to the board of directors for two years were Finkelstein, Dr. Samuel Ritzker, Leroy Haft, Murry Halpert, Roland 'C. Block, William Bojar, Samuel Ranz and Joseph Postar. Elected to the board for one year to fill unexpired terms were Miles Sydney and Victor Gold.

Other members of the nominating committee were Block, Haft, Roberts, Sanek and Postar.

Markoff received the president's gavel from Justin Rothman, assistant executive director of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods and Jewish Chautauqua Society, who was guest speaker at the Sabbath service.
