Nearly 400 to switch schools

A lottery was held to select students who wanted to change schools next fall. It was all part of the Wayne-Westland school district's implementation of the state-mandated schools-of-choice legislation.

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT STAFF WRITER

Nearly 400 students will be changing schools next year as part of the Wayne-Westland district's new choice program. The school board approved the transfer of those students, including five whose names were chosen from cups in a makeshift lottery, during Monday's board meeting. The program, which in theory encourages individual schools to excel, allows students to attend the school of their choice, if space is available.

One of the more controversial requirements is that students couldn't change schools because of their race or the racial makeup of the school they hoped to attend. The Michigan Legislature, which mandated the choice concept, required school districts not to upset minority levels within buildings, said Norine Blake, associate superintendent for instruction.

In all, 399 of the 506 students who applied for transfers received them, but more than half of those had already been given special permission to enroll in buildings other than their neighborhood school, said John Mills, director of pupil accounting.

Ninety-seven applications were denied outright, including 45 from students wanting to change from Wayne Memorial to John Glenn High School, and 10 were put on waiting lists after losing in the lottery.

The choice transfers are good for one year only, so students must reapply for next year. Though the legislature could decide otherwise, parents are expected to be responsible for their child's transportation to and from the new school.

Blake said the plan had to come together quickly. "Hopefully, we'll have more lead time and hopefully this first year we'll learn a lot," she said.

Most students seeking to transfer from Wayne Memorial to John Glenn were denied because they were white and their departure would change the racial makeup at Memorial, school officials said. Memorial is also the older and smaller school, with 1,300 students to Glenn's 1,700.

But an audience member at the Monday board meeting suggested such a policy was discriminatory. Blake said it was required by law.

Board president Leonard Posey said he was disturbed by perceptions about racial makeup at the high schools.

"There is an element in this community that feels that their school is heing taken over. That disturbs me," said Posey, who is black.

Three gym teachers lead in seniority on the list of 78 teachers who will retire in June: Gordon Davis, John Glenn, 35 years: Christy Theodore, Wayne Memorial, 35 years, and Barry Basel, John Glenn, 34 years.

Job vacancy pristings are expected this week. A shuffle of remaining staff is expected as teachers request transfers. A retirement brunch for departing teachers is planned for June 4.

Bill Taylor, associate superintendent for employee services, called the incentive program "very successful.

"I thought that between 70-90 teachers would take it. The teachers union was more pessimistic. They thought 40-10," Taylor said. In a normal year, 10-15 teachers retire, he said.

This is not a normal year. The district offered Wayne-Westland teachers with 15 years or more seniority a onetime lump-sum bonus of $24,000 to retire. More than 700 of the districts 900plus teachers qualified. They could choose a single payment or 24 checks over two years.

Taylor said the district should save $2 million as the district hires lower senjority teachers at roughly $30,000 toreplace more senior instructors earning $50,000.

In a related matter, the school board on Monday also approved layoff notices. for six teachers and three other staffers. School board Trustee Fred Warmbier was the lone dissenter on the incentive plan, which he labeled "a charade from day one." He and Taylor at times exchanged harsh words.

Warmbier disputed administration projections about cost savings, and suggested the program was too generous. "We're going to pay out all this money up front and we're going to get it

Westland man charged in strangling of ex-wife

BY LEANNE ROGERS STAFF WRITER

A Westland man is being held without bond after being arraigned Tuesday on charges of attempting to murder his former wife at her Garden City home.

Jack Echols, 43; is charged with assault with intent to commit murder in the attack on Christine Echols, 41, who police said was strangled with a rope in her backyard Monday night.

The defendant is scheduled for preliminary examination next Tuesday in 21st District Court. He stood mute at his arraignment. Judge Richard Hammer entered a not guilty plea for him.

Detective Sgt. David Harvey said the defendant made a full confession.

Christine Echols might not have survived the attack, he said, except for the efforts of her son, Jack, 13.

"I think that the only reason she is probably still alive is that the young boy came out to look for her," said Harvey. "He wouldn't go back inside when his father told him to."

Christine Echols' roommate told police a man had taken his daughter to her ballgame earlier in the evening and played with the children in the yard until Christine Echols came home.

When she arrived, the roommate took the children inside and left the pair talking in the backyard, police said.

Based on the statements taken, Harvey said Christtine Echols was strangled, lost consciousness, fell to the ground and was then dragged behind the garage where she was again strangled.

Police responding to a family trouble call at 6250 Middlebelt shortly after 11 p.m. Monday found Christine Echols unconscious, face down on the ground behind a garage on the property and her hady coveret with a snowmobile cover and a plastic children's picnic table.

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER STAFF WRITER

A Westland man was bound over for trial Tuesday in what could become a test-case for Michigan's tough, new drunk driving laws.

William Alexander Miller, 30, was ordered by 16th District Judge Robert B. Brzezinski to stand trial on one count of causing death by driving while intoxicated in connection with an April 25 collision between his car and a bicyclist on Joy Road in Livonia.

The medical examiner's report showed McIlvane with a blood alcohol level of 0.27, nearly three times the legal limit of 0.10 in Michigan. Miller told police he was traveling westbound on Joy when Mcllvane, riding eastbound, collided with his car.

Officer John Hoye, an accident reconstruction expert, said evidence showed McIlvane was riding westbound in the curb lane when Miller's 1992 Honda Accord struck his bike from the rear, probably at 35-40 mph.

Miller may have been "straddling" the two westbound lanes. There were no skid marks and no indication either car or bike swerved before the accident, Hoye told the court.

After learning about space, planets and the solar system in the classroom, the students' goal was to take their knowledge out of the classroom and build a city called "Marsville.".

The students built the city out of rolls of Visqueen and ducttape. Air blown from house fans blew up the plastic domes into Martian homes.

Candidates differ on millage

By MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

Challenger Sue Thompson is the only Livonia school district Board of Education candidate who would both support putting a millage question on the ballot and also would vote for it herself.

All seven other candidates for the two open seats onthe board take a less certain stand on an issue which could dominate board debate this summer as the district gets a better look at the school financing package to emerge from Lansing.

As it stands, the district, which serves the northern section of Westland, faces up to a $7 million shortfall in next year's $108 million budget.

In interviews with the Observer last week, the seven candidates said they are either opposed to a tax increase, unsure of whether they would back one, or willing to put the question on the ballot and let voters decide.

Incumbent Marjorie Roach said she is "uncomfortable" making massive cuts districtwide without first 'giving the community a say in this."

Challenger Pamela Guarneri sided with Roach. "Let the public make the decision."

Less sure of where they stand are challengers Alicia D'Orazio and Katherine Pare. Both said they needed more information.

The district should seek a tax increase only as a last resort, said challengers Gerald Parcheta and Ralph Walko

"We should seek concessions from the unions first," Parcheta said.

The district should first "look under every rock" to save money, including seeking concessions from employees, Walko said.

Challenger Kenneth Timmons is the only candidate to oppose outright a request for increased millage. "Not as long as the state is raiding us."

decide whether the district will have a schools of choice _ zio said she has not yet decided how she will vote.

LIVONIA SCHOOLS

plan come September.

State law mandates all Michigan districts adopt a plan this year, but residents can vote not to accent it. The school board has urged voters not to approve the plan, in which students could attend schools outside their neighborhood and the district would pay transportation costs.

Pare is the only candidate to back the schools of . choice plan. "I wish we could modify the transportation part, where we don't have kids at Frost for one half hour. But doesn't everyone deserve a choice?"

Timmons called schools of choice "alarming. What alarms me the most is that conservatives in this state are using this proposal to arrive at a voucher plan. I'm opposed to vouchers. It would be the death knell of public education."

There is no evidence, said both Roach and Guarneri. that the schools of choice concept provides a better education.

"We've had choice for a number of years, and we provide the same education in every building in the district," said Roach, who saw the plan as an "innocentlooking proposal meant to open the path toward the voucher system."

Even though her daughter will attend another school under the district's open enrollment policy, Thompson said she will not back schools of choice. "This mandate deals with transportation, and a child is not educated on a bus."

While he sees merit to the basic idea, Parcheta also said he opposed the plan. "I'll vote no, with hesitancy. It will make our busing program more expensive."

Walko called schools of choice another example of the state's meddling in the affairs of local districts. He saw it as a way to foster cross-district busing.

In the June 8 election, voters also will be asked to . While she saw both pros and cons to the plan, D'Ora-

Some after-school activities survive board's budget cuts

By MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

Many after-school high school activities will be axed under a preliminary 1992-93 budget put together last week by the Livonia Board of Education, which represents the northern section of Westland.

Activities such as school newspapers, debate, tennis and cheerleading did not survive a last-ditch effort by trustees to find enough money to keep them.

Other programs slated for cuts, such as Creative And Performing Arts and Math-Science-Computers, did survive the trustees' scrutiny and should continue at least for the next school year, although in an altered form.

With budget study sessions done, school officials will now use the trustees' recommendations to complete a budget, which should be adopted sometime in June.

Cutting some after-school activities, the elementary physical education program, and some middle and high school sports were some of the toughest decisions the trustees made, said trustee Joe Laura, finance committee chairman

Those cuts will be some of the first activities brought back if more money materializes in the coming year and cuts don't have to be as drastic as expected, said Laura.

One big surprise to come out of the final study session was the restructuring of CAPA so that it can survive.

The creative arts program at Churchill will be modified "fairly dramatically" to make it "as cost effectiveas possible," Laura said.

"It was given the go-ahead for another year." The MSC program, also at Churchill, will be changed so that it's not an extra cost.

LIVONIA SCHOOLS

"As one child drops out, another one will go in," Laura said.

The science center at the former Whittier School in Westland, slated to be cut, also survived the ax.

Board members had been debating how much to put into fund equity, or rainy day account, next year. School officials had proposed $2 million; some trustees had suggested a fund as low as $750,000.

The district now plans to limit next year's fund equity to money left over from this year's budget.

Superintendent Joseph Marinelli estimated money left over from the 1991-92 budget could range from $500,000 to $1 million.

"It will serve as the basis of the fund equity, unless the board spends that money," Marinelli said.

In setting the proposed budget, trustees still don't know what school ald plan will emerge from Lansing this year.

In essence, the board is deciding what cuts to make while not knowing just exactly how much they must chop out of the 1992-93 budget, now estimated at $108 million.

The following after-school activities have been cut: stage band, synchronized swimming, forensics, student newspapers, literary magazines, three act play, debate team, assistant vocal director, wrestling assistant, varsity and JV baseball and softball;

Also, boys and girls tennis, cheerleading, JV boys soccer and JV girls soccer, assistant swim coach for boys and girls, 9th-grade girls and basketball and 9thgrade boys basketball, 9th-grade girls volleyball, 9thgrade football, and boys and girls golf.

Recession takes its toll on Class of '92

There is some hope for graduates; career counselors said demand has picked up recently.

"I feel things have been tight, but there's been a recent upsurge,' Brant said:

Thomas said recruiting of students has increased, perhaps due to employers' delaying their hiring until they could accurately gauge their economic status.

Lawmakers cut inheritance tax

A quarter of a loaf is better than hunger, state Senate Republicans decided.

The Michigan Legislature passed a bill cutting the inheritance tax by about $18.5 million as the GOP gave up on repealing the $80 million tax entirely.

Longtime Garden City man delighted in helping others

LEO STONER

Leo Stoner, 78, a landlord in Garden City, died May 16 of a stroke. Leo and his wife of 56 years, Catherine, were longtime residents.

· Services were May 19 at the John Santeiu and Son Funeral Home and St. Dunstan Catholic Church, both in Garden City.

Longtime residents of the area may remember Mr. Stoner wearing his Bodker milkman's hat while delivering milk in the 1940s. Several residents in the area remember "jumping" for him when they were boys. Their jobs consisted of jumping from the truck and running with the dairy products to a customer's home and returning to the evermoving truck.

"To all his customers he became known as the 'Silver Fox.' He was very helpful and creative. His customers came from all walks of life, and he took time to help them all. Leo loved his work because he loved the people he worked for. He took such delight in straightening out their books."

Not many people know that Mr. Stoner owned a little restaurant in the '40s called Nellie's Lunch and it was inside the building on the corner of Ford and Middlebelt, currently occupied by Orin's Jewelers. Friends approached him to run for mayor, but he declined because he was too busy with his family.

After he became an accountant, he worked for the cities of Inkster

Challenge of drunk driver tests could affect thousands of cases

BY GREG KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Attorney Robert Larin said he isn't out to help drunken drivers avoid jail, but he does feel the state's drunken driving laws need to be clarified.

Three suburban judges agree and have dismissed the results of two alcohol blood tests against people accused of drunken driving. The judges have raised questions about state police drunk driving tests.

One case involved an Oakland County woman. Another involved a fatal accident in which a Redford Township man struck the car of a 19-year-old woman in Milford.

The results of the court decisions could affect the outcome of more than 2,400 drunken driving cases.

"The state police have not promulgated rules for administration of alcohol blood and urine tests,' Larin said.

Judge Michael Batchik of Walled Lake's 52nd District Court ruled inadmissible the alcohol blood level measurement for James McGuire, crash that killed April Dawn Gibson on South Milford Road.

Police charge that McGuire, 23, crossed the center line and struck Gibson's car head-on.

Larin contended the new state drunk driving laws, which went into effect Jan. 1, clearly state "the department of state police shall promulgate rules for administration of chemical tests."

The old law stated the state police "may" set procedures.

"This is something I have been contacting the state police on since summer," said Larin. "They're dragging their feet."

An emergency rule has been signed by Gov. John Engler approving procedures for taking the tests.

The state police must set rules that cover how the tests are taken, how they are analyzed and how they are reported. One key question being considered is whether an alcohol swab can be used before using a needle to take a blood test. Larin questioned if the alcohol on who is charged in the fatal Jan. 31 the swab could affect the test results.

> Assistant Oakland County prosecutor Anica Letica said under the order signed by the governor, alcohol cannot be used as an antiseptic.

However, Batchik ruled before the order was-signed by the governor.

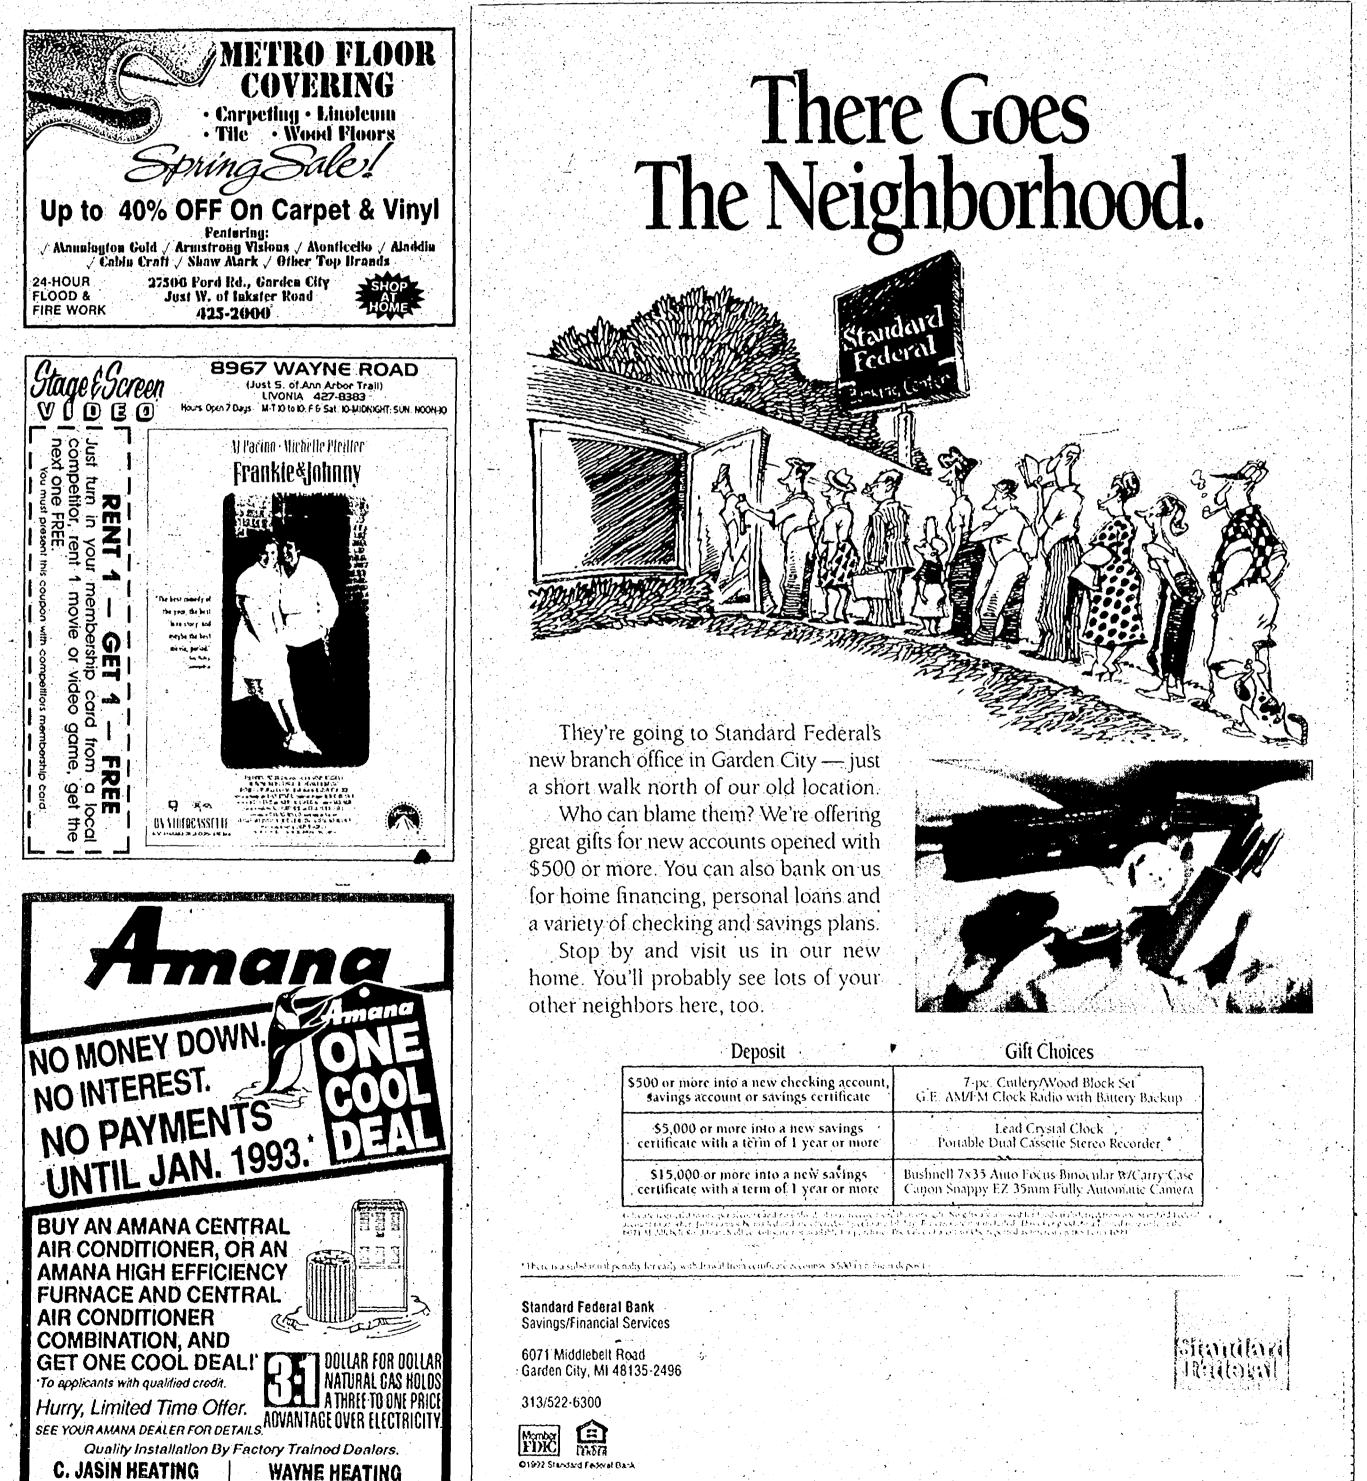

Oakland Circuit Court Judge Fred Mester agreed with Mester when the case moved up to that court.

"The statute is quite clear," said Mester. He said the statute says the state police "shall" establish procedures, something that has not been done.

"It's a matter of due process," Mester said.

Letica said she was surprised at his ruling and, "We're asking Judge Mester to reconsider the matter."-

Mester said that while blood alcohol reading McGuire registered cannot be introduced as testimony in his upcoming trial, "there are still counts against this individual that carry just as serious a penalty."

AROUND WESTLAND

Warning given

pril showers may bring May showers along with warm weather and sunny skies. At the same time, thoughts turn to gardening and home improvement projects.

Along with making a list of needed items such as plants, trees and lumber for decks or mailbox replacement, local residents are given a warning by Consumers Power Co. about calling a toll-free number to avoid problems with construction or underground excavation projects.

The company has a MISS DIG program which residents planning major underground excavation or other improvements may call to avoid contact with utilities. The number is 800-482-7171, which residents are asked to call at least three days in advance of the planned work. The number is manned from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Company officials said the number provides construction safety and utility damage prevention information. The program is operated jointly by Consumers and more than 600 Michigan utilities and municipalities.

"This will enable the homeowner to determine the precise location of the underground utility," she said. "Those who fail to contact MISS DIG prior to beginning such a project and who damage underground utility lines could be charged for repairs by the affected utility," said Kathy Fournier, executive director of the MISS DIG utility communication system.

This is the third in a series of profiles on eight Wayne-Westland board of education candidates, competing for two four-year terms on the June 8 ballot. The last of the series will appear Monday. The profiles are written by reporter Darrell Clem.

Mathew McCusker

Last June, Mathew McCusker was ousted from the school board amid a voter backlash against incumbents who refused to quit asking for a tax increase until they got it.

McCusker has no apologies. He strongly believed the money was needed to restore school programs and keep the Wayne-Westland district from sliding into mediocrity.

The question remains: Can McCusker, a 56-year-old Ford Motor Co. employee and Westland resident, regain one of two seats at stake in the June 8 election?

In a group interview with the candidates, McCusker recalled a promise the board made last year to maintain school programs in the wake of the successful tax increase.

"I don't see that promise being kept by a majority of board members," he said.

McCusker said he sees strong forces. "trying to destroy" the district. He has been critical of those who opposed the 7.75-mill tax increase and who fought - successfully - to have Superintendent Dennis O'Neill ousted.

McCusker appears to have accepted that O'Neill is gone, though he didn't like the conditions in which a board majority pressured O'Neill to retire.

With the next superintendent, McCusker said, "A majority of the board has to realize that he is the superintendent of all the people in the community and not just a simple majority."

Regarding school violence, McCusker said he "wholeheartedly" supports the district's policy of expelling students who bring guns and other dangerous weapons to school. However, he said such problems could be reduced through "conflict mediation" - before disputes result in violence.

McCusker also supports DARE

(Drug Abuse Resistance Education) and other such efforts to reduce drug use and make schools safer.

When asked to identify the district's No. 1 problem, McCusker cited the state's system of financing schools. And he blasted as "a smokescreen" the socalled "Robin Hood" bills that take money from richer school districts and give it to poorer ones.

On teacher salaries, McCusker said he favors an increase for teachers this year, in part because he said local teachers are in the bottom third of salary rankings in Wayne County.

McCusker said it's not fair "to ask one segment of our society to make concessions." However, he noted that a lump-sum raise could be more appealing than a raise reflecting a percentage of teachers' salaries.

To improve board credibility, McCusker called for efforts to "get across the fact that (the district) is doing good things."

Because of what he perceives as negative forces, McCusker said that "intelligent people are being sold a bill of goods" that the district is failing.

some board observers who believe that some board members are overstepping

MEA, which he labeled "a powerful special interest group," will focus its attention elsewhere.

The candidate differs from some who indicated it's time to put the district's political battles behind and mend a district scarred by controversy.

"I wouldn't put political battles behind me," he said. In short, he believes there are many battles that still must be fought.

Raupp does agree with some candidates on some issues. He strongly favors the district's policy of expelling students who bring guns and other dangerous weapons to school, for example.

But he doesn't hesitate to assign

When asked if he would support a salary increase for teachers in renewed negotiations, Raupp held the line. "In fact," he said, "I would demand a concession - a rollback. They're overpaid now."

Teachers are negotiating for raises in the third year of a three-year contract. They received an 11.9-percent raise in the first two years - a raise that sparked public criticism.

When asked how the board could improve its credibility, Raupp suggested the board should work to reduce class sizes --- a move that he believes would begin to improve classroom perform. ance.

taxes amount to "highway robbery" while, in his view, the Wayne-Westland school system and others across the state are "a world class disgrace." Raupp, who unsuccessfully sought a board seat last year, hasn't changed his tone, though he said he's trying to keep a lower profile this time. He hopes the blame when he talks about what he considers the district's biggest problems --- low student scores on state achievement tests and what he considers lame teachers who haven't met the classroom challenge.

"Teachers have to be held accountable to perform their duties," he said.

Simultaneously, Raupp believes the board should demand better classroom performance by teachers. "Get rid of the deadwood if they refuse," he said.

Unlike some board observers, Raupp believes strongly that board members should be "completely involved" in the day-to-day operation of the district - a Kenneth Raupp responsibility that some candidates say should be left to the administration. He has been highly critical of administration.

Madonna to host music workshop

Madonna University is the site of Movement and Children: A Wina three-week summer program for music educators beginning June 22. Sponsored by Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, the Summer Music Institute will bring together. clinicians and performers from throughout the United States in a seminar designed for music educators in grades K-12 and church choir directors.

Madonna will host the courses and house participating clinicians and students from outside the area.

"This is an exciting opportunity for in service teachers, choir directors and church musicians," said John Redmon, associate professor of music at Madonna University.

Workshops to be offered are: • Week of June 22: Technology in the 1990s: Kindergarten-College, Sequential Band Instrument Pedagogy: Grades 4-12 and Music, ning Combination.

• Week of July 6: The Art of Choral Conducting, K-5 Sequential Classroom/Yocal Music Curriculum, Teaching Comprehensive Musicianship in the School Band Program and Developing the Percussion Section.

• Week of July 13: The Art of Band Conducting, Administration and Supervision for Music Educators and The Child Voice.

Unless otherwise noted, courses are offered for three graduate or undergraduate credit hours and meet for one week, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Music professionals are invited to attend.

For more information call Redmon at (313) 591-5097. Madonna is at 1.96 and Levan in Livonia.

Bill would create advocate sticker

Michiganians will be able to designate a patient advocate on their drivers licenses next year under a bill approved by the House of Representatives.

"It would take just a sticker. And there's no need to have it witnessed," said Rep. Jan Dolan; R. Farmington Hills, the sponsor.

Her House Bill 5450 won 101-0 approval last week and was sent to the Senate.

"It's one of those things that had to be done, Organ donors were very supportive. So was the Michigan -Hospital Association," she said. Under current law, drivers who want to donate an organ in the event of their deaths may sign a sticker before two witnesses and affix it to the back of their licenses.

Last year the Législature passed a patient advocate law, allowing a person to designate another to make medical decisions when the principal becomes incapacitated.

Dolan's bill provides for listing the patient advocate's name and telephone number. She said hospital emergency room personnel would be able to find it faster on a license than looking through a patient's papers.

State expects strong summer travel season

An improving economy will gencrate a $3.9 billion this summer for the Michigan travel industry, and 36.6 billion for the year, Michigan Travel Bureau Director Tom Altemus said.

"Consumer confidence is on its way back from near record low levels. As a result, we can expect Michigan travel to improve by as much as 2 percent this year -- increasing direct traveler spending by up to $128 million for the year, and $77 million for the summer," he said.

"Interest in Michigan as a travel destination continues to be strong: 129,000 people have called or written the Travel Bureau for information so far this year. If this rate continues, the bureau will exceed the more than half-million requests it processed last year."

Calls are generated by bureau newspaper and television advertisements in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Ontario.

"Absent last year's war scare, and with a soft U.S. dollar, the timing is right to begin marketing to the international traveler. We plan to increase our marketing activities to the consumer, travel agents, and tour packagers who exert a great deal of influence upon travelers' vacation choices," Altemus said.

Election Pair is best in school race

HE WAYNE-Westland Board of Education is nearing the latest in a series of crises with the upcoming June 8 board election.

14A(W)

Voters sent an emphatic message last June to the school board and administration when itdumped three incumbents, elected three challengers and approved a major tax rate increase. That was the start of the 1991 revolution.

Within months, Superintendent Dennis O'Nelll was forced to step down from the post he held for 71/2 years. Shortly afterward, the board launched its search for a new chief administrator, who will be Larry Thomas, appointed last week.

Now the board and the school district are at another crossroad.

There are many needs facing the community, students and employees.

The best people to meet those needs are Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek and Richard Le-Blane.

The two represent a blend of effectiveness, experience, new ideas and accountability.

In the past two years, Kozorosky-Wiacek has been a lone voice in the battle for administrative accountability and restraint. While the Observer has disagreed with her on some issues, there is no question that she has developed leadership skills, honed in the past year while she was board president during a difficult period of a change of superintendents.

While she has been the center of minidisputes in the past year as board president, the 1 tion the voters set last year.

Observer doesn't view that negatively. Before she was named president last July by her colleagues, there were too many business meetings being merely a series of 7-0 votes, with no questioning of the administration and a conclusion within 30 minutes.

LeBlanc, who ran for a board seat last spring, has clearly grown and matured as a candidate and potential board member. He is energetic, has a sense of what the community wants from its board of education, and the skills to communicate with the new superintendent on what the board wants and needs.

He is a problem-solver, not a problem-creator, and should be a welcome asset to the board, if elected June 8.

The two are among eight candidates seeking the two four-year terms. While some of the others have excellent backgrounds, the Observer feels that the board should continue moving in the direction the community pointed it to go in last year's election.

With the selection of a new superintendent last week, the board of education can now turn its attention to new challenges - rebuilding a sense of trust, unity and professional responsibility in the district which has been divided in the past two years over rising tax rates, declining academic test scores and teachers' union pay raises.

The re-election of Kozorosky-Wiacek and election of LeBlanc should continue the direc-

I believe Wayne-Westland schools have always upheld to being current and updated with new changes and programs. I look back and can comfortably say: "this school system effectively met the needs of my children."

would be remiss if I didn't publicly thank the Westland City Council and especially Councilman Kenneth Mehl for the courtesy extended to me at the April 20 city council meeting.

I was there to express my objection to the Exide Battery building the Thomas administration allowed and probably encouraged, to be built on property abutting the residences on the west side of Dowling.

And finally, Mr. "One Term Mayor" Thomas, what with the negative impact the Exide building has had on our lifestyle, I think we deserved better than your message via your secretary, that "the mayor will listen to you, but Mr. Guenther has done everything that can be done."

Although more than two candidates are wellqualified for the school board, the Livonia Observer believes the district will be best served by the election of Katherine Pare and Pamela Guarneri.

Pare has demonstrated her commitment to children and education with her energetic and persistent involvement with the Cooper School contamination problem. She is not, however, a one-issue candidate and is well-informed on : school finance, schools of choice, student enrollment and the learning issues.

A 13-year resident of the Westland portion of the school district, Pare is a regular attendee at school board and committee meetings. Pare is a strong proponent of openness in government and believes the school board is too prone to operate behind closed doors. She will grow in the office.

Guarneri has a professional background in pediatric health care at the department of nursing services for Children's Hospital of Michigan. A clinical manager of nursing administration, her involvement with children from a health perspective will add valuable insight.

as well as handicapped students.

As a parent advocate for her special education child, Guarneri worked through the system to gain an appropriate educational placement. The experience she had advocating for a student also will bring a special perspective to the school board.

Guarneri demonstrates she will not secondguess administrators and the board but will work within the system as a decision-maker. She also is a strong believer in strategic planning, as are other candiates.

Trustee Marjorie Roach has served the district well in her 12 years on the board; however, in the spirit of term limitation, and the mounting support the public is giving to this concept, the Observer believes its time for a change on the board.

The board of education will have four veterans remaining, and the two new-comers who will join the other one-term trustee will provide a desirable mixture. The district will not suffer by electing challengers.

The Observer was impressed with the quality and concern of all eight. We recommend Pamela Guarneri and Katherine Pare as best able to serve the district during the next four years.

Difficult financial times face all of us; it's im portant that we take a good hard look at where our tax dollars are being spent. This means that we need to review in our own minds the qualifications of those persons currently on the board; as well as, the contenders. We have some very qualified people on the board now, it would do a real injustice to our community to lose them.

. One in particular that I would like to mention is Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek. She is truly an asset to the board. She takes her job seriously and also, has the capacity to see the "human side" of issues and conflicts. Sylvia is a versatile person who is capable of utilizing good judgment and applying herself as a hard worker at all of her endeavors.

Term limits hurt state's best

A THE REPORT OF A REPORT OF A DESCRIPTION OF A DESCRIPTIO

ick Young, who represents parts of western Wayne County suburbs in the state House of Representatives, was named among the 10 best Michigan lawmakers in Sunday's Free News. It's recognition long over due for the 65-year-old attorney who has been vice chair of the House Appropriations Committee ever since I learned Lansing was the state capital.

"Approps," as it's called, is the place where the budget gets put together. It's the most powerful committee in Lansing, the place where deals get cut and ' tempers run hot. And it's a place where a guy who has mastered the detail and keeps his head can make g big difference.

For years, Dick Young has exercised a methodical, low-key, common sense kind of leadership that doesn't get big headlines or places on talk shows. But if I had a big problem that required good judgment to resolve, Dick Young's office would be the person I'd go to first.

I remember when I was trying to put together the state's human investment system back in the 1980s and was advised to have lunch with Dick. The jobs program was good. But a bunch of state legislators thought they wanted to make it into a vehicle for their own ambitions.

I asked him what to do. "Calm down," were his first words. "Those guys have no idea what this is or how to make it work. It's this month's fad for them, and if you just hunker down you'll be fine."

He took another bite of salad and then said something I'll always remember. "You'should realize that there are two kinds of people in Lansing: high flash and solid citizens. There are more of the former than the latter, but it's the solid ones who really make this state work."

Here's a guy who has served as a solid citizen for 28 years in the House who would get run off the bat. lot if term limitation passes. Do we really want that? I don't.

A guy who didn't get much notice from the Free News listing was another longtime solid citizen, Garden City's Bill Reith.

Like Young, Keith is a veteran of nearly 20 years in the House, where he is chair of the Education Com? mittee. More to the point, he is chairing a bipartisan panel that has been holding a series of hearings onwhy Michigan kids don't make a good transition from school to work and what can be done about it.

This has been an interest of Keith's for a long, long time. He has traveled to Germany to see the widely admired apprenticeship system at first hand. He has talked to educators, employers, social workers; klds. And for some years, nobody in Lansing took him very seriously,

. Then GM announced closure of the Willow Run plant. And Bill Keith started getting some real notice because he had been laboring away in a low-flash manner on a very important subject that suddenly got real in the public mind.

I wouldn't be at all surprised if Bill Keith's hard work didn't wind up as the centerpiece of a serious effort in Michigan to get a better fit between the training our kids get in school and the kinds of jobs they're going to compete for after graduation. And just in case you didn't notice, Bill Keith would be out of the state Legislature, too, if term limitation passes.

POINTS OF VIEW

Time to bring order to regional agencies

or more than a decade, my "regional government" file gathered dust as the movement foundered. In last December's office cleaning, it got pitched.

A few months too soon, Larry Deck, an Ann Arborite known in the Rails to Trails Conservancy. heads a newly incorporated group studying regionalism from the perspectives of the environment, urban sprawl and transportation.

Among other officers of Regional Citizens Initiative of Southeast Michigan are Alice Tomboulian, the gentle warhorse of the environmental movement whose legislative career was terminated after two years for her support of public transit; Peggy Johnson, Clinton River Watershed Council: and folks who fought M-275.

They meet again May 28 at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Regionalism is the simple notion that multi-county problems should be addressed by multi-county units of government.

No sooner had Deck and friends announced their intentions at a recent environmental conclave than veterans from the Southeast Michigan Councilof Governments (SEMCOG) were warning them to go easy.

Easy, your eye. I say, full speed ahead.

Regionalism isn't a dream to be discussed. It's here, mostly in illogical forms. Consider:

• Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority has operated Kensington and a dozen other metroparks for 40 years. Financed by a quarter-mill property. tax in five counties, it's governed by a board appointed by the counties and the governor.

• SMART, the ailing suburban bus system, operates in three counties with no local tax money. It needs a revenue source and to integrate the Detroit transit system.

IM RICHARD

Hide-bound traditionalists will argue against regionalism, but the truth is that regionalism has been with us for years, though in a disjointed, under-financed form.

• SEMCOG itself, for 23 years a voluntary planning agency, is about to be reborn as a spending agency. That's right: The new federal transportation act will have SEMCOG allocating major road money. All the pussyfooting about "voluntary" will be over. Some one will raise the question of malapportionment, and SEMCOG will spread votes by population instead of a system where South Lyon gets the same vote as Livonia.

• The Detroit Water and Sewer Department, serving 100 or more local units, is actually run by one - Detroit. The board's token suburban members are removable at will by the mayor -and have been. Ask Ed McNamara. Last week Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, and Oakland drain commissioner George Kuhn unveiled SB 936 to set up a regional assembly to govern DWSD. In the midst of his quest for higher office, Honigman won't have time to pursue the bill, but he's on the right track.

• The Detroit Institute of Arts and Detroit Zoo serve the region and are under the political and civil service. control of Detroit. Both would be shut down if they weren't bailed out by the state. Logically, those two institutions should have regional funding, regional governance and a regional civil service.

The problem with the reborn regional movement is that it's disjointed -the environmentalists on the left, Kuhn on the right, others in the middle.

Hide-bound traditionalists will argue against regionalism, but the truth is that regionalism has been with us for years, though in a disjointed, under-financed form.

Except for the metroparks, the regional agencies are in bad shape. The faster we can bring order, the better for the people.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

Their heads are buried in sand on racial issues

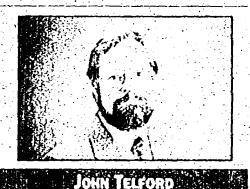

etroit NAACP president Arthur | p.m. weekdays. Johnson's head is in the sand. In an article in a daily metro newspaper, he said MOSAIC isn't. needed. MOSAIC is the new Michigan organization for social advocacy and intercultural cooperation whose mission is to nurture minority-rights through education, political and legal, activism.

Co-founded by Michigan Anti-Defemation League director Dick Lobenthal and me, MOSAIC's diverse membership is prepared to protect the rights of any group. Its core planning board consists of the Rev. Jim Lyons, the Skillman Foundation's Dave Fukazawa, feminist leader Carol King, state Rep. Maxine Berman, South Oakland NAACP president Bill Nabors, Rabbi Arnie Sleutelberg and others.

To join write MOSAIC, 4000 Pown Center, Suite 420, Southfield 48075 1402, or call 355-4091 from 9 a.m. to 5

I'm amazed that a civil rights leader like Johnson could assume such an isolationist stance. Ironically, he shared his shortsighted view that MOSAIC isn't needed exactly four days before Los Angelos County exploded in bloody rioting over the acquittal of the white policemen who were videotaped beating a black man.

Johnson, who once ignored another offer of my help, also complained in the same article that Lobenthal accuses the NAACP of remaining silent regarding Nation of Islam minister Louis Farrakhan's alleged anti-Jewish views. He claimed Lobenthal never asked him to renounce Farrakhan, whose widely quoted repudiation of Nelson Mandela for divorcing his wife, Winnie, came razor-close to promoting murder: "Now" Winnie's charged with killing a couple LocUncle Toms and he wants to leave her. Well, what should you do to an Uncle Tom?"

Whether Lobenthal made the request of Johnson or not is irrelevant. Any NAACP president who has to wait to be asked to denounce demagoguery shouldn't be an NAACP president.

On May 1, I learned that some officials in a suburban school district where I'm a multi-cultural consultant also have their heads in the sand. But theirs is a classic cop-out case of "killthe messenger," which affects me this time rather than my organization. These officials are afraid my reputation is too "firecracker-hot" and my recommendations to hire blacks and 'sensitize" staff are too extreme for them to retain my services (even.... though I offered to waive further fees). Although the official who brought me in knew my reputation, apparently others didn't. While this isn't the first time I've seen such fears regarding my proactive multi-cultural philosophy, I was surprised to encounter them in that particular district's leaders, because they seemed to care about their simmering racial problems.

That district, the Detroit NAACP and other local civic, civil, corporate and educational entities need MOSA-IC — and they need to hear the constant buzzing of gadflies like Lobenthal and me. They should welcome progressive help from any and all fairminded, liberal, conservative, black and white groups and individuals. Otherwise, what happened in Los Angelos County could happen here, and it could happen even worse.

John Telford, a Rochester Hills resident, most recently was assistant superintendent in the Rochester School District. He previously was executive director for secondary education in the Plymouth Canton district.

Stevenson opened district play with a tough match against city rival Churchill. The Spartans used a second-half goal to oust the host Chargers from Class A district play.

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

The "new season" started off on the right foot Monday for the Livonia Stevenson girls soccer team.

The Spartans, fresh from their 2-0 loss Thursday to Plymouth Canton in the Western Lakes championship, opened state Class A tournament play with a 2-1 win at Livonia Churchill.

"The girls came in with a good frame of mind because they knew it was the playoffs and we were starting over," said Stevenson coach Mary Kay Hussey, whose team upped its record to 12-2-2. "Churchill plays a high pressure game and defensively they pack things in, but we were able to spread them out and score at the opportune times."

Stevenson also won the first meeting between the two teams back in April, 2. 1, but Churchill had improved markedly since then.

After starting out the season an uncharacteristic 1.5.1, the state-ranked Chargers turned their season around by going 7-2-1 down the stretch, their only losses coming to top-ranked Troy Athens and the No. 3-rated Spartans. "At the beginning of the year people. wrote us off as a good team, plus we were playing under a new system,"

Churchill coach Nick O'Shea said. "But we played a lot better after the girls got used to each other, and also once they did what I told them to do."

Churchill had things going its way early, striking with 18:15 left in the first half on Shelly Hamby's goal from Aimee Cousino. Kari Kopinski, however, was the player who kept the ball alive in front of the Stevenson goal.

Stevenson's Ragen Coyne then answered with 8:53 left in the first half from Michele Brach.

Off a free kick, Churchill had cleared the ball, but a couple of players were caught out of position.

"Our defense had pushed up past the ball waiting for an offsides call and we got caught a little wide," O'Shea explained. "It was just a little mistake, but they have good players who can take advantage of that and score. You can't let a player like Ragen alone."

× With the score tied at 1-1, Stevenson goalie Alicia Smith came up with a key stop on Andrea Zawislak.

The Spartans' Mo Drabicki scored what proved to be the game-winner from Amy Marcoe with 26:51 remaining.

"Amy Marcoe came off the bench to play right wing and played very hard.' Hussey said. "She started winning

Chargers capture city crown with 8-6 victory over Patriots

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

Livonia Churchill is already out of the state baseball tournament, but the Chargers received some consolation Saturday by winning the Livonia City Baseball Tournament.

The Chargers, ousted in a Class A predistrict qualifier on Thursday by Redford Catholic Central, bounced back at Ford Field to defeat rival Franklin in a wild game. 8.6.

"It gives the kids one more opportunity to look forward to playing," said Churchill coach Herb Osterland, whose team is 8.7 overall. "And it gives the kids a chance to compete against their friends."

It also gave the four schools (including Clarenceville and Stevenson) a chance to play in a big-league type diamond, the reburbished Ford Field.

But despite that errors were plentiful.

"It was a sloppy game, but exciting," said Franklin coach Jim-Karoub, whose team nearly overcame a 6-1 deficit. "Churchill beat us twice this season and they deserved to win it. Unfortunately we did not play enough good defense."

Voletti cracks homer

The Patriots struck first in the opening inning when Jesse Gerwatowski triple and came home on sophomore Delano Voletti's groundout.

"He's a good hitter," Karoub said. "He's aggressive with quick hands," Churchill, with the help of four Patriot errors, then exploded for six runs off Ron Sherry in the top of the third, the big hit coming from junior catcher Todd Siedlaczek, who cleared the bases with a double. Keith Gulian also had an RBI during the six-run outburst.

Meanwhile, Churchill's hardthrowing junior right-hander Mark Rutherford was cruising along. He allowed only one hit through the first four innings while fanning seven. But in the bottom of the fifth, Rutherford was bloodied by some shoddy defense - a pair of infield errors and a passed ball.

Voletti, Franklins's DH, then ripped a Rutherford pitch over the left field fence with two runners aboard, closing the gap to 6.5.

Churchill then answered with two runs in the top of the sixth.

Gulian reached first on an infield single and Mike Marchetti bunted safely. Chris Vargo walked to load the bases.

That brought on Franklin reliever Kevin Crumbley, who allowed an RBI sacrifice fly by Steve Johnson. Marchetti then scored on a wild pitch.

Down 8.5, Franklin got a run back in the bottom half of the inning when Pat McCormick reached first on an error. With one out, Josh Reynolds and Brian White each singled to load the bases, but Patriots could get only one run off Churchill reliever Jason Carter (on Gerwatowski's groundout).

Carter gets save

Carter allowed a walk and a single (to pinch hitter Matt Edick) in the sixth, but managed to get the final out.

"Both Carter and Mark (Rutherford) work well with each other," Osterland said. "Mark is a power pitch and Carter throws the offspeed stuff and can get the curve over the plate. The errors may have upset Mark, but I took him out because he was sweating and he was working so hard out there."

Franklin opened the tourney be defeating Stevenson, 4-0, as Gerwatowski tossed a three-hitter, while fanning seven and walking only one. Gerwatowski had a no-hitter through five innings before Chris Lehti broke it up in the sixth with a single.

Gerwatowski outdueled Stevenson's Craig Brevik, who allowed only five hits, two walks and a hitbatsman.

Brevik, who fanned seven, couldn't get the ball past Franklin's senior catcher Jeff Shaffer, who clubbed a two-run homer in the first and followed it with an RBI double in the fifth.

Clarenceville ousted

Churchill won the other semifinal. against Clarenceville. 11-4.

Sean Scheuher led the Churchill attack with three hits and three RBI. Jason Renkiewicz and Rutherford added two hits apiece. Gulian contributed a two-run single.

Winning pitcher Marcus Sarnovsky struck out eight and allowed just four hits in six innings before giving way to Carter.

Trailing 10.0 through six innings, Clarenceville (7.8) scored once in the sixth on losing pitcher Tony Malinowski's RBI single, and three times in the seventh highlighted by Ali Nemeh's RBI single.

The tournament, a revival of the old Walt Cosens/Les Anders events, was sponsored by several Livonia companies including United Parcel Service, Ford Motor Co. Transmission/Chassis, Ford Parts and Service, Livonia Trophy along with Grand Slam USA of Novi.

The tourney, however, may be in jeopardy for next year because of budget cuts recommended by the Livonia Public Schools. Several varsity sports are on the chopping block including varsity baseball.

"You have to be positive at this point, but it's a sad state of affairs," Osterland said. "Down the line you hope we could look forward to this again.

"It was a beautiful day ord a nice tournament."

Clint Straub led University of Detroit-Mercy's baseball team with 33 runs scored but he also . was second in runs allowed (55). So it's fair to say the 1992 sea: son produced mixed results for Straub, a right-handed outfielder/pitcher from Westland John Glenn.

Straub, playing at his third college since graduating from Glenn in 1988, batted 312 with eight home runs and 21 RBI but a sore elbow limited his effectiveness as a pitcher. He was only 1-7 on the mound with a 7.97 earned run average.

Straub looks forward to a summer of rest and possible surgery on his elbow which has bothered him off-and-on the last three years. Bone spur surgery in January, 1991, alleviated some of the pain but it returned early in the '92 season.

"It's something that's not really major, I've just got to take care of it," said Straub. "I didn't have time to take care of it this season so I lived with it. As soon as I get my arm fixed I'm going to start pitching like I used to because I can 'bring' the ball."

Straub, a physical education major, said he has lost about four mph on his fastball which prior to arm trouble was clocked at about 88. Straub spent his freshman year at Western Michigan, where he pitched well enough to have appeared in a 1989 NCAA tournament regional game.

After transferring, Straub sat out the 1990 season and played ty College coach Stu Rose. He : was an All-America for Rose, batting 460 and finishing the season with a 5.0 pitching record.

U-D Mercy struggled to a 20-29 record this season but finished third at the Midwest Collegiate Conference Tournament. After winning their first two MCC tournament games over D Mercy, Heard batted a re-Dayton (11-10) and Evansville spectable .301 this season with eventual champion Notre Dame and 8-2 to Evensyille to get eliminated.

Straub wasn't supposed to pitch in the MCC tournament. but an injury to to the regularlyscheduled pitcher meant an emergency. appearance against ND. The Fighting Irish, ranked 21st nationally, chased Straub from the mound after scoring. seven runs in seven innings.

"Notre Dame is just a powerhouse team and they play well together," Straub said. "We struggled this season but we're better than we showed."

While Straub wasn't thrilled with the way he pitched in '92, he was excited about the way he hit. Straub, who sometimes batted leadoff, hit most of his eight homers in the last couple weeks of the season.

His 13 doubles tied him with teammates Mark Dube and Mike Heard (Wayne Memorial) for the team lead.

After the anticipated elbow surgery, Straub also expects to move to third base (where he played in high school) when not pitching. Straub has one year of eligibility remaining and he also hopes to get a shot in the future at professional baseball.

"I've always had scouts looking at me but I'm still waiting," Straub said. "Hopefully my chance will come. I know I can do it. I've played with and against a lot of great players like Steve Avery (Atlanta Braves pitcher). The hardest thing is getting a shot. After that it's all ability?

Johnson spurs Stevenson to Western Lakes crown

Livonia Stevenson had reason to debrate Tuesday after the Sparins captured the Western Lakes. Activities Association girls golf ournament at Huron Meadows in. Brighton. But the celebration may ot last long.

Due to financial constraints, varity golf in the Livonia Public schools could be dropped because of budget cuts.

The Spartans, led by Purduebound Megan Johnson, made sure that if the elimination of the team was a possibility, the championship would end up in their trophy case."

"We're disheartened about (the girls golf program being dropped)," said first-year coach John Wagner. "But we had a good year and the girls pulled together when they needed to."

Johnson shot a 87, eight strokes better than her closest empetition, to become the WLAA gold medalist. Stevenson's 437 was six strokes better than second place Livonia. Franklin.

Northville, considered a favorite entering the tournament, finished. The Chargers, who finished 5-6 in third with a total of 450, followed by regular season dual matches, im-Walled Lake Western's 452. Defending champ Plymouth Canton from last season.

CC seniors enjoy day in sun at meet finals

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Those seniors on the Redford Catholic Central track team who chose to stay home over Easter break instead of heading south finally had their day in the sun Tues. day, Literally.

Under bright sunny skies, the Shamrocks won their second Catho-Jic League A-B Division meet in the last three years, finishing with 144 points at the Farmington Hills Mercy track:

"The five, six, soven seniors I have proved today if you stick around, good things happen," CC coach Tony Magni said. "I've got a policy 'If you go anywhere over spring break you can't run.' "

The Shamrocks' closest competition came from the University of Detroit Jesuit, which finished with throws 142," Magni said. "And that 127 points. Birmingham Brother was Roslinski's best jump, This is Rice was third (78), followed by Detroit DePorres (48) and Dearborn Divine Child (48). CC finished with two relay wins and five individual titles, including a pair of unexpected first places in the field events. Junior Joe Suhajda won the discus with a personal best toss of 142-feet and Kevin Roslinski placed first in the high jump

2-inches. CC had 48 points after the five field events, three behind the leader with another personal best of 6-feet, at the time, Brother Rice. Each first place was worth 10 points, followed by second place points), and so on.

"Suhajda hadn't thrown over 130 only his second year so he has a lot of good jumps left in him."

Suhajda, a junior, said he had extra incentive.

"This is (coach) Mr. (Jeff) Bean's last year and since my freshman year he's been very instrumental in me learning the proper techniques," Suhajda said. "In the back of my mind le really wanted to do it for him, not for me, because I have another year.'...

Magni said his team's versatility with distance runners made positioning on relays easy. One of the keys, according to Magni, was being able to take senior Steve Witek out (eight points), third place (six of the 3,200 meter relay and run him individually in the 800 meter run, which he placed second in

CC also was able to win the 1,600 meter relay (3:26.8) without the help of Mark Eden, who instead helped out on the 400 meter relay (a second-place finisher).

Running on the winning 1,600 relay (3:26.8) were Aaron Sheposh, T.J. Kitchen, Brandon Dalziel and Eric McKeon; the 3,200 relay. of Sheposh, Dalziel, Chris O'Keefe and Brian O'Reilly also won (8:19). "I broke up a lot of relays to get more points," Magni said. "We hadn't even come close to winning a 400 relay this year but Eden makes that much of a difference. He gets it out there fast and everyone else is more confident they can do it, too." Eden also scored an addition 20 points for the Shamrocks by winning the 300 meter hurdles (40.2)

Provencal, Leimbach lift Warriors to title

Lutheran High Westland won the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference boys track meet Tuesday at home with a team high 173 points.

Rounding, out the field was Southfield Christian (133), Bloomfield Hills Roeper (78), Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest (70), Warren Bethesda (19) and Plymouth Christian Academy (0).

Warren Provencal and Jason Leimbach figured prominently in the victory.

Provencal swept the 220- and 440-yard dashes in 23.7 and 54.1, respectively. Leimbach added firsts in the 120- and 330 hurdles with first place times of 15.9 and 43.1. Other firsts for the Warriors were garnered by Matt Grams in the high jump (5 feet, 7 inches) and Mace Mattieson in the 880 run (2:06.5). Grams, Leimbach, Provencal and Jeff Lichtner won the 880 relay (1:37,1), while the foursome of Mattieson, Provencal, Jason Haas and Luke Schrader added a win in the mile relay (3:46.9).

At Saturday's Class C regional at Onsted, Lutheran Westland was fifth overall. State qualifiers - all firsts - included Leimbach in the 110-meter hurdles (15.6); Provencal, 400 dash (49.8); and the 1,600 relay team of Provencal, Lichtner, Leimbach and Mattieson (3:29.9).

Warrior girls

Lutheran Westland was fifth in the Class C girls regional Saturday at Onsted with 33 points. The host Wildcats took first with 109.

Jennifer Billand was the Warriors' lone state qualifier, taking a pair of seconds in the shot put (30.

and the 400 relay team of Jennifer Garris, Tonia Schlicker, Kristin Hughes and Emily Schroeder, sixth (54.7): Stevenson girls

The Spartans finished second behind Brighton Saturday in the Class A regional at Novi.

Brighton had a team-high 120 points, while Stevenson totaled 75. Teresa Sarno qualified in two events for the Spartans, winning the shot put with a school record toss of 38-5, breaking Jessah Martin's mark of 38-2 in 1990. She also won the discus (127-5).

Other Stevenson state qualifiers included Cathy Bacile, who took third in the long jump (16-61/2); Rachel Clark, third in the discus (106-5) and shot put (31-10%).

Other regional individual finishers included: Laurie Hardie and Colleen Lesondak, tie for third, high jump (4-10); Bacile, third, 200 (27.2); Dina Belleperche, fifth, discus (99-5); and A.J. Koritnik, fifth, 1,600 run (5:36.3).

Michelle Slawski, Kim Nelson, Bacile and Stacy Prais took third in the 800 relay (1:49.9), while the foursome of Nelson, Bacile, Amy Pack and Debbie Walsh added a third in the 400 relay (52.0). The 1,600 relay squad of Slawski, Becky Adamczyk, Walsh and Nelson gained fourth (4:16.5). Gail Grewe, Kelly Prais, Bridget Mackinnon and Jennifer Knapp added a sixth in the 3,200 relay (10:15.1).

State finalists Area girls move on from Belleville regional

By RAY SETLOCK STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Salem girls track coach Mark Gregor sat in amazement: Friday, watching his team cruise along in the Class A state regional finals at Belleville.

"Were doing as well or better than I thought we would," Gregor said. "We are just having a super day.'

Thanks to a trio of first place finishers, the Rocks (104 points) finished second behind Ann Arbor Pioneer (167).

Theresa Glacherio in the 100 meter hurdles (15.5), Melissa Hopson in the high jump (5 feet, 6 inches) and Tonya Wheeler in the 400-meter dash (58.3) all took firsts for Salem.

The Rocks also won the 1,600 relay. In addition, Salem posted three second place finishes.

Plymouth Canton finished third at the regional with a score of 49.5, edging out Ypsilanti, which had 44.

The Chiefs were led by a first place finish in the 3,200 relay. The team consisted of Christie. Saffron, Jennifer Warnke, Lana Boroditsch and Kim Gudeth. Boroditsch also sparked Canton with a second in the 1,600 run (5:22.0) and third in the 3,200 run (11:55.2).

Sclena Bastine was third in the discus (110-9), while Stephanie Gray qualified in the high jump (5-2). Karina Kilpelainen added a third in the 300 hurdles (47.5).

Wayne Memorial (16.5) posted a seventh place finish thanks to a solid effort from Kim Morrow, who was second in the shot put (35-2) and fifth in the discus (102-0). Sue Ronan also excelled for the Zebras, taking fourth in the high jump (5-0).

"I thought the girls ran well,"

Wayne coach Joe Grasley said. "Kim Morrow is a hard worker: and it wasn't a fluke that she did. so well today. Sue Ronan came off the gymnastics program because we didn't have anyone to jump. She has also done well."

Other area teams in the regional included: Livonia Churchill, 11th; Livonia Franklin, 12th; Westland John Glenn, 13th (tie with Romulus); Garden City, 16th.

Livonia Franklin was led by Kelly Gustafson, who set a school record in the 800 run with a time of 2:24.9.

Long jumper Buck breaks new ground for Rockets

BY RAY SETLOCK STAFF WRITER

Vanessa Williams hit the music charts last month with "Save the Best for Last"

That song could easily have described Westland John Glenn trackster Brandon Buck in Friday's Class A regional meet at Belleville.

Buck waited until his final attempt to claim first place in the high jump. long jump (22 feet, 1034 inches).

"Brandon was trailing until that" final jump," Glenn coach Jess Shough said. "He reacted well to the pressure and came up with a nice jump. Brandon holds our school record in the long jump." Buck's jump helped Glenn solidify fifth place in the regional with 35 points. Shough was also pleased with the efforts of Chaka Salisberry in the Salisberry had been No. 3 on the Glenn depth chart all season long, but turned in a solid second place finish (6-2) at the regional.

"I didn't have much doubt that Chaka had all the tools," Shough said. "He probably has more springs than any of our guys. He was another guy that handled the pressure well."

"I'm pleased with our fifth place finish. I thought we may have been able to do a little bit better."

Livonia Churchill finished ninth at the regional thanks to a pair of third place finishes in the 1,600 relay and 400 dash, where Darian Muzo ran a 51.1.

Wayne Memorial was paced by Randy Johnson, who took fifth in the 300 hurdles (41.3).

"I was happy that Randy was able to get his personal best out there," Wayne coach Floyd Carter said. "Randy is just coming off an ankle injury. It was a real good effort

. Garden City and Livonia Franklin tied for 14th.

Engaging actors in 'Talley's Folly'

Peter Senkbeil, as Matt Friedman and Robin Sullivan, as Sally Talley, are both engaging actors who are interesting to watch in Trinity House Theatre's presentation of the romantic comedy, "Talley's Folley." The production qualities are first-rate.

Performances of the Trinity House Theatre production of "Talley's Folly" continue through June 13 at Trinity House in Livonia. For ticket information; call 464-6302:

Trinity House Theatre's latest production is the two-character, one act play by Lanford Wilson, "Talley's Folly." Set on Independence Day. 1944; amid the debris of a run-down boathouse in central Missouri, it's an oldfashioned, boy-meetsgirl story with a twist DIAZ - the boy is middle-aged and the girl, though not quite there yet, is knocking at the door.

Peter Senkbeil, as Matt Friedman, a Jewish accountant, and Robin Sullivan, as Sally Talley, a Methodist spinster, are both highly attractive; engaging actors, interesting to watch. They always appear confident onstage, almost never stumbling over any of the many lines they deliver.

The production qualities are firstrate here, too. Sarah Hedeen's intrigning set goes far toward evoking the romantic feel of a summer night in a Midwest countryside, as do subtle lighting effects by Vikki Johnson.

Finally, this is an appealing story and, although it feels a bit talky, its 97 minutes move along at a good, swift pace most of the time.

But there's something about this production, directed by Laura Gumina, that seriously gets in the way of a play-front of an audience.

Here, in a tiny nutshell, is the story of "Talley's Folly" A St. Louis accountant, Matt; vacations one summer in Lebanon, Missouri, and promptly falls in love with spinster Sally, daughter of one of the area's wealthiest families. They have what he thinks of as an "affair" (which she will later vehemently deny) and, when he returns to St. Louis, he writes her dozens of letters that she never answers. As the play opens, it is a year later, and he has returned to Lebanon, determined to seek her out, to find out why she never responded to his letters, and to declare his continuing love for her. She meets him at the boathouse, where he is waiting after suffering some rather harrowing discouragement from her narrow-minded, bigoted family. But she complains of the weather, as he speaks of moonlight; waltzes, and Valentines, and as he is declaring his love, she maintains that a relationship between them is "impossible." All ends happily, though, when love conquers all. The trouble here is that there seems so little chemistry or passion between the couple, as portrayed by Senkbeil and Sullivan. And without that passion for each other, it's extremely hard to believe that this logically minded accountant and this hesitant; cautious spinster would be motivated to become involved in such a complicated relationship.

. But these two don't seem particularly interested in touching each other, even if it's just in a tentative way. Or even in acting as if they want to touch each other more. Much of the time, they

Attic presents Woody Guthrie musical

• Performances of the Attic Theatre they look like, and found a guitar from production of "Woody Guthrie's American Song" continue through June 28 at the Strand Theatre in Pontiac. For ticket information call the box office at 875. 8284

By KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER

Part of creating magic on the stage, is setting the mood. For the Attic Theatre's presentation of "Woody Guthrie's American Song," Dorothy Smith looked everywhere for the right guitar. "We had to find a guitar from that era," said Smith of Rochester, property designer for the show.

We had to drive to Lansing to get it. We researched guitars from that time period to see how they're made, what the 1950s that was very similar. It's a Gibson with a dark sunburst pattern."

Another challenge was finding liquor bottles that looked like those from the 1930s and 40s.

"We're aware of colors and combinations. If we can't find it, we buy it, or we'll make it and try to get it into the manner of the period so it looks like it belongs."

Set in the 1930s and 40s, the show weaves 23 Woody Guthrie classics like "Bound for Glory," "This Land is Your Land" and "I Ain't Gonna Be Treated This-a-Way" with scenes from the Dust Bowl, the Depression, soup kitchens, flophouses and shop room floors.

The show by New York playwright Peter Glazer, son of folksinger Tom Glazer, who knew and peformed with Guthrie, isn't as much about the life of the legendary folksinger as about the spirits of working stiffs whom Guthrie. immortalized in his songs, said Deborah Kaulan of the Attic Theatre.

The show had its world premiere at the Attic's New Center stage four years. ago. Original cast member David Lutken is directing and performing in the current Attic production.

An ensemble cast plays the plain working folk who populate the scenes of Woody Guthrie's songs. Joining Lutken on stage are New York actors, Coco McPherson and Jim Stein, Chicagoan Neil Freidman and Grosse Pointer Marie Boyle, Neil Woodward of Union Lake is the folk music director.

"Audiences responded to Woody's music, songs and words with such joy that we are thrilled to welcome it back, said Lavinia Moyer, Attic Artistic director. "We couldn't continue our Pontiac residency with a more lively - or more timely show.'

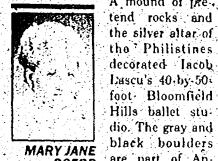

Guthrie was born in Okfuskee County, Okla. where he lived until the dust storms drove his family west. He rode the rails during the worst of the Depression and was an early union man, organizing for the agricultural union and the CIO.

The Strand is at 12 N. Seginaw in downtown Pontiac. Shows Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

Electric car will spark Motor City

Not that I have McCOSH anything against this in principle.

Some of my best friends are mad inventors, although the most productive tend to be the type that work to improve the automobile as we know it, rather than eliminate it.

The energy crisis that now seem in the distant, past seemed to change all that, and for a few brief moments some kind of radical new engine or alternative form of transportation seemed to be just around

Sometimes it the corner, Now, with gas at a buck formance, etc., seem to just whet ECD has been turning out high seems like one of a gallon, energy as an issue doesn't the dictates of the seem quite as important as the effort to save the environment. (Someone is going to point out that the two are distinctly related, but I'm not talking reasoned thought here.)

Enter the electric car. For some reason. a two-passenger car with a hundred mile range carrying around 800 pounds of toxic chemicals is seen as an environmentally sound proposition, at least in California, where they are hell bent on putting. hundreds of thousands of the things on the road in the next decade or so. The merits of the basic premise

The big stumbling block is still a lightweight high-capacity battery, however, since aside from the short range, you can'to exactly stand alongside the road with a pair of ' jumper cables when an electric car runs down. This critical issue prompted the formation about a year ago of the first industry-wide research consortium --- a genuine melding of effort in an industry rife with antitrust paranoia.

All in all, the electric car may yet end up as the best thing to happen to the car business around here in years.

Our attention is the difference between acceptable and year to be able to retire at age 65 at that income level.

To assess their options more effectively, they should examine closely their expenditures to find out exactly what it takes to maintain their current lifestyle. Tracking monthly expenditures is a first step in this process.

Then they need to see if there are any expenses that can be reduced. For example, they were planning on maintaining both their home in Livonia and their cottage up north. They may find they can afford only to keep one or the other. These decisions should be faced now, so that they can adequately prepare for any transition at retirement.

Examining their expenditures will also help them manage their current income more effectively. They tend to use their credit cards regularly, which leads to frequent impulse buying. The high interest rate that they pay on these credit cards further increases the cost of these purchases. By planning these ahead of time, they can make their income go further.

Thus they need to embark on an aggressive savings campaign. Using tax-deductible dollars is the most efficient way to build their assets for retirement. At a minimum, we would suggest that Al establish a Simplified Employee Pension (SEP) plan. Using this, he can contribute and deduct slightly more than 12 percent of this net self-employment income. This type of retirement plan is extremely easy to set up and maintain.

Self-employed pension

Better yet, he should consider establishing a combination of two retirement plans that maximizes his ability to make tax-deductible investments. This would involve the setting up of a profit-sharing plan and a money purchase pension plan for self-employed individuals. Together, these two plans allow him to contribute up to 20 percent of this income after other husiness expenses.

These plans are sometimes called Keogh plans, although that term is technically outmoded. The reporting and filing requirements for these plans are somewhat more complex than for the SEP, but the additional tax savings is well worth it. Al should consult with his CPA or financial planner to make the de-$100,000 universal policy bought in 1983. If he died, Fran would be left in a terrible position. She has minimal job skills, so perhaps she would earn $1,000 per month.

As a widow, she would not be eligible for Social Security until age 60, so her only other income would be provided from investment of the $100,000 life insurance proceeds and their $75,000 of other investment assets.

Thus, she would be faced with a severely reduced standard of living and would face some hard choices. Al should buy another $200,000 to $250,000 of life insurance to be carried at least during the next five to eight years or until he is retired. This buys them time to build their asset base.

Aggressive investments?

Currently, with the exception of a small mutual fund, all of their investments are in interest-bearing bank accounts. They need to work with their financial planner or a broker to incorporate some growth into their portfolio.

Fran asks, "Should we be much more aggressive in our investments, so that our assets grow faster?"

To a limited extent, the answer is yes, but they need to be cautious. The hidden assumption here is that by taking additional risk, they would be assured of additional returns. If they speculate, they could lose significant amounts of money. which they cannot afford to do.

We make a clear distinction between "speculating" and "investing.", Speculation Implies taking high risks with the hopes for extraordinary gains; investing is a more prudent method of accepting some additional risk with the rea- . sonable expectation of higher rates of return over time. We believe Al and Fran can and should embark on an investment problem, but avoid speculation. A well-defined investment plan using stocks and bonds, as well as guaranteed investments, would be appropriate for them.

"When you're thirsty, it's too late to think about digging a well."

Similarly when you are at retirement, it's too late to begin thinking about where your ongoing income is to be generated. This month's profiled couple, Al and Fran Gingrich of Livonia, have only a short time to prepare for retirement. And they have some catching up to do.

Al is a manufacturer's representative with average annual earnings of about $70,000 after expenses. He. is 58 and is self-employed. Fran, 52, is a homemaker. They have raised their four children, and all are married. The Gingrichs have been generous with their children, providing trol, they need to concentrate on significant help with their wedding and college expenses, but it has put them in a hole for their own retirement planning.

They are aware of their lack of savings. "We know that we don't have enough invested in our retirement fund. What is the best way to make this fund grow rapidly?" Fran asked.

One of the problems they face is the lack of any pension plan. Because the income provided from Social Security is beyond their conbuilding their own savings and investments as rapidly as possible.

Their major financial strength is the fact they they have very little; debt, and they therefore are able to direct their discretionary cash flow to savings. Unlike last month's profiled family whose low debt allowed for an enhanced standard of living, the Gingrichs must use their cash flow toward providing for the future.

By SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

The government can't regulate outdoor tanning, but when it comes to the indoor variety, tanning salons could face some new regulations. That's given one man a mission that, if successful, will be beneficial and educational for both owners and clients.

As Folsom sees it, indoor tanning is progressing from a business to a profession. He would like to have the all of Now a profession the state's indoor tanning salons belong to the Michigan chapter of the Suntanning Association for Education.

His reason is somewhat selfish. An assistant operations manager at Nailco Salon Marketplace in Livonia, Folsom is president of the chapter which currently has 27 members. And that's a drop in the bucket, so to speak, when you consider that there more than 1,200 tanning salons in the state.

David Folsom is a man with a mis-

But there's more to his mission than membership.

Folsom, who handles indoor tanning products for Nailco Salon Marketplace in Livonia, believes the salons need to band together so they can "speak" in an united voice in Lansing where consideration is being given to a bill to regulate the salons.

'The association protects salon owners and promotes the indoor tanning business," Folsom said. "So we agree with Lansing that salons should be regulated and (tanning) units inspected. We're not against it, we just want to make sure it's fair."

SAE is designed to keep salon owners ... aware of new laws at the state and federal levels, new equipment and new products. And with the information the group provides, members can better serve their customers, Folsom said.

Watchful agencies

At the federal level, tanning salons are regulated by the Food and Drug Administration and it is that agency that prohibits promotion of the business as At the state level, tanning salons come under the watchful eye of the state Department of Public Health. "A customer only knows so much, so it's an educated salon owner that can make it (indoor tanning) safer for the customer," Folsom said. "The salon owners should be the gurus of sun and have answers for the customers. "There's so many myths out there about indoor tanning, and we're trying to get rid of those myths."

sion. Where indoor tanning businesses were once small storefronts with a couple of beds, today's salon may have beds and booths and hot tubs. "Indoor Tanning salons are turning into little retail ventures," Folsom said. "You'll see them paired up with manicures, even masseuses. They're diversifying,'

And by being members of the SAE. owners, can keep abreast with the changes taking place within the industry, Folsom said. State SAE membership costs $50, while national membership is $90 annually.

And there are changes all the time, according to Folsom.

"A lot of bed and booth styles are changing and the lotions are always changing, especially the accelerators (substances that speed up the chemical action of the tanning process)," Folsom said. "So the salon owner has to be a professional because this is a profession now."

the collection of Michigan quiltmaker Gwen Marston.

'We decided to do half, because we were unsure of where we would put them all," said Beth Stewart, museum director.

About a year ago, museum representatives got intouch with Marston, a Beaver Island rtesident who is a nationally known professional guiltmaker, author and teacher.

Members of the Plymouth Piecemakers, a local quilting group, and other museum supporters suggested that her quilts be displayed and organizers had to work around other exhibits Marston has scheduled this year.

The quilt collection features a variety of designs, shapes and colors. Some are very modern; some have a real ethnic flavor to them. And some of Marston's quilts were inspired by African folk art designs, Stewart said.

In addition to Marston's quilts, some 30 to 35 an. tique quilts, nearly all of the museum's collection. are exhibited

"They play off each other very well," said Stewart. The collection includes both patchwork quilts and applique ones, in which flowers and patterns were sewn onto the top. The earliest quilt, a mosaic design from Europe, is dated around 1840.

"That's probably our most unusual one too, I would say," Stewart said.

The main lobby area of the museum is set up to resemble a quilting bee, complete with mannequins in period costumes.

"That was women's social time and one of the few times they had to get together," she said. Girls began to learn the art of quilting at an early age; the counting and multiplying required helped them learn their arithmetic.

Quilting began for utilitarian purposes, and moved beyond that to become an art form. Women would gather scraps of fabric, making sure they used everything. Those pieces were then cut meticulously so they would blend together, said Donna Keough; ex-+ hibits chairwoman at the museum.

"The chores were many, but they found time to do. the piecing because it was a necessity," said Keough. Quilting became a source of pride.

"I'm amazed at the patterns and the color variances." Often, women in the family would work individually on piccing quilt tops during the winter. When spring came, it was quilting bee time and women put on their Sunday best.

Women also spent some time making hope-chest quilts for their daughters, and in some circles, gathering to stitch a quilt together was tantamount to an engagement announcement.

Marston will present a workshop on quilting 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, June 20, at the muscum. Price is $25 for the workshop, which is limited to 30 participants, and advance registration is required. Marston will also give a 2 p.m. lecture on quilting June 20. Price is $2, and reservations aren't required for the lecture. For information, call 455-8940.

The quilt exhibit can be seen 1-4 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, 2-5 p.m. Sunday at the museum, 155 S. Main; Plymouth. Admission price is $1.50 for adults, 50 cents for students, free for children under age 5. Family rate is $4.

It is a combination of a knowledgeable salon owner and an educated customer that can keep the latter with a golden glow, according to Folsom.

Before tanning, check skin type

Tanning indoors and tanning outdoors are two different processes. One relies on the rays of the sun, the other relics on manmade ultraviolet light.

The one thing they have in common is skin types. The medical profession has identified six skin types and knowing a skin type can avoid exposure injuries.

Skin Type I: This person burns casily and severely and suffers from peeling and blistering without any sign of a tan. He or she usually has bright white skin, blue or green eyes, red hair and freckles, revealing an English, Irish or Scottish heritage.

Skin Type II: This person is similar to the first skin type, except the person tans minimally. He or she also burns easily and severely and usually peels. The person usually has brown or blue eyes, red or blond hair and freckles, revealing an English, Scottish or Scandinavian heritage.

Skin Type II: This person still burns, but moderately, and tans better than the first two types. He or she frequently has brown eyes and dark hair, revealing a Central European heritage.

Skin Type IV: This person burns minimally (if at all), tans easily and continues to tan well with each exposure to ultraviolet light. He or she has dark eyes and dark hair, revealing a Mediteranean, Oriental or Hispanic heritage.

Skin Type V: This person rarely burns and tans easily and cumulatively. He or she has dark hair and eyes, revealing an Indian, American Indian, Hispanic or African heritage.

Skin Type VI: This person can tan

despite his or her black skin and like the previous two types, has dark hair, revealing an African or African-American or aboriginal heritage.

For the person with the first skin type, tanning outdoors should be discouraged and tanning indoors prohibited, since their skin can't produce enough melanin to protect them from overexposure that could lead to skin damage.

Persons with the second and third skin types should tan slowly in a salon. They probably won't see quick results until after three or four tanning sessions.

The last three types are more likely to tan than burn because their natural skin tones are brown or black. They probably will see quick results tanning, but they can still suffer from overexposure to ultraviolet light.

Group makes special wishes come true

BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

If Suzanne Jones were a fairy godmother, she'd grant every wish she could. She'd wave a magic wand and conjure up a trip to the NBA All Star game, a long distance visit with Julia Roberts, a motorized three-wheel cart and trips to Disney World.

As the executive director of the Rainbow Connection, Jones can grant other people's wishes, but she can't grant the one she has - corporate sponsors to help fund the work of the non-profit organization that brightens the lives of children 3 to 18 years of age who are suffering from life-threatening illnesses.

"It's not the cost of the wish that's important here," said Jones. "It's what it does for the child. We send a lot of kids to Disney World and buy blkes, but the main thrust of the wishes are very simple. They want to do it for the family."

Rainbow Connection was founded in by former Oakland County prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson in memory of his friend Ron Dobson and Dobson's two children, Tim and Jennifer, all of whom died in the May 1980 crash of a private plane.

At first scholarships were offered to children in the Clarkston School District, where the Dobson children had attended school, but the program was eventually expanded to include other children with life threaten. ing illnesses.

Granting wishes

Since then Rainbow Connection has granted more than 200 wishes, the majority since 1990, a phenomenal number, considering it gets its money from donations, memorials and fund-raisers.

Under its bylaws, 80 percent of the money the organization collects goes for wishes. The remaining money goes for maintaining offices (in a corner of Keith's Framing shop in Rochester) and salaries for Jones, the only full-time employee, and two part-time employees.

The bulk of the work is done by a cadre of volunteers who plan fund-raisers like its sixth annual Hearts of Gold Ball in February, the second annual Jonathan Tallerclo Memorial Bowl-A-Thon in May and the 12th annual Dobson Golf Open in July.

Last year, there were 30 such benefits for Rainbow Connection that raleed some $200,000. At the same time, Jones was able to grant 100 wishes, the most ever for the organization.

These writers seldom go unnoticed. They like to impress people and have a need to be seen and admired. Excessive pride, possibly covering inferior feelings is further suggested. One consideration that might render some of this a little less accurate is the possibility of a sight problem.

Festival showcases student talent

Artistic talent in the Plymouth-Canton community isn't limited to the 18-and-up crowd. Many students have artistic ability to spare.

The spotlight was on such youthful talent during the arts awards festival, sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council. The event, held the evening of Tuesday, May 12, in the Little Theatre of Plymouth Canton High School, featured performances by a number of local students.

"The festival is held to recognize and honor all the students who've won awards," said Beth Lurtz, PCAC chairwoman for grants and awards. This is the fifth year the springtime event has been held.

Winners of several arts council honors the Damaris Student Fine Arts Awards; Joanne Winkleman Hulce Founder's Scholarships, Margaret E. Wilson Scholarship for the morial Scholarships - were among those recognized.

Members of an honors chorus from the Plymouth-Canton middle schools performed. All five schools - Central, East, Lowell, Pioneer and West - were represented, and vocal directors from each school directed a number.

The program gives those choir students and their teachers an opportunity to expand their repertoire and perform music they wouldn't ordinarily at their individual schools, Lurtz said. "They get such a thrill out of it.

"It really is important. They don't have as many opportunities to perform in their fine arts categories as the high school students do:'

The evening featured performances by two student pianists, Tami Morse, winner of a $100 Jeanet M. Allison Memorial Scholarship, and Rachel Folland, winner of a $600 Joanne Winkleman Hulce Founder's Scholarship. Another planist, Danette Domagala, received a $400 JWH Founder's Scholarship.

"So many parents thanked us for doing this, because it is important for their children to be patted on the back," said Lurtz, a Plymouth Township resident. She's pleased to see so many Plymouth-Canton students involved in the arts.

The PCAC scholarships and programs are designed to encourage students to continue their fine arts studies, and that seems to be working.

Previous winners of the Damaris Awards were among this year's winners of major scholarships given to high school students, "which is really the whole point of that competition." The Damaris Awards honor middle school students in such areas as art, dance, vocal and instrumental music, creative writing and photograph

Racism: an affront that exposes U.S. to spiritual danger

This essay was submitted by the .... As we have already said, beyond Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the mechanisms of education lies Canton Township.

Racism is the most challenging dispensing curricula and, even more issue confronting our country. A nation whose ancestry includes every people on earth, whose motto is "E Pluribus Unum," whose ideals of freedom under law have inspired millions throughout the world, cannot continue to harbor prejudice against any racial or ethnic group without betraying itself. Racism is an affront to human dignity, a cause of hatred and division, a disease that devastates society.

Notwithstanding the efforts already expended for its elimination. racism continues to work its evil upon this nation. Progress toward tolerance, mutual respect and unity has been vainfully slow and marked with repeated setbacks.

The recent resurgence of divisive racial attitudes, the increased number of racial incidents, and the deepening despair of minorities and the poor make the need for solutions ever more pressing and urgent. To ignore the problem is to expose the country to physical, moral and spiritual danger.

Having gone through the stages of infancy and turbulent adolescence. humanity is now approaching maturity, a stage that will witness "the reconstruction and demilitarization of the whole civilized world - a world organically unified in all the. essential aspects of its life."

Promise of unity

In no other country is the promise of organic unity more immediately demonstrable than in the United States because this country is a microcosm of the diverse populations of the earth. Yet this promise remains largely unrealized even here because of the endemic racism that, like a cancer, is corroding the vitals of the nation.

The application of the spiritual the essential prerequisite of a proper attitude on the part of those important, on the part of society as a whole. On this basis, education is not only the shortest route out of poverty, it is the shortest route out of prejudice as well.

A national program of education, emphasizing the values of tolerance, brotherhood, appreciation for cultures other than one's own, and respect for differences would be a most important step toward the elimination of racism and, as a consequence, the bolstering of the economy.

The persistent neglect by the governing bodies and the masses of the American people of the ravages of racism jeopardizes both the internal. order and the national security of the country.

Promoting peace

That the virulence of the race issue in the United States, attracts the attention of the entire world should spur this country to an unprecedented effort to eliminate every vestige of prejudice and discrimination from her midst. Our example could not fail to have a profound influence on world society, nor could it fail to assist the establishment of universal peace.

The victims of a protracted and entrenched racial discrimination seek relief in the notion that black Americans, white Americans, American Indians, Hispanic Americaus, Asian Americans are so disfinctly different from one another that all of them must stake out their own cultural and social territories and stay within them.

Would this be sensible? Would it not be a retreat from the reality of our common humanity? Would it not be a formula for the total breakdown of civilization? Those who raise the call for separation preach a grim doctrine indeed. If the nation is seriously to submit to such a view, where exactly will either the black or the white Americans divide their cultural heritage, one from the other? Both groups must understand that no real change will come about without close association, fellowship and friendship among diverse people. Diversity of color, nationality and culture enhances the human experience and should never be made a barrier to harmonious relationships, to friendship, or to marriage. This appeal is addressed primarily to the individual because the transformation of a whole nation ultimately depends on the initiative and change of character of the individuals who compose it.

Whale of a tale: These students are among those who appeared in the children's choir production at Our Lady of Good Counsel

Children tackle 'Whale of a Tale'

BY JULIE BROWN STAFF WRITER

As communities go, Plymouth is rather landlocked. Even so, a nautical theme seemed appropriate during the children's choir concert at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church.

presented the story of "Oh, Jonah! A Whale of a Tale" the evening of Thursday, May 14, at the church. The youngsters rehearsed for about Nearly 100 student musicins two months, and it was smooth sailing at showtime.

"I'm thrilled," said Sue Lind. juist, children's choir director. 'The kids always come through. You can see these kids had a great time doing this. They enjoyed it as much as I did."

Soloists, bell choirs, a liturgical drama team and others participated. Through song and story, the students, who range in age from 8 to. 12 or thereabouts, told the biblical tale of Jonah and the whale.

Costumes and props added to the ... effectiveness. A large whale, created by Marilyn and Joe Kokoszka and Ray Nowicki, was used. Students wore specially screenprinted Tthe "City of Sin" number, all France.

celebrating his silver jubilee, 25th year in the priesthood. Wysocki thanked the youngsters for their efforts and then put on a captain's hat during the concert, drawing a round of applause from parish members and guests.

'I tell you, I searched high and low for that captain's hat," Lindquist said. She's originally from Alpens, Mich., where there are many marinas, but didn't have aneasy time finding such a hat close to landlocked Plymouth.

Younger musicians aren't the only talented performers at Our Lady of Good Counsel. Adult Parish Choir members will perform 7:30 p.m. Thursday, June 11, at the church, 1160 Penniman, Plymouth The "bon yoyage" concert will take place just before they leave for a shirts for the occasion, and during tour of Germany, Austria and principle of the oneness of humanity to the life of the nation would necessitate and make possible vast changes in the economic status of the non-white segments of the population. Although poverty afflicts members of all races, its victims tend to be largely people of color.

"We have 100 people going," said

Prejudice and discrimination have created a disparity in standards of living, providing some with excessive economic advantage while denying others the bare necessities for leading healthy and dignified lives.

Poor housing, deficient diets, inadequate health care, insufficient education are consequences of poverty that afflict African Americans, American Indians and Hispanic Americans more than they afflict the rest of the population. The cost to society at large is heavy.

Evidence of the negative effect of racial and ethnic conflict on the economy has prompted a number of businesses and corporations to institute educational programs that teach conflict resolution and are designed to eliminate racial and ethnic tensions from the workplace.

These are important steps and should be encouraged. If, however, they are intended primarily to save the economy, no enduring solution will be found to the disastrous consequences of racism. For it cannot suffice to offer academic education and jobs to people while at the same time shutting them out because of racial prejudice from normal social intercourse based on brotherly love. and mutual respect. . .

Onchess the key

The fundamental solution - the one that will reduce violence, regenerate and focus the intellectual and moral energy of minorities, and make them partners in the construction of a progressive society ---rests ultimately on the common recognition of the oneness of humankind.

So essential is the principle of the oneness of humanity to the efficacy of educational programs that it cannot be overemphasized. Without its broad influence, such programs will not contribute significantly to the development of society. The very fact that misinesses are theniselves implementing "educational programs is indicative of the glating deficiency of the entire educational system.

Items for the religion calendar should be submitted no later than noon Friday the week prior to publication.

areas of wilderness. Actually mink are found throughout Michigan in both upper and lower peninsulas.

If we started to

In fact, I had the opportunity to see one at Heritage Park in Farmington Hills recently. Though typically a nocturnal animal, this individual was active in mid-afternoon on a bright sunny day. It was looping along the bank of a branch of the Rouge River that runs through the park.

Wetland areas are favored habitats of the mink. Since wetlands are difficult to traverse, not many people are in the proper place to see a mink, especially if they are active at night. In wetlands, whether it is a lakeshore, river, swamp or marsh, mink are able to find adequate food and shelter.

Root tangles along river banks provide good shelter for temporary dens or dens for raising young. Mink may settle in an area for a couple days and then leave to search of food. A menu for a mink includes many choices. They will catch mice, moles, rabbit, squirrel, frogs, crayfish, coot, bird eggs, snakes, fish and an occasional insect. Muskrats are one of its most favored foods.

Mink are members of the weasel family and are long and narrow like the typical weasel one thinks of. But they are larger than the shorttailed, long-tailed and least weasel. They do not change to white in winter as do the three species just mentioned. Their size does allow them to prey on animals as large as adult muskrats. Muskrat cannot escape into the water to avoid the pursuit of a mink, because the semi-webbed feet of mink allow it to swim proficiently. Mink often capture fish under water by swimming after them.

A mink's rich brown color may vary to black and to one of 12 other color variations recognized. The brown of a typical wild animal provides a sharp contrast to the white under the chin that is characteristic. of mink. Fortunately I did not experience its musky order, which according to some, puts a skunk's ordor to shame. It is fortunate that there are some seldom seen animals still around where habitats are adequate for their survival.

Greenmead — ideal place for art festival

olk art to fine art and lots of creative wares in between.

That's what will await visitors to the 16th annual Livonia Fine Arts and Crafts Festival Saturday-Sunday, Juno 13-14, at Greenmead Historical Village, Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Admission and shuttle service are free.

The Livonia Arts Commission sponsors the outdoor extravaganza, one of the largest such shows in Michigan.

"It's a way to heighten awareness of fine arts and crafts in our community," says commissioner Andrea Taylor, festival chairwoman.

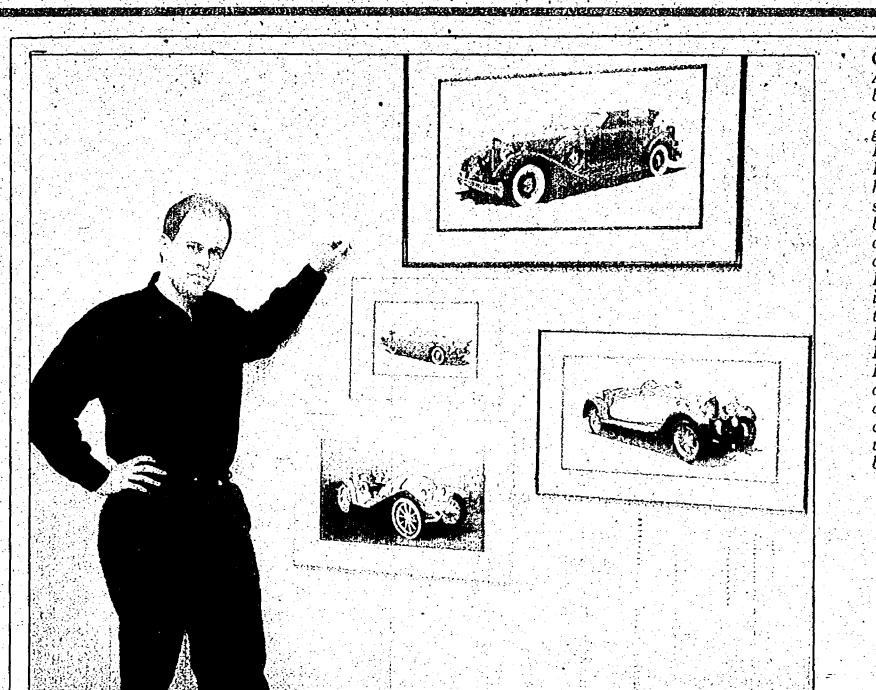

More than 200 exhibitors from 10 states will showcase their creations. Juried categories include glass, photography, textiles, pottery and ceramics, fine art, metal, wood, jewelry, and country, floral and folk. First-place winners in each category will receive $300.

"We had 400 people who wanted to exhibit," Taylor said. "The arts commission put together a committee that did the jurying. Because of the interest, we really had to be selective."

Upwards of 30 crafters will demonstrate their skills. Roving entertainment and hourly drawings also are planned.

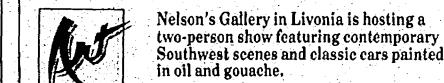

Six local cultural groups — Livonia Historical Commission, Friends of Greenmead, Theatre Guild of Livonia/Redford, Livonia Symphony Society. Livonia Historical Society and Very Special Arts will run concession stands as fund-raisers.

'The symphony is part of the cultural fabric of Livonia and taking part in the show is one way we can be involved with other cultural groups while giving people an opportunity to learn who we are," says Ken Kelsey, Livonia Symphony Society president.

Beautiful backdrop

Taylor calls Greenmead's picturesque grounds, at Newburgh and Eight Mile, "absolutely the best place" to have the festival.'

Besides, she added, the festival offers a chance "tosee what's being done to restore examples of Livonia history."

Greenmead's centerpiece is the Simmons/Hill House Museum, the 1841 farmhouse of Greenmead founder Joshua Simmons. The Greek Revival-style house is a national historic site. Gardens adorn the museum grounds.

The 23-building historical village includes several other structures from the 1840s and 1850s as well as a re-creation of the Newburgh Road/Ann Arbor Trail intersection, circa 1910-25.

The setting is a key reason wildlife artist Theresa Politowicz is returning as an exhibitor for the sixth straight year.

"The gardens are in spring bloom and they're very pretty," she said. "It's not only a nice place to exhibit but also observe the flowers and scenery."

The show, she said, has grown not only in size but also quality. "The work is very diverse - from hand. made quilts to fine art paintings to wood carvings to pottery. There's a well-rounded group of artists and artisans."

Honored artwork

A Northville resident and Michigan Artists Guild member. Politowicz enjoys painting songbirds, raccoons, rabbits, fawhs and wildflowers in watercolor and gouache. The Livonia Arts Commission has purchased three of her pieces for display in city build-

Many of her pieces boast an iridescent powder that adds sparkle. "When light hits in the right direction, it gives off a little shimmer," she said.

At Greenmead, the former automotive designer will show 15 original paintings, 12 limited edition prints and a line of notecards. Prices will range from $30 for an unframed print to $5,000 for a framed original.

The Franklin Mint has commissioned Politowicz to produce six songhird paintings for a series of limited-edition plates.

A professional artist for 10 years, Politowicz has had a lifelong romance with the world of paints and brushes:

"I was the kid in grade school, and all my life afterward, who won all the little art contests. I've always painted and been intrigued by nature and wildlife. I've been kind of amazed by its magic: for example, how flowers come out of the snow in spring."

The decision to paint professionally provided a way to stay home with her children.

"But that snowballed," she said. "I found myself taking a walk in the woods and doing research for my artwork."

Art is something she not only loves, but also 'something I can make a living at. Not too many people can do that. I consider myself very blessed."

Dynamic oil and gouache paintings by artists Diane Mitchell of Canton and Roger Hardnock of Westland flow with youthful energy.

Their 35 piece show, focusing on southwestern themes and classic automobiles, continues through May 30 at Nelson's Gallery, 16376 Middlebelt, Livonia. "This is the first time Nel-

斜 CALLING ALL ARTIST8

The Art Store is looking for potters, jewelry makere, painters and print makers to exhibit work in its Canton Township gallery.

Owner Gerry Macek's new art business concept, to provide a full range of supplies and services aimed at artists, is finally coming to fruition. Art and drafting supplies, classes and framing services have been available since February.

Cooperative galleries offer an alternative to costly original art. Co-ops reduce the cost of buying original artwork by taking smaller commissions from an artist's sales.

A reduction in percentages charged the artist allows galleries like D & M Art Studios and Gallery in Plymouth and The Art Gallery in Garden City to offer original art at reduced cost to the consumer when compared to galleries for profit.

"Our prices are lower than for profit galleries because the gallery doesn't take huge commissions. You can buy work starting at $45 for a framed original artwork up to $350 for a sofa-size painting," said Sharon Dillenbeck, D & M owner.

· D & M and The Art Gallery take a 20-percent commission opposed to the 40.60 percent taken by galleries for profit.

As part of the co-op agreement, artists must work one day a month in the gallery. They also pay a $10 hanging fee per month at D & M and a $5 fee at The Art Oallery.

The only money we take goes back into paying for "the studio-rent, utilities and supplies," Dillenbeck said.

Overhead is costly for D & M because it offers art classes for adults and children, including airbrushing, cartooning, drawing, design, and painting with all materlals inclusive.

See CO.OP, 4D

Art Beat

Macek has announced he will hold a grand opening in June.

"It's quite progressive," he said. "We're offering artists the opportunity to take their work from concept to wall by providing supplies, instruction and framing."

Artists interested in showing their work in the new art gallery can call Macek at 981-8600 or drop by The Art Store at 42727 Ford Road, Canton.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday and Friday, 1-8 p.m. Tuesday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday-Thursday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

We do not know at first exactly what is wrong with Maggie or what has happened to her to make her such a deeply troubled child, although we do know that there has: recently been some kind of "incident" at the school she attends.

Little by little, we learn more about this happening as we journey back through the days leading up to it and Stowe finally reveals the incident itself.

But even as it is revealed, we see that it is only a result of Maggie's nightmarish existence and not at all its cause. What is bothering Maggie, what has caused her personality to disintegrate, goes much deeperand much farther back in time.

At the center of the fast-paced Stowa's cast, at times remindful drama is Maggie Pittsfield, a highly of characters out of a John Irving intelligent, adolescent girl who is novel, include Maggie's father, Robert ("Sweet is My Middle Name") Pittsfield, an affluent candy-maker who likes, behind closed doors, to branded as "crazy" by her. own play with toy soldiers; her brother; Donald, who's convinced the Russians have infiltrated Canada and are sending thought-waves across the Lake; her younger_sister, Ruthie, a tiny taxidermist, who stuffs birds for a hobby and sometimes acts like a chicken herself; and her mother, a former singer, who sacrificed her career for Maggie's embittered grandmother.

The only problem with Stowe's peripheral characters is that they don't stay around long enough. Perhaps she will write more some day of the Southern-born Mrs. Moore, "the whitest woman on earth," who "stayed in her house all day being pale and fragile;" the mysterious Clara, whose "big green eyes . . . were always darting around in their sockets, like hummingbirds;" or Mrs. Prittle, the neighborhood. snoop, who spends most of her days on the beach, looking like "a leather" vulture."

"Portraits (by Dillenbeck) are a major source of income for the studio," Dillenbeck said. "Two new commissions a month pay for the overhead."

Dillenbeck believes an additional plus for buyers dealing with a cooperative is direct access to artists represented in the gallery.

"You're dealing with artists when you buy. You're not working with sales people," she said.

D & M specializes in watercolor, oil, acrylic and gouache paintings, colored pencil and graphite drawings by Michigan artists.

What we have is a real down-home local flavor and we do have a big variety of art," Dillenbeck said: If you're looking for larger savings still, Dillenbeck offers this advice: Learn to frame if yourself. Glass and framing on a piece can add $60-200 to the cost.

D & M and The Art Gallery offer unframed art at reduced prices.

Instead of buying sofa-size pieces, buy smaller work one or two pieces at a time and arrange them in group. ings.

"We're known as an affordable gallery. Still, people seem generally surprised when they see the quality and price," said Norma McQueen, director of The Art. Gallery in Sheridan Square.

"We offer a viable alternative to people. They can purchase a framed piece of paper, not even acid free paper, that will fade, yellow or discolor over time, or for just a few dollars more, they can purchase an original piece of art with a better quality frame."

The Art Gallery specializes in oil, acrylic, watercolor, pastel, charcoal, pen and ink, colored pencil, prints, sculpture and poltery. Prices range from $20 to $350.

While McQueen admits'sales have been slow the, last few months, that has not stopped her from enlarging the gallery space.

"We're planning to have featured artists and will start displaying wearable art. We're also thinking about adding jewelry," McQueen said.

Both galleries offer a variety of styles, including realism, abstract, pointillism and impressionism. Subject matter includes florals, landscapes, still lifes and portraits as well as untraditional themes like saving the environment and wildlife.

One final warning from Dillenbeck when considering the purchase of an original artwork: Avoid "starying artist's" sales.

"This is production art, not original artwork. These are not one-of-a-kind paintings by individual artists," Dillenbeck said.

The Art Gallery in Garden City and D & M Art Studio and Gallery in Plymouth carry only original artworks by Michigan artists. They are open to any Michigan artist.

"Michigan artists need the support," McQueen

Affordable art: The Art Gallery in Garden City handles traditional artwork in a variety of media priced from $20 to $350.

Work by artists focusing on different themes in pointillism, "Warriors," a pastel portrait of a in a range of styles and palettes provide variety and broaden the gallery's offerings.

We have more to offer. People who like cars, people who enjoy southwestern themes or possibly are decorating in Southwest, it might open new doors for everybody," Hardy said:

Mitchell works mainly in oil-on-canvas with few exceptions. Her contemporary landscapes and Native American figures deal with traditional subject matter in a palette not characteristic of southwest art.

"Her color intrigues me, the brightness. With the blues, reds, purples, golds and even the browns, the colors are a little bit different, not typical Southwest," Hardy said.

Mitchell uses abstract shapes in flat planes of . color to compose sensual forms. Many of the paintings offer brilliance of color to contrast the calmness and serenity of the figures.

Inspiration, she said, comes from Diego Rivera and Vincent Van Gogh.

"I do a lot of sketching. The toughest part is coming up with the composition," Mitchell said. Although Mitchell is pursuing a bachelor of fine arts degree at Wayne State University, past studies include a barrage of painting courses at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit.

In contrast to the vibrant 4-by-4-foot oil paintings, a Southwestern relief uses a variety of materials and techniques.

brave on brown paper with white highlights, and a pair of golden yellow adobes surrounded by green cactuses set against a solid blue sky in "Santa Ana" and "Tranquility,"

"I wanted to get my Work out to the public so people can see it," Mitchell said. "I'm anxious to see people's opinions."

Mitchell's artwork ranges in price from $40 to $560.

"They're definitely getting a lot for their money," Hardy said. "We're trying to keep a positive attitude in pricing for the consumer. It's our way of trying to help.

Classic cars shimmer

said.

As different as day and night, Hardnock's gouache paintings of classic automobiles strike the viewer with their highly detailed beauty. Portrayed on illustration board, Porsches, Packards, Thunderbirds and Bentleys come alive under his brush.

"His detailing is incredible. I'm not a car fanatic, but I can appreciate the time and work that goes into these to get the shiny effect and the reflections in the paint and chrome," Hardy said.

Hardnock begins by making pencil sketches from photographs taken at classic car shows. "I lay it out as much as I can, get down as much

"It's the Observer & Eccentric's great new Personal Directory that helps you find the special person your'e looking for-a partner for sports, a friend to travel with, or someone who enjoys the same things that you do. And they've made it really easy to place your message and. get your replies. It's all done electronically with voice mail so you never get a call at home. Another great thing is that the first five lines of ad are free and you only pay $1.49 a minute to listen to your responses. Check it out in today's paper!"

Realtors renew lobbying efforts to spur house sales

BY GERALD FRAWLEY STAFF WRITER

House sales are up, slightly, and Realtors will admit they are encouraged - but.

House sales are not up but not as much as many had expected or hoped and earlier momentum to spur house sales has waned in light. of modest sale increases.

"I don't think we're out the recession," Ruth Clevers, president of Michigan Metro MLS, the states largest multiple listing service, but 'I've seen things move a lot fast-

Reports from various groups that track housing sales support Clevers.

House sales are generally one of the first leading economic indicators to trumpet the end of a recession, but preliminary quarterly reports from such groups as the Mortgage Bankers Association and the National Association of Home Builders show that while housing sales are up, they are not up as many as hoped.

In fact, seasonally adjusted houssaid. "It (the market) is moving, ing sales show a decline, according to these groups.

Clevers recently returned from a other representatives from the real estate industry urged congress to get on the stick and pass meaningful legislation to help get the economy rolling again. . . . . .

Clevers said initiatives spurring house sales is more than Realtor self-interest. "It (the housing market) is absolutely essential to a strong economy."

Existing house sales spur new house sales and capital goods purchases; new house sales spur jobs and increased taxes.

Clevers said she and other Realtors are concerned that the momen-trip to Washington where she and tum that existed earlier in the year lost - due in some part to the modest gains in house sales,

For example, Realtors were greatly encouraged by a proposal made last January to grant a $5,000 tax credit to first-time buyers. That, along with other proposals made by President George Bush to push an economic recovery, were rejected by Congress.

Now with a modest gain in housing sales, the Realtors are concerned any new efforts will be rejected as well. The National Association of Realtors is pushing to revive these and tion to lighten the tax load on real to encourage house sales has been other proposals through a nationwide lobbying effort, Clevers said. heard,"

> Realtors throughout the countryare being directed to contact therelocal representatives and senators* to pass such measures. "They do need our votes and we're a pretty strong group,"

Measures include:

• granting a $5,000 tax credit to first time buyers; • easing restrictions on passive losses tax legisla-

estate professionals: • lowering restrictions and increasing loan levels "Maybe with so many seat coming on Federal Housing Administration: available, our message will be loans; 4 reducing the capital gains tax so that homeowners, upon selling their houses, will pay less in taxes on the appreciation.

Other areas Realtors are pressing in include mandatory disclosure to property buyer of the existence of lead based paint, but not mandatory testing, giving more local control over federal flood insurance restrictions, and fewer restrictions on such government sponsored enterprises as Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

Banning ball playing may be justified Ability to buy housing decreases as prices rise

ball season upon us. our board is on my son's case about playing baseball in front of our condominium unit, which is a common element. It has prohibited the playing of baseball in any form, including playing catch with a softball. Can it get away with that?

With the baselight of recent changes to the Fair Housing Act. To the extent that the policy undertaken by the association is directed to preclude people. from having children live at the condominium and that can be established, that would be illegal. But associations have a right to promulgate reasonable rules to protect the interests of the members of the association, and if the physical aspects of your condominium preclude baseball playing and even playing catch, the board may well be justified in making that determi-

That is a difficult question in nation. The issue often comes up in trespass and advise him that unless pool rules for children, and it is something about which you should consult your attorney.

> We live in a rural area and have a neighbor whose horse often gets loose and crosses our condominium common elements. We have called animal control on several occasions, but they are not terribly responsive. What can be done about this problem?

The administration of the condominium association should notify the owner of the horse of this

I would also contact the animal control center of the county in which you live by letter and formally advise it of the problem as well as the city or township involved as there are, no doubt, ordinances against this type of situation. You may wish to contact the city or township attorney to get some action. With a combination of these remedies, you should bring the horse problem under control.

American family to buy an existing home slipped in March for the second straight month as prices continued to rise.

The National Association of Realtors said its housing affordability index fell to 120.8 in March from 122.0 in February and 124,6 in January, when the index had been at its highest in 171/2 years. Despite the March decline, the

Credit them with design

Ford & Earl Associates of Troy has completed interior renovation and redesign of Ford Motor Credit world headquarters in Dearborn, a $50 million project. Smith, Hinchman and Grylls was the project architect

Ford & Earl has also established an affiliation with the Task Group, an ergonomics consulting firm. Ergonomics is the practice of evaluating and developing work environments that are physically and emotionally healthy.

On deck: Detroit

The nation's first Homearama of showcase houses to take place in a major urban area will be presented June 4-21 in Detroit's Victoria Park, two block south of Jefferson on Dickerson in the Jefferson-Chalmers area and east of the Chrysler Jefferson North Assembly Plant.

Local builders participating include: B.B.C.

Headquarters 'reflects firm's image, mission

First you listen to a company define its identity and goals.

Then you design a building to give life to that iden. tity and to facilitate success in the workplace.

That's how Ford & Earl Associates of Troy, a commercial interior design firm, approached a job for Vorelco, the real estate arm of Volkswagen of America, in a building owned by Etkin Equities of Southfield,

The last of some 850 employees moved into the 380,000-square-foot headquarters building in Auburn Hills about six months ago. Work from five different operations were consolidated under one roof.

"Our intent was to build a building guality-wise that's commensurate with our image but not grandiose," said William H. Devine. Vorelco general manager. "It was meant to be efficient and give you a comfortable feeling. The final result was what I had hoped for."

Joel S. Mettler, senior associate for Ford & Earl, orchestrated the interior design project at Volkswagen.

"The architect typically designs the core and shell," he said. Everything inside, that was our responsibility - ceiling and lighting, floor coverings, wall coverings, paint.

"We determined where partitions should be, relationships between different departments, where work stations should be," Mettler said.

A year and a half of meetings involving Volkswagen, Etkin, Ford & Earl and the architect, Hobbs + Black of Ann Arbor, preceded construction. The principals agreed on a high-tech, European interior look that uses blacks and grays on the walls and floors, red and black lines in the carpeting and light oak furnishings.

Special features include Zolatone wall treatment and deep cell parabolic lighting.

"Zolatone is a way of spraying walls with patch paint that gives you a spackled look," said Kelly Vettraino, a Ford & Earl design specialist who worked with Mettler on the Volkswagen project. "It's not as expensive as wall covering and it's easier to repair."

"It was decided early on to use a deep cell parabolstandard lighting fixture to reduce glare," Mettler

Group, Farmington Hills; Beneicke & Krue, Bloomfield Hills; Biltmore Properties Corp., Troy; James D. Compo Inc., Farmington Hills; Crosswinds Communities, West Bloomfield; and Singh & Shapiro, Southfield.

Built in cooperation with Standard Federal Bank, the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, the city of Detroit and the Jefferson-Chalmers Non-Profit Housing Corporation, Victoria Park is the first new subdivision of single-family houses built in Detroit in more than 30 years.

A 157-lot subdivision being developed in two phases, it features lots of 70 to 149 feet in width to enable attached garages. Previously existing streets have been replaced by wider streets with sloping curbs and cul-de-sacs. The land surrounding the subdivison has been reshaped to accommodate underground utilities.

Standard Federal provided construction and mortgage financing and has received two Affordable Housign Program grants from the Federal Home Loan Bank to help mortgage applicants with low to moderate incomes. The bank is also providing support to community leaders seeking to obtain a Department of Housing and Urban Development to purchase and rehabilitate 50 vacant homes on three streets immediately cast of the new subdivision.

said. Other touches include small colorful plexiglass cut-outs glued to walls at elevator lobbies to provide inexpensive, eye-catching art; charcoal metallic blinders at all windows; black door knobs and black trim around most doors; and corridor lighting sconces shaped in a V.

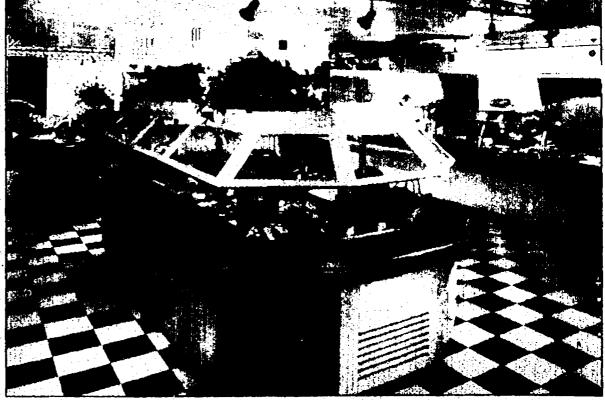

Karastan/Bigelow carpeting in shades of gray with a more resistant loop pile can be found throughout the building.

Devine described the interior circulation plan as "modified open." Top managers have enclosed offices with glass from ceiling to floor. Other employees have cubicles that can be expanded or contracted as needed. Plenty of exterior windows provide outside views for everyone.

Ninety percent of the furnishings and virtually all of the interior work station modules were moved from other Volkswagen facilities. New purchases generally were limited to public areas like the lobby and cafeteria.

Even the technical areas of the building where mechanics work on diagnostic tasks look more like offices than traditional service stations, noted Annette Eagle-Dul, senior construction engineer for Vorelco.

"I think the interior design reflects our corporate products," she said. "It involved a lot of discussion and a lot of consensus. That's how Volkswagen operates.'

Sporty cafeteria: The position of the salad bar, colorful floor tiles and track lighting bring elements of a racetrack into the cafeteria.

That compares to a 39-percent increase nationally and an average of 54 percent for 10 metro areas surveyed in the Midwest.

The figures were provided by U.S. Housing Markets, a Livonia-based research publication of Lomas Mortgage USA; a national servicer of residential mortgages.

The numbers, which appear striking, were, artificially boosted by a lousy first quarter in 1991. Housing Markets reported.

But nationally, single-family volume stands up reasonably well to figures reported throughout the part of the Midwest rankings. late 1980s, the report continued.

"This year's first-quarter one-fam(ily) action was just 8 percent less than that of 1986, which was unmistakably a boom year for housing," said Michael E. Patrick, president of Lomas Mortgage.

Environmental landscape management saves energy

(AP) - Proper placement of shade trees around your home can reduce air-conditioning costs by tenance and increase your home's value. more than 30 percent, a University of Florida urban horticulturist says.

Depending on temperature variations, almost as much as a half of a state's residential energy use goes toward cooling the home during the long, hot. Food and Agricultural Sciences.

In addition, escalating utility rates makes the concept known as Environmental Landscape Management sensible for everybody, he said.

The program encourages homeowners to select trees and planting sites that conserve energy by using appropriate landscape design practices. Matching the correct type of tree to the proper location to achieve the desired effect is one goal ofthe program.

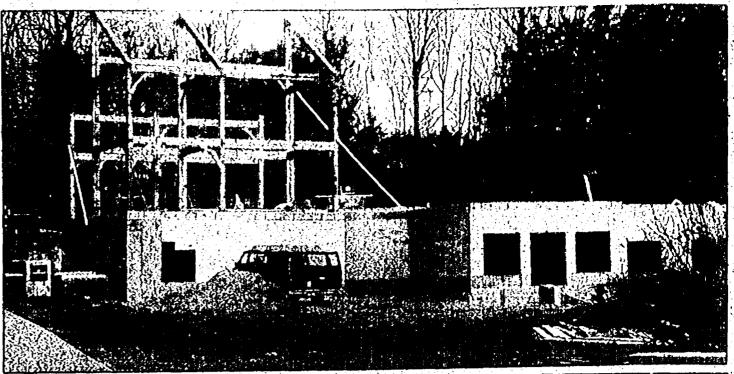

Trees modify local climate extremes by providleaves, Black said.

And once established, trees require little main-

"Before central heating and air conditioning; homes were designed and built to take advantage of environmental features," Black said. "Today passive methods of climate control are once again of interest, and new information has substantially summer, said Robert J. Black of UF's Institute of improved many energy-saving concepts from the past."

> The correct placement of trees chosen for shade involves considering the mature height of the tree, the angle of the sun's rays and the height of the structure to be shaded, he said.

> Realistically, sidewalls' are the most practical structures of the house to shade, because it takes many years for newly planted trees to shade the roof.

Building rapport key to selling

BY GERALD FRAWLEY STAFF WRITER

The psychology of the house sale.

Some people are born salesmen, some have to work at it. But whether it comes naturally the trick is establishing rapport with the buyer and communicating on his or her level. Lewis Smith of Lewis Smith Ph.D. P.C. in Birmingham, a licensed psychologist, speaker and business consultant who, regularly gives seminars to builders and marketing people, said because building or buying a home is such an emotionally charged issue, salespeople have to communicate at a deeperlevel. The best do it unconsciously.

"Most salesmen are natural chameleons — they don't know why they are successful," he said. What they're doing is establishing a rapport with the customer.

No matter what the product, sales requires the seller and the buyer to establish a link. Nowhere is this more important than in a significant purchase like a house.

Establish a comfort zone

The key to establishing rapport is to create an environment that is comfortable, "It's not just a question of knowing what to do, but it's putting (the customer) in a comfortable state so the (salesperson) can do his job," he said.

"If the customer isn't comfortable, the olds are they aren't going to buy a home no matter how well it's built," he said.

"It's the obligation, the responsibility of the salesman or marketing person to communicate with the client at his level," he said.

That means adopting the mannerisms and language of the buyer, he explained.

"You must physiologically mirror the person, he said."People tend to like people who are like themselves and dislike people unlike themselves. "Thirty percent of it is tonation and 70 percent is words,

"Thirty percent of it is tonation and 70 percent is words, language, how language is used, body language."

Smith suggested even going as far as the salesman timing his breathing to that of the customer.

Smith added he doesn't mean to imply that mirroring the customer is all a salesperson needs to make a sale. All it is, he said, is a starting point, a foot in the door.

Once the person begins to feel comfortable with a salesperson, that's when true rapport can develop, he said. All of the skills that salespeople develop — the ability to listen, the ability to discern what a person wants and the ability to get along with people — are just as critical to establishing a good sales relationship, he said.

LIVONIA GRAND OPENING

YOU COULD CALL IT LIVONIA'S BEST BUY

BUT WOULDN'T YOU RATHER CALL IT HOME?

Abalancing act

Builder Mark Schmier who sells homes in Pine Cove Estates in Livonia, said establishing rapport is essential to sell a home, but it's not always as easy.

"It's a tough call for me (especially)," he said. "I'm not only the seller, but the builder as well," he said. "I have to distance myself because it is a business.

"For half of the people I'm selling to it's their first house and you're selling them a piece of the American dream.

"If if's too friendly of a relationship, and not a business, and there's some sort of a problem, it's like a friend stabbed them in the back," he said.

Schmier said he wasn't so sure that trying to mirror a person's mannerisms and speech is always a good idea.

"I sell to them the way I would want to be sold," he said. "I present the facts and make myself available to the customer. Half of being a good salesperson is knowing when to back off." Schmier said his experience indicates that people appreciate a simple, straightforward approach.

He would be concerned that customers would think he was phony if he tried any other way, he said. Rapport, he said, is basically trust, and trust is doing what you say you're going to do."-

"I don't think you want to be a poser," he said.

An emotional process

Marilyn Grendich, sales manager at the Fox Pointe in Plymouth Township, said a salesperson who cannot establish rapport with his or her clients is not going to be successful:

"You have got to be able to communicate your ideas," she said. "Selling houses is very emotional process to begin with — without communication — it just won't work."

When a person comes into look at a model, Grendich said she usually starts a general conversation and not necessarily about buying a home. After all, buying a home is the reason the person came in to begin with.

"Before you know it, the conversation continues and you get around to talking about why they came in."

Grendich also made the distinction between when a "person" comes in and when a "customer" comes in. "You have to treat everyone the same."

People who come into models are not always buying, she said. "Sometimes they are just looking for ideas, but they may know someone who is buying."

The point is that nouncing on a person as they walk in the door is going to intimidate him. Grendich agreed that all the techniques in the world aren't going to help a salesperson who the customer doesn't trust.

"If you're natural, you're going to make it; if you're phony, you won't,"she said.

Premium on room

Families with a hankering for wide open spaces can relax in the Bristol. This contemporary house includes 3,600 square feet of living space with an additional 800 in the three-car garage and shop combination.

Rectangular rooms are clearly in the minority. Only the two bedrooms have four right-angled corners. The vaulted, sky-lit dining room is octagonal. The parlor and kitchen are modified octagons, and the rest of the rooms are irregular shapes.

All of the rooms are of good size, including the children's bedrooms, which are about the same size as the parlor. The vaulted family room is the largest. It has a fireplace, entertainment center and sliding glass doors that open onto a formal deck. Kitchen features include a work island with cooktop and grill, an eating bar with an extra sink, builtin ovens, microwave and dishwasher, and a step in pantry. The eating nook has a high ceiling and is brightened by sliding glass doors that open onto a landscaped dining patio. The adjacent utility room includes a sewing area, pull-down ironing board, and a space for a freezer. It can also be enetered from the garage.

The master suite includes an exercise area, controls for a security system, raised spa tub, oversized shower, twin basins, and a walkthrough closet. French doors separate the vaulted sleeping/sitting area from the bathroom and another set opens on the private deck.

For a study plan of the Bristol (332.030), send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307. Eugene, Ore. 97402, including the plan name and number.
