Triangle project detailed

Irvine city officials and executives of the Irvine Co. have agreed on a proposal for construction of the "Golden Triangle" business and shopping center, to be one of the largest development complexes in the state.

The City Council and various city agencies must approve the development proposal before actual construction can proceed.

The Irvine Center, to be located between the Santa Ana, San Diego and Laguna Freeways, will be a 480-acre complex featuring a shopping center, office buildings and hotels. The price tag on the development will exceed $1 billion, officials said.

The agreement, announced yesterday, guarantees the city will be paid as much as $1 million a year by the Irvine Co. if sales taxes from the new center do not meet that figure.

The project is expected to unfold over a 25-year period, during which the Irvine Co. will guarantee $22 million in revenue to the city, said Paul Brady, Irvine's assistant city manager.

The Irvine Center project has been in the active planning stage for 26 months, Brady said, during which time a 14-member committee made up of city and Irvine Co. officials negotiated the details of the proposal.

The center will consist of 1.7 million square feet of commercial development, 4 million square feet of office space, 1 million square feet of hotel space and 240,000 square feet of general commercial space, Brady said.

The Irvine Co. will fund $80 million worth of improvements needed to operate the center.

The company will pay for $10 million in improvements to transportation in the area.

A $6 million interchange to be constructed between the Santa Ana Freeway and Alton Parkway will be the first step in the Irvine Center's development.

Holdups work of same bandit?

Police say the same man appears to have robbed a Costa Mesa bank and a Huntington Beach savings and loan yesterday afternoon.

An FBI spokesman said the same robber also may have been responsible for a third holdup yesterday in Los Angeles.

Officers in Costa Mesa and Huntington Beach said descriptions of the robber and his method of operation were identical. The man fled with about $1,800 from the two local holdups, police said.

In the first incident, the man approached a teller at the Crocker National Bank, 2300 Harbor Blvd., Costa Mesa, at 12:41 p.m. He demanded that cash be placed into a bright orange knapsack. He fled with about $1,000, police said.

At 2:14 p.m., the same man approached a teller at American Savings and Loan, 7830 Edinger Ave., Huntington Beach, told her he had a concealed gun, and demanded cash. He fled with about $800.

No weapon was seen in either holdup.

The robber was described as a black man in his mid-20s, about 5 feet-9, with a short Afro haircut, wearing white jogging shorts, a blue shirt and a baseball cap. He carried the orange knapsack in both incidents, police said.

Poor weather can lead to depression

By LORENZO BENET
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Do gray skies make you feel blue?

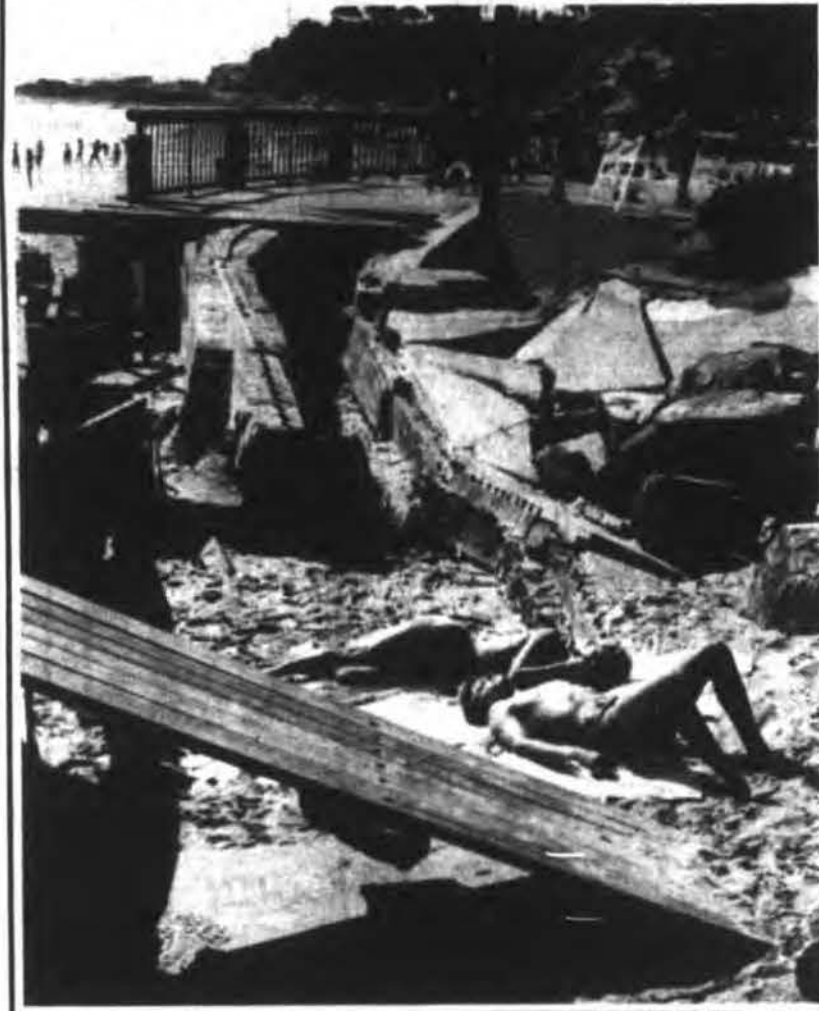

If so, you're not alone. Local physicians and counselors agree that bad weather — the type the Orange Coast has experienced recently — tends to amplify personal problems.

"Anytime the weather is different than we think it ought to be, we get upset because there is nothing we can do about it," said Dr. Donald Schafer, a clinical professor in the psychiatry department at UC Irvine. "People then turn their anger inward and feel depressed and blue. They may take it out on someone close to them."

Private plane noise rules taking wing

By JEFF ADLER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County supervisors are casting a wary eye — and a sensitive ear — at private aircraft takeoffs at John Wayne Airport.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday directed the county counsel and airport manager to develop an ordinance aimed at limiting the permissible takeoff noise levels of private aircraft beginning in 1984.

In proposing the ordinance, Supervisor Thomas Riley, whose district includes the airport and surrounding area, suggested that it be modeled after the regulations which now govern maximum noise levels for commercial carriers taking off from the airport.

"Once a maximum level of noise has been established, a noise penalty program of some type, possibly a fee, would be structured to place an incentive on the aircraft owners and operators to fly as quietly as possible," Riley said.

He added that the ordinance also would serve as an inducement to private aircraft owners to convert their equipment to newer technology craft, which can fly more quietly than their predecessors.

The supervisors also said such an action would be another indication of the board's commitment to reduce the noise levels around the airport, about which nearby residents often complain.

While commercial aircraft now are required to meet noise guidelines around-the-clock, private aircraft are required to meet a noise ceiling only during evening and early morning curfew hours.

Retrial starts in HB child molesting case

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The retrial of a Huntington Beach man — a former Long Beach police officer — accused of child molestation began in Orange County Superior Court yesterday with testimony from three young girls who claim their neighbor repeatedly fondled them.

Michael McDonald, 42, is charged with multiple counts of child molestation stemming from alleged acts with six girls who visited his Cape Cottage Lane home over an 18-month period beginning in 1981.

The case is being retried because an earlier jury considering the charges deadlocked last September and was unable to deliver a verdict.

Three of the girls now aged 9 to 11, testified they frequently visited McDonald's home to play pinball. It was during these visits that McDonald, whom they called "Uncle Mike," fondled them, the three testified.

One of the girls told jurors she finally decided to tell her mother about the alleged acts because "we were getting tired of him doing what he wasn't supposed to do."

McDonald also is alleged to have shown some of the girls pornographic slides on a nickelodeon located in the home's gameroom, a converted garage.

During the first trial, the former motorcycle officer took the stand in his own defense and denied molesting any of the girls.

His attorney, Gary Pohlsen, then argued his client was a victim of a conspiracy concocted by several of the girls because they were angry with him, perhaps because he curtailed their pinball privileges. Pohlsen is again defending McDonald in the second trial.

The jury at the first trial deadlocked when it could not reach a unanimous verdict on the charges, as required in criminal cases.

HB man sees 'explosive' mishap

Huntington Beach skier Bruce Holmblad was sitting in a chair lift above Squaw Valley yesterday when a portion of the ice rink used for the 1960 Olympics ice rink collapsed.

"I heard one of the loudest explosions of my life," the 23-year-old beach resident said in a telephone interview from the popular ski resort.

Blythe Arena, the ice rink that showcased the 1960 Olympics, lost a football-field size section of rooftop shortly after noon, the result of tons of heavy, wet snow on its metal surface.

No one was inside the arena when the roof collapsed, echoing on nearby ski slopes "like a big sonic boom."

"The explosion sounded like 500 sticks of dynamite," Holmblad said.

From his aerial vantage point — 400 to 500 yards away — Holmblad said he could see debris bouncing off the floor of the ice rink which had been closed about an hour before.

"The explosion sent a chill through my body," he said.

An inspection of the rink four hours before the collapse prompted Squaw Valley officials to close the huge arena because the roof's steel support cables were visibly sagging.

The cave-in occurred an hour before the rink would normally have been open to the public, said Jim Mott, assistant general manager for the ski resort.

He said up to 300 skaters would have been on the ice during the busy Easter Week holiday.

Cops ask clues in find of body

By STEVE MARBLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Newport Beach police are asking for help in unraveling the final days of a 34-year-old Hungarian immigrant who was found in Newport Harbor last week shot to death.

Steven Balogh, a short, stocky man who lived alone in a Tustin apartment, was shot once in the stomach and reportedly bled to death.

Evidence shows the man was shot and perhaps beaten before being dumped in the bay, investigators said. Police said Balogh's last days alive are cloaked in mystery.

Friends of the man who came to the United States in 1979, reportedly told officers they last saw Balogh alive on March 14 at a small informal gathering.

Balogh's car, a beat up yellow 1972 Toyota, was found last Saturday parked in front of Spire's Restaurant at the Larwin Square shopping center in Tustin. Police said there is no clue how long the car had been there.

Police said Balogh, who spoke with a thick Hungarian accent, enjoyed going to area nightclubs that featured live music and dancing. His favorite place was the Airporter Inn in Irvine which he visited weekly, police said.

A freelance auto body repairman who worked at several places regularly, Balogh apparently had no family living in the United States.

Anyone with information on Balogh's whereabouts after March 14 are asked to contact police at 644-3786.

Canyon filming footage big job

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Laguna Beach photographers Jerry Burchfield and Mark Chamberlain are embarking on yet another massive film project with Laguna Canyon again serving as the subject of their cameras.

It's called the Laguna Canyon Project, and since 1980, the pair have filmed every square inch of the canyon road. Both sides. In daylight and at night.

The result has been a series of continuous photographic strips, each stretching some 267 feet long, documenting the winding, seven-mile canyon from the roadway.

Now they're preparing for "Phase V" of the project — the most ambitious yet. They're going to film the west side of the undeveloped canyon on May 24 from Sand Canyon Road to the Pacific Ocean.

Only this time around, the end result will be a truly spectacular light show.

A crew of 25 photographers and assistants will be required, along with seven vehicles for the 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. photo session, Burchfield said.

"We're going to illuminate the canyon at night with the primary red, green and blue colors so they overlap," he said. The resulting 1,170 sequential exposures will then be printed on one continuous strip measuring about 3 1/2 inches by 500 feet.

In order to complete the project before daylight, the trucks containing the cameras and lights must move down the canyon 35 feet every 45 seconds with one exposure made at each brief stop.

So why would two professional photographers have such an obsession with capturing the canyon on film?

They say development in Laguna Canyon is inevitable, and they want film — lots of film — to document how it looked before the sprawl.

This time around they'd like some help.

color spectacular, the two men plan to "pre-sell" sections of the print. Advance sponsors may purchase a six-frame, 3 1/2 by 30 inch section of any part of the canyon they wish for $50.

But you'll have to hurry, Burchfield says. Only one of the continuous prints from Phase V will be cut up into sections.

To select one of the 202 sections, a map of the canyon is posted at BC Photography at 235 Forest Ave. Selections are on a first-come basis.

Lawyers oppose 'timing' judges

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Members of the state Bar of California aren't seeing eye-to-eye with an Orange County GOP legislator who wants the state's judges to punch a time clock, in a manner of speaking.

Huntington Beach's Nolan Frizzelle has introduced legislation calling for the creation of a Commission on Judicial Efficiency to study judges' output and consider ways to increase their productivity.

He also wants to adopt minimum working hours and a procedure in which each judge would report work hours to superiors on a monthly basis.

Frizzelle has said he believes a mounting court backlog is attributable to judges not doing their share of the work.

But the governing Board of the state bar, meeting in Los Angeles last weekend, opposed the legislative proposals.

Attorney Richard A. Derevan of Newport Beach headed a study of the legislation by the state bar's Committee on Appellate Courts.

He said Frizzelle's proposal would raise a potential question on the separation of powers because the new Commission would be comprised of a number of political appointees by the governor.

"There's a potential for political abuse," he said.

Derevan also said the committee of attorneys believed that keeping of time sheets would be demeaning to judges.

He said that Frizzelle isn't taking into account that some cases are more complete than others and require much more of a judge's time.

Derevan acknowledged that some judges don't work as hard as others. He said those cases can be taken to the existing Judicial Council of California, which has power to survey the work of the judges, he said.

The state's chief justice has the authority to equalize the workload among the judges, he said.

Dr. Mason Fries, a psychologist at the Assessment Treatment Service Center in Santa Ana, says that poor weather can add to problems stemming from work or a bad marriage. "It's another little stress," he said.

However, a survey of Orange County hotline services revealed that depression-related calls do not increase when the weather turns sour.

"It might make you feel blue, but it's not enough to put you in a state of panic," a counselor at New Hope counseling service in Garden Grove said.

Reagan offers to cut back missile deployment . . . 'If'

By The Associated Press
 WASHINGTON — President Reagan today offered to cut back on the planned deployment of new medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe if the Soviet Union agreed to reduce its arsenal of rockets targeted on NATO countries.

Even if the proposal is accepted, the United States would begin installing new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Europe late this year as scheduled, while the Soviet Union would be required to dismantle some of its medium-range weapons. The Kremlin's chief arms negotiator, asked about the offer, said, "I'm not optimistic."

"If the Soviets will not now agree to the total elimination of these weapons," Reagan said, "I hope they will at least join us in an interim agreement that would substantially reduce these forces to equal levels on both sides."

Corporate jet crash kills 2

NEWARK, N.J. — A corporate jet crashed after landing at Newark International Airport today and caught fire, killing two people and closing down the airport for about an hour, authorities said. The Lear-25 jet, bound from Chicago, had just touched down at 5:14 a.m. for what appeared to be a normal landing when it veered to the right, flipped over in a ditch and burst into flames, said control tower supervisor Jim Johnston. The identities of the dead were not immediately available.

County revising food stamp system

Mail service to be abandoned in favor of distribution by private company

Qualified Orange County families who now receive food stamps by mail will have to pick them up at one of three county locations beginning as early as next July.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday agreed to open contract negotiations for a private, county-wide food-stamp distribution system with National Development Corp. of Los Angeles.

Terms of the contract would require the company to open distribution centers in Santa

Ana, the Anaheim-Fullerton area and the Huntington Beach-Garden Grove area.

The company, one of three that submitted bids for the distribution franchise, probably will offer check-cashing services and issue money orders as well at its county outlets, according to Steve Lewis, of the county Auditor-Controller's Office.

Lewis said it will cost the county about $166,500 to pay for the private distribution system, about 75 cents per transaction.

But switching to a private,

over-the-counter distribution system could save the county as much as $300,000 a year in stamps that now are lost in the mail.

Beginning in 1983, the federal government curtailed payments to counties for reimbursement of the cost of stamps lost in the mail. Supervisors voted last December to shift the distribution system from the U.S. mail to a private, over-the-counter system.

About $1.8 million worth of the stamps are mailed each month to some 20,000 qualified families around the county. The stamps — as good as cash — allow needy families to purchase groceries at reduced prices.

For the last several years, the county has lost about 2 percent of the food stamps mailed each month, Lewis said. The over-the-counter system is expected to minimize these losses.

However, stamps still will be sent by certified mail to handicapped persons, those who live more than 20 miles from a distribution center or in emergencies.

Northern California drenched
Hill slipping in Malibu; Orange Coast sun to stay awhile

By The Associated Press

A storm that pounded the North Coast with as much as 4.2 inches of rain in 24 hours drifted slowly south today and was expected to bring a strong chance of rain as far south as Monterey by tonight and tomorrow, capping a record-wet March.

The National Weather Service reported that 4.2 inches of rain had fallen at Honeydew in Humboldt County in the 24-hour period ended at 3 a.m. today, and 2.5 inches fell at Eureka.

Far smaller amounts of rain — less than 0.1 inch — were recorded in Marin and Lake counties.

Snow was forecast above the 6,000 foot level in the northern mountains and the northern Sierra, with a snow level above 8,000 feet Thursday in the southern Sierra.

Winds of 20 to 25 mph were expected to whistle in from the Pacific tonight over San Francisco and Monterey.

The March rainfall in San Francisco, where the weather service keeps data back to 1861, already has surpassed the previous record of 8.75 inches set in 1879.

Meanwhile, in Southern California, high atmospheric pressure probably will keep the area sunny and warm for the next several days, the National Weather Service said.

"The reason for the good weather is a high pressure system, and it should be with us for at least the next five days," said a weather service spokesman who declined to give his name.

Despite the warm weather, with highs in the upper 70s, smog levels should be relatively low and air quality good in all areas of the greater Los Angeles region except the San Gabriel and Pomona valleys, said the South Coast Air Quality Management District.

Lately, much of her time has been devoted to working as a high school student teacher, instructing in biology.

"I've always wanted to teach students so they might get a little

Since the avalanche, "I try as hard as I can to do everything as well as I can. I tell my students, 'Don't give up on things easily!'"

Two avalanches roared down the slopes of the Alpine Meadows ski resort in the Sierra Nevada a year ago tomorrow, covering a ski patrol building, damaging the main lodge and burying resort employees and visitors.

Conrad, a ski lift operator who was cross-country skiing that day because the lifts were closed, was inside the three-story ski patrol building and got trapped in an air pocket formed by debris.

She was found five days later, her feet badly frostbitten. She later lost her right leg below the knee and part of her left foot.

She said her skiing has steadily improved and she can now race down advanced slopes.

 is a precious hue

The beautiful red ruby is the most prestigious of all colored gemstones. It is a product of the steamy jungles of the Far East, although a few specimens are found in other areas of the world. The source of the most beautiful (and thus most valuable) rubies has always been Burma. The Burmese ruby has the special, rich, dark red hue that is produced nowhere else in the world. Rubies of a paler tint come from Sri Lanka and Thailand. These are normally referred to as "pink rubies," or as "pink sapphires." Nature produces the ruby when the mineral corundum (which is an aluminum oxide) gets contaminated by traces of chromium. If some titanium is also present, it produces a fine "heating" effect in the stone, and the ruby becomes a "star ruby." There have been many attempts over the years to produce synthetic rubies. The Frenchman Verneuil invented a synthetic ruby that was used in jeweled Swiss watches and in other industrial applications. In recent years, there have been some more realistic synthetic rubies produced. Their value, of course, is far below that of the real thing. A reputable jeweler can easily point out the differences between the synthetic and the real ruby.

The Easter Bunny arrived early in Costa Mesa to pay a visit to children at Fairview State Hospital school. Actually, the bunny, assisted here by a security officer at the hospital, is Patricia June Rossitto, vice principal for the school. She got a ride to the grounds last Friday in the Costa Mesa police helicopter.

Zephyr to make comeback

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Zephyr is making a comeback on the scenic Colorado route.

Amtrak says that on April 24, the San Francisco Zephyr will be renamed the California Zephyr, and switch at Salt Lake City from the original Overland Route through Ogden and Cheyenne, to the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad route through Denver.

The original California Zephyr made its last run from Chicago 13 years ago.

The new service will also replace the Rio Grande Zephyr, which Amtrak spokesman Art Lloyd said the D&RGW has been clamoring to get rid of.

It will be the first time since transcontinental service started in 1869 that the Overland Route hasn't been used.

Lloyd said the scenic route should net $2.7 million for the federally subsidized system, based on figures showing that 68,000 people a year get on and off the Rio Grande Zephyr between Denver and Salt Lake City, compared to only 52,000 on Amtrak's present route.

BULLETIN BOARD

Valley charity 'laugh off' set

The seventh annual fund-raising Laugh Off sponsored by the Orange County Family Counseling Center (formerly Teen Help) will be held Friday at the Guy Fawkes Restaurant, 17171 Brookhurst St., Fountain Valley.

Comedy entertainers will include Candy Carr, Moving Violation, Robin Roberts and Scott Shaw.

Doors open at 6:30 p.m. The show takes place from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. An auction is scheduled from 9:30 to 10:30 p.m. Tickets for the benefit program are $10 each and can be obtained by contacting the Orange County Family Counseling Center, 10200 Slater Ave., Fountain Valley; telephone 557-1000.

John P. Myers will replace George Bloch as principal at Ocean View High School in Huntington Beach effective July 1. Bloch, who has been at Ocean View since July of 1981, will move to the district Education Center as director of certified (teaching) personnel.

Myers joined the district in 1967 as a teacher at Marina High School. He also was a teacher and a dean of students at Edison High School and was an assistant principal at Marina High School.

He is enrolled in the doctoral program at USC. He and his wife and five children live in Fountain Valley.

OPINION

Fifth-graders are first-rate citizens

Another popular myth bit the dust this week. We adults often delude ourselves into believing that children really don't understand what's going on around them. That's why they need sensible, mature, firm-handed, clear-thinking adults to help them make those crucial decisions in life.

Fifth graders at Andersen School in Newport Beach have apparently learned their lessons very well.

Teachers Don Kimble and Ceil Sharman recently conducted classes on newspapers. One assignment asked students to write letters to the editor on any topic they chose. The results, a sampling of which appeared on this page Sunday, were among the most concise, salient and sincere we've read in many years.

The civic minded 10-year-olds expressed concern about the irresponsibility of fellow citizens filing bankruptcy at the expense of others, the under-funding of public schools and the moral and social dilemma of gun control.

One budding feminist addressed the issue of women in the job market (she wants to be an astronaut). Another young woman's concerns were for the visual pollution and health hazards caused by littering, while a third classmate took on the issue of pollution of our lakes and oceans.

Quality of life and quality of education were prevalent themes for the fifth graders. But not all the letters were critical of the adult world.

Several of the children took time to thank individuals or institutions for their good work.

Such exchange of information and ideas in a free press is one of the cornerstones of our political system. We applaud teachers like Mr. Kimble and Ms. Sharman for taking the time to show children where to gather the information they need to make enlightened decisions about their world, and how to participate in the public debate on issues that will affect their lives.

And to the students at Andersen School we say, keep those cards and letters coming. Your sincere, well-thought out and effectively written comments stimulate all of us to think more seriously about our responsibilities as citizens.

Charity begins at home

To the Editor:
Hooray, there is good news today! I'm glad to see at last we taxpayers here in Laguna are going to get a break at parking. I have given up trying to shop in Laguna. Except for banking and the Safeway it is utterly hopeless to get a parking place. I as well as my family go around and around and finally give up and head for Newport or Leisure World (when the Canyon is not flooded!).

It's wonderful to see all those spaces, and no time limit, and only 20 to 30 minutes away!
The tourists use the beach (leave a mess) buy ice cream cones and take all our parking downtown, which doesn't help our merchants pay their high rent.
Thanks to Mayor Fitzpatrick for thinking of our own for a change.

Campaign fund idea

To the Editor:
The Pilot featured a front page article concerning a fund-raising dinner for a local politician. Apparently, the affair raised over $175,000. This should go a long way toward helping "retire" an $88,000 debt.
Inside the paper, on the same day, was an editorial describing the plight of a day care center for retarded children. Seems the center needs about $40,000 to continue operating.
While pondering these two articles a thought occurred to me — a way to keep the day care center open, perhaps forever. The solution is so simple, so obvious, that I'm surprised no one has thought of it before. Simply take two or three of the retarded kids and let them run for public office. Then they too could hold fund-raising dinners and accumulate more money than they'll ever use.

And if any of the kids actually got elected, well, they'd be set for life. Why, speaking engagements alone could net them enough to hire private nurses for the total population of the day care center.
There is another solution to the center's problems, but it's so bizarre that I hesitate to even bring it up. This plan would involve politicians contributing leftover campaign funds to any of hundreds of worthy and charitable causes. Such an idea is of course totally absurd, completely unworkable, and probably even illegal.

Art can be baffling

To the Editor:
Has time passed me by? I attended a showing at Newport Harbor Museum. The place was crowded, so crowded that we went into the first rooms which were displaying etchings.
Most were in black and white and framed. The items were in straight lines and rectangles, nothing to catch the eye, so we hurried on for there were approximately 150 on display. But as I went on they became more obtuse, but discovered placards to the right of each one telling me what it was. In most cases I would not have known what it was without the info cards. One was a displayed knife and fork on a dirty table cloth, sure enough, the card said "Knife and Fork." It was true, I found I could believe the typist. It was surely a knife and fork, slightly distorted but never the less what it purported to be.
NAME WITHHELD

Further on I got into nudes, then it became more interesting. One I loved, was the back side of a nude reclining on a cot. Sure enough the card read, "Back side of nude on cot." She obviously had all the accoutrements of a woman and I could not mistake the back side of a very overweight nude.
As I progressed, the squares and cubes were there again, so we wended towards the Muench exhibit. A pretty blonde asked, "Do you have tickets?" My quick answer was, "Why, I am a member?" "You will still need a $3 ticket." Still confused with what I had seen, decided to see if there were any hors d'oeuvres. There I found lots of dirty dishes and nothing else on the serving tables. Woe was me, as I left two more buses pulled up with passengers. It left me wondering if they could interpret those etchings better than me?

Getting a free ride

WASHINGTON — While millions of Americans have been struggling to make ends meet, the privileged poobahs in the Pentagon have been flying high — literally — at the taxpayers' expense.

The Defense Department's generals, admirals and high-ranking civilians have a fleet of 9,000 aircraft available to chauffeur them around the country whenever they get the itch to travel.

According to an internal report prepared by the Pentagon's new Inspector General's office, these planes and helicopters have become an "on-demand airline service" for brass hats who are too lazy or too superior to take commercial flights to their destinations.

THIS ABUSE OF rank's privileges is expensive. It costs about $800 an hour for a flight in a T-39, the military version of an executive jet. For a C-140, the huge, gussied-up transport plane, the tab is $2,800 an hour.

Yet the Pentagon bigshots whistle up a T-39 or a C-140 as casually as if they were hailing a taxicab. The IG report has stimulated an inquiry by the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y. It cites numerous violations of the spirit, if not the letter, of the laws covering use of these special planes.

My associate Lucette Lagnado has obtained a copy of the IG report, which was intended for official eyes only. Here are some of the highlights:

— A T-39 was sent from Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, D.C., to fetch a high-ranking Pentagon civilian at a field near Detroit. The round-trip flight cost $1,578, compared to the commercial fare of $95, according to the report, from Detroit to Washington. The IG investigators noted that while the high muckamuck was waiting for his personal air-taxi service, three commercial airline flights left Detroit for Washington.

— Football games between service academies are a common excuse for using the special aircraft fleet. Officers and their families, cadets and even cheerleaders are given free rides to games in a C-141 Starlifter. The IG investigators learned, for example, that it cost $300,000 to transport cadets to just two service academy games in 1981. "The use of military airlift to transport academy cadets/midshipmen to sporting events as spectators is, in our opinion, a questionable practice that needs re-evaluation," the IG report states.

— Wives of four-star generals and certain other top brass can accompany their husbands free of charge if their presence is considered to be "in the national interest, essential to mission accomplishment and desirable for diplomatic or public relations reasons," according to a 1980 guideline issued by the Defense Department.

— THE IG FOUND that Air Force wives are actually encouraged to travel, which led the investigators to observe that while this "may be an accepted interpretation of the DOD guidance, we do not believe that it is within the spirit of what DOD intended." The report adds a practical warning that "with wives aboard, the appearance of an official trip, as viewed by the public and news media, may be tainted towards one of personal use."

— "Dead head legs," that is, empty flights on the way to a VIP pickup, cost "at least $28.2 million and (consume) 10.9 million gallons of aviation fuel per year," the IG estimates.

— Helicopters are routinely used by the brass where cars would do the job more cheaply. The Army, for example, uses choppers to transport bigshots between Fort Monmouth and Lakehurst, N.J. — 32 miles apart. A car would cost $14; the helicopter ride costs $380.

HERNANDEZ MEDDLING: John Hernandez, who got in hot water as acting head of the Environmental Protection Agency for having let Dow Chemical rewrite an EPA report, apparently feels turnout is fair play. In an internal memo, he asked an EPA official to rewrite a policy statement prepared by the American Society of Civil Engineers, a private organization. The statements that bothered Hernandez recommended that "use of radioactive materials be avoided" in construction materials, and that the government announce a "firm program" for development of nuclear waste burial sites.

PRIVATE ARMIES: An ominous arms buildup — other than the Kremlin's — is causing concern in Washington. Arsenal of deadly weapons are being acquired by private armies associated with the so-called "survivalist" movement. While individual survivalists simply want to bring their families through a disaster alive, the paramilitary groups are stockpiling machine guns, anti-tank cannons, rocket launchers and even anti-aircraft artillery. There are more than three dozen known paramilitary groups and an estimated 20,000 members.

WATCH ON WASTE: It looks as if the vice-presidential mansion on Embassy Row will get more than a housecleaning this spring. Vice President Bush has asked Congress for $39,000 to upgrade the kitchen. The third-floor bathroom has already been refurbished at a cost of $12,000, and the roof on the Victorian veranda has undergone a $37,000 repair job.

Empty head blues . . .

We'd all get more done if we could control the thoughts that enter our minds, but we can't. In the past 24 hours the following thoughts have come to my mind, unbidden:

— I'm not usually satisfied with the speeches people make when they win awards on television, but Ingrid Bergman's daughter, Pia Lindstrom was just right accepting an Emmy for her mother.

— Why are the Lebanese militiamen called "Christian Phalangists"? I wonder what the word for "Phalangist" is in Arabic. What is a phalange anyway?

— People aren't using erasers on pencils as much as they used to and it's probably a good thing. They never worked very satisfactorily.

— WHY DON'T all new cars come with an alarm system that would go off when someone tried to steal a car?

games at this time of year. When it's hot I take a thermos bottle filled with iced tea and when it's cold I fill the thermos with hot chicken broth. I never fill a thermos bottle without thinking of the joke:

First Person: A thermos bottle keeps hot things hot and cold things cold.

Second Person: How do it know?

— Of all the politicians who have left the political scene because of death or defeat in the past 10 years, I miss Hubert Humphrey the most. He just seemed like such a good guy.

— Why are we selling wheat to the Russians but denying them parts for their pipeline? I'm not complaining, I'm just wondering.

— Handwriting is so bad that not one in 10 people can write a two-page letter that you can read in less than five minutes, and even then there are words you never make out.

— Some people obviously enjoy the process of cutting or filing their fingernails. No wonder, it's so hard for television networks to come up with programs that amuse everyone.

— All times of the year are good — with the possible exceptions of late August and February.

— I've noticed that people who slit envelopes open at the end are better organized than people who slit them open along the top. I open mine at the top.

— The price of a good hotel room has gone up higher and faster than the price of anything else, and I can't figure out why.

— There ought to be one day a week when there's no television. I hate to miss anything good but there are nights I'd rather be doing something other than watching.

— WHENEVER I see someone eating a candy bar on the way home from work, just before dinner, they're usually thin. I can't figure this out.

— There ought to be a pill we could take to stop our hair from growing. I don't like mine too long because it makes me look old, but it looks terrible right after I've had a haircut. I wish there was a way of stopping it right where it is today.

— I'm often tired when I go home at night. I don't see how President Reagan does it. If I had to make two speeches, meet with three committees, nine important people and fly in a helicopter to appear at a rally for a Republican candidate, I'd fall asleep in the middle of something important.

— A hot shower certainly ranks with the airplane, television and the computer as one of the great inventions of the 20th century.

— I miss not having to wind my watch.

L. M. Boyd / Word of mouth myth

What most of us thought we knew about gypsies was wrong. Their first homeland was northern India, the Punjab. When they migrated into Europe, they were first labeled as displaced Egyptians, so were called gypsies, then identified as wandering Rumanians, because in their language, Romanes, they call themselves Romani. They were neither Egyptian nor Rumanian. The linkups to those countries are persistent word-of-mouth mistakes.

Q. You said President John Quincy Adams' son, George Washington Adams, killed himself. How and why?

A. How: He jumped overboard from a ship at sea. Why: That's uncertain, but he left a note bequeathing his worldly goods to a former girlfriend. Theorists blame unrequited love.

More people vacation in the Autumn than in the Spring. You've read that. Client asks the why of it. You'd think the typical citizen would get so sick of winter the vacation would be planned as early thereafter as possible. But money shortage oftentimes forces delays. By summer's end, the capitulation comes: Honey, if we don't go now, we won't go at all this year.

Q. Was there ever a faithful husband among the kings of France?

A. One, King Louis XVI, possibly. Not even in France was the fidelity of kings a capital offense. Nonetheless, he was beheaded on Jan. 21, 1792.

It was an ancient legal tradition that a widow had the right to remain for 40 days in the house of her deceased husband. What she was supposed to do thereafter is not in the record at hand. But 40 days was a standard waiting period. The word quarantine, for instance, originally meant nothing more than 40.

Am asked to name the most dangerous things in a typical household. In descending order: bicycles, stairs and doors. At least, these turn up most often in the accident reports.

If you're looking for an enduring hobby, consider the raising of orchids. Most orchid plants live longer than most people.

Nine heartbeats a minute, that's the typical pulse of a gray whale.

Am asked how tall does it have to grow before you can call it a tree. If it's a woody perennial plant with one main stem that normally grows at least 12 feet high, it's a tree. That's one generally accepted definition.

"Volume" comes from the Latin "to roll." Egyptians wrote on papyrus scrolls. That's why books are called volumes, still.

Someone said it doesn't cost much to run Coastline Community adult education but they are paying $35,000 a year for 150 locations and that adds up to a lot of money.

Dear Mr. Reagan,

I think you should lower the prices on candy. I collect rocks, glass animals and jelly belly's. Do you like jelly belly's? Well... we're sending some jelly belly's anyways. Our school name is Andersen Elementary School. My name is Cameron Spaulding. I'm eight years old and I am in third grade.

Love,

Cam Spaulding

March 24, 1983

Dear Mr. Reagan,

I am glad that I live in the United States because we are free. My mom and dad voted for you and I hope they vote for you again. If you are still running for president I will vote for you. I like Jelly Bellies too. What is your favorite kind of Jelly Belly? Mine is watermelon. Do you like your job? My brother told me that there is now a new color. It's called Nancy Reagan Red.

Your friend,
Chris Rutgers

Here are a few of the letters that will be moving across the president's desk in the near future if they haven't already. The third graders at Andersen know how to ask the right questions.

March 22, 1983

Dear President Reagan, I'm glad I live in the United States because we don't have any wars and we have freedom. Also you made nice schools and nice people. If I were president, I would make less sugar in candy. One of my laws would be not to wear hats in school, in church and in the doctor's office.

Love,

Jelly beans. . . Third graders mix candy and politics

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

President Reagan has won respect with third graders at Andersen School in Newport Beach because of jelly beans.

The young pupils, who wrote letters to the president as part of a class project, are all in favor of mixing candy and politics.

For example:

"Dear President Reagan, I think you are a good president because you like jelly beans, Tiffany."

Third grader Cam Spaulding told Reagan he should lower the price of candy and enclosed some jelly beans to sweeten the proposal.

Chris Rutgers wondered what the president's favorite flavor was and told him there's a new jelly bean making the rounds called "Nancy Reagan red."

Watermelon was Chris' favorite flavor.

But the youngsters didn't just stick to jelly beans — there were other things they wanted to tell the president.

Carlye Allen wanted the president to know that he watches "Lie Detector" on television and learned to his satisfaction that "you don't dye your hair."

Jay Kuri informed Reagan that "I like you better than George Washington, James Madison, Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe and Abe."

Michelle Brady had a whole lot on her mind.

"Dear Mr. President, I would like if you could try to keep inflation down because I would like to try and get some wood for a playhouse. I think you are one of the best president's in the world. Are you going to run for president again? Do you like to play sports? Do you like candy? Can you keep the war from coming? Can you answer all these questions?"

On top of all that, young Miss Brady asked the president to mail her a two dollar bill.

Most of the students agreed that Reagan has whipped inflation, cut taxes, balanced the budget and, in general, gets along with everyone.

Teacher Linda Thompson admits these high praises may come as welcome news in the White House. She said students completed a brief study of Reagan but formed their own opinions on whether the president was doing a good job.

Most of the students, for instance, cheered on the president's defense policy.

"Keep our defense budget high so we won't be attacked," wrote Barron Lane. Student Paul Brien simply observed, "You spend a lot of money on the military defense weapons."

Heather Sheridan had a unique idea.

"Dear Ronald, Did you know if I was president and a lot of people were poor I would give them 100 food stamps and help them get a job. I would tell whoever litters not to because if other people littered, you would want them to pick it up. Right?"

Richa, a third grader and a native of India, told the president she believes there should be a law preventing people from wearing hats in school, church and doctor's offices.

"Please send me a picture of your house," she added in closing.

And finally there was the letter from young Brad Schneider who praised the president and then wondered:

"Are you a Democrat or a Republican?"
Brad is waiting for an answer.

Beatlemania. . . A return to the '60s

By JIMMY JOHNSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

JFK was president . . . for a little while.

Then on a November morning a quick volley from a high-powered rifle introduced the world to Lee Harvey Oswald.

The '60s were not the best of years. Vietnam had left as big a scar on the nation as the Civil War, young men were running off to Canada to avoid fighting in that unpopular war and Dr. Timothy O'Leary, the high priest of pot and LSD, was inviting young folks to trip out to that psychedelic high.

The '60s gave us the flower children, the acid head and the uniformed pig.

The '60s also gave us four young guys from Liverpool, who wore long hair, and sang their own songs. For a while the Beatles made us forget what was going on in the street and in our minds. They sang songs like "I Want to Hold Your Hand," "It's Been a Hard Day's Night," "Penny Lane," "Hey Jude" and "Michelle." For a while we did forget, but now Beatlemania is reminding us again of what the 1960s stood for.

From the stage of the Good Time Theater at Knott's Berry Farm this very good carbon copy of the Beatles sings the music that was the rage in those turbulent days.

Beatlemania will continue at the Farm through the weekend with two shows daily during the week and three shows daily on the weekend.

Beatlemania is more than just four guys who look somewhat like the Beatles on stage doing Beatle songs and sounding an awful lot like the British quartet.

It's an experience in visual and sound effects. Sure, the music is great, but projected on a large screen behind the band in psychedelic color is the consciousness of the 1960s.

Again you see Martin Luther King leading his people to Selma in search of the "promised land." They didn't find it at Selma, instead they were met by "uniformed pigs" wielding night sticks and tossing tear gas.

Beatlemania is a two-act show revealing the different moods the Beatles went through before breaking up in the 1970s: There's the naive, conservatively dressed youngsters just starting out to the tune of "I Want to Hold Your Hand."

Times changed rapidly in the '60s and so did the Beatles. From early rock and roll to hard rock. From black and white vested suits to brightly colored uniforms. The Beatles followed, maybe even led, the many moods of the '60s.

While the Beatles told the world to "Let It Be," crowds of protesters created havoc at the Democratic Convention in Chicago. Mayor Daley called in the National Guard to "bust" some heads, while Hubert Humphrey was nominated to run for the presidency against Richard Nixon.

It might have been Bobby Kennedy, but an assassin's bullet took his life in Los Angeles on June 6, 1968 . . . Sirhan Sirhan becomes a national figure.

A lot of people died in the '60s. "Penny Lane" and "Hey Jude" were big sellers, because that was the mood the world was in. Martin Luther King continued to tell his people "I've been to the mountain!"

He never got to move that mountain. Instead a single burst from a killer's weapon ended his life on April 3, 1968 in Memphis, Tenn. Again the world was introduced to a relatively unknown . . . James Earl Ray.

The coming of the '70s brought a different philosophy. The war in Nam was winding down, integration was no longer distasteful in the South and the flower children had blossomed and taken their place in society.

We were tired of the fighting and the dying, still the 1970s brought a different kind of unrest . . . political distrust and Watergate.

The '70s also saw unrest among the Beatles and finally the big bust up.

The times had claimed still another victim. About the only statement Beatlemania makes is that the '60s were not the greatest, but the music was.

They ran in fear But things have quieted

By BOB DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. — Tens of thousands ran in fear from the March 28, 1979, nuclear accident at Three Mile Island. Four years later, people are paying $5 apiece to run between the plant's cooling towers and reactors in a 5-mile race called the TMI Reactor Run-By.

"What we're saying is the island isn't bad. You can run there. You can do all sorts of things there," said James Hoffman, president of the pro-nuclear Friends and Family of TMI, which is sponsoring the race.

The April 30 Run-By already has 150 entrants, and all runners will receive sports bags with a TMI emblem.

"It's quieted down. The interest in the accident is dying out," Hoffman added. "Maybe it's over. Finally. After four years."

But radiation in the crippled TMI 2 reactor is still at lethal levels, and there is a remote chance a nuclear reaction could occur if the core lost all of its protective boron.

General Public Utilities, the triumvirate of companies that owns the mangled plant on the Susquehanna River sandbar, estimates it will take five more years to remove the damaged fuel and decontaminate the basement of the containment building.

GPU also wants to restart TMI 1, the undamaged twin reactor that was shut down for refueling when the accident occurred. Some local residents hope to block such plans.

"It's like a tornado that hit and keeps circling the town. It ran us out of town once, and you're never sure if it's going to come back," said James Hurst, 37, a member of People Against Nuclear Energy and a lifelong resident of Middletown.

As of March 1, the nuclear-plant-as-tourist-attraction had lured 259,359 visitors. The Friends and Family of TMI responded by selling souvenirs such as coffee mugs shaped like the cooling towers and wooden key chains carved to resemble the containment building.

Such frivolity is a far cry from the 11 days of fear that caused an estimated 250,000 area residents to send their families away or flee themselves while technicians raced to bring the reactor under control.

Today, GPU has made a financial comeback, the $1 billion cleanup is one-third finished and, despite pending legal battles, most emotions have reached their own version of a cold shutdown. "Four years later, there has been a return to guarded normalcy," said Joseph Krasja, a commercial printer and father of three who lives a mile from the crippled plant. "Things have settled down. Hey, life goes on."

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In regard to "Ellen in Colorado," who kept getting used sexually by every guy she went with only to be dropped, I have a different kind of story.

I am 17 years old, a high school senior. I am not as handsome as your son-in-law, Ken Howard, but I'm no slouch. I'm good at sports, make A's and B's and have plenty of friends. The problem: I have never tried to hit on a girl because I don't feel I am ready for sex, but plenty of girls have tried to hit on me. When I tell them I am not interested, they drop me.

Why can't girls enjoy a "clothes-on" friendship, or at least wait until they are asked? — NO SAINT, JUST AVERAGE IN L.A.

DEAR L.A.: It is a privilege and a pleasure to print your letter. Thanks for letting us know you exist.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here is the other side of the story recently published in your column from "Weary Hairdresser, USA." Please do every customer a favor and print this letter. Thank you very much.

DEAR HAIRDRESSER: It is now 15 minutes past my scheduled appointment and I am sitting here in your shop waiting. You have just removed the curlers from the hair of the appointment before me, so I know it will be several more minutes before you get to me.

I realize your time is valuable, but so is mine. I had to leave work early to get here and will have to make up the time I miss. If I walk out now you will be angry and it may be two weeks before I can get another appointment. Had I known you were going to be so late, I could have worked longer or run some errands. But I will be polite and remain silent and you will probably expect a tip even though you were 30 minutes late.

Please give me a break. I like the way you do my hair, but it is very frustrating to have to wait when there is so much I could be doing. — YOUR WEARY CUSTOMER IN CHATTANOOGA

DEAR WEARY: At least 500 women have written with similar complaints. Here's a suggestion: Your hairdresser should have your phone number. When he is running late, he should let you know. This won't always work, but when it does it will help take the edge off the situation.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem occurred six months ago, but I couldn't bring myself to seek help until now. The wonderful girl I went with for three years died suddenly. We were engaged. The wedding date was set.

A few days after the funeral my sweetheart's mother came over and brought her daughter's engagement ring and several nice pieces of jewelry I had given her. I put the jewelry in a drawer under my shirts. I cannot bear to look at it. I could never give it to anyone else. I would feel uncomfortable selling it. Please tell me what to do. Whenever I take a shirt out of the drawer I sense my beloved's presence. Please help me, as you have helped so many others. — MIDWEST HEARTACHE

DEAR M.H.: Take the jewelry to a reputable jeweler. Sell it and donate the money to a charitable cause in the name of the girl you loved.

POT SHOTS

BY ASHLEIGH BRILLIANT

LIFE HAS DONE SOME STRANGE THINGS TO ME, BUT IS APPARENTLY SAVING THE VERY STRANGEST FOR LAST.

ERMA BOMBECK AT WIT'S END

The quality of my life has improved enormously since I've been shopping for clothes by mail.

It's hard to believe that just a little thing like eliminating fitting-room mirrors can make you a different person. You show me a woman who lies on a bathing suit wearing nylons up to her knees, and I'll show you a woman who will never be the same again.

I've never been good at imagining what a dress on the hanger will look like wrapped around my body. This way, all I have to do is to thumb through mountains of catalogues and live out my fantasies.

I can be the nymph on page 73 who is wearing a dress with a drop-waist of bold black polka dots with a 7-foot lemon yellow sash wound around her hips.

Or the dramatic little beauty on the cover with the pouty lips who has layered a blouse and sweater and can still get her arms through the jacket.

Or the sultry blonde wearing a satin "teddy" body suit that if I ever got into would have to be removed . . . surgically.

I buy anything this one catalogue model wears. The moment I looked at her, I realized how much alike we were. We have the same dramatic flair, the same adventurous style, the same good taste.

Oh, there are little differences. She is 6-2, has hair down to her waist that she draws back from her face into a bun, weighs 97 pounds, is black and was 6 months old the year I started on estrogen, but we can wear the same clothes.

Last month, she modeled a clinging silk dress of blues and greens that exposed her knee to the hip and a beach hat with a 3-foot brim. (My nearest beach is an hour and a half — by jet).

I had to return the outfit. The color was wrong for me.

The problem with public fitting rooms is that the tryonee has no control over them. At home, it's the best of all worlds. The mirror is attached to my bathroom door. There are 14 inches to stand between the mirror and the toilet bowl. I am farsighted, giving me blurred vision when I look into it. If for any reason the dress seems tight, I pull out my scale. By propping it up against the toilet bowl brush holder, it will register three pounds less. If I need more reassurance, I put it on the carpet in front of the lavatory which subtracts another five pounds.

If it still fits snug, I don't like the color. It's that simple.

Crown Roast of Pork
for gorgeous dining . . . D4

Easter menu stars lamb . . .

Countries celebrate Easter with varied customs — many with song, dance and the exchange of gifts. Americans add a touch of finery to their costumes by wearing something new, while children join in the classic Easter Egg Hunt and spend a happy hour searching for brilliantly-dyed eggs.

The Easter feast is a joyous and light-hearted one. Traditionally, great roasts of lamb and fowl, absent during Lent, were prepared for a meal as elaborate as means allowed.

Sometimes the feast began as soon as the church bell struck midnight on Holy Saturday, when parishioners brought food to the church to be blessed.

For this year's holiday meal, Leg of Lamb with Grapefruit Marinade makes a spectacular presentation.

This delectable lamb roast, zesty citrus mold, garden vegetable and refreshing pot of tea plus a terrific dessert add up to a dinner as festive as the holiday itself. And, it allows time for the chef to march in the Easter parade.

Grapefruit Marinade Lamb

- 1 frozen leg of lamb (about 5 pounds), thawed
- 3 cups grapefruit juice
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 2 teaspoons dried rosemary, crumbled
- 2 teaspoons dried leaf thyme, crumbled
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon flour
- Salt and pepper

With sharp knife, remove "fat" and fat from lamb. In medium bowl combine grapefruit juice, olive oil, rosemary, thyme and garlic; mix well. Place lamb in heavy plastic bag just large enough to hold lamb comfortably. Pour marinade over lamb. Press air out of bag. Seal bag. Turn bag to coat lamb with marinade. Refrigerate overnight.

To cook, place lamb, meaty-side-up on rack in roasting pan. Roast in a 325 degree F. oven, 1 hour 45 minutes or until meat thermometer registers 140 degree F. for rare, 160 degree F. for medium, 170 degree F. for well-done. Baste with marinade every 30 minutes during roasting.

Remove meat to serving platter. Allow to "rest" 10 minutes before serving. Add flour to roasting pan. Stir over medium heat one minute. Gradually mix in remaining 1 to 1 1/2 cups grapefruit marinade.

Cook until thickened. Gravy may be thinned if necessary with water or grapefruit juice. Season to taste. Yield: 5 to 6 servings.

Orange Sherbet Mold

- First gelatin layer
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1 1/4 cups orange juice, divided
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 oranges, peeled and sectioned

In medium saucepan sprinkle gelatin over 1/2 cup cold (See EASTER, Page C7)

...or follows tradition with flavorful ham

Since Easter is known as the "feast of feasts," it's fitting that the highlight of the day be a gala meal featuring a parade of fabulous foods.

For centuries, tradition has called for the holiday menu to center around an impressive, full-flavored ham. Just right for today's tempo is a boneless, fully-cooked ham that needs only to be heated through before serving. Because this modern ham comes in a wide range of sizes, you'll find one just right for your Easter table. To serve the ham with flavor accents as refreshing as the season, top with a cinnamon-spiced pear glaze that hints of mint.

In keeping with the festive spirit of the day, delight young and old alike with Pear Bunny Salads.

To cap the feast in spectacular style, bring on a festive "centerpiece" dessert: Chocolate Easter Egg Cake. It's extra luscious since it features a very rich, deep chocolate cake crowned with creamy chocolate frosting.

Mint Glazed Ham

- 7 to 10-pound boneless "fully-cooked" smoked ham
- 1/2 cup pear syrup*
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons each cornstarch, water and minced mint leaves

Place ham on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer in center of thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in oven until 1325 degrees F. until the meat thermometer registers 150 degrees F. to 160 degrees F. (1 1/2 to 2 hours) (5 to 10 minutes per pound).

Combine pear syrup with corn syrup and cinnamon. Cook slowly in 10 to 12 minutes. Dissolve cornstarch in water and stir into syrup. Bring to a boil and cook 2 to 3 minutes. Reduce heat and simmer, stirring 2 to 3 minutes. Add mint leaves. Stir 30 minutes.

*Pear syrup reserved from Pear Bunny Salads.

Pear Bunny Salads

- 1 can (29 ounces) Bartlett pear halves
- 1 package (3 ounces) lime-flavored gelatin
- 1 1/4 cups water
- 3 tablespoons white wine vinegar
- Dash salt
- 1/2 cup finely shredded cabbage
- 1/4 cup each shredded carrot and minced celery

Decorations: Raisins, 6 split whole blanched almonds, very thin carrot strips, 4 marshmallows, halved

Drain pears; reserve syrup. Set aside 6 pear halves; dice remaining. Dissolve gelatin in 1 cup boiling water. Add 1/2 cup syrup, remaining water, vinegar and salt. Chill until partially set. Stir in diced pears, cabbage, carrot and celery. Spoon about 1/2 cup mixture into each of 8 shallow 5-inch round bowls. Chill until set.

Top each with pear half, cored side down. Decorate pears with raisins for eyes, almonds for ears, carrot strips for whiskers and marshmallows for noses and tails. If desired, tint almond "ears" and marshmallow "noses" with red food coloring.

*Remaining pear syrup may be used for Mint Glazed Ham.

Chocolate Easter Egg Cake

- 1 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup cocoa
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup buttermilk or sour milk*

Anorexia nervosa: A life-threatening disease

By DOROTHY A. WENCK
Orange County Home Advisor
UCI Cooperative Extension

The premature death of the popular singer Karen Carpenter of complications resulting from anorexia nervosa has focused attention on the serious physiological effects of starvation diets.

Anorexia nervosa is a self-imposed state of starvation that is now believed to afflict some 1 percent (or 280,000) U.S. women 12 to 25 years of age.

The spread of anorexia has been rapid. While it formerly appeared primarily in females from middle and upper-class homes, lately it has been showing up in all economic classes and age groups.

In anorexia nervosa, psychological disturbances result in an abnormal desire to lose weight. Excessive concern about personal appearance may lead to pathological fear of overeating or becoming fat.

The result is a profound loss of weight — at least 25 percent of original body weight — and no known physical illness can account for the weight loss.

Denial of fatigue, overzealous exercising and hyperactive behavior may accompany many bizarre eating habits such as alternating starvation and uncontrollable urge to eat.

Enormous eating binges may be followed by self-induced vomiting and fasting. Enemas, laxatives and diuretics also may be used excessively.

Anorexia nervosa patients may gradually develop severe signs of protein-calorie malnutrition, multiple vitamin deficiencies, amenorrhoea (cessation of menstruation), dehydration, and disturbances of the balance of minerals such as sodium and potassium.

A low level of potassium is the most serious and can lead to cardio-vascular and kidney failure. The changes in body metabolism may be so serious that death may be the outcome.

An estimated 15 percent of patients with serious cases of anorexia nervosa die. Psychiatric as well as medical treatment and hospitalization generally are required, and results often are far from satisfactory. Thus, even with treatment many anorexics will have lifelong problems.

Overzealous pursuit of very low calorie diets has led to similar physiological problems and starvation-related deaths. In a number of cases, the deaths related to excess dieting did not take place until after the person went off the diet and was eating more normally again.

The cardiac effects of their sudden deaths — similar to that of Karen Carpenter — resembled those seen in cases of starvation (especially during the early refeeding phase) from protein-calorie malnutrition.

Thus, the long-term use of a very low (300-400) calorie diet — even one that is promoted to have vitamin and mineral supplements — is considered to be extremely hazardous.

QUESTIONS WE ARE ASKED:

Q. My 9-year-old daughter is very overweight but I have had no luck in trying to get her to eat less. I'm thinking of putting her on one of the low-calorie formula diet plans where she wouldn't have to count calories. Are there special products available for children?

A. No, and it would be especially hazardous for your daughter to go on a diet that was severely restricted in calories. Although the formula diets contain about 30 grams of protein per day, adequate energy intake is necessary for efficient utilization of dietary protein for growth and body maintenance.

Thus, the serious health risks in consuming a very low calorie diet are particularly dangerous for growing children, teen-agers and pregnant women.

It's also unlikely that you'll be able to "put your daughter on a diet." Dieting isn't likely to happen, for anyone, unless that person decides to change the way he or she eats.

You can help by buying, preparing and serving good tasting, high nutrient, lower calorie foods such as fruits and vegetables, nonfat milk, plain (not sugared) cereals, low-fat crackers and bread products, and main dishes that aren't loaded with fat.

Also, have this type of food around for snacks rather than high-sugar, high-fat snack foods.

You might also encourage your daughter to become physically active by participating in various types of sports, dancing, or other fun-type of group exercise program. Be careful not to nag her about her eating and her overweight as this could just make the problem worse.

Q. My teen-age son has a terrible case of acne. Is it true that taking large amounts of vitamin A helps to cure acne?

A. Large, or mega doses of vitamin A should not be self-prescribed for any condition, including acne, as they can cause serious health problems. Vitamin A is stored in body tissue and can build up to toxic levels. Some of the known consequences of overdosing with vitamin A are pseudo brain tumor, skeletal pain, skin problems, and liver damage.

Your son would be well advised to see a physician about his acne. New medications have been developed for acne treatment that are considerably more effective than those used in earlier years. One of them is an analog of vitamin A — that is, is similar to vitamin A but does not have the same toxic effect in the body. This may be the substance that you have heard about.

Q. I'm supposed to be on a low sodium diet and am wondering whether butter or margarine would be the best choice.

A. Both butter and margarine have quite a bit of salt added for flavor. Thus, neither is a good choice if your sodium restriction is severe. A better choice would be unsalted (often called sweet) butter or low-sodium margarine.

Unsalted butter has just 1 milligram sodium per tablespoon, compared to 125 milligrams in salted butter; unsalted margarine has 1 milligram sodium per tablespoon compared to 148 milligrams in regular margarine.

Main courses inspired by famous sandwiches

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Today's lean, low-calorie main courses take their inspiration from famous sandwiches.

For example, our Slim Gourmet Croque Monsieur Casserole combines the ingredients found in the famous French-toasted ham-and-cheese sandwich that's every Paris traveler's favorite fast food lunch.

CROQUE MONSIEUR CASSEROLE

8 slices low-calorie white bread (or French, or Italian bread)
8 thin slices low-calorie white cheese
8 thin slices lean cooked ("boiled") ham
4 eggs, lightly beaten
2 1/2 cups fresh nonfat milk
1 teaspoon prepared Dijon-style mustard
Pinch of ground nutmeg

Salt, pepper, to taste
Cut bread into cubes. Slice cheese and ham into julienne strips. Arrange half the bread cubes in a 9-inch non-stick pan. Add a layer of both the ham and cheese. Top with remaining bread cubes.

Beat together remaining ingredients in electric mixer bowl or blender. Pour over casserole.

Cover and refrigerate several hours. Uncover and bake in a preheated 325-degree oven 1 hour or more, until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Makes eight servings, 235 calories each.

The Reuben sandwich is a prize-winning combination of grilled cheese, corned beef and sauerkraut on rye bread.

REUBEN SALAD

3 cups shredded lettuce
2 cups shredded cabbage
1/4 cup thinly sliced dill pickle
Optional: 3 tablespoons minced onion
6 tablespoons low-calorie Russian (or Thousand Island) dressing
4 thin slices white "diet" cheese, in julienne strips
4 thin slices corned

SLIM GOURMET

beef round (lean only), diced
Optional: 1 teaspoon caraway seeds
Toasted rye bread croutons (from 1 slice bread)
Rinse lettuce and cabbage in cold running water; drain well. Add pickle slices and onion, if desired.

Toss with salad dressing. Arrange cheese strips and corned beef on top. Sprinkle with caraway seeds and croutons, if desired.
Makes two servings, 275 calories each; caraway seeds and croutons add 35 calories per serving.
Finally, who doesn't love Hero (or Submarine) sandwiches: spicy deli meat and salad on a sub-shaped Italian roll.

Our pasta version substitutes low-calorie ingredients and omits the roll. Then we toss it all together with hot drained pasta for a new main-course invention.

HERO SPAGHETTI
2 cups drained tender-cooked hot spaghetti (or linguini)
4 thin slices turkey

salami (or turkey pastrami, or lean cooked ham)
1/4 cup thinly sliced onion
1/2 cup shredded iceberg lettuce
1/4 cup diced red or green bell pepper
4 or 5 cherry tomatoes, halved
1 tablespoon sliced pitted olives
2 tablespoons liquid (from jar of olives)
4 tablespoons low-calorie Italian salad dressing

1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese
Return hot drained pasta to the pot it was cooked in. Add remaining ingredients, except Parmesan cheese.
Toss over very low heat until ingredients are heated through. Sprinkle with cheese. Makes two servings, 365 calories each with turkey salami or ham; 325 calories each with turkey pastrami.

Cooking with class

Fassero's International Cookware, 2919 E. Coast Highway, Corona del Mar, will present a contemporary French Cuisine class Tuesday, 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Jonathan Waxman from Michael's Restaurant will be instructor. Space is limited and reservations are necessary. Call 673-2343. Cost is $50.

A new cook book called "More Oven Lovin'" is available from the women of the First Presbyterian Church of Westminster. Priced at $5.75, the book is illustrated and may be ordered by calling Ivana Bollman, 847-6646.

Some of the recipes in the book date back to the earliest days of Westminster, while others among the 635 are as contemporary as microwave cookery.

Helpful hints, along with the history of the pioneers who developed the farming community of Westminster Township are combined in the collection.

Stir boiling water into cocoa; cool. In large mixing bowl, cream butter, shortening, and sugar until fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla, beating well. Combine flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt; add alternately with buttermilk and chocolate mixture, beginning and ending with dry ingredients.

Pour into well-greased and floured 9 x 6-inch egg-shaped pans (or 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan). Bake on lowest rack in 350 degrees F. oven 60 to 65 minutes for egg-shaped pans, 40 to 45 minutes for oblong pan, or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool.

Trim base so cake sits level; trim layers to fit together evenly. Frost; trim with pastel flowers and Easter decorations. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

*To sour milk: To 1 tablespoon vinegar, add milk to equal 1 cup.
CHOCOLATE FROSTING
*Combine 2 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar, 1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa, 6 tablespoons softened butter or margarine, 3 to 4 tablespoons milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Blend until spreading consistency.

Smothers Brothers serious about wine venture

By JERRY D. MEAD

MOM LIKES WINE BEST — Trying to conduct a straight interview with Dick and Tommy Smothers is something on the order of trying to make the world's greatest Champagne from Thompson Seedless, in other words, nigh on to impossible.

If you're wondering why a wine journalist would conduct an interview with these two noted entertainment personalities, then you haven't been keeping up with the world of wine in recent years.

Dick has been making wines under the Smothers label at his Vine Hill Vineyards and Winery since 1977, and Tom planted fairly extensive vineyard acreage in Sonoma County a year or so later.

So far, the brothers' enterprises have been separate entities, but that may change in the near future. Brother Dick assigned winemaker Bill Arnold the task of making wine from brother Tom's vineyards for the first time in 1982, on an experimental basis, and only time will tell if Tom's grapes are good enough for Dick's winery, or if the brothers will have something else to harangue each other about on stage and off.

There is also a very good possibility that Tom and Dick could end up in a joint venture winery operation in Sonoma County, presumably on property already owned by Tom. They've been discussing it for some time, and Dick is cramped for space at the existing Santa Cruz County facility. Only about 3500 cases per year are currently being produced there.

Smothers' wines are to be taken seriously, by the way, even if the brothers are not.

Smothers 1981 Santa Cruz Johannisberg Riesling (about $9.50). Absolutely gorgeous! My favorite of all the current Smothers releases and a wine well worth the money. By German standards, this one has the character of an Auslese, with its 4.2 residual sugar, .8 acid and less than 10 percent alcohol with considerable influence from that noble mold Botrytis.

The aroma and flavor both show a beautiful marriage of apple, peach and apricot characters. This is the wine for setting the mood, if the mood you have in mind is romantic.

Smothers 1981 Late Harvest Gewurztraminer ($9.75). Another lovely wine, this one showing varietal spice combined with late harvest "apricot." There's a touch of spritz (tingle of natural carbonation), which in combination with the decent acid level makes it finish with a drier taste than would be expected considering the presence of residual sugar.

Smothers 1979 Alexander Valley Cabernet Sauvignon ($12.50). Winemaker Bill Arnold is justifiably proud of this wine, especially since Smothers is best known for white wines. It is as bold and intense a wine from this usually "soft" appellation as I can recall.

The nose is chocolaty rich, a small promise of what is to come. The wine is one of those that builds in the mouth. It enters very full, becomes rich and intense in the middle taste and exits even bolder. This is a "biggie" that seems to have the balance to age well.

A 1980 version of the same wine appears to be a young twin, with perhaps even better balance. It will be released soon.

Also tasted was an excellent 1980 Sonoma Zinfandel with medium body (not overdone at all) and that beautiful black cherry quality that can be so appealing in Zinfandel. The 1981 Chardonnay is also pleasant.

SCOOP — Reliable sources tell me that

Gerald Boyd has resigned as editor of the Wine Spectator, the nationally circulated wine newspaper published by Marvin Shanken.

Apparently the resignation was totally unexpected, and no announcement has been made at this writing as to who the new editor might be, or what Boyd's future plans might be.

Playing the speculation game, two names would appear to be top contenders for the position. In the most recent issue (March 16-31), it was announced that James Laube had been elevated from North Coast correspondent to senior editor, so it's possible that Laube could be in line for yet another step up the editorial ladder.

If anyone wants my best guess, though, I predict that Shanken will appoint himself editor, a title he holds at a couple of other publications he owns and controls. Spectator columnist Norm Roby could be a long-shot, and an outsider is an even poorer bet.

By next week, I should be able to tell you how accurate all this speculation is.

QUICKIES — I'm not into "horsing around," but a friend who obviously is, tells me that perhaps the top contender in this year's Kentucky Derby is a horse named, Desert Wine. Any hunch-betting wine lovers out there? Guess I'll have to do a little research to find out if the owner is in the wine biz. Seagram is doing research on a "no alcohol" wine (no kidding) and is experimenting with vineyards in Virginia. Same firm was also engaged in conversations regarding a possible winery in Texas. Seagram owns Paul Masson, if you didn't know.

GREAT WINE LIST — Where is Kingsburg? About 30 minutes south of Fresno, if you didn't know, and in the heart of this small agricultural community is one of the best kept secrets in the state.

In a small brick building that looks ever so much like a truck stop (it used to be), is the Vallis Restaurant, open Wednesday through Saturday only, because its heart and soul, one Marie Vallis, doesn't want to work any more than that. The food is great (and reasonably priced), and the duck, lamb and homemade soups are not to be missed.

What really makes this establishment such a find, though, is the unbelievable wine list. Rare California wines appear on the list that can't be penny higher than the day they were purchased, some a decade or more ago.

Layered salad for leftovers

Chances are excellent that hard-cooked eggs and either ham or turkey will be found in most refrigerators following a traditional Easter Sunday dinner.

One of the best, and also easiest, ways to give these leftovers a new look — without doing any more cooking — is to turn them into Easter Monday Salad.

Actually a take-off of chef's salad, this variation involves a simple layering of ingredients that are combined and chilled

EASTER MONDAY SALAD

1 head iceberg lettuce
6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
2 cups cooked turkey or ham cut into cubes or strips
1 16-ounce package frozen peas, thawed
1 red onion, chopped (about 1 cup)
2 cups (8-ounces) shredded Swiss or Cheddar cheese.

1 cup mayonnaise
1 cup sour cream or plain yogurt
1 teaspoon curry powder or to taste
Sliced hard-cooked egg (garnish)

Core, rinse and thoroughly drain lettuce; chill in plastic bag or in plastic crisper. Remove 2 or 3 outer leaves from lettuce and reserve for garnish. Shred remaining lettuce. Place half of lettuce in 3 or 4-quart glass bowl.

Adding ingredients in order given, layer chopped egg, turkey, peas, onion and cheese over lettuce. Top with remaining shredded lettuce, pressing lightly. Combine mayonnaise, sour cream or yogurt and curry and spoon evenly over top, sealing to edges.

Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate 2 hours. To serve, line upper edge of bowl with reserved lettuce leaves and garnish with egg slices. Makes 8 servings.

Cook-of-week series to start

Does your chili sizzle? Can you bake a devil's food cake that's divine? Perhaps you are quick with a quiche.

If so, the Daily Pilot wants to hear from you and share your recipes with our readers in an upcoming feature series, "Cook of the Week."

We'd like you to send several of your best, favorite or originals and we'll select a couple to print each week beginning April 6.

Recipes (not restricted to the categories above) can represent the full range of cooking, baking, barbecuing and microwave.

Send them to the Food Editor, c/o the Daily Pilot, P.O. Box 1560, Costa Mesa, Calif. 92626 and please include your name, address and phone number.

orange juice; let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in remaining 1 cup cold orange juice and honey. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white.

Meanwhile, arrange orange sections on bottom of a 6-cup mold, reserving 8 sections to garnish serving plate. Pour gelatin mixture into mold. Chill until firm.

Sherbet layer
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 1/2 cups orange juice, divided
1 pint orange sherbet

In medium saucepan sprinkle gelatin over 1 cup cold orange juice; let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in remaining 1/2 cup cold orange juice and sherbet. Stir until sherbet dissolves.

Chill mixture until consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Pour over firm gelatin mixture in mold. Chill 6 to 8 hours, until firm. Unmold. Garnish plate with reserved orange sections. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Traditional foods are replaced

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The day may be near when the traditional meat and potatoes will be replaced by wingbean and tilapia fish, an agricultural expert says.

The new foods will gain popularity as soon as farmers adopt techniques that produce more crops with less water, Merle Jensen told the Tucson Trade Bureau recently.

"It's got to be economical, and that's the only way it will work," said Jensen, who headed a six-year effort by the University of Arizona to develop the agricultural section at Walt Disney World's EPCOT Center.

Among the "super-plants" that he expects to become commonplace are the wingbean, whose roots contain 10 times the protein of potatoes and whose leaves are nutritious; the Chinese cabbage, which can grow to 14 pounds in 60 days; and amaranth or "pig weed," a plant high in amino acids first cultivated by the ancient Aztecs.

The plants grow at EPCOT's $55 million "The Land" pavilion under unique conditions, such as hanging in the air or on vertical boards instead of in soil.

Jensen and the UA Environmental Research Laboratory also developed an intercrop technique for EPCOT in which melons, lettuce and tilapia fish all grow in the same greenhouse space.

Melons hang in the air, lettuce grows on vertical boards and gets water from holes through the boards, and the fish live in the water under the boards.

Tilapias, from Africa, live off algae, which lives off the waste of the fish. He said it tastes like snapper and will be sold in the Tucson area within the next four months.

Shopper pays for mistake on electronic scanner

By MARTIN SLOANE
Dear Martin: I was having my supermarket purchases checked out at a register that used one of the new electronic scanners, when I noticed on the display that one of my items had been rung up for 10 cents more than the advertised price. I showed this to the cashier and asked her to deduct the dime from the total. She apologized but said that she couldn't do it. She told me I would have to go to the office with the tape and ask for my dime back.

There I was, with three bags of groceries, running 15 minutes late and she wanted me to drop everything and stand in line at the office to get my own 10 cents back! I stood there for a moment in a state of shock. Then I headed for the door and I haven't been back. — Sign me "Shocked in Seattle."

Dear Supermarket: There's a supermarket operator in Seattle whose ears are burning and rightly so. When a mistake is made, a supermarket should bend over backwards to make it up to a shopper — not make a shopper break his or her back trying to get it corrected. Supermarket procedures that are set up to deal with customer problems should "make sense," and when the problem is a small overcharge, it should be refunded right there at the cash register. The fact that this was a computerized and scanner-equipped checkout counter should make no difference. If the computer was "smart" enough to ring up an overcharge, it should be able to make a correction.

Dear Martin: I have a question concerning supermarket "etiquette."

While shopping the other evening, I noticed that the store had just been swept. The sweepings and trash were in a pile at one corner of the store, and I saw several empty product packages among them.
I took a closer look and spotted two proofs-of-purchase that I could have used for refund offers. I stood there for a moment and then "chickened out." What do you think? Would it have been alright for me to take those two empty packages? — Natalie N., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dear Natalie: The answer is no. Empty packages lying around a supermarket still belong to the store. You have no right to take them unless you have permission from someone in authority.

Consider what might have happened if a store employee saw you touching one of those empty packages. It might appear that you had eaten the contents while walking through the store and were now throwing away the empty package. This is the kind of misunderstanding that could turn into a very embarrassing situation. Why tempt fate?

Fun-frilled Easter bonnet is edible centerpiece

Remember all the fun you used to have dressing up for Easter? How excited and proud you'd be to put on that beautiful new Easter dress, shoes and bonnet and parade around the neighborhood showing off your finery.

Well, this year, why not dress up your children's holiday celebration with a bonnet that's attractive, easy to make and completely edible.

Children's Chocolate Easter Bonnet is a scrumptious dessert that will bring smiles of delight to the faces of boys and girls, and even get a nod of approval from the Easter Bunny himself.

Since chocolate is always in fashion with youngsters, this bonnet is especially designed to give them a double dose of chocolaty goodness.

CHILDREN'S CHOCOLATE

EASTER BONNET
1 package (18 to 23 ounces) brownie mix
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
1 1/4 cups milk
4 squares (1 ounce each) semi-sweet chocolate
1 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup (1/2 pint) whipping or heavy cream, whipped Whipped cream

Marshmallows
Prepare brownie mix according to package directions and bake in 9-inch round baking pan; cool. Remove from pan.
In medium saucepan, mix unflavored gelatine with 1/4 cup sugar; blend in egg yolks beaten with milk. Let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes.
Add chocolate and continue cooking, stirring constantly, until chocolate is melted. With wire whip or rotary beater, beat mixture until chocolate is blended.

Stir in almond extract. Pour into large bowl and chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon.

In medium bowl, beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually add remaining sugar and beat until stiff. Fold egg whites, then whipped cream into gelatin mixture. Turn into 5-cup bowl (about 7-inch diameter); chill until firm.

To form bonnet, unroll gelatine mixture onto brownie, off-center, so edges meet in back forming front brim. Use additional whipped cream to form "ribbon" around base of gelatin mixture. Decorate top of bonnet with cut-up marshmallow "flowers."

Aroma sweetens a spring morning

To the ancient Chinese, the cinnamon vine was believed to be the tree of life. It grew in Paradise, and its sweet fragrance greeted all who entered.

CINNAMON-RAISIN SHORTCAKES

and cinnamon; sprinkle over dough. Fold into dough with rubber spatula for swirled effect.

Divide dough into 8 equal parts; pat each part into round, 1/2 inch thick, on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake until light golden brown, about 15 minutes. Drizzle Glaze over warm shortcakes. 8 shortcakes.

Glaze: Mix 1 cup powdered sugar, 1 tablespoon margarine or butter, softened, and 4 to 6 teaspoons milk until smooth and of desired consistency.

Easter egg cookery — from start to finish

Since ancient times the egg has symbolized the "rebirth" of spring and in Christian tradition it is a symbol of the Resurrection.

In the Eastern Church, this tradition led to elaborate jeweled eggs commissioned by the Imperial Russian Court and exquisitely crafted by the French jeweler Faberge.

The more homespun American tradition calls for painted eggs, hidden by the "Easter bunny" and hunted by children of all ages.

While chocolate, marshmallow or sugar eggs seem to dominate many Easter baskets, it's hard to beat the traditional hard-cooked and colored egg for economy, nutrition and family fun.

For hard-boiling, use eggs that are at least three days old — fresher eggs will be hard to peel and the yolks may discolor. Place the eggs in a saucepan, preferably glass or enamel, and cover with cold water.

Place over medium heat, bring the water to a boil, then reduce heat to a simmer. Cooking time will depend on the size and temperature of the eggs: large eggs at about 70 degrees will take 10 to 15 minutes, while extra large eggs or those taken straight from the refrigerator may require several minutes more.

At Easter some people like to use small or "pullet" eggs (pullets are young hens just beginning to lay and their eggs are rather small) — these will require less cooking time.

After cooking, the eggs should be plunged immediately into cold water to halt the cooking process and to prevent the yolks from discoloring. Any eggs which have cracked during cooking should be immediately refrigerated for mealtime use. Uncooked meat eggs can be dyed or painted with food colors (add food coloring and one tablespoon vinegar to a cup of warm water — the vinegar will help "set" the color) or with the egg coloring kits available in most supermarkets this time of year. For beautiful and unusual eggs, wrapped uncooked eggs in dampened red or yellow onion skins, secure with string and then hard-cook following the above procedure. Reduce the cooking time by a few minutes and drain after cooking; allow the eggs to cool completely before unwrapping. Eggs can also be dyed a delicate pink or golden amber by hard-cooking them in a "tea" made from onion skins. If the colored eggs are to be hidden and hunted, they should be kept in the refrigerator until the last minute and returned to the refrigerator immediately following the "hunt." Plan to incorporate the hard-cooked Easter eggs into the next week's menus, but keep in mind that they should be used within 5-7 days. To make shelling easier, crack the shell and roll the egg between the palms of the hands to loosen the thin tough skin from the egg. To slice eggs smoothly, dip a knife into water before slicing. Sliced hard-cooked eggs add a decorative touch and nutritional bonus to salads, vegetable dishes and tuna casseroles. Chopped egg sandwich spread or "deviled" eggs can be enlivened by the addition of chopped chicken liver, deviled ham, chopped olives or chutney. For a quick and tasty casserole, combine one cup of cooked vegetables with one cup of white sauce or cheese sauce. Add chopped fresh parsley, thyme or basil to taste. In a greased baking dish, alternate layers of the vegetable mixture with layers of sliced hard-cooked eggs (five or six eggs in all). For additional time saving, a can of condensed cream of mushroom, cream of asparagus or other cream soup may be substituted for the white sauce. Top with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a preheated 350 degree oven about 15 minutes. Serves 4 to 5.

Creative ways with egg salad

What's egg salad? It can be any one of dozens of recipes. All you have to do is chop hard-cooked eggs and moisten them with mayo, sour cream, yogurt or bottled salad dressing. Then, add anything your heart desires from chopped apple to shredded zucchini. Egg salad is whatever you want it to be!

Just get cracking to turn your hard-cooked Easter eggs into an after-Easter feast. Use sliced or wedged hard-cooked eggs along with or in place of tuna, turkey or chicken in your favorite casserole recipe. An egg salad casserole is easy, economical eating.

It's not easy to count the many ways you can make and serve egg salad. You can put almost anything from chopped fresh vegetables to cooked pasta or rice in it.

You can serve it hot or cold by itself, stuffed into pita pockets or hollowed out vegetables or spread on bread.

Golden nests of raisin bread cradle colored breakfast eggs

Why are eggs such an important part of Easter? The legends behind the Easter egg span many cultures and centuries. In 15th century Europe, dyed eggs were exchanged at Easter to express new life and love.

In Germany, the custom was to exchange three colored eggs along with a poem. Egg rolling began centuries ago, too, representing the rolling away of the stone from Christ's tomb.

Fresh baked yeast breads, laced with raisins, also have a long Easter heritage. In many countries, whole eggs in the shell were baked right into the dough, as a symbol of the resurrection.

Keeping with the Easter tradition at your house, bake these Raisin Easter Egg Nests for a delicious, colorful breakfast or brunch surprise.

- RAISIN EASTER EGG NESTS
- 6 to 6 1/2 cups flour
 - 3/4 cup sugar
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 2 envelopes active dry yeast
 - 1 cup milk
 - 1/4 cup water
 - 1/4 cup butter or margarine
 - 2 teaspoons grated orange peel
 - 1 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 4 eggs
 - 1 cup raisins
 - 12 uncooked eggs in shells, tinted with food coloring, as desired

In large bowl combine 2 cups of the flour, sugar, salt and yeast. In small saucepan over low heat combine milk, water, butter, orange peel and nutmeg. Heat to very hot (120 to 130 degrees). Butter need not melt completely.

Stir milk mixture into yeast mixture and beat with electric mixer at medium speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl as needed. Add 3 of the eggs and 1 more cup of the flour. Beat at high speed 3 minutes. Stir in raisins and enough of the remaining flour to make a soft dough.

Turn onto floured board and knead 8 to 10 minutes until dough is smooth and elastic. Form into a ball and place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise in warm place

Tortillas are base of budget main dish

If the rising cost of living has put a crimp in your spring vacation plans, turn on some south-of-the-border music, serve Enchiladas Huevos for dinner and dream a little.

- ENCHILADAS HUEVOS
- 3/4 cup bottled taco sauce, divided
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
 - 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt
 - 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese, divided
 - 6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
 - 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
 - 1/4 cup chopped green onions with tops
 - 2 tablespoons parsley flakes
 - 4 (7-to 8-inch) tortillas

In medium bowl, blend together 1/4 cup of the taco sauce, cumin and garlic salt. Stir in 1/4 cup of the cheese, eggs, green pepper, onion and parsley flakes. Spread about 1/2 cup of the mixture on each tortilla.

Roll up tortillas and place in 8 x 8 x 2-inch baking dish. Drizzle with remaining taco sauce. Cover with aluminum foil and bake in preheated 350 degree F. oven 20 minutes.

Uncover. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and continue baking uncovered until cheese melts, about 10 minutes. Serves 4.

Punch dough down and divide into 12 equal pieces. Roll each piece into a rope 8 inches long and about 1 1/2 inches thick. Wrap each rope around a tinted egg to form a nest. Moisten ends of ropes with water and pinch together to seal securely.

Place nests on greased baking sheets, cover and let rise in warm place until almost doubled, about 45 minutes. Beat the remaining egg. Brush the dough portion of each nest with egg wash.

Bake in 350 degree oven about 20 minutes until nests are browned and sound hollow when tapped. Transfer to racks to cool. Makes 12 servings.

NOTE: Raisin Easter Egg Nests may be baked a day in advance of serving. After cooling, place in plastic bag, close securely and refrigerate.

Bring to room temperature to serve or if desired, place nests on baking sheet, cover lightly with foil and reheat in a 350 degree oven about 10 minutes.

Festive crown roast reigns on holiday

What is more spectacular on a holiday table than a frill-topped, gala crown roast of pork? A crown roast of pork is easily dealt with; just roast it in the oven, with the bone ends wrapped in foil to keep them from burning.

The brown rice picks up a delectable flavor from onions, mushrooms, chicken broth, herbs and fresh grapefruit juice.

FESTIVE CROWN ROAST

- 5 pound crown roast of pork
1 clove garlic
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 large onion, chopped (1 cup)
1/4 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced

- 1 cup brown rice or bulgur
1 can (13 3/4 ounces) chicken broth (1 1/4 cups)
1/2 cup grapefruit juice
1/2 teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1/4 teaspoon dried rosemary
1/4 teaspoon pepper
3 grapefruit, peeled and sectioned
1/2 cup chopped pecans
1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley

Watercress
Crab apples
Rub inside and outside of roast with garlic; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan, with rib ends up.
Place crushed aluminum foil in center cavity to help keep crown shape; cover rib ends with aluminum foil. Insert meat thermometer into meaty part of crown. Roast in a 325 degrees F. oven 1 1/2 hours.

Meanwhile, melt butter in large saucepan; saute onion, mushrooms and rice until vegetables are crisp-tender and rice is done.
Add broth, grapefruit juice, thyme, rosemary and pepper. Bring to a boil. Cover. Reduce heat. Simmer 15 to 20 minutes, stirring occasionally, until all liquid is absorbed.
Stir in grapefruit sections, pecans and parsley. Remove pork from oven. Remove foil from cavity. Spoon rice stuffing in center of crown.
Cover with foil. Return to oven. Roast 1 hour longer or until meat thermometer registers 185 degrees F. To serve, place roast on platter. Remove all foil.
Garnish with watercress, additional grapefruit sections and crab apples. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

How to hard-cook eggs out of shells

Many families, especially those with little children, find it easiest to decorate Easter eggs when the eggs have been hard-cooked. With hard-cooked eggs, breakage is no problem — it's egg salad.

But some other families prefer to work their artistry on egg shells after the contents have been blown out. The decorated shells can be kept on display all through the year, year after year, or given as special gifts to special friends.

The shells' contents can then be used in any fully cooked dish such as a quiche or a cake. Or, the contents can be used in egg salad.

You can hard-cook eggs out of their shells. If you've got a hankering for an egg salad sandwich or an egg salad casserole, you can use either a conventional oven, a microwave oven or range top to cook the eggs you'll need.

It's not hard to do although the results aren't exactly like cooked-in-the-shell hard-cooked eggs. Since the yolks and whites are mixed, the final product will range from egg white pretty whirled with egg yolk to an all-over pale yellow combination depending on how thoroughly you mix the yolks and whites before cooking.

Appearance is the only real difference, though. Eggs hard-cooked out of their shells are just as tasty, nutritious and economical as those cooked in their shells.

So, if you've decided to blow out egg shells to turn into artistic delights, try one of these methods to turn their contents

CONVENTIONAL OVEN

Place contents of 6 blown-out egg shells into lightly buttered 9-inch pie plate. Cover tightly with aluminum foil. Bake in preheated 325 degree F. oven 15 minutes. With spatula, cut through cooked portions at edges in several places.

Lift cooked portions and turn over into center of pie plate. Re-cover and continue baking until set, but still moist, about 5 minutes. Let stand until cool enough to chop or chill until ready to chop.

MICROWAVE

Place contents of 6 blown-out egg shells into lightly buttered 9-inch pie plate. Cover tightly with plastic wrap. Cook on High 2 1/2 minutes. With spatula, cut through cooked portions at edges in several places.

Lift cooked portions and turn over into center of pie plate. Re-cover and continue cooking on High until set, but still moist, about 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 minutes. Let stand until cooked enough to chop or chill until ready to chop.

TOP-OF-RANGE

Place contents of 6 blown-out egg shells into cold lightly buttered 10-inch omelet pan or skillet. Cook over low to medium heat until set on bottom, about 5 to 6 minutes. With spatula, cut into wedges.

Lift wedges and turn to cook other side. Continue cooking until set on bottom, about 1 minute more. Remove from heat. Let stand until cool enough to chop or chill until ready to chop.

Bunny's gifts in party fare

Wondering what to do with the eggs the Easter bunny left behind? Invite your friends for a get-together and serve Party Egg Puffs, an all-around good party nibble food.

PARTY EGG PUFFS

- 1 cup water
1/2 cup butter
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
4 eggs

Bring water and butter to rolling boil in medium saucepan. Remove from heat. Add flour and salt, stirring vigorously until mixture forms a ball. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until smooth and a small quantity of dough stands erect when scooped on the end of a spoon.

EGG SALAD FILLING

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise

puff using about 3 1/2 tablespoons chilled "Egg Salad Filling" for each puff. Replace tops.

Refrigerate until serving time. For main dish-size puffs: Prepare dough as above. Drop by scant 1/4 cupful onto ungreased baking sheet. Bake as above for about 35 to 40 minutes. Fill each cream puff with about 1/2 cup chilled "Egg Salad Filling". Makes 18 appetizer-size puffs or 10 to 12 main dish-size puffs.

or salad dressing

- 1 to 2 teaspoons instant minced onion
3/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
12 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1/4 cup chopped drained ripe olives
1/4 cup chopped drained pimiento

In large bowl, beat together mayonnaise, onion, mustard and salt until thoroughly blended. Add eggs, olives and pimiento. Stir until thoroughly combined. Cover and chill to blend flavors. Makes 1 quart.

Artist important to films

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES — How does the art director fit into the movie-making team?

Lyle Wheeler can tell you. His art direction has drawn 29 Academy nominations and five Oscars, including one for "Gone with the Wind." He started in the movie business in 1930, and at 78 he is still helping young film makers.

"The art director really designs the physical background of the picture," explains Wheeler, a serious-minded man with a pink complexion and shiny hair. "He creates the sets and today he also advises on color. He has to know architecture, and he needs to know how the picture can stay within its budget. In some cases, he will help the director find locations."

When an art director wins an Oscar, the set decorator on the same film is also awarded. Wheeler explains the division of duties: "The set decorator actually dresses the set, finds the furniture, fixes the props, under the supervision of the art director."

Lyle Wheeler was born in Cambridge, Mass., graduated from the USC architecture, industrial design and art history. Jobs in architecture were scarce during the Depression, so Wheeler heeded a friend's advice to seek a job at MGM. He left the studio a few years later to join David O. Selznick's independent company.

"I worked for three years on 'Gone with the Wind,'" he said. "David didn't want to buy the book at first. He changed his mind when his partner, Jock Whitney, said he'd buy it if David didn't."

During the three years Wheeler also designed "Rebecca" and other Selznick films, always returning to "Gone with the Wind." He toured the South for research, then designed and built Tara at the Selznick studio in Culver City.

Wheeler moved to 20th Century-Fox, where he worked 18 years and won his other Oscars for "Anna and the King."

King of Siam," "The Robe," "The King and I" and "The Diary of Anne Frank." He virtually built the back lot, which was a wonderland of English villages, 1890s New York Streets, lakes and jungles. It now contains the silver towers of Century City.

The art director's work often starts even before the writing of the script. He advises on how and where the story might be filmed most effectively. "I never try to influence the writer," said Wheeler. "But I may advise him on how the story can be staged without breaking the budget."

When the script is completed, the art director starts making sketches and exploring locations. Then he works on the plans for construction.

"It takes time for an art director to 'unlearn' architecture," said Wheeler. "You don't design a building the way it would be in real life. You have to discard what is unimportant, so it won't clutter up the picture. It's important to have a silhouette and to avoid having too much detail too high — it won't be seen."

"You design a column not how it would normally be, but how it would look when it is lit on a set. You design a corridor with perspective so it looks three to five times longer than it really is. Otherwise it would require three states."

What, me worry? Not Bob Boone

By JOHN SEVANO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

PALM SPRINGS — Bob Boone is the strong, silent type. He would have made a perfect stand-in for Gary Cooper.

Boone didn't even flinch the other day when he learned the rented condominium, where he and his family are staying, almost caught fire and burned down. Once assured his family was all right, he just shrugged his shoulders and went about his business in the batting cage.

It was that kind of unruffledness and stability which helped the Angels pitching staff record an ERA of 3.82 last year, second-lowest in the American League to Detroit.

"It's nothing I developed," says Boone of his calm demeanor. "It's something that has always been a part of my personality. All I ever try to do is be myself."

By being himself, Boone captured his third Gold Glove award in the past five seasons as he led the league in games (143), putouts (650), assists (87), total chances (745) and fewest passed balls (2).

The 35-year-old, 11-year veteran also had the distinction in 1982 of being the only major league catcher to toss out more than 50 percent (63 of 109, 58 percent) of would-be stealers.

Boone was acquired from Philadelphia during the 1981 off-season in a straight cash deal. He has spent a lot of time since his arrival thanking those responsible for the transaction.

It should be the Angels, though, thanking Boone, who has provided a steadiness not seen at his position since the days of Bob Rodgers (1961-69).

"A lot of what a catcher does is overrated," downplays Boone of his role on the club. "Sure I can help the pitchers some, but it still depends on how they throw the ball."

"I don't try to do anything but the things I know I can do. It's those things I want to control and improve on. What you want to try to do, whether it's offense or defense, is be consistent."

"I try not to worry about the other things . . . things I have no control over."

What Boone does have control over is the pitching staff.

"The strength of the starters is their consistency," says Boone of what figures to be a five-man rotation. "We don't have a bunch of guys who are going to get blown out. Each one of them is going to keep you in the game."

"Mike Witt is ready to come into his own. Bruce Kison, after a couple of rough years, just might be at the peak of his career. Geoff Zahn is coming off his best season. Tommy John is consistently Tommy John. And Ken Forsch is always on top of his game, too."

As was Boone during the (See ANGELS, Page E2)

Easy night for Edison, HB volleyball teams

Edison and Huntington Beach each quickly disposed of their respective foes in three games last night in Sunset League men's volleyball action.

The Chargers toppled Ocean View, 16-14, 15-8, 15-9 and were only seriously threatened in the opening game. But with the score tied 13-13, the Chargers were able to score three of the next four points to take the lead and were never headed.

Outside hitter Joe Krafka had a fine match for Edison, which also received a strong serving performance from Dave Frazelle.

In third place, Edison will try to hold on to that spot when it visits Huntington Beach at 7 tonight.

In another Sunset League match last night, Huntington Beach eased past Westminster, 15-10, 15-9, 15-12.

Middle blocker Mike McNearney, hitter Keith Keller and setter Dennis Bush were instrumental in the victory.

In the second game, Westminster raced to leads of 5-0 and 7-2, but the serving of Scott McDonald helped the Oilers turn the game around. Huntington Beach led the whole way in the third game to close out the match.

The Oilers moved to 2-2 in league play and are slated to host Edison this evening.

In a match to determine leadership in the Sunset League, Fountain Valley visits La Quinta at 7 tonight. The Barons and Aztecs each possess 4-0 league marks entering tonight's matchup.

Timely hitting carries Fountain Valley, 9-8 OCC rolls as Reimer delivers

It took some clutch hitting, but the Fountain Valley High baseball team has padded its lead in the Sunset League race to 1½ games following last night's wild 9-8, eight-inning decision over Fountain Valley at Mile Square Park.

Meanwhile, Laguna Beach will play for third place in the Santa Barbara County Invitational following the Artists' 2-1 setback to Santa Ynez.

Here's how it happened:

Ftn. Valley 9, Htn. Beach 8

The Barons were down to their last out before designated hitter Jay Russell delivered Ken DeMarco with a line drive single to right to tie the game in the top of the seventh inning.

With Fountain Valley down 8-7, DeMarco led off the seventh with a single and moved to third on a sacrifice bunt and ground out.

Then, in the eighth, a pair of walks and a sacrifice by Kelly Bowman set the stage for a squeeze bunt by Mike Lopez which brought home the game-winning tally.

Huntington Beach put together a serious threat in the bottom of the eighth, loading the bases with two outs. But winning pitcher Bob Sharpnack got the final out on a pop fly to the catcher. Russell went 3-for-5 in the game while driving in four and Kevin Empting had two hits, scored once and drove in two for Fountain Valley.

Charley Hartwell and Andy Pascoe had a pair of hits apiece for Huntington Beach, while Eric Shirley knocked in two runs for the Oilers with a fifth-inning double, which put Huntington Beach ahead, 7-6.

Fountain Valley's 5-1 mark leads the Sunset, while Huntington Beach dropped into a third-place tie with Westminster at 3-3.

Santa Ynez 2, Laguna Beach 1

Rex Reazor had one of those games you dream about — spanking a double and triple and scoring Laguna Beach's only run.

And pitcher Aaron Soloman struck out three, walked just one and gave up but two singles — but Santa Ynez parlayed them into two runs to send Laguna Beach into today's third place game against Visalia's Golden West High.

Marina, Oilers on right track in openers

Despite double wins by three different Edison performers yesterday, the Marina High track and field squad opened the Sunset League campaign with a 69-57 victory over the Chargers at Edison.

Jon Nowotny posted a narrow victory in the 440 with a time of 52.3, then came back to win the 880 in 2:06.

Mike Coe and Scott Shook of Edison also doubled with Coe taking the mile (4:43.4) and two mile (10:16.3) and Shook capturing each of the hurdle events.

Chip Rish spearheaded Marina with wins in the sprints, and the Vikings also were victorious in each of the relay events.

Marina also received key efforts in the long jump and triple jump, earning valuable points with one-two finishes in those events.

In another Sunset meet, Gus Quinones again proved he's one of the premier distance runners in the area, winning the 800, mile and two-mile with impressive times in each.

The Oilers, who beat Fountain Valley, 85-50, also had strong efforts from Carl Saterfield, who won the long jump and triple jump, and Roger Masangkay, who finished first in the two weight events.

Fountain Valley's Rick Nichols won three events, the two sprints and the high hurdles.

In women's action, it was Edison topping Marina, 97-28; Fountain Valley outscoring Huntington Beach, 71-46; and Ocean View beating Westminster, 68-54.

Senior Cheryl Mock, along with teammates Kendra Girardot and Rochelle Snyder, doubled to help Fountain Valley post its victory.

Elway headed for Chargers?

Which means that Dan Fouts may be on the way out

Nobody came in on the noon baloon from Saskatoon and asked me, but . . .

•Stanford's John Elway wants to play football but he does not want to play behind the offensive line of the Baltimore Colts . . . The San Diego Chargers would like very much to work out a deal for the rights to Elway and pay him $1 million a year rather than Dan Fouts . . . It is rather easy to put two and two together here without getting three.

•Reggie Jackson says he would like to join the Angels front office when he finished his playing career but he may not have checked to see what front office people make.

•The John McKay to president and Dick Vermeil to coach at Tampa Bay rumor may be correct as far as it goes . . . McKay can stay as coach as long as he wishes and then become president of the Buccaneers . . . All McKay has to do is inform owner Hugh Culverhouse.

•It may be true that the owners in the International Football League have established $2 million lines of credit, but will they be willing to blow the next $2 million . . . and the next . . . and

•But if you have $2 million and are interested in the Sydney, Australia franchise is still open.

•Owner Jerry Buss has offered some Los Angeles Kings teams of the past a trip to Hawaii as a reward for winning a certain number of games . . . This year's Kings would not make it as far as Azusa.

•Hank Aaron, who once dumped a plate of strawberries on the head of a writer in the clubhouse in Atlanta, says he would like to be commissioner of baseball which would probably be OK so long as strawberries were not served at press conferences.

•Buzzie Bavasi of the Angels is strongly opposed to increasing the league championship playoffs to four of seven but Buzzie's voice will not be as strong as that of television.

•If I were a betting man, and I am, I would bet the Detroit Tigers at 30-1 to win the American League pennant.

•Well, if Fernando Valenzuela has a lousy year, the Dodgers can cut him by 20 percent.

Anteaters win 17-13 slugfest

LA VERNE — A pair of six-run innings proved decisive for the UC Irvine baseball team last night, as the Anteaters outslugged host La Verne, 17-13.

The 17 runs and 19 hits marked the biggest offensive explosion for UCI this season. Steve Haworth knocked in three runs. Ron Cummings had three doubles and designated hitter Paul Hammond went 3-for-3 as UCI improved to 9-13.

Andy Hennings hit a grand slam for the hosts in the bottom of the second, while Jeff Field slammed a leadoff homer in the ninth for the Anteaters.

UCI returns to conference play Friday afternoon at 2:30, hosting UC Santa Barbara.

New league doesn't want any Sampsons

From AP dispatches
SAN DIEGO — A new professional basketball league that emphasizes the complete player over "leapers and dunkers," and introduces a stationary goal-keeper will begin operations in 1984, its founders said yesterday.

"We aren't interested in the Ralph Sampsons," said Med Park, a co-founder of the new American Basketball League and a five-year veteran of the National Basketball Association during the 1950s.

Calling it a "unique concept" that downplays the importance of the dominant center, like Sampson of the University of Virginia, Park said the concept is a return to the game Dr. Naismith had in mind. Dr. James Naismith founded the game of basketball in Springfield, Mass. in 1896.

"We have decided to put the emphasis back on shooting and basic basketball skills like passing, picking, and smarts," said Park, 49, a San Diego consultant. The other co-founder is Curtis Rex Carter, Jr., and investor from San Diego.

Under ABL rules, one of the five players will remain in the defensive lane at all times, creating a four-on-five situation on offense. "He can rebound and intercept, but he can't leave the lane."

Quote of the day

Jack Berkshire, basketball coach at Oglethorpe University: "We've been a little up and down all season, but I'd call that consistency."

Ryan put on disabled list

COCOA, Fla. — An inflamed prostate gland will delay Nolan Ryan's quest to become major league baseball's strikeout king, a Houston Astros official said yesterday.

Mike Ryan said the 36-year-old right-hander was placed on the 21-day disabled list yesterday along with infielder Art Howe. Howe, a first baseman, has tendinitis of the right elbow.

Lakers romp past Clippers

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 26 points, 14 in the first quarter, as the Los Angeles Lakers rolled to a 127-109 National Basketball Association victory last night over San Diego at the Forum. Elsewhere in the NBA, Joe Barry Carroll scored 28 points and Lester Conner stole an inbound pass in the closing seconds to seal a Golden State 109-106 win over Dallas.

Calvin Natt notched 22 points and Jim Paxson added 20 as Portland raced past Detroit, 114-107. Frank Johnson and Jeff Rutland tallied 24 points apiece as Washington defeated Milwaukee, 94-81.

Alvan Adams scored eight of his season-high 30 points in the fourth quarter as Phoenix won its eighth straight game at home, 115-107 over Utah.

Rod Higgins poured in 25 points to help Gene Banks converted three baskets late in the fourth period to help blunt a Denver comeback and enable San Antonio to top the Nuggets, 136-129.

Mike Woodson's 28 points led Kansas City past Houston, 111-95. Paced by Dan Roundfield's 25 points, Atlanta stopped Cleveland, 95-82. Clark Kellogg scored 29 points as Indiana stunned Boston, 130-101, the Celtics' largest losing margin of the season.

Rod Higgins pumped in 25 points as Chicago stopped Boston, Philadelphia, 97-95.

No playoffs for Kings

Calgary's Kent Nilsson scored three goals last night as the Flames eliminated the Los Angeles Kings from the playoff race with a 5-3 National Hockey League victory. Calgary knocked out Kings' goalie Gary Laskoski in the second period, as Markus Mattsson replaced him with 56 seconds remaining in the stanza.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Wayne Gretzky set up three goals in the opening period, giving him a record 121 assists this season, and Jari Kurri netted a pair of goals in Edmonton's 7-4 triumph over Vancouver.

Ron Greschner and Mark Pavelich converted power-play goals in a span of 26 seconds to pace the New York Rangers to a come-from-behind 4-3 verdict over St. Louis.

Miroslav Frycer tallied the game-winning goal in the third period to help Toronto stop Minnesota, 4-2, and thus help Chicago clinch the Norris Division title.

Blaine Stoughton's penalty shot goal with nine seconds remaining lifted Hartford to a 5-4 victory over Buffalo. Barry Pederson drilled in his 46th goal of the season at 17:49 of the third period during a Boston power play to give the Bruins a 4-3 win over Quebec.

Angel win streak snapped

Run-scoring singles by Dave Bergman and Johnny LeMaster snapped a 1-1 tie in the seventh inning and San Francisco went on to a 5-1 exhibition baseball victory yesterday, snapping the Angels' eight-game winning streak.

Brian Downing's solo homer in the first accounted for the Angels' one run. The New York Yankees erupted for eight runs in the seventh inning against Fernando Valenzuela, and Shane Rawley, Dale Murray and Rich Gossage limited Los Angeles to six hits to hand the Dodgers their fourth straight loss and third consecutive shutout.

Atlanta pounded out 16 singles, took advantage of 11 walks and five Houston errors to record a 12-5 win over the Astros. Carney Lansford's two-run homer in the first inning sparked a 17-hit Oakland attack in the A's 10-5 victory over Milwaukee.

Willie Alkens' double in the bottom of the ninth drove in the winning run as Kansas City edged Montreal, 8-7. Right-hander Mike Moore hurled seven shutout innings in Seattle's 5-0 conquest of Cleveland.

Pittsburgh rallied for three runs in the eighth inning off St. Louis relief ace Bruce Sutter to beat the Cardinals, 5-3. Dan Driessen had three hits, including a homer, in Cincinnati's 4-3 win over Boston. Rookie pitcher Tony Ghelfi held Baltimore scoreless for six innings as Philadelphia blanked the Orioles, 4-0. Gary Gaetti belted two home runs and Kent Hrbek hit another in Minnesota's 10-5 win over Detroit.

NBA settlement near?

Both sides in the National Basketball Association contract talks indicated yesterday they are moving toward a settlement, but stopped short of saying an agreement is imminent just a few days before a threatened strike. NBA players have said they'll go on strike after Saturday's games if no contract is reached by that day.

Four players from the Chicago area — DePaul's hometown — will be in uniform for Fresno State tonight when the Blue Demons and Bulldogs clash in New York for the National Invitation Tournament basketball championship.

Ron Anderson, a junior forward, and Tyrone Bradley, Marvin Carter and Charlie Smith are the four that migrated to Fresno State. Ralph Sampson, the University of Virginia's 7-4 three-time All-American, was named winner of the 1983 Eastman Award as college basketball's player of the year.

Australian surfers lead

Australia has taken the early lead in the American Team Challenge Surfing Championships at Huntington Beach after the first round, with Robert Woolf, Michael Novakov and Toni Sawyer leading the way.

Woolf is the leader in individual men, while Novakov is the knee riding division leader. Sawyer paces the women's division as the Australians appear to be on their way to a clean sweep.

After the first of three days competition Australia holds a 31-point margin over National Scholastic Surfing Association (California) with 183 points.

- First Round
Team scoring 1. Australia 183 (Australia); 2. NSSA Calif. 152; 3. Western Surfing Association 83; 4. Eastern Surfing Association 76; 5. Boy Scouts Explorers 75; 6. NSSA East 57; 7. Texas Surfing Association 46.
Individual Men 1. Robert Woolf (Australia); 2. Chris Frohoff (NSSA Calif.); 3. Ted Robinson (NSSA Calif.); 4. Donald Walker (Australia); 5. Michael Novakov (Australia); 6. Bill Shar (NSSA Calif.); 7. Phil Fein (NSSA Calif.); 8. Steve Burpo (Western Surfing Association).
Women 1. Toni Sawyer (Australia); 2. Joeline Smith (NSSA Calif.); 3. Tricia Gill (Western Surfing Association); 4. Jorja Smith (NSSA Calif.).

Edison, FV win in softball

Edison hurler Julie Carpenter won her eighth straight game, scattering seven Marina hits, as the Chargers captured their Sunset League opener yesterday, 1-0, in high school women's softball on the Vikings' field.

In another Sunset opener Kelly Winn's bat proved a key as Fountain Valley edged Huntington Beach, 5-3.

Edison, considered one of the favorites to win the Sunset League based on its unbeaten record, took a step in that direction in beating Marina. The Chargers tallied the lone run of the contest in the top of the third when Mary Beth Ford delivered an RBI single.

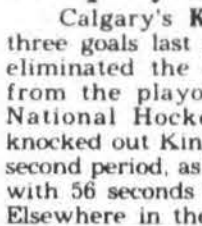

Julie Larsen was the hard-luck loser for Marina, despite striking out eight Edison batters. Carpenter, meanwhile, had four strikeouts and walked one in the victory.

Winn had a pair of triples and scored twice in Fountain Valley's triumph over visiting Huntington Beach.

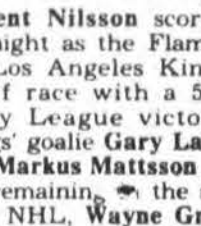

The victory improved the Barons' overall mark to 8-1. Defensively, pitcher Tracy Baniman of Fountain Valley was victimized by four errors and all three of the Oilers' runs were unearned.

Lea Young also had two of Fountain Valley's six hits.

ANGEL NOTES

Ellis Valentine, who has suffered throughout this spring with a painful left achilles, was sent home yesterday by club officials to have his injury examined by team physician Lewis Yocum. Valentine, according to General Manager Buzzie Bavasi, will not rejoin the team until the start of the Freeway Series with the Dodgers Friday. In the meantime, Bavasi said the Angels "will talk with a few other clubs" in case Valentine's injury is more serious than believed. Valentine, who appeared on his way to recovery, pulled himself out of Monday's game, saying he had re aggravated his left ankle. Reggie Jackson, who hasn't played right field yet this spring, is scheduled to do so Friday at Anaheim Stadium and Sunday afternoon at Dodger Stadium. Manager John McNamara said Jackson may even see his first action in the field against the Giants today. Probable matchups for this weekend's Freeway Series: Friday — Burt Hooton and Bob Welch vs. Tommy John; Saturday — Fernando Valenzuela and Joe Sackwith vs. Mike Witt; Saturday — Jerry Reuss vs. Geoff Zahn.

HB tennis team posts narrow win

Huntington Beach FV in games, 114-106. Hunted out a Sunset League tennis victory yesterday over host Fountain Valley by the narrowest of margins, with the scoring required to delve into games after the two had fought to a 14-14 standoff.

The Oilers outscored Curtis Fowler, however, a left-handed sophomore, came through with a 6-4 victory in the final singles match of the day to give the Oilers the equalizer (and winning margin).

Guthrie sets record

Golden West's Jill Guthrie broke the school's all-time record for scoring as the Rustlers topped El Camino last night, 78-72, in the opening of the Golden West Tournament.

In another women's community college basketball matchup, Orange Coast came out on top in the first round at Pasadena, 88-47 over L.A. Pierce, as five players notched double figures.

Guthrie, who now has 1,045 points in her career at Golden West, had 38 points last night. She broke the old record set by Meleidy Bland of 1,029 set in 1978 and 1979.

It is all very well to make close doubles. But you had better have the defensive skills of 1966 World Open Pairs champions Hans Kreys and Bob Slavenburg if you want to avoid bankruptcy as a result. Slavenburg's double of two clubs was tactical—he wanted to drive the enemy to two hearts. But after he accomplished his mission, he and his partner had to defend brilliantly to achieve a plus score. West led a spade. East won the king and correctly shifted to a trump to cut down club ruffs in dummy. Declarer played the king and West won the ace. Now if West does not remove dummy's last trump, declarer will get home. He will finesse the jack of diamonds, then use the diamond entry to dummy to take the club finesse. After cashing the ace of clubs, declarer can then ruff a club to set up the suit and land the contract. But it would not do to return any trump. If West returns a low trump, declarer will have two entries to dummy for two club finesses, which will allow the contract to succeed in a different way. West solved the problem by returning the jack of trumps! Declarer finessed the jack of diamonds. East won the ace and applied the last nail to declarer's coffin. He exited with a diamond. Declarer was in dummy and he could take one club finesse. But he still had to give up a club to East. When East won the king, he continued with the ten of diamonds, and now the defenders were guaranteed two more tricks for a one-trick set no matter what declarer did. Coast recreation: It's the water

Thousands of boats of all sizes berthed from Huntington Harbour to Dana Point

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Daily Pilot Boating Writer

Outdoor recreation in Orange County can be summed up in one word: water. Or maybe two words — salt water.

This is evident by looking around. Thousands of medium to large boats — power and sail — moored or berthed in marinas from Dana Point to Huntington Harbour. Not to mention the thousands of small boats stored in garages or carports throughout the county.

The water craft on which this recreation is enjoyed is almost as varied as the number. They range from paddleboards to windsurfers, to small and large catamarans, to boats especially designed for bay and ocean fishing, rowboats, rowing sculls, inflatables, ocean-going cruisers and racing sailboats.

The design and size of the craft in which you enjoy your waterborne recreation depends largely on your athletic ability — but more importantly on the size of your bank account.

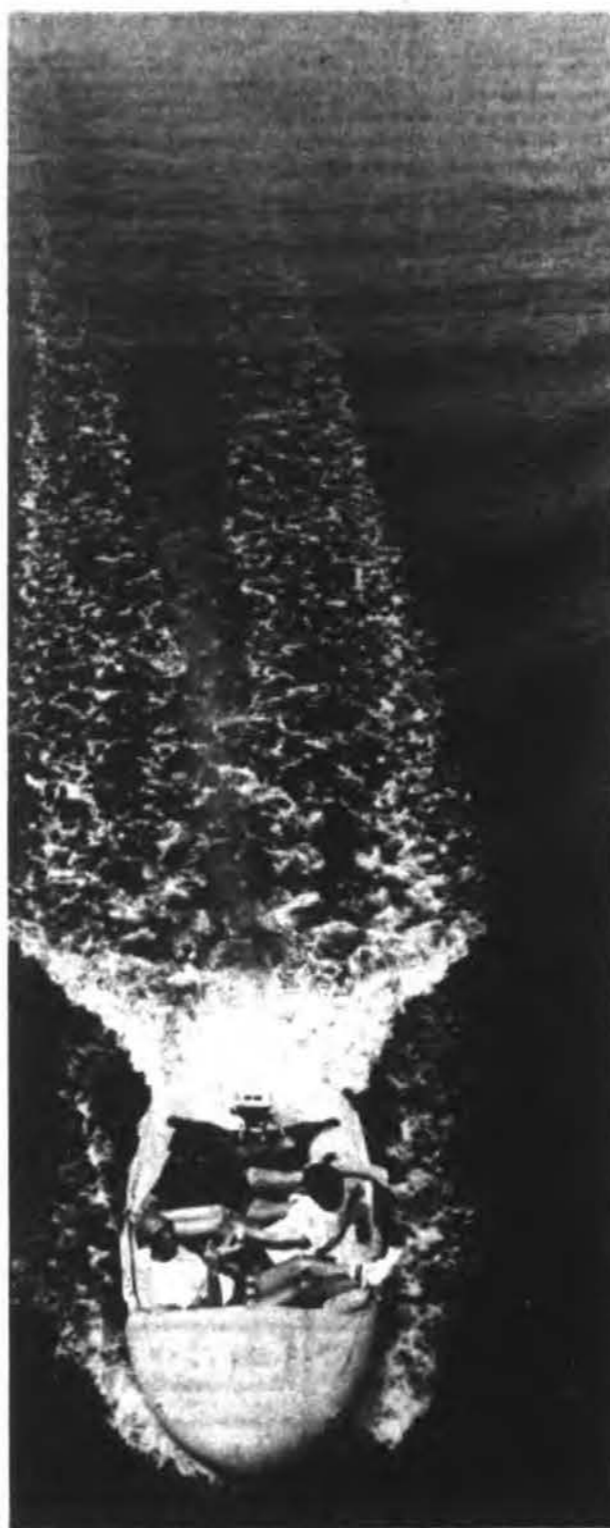

And a visit to the various boat shows in progress this time of year will show that something new that floats is being designed, built and touted as fast as they can be launched. Some of them, to be sure are gimmicks, some safe, others not so safe — but all designed to let one enjoy a day or week or month on the water.

The most recent fad in Newport Harbor is rowing craft to go along with the physical fitness craze. Early any morning one can see a dozen or more paddlers cruising the bay in everything from the common rowboat to the latest in single or double-handed sculls.

The most visible evidence of the boating craze is in Newport Harbor where there are upwards of 10,000 yachts moored or berthed along the shores of Lido, Bay, Balboa and other islands that dot the bay, jamming marinas along Coast Highway and the Newport-Balboa Peninsula.

The next biggest concentration of water craft is at Dana Point where thousands of craft occupy slips as fast as they can be built — with a long waiting list for others.

The fastest growing water sport here and other parts of the Southland is that of sailboarding. These are the craft that resemble a surfboard with a universal-joint swiveled mast and a wishbone boom on which is rigged a colorful sail.

It is an athletic sport in which the "driver" sails standing up, maneuvering his or her board with a combination of sail trimming and body english. Tacking (changing direction) is done by walking around the mast, carrying the boom and sail with you.

Sailboarding was catapulted into popularity by the invention of the swiveling mast by Hoyle Schweitzer of Torrance more than a decade ago. Schweitzer and his group, Windsurfer International, patented the rig but imitations are made all over the world. The sailboard has become so popular that it has been admitted as an Olympic "yachting" class.

Just as popular and possibly more numerous are the small twin-hulled catamarans made popular by Hobie Alter of Capistrano Beach whose various sizes of Hobie Cats are sailed all over the world.

Other popular catamarans are the Prindle Cat, built by Surfglas of Santa Ana, Sol Cat, NACRA 5.5 and other twin-hullers on up to the Olympic Tornado class.

Since the days of the popular Snowbird that enticed youngsters onto the waters from the early 1930s until the middle '60s, numerous other craft have come along to appeal to the young beginner sailor. The Naples Sabot still is considered the safest training craft for youngsters. This eight-foot pram with the wooden shoe emblem on the sail is now even being sailed by adults over 40 who occasionally like to take a bay sail or weekend race with their peers.

As the youngsters increase their skills for more sporty and speedy craft came the demand for such single-handed sailing craft as the 14-foot Laser or Laser IIs. They often graduate from this to the more expensive and more demanding Finn, an international 16-footer that is popular among Olympic yachting medal seekers.

"Yachting" in modern terminology has come to mean anything that sails for pleasure regardless of size. Contrary to the opinion of many landlubbers, yachting is not strictly a millionaire's sport although it does not get into that range with the large sail and power boats.

Camping out offers something for all

By CURT SEEDEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Tired of piling up everyone in the station wagon and making that same yearly trek to your favorite aunt's house for that long-awaited vacation?

Is spending the same week in July in the same hotel and in the same room getting just a little mundane?

People who like to go camping, whether it be in their own RV or with just a tent, will preach and preach about the benefits of this vacation pastime. And it's really not surprising.

Today there is such a variety of vacation sites with camping facilities — including many right here in Southern California — which makes it so easy to be a little bit daring come vacation time.

Finding that right campground is easier than one might think. There are numerous camping periodicals and books, available at any bookstore or library. An even quicker method of finding out just what's out there is to go to the closest Ticketron outlet and ask for the latest Campsite Reservation Request form. It's eight pages and includes some 100 campsites with detailed information like the maximum length of RV allowed, reservation period and even phone numbers.

Sites range from desert areas to beach locations. There are RV campsites smack in the middle of busy metropolitan areas. Anaheim, for instance, has no less than 11 RV parks, all conveniently located within a few miles, and even blocks of Disneyland.

Located just off the San Diego Freeway in Dana Point is Doheny State Beach. Doheny gets a "D" classification from the 1982 Campsite Reservation Request, and that simply means it's developed.

Developed campsite facilities ordinarily include flush toilets, piped drinking water, tables, stoves, better than average roads,

In contrast is the primitive classification, cleverly signified as "P."

A primitive site ordinarily includes access roads, chemical and pit toilets, an informal area with table, a central water supply, or a designated area without any facilities.

Some campsites, like Doheny, are open year round. Others, like San Onofre State Beach, just down the road a bit near Camp Pendleton, maintain summer reservation periods. It opens April 2.

If beach camping doesn't get you excited, but you still want to camp, and you still want to stay in Orange County, try O'Neill Park, nine miles inland from the San Diego Freeway off El Toro Road.

O'Neill is an Orange County-run campground which has 800 sites. Motorhomes and other RVs are allowed, but they must be self-contained. In other words, no hookups. But there is a sewage disposal station.

Cost of a one-night stay at O'Neill is $5 per vehicle. Senior citizens (over 60) can camp for half-price.

Also inland is Caspers Park, which like O'Neill, offers a wilderness surrounding but is a mere 7 1/2 miles off the San Diego Freeway (off Ortega Highway in San Juan Capistrano).

Caspers is also operated by the county and includes 81 sites, for tents, and RVs. Unfortunately, the recent rains have washed away the road into the park, and officials there say it may be a month before the park resumes full operation. (See CAMPING, Page 3)

For the more adventurous traveler, there are numerous campsites in the San Diego, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara areas.

Among the more popular are El Capitan State Beach in Goleta, Carpinteria State Beach, Refugio State Beach, also in Goleta, Point Mugu State Park in Oxnard and the more RV-oriented Campland on the Bay on San Diego's Mission Bay, year-round site through time-sharing concept.

There are several rules of thumb to follow once you find a campground. Rules on dogs vary; some campsites charge extra for additional vehicles; length of stay varies; and there is a maximum length on RVs and trailers which must be adhered to.

Family campsites may be reserved as far as eight weeks in advance. All group campsites may be reserved as far as 12 weeks in advance.

Questions regarding reservation procedure will be answered by calling (800) 952-5580.

Recreational vehicle camping is on the upswing, according to a University of Michigan survey. One out of 10 families owns an RV and three out of 10 are interested in the future use of an RV.

Are you a first time camper? Here's some helpful advice

By CURT SEEDEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A suggestion for all of you first-time tent campers . . .

Don't use the trial and error method on your first venture into the great outdoors. There is, in fact, no better way to prepare for a camping trip than to do just the opposite of what I did on my first-ever excursion.

The first thing to do before you head for the campsite is make a list of what you'll need. Think hard, too. I made a list and wound up using a rock (instead of a left-behind ax) to drive the tent stakes into the ground.

Secondly, know how to put up your tent.

On my first trip, my wife and I arrived on a brisk autumn afternoon at a Lake Arrowhead campsite with a tent borrowed from my sister and brother-in-law. Unfortunately, there were no directions with this tent.

Soon, the brisk afternoon had turned into a near-freezing evening, and I was still trying to figure out which pole went into which pole.

Don't panic in this situation. Just ask someone else who is camping nearby with a tent that looks similar to the way yours is supposed to look.

Once the tent is properly in place, it's time to eat. Know how to use your camping stove.

Too much propane and a little breeze will turn your table into a nice bonfire. This didn't happen to me. I had a hard enough time attaching my propane bottle to the stove.

Don't forget all the cooking instruments you need, and especially remember to bring soap to clean the dishes, silverware and pans.

Remember to bring plenty of matches, salt and pepper, a couple of rolls of paper towels, a dish pan, radio, insect repellent, first-aid kit — and if you have the room — folding chairs.

It's not a bad idea to bring a pad to place beneath your sleeping bag. "Egg crates," which are often used in hospitals for bed-ridden patients, make excellent pads.

You've got to have flashlight and a good camping lantern. If you have your own wood, bring it. It's expensive at camp stores.

Don't trust the weather. Come prepared for a Siberian snowstorm, even if it's sunny and warm during the day. The weather will change drastically in higher elevations.

Most campsites have hot showers, so bring along anything and everything you normally need, such as shampoo, shaving gear and lotions.

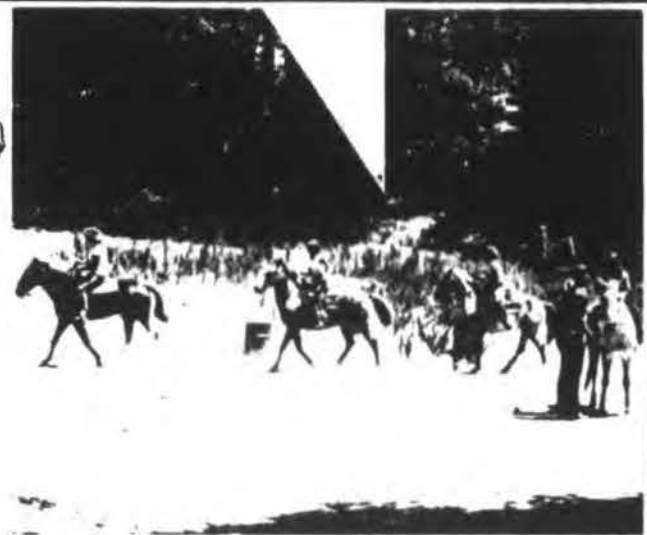

Most campstores have ice, so bring a large ice chest. And, the same stores will, no doubt, have everything you forgot.

Boat show will offer a floating grand prize

You can register for a free drawing to win an $11,000 prize at the 15th annual Anaheim Boat Show at the Anaheim Convention Center Wednesday through Sunday.

Compliments of Boats Unlimited of Huntington Beach, a 16-foot Beachcraft Espree boat and a Trail-Rite trailer will be awarded the winner of the drawing to take place Sunday.

This Beachcraft is a versatile boat which functions as a good runabout for skiing, fishing or diving. The motor is a 120 hp Mercruiser and has an 18-gallon gas tank.

It is made of fiberglass and has a complete canvas convertible top. The seats fold down and it can accommodate six passengers.

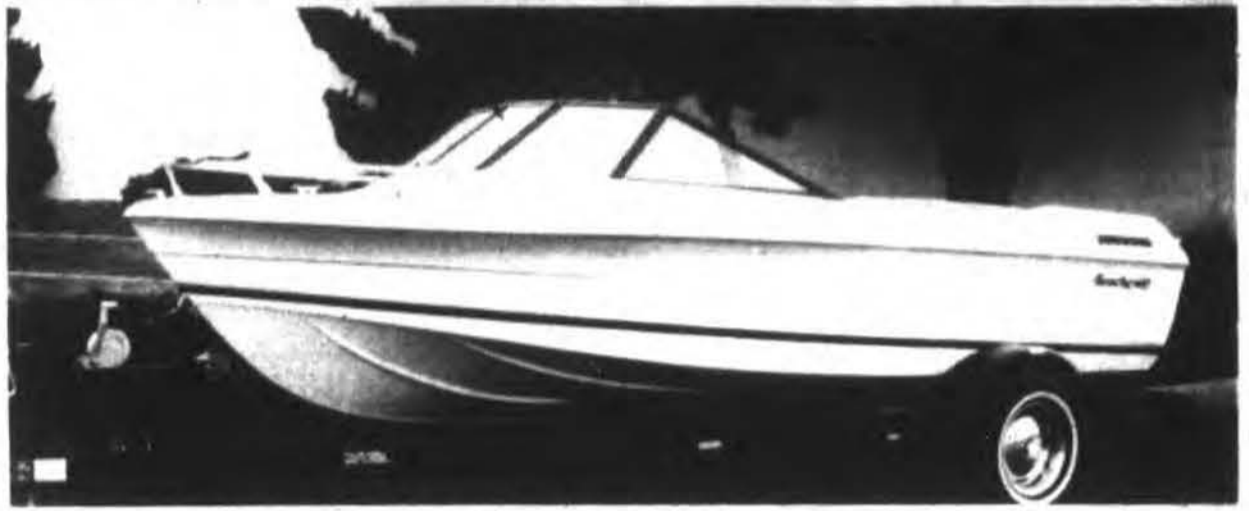

There is no purchase necessary to enter the drawing, but you must be 18 years or older. You need not be present to win, and further rules and entry blanks are available outside the boat show entrance.

The 15th annual Anaheim Boat Show, known as "The Boat Lovers' Boat Show," will be presented by H. Werner Buck Enterprises, and will include a large selection of powerboats, marine accessories and a wide variety of water sports equipment.

Seen for the first time anywhere are the brand new 20 foot Invader Boat, and the Water Streaker, a new innovation in water sports.

Hours at the show are Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 3 p.m. to 11 p.m., Saturday 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., Sunday 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Prices are $4.50 for adults, $2.00 for children 6 through 15, and children under 6 are free. For further information please call 999-8900.

It's not just for the birds

The camps, workshops and field seminars being offered this year by the National Audubon Society are by no means strictly for the birds — though learning more about birds is often an important part of the experience.

What the programs offer, according to the society's brochure, are fascinating ways "to search, stalk, probe, poke, discover and explore."

At one and two-week sessions of Audubon camps in Maine, Connecticut, Wisconsin and Wyoming, naturalists lead adventurous field trips and conduct informal outdoor classes. Working in small groups, adult campers learn how birds adapt for flight, why "fairy rings" of mushrooms spring up overnight, how a midweed flower attracts a bee, why barnacles grow in colonies. Optional activities include swimming, rock-climbing, hiking, canoeing, stargazing and loafing.

chance to concentrate on field ornithology in Maine or expand their perceptions of the natural world via camera, sketch pad, notebook, paintbrush or musical instrument in Wisconsin.

Audubon field seminars range from birding in Mexico, snowshoeing in Minnesota, backpacking in Wyoming, exploring a California desert, studying aquatic ecology in Montana and learning environmental-activist skills in Colorado.

Audubon field seminars announced

Audubon field seminars encourage adults to develop skills that will increase their love and enjoyment of the outdoors. Enrollment fees range from $340 to $790. The specialized programs include:

- Exploring desert and badlands in California's Anza-Borrego State Park: April 23-May 1.
- Learning nature photography from two of America's best nature photographers in the mountains of Wyoming's Wind River Range and in Yellowstone National Park, June 11-19.
- Canoeing in Minnesota's Boundary

Waters Wilderness: July 9-16, 17-24, August 13-20, 21-28.

— Backpacking in Wyoming's Wind River Mountains: August 13-20.

— Developing environmental activist skills at Colorado State University under the direction of Audubon's Washington (D.C.) staff leaders: August 21-28.

— Studying aquatic ecology in Montana's Flathead Lake and Glacier National Park (university credit offered): September 17-25.

Triangle project detailed

Irvine coffers could grow $22 million

By KAREN E. KLEIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Irvine city officials and executives of the Irvine Co. have agreed on a proposal for construction of the "Golden Triangle" business and shopping center, to be one of the largest development complexes in the state.

The City Council and various city agencies must approve the development proposal before actual construction can proceed.

The Irvine Center, to be located between the Santa Ana, San Diego and Laguna Freeways, will be a 480-acre complex featuring a shopping center, office buildings and hotels. The price tag on the development will exceed $1 billion, officials said.

The agreement, announced yesterday, guarantees the city will be paid as much as $1 million a year by the Irvine Co. if sales taxes from the new center do not meet that figure.

The project is expected to unfold over a 25-year period, during which the Irvine Co. will guarantee $22 million in revenue to the city, said Paul Brady, Irvine's assistant city manager.

The Irvine Center project has been in the active planning stage for 26 months, Brady said, during which time a 14-member committee made up of city and Irvine Co. officials negotiated the details of the proposal.

The center will consist of 1.7 million square feet of commercial development, 4 million square feet of office space, 1 million square feet of hotel space and 240,000 square feet of general commercial space, Brady said.

The Irvine Co. will fund $80 million worth of improvements needed to operate the center.

The company will pay for $10 million in improvements to transportation in the area.

A $6 million interchange to be constructed between the Santa Ana Freeway and Alton Parkway will be the first step in the Irvine Center's development.

Schmitz will seek Congressional seat

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

John Schmitz, claiming his political career is neither ruined nor over, has decided to seek a central Orange County congressional seat, taking on Democrat Jerry Patterson.

Schmitz, reached at his Corona del Mar home, said he has received encouragement "from the pros" and promises of financial support for a 1984 run.

"Obviously there will be a lot of things aired that I don't like," said the former Republican state senator, "but the fact my wife and children are willing to put up with that shows I'm serious and that this whole thing is doable."

Patterson, a five-term representative from Santa Ana, is in the People's Republic of China on a congressional subcommittee trip and was not available for comment.

Schmitz agreed that some political watchdogs might be surprised by his decision to try a comeback. He lost badly last year in a bid for U.S. Senate.

The former senator, a conservative who has courted controversy and prided himself on being a political gadfly, left office last year amid reports he was the father of two illegitimate children. Schmitz has refused to discuss the matter.

Schmitz also was roundly criticized last year for statements that some interpreted as being anti-Semitic. The statement even led to Schmitz' ouster from the John Birch Society leadership.

"There are certain people who wish me out of politics, who've been ringing my death knell but the political pros disagree. I've checked it out. This isn't just some lark on my part."

Although the law does not require it, Schmitz said he likely would move into the 38th Congressional district after it is (See SCHMITZ, Page A2)

$50 million earmarked for job targeted for 1988

By JODI CADENHEAD
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Assemblyman Nolan Frizzelle announced today that $50 million in state transportation funds have been proposed for completion of the first phase of the Costa Mesa Freeway.

Meeting with reporters at the mouth of what is now a ditch, Frizzelle, R-Huntington Beach, said construction should begin within five years to pave the weed-choked depression along Newport Boulevard between Bristol and Bay streets in Costa Mesa.

The announcement comes five days before the California Department of Transportation is scheduled to release a draft environmental impact statement on eight alternatives for completion of the long-awaited freeway, which now ends just before Del Mar Avenue in Costa Mesa.

The construction funds are included in the proposed state Transportation Improvement Program that still faces final (See FREEWAY, Page A2)

Same bandit suspect in 3 bank holdups

Police say the same man appears to have robbed a Costa Mesa bank and a Huntington Beach savings and loan yesterday afternoon.

An FBI spokesman said the same robber also may have been responsible for a third holdup yesterday in Los Angeles.

Officers in Costa Mesa and Huntington Beach said descriptions of the robber and his method of operation were identical. The man fled with about $1,800 from the two local holdups, police said.

In the first incident, the man approached a teller at the Crocker National Bank, 2300 Harbor Blvd., Costa Mesa, at 12:41 p.m. He demanded that cash be placed into a bright orange knapsack. He fled with about $1,000, police said.

At 2:14 p.m., the same man approached a teller at American Savings and Loan, 7830 Edinger Ave., Huntington Beach, told her he had a concealed gun, and demanded cash. He fled with about $800.

No weapon was seen in either holdup.

The robber was described as a black man in his mid-20s, about 5 feet-9, with a short Afro haircut, wearing white jogging shorts, a blue shirt and a baseball cap. He carried the orange knapsack in both incidents, police said.

HB man sees 'explosive' mishap

Huntington Beach skier Bruce Holmblad was sitting in a chair lift above Squaw Valley yesterday when a portion of the 1960 Olympics ice rink collapsed.

"I heard one of the loudest explosions of my life," the 23-year-old beach resident said in a telephone interview from the popular ski resort.

Blythe Arena, the ice rink that showcased the 1960 Olympics, lost a football-field size section of rooftop shortly after noon, the result of tons of heavy, wet snow on its metal surface.

No one was inside the arena when the roof collapsed, echoing on nearby ski slopes "like a big sonic boom."

"The explosion sounded like 500 sticks of dynamite," Holmblad said.

From his aerial vantage point — 400 to 500 yards away — Holmblad said he could see debris bouncing off the floor of the ice rink which had been closed about an hour before.

An inspection of the rink four hours before the collapse prompted Squaw Valley officials to close the huge arena because the roof's steel support cables were visibly sagging.

The cave-in occurred an hour before the rink would normally have been open to the public, said Jim Mott, assistant general manager for the ski resort.

He said up to 300 skaters would have been on the ice during the busy Easter Week holiday.

Reagan offers to cut back missile deployment . . . 'If'

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan today offered to cut back on the planned deployment of new medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe if the Soviet Union agreed to reduce its arsenal of rockets targeted on NATO countries.

Even if the proposal is accepted, the United States would begin installing new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Europe late this year as scheduled, while the Soviet Union would be required to dismantle some of its medium-range weapons. The Kremlin's chief arms negotiator, asked about the offer, said, "I'm not optimistic."

Under the proposal, the Soviets would also have to cut their worldwide stock of intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

Corporate jet crash kills 2

NEWARK, N.J. — A corporate jet crashed after landing at Newark International Airport today and caught fire, killing two people and closing down the airport for about an hour, authorities said. The Lear-25 jet, bound from Chicago, had just touched down at 5:14 a.m. for what appeared to be a normal landing when it veered to the right, flipped over in a ditch and burst into flames, said control tower supervisor Jim Johnston. The dead were identified as the pilot, Brad Barnhart, 26, and Goran Hogberg, 25, both of Denver.

County revising food stamp system

Mail service to be abandoned in favor of distribution by private company

Qualified Orange County families who now receive food stamps by mail will have to pick them up at one of three county locations beginning as early as next July.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday agreed to open contract negotiations for a private, county-wide food-stamp distribution system with National Development Corp. of Los Angeles.

Terms of the contract would require the company to open distribution centers in Santa

Ana, the Anaheim-Fullerton area and the Huntington Beach-Garden Grove area.

The company, one of three that submitted bids for the distribution franchise, probably will offer check-cashing services and issue money orders as well as its county outlets, according to Steve Lewis, of the county Auditor-Controller's Office.

Lewis said it will cost the county about $166,500 to pay for the private distribution system, about 75 cents per transaction.

But switching to a private,

over-the-counter distribution system could save the county as much as $300,000 a year in stamps that now are lost in the mail.

Beginning in 1983, the federal government curtailed payments to counties for reimbursement of the cost of stamps lost in the mail. Supervisors voted last December to shift the distribution system from the U.S. mail to a private, over-the-counter system.

About $1.8 million worth of the stamps are mailed each month to some 20,000 qualified families around the county. The stamps — as good as cash — allow needy families to purchase groceries at reduced prices.

For the last several years, the county has lost about 2 percent of the food stamps mailed each month, Lewis said. The over-the-counter system is expected to minimize these losses.

However, stamps still will be sent by certified mail to handicapped persons, those who live more than 20 miles from a distribution center or in emergencies.

Northern California drenched

Hill slipping in Malibu; Orange Coast sun to stay awhile

By The Associated Press

A storm that pounded the North Coast with as much as 4.2 inches of rain in 24 hours drifted slowly south today and was expected to bring a strong chance of rain as far south as Monterey by tonight and tomorrow, capping a record-wet March.

The National Weather Service reported that 4.2 inches of rain had fallen at Honeydew in Humboldt County in the 24-hour period ended at 3 a.m. today, and 2.5 inches fell at Eureka.

Far smaller amounts of rain — less than 0.1 inch — were recorded in Marin and Lake counties.

Snow was forecast above the 6,000 foot level in the northern mountains and the northern Sierra, with a snow level above 8,000 feet Thursday in the southern Sierra.

Winds of 20 to 25 mph were expected to whistle in from the Pacific tonight over San Francisco and Monterey.

The March rainfall in San Francisco, where the weather service keeps data back to 1861, already has surpassed the previous record of 8.75 inches set in 1879.

Meanwhile, in Southern California, high atmospheric pressure probably will keep the area sunny and warm for the next several days, the National Weather Service said.

"The reason for the good weather is a high pressure system, and it should be with us for at least the next five days," said a weather service spokesman who declined to give his name.

Despite the warm weather, with highs in the upper 70s, smog levels should be relatively low and air quality good in all areas of the greater Los Angeles region except the San Gabriel and Pomona valleys, said the South Coast Air Quality Management District.

Retrial starts in HB child molesting case

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The retrial of a Huntington Beach man — a former Long Beach police officer — accused of child molestation began in Orange County Superior Court yesterday with testimony from three young girls who claim their neighbor repeatedly fondled them.

Michael McDonald, 42, is charged with multiple counts of child molestation stemming from alleged acts with six girls who visited his Cape Cottage Lane home over an 18-month period beginning in 1981.

The case is being retried because an earlier jury considering the charges deadlocked last September and was unable to deliver a verdict.

Three of the girls now aged 9 to 11, testified they frequently visited McDonald's home to play pinball. It was during these visits that McDonald, whom they called "Uncle Mike," fondled them, the three testified.

One of the girls told jurors she finally decided to tell her mother about the alleged acts because "we were getting tired of him

McDonald also is alleged to have shown some of the girls pornographic slides on a nickelodeon located in the home's gameroom, a converted garage.

During the first trial, the former motorcycle officer took the stand in his own defense and denied molesting any of the girls.

His attorney, Gary Pohlsen, then argued his client was a victim of a conspiracy concocted by several of the girls because they were angry with him, perhaps because he curtailed their pinball privileges.

San Miguel Park gets grooming

Seven years after it was dedicated, San Miguel Park in Newport Beach is about to lose its image as a dusty vacant lot.

The city, mostly with state money, is set to cover the barren 7 1/2-acre lot with grass and install basketball courts, bleachers and soccer and baseball fields this summer.

In all, $391,000 will be spent grooming the facility. About $116,000 is coming from the city's share of building excise tax. The rest is from state funds.

The park property has sat vacant for the last seven years because of lack of money and the increasing demand from cities for park money from the state, said Ron Whitley, the city's parks, beaches and recreation director.

The park is located at the intersection of Spyglass Hill Road and San Miguel Drive.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan today offered to cut back on the planned deployment of new medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe if the Soviet Union agreed to reduce its arsenal of rockets targeted on NATO countries.

Even if the proposal is accepted, the United States would begin installing new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Europe late this year as scheduled, while the Soviet Union would be required to dismantle some of its medium-range weapons. The Kremlin's chief arms negotiator, asked about the offer, said, "I'm not optimistic."

Under the proposal, the Soviets would also have to cut their worldwide stock of intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

Corporate jet crash kills 2

NEWARK, N.J. — A corporate jet crashed after landing at Newark International Airport today and caught fire, killing two people and closing down the airport for about an hour, authorities said. The Lear-25 jet, bound from Chicago, had just touched down at 5:14 a.m. for what appeared to be a normal landing when it veered to the right, flipped over in a ditch and burst into flames, said control tower supervisor Jim Johnston. The dead were identified as the pilot, Brad Barnhart, 26, and Goran Hogberg, 25, both of Denver.

Space shuttle to launch Monday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — At long last, the countdown is set to begin for the maiden launching of America's second space shuttle, the Challenger, which has been grounded for more than two months by engine leaks and contaminated cargo. Launch director Al O'Hara was ready to start the clock ticking today aiming for a liftoff at 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Barney Clark remembered as hero

FEDERAL WAY, Wash. — Barney Clark, laid to rest as a cold rain fell on 1,300 mourners, was eulogized as "our hero in this chapter of history" who blazed a medical trail with his artificial heart that thousands of patients will someday follow. "In time, 50,000 men and women per year will be restored to a worthwhile existence with the artificial heart in the United States alone," said Dr. Willem Kolff, director of the University of Utah Division of Artificial Organs, as Clark was buried yesterday near his home town.

Actress goes home after surgery

LOS ANGELES — Actress Barbara Bel Geddes, who underwent quadruple heart bypass surgery two weeks ago, went home from the hospital "in good spirits" yesterday, said a spokeswoman for Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. The 60-year-old Bel Geddes, who portrays the powerful matriarch of scheming Ewing family on the television series "Dallas," entered the hospital for tests March 12 after complaining of chest pains. Three days later, she suffered a major heart attack at the hospital and underwent the heart bypass operation.

County revising food stamp system

Mail service to be abandoned in favor of distribution by private company

Qualified Orange County families who now receive food stamps by mail will have to pick them up at one of three county locations beginning as early as next July.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday agreed to open contract negotiations for a private, county-wide food-stamp distribution system with National Development Corp. of Los Angeles.

Terms of the contract would require the company to open distribution centers in Santa

Ana, the Anaheim-Fullerton area and the Huntington Beach-Garden Grove area.

The company, one of three that submitted bids for the distribution franchise, probably will offer check-cashing services and issue money orders as well at its county outlets, according to Steve Lewis, of the county Auditor-Controller's Office.

Lewis said it will cost the county about $166,500 to pay for the private distribution system, about 75 cents per transaction.

But switching to a private,

over-the-counter distribution system could save the county as much as $300,000 a year in stamps that now are lost in the mail.

Beginning in 1983, the federal government curtailed payments to counties for reimbursement of the cost of stamps lost in the mail. Supervisors voted last December to shift the distribution system from the U.S. mail to a private, over-the-counter system.

About $1.8 million worth of the stamps are mailed each month to some 20,000 qualified families around the county. The stamps — as good as cash — allow needy families to purchase groceries at reduced prices.

For the last several years, the county has lost about 2 percent of the food stamps mailed each month, Lewis said. The over-the-counter system is expected to minimize these losses.

However, stamps still will be sent by certified mail to handicapped persons, those who live more than 20 miles from a distribution center or in emergencies.

Northern California drenched
Hill slipping in Malibu; Orange Coast sun to stay awhile

By The Associated Press

A storm that pounded the North Coast with as much as 4.2 inches of rain in 24 hours drifted slowly south today and was expected to bring a strong chance of rain as far south as Monterey by tonight and tomorrow, capping a record-wet March.

The National Weather Service reported that 4.2 inches of rain had fallen at Honeydew in Humboldt County in the 24-hour period ended at 3 a.m. today, and 2.5 inches fell at Eureka.

Far smaller amounts of rain — less than 0.1 inch — were recorded in Marin and Lake counties.

Snow was forecast above the 6,000 foot level in the northern mountains and the northern Sierra, with a snow level above 8,000 feet Thursday in the southern Sierra.

Winds of 20 to 25 mph were expected to whistle in from the Pacific tonight over San Francisco and Monterey.

The March rainfall in San Francisco, where the weather service keeps data back to 1861, already has surpassed the previous record of 8.75 inches set in 1879.

Meanwhile, in Southern California, high atmospheric pressure probably will keep the area sunny and warm for the next several days, the National Weather Service said.

"The reason for the good weather is a high pressure system, and it should be with us for at least the next five days," said a weather service spokesman who declined to give his name.

Despite the warm weather, with highs in the upper 70s, smog levels should be relatively low and air quality good in all areas of the greater Los Angeles region except the San Gabriel and Pomona valleys, said the South Coast Air Quality Management District.

Retrial starts in HB child molesting case

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The retrial of a Huntington Beach man — a former Long Beach police officer — accused of child molestation began in Orange County Superior Court yesterday with testimony from three young girls who claim their neighbor repeatedly fondled them.

Michael McDonald, 42, is charged with multiple counts of child molestation stemming from alleged acts with six girls who visited his Cape Cottage Lane home over an 18-month period beginning in 1981.

The case is being retried because an earlier jury considering the charges deadlocked last September and was unable to deliver a verdict.

Three of the girls now aged 9 to 11, testified they frequently visited McDonald's home to play pinball. It was during these visits that McDonald, whom they called "Uncle Mike," fondled them, the three testified.

One of the girls told jurors she finally decided to tell her mother about the alleged acts because "we were getting tired of him doing what he wasn't supposed to do."

McDonald also is alleged to have shown some of the girls pornographic slides on a nickelodeon located in the home's gameroom, a converted garage.

the stand in his own defense and denied molesting any of the girls.

His attorney, Gary Pohlson, then argued his client was a victim of a conspiracy concocted by several of the girls because they were angry with him, perhaps because he curtailed their pinball privileges.

The beautiful red ruby is the most prestigious of all colored gemstones. It is a product of the steamy jungles of the Far East, although a few specimens are found in other areas of the world. The source of the most beautiful (and thus most valuable) rubies has always been Burma. The Burmese ruby has the special, rich, dark red hue that is produced nowhere else in the world. Rubies of a pale tint come from Sri Lanka and Thailand. These are normally referred to as "pink rubies," or as "pink sapphires." Nature produces the ruby when the mineral corundum (which is an aluminum oxide) gets contaminated by traces of chromium. If some titanium is also present, it produces a fine "needling" effect in the stone, and the ruby becomes a "star ruby." There have been many attempts over the years to produce synthetic rubies. The Frenchman Verneuil invented a synthetic ruby that was used in jeweled Swiss watches and in other industrial applications. In recent years, there have been some more realistic synthetic rubies produced. Their value, of course, is far below that of the real thing. A reputable jeweler can easily point out the differences between the synthetic and the real ruby.

GM plans Southland auto design center

By The Associated Press THOUSAND OAKS — In an effort to capitalize on California car-buying trends, General Motors Corp. plans to open an automotive design center here, the company announced.

"With this location, we feel we will be able to better sense California trends in order to develop vehicles that will meet the needs of the West Coast population," GM Vice Chairman Howard Kehl said.

The design center will employ about 50 people when it opens, possibly late this summer, at a 22,000-square-foot office building, GM officials said.

GM has retained an overall 31 percent share of the Southern California car market for the last decade.

However, the Detroit-based company has only been able to capture about 10 percent of the small-car market while imports accounted for 52 percent of Southern California's overall car sales in 1982 and more than 80 percent of small-car sales.

Brannif wants joint venture

LOS ANGELES — Although Braniff Airways' attempt to lease jets to PSA Inc. recently collapsed, the airline is approaching other companies about possible joint ventures to fly Braniff aircraft, a company official said.

"We are continuing to look at the possibility of operating some limited number of aircraft" either in a joint venture with another airline or independently," said Robert Ferguson, vice president and treasurer of the Dallas-based Braniff.

He said, however, that joint-venture talks "haven't gotten that far."

Earlier this month, the San Diego-based PSA airline backed out of a plan to lease Braniff jets and form a new, low-fare Texas airline division.

LOS ANGELES — Alexander Tishman, one of five brothers who developed the Tishman Realty & Construction Co., has died at age 91.

Tishman, who in 1928 became treasurer of the firm founded by his father in 1898, died last Friday in New York City.

The firm is probably best known in Los Angeles for development of the mid-Wilshire area. The company currently controls 8 million square feet of building space in the West.

Housing sales dip 'temporary'

SAN DIEGO — A $171.9 million Defense Department contract for the production of 142 Tomahawk cruise missiles was awarded yesterday to the Convair Division of General Dynamics.

Jack Isabel, spokesman for the San Diego Convair division, said the contract is for both Navy sea-launched and Air Force ground-launched missiles. He said there would be no increase in the Convair work force of 3,700 that is working on missile production.
