STATISTICAL BULLETIN NO. 249

MAY 1959

AGRICULTURAL MARKETING SERVICE
U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

INTRODUCTION

The conduct of their affairs requires farmers and businessmen continually to make and review economic choices. To the greatest possible extent, these choices should be based on fact, rather than upon supposition. Economic statistics are an aid in the disclosure of the facts on which operating decisions are made. This book brings together under one cover a wide variety of such data that relate to the egg and poultry industry.

This bulletin is the most comprehensive U.S.D.A. publication devoted entirely to poultry and related economic statistics issued since 1937. Most of the statistical series published here were developed in the Agricultural Marketing Service, the agency of the Department that provides basic statistical coverage for various lines of agriculture. Additional series were compiled by the Agricultural Research Service, by the Foreign Agricultural Service and by other agencies of the Department of Agriculture, as well as by the Bureau of the Census, the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and nongovernmental groups.

The first chapter presents in capsule form a statistical introduction to the egg and poultry industry in the United States. It gives a bird's eye view of the poultry industry's importance, growth and distribution. The other chapters present detailed statistics for each of the important types of information that are available. For many of the U. S. series the complete historical record is included. In addition, State or area statistics are presented for selected years, to provide a measure of changes through the years in the importance of individual States and to indicate shifts within the United States in the relative importance of various producing areas.

Data compiled by the Bureau of the Census provide a valuable supplement to the AMS series. They furnish a basis for measuring the distribution of production by number and size of units and by counties, and they show how these distributions have changed over time. For these reasons, Census data are listed here in considerable detail, though these totals in some instances differ somewhat from comparable U.S.D.A. estimates.

Each table in this publication indicates the source for current data. This permits users of the book to obtain current information, as well as possible revisions, for the series in which they are most interested.

The format and content of tables were developed by members of an AMS group which evolved from a committee originally appointed to prepare the book. The group consists of Herman Bluestone, Richard Brueckner, Harold Edwards, Fred Faber, Robert Moats, John Stiles, and Edward Karpoff, chairman.

^{1/} For complete set of factors used in computing distribution of eggs and poultry meat see table 12.5.
^{2/} Total production of eggs consists of the estimated farm output plus an allowance for nonfarm egg production.
^{3/} Data on storage stocks include only holdings of shell and frozen eggs through 1942. Data on year-end holdings of dried eggs prior to 1943 are not available. ^{4/} Import data consist of shell eggs and the approximate shell-egg equivalent of dried and frozen eggs. ^{5/} Export data include shell eggs only prior to 1941, but the quantities in other forms not reported were small. ^{6/} Civilian per capita only, beginning 1941. ^{7/} Entries for these years do not balance because storage losses have not been shown under distribution. These losses amounted to 16 million dozen in 1944, 2 in 1945, 4 in 1948, 2 in 1949 and 1 in 1950. ^{8/} Includes quantities transferred from USDA stocks for civilian feeding: 1948, 21 million pounds dried (63 million dozen); 1949, 703,000 pounds dried (2 million dozen).

^{1/} Based on unadjusted population eating out of civilian supplies.
^{2/} Monthly totals do not necessarily add to yearly figures due to rounding.
^{3/} Liquid, frozen, and dried egg (egg solids) converted to shell egg equivalent.
^{4/} Civilian per capita disappearance is slightly overstated because some shell egg purchases by USDA were subsequently processed into frozen or dried egg and diverted from shell supply.
^{5/} This entry computes out to 20.2 eggs, which probably is a considerable understatement of the actual disappearance.
^{6/} Preliminary.

Data published currently in the Poultry and Egg Situation.

1/ For the complete set of factors used in computing distribution of eggs and poultry meat see table 12.5.
2/ The estimated total output of chicken in the United States is based on the estimated quantity consumed on farms and the quantity sold from farms, with an addition to these two items to allow for nonfarm production. Total output beginning 1934 also includes the estimated production of commercial broilers.
3/ Prior to 1933 stocks include all poultry other than turkey; beginning 1933 ducks have been reported separately and are also excluded.
4/ Data in terms of reported product weights.
5/ Includes exports of turkey.
6/ Civilian per capita consumption beginning 1941.
7/ Excluding only blood and feathers. Series now discontinued.
8/ Includes giblets.
9/ Includes 57 million pounds (14 million pounds canned) transferred to UNRRA in 1946.
10/ Adjusted for transfer of 57 million pounds of Army stocks to UNRRA.

^{1/} For conversion factors that approximate current industry yields, see table 17.1. The above factors follow the same trend as the industry yields, but their year-to-year changes are smoothed considerably so that changes will not induce abrupt difference in the computation of the annual average per capita consumption of the poultry products. ^{2/} Blood and feathers removed. ^{3/} Excluding head, feet, and inedible viscera. ^{4/} Allowances for nonfarm production are necessary for computing average per capita consumption. At the rate of 1 percentage point per year, the USDA computations on this point are moving toward the 5-percent level suggested in Statistical Bulletin 183. The adjustment to that level is being made gradually in order to permit reasonable year-to-year comparability in the per capita figures.
