SEX SCANDAL ROCKS EASTVILLE JAILHOUSE

By Linda Cicaira

A female correctional officer and a male inmate at the Eastern Shore Regional Jail professed their love for one another in telephone conversations recorded by the facility last fall. They spent time alone together in his cell after the jail was locked down, kissed and had sex, the officer admitted to an investigator.

The details were revealed on a CD included with documents filed in Northampton Circuit Court. The officer, Maria Owens, 43, who was living in Parksley, told her alleged lover during a phone call monitored by police, it wasn't the first time she had a relationship with a prisoner during her 13 years with the Northampton County Sheriff's Office (NCSO).

She was fired from her job on Nov. 1, 2017. Two weeks later, Owens was indicted on counts of carnal knowledge "without force, threat or intimidation" of Jodecii Kiiwaan Purnell, 26, of Westover, Md., on Oct. 23, and providing Purnell with a cell phone in the jail on Oct. 17.

Her trial was scheduled for Monday, but was continued until March 19. She is free on her own recognizance.

"All I can do is hold my head up high," Owens said during an interview with Investigator Michelle Hallette of the NCSO. "I'm not going to beat myself up ... I don't want anyone here at the jail to think bad of me... you've known me all these years.

I don't want nobody to judge me. I made a mistake. I had a weak moment."

She admitted to bringing him a cell phone, but said he no longer has it. "I threw it away," she said when asked for it or the number. "I always talk to the inmates. ... I guess we talked more about his family ... his kids ... his life ... and it continued from there."

Owens admitted to having sexual intercourse and oral sex with Purnell. She denied bringing him drugs or cigarettes. Owens said no one else at the jail knew about the relationship and she understood why it was not permitted. "I feel that a CO (correctional officer) might protect that person ... and drop their guard around other stuff ... focus not be where it should be ... so security goes out the door."

Owens said she had been "talking" over the last month. "I wish I had never done it." She regrets "letting my guard down, putting my career (in jeopardy) for someone that doesn't care. ... My career is gone now. All the hard work. ... I don't have any (feelings for him) right now. I had so much hope here."

Owens complained about favoritism among staff and said deputies need to use clear bags to carry their belongings into the jail, instead of duffle bags, like they do at a prison, where her sister

Cheriton Mayor Resigns

By Stefanie Jackson

Joseph Habel resigned as mayor of Cheriton last month, leaving council on their own to hash out their "differences of opinion" on the town's new police department.

Habel's resignation letter, dated Feb. 12, 2018, 6:30 p.m., handwritten on yellow, lined notepaper and addressed to the town and council, stated simply, "I, Joseph Habel, resign as of this date."

He later cited "irreconcilable differences" with council as the reason for his departure. Habel believes he "took the high road" by resigning, to "make it easier" for council to work through their issues with one another.

Habel and certain unnamed council members have been at odds since Oct. 9, when the police department started. Some immediately wanted it disbanded, Habel said.

Adding to the conflict was Habel's outside work commitments, which kept him out of town between October and January. An attempt to participate in a town meeting by video chat was unsuccessful.

The last town meeting Habel attended was a budget work session held Feb. 7, during which his strained relationship with council was called out. Resident Ken Eshleman asked, "Should the mayor be out of town? Is his heart and soul here?" When Habel is absent, Eshleman continued, "does town business get conducted as if the mayor was here?"

Carol Habel read a letter stating there were "rumors floating around town regarding council conduct," according to meeting minutes.

There were questions about the new police department, established about four months prior, and led by Chief Marc Marshall, who left the security of his job on the Exmore police force to accept the new position.

Nancy Brauer said the police department had her full support, fulfilling goals

New Chincoteague Water Park To Make A Splash Memorial Day Weekend

DEQ TO INVESTIGATE CONTAMINATED WATERS COMPLAINT

By Linda Cicoiria

The state Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) will investigate a complaint of contaminated waters around an old oyster house and in lagoons on the property of a Sanford man, who was recently cited for dumping 120 tons of debris there.

District 4 Supervisor Paul Muhly wrote to the agency last week to report the allegations that were made to him by local residents. He also told of kerosene-smelling water from a well close to Lance Fisher's Shad Landing Road tract.

"You provided sufficient information in your email that I will fill out a pollution report for you and we will have our staff investigate as we would any other complaint," agency lawyer and enforcement specialist, Russell F. Deppe, wrote to Muhly. "In situations such as these, access to the property can be an issue and would be something we would need to secure from the property owner prior to entering the property, especially the lagoon area as it is not even visible from the road."

"As far as the drinking water well is concerned, DEQ does not regulate drinking water wells," Deppe continued. "The Virginia Department of Health regulates drinking water wells, and you can contact that agency with your concerns. DEQ is responsible for inspecting underground and above ground petroleum storage tanks, and would evaluate whether or not a release has occurred and whether or not the tank owner is complying with the relevant environmental regulations. In the present case a review of department records does not show any petroleum storage tanks registered to Fishers or on Shad Landing Road," Deppe wrote.

"I understand your concerns regarding the iridescent film trails in the water near the Fisher property, and the possibility of improper disposal in the lagoons," the agency representative continued. "However, absent an actual observation by DEQ staff, an observable formal complaint or information, our staff has no way of knowing that these potential issues exist."

Deppe recommended the concerned residents fill out a pollution report at <http://www.deq.virginia.gov/programs/pollutionresponsepreparedness/pollutionreportingform>

Jon Richardson, of the Eastern Shore Health District, read the letter and said the DEQ is the lead state agency when it comes to investigating suspected ground water contamination. The area where the dumping occurred is about a couple of thousand feet from the closest residence, Richardson said after reading a recent story in the Post, and going to the site.

"I don't have the authority to just go knocking on doors," Richardson said. "Once they, (the owner or renter), would reach out to us, they would have to file a complaint that we could follow up on."

"We do regulate and we do permit," he continued. "If we have a specific circumstance, we will do what we can to try and have them figure out" what to do next "or we will have them contact a well driller to help them look into it." Richardson said there is a big difference between the smell of sulfur in water and the smell of kerosene or fuel.

Residents told Muhly that machinery at the oyster house leaked hydraulic fluid and that the site is still being used for "overboard dumping of fluids." Some have also told him that garbage, including old cars, have been dumped in the two man-made ponds on the site.

More than a dozen complaints have been filed regarding the resolution of Fisher's dump. Along with Muhly, The Waste Watchers, a non-profit, anti-litter, volunteer, community group that promotes responsible disposal of waste on the Eastern Shore, is opposed to the waiver of a $13,500 civil penalty for Fisher based on his income.

The DEQ said the consent order and investigation included pieces of concrete block and charred wood Fisher was told to clean up at the waterfront about .28 miles from the first dump site.

"Fisher indicated that this material was from the demolition of a structure on the property and that it would be properly disposed of along with" the waste at the first site, according to the consent order.

Fisher violated four sections of state code, the order stated. On Nov. 9, DEQ staff inspected the properties and found the issues had been corrected. Fisher was presented the consent order on Nov. 6. He claimed an inability to pay on Nov. 9. He filled out the proper forms through DEQ's Office of Financial Responsibility & Waste Programs on Nov. 20. About a month later, the office accepted his claim.

and objectives outlined in Cheriton's comprehensive plan.

Glen Richardson submitted a letter by email read into the public record. "The Cheriton Police Department is not only a symbol of public service and safety for the town, it is also a vital resource to community growth, property security, and a hallmark to be utilized to bring in industry and business to the town," he wrote, calling its formation "one of the great changes" he has seen in the town over the past 40 years.

"To cut the department is to become dependent on the county and take away the very pride of being a resident of the town of Cheriton," Richardson added.

Not all town residents and officials offered unwavering approval of the new police department. Eshleman questioned whether the salary and benefits of Cheriton law enforcement had been explained, if operating the department would cost the town $150,000 - which has a population of less than 500 - and whether the town budget supported it.

Habel said Cheriton's police force was started with less than $50,000, and has always been included in the town budget.

During the work session preceding the public portion of the meeting, Habel admitted the police department had created budget problems, according to the minutes.

Attorney John Burdiss stated that since the budget changed by more than 1 percent, it needed to be amended. Habel later clarified that the amendment was not related to the formation of the police department. Council Member Norma Spencer motioned to amend the budget, seconded by Council Member Wesley Travis and approved unanimously.

Habel resigned five days later.

Cheriton Town Council held a special meeting Feb. 20 to recognize Habel's resignation.

Another special meeting was held Feb. 26, to appoint an interim mayor.

During public comment, Johnny Carstens said the interim mayor should be a current Cheriton council member; former councilman Larry Leonard was chosen.

On May 1, Cheriton will elect a new mayor and six council members. Habel had decided, prior to his resignation, not to pursue a second term.

DOG PARK PLANS PUT ON SHORT LEASH

By Linda Cicaira

Plans to establish a dog park at Donald Leonard Park, across from Chincoteague High School, were nixed Monday night when Mayor Arthur Leonard broke a 3-3 tie to rescind a previous town council action that approved it temporarily.

The panel then voted unanimously to have Town Manager Jim West investigate the nearby Hallie Whealton Smith property as an alternative for the dogs.

Memorial Park was considered for the canine venture in February and also failed.

"I wish this dog park was on the moon because I think it's the only place that's going to please everybody," said Vice Mayor Denise Bowden. "Nobody wants it in their backyard, in their side yard. ... We've gone back and forth for two years. That's all we've talked about" in the Parks and Recreation Committee, she said.

Bowden and council members Eddie Lewis and Gene Wayne Taylor were opposed to rescinding the plan. Members Jim Frese, Ellen Richardson and Ben Ellis were in favor.

"Apparently, it's not as simple as it looks on the surface," Leonard said. "It's not that simple."

"The only place I haven't heard any neighbors complain is Hallie Whealton," Frese said.

Earlier in the meeting, Mary Ann Robinson, who lives on Main Street near Leonard Park, asked the council to "find a better place to put it." She complained it would cause more pollution. "People come to see the sunset, play golf, fly kites, sunbathe and read. Before this meeting, I called seven of the prominent hotels, none were animal friendly."

Bowden also discussed the need for a doctor on the island, but said without support of a hospital or agency, it is too expensive for a physician. "Software alone costs between $50,000 and $60,000," she said.

After Peninsula Regional Medical Center in Salisbury, Md., pulled its support, Leonard said a meeting with Riverside did not go favorably.

On another subject, West reported meeting with NASA after a second well test was done on property the town is considering for purchase for town wells. He said NASA was willing to replace wells or "whatever it takes to replace that capacity," but would not help with purchasing the property, West said.

"It was NASA that put us in this position," Bowden said. "Put some pressure on them to make it right for us."

Problems with the quality of town water were reported last year due to firefighting testing done by NASA near wells on Wallops Island.

Town Council Donation To Help Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company

Chincoteague's volunteer fire company got help from town officials Monday when the council unanimously "donated" more than $30,000 in water line connection fees for the new firehouse under construction on Deep Hole Road.

The move skirted Councilman Jim Frese's stance that waiving the fee was not allowed according to a Chincoteague ordinance. Councilman Gene Wayne Taylor suggested the ordinance committee could take another look at the rule. Taylor later said the panel should donate the money to get around the ordinance.

The issue caused some raised voices and at one point Mayor Arthur Leonard told Frese in no uncertain terms he would not allow the fire company to be questioned about their ladies' auxiliary being disbanded during the session.

Chincoteague town council donated more than $30,000 in water line connection fees to help with the fire company's new firehouse construction.

"We're not opening that can of worms," Leonard said. "That is their business not our business. We will not open this up at this meeting."

The mayor went on to argue that the town could not afford to offer the services the fire company provides or to pay for the equipment needed by the unit. He also said the majority of the townspeople would favor action to support the fire company.

Fire company officials talked of a seemingly unending list of expenses including $460,000 for a new fire truck, the first in 15 years that was needed so that fire insurance would not increase for islanders, and $205,000 for a new ambulance that cost another $50,000 in insurance, and did not include the many pieces of equipment needed for the vehicle to get on the road. A stretcher, for example, costs $15,000.

Fire Chief Harry Thornton said the company could be looking at the new station costing "$6 million by the time we get done." He said the $30,000 was unforeseen and "could be detrimental to something else we definitely need." The firefighters just assumed since they have never had to pay for town water, as a non-profit, that they wouldn't have to pay for the connection, which is mandated.

Vice Mayor Denise Bowden, who is also a fire company member, said when people are transported by ambulance, "You don't always get that money. Some people don't have insurance or can't pay." She said $50,000 was written off last year. Another firefighter said the figure was about $600,000 in the last 12 to 15 years.

"We've got some very serious problems staring us in the face," said Frese. "The (real estate) assessments have not gone down here as much as in the county. Why do we care if their assessment goes down?" he asked and then answered, "They raise the tax rate."

"That's just one thing," Frese continued. "We have obligated ourselves to research on the sewage line coming up on Maddox for $213,000 and another $50,000 tacked onto that. Older folks on fixed incomes, what we do will directly affect them. You can't spend $213,000 and not have an impact."

In the end, the town council voted unanimously to overlook the water connection fee by donating the funds.

NEW POULTRY HOUSES PROJECTED BY 2023

By Linda Cicora

Nearly 580 poultry houses are projected to be in Accomack County by 2023, according to a presentation made to the planning commission last week. With the new construction, despite a decrease in property values, an increase in tax revenue is expected for those properties.

The slide show was a “teaser” to the 2018 Poultry Monitoring Report expected to be completed by staff next week. Commissioners gave input, and then on Monday, went on a tour of local facilities.

Thirty-eight poultry houses are projected between 2018 and 2023. Fifteen have pending applications this year. About 240 new houses were approved between 2014 and 2017 and 284 houses are from before 2014.

“According to the 2012 Census of Agriculture for Accomack County, the market value of poultry and their products is $112,419,000 and ranks fourth in the state in poultry production,” the preliminary report stated. There are more than 4,000 jobs associated with the poultry industry locally. The 2017 census has not yet been released.

Properties where the poultry houses were built were examined to determine tax revenue impact. Two examples were Ish Farm LLC, valued at $193,600 in 2014. At $2,160,200 in the recent assessment, the increase in local real estate taxes is $13,177. Elahi LLC was valued at $84,600 in 2014 and jumped to $1,368,800 recently for an increase of $8,350 in taxes.

In 2016, the Virginia Institute of Marine Science (VIMS) in Wachapreague and Virginia Tech Agricultural Research Extension Center in Painter received funding for a study entitled, “Poultry Expansion on the Eastern Shore of Virginia: A Public Education Project on Regional Poultry Impacts.”

The project is about potential nitrogen and phosphorus in waterways, emerging technologies to assist nutrient handling and other relevant issues. Modeled after a Delaware study, there were delays receiving data from there, the presentation stated, and it is unclear when it will be finished.

The Delmarva Land & Litter Challenge, an organization formed in 2015, with participation from the Delmarva Poultry Industry, the agricultural community, environmental groups, regulatory agencies, and academic organizations, is tasked with developing new approaches to effectively tackling poultry litter challenges and to identify ways to protect local waterways.

The presentation stated, the group is studying poultry litter transport programs and developed a model that includes eliminating duplicate enforcement or oversight provisions within state programs and encouraging farmers to use available programs and create new record keeping systems to identify eligible participants.

Groundwater withdrawal for the poultry facilities has gotten a lot of attention in recent weeks. In February, “Tyson (Foods) representatives announced that they intend to pull cooling water from the upper aquifer where possible on poultry operations where wells have not yet drilled.

They also suggested that they were going to try to retrofit some of the recently completed poultry operations,” the planning report stated. “In both instances, site groundwater conditions, availability and reliability of the upper aquifer, will determine feasibility. Tyson did not announce that it would be pulling its consumption, drinking water, from the upper aquifer.”

Northampton Comprehensive Planning Review

By Stefanie Jackson

The review of Northampton's comprehensive plan begins nearing completion under new leadership, with Mark Freeze replacing Jackie Chatmon as chair of the county planning commission. Chatmon remains a member on the commission, and her term is effective through June 30, 2021. Freeze's term expires June 30, 2018, and he will need to be re-appointed to see the comprehensive plan review through to completion.

Virginia law requires county comprehensive plans to be reviewed every five years. The current review of Northampton's comprehensive plan has been ongoing since 2014, or about four years. County citizens and stakeholders have communicated their impatience in public comments submitted to the planning commission. In January, Spencer Murray, chairman of Northampton's board of supervisors, said he hoped the plan draft would be complete by the end of July. He also offered, "if appropriate," for supervisors to give the planning commission "additional guidance" to expedite the project's completion.

The two groups took the first step towards that collaboration when Freeze spoke to supervisors Feb. 26 on the planning commission's progress with the comprehensive plan.

Freeze said the plan has been updated with "plain language" to make it more "readable" for the general public. Grammar and spelling errors that appeared throughout the document have been corrected. The plan has been fact-checked and updated with the most recent data available. There are still about 50 county "goals and objectives" that need to be addressed in the comprehensive plan, he said.

Freeze responded to negative feedback the planning commission has received from citizens, saying, "There's not anybody on this committee that doesn't have the best interests of Northampton County in mind." He believes some citizens who have criticized the comprehensive plan misunderstand the difference between "what's a plan and what's a zoning ordinance." The comprehensive plan has "no force of law," Freeze clarified.

Though public comments are allowed at every monthly open session, whenever the planning commission reviews the comprehensive plan, "there's not another soul in the room," Freeze said.

Supervisor David Fauber responded, "I think it's difficult for somebody to come up there and express everything they want to in a three-minute speech. ... You all are talking about things, and people would like to join in, in that conversation. ... When I was on the planning commission, I said, we ought to have a 20-minute roundtable during our meetings when people can comment as we're discussing (the comprehensive plan)."

"Give (the finished draft) to the general public and we can have some informational sessions," Freeze answered. He indicated to Supervisor John Coker that another stakeholder review may be held.

Murray confronted Freeze about the "negative tone" of the comprehensive plan. "When I read it, it sounds like we're going to be bankrupt. We don't have any schools, we don't have any jobs, we don't have any workforce."

Freeze acknowledged one major advantage the county has in its favor: Cape Charles and Exmore "are open and ready for business," the only towns in Northampton with the infrastructure - including sewer service - to support new businesses.

Murray closed the discussion with a quote about Northampton's goal to "pursue and establish a diversified economic base by supporting agriculture, seafood production, tourism, and industry, compatible with the goals and objectives of the county's comprehensive plan" - from a copy of Northampton's 1994 comprehensive plan he rescued before it was discarded.

"What we need is leadership, what we need is vision. We need doers. We need people on commissions and boards (who) will work with us. ... The plan is insight. Action is creating those economic engines that allow us to do the other things that we want to do," Murray said, before thanking Freeze for his efforts.

Nassawadox Man Pleads Guilty

A Nassawadox man pleaded guilty Monday in Northampton Circuit Court to unlawful wounding, a felony and misdemeanor child abuse involving an 8-year-old boy.

Anthony Eric Andrews, 29, who was living in the Budget Inn with his girlfriend, and her son, admitted he punched the child in the face and then choked the boy.

Initially he was charged with malicious wounding, felony child abuse and assault and battery of a family member.

Commonwealth's Attorney Beverly Leatherbury said the latter charge will not be prosecuted and she reduced the two other counts in exchange for the guilty plea. She recommended a five-year prison term with all suspended for wounding, 12 months in jail with nine months suspended for child abuse, good behavior for five years, undetermined probation and supervision for a minimum of a year.

Judge Frederick Lowe accepted the agreement. Andrews was remanded to jail.

In another case, Shane Michael Rooney, 26, of Barto, Pa., was treated under the first-offender statute for possession of meth on Sept. 23, 2017, which is a felony. A count of possession of marijuana was not prosecuted.

Lowe said the case would be continued for a year. He ordered Rooney to perform 100 hours of community service, be on supervised probation with drug screenings, and remain drug free.

Maryland Woman Held Without Bond

A Maryland woman is being held without bond in Accomack County Jail after admitting to being the driver of a car in a single-vehicle traffic accident last weekend.

Kenesha La Starr Scarborough, 33, of Bradley Court in Pocomoke City, is accused of assault and battery of Trooper P. Glenn Neal and Trooper M. Blakenship, DWI, obstruction of justice, and driving while intoxicated with three of her children ages 8, 8, and 11.

Results of a breathalyzer showed .10 grams per liter of breath. The legal limit is .08. She denied drinking but an officer "smelled a strong odor of alcohol coming from the accused." A preliminary hearing is scheduled for April.

In another case, Nicole Faye Thornes, 45, of Upshur's Neck Road in Quinby, was charged with uttering a forged document on Feb. 1, 2018. She was arrested March 4. Secured bond was set at $1,000. Cpl. C. Hodgson of ACSO investigated.

New Brand Promotion Efforts A Big Hit for Eastern Shore of Virginia Tourism Commission

By Stefanie Jackson

Efforts by the Eastern Shore of Virginia Tourism Commission to promote the Eastern Shore brand have resulted in its website getting more than six times as many hits in 2017 compared to five years ago.

Kerry Allison, the commission's executive director, shared this and other tourism information in a report to Exmore Town Council March 5.

Widely circulated data from the Virginia Tourism Corporation states $273.7 million was spent by tourists on the Eastern Shore in 2016, generating $7.5 million in meals, sales, and transient occupancy taxes. Less known are the details of tourist spending and its impact on the local economy, and the local tourism commission's involvement in the Shore becoming one of the fastest growing tourism regions in the state.

From 2011 to 2016, visitor spending on the Eastern Shore rose 22 percent, and from 2013 to 2016, local tax revenues rose 18 percent. This increased visitor spending helps support 3,034 tourism-related jobs, whose number increased 17 percent during the same period. The number of jobs in tourism includes part time and seasonal positions. In a five-year period, payroll for tourism-related jobs increased 29 percent.

The Eastern Shore of Virginia Tourism Commission is deeply involved in marketing the Shore. In 2017, it made 2 million digital ad impressions while attracting 272,821 hits on its website and blog - nearly 236,000, or 75 percent, were unique visits.

"Food" was the number-one interest of visitors who saw one or more of the tourism commission's 129 media stories released last year. It published 25 stories on its blog, generating 36,884 hits. The top blog post was "Annual Fests for Foodies," attracting 11,745 views.

Hits originated from as near as Cape Charles, many were from across the Chesapeake Bay in Virginia Beach, Newport News, Norfolk, Suffolk, and Chesapeake, while others were as far away as Richmond, Washington, D.C., and even Charlottesville, N.C., and New York City.

Internet searchers are also interested in outdoor activities on the Shore. Agritourism is a "huge phenomenon," Allison said, which attracts city dwellers to rural locales like the Eastern Shore. Tourists who may have never visited a farm before seek experiences like gathering their own eggs for breakfast, for example.

The tourism commission's top Facebook post, which got 1,000 hits, was "Glamping on the Eastern Shore," which Allison explained means, "glamorous camping" - with some modern amenities, as opposed to a rustic camping experience. The organization has 22,620 followers and has made 3.1 million impressions on Facebook.

It is also active on Instagram and YouTube, in its effort to reach the 29- to 44-year-old age category. The tourism commission's Instagram account has 1,724 followers, and its top photo has 296 likes. Its YouTube videos have been viewed 26,153 times, of which "Secrets of the Sewansecott Oyster" is the most popular.

Google is the search engine of choice for people looking for information about the Shore. When searching for "Eastern Shore of Virginia," the tourism commission's website is the top result, followed by Wikipedia's entry on the region and a Huffington Post article about the top ten things to do here.

The tourism commission's digital advertising targeted the topics, "Mid Atlantic" and "Food & Wine," generating 681,000 impressions and 1,020 clicks. Its email marketing campaign reaches 20,000 people annually.

The ESVA Visitor Guide is available at 128 locations in Virginia. Since 2015, demand for the print version has dropped, but has risen for the online version, which can be viewed at www.esvatourism.org by clicking on "Get A Guide," then, "View A Virtual Guide." It's viewable in fullscreen mode, with 48 full-color, "flippable" pages.

Exmore gave $2,500 to the Eastern Shore of Virginia Tourism Commission in 2017, and will likely match that contribution this year.

John Kellam Lingo

Dr. John Kellam Lingo passed away at home on Feb. 16, 2018, just 19 days before his 101st birthday. He will be remembered for his generosity and love for his family; his passion for practicing medicine and his compassion for his patients; his delight in playing golf and cards with his friends; his quick wit; and his devotion to the University of Virginia.

Dr. Lingo was an Eastern Shore of Virginia native and the fourth generation of medical doctors in his family. He was born in Pungoteague, and graduated from Central High School. He was a graduate of both the undergraduate and the medical school (1942) of the University of Virginia. He was a member of the Compass Rose Society, UVA Health System's most prestigious donor society which benefits the School of Medicine, the School of Nursing, the Claude Moore Health Science Library, and the UVA Medical Center.

He served as a lieutenant with the U.S. Navy in World War II from 1942 to 1947, serving in U.S. naval hospitals in Philadelphia, Portsmouth, and San Diego, Calif. He served in the Marshall Islands as a physician and surgeon for about a dozen LCI (landing craft infantry). The best part of the war was meeting and marrying, in 1946, the beautiful navy nurse, Lt. Cmdr. Hilda Sinclair Jervis, "Jeri," of North Carolina. She remained by his side, faithful and steadfast forever cheering him on until her death in 2003. They were married 57 years.

After the war, he was given many opportunities to begin his medical practice. After narrowing his selections down he chose Mobile, Ala., because he was so impressed with the format, a telegram, which was sent to him. He joined Dr. J.D. Perdue, Dr. Gayle Johnson, and Dr. Henry Dismukes in what is now known as the Premier Medical Group of Mobile. In 1947, he became the youngest partner of this respected and recognized group; he practiced ophthalmology and otolaryngology for 50 years. During this time he demonstrated his commitment to his community by serving as president of the Alabama Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology; president of the Mobile Infirmary Staff; and president of the Doctors Hospital staff. He was a member of the Medical Society of Mobile; the American Medical Association of the State of Alabama; the American Academy of Ophthalmology; the American Society of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology Allergy; the Alabama Academy of Ophthalmology; and the Southern Medical Association. His medical practice was always a pleasure and a privilege to him.

Upon his arrival in 1947 to Mobile, until his death in 2018, he was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Prior to 1947, he was a member of St. George's Episcopal Church in Pungoteague. It was important to him to participate in the sacraments and to worship God. He was a member of the Mobile Country Club; delighting in his 160 yard hole-in-one on #8 of the golf course. He also enjoyed his membership in the Knights of Revelry Mystic Society and in 1968 escorted his daughter in leading the ball. Dr. Lingo was preceded in death by his wife of 57 years, Jeri; his second wife of 9 years, Dolores R. Burns; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Benjamin Lingo (Lucy Kellam); his brother, James Benjamin Lingo; and his sister, Lucy Lingo Phillips.

He is survived by his daughters, Susan Lingo Warren (Joseph), of Point Clear, Ala.; Betsey Lingo Wooten, of Mobile; Lucy Lingo Hopkins (Chris), of Dallas; and Jane Lingo Clark (Earl), of Mobile; his grandchildren, Jennifer Warren Evans (Parker), of Birmingham, Ala.; Meredith Warren Rice (Chris), of Point Clear; J. Kellam Warren (Suzanne), of Asheville, N.C.; Jessica Hopkins Suarez (German), of Dallas; Haley Elizabeth Hopkins, of Dallas; William Tyler Clark, of Birmingham; and Chelsea Elizabeth Wooten, of Brooklyn, N.Y.; his great-grandchildren: Gracie Sinclair Evans, Clara Parker Evans, Lucy Broadwell Evans, John Kellam Warren, Levi McCarthy Warren, and Emma Lucia Suarez; and his brother-in-law, William H. Phillips, of Onancock.

A celebration for Dr. Lingo's life was held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church at 11:30 a.m. on Monday, Feb. 26. A reception followed the service in the Parish House.

The family suggests, that in lieu of flowers, memorials may be sent to St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 4051 Old Shell Rd., Mobile, AL 36608, or to the Salvation Army in Mobile.

Sarah Henderson Marshall

Ms. Sarah Henderson Marshall, 82, departed this life on Feb. 20,

Mr. Smith

Born Dec. 29, 1966, in Arlington, Va., and reared on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, he was a son of May Lovett, of Painter, and the late Robert D. Smith. Mr. Smith was a self-employed contractor and enjoyed woodworking. He never met a stranger, and everyone was his friend. Mr. Smith was always so full of life, absolutely loved life, loved his family and his home, and truly lived life to its fullest!

In addition to his wife and mother, survivors include his 11-year-old son, Kevin; his "Pop," Robert E. Lovett, of Painter; sister, Dawn M. Miller, and brother, Gregory A. Smith and his wife, Kathy Bundick, all of Parksley;

Charles Melba Stant

Mr. Charles Melba Stant was born Feb. 3, 1949, in Norfolk, Va., and passed away Feb. 5, 2018, in Machipongo. During his 69 years, Mr. Stant led a remarkable life on or near the water. After completing Randolph Macon College, Mr. Stant made his living as a waterman, an offshore sport fishing captain, and as a fishing guide on both the Eastern Shore and in the Caribbean. He could navigate the shifting waterways of the barrier islands with ease. Mr. Stant had a keen intellect, a wry sense of humor and a generous spirit. He was an avid gardener and tinkerer around his home on Mattawoman Creek. He read voraciously, always non-fiction, and could discuss geography, history, nature, weather and especially tides and fish.

Mr. Stant

Mr. Stant was predeceased by his parents Fred and Bette Stant and is survived by four siblings. He was dearly loved and is sorely missed by his huge group of friends, fishing buddies, and neighbors on the Eastern Shore and in Norfolk, and especially his long-time love and companion, Gretchen Kellogg, with whom he vacationed in the Bahamas each winter and traveled the country camping in summers.

His friends have planned a celebration of Mr. Stant's life on Saturday, March 17, 2018, at 2 p.m. at 13543 Deerfield Trail, Machipongo. Come share a remembrance of Mr. Stant with his friends.

HIGH-SPEED CHASE ENDS WITH ATTEMPTED MALICIOUS WOUNDING CHARGES

By Stefanie Jackson

A would-be routine traffic stop that turned into a high-speed police chase in Cheriton on Feb. 23 escalated further after Northampton Sheriff David Doughty called his crew off the chase about halfway across the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, and ended with the Virginia Beach Police Department adding two counts of attempted malicious wounding to other charges against the suspect.

The chase began after Cheriton Police Chief Marc Marshall clocked Patrick Nilo Gil, 45, of New York, N.Y., driving 87 mph in a 55-mph zone at about 2:40 p.m.

Marshall pursued Gil, who failed to stop the silver Mercedes SUV he was driving. Marshall called the Northampton County Sheriff's Office for assistance. Cape Charles and Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel police also assisted.

Marshall said most of the pursuit was conducted at speeds of more than 100 mph.

After the chase continued onto the CBBT, at 2:46 p.m., Doughty called off the pursuit for the safety of the public and law enforcement. But CBBT police continued their efforts to stop the speeding vehicle.

While driving across the bridge-tunnel, the suspect attempted to hit a CBBT police officer who had stepped out of his patrol vehicle onto the bridge, VBPD Master Police Officer L.M. Bauder reported. A second officer was also present.

Near the end of the bridge, in the 4400 block of Northampton Boulevard, the VBPD had deployed "stop sticks," tire-deflation devices that function similarly to spike strips, except the spikes do not visibly protrude from the stop sticks.

The first attempt to halt the vehicle with stop sticks failed. Virginia Beach and Virginia State police continued the high-speed chase through Virginia Beach and onto Interstate 64, approaching the Hampton Roads Bridge-Tunnel.

Stop sticks were again deployed, in front of the HRBT, and this second attempt succeeded in disabling the SUV, which crashed inside the Hampton Roads tunnel and damaged several vehicles. No injuries were reported.

In Virginia Beach, Gil was charged with two counts of attempted malicious wounding, felony eluding, reckless driving, driving without a license and "various registration violations," Bauder stated.

In Northampton, Gil was charged with reckless driving by speed, five counts of reckless driving, aggressive driving, passing a vehicle on the right side of the highway, failing to signal, and driving without a license, Doughty stated.

In Cheriton, Gil was charged with two counts of reckless driving, felony eluding, passing on the shoulder, aggressive driving, driving without a license and using a fake registration, Marshall stated.

The charge of aggressive driving is distinguished from the charge of reckless driving by the driver's intent. While a reckless driver will "endanger the life, limb or property of any person," an aggressive driver demonstrates an "intent to harass, intimidate, injure or obstruct another person," according to Virginia code.

Other charges may be pending, Bauder reported.

Gil is being held in a Virginia Beach jail with bond denied.

EASTERN SHORE SPORTS

ESY Swimmers Improve in Fourth YMCA League Meet

The Eastern Shore Family YMCA swimmers finished in top-three placings in 42 of 77 events at the fourth YMCA league meet of the 2017-18 winter season.

ESY swimmers finished with 10 first-place finishes, 15 second-place finishes and nine third-place finishes. ESY relays collected five second-place finishes and three third-place finishes in the relay events. The team's performance included personal best times in 24 individual events. Morgan Johnson and Brayden Shotwell both swam personal records in three individual events. Swimmers with best times in two individual events included Sarah Bentley, Blaise Seigrist, Luke Duer, Priya Gubernator, Madison Johnson, Parker Shotwell, and Sofia Whealton.

Individual and relay performances carried the ESY team to a third-place finish. The team was led by top individual scorers Taj Dorn with 60 points and Sarah Bentley with 54 points. Dorn swam to first-place finishes in male six & under 25-meter freestyle, 50-meter freestyle and 25-meter backstroke. Bentley finished first in the female 9-10 50-meter breaststroke and achieved two second-place finishes in the female 10 & under 100-meter individual medley and 50-meter backstroke.

Carter Harmon, Brayden Shotwell and Blaise Seigrist joined Dorn as top male swimmers. Harmon scored 56 individual points with first-place finishes in male 15-18 100-meter breaststroke and 200-meter individual medley. Shotwell and Seigrist each scored 50 individual points. Both swimmers collected two second-place finishes and one third-place finish at the meet.

Lacy Gouldin, with 53 individual points, and Madison Johnson, with 52 individual points, were also included in the top ESY female swimmers. Gouldin finished first in the female 13-14 200-meter individual medley and added second- and third-place finishes in the 100-meter breaststroke and 50-meter freestyle. Johnson earned a first-place finish in the female 13-14 100-meter breaststroke and added second- and fourth-place finishes in the 50-meter freestyle and 100-meter freestyle events.

ESY relay teams scored in the top three in all of the events in which they competed. The 13-14 mixed relay team (Patrick Lilliston, Olivia Seigrist, Lacy Gouldin and Sofia Whealton) finished in second place in both the 200-meter freestyle and the 200-meter medley events. The ESY 11-12 mixed relay team (Blaise Seigrist, Luke Duer, Meya Charnock and Brayden Shotwell) earned second- and third-place finishes in the 200-meter medley and 200-meter freestyle relays.

The 9-10 mixed 200-meter freestyle relay (Sarah Bentley, Parker Shotwell, Lucas Elliot and Morgan Johnson) and 200-meter medley relay (Priya Gubernator, Morgan Johnson, Sarah Bentley and Lucas Elliot) both picked up second-place finishes. Swimming best times of the season, the 15-18 mixed 200-meter freestyle and 200-meter medley relays (Ann Windsor Davis, Madison Johnson, Parker Boggs and Carter Harmon) collected two third-place finishes.

The Eastern Shore YMCA swimmers competed in their fourth meet of the season.

EASTERN SHORE STREET HOCKEY LEAGUE GAME SUMMARIES

By Michael Garbacz

Game 1: Delmarva Soil and Concrete Red Wings 4, EZ Loan Bruins 1

Top dogs of the Senior league, the Red Wings came into the day looking to extend their points lead in the standings. And that they did, working out a handy victory in a tightly played tilt against the resurgent Bruins. Although the Bs were shorthanded, they managed to keep the pace of the game where they needed it to be competitive, but just couldn't get the offensive motor going. A third period goal from the stick of the Smooth Criminal spoiled Justin Wheeler's shutout bid, but no other plastic found its way across his goal line. For the Wings, the Huntsman led the way, registering two goals and an assist; Preston Shover added a goal and two assists; Guy Shover picked up a goal; Mike McCready and La Boca picked up a helper apiece.

Game 2: Blues 0, Grounds Keepers Lawn Care Capitals 4

The Blues have, unfortunately for them, cooled off in recent weeks; that trend continued, as the Caps gave 'em

what-fors to the tune of a four-to-egg affair. Though they gave goalie Ol' Plugalong a couple scares, the Blues just could not sustain enough offensive pressure to punch one by. Meanwhile, at the other end of the court, the dynamic duo of Robby Parker and the Pat Trick was more than enough to ice the cake of victory. Luckenbach produced two goals and an assist; Parker scored one and helped on another; Julian Dedicatoria tickled the twine.

Game 3: Charles E. Morgan Termite and Pest Control Penguins 2, Delmarva Soil and Concrete Red Wings 4

The Penguins fought two very difficult opponents in this contest: a red-hot Red Wings squad and a short bench. They were in it all game, but it was just too much this time around. Ol' Guy Shover put on his dancin' shoes, and also the game on his back, scoring a hat trick, all the offense his team needed. The Huntsman notched an insurance goal, and added an assist; Preston Shover and Joe Cornwell each had helpers. For the Pens, the General and T.R. Hoyt were the goal scorers. Randall Stapleton picked up an assist.

Game 4: EZ Loan Bruins 5, Blues 3

The Bruins controlled play for the greater portion of this tilt against the Blues, but the blueshirts managed to claw their way back into it, scoring a late, desperate 3rd period goal to knot the score at 3 with little more than a minute to play. In a wild swing of momentum, the Bruins scored on a turnover immediately after the ensuing faceoff to take the lead, and then again on an empty net for the insurance.

For the Blues, in their heart-breaker, Jennie Rice stepped up big time and scored two beautifully ugly net-front goals; Trae Merritt figured in on all three with a goal and two assists; Danny Miller and Wes Stapleton each registered two helpers. For the killer B's in their win, Tayler Parks doubled the fun with two goals; Kevin Cornwell put up a multi-point game with a goal and an assist; the Smooth Criminal netted the empty-netter; Chris Potter picked up an assist.

Game 5: Grounds Keepers Lawn Care Capitals 4, Charles E. Morgan

Termite and Pest Control Penguins 2

The final affair of the day saw the still-shorthanded Pens facing off against the fully charged Caps. The Pat Trick and company took full control over the situation, dominating possession and outshooting the Pens 25-9. Still, the Penguins didn't give up, keeping a foothold in it until the bitter end. It was not the General powering the offense for the Pens in this one, either, but rather Randall "The Animal" Stapleton, who made two deposits at the Bank of the Net; Dylan Harrington helped himself to a helper.

For the Caps, Julian Dedicatoria led the way with two goals and an assist; Robbie Washington and the Pat Trick scored the other two; local hero Dean Dedicatoria chipped in two assists; Zach Webb had an assist.

works, in Delaware.”

“I haven’t seen anything out of the ordinary,” she said, adding that surprise visits are needed at night. “The deputies bring their phones in,” Owens said. “I know we’re not supposed to bring them in, but we still do.”

“I’ve been wanting to go,” Owens said. “I like my job. I like the people I work with.” But, “There was nothing changing.” When someone leaves to “do something better,” morale falls. “It’s favoritism over there. It’s different rules for different people. Everybody should be on the same page. ... Give more structure over there, then you won’t have deputies leaving like they are.”

Hallette said she reviewed a video of entry and exit into the cell block where Purnell was being held and saw Owens go into the block at about 2 a.m. and leave around 4 a.m.

Owens said she told the other officer, “I was going in to talk to him (Purnell) because I had to get more information from him.”

Hallette noted during that time, checks weren’t being made.

“I’m not going to blame him,” Owens said of Purnell. “I should have said, ‘no.’ ...

This is a thing that I have to grow from. I don’t let nothing like that happen again. Do my job and that’s it,” she said. “Now, I have to move out with my sister. ... This is a life changing thing. It’s a life lesson, big time. I’ve got family support, friends ... I want people to still see me as Maria, not as what I did. Everybody makes mistakes. I just made a terrible mistake.”

Purnell was indicted on a count of possession of a cell phone without permission. His trial is set for March 26. Meanwhile, he is being held in Accomack Jail with a release date of April 27, 2018. He is serving two years of a five-year term for possession of a firearm by a felon on Feb. 8, 2015. He claimed a passenger had the item, but he was charged because he was the driver.

Purnell told Hallette that he only had conversations with Owens and did not have a cell phone in the jail. But, he also said he never talked to her on the jail phone and Hallette said she heard those conversations.

“They didn’t find nothing in my cell,” he said in the recorded interview. “I don’t know nothing. ... I stay to myself and mind my business. ... I got a few girls I talk to. I’m a man. ... I talk to all the females. ... I ain’t had no sex in here. ... You can’t do nothing in here without getting a charge. ... I wouldn’t even put myself in that situation.”

He admitted he smoked cigarettes and marijuana since he’s been in the facility and said he got them from other inmates, once in exchange for food. The inmates got the marijuana through the mail, he said. Purnell also told an officer he served 4.5 years in prison in Maryland for a drug charge. Records there show he was acquitted of attempted murder.

“If it comes in, I might smoke it. If you were in my shoes you might smoke it,” he said.

“I’m proud of my staff and where we are as a department,” Sheriff David Doughty said in a prepared statement just after Owens was indicted. “However, this type of activity is unacceptable and will not be tolerated.”

At one point during Hallette’s interview with Purnell she asked, “Is she being paid to come in here to service you?”

“She’s not doin’ nothing for me, nothing,” He answered.

“She’s doing everything she can to please you,” Hallette said. “And I don’t get what you’ve got on her. ... You can’t tell me you don’t talk to her on the phone. You talk to her every single day. I’m sitting here listening to them. ... But it does gauge you’re not being truthful. ... I know you’re not. I’ve heard it with my own ears,” Hallette said.

In November 2010, two jailers at the Northampton facility were given suspended sentences in the circuit court for charges of carnal knowledge with a female inmate in 2009. Leston E. Wright Jr., who was 23 at the time of the offense and lived in Exmore, and Wayne H. Shrieves, who was 47 at the time of the offense and lived in Melfa, were each given 12 months in jail with the terms suspended. They pleaded guilty. Sheriff Jack Robbins, Doughty’s predecessor, was in office then. The two also lost their jobs.

Shrieves and Wright both worked in the jail for two or three years. The offenses occurred between Nov. 17, 2009 (which was Wright’s birthday) and Jan. 13, 2010, while the jailers were “in a position of authority over” the inmate and “without the use of force, threat or intimidation.” The inmate was a 23-year-old Belle Haven woman.

RSMH Auxiliary Gift Shop Makes Donation

Recently the volunteers who run the Althea Shelton Carousel Gift Shop, a fundraising project of the Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, presented the auxiliary with a check for $12,000—the 2017 proceeds from the shop.

The gift shop's contribution is a vital part of the fundraising efforts which also include the annual hospital ball, antique show and Festival of Lights. Recently, nearly $100,000 was donated by the auxiliary to the hospital for the purchase of vascular ultrasound equipment.

The Carousel Gift Shop started decades ago in a closet-sized room at the hospital in Nassawadox and has now turned into a beautiful and thriving retail space. The shop is named for Althea Shelton, who was the driving force behind the original gift shop in the Nassawadox hospital. There have been many changes over the years, but perhaps the biggest came last year with the building of the new hospital.

Another recent change was the naming of a new gift shop buyer/chairperson. Replacing Lori Ridington will be Melody Mackin, who has worked in the gift shop since the fall of 2017. Prior to her move to the Eastern Shore in 2011, Mackin ran her own home décor and gift store in Maryland.

One-hundred percent of the profits from the gift shop go directly to a variety of hospital improvements. Gift shop hours are Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Beginning mid-March, the shop will be open on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Anyone interested in volunteering at the shop may contact decoratingmynest@hotmail.com.

Happy Birthday Annette
Love you forever and always
Mama and Family

Sammy is missing: orange cat, red collar. Call Chuck at 757-336-0027 or 240-682-6236. Offering a reward. Lost near east side of Chincoteague Island.

The family of the late Polly Finney Fosque acknowledges and is gratefully appreciative of the many expressions of love and kindness recently shown to us. The outpouring of support displayed during our mother and grandmother's illness and initial time of bereavement was uplifting as we saw the many lives she touched in a positive manner. We are eternally grateful for the years that God allowed her to be a part of all of our lives. Thank you and may God continue to bless each of you. Remember that those we hold in our hearts never really leave us.

March 11, 1992

I'm not sure what to write because it was so much easier just talking to you! It's so hard to have a normal life without you here. I miss the phone calls, the stop bys for a Hello & a Hug, the "I love you, Dad" & just you, my "Sunshine." I will never be complete without you. I dream of you and your favorite color orange often! I miss every crazy, loving thing about you, & hold each memory we had together. Happy 26th Birthday, My Boy. I miss you like crazy & love you!!

~Dad

By Sen. Lynwood Lewis

As the General Assembly comes to its scheduled close, bills that have been amended but not agreed upon by both the House and the Senate are headed for conference where lawmakers will attempt to reach agreeable compromises on bill language. Budget conferees from the House and the Senate have been appointed and the looming question is what the final budget bill will look like.

There is a possibility that we may not have a budget by adjournment on March 10. Because of the large discrepancies between the House and Senate Budgets — more than $600 million dollars — this is looking more and more like a real possibility. If that happens, we would likely either go into an extended session or reconvene in a special session called by Gov. Northam.

Outside of the budget and dwindling committee dockets, an issue familiar to many folks on the Shore has risen to the surface in a bill passed down from the governor's office as a late filing: menhaden. The bill, HB1610, attempts to bring Virginia into compliance with the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission's decision from November 2017 that increased the allowable harvest of menhaden from the Atlantic Ocean while simultaneously decreasing the amount that can come from the Chesapeake Bay.

HB1610 increases the total allowable landings for menhaden from 168,937.75 metric tons to 170,797.17 metric tons per year. At the same time, the bill reduces the annual menhaden harvest cap for the purse seine fishery to 51,000 metric tons from 87,216 metric tons. This places the commonwealth in compliance with the November decision, which changed the allocation of menhaden harvest between mid-Atlantic states. Prior to the decision, Virginia was allowed 87 percent of the menhaden harvest granted to all ASMFC states. In an adjustment to bring slightly more parity, Virginia is now allowed 80 percent of the annual harvest under ASMFC regulation. HB1610 reflects these adjustments; however, the legislation also obligates the administration to appeal the ASMFC's decision reducing the harvest cap for the Chesapeake Bay.

The obligation to appeal the decision was included to reflect concerns of the industry that this could hurt labor and productivity, while the adjustments included in the bill demonstrate the importance of bringing Virginia into compliance with the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission. If Virginia remains out of compliance, there is possibility of legal action to punish our fisheries with fines, further reductions or even a complete moratorium. This is an issue that has strong proponents on both sides, and we continue to work in Richmond with all parties affected to find and implement adequate solutions.

I have received significant input on this from constituents on the Shore, and on this and other issues I encourage you to contact my office. While in Richmond, I can be reached by telephone at 804-698-7506 and at our legislative email District06@senate.virginia.gov.

By Del. Robert Bloxom

As the 2018 General Assembly session comes to a close, some huge divides still exist between the House and Senate budget. The "conferees" have been named, and they have a daunting task to complete if we are to adjourn on time, March 10. The six delegates will meet with seven senators in a conference committee to try and bridge the $600 million difference between the two budgets. It is too premature to talk about the wins and losses in the budget, and I do not believe in taking a victory lap until the governor has signed the budget. I do feel optimistic that several of the budget amendments that will positively affect the Eastern Shore will survive in some form.

The General Assembly has passed 450 bills and has sent them on to the governor. We still have more than 400 bills to consider during this last week. A lot of these bills will go into conference. This is where the Senate version of the bill and the House version of the same bill are different. Three senators and three delegates will meet to iron out the differences. At this stage of the session, wills and wits are matched in hopes of fruitful policies that will benefit the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Aside from the legislation I have been working on in Richmond, in early February I met with the DEQ, representatives from Tyson Foods and Perdue Farms, and a representative of the Virginia Poultry Industry to discuss permitting and water usage. The poultry industry and Accomack County have been critical of the DEQ in relation to obtaining a permit after construction and not being able to have one public hearing for all the various permits needed at once. In DEQ's defense, a water withdrawal permit needs a geophysical log to locate the water screens at the appropriate depth. Because of this, the permit is unable to be approved in advance. To this end, we continue to work. I am pleased to announce that they took my suggestion of using the upper aquifer for a portion of their water usage in their new chicken houses. We also discussed the timing of permits, as a person is not required to get a permit until 300,000 gallons of water have been withdrawn within a month's timeframe. To put this into perspective, back in the day when canning factories were such a success on the Eastern Shore, even a small factory would use more than one million gallons of water in a single day. Therefore, 300,000 gallons of water per month is not as significant as one would be quick to think.

I look forward to returning home after this weekend. In the meantime, you may reach my office in Richmond at 804-698-1000 if you have any questions or concerns. You may also email me at delrbloxom@house.virginia.gov

Farmers Can Harvest Rainwater

Dear Editor:

Sustainability or “Lake Gaston.” Those seem to be our choices regarding water here on the whole Eastern Shore of Virginia.

Get information by a Google search, “UltraAg Rainwater Harvesting,” and watch a video explanation, which could be applied here. This needs to be done in lieu of tapping either of our aquifers.

Since only 12 percent of our rainwater actually makes it to the aquifers, that leaves 88 percent that could be used if caught. It takes two inches of rain falling on 82,000 square feet of roof surface to harvest 100,000 gallons of water into onsite storage facilities. This would reroute some of the polluted runoff that is going into the Atlantic Ocean and the Chesapeake Bay. This investment would be worth it for sustainability - the future, even though there still needs to be an emergency, i.e. drought, backup system. This water would be used for cooling and would be filtered for drinking water for the birds.

Not just the poultry industry, but we all must take steps to conserve our water ... with grey water systems - reuse for flushing, native plants, etc. The nurseries can grow the latter and thus limit their water use. Rainwater systems are in use for farmers - for irrigation, which few used on the shore years ago - also. Why are we not doing this already? Because we, including the poultry industry, have free water unless it is coming from the town water system. Years ago, Phoenix, AZ starting monitoring and charging for its water and household water use plummeted. Virginia Beach went dry and now their water comes from a site about 100 miles west: Lake Gaston. I wonder what they pay for that piped in water?

If these facilities, like Tyson, want to truly be “good neighbors” then they need to invest in rainwater harvesting, or where do we find a “Lake Gaston” for the Eastern Shore?

Medicaid Spending Criticized

Dear Editor:

With regard to your photo and caption on the Medicaid demonstration in your Feb. 16 issue:

I completed, documented, and reviewed thousands of Medicaid applications in New York state over the course of 22 years.

It is hard to imagine a program more lavishly funded than Medicaid.

In New York state the program receives over half of all state revenues, added to which are federal and local revenues. Obviously all other state functions are supported by less than half of state revenues.

For a number of reasons, including federal input, the programs throughout the states are very similar.

Medicaid spending in 2015 was $532 billion dollars.

The most egregious abuse of this program is that because of the thousands of hospital emergency rooms every person on the face of the planet is legally entitled to and will obtain unlimited state-of-the-art medical care absolutely free, should they only arrive here.

Maternity benefits for foreign women are enormous. Foreign women obtain free maternity and pediatric care as well as an eventual welfare case for the child.

We have created a caste system in this country whereby some working families must provide their own health insurance, while at the same time paying taxes to support Medicaid.

Music Unites Despite Tragedy

Dear Editor:

The tragic Florida shooting coming just before several musical events over Presidents’ Day week may have caused many to wonder about the role of music in our lives. In the following article, Paul Kim, professor of music at Old Dominion University and music director of the Orchestra of the Eastern Shore, provides his thoughts on the subject. I think it would be valuable to share them with your readers.

Marion Naar, Exmore

“Thoughts on Music’s Role in Our Lives”

Recently, the Orchestra of the Eastern Shore presented a program of music that included many associated emotions: joy, sorrow, comfort, even fear. The first piece, Brandenburg’s Concerto in G Major, brims with joy at both ends yet acknowledges sorrow in between; the second piece, Vivaldi’s Four Seasons, portrays a literal cycle we all live through every year — and the full range of emotions encompassed within.

Playing music full of joy may seem out of place to some people in light of the horrific tragedies that occurred in Florida last week. It may also bring to question to some why playing music even matters. What is the role of music in times like these?

Sometimes people tend to view music and the arts as a diversion from our lives, a means of escaping reality. To me, performing music as musicians and attending concerts as listeners are not an escape from the difficulties we encounter, but rather an act of resolve: to come together despite our difficulties, tragedies, and our different opinions on how to solve them ... to experience life together, envision the life we want together, and make that vision a reality. We play and listen to music to live that reality here and now, make beauty happen and weave that beauty into the fabric of our lives.

It is in this spirit that all of us may engage in music and the arts during times like these — not to escape our reality but to transcend it — and thereby redefine it. We engage in the arts to affirm what brings us joy and comfort, to share in our sorrows and fears, and in so doing, come together to create an even better reality than where we started. Yes, music matters ... perhaps more so now than ever.

Paul Kim

Music Director, Orchestra of the Eastern Shore

Habitat for Humanity Thanks

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Eastern Shore Habitat for Humanity Board and Habitat Homeowners, we would like to thank you for supporting the Annual Eastern Shore Habitat “Freezin’ for a Reason” and making this the best ever! Together we were able to raise $35,701! You, the Eastern Shore community joined forces once again and made “Freezin for a Reason” a huge success! Celebrity Dippers Robie Marsh and Evelyn Shotwell did a tremendous job of leading the charge and gaining community support. There were 96 dippers and 6 teams to participate in this year’s event. Sherriff Doughty and the Northampton County Sherriff’s Department won the top adult team category. While Richard Davis and Team Lipman finished closely on the heels of the Sherriff’s Department. The top Youth Team went to Northampton High School. Top individual Dippers were Tommy Gallichio first place, Trent Ferebee second place, and Jay Kellam third place. The support from the Eastern Shore community is integral for us to continue to fulfill our mission to build houses for those in need on the Eastern Shore. We thank you for helping us improve the lives of others on the Eastern Shore.

We have received a record breaking 160 applications this year from individuals and families asking to be selected for houses. Thanks to your efforts along with other successful fundraising efforts throughout the year, our Habitat selection committee will be able to choose two applicants to receive houses this year. As always, please feel free to contact the Eastern Shore Habitat Office if you would like to get involved in future Habitat work groups or fundraising. We would love to hear from you by phone (442-4687) or e-mail (eshabitat@verizon.net – office).

Have an awesome 2018!
