Every day, every door for Harvey's mail carrier

By Neil O. Nelson

By the time Jason Grossman retires as Harvey's mail carrier, he'll have walked around the planet Earth three times, hypothetically speaking.

With a few thousand miles to spare.

He's been walking around Harvey for the last 26 years, averaging 15 to 17 miles a day, 100 miles a week, the last two years.

Jason is estimating he'll have walked 75,000 to 80,000 miles when he retires in another four years.

"That's a lot of miles," he acknowledged this week. More than three times the circumference of the Earth (25,000 miles roughly).

Since the Harvey Post Office added another carrier, Grossman is walking 70 miles a day now.

"I still carry the core of the city."

The 53-year-old mail carrier's body, however, is telling him he probably should have considered another career.

The average person averages two million steps in a year.

"Over time, walking that much, a person's feet and knees start to wear out," said the bone and joint specialist.

Jason's taken five million steps already this year, on schedule to take 8,000 to 10,000 by the end of the year.

That should put him well over what the average person walks, Grossman speculated.

Taking a toll

Make no mistake, walking has taken its toll.

Grossman has dealt with Plantar Fasciitis in both feet and his knees have been bothering him until lately.

Specially fitted insoles and steroid shots have Harvey's mailman smiling and walking free and clear of pain.

"It's fantastic, great."

But the tread is coming off the tires, he admits.

"I'm starting to wear out."

When he can retire in another four and a half years, he'll be ready to quit counting steps.

"I'll walk out of the post office and head for home," smiling all the while.

Jason Grossman has no regrets working for the post office.

"They pay me to walk around town. In the spring and fall, that can be pleasant."

In the winter, not so much.

Harsh winters, like this past winter, can be challenging, testifies Grossman. The snow and wind add to the misery of the cold temperatures.

"That wears on you."

Amy Dale steps into Wells VSO position

By Neil O. Nelson

After hiring two Veteran Service Officers in the last year, only to see them leave the job in short order, Wells County commissioners are expecting, anticipating, hoping even, considering their last two hires, that Amy Dale will stay on the job.

She expects to, Amy Dale said this week.

Taking calls for a month and in the office twice this week, Dale admits she's learning the "ins and outs" required of the new job.

There's much to learn, she knows.

Yet, the Navy veteran who has worked in VA hospitals in Fargo and Minneapolis is confident she has the knowledge and experience in veteran affairs that will suit her in the role of the Wells County Veterans Service Officer.

With all the medical care she's received, everything she's been through while on active duty, including all the services she's been the recipient of through the VA, Amy Dale has every reason to believe she can "guide Wells County veterans through the maze of paperwork and contacts" necessary in obtaining VA services.

"I want to save the veteran the time it can take to get through all the processes necessary to get the help they want and -- in many circumstances -- the help they need. They deserve."

"I want to make it easier for the veteran."

The veteran need not question Dale's persistence; in addition, she'll be an advocate for all veterans and their families.

In the Navy now

Dale joined the Navy four days after she turned 18; she, in fact, jumped the train on the Monday following her Sunday graduation from Harvey High School. The train took her to Fargo, and from there she reached Orlando, Florida, where she entered the Navy's boot camp.

Dale was a corpsman in the Navy, working on ships and at

Tradition of VBS growing strong in Fessenden

By Carrie Opdahl

The sound of children's laughter and playful screams filled the calm and quiet evenings this past week in Fessenden as children congregated at the First Lutheran Church in Fessenden for a non-denominational Vacation Bible School.

Over 50 children, nearly 30 adult helpers and 15 youth helpers attended the week-long schooling. This year's theme was Created in Christ and Designed for God's Purpose.

"The kids enjoyed creating and designing various crafts and projects, and playing games inside and outside, singing and performing skits and eating -- lots of eating," said Laurel Wentz, co-organizer with Kathy Tebelius of Bowdon.

Goose Lake finds niche in Wells County

By Neil O. Nelson

A narrow canal-shaped lake outside Harvey has forever been in the shadows of the two more prominent bodies of waters in Wells County, principally the Sheyenne and James rivers.

Goose Lake, originally called Lake Stevens, rests in the shadow of Butte de Morale, the flat-topped hill rising some 300 feet above the level prairie surrounding the lake 4.8 miles north and east of Harvey.

Stocked by the state Game and Fish Dept., Goose Lake is a popular fishing lake and a good size body of water, extending from the Butte west to Highway 3.

Harvey re-opens search for new chief of police

By Anne Ehni

The city of Harvey will continue its search for a new chief of police after the replacement for Chief Tony Webb rescinded his acceptance of the job. Webb left the office for personal reasons, with his last day on the job July 15.

That evening, Harvey's Mayor Rick Eckart received a call from Joseph Kaufman, who had been hired as the chief of police with a start date of July 18. Kaufman told Eckart he would not be reporting to work Monday and that he was no longer interested in the job.

In the meantime, the city of Harvey will rely on assistance from the Wells County Sheriff's department for emergency 9-1-1 calls.

"The city council will be meeting with Sheriff Chris Kluth to discuss contracting law enforcement through his department until we get a new chief in place. We have candidates for a new police chief and hope to get someone on board very soon," Eckart said.

Mailman recognizes importance of position

The summer heat, he's simply accepted.

"I don't mind the heat, really."

Jason listens to music, podcasts and books on tape when he strides down Harvey's sidewalks in his patented long, measured and purposeful steps.

Same steps, same speed, unless there's three feet of snow or a barking dog.

Having been bitten more than a few times, he's a "lot more careful now around dogs. I don't take chances anymore."

Walking Atlas

Knowing where sleeping dogs lie, and where every crack in the sidewalks are, Jason Grossman, not surprising, knows where everyone lives in Harvey.

Which is why, not surprising, again, many people call their mailman for specific addresses. Or, if he knows where someone might have moved to, if they're no longer at their Harvey address.

Jason Grossman is accommodating, as sure as he's a man about town.

"I pretty much know where everyone lives."

And, yes, he could walk his route in his sleep.

But he'd rather do it during his working hours - 8 a.m. to 'fourish.'

There was the day when Grossman delivered mostly first-class mail, catalogs and the occasional package.

Since the era of the Internet, he's delivering "way more packages."

And a lot less first-class mail. Grossman doesn't see the day when the U.S. Postal Service will discontinue home delivery.

There are more than 335,500 mail carriers working across the country. Delivering mail to how many people? Grossman openly speculates.

"No, I don't see that ever happening," he said on Tuesday.

"We go door to door, to every home, every day."

The Harvey mail carrier knows he's more than just the mailman to many Harvey residents.

"Mail delivery is an important part in the lives of many people."

Our appointed delivery time, he said, is an event to many.

"They know what time they can expect you. If you're late, they want to know 'how come?'"

Heavy volume of mail today, Jason usually responds.

Of course, they understand. More than curious, they merely desire a little conversation, he's sure. His lateness simply opens the door to more than a wave, hello and goodbye.

Jason Grossman and his wife Danica are the parents of Tanner, 19; Tate, 17; and Tenley, 11.

Four and a half years puts him into the winter of January 2026.

He's counting the steps till then.

bases on the West Coast.

In college, after the Navy, she obtained degrees in therapeutic massage and business. She used VA programs in obtaining her post-high school education.

After closing her massage therapy clinic, Dale returned home two years ago to Harvey, where she was "born and raised."

She has no regrets in moving home. She loved the ocean, serving on it and living near it, but she loves being close to her German-Russian roots, too.

She's also certain she will have no regrets accepting her new position.

Again, she tells, "I have a passion for helping the veteran."

Dale is familiar with the VA medical center in Fargo and the clinic in Minot. She knows the ins and outs to both facilities.

But she admits she's learning that the Veterans Administration has added many programs and benefits since she was last employed by the VA.

Amy Dale will set office hours once she's more acclimated with the new position. The VSO office is located in the Harvey armory. She can be reached at 324-2665.

"Seem like this is going to be a good job," said Dale this week.

Working together is key in Vacation Bible School

County, the helpers all worked together for the shared purpose of teaching children Bible stories and to "plant seeds that will hopefully grow a relationship with our Lord," said Wentz.

Participation in this year's event is up from the previous year by almost 20 members.

"This camp has always been excellent not only for the children but also for the helpers and parents, too. There is always something new to learn, or a different perspective to hear. It's fun to learn about God's word together."

She admitted that executing an event like this is pretty exhausting, but added, "it's all worth it to see the kids' smiles and to hear the great conversations," said Wentz. "Receiving the occasional hug is a nice reward, too."

Vacation Bible School has been a staple event at the First Lutheran Church in Fessenden as far back as Wentz can remember.

"I read in a past church record from an old Norwegian church near Towner from like 1906 where donations of $1 were being requested by each congregational member to support the children's school program back then," recalled Wentz. "Imagine, only a dollar. How things have changed."

But, according to Wentz, what hasn't changed is the message of creation and the uniqueness of each person's design. "We are all different and precious in our own ways," said Wentz. "The Lord only sees the intentions of our hearts. He doesn't see our outside appearances. This is how we, too, should view all people."

On the last day of school, the students were asked if they enjoyed the week of studies, and the answer was an overpowering, YES! And, like a flood of words, each one said what they enjoyed the most. Sand art, tie-dyed shirts and pillowcases was often mentioned, as well as playing outside games.

Though the children's answers varied in what they liked best about camp, they all agreed they were sad for it to be over already.

"Well, as long as I'm able, I will continue to help bring vacation Bible school to Fessenden each year," said Wentz. "Vacation Bible School has been going strong for many years and may it continue to be strong for many more years to come."

HarveyND app at your fingertips

By Shelley Chin

The Harvey Job Development Association (JDA) met Tuesday to discuss plans in progress as well as future plans for Harvey.

Spencer Marchand provided an update on an exciting addition to the community: the Harvey ND app.

Marchand said the app is "published and workable right now." There is a considerable amount of information already available and there is still information to be added, he said.

Marchand explained that the Harvey ND app is ready to download from Google Play and Apple App Stores. Simply search for Harvey ND, then click on 'install'. Once installed on a smartphone, information can be found about the city of Harvey.

"If you want to know when our City Council or JDA meetings are, you can go to the app," he said. "The app is very easy to navigate," he added. A business directory, city government directory, job postings, links to schools and businesses, and many other topics that are all at your fingertips.

Grant Funding

Dr. Paul Gunderson provided updates on several grants the JDA is looking into that would directly be of benefit to the community, two of which are the Main Street Tourism Outdoor Recreation Grant and the Placemaking Planning Grant.

These grants would fund projects that would assist with, among others, Harvey's West Side RV Park and walking/exercise trails so residents and visitors can enjoy the outdoors. With the Placemaking Planning Grant the city could receive up to $100,000 to be used towards planning for improvement to Harvey's amenities. This grant is particularly attractive because it does not require matching funds, Gunderson explained

Harvey Housing Commission

Spencer Marchand and Paul Gunderson presented an update on the formation of a Harvey Housing Commission that would address the need for more housing in Harvey.

Gunderson explained that he was recently in a meeting with agricultural entrepreneurs in a community to the northeast of us and "they're mighty thankful we have a housing crisis because they have six households in that community motoring to Harvey every day."

When individuals and families do not live in Harvey, it hurts the local businesses and the growth of the city as a whole. The proposed housing committee would seek input as to how best to address this issue, whether it be due to a lack of laborers or materials to build housing options or incentives to build.

Additional information will be gathered and presented at the next JDA meeting.

Teacher of the Year

By unanimous vote, it was decided to provide Bret Dockter with $750 to assist with travel expenses associated with his recognition as 2022 Teacher of the Year.

"As a community, we are glad to be able to support Mr. Dockter as he represents Harvey as well as the state of North Dakota," said JDA Chairperson Ann Adams. Dockter, a 6th-grade teacher at B.M. Hanson Elementary School in Harvey, was awarded the 2022 North Dakota Teacher of the Year.

Walking in cemeteries.

In a favorite story I wrote in Wyoming, years ago, I told of a cemetery caretaker who regularly talked to friends buried there.

I tagged along one morning. Tell me about some of these people, I urged the caretaker.

He talked, I listened. Later, I wrote about the people he knew. Some of the stories were humorous, some sorrowful, others of historical value, all interesting.

It's time I walk in the cemetery and talk to a couple of people.

Ed Franta was a giant in the newspaper industry few know about.

He single-handily ran the state newspaper association for many years while he was the publisher of the Cavalier County Republican in Langdon. Ed worked forever at the Republican.

Typing with two fingers, Ed put out more copy than any two editors could dream of. He drove a two-tone 1957 Chevrolet until a junk dealer thought twice before taking it.

Ed kept a file on every person who stepped foot in Cavalier County. Consequently, the Republican's obituaries left no detail unmentioned.

He loved food and his cigars; he was married to his newspaper and the Masons; his wife managed the home front. Ed arrived and left work at the same time every day, never missing a day of work.

Gene Carr was the consummate newspaperman; he could write stories on the Linotype; negotiate advertising with national companies; price job printing on a napkin over a cup of coffee.

Gene gave me a job while in high school, set me up with a newspaper when I returned from Vietnam and always kept track of the vagabond he introduced the newspaper industry to. Gene and I stayed in touch until he died. I was honored to sit with the family at the funeral.

Gene was burdened with the heaviness of life on a couple of occasions, but he rebounded, only to fall victim in the end to a tired mind and body.

Ed Franta, ageless when I worked with him, was 82 when he died.

I'd like to tell Ed I'm as old now as he was when we worked together.

Keep working, I can hear Ed tell me. "You're still young."

Gene: "He was young 50 years ago, when the industry looked at him as a maverick. That crowd is long gone now, but the kid is still pushing out award-winning newspapers."

The crowd in charge now isn't sure if he escaped the hospital, nursing home or jail, Gene told Ed. Odds favor the nursing home.

Ed: "Good for him. Keep 'em guessing, I always say."

I'd like to tell these two gentlemen how important they were in my life but I'm guessing they wouldn't want to hear it.

Ed: "If you haven't got anything better to talk about, get out of here. A guy with your reputation, your presence is discrediting our cemetery."

Gene: "Old as you are, you must be one of the older guys still working."

One of 'em, I tell Gene and Ed. Truman Ness is still publishing newspapers in Fordville and Allen Stock, on occasion, writes a column for the Carrington paper.

Ed: "Well, you're in good company. One of these days you might even be considered a legitimate newsman."

Gene: "That's a stretch. Once a maverick, always a maverick."

Call to arms

By Sarah Walker

July 29, 2022 — When there's trouble, big or small—be it evil villains, murder masterminds or even simply a tiny kitten somehow separated from its owner—the door is opened for all heroes to swoop into their separate stories and clean up the trouble. And like a moth to a flame, or better yet, like Batman to the giant bat signal, people come to the rescue.

In 1951, the citizens of North Dakota had experienced just such a call to assist. But they didn't have any Jokers to deal with. Instead, they had a lack of farm equipment and assistance, and a plethora of fields.

The harvest season was soon to begin, and North Dakota was short-handed. It was not expected that much help from out of state would come, and papers said that "if (North Dakota was) to get its crops harvested, citizens throughout the state must help."

On this day, many Dakotans were preparing to help, in some way. Papers across the state reported an appeal for North Dakotans to assist in harvesting the state's crops: "If you drive a truck, a tractor or a combine and will do it on even a part-time basis, then it's you whose help is wanted in harvesting North Dakota's 1951 crop."

Gov. Norman Brundsdale had launched a program to round up approximately 1,200 to 1,500 extra combines and approximately 1,200 extra people to assist. Some details of the plan had yet to be thought out, but Carl Fryhling, director of the state employment agency, was confident that those details would soon be hammered out. He also encouraged everyone able to help—even part-time—to register with the employment service or another volunteer service.

This extra number in machinery would be added on to the 38,000-40,000 already here in the state, and about the same number in farmers, laborers and field hands.

The possibility of using upper-grade boys to harvest was tossed about between those who were considering the options. Senator Young in Washington even tried to get emergency furloughs for servicemen to get extra help in the harvest, but that request was turned down by the defense secretary, George C. Marshall.

And in the end, what else was left but for the heroes to swoop in and save the day?

Minnewaukan Public Library

By Jill Whitcomb

July 27, 2022 — Opening in April of 1978, the Minnewaukan Public Library started in a dark, tiny room in the basement of the Memorial Building. Several local ladies acted as librarians to the small collection of books.

But by 1991, with librarian Cathy Burkhardtmeier at the helm, the little library grew. The library was open 19 hours a week and boasted 5,000 books to its collection.

In March of 2003, the Minnewaukan Public Library outgrew its old spot. A new location in the former Milson Ball building was chosen. The library currently boasts books, computers for public use and a reference department. The children's department attracts local youngsters with its colorful array of stuffed animals, wonderful books and a cheerful librarian.

the state who wanted to sell them until both became very profitable. Even socialism is okay if it makes a profit.

So, young people, even though we may not be legendary North Dakota, we have had our interesting moments.

Korematsu: A heart-breaking landmark decision

The Supreme Court's landmark ruling in Korematsu v. United States (1944), upheld a government program that required the exclusion of Japanese American citizens from areas along the West Coast on the premise, without benefit of any evidence, that they represented a threat to engage in sabotage and espionage on behalf of America's enemy in World War II. The decision represented a swift plunge, as Justice Frank Murphy wrote in dissent, into "the ugly abyss of racism," for it promoted the unsavory proposition that citizens could be punished for their ancestry.

The Court's ruling in Korematsu was part of the larger failure of all three governing institutions—executive, legislative and judicial—to honor and defend the Constitution, due process of law and equal protection. It thus represents a cautionary tale for a nation that might willingly scatter to the four winds fundamental democratic and legal principles, including the rule of law, on the predicate of expediency in service of values wholly foreign to our constitutional system.

A year after the attack on Pearl Harbor, President Franklin D. Roosevelt on February 19, 1942, issued Executive Order No. 9066 authorizing the Secretary of War, Frank Knox, to establish military zones over which he would exercise power to control the presence, movement and exclusion of any person in the area. The order reflected the growing anti-Japanese hysteria, racism and demands from members of Congress and the press to remove Japanese American citizens from the coastal region. Roosevelt was persuaded by invocations of "military necessity" from defense officials, although the foundational report on which the claim was asserted, was subsequently determined to reflect the anti-Japanese racism of those who authored it, rather than any supportive facts or evidence. Within a month, Congress passed legislation supporting and enforcing the executive order, which brought the full force of governmental power to bear on the civil liberties of 110,000 American citizens.

Fred Korematsu was convicted for violating the exclusion order, that is, for refusing to leave his home in California. Justice Hugo Black, who wrote for a 5-4 majority, began by addressing the charge of racism. He declared, in terms that introduced to constitutional doctrine and the law of equal protection the standard of "strict scrutiny," to apply to any legal restrictions that curtailed the civil rights of a "single racial group." Black said of such restrictions that "the courts must subject them to the most rigid scrutiny." He wrote: "Pressing public necessity may sometimes justify the existence of such restrictions; racial antagonism never can."

But Justice Black denied the actions of the army were grounded on racial prejudice. Casting the case into "the outlines of prejudice," he wrote, "confuses the issue." Korematsu was "not excluded from the Military Area because of hostility to him or his race. He was excluded because we are at war with the Japanese Empire."

Having dismissed the charge of racism, Justice Black concluded that the "military au-

Listen up, youngsters, it's our history

Because history repeats itself (nobody was listening the first time) our young people ought to be learning about their roots so they can avoid repeating the chronic mistakes of the past.

With widespread drug abuse, the kids have been seeing and doing exciting things so learning their roots sounds very boring. They don't know that North Dakota has some exciting history.

North Dakota was part of six states before getting its graduation certificate. And when we were finally admitted, it was with a bunch of other states so the country wouldn't notice North Dakota was being allowed in. Putting us through 80 years of apprenticeship was a sure sign that nobody was interested in North Dakota becoming a state. (You have to read between the lines.)

Watch for ulterior motives

(If you watch history unfold, you can see the ulterior motives in just about everything that happens.)

In 1873, the Dakota Territory created 27 counties without people so investors would buy bonds for the Northern Pacific Railroad. It was geographic deceit comparable to most treaties with Native Americans.

The treaties made bold promises to the Native Americans but always had the "boiler plate" at the end that stated: "This treaty shall remain in force as long as the sun shines, the winds blow, or gold is discovered."

The glacier that formed Lake Agassiz was exciting. It made the Red River run north where it stays frozen in spring and backs water into basements all along the river. There is nothing more exciting than clean downstairs closets.

Devils Lake couldn't wait

On top of that, Lake Agassiz put Devils Lake in a closed basin where water levels have fluctuated, giving rise to the idea of taking water from Lake Sakakawea to stabilize Devils Lake. The project was taking so long that the Devils Lake up and got fresh by itself and is now a major fishing site.

People expected lightning strikes when the legislature passed a law in 1899 declaring that the Bible was not deemed to be a sectarian book. Some legislators had nightmares in which Apostles Paul, Paul, James, Luke and Matthew scolded them for discrediting the Scripture.

Every school student knows what happened at the Little Big Horn so we'll not treat the matter here except that Sitting Bull went to Canada, establishing a precedent for leaving the country instead of fighting. That was useful information for draft-eligible students during the Viet Nam War.

Benefits of sod houses

During the settlement era, building a sod house was captivating. Sod houses were warm in winter, cool in summer and dirty all of the time. Martha Stewart recommended a mat at the door so visitors could wipe their feet on the way out.

The state has had quite a memorable past when it comes to politics. The most colorful character was Bill Langer, a first class opportunist who had been (from left to right) a Progressive Republican, a NonPartisan Leaguer, an Independent Voter, an NPLer again, then an Independent, then an NPL Republican and finally a United Republican.

Langer made the office of lieutenant governor important by getting two of them in the governor's chair in 1934 when he was convicted for soliciting federal employees. We had four governors in seven months and the state functioned as though nothing was wrong. It was – and has always been – on autopilot to this day.

In 1916-1920, the socialistic Nonpartisan League controlled the legislature and created the State Mill and Elevator and the Bank of North Dakota, both still unique in state governments but embarrassing to the capitalists in northern Wells County.

Butte de Morale, in the heart of the great buffalo country and a pillar to the "Bunch Grass Acres" and its old-time bunch or buffalo grass still found there, was a prominent landmark known to the Hudson Bay Company's hunters, the Red River Buffalo Hunters and the hunters and trappers from the Missouri River.

Governor Stevens' Expedition passed by it on the south in July 1853; Captain James L. Fisk's wagon train of gold seekers passed to the north of it in July 1862 and again in 1863; and Gen. A. H. Sully's army of Indian fighters marched to the east of it in 1865.

Coteaus

The Coteaus are one of the geographical place names bestowed by the French Voyageurs long ago and remain a permanent monument to their adventures and explorations.

"Coteau" is a French word meaning a little hill or rise in the ground.

The full name is the Coteau du Missouri Plateau and simply means, Hills of the Missouri.

The Coteaus are a low range of hills of Larimie rock-strata formation, which rise from 90 to 400 feet above the level prairie and extend across Wells County in a west and northwest direction, from Hawksnest to Pony Gulch.

Hawksnest is the most easterly point and most prominent butte in the extreme southeastern corner of the county. It is a drift-covered pinnacle of the old landscape before the Glacial Period. Its blue and hazy head rises some 400 feet above the prairie country and can be seen for many miles.

Its summit affords a wonderful view of the surrounding country. Butte Cuvier in Crystal Lake township is another high butte of the Coteaus.

Sheyenne River

The Sheyenne River was named after the Dakota name for a river that was "Sha-i-e-na Ozupi Wakpa," meaning River where the Sheyennes (Enemies) planted.

It rises in Sheyenne Lake west of Pony Gulch and flows through the northwestern corner of Wells County, including Harvey, where the river is dammed, creating the reservoir that borders the city on the south.

The Sheyenne traverses east above Wells County before it drops south toward Fort Ransom, then back north where it empties into the Red River of the North near Fargo.

James River

The James River rises in western Wells County and is formed by a chain of springs and coulees.

Historians and typographers claim the James River is one of the most crooked and the longest unnavigable river in the United States. It crosses north central Wells County before it drops in a south by southeast path, covering nearly 1,000 miles through the Dakotas, before it empties into the Missouri River near Yankton, South Dakota.

Black Hammer Hill

Black Hammer Hill is a large flat-topped hill rising 200 feet above the level prairie in Valhalla township, straight north of Bremen. It was named Black Hammer by the early settlers who pioneered there -- all of whom came from the rural Black Hammer township, north of Spring Grove, Houston County, Minnesota.

Butte Cuvier Grover

Butte Cuvier Grover, Crystal Lake township, is midway between Harvey and Hurdsfield. Lt. Cuvier Grover and a party of the Governor Stevens' Expedition passed over this butte on July 13, 1853.

Butte Cuvier Grover was named by Walter E. Spokesfield on November 18, 1924. It was first called Turtle Back Hill.

Hawksnest

Hawksnest is a high flat-topped hill in Hawksnest Township with a running spring of good water near the extreme summit. The sides are abrupt with several wooded gullies.

It was named Hawksnest by John H. Potter, in 1873. It was also called "Chief Hill," "Great Coteau" and "Pilot Knob" by some long ago.

The Hawksnest was much revered by the Native Americans and was a prominent landmark and camping place for them when traveling back and forth between the Devils Lake and Standing Rock Indian reservations.

Pony Gulch

An historic landmark of pioneer days situated near the eastern edge of the Coteaus, Pony Gulch is composed of some half dozen gulches extending slightly in a northeast by southwest direction.

The main gulch or coulee is over a mile in length, and about the width of a city street, with very steep and high banks, extends back from the Sheyenne River Valley to the level prairie country. The highest point of land is found near Sheyenne Lake. The gulches are wooded with many kinds of trees and several kinds of bushes. At one time, buffalo berries, choke cherries, raspberries and Saskatoon or June berries could be found in Pony Gulch.

Pony Gulch is situated on the southwest quarter of Section 19 in Pony Gulch Township. It was named in the 70's by "Scotch Bill," a trapper who was caught there in severe winter weather and forced to build a dugout and remain marooned until the spring breakup. Necessity forced him to kill his pony for food. Hence the name, "Pony Gulch." In the Dakota language it would be "Sunka O Smaka

Historical value

Dry and flat as Wells County seemingly is, its wide and expansive landscape claims the birthright of two major North Dakota rivers, in addition to the Butte de Morale and the Coteaus, two plateaus of significant historical value.

In the early days, the pioneers always referenced several localities in their relation to the James River, Sheyenne River and Coteau regions.

Goose Lake might not have the historical significance of the Sheyenne and James rivers, the Coteaus, Butte de Morale, Hawksnest or Pony Gulch and it certainly doesn't have the mystic names of the county's more prominent locations, but the long and angular waterway averaging 10 ft. in depth, with a maximum depth of 21 ft. and 18.7 miles of shoreline around the four-mile-long lake, remains one of Wells County's better-kept secrets.

Keller shared information on applicants for the vacant blade operating job. The Road Dept. also still has a vacancy in the county shop. Interviews will be set up, but contingency plans have also been created in the event a hire is not made. Regarding the Cathey School, all containable asbestos, except for the windows, has been removed and placed in temporary storage. The Auditor was directed to contact the city of Harvey to discuss the matter. New Sheriff Deputy, Spencer Volk, was introduced to the Commission.

Information regarding 911 fees was shared. The new state agreement was signed by Chairman Buxa.

The consensus of the Commission was to allow Roehrich to use her own time and judgment to pursue this need for Foster Co.

The regular August WC Commission meeting will be August 4, 2022 at 8:30 AM, with the Commission doing a walk-through of Festival Hall at 8:00 AM. There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned at 11:39 AM.

Reinhold Adam

Our beloved husband, father, grandpa, brother and friend, Reinhold Adam, 85, passed away at home on July 16, 2022, after a year-long battle with leukemia.

Reinhold was born September 17, 1936 in Martin, ND to Katharina and Edwin Adam. He grew up on the family farm south of Martin. Reinhold graduated from Martin High School as Salutatorian for the class of 1955.

Reinhold married Rosella (Rath) Adam on April 26, 1963 in Martin, ND. They moved to Harvey and lived there for over 56 years with their four children; Melodie, Neil, Jason and Brigitte.

Reinhold worked as a farmer and a partsman for various Implement dealers all his life. He was a walking encyclopedia on farming parts and equipment. He enjoyed spending time outdoors, camping, fishing and spending time with his friends and family. He loved playing cards (pinochle) and board games, and trying his luck at the slot machines at the casinos.

Reinie was kind to everyone he met and will be dearly missed. He was a member of First Lutheran Church of Harvey. After moving to Wisconsin a year ago for treatment, Reinie and Rosella continued to watch First Lutheran's services online. His faith was important to him and he loved staying connected with his hometown church.

Reinie is survived by his wife of 59 years, Rosella Adam; children Melodie (Mike) Elwood of Hudson, WI, Neil (Karen) Adam of Minot, ND, Jason (Kim) of Hudson, WI, and Brigitte (Matt) Peterson of Greenfield, MN; 7 grandchildren (Casey, Brendin, Jordan, Aubrey, Keely, Elsa, and Cayce.); 3 great-grandchildren (SkyLynn, RaeLenn, Kieran); brother-in-law, Ralph (Elaine) Rath of Devils Lake, MN.

Reinie was preceded in death by his father in 1968, his mother in 1977; his sister Bertha in 1996; sister-in-law and brother-in-law, Gladys and Clifford Wagner, sister-in-law and brother-in-law Darlene and Eldean Hase, sister-in-law and brother-in-law Dorothy and Jerome Putz.

Visitation service washeld at Hertz Funeral Home on Wednesday from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. Reinie's funeral was on Thursday, July 21st at 10:30 a.m. at First Lutheran Church in Harvey. Burial followed in Sunnyside Cemetery, Harvey, ND.

Exclusion order crosses brink of constitutional power

thorities considered that the need or action was great, and time was short." He added that the Court could "not now," avail itself of the "calm perspective of hindsight" and say that the actions were "unjustified." In the end, the majority believed the exclusion order met the test of reasonableness.

In a biting dissent, Justice Frank Murphy, who had established a reputation for defending civil rights and liberties before his appointment to the Court by President Roosevelt, asserted that the exclusion order crosses "the very brink of constitutional power," and "falls into the ugly abyss of racism." The exclusion of all persons with "Japanese blood in their veins" is based on the assumption that "all" persons of Japanese ancestry tend to inflict sabotage and espionage against the United States. Murphy wrote, icily: "It is difficult to believe that reason, logic or experience could be marshalled in support of such an assumption."

Korematsu raised an issue of fundamental importance for the exercise of judicial power. What, exactly, is the role of the Court when hearing cases involving military and national security programs and actions? Should the Court apply the rational basis test, as it does in so many of the cases it hears? If the military actions involve racial classifications, as Korematsu did, should the Court truly, vigorously apply the standard of strict scrutiny, or does that plunge the Justices into the realm of policy making in an area in which they have no qualifications or credentials? Or should the Court apply the standard of judicial restraint and exhibit deference? If so, how much deference, particularly considering Justice Black's reference to "the calm perspective of hindsight?"

These questions resonate in our time, and surely will endure throughout the ages. The Korematsu Court's exploration of this issue is enlightening. We turn to that discussion next week, as well as America's formal apology in 1988 to surviving members of the relocation program.

Suicide prevention and mental health crisis lifeline

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has adopted 988 as a new three-digit number to be used nationwide to reach the National Suicide Prevention and Mental Health Crisis Lifeline.

The previous National Suicide Prevention Lifeline number will remain in effect alongside 988. Statistics showed more than two million callers dialed 800-273-8255 in 2020.

A number as easy to remember as 911 is expected to mean more calls. Implementing 988 requires expanding call center capacity, boosting crisis response and spreading the word about the number. Officially launched July 16, 988 and is accessible anywhere in the United States.

When a North Dakota resident calls 988, a trained member of the state's Lifeline crisis center, FirstLink, answers. FirstLink staff listen to the caller, understand how their problem is affecting them, provide support, and share resources if needed. If additional support is needed, FirstLink connects the person to their local Human Service Center's mobile crisis team.

In October 2020, the National Suicide Hotline Designation Act (federal legislation designating 988 as the three-digit dialing code for the Lifeline) was signed into law.

This triumph was the outcome of many years of activism by the mental health community for the creation of an easy-to-remember telephone number that would increase accessibility of the Lifeline.

Over time, the vision for 988 is to have additional crisis services available in communities across the nation, much the way emergency medical services work.

Jerry Klein assists with flushing hydrants in Fessenden.

Flushing hydrants good way to cool down

By Carrie Opdahl

What's the best job to have when mid-July temperatures soar to above average?

Flushing hydrants, of course! Water and Street Commissioner Jeff Roehrich and City Employee Jerry Klein didn't hesitate to flush out 55 of the city's 61 hydrants in Fessenden. The task took about five and a half hours to complete on July 20.

The six remaining hydrants will not be flushed, as Roehrich said they are on the same line and bypassed. "We flush the city's hydrants at least once a year to help rid the water system of contaminants or unwanted sediments," explained Roehrich.

When hydrants are first opened, orange-colored water can sometimes be observed, but soon it's replaced by a rush of clear, cold water. "We flush each hydrant until the water comes clean. The amount of sediment in the pipes will determine how long we have to flush the system," said Roehrich.

On average, about 36,000 gallons of water is used per day by residents in Fessenden - but on a day like today, when the lines are flushed, Roehrich said that number could quickly rise to about 140,000 gallons.

According to Roehrich, the run-off water from the hydrants collects and moves through the gutters into the drainage ditches and out to the James River.

Hydrants are always flushed from the main pump house to the outermost hydrants. "The end hydrants can get pretty red," Roehrich said.

The flushing procedure cleans the interior of water mains throughout the city with a rapid flow of water, maintaining water quality.

Sometimes, some sediment may get into the resident's home plumbing system during flushing. "If this happens, run the cold water for a few minutes at full velocity," said Roehrich. During this time, avoid using hot water to prevent sediment accumulation in the hot water tank.

Residents can expect lower-than-normal water pressure, and sometimes the water can have an orange hue while the system is being flushed. Roehrich reassures, "the problem should resolve quickly."

Watchable Wildlife photo contest accepting entries

North Dakota Outdoors By Doug Leier, Biologist N.D. Game & Fish Dept.

If you're like me, at some point you begin to realize tasks and skills you struggle with make you appreciate those who make it look easy. From driving a golf ball straight down the fairway, to fixing a leaky faucet, to shooting wildlife photographs.

I marvel at the work of golfers, electricians and plumbers. While I'm not a golfer, I've played a few rounds of mini-golf and hitting in the water comes naturally to me. Where there's electrical work and plumbing to be done, I pick up the phone.

So, when it comes to outdoor photography my skill is more suited for the mini-golf version but my appreciation for those who can see and shoot topnotch photographs continues to grow the older I get.

National statistics show watchable wildlife and photography is enjoyed by millions. Don't believe me? Don't think you fit the definition? If you've ever stopped and watched a young fawn wobbling on new legs, gazed in amazement at a hummingbird flitting from flower to flower, or taken a moment to appreciate any of North Dakota's vast array of game or nongame wildlife, count yourself part of the watchable wildlife family.

As you spend time camping, fishing, hiking and exploring North Dakota's outdoors, here's a reminder that the North Dakota Game and Fish Department's Watchable Wildlife Photo Contest for 2022 is now accepting entries. This is an annual photo contest that actually got its start more than 30 years ago as a promotion for the state's nongame wildlife tax checkoff.

Winning photos are displayed on the Department's website and in the January issue of North Dakota OUTDOORS, the Department's monthly magazine.

Cordell Volson

Pro Day in Harvey

Cordell Volson, Cincinnati Bengals' fourth round draft pick, had a PRO DAY for high school football players attending Bret Dockter's camp this week. The 6'7," 313 lb. Bengal prospect made time for signing autographs when he wasn't instructing athletes on the finer points of football.

Harvey's Peaceful Valley Golf Course has never looked better, according to its longtime veteran golfers.

Bengals defending AFC title

By Neil O. Nelson

The Cincinnati Bengals emerged as a super power in the National Football League after their run to the Super Bowl last season.

Despite losing to the Los Angeles Rams in the Super Bowl, expectations are high for the Bengals in the 2022 season.

After finishing first in the North Division of the American Football Conference with a 10-7 record last year, the Bengals won Wild Card playoff game, beating the LA Raiders 26-19.

Cincinnati won the Divisional playoff game by knocking off the favored Tennessee Titans 19-16 on a 52-yard field goal by rookie kicker Evan McPherson with time expired.

The Bengals beat the Kansas City Chiefs 27-24 in the AFC Championship game played at Kansas City. Cincinnati was behind 21-3 before QB Joe Burrows found his stride and the Bengals came storming back, taking the lead late in the fourth quarter. Kicker Evan McPherson sent the Bengals to their first Super Bowl since the 1988 season with another game-winning field goal.

The dream season ended for Cincinnati in the Super Bowl, where the LA Rams caged the Bengals 23-20.

The amazing and exciting payoff run behind quarterback Jeff Burrows capped a great season for the Bengals, who were 4-11-1 the previous season.

The rags to riches story for the Zac Taylor-coached Bengals was embraced by NFL football fans across the country.

They weren't favored to beat the Raiders, Tennessee, KC or the Rams.

Cincinnati lost the turnover margin in the Super Bowl loss to the Los Angeles Rams.

But it was another close game, as were all the Bengals' playoff games. The Bengals finished the season with a 13-8 record. They were 5-4 at home and 5-3 on the road in the regular season.

Cincinnati beat the Minnesota Vikings 27-24 in overtime in the first game of the season last year. The Bengals and Vikings are not scheduled to play in the regular season this year.

Cordell Volson

Cordell Volson, former Drake-Anamoose multi-sport athlete and two-year starter for the championship North Dakota State Bison, has reason to be excited about joining the Cincinnati Bengals.

The 6-7 313 lb. offensive lineman was a fourth-round draft pick by the Bengals.

Volson is second on the depth chart, behind Jackson Carman, a second-round pick two years ago.

Bengal sportswriters give the former Drake-Anamoose Raider a good chance at winning the starting nod at one of the Bengal's two starting guard positions in what's being billed as one of the top position battles of the preseason.

Carman started training camp last year with the third-string unit and finished the year as a backup.

He's projected to be Volson's chief competitor for a starting guard spot.

Volson joins a Cincinnati team that revamped one of the NFL's worst offensive lines. This offseason, the Bengals signed three free agents - center Ted Karras, right guard Alex Cappa, and right tackle La'el Collins - to improve a unit that was ranked 30th in pass block win rate last season and which surrendered 19 sacks in a post-season run that ended in the Super Bowl loss.

The free agent signings leave the starting offensive left guard position as the lone vacancy.

When the Bengals drafted him, Volson said he was ready to go to work.

"I'm a physical player that prides myself on being the hardest worker in the room," Volson said in a conference call with local reporters following his selection in the NFL draft.

"I'm just going to come in and work hard and continue to play to and through the echo of the whistle."

Burrows and Co.

Bengal quarterback Jeff Burrows passed for 4,611 yards, averaging 288 yards a game last year. He threw for 34 touchdowns.

His primary receiver was rookie Ja'Marr Chase, Bengal wide receiver who finished the year with 1,455 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Tee Higgins quietly posted 74 catches for 1,091 yards. Tyler Boyd gives the Bengals a third receiver capable of a 1,000-yard season.

It'll be Cordell Volson's job to protect Burrows, who took 51 sacks during the regular season and another 19 in Cincinnati's four playoff games.

Running back Jo Mixon is a three-time 1,000-yard rusher.

Bengals this season

The Bengals open training camp for rookies on July 23. Veterans join the camp on July 26 at Cincinnati's Paul Brown Stadium.

Cincinnati's first exhibition game is Aug. 12 against the Arizona Cardinals. The Bengals play the New York Giants on Aug. 21 and the LA Rams Aug. 27.

The Bengals open the season at home on Sept. 11 against conference rival Pittsburgh.

NFL writer Nick Shook feels the Bengals "have what it takes" to again be competitive, but will probably need the same level of luck they had late last year to mount a run to the Super Bowl.

The pressure will be on reigning conference champions from the start, said Shook. They will be out to prove they belong in the top echelon of NFL teams, Shook explained.

Jessie Bates, safety for the Bengals and a key to the defense, is expected to report to training camp unsigned. Shook said Bates is Cincinnati's most important defender.

Cincinnati sportswriter Jason Marcum says the Bengals will be one of the more exciting NFL teams to watch this season.

However, Marcum said, they'll be tested week in and week out with what's easily among the hardest schedules any NFL team will face.

Actually, it's the third-toughest schedule based on 2021 opponent win-loss percentage.

Cordell Volson and the Bengals this season will face the Tom Brady-led Tampa Bay Buccaneers; Kansas City, in a rematch of the AFC Championship; New England, in a late season road game in Boston; and a Monday night game with Buffalo.

HWC Coach Dockter

Cordell Volson joined HWC coach Bret Dockter's football camp Monday afternoon.

Volson, who got down and dirty in the drills, commanded respect by his sheer presence.

He had an attentive audience from start to finish. When he wasn't instructing players from schools and teams across the region, Volson was signing autographs.

Amicable and approachable, Cordell Volson most assuredly left an impression on the camp's athletes and spectators.

"Having Cordell there," said Dockter, "was nothing short of amazing."

How often do you have an NFL player visit a high school football camp? "Not often," said Dockter, answering his own question.

"Cordell's a great guy. And he'll be a great addition to the Cincinnati Bengals."

Parting shot -

The AFC Champion Cincinnati Bengals are reportedly teasing loyal fans with the prospect of adopting a white version of their widely-recognizable tiger-striped helmet for the 2022 season.

Photo crews are saying the new helmet reflects the new and exotic Bengal species roaming the Cincinnati jungle.
Say it ain't so, Cordell.

Dog Days of Summer

- Tips to Keep Cool:
- drink lots of water
  - visit an air-conditioned library or mall
  - slow down
  - keep shades drawn
  - use fans
  - wear light-colored clothing

Where I live we have hot summers. We are used to the heat, but lately it's been too hot. I've been feeling as sick as a dog. Woof!

Hot, sticky days that make us sweat! Days when nothing seems to be happening...dog days of summer! Dog days are here when the Dog Star, Sirius, appears over the horizon just before sunrise. At one time, people who were superstitious thought Sirius drove dogs mad in the heat of the summer. Sirius shines with a bluish-white light. It is the brightest star in our sky besides our sun. Sirius is in the constellation Canis Major, the Great Dog. Try to keep cool!

- The hottest days of the year are here and...
1. _____ are tossing and turning, trying to sleep.
  2. pesky _____ are buzzing and biting.
  3. _____ are wilting from lack of rain.
  4. air conditioners hum and _____ whir.
  5. garbage and trash _____ are smelling bad!
