As you gaze in the rearview mirror that is your past, memories that were previously hidden reappear, resulting in a reflection of where you have been and what you have done. During your elementary school days, naptime and finger-painting were the extent of what you thought the future had in store. High school was a distant mirage, much further away than imaginable. Little did you know that while girls were icky and boys had cooties, Valencia's first graduating class was flying over VH-5, dropping marshmallows on the cement, forever leaving their mark as the class of 1997. There was a whole new and exciting world just beyond the threshold of the elementary school that contained and will forever contain your childhood memories. These memories are now blurry and lost for just an instant as you round another corner on the freeway of your life; however, no matter where you go, the recollections will forever be piled up in the backseat, just waiting to be recalled.

Glancing over to your side, the passenger seat is all but available. Piled on top of the canvas cushion is the responsibility of living out your high school career both to the best of your academic ability as well as in a manner that allows time for the more important things in life, like friendship. Companionship is one of the most tangible abstract ideas in high school because before the four years are over, the typical drama that comes along with being a teenager is encountered. This extra baggage adds more stress to the growing pile that is your passenger seat. Even with the trials and tribulations of life in high school it is important to cherish the good times you have with friends that have not yet become just images in the rearview mirror. With good friends and memories being made on a daily basis, the future is still a seemingly distant place, being both anticipated and feared. Feared because the possibility of moving friends from the passenger seat to the backseat seems inevitable, but anticipated because of the certainty of encountering new experiences. Leaving high school is an event that is closer than many people can perceive, and for this reason, it is essential to live in the moment, even if the moment is as short-lived as your high school career.

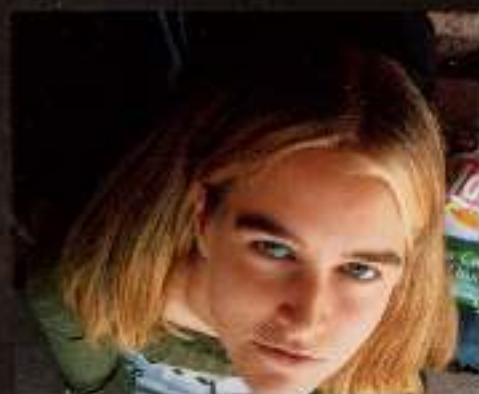

Just beyond the thin glass windshield lies the future, which is a land that is uncharted and unsure. Although your life has already been significantly changed by your past experiences, both in high school and before, there will be many more opportunities soon available to you. Taking advantage of these opportunities will become an extension of your personality, just as challenges and prosperity have reflected the conscious and unconscious decisions that you have made in your past. Sooner rather than later, your life will change in irreversible ways, and the car that you were so accustomed to driving will be traded in for a minivan or an SUV in order to contain the vast amount of memories you have dealt with in your life. These reminiscences of times that were easier will never leave; however, the truth of the matter is that your life will constantly be speeding along on the highway of experience, forever leaving memories of ten years from yesterday.

On the highway of high school there are many side streets where students can take a break from the tiring practice of constantly driving toward their academic future and express themselves through different avenues such as school spirit, friendship and fun. This year witnessed the creation of Viking Nation whose sole purpose is to pump up the spectators and athletes involved in Valencia High athletics. From wearing silly outfits such as senior Vince Dennington's Batman getup to being in the crowd pumping up students such as senior Brittany Burbank, Viking Nation got the job done, with VHS pride at its all time high. Rallies are another way for students to display their spirit, as performances from cheer, hip-hop team, band and dance as well as competitions between students and teachers like grape stomping all enthrall the crowd. Special rallies such as the Valencia ten-year anniversary brought such monumental performances such as the co-ed dance team, featuring Senior and Sophomore brothers Tony and Kevin Ker, who ripped off their pants and swung them around their heads while demanding "Respect" from the crowd. Another side street several Juniors took this year was to support their friend Jingcheng Xu in his homecoming nomination and victory, as well as a clothing line featuring his face. Jingcheng's win broke many barriers, uniting many groups of people within the Junior class, as Christopher Robles demonstrates as he congratulates Jingcheng on being the Junior class winner. Although school spirit is an avenue frequently traveled by high school students, others view school as just a time to enjoy themselves while not getting caught up in the interchanges of high school. The activity that these students choose to engage in is more relaxed, such as playing hackie-sac with crewmembers of JAG, as Junior David Witz and seniors John Chapman and Cristian Sanchez exhibit during lunch. Throughout the four years of secondary education, these little side streets will always be an option and will continually provide a source of memories to be added to the backseat of the car that speeds in the fast lane of high school.

Catcha Grab-On. From IN-N-Out to El Pollo Loco, Valencia was the first campus in the William S. Hart Union School District to offer a vast variety of fast-food options.

Reading 's Fundamentals. When Valencia's doors first opened, the number of books that filled its shelves were scarce, but now ten years later, 13,436 books are available for check-out.

A New Beginning. September 4, 1994 was the first school day ever at VHS as freshmen and sophomores filled the campus with the population only in the triple digits.

Students walk between periods at the new Valencia High School, which opened Thursday with no problems.

Don. Priest said the opening of the $33.2 million campus went off without a hitch. Bells rang on time, the air conditioning system worked and the telephones were all up and running.

"People want to be here, they're excited about being here," Priest said. "There's a real optimism."

Ten Year Memories

Island in the Sun

Having a good ol' time, Spencer and Wes bracked spent one month of their summer vacation in Japan. They went to the beach everyday and even had the opportunity to attend a day of school at a Japanese high school. Here they are attending a carnival.

Boys of summer, Aaron Woodhouse and his family visited Missouri to see historic sites like the Gateway Arch. Andrew Woodhouse and his family enjoyed a beautiful sunset at the Mississippi River in Newnan, Illinois.

Howke by the house, Jason Benedict poses with Atlanta Hawks forward Stephen Jackson.

You can dance if you want to. Diana Scales spent her summer at a Cal Arts summer program for dance. At the end of the course, she received an award where tennis coach/owner Wade Robson was present.

Summer Vacation

That's where we want to go, to get away from it all. Kristina De Bree enjoyed her vacation in Hawaii. She lounged on Hawaii's famous beaches as well as attended a heavy party with her friends.

Good morning your Majesty. Alex Bond spent her summer in England, her second home. During her trip she hung out with her friends and visited many of England's popular attractions.

Classic TV Invades...

A moment like this. Members of the Senior Court (Jared Young and Barry Gonzalez) were being the center of attention as the fireworks blaze in the background.

It takes two. Beer fiends Alex Greenberg and Drew Areas show their Mong spirit by participating in the "fish" softball.

Wait, what? Although Junior Trevor Miller was elected to the Homecoming court himself, he still manages to show support for his friend Jinghong Xu.

What do you bid? Senior members of Viking Nation, Steve Lee, Ben Pollock, and Bobby New, compete for prizes during the Homecoming Varsity football game. It's okay guys, your scores are bound to improve.

Go for the gold! Junior Sky Schmitt participates in a pie eating contest at brunch during Homecoming week. There were various brunch activities available to the students this year, as ASB tries to raise school spirit while promoting the game.

Y'all come back now. Senior Kevin Moore is one of the many students to participate in Western Day.

Senior Court: Elizabeth Aker, Brian Lindsey, David Fogelson, Beanie Doolan, Charles Yi, Jymin Young, Avi Young, Nicole Holcomb, Danny Gonzalez, and Jayna Fisher.

Junior Court: Trevor Miller, Michele Manning, Brittany Andrea Jingcheng Xu, Brittany Corey, and Nicholas Turkko.

Sophomore Court: Lucas Madden, Nicole Pappadato, Arianda Whitaker, Jake Brake, Jordan Hembry and Nirco Brigger.

Watch out when the alley cats strike in their feline costumes. Brian Thomas, Curtis Boder, Christopher Zback and Matt Smith stretch out to show off their claws.

Pat Benatar eat your heart out. Sophomore Amanda Phillips takes the returning 80s fashion to a new level with bright neon colors, an acid wash jean vest and an attitude that screams "We are young!"

There goes my hero: Kelly Brammagan, Katie Oakden, Robbyn Klein and Jymie Young are all set to save the day from evil things that lurk in the dark.

Stick into our Kevin Kline poses the 911 cops to serve and protect the fellow students.

The Odd Couple: Brian Scorer is taking group and an Greenberg in the red apron is out there 'stuf' in Halloween competition.

Vikings Through and Through

Apple and gold-rimmed junior member of newly formed Viking Nation, James De Mooran shows his Viking pride by getting decked out in Viking colors for a home football game.

Remember back in high school when Denny Gonzalez and Davey Rowley are brave enough to get mohawk hairstyles to rock the Newell Indians.

First you say "weah", then you say "yaah" then throw your hands in the air. Junior John Robinson instructs the very spirited Viking Nation on how the next cheer is to be executed.

Is that even possible? Repeat rally performers, the Vite Brothers, entertain the jam-packed gym with their gutsy-defying stunts. This performance ensured a pumped-up Valende student body as the football team prepared to face Newell High School!

School Spirit

Trying a double role: After performing for the crowd at his year's Homecoming game, dance team members Lauren Heath, Jodie Westerman, Kelsey Dohr, Sara Baker, Prandi Castro, and Kirsten Trimble join the rest of Viking Nation in the bleachers.

Who brought the clown? Greg Ross, a Viking Nation regular, is assailed by Mr. The Viking and the rest of the proud "Viking Nation" shirtwearing crowd in cheering on the boys Varsity Basketball team.

On the touchdown dance! Juniors Brittany Repa and Taylor Smith dance in the stands after the Vikings score a touchdown during the Homecoming game.

Breakfast Club

When asked to hang out with a senior, sophomore Marshall Marmolejo didn't think twice about saying yes. Senior Cristian Sanchez agreed to go along too as long as his sophomore companion was a "cool guy." When told what they would be doing, painting pottery, Marshall seemed a bit hesitant but willing and Cristian was completely open with the idea. When Marshall arrived first, he noticed that there must be a "girly section" and quickly decided against anything there, but went for a "simple" mug instead. Later when Cristian arrived, he immediately chose a surfboard, but out of the corner of his eye, spotted a surfboard in Marshall's so called "girly section." Once Marshall and Cristian chose their part, they sat down to work diligently while having a casual conversation ranging from music to doings.

During their conversation, Cristian and Marshall discussed issues concerning them such as school and sports. Marshall says that he likes high school a lot more than Arroyo Seco, although there are still "some literature people" here. Cristian said that he totally loved middle school and misses it because it was more fun. He also said that he had dreams of becoming a writer or a politician while attending Harvard University. He may also go to Santa Monica after he graduates from Valencia. The conversation then quickly turned to sports. Cristian told Marshall that he enjoyed soccer and baseball, Marshall replied that he liked basketball himself and he used to take karate, but eventually he didn't have time for school and karate, so he gave it up as he could achieve his academic success. Cristian also noted that he likes to play backyard soccer, which he started at Valencia with his friends, Tim and Dave. Marshall has no backyard soccer experience and said that it is just the new "cool" thing to do. After that, the two of them discussed Linkin Park, musical instruments, sisters, and television.

After they finished painting and left their pottery for the kiln, they said their goodbyes. Marshall simply waited for his ride as Cristian started up his car.

Who would have guessed that a junior and a freshman would have so much in common? Junior Sarah Frerichs and freshman Emily Yejeta recently had a chance to spend the day together at Paint A Dream to get to know a new person in a carefree environment. Of course in the beginning, things were a little awkward but once the girls began to pick out their pottery, the communication started to flow. They both decide to paint containers so not their artwork would also be conventional and at first their eyes were drawn to the same example piece with a rainbow lid. Because there were none of that type left, Sarah's choice was that of a night with stars and a moon while Emily's choice was that of a day in the shape of a ball of sandals. Sarah then saw a table filled with stencils and they chatted about what they could add to the sides of their pottery to make it more creative.

Despite their opposite themes, Sarah and Emily sat down to begin their masterpieces and found out that they had a lot in common. Sarah was the first to break the ice by asking if Emily played sports. Emily then explained that she used to play soccer before she moved to Castaic from Burbank during middle school, and Sarah told about being on Victoria JV Softball Team. That's when the 'do you know' so-and-so game started with Emily listing her friends also on softball. The conversation then lead to one about school including the differences from jr. high to high school and also Emily's change from a private Catholic school where she was told what days she could wear what to public one where she could wear anything. Sarah attended La Mesa jr. high and therefore somewhat understood about uniforms. The two also connected and built enough of a trust to talk about the guys that they both liked. Since they both are in different grades and belong to different social circles, there was an ease that they would not talk in their own school. They agreed that in those situations sometimes friends make comments that are kind of embarrassing and best kept to themselves.

As Sarah and Emily progressed with their projects, they realized that the stencils that had worked so beautifully in their minds did not come out quite as well on rounded objects. After fixing the stencils smearing, they made their final touches and labeled their works of art. They said their goodbyes and 'til see you around' and went their separate ways, each touched by their experience.

Perfect 10! Sophomore Ingrid Young leaps into a flawless split. Her interest in figure skating was provoked by her mother when Ingrid was just seven years old. Figure skating is truly a strenuous sport, but since her little interest until now, she has dedicated much of her time into making herself a better skater. In the future, Ingrid plans on making a career out of this sport, hoping that she will one day be on China's national team.

Twins! Whizz! Christina Marie Besser, a senior, displays her spins on the ice. Her dedication to the sport has resulted in three years of perfecting her skills in figure skating. Christina's interest in the sport was sparked by watching the Winter Olympics Skating Competition as well as the televised skating competitions year-round. This constant work ethic tends to take time away from school and work; however, her dream of making a career out of her skating passion constantly pushes her.

Break it down, Casey Schell, one of the few freshman members of this year's Ho-Hop Team, demonstrates his "whizz" during the Blacklight rally. Casey has been break dancing for just over a year but has three years of hip-hop under his belt. After seeing people on television break-dance, as well as his older brother Jeremy try, he decided that the activity was worth his time. In the future, Casey hopes to use his dancing, breakdancing, and popping skills in some kind of entertainment career.

Hop on the bandwagon. One of the newest phenomenon to hit the V-S Campus this year is the band "Tact", which features V-S's own Chris Buongiorno and Greg Metzler as well as Hart High students, James Arino, Joe Hinder, and Scott Turner. LEFT, Guitarist Scott Turner and bassist/guitarist Greg Metzler perform at Vaicida during lunch in the quad. BELOW, Drummer Chris Buongiorno rocks out at the same concert event. Tact was formed on November 18th, 2002 when mutual friends introduced the members. After meeting and developing their musical style, which reflects bands such as Thrice, AFI, and Fozzy, the V-S's, the band members had to come up with a name. After studying music composition, they found the word "Tact" which means "blatant". They decided on using this title based on the irony between it and their music. Currently the only CD that they have released is "Words Not Said" EP, which was released on January 30th, 2004; however, everyone should be on the lookout for his band in the future, as their friends constantly gives their reputation as well as motivation.

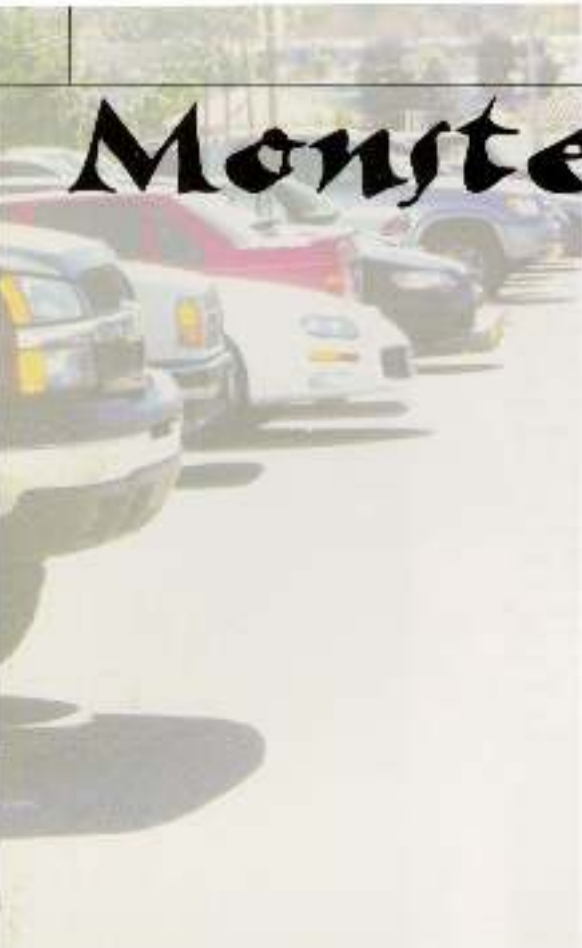

The little drummer boy. Freshman Kenny Tang demonstrates his skills on the drums at his house. Sparking his interest was watching "My Generation" and hitting things. Kenny has been playing the drums for only one year but has plans on making a career out of it.

You and I Both... Another new band whose name is being all around curious is youMe. This band consists of V-S Akron, Jeremy Quiñero and Senior Kevin Herrera, two of whom share the guitar and vocal talents; youMe takes inspiration from such bands as The All-American Rejects and Dashboard Confessional. Be on the watch for this upcoming band, as their first full-length CD, "Unkage" is due out in Spring 2004.

Lucky on Wheels. Drew Aresca, senior, has had this baby for a few years. Although he does not plan to keep his two-tone blue station wagon for long, don't give up your hopes about never seeing this car again as the legend shall be on through his little brother, David Aresca, when he earns the privilege of driving it.

Now it Spanish means no go. Derek Okubo's classic Chevy Nova is trying not scrap metal. He spotted his future car on his friend's street and decided to buy it. Derek plans to fix up his car in the near future when he can get the necessary parts.

Ball Ford Tough. Michael Reslivo, junior, had to work three arduous jobs for over a year to pay for his 2004 Ford F-150.

The Original. After Daniel Huffaker was thrown in for truck, he inherited his 1986 Oldsmobile 88 from his great-grandmother.

Hot Off The Press

Who is your daddy, and what does he do? In the California local election on October 7th, 2003, well-known movie star Arnold Schwarzenegger ran for and won the office of California governor. With campaign T-shirts such as the one shown below used as advertising, as well as his campaign buses, 49% of voters in California chose to "run Arnold."

Has Magic Mountain ever been this empty? During late October, there were many fires around Southern California, including the Val Verde, San Valley and Big Bear fires. There were fourteen deaths and over 260,000 acres burned, as well as hundreds of thousands of people who were evacuated from their homes. The immediate effects of these fires on all Hot Dishes students was the fact that from October 29th and October 30th brought school cancellations, as the air quality was too poor to breathe.

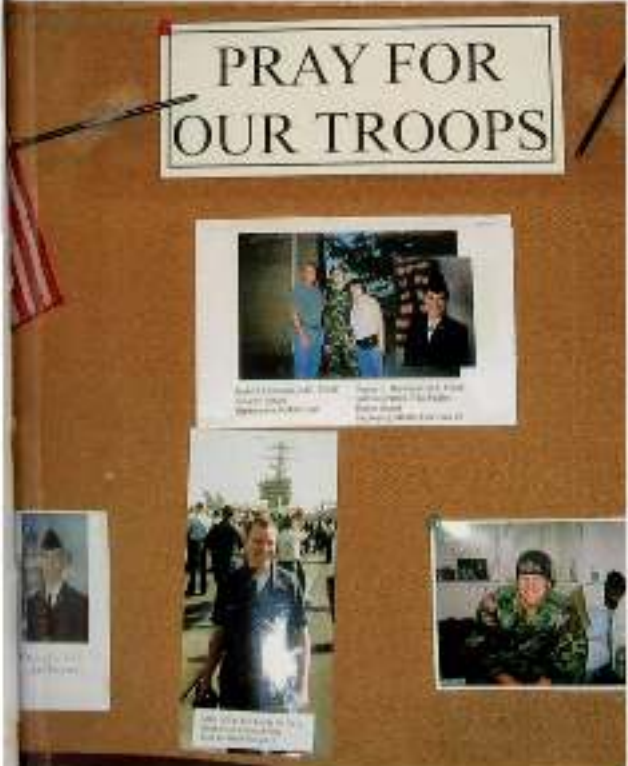

Howel! Get out the way! 2003 brought on the soccer mom's obsession with the bigger possible car available: the Hummer. Although the expense ranges from $50,000 to over $100,000 fully equipped, many people in Santa Clara threw caution to the wind in order to own this gaudy machine.

The great wide grocery strike, in the first grocery market strike since 1978, on October 12th, 2003 Vons, Ralphs and Albertson's employees went on a strike that lasted over six months. Over 70,000 union members took to the picket lines all over California making national news. Although there were long picket lines, people still found shopping at these centers a possibility as thousands of independent employees were hired to fill the spots of the strikers.

I'm sorry Mrs. Jackson. In late 2003 and early 2004 both Michael and Janet Jackson made news headlines for very different reasons. Michael Jackson was brought to court under claims of child molestation, a decision that has not yet been decided. Janet Jackson however, created her own controversy at the 2004 38th Super Bowl, as she had a "No-nude" malfunction when Justin Timberlake ripped part of her top off, causing mild indecent exposure. As of now, both MTV and CBS are investigating the incident to better understand if this occurrence was truly accidental.

Another chain superstore. This year, Valencia experienced the arrival of the Crossroads shopping center, located directly across the street from Valencia Towncenter. The Crossroads shopping center includes big name stores as Kohl's, as well as less well-known stores such as Maggie Moo's Ice Cream and Treatery. With this new expansion, Santa Clara continues its tradition of being a readily accessible shopping district.

The boys are back in town. This year, Operation Iraqi Freedom ended and many of the troops that were overseas returned. Like the one pictured to the left, many crossroads were set up in our community in order for locals to have the opportunity to pray for community members safe return home.

As high school comes to a close for the class of 2004, the route that has led them this far has changed and the seniors are forced to take a detour. With things like college in their view and other's opinions about their life conflicting with their own, they must make decisions about their future before time runs out, as shown by Robert Romero looking at an application for UC Santa Barbara. Tackling tests, conquering essays and perfecting projects are sometimes too much to handle as senioritis settles in and they start to lose track, falling asleep like Armando Sandoval following his science-fiction test. Fighting against the odds, a majority of the seniors do continually challenge themselves with advance placement and College of the Canyons' classes to improve their success and better their chance of getting the job of their dreams. To help with the stress, they must keep their spirits up with comedy and social events like their last high school games, prom, the senior party, and Grad night. Keeping the school environment entertaining has been taken on by many of our school's comedians like our very own and loved Avi Young, who amused his classmates by dressing up on his Halloween birthday as a hula dancer. Time will only tell where these detours will lead the seniors, but these experiences in high school will help mold their future and pave their paths.

"A fun loving girl who likes to explore different aspects of life cause we only live life once so why not make the best of it."
-Krystal Gonzalez

-Hayley Carter

has been here for just a semester but has left an immense impact on the students at VHS. Coming all the way from Brazil, Fernando has enjoyed being immersed in American culture. After leaving VHS, he will miss Friday night football games and all of the friendly people who once said hello to him. Aside from socializing at Valenda, he owes a great deal of credit to Mrs. Strothe for always helping him out when he was in need. He also gives credit to his host family for being just like real parents to him. After high school, Fernando plans on attending the University of Sao Paulo in Brazil, as a chemical engineering student. Fernando would like others to remember to do unto others as you want done to you, because with one word you can make or destroy someone's day or week.

Analise McNeil

is an energetic student around campus. Since her junior year she has been actively involved in drama club, appearing in Rebel Without a Cause in 2007. She also participated as a running crewmember in Midsummer's Night Dream in 2002, and Elephant Man in 2003. Alongside her duties in drama club, Analise takes such challenging classes as AP Literature and Composition, Honors Economics and AP Government. Although she has a very demanding schedule, Analise makes time for her peers, stating that out of everything at VHS, she will miss them the most. During her four years in high school, she has dealt with family and personal illness, which has taught her to cherish life and the people she loves. Although cherishing memories, Analise looks forward to her unrestricted future.

Justin Stahl

has left a lasting impression on his peers. Through family trials and tribulations, Justin has always relied on his guitar to get him through the tough times. In fact, Justin has accomplished much through his musical talents. He has played the guitar for only five years but has still recorded a soundtrack for an independent movie and played for his church's worship band. Justin claims that school is one of the best places to meet people and will miss spending time with his VHS friends after graduation. He has given much thought to the future but still leaves a window of opportunity open. Justin plans on either joining the U.S. Army as a field medic or weapons specialist, going to college at Life Pacific, or even attending a culinary school to satisfy his cooking passion. Either way, Justin will remember to not let the little things in life bother him as he follows his future wherever it will go.

Bobby DeChellis

is hard to miss on the VHS campus. To most, he is known as the starting left offensive tackle for the Varsity football team, but for the people that interact with him most, Bobby is the levity in any situation. As well as making people laugh, Bobby specializes in bacon making. Everything with Bobby is not all fun and games, as he has a very academically demanding lifestyle. He has won the Governors Scholarship for three years in a row and aspires to attend college in Southern California at UCLA, UCSD, or Cal State

San Diego. Bobby claims that his strengths as a person include his biceps and traps, but his weaknesses are his quadriceps and lats. Despite these flaws, Bobby finds comfort in the fact that others have worse days than him. Bobby has many different interests that people might not know about. For example, Bobby states that his favorite music is classic rock, although he claims that it doesn't influence him. Bobby leaves VHS wanting people to remember him as "Bobby D."

Tara McCarthy

is a well-known senior on campus. She is currently one of the working wheels of the MTV cast as a scriptwriter. Tara has a strong love for music as she listens to everything from Mozart to Top Gun, Ozzy, to Godspeed You! Black Emperor. She says that one of the proudest moments of her life was singing at Carnegie Hall during her sophomore year. Her interest in the arts is seen in her academic life too. She has taken Photography, Film as Literature, Journalism, and MTV. These classes will no doubt aid her in achieving her goal of attending Cal Arts to major in film and music, with a minor in photography. Tara is a born leader with an optimistic outlook on life. Her optimism shines bright even when she is having a bad day, as she usually listens to music and writes out her thoughts rather than stressing. Her friendships are very important, and she claims that she will stay with them as long as she can. Tara states that anyone that can put their whole heart into something is her hero, as she wishes to one day do the same.

Danny Kim

has kept an amazing four-year record at Valencia High in both academics and student involvement. He has been involved in boys volleyball as an outside hitter since his freshman year, winning both the "Most Inspirational" award for his JV team and a CIF championship in 2009 with the Varsity team. There is more to Danny than sports however. What most don't know is that his MTV favorite has played the violin for thirteen years in several different orchestras. Beyond his musical talent,

Danny has managed to keep a 4.3 GPA, as well as participate in many clubs here on campus. He has consistently been involved in the Key Club, NHS, and CSE, and is currently the president of the Pathfinders Christian Club. He is inspired by St. Telemachus, who sacrificed his life to put an end to the bloody spectacles that took place in the Coliseum. Danny hopes to attend Cal Poly San Luis Obispo to study biological sciences and then attend medical school before getting married and having children.

MOMMY, WOW!

Bridget Buck is an outgoing and lively person here at VHS. She is a very brilliant student who will always remember her childhood. The only thing that comes to her mind when she looks back at the third grade is, "Wow! That was so long ago! Back in the days of side ponytails!" A few years later in junior high, she started to care about her appearance when she got braces and grew out her bangs. Even though her looks have changed, she will always remember her childhood and the good and bad times she went through. Now as she is about to graduate, her goals that were more like dreams, are becoming a reality.

Brian Lindsey is a typical teenager here on campus who is actively involved in sports. Brian has been playing baseball since his freshman year and has lead his teams to great victories. He played on the freshman team as a 9th grader, on JV as a sophomore, and junior, and is now on the Varsity team as a Senior. When Brian moved from the San Fernando Valley to the Santa Clarita Valley in the sixth grade, his personality and musical tastes changed. Though he has changed, he has no regrets about his childhood. Brian's goals are not clear right now, but he wants to succeed in college and have a great job, marriage, and a family.

As Danny Walker looks back on his childhood, he realizes he is growing up and taking a giant step in life. He once a little child with hopes and dreams for his future, but now, as he is about to leave high school, he realizes that he has been fulfilling his dreams each and every day of his life. Any chance he has to relive his childhood he would pass up because his childhood got him to where he is today. He will remember each and everyday, good or bad, that he experienced at Valencia. If he had one sentence to describe himself today, it would say that he is a somewhat schizophrenic teenager, looking the world straight in the face, ready to take the universe by storm, or just sit at home and watch the weather channel. In the future he will look back at this interview and think, "Wow, this is not where I thought I would ever be," as he drives his flying car away to a city on the moon.

I'm a big kid now.

As Rachel Matteson grows older she will always remember her great times as a child and she will live the rest of her life to the fullest. When Rachel was in the third grade she started to compete in dance and wanted to become a professional dancer, but as she is about to leave high school she plans to be a lawyer with a great family. In the sixth grade, music started to become a part of Rachel's life and she adored the Spice Girls. Then in the ninth grade she listened to rap, but now as she is leaving high school her tastes have changed again and she listens to punk bands. As Rachel leaves high school she has one thing in mind and that is to live life to the fullest.

Darryl Shiralshi is known by most as one of the most intelligent students at VHS. He was once the quiet and shy boy, but now as he is about to leave high school, he is opening up and having the time of his life. Being the relaxed person he is, Darryl wants to live a normal life and have a family in the future. Even though he didn't his freshman year, Darryl now enjoys going to sports games and attending social outings. As his senior year ends the count down of high school, his goals for life have changed so that now he is looking farther ahead to graduate school after college. If Darryl had the chance to go back in time and relive his childhood, he would not pass up the opportunity to have fewer worries again.

Amanda Wilczynski is a very compassionate, energetic, optimistic student at VHS. In the future, she hopes for a loving family and a marriage that will last. As a child, her goals were more like dreams, but now those dreams have become a reality. Now that she has met those dreams, she has put her childhood behind her and looks forward to the future and what challenges she has to face. As she graduates, she will always remember her friends that helped her through high school, and will always remember her past and be excited to see what the future holds.

Tanae Bell is an involved and caring person not only in Valencia High's environment, but also within the Santa Clara Valley. She has been involved in her church as a member of its dance team and also as its hip-hop team director. Music plays a vital role in her life, especially listening to gospel that allows her to push forward when times are hard. Music also allows her to get back into good spirits after a bad day. Tanae's ability to dream and to do what the average person wouldn't dream of doing, has allowed her to create one of the newer clubs on campus: the Movement, which strives for racial equality.

After high school, she plans on attending Hope International University while continuing to pursue a career in acting and modeling. Tanae has accomplished much academically in her four years at Valencia High, receiving a Viking Valor award for American Sign Language. Tanae has truly learned who she is, as well as coming to an understanding of the value of the smaller things.

Jerome Sonza, "the guy that fell off the stage at Homecoming 2007", is a natural comic. After leaving Valencia, he is going to miss all of the classes that he made entertaining by fooling around enough to keep others awake. However Jerome does owe a lot of thanks to Mr. Hayes who accomplished the rare task of making him want to learn. Through his "seven years" of high school, Jerome has learned that true friends are hard to come by, having good charisma gets you far, improving presentations almost guarantees you a B or higher, and that true love is out there somewhere. After graduation, he looks forward to attending any college other than COC in order to fulfill his dream of being a VJ for MTV. Although he has a natural magnetism, Jerome states that his weaknesses include his tendency to be party and hisryptonite deficiency. In his spare time, he claims that he practices the lost art of sleeping and has been doing so since first grade. All in all, his classmates will remember him as nothing other than Jerome.

Lama Saab is educationally driven. She has been rewarded for her academic excellence with a scholarship from Collins College in Arizona. Although she is proud of this accomplishment, Lama prefers to stay in California and attend COC for two years before transferring to UCLA or CSUN. She plans on working very hard to get her PhD and one day opening her own pediatric clinic. After completing her career goals, Lama plans to get married and have a family of her own. Valencia High has made her four years here unforgettable. Her teachers have taught her to be proud of her accomplishments, as well as making class work fun and interesting. Out of all the teachers at Valencia, she pays special tribute to Mr. Inemer because of his aid with her personal issues. Lama is a strong person who has independent tendencies like listening to music to relieve the pressures of a hard day. After graduation, she wants to be remembered as "the Lebanese girl" because of her patriotic attitude toward her home country.

Jamie Fisher is one of the most caring, outgoing and spirited girls around the Valencia High campus. Through her three years as a cheerleader and her ASB experience, Jamie has learned to take pride in the Vikings. She served as the captain of the cheerleading squad during the 2000-2001 season, as well as winning the Cheerleading Coach's Award after the 2002-2003 season. Through this sport, Jamie has gained many friends and earned many lessons such as strength and discipline. In addition to her extracurricular activities, Jamie has managed to remain consistently on the Principal's Honor Roll for all four years resulting in her overall GPA of 3.5. She will leave VHS a more complete person, carrying with her lessons of trying her best. In the future, Jamie plans on attending beauty school to become a cosmetologist and later a wife and mother, where her loving personality will become even more evident.

Danny Walker is a person who has a love for knowledge and a desire to help others. Throughout his four years at Valencia High School, he has fulfilled his thirst for education, receiving such honors as winning a national poetry competition and completing the Video Production Career Path. Along side of attending classes, Danny is involved in the Creative Writing Club, the Varsity Volleyball team, and attending activities at his church up to three times per week. Because of his belief in the church, he has chosen to serve a mission for two years before deciding on what he really wants to do with his life. As with most high school students, Danny states that music is a large part of his life, especially his favorite band of all time, Tool, because of their inspiration. After high school, he wants to be remembered as someone who did great things for others, just as Mozart once did.

Sneha Thamotharan is bound to succeed in life. Having taken such difficult classes as AP Calculus BC, AP Statistics, AP Literature, and AP Environmental Science, she is sure to be recognized for her achievements. In her four years at Valencia, she has managed to maintain a 4.71 GPA, as well as winning Viking Valor awards in Chemistry, Mathematics, Physics and Physical Education. Sneha has also been recognized by the state for achieving High Honors on the Golden State Exams in Biology and Chemistry and Honors in Geometry. Also due to STAR testing, she has been able to receive $2,000 toward her college education. She plans on putting this money to use as she hopes to attend Berkeley, UCLA, Oxford or Cornell to become a doctor. On top of her academic excellence, Sneha is involved with Key Club, Teen Court, NHS/CSF, and CHAMPS. After leaving Valencia High, she will remember that when surrounded by adversity, you have to ignore the noise, mindedness and focus on the good.

Rondolf Moreno is incredibly studious and involved in Valencia's wide range of extracurricular activities. Involved in Science Olympiad, Math Club, Key Club, Teen Buddies, Choir, JROTC, Import Club, and French Club, he has truly enriched the environment around him, as well as benefited from the friendships he has gained. With such intellectually and physically demanding classes as AP Calculus, AP Literature and Composition, Honors Economics, AP Physics, and JROTC, there is little time for much activity outside of school. Despite this limited amount of time, Rondolf still manages to read books by his favorite authors, Tom Clancy, and J.K. Rowling. After high school, he plans on attending classes at either MIT, CalTech, or Stanford in order to study aeronautical/mechanical engineering. Rondolf realizes the importance of living life to the fullest, and would like to remind his classmates to enjoy it because it can never be relived again.

Lindsey Marshall is one of the most well-rounded individuals currently attending Valencia High. Having been enrolled in AP Calculus, AP Literature and Composition, Honors Anatomy and Ceramics, she has more than fulfilled the requirements for graduation, as well as shown those around her that she desires knowledge. Above and beyond classes, Lindsey is occupied with extra-curricular activities such as Key Club, Pathfinders Christian Club, NHS and CSE, her church youth group and choir, as well as serving a term as ASB Vice President. She is also heavily involved with VHS Athletics, as shown in her participation in Viking Nation and her position on the Track and Field team. As an outgoing and compassionate person, Lindsey shares her love of life with the community through her service at Henry Mayo Memorial Hospital. Her knowledge gained in the Pre-Operative ward will aid her as she attends UNC Chapel Hill to achieve her career goal of being a Physician's Assistant.

Allan Husted has spent the past four years breaking the average athlete stereotype. As a team leader, he enjoys taking challenging classes such as AP Calculus, AP Literature and Composition, Honors Anatomy, Ceramics, and ASB. Besides maintaining a 4.69 GPA, Allan has participated on both the Varsity Volleyball and Varsity Basketball teams. This year, Allan has had the honor of serving as the basketball team captain, and starting point guard/shooting guard. Being so involved in basketball, he has been credited with such awards as Scholar Athlete since his freshman year, and an A League Honorable Mention in 2008. Besides athleticism and intelligence, Allan is involved in the school's clubs. He has participated in Key Club, NHS and CSE for three years, as well as Pathfinders Christian Club for two years. Balancing academics, clubs and athletics is admittedly difficult, but he still plans on continuing this lifestyle, as he has aspirations of attending either UC A, Stanford, UCSD, or a university in Arizona.

STUDENT

CLASS OF 2005

Accelerating with full force on the final stretch of road, there is no stopping the class of 2005. With some of their restrictions finally up, they can now go off campus for lunch and during open periods and only have to take five classes. Whether these classes include a science or math course, it is the choice of the driver. For the first time they are allowed to take classes such as work experience and urban workshop. During brunch, some juniors relax and hang out with their friends like Brandon Peterson and Matt Shriver. On the other hand, some may be hard at work on their homework or playing games on their calculator like Daniel Malley and Trevor Chase. Either way, the juniors have now distinguished themselves away from that of the underclassmen. Catherine Nicholas, Aly Westover, and Vanessa Gorski establish themselves as upperclassmen by showing their class rings with pride. In November the junior class attended a business seminar with their English classes where they got tips about the application process, ethics, and teamwork. At the end of the day they then got to share their feedback as shown by Robert Jamison holding the microphone as Doug James answers a question. With new skills and responsibilities, the junior class is more capable to maneuver around the obstacles they will encounter on the road ahead.

FRESHMAN

Since the class of 2006 is no longer the new kids on campus, they may now begin to merge into the fast track of high school. More baggage and choices fill their trunk, but the familiarity of this road makes the journey faster and easier. They embark with a feeling of reassurance in themselves, no longer fearing being labeled as "freshman" but standing firm with pride in their class. On Halloween Michael Mullen let his creativity and individuality flow with a Quail Man costume he made himself. When it comes to their high school careers, they take it head-on with a history course added to their schedules and are no longer forced to take physical education. During lunch some sophomores use the time productively to finish homework that they might not have completed the night before like Brian Russell as his girlfriend Sophia Singletary and friend Rebecca Wilson talk to him. Others take this chance for freedom to enjoy their friend's company and the good times that they will remember when they look back on their high school years. Sitting at a table under the shade cover, Cory Mc Mahan and Trent Vigil enjoy the school served Pizza Hut pizza and Jimmy Dean's brought to them by someone free to leave the gates of the campus. The sophomore class begins to separate into passengers and drivers as the through traffic merges left and makes their mark on VHS.

Exiting the avenue of junior high, the class of 2007 has merged directly onto the fast-paced freeway of high school. With the increasing number of students on campus, it is easy to get lost in the traffic, as the freshmen are weighed down with homework and books. Yet there is some relief with lockers to store their load, like Cailee Kimball, who's opening her locker to put away several of her books and binders from her backpack that is bursting at the seams. But freshmen do significantly stand out as they are looked down upon, literally and figuratively. With new experiences, including rallies, football games, and dances, freshmen are given new opportunities to be an active part of their school. Although sometimes discriminated against, as shown by Brooke Worsham and Chase Casapo, the freshmen must tolerate sitting on the floor at rallies and being stuck on campus during lunch, like Collin Davis and Chris White. Also, more is expected of them academically as they share classrooms with multiple grades in harder classes than they have taken before. Even though their schedule usually lacks a social studies course, they have to run a half a mile on Wednesdays and the mile every Friday. As these freshmen have become more experienced in high school, they are now able to merge into faster lanes and confront the possible roadblocks over the next three years.

Help Wanted!!

If you were stranded on a deserted island, who would you want to be with?

Kevin Hughes says he would like to be with his parents.

Christopher Vista would like to be with his close friends and Nikki G., the girl he likes.

Elliott Asarco thinks a pilot with a plane would be his best bet.

Keith Farley thinks Gilligan would be a good companion on a deserted island.

Jennifer Cuevas says she wouldn't mind being stranded with Orlando Bloom.

A guy who knows how to make stuff, like "The Professor," would suit Timothy Myers.

FRESHMAN

Returning for their second trip on the freeway of high school, the staff of VHS enforces the rules of the road to ensure safety. Now they may look around with a third person point of view without the typical teenage drama. There to help their students with their problems and to teach them for their future, these dedicated people come to this campus to serve and protect. They do this with structured lesson plans and required curriculum, but what makes their classes more memorable are those lessons that don't come straight from a book but from their own creativity. Dennis Mifflin illustrates the complicated dynamics of "dumpster diving" in his third period economics class outside of the routine of the classroom. Another way that teachers make their mark is by their humorous antics like our spirited ASB director Vince Ferry when he dressed up as a clown during Valencia's Tenth Birthday rally. Along the road the staff also ventures outside of their departments to build friendships with fellow staff members. Biology, earth science and meteorology teacher Lee Starke and speech, humanities and AP art history teacher Joseph Marcucilli walk through the campus side by side. Even though their job is to keep all their students in line, they are also there to help direct those on their future path and help them with flat tires that may have them down.

By: Dr. Priesz

Thanks for a great year, and here is to better ones in the future. It is a pleasure to know each one of you, and I consider it a blessing to be able to serve you as your principal. I wish the best of luck to you in the future, and may you always be successful and always remember your years at VHS.

FRESHMAN

High school is a time to figure out who you are and build yourself into the person you want to become. From one's entrance as freshman to his or her exit as a senior, the construction along the freeway is continually changing. Foreign language classes are offered, though not mandatory, to better a student's chance of getting into his or her dream college like Sophomore Eric Hollingsworth in Mrs. Arias' Spanish I class. Also, electives and ROP classes are offered in different fields to help with Valencia's goal to not only teach their students but to prepare them for the real world. A class offered for the profession of broadcasting is Video Production where Junior Richard Courtney films Sophomore Bobby Giler and Junior Ryan Smith as Sophomore Mark Kraer snaps the marker to begin the shot for their assignment. In addition, practical art classes must be taken to graduate which including keyboarding, web design, business and foods. With the growing number of careers in the technology industry, keyboarding class provides students with the opportunity to increase their typing speed as shown by Freshman Vincent Barza in Mr. Stenzel's sixth period as he does an exercise in copying from a practice book while not looking at the keyboard. Yet another component to the class environment is a laid back atmosphere as shown daily in Mrs. Strone's classes. When her science fiction class stands outside while drug dogs search her classroom, she leads Seniors Alex Gutierrez, Cassie Cerro, and Anthony Villwock in the Hokey Pokey. After all, high school isn't just about learning out of a book but constructing your mind.

Mathematics

While others of math formulas danced in his head, Bobby DeCicco persistently blazes to Ms. Dyck as she explains standard deviation in her AP statistics class.

Hey, that assignment was due five minutes ago! Cally French works on a probability worksheet throughout AP statistics.

Darren He: Math Guru

Even as a junior, Darren He has demonstrated an expertise in math that only a few people will ever achieve. He is currently taking Math 214: linear algebra at COC, yet at such an intense level of math, Darren admits math is not his passion. He says, "The idea of lines and equations and numbers and variables floating around does not make me feel warm and fuzzy inside; yet, I enjoy math for the challenge. The notion that some problem is out there, waiting to be solved, interests and intrigues me." As a sophomore, Darren founded Math Club where he could enjoy math problems, which he describes as a set of bowling pins, waiting to be knocked down. In Math Club, members solve math problems and participate in math competitions. Although Darren enjoys math, he also spends time playing piano, practicing his back belt skills in Tae Kwon Do and spending summers doing research at Loma Linda University and Caltech. One of the most rewarding experiences Darren has encountered is volunteering at local junior high schools, tutoring other students in math. "When someone I am helping suddenly lights up and 'gets it,' I feel that all my years of studying math have paid off."

Foreign Language

Comprendre? Senora Gannon shows the difference between masculine and feminine conjugations in her Spanish class.

Mayssoun Saab

Senior Mayssoun Saab, one of the most multilingual students found on the Valencia campus, speaks six different languages including Lebanese, English, French, Arabic, Egyptian, and Syrian. Being born and raised for thirteen years in her native Lebanon, learning to speak and write Lebanese came without question. While living there May was given the opportunity to take French as her foreign language option at the school that she attended. Because she found enjoyment and challenge in the language, she stuck with it for six consecutive years until her relocation to the United States. At only thirteen, moving to a new country with a definite language barrier was intimidating, and yet she managed to be motivated enough to teach herself fluent English within six months of her arrival. To assist her in her quest to learn the challenging and colloquial language, May was resourceful enough to browse the internet and actively view television, both of which astoundingly prepared her before her first day of American school. Throughout the challenging process of speedily learning another language, May notes that her family assisted her by giving her the constant support and time needed in order to fully comprehend all of the different rules and regulations that are required to have a strong hold on the dialogue. Her background in Arabic, Egyptian and Syrian comes from her younger years living in Lebanon, where she was constantly surrounded by television and people that used these languages. At home, May uses Lebanese most often due to her family's Lebanese background. In the future she plans on using her language skills to fulfill her dream of becoming a chemist and pharmacy owner.

One syllable at a time Josh Shultz presents the answers to he had jotted down in his Spanish workbook.

Domo arigato, Mr. Robot. Junior Christian De Bary analyzes his Japanese language book and jots down a few notes.

Throw your hands in the air! Cathi Wilcox quickly raises her whiteboard in her Spanish class. Games such as this help students learn things like conjugations and key terms.

Would you like some... shiitake mushrooms? Jonathan Tanesiko writes Japanese symbols on the whiteboard for his fellow students to admire.

RISE OF THE Machines

Technology

What are you talking about? I'm not doodling! Matt Hall demonstrates his Adobe Photoshop skills as he completes a project in Mr. King's Graphic Arts 1B class.

If you could invent any machine, what would it be and what would it do?

If Tyler Coray, a ninth-grader in Mr. King's Graphic Arts 1B class, could invent any machine, he would invent the milkshake robot from the television show, "Richie Rich." Whenever Tyler would say the word "milkshake," the robot would approach Tyler and make whatever flavor milkshake he wanted.

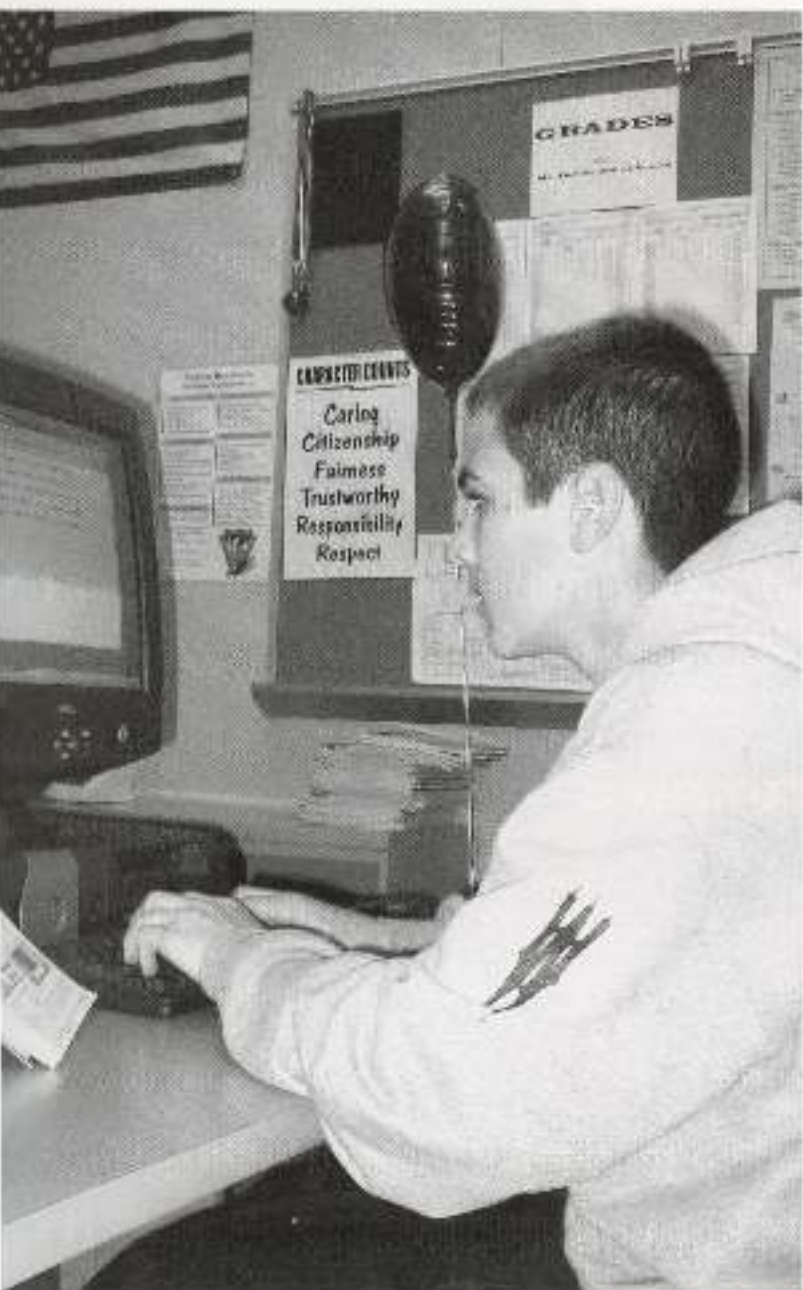

Freshman Elise Riner, in Mr. Stenzel's keyboarding class, would love to invent a machine that would do kids' school work and chores around the house.

Adam Weiner, Kyle Hefferman, and Justin Bassett in Mrs. Wilson's Drafting class would invent a fully automated house. It would include a voice recognition system to meet their every need, a motion detection system for entry and exits of rooms, robotics for cooking and cleaning, and last but not least, an underground virtual reality room for entertainment purposes.

Brook Gauvin, a freshman in Mr. Stenzel's keyboarding class, would invent an instant food machine that would affect the entire world. This machine would make lots of food which would feed the whole world.

Video Production

Characters Stage Left. Lauri Holman explains to Stacy Meng and Michele Fleming the complicated storyboard which shows detailed preparations of what will happen on camera. Working with story boards is one of the many sets taught in Video Production.

In 3, 2, 1, Josh Rupp quickly prepares the camera just in the nick of time to broadcast another MTV episode.

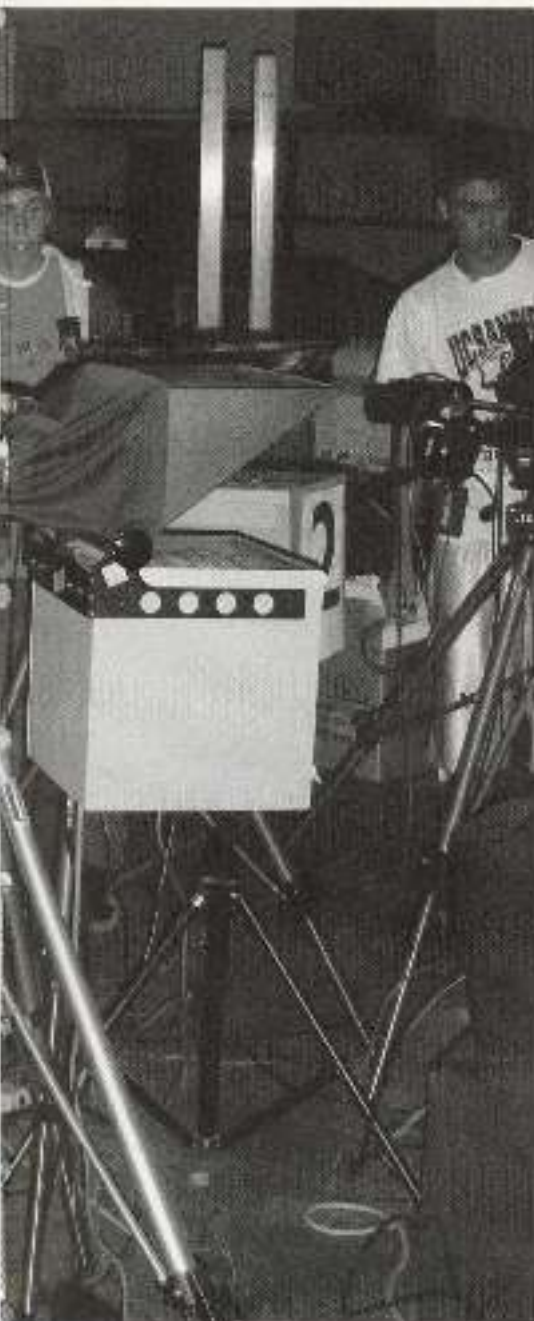

Michelle Frezieres

Michelle Frezieres, one of Valencia Television's producers, directly affects each and every student at Valencia High School through her unique ability to produce the daily news in both an interesting and concise way. Since her freshman year, she had a great interest in the MTV program. In acting upon this interest, Michelle found herself talking to Mrs. Overdeest virtually everyday in her junior year, pleading to be part of the MTV class. She not only got the chance to participate in the program, but also displayed her innate sense of organization and control, causing her to propel to the top and become one of two producers. Being on MTV isn't necessarily all its cracked up to be, as there is more hectic times and people to deal with than seen every day on channel three. Despite the chaos and required dedication, Michelle has used her MTV experience to develop a solid interest in the news and currently plans on making a career out of it.

What would we do without technology? Working on a computer is a vital part of the MTV daily life, as Aaron Smith succinctly demonstrates.

The Dynamic Duo... Jayne Young and Michelle Treziers prepare for the Halloween episode of VV in which the entire broadcast staff got the opportunity to show off their creative costumes.

Behind the Scenes... Danny Kim and Aaron Smith demonstrate their expertise regarding the sound that is heard on VV only as Howard Courtney observes the techniques they use.

It's really not that hard. Tara McCarty and Josh Rupp work with the video editing equipment in order to decide what information is displayed in a concise and interesting manner.

Lucas Jessick is one of the more inspired artists on campus. Since the early age of nine, he has been taking art classes from Serapio Calm II and Gregory Mansi at the Valley Art Institute, where he learned the basic skills to aid him in preparing his portfolio. As a senior this year, Lucas is thinking of his future and trying to integrate his passion for art into it. Due to the fact that he is most interested by Celtic art, Lucas plans on attending CSUN to participate in the illustration program. This education will undoubtedly aid him in his dream career of character design for a video game or animation company like Square Enix. Despite being a young artist, he has been commissioned for some of his pieces. Because great minds think alike, Lucas looks up to Trent Reznor for inspiration in order to create his own masterpieces. Lucas has enjoyed great success throughout high school and looks forward to his future, although he leaves the following message to aspiring artists: "high school grades actually count for art colleges."

Jonathan Ragosta

Junior Jonathan Ragosta is currently enrolled in Photo I here at Valencia. Originally, he took the class to fulfill his fine arts credits, but once engaged in the class, he became very fond of photography. His favorite subject in photography is landscapes because he enjoys the outdoors and thinks that "people are flawed, and nature is beautiful." The photo at the right is a picture that he took this fall at the Getty Museum. Because it features an interesting part of nature, he says that it is his favorite. Jon states that he prefers to use black and white film as opposed to color because it looks more professional as well as shows more depth. Assisting him in the pursuit of more interesting images is the camera which he uses, a 35mm Canon TX. As far as a career in the field goes, Jonathan isn't sure about that yet, but either way it will remain a hobby and is an experience that he will treasure forever.

Don't dig the sink up, Trevor Schramm pours out the last of the chemicals to process his film.

By a Small World After All, Nicole Bente and Jesse Crowl (velvet) of Valencia's jazz Ensemble crosses the audience during their "Music From Around the World" performance.

All we want for Christmas... Kaitlin Hurlburt, Corbin Park and Chris Taylor leave the crowd speechless while they beautifully serenade their audience with the song "Grow Up Christmas List."

Nicole Bente

Senior Nicole Bente has been in Valencia High School's choir for four years and sings as an alto. She was interested in joining choir because she loves to sing and perform and thought that it would be a good experience for her. Nicole has been singing ever since she was in seventh grade and says that the most difficult thing about choir is learning new music when you don't like it. Her fondest memory of being on the school choir is when she went to New York City and sang at Carnegie Hall to the policemen who assisted with the fires on September 11th. After high school, Nicole plans on pursuing her singing. "It's a huge part of my life, and no matter where it takes me, I will always be singing." To those who are interested in becoming a member of Valencia High School's choir, Nicole says that "you have to really have a love for music and singing because it becomes your life."

What do you think is the hardest song to play?

"Stairway to Heaven," because that has very hard licks in the solo." -Joe Schurz

"Tedulla" -Lexy Graham

"Rain Down on Me," because the chords are constantly changing." -Jimmy Lee

"The hardest song I tried to play was 'Tears in Heaven' because I still can't figure out the chords." -Priscilla Ro

"Peace of Mind," by Boston. It has some crazy solos." -Brian Vanina

"Styx 'Renegade,' it has a lot of leap parts." -Vincent Barza

"Your Bird Can Sing," it makes me cry." -Isaac Oberlander

"Meant to Live," by Switchfoot...I have small hands." -Matt Pedrick

Scrooby dooby doo, where are you? Through his shaggy hair, Joseph Schurz tries to play along with jazz music that Mr. Babko is playing from a CD to show the guitar fundamentals.

What was the hardest recipe you have ever made?

Cinnamon rolls - Jackie Feder

Mexican Sweetbread - Briana Mendoza

Angie food cake - Crystal Hernandez

Pizza because you have to be precise - Maysoon Saab

"Parasels" - Corie Tomlinson

Waffles: anything can go wrong - Rebekah Zimmerman

"Lasagna" - Lynda Clark

Angie food cake because I couldn't get the eggs whipped enough so there wasn't enough air in the eggs - Schank - Strickland

Cinnamon rolls, mainly the bread part is hard - Carisa Dabrey

The hardest recipe is when you add your own creation together because you never know how it's going to taste when it's done - Yvette Schacter

Behind Crystal Hernandez is stirring the ingredients necessary to create a marshmallow mixture.

You don't like my food? Nicole Groom, Paul Dolson and Megan Britz are discussing how their food turned out after being tasted.

Shay, Cordele, Popi, Niki, Imbachat, Anthony Strickland and Lynda Clark enjoy the prepared Rice Krispies with their marshmallow mixture.

Org. of Culture Leader, Yvonne Jimenez, and Ashley Selzer prepare their Rice Krispie Treats to be served.

Auto

Think outside the box. Mr. Houser shows Sophomore Link Troy how to fix a car stereo in his 6th period auto class.

Knowing a car inside and out. Senior Kevin Matib and Junior Kevin Wittwer take apart a car to better learn how it works.

When you work on a car, what is the first thing you do?

"It depends on what's wrong with it."

-Matt Aucoo

"See if it's cosmetic."

-Chris Troy

"Check the fluid levels."

-Darren Capra

"Fix the brakes."

-Kevin Thompson

"See if it runs."

-Cory Gropo

"See how shiny the engine is."

-Gary Clyde

"Put a bigger motor in."

-Bryan LeChance

"Fix the part that's broken."

-Kevin Wittwer

Under the hood, Chris Troy, Jesse Fowler, Darren Capra, and Steven Jensen all inspect the engine to see if there is anything they can fix.

How many people have you helped because of this class? How?

"I've helped two people with breakups by giving them advice with how to cope." -Jesse Suarez

"Countless, on and off campus." -Dominique Covino

"Approximately four - got them through it by being a listener and trying to give some advice." -Brittany Starve

"I have helped a few friends, family members and people I didn't even know by using the strategies I learned in the class. My goal is to be a good listener and know when to talk and what to say." -Sarvenaz Ghodolizadch

"It's funny because you don't need this class in order to help people. Just giving a friend a shoulder to cry on is helping someone." -Jen Kerum

"One dude - he had a dispute with another guy and it was settled easily." -Chinda Annan

Assistance with style. Senior Stewart Garcia and Junior Ashley Hanson practice their skills on counseling situations in Mrs. Stroth's 5th period peer counseling class.

Sharing is caring. Seniors Chinda Annan and Dominique Covino chat about their everyday lives during peer counseling.

When you smile. Seniors Rachel Adam and Cassandra Hoffman actively demonstrate the companionship that is formed when peer counseling teaches them to share each other's burdens.

Feel your pain. Seniors Jesse Suarez, Jesse Lott, and Junior Seth Lince discuss the recent changes in their lives during Mrs. Stroth's peer counseling class.

FRESHMAN

As we travel further down the freeway of high school, we run into another side street where people share the road freely. Clubs are one of the biggest factors in our school that bring students with similar interests together. Any student with an idea for a club can start one if he or she wants to. Whether the club is the size covering the entire country or just one that meets in a single classroom, the clubs all share the road in an effort to unite the school through common interests and goals. Groups like The Movement help make the step toward campus unity and peace. Here on Club Day, Mikala Fricke looks at a few pamphlets put out by members in The Movement, Tanae Bell and Crystal Taylor. Students on Science Olympiad, Catherine Nicholas, Darren He and Randall Ng summon any students who are willing to put in the time and dedication it takes to be in Science Olympiad. Drama club is in charge of organizing school plays, shown here as Lee Perillo ensures that the lights and sound work properly during the closing night of "Chorus Line". One of the newer groups on campus, Cheer Against Suicide, is more focused on aiding any students on campus who need their support in times of dire need. On Club Day, members of CAS Britney Reeves, Becca Summers and Jessica Roussel spread their word across campus about their club to help lower the number of suicides in loving memory of a lost friend. Whether it's the size or the purpose of your club, the organizations of Valencia are the building blocks of our school and share the same roads that lead to our future.

CSE / NHS

The wheels on the bus go round and round Students if the bus going to Kroff's Berry Farm on February 27th 2004. As a perk to being in CSE/NHS, students get the opportunity to attend such exciting club events as Kroff's Night.

In the dark of the night, Students return to NHS after a field trip at 2 am on a Sunday morning. These students got to enjoy time with fellow members of the club on their field trip but still have to remember that service hours will soon be due.

State your name, age and occupation. Ms. Perry checks off student tickets as they enter the bus that will take them on their trip. Being in CSE/NHS is not all fun and games though, as students must complete eight hours of community service every semester to be in NHS, as well as maintain a high GPA in order to remain in both CSE/NHS.

Did you know that you seem an eighth of your life in that Junkies Jail like and Whitney Low, and presently in the 100 Boonberg at Kroff's Berry Farm.

Key Club

Not, really. It's fun. Key Club officer Al Adjar bids to create a new core group of students to participate in Key Club as he points out the main part of being in Key Club, community service.

Excuse please. Freshmen Alton Ngai, Steve Lewis and Alice Kong patiently listen as the club organizers speak about service opportunities, as well as general club information.

Good friends, good eats. Senior members of Key Club, Edmundo Poyra, Patricia Fructoso, Ryan Marilla and Christopher Krause meet at a local restaurant after completing some community service hours to meet the club's requirements.

A walk to end all disease. Seniors Al Adjar and Patricia Fructoso proudly pose for the camera after participating in the Los Angeles AIDS Walk.

Equestrian Club

Get over it! Kaitlyn Bradley has her horse leap over one of the tracks hurdles gracefully, portraying a beautiful mix of muscle and spirit.

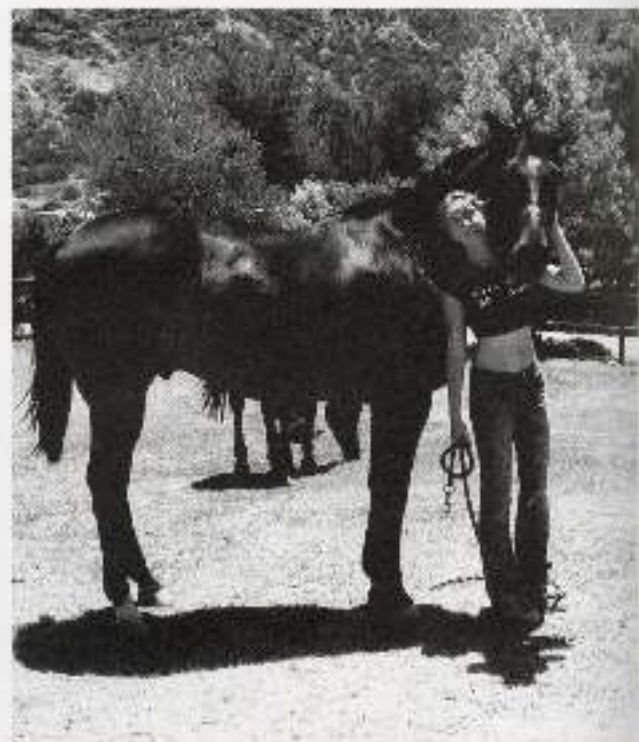

The Riders of Valencia, Ms. Kurda, Brianna Erickson, Brittany Mills, Lauren Fekhnian, Kaitlyn Bradley, Kristyn Vincent, and Katie Lehner all pose for a Kodak moment in their riding uniforms.

Alec (opt) Kack Lehner rides her horse and leaps over one of the hurdles on the track.

It's a beautiful morning. Kaitlyn Bradley calmly trots around the deserted track to show off her horse and her ability to tame an animal of such size.

Who says dog is man's best friend? Lauren Fekhnian shows that horses aren't only a race to race with, but they make great friends on and off the track. Her horse, Khobbi, is not only a vital asset on the race track, but a true companion in her life.

Billiards Club

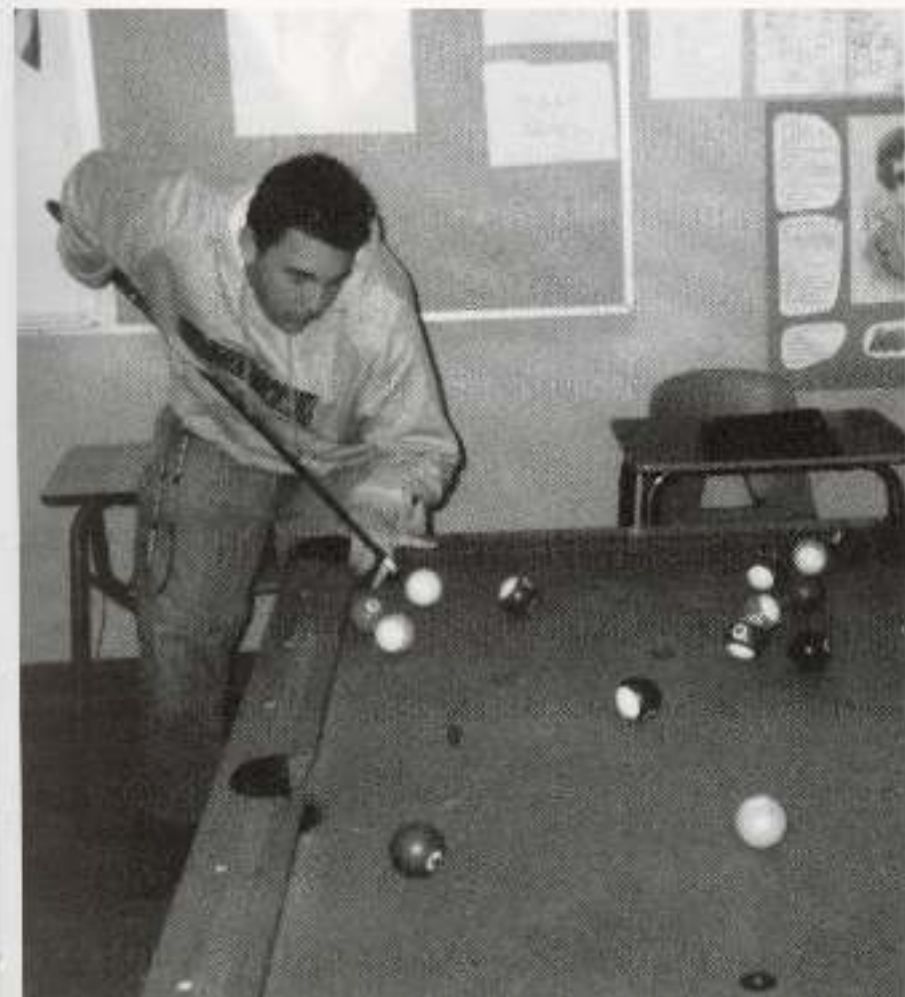

It's one's for the game! Dean Woolam reads himself and aims at the eight ball for the game-winning shot.

Cross your fingers. Matt Cozens prepares his shot towards the corner pocket as Zach Arnold studies the shot for himself.

Trevor Nelson, a senior here at Valenca High, is one of the most dedicated members of Billiards Club, shown through his commitment to it all four years of his high school career. From the very birth of the club during Trevor's freshman year, he has been showing up on countless lunches to play pool alongside many other billiard fanatics and club advisor Mr. Miffin. His passion for billiards was sparked about six years ago due to his unmatched ability to play pool. Outside of school, Trevor not only plays pool, but is also on the Varsity Boys Baseball Team. When playing any sport, Trevor finds that his favorite snack would have to be vanilla snack pudding.

Analyze this. Dean Woolam analyzes his shot as Bryant Simpson walls.

Steady now. Senior Trevor Nelson prepares to aim a shot towards the middle pocket in his match.

Light up the shot. Jason Gash aims at the cue ball to deflect his target ball into the corner pocket.

DECA Club

Jason Galvin has been in DECA Club since his freshman year. At first, he joined the club for extra credit, but ended up having a blast, which caused him to continue to participate. Jason's favorite part of being in DECA is meeting new people and traveling. He is interested in business because it is the greatest opportunity for him to make a living. Although only a junior, he is thinking of his future. Jason plans on going to Johnson and Whales Business School in Charlotte, North Carolina to major in marketing with an associate in sports management. As a professional, Jason looks forward to becoming the General Marketing Director for an automotive company.

I thought we were going to Disneyland. DECA club goes to Knott's Berry Farm for a competition.

Notebook! Get your notebook! DECA Club members Jason Galvin and Kristina De Bree help out in the Supply Shack in room 828.

sat with Ian Greenberg, Kristina De Bree, Rory Kram and Bryana Aguilar sit together at a DECA Club dinner. Celebrate good times! The winners of the DECA District Competition hold up their awards as they celebrate.

French Club

I vote yes! Vice president Amy Shroff votes for the one green-colored shirt as does "Coco-Late".

Are you listening? Julia Markow listens as the president of French Club explains that the habits are for fundraising.

Is that pepperoni? Allison Shkati and Samantha Orans enjoy their pizza before the club starts its discussion.

Which do you like better? President Ekaterina Petrovich asks the entire French Club to vote on t-shirt designs.

Frog legs or Crepes? Nikki Destura helps decide which French restaurant to go to as a field trip.

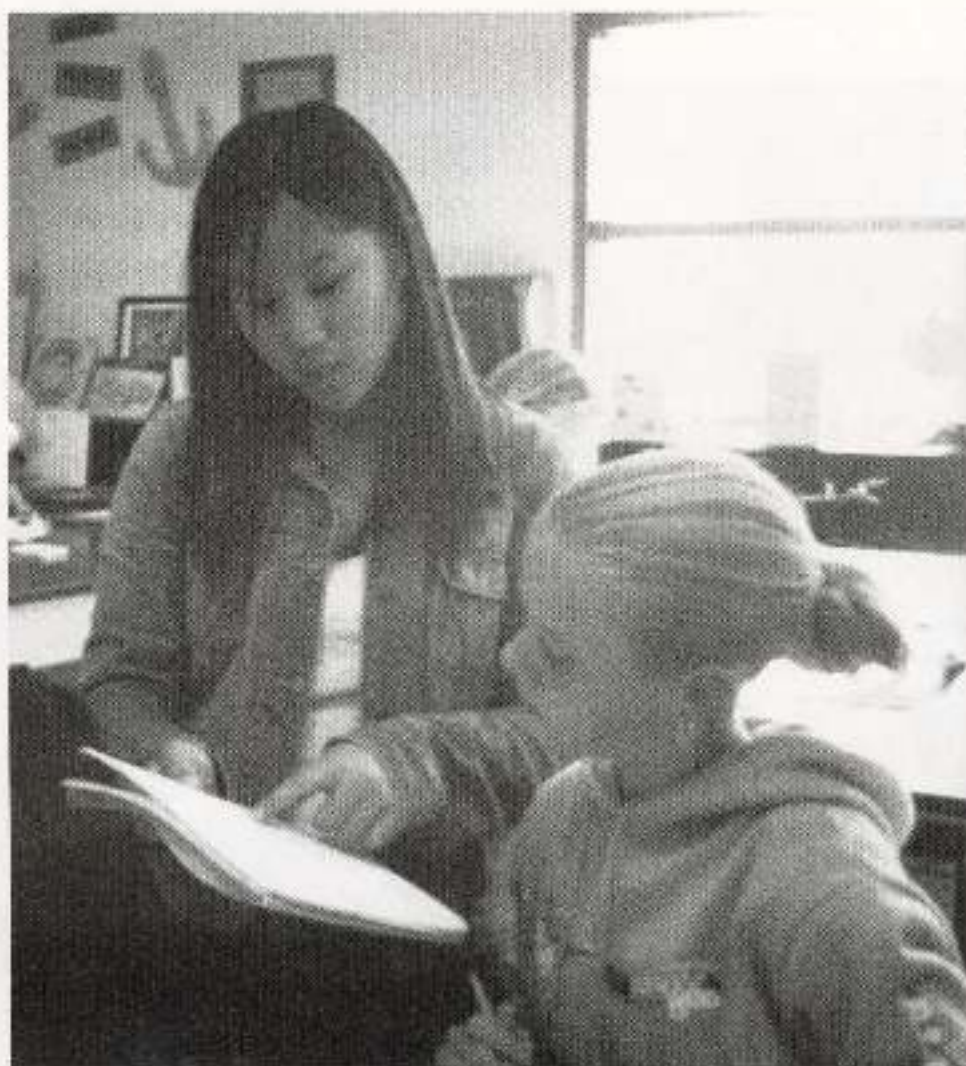

Amy Shroff,

senior, always wanted to live on the east coast, so learning Spanish wasn't important. Now that she has learned French, she would love to go to Paris and show off her impressive accent. Madame Langdon has been Amy's most influential French "connoisseur." She has fixed Amy's accent, marks and pronunciation for the past four years. Madame Langdon has also encouraged Amy with French language and culture every day. Amy is in AP French and believes that if she studies and watches French Kiss enough times, she will receive a three on the AP French test. Her favorite expressions to say in French are "Que je suis mignonne?" which means, "How cute am I?" and also "Je pense que tu es une espèce d'otard" which means, "I think that you are a species of a bafloon." Amy's favorite part of French culture is the food, although she wishes they had bigger portions.

Science Olympiad

Elementary dear student Science Olympiad's Kater Indict explains the complexities of science theories.

According to my calculations, junior Andy Yach asks a student with his science work.

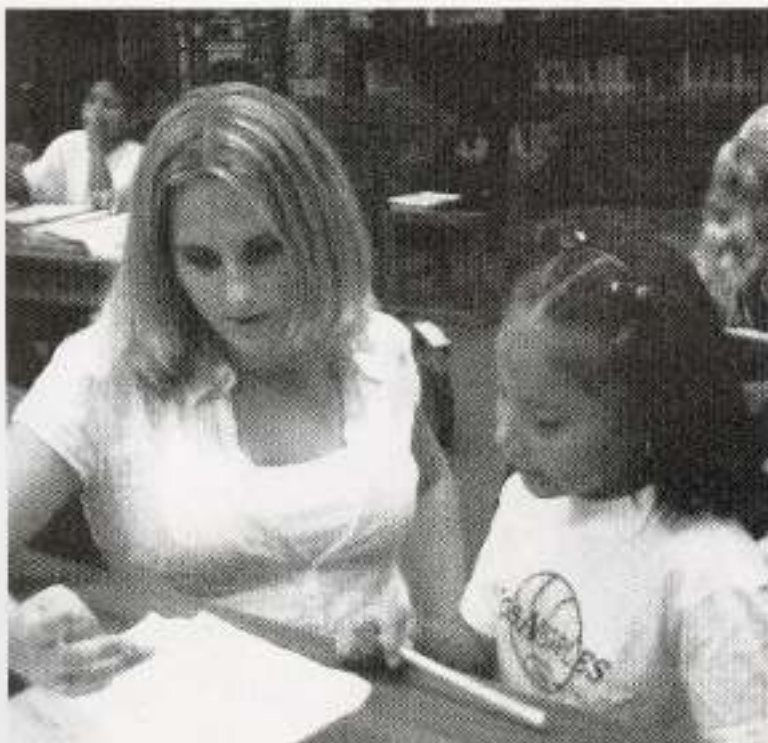

Overseeing procedure, junior Floyd Iyer watches as his partner works out a scientific equation. Science Olympiad is composed of many intelligent students from Valencia High, all of who help younger students from different schools with their academic work.

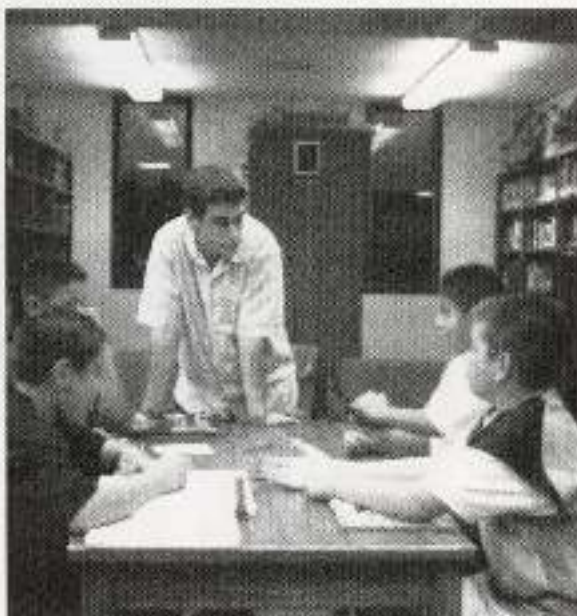

Can you explain that one again? Catherine Nichols helps a student work through her science problems.

Math CLUB

Lending a helping hand: Catherine Nizicka carefully looks over her student's work. Whether it be science or math, many people in Math Club are turned to for help due to their excellent academic achievements and ability.

Back to the basics: Andy Yuen teaches the key concepts of math to a group of elementary school children.

Math is power: Seán Rodolfo Morales is one of the students here at Valencia who is someone you can go to for help as shown here, where he helps his pal with some higher level learning.

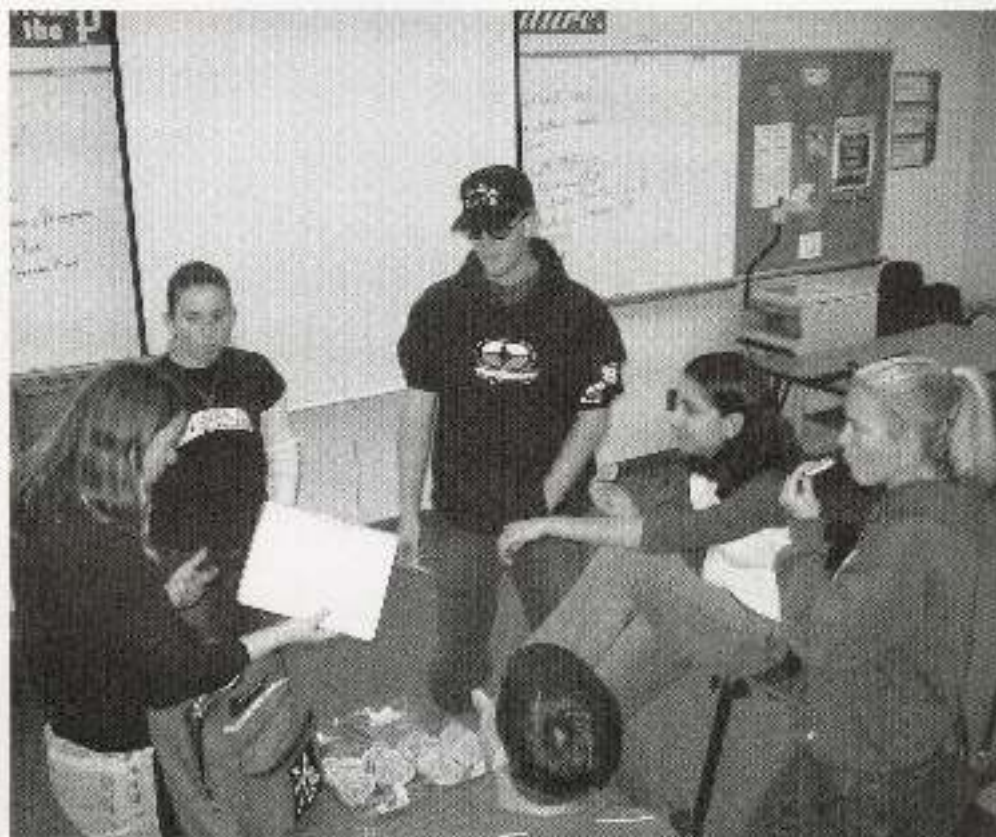

Group discussion: Kaya Tabrizi teaches a group of youngsters some complicated math equations. The equations that they learn today will hold the foundation that they need for the future.

Cinema Club

Group Huddle: The Cinema Club gathers around to vote on the next movie to see.

Good listeners: Co-president Iris Gonzalez and Vice President Whitney Lowe listen intently as Daniel Hultiker discusses Lord of the Rings: Return of the King.

The man with the plan: Melanie Mayes quickly asks Mr. Rooney if he could arrange the next meeting.

Senior Melanie Mayes, the co-president and founder of Cinema Club, decided to start this club last year with adviser Mr. Rooney and co-president Iris

Gonzalez due to her passion of movies and her love to discuss them. Next year, Melanie hopes that this club will live on through her incoming freshman sister, Amber Mayes. Although Mel's favorite movie is Fried Green Tomatoes, her favorite genre of film is horror. Outside of school, Mel likes to hang out with friends, wakeboard, snowboard, and go camping.

Okay guys, time for Plan 5: Melanie Mayes writes down certain films that the club could watch on the upcoming Friday.

Put a smile on: Chris Gelbr likes what he hears during one of the club meetings.

Anime Club

The rundown. The president of Anime Club, Janita Fernandez, discusses what's going to go down during the meeting as Bryan Scott waits for her to finish.

The pair of vocalists, Cary Lockwood, Kyle George, Alex Meyerling, and Mark Salton all wait for President Janita Fernandez to call their numbers to show their anime pieces.

On the scene of my heart, Pike Silver and Kelly Flynn both lay out anime drawings on the floor to admire.

Anime appreciation, Lucas Jeske views off one of his drawings to another student, just as he sees another piece of art.

Going with Jonathan Terashiro and Mike Silver analyze some drawings at one of the Anime Club meetings.

Speech and Debate plus Mock Trial

It's like this: Victoria Liber and Jodie Westerman, while preparing for their next debate, make their opening remarks.

All work and no play? Being a part of the Speech and Debate club and Mock Trial class isn't work at all the time. Jodie Westerman enjoys a comradery moment.

Unity, not just Cheng Xia and Jodie Westerman debate on a heated topic whether or not "under God" should be in The Pledge of Allegiance.

Where do we go next? Members of Speech and Debate Victoria Liber, Laura Liber and Jodie Westerman plan their next mode of attack.

There are two sides to every story. Junior JingCheng Xu vibrantly explains both the positive and negative sides of the Lincoln Douglas Debate.

Seated! Mr. Marcell sides with attorney Widdie Huber as witness, while Westerman stands the 30th.

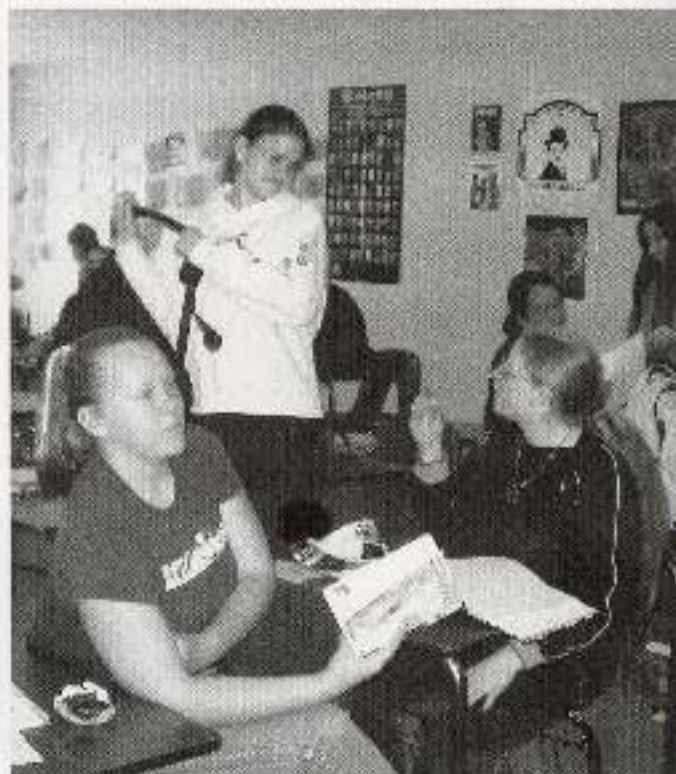

Would like to thank Junior Jodie Westerman through awards that are given out at the many competitors that the 2015 debate team allens.

Help me please, Laura Dize helps Mr. Marcell look for tournament rules that allow many of Waverly's debaters to advance to state qualifiers.

Creative Writing Club

Was that the fun's end? Daniel Wiegis, Melissa Weyand and Kayle Peters are packing up and getting ready to leave their lunch meeting.

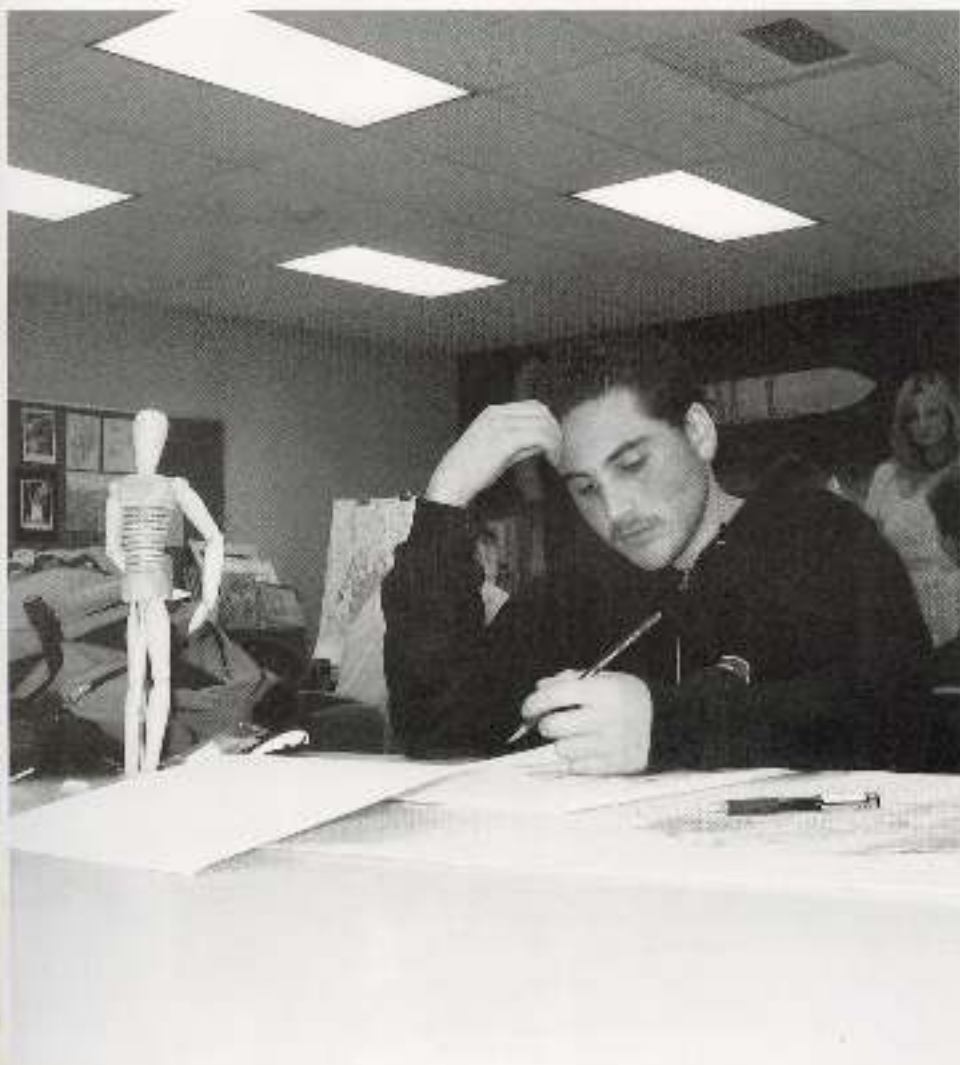

SANG, FCWM Kayle Peters is reading an issue comic book during one of her meetings for creative writing.

Elements of style: Daniel Huffaker, Kayle Peters and Kelly Hynn discuss writing abilities used to engage the reader into a story.

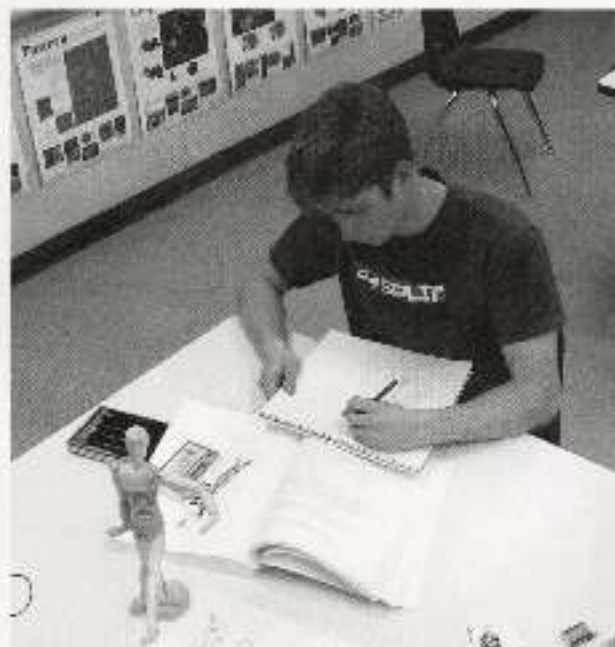

A quick review: Daniel Wiegis and Melissa Weyand are going over a piece of writing so they can get it down perfectly.

Thinking Man, Nathan Star considers his next stroke on a wooden figure as he sketches.

Held that pose, Eric Mansquid draws his figure as well as looks at an anatomy book as he compares his picture.

Take a picture, it lasts longer. Kirkopher Gabrielsen looks back and forth between his drawing and the photographs in his hand to make sure he has captured every detail and aspect of it.

Focus on the task at hand. Senior Justin Forney focuses on the fine details of the ship in his hand. Diligent concentration and attention is needed when drawing complex figures such as this one.

Asian Cultural Awareness Club

You're a giant, too! The members of the Asian Cultural Awareness Club look ahead to view the United States flag in front of the Japanese Veterans Memorial as they enjoy themselves on their first field trip.

Just a mere! Brandon Morano, Brandon Bunka, and Derrick Bonosa enthusiastically await their arrival at a museum in Little Tokyo.

Keep your cool! Michael Moon, Josh Kang, and Gleeson Park cool themselves off underneath their umbrellas while sightseeing in Little Tokyo on their ACAC field trip.

What are you staring at? The Asian Cultural Awareness Club gathers for the camera as the students stand in front of the Japanese American National Museum.

Stars and Stripes Kyle Dutch, Kristy Indict, and Chris Clarkes spend some time in front of the Japanese Veterans Memorial on their ACAC field trip.

The Fallen Stars. Members of the ACAC read the names of the Japanese veterans who lost their lives during World War I at the Japanese American History Museum.

Floyd Buen, a junior, is the co-president of the Asian Cultural Awareness Club. Floyd likes the fact that the club allows for students to connect and learn about the Asian cultures. Floyd hopes that the ACAC will be able to raise enough money to sponsor less fortunate areas in Asia. In addition to taking on an active role in the ACAC, Floyd also avidly participates as a member of the Pathfinder's Christian Club, Science Olympiad, National Honor Society, California Scholarship Federation, and Key Club. Floyd is a hard-working student and donates some of his time to volunteer at Henry Mayo and the UCLA Medical Center. Floyd believes that people should definitely join the club because there is a whole new world waiting out there for them to discover and learn about. Everything the ACAC does is fun, exciting and educational.

From rowd Jeremy Schen and Chris Clarkes enjoy their food in the Obake Restaurant.

Drum Line

Awaiting orders, Peter Longenecker and Matt Fiske listen to suggestions that will improve their already spectacular skills.

Shake, shake, shake, shake your maraca. Jessica Marasco, Sarah Gohman and Peter Del Giudice together make beautiful music by shaking their percussion instruments.

I don't want to work, I want to bang on the drum all day. Michael Mull and Jonathan Moore play the their bass drums in unison.

To pump a pump-pum, me and my drum. Even though in the back of the drumline, Nikos Courtney III and Erik Harzo make up the important melody line.

The only go marching one by one. Arin Orlovski, Jonathan Sakel, Michael Mull, John Morse and Brian Shepard stand in formation with bass drums.

Cling-Clang. Michael Silva, Daniel McEachern and Esteban Marchisain dish their symbals together.

You got the rhythm, I got the rhyme. Thomas Waki plays the xylophone while Zevonia Berkowitz and Marshal Kess play the mangle to set the rhythm.

Mambo number five. Michael Barnett plays three tropical drums bringing a deep sound to the mix.

Hip Hop

Shake it to the left, shake it to the right jerky, when the Manta Webpage, alongside the rest of the Hip Hop Team, shake everything they've got to the audience at the Winter formal rally.

When you shake it right turn. The Valencia Hip Hop Team hits their move to make a stunning end to their performance at the "Time After Time" rally.

A rising star. The Hip Hop Team's youngest member, Colton Barber, moves in sync with his fellow dancers.

That's how we do it. Greg Navarro and Michael Young dance for the students at the Valencia High Winter Formal rally.

Three's company: Nick Hill, Alexander Watson, and Greg Neward break their moves to the audience at the Post-Newsfall rally. A lot of effort and coordination is needed to dance like these guys do.

Last man standing: Colton Burton stands tall among the Hip-Hop team, making the final move at the Post-Newsfall rally.

That's what it's all about: Jeremy Schick and Nick Hill make it to the final at the 2004 Winter Formal rally.

Andy Yaeh has been playing in Jazz Band since eighth grade and continues to play as a Junior. Alongside playing the tenor sax in the VHS Jazz Band, he has also perfected playing the clarinet, as well as presently attempting the guitar and piano. Andy's passion for instruments comes from his admiration for the way each individual instrument is played and the sound it makes. Andy's father is also an inspiration for Andy's music playing endeavors because he is the one that influenced him to join Jazz Band. Music has taken him to many places like San Francisco, San Diego, and Fresno as well as giving him the future opportunity to play in Reno and Hawaii. As of now, his favorite destination has been Fresno because he got to play alongside some of the greatest players he has ever encountered. His favorite kind of music is Classical and Jazz but he has found a new interest in Classic Rock. Andrew has decided that he would like to pursue some of his other passions for a career, but he will never give up his music.

Strike on the band. Christopher Krause, Alex Moore, and Christopher Eickes play their saxes as the trombones play behind them during their annual concert.

Strum it softly. Doug James reads the sheet music before he plays his Les Paul guitar to contribute to the overall sound of the jazz band.

Songs in A minor. Laurin Anderson concentrates on the melody that she plays on her keyboard.

 Pathfinders Christian Club

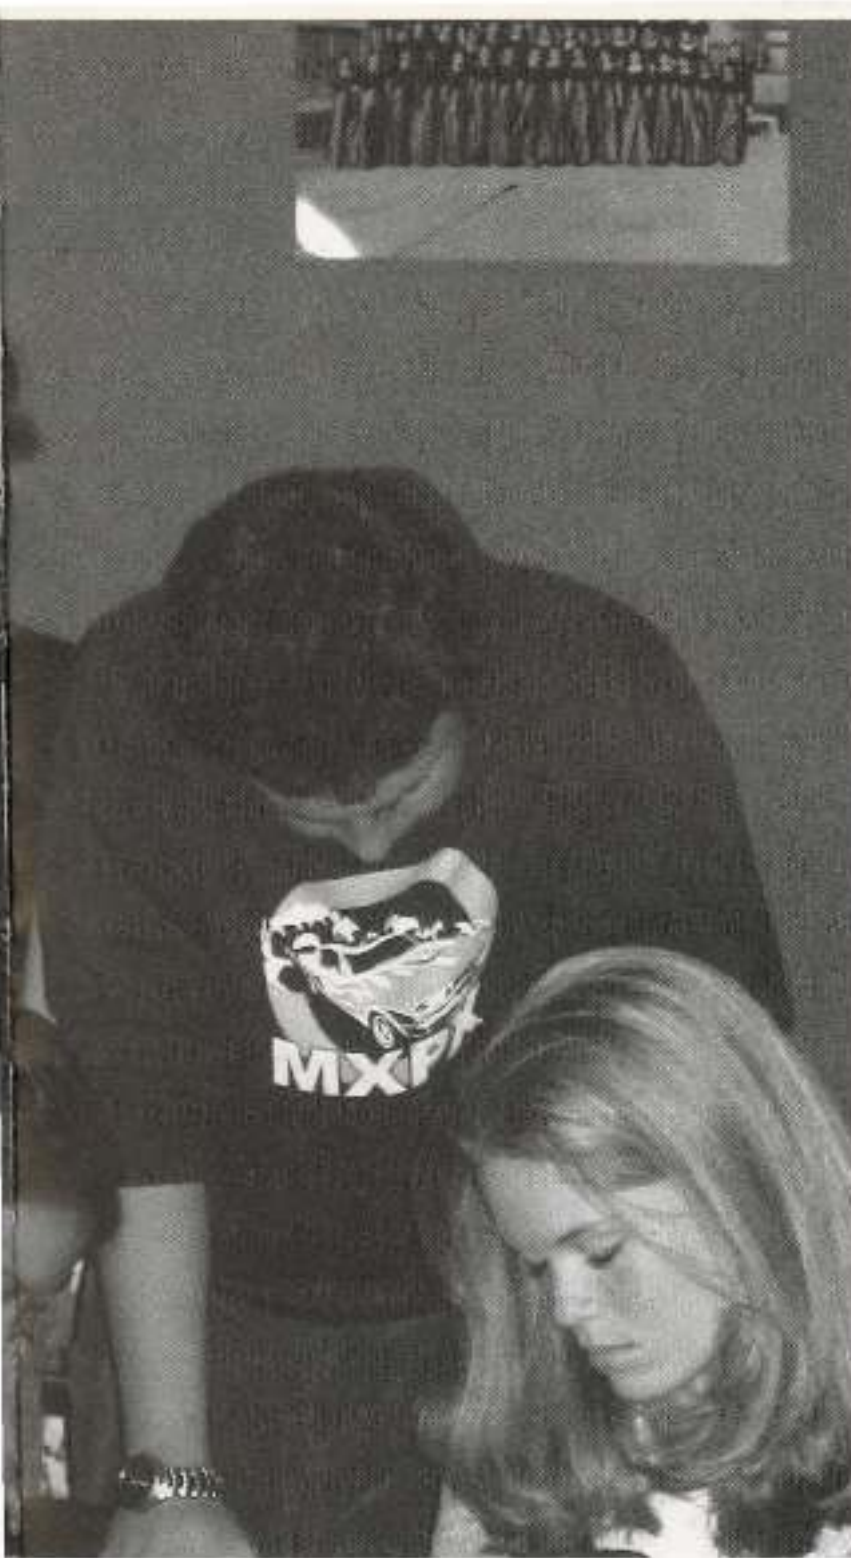

I'm coming back to the heart of worship, cause it's all about you Jesus. Julie Johnston prays the LORD with all her heart and soul and gives all the glory to him.

I could sing of your love forever. During a weekly meeting Pathfinders' members David Park, Robby, Keli, Jayne Young, Brett Robinson, Larissa Sellis and Chris Barnett worship GOD in song.

Every time I make I make in you, you are my way to Jesus. Pathfinder president Darryl Kim plays the acoustic guitar with Aaron Smith on fiddle and Chris the Park on piano. It's the beginning of a meeting so that everyone may calm their hearts and know on GOD.

Open the eyes of my heart LORD, I want to see you. Alina Kong, Sarah Casen and brother and sister Trevor and Madison Miller break off into small groups to pray for our school.

I want to know you, I want to see your face. Each meeting starts with a group prayer to ask GOD to remove all distractions and let them learn if they can from Him.

I want to go deeper but I don't know how to swim. I want to be deeper but have you seen this old earth. David Foglesong, Aaron Smith and Nicholas Aranda have a discussion about the lesson that was just taught to them and their views.

Shout to the LORD all the earth, let us sing power and majesty praise to the king. Albert King works the slide-show of lyrics during worship so that those not familiar with the song.

BLACK STUDENT UNION

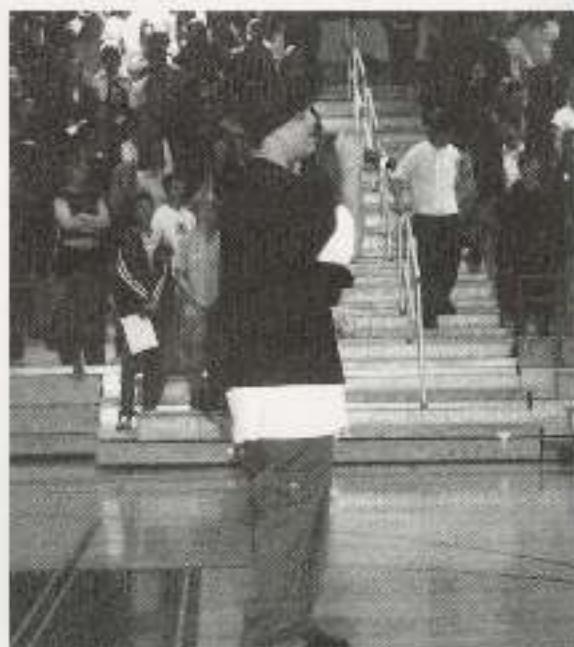

Junior Charlene Renner has been involved with BSU since the beginning of the school year. She has learned to come out of her protective shell, interact with others and apoly herself in all that she does. Learning the skills of leadership, Charlene tries to apply them by helping out the community. Even though Charlene has one more year until she graduates, she plans on continuing her journey with BSU and eventually join a similar club in college. BSU has put on numerous functions on the VHS campus such as Showtime at the Apollo Talent Show, Black History Month assembly, and a movie night featuring Drumline which Charlene has all been involved in. Charlene plans on apolying to Hampton University and eventually developing a career in the Obstetrics and/or the Interior Designer field.

Let Us Rejoice Robert DeLarge sang the National Negro Anthem at the assembly to show appreciation and remembrance to all the African and African American people.

Rapper's Delight, Samuel Adu, brother to the PNT president, rapped to a modern song and transformed it into a Black History month lesson.

Step to It, Saugus High School Step Team performed at the assembly showing the diversity in the art of stamp.

Breakin' Out, Tiana Smith Breaking Loose, Hilarious Dance Team from Fresno participated in the assembly showing the different styles of dancing among the hip-hop culture.

Colors of Unity, Charlene Berner shows off her African attire at the first Annual Black History assembly along with all the other goodies from Africa.

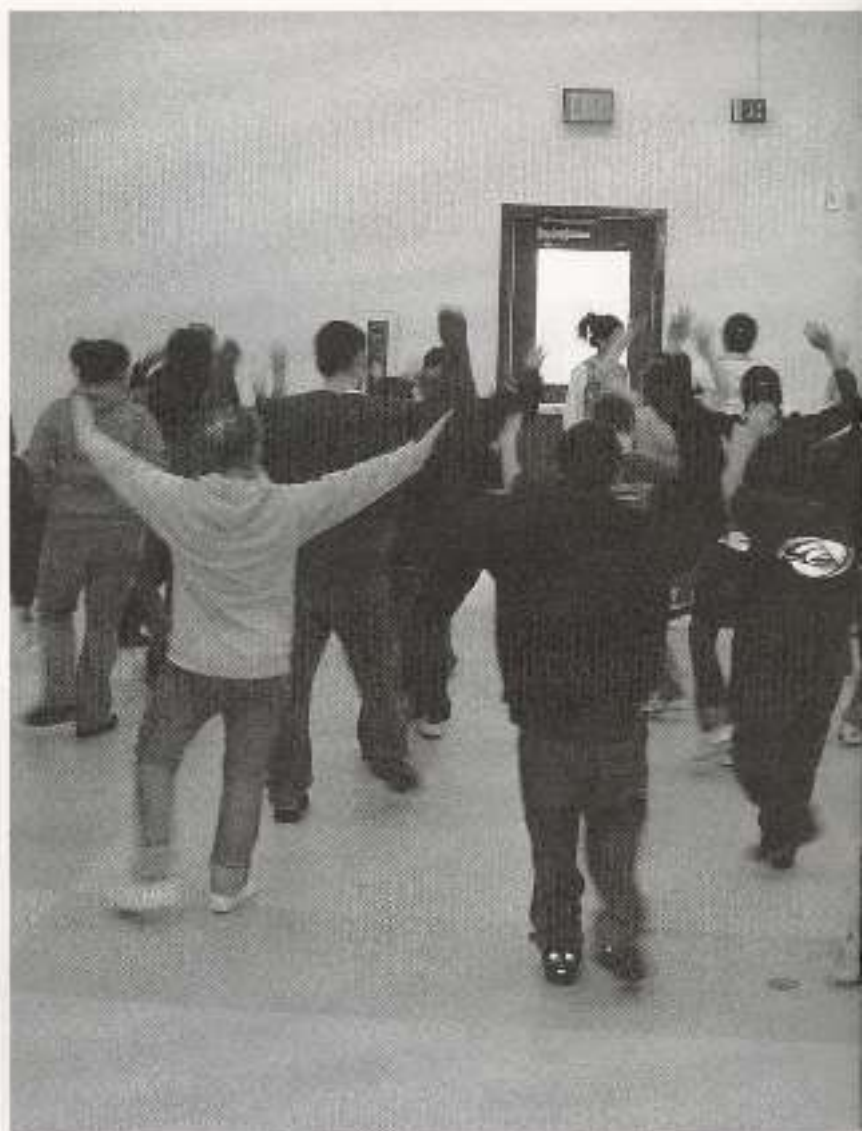

Treasures of Africa, Artifacts from all over the continent of Africa were put on display at the Black History Month assembly. Traditional Zulu baskets, handmade dolls, and jewelry were on display for all to see.

What Is Future Images?

As demonstrated in the photos, Future Images puts on an annual "Noche Mexicana" where students have a chance to learn and perform dances. However, Future Images is not all about dancing. The club works to fulfill pride in the student's roots and to promote cultural awareness, diversity, and tolerance. This is accomplished through extensive community work and a speakers program.

Dance the night away! Students volunteer their time after school to participate in the annual production of Noche Mexicana.

Those are split fingers! Anil, Ranrattan, and Damien Pontones practice salsa dancing with their group.

These boys have rhythm! Jose Contreras, Viktor Larios, Daniel Ramirez, Vianey Lopez, Cassi Perez, and Nyctul Jeros take a breather after working hard.

Heideey Matamoros, Kaitie Harris, and Kira Jaraman practice the choreography for Noche Mexicana.

Oh, yeah, you and your army! ROTC perfects their timing and coordination in their drill for Friday's inspection.

Journalism

Let's think together. Steve Loy and the rest of the class are working on their next issue of the Blogg Blogg.

Just organize. Sophie Singetary, the ad manager, is organizing the ad placement for her section of the newspaper.

Thinking of plans. Staff writer Sandra Ventura plans on how she will layout her section in the next edition and what it will cover.

Use two peas in a pod. The editors-in-chief of the Blogg Blogg, Nicole Worslem and Sarah Simpson, are working together to make the newspaper perfect.

Susy Hill, the Advisor PM, sits at her desk filled with articles to do a final check before they appear in the paper.

Free time on your hands? Jennifer Cusick and Lauren Anderson are giving some homework tips while they have some free time.

Laying it out carefully, the lifestyle editor, Amy Negr and Kimberly Sanders are laying out their pages while Robert Montenegro is working on one of his staff writing pages.

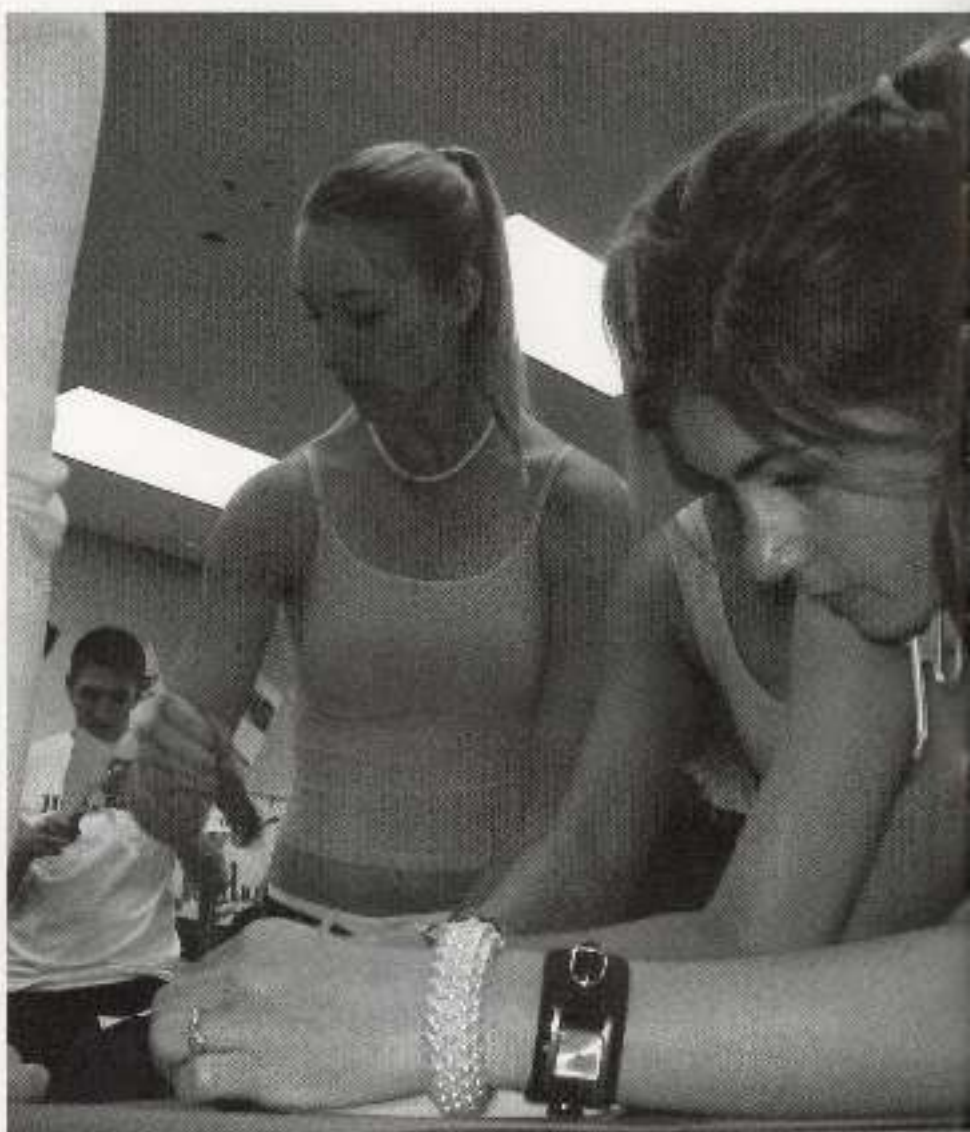

Where's my assignment? The opinion editor, Derek Garing is assigning articles to the opinion section of the newspaper.

Without computers, I would be lost. Erik Wilson, Susy Loy and Amy Negr are all working on the computers to try to put together the school paper in time.

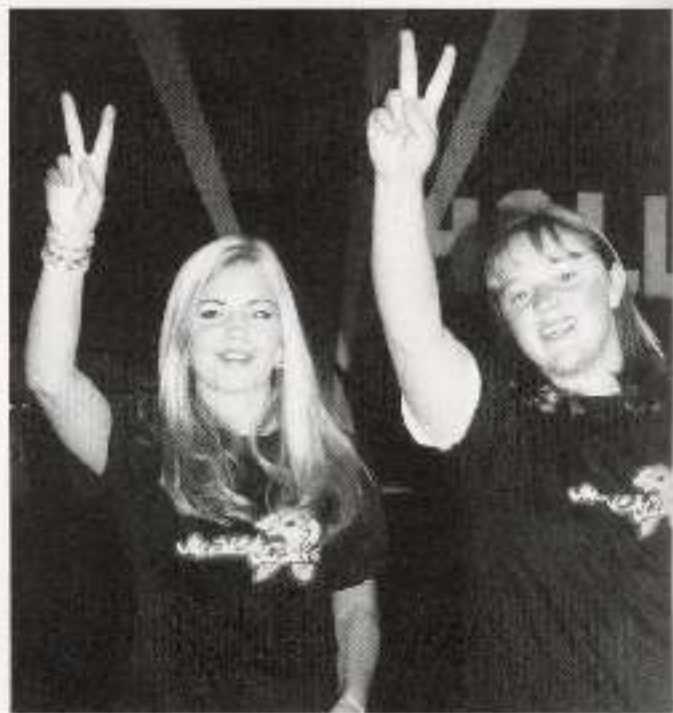

A S B

How is the poster lining out? Ananda Whitaker and Bridger Buck work diligently on posters that ASB will soon put up around campus.

When hot spray doesn't do the trick, balloons surely will. Shauna Duncan shows her ASB pride as she helps prepare the gym for an upcoming rally.

Lady Vikings: This year, ASB senior ladies gather before a bunch activity during Western Day.

Welcome to the V-House: Rige Carter and Lindsay Nersis show their Viking pride as the school sings the Alma Mater.

Is like a general impersonator, Lon Patterson bounces around the stage area as he encourages other students to get involved in a brunch activity.

Freedom Freshman Breanna Rehn, Natalie Bulmer, Christine Castan and April West wear red, white and blue in honor of Patriot Day.

Amiee of the hula hoop, Cathy Wright holds her friend with a bit of hula hoop during brunch on Western Day as Bridget Buck presides over the event.

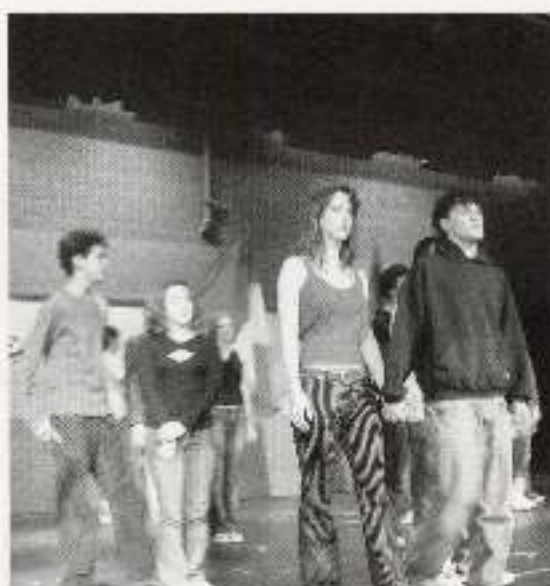

Who said boys couldn't hula hoop? Alan Husted demonstrates the proper techniques of hula hooping on stage to his fellow Vikings.

FRESHMAN

As often as we travel on the road, we do not always have the right of way, as we must slow down for those at play on our sports teams. Even though we reduce our speed, it is an enjoyable and spirited occasion that is sometimes used as a method of relaxation and preventing breakdowns on our freeway through high school. America's favorite pastime, baseball, is one of the many sports that Valencia High School has to offer, shown as Junior Nick Margis of the Varsity Baseball Team swings for the ball in a game against the Lions. Another favorite sport here on campus is basketball. Senior Tamaya Smith is one of winning factors of this year's Varsity team, shown here as she fights back against an opposing player in the heated Saugus match. Back onto the field is soccer. Boy's Varsity Soccer defender Myles Pappadato juggles the ball down the field as fellow defender Chase Patterson watches closely. A sport isn't always playtime though, as this year many rising sports athletes were awarded scholarships at the NCAA signing, including Seniors Greg Gauvin signing with LMU and Senior Tony Ker with UCLA. Gazing at the competitive world of sports played on the sidelines of our freeway entertains us and provides a window of opportunity for the people that play them.

Brian Skinner, a middle blocker, has been playing volleyball for only four years. Brian started his volleyball career at Valencia and has come a long way since he began playing as a "little freshman." Last year he was a part of the CIF Championship team, which after two failed attempts, finally captured the title. Not only does Brian play for V-S, but he also plays club volleyball, where there are tournaments almost every weekend when high school volleyball isn't in season. Brian says that his favorite thing about volleyball is the cookies the coach's wife makes for the team after games. His classes this year include Legends of King Arthur, AP government, AP physics C and video production 1B. In the future, Brian hopes to attend either USC or Stanford to pursue a career in engineering.

Davey Rowley, a four-year veteran of volleyball, began playing the sport at the beach. He started as an outside hitter and has stayed in the same position ever since. As a senior, he is taking AP statistics, economics, humanities, and video production. Davey practices fifteen hours a week but still manages to ride motocross whenever he finds the time to. As a pregame ritual, he always ties his shoelaces around and under his shoe, though he doesn't know why. When asked who was his role model in the sport, Davey replied, "Tony Ker, because he's just Tony Ker." Davey plans on becoming either a firefighter or a stunt man. His fondest memory from volleyball was meeting his girlfriend, Faige.

Watch this move: Tony Ker proceeds with a back row attack, making sure he jumps before the ball foot the to prevent a pray set.

get it - get it Davey Rowley adjusts his platform in order to pursue a perfect pass.

Window of opportunity: Ker, Dean and Bryan Whitcomb send up the ball for Scott Hobeck to send flying right between two Chris West blockers.

He does more than just your sports updates: Aaron Smith takes a swing at the ball to maintain Varsity's fourth kill in a row.

I think I can, I think I can... Teddy Goetz spikes the ball in hopes that he can aim it away from his opponents' block.

You can do it Alan Husted and Bryan Windstad, along with the rest of the team, anxiously watch Chris Pitt due to save the ball.

JV/Freshman

Kevin Ker is a relatively new face to the sport of volleyball, as he has only been playing for three years. Despite this shortage of experience, he has already surpassed many of his peers, as he was recently named an All-American at the Junior Olympics. Getting to this point in his career wasn't easy going, as he has sustained four broken wrists in the past three years alone. Because of his continual family support, recovering from these injuries became easier. His family has in fact played a large role in his career, as his older brother, Tony, also plays Varsity volleyball here at Valencia. This family link will no doubt aid the Vikings in Kevin's team prediction: going undefeated. With over three hours of nightly practice that each player must endure, this goal will undoubtedly be met.

Mike Plaia got his start in volleyball just last year on a club volleyball team. He has since then taken his experience and transferred it to the Valencia team. Throughout his limited career, he has risen to the honor of becoming a starting outside hitter and has already had the chance to defeat archrival Hart High School. Luckily, he has not been injured during volleyball season, which has allowed his teammates and mother to encourage him constantly, allowing him to gain confidence on and off of the court. Because of the strenuous practices that he attends for both his Valencia team, as well as his Synergy club team, his dedication to the sport will hopefully pay off as he wishes that this season, the freshman squad will have an amazing season that leads up to complete domination in order to win league.

Let's go your boys! JV players Sunny Morales and Sean Carter both block the ball to prevent Westlake from scoring a point.

How low can you go? Jr. stars, Mike Pitt, Adam Avorn, and Alex Morales of the Freshman team get low to help with their perfect passing techniques.

Reach for the stars. Neil Berenwick and Stephen Cornelius jump to create a wall against Westlake JV team.

Put your hands in the air like you just don't care. Freshman player Mike Paa sets up the ball from Azam Awam to send over the net.

Girls Volleyball

Varsity

Taryn Robertson is a key part of this year's varsity team as the starting setter. She started playing volleyball in sixth grade, taking after her sister whom she watched play for many years. Due to the fact that she plays the sport year round, she has little time for much else. Despite this shortage of time, she has managed to enjoy many moments with her VHS team, like when they defeated Hart at Hart Before this victory, and many others, she listens to a certain music CD she has so that it can pump her up and allow her to get in the right frame of mind to go out there and do her best. Throughout her volleyball career, Taryn has needed inspiration that she has found mainly within her family, and more specifically her sister who inspired her to play the game.

Sarah Ulmer has been playing volleyball since the sixth grade and doesn't plan to stop anytime soon. After high school, she has aspirations of playing volleyball at Pease college and possibly continue to participate in the sport beyond the collegiate level. Many people inspire Sarah, but there are two very key people that keep her confidence high: her club coaches, Trevor Julian and Gerit Maxwell. Although Sarah started playing volleyball at an early age, nervousness still gets her just before a game, although funny moments like teammates running or tripping help ease her nerves. Through VHS volleyball, Sarah has realized how important this sport is to her and now understands that the love she has for this sport that is unconditional.

Up and over! Rachel Thomas and Nicole Pys look like they are jumping up and over the net as they block the ball in a game against Hart.

Wait, wait, I did it! go! Courtney Baughman gets ready to hit the ball at Ventura as it comes over the net.

Shifting to the offensive, Alissa Workman gets ready to send the team to victory with another spike against Ventura.

Scoring Junot Win. Alex Woldman and Rachel Thomas bump the ball for the winning point.

Don't let it drop! Ashley Jucksch bumps the ball just before it hits the ground.

It's almost there... Courtney Baughman anxiously watches. Cory Rowley gets ready to bump the ball to the setter.

You better watch out, you better not cry. Rachel Thomas spikes the ball after Taryn Robertson sets a perfect four against Burnside.

Girls Volleyball

Savannah Thomas is an opposite hitter on the Junior Varsity volleyball team this year. Along with her sister, Savannah has helped win the JV title and 2nd league this year. She says "It paid off, all of the hard work that her coaches have put in to making her a better and remarkable player has really made a big difference. Following her sister's footsteps, Savannah hopes to get a scholarship or be recruited to a state college team. After two years of rough and tough playing, Savannah can say that volleyball is a very intense sport and a lot of hard work and effort is put into it. Savannah has been working hard with her team throughout the year and she is looking forward to playing next year.

Jordan Taylor has been kept on her toes this year because of sports. From the freshman volleyball team to softball, she has worked very hard to keep her grades up and play these sports to her best ability. As an outside hitter on the freshman volleyball team, Jordan has truly improved since her volleyball days in junior high. One moment that is unforgettable to Jordan was when she spiked the ball into a girl's face on the Seagus team after they over passed it. Over a period of five years, Jordan has made many friends and gained knowledge. Jordan thanks her coaches and her teammates for a great learning experience and a tremendous year!

Keep your eye on the ball! Courtney Aber on the freshman team gets ready to jump a serve against Arcadia.

Put your hands up! Brandee Tatchell and Courtney Aber from the freshman team block the setter from Burbank.

Take this! Brittany Smyth and Cameron Thomas go up for the block to aid their win against Canyon High School.

Vikings are the best, they they VHS. The junior Varsity team chants one last cheer to jump them up before facing Hart.

Football

Varsity

Weston Middleton contributes both on and off of the field. Prior to Vikings football participation, he played Warrior Football, making him a six-year veteran to the sport. His experience in the sport helped him win such awards as Wide Receiver of the Year during his freshman season, as well as the Special Teams Player of the Year during his sophomore year. Serving as one of the team captains this year, Weston admits that it is difficult to balance football with schoolwork, but stresses that through waking up at 4:30 a.m. on weekday mornings, he is able to complete his homework. After leaving Valencia, Weston will take with him the memories of his favorite VHS football moments: going undefeated his freshman year to win the league title, and giving Hart a run for their money in this year's Valencia Vs. Hart game.

Kristian Hale, an offensive lineman, has played a key role in team inspiration for the past three years. After sustaining a football injury immediately before his freshman year, he realized the importance of being a part of the total team rather than a player that is self-oriented. When finally able to return to the sport, he made the JV team in his sophomore season, and then continued on to Varsity status in his junior year. This year he maintains that because of the closeness and friendships of the lineup, no matter what, being with the guys is always a fun time. Kristian states the triumph over Bishop Armit this season proves to be his most valued memory because it got his senior year off to an amazing start, and allowed for such close friendships as "The Horsemen" to be formed.

Tonight, pigskin will fly. Sophomore quarterback Michael Herrick scouts out his receivers before throwing the ball in the September 24th District game.

Can't touch this. Senior wide receiver Geoff Tisdale evades the opposing Canyon High defensive line. Although Tisdale and the Vikings made a valiant effort, they came up just short, losing by only seven points.

Hot act looking on you! Junior John Trautle sneaks past a Canyon defender to score.

Kick like a pony, block like a wal. Junior kicker Brian Maebie kicks for the point after touch down, while Anthony DeHippo holds the ball, and Robert Greenwald blocks.

Go try to stop me. Junior Shane Morales gets bowled over by a Canyon player while attempting to run for a touchdown during the narrow Azuleja loss.

Football

JV/ Freshman

Trent Poe is the starting quarterback of this season's freshman football team. As a six-year expert of the sport, he has participated in many events that have shaped his views on the sport. One such event was the time he got the opportunity to play in the Rose Bowl Stadium and dominated the game, throwing both the first and last touchdown of the game. One of the main factors in his ability is the coaching staff that he has been able to work with. Although just a freshman, Trent is already thinking of his future. After high school, he plans on attending and playing football for FSU.

Phillip Rowland is an effective and positive force on this year's JV football team. Through his four years of playing football, he has had time to accumulate many memories, such as last season's Arroyo Grande game in which he aided the team in their narrow victory. As starting defensive end, Phillip has to work extra hard to keep up with his demanding academic schedule as well as a second sport, baseball. This year Phillip participated on the JV baseball team as a pitcher and an outfielder. Because Phillip is so involved in school athletics, he has little time for much else. In the future he hopes to achieve his dream of playing professional baseball for the Yankees.

Cheerleading

Varsity

Jenna Marino is a senior and has been an active member of the cheer squad for the past four years. Jenna started off as a back spotter for the first part of her freshman year and then switched to a flyer when fellow teammate Amanda Wilczynski broke her leg and needed someone to fill her place. Jenna received "The Most Promising Award" and "The Varsity Star Performer Award". Along with being on the Valencia Cheer Team, she has cheered for the Valley Youth Conference All Stars, the Castaic Cougars, and the Pop Warner Squad in Massachusetts. Besides being a cheerleader, she was a soccer player for seven years while she was living in Massachusetts. Jenna thinks of cheerleading as a sport that she loves because it gives her something to do, along with making amazing friends and teaching valuable lessons.

Amanda Wilczynski is considered one of the two "four year girls" because she has been apart of cheer for the longest. Amanda has experienced all the positions in cheer and is currently a base. Everyday, she brings her positive energy to practice to inspire her teammates as well as receiving their inspiration. Amanda has received "The Star Performer Award", and has been voted "Most Spirited" and "Most Congenial" for cheerleading. After high school, she hopes to be a part of UCA (United Cheer Association). Being in cheerleading for the past four years has given her very close friendships and she also loves spending time with all the girls. Her favorite memory was cheering at the Hart game this year because it was so exciting and Viking Nation was full of energy.

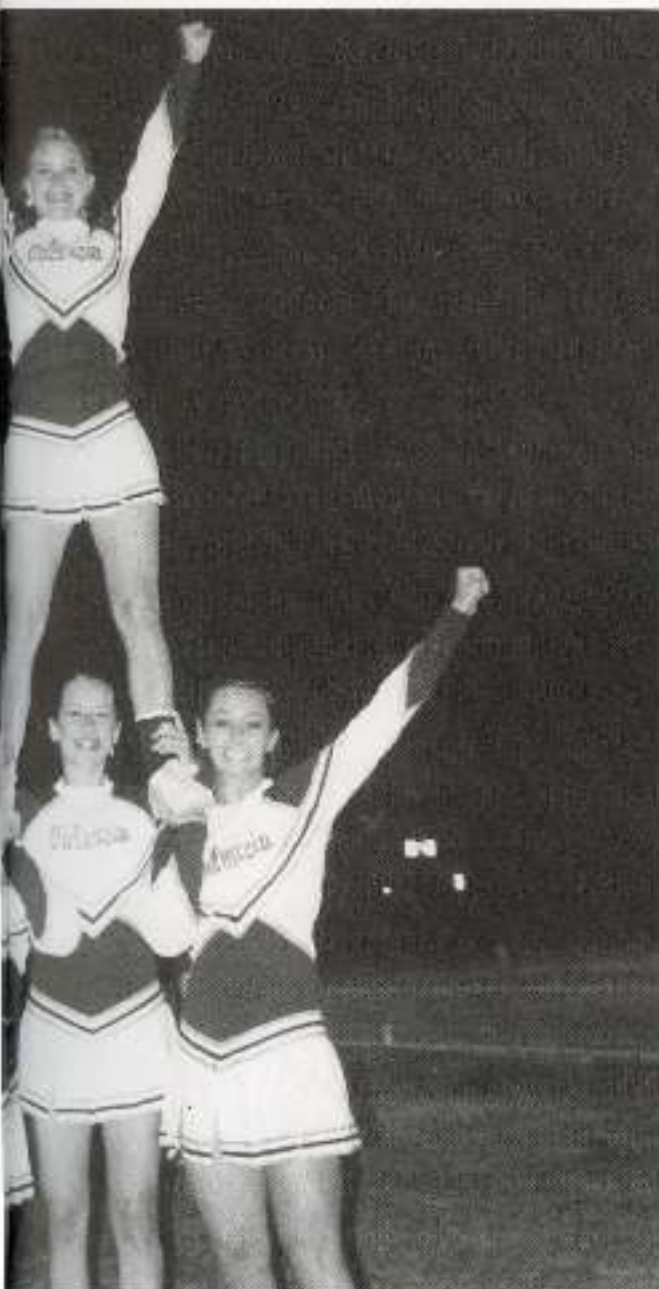

Back Row: Keri Kurawik, Brittany Baker, Mary Anne Whitaker, Sarah Harlin, Rebecca Sammes, Anna Parnicola, Sarah White

"Where do you go Cotton Eye Joe?" The girls pump up the crowd by doing the charismatic dance, Cotton Eye Joe!

Come Kick It Up! The team thunders their performance at the Howard Rally with a pyramid and a high stomp.

Viking Victory! Sam Marino, Alysa Diberno, Tracy Cannata, and Amanda Wlczynski show Viking spirit when the football team wins at the Olsrud game.

Two, Four, Six, Eight, who do we appreciate! The girls cheer on the varsity football team at the homecoming game.

You can do it! Cheer words it out by doing three full time at the Newhall Rally.

RESPECT!

Jennifer Brophy gives it all she has in the varsity cheer and dance team performance at the Forward Rally.

Get hung by a bear! The varsity team looks up a fun, brought banner to show their support for the football team.

Cheerleading

JV/Freshman

Kayla Cioffi started cheering in seventh grade for the SCV Warriors, making it her fourth year cheering now. Kayla's favorite memory of cheerleading is cheer camp because everyone on the team becomes really close. Besides cheerleading, Kayla swims and plays softball. It's almost safe to say that practice, even though long and sometimes hard, is a fun time for her. And with Chelsea Reid by her side she can make it through anything cheer throws her way, including injury. She has faced many injuries such as sprained ankles and sprained wrists. One thing that stands out in her memory is when she hurt her knee and head and was put on crutches for three weeks.

Amanda Reeves has been a cheerleader since third grade. Now a freshman cheerleader, she looks up to the girls on the Varsity team for help. Her sister, a varsity cheerleader, has been cheering for a long time. It might have been her sister who got her into the sport, but her love for the sport has kept her in cheer. And with every girl as her friend, she has a blast just being with them at each practice and every game. Even though it takes loads of time and effort, she still is doing well in school. She tries to do well for her parents, who are role models to her. They have supported through soccer and softball before and now in cheer they still support her decisions.

Teaching the way, Johna Lutzner is doing a full with Christine Farabaugh and Alyssa D'Amico being along with LeAnne Herick backspacing.

Go Big Gold, Shannon Springer does a full lift at the rally before the Hart football game.

2003-04 FRESH CHEERLEADING: Valere Tropoli, Kathryn Gramza, LeAnn Herick, Christine Harbaugh, Alison Landon, Celine Kimball, Verita Walker, Krystal Phoenix, Amber Spaulding, Kasey Morales, Nicole Foutle, Amanda Reeves, Jenna Lederer, Alyssa D'Avanzo, Stephanie Cassotta, Brianny Trujillo, Krystal Brooks, and Shannon Springer.

Purple Gold that's right, let's fight! Stephanie Cassotta, Amanda Reeves, and Nicole Houffe cheer the freshman team to victory at the Valencia vs. Burbank game.

If you like it say 'Go Be Gold'. LeAnn Herick and Krystal Brooks execute cheers with exact precision at the Valencia vs. Saugus game.

Flag

Natalie Slemp, Sophomore, has been a member of Valencia High School's flag team for two years. Her interest in flag team was sparked by the concept of combining dance with a flag or rifle. The most challenging thing about the sport involves tossing the flag or rifle. The team has three-hour practices after school every week, but Natalie also practices routines for about 15-30 minutes daily. She claims that "by working hard, the rewards are worth the time and effort." To those who are interested in flag she says that participating in this sport "takes up a lot of time." She also likes to dance, horseback ride, and partake in her church's youth group.

Ashley Abercrombie

Senior, has been a member of Valencia High School's Flag Team for three years. Her interest in the sport started when, in her freshman year, her best friend got her into it. Unfortunately, at times, it's hard to fit it in with school, work, and personal time, but it's still "well worth it." Her fondest memory of her flag team experience is when she was in tenth grade. She went to San Diego for a championship competition and Disneyland where she took home a bronze medal. To those students interested in pursuing the sport, Ashley says that being on the Flag Team is the "best place to create lifelong friendships, fond memories, and tons of fun!"

Ready for lift-off! The Flag Team lifts their flags in order to practice one of its routines on the softball field.

The beat goes on! Valencia High School's Flag Team marches in unison as they prepare to entertain the spectators at the Homecoming football game.

Getting the kinks out! Sophomore Janet Shin and her teammate, Senior Ashley Abercrombie, and their teammates work their routines while they march prior to practicing their flag routines on the school softball field.

Please stand to salute your Flag Team. Tenth-grader Janet Shin intrigues the crowd, along with her fellow flag teammates, by performing a routine during the Homecoming Game.

Center Stage: Veterans High School's Flag Team dances and lifts their flags together as they perform before the students of Ho-Norte Junior High School in the quad.

Marching Band

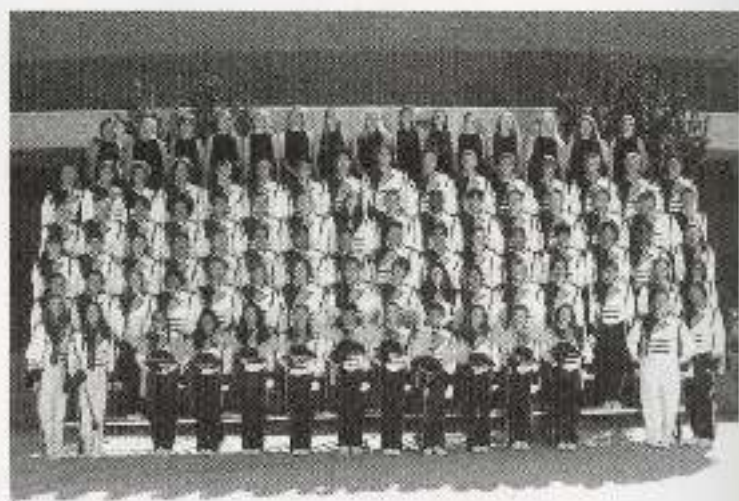

Cory Chambers is an all-around music man. For the past seven years, he has been playing the trumpet. This experience has allowed him to be involved in the Honor, Concert and Jazz bands throughout his four years at Valencia High. Due to Cory's dedication and superior talent, the John Philip Sousa Band Award was given to him for excellence in trumpeting. Beyond this, he enjoys playing the drums, giving private trumpet lessons and spending quality time with his friends. The biggest influence to Cory's musical career is Arturo Sandoval, the professional musician. In the future, he plans on continuing his musical interest by playing in his collegiate band and inspiring other young aspiring musicians.

Daniel Fernandez is another outstanding trumpeter in the Valencia High marching band. For eight years, he has been committed to perfecting his craft. Because of his experience with the instrument, he is a valuable attribute to the band, as he both inspires and aids other members of the band to achieve their personal best. Aside from his involvement in band, Daniel is actively involved in the Speech and Debate Club, where his argumentative side can be seen as a positive thing. Next year as a senior, Daniel plans on continuing with band. Beyond high school, Daniel sees himself in a good college, playing in the band.

Just keep marching to the beat. Chris Herrick plays his tuba while marching at a football game.

Marching in style: The band marches on to the gym for a performance at the game.

Cross Country

Katherine De Hoyos is a three-year veteran to the Valencia High School Cross Country team. Some of her fondest memories in the sport are from her participation on the Vikings team like winning second place at a Griffith Park race and going to Mammoth during the summer of 2003. Katherine knows, as well as displays, the dedication involved in cross-country. As a Junior this year, she realizes the importance of balancing classes with athletics and has organized her schedule to do just this. Alongside the difficult management of school and sport, she has chosen to participate in other extra-curricular activities including Key Club, Asian Cultural Awareness Club, and the Culinary Arts Club. Outside of school, Katherine enjoys being involved in her church, as well as playing both soccer and the piano.

Brian Davis is one of the more outstanding members of this year's Boys Varsity Cross Country team. Having been in cross-country for three years, he has learned that it is important to be very disciplined in training as well as endurance. This lesson has not only been instilled in him through Valencia Cross Country, but also through his family ties, as his two cousins are also very accomplished athletes. Brian truly lives the lifestyle of a distance runner, practicing six days per week, even during the off-season. This dedication to the sport has allowed him to be able to run three miles without stopping or losing endurance, which is very valuable in his activity. Through his involvement in the sport, Brian has made both himself and VHS proud as he accomplished the great feat of being our first male runner to go to CIF prems.

See you at the finish line! Katherine DeHoyos awaits her VHS teammates to complete the race at Gastan Lake, while reflecting on her personal performance.

Just keep breathing! Junior Jeff Farsley tries to maintain his stamina while scoring his mile on the first lap.

I think I can! Senior Brian Davis shows his exhaustion in his facial expression but still manages to push on to finish the race.

Fat guy dust! Sophomore Kevin Le runs the Castak Lake course with determination and the thought of a fast Valerich sweep on his mind.

Just keep running. Joseph Perez, Kevin Le, and Frank Geyer make a brilliant last ditch effort to reach the finish line ahead of their Virgin High challengers.

Girls Tennis

JV/Varsity

Sarah Dopps, a freshman on the Junior Varsity Girls Tennis team, has been playing tennis for seven years now. When she was seven years old, she joined a youth tennis camp at her mom's country club. Sarah's love for tennis has derived from the challenge she faces when competing and she can spend time with girls who enjoy playing the same sport as she does. Her favorite memory of playing tennis was the time she won her first trophy when she was eight. Sarah wants to continue with tennis after high school and hopes to join a tennis team in college, preferably at the University of Washington.

Cassie Strange is a sophomore on the Varsity Girls Tennis team. She loves playing tennis because of the competition and the girls on the team make playing really fun. She plays doubles with her twin sister and her best friend, Alexa. Cassie's favorite memory of playing tennis was when she and Alexa ranked 18th in the nation in doubles. Kim Clijsters is Cassie's role model in tennis because she is a really great player and she had to work really hard to get to where she is now. Cassie hopes to play girls tennis in college.

Break Time! Varsity cools off after a tough match.

Boys Tennis

Ryan Lassila is one of the many committed athletes on this year's Varsity Tennis team. As a member of the doubles category, Ryan often finds himself paired off with Mike Amico or John Joseph. Despite shifting partners, he has come out on top with his parents behind him and his role model, Mike Amico, before him. With these conditions, it is understandable that he is constantly striving to achieve his personal best within and outside of the sport. Getting "coward home" morals from beginning tennis in Texas, Ryan has transferred his positive outlook and sportsmanship to tennis tournaments here in California. These tournaments have proved to be invaluable to both Ryan and the rest of the Varsity players, as their overall record has started out with an "undefeatable" outlook.

Shane Mesko started off playing tennis by private courts near his house eight years ago. He has come a long way since then as he is now a part of the number one doubles team alongside Josh Howard. Shane actually didn't like tennis at first but as soon as he started playing awhile, he began to enjoy it more and more. As a Varsity tennis player now, he spends over three hours a day practicing in addition to playing in tournaments or with friends on weekends. He credits his coach Frank Farre with helping and inspiring him by aiding him improve his game. Shane has had some memorable moments during his tennis career including being in a tournament at UCLA and also losing to an older lady in a fundraiser this year.

Track and Field

Jill Reynolds has participated in track since her freshman year. Wanting to participate in a high school sport, she decided to try out for tennis. After try-outs, tennis coach Jeff Hoen noticed her quick feet and agility on the court and referred her to track Coach Pondus. Ever since, Jill has been training and competing for various track events. In her four years of participation, she has been breaking records and making her athletic dreams come true. She shattered Valencia's previous pole-vaulting record when she cleared 11 feet 7 inches her junior year. Feats such as this have earned her the honor of being inducted into the All CIF Hall of Fame in 2003. As a senior this year, she feels as though she has accomplished much and leaves future classes the advice that "when you're not working, someone else is; when you meet them, they will win."

Michael "MJ" Robotham, a sophomore this year, has participated in track events since he was seven years old. Devoting up to seven hours per week to running, MJ hopes to make it to league finals and hopefully move on to CIF finals. By tying the sophomore record for high jump and persevering in the sport despite the cuts and bruises from high jump, his love for track is clearly displayed. In order to relax and focus his attention solely on running, MJ runs to music. In using this method, he sometimes focuses too intently on his sport, as shown in his most embarrassing moment: running while his shoelace was untied and stopping in the middle of a 600-meter race to tie it back up. Taking in stride the embarrassing moments and the difficult practices, MJ plans on continuing track throughout high school and beyond.

F.I. could walk 500 miles. Senior Ryan McFray works his hardest while practicing for the upcoming meet against Royal High School.

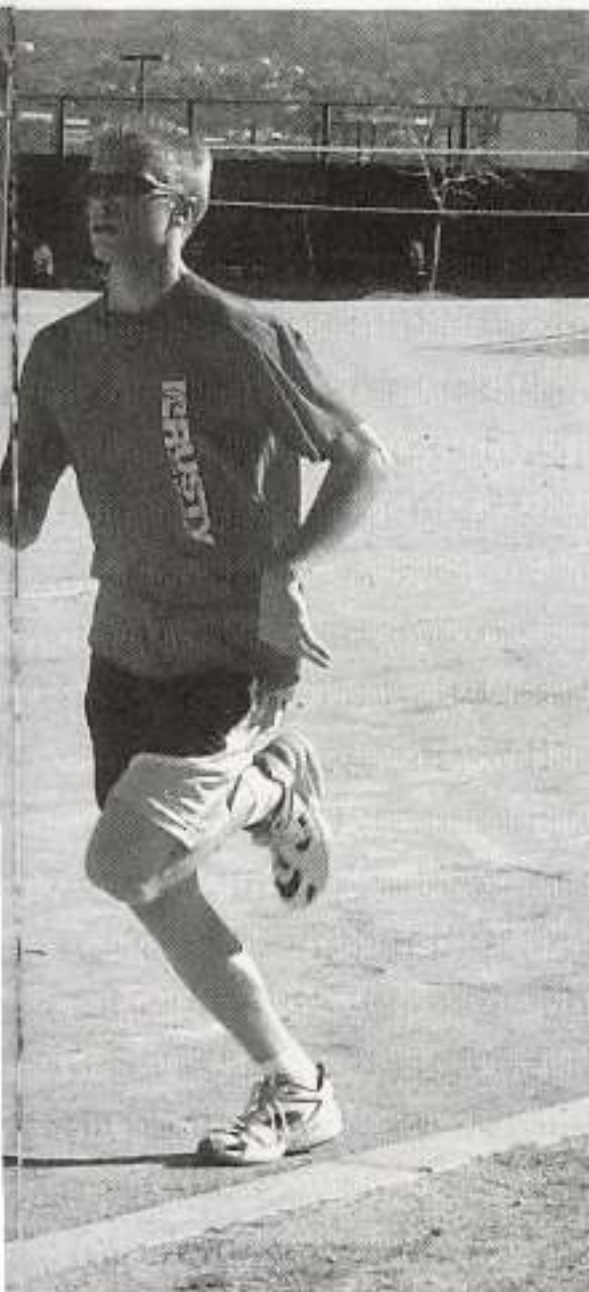

Guys, did you hear that? Sophomore Jill Beard stretches her legs before jumping the hurdles.

She's all ears! Freshman Hector Crocco listens intently to Coach Todd as he shows her how to fix her grip on the pole-vaulting pole.

Earthquake, test! Sophomore Charles Esquivel tests his balance by holding weights while standing on poles as Coach Harpison watches him.

It's your Venus. It's your freel junkies. Samantha Hebert, Sarah Garcia and Catherine Matteson stretch their legs before entering the hurdling event.

Swim

Michael Arensman, a modest sophomore, is an active participant on the Varsity swim team. Although Michael enjoys focusing mainly on freestyle, he is an all-around, versatile swimmer who can swim almost any event. After swim meets he enjoys eating with his family and friends to celebrate his good efforts and victories when applicable. Since getting his start in the sport two years ago, he has been consistently supported by both his family and teammates. By always working hard at practice and having this firm support group behind him, Michael has been able to improve his scores dramatically since he started. Although if you ask him how well he's done in the past, he will reply with a humble "pretty well."

Kelly Cox realizes the importance of practice as a daily habit. Through practicing eight to ten hours weekly, she has improved her scores and has prepared for all of her matches and invitational swim meets. After competing against their league opponents such as Hart, Saugus, Litterock, and Burbank, Kelly joins fellow members of the Varsity swim team at Wana Iguana. Her favorite event is relay because there is much interaction with other students. This trait extends out of the water and into her friendly attitude toward the entire team. As a senior this year, Kelly will be going on to bigger and better things. Despite her physical absence at Valencia, her legend will live on, as she has set school records in 50 back, 50 free, 200 free relay, 400 free relay, and 200 medley relay.

Make sure your arms touch your ears! Tiffany Canchoa concentrates on swimming straight down the lane along the backstroke.

Look at those long arms! Scott Hamby does an excellent job with his butterfly formation at the meet against Quartz Hill.

Take a deep breath! Jared Dixon takes a deep breath inbetween strokes while practicing his freestyle technique for the upcoming meet against Quartz Hill.

Head down! Tahlia Craig takes her last breath before diving her head back into the water to complete her last lap of the breaststroke.

Make sure your goggles are on tight! Sofia Garza turns her head to the side to take a gasp of air as she starts her race in the freestyle category.

I can fly... and swim! Drew Fields cuts through the water as he practices the butterfly stroke.

Baseball

Varsity

Matt Aidem's competitive attitude is just one of the assets that make him a vital part of this year's Varsity squad. Putting in over twenty-five hours of practice with the team weekly, Matt has found that his dedication has been rewarded. Alongside a full ride scholarship to UCSB, he has had the opportunity to experience such events as Wes Pascoffa getting hit in the face, causing him to look "like a penguin." Despite the time shortage that comes along with playing varsity baseball, his competitive nature allows him to find time for his true passions: playing rock-paper-scissors and horseshoes with kids in the local park. Although Matt's original career plan of winning the lottery may fall through, he is still looking forward to trying a career in the FBI, and if that falls through... there's always pro ball.

Jared Clark, the starting Varsity pitcher, is taking leaps and bounds to induce baseball in his future. From taking up baseball since the time he "could walk" to playing with the Anaheim Angels and St. Louis Cardinals scout teams, Jared is truly gifted in the sport. This gift, however, comes from years of hard work and dedication, as Valencia Baseball alone practices up to five hours nightly. Although practice and heart make up most of an athlete's ability, there are other factors that add to the mix such as superstition. Jared states that every game he wears the same boxers, which he steams wash. Because of his complete rounded personality and athletic standing, Jared has achieved the honor of receiving a full ride to Cal State Fullerton. There he will complete his education; although his dream career is playing in Major League Baseball.

Swing Bader Bader Pitcher Jared Clark demonstrates his batting ability during the February 26th Chamblade vs. W&B match up. The W&B ended up taking the game 1-0 keeping us their champion reputation.

Well! Where did it go? First baseman Trevor Nelson looks toward right field while Kib Miranda gets into position to back him up as they both await the incoming throw during practice.

Round the bases you will go: first, second, third and home. Senior Danny Worth speeds around the diamond after hitting a double to centerfield in the West Torrance game played at Valencia's home field.

Where are all the balls? Senior pitcher Richard Cadena warms up his arm by throwing a few pitches in the bullpen before releasing the starting pitcher.

True flexibility comes from years of practice. Third baseman Casey Muligan stretches to catch the ball hit by coach Mitch Graf during an infield exercise.

For a little leaper, short and stout, first baseman Kevin Moore turns the ball toward home plate momentarily after receiving the ball from second base in a "couple-plays" drill.

Baseball

JV/ Freshmen

Erik Wilson is just one shining example of this year's Junior Varsity baseball team. Juggling four AP and Honors classes, meeting deadlines for journalism and fifteen weekly practice hours make a difficult schedule. Despite the difficulty, Erik keeps up with his schoolwork. Alongside of this, he shows great athletic capability and promise. Since the early stages of his life, Erik has played baseball, encompassing every position available, but has taken time to focus on one position: pitcher. By pitching, Erik is "in control of the game", experiencing both the ups and downs to the game and realizing that winning is based on preparation. Throughout his life the heart and passion that Erik displays for baseball will be transferred into his career choice of being in the movie industry.

As a bird, is a plane, is not in the ball park anymore, Vinyl Hill connects with the ball, sending it down the third base line for an RBI during the Quartz Hill game on March 16, 2004.

I got it - got it! Sophomore Mempel Herrik, who plays both varsity football and baseball at VHS, calls off teammates as he prepares to catch a short fly ball.

Chris Matzner is yet another outstanding athlete at VHS with a long track record in the sport. Starting T-Ball at age four, Chris has gotten much experience in every position. This rotation of positions in leagues such as the Coastal T-Ball League shaped his current sportstop position, as he has been able to gain a general sense of the game, as well as how to properly execute plays in key situations. Because he endures the fifteen weekly practice hours along with the rest of his teammates, he proves to be a team player who is also looking out for his future, as seen in his 3.8 GPA. Although Chris is only a freshman, he already has his career choice down to two options: playing big league baseball or becoming a high school physical education teacher.

Don't Trip! Sophomore Chasen Barritt rounds first on his way to second during the VHS vs. Quartz Hill pre-season matchup.

Kortney Bell continues the long family line of softball players, as all of her sisters already play and excel in the sport. Because of the fact that Kortney has been playing softball for twelve years, she has had many highs and lows, but still says that just being around her teammates is the biggest perk of playing softball, either competitively, or just for fun. Due to Varsity Coach Lee's exceptional reputation, Kortney was excited to try out for the team in her freshman year. For the past four years, Kortney has had the chance to be a part of the three-peat Varsity Softball team, which has brought her scholarship offers from the University of Southern Mississippi, the University of Mississippi, Illinois State University, and the University of Tennessee, where she will play next year as a college freshman.

Sarah Mueller, a recent addition to this year's Varsity lineup, has come a long way to prove herself to Californians. Moving to Valencia from Grand Rapids, Michigan three weeks after the school year began, her softball priorities were in order. Along with sophomore sister Rachel, Sarah tried out for the Varsity squad, and was warmly welcomed to the roster. Because of the specific focus given to the sport, Sarah has excelled in every position she has played but is currently satisfied with pitching. Outside of Valencia softball, she plays for the Jaguars travel team. With ninety percent of her time dedicated to softball, Sarah has encountered great successes, such as getting a full ride scholarship to Ferns State University where she will study Optometry before trying out for the Olympic team.

See that water in the box then get gold stripes up her socks. Senior third baseman Kortney Bell leans in to hit a low changeup during the 80 Pina pre-season game at Valencia's home field.

Round the bases she shall go. Head Coach Donna Lee gives senior Sarah Mueller the go on some sign in order to let her know that a teammate's hit has enough power to be an RB.

And you let her have it and that's a bad habit. Freshman Kristen Aldem slides back to second base after sweeping to steal time.

IV/ Fresh

Jael Liko has her family behind her, as well as a bright future in front of her. Inspired to play VHS softball by her friend Theresa Morgan and her parents, Jael is now enjoying her third season of high school softball. Although the going was tough at first, she persevered through the long conditioning hours. Through dealing with the constant practice schedule, she came out on top, winning such awards as the Most Inspirational Player award last year as a sophomore. As a JV rookie, Jael has aspirations to be part of the starting lineup, as well as the firm goal of keeping her grades up. For the inspiration to meet these ambitions, Jael looks up to both Jesus Christ and her father, who is her softball coach as well as her life coach. In the future, she sees herself attending UCLA in order to fulfil her dream of becoming a Disney Imagineer, while keeping softball as an active part of her life.

Lauren Jeffrey, after taking a six-year hiatus from softball, has returned to the sport for the past two years. As a high in her athletic career, Lauren states that her proudest moment is hitting a double as her "one and only hit" last season. As a returning Fresh player, Lauren has made the transition from being an outfielder to pitcher in hopes of aiding the team in continuing the CIF champion streak. As part of her pre-game ritual, Lauren wears a purple ribbon that her friend and fellow VHS softball player Maggie Hank gave her around her ponytail. Outside of softball, Lauren participates in AYSO soccer, as well as maintains a high GPA in order to achieve her goal of becoming either a high school math teacher or an accountant after graduating from Point Loma Nazarene University.

By far, score...TOUCH! ALL FOUR! Sophomore Lauren Jeffrey crosses the plate by stealing home after a wild pitch from the Thousand Oaks pitcher.

It's hard, hit it. Soft, knock the pitcher off her... freshman southpaw Erin Weeks displays perfect hitting form, making her coaches proud, as well as her team cheer with her coach.

There is no "O-L-E" hole out there! Junior Varsity first baseman Sam Torres, pitcher Natalie Weiner and third baseman Britany Hie prepare to field the incoming home run.

She's got drive and spirit, too... Sophomore Krater Weberbauer whips the ball from her startstop position to first base in order to get her arm warmed up before beginning another inning.

Right, we miss you... come home! The Fresh' Sens could cheer on a teammate in hopes of her scoring a run.

If the catch is it, so the girl! Junior outfielder Samantha Arimoto gets into 'ready position' in order to properly receive the hit from E. Thousand Oaks' batter.

Dance Team

Kristin Shelton is in her first year of Valencia Dance, despite having been involved in the sport for fourteen years. As one of this season's seniors, she participates in the Intermediate, novelty, hip-hop, large, and officer dances. Outside of school, Kristin dances at the Dance Experience where she made the Stars Dance Team. She thinks that the best part of participating in dance is that she can share her talent with other dancers, as well as getting all of her emotions out. When Kristin is not dancing, she loves spending time with all of her friends. Kristin's advice to others is to always try to be the best you can be because in the end it will always pay off.

Dani Yaffe has been dancing for eight years and is now a sophomore on the Valencia High School Dance Team. Dani is a rookie to the team this year, but hasn't let that stop her from participating in the small, medium, large, novelty, lyrical, hip-hop, and intermediate dances. Her favorite part of being on the dance team is that she gets to travel and bond with her other teammates. Dani plans on keeping dance in her life, even after high school, as she plans on being a choreographer. Her dream is to choreograph for television commercials, Britney Spears, or especially Janet Jackson. When Dani is not dancing, she loves hanging out with her friends, surfing, chatting online, and talking on the phone. Her advice to others is, "Use the tough to your advantage. When you feel overworked, know you aren't making yourself weaker, but so much stronger."

Dance Dance Revolution: Melissa Smith leads the dance team in a hip-hop routine at the "Yo the Viking" rally.

Week 11 Cary Jaques performs with the dance team at the "We're Wrong, Bitch!" rally.

Get your groove on! Brandi Castro and Sarah Baker make this hard hip-hop dance look extremely easy as they flow through their moves.

And a 1, 2, 3, 4, 5! Ashley Janssen rocks the group in a dance that gets the audience cheering!

Boys Basketball

Varsity

Jason Lott, a senior on this year's Boys varsity Basketball team, has much experience in the sport. When he was just seven years old, his older brother inspired him to play through his own participation in the sport. After initially getting involved in the sport, Jason has encountered great success in basketball, including climbing up the ranks of the VHS teams all the way to the starting varsity roster, where he is both a shot guard and a point guard. Throughout the ten years that he has played basketball, he still lists winning the state championship in eighth grade as his fondest memory. As this is Jason's last year in high school, he has thought about the future and came to the conclusion that collegiate basketball is a definite possibility, as his love for the sport is deeply rooted and can never be undone.

Vince Dennington, a center, power forward and small forward for this year's Varsity Basketball team, has thirteen years of experience under his belt. He started playing the sport in kindergarten in order to meet new friends. From then to now, he has completed this goal with this season in particular. This year's VHS team has unmatched potential and chemistry. Although they did not go as far as hoped, the friendships that were formed left many players, including Vince, wishing that the season never ended. Throughout his basketball career, Vince says that his most valued memories include prevailing over Harvard-Westlake in double overtime, as well as "dunking on Will Brodus Junior year in the alumni game." In the future, Vince plans on attending COC, while still competitively participating in basketball.

You can do it, put your back into it. David Horst seeks his opponent from Burnough's until his teammates get open for a pass.

You can do it, Chase Alan runs to get a rolling ball before a Saugus opponent can.

Who says white men can't jump? Toddy Goetz goes up for a jump shot after getting a break away against Saugus.

Boys Basketball

JV/Freshman

Donjay Kakonde is one of the more focused members of this year's VHS Boys Junior Varsity Basketball team. At the age of seven, he saw a televised basketball game and "was amazed," inspiring him to take up the sport himself. Alongside the long hours of VHS Basketball, Donjay plays basketball for American Roundball Corporation as well as volleyball. Before each game, Donjay's ritual induces paying the game mentally in his head in order to perform his best on the court. Although his VHS season "had its ups and downs," he says that without a doubt, he will return next year to bring the Vikings to victory. Looking up to such people as Kobe Bryant and Shaq, Donjay desires to be the best that he can be on the court, which will bring him to the NBA, where he aspires to make a career.

Jordan Bottenfield is another multitasking athlete at VHS as he plays both basketball and baseball. Even though he had been playing basketball since he was five, he found there was much competition within the group of boys that were trying out for the team, but his playing ability boosted him to the roster. Here at VHS, Jordan plays point guard and enjoys it because of the control he has over the game. Coach Hayes, Coach Rockett, and Coach Hagan are everyday idols to Jordan, as they consistently give him the support he needs both on and off of the field. Before each game, he listens to a certain type of music, which turned out to be a vital part of his game because this tradition accompanied an awesome season that left him impatient for next year to start.

Head Hunter: Brandon Ballough sprints down the court as his Sauges opponents chase after him.

Hey, I'm open: Donjay Kakonde uses his height to get open and make a bank shot that tips into the air against Sauges.

I believe he can fly. Michael Tesig criss against Canyon on a layup to aid their score 23-32.

Butterfingers. Eric Patino puts up a jump shot that slips past his competitor from Saigie at a home game.

Get set, Go. The Vaerca boys basketball team sets up a screen play under their net to confuse Canyon.

Feas, friends. Chris White steps up to the free throw line after drawing a foul from his competitor.

Girls Basketball

Varsity

Brittany Sansone was motivated to play basketball at the age of seven while watching kids at Castaic Middle School and in her neighborhood play. As a freshman, Brittany recalls playing a preseason tournament in Santa Paula in which the team won the championship against Ventura and Brittany was selected as Most Valuable Player. During her sophomore year, Brittany became a second year varsity starter and proved her skills by beating Saugus by two points during the same year. Though basketball is her game, Brittany states Jesus is her life as she attends church regularly in addition to her long hours of practice. If she could be any famous basketball player for a day, Brittany would choose to be Lisa Leslie because she would like to know what it feels like to dunk since it seems like a lot of fun.

Tamaya Smith, a beneficial member of this year's Varsity Basketball Team, got her roots in the sport from watching both her older brothers and the boys on the street play, and then following in their footsteps. Placing basketball at the top of her priority list is a difficult task, as there is more than fifteen hours per week put into VHS basketball practice. Although the long hours are expected of a student athlete, Tamaya has truly come out on top of the sport, as she received a scholarship based on both her academic standing and her athletic ability. As idols in the sport, Tamaya lists Kobe Bryant, Michael Jordan and Magic Johnson, all of whom have dominated the game. Perhaps this is a foreshadow of her future career, however if it is not, she knows that she will always have the support of her family and friends behind her, no matter what she chooses to do.

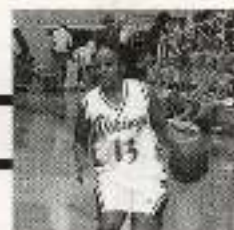

Toro, toro! Tamaya Smith charges towards the basket not letting anyone come in her way.

Can't we all just get along? Brooklyn Anderson fights over possession of the ball against two defending Saugus players.

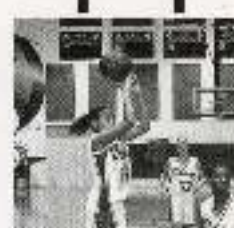

Can I get a lay up? Lay up! Lay up! Lay up! Weathersby soars for the air as she goes in for a lay up during a home game against Canyon.

Maybe she should take up high jumping too: Brittany Sansone reaches to take possession of the ball in the beginning of an important game against Saugus.

Mikala Fricke has demonstrated her commitment as pointguard to the JV girls basketball team, as she practices with her team over twelve hours per week. Since she started playing seven years ago, Mikala has been on countless basketball teams with family and friends supporting and encouraging her all the way. Mikala attributes basketball to helping her create strong relationships with her friends. She shows talent both on the court and in other numerous sports including swim, snowboarding, surfing, and skin boarding. She is also involved in Patfinders Christian Club, the Movement, and is Valendia's ASB secretary. Listening to Boston's CD with "Don't Stop Believing" always pumps Mikala up before a game as shown when she scored a personal high of twenty-five points against Hart, one of her greatest achievements.

Alison Ceppi, one of the members of the VHS Girls Freshman Basketball CIF League winning 2004 team, has been playing basketball for six years. Looking up to such famous stars as Michael Jordan and Vince Carter, playing basketball was a natural move for her. Before she started dedicating fifteen hours per week to basketball practice, Alison played both softball and soccer, as well as participating in basketball clinics. With a very athletic background, she is naturally able to perform amazingly in games, such as those against Alemany and Burroughs in which she scored twenty-three points alone. Although sports is a very large part of her life, Alison knows that there is more to life than slam-dunks and dribbling, like family and friends. In the future, Alison hopes to keep her family and basketball close to her.

Hoop there it is! Vanessa Henson goes in gracefully for a lay up during a challenging game versus Canyon.

See you! The girls on the bench watch their teammates frantically as they struggle to score some points.

How do I get out of this mess? Alison Coppi gets tripped by three Canyon guards but miraculously is able to escape and add two points to the Vikings' score.

Boys Soccer

Varsity

Midfielder Ryan Dean has been a beneficial member of the Varsity Boys Soccer team for the past four years. Like most children, Ryan played in AYSO at the young age of five, but unlike most of his peers, he displayed perseverance in the sport. His talents eventually lead him to earn a spot on Valencia's Varsity team his freshman year. In addition to playing for VHS, Ryan plays for a club soccer team and is also on Valencia's Varsity Boys Volleyball team. Even with a constantly busy athletic schedule, Ryan is able to maintain a 4.75 GPA. Throughout his four years of playing soccer for VHS, Ryan's fondest memory was making playoffs and winning the first playoff game. Ryan credits his teammates and his friends as his inspiration on and off the field.

Scott Zazueta, one of the starting outside defenders for this year's Varsity Soccer team, has played for top-level club teams for the past six years. He had his humble beginnings at the age of four when his parents initially enrolled him in AYSO. Scott soon realized how much he enjoyed soccer and has been playing ever since. As a stopper, Scott loves to frustrate the opposing team's offense and slide tackle their players. Before every game, Scott likes to warm up on his own to make sure he is totally focused, and he always wears his Championship Indoor Soccer shirt, a relic from when he was ten, under his jersey. Scott's greatest soccer accomplishment was being chosen to play for an All-Star team where only fifteen out of three hundred players were selected. Scott hopes to attend CSU Stanislaus and play for the men's soccer team.

Kye saves the day! Kyle Carrillo scores yet another goal from the opposing Saugus team.

Boys Soccer

J/Freshman

Manuel Pardo, a home video made star, plays both left and right forward for the boys JV soccer team. A friend who was really talented at soccer taught Manuel how to play approximately nine years ago. Before every game, he prepares himself mentally, telling himself he is going to score and that the team will win. Sometimes during games, he and other team members accidentally create game-winning plays. Manuel has many soccer accomplishments including winning an award last year for being best defender on his team and scoring multiple times in several of his games. He recalls at the age of ten he used to play soccer with his friend in the middle of a big highway and having a blast. Manuel is inspired by various things both on and off the field including his mom and sister and the idea of going somewhere after high school.

Dan Walk, one of the many talented freshmen that stocked this year's Freshman Soccer lineup, has eleven years of soccer experience behind him. He has had the opportunity to play on club teams, which has allowed him to travel around California and enjoy such moments as winning a championship in Bakersfield. Because of his knowledge of the game, becoming part of the VHS Soccer program was like second nature. Here at VHS, he plays both forward and sweeper but says that his favorite position is forward because it gives him an opportunity to assist the team in victory through scoring. Though it is only his rookie season as a VHS Soccer participant, he still plans on playing next year and hopefully far into the future.

The circus is in town! Mikhael Eskoberry shows off of his juggling skills while traveling down the field.

How many people does it take to kick a soccer ball? Kevr Landefeld sends the ball to the goal while Kye Whirey and Carlos Acame block any opposition coming their way.

You put your left foot in. Marco Gonzalez struggles to stop his opponent from getting to the ball.

Catch me if you can. Fabio Garcia rushes to the ball before Ev Burroughs' challenge can beat him to it.

Danielle Malkowski started playing soccer at age five and continues to play today as a member of the Varsity Girls soccer team. With thirteen years experience to support her in her endeavors, Danielle is constantly pushing her limits within the sport, as she helps out the team with their seven different corner kick plays and special plays such as the 'Palm Tree' and 'Scatter'. Since the beginning of her soccer career, she has experienced good things such as making the CIF Finals last year, as well as playing on a nationally ranked team as a freshman. She has also had her fair share of downfalls, including a broken tailbone in eighth grade to many sprained ankles over the years. Despite these occurrences, Danielle has kept an optimistic view on soccer, as she states that this season was great, which is why she plans on trying out for a team once she is in college.

Alex Link, a soccer connoisseur of thirteen years, has been playing as sweeper for Valencia's Varsity girls soccer team for the past three years. She was enrolled in AYSCO when she was five, but ironically didn't like her first year. Her dad made her promise to at least play for one more year before quitting, and luckily she loved her second year, which encouraged her to keep playing. Alex has had one university express interest in her for her skills, but she decided she wanted to focus on her academic future instead. Regardless, she still plans to play club soccer after high school. One of Alex's fondest memories was making it to the CIF playoffs last season. She remembers every playoff game being extremely intense and physically exhausting with an enthusiastic crowd cheering the team on at the Cal State Fullerton stadium.

Angelli Robison started playing soccer over nine years ago. Originally, her parents started her in soccer, but as the years went on her motivated coaches inspired her to keep playing. As a forward for the girls JV soccer team, Angeli has had the opportunity to score numerous goals for her team, which includes scoring a personal high of four goals during one game. One special person that has helped her with her soccer goals has been her dad, who is very involved with the whole program. Averaging about ten hours a week practicing alone, Angeli has undoubtedly made soccer a big part of her life. All the commitment has led to many great soccer accomplishments including making the high school team and being able to play in the Rose Bowl during a tournament. Angelli looks up to pro soccer player Brandy Chastain because she is an amazing soccer player and a great person.

April Ulmer participates on this year's VHS Freshman Soccer team as both an offensive and defensive player. Due to her nine years of experience in the sport, she has had the opportunity to play for several different AYSO teams, two club teams, and currently plays on the Santa Clarita United Xtreme U-15 as well as the VHS team. At school alone, she practices with her team five nights per week, totaling approximately seven and a half hours weekly. Despite a busy schedule, her friends still play a major role in her life, as she spends any spare time that she may have with them. She has experienced both highs and lows in her career, ranging from scoring the winning goal in the semi-finals in AYSO soccer to tripping when running during a practice. April finds inspiration in her hero, Mia Hamm, as well as her parents who continuously push her to achieve her full potential.

Focus: Amanda Kristiney winds up to kick the ball down the field to keep it away from Hart.

Hurry girl: Michela Stock sprints towards the ball to beat her competitor from Sunnyside to the ball.

Take that Canyon, Courtney Briley shows Canyon her moves at a home game.

Now, help us use your head. In a game against Hart, Carly Starford gets to the ball first and heads-balls it to a teammate.

Golf

Kevin Landefeld, a freshman, involved himself with golf a year and a half ago. He owes his golfing experiences to his dad because he has determination and drive when playing the sport. Kevin has been practicing with fortitude and puts forth his effort at least eight hours a week, at the driving range, practice rounds and having at least two matches a week. Outside of school, Kevin practices with friends and family to ensure victories in the future. The entire golf team prepares for competitions by raising money for the golf organization. Kevin's favorite was when they got to the course at six in the morning and drove the golf balls as far as he could. Kevin is determined to become a great golf player by putting forth hard work, stamina, and using the motto, "Practice makes perfect."

Kristen Tayo is just one of the nine avid golfers on this year's girl's golf team. As a freshman this year, all of the expectations she had of high school sports were met. She enjoys the support of her teammates, coach and parents in all of her league matches and also the chance to create new friendships with the other members of the team. Although golf is generally looked at as a "safe sport," Kristen will be the first to say how truly dangerous it is. In her short golf career, she has suffered a sprained wrist from improper hitting technique and has been hit by many balls gone astray on the green. Kristen looks forward to next season when she will return to the VHS team to improve her scores and enjoy an even deeper appreciation for the game.

As we travel along the highway of high school, some try to capture their memories and experiences by investing time in or adopting a highway. Reminding seniors of what they have been through and accomplished, parents and friends may make an ad to congratulate them on their great triumph of graduation. Eventually these end up taking the form of landmarks so the shared times will not be forgotten. At Winter Formal 2004 Christina Ross and Kristian Hale purchase their photo packages so that they may look back and relive the moment. Others must raise this money with the support of fellow classmates. DECA club members Kristina De Bree and Ian Greenberg sell snow cones to John Chapman and Tod Burnam to help these business-oriented students pay for the trip to the Nashville, Tennessee for the National DECA Championship. Also during Sprolic Week, Asian Cultural Awareness members Angelo Holganza, Floyd Buen, Kristen Induct, Christine Park and Catherine Nicholas sell Asian food to students during lunch for fundraiser efforts with Moon Wok restaurant. But on a daily basis, student store employees such as Roni La Val are available to take orders of VHS students like Sarah Abbott shown here as she purchases a Sprite and Cheetos. These memories will continue to follow us, shaping our future as our lives unfold and direct us on our individual paths, just as they did ten years from yesterday.

Life is a collage of snapshot memories. One of mine is looking into your tiny little baby face when you were first born. Wondering what kind of person you would become. Would you be athletic? Would you like shopping? Would we be friends, not just mother and daughter? You have become a woman that I am so proud of. You are so giving and thoughtful of those around you. I am so lucky and proud to have you as my daughter and friend. Dream big, live life to its fullest and enjoy every moment that you can. Your dad and I love you very much.

Paige Castan, Rachel Hausman, Erin Neipris

Dear Erin,

From the first moment we saw you your beauty was evident with your dark exotic hair, deep brown eyes and sweet smile. We had great expectations and aspirations for you. We hoped that we would be able to guide you in the right direction and that you would take our advice along the way.

You have meet and exceeded our expectations. The beauty that we saw on that first day of your birth has grown to be external as well as internal. As a young girl you were shy and timid. Today you are strong, good natured, and light up the room when you enter. Erin, you are a leader and not a follower and have proven this time and again.

We are truly blessed and are thankful for the joy that you bring each and every day.

As this chapter in your life closes a new one begins with new and greater challenges.

We love you, know that we will always be there for you and that you will forever be our baby.

Congratulations!!!

Love,

Mom and Dad

Toni Sperry

Dear Toni,

We knew from the moment you were born you were very unique and special. Watching you grow up and just being there through all of your journeys has brought us so much joy. We will always remember the memories you have given us of watching you dance, play t-ball, cheer, compete in gymnastics, and of course coming back from a horrible injury. You have experienced pain, joy, sadness, craziness, and excitement over the years and remember each one of those emotions has taught you a special lesson. No matter what happens in the future, we have the confidence in you to make the choices that are best for you. Always believe in yourself and follow your dreams. Hopefully, we have given you Wisdom (but that is something gained from your experience), Success (but only your efforts will allow you to achieve), Happiness (but that can only come from the choices you make), Love (this is something that you can always count on). You have made it through the last four years and it wasn't always easy. Life isn't always easy. Good luck in the future. We love you very much and never stop laughing, it brings such joy to all.

 Dad, Mom, Brian, Grammie & Grandpa

To My Sister, Congratulations on graduating high school. You survived senior year. Will you reach 12' this year so I can go to your college & cheer you on? You'll do it because you have what it takes, gymnastics, tennis, pole vault, weight lifting, & good grades. You can clear 12' because you don't come in 2nd place. I enjoyed the times we spent together at VHS, riding in the Mustang to school, hanging out at brunch, competing in Mrs. Dost's math class, getting Bobas after school & breaking down in the Mustang on the way home. We'll have more good times to come. Hopefully your nose will survive. I wish you the best & good luck in the future. I couldn't have asked for a better, "sister." Love, Brother

Jill, you have accomplished so much in your four years of high school. That is why I know that you will excel in the next phase of your life, college. I have no doubt that you will attack this new, exciting challenge with the same die-hard attitude that you pose with everything else. I am so proud of the person you have become. Keep working hard and you will go far in life. Congratulations. Love, Cody

On July 22, 1986 a gift was bestowed upon a young couple. This gift was embodied in an 8 lb. 8oz. baby girl. The couple named this delight, CHELSEA ELYSE. From the moment of arrival this child was a force to be reckoned with. So full of spirit and curiosity, this baby touched everyone's life.

The days progressed to years and Chelsea remained a wonder to all who have met her. Upon first contact you can't help but notice her red hair, it is the hint of a central fire.

Chelsea brought with her an insight into human nature. She has a passion for truth and a keen sense of friendship. Those whom are lucky enough to know this person have felt first hand, the magic she conveys. This gift has developed into a passionate, creative, hard-working and determined woman.

She will embrace her instinct of independence to strike out on her own. May she take with her our always present love and support. Hold strong to your convictions and dreams. Chelsea, you are such an inspiration!

A huge GOOD JOB!! to 9th Honors English for a successful Renaissance Fair. Students researched, bought costumes, prepared Elizabethan foods, and organized vending and entertainment for the student-run event. Also noteworthy, 9th regular English put on fabulous Shakespeare scenes with set designs and costuming. The creativity included a "Southern belle" Juliet, 70s disco theme, surfer style, and lots of brave young men taking on female roles with gusto! Shakespeare would be proud!

Drama's Spring Production of Romeo and Juliet

Two households, both alike in dignity,

In fair Verona, where we lay our scene,

From ancient grudge break to new hate,

Where civil blood makes civil hands unclean.

From forth the loins of these two kins,

A pair of star-cross'd lovers take their life;

Whose misadventur'd piteous overthrows,

Doth turn their parents' accurs'd strife,

The pure and innocent blood to foese,

And causes their parents to divorce,

Which, but their children's end, naught could remove,

Is now the two hours' traffic of our stage;

The which if you with patient ears attend,

What here shall miss, our toil shall strive to mend.

Drama Production

I greatly appreciate all of the hard work everyone has put into Romeo and Juliet. This play means a lot to me not only because it's Shakespeare and it's Irish but because it is a reflection of ALL of you. To my seniors: This is the first graduating class of kids that I've had from the very beginning of my time here. You are very special to me. Congratulations and here is to you Class of 2004.

Thanks to...

the Valencia staff for letting us disrupt their classes and offices, especially Dr. Priesz, Mrs. Yagmur and the rest of the assistant principals and Mrs. LaSalle and Mrs. Gomez in the registers office. Herff Jones: Dave Smith for being an awesome representative, our customer service adviser Chris Speth for dealing with late pages, and Cody Edwards for his indexing help. O'Conner photography especially Travis and Richard for their continual runs to bring us film, develop our photos, and take team photos (including clubs... he he). Norman McBride for computer support and Gary Timberlake for his help in a smooth distribution. Yearbook alumni Mr. Rosenast, Aleks, and Jeremy for not forgetting us and coming back to help. A special thanks to Ms. Dollman for going above and beyond and being a second mother to us and also her kids Jake and Nathan for the hours they spent in here over breaks and weekends. Iris and Theresa for their care and time put into our "baby". Eric for waiting patiently after school for Nick to finish up and to all our friends for putting up us always being in yearbook. Also thanks to Kris Roe of The Ataris for letting us use his beautiful photo on our cover. Sylvia Finlayson for supplying us with photos of the fire and Paint A Dream for allowing us to use their facility.
