Crow delegation to Washington in 1872, including Agent Pease and the interpreters. --Jackson Catalogue of 1877, Number 859. (According to records in the U. S. National Archives, this delegation, under Agent Pease, left for Washington in October 1872, but was still in the East in early 1873. The following identifications are taken mainly from other photographs, apparently contemporary, in the Bureau of American Ethnology files. In front, seated on floor, from left: Stays with the Horses, (Cf. Negative 3380) Bear Wolf's wife, Ish-ip-chi-wak-pa-i-chis or Good Medicine Pipe, Old Crow's wife (Cf. Negative 3381) Middle row, left to right: Se-ta-pit-se or Bear Wolf (Packs the Bear) (Cf. Negative 3380), Te-shu-nzt- or White Calf (Cf. Negative 3420), Kam-ne-but-se or Blackfoot (Cf. 3382) principal chief of the Mountain Crows, Che-ve-te Pu-ma-ta or Iron Bull (Cf.

Negative 3379), Pish-ki-ha-di-ri-ky-ish or One who leads the old Dog (Cf. Negative 3419) Perits-har-sts or Old Crow (Cf. Negative 3381) a principal chief of the Mountain Crows. Back row, left to right: Eche-has-ka or Long Horse (Cf. Negative 3420), Ella-causse or Thin Belly (Cf. Negative 3419), Bernard Prero, interpreter (Old print so marked), Blackfoot's wife (Cf. Negative 3382), Agent Pease, Iron Bull's wife (Cf. Negative 3379), Shane, interpreter (Old print so marked), Mo-mukh-pi-tche (Cf. Negative 3419) National Archives has: (Information from Mr Walker, Interior Br., 1/61) 1. Telegram from Montana Superintendent, Mr Viall, to Bureau Indian Affairs, October 22 or 23, 1872, saying that the delegation (under Pease) was leaving the next day. 2. Letter re New York hotel bill for the group, early 1873. 3. Letters to Agent Pease from Mr Viall, saying do not send a delegation late 1873. ; Jackson's 1874 Catalogue identified Ulke as photographer. Henry Ulke has a studio in Washington, D.C. in 1860s. In 1870 his brother, Julius joined him to form Ulke Bros. Therefore, this could have been taken by either of the brothers.--PJF 1/78

Born near Fort Laramie, Wyoming about 1833. Was killed by Crow-dog near Rosebud Agency, South Dakota August 5, 1881. A biographical sketch appears in "The Antiquarian" Volume I, pages 47-8; 76-78.

Spotted Tail has long been the chief of the Brule Sioux, and since his conversion from an intense hostility to an unswerving friendship for the white people has by them been looked upon and considered as the great chief of all the Sioux. The honors of this position are equally divided between Red Cloud and Spotted Tail; each is chief of his band only, the Indians themselves not recognizing any one man as chief of the whole nation; but their great executive abilities, oratorical powers, and popularity with both whites and Indians, have been the means of putting them forward as the champions of their people. ; In his younger days Spotted Tail was a daring and audacious chief, murdering and massacreing wherever he went. In 1854, he and his band attached a coach, murdered all the passengers, and perpetrated horrible enormities on the dead. He was eventually captured, and imprisoned for about six months in the guardhouse at Fort Leavenworth, during which time his feelings underwent a great change. Instead of a determined foe of the pale-faces, he became their earnest friend and coadjutor in the work of pacification. It has been well said of him that "he was worth more to the Government than a dozen major-generals, with their armies to back them." -- Jackson Catalogue, 1877.

This area, and consequently these pictures have been confused with the Cebolleta area, New Mexico. These pictures relate to a ruin or ruins known as Kowina in Cebollita canyon or valley which may have been occupied by the prehistoric Acoma. At Cebolleta in northeast Valencia County was a Navaho settlement and mission, 1746-49. Some maps spell both areas Cebolleta; Rupe and Dittert spell the Canyon with an i and the Mesa with an e--both Canyon and Mesa and in the Acoma area. See Bureau of American Ethnology Bulletin 30: Cebolleta; Bureau of American Ethnology Annual Report 35, Pt. 1 Kowina, pages 10-14. (Field notes by Hodge). ; Arthur Bibb to M W Stirling. March 8, 1954. Box 25, Albuquerque, New Mexico. "On checking some photographs while in Washington, March 2, 1954, at your Bureau, I found some errors made with regard to proper description of locations. These were the photos taken by Vroman in 1900 in the Cebollita Canon in Valencia Co. New Mexico, and some taken by Jesse Nusbaum in the same area 10 to 12 years later. The ruins mentioned as "Old Spanish Mission" erected for the Navahos about 1746 is in-correct. This ruin is in the SE 1/4 of Section 8 of Twp. 7 North, Range 9 West N.M.P.M. at the head of the Cebollita Canon. The tribe: is not Navaho but Acoma. The Acomas call this ruin and the area immediately adjacent thereto as "Kowina". The other ruin in the pictures you have which mention the square walls, is on what we term Garcia Mesa in the Cebollita Canon also, in Section 24 of Twp. 8 North, Range 10 West. ; "Both these ruins are on property I own at present. These two fortified sites, erected about 1150 A.D. or a little earlier according to Dr Reginald Rey Ruppe Jr and Alfred Dittert Jr who did extensive field work in this area and to whom I can refer you, were photographed by Nels Nelson also in 1916. Unfortunately the region is being confused with the town of Cebollita on the Southeast slope of Mt Taylor where a mission church was established by Father Menchero about 1746 tho never built. Dr Ruth Underhill used this mistaken identity in her book "Here Come the Navaho" published by the Dept of the Interior last year."

Unfortunately the region is being confused with the town of Cebollita on the Southeast slope of Mt Taylor where a mission church was established by Father Menchero about 1746 tho never built. Dr Ruth Underhill used this mistaken identity in her book "Here Come the Navaho" published by the Dept of the Interior last year." ; Arthur Bibo, Los Pilares Ranch, Cubero, N.M. on whose property this ruin is located gives the location as T 7 N, R 9 W. These were the photos taken by Vroman in 1900 in the Cebollita Canon in Valencia Co. New Mexico, and some taken by Jesse Nusbaum in the same area 10 to 12 years later. The ruins mentioned as "Old Spanish Mission" erected for the Navahos about 1746 is in-correct. This ruin is in the SE 1/4 of Section 8 of Twp. 7 North, Range 9 West N.M.P.M. at the head of the Cebollita Canon. The tribe: is not Navaho but Acoma. The Acomas call this ruin and the area immediately adjacent thereto as "Kowina". The other ruin in the pictures you have which mention the square walls, is on what we term Garcia Mesa in the Cebollita Canon also, in Section 24 of Twp. 8 North, Range 10 West. ; "Both these ruins are on property I own at present. These two fortified sites, erected about 1150 A.D. or a little earlier according to Dr Reginald Rey Ruppe Jr and Alfred Dittert Jr who did extensive field work in this area and to whom I can refer you, were photographed by Nels Nelson also in 1916. Unfortunately the region is being confused with the town of Cebollita on the Southeast slope of Mt Taylor where a mission church was established by Father Menchero about 1746 tho never built. Dr Ruth Underhill used this mistaken identity in her book "Here Come the Navaho" published by the Dept of the Interior last year." ; Arthur Bibo, Los Pilares Ranch, Cubero, N.M. on whose property this ruin is located gives the location as T 7 N, R 9 W. It is known as the Kowina Ruin. Mr Bibo here 3/2/54.

These pictures relate to a ruin or ruins known as Kowina in Cebollita canyon or valley which may have been occupied by the prehistoric Acoma. Denmy Sockbain, daughter of Francis Joseph--Governor of Passamaquoddy tribe, Sep 18 1817

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.748342

Drawing shows young woman, full-length, seated at table inside a house in front of a window. High conical hat, decorated; earrings on slit and spread (?) ear rims; bead necklace with pendant cross; two large circular silver brooches; cloth blouse (?); cloth overdress; cloth apron (?); decorated leggings. A doll lashed into a miniature cradleboard rests against table leg. On table a pitcher, two plates, a dead bird; hanging on wall a canteen. Thru window: soldier with gun; man with hat, coat; two log (?) buildings with gable roofs. Rather primitive in style, but evidently ethnographically accurate.

Digital surrogate produced from reference copy print

Handwritten below, on original sheet, in old script: "Den[my Sockbas]in daughter of Francis Joseph--Governor of the Passamaquoddy Tribe/Eastport Sept 18th 1817;" unsigned.

Cherokee man, Major Ridge, 1834 or 1836

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.989

From a portrait probably painted in Washington, D.C., 1834, painter unknown. Ridge was in Washington in 1834 and in 1836. Letter in National Archives, Office of Secretary of War, Letters Received, 1834 is a request to the Secretary of War by the delegation Ridge headed, that Ridge's portrait be painted. The date of the painting is therefore probably 1834 or possibly 1836, when Ridge again visited Washington. It is not 1835 as stated by Hodge in his edition of McKenney and Hall, Volume I, page 402, for Ridge was not in Washington in 1835.-- Information from Dr Thomas Wilkins, Columbia University, preparing study of life and times of Major Ridge.

Six Chippewa Indians who visited Europe with George Catlin, 1851
 1 Photograph (8x10 in)
 Notes: OPPS NEG.498 D
 From a daguerreotype deposited in the Chicago Historical Society with the following letter: "This certifies to my purchase from A-wun-ne-wa-be, now known as Chief John T. Henry of the Munsey Reservation, Ontario, Canada, of the daguerreotype of the six Ojibbeway Indians who visited Queen Victoria and King Louis Philippe in 1845-46, in charge of George Catlin, who exhibited these Indians in England and France at the time. The personages were identified to me in the picture by the chief, and recorded in his own handwriting as attached herewith; noting those that are still alive, the chief remembering his age is 79 years. This picture, which is unique from the fact that but one was taken, was made in 1851 - five years after their return from England - and bears the date on the back of the original frame with signature of Maun-qua-daus, the Great Chief. This picture was purchased by me at the home of the chief on July 2, 1903, and the names given by the chiefs as written below correspond with the titles given of these Indians on page 294 of Catlin's Ojibbeway and Iowa Indians published in London in 1852, giving account of the reception to the Royalties and their various exhibitions in Europe." (Signed /Walter C. Wyman.) Chicago, October 1, 1903. Billy Bowlegs, 1852

1 Photograph (3 3/4x4 1/4 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.53887

Restriction: Not to be reproduced without Mr Lesley's permission; therefore prints are not to be released by the BAE to persons who have not first secured Mr Lesley's permission. This restriction does not apply to the Smithsonian, the Library of Congress, "or any other government agency which may wish to use it for research, their publications or display." (Leslie to Sturtevant, June 24, 1963).

Original daguerreotype in hinged leather case. Daguerreotype plate marked, "CHRISTOFLE," and to the right of this is a maker's mark in form of an oval enclosing a pan balance with "C" on each side, 4 stars above and "CHRISTOFLE" below. Daguerreotype cleaned by the Library of Congress at the request of the BAE before making this negative.

The original, belonging to Billy Bowlegs, was taken from his camp on November 19, 1857, by soldiers including Captain L.G. Lesley, and was inherited by the latter's grandson, Theodore Lesley of Tampa. See information with 42913.

Date: Original daguerreotype taken 1852.

"Warren Thompson of Philadelphia introduced galvanizing (refers to "resilvering" or double-plated silver) to France as a part of "le procede Americain," and the firm of Christofle began to manufacture in 1851 their "scale" plates, so called because of the hallmark, a pair of scales, the government symbol for electroplated wear. "Their product was endorsed by Thompson in a letter dated March 20, 1851, which Christofle reprinted in an advertisement in the French professional photographers' magazine, La Lumiere." --Beaumont Newhall, The Daguerreotype in America, 1961, page 120.

Billy Bowlegs, 1852

1 Photograph (4 1/2x6 1/2 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.42913

Full-length, standing studio portrait.

Theodore Lesley, 2707 Morrison Avenue, Tampa 9, Florida, letters of June 17 and 27, 1959, to WCS: According to quote from The Florida Peninsular (Tampa) of December 12, 1857, on November 19, 1857, a company of Florida Volunteers] under Captain Cone (or perhaps Captain Stephens, Captain Stewart, or Captain [L.G.] Lesley) discovered Billy Bowlegs' settlement [in the Big Cypress Swamp] where "The entire suit of King William, the invincible was secured, together with his Ambrotype, taken when he was last in Washington as Diplomatic Assistant to a celebrated contractor for removing Indians." The ambrotype was kept by Captain L. G. Lesley. About 1885 his son, Captain John T. Lesley, had a copy made. The original was subsequently lost, [original found, see Negative 53887] but the copy is in the possession of Theodore Lesley, grandson of JTL. About 1954 T. L. lent this to Mr Harry P. Kennedy of Tampa (deceased ca 1957), with the understanding that he would have one copy made, for his own use only. Burgert Brothers should not have a copy negative., according to T. L. [but it is in their file of stock views, seen by WCS 3/14/59] Information from W. C. Sturtevant 8-4-59.

Print submitted marked on reverse: "from Theo Lesley collection," and stamped, "No. Rel 290. When ordering additional photographs please mention above negative number. Burgert Bros., House of photography, 712 Gr. Central, P. O. Box 1497, Tampa, Fla."

William C. Sturtevant, Yale U. Department of Anthropology, in letter to M.W. Stirling, April 16, 1955; refers to this photograph as follows: Seeing it I think the date written on it (1852) is probably correct.

While the costume is close to that BB wore for his 1858 portraits, it is even more similar to the one shown in an engraving in the Illustrated London News, volume 22, number 623, May 21, 1853, page 396, which is from a daguerreotype by "Meade Brothers, New York," taken during the visit of BB and party to New York in 1852. However, the pictures are not the same so yours may not be by Meade. This fills a nice gap in the pictures of BB, and allows a better interpretation of this costume than was previously possible--

1956. Sturtevant points out that Bowlegs wears 3 gorgets and 1 medal in this, as in two other portraits which are definitely dated 1852, namely the one in the Illustrated London News (see above) and a (rather poor) line reproduction from Gleason's Pictorial Drawing Room Companion, Volume III, Number 17, Boston, October 23, 1852, page 257. In pictures definitely dated 1858 (see notes on card for BAE Negative 1175) he wears 1 gorget and 2 medals.

This is the only known photograph of Cynthia Ann Parker. Quanah Parker advertized for a picture of his mother in the Fort Worth Gazette and Captain Ross (later governor of Texas) sent him a copy of this picture. Quanah had an artist make an oil portrait from it which he hung above the mantel in the living room of his home west of Fort Sill, Oklahoma. Information from Clyde L. Jackson and Grace Jackson, Quanah Parker Last Chief of The Comanches, New York, 1963, page 160.

"The original of this picture of Cynthia Ann and her daughter, Tau-chee-ya-tuh, today is in the collection of Texas History at the Baylor Library in Waco, Tex.," handwritten on reverse of print by Mrs Ella Cox Lutz.

1 Photograph (5x7 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.45289

"Incidentally, about Porter's title of "General," an article in the Cherokee Advocate of October 21, 1871, indicates that he was given the rank of brigadier general and placed in command of the Creek militia during the Sands insurrection of 1871. Angie Debo, in her Road to Disappearance, page 193, also tells of this. During the Civil War he served as a company officer in McIntosh's Creek Mounted Volunteers, part of the forces of Stand Watie, the Cherokee general who fought so ably for the Confederacy. The picture of Porter must have been taken around 1863, for by the end of the war he had received a face wound which he covered with a mustache for most of the rest of his life." See Frank F. Finney, "Old Osage Customs Die with the Last Pah-Hue-Skah," The Chronicles of Oklahoma, Volume 36, Number 2, Summer, 1958, pages 131-136.

Judging from the above article, this photograph is apparently that of the last hereditary chief of the Osage tribe--the White Hair who died in 1869 (Chief Little White Hair). The first was "Payouska" (sketched by St. Memin in 1804--BAE Negative 4090). The last bearer of this name died in 1894 (portrait in Oklahoma Historical Society reprod. Finney, 1958, opposite page 6). The city of Pawhuska, Oklahoma was named for him. He was never principal chief of his tribe, for "Little White Hair, the last member of the family to hold the head chieftainship...opposed sale of the Osage Kansas lands and the removal of the tribe to the Indian Territory. To supplant and nullify the authority and influence of Little White Hair, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs created a new office for the tribe and recognized Joseph Paw-ne-no-pah-she, commonly known as 'Big Hill Joe,' as Governor of the Osages.

Chief White Hair died in 1869, and after much discord among them..., the Osages accepted the Government's choice, and acknowledged Paw-ne-no-pah-she as their governor and head chief." --Finney, 1958, pages 131-32.

Delegation of Iowa and Sauk and Fox Indians from Nebraska, 1866
1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.54851

Identified beneath line cut and in accompanying article as follows (left to right): Tar-a-kee or Deer Ham (Iowa), Pe-ti-o-ki-ma or Hard Fish (Sauk & Fox), Lag-er-lash or British (Iowa), and Too-hi or Briar Rose (Iowa). The man at the right is identified as Ma-hee or Knife in similar original photograph, BAE Negative 692, which see, also, for variations in spellings of the other names.

According to accompanying article (Negative 54851-A) the delegation was under Maj. J. A. Burbank, Indian Commissioner for the Great Nebraska Agency, and there were 5 Iowas and 3 Sac and Fox. In addition to those shown in the illustration, there were Moless [Sac and Fox, see BAE Number 625-b], George Gomez, the interpreter of the Sac and Fox ("a fearfully ugly old fellow") and "Mah-hoe" or the Knife [who is actually in the picture, see note above.]

Delegation arrived in Washington January 2, 1866.

Article concerning delegation of Iowa and Sauk and Fox Indians from Nebraska, 1866

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.54851 A

Harper's Weekly Saturday, January 27, 1866. The Indian Delegation from Nebraska. We give on our first page portraits of four of the Indian delegates from Nebraska. The delegation, consisting altogether of eight Indians, arrived in Washington on the evening of January 2 in company with Major J. A. Burbank, United States Indian Commissioner for the Great Nebraska Agency. There were five Indians of the Iowa tribe and three of the Sac and Fox tribe. Three of our portraits are of Iowas, namely Lag-er-lash, or British, Too-Hi, or Briar Rose, and Tar-A-Kee, or Deer-Ham, the first two being half-civilized, while Deer-Ham represents the wild portion of the tribe. Pe-ti-o-ki-ma or Hard-Fish, is a wild representative of the Sacs and Foxes. Many of the delegation are dressed in wild aboriginal costume. Some years ago one of them, Moless, was sent to Kentucky, and received a very liberal English education, which, however, he failed to improve upon his return to his native wilds, and consequently he derived but little benefit from it. George Gomez, the interpreter of the Sacs and Foxes, is a fearfully ugly old fellow, who, report among his people says, has had seventy-five or eighty wives.

The tribes represented by the delegation occupy fifty sections of land, are surrounded by whites, and are quiet and peaceable. The Iowas are the most thrifty; cultivate their lands, and carry on extensive dealings in wood. One of the delegation, Mah-Hoe, or The Knife, has an extensive woodyard on the Missouri River, and Major Burbank thinks that, next to the Cherokees, they are the most civilized of the Indian tribes. They are also truly loyal to the Government of the United States, and during the late war the Iowas sent over one-half of their braves into the Union army. They served principally in the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Kansas regiments, but many were scattered among Missouri and other border regiments. The main object of the present visit is to have a "talk" with regard to a treaty made in 1861, and to have it renewed. When they sold their lands to the Government, they understood the agreement to be that they were to receive the purchase-money in hand. The United States holds the principal, however, and the Indians are regularly paid the interest.

But of course enjoyment is partly the object of their visit, for an Indian considers it one of the greatest events of his life to visit Washington and see his "Great Father," and nothing gives him more pleasure, or makes him think himself, or be esteemed by others of his tribe, a great man, than when he can rehearse to a listening audience what he has seen and heard on his travels. They will also carry back with them new silver peace medals, a number of which are now being struck at the Philadelphia Mint. The medals for President Johnson are of full size. On the face is an excellent cast of the President, with the words, "Andrew Johnson, President of the United States." On the reverse is a pedestal bearing in a wreath of laurel leaves the word "Peace." In front of the pedestal two figures-an Indian and America-are clasping hands. At the feet of the Indian lie the pipe of peace and the tomahawk, and in the back-ground are a herd of buffaloes. In the back-ground, near America, are represented a train of cars passing over a bridge, and a binnacle wheel and an anchor lie at her feet. The medals are beautifully designed, and are about two inches and a half in diameter.

Delegation arrived in Washington January 2, 1866.

Delegation of Sioux Indians being presented to President Johnson by Secretary Browning and Indian Commissioner Bogy, Feb. 23, 1867, Feb 23 1867

Indian Delegations At Washington. Two Indian delegations from the friendly tribes of Dacotah Territory visited Washington during the latter part of February. They consisted of the chief men of the Sioux and Yancton tribes, and numbered over one hundred persons. The chiefs were dressed in full Indian costume, and attracted much attention. They were accompanied by Governor Foulk, of Dacotah, and were in Washington for the purpose of framing new treaties.

On the 23rd of February they visited the White House, and were introduced by Secretary Browning and Indian Commissioner Bogy to the President. The reception took place in the East Room, in the presence of a large number of persons, including the families of the President, Secretary Browning, and other officials. The speeches on the occasion were of the usual stereotyped form of such affairs. The remarks of Mr Bogy to the President were interpreted to the Indians, and were approved by them in their guttural ejaculation of "Ugh !" The reply of the President, unlike most of his speeches, also met with approval. -- Harper's Weekly, March 16, 1867, page 173.

Letter of July 7, 1970. Gentlemen: I would appreciate knowing if your files have any photos of the following persons, either from Indiana 1790s to 1831, or from the Kansas-Missouri area 1831-1867, or from Oklahoma area 1867-1890. James Ketchum, Delaware name Kock-kock-quas, born 1819 in Indiana, son of chief Captain Ketchum, and a half-white woman whose mother was kidnapped from her home in Kentucky as a child. In later years the woman was called "Aunt Barbara" by the tribe. In 1831 the family moved to Kansas-Missouri area and James, his mother and grandmother and brother Charles served as interpreters for the missionaries of the Central Indian Mission, notably Rev. Learner Blackman Stateler. They joined the church, and the two boys later became Methodist ministers. In 1866 James was delegate to the treaty conference in Washington, D. C., whereby the Cherokee and Delaware were given citizenship and land-owning rights. In 1867 with his wife and six children, he bought a brick farmhouse and land at the area of the site of the first town of Ketchum, Oklahoma, which was named after him and his wife, Elizabeth Connor, thought to be a sister of John Connor, noted Delaware leader. He died in either 1880 or 1890 at the farm, and was buried there. In the 1930s the graves were taken up and moved to the cemetery at the present town of Ketchum, and a dam and lake built at the farm and old town. In 1867, the members of his family included Hester Ann, Virginia A., Thomas S., Amanda, Cassandra, and James Ketchum Jr. There was also a Hamilton Connor living with the family, and Amelia Fairfield Ketchum, probably wife of James, Jr.

Charles Ketchum, brother of James, born December 1811 in Indiana, Methodist minister and interpreter, father of 5, died in 1860 in Missouri-Kansas area. Captain Ketchum born in the 1770s, died prior to 1858, buried at White Church, Wyandotte County, Kansas. At the foot of his grave was buried a Mr Isaac Mundy, 2/27/1858, a friend of the tribe. The Delaware chief lost two sons in 1848 and 1852, killed by the Sioux. He may have been Ketchum White Cloud, or Ketchum White Eagle, who was either a Delaware or Cherokee chief, era unknown, but this is merely conjecture so far. If you have any such information, I would appreciate having it, and information about obtaining copies of any photos that may exist. Thank you. I enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. Mrs Edith Ketchum.

Negative 55685 shows ambrotype in gold frame; negative 55685-A was taken with frame removed.

Date: Not recorded; ca. 1867, date of Negative 3634; not 1858, when Picotte had no beard; cf. Negative 3633.

Picotte, listed as mixed-blood may be part-Dakota ?

According to Robert Taft, Photography and the American Scene (New York), pages 125-126, ambrotypes were first mentioned by name in print in Humphrey's Journal, February 1, 1855. They were fashionable by 1856. "The mode of the ambrotype continued through 1857, but by that time paper photographs had gradually gained the ascendancy.... It should be noted, however, that ambrotypes were made up to the beginning of the dry plate era (1881)." Taft gives the most common sizes of ambrotypes as 2 3/4" x 3 1/4" and 3 1/4" x 4 1/4". This original is of the latter size.

"Archie B. Lawyer, Mark Williams and James Reubin are all full (blood) Nez Perce Indians. They were commissioned or appointed by the Indian Department at Washington as teachers to Chief Joseph's Nez Percés in the Indian Territory, reaching there in Dec. 1878. "Archie was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Oregon. He, with Mark, were pupils of S. L. Mc Beth. James was a pupil and afterwards a teacher for Indians (Nez Perce) children of Lapwai, Idaho. Mark is six feet in height, and rather slender. Archie is five feet eleven inches, and larger in proportion, James is about the height of Archie." - Note on photograph.

Cf. woodcut shown in OPPG NEG 54,855. Original print erroneously marked, "Little Hawk," as was the original for BAE NEG 365K of Little Wolf and Lt. Clark. The source of this error seems to be the Mitchell photo studio. A printed list of 54 Indian portraits on the back of stereotypes of this and other subjects circulated by Mitchell, McGowan & Co. lists No. 24 as "Little Hawk and Lt. Clark."

1 Photograph (6x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.55865

"Although I have no information on this group I notice that the poles do not go through the ears, indication that this may be an Assiniboine camp. The plains area in the background is typical of southern Saskatchewan. Therefore, if this [is] known to to be a Canadian view I would speculate that it shows an Assiniboine camp out from Qu'Appelle in the 1880's or 1890's. I would date this because of the destitute condition of the people. We have views of lodges in a similar condition for that period. This, you understand is pure speculation but may serve as a guide in leading you to other sources." -- Information received from Hugh A. From the Wrenne list and the list from the South Dakota Historical Society have been compiled a list for distribution which combines the identifications from the two lists. Mr Anderson used a copy of the Wrenne list, submitted to him by the BAE, and made corrections and added the Agency names from the South Dakota Historical Society photograph. The South Dakota Historical Society list did not contain the Indian names; these are all from the Wrenne list. The tribal identifications and other comments in parentheses are by Harry Anderson. Note: In January 1965 an original print was located in the U. S. National Museum. (Division of Ethnology) collection which has the individuals numbered and a printed list of names attached to the mount. Presumably this is like the one from which Anderson worked at the South Dakota Historical Society. A new typed list was made, January '65, crediting the N. M. print as the source (and correcting some previous mis-readings of Anderson's writing) of the English names.

The English names are taken from an original print in the U. S. National Museum collection which has the individuals numbered and a printed list of names attached to the mount. The Indian names below were supplied in 1937 by Vernon W. Wrenne, Rockford, Illinois, with the help of Indian friends and a missionary to the Indians, Mr Thomas Riggs of Pierre, South Dakota, then aged 90. Tribal designations and other comments in parentheses were supplied in 1960 by Harry Anderson, Assistant Secretary, South Dakota Historical Society, Pierre, South Dakota.

From the Wrenne list and the list from the South Dakota Historical Society have been compiled a list for distribution which combines the identifications from the two lists. Mr Anderson used a copy of the Wrenne list, submitted to him by the BAE, and made corrections and added the Agency names from the South Dakota Historical Society photograph. The South Dakota Historical Society list did not contain the Indian names; these are all from the Wrenne list. The tribal identifications and other comments in parentheses are by Harry Anderson. Note: In January 1965 an original print was located in the U. S. National Museum. (Division of Ethnology) collection which has the individuals numbered and a printed list of names attached to the mount. Presumably this is like the one from which Anderson worked at the South Dakota Historical Society. A new typed list was made, January '65, crediting the N. M. print as the source (and correcting some previous mis-readings of Anderson's writing) of the English names.

The English names are taken from an original print in the U. S. National Museum collection which has the individuals numbered and a printed list of names attached to the mount. The Indian names below were supplied in 1937 by Vernon W. Wrenne, Rockford, Illinois, with the help of Indian friends and a missionary to the Indians, Mr Thomas Riggs of Pierre, South Dakota, then aged 90. Tribal designations and other comments in parentheses were supplied in 1960 by Harry Anderson, Assistant Secretary, South Dakota Historical Society, Pierre, South Dakota.

 Notes: OPPS NEG.56365
 Between two conflicting dates suggested by Eison, 1862 or 1890, Sturtevant has more confidence in 1890, but calls for conformation by professional photographer examining glass plate negative. (Sturtevant letter to Eison, May 9, 1969, in National Anthropological Archives Accession file.)
 After examination of the sticks used by the team in the photograph, William Sturtevant identified them as representative of Southern Indian variant of lacrosse, and therefore, designated the tribe Southeastern, probably Cherokee in Indian Territory (modern Oklahoma); or, less likely, Creek in Indian Territory, Choctaw in Indian Territory or Mississippi; or North Carolina Cherokee.

Maude Rowell, daughter of man Ay-o-tay and woman Zone'tay, granddaughter of Mexican captive Quoe-yaut, (father of Ay-o-tay) niece of Jimmy Quoetone, second cousin of Guy Quoetone. Born about 1880, married at early age (probably about the time this picture was taken) to Calvin Kauley who was at that time a member of the famous "L Troop" made up of Indians at Fort Sill. Had the following children by him: Gilbert, Susie, Mattie and Fritz Kauley. Divorced Calvin Kauley and married Dr James Frederick Rowell who was visiting on the reservation from Stamford, Connecticut. Had the following children by Dr Rowell: Dorothy (mother of Dr Everett R. Rhoades) Arletta, May, Charles, William, (died as a child), and Edith. The name of Mahbonee came from her step-father who was a Comanche, and is a Comanche name. This name was given to her when she was a student in the early Indian School at Fort Sill. As was the custom in those days she took another name as she reached adulthood, and was known as Dodle-Bay.' She was well known for her beauty and because of the change from a teepee Indian to a well respected woman of the community. She died in 1927, about 47 yr. of age, apparently the result of a tumor of the spine. Her birthplace is unknown, there is some tradition that she was born in a camp somewhere in Kansas. It would seem unlikely if her birthdate is in 1880, however, if she were born in the early 1870's this would be very plausible. It is possible she was born near Fort Sill. She is buried beside Dr James F. Rowell (who died in 1951) in the Kiowa Indian Mt. Scott Methodist cemetery near Lake Lawtonka. --Letter of Dr E. R. Rhoades (part Kiowa), Oklahoma City, 3/28/60

Mah'-bon-ee or Maude Rowell. Died 1927. Buried at Mt. Scott Kiowa Cemetery. Married Dr Rowell, an M. D. from Connecticut, ca 1902. Dr Rowell came to Oklahoma for his health. Operated trading post north of Fort Sill ca. 1902-3. Dr Rowell died ca. 1952-53, in his 80s. --Information from Dr Everett R. Rhoades, MD., Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, November 5, 1959. Cree Dance Dress, Jul 8 1897

White persons wearing Cree costumes.

The Director Bureau of American Ethnology. My dear Sir: With this I send send three photographs. They represent white persons dressed in costumes of the Cree Indians; tho' these Indians belong to Canada they have been in Montana to some extent for nearly twelve years. A great many were taken back to Canada by military force last year but many are now found about here again. I therefore thought their dress might be an object of interest to your department. I am pastor of the little Presbyterian church here. Being interested in the study of anthropology, and also wishing to help the Indians, who are very poor, I have bought a number of articles from them. In the photographs, all the articles are genuine Cree work, except one or two that are not prominent, and the spear: though the latter is ornamented in careful imitation of other articles of their work. but not spears. I never saw one of their spears, tho' they tell me such were used. I have a few more articles than those represented. The group where the man has an eagle feather bonnet and the woman has no headdress shows the chief's costume; the woman is in holiday dress. The photo where each have buffalo horn headdresses shows the dance dress. The photo where the man is alone shows the war dress (tho' I suppose the buckskin shirt would not be worn in active fighting). The drums and other articles hung up mostly belong to the Medicine man. If these are of interest to the Department, please accept them with my good wishes. The actual goods are to be sent ultimately to one of our colleges. If you desire I could give you a list of the articles, with - in almost every case- the name in Cree (I am a little acquainted with that language), also the use of the article.

This would entail quite a little work, but I would do it as I had time - if it would assist the work of the Department. In that case I would ask that the photos be returned so that I could put the numbers of the articles upon them. If you should ever desire any articles from this tribe I would be very glad to do what I could for you. I am acquainted with many Indians, and they come to me as a friend, so that I might secure many articles from them. Yours very truly, (Signed) J.W. Millar

This would entail quite a little work, but I would do it as I had time - if it would assist the work of the Department. In that case I would ask that the photos be returned so that I could put the numbers of the articles upon them. If you should ever desire any articles from this tribe I would be very glad to do what I could for you. I am acquainted with many Indians, and they come to me as a friend, so that I might secure many articles from them. Yours very truly, (Signed) J.W. Millar

Cree Chief's costume and woman's holiday Dress, Jul 8 1897

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.837 K 9

White persons wearing Cree costumes.

The Director Bureau of American Ethnology. My dear Sir: With this I send send three photographs. They represent white persons dressed in costumes of the Cree Indians; tho' these Indians belong to Canada they have been in Montana to some extent for nearly twelve years. A great many were taken back to Canada by military force last year but many are now found about here again. I therefore thought their dress might be an object of interest to your department. I am pastor of the little Presbyterian church here. Being interested in the study of anthropology, and also wishing to help the Indians, who are very poor, I have bought a number of articles from them. In the photographs, all the articles are genuine Cree work, except one or two that are not prominent, and the spear: though the latter is ornamented in careful imitation of other articles of their work. but not spears. I never saw one of their spears, tho' they tell me such were used. I have a few more articles than those represented. The group where the man has an eagle feather bonnet and the woman has no headdress shows the chief's costume; the woman is in holiday dress. The photo where each have buffalo horn headdresses shows the dance dress. The photo where the man is alone shows the war dress (tho' I suppose the buckskin shirt would not be worn in active fighting). The drums and other articles hung up mostly belong to the Medicine man. If these are of interest to the Department, please accept them with my good wishes. The actual goods are to be sent ultimately to one of our colleges. If you desire I could give you a list of the articles, with - in almost every case- the name in Cree (I am a little acquainted with that language), also the use of the article.

This would entail quite a little work, but I would do it as I had time - if it would assist the work of the Department. In that case I would ask that the photos be returned so that I could put the numbers of the articles upon them. If you should ever desire any articles from this tribe I would be very glad to do what I could for you. I am acquainted with many Indians, and they come to me as a friend, so that I might secure many articles from them. Yours very truly, (Signed) J.W. Millar

Josephine Adams Larson (in back), only sister of Mrs Scovell, daughter of Emma Adams, died young; Clara Skalawash Pearson, full-blooded Tillamook (left); Grace Katata, Tillamook; at beach at Hobsonville, (Oregon), 1902
 1 Photograph (8x10 in)
 Notes: OPPS NEG.55734

Grace Katata was the daughter of Chief Katata, mentioned in "Clatsop County, its History, Legends and Industries," by Emma Gene Miller, 1958, Metropolitan Press, Portland, Oregon, page 57, according to letter from Mrs George Tuthill, Apl. 1966.

The name was spelled "Kitatee" on reverse of the original print. In Mrs Tuthill's letter of March 18, 1966 she says the name is pronounced, "Kickatee" by the Scovells and also by white people. (In Tillamook, "T & K sound alike."). In her April 12 letter, Mrs Tuthill takes "Katata" as the preferred spelling, citing Miller's book.

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.55744
 Banjo Louie was so called because he played the banjo. The old lady could recall the Astoria men, and was supposed to have been 110 when she died. According to letter of Mrs Tuthill, April 12, 1966, Jennie Michele or Michell, "the last of the Clatsop Indians," is mentioned in "Clatsop County, its History, Legends and Industries," by Emma Gene Miller, 1958. Her Indian name is there given as Tsin-is-tum. She was born in the vicinity of Seaside or Astoria in 1816 and died in 1905. In 1900 she went with a committee from the Oregon Historical Society to show them the location of Fort Clatsop.

Four Brothers, ca 1906

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Left to right: John Anderson, Andrew Anderson, (son of John A.), George T. ("Tom") Anderson, Sam Anderson. The men are brothers.

In 1867 the Delaware moved from Kansas to the Cherokee Reservation, Indian Territory. Those involved in the move became known as the Delaware (registered) or the Delaware (Cherokee). The others became known as the Delaware (absentee). "Registered" and "absentee" are not aboriginal terms.

Perhaps G. T. A.'s non-Delaware accoutrements were provided by the studio. The boy seems to be a couple of years younger than in the picture (by Frank Griggs for M. R. Harrington of him and his father (American Anthropologist 15.213, figure 41, 1913), which cannot predate 1908, the first year of M. R. H.'s Oklahoma fieldwork.

Re contradiction in Mrs Ball's estimates of date of this photo: since print submitted for copying appears to be from glass plate, the 50-years-ago estimate seems more probable. --MCB, Archivist.

"These are the [type of] tepees used by the Chiricahua before the soldiers destroyed many of them. After that they had little buckskin and used canvas or any covering they could find. Constantly harrassed into flight, they made shelters by bending willows or other small trees, fastening the end to the ground, and covering the framework with brush. These shown here were of canvas, photographed thirty years ago at Mescalero. Tepees always face the east." --Eve Ball.

One Delaware woman and two girls, ca 1910

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Left to right: Bessie Hunter (later Snake), Sarah Beaver, Jane Wilson (later Thomas).

Dress has traditional elements, but the girls especially must be close to every-day semi-acculturated style (print dresses, shoes).

In 1867 the Delaware moved from Kansas to the Cherokee Reservation, Indian Territory. Those involved in the move became known as the Delaware (registered) or the Delaware (Cherokee). The others became known as the Delaware (absentee). "Registered" and "absentee" are not aboriginal terms.

The girls were both classificatory granddaughters of the woman: B. H. was S. B.'s BrSoDa and J. W. was S.B.'s HuDaDa. J. W. married Jack Thomas (died 1932 at age 75), who was the first husband of S. B. Sarah Beaver was known by the Delaware nickname malata s 'mulatto'; phonotypically she appears part Negro. She raised the two girls together.

"Half Kanaka family that lived near Cannon Beach" (Oregon), ca 1910-1920
1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.55750

Date: Not recorded; ca. 1910-1920 ?

According to Glen Luidemon: the "Kanakas were Hawaiians brought to the Pacific Northwest by the British fur hunters ca. 1810s-1840s. Many of them settled near Ft. Vancouver (Washington) and on the Lower Columbia River, often intermarrying w/ local Indians. The Owyhee (i.e. Hawaii) River and mountains of eastern Oregon and SW Idaho are named for Kanaka fur hunters. The Thompson tribe was located far to the north in British Columbia. The family in this photograph are probably related to the Tillamook or the Clatsop tribes of the NW Oregon coast.

Taken from south side of Poosepatuck Creek looking north towards Indian settlement. At right: Forge River. Information from Dr Frances Harper, 11/30/62.

Digital surrogate produced from reference copy print

Original Number 215. Mounted below the photograph in the album were two clippings from unidentified newspapers, as follows: June Meeting at Poosapatuck. Mastic, June 10. 1912. [Year added in ink.] --June meeting day at the Poosapatuck Indian Reservation was observed yesterday and while the old time excitement and carousel is no more, the meet is yet enjoyed by scores of descendants of the Indian tribes of eastern Long Island, and many whites visit the grounds to witness the gathering and listen to the singing of the negro-Indians of Poosapatuck, Shinnecock and Setauket.

[Undated clipping.] June meeting passed off quietly this year. There were more white people in evidence than colored, in proportion. A family of pure Indians from Flushing were among those who came to visit relatives. Sermons were preached both in the morning and afternoon by Rev. W. H. Lacy, of Brooklyn. The music was led by James Waters, of the New York Post Office, as organist.

Two Delaware men, ca 1915

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Left to right: Jim Bobb (died October 14, 1924), Jack Thomas (died December 10, 1932 at age 75).

In 1867 the Delaware moved from Kansas to the Cherokee Reservation, Indian Territory. Those involved in the move became known as the Delaware (registered) or the Delaware (Cherokee). The others became known as the Delaware (absentee). "Registered" and "absentee" are not aboriginal terms.

Delaware names: Jim Bobb pe t a k ane xink "Has-Hi-Thorns-pointing-This-Way" Jack Thomas sa sa ke elahtu (or so sa k...) "His-repeated-Cries (Shouts)-Carry-So-Far" Jim Bob's age at death is given in his probate record (W 615, Anadarko Indian Agency) as 87, but this seems too high. His full brother Johnson Bobb died at 44 on January 11, 1905; his sister Jennie Bobb died at 51 or 57. August 12, 1918.

Date: ca 1915 (Willard Thomas estimate)

Blackfoot man, Richard Sanderville and wife, 1923

1 Photograph (4x6 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.395 C 1

Richard Sanderville, mixed blood Piegan, was born at Fort Benton in 1866. His father was part Indian and part Spanish. His mother was Little Bird Woman, a Piegan full Blood. Both his father and grandfather were interpreters for the American Fur Co. He was educated on the Flathead Reservation, Montana and in 1889, was a member of the first group of Piegan to attend Carlisle Indian school. He returned to the reservation in 1894 and began work for the Indian service. Until his retirement Dick served as official interpreter on the Blackfoot Reservation (i.e. a period of over 40 years). He was a great friend of General Hugh L. Scott, sign language expert. Dick, himself an accomplished sign talker, was called to Washington in 1934, after General Scott's death, to complete the dictionary of the Indian sign language for the Bureau of American Ethnology. He is still living on the Blackfoot Reservation in 1949. His wife was living on my visit to the reservation in 1947. (J.C. Ewers, U.S. National Museum, January, 1949).

Blackfoot man, Ground, and woman Rosy ("Nosy"), whose nose was cut off for infidelity, ca 1924

1 Photograph (3 1/2x5 3/4 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.430 H

Date: Not recorded; ca. 1924.

Identified as Ground and Rosy ("Nosy") Ground by John C. Ewers, Senior Ethnologist, SI Department of Anthropology, by comparison with photo of portrait of Ground and his wife by Winold Reiss, painted in 1927. At that time their ages were given in the catalog ("American Indian Portraits by Winold Reiss in the Belmaison Galleries beginning April 14, 1928") are 92 for Ground and 73 for "Nosy" (see entry Number 26 of "Old Man Ground Medicine and his wife"). "Nosy" Ground was the last Blackfoot woman known to Ewers to have her nose cut off for infidelity. (This took place long before her marriage to Ground.)

For date cf. other photos taken in 1924 (negative Numbers 55540-542) where the couple looks about the same age. JCR

In 1867 the Delaware moved from Kansas to the Cherokee Reservation, Indian Territory. Those involved in the move became known as the Delaware (registered) or the Delaware (Cherokee). The others became known as the Delaware (absentee). "Registered" and "absentee" are not aboriginal terms.

Taken in Philadelphia where G. T. A. had gone to participate in the William Penn pageant (see Philadelphia Inquirer, Tuesday October 25, 1932, page 1.).

Big House fire drill, Sep 30 1935

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.56936

One of a series of prints of sacred paraphernalia which [i.e., the paraphernalia] belonged to Sally Elkhair Falleaf (the second Mrs John Falleaf). The Big House equipment belonged to her father, Charley Elkhair. This equipment was all purchased by the photographer and is now, for the most part, in the Philbrook Art Center, Tulsa. The fire drill is incorrectly arranged in the photograph (not surprisingly, since women were not allowed to be present when the fire was made); the cross-piece should be reversed on the shaft, the string should be through the notch in what is pictured as the lower end, and the point shown pointing upwards should point down.

In 1867 the Delaware moved from Kansas to the Cherokee Reservation, Indian Territory. Those involved in the move became known as the Delaware (registered) or the Delaware (Cherokee). The others became known as the Delaware (absentee). "Registered" and "absentee" are not aboriginal terms.

See Negative 56936. With the exception of two of the rattles, this equipment is now in the Philbrook Art Center, Tulsa; with it, though not visible in the photograph, a small bag of red paint dust is in an oval stone dish (6 1/2" long).

Female doll used in Doll Dance, Sep 30 1935

In 1867 the Delaware moved from Kansas to the Cherokee Reservation, Indian Territory. Those involved in the move became known as the Delaware (registered) or the Delaware (Cherokee). The others became known as the Delaware (absentee). "Registered" and "absentee" are not aboriginal terms.

This doll was handed down in the Elkhair family, though the exact details of the succession of owners are unclear. Most likely it belonged to Elkhair's second wife Tel-ah-tia-qua (tala tae xkwe ?) the mother of Charley Elkhair's first wife Quil-lup-pe-now-o-qua (kwalap i nao xkwe ?), who was the mother of Sallie and Rosie. Delaware woman and her granddaughter, ca 1963

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Left to right: Martha Snake Ellis and her granddaughter, Bonnie.

In 1867 the Delaware moved from Kansas to the Cherokee Reservation, Indian Territory. Those involved in the move became known as the Delaware (registered) or the Delaware (Cherokee). The others became known as the Delaware (absentee). "Registered" and "absentee" are not aboriginal terms.

Taken while on a trip to California. Mrs Ellis is the daughter of a Shawnee man (Snakeman), who lived on the Little River, and a Delaware woman of the Absentee Delawares; she married Belo Ellis (d. February 28, 1947 at age 65) in 1917 and has lived among the Anadarko Delaware ever since. She has been Ives Goddard's principal informant at Anadarko, 1966 to present (1970). She was born in 1901.

Born with the Hunkpapas, [N.D.]. His father was a Hunkpapa Sioux, his mother an Arikara. He became a famous warrior and chief with his mother's tribe and served with Custer in the Black Hills in 1876. [1874 ?] Was killed while with Reno on the day of the Custer massacre. See biography in Handbook of American Indians by G.B.G. (includes error re the Hunkpapa Reservation. Bloody Knife was born before the Reservation was established.

Mrs Frances De Frane's letter of 11-21-28 states that this picture was "taken with my husband when he was a soldier at Fort Helena...sometime before 1876 when Bloody Knife was killed...My husband is wearing a fox skin cap made and given him by Bloody Knife's sister."

A picture also appears in "The Fighting Norths and Pawnee Scouts," by Robert Bruce (paper bound booklet in Bureau of American Ethnology Library, page 28.)

Last Star was a full blood Piegan. He died before 1941. He was the father of Theodore Last Star, of whom Bureau of American Ethnology has a photo. (J.C. Ewers, January 1949).

Wolf Eagle lost his arm as a result of a wound received in a battle with the Cree. An army surgeon (?) amputated it, and Wolf Eagle had the arm bone made into a whip stock which he carries in this picture. The fight occurred in 1882. (Identified by Richard Sanderville, Summer of 1934.)

Guarding the Cherokee "millions," and the pay room

1 Photograph (5x7 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.1063 F 3

The Cherokee payment of 6,640,000 dollars of the money paid by the U.S. for the Cherokee Strip began at Tahlequah, June 4th. [year-- ?] The reverse picture represents the guards on duty during the 6 days payment at Fort Gibson, beginning on July 9. The payment was made in the old barracks building of the Fort, in the second story of the building, and 50 well armed Cherokees stood guard day and night over the money. The picture shows a part of the guards, and in the room back of them is more than one million dollars, and on the pay grounds in front of them is not less than 10,000 people of all kinds. There was never before congregated so much sin, vice and desperate characters. During the whole three months of the payment there were no outlaws so bold as to undertake to hold up the Cherokee Millions. -- Description supplied by Grant Foreman October 10, 1934.

"This picture was taken some days after the payment began but there are hundreds of thousands left on the bundles on the table. The man sitting at the table with his coat off is Treasurer E.E. Starr and the large man sitting by him is Principal Chief C.J. Harris of the Cherokees; those around are all clerks or guards. The Indians are a droughty set, and it is more than probable that the "grip" on the shelf contains a bottle or two of whiskey. The amount paid to each Cherokee man, woman, or child is 267 dollars and 70 cents. Each one receives two 100.00 dollar bills, one five dollar bill, and 2 dollars and 70 cents in silver." ## Cheyenne man, Little Wolf or Little Chief ?

1 Photograph (5x7 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.216 D

This card prepared by M.W. Tucker. This is the only record, apparently except for a file print (in album) where she gives the name as Little Chief. As indicated on Oglala cards 3303 B-C, -D (which I rewrote) the Brown correspondence of 1950 referred to elsewhere by M.W. Tucker could not be located in Smithsonian Institution files later. MCB 2/59. The fact that she assigned a catalog number to this which puts it next to photos of Little Wolf makes me think that that was the identification that came with the picture and which she meant to record. Whether or not 216-D and 216 A-C represent the same man or a different man with the same name, is another question. MCB 2/59.

Chippewa Chief John ?
1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.468 C

Printed on back of stereoscopic photo: Chief John (?) -th Was born near Cass Lake, Minn, in 1788. His Indian name was Ka-be-na Gwey-Wence, which means Wrinkled Meat. He was early taught by his father to hunt and fish and to trail and trap the wild animals of the forest for their fur and meat. Of his mother he says: "No temptation could ever induce me to disobey her or do a wrong act knowingly. Because of this more than anything else I believe that I have lived such a long life and had such good health." He tells of the first time he looked upon a white man. "One day when I was about 13 years old, my father and I met in the forest a strange looking warrior, all white, like snow. We had never seen any man before that was not red. My ! How frightened we were of this stange being. We thought him a spirit or a great medicine man of some other tribe. This white man told my father of (a) wonderful race of men like himself that (lived ?) toward the rising sun, and of their wonderful cities, of their big boats and churches and schools. He said some day grat cities would be built here with schools and churches and other fine buildings. Then, pointing his finger at me, he said; "This boy will live to see all the great things of which I tell you." Chief John did live to see them all, and more.

After he was 100 years old he visited many of our great cities. He (saw ?) McKinley inaugurated president. ( ? ) he attended the Minnesota S ( ? ) where he saw the wonderful product - ( ? ) white race. Chief John died (?) 1922, and was buried at Cass Lake (?) he had lived all his life. A short time be(fore he died ?) he said: "It is well, all things( ? ) the good of the Great Spirit, and I am (?). In the Big Wigwam above, where (?) Great Spirit, who shall say but what (?) shall be among the ones favored." An interesting booklet (of the) life of this old Chippewa Chief may be (purchased ?) for fifty cents by writing his adopted son, (?) E. Smith, P. O. Box 153, Cass Lake, Minnesota.

Same view as in National Archives CN6868 which is labeled (in same hand) "Pine Ridge Agency Dakota. From 1 mile North-East." National Archives has pictures of the school dated 1884 with no addition in evidence. Finlay's Trading Post and the small school are not apparent in this photograph -- probably built at a later date, but before 1891. -- J.C. 3/60.

Mr Heerwagen's letter states that on the back of the original postcard was written in longhand, "5/7/1912, Capt. Chas. L. Von Berg, EXchief Scout of the Western Army." On the back of another photograph was written, presumably by Von Berg, "Scout to Gen. Sibly [sic], Gen. Stamley [sic], Gen. Crook, Gen. Custer. 1903." Heerwagen states that Von Berg's scout name was Eagle Tail; he is attempting to locate further information.

French trader, James Bordeaux
1 Photograph (8x10 in)
Notes: OPPS NEG.55930
Date: not recorded; prior to 1878, which is, according to the source of this picture, his death date.
James Bordeaux was associated with Fort Laramie after its establishment, and later with the Upper Platte and Spotted Tail Agencies.
The author's grandfather was a native of France. He sailed to North America when still in his youth and landed in New Orleans. He continued north to St Louis, thence to St Joe, Mo., where he married an Indian maid of the Otto tribe. After her death he started west eager for adventure, and arrived in the Laramie plains in Dakota Territory now in the state of Wyoming. He established a trading post on the Platte River, within sight of old Fort Laramie, and later in 1846 he established a substation in Dawes County, Nebraska, on Bordeaux creek near the town of Chadron. It was during this era that he married my grandmother, a sister of chief Swift Bear of the Brule band. He was one of the early French fur traders. Daily surrounded by hostiles he bravely carried on his trade and barter with emigrants as their covered prairie-schooners rumbled west through the Platte river valley.

These were the days when life's survival hung in a balance for the coming of civilization was daily harassed by hostile Indians. Well aware of these dangers Bordeaux and other fur traders waged on in their occupations, and it might be safe in stating that they did their share towards redeeming of the great west and paving the way for its evolution. His final business enterprise was located at the old Wheeler crossing on the banks of the Missouri river in Charles Mix County, South Dakota. He established a trading post there and continued its operation up to the late spring in 1878, when the Brule Sioux were moved from the river to their present abode on the Rosebud Indian reservation in the counties of Gregory, Tripp, Mellette and Todd. He died at the Agency in 1878. William J. Bordeaux, Custer's Conqueror, [1952 ?], following page 12.

Louis Bordeaux

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.55931

Date: 1875 ? compare group photograph taken in Washington in 1875, published in Conquering the Mighty Sioux by James Bordeaux, privately printed, 1929, facing page 39.

Louis Bordeaux was associated mainly with Red Cloud and Spotted Tail Agencies, and several times acted as interpreter for delegations visting Washington, D. C.

In Touch [the] Cloud's Lodge Bordeaux Interviewed the Warrior. The author's father was born at Fort Laramie, Wyoming, in 1849. He received his education at Hamburg, Iowa. At the age of 21, in 1869, [1867 ? unlikely] he accompanied the first Sioux delegation to the National Capital as an interpreter for the delegation. During the final stages of the Crazy Horse episode causing unrest and tumult he played a great role as an arbitrator and pacifier between the belligerents and neutral Indians.

He met and talked to Crazy Horse on the eve of his tragic death. The meeting ocured inside of Touch Cloud's lodge, after they had received word that the warrior had arrived at Spotted Tail's village located within view of Post Sheridan. On the fifth day of September, he and Lee, accompanied by a host of Brule scouts escorted Crazy Horse to Post Robinson, Nebraska, and turned him over to the officer of the day. [These details questionable.] Following the cessation of hostilities he established a ranch in Todd County, South Dakota, which he successfully operated until his death in 1917. William J. Bordeaux, Custer's Conqueror, [1952 ?], following page 76.

"Chief Swift Bear"

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.55934

Date: Not recorded; apparently taken on the Rosebud Reservation, ca. 1900.

Swift Bear. Was One of the Chiefs Who Escorted Crazy Horse to Post Robinson. The Brule chief was the author's grand uncle thru marriage of his sister, "Huntka-Lutawin", to the author's grandfather, James Bordeaux. Authorative information characterizes Swift Bear as the reserved type, disposed to be peaceable and kept his band under control during the final days for conquest of the Dakotas. Back in 1854, he played the role of a hero following a brief battle between thirty soldiers under Lieut. John Gratan's command and a band of Brule Sioux.

The termination of the combat found the 29 blue coats strewn along their trail of retreat, destitute of life from pierced arrows. Swift Bear discovered a lone survivor hidden among a thick growth of willows, nursing the ugly arrow wounds. Raising the wounded soldier to his feet he supported and helped him stay on his feet until they reached James Bordeaux's trading post, where he was given first aid and transferred to the Army Post. He was in the coach with Lee, Louis Bordeaux on that eventful day of Sept. 5th, 1877, when the wiley Crazy Horse was whisked away from Spotted Tail Agency by a body guard of Brule scouts behind the rumbling coach en-route for Post Robinson, Nebraska. John Grass had a most remarkable memory. His great memory gave him the reputation of being a Sioux orator. Touch the Cloud

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.55932

Date: Not recorded; 1877.

Touch [the] Cloud. A cousin of Chief Crazy Horse, the Miniconjou warrior was a close companion of of the noted chief. He fought side by side with him in practically all hostile engagements he participated in. He was present when No Water's attempt to take the life of his cousin was frustrated by alert braves. In fact Touch Cloud disarmed the would-be assassin before he could inflict further damage. [All the above very questionable and unlikely.] Touch Cloud's role in the final stages preceding his cousin's tragic death, can be explained in terms of a devoted kin, and a close companion, who remained true to him through the perils encountered following his surrender to military authorities and up to the time of his death, for he was at the warrior's bedside when the end came. [This is true.] William J. Bordeaux, Custer's Conqueror, [1952 ?], following page 78.

Red Paint was a survivor of the battle of Lightning Creek. One of the Indians who stayed on Creek to hold back white man. The other is William Brown and war bonnets. (This last designation may give the white name of one on left.)

Oglala Dakota man, Woman's Dress, a Sioux scout and runner
1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.3680 J

Woman's Dress is referred to by J. G. Bourke, "On the Border with Crook," New York, 1891, page 420, as a runner who came out from Spotted Tail Agency to meet General Crook, who was en route to Spotted Tail Agency to have a talk with Crazy Horse in the fall of 1877. Woman's Dress said that he had been sent by Spotted Tail and others to warn General Crook that Crazy Horse had asserted that he would kill General Crook in the coming council if Crook's words did not suit him.

Unidentified man, said to be Crazy Horse

1 Photograph (4 1/2x6 1/2 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.44110

Frink sent "a copy of a photograph I recently obtained on the Pine Ridge reservation with the information that it is Crazy Horse. My informant said it was 'taken from a tintype in 1876.'" (Correspondence in Smithsonian Institution files).

It seems unlikely that Crazy Horse would have had his picture made in a studio or with a studio backdrop. As far as I know, Crazy Horse spent no time in "civilized" areas until his surrender at Red Cloud Agency, May 15, 1877. It is possible that some itinerant photographer could have photographed him at the Agency in the period between this date and his death from a bayonet wound at Fort Robinson (on the Red Cloud Agency) in 1877, but such a photo probably would not have a backdrop like the one in this photo. --MCB

Oglala Dakota man, Greasy Hand

1 Photograph (5x7 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.45851

"Picture of Greasy Hand, who married Helen Larvie after death of Crazy Horse, Called himself "Crazy Horse", taking wife's [1st husband's] name." "After death of Crazy Horse this Indian presented Crazy Horse's ration card, and was called "Crazy Horse" by the whites." The Burnt Thigh [Brule] version of this was that Greasy Hand was ashamed of his name. This caused much sarcasm and ridicule from Burnt Thigh warriors (said Red Leaf)." The Oglala dogs howl at the moose and say they are a wolf." -- Notes on back of print.

This apparently is not the "Crazy Horse" in BAE Negative Number 3305-a. Also known as "Crazy Horse" - but not the famous individual of that name.

Peter Williamson, a white captive

1 Photograph (6 1/2x8 1/2 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.817 C

Peter Williamson was taken prisoner by the Indians at the siege of Oswego, during the French and Indian Wars.

The Library of Congress has accounts of his captivity printed in 1758 at New York, and numbers of later editions at London and Edinburgh. All but the first have a portrait as frontispiece, and this is probably from one of them. See story in Kercheval's History of the Valley of Virginia, page 424. (1930)

The old Delaware Indian specimens in original chest

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.819 E 1

Permission to publish must be obtained from the Ethnological Museum at Stockholm. Address: Dr Torsten Lenk, Livrustkamaren, Nordiska Musset, Stockholm.

War clubs accompanying these specimens are designated as Mohawk, and are catalogued under Mohawk Negative Numbers 962-h-1-2.

Specimens are in their original chest in the armory of Skokloster castle near Stockholm, Sweden.

Appear first on inventory of 1676.

Extract from letter dated January 15, 1948, from Frederic H. Douglas, Curator of Native Art, Denver Art Museum, addressed to William H. Fenton, Bureau of American Ethnology: "The identification on the photographs are those on the 1676 inventory. Modern Swedes have no other source of information than this list and could tell me nothing about the collector or the place of collection. I have absolutely no personal ideas about these pieces and am delighted to add your comments to my store of information. "I have no plans for publication. The matter was not discussed with the Swedes and I am not qualified anyhow. If you or some other expert in this field wants to publish I am sure that you could get permission from the Swedes. Dr Torsten Lenk, Livrustkammaren, Nordiska Museet, Stockholm, is the man who seems to be in charge of the specimens."

Photographs of these specimens were sent by Mr Douglas to Dr Fenton for making photographic negatives and file prints, and the original photographs returned to Mr Douglas.

Notes: OPPS NEG.758310
Apache Kid escaped from the train transporting Apache prisoners to Florida and returned to Arizona by travelling at night. He was convicted of assaulting and attempting to kill Al Seiber but escaped and was never again apprehended. He is said to have been Al Seiber's best scout, possessing almost unbelievable vision. Making maple sugar

1 Photograph (4x5 1/2 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.48420

The women in the foreground are engaged in various tasks connected with making maple sugar - preparing to remove vessels filled with the liquid from the maples, carrying the filled vessel to the cauldrons over the fire, stirring the liquid already over the fire. One woman sits at the left, kneading the thick liquid into cakes. Beyond the hut and woods, other women are preparing the fields for the spring and summer, while still others sow Indian corn (? - "Bled d'inde"). -- Information from Lafitau, volume 2, "Description of the Plates" (translation), page aiii. The Cayuga Condolence cane of Andrew Spragg. The roll call of the Iroquois chiefs

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: NAA INV.9383300

OPPS NEG.956 C 1

Digital surrogate produced from reference copy print

Original specimen now owned by the Cranbrook Institute of Science, Bloomfield Hills, Michigan.

Made sometime after the middle of the nineteenth century, probably about 1860, its use was confined to the Lower Cayuga band on the Grand River...Although it is now a sacred relic, and it has been reproduced once more by the Cayugas, the Cranbrook specimen does not antedate the American Revolution and the dissolution of the League in New York. It cannot be referred, therefore, to the period of the founding of the League.

The cane came to the Cranbrook Institute in a collection obtained from Milford G. Chandler, a noted collector of ethnological materials among the Indian tribes of the Great Lakes Area. Mr Chandler first heard of the cane on a collecting trip to the Grand River in about 1917 or 1918. It was then in the possession of Andrew Spragg who at that time, refused to sell. About two years later, however, after the midwinter ceremony in February, the stick was acquired. With the stick was a manuscript, which according to Spragg, contained a list of chief's titles very similar to the list found in Morgan's "League of the Iroquois" (1851). The manuscript contained a sentence about each peg on the cane; it was formerly kept bound to the stick but was subsequently lost.

See also Delaware Number 819-1-6 for the other specimens of this collection.

Specimens are in their original chest in the armory of Skokloster castle near Stockholm, Sweden.

Appear first on inventory of 1676.

Extract from letter dated January 15, 1948, from Frederic H. Douglas, Curator of Native Art, Denver Art Museum, addressed to William H. Fenton, Bureau of American Ethnology: "The identification on the photographs are those on the 1676 inventory. Modern Swedes have no other source of information than this list and could tell me nothing about the collector or the place of collection. I have absolutely no personal ideas about these pieces and am delighted to add your comments to my store of information. "I have no plans for publication. The matter was not discussed with the Swedes and I am not qualified anyhow. If you or some other expert in this field wants to publish I am sure that you could get permission from the Swedes. Dr Torsten Lenk, Livrustkammaren, Nordiska Museet, Stockholm, is the man who seems to be in charge of the specimens."

Photographs of these specimens were sent by Mr Douglas to Dr Fenton for making photographic negatives and file prints, and the original photographs returned to Mr Douglas.

Mr Goodrich submitted photograph of the painting to the Bureau of American Ethnology for identification of the artist. The picture was loaned by Mr Goodrich to the New York Historical Association, Cooperstown, New York who submitted it to the McBeth Galleries in New York for an opinion as to the artist. At the Bureau of American Ethnology, Dr Fenton, Mr Ewers, and Mr Kainen examined the picture - Mr Kainen suspected it was a Catlin. The photographs were also shown to Mr Tolman but none of the group was willing to be committed without seeing the portrait of Red Jacket, by George Catlin, dated Buffalo, 1826, a photograph of which was sent to the Bureau of American Ethnology by the New York State Historical Association, which bears a strong resemblance to the Goodrich-owned picture.

The Catlin portrait of Red Jacket, painted at Buffalo, 1826, is owned by the Thomas Gilcrease Foundation, Tulsa, Oklahoma. See correspondence.

Full-length Catlin portrait of Red Jacket, in Gilcrease Foundation, reproduced in Life, Volume 36, March 8, 1954, page 73, looks nothing like this. --MCB

"I am not sure...it could be Ed Penn in his younger days, and possibly his little sister or niece. They were connected with the Chief Bonnicastle family. There was so much inter-marriage, it's hard to associate the people properly. Chief Bonnicastle had a little girl by Angeline Penn Bonnicastle. The little girl's name was Kathleen Bonnicastle. She died at age fourteen from a dread disease at the time-possibly tuberculosis. I would say this picture is Ed and Kathleen or possibly Ed and Angeline." - Mrs Dahlberg, letter of August 25, 1965.

Cf. Negative Number 54915, identified as "Angie Bonnicastle."

Portrait of Chief Shoppenagon (Little Needle) and his family

1 Photograph (4x6 1/4 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.44428 K

Full-length studio portrait, Blackbird seated, center. Feather headdress, gorgets, beaded sash, leggings and other items of native dress.

Tribal identification from Stewart Brand, 1965, who stated that Shoppenagon gave a name in Ottawa language to Brand's grandmother.

5/19/61: Dr Charles J. Meyers, Detroit, Michigan, identified this man as Shop-pen-e-gonse of Grayling, Michigan. Says there is a portrait of him in the Shop-pen-e-gonse Hotel in Grayling. Pronunciation: Shapenega'nz.

1 Photograph (5x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.55772

City Art Museum Number 5426:47. Original is carte de visite photograph. The subject above is written in red ink on the reverse. In another hand in pencil is written, "Taken by Wimar," but this seems improbable.

Subject identified by comparison with BAE negative 1280-a, taken in Washington, D.C., 1858, City Art Museum Number 5426:51. Original sepia print is 6-1/2" (approx.) x 3-1/4", unmounted, top edges uneven from much wear. No caption. Marked in pencil, "Taken by Wimar," in same hand as same notation on reverse of six Navaho photographs from same collection in City Art Museum (Our negative numbers 55766-771). It seems unlikely that the photograph was taken by Wimar, however. See summary note re Wimar following descriptions of 6 Navaho photos from C.A.M. on Navaho loist.

Smoke signal of successful war party

1 Photograph (5 1/2x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.53511

Description in text (page 538) as follows: "Success Of A War Party. Whenever a war party, consisting of either Pima, Papago, or Maricopa Indians, returned from an expedition into the Apache country, their success was announced from the first and most distant elevation visible from their settlements. The number of scalps secured was shown by a corresponding number of columns of smoke, arranged in a horizontal line, side by side, so as to be distinguishable by the observers. When the returning party was unsuccessful no such signals were made. (Pima and Papago I.) Figure 339. A similar custom appears to to have existed among the Ponkas, although the custom has apparently been discontinued by them, as shown in the following proper name: C'u-de g'a-xe, Smoke maker; He who made smoke by burning grass returning from war."

Edwin Thompson Denig; and Mrs Denig

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.PORT 24 A 2

Separate portraits on one 8 x 10 negative.

Portraits of Edwin T. Denig and his wife (used in 46th Annual Report, Bureau of American Ethnology) were sent by Mrs C. S. Simpson, Pilot Mound, Manitoba, Canada, to R. G. Denig, March 21, 1923, for use in "The Manoe-Denigs," a family chronicle, New York, 1924, and were taken from a locket in Mrs Simpson's possession. Probably taken between 1855 and 1858. In 1855 Mr Denig took his wife and family to the States, and the pictures may have been made at that time. -- John C. Ewers.

Letter of September 30, 1965 from Mrs Doris Cerveri, 1264 Patrick Avenue, Reno, Nevada states: "Deer Little Woman, who was married to Edwin Thompson Denig, and who was a daughter of Iron Arrow Point, Chief of Stone Band of Assiniboines. I do not know of her Indian name. Later she was known as Christiana Olson."

Edwin Denig entered fur trade 1833 and became very influential among the tribes of the upper Missouri. Was for a time a Government scout.... bookkeeper for the American Fur Co. Earlier had gone to St Louis and became connected with the Choteaus and the American Fur Co. Before he was 30 years of age he was living among the Indians as the representative of these two companies in the country of the Sioux, between the headwaters of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers. --Note by M. W. Tucker.

So far as the Bureau of American Ethnology is concerned, permission to reproduce is granted. The catalog record for BAE Portrait Negative Numbers 46-c-1, -2, -3, -4, which are 4 copy negatives of the Kern brothers, gives the source only as "From Miss Wolf." Dr Robert V. Hine, here 5/13/58, supplied the information that this refers to Miss Helen Wolfe, Lebanon, Pennsylvania, grand niece of Edward Kern, and owner of the three original daguerreotypes and the one photographic print (the latter being of Richard Kern) from which the BAE copy negatives were made. In July 1961, no correspondence or other record from Miss Wolfe could be found in the correspondence files of the BAE and the U. S. National Museum Registrar's office reported no papers in either the accession files or the permanent correspondence files of the Museum. Lacking any record to the contrary, we assume that these photographs were given without any restrictions by Miss Wolfe, and with the expectation that they would be made freely available to the public.

One of these is not a daguerreotype. It appears to have been copied from a page cut out of an album. Beside the portrait is a handwritten comment. Dr Robert V. Huntington Library (which has the Kern diaries) has copies of the 3 daguerreotypes but not the larger picture (daguerreotype ?) of Richard Kern.

Drawing of Pocahontas, seated by Captain Smith, as she begs for Captain Smith's life to be spared by her father, Powhatan

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.28223

Pocahontas - Biographical sketch. Born in 1595, and died on board ship at Gravesend, England, in March, 1617. The daughter of Powhatan, chief of a group of Virginian tribes. Her real name was Matoaka (Matowaka), a word found also in the misspelled form of Matoka and Matoaks. The sole Algonquian root from which the name can be derived is metaw, 'to play,' 'to amuse one's self;' whence Metawake, 'she amuses herself playing with (something).' It was undoubtedly due to her innate fondness for playthings, play, and frolicsome amusement that the name was given her by her parents, as well as the expression "Pokahantes" used by her father when speaking of her. By reason of the alleged romance of her life, Pocahontas is one of the most famous of American women. She is said to have saved Captain John Smith from a cruel and ignominious death at the hands of Powhatan's people, whose prisoner he was at the time. She is also credited with enabling many other Englishmen to escape the wrath and vengeance of her tribespeople.

The truth about some of her alleged exploits can never be known; some writers have even doubted the episode with Captain Smith. After the departure of Captain Smith for England in 1609, faith was not kept with the Indians as promised, and Pocahontas, by the aid of a treacherous chief, was decoyed on board the ship of Captain Argall in the Potomac, carried to Jamestown (1612), and afterwards taken to Werawocomoco, Powhatan's chief place of residence where a sort of peace was effected and the ransom of Pocahontas was agreed upon. While among the Englishmen, however, Pocahontas had become acquainted with John Rolfe, "an honest gentleman, and of good behavior." These two fell in love, an event which turned out to the satisfaction of everybody, and in April, 1613, they were married, Pocahontas having previously been converted to Christianity and baptised under the name of "the Lady Rebecca."

This alliance was of great advantage to the colonists, for Powhatan kept peace with them until his death. In 1616 Mr and Mrs Rolfe, with her brother-in-law Uttamatomac and several other Indians, accompanied Sir Thomas Dale to England, where, owing to the previous misunderstanding of those times concerning the character and government of the American tribes, Mrs Rolfe was received as a "princess." In March 1617, while on board ship at Gravesend ready to start for America with her husband, she fell ill of smallpox, and died about the 22nd year of her life. In July 1907, a skeleton, believed to be the remains of Pocahontas, was unearthed within the site of Gravesend Parish Church. She left one son, Thomas Rolfe, who was educated by his uncle, Henry Rolfe, in England.

Other drawings in the volume included a view of Mount Vernon; over a figure on the veranda was written, "Genl Washington"; so the book might be dated after he achieved that rank. The tentative assignment of the drawing to Virginia is based on the presence of the Mt. Vernon drawing. However, the woman's dress and the spindle whorl are definitely out of place there. Nothing is known about the artist/author of the book.

Negative made at the Library at request of Anna Wells Rutledge [44 So. Battery, Charleston, South Carolina, permanent address], who gave it to the BAE, 1961.

"War Dance of the Sauks and Foxes"

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.43674

Hodge (1933 edition Mc Kenney & Hall, Volume 1, page 4, n. 2) states that the original oil painting is owned by Fred B. M'Guire, Director of the Corcoran Gallery, Washington, D. C.

Same subject in 1838 edition. McKenney & Hall, Volume 1 (BAE Library Catalog Number 574) bears notation, "On stone by Corbould from a Painting by P. Rindisbacher. Printed by C. Hallmandel," and the figures are numbered.

McKenney and Hall, in a footnote to their text (Hodge edition volume 1, page 2) make a "correction" altering the tribe to Winnebago. However, in the detailed caption by Caleb Atwater, the names of the persons are given, including "Keokuk, the principal warrior of the Sauks" and "Morgan, the principal warrior of the Fox," and "Tiahma, the principal civil chief of the Foxes."

John Bemo or Tal-a-mas-mico (King of the Forest)

1 Photograph (5x7 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.1176 B

Extract from letter from Mr Foreman: "His name was John Bemo and he had a remarkable history. He was a Seminole and when he was a boy he went to sea where he was engaged many years. About the time he was grown a minister in Philadelphia met him and became interested in him. He brought him to his home, educated him and got him interested in the church. "Soon after the removal of the Seminole Indians to this country, in the early forties the Government cooperated with him in placing him among his people in this country where he did a tremendous amount of good in educating them and improving their condition. His life story is most romantic and was often noticed in official correspondence during his lifetime.

"I have been trying for several years to get his grandson to let me have this picture to have it copied, and just today succeeded. The family prizes it very highly. The photograph was made by Nellis Art Gallery, 840 Grove Ave., Chicago; it bears the letters "N.P.A." It was entered according to the Act of Congress in the year 1875 by G. K. Nellis, in the office, of the Librarian of Congress at Washington. It bears the name of "Tal-a-mas-mico, or King of the Forest."

Indian encampment with bark-covered tipis
1 Photograph (8x10 in)
Notes: OPPS NEG.55694
"It appears to be mid or late 19th century in date, and depicts a camp somewhere in the Great Lakes area with what appears to be considerable accuracy. In fact, in style and content it resembles an 1845 painting by Paul Kane titled "Encampment among the Islands of Lake Huron" (reproduced, e. g., as plate 7a of "Villages of the Algonquian, Siouan, and Caddoan Tribes...", by D. I. Bushnell, Smithsonian Institution, Bureau of American Ethnology Bulletin 77, 1922). It may perhaps be another Kane painting of the same location."

-- Letter of December 15, 1965 to Mr J. W. Murphy from William C. Sturtevant, Division of Cultural Anthropology, S. I.

Date: Not recorded; [mid or late 19th century].

Unidentified man, [James Mooney ?]

1 Photograph (5x7 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.PORT 83

December 19, 1951. Dear Dr Stirling: The photograph forwarded to me is interesting. There is a definite likeness to Mr Mooney. Except for that, however, there is nothing to bear out the identification given to you. Here are some of my objections: 1. Judged by height against horse, this man appears much taller than Mr Mooney. Also he appears much huskier. 2. The positive pose is quite out of character 3. Clothes unknown to me, tho' I knew him for ten years before our marriage in 1897. 4. Hat: he habitually, winter and summer, wore narrow brimmed Stetsons- that is, not wide flaring like this one. 5. He always maintained that he never wore a colored tie- always black bow ties. This one appears light, checkered and cravette style. 6. Gloves, most unusual. 7. Hair. Worn long for several years while in field (say 1892-5 ?). But worn only shoulder length, and it was black and very curly. Could not have looked as shown here. 8. Also, he had a pronounced Adam's apple. Added to all this, the facial expression and general pose make me believe that this is not Mr Mooney's picture. Sorry I cannot help you more. But I never saw this before. It is a pleasure to get in touch with the Bureau again, though after all these years most of my friends there are now gone. With best wishes, Very truly yours, (Signed) Lone Lee Mooney (Mrs James Mooney)

Statement regarding the picture in Mr Gamble's letter: "I wonder if you can identify the white man in the enclosed photo. ? The Kiowa claim it is Mooney. Is this so ? A copy of the picture, from which BAE made a negative, was sent to Mrs Mooney for identification. A copy of her letter is attached herewith. She is unable to identify it as Mr Mooney.

Anderson, John A.

Brule Dakota man, High Bear cooking meat in a pouch, Jan 11 1950 ?
1 Photograph (5x7 in)

Creator: Anderson, John A.
Notes: OPPS NEG.3179 I

Old time manner of cooking without pottery. Cooking meat in the pouch or stomach of a cow, at Milk Creek camp on Lower Rosebud Reservation (for Brule or Burnt Thigh Sioux) on Ponca Creek, so named because of Chief Milk, sub-chief of the Burnt Thigh (Brule) under Swift Bear.

Date: January 11, 1950. Penciled on reverse file print is statement: "Picture may have been taken 1920 Milk Creek Camp, Lower Rosebud Reservation."

Copyright 1911 by John A. Anderson (PF 4/3/1987)

Extract of a letter from Eddie Herman, Hot Spings, South Dakota, dated January 11, 1950, to Dr Frank H. H. Roberts, Jr. "In the summer of 1920 I saw an Indian Medicine man perform this feat the cooking of meat in the pouch or stomach of cow. This drum was hung on four sticks then filled with water. "Grey whitish rocks the same used to heat the e-ne-ga-ga or sweat bath were heated white hot in a camp fire. These were dropped into the drum full of water then meat was placed in the boiling water where it soon cooked. "After the meat was cooked the medicine man thrust his arm into the boiling water - (past his elbow) dug out the chunks of buffalo meat. He handed one piece to my mother. It was so hot she had to drop it.

This amused the medicine man and the Indians who were watching the performance. Later he told my mother that he used a preparation made from the resin weed to protect his arm. He said other medicine men used different weeds which they had first seen in their dreams. The Burnt Thigh Sioux also use the resin weed as a medicine or cure for dysentery. "This medicine man told my mother that the Sioux had no pottery because they were constantly on the move. So used this method of cooking after they had left the woodlands. Le Raye in his journal said they used this method 1801."

"General Custer's Crow Indian scout, the only person who escaped from the Custer fight. Curley was of the Crow Indian tribe. He made for the timber and headed for the Big Horn river where he joined General Terry and informed him that General Custer and his soldiers had all been killed by the Sioux. Curley didn't wait to see the finish of that battle which lasted about 35 minutes. Curley simply guessed the result which he reported to General Terry. Seeing the thousands of Sioux Indians, he decided what the result would be and never stopped to see that awful slaughter. "On the tenth anniversary, June 25, 1886, Chief Gall at the Battle Field told Curley, "if he had not sneaked away, he would not be there today." Notes: OPPS NEG.3115 C 1

Chief John Grass (Heading) "Chief Jumping Bear was known as the Great Sioux orator. Jumping Bear and Chief Gall were the two judges of the Indian Court held at Standing Rock, Dakota, and had a strong sense of right and justice. I don't know of a court in the land where you could get all the justice you were entitled to. If guilty, these two judges simply gave you the limit. "I don't know of a court where there was more dignity displayed than in that Indian court. When the court was open, the Indians would come in on tip-toe, remove their hats and be seated. "Jumping Bear was a progressive Indian. You couldn't class him as an orator. He had a most remarkable memory. In council when he was speaking he never made gestures, but talked good, sound sense. He had a very cordial way of greeting people and got the reputation of being the Great Orator of the Sioux." -- Note on photo the Burdick Collection of Barry photographs. Blackfoot Dakota man, Fire Cloud

Creator: Barry, David Francis
 Notes: OPPS NEG.3117 C 1

"The big chiefs and medicine men of all tribes gathered at the Agency to arrange the ceremony of unveiling the Standing Rock, which had been mounted upon a pedestal, where it is intended it shall stand for all time. For hours they sat in council talking over the legends connected with this historical monument, and endeavoring to decide whom they should honor with the duty of offering the prayers and painting the rock. It was decided that no man should touch the rock who had been guilty of any offence or wrong of any kind. Sitting Bull said that only the purest man in all the tribes could perform this sacred service. They must search until they found a man whose life was absolutely pure, that the sacred stone might not in any way be polluted. After discussing the merits of a hundred chiefs, Fire Cloud of Fireheart's band was chosen. That afternoon the Indians gathered about the rock to perform the ceremony.

According to the Indian superstition no Indian could remove the covering, and they were in a quandry how to proceed, when Major McLaughlin stepped forward and removed the blanket. In a speech Major McLaughlin told the Indians that he had found this rock sacred to the Indian and of historic interest to the whites, frequently changed from place to place; that he had built for it a pedestal and there it should remain forever, for their children and grandchildren, for all ages to look upon. When Major McLaughlin retired, Fire Cloud stepped forward and spent an hour painting the rock, praying meanwhile. The prayer was a remarkable one to issue from an Indian's lips. Fire Cloud was a late hostile and his audience consisted of Sitting Bull and his braves. Never before has an Indian been known to pray for peace; their prayers have always been for success in battle, or for the increase of game.

Fire Cloud told the Indians there that if they had done any wrong in all their lives they should be ashamed, there in the presence of the holy rock, repent and live absolutely pure lives. He thanked the Great Spirit and the rock in behalf of all his nation for the peace which they had been blessed with and prayed that it might last forever. He closed his prayer with an appeal to the Great Spirit that he should not send them any hailstorm, that the crops be good and their people be kept from any sickness. A few more strokes of the paint brush and the remarkable ceremony was ended. They instructed the Shadow Catcher that he must not take a picture during the prayer and painting of the rock; but I took Fire Cloud with his paint brush. The Siouxs claim this stone was a squaw, who turned into a rock." -- Notation on photograph in the Burdick Collection of Barry photographs. (February 1937)

"Lieutenant Bull Head and Sergt. Shave Head went into Sitting Bull's house on the Grand River, in Dakota, to arrest him and prevent him from going to Pine Ridge to join the Ghost Dancers. When Sitting Bull got outside the door his son, Crow Foot, said to his father: "You are very brave, but when the police are here you act like a child." Sitting Bull went back into the house and refused to go. Crow Foot rushed out and called to the Indians to come, the police were taking his father. The Indians rushed to the house and a general fight started. Bull Head was shot. He turned and shot Sitting Bull, and another Indian fired a shot at Sitting Bull. The police put Bull Head on a bed, and Crow Foot crawled under the bed. Bull Head said he was dying, and Crow Foot, who caused the trouble, was under the bed. The police dragged him out and fired two shots into him. Crow Foot was a bright boy and Lieut. Bull Head was a fine Indian character. Serg. Shave Head, a daring brave Indian, was a brother of the noted chief, Rain-in-the Face." "The fight took place just coming daylight, on December 15th, 1890." -- Notation photograph in the Burdick Collection of Barry photographs. (February 1937).

"He was against the progress of the white man on the old frontier. He was not a chief, but a Sioux medicine man of some power. He was born in 1834 at Grand River, South Dakota. He was a disturber, always ready to be interviewed. A few newspaper writers made his name famous. The Custer fight was over when he came onto the battlefield. He was shot by Indian Policeman Bullhead, December 15, 1890. His son Crowfoot was killed with him. His father named him Sitting Bull. With all his faults, he had some good qualities." -- Notations on photograph of Chief Gall in the Burdick Collection of Barry photographs. (February 1937).

"Maligned and often misunderstood, Rain-in-the-Face hated the whites for killing their game and cattle - the buffalo. True, he was a real savage on the warpath. It is a fact he killed Holzinger and Baliran on the Yellowstone, simply because they had no right on their Indian reservation. At a war dance at Standing Rock, Dakota, Rain-in-the-Face walked into the circle and related how he shot Holzinger and Baliran. When he finished his story the Indians gave him great applause. Charley Reynolds, Custer's scout, was present unbeknown to Rain-in-the-Face, and reported to General Custer that he had listened to Rain-in-the-Face tell of the shooting of these men. Later Captain Yates and Tom Custer with one hundred cavalrymen arrested the Chief at Standing Rock. He escaped from the guardhouse at Fort Lincoln, Dak. He next met the Custers on the Little Big Horn River, June 25, 1876, and no doubt he mutilated Capt. Tom Custer. In 1877, when on a buffalo hunt one of the Colt revolvers he got in the Custer fight went off accidentally, hitting him in the knee and making a cripple out of him. He surrendered to General Miles, and was one of the truest and most loyal Indians I ever knew. When moving from Dakota, Rain-in-the-Face came to my gallery, took off his moccasins, tied them together, handed them to me saying: "Keep them as long as you live, when you look at them think of Rain-in-the-Face. Now, I say good-bye to you, and my heart is on the ground," walking away bare footed. He died at Little Eagle on the Grand River, Sept. 12, 1905." -- Notation on photograph in the Burdick Collection of Barry photographs. (February 1937.)

"All the noted chiefs at Standing Rock were invited to attend and be the guests of the city and take part in the parade. (Meeting of the Constitutional Convention at Bismark, North Dakota, on July 4th, 1889). The following chiefs were in the parade: Chief Gall, Rain-in-the-Face, John Grass, Goose, Mad Bear, Running Antelope, Black Bull, Circling Bear, Crow Eagle, Flying Bye, Sitting Bull, Two Bear, Long Dog, Fire Cloud, Long Feather, Low Dog, Crow King, High Bear, Gray Eagle, Crow, Fool Thunder, Red Horse and Red Fish. "Major McLaughlin was in command of the chiefs and dressed Hairy Chin to appear as Uncle Sam and to lead the parade. Two days after he had returned to Standing Rock, Hairy Chin died. He was a brother to Chief Long Dog. The Indians claimed he dressed and appeared as Uncle Sam, which was bad medicine, and was the cause of Hairy Chin taking that old trail to the Happy Hunting Grounds. "Never again will they get a Sioux to parade as Uncle Sam. While at Bismark they were looked after by D.F. Barry. He feared perhaps he had overfed them- the end of Hairy Chin." -- Notation on photograph in the Burdick Collection of Barry photographs. "I inspected his medicine at the home of his daughter Mrs Iron Road, in the summer of 1932. A dried-up hawk was among the medicine articles." -- Usher L. Chief Crazy Walking of the Indian Court at Standing Rock Agency. "At one time Crazy Walking was a member of the Indian police, who took part in the arrest of Sitting Bull, after the death of Chief Gall and John Grass. They were judges of the Indian court. Crazy Walking was appointed to the Judgeship of that court which had been so ably filled by Chief Gall and John Grass. The late Chief Justice Waite of the United States Supreme Court visited at Standing Rock Agency years ago. When Gall and John Grass were told that Judge Waite was the Big Chief of that Court, at the home of the Great Father, they said they would like to visit his court and see how he runs things there. "In all the tribes of the North American Indians you will not find two judges like Chief Gall and Chief John Grass. They were just and gave you all you were entitled to." -- Notation on photograph in the Burdick Collection of Barry photographs (February 1937).

"The Wild Hog on the list of Casey's scouts was Bird Wild Hog, whose father was one of the headmen under Little Wolf and Dull Knife, leaders of the Northern Cheyenne break from Indian Territory in 1879. Mari Sandoz says (Cheyenne Autumn, XV) that the senior Wild Hog was a 'big broad man with a broad humerous face', and that the son was named Little or Young Hog.

Christian Barthlemess, in identifying a photograph he took of the son, wrote the name as "Hetch (Hedge) Hog." Casey Barthelmess remembers him as an unusually expert dancer, much admired by women. His discharge, dated at Fort Keogh May 15, 1891, said he born in Wyoming, was twenty-two years old, six feet tall, copper complexion, black hair and eyes, and by occupation when enlisted (September 18, 1890) a hunter.

Bird Wild Hog died August 31, 1940. His widow Lydia, daughter of old Little Wolf, was killed at Sheridan, Wyoming, in 1958 -- when she was ninety --by an automobile." pages 110-11, Frink & Barthelmess. Black and white copy negative

"Elk River, his name, which was also borne by a member of the Southern Cheyenne tribe, was the Cheyenne name for the Yellowstone. For years Elk River was a familiar and respected figure around Fort Keogh...Elk River was in Dull Knife's village when it was destroyed by Mackenzie in 1876...

John Stands-in-Timber in August, 1962, told Father Peter Powell:... 'Elk River was old when he enlisted in the scouts [i.e. Casey's scouts] and was said to be nearly a hundred when he died, about 1908'...He first enlisted as a scout in 1879, in Montana, under Miles, after which he went to Indian Territory. He re-enlisted on returning north...

"White Bull was one of the Northern Cheyenne who surrendered to Miles at Fort Keogh in 1877. He was held by Miles as a hostage for the surrender of others, and a few days later he was the first of thirty Cheyennes recruited by Miles for scout duty. He was in the group on Muddy Creek when Lame Deer tried to kill Miles.

White Bull scalped Lame Deer and his nephew, who were both killed by soldiers at that time. ...In his late years he was still an important personage among the Cheyennes, as indicated by the fact that Christian Barthelmess, in identifying the photograph he took of this old warrior, wrote his name: 'Jutch [Judge] White Bull'.

Grinnell (The Fighting Cheyennes, 287) says that White Bull, who was a medicine man, made the war bonnet that Roman Nose (Bat) wore when he was killed with the Cheyennes fighting against the army scouts at Beecher Island in 1868."- Photographer on an Army Mule, page 111.

Concerning the estimated date: According to R.M. Utley (Last Days of the Sioux Nation, pages 257-8), Lt. Casey was killed on January 7, 1891 by Plenty Horses (just after the Wounded Knee massacre).

Photo with caption: "The scouts in column, Casey, center, Getty left. Army reports of the period said these and other Indians showed 'remarkable aptitude for military service, were amenable to discipline, generally of good habits, proud of their occupation'."

Man on far left wearing buffalo overcoat, Muskrat cap, 1884 Mills belt and saber. Others with 1880s campaign hats, five-button blouses, trousers, some with late pattern gauntlets. Photo possibly taken before 1890 as these are standard issue items not Indian Scout patterns authorized in Special Order number 10, 1890, by the Adjutant General's Office. It could be after 1890 but prior to the issue of the authorized Indian Scout uniforms. --Information from James Nottage, June 1973; see Guides to Photo Collections, "Military Uniforms." (PJR)

"St Regis Indian Village"

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Engraver: Bartlett, W. B.

Notes: NAA INV.9388200

OPPS NEG.965 F

"The Indian village of St Regis is situated near Malone, in the northern part of the state of New York. The following interesting incident, connected with the history of the bell belonging to the old church, which is seen in the accompanying illustration, is extracted from Lossing's Field Book of the Revolution, a work which we have heretofore had occasion to speak of in terms of the highest commendation. "St Regis is an old Indian village, and contains a small Roman Catholic church, built about the year 1700. When completed the priest informed the Indians that a bell was highly important to their worship, and they were ordered to collect furs sufficient to purchase one. They obeyed, and the money was sent to France for the purpose. The French and English were then at war. The bell was shipped, but the vessel that contained it fell into the hands of the English, and was taken into Salem in the fall of 1703. The bell was purchased for a small church at Deerfield, on the Connecticut River, the pastor of which was the Rev. Mr Williams. The priest of St Regis heard of the destination of his bell, and, as the Governor of Canada was about to send an expedition, under Major Ronville, against the colonies of New England, he exhorted the Indians to accompany him and get possession of it. Ronville, with 200 French and 142 Indians, arrived near Deerfield in the evening of the 29th of February, 1704.

During the night they attacked the unsuspecting villagers, killed 47 and made 112 prisoners. The latter, among whom were the pastor and his family, were taken to Canada. The only house left standing was that of Captain Sheldon, which the assailants themselves occupied in securing their prisoners. It is still standing, near the center of the village. The bell was conveyed in triumph through the forest to Lake Champlain, to the spot where Burlington now stands, and there they buried it, with the benedictions of Father Nicholas, the priest of St Regis, who accompanied them. Thus far they had carried it by means of timber, upon their shoulders. They hastened home and returned in early spring with oxen and sled to convey the sacred bell, now doubly hallowed in their minds, to its destination. The Indians of the village had never heard the sound of a bell, and powerful was the impression upon their minds, when its deep tones, louder and louder, broke the silence of the forest, as it approached their village at evening, suspended upon a cross piece of timber, and rung continually by the delighted carriers. It was hung in the steeple with solemn ceremony, and there it remains. The polished tin that covered the steeple of the old Church was glittering in the last rays of the evening sun as we passed far away on the northern shore." Copy from "Bureau of Ethnology. White Thunder

Creator: Bell, C. M. (Charles Milton), approximately 1849-1893

Notes: OPPS NEG.55933

Date: Not recorded; possibly 1880.

Apparently taken in Washington when White Thunder was a member of a delegation.

White Thunder. The Brule sub-chief was noted for his fearless display of bravery while in combat with his adversaries. Both white and Indians soon learned to fear and respect him as the Sioux wars progressed and expanded throughout the northwest. On one of those hostile incursions into enemy territory he was credited for the slaying and scalping of the noted and esteemed Omaha Chieftain Logan Fontenelle of the Omaha tribe. This one noteworthy feat earned him the honor and prestige befitting a rising warrior.

During the final days of the Sioux's heroic stand to check military aggression he was inducted into military service as a scout, and while acting in his capacity as a scout the Crazy Horse episode was the major issue confronting both civilian and military authorities stationed at the two frontier posts, Fort Sheridan, and Fort Robinson. On the morning of September 5th, 1877, it was no other than the converted White Thunder who headed a bodyguard of nine Brule scouts that escorted the wily warrior to Post Robinson, Nebr. Sergeant Frederick Wyllyams, an immigrant from England, belonged to Troop G, Seventh U.S. Cavalry. He was killed and mutilated by a mixed band of Sioux, Arapaho and Cheyenne Indians near Fort Wallace, Kansas, 1867. The photograph was taken by Wyllyams' friend, Major Calhoun, who sent the photograph to President Andrew Johnson. The ritual slashes on Wyllyams' body were done after he was killed to indicate the tribal affiliation of the killer. (Information from "Little Bighorn Remembered" by Herman Viola, page 84.)

Forrest's letter stated that the original is 6 or 7 inches square and is inscribed on the back as follows: "Joseph Brant, Mohawk Chief, par Wm. Berczy, York or Toronto, 1842."

This must be a posthumous portrait, since Brant died in 1807, but it appears to be a realistic likeness; compare the McKenney & Hall lithograph. A full length portrait by the same artist is in the National Gallery of Canada (oil on canvas, 24" x 18", Number 5777). The latter is reproduced in The American Heritage Book of Indians, New York, 1961, page 201.

Wm. Berczy is referred to as "an agent of the Robert Morris interests" in Deardorf and Snyderman, 1956, page 61, n. 63.

Bernard, Francois

Choctaw settlement at Bonfouca, St Tammany Parish, Louisiana, 1869

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: Bernard, Francois

Artist: Bernard, Francisco ?

Notes: OPPS NEG.2860 ZZ 1

In the catalog of the Bushnell collection in the Peabody Museum, Harvard there is the following entry: Bernard, Francois. Born in Paris, France: died in Tonkin, French Indo-China. Did most of his work in New Orleans where he made a fortune with his pastels. Probably born in Paris between the years 1820-1830 and probably went to the United States in 1856. Bushnell's notes. 27. Choctaw village near the Chefuncte. (47) 48 1/2" x 34 1/2". Purchased from Stein's Auction Exchange, New Orleans, by Mr Bushnell, November 1, 1921, according to receipted invoice (100.00 dollars). There is no indication that the Peabody Museum has made a negative. (Bureau of American Ethnology Negative Number 2860 ZZ 1)

Letter of Mrs Katherine B. Edsall, Peabody Museum, December 15, 1965 reports that the painting has just been cleaned and "the painting is signed very legibly "Bernard 1869"and it is not possible to mistake the signature for anything else."

Original painting in the Bushnell collection, Peabody Museum, Harvard University; copy of description from Peabody Museum catalog of Bushnell collection attached.

Groce & Wallace, 1957 (The New York Historical Society Dictionary of Artists in America), page 46 list a Francisco Bernard as a portrait and landscape painter who was in New Orleans from 1856 to 1860, and returned there in 1867.

Judging from this and from Bushnell's own note quoted in the Peabody catalog, Bushnell was mistaken when he gave the date as 1846 in the caption of Plate 11, in Bureau of American Ethnology Bulletin 69, 1919, and stated in his text that the picture was made "the next year" after Pere Roquette erected his first chapel in 1845.

What he actually says is (page 64): "A part of this settlement as it was the next year is shown in Plate 11, this being a reproduction of a painting made by Bernard, bearing the date 1846." Perhaps the people at Peabody could examine the painting for any date which might be written on it. MCB 6/58.

To: Mr John T. Kursch, Jr. 1339 Willow Road, Baltimore, Maryland.
 Dear Mr Kursch: Reference is made to your inquiry of September 25 [1961] regarding Indian costume and photographs. Karl Bodmer's representation of a Hidatsa dog dancer certainly is one of the handsomest illustrations of American Indians ever made. I note that it is reproduced in color on the Table of Contents page of the new American Heritage Book of Indians which will appear this month. The Smithsonian Institution does not have a set of Prince Maximilian's Travels in the Interior of North America containing colored plates. We can supply 8" x 10" black and white prints of this and the Crow subject about which you inquired. I believe that the New York Public Library has a set of Maximilian's Atlas with colored plates. The cost of reproducing the plate in color may be quite expensive. As for the costume of Pehriska-ruhpa in dog dance regalia, may I state that the picture was made from life in 1834. However, I cannot recall having seen one of these costumes in a museum collection. Possibly none has been preserved. Prince Maximilian describes the headdress as "an immense cap hanging down from the shoulders, composed of raven's or magpie's feathers, finished at the tips with small white down feathers. In the middle of this mass of feathers the outspread tail of a wild turkey or of a war eagle was fixed." He does not mention how the feathers were fixed, although in another place he suggests that they were attached to a red cloth cap. He goes on to state that these leaders of the Dog Society "wore round their neck a long slip of red cloth, which hung down over the shoulders, and, reaching the calf of the leg, was tied in a knot in the middle of the back."

The long war pipe (probably eagle leg bone) and the rattle are also distinctive parts of the costume of this dog dancer. Maximilian describes the rattle as "a stick adorned with blue and white glass beads, with buffalo or other hoofs suspended to it, the point ornamented with an eagle's feather, and the handle with slips of leather embroidered with beads." These beads, I am confident, must have been of the large "pony size" embroidering bead size, being about twice the size of beads in common use among the Plains

Indians in the past three-quarters of a century. The leggings are apparently of the old close-fitting skin type decorated with painted stripes and dots (probably in dark brown), and with vertical bands of quill and beadwork. The latter was made on a separate piece of buckskin which was sewed to the side of the legging. The five rows of quillwork and two quilled rosettes appear to have been in red, yellow and natural colored porcupine quills. The quillwork is bordered all around by "pony beads," probably sky blue in color. The moccasins are decorated in porcupine quills only, using the same colors appearing in the quillwork on the leggings. The design pattern was widely employed among the Plains tribes in the 1830's, and has survived in Blackfoot Indian moccasin decoration to the present day. However, the Blackfoot moccasins bear the design in beadwork.

Sincerely yours, John C. Ewers, Assistant Director Museum of History and Technology.

Apache baby in cradleboard

1 Photograph (4x7 in)

Creator: Bonine, Elias A., 1843-1916

Notes: OPPS NEG.46961 B

Statement of Douglas ("Main Types of Indian Cradles," Denver Art Museum leaflet 115, 1952) that Apaches often cover awning with skin apparently confirms identification as Apache.

This negative apparently made from copy print on mount imprinted as follows: "J. E. Slocum, Successor to Parker, Photographer, 740 Fifth Street, San Diego, Cal.;" front of print marked "Moqui Indian baby," bears credit, "Parker, Photo." Same subject, apparently original print, is in original Bureau of American Ethnology original prints series, Apache Number 76-a, on mount imprinted, "E. A. Bonine, Pasadena, Los Angeles Co., Cal."

Bordeaux, William J., Mrs

Drawing of Crazy Horse

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Artist: Bordeaux, William J., Mrs

Notes: OPPS NEG.55935

A sketch claimed by Mrs Clown (who claimed to be a sister of Crazy Horse), Louise Bordeaux, and others to be a near likeness.

The question has been raised by some scribes and historians, as to the existence of a photo taken of the noted warrior. A thorough search by the author for a picture of him brought no results, for none was ever taken of him. A near image by the author's father, Louis Bordeaux, Mrs Clown, the warrior's sister, and other close associates, gave a fair legible facial and figured [sic] idea of his general appearance, as to his height, weight, and poise. Height about 5-11, weight 175, complexion rather light for an Indian, eyes light brown, hair long dark brown, facial expression, firm and determine[d] mouth, manner, winning personality. Very seldom heard in public debates. Character calm and reserved, scar on left cheek. There you have a fair picture of the famed hero as it was described by those who had a close-up view of him as he was seen in the final days before his tragic death. William J. Bordeaux, Custer's Conqueror, [1952 ?], frontis.

Grandson of Wizi and Sitting Bull. Born May 6, 1900 on Crow Creek Reservation, South Dakota. Educated in Government schools, Pierre Indian School, Pierre, South Dakota, Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kansas and Mt. Hermon School, Northfield, Massachusetts.

Mr Vincent McMullen, for many years with Bureau of Indian Affairs, called 10/1/53. He stated that the Bureau of Indian Affairs had had some inquiry about William Jacobs' relation to Sitting Bull and he submitted the following statement, which he had extracted from their files: In 1938, Supt. Hyde [of Crow Agency] talked to Bill's father, and asked him about Bill's relationship to Sitting Bull. He said, "Grandfather's cousin married Sitting Bull's daughter." Someone in Detroit had made inquiry about Bill Jacob's claims in that respect.

Red Dog, Little Wound, Red Cloud, American Horse, Red Shirt.
Interpreter: John Bridgeman.

This is the "school committee" from Pine Ridge that went to Carlisle, Penn. to investigate the condition of the Sioux students there in 1880. From Carlisle, they and a number of other chiefs went on to Washington to talk with government and railroad officials about permitting the railroads to cross the reservation. My material from the official records shows that Red Cloud, Red Shirt, Little Wound, and American Horse were four of the five chiefs representing the Oglalas. The fifth man was Red Dog, chief of the Oglala Oyukhpe band, and I think it would be safe to assume that he is the unidentified Indian seated on the extreme left, next to Little Wound. I have never seen a photo of Red Dog with which I could check this assumption. The Archives has a set of volumes containing photos by Gardner of the Sioux delegations in 1872. Red Dog went to Washington in 1872, but unfortunately, the volume containing the photos of the Oglala delegation is not with the others in the set. Red Dog was a close companion of Red Cloud and also supported the latter in his schemes. Both came to Washington in 1870, but I never saw any photos taken of that delegation. The white man standing behind the seated chiefs is John Bridgeman, who served as interpreter for the Pine Ridge delegation. Incidentally, I'm sure the two photos of Red Shirt used by Schmitt & Brown were taken at the same time this group photo was made. -- Harry Anderson, 119-11 233 St., St Albans 11, N. Y., Apl 2, 1956 to Mrs Blaker. Correspondence in Smithsonian Institution Files.

Date: 1880 [date supplied by Harry Anderson, 1956.] Photo made in C. M. Bell Studio. Partly identified by Harry Anderson, 1956.

Notes: OPPS NEG.430 C 3

Woman seated on horse, drawing travois on which are two children in addition to the load. Stereoscopic photograph, probably taken by Cross, Hot Springs, South Dakota. No date. Woman in native dress. Tipis in background.

Comments by J.C. Ewers (1954): "I judge it [the Blackfoot travois picture] was taken about 1900 (from the costume and accessories). The travois is O. K. but I do not think the horse is an Indian pony - looks like a big white man's horse. The tobacco pouch is of Siouan origin, and the "club" looks odd. But the rest of the accessories look good Blackfoot."

Natives of Alaska - Malemiut "Indians"

1 Photograph (4x6 in)

Creator: Cross

Notes: OPPS NEG.3106 C 4

Group of women and children, showing large dog in foreground, child holding puppy.

Account on back of stereoscopic photo. We frequently see published statements to the effect that the aborigines are rapidly disappearing, but the scene here depicted contradicts such an assertion. The eleven youthful Esquimaux who make up the little company in the foreground do not appear to be dissatisfied with existing conditions, nor discouraged at future prospects. They are fairly well clothed and evidently have not recently felt the pangs of hunger. Their youthful games and playthings are simple in character, but these little people extract quite as much enjoyment from them as do our more favored children in civilization, surrounded by the comforts and advantages of the modern nursery and kindergarten. The little Esquimaux have never seen a kitten for none was ever in that section of Alaska, but its place is well filled by the baby dog, which consists chiefly of a bundle of the downiest kind of fur, bright eyes and a playful disposition. In the background is a representation of one of those native sod houses which served as a habitation for the pioneer Russian and American as well as for the more advanced of the native Esquimaux. Many of these Indians now live in tents, and have otherwise adopted the costumes and customs of Americans." (no date) -- John P. Clum, U.S.P.O Inspector and Lecturer Copyright. by B. L. Singley.

Notes: OPPS NEG.52550

Information from letter of Claude E. Schaeffer, Museum of the Plains Indian, Browning, Montana, August 13, 1965: "According to Ambrose Gravelle, the present Kutenai Chief at Tobacco Plains, B.C., this particular Sun Dance was put on for a sort of demonstration by the Elmo, Montana, Kutenai at Hot Springs, Montana. He claimed that it took place about 1914 and that a merchant named Pissaw (?) sponsored the ceremony. The Sun Dance leader was Chief Hat, of Elmo, Montana, who Gravelle claims, fell from the center pole during the erection of the lodge. I hope to check this information at Elmo this fall but I thought it might be useful for your records. Gravelle claims to have been present as a youth at the ceremony.

Drawing showing Indians of several Nations - Illinois, Atakapa, and Foxes
1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: De Batz, A.
Notes: OPPS NEG.2860 ZZ 6

Individuals in the picture marked by De Batz as follows: Chef (stg.), Reynard Sauvagesse Esclave (woman seated), Illinois, Dansseur, (next 2 no caption, Sauvagesse, Negro, Atakapas.

"During the year 1735 the French took many Illinois Indians to Lower Louisiana, probably to New Orleans, to assist in the war against the Chickasaw. From the interesting drawing made at that time it is evident that not only warriors but women and children made the long journey down the Mississippi. In the sketch the chief, on the extreme left, is shown with his right hand resting on the head of a Whooping Crane, Grus americana which may indicate that the bird had been domesticated. This would agree with a statement by Lawson, who, when referring to the Congaree of North Carolina, wrote: "they take storks and cranes before they can fly and breed them as tame and familiar as dung-hill fowls." "The Fox woman was evidently a captive taken by the Illinois in their recent war with that tribe. "The Atakapa is represented holding a calumet in his right hand and a small pipe in the left, with a quiver filled with arrows on his back, but no bow. "The sketch is probably intended to represent the bank of the Mississippi, and at the bottom appears the words 'Balbahachas. Missysipy ou fleuve St Louis.' DuPratz described the Mississippi and mentioned the various names by which it was then known, and continued: 'Other Indians, especially those lower down the river, call it Balbancha; and at last the French have given it the name of St Louis.'" "Buffalo skins, dressed so as to allow them to become soft and pliable and without removing the hair, were used by the Indians throughout the Mississippi Valley to protect them from the cold of winter. Such robes were often decorated on the inner side by designs painted in several colors. This sketch shows a robe decorated in a simple design in red and black." -- Bushnell, SMC 80:5. Bushnell also goes on to theorize that this may be an Atacapa, but does it only on the superficial basis that the man or his costume resembles the Atacapa man in Negative 2860 ZZ 6.

"Indian Doctor Concocting a Pot of Medicine", 1854?

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: Eastman, Seth

Notes: OPPS NEG.48185

Frances Densmore gives the following descriptive data on the practices of Indian medicine men: (pages 39-40) Doctor in the picture sings as he shakes a gourd rattle with his left hand and stirs medicine with the right. The skin of a large bird and large bag woven of bark or roots lies on the ground beside him. (Bag may be used for storing dried herbs). A pointed bag, such as the type used by the Dakotas in the old days to contain packets of herb medicine, hangs on the post at the left.

1854 is the date picture sent to be published (McDermott, page 87).

The mat covered dwelling suggests a Chippewa structure -- Information from Frances Densmore, "The Collection of Water Color Drawings of the North American Indian by Seth Eastman in the James Jerome Hill Reference Library," 1954, page 40.

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: Eastman, Seth

Engraver: Hinshelwood, Robert, b. 1812

Notes: OPPS NEG.2860 VV 2

This picture shows two figures bringing food to a scaffold burial. Mrs Mary H. Eastman, in the American Annual: Illustrative of the Early History of North America, in which this engraving is also reproduced, gives some details about the picture: The dead body is wrapped in a (scarlet) cloth. It is placed on a scaffold, from one corner of which hangs a medicine sack to keep off evil spirits and from another corner, a small kettle containing food for the dead. A woman offers more food in a bark dish. A man holds up a bottle from which he will offer a libation (of whiskey) to the departed spirit. The tent-shaped arrangement of sticks below the scaffold marks the grave of a person already removed from a scaffold (sticks used to keep the wolves off). page 110.

Bushnell, SMC, volume 87, number 3, 1932, page 8, states that the Dakota Indians sketched and painted by Eastman at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, 1841-1848, were Mdewakanton.

Date: 1851 is publication date of volume I of Schoolcraft's Indian Tribes of the United States in which this engraving appeared.

McDermott (page 60) cites an oil painting, "Feeding the Dead," which Eastman executed at Fort Snelling of Upper Mississippi River subjects. Engraving by R. Hinshelwood for Schoolcraft's Indian Tribes of the United States was probably based on Eastman's oil which he brought to Washington.

"Scalp Dance of the Dacotahs", 1852

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: Eastman, Seth
Engraver: Burt, S.
Notes: OPPS NEG.3711 C

Eastman's list of pictures sent to the American Art Union describes the dance: (from McDermott, page 52) "After the Sioux return from the battle with the scalps they have taken the scalps are dressed, the inside rubbed over with blue clay or vermillion they are then stretched out to a hoop fixed to a pole it is then ready for the dance The scalp is fixed entirely by the Squaws. The medicine men beat time on skins stretched over a keg or made something like a tambourine at the same time singing a monotonous guttural song. The squaws dance around the scalp in concentric circles. The scalps are carried on the shoulders of some squaws who have lost relatives in battle. After dancing five, ten or fifteen minutes they stop & one of the squaws will state to the assembly that her father, son, brother or husband was killed by a Chippeway [,] Soc or some tribe. She will conclude by saying-"Whose scalp have I got on my shoulder?" Then a grand war whoop is given [and] the dance recommences. The dance continues two or three months until it goes through every village of the tribe. After which the scalp is buried with a good deal of ceremony. Their richest dresses are worn in this dance."

Eastman's water color is now in the Karolik Collection, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

Bushnell, SMC, volume 87, number 3, 1932, page 8, states that the Dakota Indians sketched and painted by Eastman at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, 1841-1848, were Mdewakanton.

Eastman made a sketch and oil painting of this subject while at Fort Snelling (McDermott, page 52); the oil painting was sold and Eastman's water color made in 1850 for the engraving in Schoolcraft's Indian Tribes of the United States (Volume II, plate 12) was based on his sketch at Fort Snelling. "The Indian Council", 1868

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: Eastman, Seth

The central seated figure is Red Jacket.

This oil, painted for the House Committee on Indian Affairs (McDermott, page 100), is based on two works Eastman had prepared for Schoolcraft's Indian Tribes of the United States: "Indians in Council (Part 2, 1852, plate 27) and "Red Jacket" (Part 3, 1853, plate 25). The bark lodge was probably based on another illustration prepared by Eastman for Schoolcraft (Part 2, plate 29, "Dacotah Village").

The published lithographs were based on water colors by Eastman; "Indians in Council," "Red Jacket," and "Dacotah Village" water colors are in the James Jerome Hill Reference Library, Saint Paul (Demsmore, "The Collection of Water-Color Drawings of the North American Indians by Seth Eastman," (1954), pages 16, 28, 44.) The figure of Red Jacket is after a portrait, "Red Jacket aged 70" by Robert Weir, 1828. (BAE Negative Number 903-e).

This painting now (1961) hanging in the room of the House Committee on Insular Affairs -- McDermott, page 100.

In 1864 John Mix Stanley began painting the "Trial of Red Jacket" (BAE Negative Number 36589 F) (Bushnell, Smithsonian Report (1924), "John Mix Stanley, Artist-Explorer," page 510). It is possible that Eastman was attempting in "Indian Council" to represent a similar subject. However, since Eastman was unfamiliar with the dress and habitations of the Seneca, all but Red Jacket appear in the dress of Eastern Dakotas; a Dakota lodge and conical tipi also appear in this composition.

"Squaws Playing Ball on the Prairie", before 1849
1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: Eastman, Seth
Notes: OPPS NEG.2860 ZZ 2

Painting is in Peabody Museum, Harvard University. -- Whatmough, Bushnell Catalogue, page 11, cat. number 71.

"represents a group of Menominee, and possibly members of another tribe, in the vicinity of Fort Crawford, [Wisconsin]...", probably sketched while Eastman was stationed at Fort Crawford, 1829-1830. -- Information from Bushnell, SMC, Volume 87, Number 3, 1932, page 3; also reproduced as as plate 3.

"Sketched" might refer to a pencil drawing which was later copied for an oil painting. Both McDermott (pages 55-56, painting called "Ball Play of the Squaws on the Prairie;" reproduced as plate 46) and Bushnell (page 4) refer to the sale of the oil painting to the American Art Union in 1849.

Mrs Eastman's comments on the Ball Game: "The Indians bet heavily on this game." "The prizes to the winning party hang on the pole until the game is decided. In their games, the Sioux women get much more excited than the men ...." McDermott, page 56.

Bushnell says tribe is Menominee. Mrs Eastman refers to the Sioux.

Edy, James N.

Chiefs of the Six Nations in Council explaining their wampum belts, Sep 14 1871
 1 Photograph (8x10 in)
 Creator: Edy, James N.
 Notes: NAA INV.9384300
 OPPS NEG.961 C 2

Beauchamp, page 417, records that the photograph was procured by Horatio Hale in September 1871. He quotes a note by Horatio Hale on the back of the photograph used in his article: "This picture represents the chiefs of the Six Nations, on their reserve near Brantford in Canada, explaining their wampum belts. (Sept. 14, 1871). These chiefs were [left to right]: (1) Joseph Snow (Hahriron), Onondaga chief; (2) George H. M. Johnson (Deyonhehgon), Mohawk chief and government interpreter. Son of Number 4; (3) John Buck (Skanawatih), Onondaga chief and wampum keeper; (4) John Smoke Johnson (Sakayenkwaraton), Mohawk chief and speaker of the council; (5) Isaac Hill (Kawenenseronton), Onondaga chief and fire keeper; (6) Seneca Johnson (Kanonkeredawih), Seneca chief."

All are seated except John Smoke Johnson. All are holding wampum belts and all are wearing contemporary occidental dress, except that Seneca Johnson is wearing a turban-like headgear, probably a finger-woven sash, wrapped around his head.

Original hangs in Onondaga Council House in Ohsweken, Canada, according to W. N. Fenton.

Photographer: James N. Edy, Brantford, Ontario.

Original cabinet photo by James N. Edy, Brantford, Ontario is owned by Musee du Seminaire, Quebec (Album 6-G, page 109). This cabinet has the notations by Hale on the reverse. Beauchamp's quotation above varies slightly--Indian names are added, the exact day in September noted and name of #6 is rearranged. Copy of Hale's notation is in photo information file. Xerox copy of cabinet provided by W. C. Sturtevant.--PJF 7/78

Identified as Wolf Collar from portrait of same man, taken by Long Lance and reproduced in The Mentor, Volume 12, Number 2, March, 1924, page 2, with the following caption: "Famous Blackfoot medicine man, the only medicine man of the old school of mystics left alive among the Indians of the Northwestern plains. The feats this wizard has performed are hard to believe. He is ninety years old and the virtual ruler of the tribe. Though his normal expression is impenetrably stony, when he smiles, displaying two rows of perfect white teeth, he radiates a warmth of human kindness. He is master of all the arts and crafts known to the Indian. His sacred 'medicine,' the thunderbird (eagle), is seen painted on his tepee just over his right shoulder. It was given to him in a vision when he was struck by lightning at the age of seventeen, and lay dead apparently for twelve hours.

The medal is an "Indian Chief medal" bearing the portraits of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York (later King George V and Queen Mary), who visited Canada in the autumn of 1901. Similar medals were distributed on the occasion of the great assembly at Calgary, Alberta, September 28, 1901, --V. Clain-Stefanelli, 8/5/63

Faber, John

"Tomo Chachi Mico or King of Yamacraw, and Tooanahowi his Nephew, Son to the Mico of the Etchitas [Hitchitis], 1734

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: Faber, John

Artist: Verelst, Willem

Notes: OPPS NEG.1129 A

The following information is condensed from the handbook of American Indians, Bureau of American Ethnology, Bulletin 30, (which see): Tomochichi (spelled also Tomochachi, Temochichi, Thamachaychee, etc.) was a Creek chief who established himself at the town of Yamacraw (present Savannah, Georgia) shortly after 1721. On the foundation of the Georgia colony by Oglethorpe in 1733, Tomochichi assumed a friendly attitude toward the newcomers and was instrumental in bringing about a treaty of alliance between that colony and the Lower Creeks in that year. In 1734, with his wife, nephew, and several others, he accompanied Oglethorpe to England, where his portrait was painted. He continued to be helpful to the colonists after his return, until his death, which occurred in his own town of Yamacraw, October 5, 1739, he being then perhaps 75 years of age. He was given a public funeral at Savannah.

See also J. R. Swanton, Bureau of American Ethnology Bulletin 137, page 210. Swanton believes that the Yamacraw may have been part of the Yamasee. See also in Alice G. B. Lockwood, "Gardensof Colony and State," 1934, page 267. Caption: "Portrait of Tomo-Chi-Chi at 91 [sic], with the nephew who was his adapted son, Tooanakowhi. Painted by Verelst in London during their stay there with Oglethorpe, whose successful establishment of the Georgia Colony was largely due to Tomo-Chi-Chi's friendship and loyalty."

Mezzotint engraving is in the British Museum.

Hunkpapa Dakota man, Rain-in-the-Face

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: Fiske, Frank Bennett

Notes: OPPS NEG.3196 A 2 A

"Maligned and often misunderstood, Rain-in-the-Face hated the whites for killing their game and cattle - the buffalo. True, he was a real savage on the warpath. It is a fact he killed Holzinger and Baliran on the Yellowstone, simply because they had no right on their Indian reservation. At a war dance at Standing Rock, Dakota, Rain-in-the-Face walked into the circle and related how he shot Holzinger and Baliran. When he finished his story the Indians gave him great applause. Charley Reynolds, Custer's scout, was present unbeknown to Rain-in-the-Face, and reported to General Custer that he had listened to Rain-in-the-Face tell of the shooting of these men. Later Captain Yates and Tom Custer with one hundred cavalymen arrested the Chief at Standing Rock. He escaped from the guardhouse at Fort Lincoln, Dak. He next met the Custers on the Little Big Horn River, June 25, 1876, and no doubt he mutilated Capt. Tom Custer. In 1877, when on a buffalo hunt one of the Colt revolvers he got in the Custer fight went off accidentally, hitting him in the knee and making a cripple out of him. He surrendered to General Miles, and was one of the truest and most loyal Indians I ever knew. When moving from Dakota, Rain-in-the-Face came to my gallery, took off his moccasins, tied them together, handed them to me saying: "Keep them as long as you live, when you look at them think of Rain-in-the-Face. Now, I say good-bye to you, and my heart is on the ground," walking away bare footed. He died at Little Eagle on the Grand River, Sept. 12, 1905." -- Notation on photograph in the Burdick Collection of Barry photographs. (February 1937.)

T.M. Galey to M.W. Stirling. May 19, 1931. Independence, Kansas. "Refer to the negative among the bunch I sent you, showing a Cheyenne dog travois with Indian woman. I had two dog and pony travois made for me by Black Horse and his squaw. They are all thong tied and are precisely as used in the old time except that cow hide is used for the "floor" of the basket rather than buffalo hide. ... The basket is of willows."

T.M. Galey to M.W. Stirling. No date [received October 6, 1932.] Owensboro, Kentucky. "I had four travois made about 10 years ago by real old time Cheyennes who were in the wars. They got good and aged under a shed in Lame Deer, Mont. I am glad to say a pair of each, pony and dog travois, are in the Museum of Transportation in Chicago and in the Museum of the American Indian, NY, my donation. I had paid the trader 40 dollars to be credited to Black Horse and his squaw and they were annoyed because I insisted the ties be made with thongs when bail wire was handy. Dr Grinnell was with me, or rather I was with him, on that fine visit to Lame Deer."

Gardner, Alexander?

"Barboncito, Chief of the Navajo Tribe in New Mexico", before 1870

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: Gardner, Alexander, 1821-1882
Wimar ?

Notes: Nicholas Brown & Son
OPPS NEG.55766

City Art Museum Number 5426:46. Original sepia print is 5 1/8" x 3 1/4" on slightly larger mount. The subject above is written in red ink on the reverse. In another hand in pencil is written, "Taken by Wimar," but this seems improbable.

Digital surrogate produced from reference copy print

Date not later than 1870 (date of Barboncito's death); possibly 1866-1870.

Cf. BAE negative 2441, "Barban Cito or Little Beard," Jackson Catalog Number 786, (possibly by Shindler 1869, but not in Shindler Catalog, published 1867). [But there are some photos later than 1869 in that Catalog-P.F.] Seems not to resemble this man--at least no mustache. Correct spelling of name is presumably from "Barboncito," from barbon, 'full-bearded man.'

"The" Barboncito died in 1870, according to J. Lee Correll (Head of Field Research, Navaho Land Claims, Window Rock, Arizona.) who visited here 6/10/66. Therefore Negative 2441 (a young man) could not possibly be he, but could be his son.

Source print Navaho 4689 (negative 2442) is on an N. Brown & Son carte. The other two photographs in that series (negatives 2413-A & -B) appear to have also been taken by Brown & Son. Comparison of props, style and general appearance suggests that negatives 55,766-55,771 were also taken by Brown. N. Brown & Son was a prominent studio opened in Santa Fe between 1866 and 1868 and last recorded in 1872.--pjf 1/78

Blackmore collection version is retouched or painted version. Image has initials, "E.H.M." Mount has notation, "Barboncito Chief of Navajoes by Mr Shepard". Shepard could be artist or photographer. In addition, Blackmore version is on a Gardner mount. --pjf 12/77

City Art Museum Number 5426:50. Original is carte de visite photograph. The subject is written in red ink on the reverse as follows: 1. Chief Barboncito 2. Chief Son 3. Chief wife. In another hand in pencil is written, "Taken by Wimar," but this seems improbable.

Date not recorded; ca. 1860's ?; carte de visite style photo possibly 1866-72 ?

Letter of September 24, 1975 (letter 76-636) from J. Lee Correll (Supervisor, Research Section, Museum and Research Department, The Navaho Tribe, Window Rock, Arizona 86515.) states that this is definitely a portrait of Manuelito and his wife. The third person is as yet unidentified. (PJR 12/75)

The wife is the same woman as City Art Museum Number 5427:49 (Negative Number 55770), evidently made at same time and captioned, "Mica se qui, Daughter in law to Chief Barboncito." However, the seated man does not resemble Negative 55766 of Barboncito. He does seem to resemble Manuelito (BAE Negatives 2390, 2410-c; note particularly the mouth) and the woman bears a striking resemblance to Manuelito's wife, Juanita (BAE Negatives 2391, 2410-c). The standing figure looks too old to be their son Manuelito Segundo, who was a young boy in 1874. (BAE Negatives 2392; 41106 D).

Blackmore Museum copy (A17/1482) is painted version of this photo. It is listed as Manuelita, wife and son. This illustration is on an Alexander Gardner mount.-12/30/77 pjr

Hunkpapa Dakota man, Running Antelope (Ta-to'-ka-in'-yan-ka)

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Creator: Gardner, Alexander, 1821-1882

Notes: OPPS NEG.47758

This composite photograph was used as a model for the 1899 issue of the five dollar silver certificate. The portrait of Running Antelope is taken from BAE Negative 3184-a, a photograph taken in 1872 by Alexander Gardner. According to information in the Bureau of Engraving, the bonnet was photographed at the Smithsonian by Thomas W. Smillie. (The headdress on the original picture was considered too high to "fit" the proposed engraving.)

In October, 1962, R. E. Elder, Division of Ethnology, U. S. National Museum, identified the bonnet in the photograph as N. M. Cat. No. 73150 deposited in the Museum by E. Frank Riggs, with only the information that it had belonged to a Sioux chief. Elder describes the specimen as follows: "Base is a felt skullcap, beaded visor, with pendants of white weasel (ermine) on sides. Full crown of black tipped white eagle feathers, tipped with horsehair streamers, and trailer of same extends 7-8 feet."

Portrait of Blackfoot-Piegian man, Wades in the Water, JUN 1923

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: NAA INV.9206700

OPPS NEG.396 A

A full blood and son of Running Crane, chief of the Lone Eaters' Band of the Piegan. In his youth he scalped an enemy in war. For 26 years he was chief of the Indian police on the Blackfoot Reservation, Montana. In later years he was the owner of a medicine pipe, took active part in the tribal sun dance, and was one of the group of Piegan who entertained tourists to Glacier National Park in Summer. Wades in the water died at the Blackfoot Indian Hospital, September 20, 1947, at an assumed age of 76. A full color portrait of Wades in the Water in costume by the artist, Winold Reiss, appeared on the 1945 calendar of the Great Northern Railway. Wades in the Water did not speak English. (J.C. This was the second of the three Big Houses built in Oklahoma; it was taken down and a new one built in the fall of 1913, before the annual ceremony. The man pictured is most likely Julius Fouts, Harrington's informant and interpreter, but there is some disagreement on this (Ive Goddard, field notes, 1967-68); the large rack to the left is the main food rack (the "food platform" of Harrington's Plate VII, facing page 94, opposite citation). The smaller rack in the center of the picture is the food rack used by the leader of the ceremony, who always camped on the northeast corner of the Big House.

In 1867 the Delaware moved from Kansas to the Cherokee Reservation, Indian Territory. Those involved in the move became known as the Delaware (registered) or the Delaware (Cherokee). The others became known as the Delaware (absentee). "Registered" and "absentee" are not aboriginal terms.

Blackfoot Dakota man, Two Crow

1 Photograph (8x10 in)

Notes: OPPS NEG.55958

Note from M. Blaker to Mr Ewers (12/2/66). This is one of 6 unidentified photographs left for copying by Dr Frost, whom you sent over to see me last September. It is reproduced in Following the Frontier with F. Jay Haynes, 1964, page 220 with the caption, "The Famous Blackfoot Warrior, Two Crow." I would judge that this means Blackfoot Dakota, from the costume. Would you agree ??

Note to M. Blaker from Mr Ewers. Yes, I think he must be other than a Blackfoot Blackfoot. However, strangely enough, there is a reproduction of this same portrait in John E. Parsons The First Winchester The Story of the 1866 Repeating Rifle, page 145, captioned "Poundmaker, Chief of the Crees." And the portrait is attributed to "Courtesy of Royal Canadian Mounted Police." Do you have other portraits of Poundmaker with which you can make comparisons ? He was an historically important Plains Cree chief. Parson's interest was primarily in his gun - a good example of a Winchester model '66 ! You might check Mounted Police Museum, in Regina, Saskatchewan. I doubt if John would know if he was Cree or Sioux. John Ewers.

Heinsch, G. G.

Father Andrew White baptizing King "Chilomacon" [Chitomachen, Kitamaquund, Kittamaquindi, etc.] in the town of Kittamaquindi, ca 1639-1642 in what is now Maryland, 1694 ?

1 Photograph (5x7 in)
 Creator: Heinsch, G. G.
 Notes: OPPS NEG.2860 UU

Letter to Mrs Emily Roe Denny: The identification of the engraving of the baptism of King "Chilomachon" on our negative Number 2860 UU is incomplete because our negative was made many years ago from an unidentified published source. From the reference appearing under the picture in our negative we have identified the original source as a book by Matthias Tanner entitled Societas Jesu Apostolorum Imitatrix..., apparently printed at the press of the University of Charles Ferdinand in Prague, 1694 (Typis Universitatis Carolo-Ferdinandae: Prague, 1694). In our copy, the name of the artist, which is shown at the lower left, appears to be G. G. Heinsch (followed by "del.," an abbreviation for the Latin, delineavit) and the engraver's name appears to be I. or J. Killian (followed by "Sc.," sculpsit). We have no information about Heinsch, but if you wish to try to find information about him you might telephone Mr William Walker, Librarian, National Collection of Fine Arts (381-5118) or Dr Elizabeth Harris in the Smithsonian's Division of Graphic Arts (381-5235). In any case, it is quite certain that the drawing was not made from life; the palm trees and the feather capes and collars worn by the Indians suggest that it may have been adapted from a representation of Central or South American Indians. I assume that the Latin caption shown was taken from Tanner's book. I cannot give a literal translation, but it refers to Father Andrew White, who established a mission in Maryland in 1639. It also states that Father White died in England in 1655 near the age of 80. I enclose a copy of the brief article, "Kittamiquindi," from the "Handbook of American Indians" (B.A.E. Bulletin 30, part 1, 1907, page 708., referring to Father White. I regret that we do not have access to Tanner's original work.

Our library informs us that there is no copy of Tanner's work in the Washington area and that the nearest library that has one is that of the Hispanic Society of America, 613 W. 155th Street, New York,

N. Y. 10032. Other copies are in the John Carter Brown Library, Providence, Rhode Island and the Newberry Library, Chicago, Illinois. If you are successful in locating additional information about this picture, I would be pleased to learn more about it. Sincerely yours,
(Mrs) Margaret C. Blaker Archivist

Tribal attribution, "Chilomac's" alternate names, and the dates of Father White's mission in Kittamaquindi supplied from Bureau of American Ethnology-Bulletin 30, "Kittamaquindi," part 1, page 708.

Engraving shown on this negative gives source as "Tanner, Societas Jesu, 1694." The fuller citation given is from the British Museum catalogue.

"I telephoned Mr Walker of the NCFR and he read me a lengthy discussion of the artist. He was listed in the reference as Johann Georg Heintsch (with a variety of spellings, including Heinsch), an artist who was born in Silesia in 1647 and who died in Prague in 1713....

"From an encyclopedia of engravers in our local library I learned that there was a family of engravers named Kilian who lived in Augsburg...It would appear that the engraver of the baptismal sketch was Bartholomaeus [Kilian, 1630-1696]." --excerpt from letter of E. R. Denny, 12/12/70, in National Anthropological Archives correspondence files..
