Channel 13 to do Segment on Tombstone's Broken Crayons Stables

By Samantha Nicholas
The Tombstone News

Tucson's Channel 13 came to Tombstone on Wednesday and visited the Broken Crayons Stables to do a segment.

Broken Crayon's Stables is located in Holiday Estates outside of Tombstone and they welcome animals that, through no fault of their own, need a home to live out their days in peace. "Most of our animals were abused, neglected or abandoned prior to coming to our sanctuary. Each animals' physical and emotional health is assessed, and their identified needs are lovingly met."

According to Broken Crayons Stables President Lilla Deluca Barrett, they rescue horses but they also do life coaching with kids using their horses. "One of the kids that has been coming to the stables for a while did such a big turn around in school that the school wanted to know what he had been doing. His Grandfather told them how they were going to the Broken Crayons Stables. The school was very interested in the fact that this kid did such a turn around so they contacted the media," said Barrett.

The segment will air on the Channel 13 morning show sometime next week, an exact date was not yet announced, so watch for it so you can see first hand the great work they do at the Broken Crayons Stables! Barrett also stated that Channel 4 will be visiting them on Friday.

Broken Crayons Stables is located at 1561 N Bent Barrel Trail, Tombstone, AZ. Their website is brokencrayonsanctuary.com. They are also in need of donations, so feel free to donate via website, in person or give them a call at (520) 457-8043. You may also mail donations to: Broken Crayons Animal Sanctuary, PO Box 274, Tombstone, AZ 85638.

Some of the services offered at the stables are as follows: Anti-bullying Program: Those kids that have had difficulty with bullying others come to the ranch to practice respect and appreciation all life. Through experiential work with the animals they learn the true meaning of kindness and empathy. Walking Mediation Labyrinth: A walking mediation labyrinth ending with the ability to commune with horses in a peaceful environment. Community Youth Programming: Programming to work with community youth to encourage compassion, accountability, team building and social skills.

Youth Field Trips: Youth field trips to learn about the horses and their care with hands on and metaphorical learning. Day Camp: Day camp and educational tours for the community. DAMARA: The DAMARA (Dads and Moms Are Really Aligned) program includes parental visitation site with coaching to help parents and their children reconnect and coaching with caregivers in separate households to learn how to focus on their commonalities and respect their differences when it comes to parenting their children from separate households.

AZ Governor Ducey Releases Budget for FY 2021

Office of AZ Gov. Ducey

Arizona Governor Doug Ducey released his fiscally responsible, balanced budget for Fiscal Year (FY) 2021. The budget continues to make targeted, sustainable investments in the things that matter such as teacher pay raises, school safety, roads and bridges, rural jobs and technology and public safety, while returning dollars to taxpayers and saving more for the future.

This year's budget keeps ongoing spending below the amount of revenue coming in, marking the longest streak of consecutive structural surpluses in Arizona since 2000. The budget ends the fiscal year with a structural balance of $250 million.

"With a growing economy, hundreds of new residents every day, and our highest credit rating ever, Arizona's finances have never been better," said Governor Ducey. "But we're not going on a spending spree. Instead, this budget maintains fiscal discipline, saves more for a rainy day and ensures the important investments we're making in public schools, students and beyond are sustainable. And it provides tax relief to our veterans, allowing them to keep more of their hard-earned benefits. That's the Arizona Way. This is our most robust agenda to date, and I look forward to working with legislative leaders on a budget agreement that funds these important priorities."

Highlights of the Executive Budget include: K-12 EDUCATION: $608 million total new spending for K-12 public education. $175 million to provide additional 5% teacher pay raises, fulfilling 20x2020 goal. $145 million in funding for enrollment growth, inflation, and other technical adjustments. $136 million to accelerate the restoration of flexible dollars, known as Additional Assistance, two years ahead of schedule

$108 million in Building Renewal Grants (BRG) — a 35 percent increase over last year's level, with $35 million in supplemental BRG funding for FY2020. $59 million for the construction of two new schools as well as seven schools currently under construction. $44 million for a three-year pilot program, Project Rocket, designed to close the achievement gap for low-income schools. $38 million to fund additional cops on campus, school counselors, and social workers

$35 million to expand Results-Based Funding to help high-performing schools expand successful programs to more students. $6 million to enhance the current square footage calculations for new school construction

HIGHER EDUCATION: $35 million to support Arizona's workforce and increase competitiveness through a "New Economy" initiative. $35 million in one-time operational funding for ASU, UofA and NAU. $11 million to fully restore cuts to STEM & Workforce Programs in Maricopa, Pima and Pinal community college districts. $10 million for Governor's research and grants matching funding as part of the "New Economy" Initiative. $6 million to the 10 rural community college districts for flexible operating funding to meet the demand for career and technical education programs. $4 million to expand the Arizona Advanced Technology Corridor. $1 million to attract more students to the Arizona Teachers Academy

DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS, REHABILITATION AND REENTRY: $75 million in building renewal and capital management. $48 million of that appropriation is dedicated to complete critical infrastructure improvements to locks, fire alarms and HVAC units at the Lewis and Yuma prisons. $43 million to provide correctional officers 5 percent pay raises and create mid-level correctional corporal positions. These pay raises come in addition to last year's 10 percent raises for a total of 15 percent since FY 2019. $33 million to close Florence Prison. The closure will save taxpayers $274 million over three years through the avoidance of much-needed maintenance and capital upgrades. $9 million to expand Second Chance initiatives and educational programs and add additional substance abuse counselors. $250,000 to expand the successful braille transcription job training program

PUBLIC SAFETY: $7 million for wrong-way driving prevention and response, including $2 million to fund six new State Troopers dedicated to the Wrong-Way Driver Night Watch shift. $8 million in increased grant funding to local law enforcement for additional DUI enforcement

$2 million in the Department of Liquor Licenses and Control to create a nine-member DUI preventative and investigative task force.

First Travel-Related Case of Novel Coronavirus Detected in United States

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) today confirmed the first case of 2019 Novel Coronavirus (2019-nCoV) in the United States in the state of Washington. The patient recently returned from Wuhan, China, where an outbreak of pneumonia caused by this novel coronavirus has been ongoing since December 2019. While originally thought to be spreading from animal-to-person, there are growing indications that limited person-to-person spread is happening. It's unclear how easily this virus is spreading between people.

The patient from Washington with confirmed 2019-nCoV infection returned to the United States from Wuhan on January 15, 2020. The patient sought care at a medical facility in the state of Washington, where the patient was treated for the illness. Based on the patient's travel history and symptoms, healthcare professionals suspected this new coronavirus. A clinical specimen was collected and sent to CDC overnight, where laboratory testing confirmed the diagnosis via CDC's Real time Reverse Transcription-Polymerase Chain Reaction (rRT-PCR) test.

CDC has been proactively preparing for the introduction of 2019-nCoV in the United States for weeks, including:

- First alerting clinicians on January 8, 2020, to be on the look-out for patients with respiratory symptoms and a history of travel to Wuhan, China.

- Developing guidance for clinicians for testing and management of 2019-nCoV, as well as guidance for home care of patients with 2019-nCoV.

- Developing a diagnostic test to detect this virus in clinical specimens, accelerating the time it takes to detect infection. Currently, testing for this virus must take place at CDC, but in the coming days and weeks, CDC will share these tests with domestic and international partners

•On January 17, 2020, CDC began implementing public health entry screening at San Francisco (SFO), New York (JFK), and Los Angeles (LAX) airports. This week CDC will add entry health screening at two more airports – Atlanta (ATL) and Chicago (ORD).

•CDC has activated its Emergency Operations Center to better provide ongoing support to the 2019-nCoV response.

CDC is working closely with the state of Washington and local partners. A CDC team has been deployed to support the ongoing investigation in the state of Washington, including potentially tracing close contacts to determine if anyone else has become ill.

Coronaviruses are a large family of viruses, some causing respiratory illness in people and others circulating among animals including camels, cats and bats. Rarely, animal coronaviruses can evolve and infect people and then spread between people, such as has been seen with Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS) and Middle East Respiratory Syndrome (MERS). When person-to-person spread has occurred with SARS and MERS, it is thought to happen via respiratory droplets with close contacts, similar to how influenza and other respiratory pathogens spread. The situation with regard to 2019-nCoV is still unclear. While severe illness, including illness resulting in several deaths, has been reported in China, other patients have had milder illness and been discharged. Symptoms associated with this virus have included fever, cough and trouble breathing. The confirmation that some limited person-to-person spread with this virus is occurring in Asia raises the level of concern about this virus, but CDC continues to believe the risk of 2019-nCoV to the American public at large remains low at this time.

This is a rapidly evolving situation. CDC will continue to update the public as circumstances warrant.

Arizona Attorney General's Health Care Fraud and Abuse Section Ranked Second Highest in the Nation

The Office of the Arizona Attorney General's Medicaid Fraud Control Unit (MFCU) is ranked second highest in the nation according to data provided to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services ("HHS"). MFCU, housed in the Criminal Division of the Attorney General's Office, is also commonly referred to as the Health Care Fraud and Abuse (HCFA) section in Arizona. The Arizona Attorney General's Office was ranked third highest in the nation in the previous year based on data provided to HHS.

Earlier this year, the HHS published its MFCU statistical summary for Fiscal Year ("FY") 2018, which listed the number of indictments obtained by each of the nation's 50 MFCU's. Adjusting for differences in staff size, Arizona's MFCU emerged as the second most productive in obtaining criminal indictments. In FY 2017, the Unit was ranked third in the nation for most indictments/convictions per capita.

"The Arizona Attorney General's Office is a shining example nationwide for prosecuting criminals who commit Medicaid fraud against the government," said Attorney General Mark Brnovich. "Since 2015, our dedicated team has been among the top three productive units in the country in terms of bringing criminal charges against those that commit Medicaid fraud and abuse patients cared for in Medicaid-funded facilities and has returned millions of dollars to taxpayers."

In FY 2018, Arizona's MFCU initiated over 200 investigations and indicted 83 individuals; 74 for fraud and 9 for abuse/neglect. Also during the same year, 63 individuals were convicted; 56 for fraud and 7 for abuse/neglect, according to statistical data. HCFA's 27 employees were able to recover $11,973,830 in fraudulent funds that were returned to the government.

In addition to being ranked second in the nation, HCFA was also ranked number one for western states. The rankings are determined by statistical data comparing the number of indictments produced by the number of staff members in each of the 50 Medicaid Fraud Control Units in the country.

HCFA also participated with other states' MFCUs and the United States Department of Justice in 55 civil cases that targeted national health care and pharmaceutical companies alleged to have engaged in improper trade practices in FY 2019. In FY 2019, six cases reached settlements. As a result of HCFA's participation, $6,340,085 was recovered from these companies and returned to the government, with $1,996,692 provided directly to the Arizona AHCCCS program and $4,343,393 returned to the federal government.

MFCU is a federally funded unit charged with investigating and prosecuting Medicaid (AHCCCS) fraud, fraud in the administration of the Medicaid program, abuse, and neglect or financial exploitation occurring in Medicaid facilities or committed by Medicaid providers or their employees.

In addition to working collaboratively with federal and local law enforcement agencies, HCFA regularly receives referrals from state health care licensing agencies. The referrals have led to the filing of criminal charges against licensed health care professionals engaging in illegal drug diversion in Arizona. HCFA saw an increase in direct referrals from two hospital groups in FY 2019.

During FY 2019, HCFA received 159 allegations/complaints regarding fraud, patient abuse, and the financial exploitation of vulnerable adults. As a result, 129 new cases were opened for investigation, including 109 fraud cases and 20 patient abuse/financial exploitation cases. HCFA improved upon their 2018 numbers and charged 100 defendants and convicted 72 defendants last fiscal year.

THE WILLCOX TRAIN ROBBERY LOOT

By Ben T. Traywick
World Renowned Author

Wheeler and George hastily looted the safe, stuffing the gold and jewelry into leather saddle bags.

When the daring robbery was completed the bandits mounted horses that were hidden in the brush and raced away to the south.

When he was sure that they had departed, the engineer took his engine down the track to the passenger cars, recoupled them, and backed his train the short distance into Willcox.

Sheriff Fly was already in the process of organizing a posse when the train returned. A large number of men volunteered to ride out on the trail of the bandits. They picked up the trail and followed it for several miles then lost it. The posse rode back into Willcox empty handed the following morning.

Later that morning a rancher, named Moore, whose ranch was a few miles out of Willcox, rode in to report that Wheeler and George had stopped at his house a little after midnight and asked for a meal. He noticed that they appeared nervous, but dismissed it until daybreak when one of his hands rode in with the news of the robbery. The bandits had ridden on as soon as they had finished their meal.

Another rancher, Yates, came in around noon to complain to the Sheriff about his horse being stolen. Around daylight, Wheeler and George had ridden into his place and offered to buy a horse. When Yates refused to sell, George, whose horse was lame, had taken the animal at gun point. Yates said that the two outlaws had then taken the trail leading to Rucker Canyon, an area much used as a hideout by outlaws.

In collecting all the facts and information, the Sheriff found that Wheeler and George had bought dynamite and ammunition at Soto's General Store on the morning of January 30, 1895.

They had told around the local saloons that they were going prospecting in the Dos Cabezas Mountains, located east of Willcox, but they were seen a few hours later riding west of the town. Presumably, they rode out to cache the dynamite and their horses in preparation for the train robbery.

Wells-Fargo posted a substantial reward for the two men. Sheriff Fly notified lawmen in Arizona and surrounding States to be on the lookout for them.

Joe George, a middle-aged surly man, evidently slipped through the deputies patrolling the border, as he was shot to death by a Mexican vaquero during an argument in a Sonora cantina a few weeks later. Less than twenty dollars was found on his body.

Grant Wheeler was a good-looking, young fellow, the son of respectable people in Utah. After he and his accomplice had hidden their loot from the train robbery, Wheeler showed up at the home of his brother in Utah's Blue Mountains.

Sheriff Fly had done his work well. In no time at all, Wheeler discovered that both lawmen and bounty hunters were out to collect the reward for him. There was nothing to do but ride on to parts unknown.

While he was saddling his horse a posse rode up to his brother's ranch. When Wheeler saw that every avenue of escape was blocked, he drew his pistol and shot himself through the head. Only a few cents in change were found in his pockets.

Several years after the turn of the century two prospectors searching through the two peaks found a cave. Inside it in one corner lay two good roping saddles and bridles. It was evident that they had been there for quite some time.

In reconstructing their flight after the train robbery, it was found that the bandits rode south for a few miles then turned east toward Dos Cabezas.

Their hoof prints led to the "Lion's Cave", a short distance west of Dos Cabezas. Tracks continued from there to the desert and into the north range foothills. They turned their horses loose in the foothills and carried saddles, bridles, and loot up to the two peaks. The cave they had previously discovered and had stocked it with provisions.

At the time of the robbery, this area was very remote and almost completely unexplored. There were no trails leading up the old peaks and to just lug heavy saddles that steep, rugged distance and leave them made no sense whatever—unless the cave was used as a hideout.

It is perfectly logical to construe that Wheeler and George put the saddles there after concealing the saddlebags, containing the eighty-four thousand dollars in loot somewhere nearby.

Evidently they intended to return for their gear and loot when the search for them cooled off a bit. However, both were killed a short time later and never returned.

Consequently, the saddlebags of gold and jewelry lie in or near the cave where the saddles were found, waiting to be dug up....

Today in History: January 24th

January 24, 1848-Gold is discovered by James Wilson Marshall at his partner Johann August Sutter's sawmill on the South Fork of the American River, near Coloma, California, igniting the California Gold Rush.

A woman with three men panning for gold during the California Gold Rush

The California Gold Rush was a gold rush that began on January 24, 1848, when gold was found by James W. Marshall at Sutter's Mill in Coloma, California. The news of gold brought approximately 300,000 people to California from the rest of the United States and abroad. The sudden influx of gold into the money supply reinvigorated the American economy, and the sudden population increase allowed California to go rapidly to statehood, in the Compromise of 1850. The Gold Rush had severe effects on Native Californians and resulted in a precipitous native population decline from disease, genocide and starvation. By the time it ended, California had gone from a thinly populated ex-Mexican territory, to having one of its first two U.S. Senators, John C. Frémont, selected to be the first presidential nominee for the new Republican Party, in 1856.

The effects of the Gold Rush were substantial. Whole indigenous societies were attacked and pushed off their lands by the gold-seekers, called "forty-niners" (referring to 1849, the peak year for Gold Rush immigration). Outside of California, the first to arrive were from Oregon, the Sandwich Islands (Hawaii), and Latin America in late 1848. Of the approximately 300,000 people who came to California during the Gold Rush, about half arrived by sea and half came overland on the California Trail and the Gila River trail; forty-niners often faced substantial hardships on the trip. While most of the newly arrived were Americans, the gold rush attracted thousands from Latin America, Europe, Australia, and China. Agriculture and ranching expanded throughout the state to meet the needs of the settlers. San Francisco grew from a small settlement of about 200 residents in 1846 to a boomtown of about 36,000 by 1852. Roads, churches, schools and other towns were built throughout California. In 1849 a state constitution was written. The new constitution was adopted by referendum vote, and the future state's interim first governor and legislature were chosen. In September 1850, California became a state.

At the beginning of the Gold Rush, there was no law regarding property rights in the goldfields and a system of "staking claims" was developed. Prospectors retrieved the gold from streams and riverbeds using simple techniques, such as panning. Although the mining caused environmental harm, more sophisticated methods of gold recovery were developed and later adopted around the world. New methods of transportation developed as steamships came into regular service. By 1869, railroads were built from California to the eastern United States. At its peak, technological advances reached a point where significant financing was required, increasing the proportion of gold companies to individual miners. Gold worth tens of billions of today's US dollars was recovered, which led to great wealth for a few, though many who participated in the California Gold Rush earned little more than they had started with.

VETERANS: $45 million to fully exempt military pension pay from income tax, saving the average Arizona veteran $840 annually. $416,400 to fund six additional Veterans' Benefits Counselor positions, mainly in rural communities.

HEALTH AND WELFARE: $14 million to provide incentives for parents to adopt sibling groups and children with significant developmental disabilities. $11 million for 10 percent pay raises for Department of Child Safety caseworkers. $6 million in ongoing funding from the Medical Marijuana Fund to provide critical access to opioid treatment services to uninsured and underinsured Arizonans. $5 million to double the "Grandmother" stipend for family members who serve as caregivers for children in out-of-home-care, otherwise known as "kinship care". $1 million to improve health of newborns by adding two more tests to newborn testing. $400,000 to establish a Suicide Mortality Review Team to reduce suicide rates and target high-risk populations.

NATURAL RESOURCES: $15 million to fully fund the Water Quality Assurance Revolving Fund Program, a program that remediates hazardous waste sites. This year's budget marks the first time this program has received full funding since 2007. 5 percent raises for Department of Forestry and Fire Management firefighter salary increases. $1.5 million for increased fire suppression funding. $700,000 for travel reduction public awareness campaign.

44 Additional Defendants Served and Accused of Defrauding Government and Insurance Companies by Falsifying Patient Records for Cataract Surgeries

Attorney General Mark Brnovich announced last week that an additional 44 summonses have been served on current or former employees of the Kokopelli Eye Institute in the case against Dr. Michael Lee Ham, an eye surgeon with Kokopelli who was recently indicted for an alleged fraudulent billing scheme.

Agents with the Arizona Attorney General's Office and with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services have been diligently locating and serving indicted defendants. Many defendants are charged with Conspiracy and with Fraudulent Schemes and Artifices, while others also face charges of Illegally Conducting an Enterprise, Participating in a Criminal Syndicate and Theft.

It is alleged the additional defendants assisted Dr. Ham in a variety of ways to falsify patients' medical records for the purpose of inducing government agencies and third-party insurers to pay for cataract and other eye surgeries on patients of Kokopelli Eye Care from 2009 through the Fall of 2018. It is possible some patients had cataract surgeries that were not medically necessary.

Defendant Laura Crain, a long-time employee of Kokopelli Eye Institute, is also charged with Facilitation to Commit Fraudulent Schemes and Artifices, and with Criminal Impersonation for her alleged participation in illegally obtaining a prescription-only drug at the direction of Dr. Ham. It is alleged that Crain, in conjunction with Dr. Ham, obtained medication from a pharmacy in Prescott Valley in August and November of 2016 under the name of a person who did not consent to, nor was aware of, a prescription being written in her name.

Dr. Ham was arrested on January 2nd in Prescott Valley. He appeared in court for his arraignment on Monday, January 13, 2019, in Yavapai County Superior Court. He is charged with Conspiracy, Fraudulent Schemes and Artifices, Illegal Control of an Enterprise, Theft, and Money Laundering violations for allegedly defrauding Medicare, the United States Department of Veterans Affairs, and the Arizona Health Care Cost Containment System (AHCCCS), as well as several private health insurers. Previous news release here.

The indictment follows a multi-agency investigation conducted by the Special Investigations Section of the Arizona Attorney General's Office, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office of Inspector General, and AHCCCS. The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, Office of Inspector General, also assisted. The investigation and prosecution of this case arose from a report to the Prescott office of the Health Care Fraud & Abuse Section of the Attorney General's Office.

All defendants are presumed innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

The Bisbee Science Lab Announces Grand Re-Opening

January 10, 2020 — The Bisbee Science Lab announced a major re-design, re-location, and grand re-opening of its innovative Bisbee Science Lab (BSL). Exactly one year from the initial opening on Bisbee's iconic Main St, BSL has taken up residence at the Queen Mine Tour Building at 478 N. Dart above old Bisbee. "This is a great move for BSL and for the city," offered Mayor David Smith, "the partners who made this happen are committed to its success." The Board of Directors invite the community in celebrating past successes and future endeavors as BSL continues to bring informal STEM learning fun, interactive, and engaging programming for all ages.

Opportunities to expand BSL to incorporate more geology and sustainability makes the move to the Queen Mine Tour site a perfect synergy. Keep an eye out for Geology Tours and Sustainability programs in the upcoming year as well as open calls for Artists to engage with BSL in the development of new exhibits. And one of the most exciting developments on the horizon is a possible field station and/or tours to the Freeport McMoRan Bisbee Mine Reclamation sites. These sites are world renown for their innovative approaches to mine site reclamation.

With the change in location, the board looks forward to building upon an amazing first year. A year earmarked with community driven programming in Environmental sustainability and climate topics. Which in turn resulted in Science Cafés and Science Friday activities reflecting these themes. In addition there was the co-development with the University of Arizona's 4H STEM of a Maker and Tinker space at an off-site space affectionately called, The Annex (519 W. Melody Lane in the San Jose Ward). This was made possible by the Bisbee School District and its Superintendent, Tom Woody. Starting in the Summer of 2019, The Annex also became the new site for BSL's Science Friday (1pm-3pm), a program that continues to align children oriented STEM projects with the BSL's monthly topics.

BSL's success was an international hit in 2019 with board members presenting at the Association for Science and Technology Center's annual conference in Toronto Canada. Interest was especially high due to BSL's situation as a developing institution on the border. Additional accolades came in from the Arizona Community Foundation's Southern Region, with BSL voted as the best non-profit of the year.

In the Fall BSL was featured on an episode of Arizona Illustrated (Tucson PBS), and from its inception has had great local media support.

What can be expected over the long term? A continuation of work with regional, state, and federal partners toward the development of a research center on property near the border, becoming a partner with the UA's newly developed Borderlands Education Center, and building a mobile science lab to bring STEM experiences to all parts of the region. Keep an eye on our website (bisbeesciencelab.org) to keep up with our efforts.

The Bisbee Science Exploration & Research Center is a 501(c)3 organization and all financial support is tax deductible. As an Experiment in Progress the BSL needs to see, hear, and understand the focus of our support community. Come by, volunteer, provide financial support, be part of the unique vision that is the Bisbee Science Lab.

Weekly Movie Review:

"Bad Boys for Life"

GRADE: C

By Bob Garver

In preparation for "Bad Boys for Life," I watched the previous two "Bad Boys" films from 1995 and 2003. This research coincided with the "Jeopardy!" Greatest of All Time tournament, which featured especially hard clues designed to challenge the brainiac players. It was an interesting balance of opposite ends of the IQ spectrum. When "Jeopardy!" had my brain short-circuiting, I turned on "Bad Boys" to cool it down. When "Bad Boys" had my brain flatlining, I turned on "Jeopardy!" to bring it back to life. By the end of the week two things were clear: that I should never get within 500 feet of the "Jeopardy!" set, and that the "Bad Boys" franchise was just as explosive and dumb as I expected from pre-"Transformers" Michael Bay. The new film isn't directed by Bay, but new helmers Adil El Arbi and Bilall Fallah are clearly following his blueprint very closely, for better or worse.

Will Smith and Martin Lawrence are back as Miami detectives Mike Lowery and Marcus Burnett, respectively. Mike wants to keep chasing bad guys for all eternity, while Marcus wants to retire to spend time with his family, which now includes a grandchild. And of course their captain (Joe Pantoliano) just wants them both to stop giving him ulcers. Imprisoned cartel queen Isabel (Kate del Castillo) and her son Armando (Jacob Scipio) have plans to see that these people don't get what they want. During Isabel's inevitable escape, she comes across an overturned fruit cart. Doesn't this movie know that it's supposed to show the senseless destruction of the fruit cart during a chase scene?

An assassination attempt on Mike leaves him unable to pursue Isabel and Armando himself. But he can consult with an upstart unit led by potential love interest Rita (Paola Nuñez). Mike clashes with the younger officers in the unit (Charles Melton, Vanessa Hudgens, and Alexander Ludwig), who mean well but aren't proactive (i.e. ready to go into a situation with guns a-blazing) like him. What he really needs is Marcus back, but his old partner has committed himself to non-violence. This obstacle lasts for about a scene and a half before Mike has Marcus do some mental gymnastics to make him reckless and deadly again.

The Mike/Marcus relationship is given a moderate amount of attention, though thankfully not so much that Martin Lawrence is allowed to really annoy me like in the first movie. The relationship between Mike and Rita and her team is given minimal attention, mostly limited to arguments over the team's "observe, don't get involved" position (Vanessa Hudgens is not in the movie nearly enough to justify her third-from-the-top billing). There's a lot of development given toward the relationship between Mike and the villains at the end. The storyline culminates in a tease for another sequel, which makes me wonder if the studio's marketing team regrets calling the third movie "Bad Boys for Life" when saving the title for the fourth movie and calling it "Bad Boys 4 Life" makes much more sense.

Your opinion of "Bad Boys for Life" will depend heavily on how you feel about movies that pride themselves on being dumb, but fun. Here's a test: there's a scene where the characters go into a showdown at a Mexican church filled with stained glass windows. Are you rubbing your hands in anticipation of all the glass breaking? If so, this is the movie for you. If not, you probably won't like the glass breaking or all the shooting and explosions that take place long after the movie has run out of glass to break. I'm of the opinion that the action should last only as long as there's glass to break.

"Bad Boys for Life" is rated R for strong bloody violence, language throughout, sexual references and brief drug use. Its running time is 123 minutes. Contact Bob Garver at rrg251@nyu.edu.

Casino Cheaters Caught: Dealer and Player Conspired to Cheat two Maryland Casinos out of More Than $1 Million

After just a few hours of playing baccarat at a Maryland casino in September 2017, Chenguang Ni headed home to New York with more than $850,000 in winnings.

The odds of winning any given hand of baccarat stand at just under 50 percent. But Ni and his tablemates won an astounding 18 of 21 hands—including one run of 14 straight wins.

The next day, the casino called the FBI's Baltimore Field Office. Ni had cheated, they believed, and one of their dealers had likely helped him. But the dealer they suspected, Ming Zhang, denied any involvement when questioned by the casino.

"The casino knew there had been cheating," said FBI Special Agent Jason Bender of his investigation of the case. "What wasn't known was exactly how the player did it."

Baccarat games are played with eight decks of cards. The dealer—called the banker—typically spreads the cards on the table to show the players that they are standard decks, shuffles them, and then places them into a holding container for play.

The banker then deals two cards to the player position and two cards to the bank position. A player bets on whose hand will come closest to nine—the player or the banker—or if they will tie. There is only a single player hand no matter how many players are at the table, and extra cards are dealt out only under certain prescribed circumstances.

A player who knew the order of the cards in the deck could predict the outcome of each game with absolute accuracy. The casino concluded that Ni must have known the order of the cards.

By reviewing the casino's surveillance footage and conducting interviews, FBI agents confirmed that Ni had convinced the other gamblers at the table to follow his lead that night. These unwitting accomplices were given money by Ni and told to bet along with him and then hand over their winnings at the end of the game.

Soon after, the casino dealer confessed to his role in the scheme. Zhang, who worked at two Maryland casinos, admitted he met with Ni over the summer of 2017. The two men agreed that Zhang would alert Ni of his upcoming shifts as a dealer at the casinos. He further agreed to not shuffle a section of cards in the baccarat deck after they had been fanned in front of players.

Ni found a way to use his phone to take images of the cards as they were fanned out. "Then he and the other gamblers he recruited would sit there for a while, playing smaller bets just to move the cards along and keep their seats," Bender explained.

During this time, Ni excused himself from the table on several occasions to go to the bathroom to review the images of the deck. Bender said that Ni didn't have to memorize each card in the unshuffled section of the deck but only needed to recognize the sequence of cards that would signal the unshuffled cards had come up. "Then he just needed to remember the either/or sequence of the bets—as in player, banker, player, player," Bender said.

Investigators learned the pair had also carried out a similar plan at another casino where Zhang previously worked, and the take from that casino was nearly $200,000.

By the time agents came to Ni, their evidence was strong. Ni pleaded guilty to conspiracy to transport stolen funds and was sentenced to 13 months in prison. Because Ni is not a legal resident of the United States, his case will be referred to Immigration and Customs Enforcement after he has served his sentence.

The dealer, Zhang, was fired from the casino and sentenced to 18 months in federal prison in December 2019. He was also given three years of supervised release and ordered to pay restitution equal to the full amount of the illicit winnings.

In total, investigators found the pair cheated the casinos of $1,046,560.

Bender explained that although these casinos are big business, a portion of the casino's profits go into the Maryland education trust fund. "Part of that revenue belongs to the state of Maryland, and part of the theft affects state education funding," he said.

He also warned would-be cheaters: "You should assume you will be caught." Bender said that the casinos usually detect cheating while the player is still at the table. "But even if you walk out, the evidence of the crime is going to be captured."

In other words, the odds are overwhelmingly against you.
