Preface

Consistent with the need for a special code of a business enterprise whose overseas activities demand constant correspondence by telegraph, this code has been compiled for the motion picture industry, for use within the industry proper, with its allied industries, and by individuals connected with the industry for both commercial and personal telegraphic communication.

It has been the aim of the compiler to produce a telegraph code capable of practically unlimited scope in the preparation of verbatim messages, at a marked saving over methods used by the industry in the past, and the operation of the code will quickly demonstrate the accomplishment of his purpose in the fullest sense of the term.

The great mass of technical words and phrases applicable to the motion picture industry, embodied herein, has been built up from a nucleus formed from the exclusive code additions of the larger producing and distributing companies of America and Europe, therefore will be found adequate when telegraphing upon subjects dealing with the usual transactions of the industry.

Innovations, the merits of which are described in detail in succeeding pages, such as:

The embodiment of the three-letter method in addition to that of the five;

The division of the text into five complete interlocking units, providing greater facility in handling;

The grouping of verb tenses, increasing flexibility in phrasing messages;

The lists of steamships, cities and ports, included for the benefit of the travelling public of the industry;

The three and five-letter code word verification charts;

The loose-leaf feature, permitting the insertion of revised "Listings" each year, and also the replacement of mutilated pages, and others, all combine to give the Cinema Code its distinctive character.

We take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation for the co-operation on the part of the officials of the various companies whose contributions to the text have assisted materially in the creation of this essential publication, which is certain to be of inestimable value to the motion picture industry in general.

Explanation

General

In order to bring the Cinema Code to its present state of perfection, some radical departures from the methods employed by the compilers of the more generally used codes have been necessary. The reasons for such departures, together with a brief outline of the general benefit to be derived therefrom, are given below.

Every organized industry should have its own special code to assure the very highest standard of efficiency in the conduct of telegraphic communication. Such special codes should be built to cover thoroughly the technical terms pertaining to the particular field of activities in which it will be used, as well as to contain all commercial terms incidental to modern business correspondence. The general code is unsuitable, owing to the great bulk of matter printed, of which a large percentage is without value to any one line of business, which necessitates the building of an addenda to cover the technical terms in each case. The size of the volume and the separation of the commercial and technical matter makes it too cumbersome to be of practical use on account of the time consumed in handling.

In the general plan of this book the aim has been to get the largest possible amount of matter pertaining to the motion picture industry in the smallest possible space. To accomplish this, the printing of all useless repetition of words, ditto marks, and other substance foreign to the special field for which the code is intended, has been excluded from the text, devoting the space to matter rich in words and phrases applicable to the commercial and personal needs of those into whose hands the book will find its way. The more conversant one becomes with the code, just so much more will the value of this feature manifest itself.

Since every item comprising the code additions of the leading producing and distributing companies will be found in its alphabetical place in this book, thus giving all its users the benefit of the technical motion picture terms of the combined companies, the superiority of the Cinema Code over a general code having the additions of the individual company only, and in the back part of the book, is too obvious to warrant discussion here.

THREE-LETTER CODES.—Considerable experimentation along the lines of a three-letter code, covering sufficient scope to be of value for general use, has been indulged in during the past fifteen years, and the efforts of a few “three-letter” advocates have recently appeared on the market in book form. The sale of these books, however, has been very disappointing, owing to the non-development of the principal elements of a practical three-letter code, i.e., a section indicator system without waste, a reliable verification method, and freedom from intricate manipulation in operating.

Realizing the saving that would result from the additional fragment of a message possible to include in each complete code word of ten letters, every effort was made to remedy the defects responsible for the only mediocre success of other three-letter codes, and after more than a year of hard work this has been accomplished, warranting the embodiment in this book of a thoroughly practical and simple three-letter method having a section indicator system without waste, and a verification method that will not only disclose a mutilation, but correct it.

DIVISION OF TEXT INTO SECTIONS.—By reason of the segregation of the material comprising each element of the text into separate sections, considerable advantage is obtained both in coding and decoding messages. In the former case, when dealing with a single subject, that part of the book in which the subject has no representation need not be disturbed, thereby saving time and avoiding unnecessary turning of pages. In general correspondence it is often possible to phrase the message from Sections 1 and 2 without having to go beyond page 105.

In decoding a message from the five-letter method, the word sought can be turned to with a great deal more accuracy on account of the sectional arrangement of the book, as the initial letter of each five-letter code word is a vowel, and indicates the section from which the word was drawn. Should the first and second letters of the complete code word be “em” and the sixth and seventh letters “ob,” the first half word would be found about the middle of Section 2, and the last half word in the beginning of Section 4.

ALPHABETICAL ARRANGEMENT OF TEXT.—To assure the same continuity of expression in phrasing a telegram as is obtainable in letter writing, the text has been so arranged that a phrase will always read forward. The practice of finding the subject word and searching below for a phrase (the subject word of which may be in the middle or at the end) that will express the meaning to be conveyed has been done away with. The reason for this is that in too many cases a doubt exists as to the proper subject word, and in a great many other cases, while a phrase might be found that will fit the message, it will lack the precise formation to produce proper continuity. Shorter, clearer and better expressed telegrams will result from this change. To the rule of strict alphabetization, the only exceptions are the “Calendar” and “Reference to Correspondence” tables, Sections 3 and 1, respectively, and the combining of phrase beginnings in Section 1. This last is taken care of by the section index.

GROUPING OF VERB TENSES.—So long as confliction can be avoided, it is very desirable to group the verb tenses under one code word, as greater scope and flexibility are obtainable by so doing, and much less space is consumed. Had this feature been adopted in compiling the Vocabulary section of this code, in order to provide a separate code word for every combination possible of coding, approximately three times the space would have been required.

The context of the message indicates if the verbs used are in the present, past or future tense, as illustrated by the following examples:

avwyieckeh--Will it be possible to ascertain purchase price of motion picture rights for.....

akxuceckeh--We have ascertained purchase price of motion picture rights for.....

akmukeckeh--I am ascertaining purchase price of motion picture rights for.....

It will be noted that in all cases the last half of the complete code word is the same. The above tends to show the flexibility obtainable by grouping the tenses.

Section One

PHRASES.—It frequently happens when coding a message that the most economical phraseology for its expression does not immediately suggest itself, although the meaning to be conveyed may be perfectly clear in one's mind. With a view to correcting this condition, sixty-two hundred commonly used phrases have been conveniently grouped in this section, with an alphabetically arranged index to their captions. Any doubt as to the best and most economical way to begin a message will be instantly dispelled by consulting the index.

Having selected the proper caption, turn to the page indicated and find among the small type indentions below it a phrase that will as nearly as possible complete the sentence. If dealing with general correspondence, turn to Section 2, where such words as may be lacking will be found, or to Section 3, 4 or 5, according to the subject. Captions are always read in conjunction with the small type indentions immediately following. Item 4532, page 38, would read—"There is a pirated print here of." The Caption "There" is combined with "is pirated print here of," thus forming the complete phrase. This rule must never be departed from.

When the subject of a telegram is indicated, reference may be made thereto throughout the body of the message by using its corresponding pronoun. Provision has been made for indicating the subject by combining the phrase—"The subject of this telegram is" (item 8) with the name of the particular subject. Application of this feature will be found advantageous, particularly in long telegrams dealing with the same subject.

Section Two

VOCABULARY.—This section is made up of two component parts, i.e., a list of alphabetically arranged dictionary words printed in large type, and a collection of phrase fragments shown in small type, which, when combined with the dictionary word immediately above, form complete phrases. The dictionary word is always read in conjunction with the small type indentions below. Item 10282, page 87, would read—"Picture has a good box-office title." Combining the word "Picture" with "has a good box-office title," forms the complete phrase. This rule must always be observed.

In selecting the words and terms for this section, the primary consideration has been that of utility; that is, such words have been chosen that will most thoroughly cover the needs of the users of the code. In addition to the mass of commercial and technical words and phrases included in the vocabulary section, many terms are provided that may be used in messages of a personal character. This feature, not found in strictly commercial code books, is embodied for the benefit of the travelling public of the industry.

Section Three

VALUES.—In many cases when telegraphing upon subjects dealing with the usual transactions of the industry, the entire message can be drawn from this section owing to the fact that the words and phrases that have been included were selected to combine with words expressing values, measurements, equipment and supplies. Item 13346, page 113, "Do not pay (...for...)," would form a complete phrase by adding the code words corresponding to the price and the name of the picture, it being understood that the former is to precede, and the latter follow the word "for," shown between brackets. This also applies to articles of equipment and supplies.

NUMERALS.—For the purpose of verification, often desirable when speaking of large amounts, two ways are provided for expressing numbers; figures, shown under "Numerals," beginning on page 121, and by the spelled-out equivalent shown alphabetically throughout the section. When using figures, a number is expressed by assembling the units exactly as the number is written, beginning at the extreme left and working toward the decimal point. The three-letters ciphers "IAD," "HDK" and "HUE," when assembled would express 8,043,061. Dealing with footage and with amounts in dollars, particularly in round numbers, it is desirable to use the spelled-out equivalent, as the words "dollars" and "feet" would be included in the same code word.

MEASUREMENTS.—Dimensions of all advertising material, and of such articles of equipment and supplies as are ordered by size, are shown. There is also a general provision for expressing measurements in both the metric and U. S. standard systems. Elements of time are shown on opposite pages under "Calendar," instead of being distributed through the section alphabetically. It is believed that this arrangement will be found to be more convenient than the old way.

RELEASES.—Six pages of blank lines following code words are included for the listing of pictures. These sheets may be renewed from time to time as needed, thus providing means for a perpetual list of releases. It is suggested that each subject be given a number, which would answer two purposes; one, the verification of the title, and the other, possible reference to the picture after becoming obsolete.

EQUIPMENT.—By combining the code word corresponding to an article of equipment or supplies, with the code equivalent of the appropriate phrase in the first part of the section, most any transaction incidental to the purchase, sale, payment, shipment, etc., of such equipment and supplies, can be referred to without having to leave the section. Item 16589, page 139, when combined with item 17815, page 152, and item 14353, page 120, would read—"You may buy Power's 6B Projector with high intensity arc lamp and latest improvements, with 110 volt direct current motor drive for nine hundred dollars." If using the three-letter method, all this would be expressed in the single word, "PYDVLYGYUK."

When telegraphing upon the subject of equipment and supplies, should it be desirable to specify the make of the article, in the event of the make not having been included, the name of the manufacturer thereof will be found in Section 5 under "Allied Industries," and its code equivalent should immediately follow that of the article.

As in Sections 1 and 2, the words printed in large type throughout this section are read in conjunction with the small type indentions immediately following. In the equipment division of the section, however, in order to provide code words for the specifications of many of the articles, two, and in some cases three, indentions have been necessary, all of which must be combined with the main word. Item 18406, page 158, would read—"Bausch & Lomb Aluminum Screen, 12 x 12 feet."

ADDITIONS.—Code words in blank will be found on pages 140, 141, and 159, in which may be inserted such additional words and phrases, in the first two pages mentioned, and articles of equipment and supplies, in the last, as may from time to time be found necessary. This space is intended for additions that would properly belong in the first three sections only.

Section Four

TERRITORIAL GROUPS.—In the arrangement of contracts, reference to territories comprising one or more countries is so often necessary, that much care was taken in the preparation of this division of Section 4, with a view to the utmost economy when speaking of territorial groups. It will be observed that every combination of countries has been made possible at a minimum saving of fifty per cent. and that many more are possible at a much greater saving. The following example illustrates the value of this feature: Using the three-letter method, the phrase—"With exhibition rights for Cuba, Porto Rico, Santo Domingo and Mexico" can be coded in the one word "ZRUAGBAMYJ". When looking for the best group to fit the requirements always start with the country whose initial letter is nearest the beginning of the alphabet.

CITIES.—The list of twenty-six hundred and thirteen cities of the world has been included for the benefit of travellers and shippers as well as to provide means for reference to exhibitions of pictures in certain places, and it is believed that the list will be found adequate to meet every possible contingency where reference to the name of a city should be made. The country in which the city is located is given in each case, and if a port this is indicated by the letter "P" opposite.

STEAMSHIPS.—The names of three thousand and twelve steamships are listed for making references to shipments and to arrivals and departures of the traveller. Reference may be made to all passenger steamers, of five thousand tons and upwards, traversing any of the ocean lanes of the world. Space is provided for the listing of the names of steamships that may be commissioned subsequent to the publication of this book.

Section Five

This section not only furnishes a directory of individuals and commercial firms comprising the vital factions of the industry, but also supplies the means whereby reference can be made to them in telegraphic correspondence, and when the cable address appears, direct dealing with any one listed is made possible. In view of the above it would be superfluous to speak further on the importance to everybody connected with the Motion Picture industry of being listed herein.

It is the intention of the publishers to bring these lists up to date at such intervals as would render the highest standard of service to the industry in general, and in order to make possible the accomplishment of this feature in the most efficient manner, the book has been made loose-leaf, thereby permitting the insertion of the revised lists as they are published.

It is the strong recommendation of the Publishers that the three-letter system be used only when its essentials and verification system are completely mastered. For ordinary use—especially for those not thoroughly conversant with coding systems—the five-letter words are preferable, on the grounds of both simplicity and safety in usage.

It is the hope and expectation of the publishers to revise the Listings Section of this Code from time to time as may be found necessary.

They would much appreciate the expression by users of the code of their opinion as to the utility of the Listings, also suggestions for improvements or additions in future issues.

New names of Firms or individuals that should be included, changes in title or address of those already listed, Telegraphic addresses, etc., are earnestly requested from all users, and will be carefully noted for future use.

Rates for prominent listings or display advertising will gladly be sent on application.

THE PUBLISHERS.

Verification of Five Letter Code Words

The diagram at right illustrates the manner in which any five-letter code word appearing in the book may be verified. A vertical line from its first two letters, and a horizontal line from its last two letters, intersecting at its third letter. Once this is understood, the process of correcting a five-letter code word mutilated in any one of the five letters is very simple.

Using the code word 'amofu', mutilated in each of its five letters, for the examples, by following on the chart the explanation for finding the correction of all five words, in order, the process should be instantly grasped and remembered. The mutilation in each case is represented by the bracketed letter, assuming the other four letters to be correct.
(Examples follow on opposite page.)

THIRD LETTER

- (i)mofu Follow the horizontal line from 'fu', line 6, to 'o', column 19. then the intersecting vertical line to group at top of chart whose second letter is 'm'. Its companion letter 'a' when substituted for 'i' will make the correction.
- a(z)ofu Proceed as in first example to top of chart, but to group whose first letter is 'a'. Its companion letter 'm' when substituted for 'z' will make the correction.
- am(y)fu The letter 'o' will be found at the intersection of a vertical line drawn from 'am', column 19, and a horizontal line drawn from 'fu', line 6, and when substituted for 'y' will make the correction.
- amo(h)u Follow the vertical line from 'am', column 19, to 'o', then the intersecting horizontal line to group whose second letter is 'u'. Its companion letter 'f' when substituted for 'h' will make the correction.
- amof(a) Proceed as in fourth example, but follow the horizontal line to group whose first letter is 'f'. Its companion letter 'u' when substituted for 'a' will make the correction.

While it is unusual for a five-letter code word to be mutilated in more than one letter, it sometimes happens, and if the mutilation occurs in the first two letters it may be corrected as follows:

Proceed as in first example to top of chart where the five possibilities 'uf', 'oq', 'iw', 'es' and 'am' will be found. By prefixing each group to the last three letters 'ofu' and referring to the text, a phrase will be found corresponding to one of these words that will be in harmony with balance of message and may be accepted as correct. It is not safe to attempt the correction of the last two letters together for the reason that in too many cases the possibilities pertain to the same subject, one being only a slight variation from another, particularly when dealing with values, measurements, etc.

The four mutilations of this word by transposition are 'maofu', 'aomfu', 'amfou' and 'amouf', and failing to obtain satisfactory results from the substitution tests, the correct reading might be found by testing for a transposition.

Failing in all tests to correct the mutilation, a repetition should be requested.

FOURTH AND FIFTH LETTERS

Verification of Three Letter Ciphers

Each three-letter cipher is given a value from the chart on page XIV, and is the sum of the digits found at the intersection of a horizontal and a vertical line drawn from its first and second letters, respectively, and of a horizontal and a vertical line drawn from its second and third letters, respectively. The total of these values constitutes a check number for the message, and its corresponding three-letter cipher, taken from 'Numerals', page 121, is added at the end of the message.

Figures 1 and 2 represent sections taken from the chart, just covering the example, to illustrate the manner of finding the value of a three-letter cipher, and when once understood, the process of correcting a cipher received with its first, second or third letter mutilated, is a very simple one.

	A	B	C	D
A	1	2	3	4
B	2	3	4	5
C	3	4	5	6
D	4	5	6	7
E	5	6	7	8	ED = 8

Figure 1

	A	B	C
A	1	2	3
B	2	3	4
C	3	4	5
D	4	5	6	DC = 6

EDC = 14

Figure 2

Before decoding a message an attempt should be made to reconcile the three-letter cipher values with the check number by deducting each value therefrom, and if complete absorption of the check number is accomplished, it is known that no mutilation has occurred. Should, however, a discrepancy manifest itself, a mutilation has occurred and must be found in manner illustrated by the following example:

(Telegram)

The check number of the above message is 86, and its corresponding three-letter cipher 'IDN', found under 'Numerals', page 121, is placed at the end of the message.

The assembled message is shown in its correct coded form; again with an end letter mutilation, and again with a middle letter mutilation, in order that the explanation which follows may be more readily understood. Mutilations appear in the bracketed ciphers.

(Mutilated Message No. 1)
ZYLAPONAIW	DUM(SHO)BIA	UOCYAVIDN
(Mutilated Message No. 2)

(Note: Indicator letters have been omitted from the examples for the reason that they are ignored when testing for mutilations.)

1. An attempt to reconcile mutilated message No. 1 with check number will reveal a discrepancy of 7, the total values thereof being 79 instead of 86. The next step is to translate the ciphers.

2. Upon assembling the translated message, we find that the first six fragments thereof harmonize perfectly, the seventh cipher does not appear in the book, and the eighth cipher is probably correct. Ascertain the total values of all the ciphers excepting the seventh, and deduct the amount, which in this case is 70, from check number 86. The result of the operation is 16, the correct value of the mutilated cipher. We now know the seventh cipher 'UOE', whose value is 9, to contain the mutilation, and that it must be reformed so as to change its value to 16.

3. Following a horizontal line from 'U' and a vertical line from 'O', the digit 8 will be found at their intersection. Knowing 8 to correspond to 'UO', a letter must be found, which, when combined with 'O' will equal 8, the balance of the cipher value 16. Right-angles are now formed with 'O' as base of the horizontal line and the digit 8 the vertex. The base of the vertical line will show a 'C' in one case, an 'L' in another and a 'U' in another, one of which, when combined with 'UO' will make the correction, to be verified by referring to the text.

4. Since in this case the corrected cipher must represent a phrase that will fit immediately in front of the name of a steamship, the only phrase that could possibly be considered is that corresponding to 'UOC', page 96, reading 'SHIPMENT WILL GO FORWARD ON'. The phrase corresponding to 'UOL' is altogether unsuitable, and 'UOU' does not appear in the book.

5. For a first letter mutilation the procedure is identical to that for finding a third letter, excepting the digit corresponding to the second and third letters is found first. Using the cipher 'UOC', value 16, after finding 8 to equal 'OC', follow the 'O' line to the last 8, where 'U' will be found at the top of the column.

6. If no satisfactory result is obtained after testing for an end letter mutilation, it is reasonable to suppose that the middle letter is responsible for the discrepancy, and we must proceed in the following manner to find a substitute that will correspond to the correct value. The result is illustrated by figure 3.

7. After determining the correct value of the mutilated cipher, as explained in paragraphs 1 and 2, place a strip of paper across chart immediately under the alphabet line, marking thereon arrows pointing to the first and third letters of the cipher. Working downward, three lines will be found where the sum of the columns will equal the correct value. The letter corresponding to one of the lines, when placed between the first and third letters, will make the correction, to be verified by referring to the text.

9	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	1	2	D
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	1	2	3	E

8. Using the bracketed cipher 'SHO' for the example, the letter 'H' must be substituted by a letter that will change the cipher value from 12 to 6. Following the directions, the correct value (6) will be found to be the total of columns 'S' & 'O' on lines 'E', 'N' and 'W'. The text is now referred to, and finding the phrase corresponding to 'SEO', reading 'TELEGRAPH WHEN', the only one of the three that will fit before 'BANK CREDIT HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED', it must be accepted as correct.

A little experimentation will demonstrate the simplicity of correcting three-letter cipher mutilations, even to the extent of finding all three letters of a cipher that has been omitted in transmission, so long as the check number is correct.

It is the strong recommendation of the Publishers that the three-letter system be used only when its essentials and verification system are completely mastered. For ordinary use—especially for those not thoroughly conversant with coding systems—the five-letter words are preferable, on the grounds of both simplicity and safety in usage.

Section Indicator System For Three Letter Method

The limited number of 3-letter combinations that can be constructed necessitates the use of the same series of combinations in each of the five sections of the code. It is therefore necessary to provide a system of indicators to inform the recipient of the message which section, or combination of sections, the 3-letter groups are to be decoded from.

Ten letters being the maximum that can be transmitted as one word, there is available the last letter of each 10-letter word to indicate the sections from which the preceding three 3-letter groups are to be read. One hundred and thirty different combinations of the five sections are possible, and any one of these may, of course, occur in any one code word. It is obviously impossible for all these combinations to be represented by an individual letter, as each letter of the alphabet would have to be used five times, and would thus point to five different combinations without showing which particular one was meant.

We have, therefore, adopted a system that indicates with certainty the first two combinations and leaves the third to be read as indicated by the context of the message. In practice this system works perfectly, as the two groups following the unindicated group are also indicated definitely by the indicator letter of the next 10-letter word. Thus in decoding a message only one 3-letter group in every five is not indicated, and the widely diverse meanings allotted to the 3-letter combinations in the different sections enable this group to be found with certainty.

USE WHEN CODING.—The numbers of the sections from which the first two out of every three 3-letter groups are taken must be noted and the letter shown against the resulting figures in the following table added after each third group, making a complete word of ten letters.

USE WHEN DECODING.—The last letter of each 10-letter word must first be found in the following table. The figures against it indicate the sections of the code from which the first two 3-letter groups are to be read. After decoding these two groups find in the table the last letter of the next 10-letter word and decode the first two 3-letter groups as above. There is now the third group of the first word remaining to be decoded, and the context of the preceding and following portions of the message will indicate with certainty from which section this group should be read—and so on to the end of the message.

After decoding the first two 3-letter groups of each word from the indicated sections it will be seen that the message does not require either technical matter or names to complete it. The third and sixth groups must therefore be looked for in sections 1 or 2 (Phrases or Vocabulary). Upon turning to these sections it will be seen that the meanings allotted in section 1 do not make sense, but those in section 2 complete the message perfectly.

It is the strong recommendation of the Publishers that the three-letter system be used only when its essentials and verification system are completely mastered. For ordinary use—especially for those not thoroughly conversant with coding systems—the five-letter words are preferable, on the grounds of both simplicity and safety in usage.

U. S. BONDED WAREHOUSE

If your office is in New York your films stored in our vaults gives you the assurance of having your valuable motion picture negatives and positives in the very safest place in the world. Storing with us also relieves you of all the petty details of the physical handling of hazardous materials and the consequent annoyance of stringent fire department requirements, so odious to the busy executive.

If you are located abroad or out of town the storage of your motion picture films in our approved fire-proof vaults at a nominal monthly storage charge gives you a service for which a special representative would probably charge you an amount equal in just one week to what you would pay us in a whole year.

A customer's interests are ours. We accept no commissions and pay none. For handling for a customer all of the details of a transaction that in commissions to an agent or a broker would cost the customer hundreds and perhaps thousands of dollars our charge would be only a few dollars for storage, projection and delivery services.

Our slogan—"Nothing too big for us to undertake. Nothing too small for us to do in a big way"—applies particularly to the very great variety of services which we are constantly rendering to our satisfied customers in all parts of the world.

Our warehouse is bonded. Have your incoming foreign shipmen signed in our care and you will then be able to examine them just around the corner from your office. You will also be able to project in bond prints of foreign subjects and to return them without the payment of duty.

Send your films to our warehouse. Write us a letter telling us to view them or just what to do with them. Your patronage will be appreciated and your instructions will be carried out in a manner that is absolutely to your satisfaction. We will show your pictures to any one of the buyers of American and foreign rights and for a nominal charge will execute any kind of an agreement you may require. To all of these you are entitled as a customer of
