Covid passports on the way

■ Vaccines Minister signals government ready to move ahead with controversial scheme

COMPULSORY Covid passport checks for people at large gatherings is the "right thing to do" and authorities are set to press ahead, the Vaccines Minister suggested this week

In a series of broadcast interviews, Nadhim Zahawi said the move was aimed at ensuring the economy stayed open for good, with no more virus lockdowns.

Asked whether he had made up his mind about vaccines passports, Mr Zahawi said: "We are looking at, by the end of September when everyone has had the opportunity to be fully vaccinated, for the large venues — venues that could end up causing a real spike in infections — where we need to use the certification process.

"If you look at what the FA have done, they've done so brilliantly in terms of checking vaccine status to reopen football.

"That is the sort of right thing to do and we are absolutely on track to continue to make sure that we do that.

"There's a reason for that – the reason being is that, I, as does the Prime minister, want to make sure the whole economy remains open."

Promising to do "anything in my power" to prevent another Covid lockdown this winter, Mr Zahawi said: "the worst thing we can do for those venues is to have a sort of open-shut, open-shut strategy because we see infection rates rise because of the close interaction of people.

"That's how the virus spreads. If people are in close spaces in large numbers we see spikes appearing.

parental consent

"The best thing to do then is to work with the industry to make sure that they can open safely and sustainably in the long-term and the best way to do that is to check vaccine status." Mr Zahawi also pledged parents would be asked for their consent before their children were given Covid jabs. The minister said the Government had yet to decide whether to go ahead with vaccinating healthy youngsters aged between 12 and 15 against the disease.

But he "absolutely" guaranteed that parental permission would be sought if the plan went ahead, before inoculations were given. Last week, members of Whitehall's Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) decided they would not recommend jabbing healthy younger teenagers.

Asked whether parents' consent would be sought before their children get jabs, the minister said: "I can give that assurance, absolutely." He also said children would be allowed to go against their parents' wishes if they attempted to stop them getting vaccinated "if they are deemed competent", in line with a long-held legal principle.

long-held legal principle. Mr Zahawi said he hoped the transition of the virus "from pandemic to endemic status" would continue so people could enjoy activities with the economy fully open and "get life back to as normal as we can make it as quickly as possible".

Scotland approves plans for October 1 launch

The Scottish parliament has approved plans for vaccine passports, which will come into force from 1 October for those seeking entry to nightclubs and large-scale events, despite fierce criticism from opposition parties and business leaders.

The SNP government's proposal was passed with support from the Scottish Greens, who signed a cooperation deal with the Scottish government last month. It was despite Green co-leader Patrick Harvie previously warning that vaccine passports posed "a real danger of generational" injustice"

During a fractious debate at Holyrood on Thursday afternoon, Scottish Liberal Democrat leader Alex Cole-Hamilton accused the Scottish Greens of being "midwives to a policy that sets the country on a disturbing and illiberal course".

"For the first time, citizens will be asked to provide private medical data to a stranger, who is not their clinician, if they want to enjoy access to venues and services in our society," he said.

The Covid recovery secretary, John Swinney, said the proposals were "proportionate" and "part of an approach to protect a very fragile situation that we face in Scotland today of rising infections and hospitalisation that poses a threat to our national health service".

From October 1, the scheme will make a QR code available through a smartphone app along with a paper alternative for those who need it - which will be scanned before entry is allowed to nightclubs or similar venues, adult entertainment, unseated indoor events with more than 500 people, outdoor unseated events with more than 4,000 people, or any event with more than 10,000 in attendance.

UK house prices soar to record highs

■ Average property price reaches £262,954

THE average property price in the UK hit a record high of £262,954 last month.

That makes the typical price £23,600 higher than when the housing market started to reopen in June 2020, according to lender Halifax.

Property values across the country were up by 0.7 per cent month on month - or £1,789 on average - in August, following a 0.4 per cent increase in July.

Galley, Russell managing director of Halifax, said: "Given the rapid gains seen over the past 12 months, August's relatively modest and the annual rate of house price inflation continued to slow, hitting a fivemonth low of 7.1 per cent (versus 7.6 per cent in

"However, compared with June 2020, when the housing market began to reopen from the first lockdown, prices remain more than £23,600 higher (or 9.9 per cent)."

strong growth

Wales remained the strongest performing area, with annual house price inflation at 11.6 per cent and the only doubledigit rise recorded across the UK during August.

The South West was also still experiencing strong growth at 9.6 per cent, probably reflecting the ongoing demand for rural living within the region, the report said.

Some areas appear to have headroom for even stronger price growth, Halifax added, with annual house price inflation in the North East of England at eight per cent.

In Northern Ireland, annual house price inflation was at 9.3 per cent in August.

Mr Galley said: "Much of the impact from the stamp duty holiday has now left the market, as Wales experienced the strongest growth, seeing an 11.6% annual rise highlighted by the drop in industry transaction numbers compared to a year ago. However, while such government schemes have provided vital stimulus, have also been other significant drivers of house price inflation.

"We believe structural factors have driven record levels of buyer activity – such as the demand for more space amid greater homeworking.

Jeremy Leaf, a north London estate agent and a former residential chairman of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors, said: "These prices are as much to do with stock shortages and cheap mortgage finance as activity."

He added: "Market strength has not run its course and we are finding pent-up demand is alive and well, resulting in plenty of transactions, albeit at a lower level than a few months ago."

DUP may walk out of Stormont power-sharing over Brexit protocol

DUP 'totally opposed to Northern Ireland protocol as it presently exists'

The Democratic Unionist party leadership has warned it is prepared to walk out of powersharing in Stormont if the Brexit Northern Ireland protocol is not changed substantially.

Just days after the Brexit minister, David announced the UK would not "sweep away" the controversial arrangements, which involve checks on goods crossing into Northern Ireland from Great Britain, the DUP's leader, Sir Jeffrey Donaldson, warned the DUP could not continue in Stormont if the "protocol issues remain".

While Frost Lord Monday moved to suspend parts of the protocol indefinitely, upped the Donaldson ante on Thursday, saying wanted within weeks.

"We are totally opposed to the protocol as it presently exists. We will neither accept it nor will we work it. In my assessment, the timeframe for resolving issues can be measured in weeks and not months or years," he

"If, in the final analysis, those democratically elected by the people of Northern Ireland lack the power to prevent such checks, and the protocol issues remain, then the position in office of DUP ministers would become untenable."

"Let me be clear: if the choice is ultimately between remaining in office or implementing the protocol in its present form, then the only option for any unionist minister would be to cease to hold such office," he added in a speech in Belfast.

Féin's Sinn president, Mary Lou McDonald, called Donaldson's comments irresponsible "reckless, shortsighted and a election stunt".

Donaldson the UK's approach to "limit" the protocol was "doomed to fail" and it was "far better that we grasp the nettle now and have the matter settled once and for all".

Covid milestone

UK reaches grim

BRITAIN has now recorded more than seven million Covid-19 cases since the start of the pandemic, figures have revealed.

Government statistics showed there have been 7,018,927 lab-confirmed cases of the deadly virus.

A total of 133,274 people have died in the UK within 28 days of a positive test.

The findings show some 988 Covid sufferers were taken into hospital on August 31, with 6,573 admissions in the past seven days, a 3.7 per cent rise on the week before.

A further 41,192 cases of the disease were confirmed across the UK on Monday, and 45 deaths.

Some 21,795 people had their first vaccine dose on Sunday, taking the total to 48,270,113.

Meanwhile, Government adviser has admitted the decision on whether to offer Covid jabs to healthy children aged 12 to 15 is "finely balanced".

Professor Anthony Harnden, deputy chair of the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation, said he understands parents could be left in an uncomfortable position if ministers decide to go ahead with a rollout.

He said: "It is very finely balanced. It's marginally in favour of vaccination, but I do understand it from a parental viewpoint and I understand it from a teenager's viewpoint.

"This is not an easy decision. There isn't a right or wrong answer to this."

Big Ben is back...and it's a little bit blue

BIG Ben is nearly back to its timeless best after four years of refurbishments – and the faces have become a bit more colourful.

Workers have refitted the hour and minute hands – restored to their original hue, Prussian blue – inside four glittering and regilded dials and six crosses of St George above each of the four clock faces which were revealed in 2018 have returned. The crosses had been covered in black paint for years.

air pollution

The hands and numerals had been painted black in the 1930s to disguise the ravages of air pollution from burning coal.

Experts at the University of Lincoln discovered the initial colour scheme from a detailed analysis of layers of paint and reference to original designs.

As MPs and Lords returned to Parliament, observers described the restored and re-gilded dials as the crowning glory of the £90million project.

Work on the 177-year-old tower is due to be completed next summer.

Andrew confident of returning to public life soon

■ Prince appears 'bullish' that 'this will all blow over within a short while'

PRINCE Andrew believes the scandal sexual assault allegations surrounding will "blow over", and is "utterly convinced" will return to public life soon, sources have revealed.

The Duke of York has told friends he feels confident he can brush off claims of "rape in the first degree" made by an alleged sex slave of his late paedophile pal Jeffrey Epstein.

He has earmarked a return to the royal front line in time for the Queen's Platinum Jubilee next year – despite the insistence of palace sources that Andrew will "not take part" in any of the official celebrations.

Insiders have spoken of Andrew's "incredibly bullish" attitude as he continues to maintain his silence over lurid allegations made by alleged sex trafficking victim Virginia Giuffre, which he has repeatedly denied.

'emboldened'

One source close to the royal said: "It is clear [Andrew] has a burning desire to return to work as soon as possible. That may look entirely impossible, but if anything he's become emboldened in recent weeks – and remains utterly convinced he will not only be exonerated but will forge a way back to public life.

"Certainly he has given the incredibly bullish impression that this will all blow over within a short while, rather than become a protracted issue."

Ms Giuffre, now 38, has accused the Duke of sexually abusing her when she was 17 at Epstein's Manhattan mansion, at his private island and at the London home of his lover Ghislaine Maxwell, who is currently in a New York jail awaiting sex abuse and grooming charges. Ms Giuffre is claiming damages for emotional harm and distress, which could run into millions of pounds if successful.

Andrew, 61, has categorically denied her claims and has said he has no recollection of ever meeting her.

For the second time in a month, he this week went to the Queen's Balmoral estate, after appearing to avoid multiple attempts to be served legal papers at his mansion in Windsor nearly 500 miles away.

He was reportedly "going stir crazy" at his Royal Lodge house close to Windsor Castle, after not responding to the lawsuit filed on August

SAFE AT MUMMY'S? Andrew went to the Queen's Balmoral estate this week, in an apparent attempt to avoid multiple attempts to be served legal papers 9 in New York by Ms Giuffre, also known as Virginia Roberts. Her lawyer David Boies has said Andrew "cannot hide behind wealth and palace walls" – and must respond to the allegations.

'person of interest'

After he travelled to Scotland with his live-in ex-wife Sarah Ferguson, another source divulged that the Duke was in a "buoyant" mood, despite the fact he is facing a "tsunami of s".

They added: "The plan, if you can call it a plan, is to say absolutely nothing. Andrew claims he hasn't read the news and hasn't kept up with what is happening around him, which anyone can see is not only catastrophic for his reputation but very damaging for the wider Royal Family.

"Whether he can keep this up remains to be seen."

In the US, lawyers are preparing to return to court on September 13 to apply for more time, in a case that legal experts say could go on for "up to five years". It is understood that Andrew's lawyers will not be present at the hearing in New York.

He has been named as a "person of interest" by investigators probing the alleged sexual exploitation of young girls by Epstein and Maxwell, a long-term friend of the Duke's.

Sources close to the US investigations confirmed there is a "total and utter lack of willingness to cooperate" from Andrew and his legal team.

Mr Boies previously warned that "litigation is the only way to establish once and for all what the truth is – and litigation is the only way to establish once and for all what Prince Andrew's evidence actually is".

He added: "Ignore the courts at your peril."

A spokesman for the Duke of York offered no comment.

Gimme Gimmer Gimme: fans snap up 250k Abba tickets

ABBA fans have taken more than a chance on the band's upcoming gigs – as 250,000 tickets have been sold in three days.

Sales for the Abba Voyage concerts have "massively exceeded expectations", insiders say, with the numbers exceeding Glastonbury.

Ticketmaster says 75 per cent of sales are from the UK, and the remainder from around the world. Its managing director Andrew Parsons said: "Demand continues to be off the chart and we have experienced the busiest pre-sale and on-sale launch so far this year.

"It has been so great to see hundreds of thousands of tickets sold to happy fans across the country, marking another huge step in the UK's return to live."

The 90-minute digital stage show will involve holograms of the Swedish band, now in their 70s, performing in a purpose-built London arena with a live band.

Producer Svana Gisla says the experience will like "being in the middle of a giant music box".

It's Hopscotch - not vandalism!

A MOTHER was shocked when neighbours called the police after her children chalked on a pavement to play hopscotch.

Sarah Goodwin (above) said her kids aged six, nine and 13, and some friends were accused of "vandalism".

Sarah, of Newport Pagnell, Bucks, wrote on Facebook: "Hopscotch, tracks for scooters, drawing around themselves. It washed away a few days later."

Offering her support, Clare Warnes wrote: "We used to do it when we were younger." And Gemma Collins added: "Don't let some idiot spoil your fun."

Queen supports Black Lives Matter, says senior royal representative

■ Sir Ken Olisa, first black Lord-Lieutenant for London, reveals he has discussed racism with royal household

The Queen and the royal family are supporters of the Black Lives Matter (BLM) movement, one of the monarch's representatives has said.

Sir Ken Olisa, the first black Lord-Lieutenant for London, revealed to Channel 4 that he had discussed the topic of racism with members of the royal household in the wake of George Floyd's murder in the US.

In an interview with the broadcaster, he said: "I have discussed with the royal household this whole issue of race, particularly in the last 12 months since the George Floyd incident.

Black to Front

"It's a hot conversation topic. The question is what more can we do to bind society to remove these barriers. They [the royals] care passionately about making this one nation bound by the same values."

Asked if the palace support BLM, Sir Ken said: "The answer is easily yes."

During the programme, called Black to Front, which is to be aired on Friday at 7pm and has been produced by an all-black presenting and reporting team, Sir Ken also said the Queen had sought his advice after the Grenfell fire on whether to visit the site of the tragedy.

'quite scary'

He said he advised the palace that she should go, but added: "I remember thinking as it all happened, it was quite scary, we didn't know whether she would be booed or have things thrown at her, etc, and when she got out of the car all these people

Sir Ken said the royal family 'care passionately about making this one nation bound by the same values' applauded."

In their Oprah Winfrey interview earlier this year, the Duke and Duchess of Sussex accused the royal family of racism. Meghan said an unnamed royal – not the Queen or the Duke of Edinburgh – raised concerns with Harry about how dark their son Archie's skin tone might be before he was born.

The couple also suggested racism could be a factor behind the decision to deny Archie, the first mixedrace great-grandchild of the Queen, security protection and the title of prince.

The Queen later issued a statement saying that the issues raised would be dealt with privately as a family, but that "some recollections may vary", while the Duke of Cambridge defended the monarchy, saying "we're very much not a racist family" soon after the interview aired.

Buckingham Palace has also admitted it "must do more" and is "not where it would like to be" in terms of diversity, after publishing figures that revealed its proportion of ethnic minority employees stands at 8.5%, with a target of 10% for 2022.

What a finish! Britain's medal tally puts nation top of all-time Paralympic table

THE Paralympic Games flame was extinguished in a spectacular closing ceremony on Sunday as Britain's heroes grabbed two more medals on the final day in Tokyo to become the most successful team ever.

The pandemic meant that crowds were kept away from the giant send-off at Japan National Stadium.

But fireworks set the scene for a montage of the 12-day Games' best moments.

Boccia (a kind of bowls for the wheelchairgound) gold medallist David Smith said it was an "unbelievable honour" to be flagbearer for ParalympicsGB as millions watched on TV.

The Queen praised the athletes for their achievements.

She said: "I offer my warm congratulations to Paralympic athletes from Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and indeed to the athletes of all Commonwealth countries, on their enormous success.

"The commitment, dedication and adaptability shown by you, and your support teams, during the exceptional circumstances of the last 18 months has been inspirational.

"Your performances have lifted the nation. I send my very best wishes to all those who have contributed."

Projections flashed across the arena as neondecked BMX riders and dancers raised a sign that read: "Thank you to all the Paralympians."

Teams attached reflective discs on a miniature Tokyo Skytree – at 2,080ft, the original is the world's tallest tower.

On the final morning of competition, Britain's men's wheelchair basketball team beat Spain 68-58 to grab bronze for the second successive Games, as Krysten Coombs took third in the men's SH6 badminton.

But there was disappointment for London 2012 wheelchair legend and six-time gold medallist David Weir who finished fifth in the T54 marathon.

Britain ended up second to China in the medal table, with 41 golds, 38 silvers and 45 bronzes in a total of 124 gongs.

The Tokyo tallies beat the 34 golds and 120 medals overall won at London 2012.

GB athletes won medals in 18 of 19 sports they entered – only shooting missed out – to become the all-time most successful Paralympic nation.

Gaz Choudhry, who trained the basketball team after head coach Haj Bhania tested positive for Covid before leaving for Japan, said: "It definitely feels more than a bronze."

Brighton-born Krysten, 30, bounced back from losing Saturday's badminton semi to beat Brazil's Vitor Tayares.

He said: "I'd like to think I can inspire other kids with dwarfism at home."

ParalympicsGB chef de mission Penny Briscoe praised the squad – including cyclist Dame Sarah Storey, 43, whose 17th gold made her the most successful Paralympian of all time – for "an absolutely phenomenal effort".

The Winter Paralympics begin in Beijing in six months; the next summer Games take place in Paris in 2024.

No time to cry... leaving Bond will not be easy, says tearful Daniel DANIEL Craig admits he will be shaken as well as stirred when he bids farewell to James Bond.

The actor this week paid an emotional tribute to his time as 007, saying the role of the secret agent has given him "more things in life than he could wish for".

Craig will end his 15year run as Bond with the release of No Time To Die next month.

As he looked back at his role for a documentary, Craig, 53, admitted he was tearful in his farewell speech to the crew as he ended filming on No Time To Die.

'incredibly proud'

He said: "I look at film - what I have done and I am like, wow, I am connected to Goldfinger, Dr No, Live And Let Die. My tenure is only part of something bigger.

"I genuinely feel like I look back at the films and am incredibly proud of every one of them. I know we have really done our best. Leaving this role is not easy. I can be as brazen and blasé about it as I

Brits in LA

Summer's winding down, but life can still be a beach....

but doesn't it feel like it has only just begun?

Unless you are one of the lucky ones who managed to get away this year? I definitely got travel envy after reading the last few issues of the British Weekly - first there were the stories of sailing around Europe from Nick followed by Craig's escapades in England.

I know it's sunny in California more often than it's not, but there is still a different feeling when it is actually 'summertime' and even more so when you get to go on holiday. Seeing as that was off the cards for me this year I was more determined than ever to take advantage of what California has to offer. However, as is typical of many Angelenos, life and work got in the way...

Summer is almost over but I decided that I could at least try and visit the ocean more, which always makes one feel like they are on vacation, right? I rarely go, but every time I do I always say I need to come back more often.

I live in up in the hills of Hollywood, and whilst on a clear day I can occasionally get a glimpse of the Pacific it's not exactly on my doorstep.

LA is such sprawling city, which is something that most people don't realize and can't visualize until they actually visit. To put it in to perspective for those of you who don't live in LA, for me to drive to Malibu it will usually take an hour (on a good day) and I will travel 35 miles - which is similar to driving from Shepherds Bush to Whipsnade Zoo. Not too long a journey, but also not something you choose to do regularly, even if the end result is fun. But I was determined to make the time for once, even more so seeing as it is also 'Covid safe'.

Confident in affirmation I bought a large beach umbrella at Costco to seal the deal and also circumvent the fact that sitting in the sun for too long usually makes me really grumpy. Shortly after said purchase (back in May), I received an invitation to meet some friends at the beach. I immediately accepted as not only are they dear friends of mine, but it also meant the beach pact (with myself) was going to actually be upheld. Annoyingly, it was such a grey day the umbrella wasn't necessary. I was almost tempted to use it just to get my moneys worth!

I decided to store it in my car (along with a couple of beach chairs and a picnic blanket) so I would always be ready for my future jaunts to the seaside.... which I am slightly ashamed to admit didn't happen until September 3rd. And yet again there was no need for my fancy beach umbrella! My friend had rented a spot at the Annenberg Community Beach House, located just north of where the 10 freeway ends and becomes PCH in Santa Monica. This great facility even provided a large canopy to shade us! Ah well, at least I made it to the beach again.

And highly recommend this location - it really is a hidden gem, they have ample parking which is only $12 for the entire day, and it is footsteps from the beach, has a cafe, a play area with swings etc. for the kids, a swimming pool and you can also reserve a volleyball court or play for free if nobody has booked it in advance. It is all very affordable too - courts are $15 an hour, canopies (with a table) are $60 for 4 hours and you can rent paddle boards starting at $45 for 2 hours. It really is the ultimate staycation! Visit their website for details - www. annenbergbeachhouse.

BEACHY KEEN: Eileen with partner Szilard Szoke (photo: Nazrin Choudhury)

The building was initially developed during the Gold Coast era of the 1920s by newspaper magnate William Randolph Hearst for actress Marion Davies. In the 1950's it was sold to the State of California and then in the late '90's Wallis Annenberg provided $27.5 million grant to help pave the way for it to become a public facility. Best of all you can take a tour of the Marion Davies guest house, which I didn't get to do this visit but will report back when I make it. Maybe I will even get the chance CONT:/

to finally make use of my umbrella... it is surprisingly similar to my relationship with umbrellas when I lived in London. I would carry it around religiously and any time I forgot it meant it was bound to rain. So I guess that means my beach version is staying in my car, just in case.

Don't forget our pub quiz has resumed to being an in-person event, it's every Tuesday evening at our new location - the Market Tavern, which is at the Farmers Market at the Grove.

We blew it!

Root calls for killer instinct after England are torn apart

CRICKET: JOE ROOT surveyed the wreckage of a shattering defeat by India at The Oval and admitted: "We were not ruthless enough."

After a promising start in their second innings England were all out for 210 on Monday as they crashed to a 157-run loss in the fourth Test. In a post-lunch spell four wickets fell for six runs in 36 balls and Root said: "We've got to be ruthless there and it's frustrating."

Now England must win the final Test at Old Trafford, starting on Friday, to avoid losing both home series in a summer for the first time since 1986.

Root conceded going 2-1 down in the series was a tale of missed opportunities, saying: "It's hard to take. We have to look at the way we responded after losing at Lord's and react in the same way at Old Trafford.

"We are still very confident we're capable of turning things round very quickly."

India were 127-7 on the opening day, and conceded a 99-run lead on first innings before setting England - who began the final day on 77 without loss – 368 to Root said: "For me, where the game was lost, and where we could have stamped our authority on it, was by getting a bigger lead first time round, and then you are looking at a very different game.

"All results were on the table and I thought we set a platform to go on and win the game, but it was a brilliant spell of bowling that bust it open for India.

"We've got to look at the whole game - our catching has to improve and we'll do some learning."

Vice-captain Buttler, who missed the game to attend the birth of his second child, is expected to return at Old Trafford.

India skipper Virat Kohli revelled in his side's bounce-back from a crushing innings defeat at Headingley to regain control of the series.

He said: "We love being written off and I think a lot of people after Leeds really stood up and said, 'will India be able to come back?'

"But we've shown time and time again that we are a top side and we have been at the top for a while now."

Bailey the hero

BAILEY PEACOCK-FARRELL saved a second successive penalty ensure Northern Ireland avoided more World Cup spot-kick heartbreak against Switzerland in Wednesday's goalless draw.

The Swiss beat the Irish in a World Cup play-off four years ago thanks to a shocking penalty decision in the first leg at Windsor Park. Northern Ireland fans feared more agony when the Swiss were awarded a spot-kick, only for Peacock-Farrell to save from Haris Seferovic. The Burnley keeper, who is on loan at Sheffield Wednesday, also saved a penalty in Thursday's win over Lithuania, and Northern Ireland's World Cup dream remains just about alive thanks to him. Ian Baraclough's side remain in the mix for a play-off spot, but they will need two results in next month's double-header away to Switzerland and Bulgaria. The Irish held the Euro 2020 quarter-finalists and created the best chance from open play when Shayne Lavery fired wide early on. There was a sense of deja vu for the Irish 12 minutes before the break when Switzerland were awarded their spotkick because Michael Smith put his hands on Ruben Vargas's back as they challenged for a header. But Peacock-Farrell dived to his right to block Seferovic's poor effort to make it three spotkick saves this season for club and country.

WORLD CUP QUALIFIERS: Poland.....1

England.....1

Poland snatched an injury-time equalizer on Wednesday night to deprive England of three points in Warsaw and a sixth straight victory in their qualifying campaign for the 2022 World Cup in Qatar.

England looked on course to maintain that perfect sequence of results in European Group I and take another giant stride towards Qatar after a moment of quality from Harry Kane gave them the lead when he sent a dipping drive past Poland keeper Wojciech Szczesny with 18 minutes left.

Southgate's Gareth side had performed with commendable maturity

Szymanski's bullet header cancels out Kane's thunderbolt

to control Poland and a hostile crowd giving thunderous backing to their team - but it all changed one minute into four minutes of stoppage

England had restricted the great Poland striker Robert Lewandowski to limited opportunities but he delivered a perfect cross for substitute Damian Szymanski to rise above Luke Shaw at the far post to head past Jordan Pickford.

It was a bitter blow to England's players, who sank to their knees in disappointment, after fighting so hard but a draw does not cause too much damage and they still remain in control of their own destiny.

The Three Lions are four points clear at the top of Group I with four games remaining.

England's players were once again loudly jeered when taking the knee after the Poland fans had warmly applauded their national anthem, boos drowned out after gestures from Szczesny and Lewandowski.

Kane had a turbulent summer, unsettled at Spurs as speculation of a move to Manchester City accompanied his every move, but he is back in the old routine for England without barely breaking his stride.

This was billed as the battle between Kane and his Poland opposite number Lewandowski but this was a game where it was possible to simply enjoy two masters of their craft at work.

Kane picked up the ball 25 yards out with 18 minutes left before proving he is ever the opportunist by flashing a dipping swerving drive beyond the deceived Szczesny.

It was his 41st goal for England, making him the country's fifth highest international goalscorer and continued an incredible record of scoring in 15 consecutive World Cup and Euro qualifiers.

Hein shines as Wales draw a blank

GARETH BALE was unable to produce any fresh heroics as Arsenal's teenage keeper Karl Hein had a stormer in a goalless draw Wednesday night.

Bale hit the post and was denied three times by the 19-year-old Estonian, who is yet to make a senior appearance for the Gunners. His superb display between the posts was a major blow to Wales' World Cup dream, as this stalemate effectively leaves them relying on the playoffs at best. Rob Page's men realistically needed a win over minnows Estonia to keep in touch with group leaders Belgium. But they now trail the Red Devils by nine points in Group E with only top spot guaranteeing qualification.

Wales skipper record scorer Bale again did his best after a hattrick in the dramatic 3-2 win over Belarus at the weekend, but he could find no way past the inspired Hein, whose performance left Bale with his head in his hands.

Estonia, who had not won a competitive game since 2018, were on the back foot and Bale had a sight of goal in the 18th minute but put a left-foot shot over from the edge of the box. Roberts also flashed a right-foot shot wide. Estonia had little possession but were a threat at set-pieces using their superior height.

Wales finished the first half in flat fashion and the contest was only enlivened by a rousing applause in the 52nd minute on what would have been Gary Speed's 52nd birthday. The reception stirred Wales into action as Bale had a powerful header saved in the 55th minute. Five minutes later Joe Morrell sent Roberts clear but his shot was saved by Hein's outstretched leg.

The hosts created further chances but Bale headed against the post and was twice more denied by
