Summary of Meeting:

The ASTM F08.27 work-group meeting began with a review of the proposed draft standard. Members discussed terminology and test methods for the launchers. Barrel size performance requirements will need to correlate to how the projectile size is measured. Members discussed hydrated pellet size, velocity, kinetic energy, and an impact breaking testing that is used in the paintball standard. Additionally, members considered the need for including safety features that are more specific to air guns. The meeting adjourned shortly after with plans to continue discussions at the next meeting.
