PGIN's strategy: To save jobs in the tourism sector

• No lay off of employees, no closing of businesses, says INTO

To further cushion the impact of work displacement in the province amid the COVID-19 pandemic, the Provincial Government of Ilocos Norte (PGIN), through the Ilocos Norte Tourism Office (INTO), has continued to extend livelihood assistance to both economically affected employers and employees in the tourism industry.

The INTO had redesigned its Summer Tourism Employment Program into the Tourism Livelihood Continuity Program (TLCP) to aid daily wage earners, informal workers, and freelancers in the gig industry affected by the pandemic economic crisis.

"If we can recall, we had our 'pay now, work later' scheme last year. This year, we have another strategy where we will support the employees of private tourism establishments.

• More funds allocated for the farmers' livelihood

Ilocos Norte Governor Matthew Marcos Manotoc has vowed to continue providing assistance to all hog raisers economically affected by the African Swine Fever outbreak in the province.

"We're here to listen to you and your suggestions. I know this situation has been hard for all of you so we want to assure you na hindi po namin kayo pababayaang. We'd like to hear kung ano ang mga recommendations ninyo," the Governor told the hog raiser folks.

Info drive needed to assure parents of vaccine safety

The National Government, together with the eight participating hospitals in the National Capital Region (NCR), has commenced the pilot run of pediatric vaccination of 12 to 17 year old children with comorbidities.

Pfizer and Moderna are primarily the vaccines to be inoculated having earlier obtained the Food and Drug Administration (FDA)'s Emergency Use Authorization.

The DOH estimates that there are around 1.2 million children with comorbidities from ages 12 to 17 in the country. Children with the following comorbidities are eligible for vaccination: 1) medical complexity (i.e. those with long term dependence on technical support); 2) genetic conditions; 3) neurologic conditions; 4) metabolic/endocrine diseases; 5) cardiovascular diseases; 6) obesity; 7) HIV infection; 8) tuberculosis; 9) chronic respiratory diseases; 10) renal disorders; 11) hepatobiliary diseases; and 12) immunocompromised due to disease or treatment.

As vaccination roll-out for teenagers aged 12 to 17 with comorbidities starts, it is imperative that the government should intensify information campaign on its vaccination program in order to assure parents that the vaccines are safe.

The need to conduct information drive is to thwart any reservations and hesitancy from their parents and guardians brought about still by the Dengvaxia incident concerning the anti-dengue vaccine years back.

Since the beginning of the pandemic, the lockdown and the restrictions continued to retard the social growth of the kids. For almost two years now, they have not gone to school (face to face) where they are supposed to socialize with their fellow classmates and teachers. Similarly, they have not been getting the physical activities that the growing children should enjoy.

The lockdowns (proven effective, health protocol-wise) had caused unwanted boredom and mental woes to the weakest.

Indeed, getting eligible children vaccinated against the virus, will surely create a better environment where the kids can literally spread their wings anew with strong confidence knowing well that the jab is their protection from the COVID-19.(IS/DOH)

Every Christian is a missionary

One Sunday morning after saying Mass at the Sacred Heart Church in Kamuning, Quezon City run by our SVD confreres, a couple approached me with their baby, cuddled by the wife. "Father, we're from this parish," they greeted.

"We're lay missionaries working in Papua New Guinea and we're presently on vacation." Then they related their mission work.

I found it extraordinary and very edifying that a Filipino lay couple could make the sacrifice of leaving a comfortable life and country to devote some years in the "bush mission."

Nowadays, some renewal communities like the Couples for Christ and Lord's Flock have been sending their lay members to foreign countries where Christ is not yet, or little, known.

Today is WORLD MISSION SUNDAY. Before ascending to heaven, Jesus Christ said: "Go out into the whole world and proclaim the Good News to every nation. He who believes and is baptized

Many have the misconception that spreading God's Word belongs to religious and lay missionaries only. The truth is: every Christian, by virtue of baptism, is a missionary.

Not all, however, can emulate what the couple had been doing. For most Christians, they can be missionaries at home, whether they're a teacher, nurse,

He and his wife Elizabeth immigrated to the US in 2009 and now live with their son Percy and his family in Belleville, Michigan. He hails from Piddig, Ilocos Norte.

The awarding of the Nobel Peace Prize to Rappler founder Maria Ressa should be one good reason for a celebration by Filipinos as it was the first time such a global honor was given to a Filipina. But instead, it has become the cause of a controversy.

We believe that the award is as important as the first gold medal Hidilyn Diaz has won for the Philippines in the recent Tokyo Olympics. But while Diaz drew praises from people all over the country for her feat, Ressa generated criticisms for her singular honor of winning the Nobel Peace Prize.

And even praises given to the founder of the news website Rappler were taken with a grain of salt. Ressa herself doubted the sincerity of the praises for her by presidential spokesperson Harry Roque.

Reacting to Roque's statement congratulating her, Ressa said, "Thanks, but no thanks." "I suppose thank you, and then what I didn't appreciate is almost hand in hand it came with a hit," Ressa said.

"Hand in hand with that [praise] was this reminder, which is a lie... that the cyberlibel complaint

Reading is one of the significant language skills that we all need in order to survive the rigors of academic life and professional advancement. It is one of the indicators of literacy and one of the most palpable ones, too. Without developing reading, we would not be able to live purposefully simply because we cannot articulate what we want to express.

We regard reading not only as a survival tool but also as a means to an end. Whether others think of us as career-driven hypocrites, it is none of their concern because they are not the ones who feed us. Because we are still in a state of pandemic, we have all been forced to read, something that we have not done religiously before.

For us teachers, we need to read in order to gain professional competence and, ultimately, promotions. It is ironic, though, that we teachers sometimes (no, most of the time) detest reading due to a plethora of materials that we need to digest.

In developing our reading skills, to be able to read at a basic level while young and emergent is good; to comprehend and interpret are better. To be able to critique ideas and to create something to

BBM: MSMEs key to economic recovery

Allowing micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs) to operate again will help the country's economy to bounce back amid the pandemic crisis, according to presidential aspirant Ferdinand "Bongbong" Marcos Jr.

The Partido Federal ng Pilipinas (PFP) standard-bearer said to achieve this goal, vaccinated workers and even business establishments that were closed down due to quarantine restrictions brought by the COVID-19 must be allowed to go back and continue their operations again.

"Let's allow the small businesses to operate again because the economy will not move if there is no economic activity. There must be someone who will buy and avail services because it has a multiplier effect that can help in the recovery of the economy," he added.

"As long as they are vaccinated, let's allow them to go out and work. Let's give them a privilege since they are already safe," Marcos said.

Almost two years into the pandemic, Marcos said people want jobs for them to support their families and while some are still employed, they are not earning due to the lockdowns and restrictions imposed by the government. He added that some employees are even on a "no work, no pay" basis making it hard for them to sustain their daily living.

Data from the Philippine Statistics Authority (PSA) showed that 3.76 million Filipinos remained jobless since June 2021. The government said the 7.7 percent unemployment rate shows the limits of job creation due to quarantine restrictions, especially in the National Capital Region (NCR).

"If you look into the lives of Filipinos, they are looking for jobs right now as they need money to support their families. We need to have an extensive approach so that everyone will benefit," he said.

Marcos believed there is a need for the creation of jobs once the country reaches herd immunity where almost 70 percent are fully vaccinated against the COVID-19.

"The opening of our economy must be well-planned in order for us to return to our normal lives," he said.

be abundant at stores, but they will also eventually by abundant at junkyards. Parents, better hit the books together with your children! Teachers, do the same to your students (and your children, if you have any-whether biological or adopted- so that you would walk the talk!)

Second, we are more of online than print when it comes to reading. Yes, this is true, for we access more online materials than print materials out of convenience and of a desire to save money in the long run. Alas, our learners would not get to experience handling newly bought or even dog-eared books especially now that many bookstores have closed down due to quite low sales. There is nothing like reading a physical book, caressing its pages and its cover, and letting pages glide through our eager fingers.

Third, we think of reading as exclusive to the upper crust and the educated. That is such an antiquated ideology, for Christ's sakes! We cannot be elitist at this time because we are all human beings who have the same struggles, the same time, and the same needs and desires.

Everyone has the right, the duty, and the responsibility to develop reading literacy skills as well as other literacy skills. Do not wait for the time when we are about to die because we will only regret not expanding our literacy skills for the benefit of humanity!

Start reading and start learning, and we will all eventually reap the rewards of added knowledge!

executive, lawyer or unemployed. What counts is not geography or place, but the spirit or motive that impels a baptized Christian to follow the mandate of Christ.

Remember St. Therese of the Child Jesus? She never stepped out of the four walls of her Carmelite cloister but was chosen as the universal Patroness of Catholic missions. She merited the title because of her obsession to save every little act, like picking up trash, every bodily pain of sickness, and fervent praying.

When I was ordained priest in our missionary congregation, Society of the Divine Word (SVD), I applied to work in Mexico, Central America. Unfortunately I did not get my wish. The farthest I've gone to is Mexico...Pampanga!

***

That doesn't mean, however, that I am not a genuine missionary. By my work in the media or supporting seminarians under the "Adopt A Seminarian" scholarship program, I am a missionary.

In this connection, let's not be missionaries only on Mission Sunday. As a good Christian, the mission spirit should be a daily, continuing attitude and action like what St. Therese of the Child Jesus did.

***

Also, you can be missionaries by means of extending financial assistance for the support of missionaries. Money is a necessity in the work of evangelization. Churches, schools, convents, clinics, social centers are needed, especially in far-flung bush mission.

***

Office, explained. Records showed that over 2,000 workers in restaurants, travel and tour staff, senior citizen tour guides, accommodation staff, destination workers, vendors of local products, souvenir makers, events and freelance artists, heritage artisans, and other workers in the tourism and cultural sectors have been assisted through the TLCP since it was launched last year.

- (Stewart C. Ocampo, PGIN-CMO)

Ask yourself. Am I contributing something for the mission the Lord commanded me to do through the three Ts – Time, Treasure, Talents?

When you meet the Lord in the next life, can you say: "Lord, I did my share in spreading your teachings and following your mandate"? And the Lord will answer: "Come good and faithful servant. Come and possess the kingdom prepared for you from the very beginning."

***

The lighter side. A parish priest was making an impassioned appeal to the parish council for the annual mission collection. Great everybody's surprise when the wealthiest but tight-fisted member of the council rose and offered to start the collection rolling with a contribution of P500.

***

As he stood up to hand in the amount, a mild earthquake took place and some plaster from the ceiling fell and hit him on the head.

A bit shaken, he withdrew the amount and said, "I guess I'd better make that P5,000." A small voice from the back was heard, "Hit him again, Lord." (It's not known if he was hit again!).

***

Isn't it strange... how a P20 bill seems like such a large amount when you donate it to church, but it's such a small amount when you go shopping?

***

Support future missionaries. Be a missionary by supporting seminarians become priests and missionaries. Chip in amount or sponsor the scholarship of seminarians good for one school year.

solve problems are the best.

One who is not able to read is bound to be ridiculed by conventional society for being considered bereft of intellect and wisdom. In addition, one who is illiterate tends to be deprived of opportunities, such as job security, financial freedom, lifestyle upgrades, and, ultimately, respect in society. Although there are formerly illiterate people who have succeeded, these people have chosen the path to education, which they initially found challenging yet eventually fulfilling and rewarding.

The palpable problem we have observed among our youth nowadays is that they tend to read less of the physical books and more of the instant, online reading materials. They have the impression that everything they read on the internet is gospel truth but do not know that not all that they read and digest are true.

Whose fault is it?

Do we blame a single entity for the decline of our learners' reading abilities?

Not at all, though some of them must take a majority of the blame!

There are so many factors, such as lack of time, lack of motivation, lack of a clear purpose, and a lack of encouragement from DepEd and CHED (though they are making so much effort now, if we can brand such efforts as laudable and commendable)!

What the results of the PISA 2018 examination reflect are our inadequacies in terms of teaching, practicing, and promoting reading, among other skills such as mathematical literacy and scientific literacy.

Why is reading essential yet neglected?

First, blame it on the rampant use of gadgets. Parents are generally at fault when they fail to read to their children and to read together. Gadgets may

The program seeks to lure back young individuals to engage in agri-fishery based enterprises by providing financial grant assistance to winners which they can use as start-up capital for the implementation of their BMC.

VIGAN CITY, Oct. 20 (PIA) - - More than 22 thousand farmers and fish cage operators in Ilocos Sur will benefit from various assistance provided by the provincial government in a ceremonial distribution held Tuesday in front of the Provincial Capitol here.

The provincial agriculture office said some 22,286 corn growers will receive free corn seeds through the provincial government's agriculture assistance program dubbed as, "RYAN Corn Seeds Program."

Assorted vegetable seeds will also be distributed to all cities and municipalities of the province.

Moreover, some 240 fish cage operators affected by fish kills from the municipalities of Magsingal, Bantay, Sta. Catalina, and San Vicente will receive cash assistance amounting to P1.06 million.

Ilocos Sur residents receive DOLE livelihood assistance

VIGAN CITY, Oct. 20 (PIA) - - Residents of the province of Ilocos Sur received various livelihood assistance programs from the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE), recently.

Jipolito Palo, barangay chairperson of San Julian Norte in this city, expressed his gratitude to the national government for the assistance they received from the DOLE.

Said barangay was one of the barangay-recipients awarded with 10 bike packages in a caravan held on October 16 led by Labor Secretary Silvestre Bello III.

The bike package also included accessories such as helmet insulated bag, reflectorized vest, and raincoat, and mobile phones with a load worth five thousand pesos.

Palo said the bikes will be placed in their barangay hall, which will be used by barangay officials during their patrolling, and other house-to-house delivery of various services in the barangay.

"Nagpapasalamat kami sa DOLE at malaking tulong ang mga ito sa pagroronda namin. Makakatipid din kami sa paggamit ng gasolina sa sasakyan ng barangay at makapag-exercise pa kami," he said.

With the challenges brought about by the Covid-19 pandemic, Palo added that these may also be used to improve livelihood for residents who sell goods or vegetable/fruit harvests in the barangay.

A total of 250 residents of the province have received bike packages under the DOLE's Free Bisikleta (FreeBis) Project (amounting to five million pesos).

PM General Rhodel Sermonia, director for operations of the Philippine National Police who came to Pangasinan, said the nationwide campaign centers on informing the public about the government's programs and achievements guided by President Rodrigo Roa Duterte's vision to provide 'tapang at malaasakit' service to Filipinos.

Apart from informing the public on the accomplishments, the caravan also includes ground activities that embodies the whole-of-nation approach through good governance and efficient delivery of basic services, he added.

Ginagawa ito sa lahat ng barangay, pinalakas para lalong maramdaman ang mga serbisyo na mula sa ating gobyerno," PM Gen Sermonia said during the activity in Barangay Hacienda in Bugallon town.

Lawyer Cherry Ann Dela Cruz, who comes from the private sector and a champion of the advocacy support group for the Barangayanihan said the term was coined from the words 'barangay at bayan' and explained that when agencies get together, services of the government become faster and more efficient.

A total of 1,518 beneficiaries received their payout through the Department of Social Welfare and Development Aid to Individuals in Crisis Situation (DSWD-AICS) during a simple ceremony held at Currimaos, Ilocos Norte last October 19. Governor Matthew Marcos Manotoc commended the municipal government officials of Currimaos headed by Mayor Edward Quilala, for their initiative on directly requesting aid from the DSWD. is filed by an individual and what the government repeatedly refuses to say is that it takes a government to actually file a criminal case. So this is the government's case, it's the Department of Justice's, it is their decision. So they should really own it. So thanks, but no thanks."

Ressa has been fighting multiple legal challenges in courts related to Rappler's investigative reporting of President Duterte's government, its bloody war on drugs and its use of social media to target opponents.

"It is a victory for a Filipina, and we are very happy for that," Roque told reporters, responding to a question on what the award meant for the government.

"Of course, it is true there are individuals who feel Maria Ressa still has to clear her name before the courts," he said. He has described Rappler, launched in 2012, as a "fake news outlet" and a tool of the US Central Intelligence Agency, claims which Ressa has dismissed as nonsense.

Ressa also disputed Malacañang's claim there was no censorship of media in the country.

"Hindi mo na kailangan sabihin. Tingnan mo nalang ang mga nangyayari (You don't have to say it. You just look around)," she said. "Nasa'n kaya ang franchise ng (Where is the franchise of) ABS-CBN? The last time that the ABS-CBN lost its franchise was when a dictator declared a martial law and shut down the network."

It has been more than a year since 70 members of the House

Representatives' Committee on Legislative Franchises, a panel dominated by administration allies, voted to reject ABS-CBN's bid for a new franchise.

The network was first shut down in 1972 when Marcos imposed martial rule.

Nearly five decades later, it was forced off the air under the Duterte administration. National Artist F. Sionil Jose has a contrary take on the state of press freedom in the Philippines.

Sionil wrote, "I have criticized Duterte but not on press freedom. The Philippine press is alive and well not because of Maria Ressa. No writer is in jail. There is no censorship. Duterte hasn't closed a single newspaper or radio station."

The closure of ABS-CBN was made by Congress which did not renew the ABS-CBN franchise. Sure, he has influenced Congress but the real issue against ABS-CBN, as I have pointed out, is not press freedom but money, politics, power and its abuse by the Lopezes who own the TV network. Sure, journalists have been killed in the Duterte regime but just as it were in the past administrations; but those killings cannot be laid at Duterte's door. Usually, they are made by minor politicians or officials attacked by journalists. The real test for journalists was made during the Marcos dictatorship when he imposed censorship, closed all media and jailed journalists."

Who is Maria Ressa? Born in the Philippines,

Ressa grew up in the US and returned to the country in the 1980s only after the fall of authoritarian leader Ferdinand Marcos.

A former CNN journalist, she founded Rappler in 2012. It is one of the few local sites to openly criticize the Duterte administration and its brutal war on drugs, which has claimed thousands of lives.

Rappler is one of the country's most popular news sites, in part because of its focus on a younger audience and embracing social media.

In June 2020, Ressa was convicted of cyber libel together with Rappler reporter Reynaldo Santos, Jr. in connection with a news story about a businessman, Wilfredo Keng, who claimed the story was libelous because it linked him to human trafficking and drug smuggling.

Lawyers for Keng insisted that the case was about clearing the name of their client, after Rappler's allegations, citing an "intelligence report" that Mr Keng was involved in human trafficking and drug smuggling. He has always denied the allegations.

In convicting Ressa and the reporter, Judge Rainelda Montesa said Rappler had failed to present the report to the court and hadn't verified the claims allegedly contained in it.

The judge likewise said Rappler offered no proof to back up its allegations against Keng and that her verdict was based on evidence presented to the court, adding that freedom of the press "cannot be used as a shield" against libel.

Filipino journalists familiar with the case also noted Rappler's failure to publish the side of Keng. Keng sent to Rappler a statement denying the allegations but Rappler did not publish it. For the sake of fair reporting, newspapers or news websites are obliged to air the sides of parties involved in cases or controversies. This is required by the Journalists' Code of Ethics.

Had Rappler published the statement, the court would have taken it at least as a mitigating element.

I don't personally know Ressa even though I had been a journalist in the Philippines for 30 years. I did not have the opportunity to meet her, but I noticed that she is a fighter and a committed journalist.

I'm sure her Nobel Peace Prize with a monetary reward of $1.1 million will surely inspire her to ramp up her crusade against the enemies of press freedom.

She urged her fellow journalists to be also committed to their profession.

She said that the 2022 election is going to be "a battle of lies," but added this is the best time to be a journalist. "What a journalist does is to speak, to ask questions, to analyze, to demand answers. It's not for yourself, it's really for the people so that we hold the government and the private sector accountable. Nasa Konstitusyon po 'yan natin (It's in our Constitution), and the power of journalist is the power of the people," she said.

So be it.

Batac university to open BS Psychology next year

LAOAG CITY, Oct 21 (PIA) – The state-run Mariano Marcos State University (MMSU) in Batac City, Ilocos Norte will be offering Bachelor of Science in Psychology next school year.

This soon-to-open undergraduate course is made possible through the approval of the University Board of Regents (BOR) during their regular meeting on October 14.

Through this program, the province will be able to produce registered psychometricians or psychologists as they pass various board examinations and trainings.

According to Prof. Christine Joy Lim, program-in-charge and faculty member of the College of Arts and Sciences-Department of Social Sciences, this move will open opportunities for psychology professionals and address more mental health services as guided by the Republic Act 11036 or the Mental Health Law.

"As our province is also developing economically with the influx of multi-national companies investing here, the need to outsource workforces can be minimized by supplying more BS Psychology graduates from MMSU," said Lim.

BS Psychology can also be considered as a pre-medicine course and for pre-law and business management courses. The university adds that graduates of this program may also take on the following specializations:

Future students must complete 141 units which include 36 units of general education courses, 8 units of basic courses, 45 units of required courses, 12 units of psychology elective courses, 20 units of natural sciences electives, 8 units of physical education, 6 units of national service training program, and 6 units of enhancement courses.

MMSU President Dr. Shirley Agrupis said the university is presently working on the development of the laboratory and completion of library resources at CAS for conducive learning for incoming students in this course.

"Competent and high-caliber professors of the program will surely develop industry-ready graduates, thereby contributing to national development," said Agrupis. (Ma. Joreina Therese Blanco/PIA Ilocos Norte)

DOST 1 welcomes new S & T undergraduate qualifiers

The Department of Science and Technology – Region I thru its Scholarship Unit conducted a series of virtual orientations for the 2021 S&T Undergraduate Scholarship Qualifiers from Region 1 last September 23-24, 2021. A total of 229 undergraduate qualifiers from the different provinces in the region attended the said activity together with their parents and legal guardians via zoom platform. DOST 1 provincial staff, scholarship coordinators from SUCs and private HEIs as well as officers of the different scholarship associations in the region are also present. This year’s orientation featured discussions on the provisions of the Scholarship Agreement, S&T Scholarship policies, procedures and an open forum. This is done prior to the signing of their Scholarship Agreement.

The S&T Undergraduate Scholarship is one of the scholarship programs being offered by the DOST-SEI, specifically for senior high schools who will pursue S&T related courses in college. This program aims to stimulate and entice talented Filipino youths to pursue lifetime productive careers in science and technology and ensure a steady, adequate supply of qualified S&T human resources which can steer the country towards national progress. It has 2 component programs: a) Republic Act (RA) 7687 program, which meant for socioeconomically challenged students; and b) Merit program, which is awarded to students with high aptitude in science and mathematics.

During the orientation, Ms. Adelisa C. Florendo, Technical Scholarship Coordinator of DOST I emphasize that in order to avail the scholarship award, qualifiers must enroll in a Priority S&T course in State Universities and Colleges (SUCs), or in private higher education institutions recognized by the Commission on Higher Education as Centers of Excellence or Centers of Development or with Level III accreditation from the Federation of Accrediting Agencies of the Philippines.

For those qualifiers who will avail and signed the scholarship agreement will enjoy full benefits of the scholarship for the whole duration of their S&T program. These include monthly stipend of ₱7,000; a tuition fee subsidy of up to ₱40,000 per academic year for those who will enroll in private institutions; annual book allowance of ₱10,000; one-time MS/PE clothing allowance amounting to ₱1,000; one economy-class roundtrip fare per year for those studying outside their home province; group health and accident insurance, and ₱10,000 for thesis allowance.

“The benefits that you will receive are designed to boost your studies, it is an investment made by our Filipino people to help you reach not just your dreams but the good that comes with you reaching your goals”, said DOST Secretary Fortunato T. de la Peña on his message.

Aside from the financial benefits, DOST scholars will also have the opportunity to join different scholarship activities being conducted by the DOST-SEI and DOST I that will surely help them to become more responsible, competent, goal-oriented and patriotic Filipinos.

“Be serious with your academics but live a balanced life. Do socialize and start practicing how to serve people and the country. You will realize that you are gifted with talent and intelligence and there is purpose in that. You will lead and serve”, de la Peña said.

DOST-SEI scholars are required to render service in the country, preferably along their fields of specialization, after graduation for a period equivalent to the number of years they enjoyed the scholarship. (Jayce Andres, Scholarship Staff)
