Order for Papers – 9 November 2005 Roads and Traffic Authority Basis for Claims of Privilege

Legal Professional Privilege

Each document in this category is:

- a confidential document which was prepared by the RTA or its lawyers (internal and external) or another person, or contains or records a confidential communication between the RTA (or another person) and its lawyers, that was made for the dominant purpose of its lawyers providing legal advice to the RTA. (This category may include documents which have been provided in confidence to a third party on the basis of a common interest, such that any claim for privilege has been maintained and not waived); and/or
- a confidential document which was prepared, or which contains or records a confidential communication between the RTA's lawyers[®] (internal and external) and the RTA or another person which was made, for the dominant purpose of the RTA being provided with professional legal services relating to anticipated legal proceedings against the RTA.

Public Interest Immunity

Each document in this category contains information the disclosure of which would be contrary to the public interest and is subject to public interest immunity. In regard to this category, the RTA has considered a number of factors, including the following:

1. Obligations of the RTA to preserve the commercial in confidence nature of material disclosed to the RTA by the private sector including, in particular, intellectual property rights. The RTA is conscious that publication of this information will place the providers and owners of the information at a substantial commercial disadvantage with their competitors, including in relation to existing and future contracts with the RTA and others.

2. The relevant requirements of government policy documents relating to procurement and tendering including:

- (a) the terms of Memorandum No. 2000-11 - Disclosure on Information on Government Contracts with the Private Sector issued by the Premier's Department (the "Memorandum").

The Memorandum provides guidelines which are designed to clarify what information relating to the government's contractual arrangements with the private sector should, and should not, be made public. For example, Schedule 3 of the Memorandum identifies commercial in confidence information which is not to be disclosed for any contract, namely:

- "The contractor's financing arrangements;
- The contractor's cost structure or profit margins;
- Items of the contractor having an intellectual property characteristic (eg. non-tangible property that is the result of creativity, such as patentable ideas or inventions, trademarks, copyrights, etc);
- Any other matters where disclosure would place a contractor at a substantial commercial disadvantage with its competitors both at the time of entering into the contract and at any later date when there would be an effect on future competitive arrangements."

(b) The terms of the Code of Practice NSW Government Procurement 1999 which provides, among other things, that parties must not disclose confidential or proprietary information; and

(c) The provisions of the NSW Government Code of Tendering for the Construction Industry which provides that confidentiality of information, particularly intellectual property, must be observed through the tender process. In particular the document provides:

"This means that information provided by a tenderer relating to a tender should not be divulged to another tenderer, at any stage during the tender process, or after it has been concluded."

3. The potential for disclosure of a document, including for reasons contemplated in paragraphs (1), (2) above, to prejudice the ability of the RTA and the government to obtain competitive tenders and prices for future projects and comprehensive information in support of any tenders submitted.

4. The importance of protecting from disclosure of documents containing information that may jeopardise and/or prejudice national security. Public interest immunity is claimed over documents identified in the index with the number three (3) which contain:
 1. details (including the dimensions) of the foundation structure of the Swansea bridges;
 2. design details of the piers, footings and platform of the Swansea bridges; and
 3. structural and elevation plans of the twin bridges over Swansea over Lake Macquarie.

on the basis that disclosure of these documents is not in the public interest as it would prejudice the security of this infrastructure by, for example, publicly disclosing information which may assist in planning or executing a terrorist attack.

Disclosure of documents which would threaten the security of a building or structure or which would jeopardise public safety are a clearly established basis for claims of public interest immunity both at common law and under statute.

In Sankey v Whitlam (1978) 142 CLR 1 at p 41 Gibbs ACJ recognised that public interest immunity may extend to documents concerning matters of national security.

The common law position is reinforced by Section 130(4)(a) of the Evidence Act (1995) (NSW) which provides that public interest immunity will extend to documents which would “prejudice the security, defence of Australia”. Similarly, clauses 4 and 4A of Schedule 1 of the Freedom of Information Act
