Introducing Document Scanners

Increasingly workplaces are becoming more digital to keep their businesses secure and GDPR compliant.

Scanning documents is more cost effective than printing.¹

Access files anywhere, working in the office, at home or on the road.¹

Each employee loses 400 hours a year searching for documents.¹

95%

Ninety-five percent of sensitive data is on paper.¹

We understand that one size doesn't fit all. Whether you're looking for a scanner to tackle personal data capture, desktop office use, A3 scanning in large departments, or high-volume production performance, you're sure to find the perfect solution from our range of market-leading brands.

Introducing Printers

Despite the print market having been threatened in recent years due to the rise of digital data storage, it's still a crucial part of any workplace.

The average employee prints more than 20,000 pages every year.¹

92%

18-23 year olds find it easier to read print over digital content.²

In the future we may see voice recognition in printers.

Twenty three percent of help desk calls are printer related and half of office calls to internal IT departments are related to printing.³ We believe that printing should be easy, which is why we now offer Mi Support on all our document solution products. Mi Support is our all in one aftercare option including: Mi Support Warranty, Mi Support Training and Mi Support Help Desk.

Introducing Label and Barcode Printers

The benefits of these compact printers are not just limited to large scale use, small independent businesses can attach barcodes to their products to speed up till transactions; and offices can easily generate visitor passes and print postage labels.

Work faster by converting manual tracking tasks into electronic, real-time processes.

Automating data collection improves accuracy to be over 99%¹.

There are few variations to consider when choosing the right barcode or label printer. Many label and barcode printers use thermal printing, however for bigger or full colour printing, inkjet or laser models can provide a higher quality solution.
