Show traces homeless issue

Assemblywoman Maureen Ogden, R-22, explores the plight of the state's 20,000 homeless people on "New Jersey and You," Sunday and Dec. 29, at 5 p.m., on Suburban Cablevision's TV-3.

The program focuses attention on the nation's "new homeless," half of whom are children. Experts explain that most of those who live "in the streets" are not the derelict stereotype, but families, often headed by a single parent, who are unable to afford housing in over-crowded cities.

Summit resident Karen Olson, founder of the Interfaith Council for the Homeless of Union County, recalls that she gave a become involved in providing food and shelter for homeless people in a more significant way ever since. Olson urges volun-teers to work with churches and synagogues to create more temporary shelter facilities and low-income housing. She also calls for an appeal to legislators for increased financial aid to the iomeless, streets of New York City four years ago and was inspired to

The Rev. Eric Duff, executive director of Apostles' House, a shelter in Newark, echoes this plea. He notes that more than a fifth of those in the state who live below the poverty line reside in Essex County. Experiencing first hand the frustration and hopelessness of those who have no homes, Duff is active in the advocacy group called "Right To Housing."

"New Jersey and You" also features Kathleen DiChiara, the full-time volunteer director of the Community Food Bank in Newark, DiChiara points out tha though unemployment in the state is at an all-time low, one in seven people are going hungry every day. The Food Bank warehouses unmarketable but useable food donated by farms and industry. This year, notes DiChiara, $10 million worth of food was delivered to 470 points of distribution throughout the state.

The experts are joined by a current resident of Apostles' House who, along with her mother and young son, have been homeless for two months.

Yet, the freeholders did not stop there. They also voted to make these pay hikes retroactive to March 1, enabling them each to collect a nice, tidy-Christmas "bonus" of some $4,000.

From the viewpoint of those familiar with the chain of events that has taken place in Union County during the past two years, these raises are an insult to the public's intelligence. Raises awarded in amounts significantly beyond a level reflecting inflation and cost-of-living increases are typically awarded for excellent job performance or during periods of economic prosperity. The freeholders cannot claim to be deserving on either.

It's even more insulting to the public that two lame-duck freeholders, Walter Boright and Charlotte DeFilippo, had the audacity to vote in support of the salary increases, when their terms on the board are scheduled to expire on Dec. 31. Since they knew that 30 days from the date of the Dec. 2 vote, they would no longer be employees of the county, DeFilippo and Boright should have declared themselves ineligible to vote; instead, they awarded themselves a retroactive "stipend" of $4,000. The fact that this legislation would have fallen on its face without the support of the two lame-duck board members — the resolution. passed by a 5-4 margin — should tell the freeholders something about the legitimacy of awarding themselves such a raise.

The salary of a part-time elected representative in government is not supposed to be a form of primary income or even a lucrative sideline occupation. The salary structure of a part-time government is engendered with the idea of attracting established, capable full-time professionals willing to give up their evening and weekend leisure hours in the interest of serving the community - for a negligible salary. The only thing that the freeholders have accomplished, in passing this enormous increase, is to tilt the salary structure of county government, for now, and possibly into the future, badly out of balance — and to make themselves a little richer.

Catching the spirit

Trying to catch the Christmas spirit this holiday season has been pretty difficult.

With Thanksgiving having been so late in November, only four weeks remained for to prepare for the myriad of obligations of the holiday season - shopping, Christmas cards, party invitations to send or reply to, and the like.

It is hard enough any year at this time to keep Scrooge from taking over one's personality. The hustle of commercialism, the battle against both human and vehicular traffic jams while shopping and all the other anxiety the holiday can bring often make this season one of dread rather than

Keeping Scrooge at bay is the Christmas challenge. It is a challenge that can be met however; focus on the symbols of joy - the faces of children that grow brighter as Dec. 25 nears, the glow of holiday decorations and displays, the serenity of Christmas Eve and the wonder of the stories of both Hanukkah and Christmas are just a Infusing oneself with the symbols of the season can go a long way toward recharging the psychic batteries for the new year ahead. While many suffer from the "holiday blues syndrome" at this time of year, many more of us would be driven to the brink if there were no year-end holiday. Despite all the bother, frustration and anxiety associated with this time of the year, all of it is far outweighed by those moments — no matter how brief — when the true spirit of the season creeps into our hearts.

May you have many of those moments in the days ahead. We wish all of our readers a joyous holiday and a safe, peaceful and happy new year.

Holiday message

Light shines for all

By THE REV. GEORGE C. SCHLESINGER What makes an event assume the distinguishing and unforgettable quality of being sacramental? Could it be the innate and intrinsic ability of that peculiar happening to inspire hearts and minds to repeated celebration? Who has the wisdom to declare that a particular event will become the floodgate through which multitudes will continue to march in cadence to a distant drummer? Whoever imagined that a heroic gesture of a defiance—against tyranny, initiated by one man, would be uplifted in a featival or feast of lights? An action by one man, one family, one nation, who refused to unce faith in God because of the belief that their lives were bound in homes today, the entire warp and woof of religious life might have degenerated into a hopeless and dehumanizing practice of idolatry. If you're a Hanukkah person, you are a continuation of a truth, a part of that steady stream who believe that only the Lord God is worthy of adoration and praise. If you are a Christmas person, you also cling in celebration to an event that lifts up faith and heart, namely, that the event of a baby born in Bethlehem, growing as child and man, also reflected the truth that the Lord God is everything. Upon seeing the child, an old priest was content to allow life to ebb. His dim eyesight envisioned the light God had sent into the world. In that light, all children are God's children and that relationship is knitted together by a new convenant; love. In that light was the truth that personal power is available to rich and poor. Jew and Gentile, man and woman, wise and foolish. If you are a Christmas person, there is an event worthy of celebration, a God event; Christmas, It is God's promise that there is in common life a presence, one worthy of worship and adoration. Whether we are a Hanukkah or a Christmas person, each declaire that there's a light that still shines through and in our faith - a light for all Hanukkah and Christmas

The Best holiday gift of all.

This hollday season, bedeck your world with the very best you have. Give those around you the gift of honesty, that they might give you trust; give them your strength, that they might be free to need you; give them your weakness, that they might give you support; give them your compassion, that they might feel your heart; give them your humility, that they might see your humanity.

The value of these gifts is without measure, because they are gifts of you. Give them, and wrap them in love ... that you might know love in return.

Best wishes for a joyous holiday season from investors Savings.

JUDGE CITED—U.S. District Court Judge Frederick Lacey, center, was cited by a resolution from the Union County Board of Freeholders for his participation in this year's Union County Drug-Poster Contest. Presenting the resolution are Union County Freeholder Vice Chairman Edward J. Slomkowski, left, who also serves as liaison to the Advisory Board on Narcotics, and Ralph White, advisory board chairman. The contest was held for fifth-graders countywide as a way to inform them of the danger of drugs and the preventative measures they should take, according to Slomkowski.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, over 500 reported home fires are believed to have been caused by heat tapes or pipe heating cables over the last seven years. In many cases, improperly installed tapes and cables triggered the fires.

CPSC said heat tapes and cables are commonly used in crawl spaces and in the substructure of mobile homes, beach houses, mountain cabins, cottages and other part-time dwellings where exposed pipes could freeze during the winter. Some heat tapes are plugged in the year-round and are activated by a thermostat when the outdoor temperature approaches freezing. In other situations, homeowners plug in the tapes in the fall and unplug them in the spring.

CPSC said homeowners or licensed electricians should make annual inspections of heat tapes or pipe heating cables to detect any latent fire hazards. If cracks are found in the plastic insulation or bare wires are exposed, the tape or cable should be replaced immediately.

The group, composed of 26 men and women, whose ages range from 60 to 80, has been entertaining audiences with its song and dance routines since 1982. According to Diane Flecker, director of Older Adult Services at the Y, they perform at nursing homes, senior citizen clubs and hospitals.

Thier musical director, Evelyn Takiff, doesn't xpect less of them just because they're older. They still have to work as hard as anyone else, sometimes erforming three or four times a week.

Takiff, a music teacher for many years, set up an interesting variety of acts. Some of the songs included were, "Everything's Coming Up Roses," sung a cappella, and "Friendship," sung with energy and enthusiasm by a peppy trio. "Standing on the Corner, Watching All the Girls Go By," was done with humor and verve by a group of lively ladies being watched by an appreciative group of men.

The planist, Murray Temkin, who is over 80, cannot read music, but does a great job playing by ear. He accompanied a chorus that sang his own song, "Bring Back-Those Mem'ries," a calchy melody.

Fred Fuhrmann, the group's bus driver and muster of ceremonies, feels that giving pleasure to others is something he finds very satisfying.

The afternoon ended with Sam Bucholtz performing a medley on the harmonica, with the audience singing along, and all joining in an en-thusiastic rendition of "God Bless America." "You have to give them a lot of credit." and "It was terrific," were comments of members of the doors to music students of all ages on Jan. 27.

Operating from the Madison YMCA, the private, non-profit educational organization will attract students from suburban Essex, Union and Morris counties. The preschool program will consist of Kindermusik/Eurhythmics and a Suzuki string program combining private lessons, group lessons and musicianship classes. The program for school-age children and adults will include musicianship and en semble classes, private vocal and instrumental lessons, and formal and

The faculty is composed of music professionals widely recognized for their teaching ability as well as their artistic talent, according to Judith Wharton, Suburban Comunity Music Center's executive director, and Charmaine Cave, its preschool director. Faculty concerts, master classes and guest artist programs will add to the center's cultural and educational contribution to the community, they said. Acting as a special consultant is Stephen Shiman, formerly executiv director of the Newark Community School of the Arts and director of the Third Street Music School Settlement in New York City. He is director of Development and Administration for the Inner City En-semble Theater and Dance Company in Paterson.

Further information regarding the center's programs or enrollment, can be obtained by contacting Suburban Community Music Center.

Think before you drink!

Most people drive drunk out of sheer ignorance — ordinarily considerate people who thoughtlessly get behind the wheel after "just a few beers" or "some wine." It doesn't occur to them that 12 ounces of beer - or 5 ounces of wine - packs the same alcoholic wallop as 11/2 ounces of liquor. Until

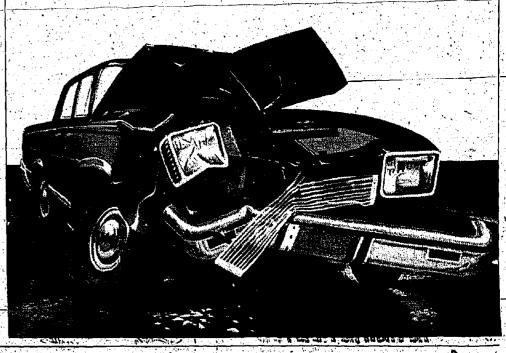

So consider this: driving drunk can land you in trouble. Without a license. Heavily fined Maybe even in jail.

If you plan to drink, plan to be driven home If you plan to drive, don't drink.

Mountain Valley Conference more balanced this season

The play in boys' basketball in the Mountain Valley Conference's two divisions last year were about as different as night and day. In the more powerful Mountain Division, the race for No. 1 was bunched up with Roselle Catholic, Immaculata, Hillside, Roselle and Governor Livingston the strong teams and Dayton very competitive. In the Valley Division, there was St. Mary's and then the rest of the league. The Mountain Division race should again be wide open this year, the way veteran Roselle coach Star Kokie looks at it. There should not be a team that blows the league apart. The Valley also should be much more competitive, say coaches Bill Berger of Brearley and Pat Lalley of Roselle Park. Berger feels that players like Mike Chalenski, Brett Hubinger, Scott Miller, Joe Capizzano and Bill Fudge will bring a winning attitude onto the hard-woods. Chalenski, for example, "doesn't know what it's like to lose," Berger said. It appears that basketball is making a resurgence at the school and Berger, who coached some strong clubs at Irvington, guided the Bears to a 9-13 mark last year. The year before, it was 4-18. "The history of basketball has not been good here. We've been dootmats. It's a big football town," explained Berger.

But that is changing, "Teams aren't going to come into Kenilworth and think they've got an easy win. They've got to win on the floor." Although he lost three starters, Berger feels he has enought o work with to be competitive. The two returning starters are 6-2 senior Sean Marshall, who averaged six points and 10 rebounds a game last year, and 5-8 junior Mike Kriac, a good ballhandler to scored four points a game.

The other players each appeared in three or four varsity games last year. Chalenski, a 6-4 sophomore, averaged 10 points in the last two games. Hubinger is 'the most agile" player, Berger said. Fudge, Miller and Capizzano will all see playing time. With the football team making the state playoffs, it set the basketball program back about a weekand Berger had to cancel two scrimmages, "We'll be in pasketball shape by January. We'll be a beter team toward the middle of the year." he said, "A year of varsity experience and they'll all be seasoned

Jerry Lewis, who could borrow the title of "The Man of a Thousand Faces" from the late Lon Chaney, and add to that, "The Man of a Thousand Personalities," has touched everyone's life in some small or big way through the vone or big way through the years.

Folks in his hometowns in Newark and Irvington

emember how wild he was in school, on the streets, in movie houses; what chaos he caused his neighbors; how he terriffied people just by his boisterous presence. "Crazy," the terrorized people would cry. "That kid was crazy!"

That same crazy kid, many decades later, has carned the respect of the entire world by his versatile muscular distrophy-every Labor Day weekend.

He was at his happlest when he was working with Dean Martin, on tolcyision, in night clubs and especially in movies for Paramount Pictures, Back in 1051 or 1052.

1951 or 1952, he was emerging as a big star with many-faceted talents. With his versatility showing, Jerry had come to the Newark Armory with Dean Martin to make a personal appearance.
As a combination copy girl and cub reporter for the

Stars in my eyes

Newark Evening News at that time, I managed to convince a skeptical editor that I could get Lewis to talk to me about himself and his career. So, armed with a pen, notebook and a lot of Chutzpah, I marched over to the Armory an hour before the show was to go on, noticed the cornedian standing around chatting with Martin, willed my shaking legs to still themselves and tapped Jerry on the shoulder. "Uh, excuse me, Mr. Lewis, I'm from the Newark News and I wonder if I could talk to you?" Lewis snapped impatiently, "Don't bother me, kid.

Well, I didn't. But I did interview him in 1957 at the persistence of the public relations geople at Paramount Pictures, the Newark Paramount Theater and Bamberger's in Newark, I was assistant theater. editor of the Newark News at the time, and my editor editor of the Newark News at the time, and my editor was on vacation. I was in charge of my department and I had to give myself the assignment. I couldn't permit my personal feelings to get in the way, especially when Jerry was in town promoting his first movie without Dean Martin (after 17 movies). I couldn't turn down the coverage of that story.

The picture, with Darren McGavin, was called "The Delicate Delinquent," and it was playing at the Newark Paramount, and a long line of Warner Brothers movie houses. Jerry's agenda included lunch in the executive offices of Newark's Bamberger's, a personal appearance at the Paramount Theater in Newark, and a motorcade up Springfield Avenue, first to the Sanford Theater in Irv ngton, then further on for the rest of the day all the way up to the Stanley Theater in Jersey City once again, equiped with a pen and a notebook and a sweet aura of vengeance, vowing to wait for the right moment to remind him of that fateful evening. I walked the two blocks over to Bamberger's. "I'll let him have both barrels," I said, as I stepped into the members of Jerry's entourage, I was directed into the office of the president of the department store.

There was Jerry Lewis, sprawled behind a huge polished desk, twirling around—in—a comfortable-looking swivel chair, flipping an imaginary cigar. "Come in, Bea," he grinned, bouncing off the chair, to snatch at my reluction thand, and shale it vigorous. to snatch at my reluctant hand, and shake it vigorously. "How do you do?" I said, coldly. "I have

"Whee," Jerry sang gleefully; "isn't this the life?" he said, swirling around and around. For a moment, he reminded me of a little boy. "Boy," he said, flick-

ing imaginary cigar ashes on the floor, "I could give up my career for this!"

I sat opposite him, and just as I opened my notebook, he flew up, rubbed his belly, crossed his oyes, and grinning his famous buck-toothed smile, shouted, "I'm starved! Aren't you?"

But. "I stammered "Court Later here!"

But..." I starwed: Aren t you:
"But..." I stammered. "Come: Let's eat." he said, escorting me into the dining room, and taking me lo my chair. Other members of the press were at the luncheon, and Jerry discussed his new career without Dean Martin. I was furiously jotting down notes, too busy to talk to him persona busy to talk to him personally.

After lunch, I managed to be in the same elevator with him, and I stated, "I have something to say to you." Jerry cocked his head to one side, rubbed his head, crossed his eyes, and said, "Yes?" Suddenly, a woman on the elevator thrust her package under his nose, and demanded an autograph.

We were out in the street by that time, and on our way to the Paramount Theater. Jerry smiled at me.

way to the Paramount Theater, Jerry smiled at me, mouthed the word, "Later," then was whisked away mouthed the word, "Later," then was whisked away by his company of people. I heard him tell his press agent to make sure that I was part of the entourage.

I ended up standing in the wings of the stage of the Paramount Theater listening to his speech, the resounding applause, and grudgingly admitting some admiration to his rapport with the audience.

We were then loaded into a half-dozen Oldsmobile convertibles (At his insistence, freely with Herry in convertibles (At his insistence, I rode with Jerry in the first car of the motorcade), and slowly moved up Springfield Avenue to Irvington. I had to marvel at the enthusiastic crowd along the sidewalks, cheering him on, as the comedian bounced dangerously up and down in the moving car trying to entertain the people in the streets. It really was one of the most amazing scenes I had ever witnessed.

After Jerry had made his speech in the overcrowded Sanford Theater in his hometown of Irvington (what an ovation he received there!), he insisted that I ride all the way with him.
I explained that I had to get back to the office to write my story. "My last stop," he said hastily, "will be at the Stanley in Jersey City, Why don't you meet—us there. Then we will be able to talk." I promised. then rushed to the bus to take me back to Newark, to my office. After getting the story up to the composing room (It was one of the best stories I had written to room (It was one of the best stories I had written to date), I called two of my young cousins, Sonya and Judith Ottenstein in Maplewood, and asked them, "Would you like to meet Jerry Lewis?" (Those youngsters now have youngsters of their own.)

Following the squeats of delight, I took the children for hamburgers, then drove them up to Jersey City. We were taken to a big room backstage, Sitting alone at a table that had the remnants of a delicatessen spread was an exhausted Jerry Lewis, looking depressed and dejected. We were about to walk over to him, when the members of his entourage, sitting at to him, when the members of his entourage, sitting at

"Jorry can't be bothered right now," we were told. "He's very tired, and he needs to be alone

We were seated at a table nearby, while a P.R. pered that during the tour, the motorcade hit a lot of traffic. When they came to a standstill, Jerry jumped out of the car, and laid down on the road, There nearly was a riot. Some motorists thought they had clipped him; others thought he had had a heart attack, and still others thought he was dead. The sun was boiling, cars were overboiling, tempers were sizzling, and just as the police arrived, Jerry jumped up, got to one knee, and began to do an imitation of Al

This reporter and her two young cousins laughed heartly at the story. "He's just plain pooped," sighed Mr. Public Relations.

The three of us kept throwing glances at the lonely young man slouching moodily and looking so alone at his table. Suddenly, Jerry saw us, grinned generous y; and held out his two arms. "Beat What are you doing over there. Come over here and keep me coming over there. Come over here and keep me com-pany." I brought my two cousins, and after Jerry hugged them, hugged me, gave the kids some autographs, he turned to this reporter happily, folded his arms on his stomach, and said warmly, "Now, what was it you wanted to talk to me about?"

ARIES (3/21-4/20) Lofty ideas or expectations may fall short of the mark as early events or circumstances unfold during this period. A more realistic attitude becomes important for many. Later, you may be confused or shocked by news, siblings promote worry, and certain tension is sure to be felt by many.

TAURUS (4/21-5/21) Important happenings will center on retationship matters during this week. You may feel nervous or edgy as long overdue confrontations rise to the surface. Later, try to delay new ventures until you personally check out the facts and continue to build your financial security.

GEMINI (5/22-6/21) Many are experience.

GEMINI (5/22-8/21) Many are experience in the home. You continue to be more selective in your friend-ships and feel the need for more privacy. Later, children need more attention, ro-mance is highlighted, and key alliances continue to flourish.

VIRGO (8/24-9/23) Tile early part of this week is socially highlighted for many. Accept invitations but do be careful that a somewhat imputsive decision may not live up to its expectations! Later, children play an important role, don't drive while angry, and, domestic discord could brew a bitter aroument.

LIBRA (9/74-10/23) This continues to be a busy and demanding period for many. Local travel and communications are hectic and in accommodating others' needs don't forget your own! Later, don't allow unsettling events to mar the festivities, in-laws are troublesome, and memorable events are linked with children.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22) Many will enjoy the flurry of activities on the agenda this week. Another may send out confusing signals, and important new starts are indicated in the months ahead. Later, visit with loved ones, go out of your way for someone special, and listen to the sound advice that will be offered.

SAGITTAHIUS (11/23-12/21) Many feel optimistic during this week, especially where money matters are concerned. The turmoil of recent months begins to fade. Domestic life and famility relationships will assume importance in the year ahead, and a change of residence or addition to the family—Is possible.

through the end of December The exhibit includes a number of oil paintings and a large pencil drawing, all done in a meticulous realistic style that captures the characteristics of each object por-

Schiller completed his training in art with a master of fine Arts degree at the University of Pennsylvania, and has taught at a number of schools and colleges: In addition to painting and teaching, Schiller has been the curator of the University of Pennsylvania Fine Arts Collection, and served for a year as publications coadjutor, with Ives-Siliman, Inc., creators and marketers of silkscreen portfolios for major as tists. While in that post, he was responsible for the Josef Albers traveling exhibition.

Schiller's work has been featured in individual exhibitions at the Slater Memorial Museum, Norwich,

This show is part of a series organized to promote Union County artists. County officials feel the Freeholder Meeting Room should be appropriately decorated, and this is additional exposure. The office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs is working with art organization throughout the County to arrange shows on a continuing basis. Interested Union County artists should have their group or association contact the Office at 300 North Ave. East, Westfield, New Jersey 07090, 233-7906.

Mets catcher aids Leukemia Society

Baseball fans can get an official autographed baseball card of Mets catcher Gary Carter, and at the same time support the Leukemia

Society of America.
For a contribution of $25 or more to the Leukemia Society of America For a contribution of $25 or more to the Leukemia Society of America sent to the New York Mets, Carter will send a baseball card with his autograph. Proceeds from the project will benefit the Society's efforts to find the causes and eventual cures for leukemia and related diseases.

Carter is serving as the Leukemia Society's national sports chairman, Carter's interest in leukemia research is spurred by the fact that his mother, Inge Charlotte Carter, passed away from the disease when Checks for the baseball cards should be made out to the Leukemia Society of America, and sent to: New York Mets, Department of Public Relations, Shea Stadium, Flushing, New York 11368.

The Society's Central New Jersey Chapter is located at 1416 Morris Ave., Union, 07083 (201) 687-3459.
