Cong. Vivian Sees Scientific Center With Accelerator Site

Congressman Weston Vivian (D-2nd Dist.) came to Chelsea Friday night to discuss the proposed atomic accelerator and drew sharp criticism from one Northfield township resident. One of six proposed sites for the $375 million atomic particle accelerator laboratory is in Northfield township. Other proposed sites are near Sacramento, Calif.; Madison, Wis.; Denver, Colo.; Chicago, Ill.; and Brookhaven, N.Y. Responding to a question from John L. Kennedy, 7105 Sutton Rd., Whitmore Lake, Rep. Vivian said the Northfield township site was selected by University of Michigan geologists in co-operation with Gov. George Romney. Vivian said the geologists were consulted because the location of the site presented a major technical problem. Kennedy stated that 100 families will be displaced if the Northfield site is selected, and asked if Congressman Vivian thought the accelerator was "worth it." Congressman Vivian said that it would be impossible to find a location near a big city and a big university, two requirements for the site, where people would not be displaced. Representative Vivian added that he understood the desires of families who wanted to remain on land where their families may have lived for generations and where they hoped to spend the rest of their lives. He added that although Congressmen cannot let considerations of any one individual override the interests of society, he thought Congressmen also need to have compassion for human needs. Vivian mentioned the large number of dislocations resulting from the construction of I-94 and other large freeways and highways. Kennedy asked Vivian why he hadn't come to Northfield township to speak instead of Chelsea. "You won't even come and talk to us," he said. Congressman Vivian's Ann Arbor office later stated that arrangements are being made for the Congressman to speak at a public meeting in Northfield township in the very near future. Kennedy also stated that he did not believe this area needed the economic boost which the accelerator would create. "Why not build it somewhere where it is needed?" he asked. Other questions came from the Rev. John Smucker, who asked about the need for more technically trained persons in Congress. Congressman Vivian quoted C. P. Snow, British scientist, statesman, who said he would rather have a wise man who is not a scientist than a scientist who is not a wise man. In response to a question as to whether political considerations are given too much weight in the location of a project of this magnitude, Congressman Vivian replied that the six sites now under consideration were selected by a team of National Academy scientists, and all are adequate sites. He added that it would be impossible to divorce politics from the location of these big jobs, and that population and political considerations are important. Wallace Wood asked if he thought the spurge of UFO's seen in the area would be a hindrance to the Northfield township site. Vivian said he did not think so and jokingly suggested that Michigan simulate some UFO's around the Denver site. In his prepared speech, Vivian said that "southeastern Michigan stands at the threshold of becoming one of the three or four leading scientific research centers in the nation." He added that a final decision on the site probably will not come until late in 1966 or early 1967. Vivian, the only PhD scientist ever to serve in the U.S. Congress, showed slides and explained the operation of a proton accelerator, and its importance in gaining insights in the nature of matter. "Basically, the accelerator is simply a three-mile long vacuum tube," he said. (Continued on page three)

Friendship Grows Through Repeated Mistaken Identity

A friendship which began several years ago because of repeated mistakes in mistaken identity resulted in a prominent American actor visiting the Chelsea area last week. The actor, Ed Begley, and his wife, Helen, and daughter, Maurine, arrived Monday at the Waterloo home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Ramp. The visitors flew from Kansas City, where Begley had starred for two weeks in the play "All My Sons." They were in New York City, where they were Begley will appear in "The Gambler" at an annual performance by top name performers at the Lamb's Club. It was the second visit of the couple to the home of the Ramps. They first visited here approximately seven years ago. "Not many people recognized me this time," Mrs. Ramp commented. "I thought many people recognized him on his acting." The 65-year-old Begley won an academy award in 1962 as best supporting actor for his role in "Sweet Bird of Youth." He is currently filming a movie, "Warning Shot," and will appear on a Bob Hope program in April. In addition to his roles in movies, on the stage and on radio and television, Begley has cut several recordings of poetry for Caedmon records, including selections from Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass." The Ramps first met the actor in New York City, when he was playing in Wolfe's "Look Homeward Angel." Mr. and Mrs. Ramp at that time operated a milk farm, and their business took them to New York City. "My husband had received so many compliments on his performance in the play, that he decided he'd like to see himself on the stage," Mrs. Ramp said. "After the performance, we stopped backstage to meet Begley and we've been friends ever since."

UFO's Make Big National Headlines

Unidentified Flying Objects sightings slacked off considerably in the Chelsea-Dexter area during the past week. Skies were overcast throughout most of the period and may have accounted for the noticeable decline. The area continued in the news, however, with several national publications carrying articles on the phenomenon. The Sunday edition of the Detroit Free Press included one of the photos printed the previous Thursday in The Dexter Leader and The Chelsea Standard. The photo, which showed three objects or lights, was "natural phenomena" in the opinion of a Wayne State University scientist, according to the Free Press report. An expert photographer who studied the film was reported by the Free Press to have said that the film was not doctored in any way (which we know anyway as we processed the film). The magazine, in their report on the "flying saucers," neglected to mention Dexter at all, instead described the locations of the sightings as in "lonely hills northwest of Ann Arbor." The ire of many local residents was aroused with the Life magazine account of the Frank Mannor family and farm. Among other things, Life described Mannor as unemployed Mannor, who works in asphalt paving during 10 months each year, is presently employed at the Dexter Body Shop. The Life article also described the Mannor home as a "tumbledown farmhouse."

Advisory Council Seeks To Improve School Ag Course

The Agricultural Advisory Council met with the Chelsea Board of Education on March 20 for the purpose of discussing the future agricultural program in the Chelsea High school, with the possibility of joint advanced instruction with Manchester and Dexter schools. Methods of improving the program were discussed, with possible specialization in the 11th and 12th grades. Interested people from Dexter, Manchester, business and Farm Bureau were present. The original Agricultural Committee was composed of a group of local citizens appointed by the School Board. Additional interested people have since been added. The Council had been inactive for a time, but when the School Board voted to discontinue agricultural education the group became concerned about the 54 students who are enrolled in the course and are endeavoring to cooperate with the School Board and administration to work out a possible solution. The Advisory Committee will meet again on Tuesday, April 12 with state and local school officials.

GOVERNOR ROMNEY REPORTS

Michigan is America's water wonderland. Or water resources exceed those of any other state, but with its rich endowment comes responsibility.

Michigan once was rich in virgin forests, but carelessness destroyed them. The judgment of succeeding generations will be harsh if Michigan's water wonderland is transformed by an ignorant into a polluted water wasteland.

We have to be doubly vigilant... we have to become more concerned about how they are used... we have to be sure that we have good laws and enforcement to protect them and that people get over the careless attitude that developed in the past because we have plenty of water.

To help meet the challenge of water pollution, this administration has pressed vigorously for tighter state laws, strengthened state enforcement effective in state and federal action, adequate state planning, and completely new state financial assistance to local government.

The State Water Resources Commission has adopted a five-year program of re-organizing, re-establishing time schedules and requirements to be met by 21 industries and 41 agencies of government which are now polluting the Detroit River and Lake Erie.

But this record of vigorous state action is only the beginning. More action is needed.

Minding Minds
 Growth of demand for mental health services in Michigan continues at an annually increasing rate with no peak in sight. A two-year study of activities by the State Mental Health Department shows sharp increases in all areas. A 25 percent increase in the number of patients hospitalized during the past two years is reported by the department's various treatment facilities, with the remaining 79 percent of the cost to be borne by the state.

Change Considered
 A "Claim to Fame" has been made on behalf of the 1963 State Constitution by Elmer E. White, secretary of Lansing, who served as a delegate to the 1961-62 Constitutional Convention.

Breathing Spell
 Elementary school enrollments state-wide have for the past three years been experiencing the start of a decade of a slump although it has not been apparent in most districts.

 The longevity of the present Constitution may be short despite Erickson's present claim. The legislature has before it several proposals for amendment and present indications are that at least one or two will be put to the voters in November.

Wool Incentive Payment Rates Increase for 1966
 The U. S. Department of agriculture announced today its new wool payment rates for the marketing year, to bring the average wool price of 47.1 cents per pound up to the previously announced incentive level of 62 cents per pound under the National Wool Act, which amounts to 31.6 percent of the dollars returns a producer received from the sale of shorn wool during the period Jan. 1 through Dec. 31, 1965.

Wool Incentive Payment Rates Increase for 1966

The U. S. Department of agriculture announced today its new wool payment rates for the marketing year, to bring the average wool price of 47.1 cents per pound up to the previously announced incentive level of 62 cents per pound under the National Wool Act, which amounts to 31.6 percent of the dollars returns a producer received from the sale of shorn wool during the period Jan. 1 through Dec. 31, 1965.

This will result in an incentive payment to producers of $11 for every $100 received from the sale of shorn wool during the 11th year of the program. It compares to a payment of $16 per $100 of marketings for the 1964 marketing year.

USDA also announced a payment rate of 60 cents per hundredweight on unshorn lambs to compensate for the wool on this payment on sales of shorn lambs that have never been shorn. It is based on the shorn wool payment and is designed to discourage unusual shearing of lambs before marketing. This payment rate compares to 35 cents per hundredweight for the 1964 marketing year.

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) county offices will begin making payments soon after April 1. Applications for payment had to be filed with these offices by Jan. 31, 1966. Payments will be made on shorn wool and unshorn lambs marketed from Jan. 1, 1965 through Dec. 31, 1965.

Pearls of Wisdom

Disagreement — Honesty differs from agreement. Honesty is the truth, agreement is the compromise.

Discontent — The root of discontent is not what you have, but what you want.

Employee — The employee generally gets the employees he deserves.

Willingness — If you're too big to do little things, you probably can't do the big ones.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: Ed Doolittle was telling the fellows in the country store Saturday night he had done his cotton picking and was ready for the man in the white suit to come and get him.

First off, he reported he had seen a piece in the papers where the U.S. Department of Agriculture was spending $100,000 on a movie film to show the folks in Europe to encourage them folks to smoke more American cigarettes. They claimed they were doing this on account of wanting to help the American tobacco growers.

And in the very same paper, reported Ed, he had saw a piece where the U.S. Public Health Service was spending a million dollars on a campaign in California trying to discourage folks in that area from smoking cigarettes.

The fellow that runs the store huffed in and allowed as how the U.S. Supreme Court, that was running the country anyhow, had picked to rule over Government agencies in Washington nor committees. On account of his old lady being a school teacher he throws in them 320 words ever once in a while to impress the fellows. But they got the message and was agreed 100 per cent.

Zeke Grubb, that has got a grandson working in the Navy Department, said they got a new system for keeping records where his grandson works. The boss keeps an empty jug on the shelf ever worker, and ever time a worker makes a mistake or does the thing wrong, the boss drops a bean in the jug. At the end of the week the boss counts the beans and can tell which fellows was making the most mistakes.

Clan Webster was of the opinion that could get to be a pretty complicated system. For instant, said Clem, suppose one worker was holding a rubber while another worker was striking the nail. If he didn't hit the nail and claimed the other fellow let the rubber move, who would get the bean?

Josh Clodhopper allowed as how it could cause a bean shortage and might start a revolution. Josh said he was reading where the Government workers operated under very particular rules. For instant, plumbers working on a 10-story building was divided up by floors. A fellow that worked on the fifth floor couldn't hit a lick on the fourth floor. Electricians that worked on the ground couldn't climb a pole or get up on a ladder. If a off-the-ground feller was on a ladder holding a light bulb while two ground workers was turning the ladder round and round to screw in the bulb and it wouldn't fit who would get the bean, the ground crew or the ladder man?

I tell you, Mister Editor, the fellows at the store Saturday night was mighty shook up and could catch this non compus mentus business any day now.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew

Great Lakes Ship Lore Displayed at Detroit Museum

Giant freighters glide noiselessly down the Detroit River, passing Belle Isle where the history of some of the famous forerunners of these Great Lakes ships is now preserved.

Preserved Great Lakes shipping from the early 1800's to the present in the Dossin Great Lakes Museum is the only building on the Great Lakes built for this specific purpose, according to the Michigan Tourist Council.

Under the direction of curator Robert E. Lee, the museum tells much of the romantic past of the ships that sailed the five big lakes over the past 200 years.

Now being reconstructed in the museum is the entire Gothic Room of the former "City of Detroit III," built as a passenger ship in 1912 and scrapped in the late 1940's. When completed, the room—described as the most ornate ever to be included in any vessel—will contain more than seven tons of the original carved oak that once graced the ship's lounge.

When it was built it was known to be more lavish than the ill-fated liner, "Mauretania."

Small fry—and just about as many adults—take special delight in peering through the periscope salvaged from the naval training submarine USS Tambor, which at one time had been docked at the foot of Belle Isle Bridge.

The periscope extends 40 feet upward and through the roof of the museum. Viewers may rotate the scope 360 degrees to watch Detroit River shipping, Canada and the skyline of the famous motor city.

Authentically and historically furnished, a pilot house has been constructed at the south end of the museum building directly overlooking the river and adding reality to the exhibit. The actual binnacle and compass installed on the USS Yankee—intended to be Abraham Lincoln's presidential yacht—are on display here. The Yankee was pressed into service during the Civil War and later served as a Great Lakes training vessel.

Immediately adjacent to the pilot house is a replica of a typical pre-World War I shipboard wireless shack containing wireless equipment of the era. The only modern note is a radio monitor which affords museum visitors the opportunity to eavesdrop on conversations between personnel of ships passing on the river.

Included in the many exhibits is a shoedolite—the actual surveying instrument which helped map the shores of all the Great Lakes between 1860 and 1910.

One of the largest displays and a highlight of the museum is the original "Miss Pepsi," unlimited hydroplane which, in 1950, reached 107 miles per hour—the first boat of any size to attain this speed. Its 3,500 h.p. engine is said to be more powerful than those of many ore freighters.

As an additional feature the museum offers periodic art exhibits. The art, of course, is that which portrays or pertains to the Great Lakes or allied activity only.

Operated by the City of Detroit, the Museum was established in 1960 with matching funds supplied by the city and the Dossin family. It is now entirely tax supported.

The exhibit is open free to the public daily from 11 a.m. to 6:45 p.m., except Mondays, Tuesdays and legal holidays, throughout the year.

Seniors To Visit New York City During Vacation

Chelsea public school students will have a 10-day break, beginning at noon tomorrow, before returning to classes on April 18.

Students at St. Mary's school and at St. Louis school will be dismissed today (Thursday) and will return to classes on April 18.

Approximately 74 members of the senior class will depart Monday morning for New York City, where they will spend the week sight-seeing.

The group will travel from Chelsea to Detroit by chartered bus. In Detroit they will board a train which will arrive in New York City's Grand Central Station Monday evening. A tour company has arranged sightseeing trips to Radio City Music Hall, the Empire State Building, the United Nations, the Statue of Liberty, a teen-age night club, and other sights.

The seniors also hope to see a Broadway musical while in New York.

The class will return to Chelsea Friday evening.

Accompanying the students will be Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dusseau, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Genske and Mr. and Mrs. James Swan.

Finances for the trip have been earned through the sale of magazines, Christmas cards and food at sports events and the community fair.

Too many people know all the answers.

WATERLOO UNION SERVICE p.m. for the observance of holy communion. A special offering will be received for the "One Great Maudy" Thursday evening at 8:15 Hour of Sharing project.

Way Out Front

If you get out front in a foot race, you are a sure winner—if you can stay there. Sometimes, getting out there in the lead is the big problem. In the field of business, you can be pretty sure that the champions, the leaders, so to speak, occupy this choice position because of special efforts and special qualifications.

The leading merchants in our town, for example, have earned the respect and confidence of the community through service, integrity, and a guarantee of satisfaction.

Often, too, you will find that the established local merchant is out front in other ways—he's a good "team" man where community activities are concerned. He's a fellow you can usually count on when there's something worthwhile that needs doing.

Get to know your local merchant. You'll be glad you did.

Economic Boom Predicted for Accelerator Site

circle tube, bent around into a curve, bent in diameter. We can think of it as a perfectly circular atomic race track with the ability to speed up atomic particles injected into it. These particles, guided by huge magnets located around the circle, are gradually accelerated by powerful radio waves to a speed very nearly the speed of light. Then they are directed against small samples of target materials, and the "nuclear debris" from the impact of these high-speed particles with the target is then observed and recorded by complex instruments," Vivian explained.

"There is virtually no distant external radiation associated with the accelerator, and what little there is, is screened from the working staff by a 25-foot layer of earth above the entire accelerator ring."

"The economic gain to the area fortunate enough to be selected as the final location of the accelerator lab will be tremendous," Vivian said. "The annual payroll for the laboratory is estimated at $60 million. Such a payroll generates additional local economic activity which is estimated to reach almost half a billion dollars annually. In addition, such facilities tend to generate greatly expanded research activity in their vicinity, as personnel from the lab 'spin-off' to set up their own enterprises, and new firms and personnel are attracted into the area."

"As one who helped found one of the successful scientific research and development companies in this area, I can tell you that Southeastern Michigan has already reached the threshold of a science and research 'take-off.' If the Atomic Energy Commission locates its new accelerator in Northfield township, the future of our area, as one of the three or four leading research communities in the nation, is assured," Representative Vivian concluded.

DISPOSITION VS. HAYEVER
 Salt Lake City — That bad child in your neighborhood may need a hay fever cure more than discipline. Dr. C. Collins Williams, director of the Allergy Clinic Hospital, Ontario, told a postgraduate group that children suffering from hay fever are tired, irritable and hard to get along with.

DISPOSITION VS. HAYEVER
 If people do not understand your motives, you are failing to express your thoughts properly.

'Don't Discount Soviets in Science,' Says U-M Doctor
 Ann Arbor — "Underestimating the Soviet Union or its scientists would be a serious mistake," says a University of Michigan doctor who has just seen his Soviet counterparts at work.

'Don't Discount Soviets in Science,' Says U-M Doctor
 Prof. Samuel P. Hicks, M.D., of the U-M Medical School's pathology department, spent two weeks last month in Russia as a guest of the Soviet State Committee for the Utilization of Atomic Energy. With him were six other American scientists, all experts in radiation biology and neurophysiology.

'Don't Discount Soviets in Science,' Says U-M Doctor
 Dr. Hicks found his hosts, from top scientists to assistants, "very proud of what they are doing, and of what they are going to do." The research in progress "frankly from quite modest to excellent, as it does in the USA," but "in many of the places we were shown, things were really just getting started."

'Don't Discount Soviets in Science,' Says U-M Doctor
 Dr. Hicks found the Soviet scientists already familiar with his own work on radiobiology and the development of the nervous system. From them he picked up ideas "worth exploring" on the potential radiation dangers of space travel.

'Don't Discount Soviets in Science,' Says U-M Doctor
 Dr. Hicks and the others were in Russia while several Soviet physicists were visiting the United States. The exchange was the third since a 1963 agreement between the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission and its Soviet counterpart.

THE LANSING REPORT
 Senator GIL BURSLEY

THE LANSING REPORT
 Several hundred bills were reported out of committees in the Senate and House last Thursday and Friday shortly before the April 15 deadline. Each body now has until April 22 to take action on the measures before it.

THE LANSING REPORT
 An exception lies in appropriation bills which have until April 15 for committee action. The Senate Appropriations Committee, on which I serve, has been conducting hearings morning, afternoon and evening for several weeks in order that each department director, university president and hospital superintendent be given an opportunity to argue their case for more money. We will now prepare some 20 appropriation bills that will probably total around $950,000,000 and get these bills approved by the legislature in order that monies be available to operate state and local government after the new fiscal year begins on July 1.

THE LANSING REPORT
 I am not too concerned about this getting done. We will have to resist pressures to increase spending unreasonably and I think we'll succeed.

Income Tax Declaration Must Be Filed By April 15
 Detroit — Michigan individuals required to file a declaration of estimated Federal income tax for 1966 must file Form 1040-ES no later than Friday, April 15.

Income Tax Declaration Must Be Filed By April 15
 Detroit District Director of Internal Revenue A. M. Stoepler reminds such taxpayers that they must pay at least 25 percent of their 1966 estimated income tax no later than April 15.

Income Tax Declaration Must Be Filed By April 15
 Document No. 5111, which furnishes more detailed information on this subject, may be obtained by writing to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, Detroit 48226.

Poverty War 'Really Works,' Says Hare
 Lansing — Secretary of State James M. Hare thinks the war on poverty program is really working.

Poverty War 'Really Works,' Says Hare
 Hare's department, the Michigan Department of State, recently hired 15 girl typists trained under provisions of the poverty program in the Detroit area. They were all trained in the Neighborhood Youth Corps work-training program after being selected by the Michigan Employment Security Commission. All the girls are working in the driver licensing examining stations in the Detroit area.

Poverty War 'Really Works,' Says Hare
 "A few months ago, these girls were basically unemployable in positions where a skill such as typing was necessary. Now, they are gainfully employed in state and city government jobs, where they will have the opportunity to advance depending on their abilities."

U. S. Representative Weston E. Vivian proposed today that a panel of U. S. scientists be appointed by the Congress to re-examine all recent unidentified flying object data currently held by the U. S. Air Force.

There are several reasons why the panel of scientists could carry out this investigation better than a Congressional committee. Vivian, the only PhD scientist in the U. S. Congress, stated.

U-M Triumphs, Problems Vividly Related in New Book

Ann Arbor — Back in the 1850's a favorite prank among university of Michigan students was pulling up the planks of Ann Arbor's wooden sidewalks to build bonfires.

Student pranks have changed history, but a good many other things haven't. Some of the problems faced today have been around since the University's infancy, according to Howard H. Peckham, director of the Clements Library.

Peckham was appointed to write the University's official history for its Sesquicentennial observance in 1967. The book will be published by the University Press next January.

By 1851, the University had already experienced all those evils which seem to recur in cycles and for which there still is apparently no permanent solution.

Peckham further believes that some of the problems the University faced a century ago were more serious than those of today. For example, in 1863, the Regents fired Henry Philip Tappan, the University's first president.

CUB SCOUT NEWS

Free Press, succeeded in getting Tappan fired, Peckham relates. As a writer, Peckham says his biggest problem of handling 150 years of the University's history has been "choosing what to leave out."

His chief source, materials have been the minutes of the Regents, kept since 1817, annual reports made by U-M presidents, dating from 1853, and an immense four-volume survey encyclopedia of the University, completed in 1958 and written by representatives of every department and unit on campus.

DR. GEORGE N. KOFFEMAN HEADACHES

HEADACHES ARE NOT A DISEASE but are the result of the system giving a warning that there is something wrong that must be fixed. From my records and research over a period of years I have shown that most all the so-called neurosis or migraine headaches are caused by a displaced vertebrae in the neck region or upper dorsals.

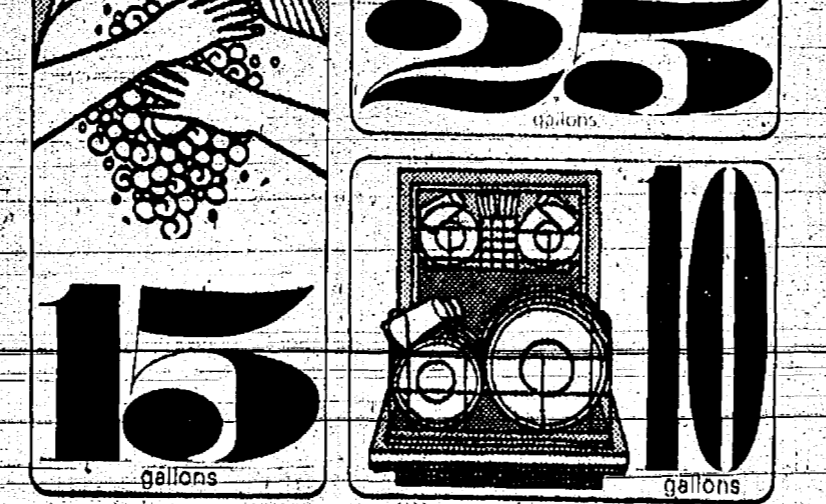

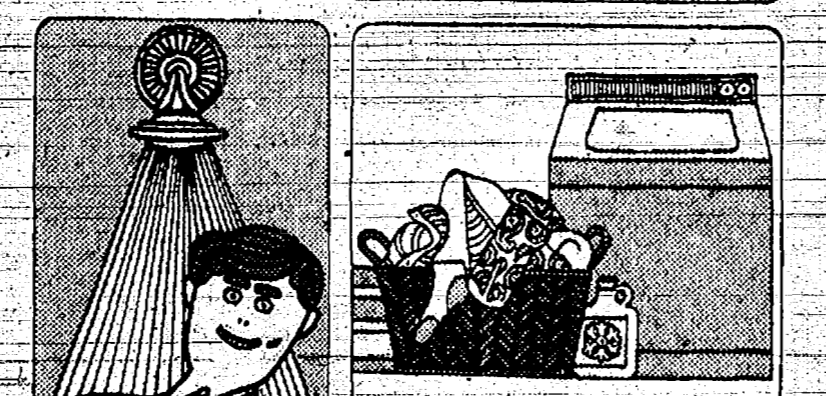

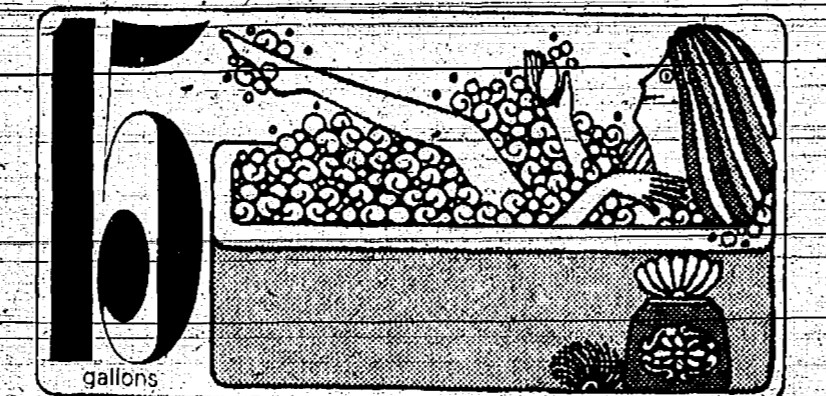

MISPLACED VERTEBRAE will put a kink in the blood vessels and muscles of the neck and produce this damming up in the head. Many victims of headaches go through life and see a hundred doctors without getting a correct Chiropractic diagnosis and treatment.

Many explanations of the mechanism of migraine and neurotic headaches have been advanced, but none is satisfactory I have found except that which Chiropractic has proven by giving these suffering people almost immediate relief.

I DO NOT MEAN TO SAY THAT a misplaced vertebrae in the neck region is the only cause of headache for all neurotic conditions produce headache of acute onset and duration. They are toxic and infectious.

How much hot water did you use today?

Now you can see why it pays you to have a Gas water heater. The average family of four uses up to 100 gallons of hot water daily. And it costs far less to heat it with gas.

You only need a heater half as big, because gas heats water faster, replaces the hot water you use, quicker. How come? The heat is a direct flame. An electric unit takes longer. The heat must go through a coil.

Expert To Discuss Lilac Culture for Woman's Club

Lilacs will be the theme of the April 12 meeting of the Woman's Club of Chelsea.

The program was inspired by the late Mrs. Warren Daniels, who had visited the lilac gardens of Dr. Leslie Rittershoser in Ann Arbor with Mrs. George Prinsinger. Just before her death in December, Mrs. Daniels had arranged with Mrs. Prinsinger to have her call Dr. Rittershoser and ask him to come to Chelsea to discuss the care and planting of lilacs. Mrs. Daniels, the first president of the Woman's Club, was to have been the program chairman for this meeting.

Dr. Rittershoser will show slides of the many varieties of lilacs in his own garden. Mrs. Daniels had hoped that the Woman's Club could be interested in planting lilacs in Chelsea.

Husbands as well as guests of members are invited to attend the Woman's Club meeting at McKune Memorial Library.

CANCER'S DANGER SIGNALS

The American Cancer Society says everyone should know cancer's seven danger signals. They are: 1) unusual bleeding or discharge; 2) a lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere; 3) a sore that does not heal; 4) change in bowel or bladder habits; 5) indigestion or difficulty in swallowing; 6) change in a wart or mole; 7) change in a wart or mole. If any of those signals lasts more than two weeks, see your doctor at once. The faster they come to the physician's attention the more lives can be saved.

CORDLESS APPLIANCES

Cordless electric battery-operated products are becoming increasingly popular. In one year, many as nine million cordless electric clocks, two-and-one-half million cordless electric knives and $38 million worth of shavers were purchased. Batteries to operate them are becoming more sophisticated with rechargeable alkaline and sealed nickel-cadmium units joining the long-dominant carbon-zinc type.

CHECK EVERGREENS

Winter injury to evergreens and shrubs cannot be assessed until the growing season begins. Where snow cover or mulches occur, roots should come through well. But shrubs, especially those tender and hybrid, and shallow rooted trees such as dogwoods already weakened may have a tougher time. Low temperatures cause root kill. Injury is more pronounced when temperatures drop suddenly after days of abnormally high temperatures than prolonged winter cold.

POCKETS OF POVERTY

Bonded, Laminated Fabrics May Need Special Attention

Bonded and laminated fabrics with their built-in body are a boon to the consumer but they may also require special attention.

It is difficult for the consumer to determine how bonded or laminated fabrics will perform, noted Bernetta Kahabka, extension specialist in textiles at Michigan State University.

Bonding is a process by which two fabrics are held together by an adhesive. In laminating, a foam construction is adhered to a fabric.

Lamination provides warmth and comfort without weight, as well as wrinkle resistance. Loosely woven or knitted fabrics and open weave fabrics such as lace achieve body with the "built-in underlining" provided by bonding.

The performance of these modern fabrics is dependent upon the quality of the chemical adhesives used, the effect of laundering and dyeing solvents, the quality of the outer fabric, and the quality-control employed by the manufacturer, Miss Kahabka said.

One side of the fabric may shrink while the other does not or both sides may shrink but at different rates. Bonded fabrics, especially knitted and woven wool bonded to acetate tricot should be pre-shrunk. This may be done by steam pressing, dyeing, or the London-shrink method.

The London-shrink method consists of spreading the material between two damp sheets and loosely rolling or folding the sheet and fabric and placing it in a plastic wrap for three to four hours until the bonded fabric is evenly damp. The material should then be spread flat on a sheet to dry.

You should give special consideration to the removal of stains from these fabrics. Spotting agents may dissolve the adhesive causing the two sides to separate. Miss Kahabka cautioned.

Bonded material will adapt itself well to most any pattern. Patterns with minimum seaming, all-in-one sleeves, and little fullness are preferred for laminates.

When sewing with these fabrics you should try to eliminate any excess bulk. This may be accomplished by grading seams, using facings of unlined fabrics, or by separating the lining fabric from the outer fabric in areas such as seam allowance, buttonholes, hem edges and large darts.

When you are pressing your laminated fabrics, remember to set your iron at a low temperature, Miss Kahabka concluded.

MENDING TIPS

Many homemakers do not like to repair clothing, but it pays off in better appearance and savings for the entire family. A stitch-in-time means fewer clothing replacements and more money for other family needs.

RIGHT SHOE

When you shop for shoes, put your right foot forward—your big foot; whether it be right or left. Be sure that shoes fit comfortably when you buy them. Try on both shoes and walk on a hard-surfaced floor, because most of your walking will be on hard surfaces.

REMOVING HEEL MARKS

Rubber or composition heels often leave black marks on wood floors, linoleum, or other smooth surface floor coverings. To remove these marks from wood or linoleum rub the area with fine steel wool dipped in a liquid cleaning wax. Polish at once with a soft clean cloth. On asphalt tiles, rub gently with a clean cloth dipped in self-polishing wax. Then blend in the wax over the cleaned area and let dry.

How can you make sure that fresh pineapples used in gelatin desserts and salads will jell?

Fresh pineapple contains a certain enzyme that is completely antagonistic to gelatin. But heating the pineapple to a simmer destroys the enzyme, and the fruit and the gelatin then become firm friends.

Permits Needed To Keep Deer Killed on Highway

Lansing — Michigan residents are reminded that possession permits must be obtained from the Conservation Department for them to legally keep deer that they strike down on the state's highways.

This point, stressed by Department law enforcement officials, is prompted by the fact that some motorists involved in vehicle-deer collisions have taken the animals they have killed without applying for these free permits.

Failure to obtain a permit amounts to illegal possession of venison, according to the Department.

Conservation officials explain that a permit does not have to be issued at the scene of a highway deer accident. However, every motorist must first contact state or local law enforcement officials before purchasing or attempting to sell the animal.

Officers of the State Police and local law enforcement agencies are authorized to release deer to drivers after processing applications for permits. They take the names, addresses, and license numbers of motorists and record this information to local conservation officers who later issue the permits.

Department law enforcement officials also point out that vehicle-deer collisions may only be kept by drivers who hit the animals.

In cases where motor vehicles are involved in collisions with deer, the animals are given to schools, county sheriff's departments, and other public institutions.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Questions and Answers Prepared by I. R. S.

Q—I have a refund coming and want to get it as soon as possible. Do you have any suggestions as to what I might do to speed it up?

A—The best advice we can give is to file early, be sure you include the required W-2 forms and supply all the information requested on the return. If you forget to enclose your W-2, do not put in your Social Security number, or neglect to sign, then the processing of your return will be delayed until the missing information is obtained.

Q—A friend told me that you don't have to provide half a person's support to be able to claim him as a dependent. They said I could claim my father-in-law if I had him supported in to support someone else. Is it up to me to claim him?

A—You may claim a dependent if you provide more than half of his support for the year. If you do not, you cannot claim him as a dependent. However, you may claim him as a dependent if you provide more than half of his support for the year.

Q—Each of my kids earned several hundred dollars last summer. Do they have to file returns on that income or do I include it with my own? They are 14 and 16 years old.

A—A return must be filed by each person who earns $600 or more in a year. In the cases you cite, if they earned less than $600, no return is required of either of them. Since you yourself did not earn this income, it should not be included on your return. However, your children may want to file a return if any income tax was withheld from their wages. A refund cannot be obtained.

Q—Can you still get answers to tax questions over the phone?

A—Yes, you can. Consult your phone directory for the number to call.

Q—Are there any special tax benefits for those over 65?

A—Yes, there are. Taxpayers 65 and over are entitled to an extra $400 when they take the minimum standard deduction; all their medical and drug expenses are deductible without regard to the 3-percent and 1-percent limitations. Sometimes there is no tax on a lower tax on the profits; they make on a personal home sale, and there is a retirement income credit. These and other benefits are detailed in IRS Document 559, "Tax Benefits For Older Americans." This booklet is free from local IRS offices.

Q—Are any excise taxes deductible? I've kept records on them.

A—Federal excise taxes paid on articles or services for personal or family use are not deductible but your records may help you to determine what you paid in state and local taxes on the purchases involved.

Local College Best Hope for Many Grads

Ann Arbor — The frustration of being denied admission to college and at the same time being ill-prepared to enter the world of "middle level" high school graduates are experiencing today, says Norman C. Harris, University of Michigan professor of technical education.

"In many states these youth have no resources but to remain unemployed, join the armed forces, or gradually infiltrate the labor force through part-time, pick-up jobs," says Harris.

He points out that in many Michigan communities, however, such youth have a much more acceptable alternative — further education at the local community college.

"Some of this middle group may eventually move on to a four-year college and a baccalaureate degree. But most of them are best suited to community college occupational education programs."

"Tuition is low at Michigan's community colleges, most high school graduates are acceptable for entrance and community colleges are rapidly increasing in numbers so that the youth of most areas of the state will have ready access to post-high school occupational education," Harris says.

He cites three troublesome factors in this otherwise favorable picture:

- 1) Most of these youth have little if any real understanding of the career opportunities available to them in the semi-professional and technical occupations;
- 2) Most of these youth are not adequately prepared to enroll in and succeed with college-level technical studies;
- 3) Many youth (perhaps a third of the graduates of Michigan high schools each year) even though they completed a college-prep curriculum with a C average or less, still think of themselves as baccalaureate degree aspirants. With their parents as willing accomplices, they insist on enrolling in university-preparable curricula in community colleges even when all the facts about school grades, standardized test scores indicate that an associate degree objective would be a far wiser choice.

"Harris points out that sociological pressures — lack of interest in post-professional jobs and in less-than-baccalaureate degree educational programs are in some ways at loggerheads with technological developments."

"Community college occupational education programs are thus caught in the middle of a 'squeeze play' between these two contending forces," he says. The escape from the trap will involve two major moves:

- 1) Widespread dissemination of information about middle manpower job opportunities — the working conditions and the salary or wage income to young people and their parents; and
- 2) Re-structuring of the high school courses and counseling services so that it becomes possible for the student to see that there are other concepts of community college education and training than the traditional baccalaureate degree programs.

Michigan Birth Rate Shows Gradual Decline Since 1915

Lansing — The state birth rate appears to be gradually decreasing as the death rate also continues to drop, according to statistics compiled by the Michigan Department of Public Health.

The figures appear in the Michigan Population Handbook, prepared by the Health Statistics and Evaluation Center of the state department of health.

Fifty years ago, in 1915, the state birth rate hit a high of 24.1 per thousand of population, however, a decline set in until a low of 16.8 was recorded in the 1930's.

After a gradual increase, another decline set in, and the number of live births decreased in the last eight years to 21.6 in 1964.

The book also shows a drop of 1.4 per thousand of population in the death rate between 1960 and 1964. In 1964, the rate was 13.4 per thousand of population.

In 1964 they had dropped to 8.9 in the house of origin and this week the House must begin to consider an estimated 200 bills on the floor.

The over-all state picture is slightly affected by the fact that the state is losing population through migration to other areas according to the handbook. Statistics show that Michigan has been losing people to other states.

from 1957 to 1964, when statistics were last compiled.

A general "aging" of Michigan's population has taken place since 1910, according to the survey. At that time the "most middle aged" member of the community was only 23.6 years old.

This representative person aged slowly, but steadily, until he was 29.8 years old in 1960. During the next 10 years he grew younger, or 28.3 years old in 1960.

Estimates compiled in the handbook predict an increase in the number of people 65 years old or older in the state. These older people are expected to represent 8.8 percent of the population by 1970. They amounted to 8.5 percent of Michigan residents in 1964.

In 1960, females outnumbered males in Michigan, according to the handbook. There were 1,000 women for every 985 men. This was the first time women held the edge over men since the statistics were compiled.

The reason given for the female increase is the fact that more females survive at nearly all ages. Although more males are born, the male proportion declines at a faster rate until females finally outnumber males in the population as a whole.

REPORT from LANSING

State Representative

Thomas G. Sharpe

The pace of legislative activity continues to increase with majorities forcing hasty action. Last Friday marked the final day for routing bills from committee in the house of origin and this week the House must begin to consider an estimated 200 bills on the floor.

Amidst the recent flurry of committee work, the majority party continued to play politics with the interests of disabled veterans.

They insisted on re-passing the same poorly conceived veteran property tax relief bill vetoed last year. Now that this second attempt has again been vetoed and the veto again upheld, the majority party leadership is finally beginning to talk about compromise.

It is still hoped that increased relief can be granted to veterans in time to apply on 1966 taxes. There would have been no question about this had sincere discussion rather than partisan grandstanding begun early in the session.

After several weeks of work, the House and Senate have agreed to a five-month moratorium on new licensing and bonding regulations for the light construction industry, passed last year. The delay in the effective date comes as a result of bonding and administrative concerns as well as a genuine concern that the act might impose unnecessary hardships on the small contractor, incidentally, I was the only member of the House that voted against this bill when it passed.

After much prodding from Governor Romney, Republican legislators and others concerned about mounting death and accident rates on Michigan highways, the majority party leadership has consented to allow a few traffic safety measures to reach the floor. Items given the green light include rear seat-belt brackets for all new cars; mandatory dual braking systems; probational driver licenses for the first year; and licensing of all driver education schools.

Although Democrats have agreed to end the year and a half committee obstruction of some traffic safety measures, there is no assurance of favorable floor action. In addition, much of the meat of a comprehensive attack on highway accidents and deaths are conspicuously absent from the list of approved items dictated by the majority party leadership. Ignored by the Democrats are measures to get the drinking driver off the road, tighten up the point system, provide State controlled motor vehicle safety inspection and require driver education for all new drivers.

It seems too bad and really a shame that after the great amount of work that has been done in conducting surveys by the various committees and the many conferences that were appointed by the Governor, pushing traffic safety legislation that slaughter on the highways has become a political issue, and rather than allow the Governor to be credited for improving traffic safety laws, the people must wait another year.

'Keep Michigan Beautiful' Campaign Depends on Us All

Lansing — The beauty of Michigan's highways, already recognized by the nation's travelers, is one of the reasons why the state is high on the popularity list of summer vacationists. Author Gene Little points this out in Michigan Conservation, bimonthly magazine of the Department of Conservation.

"But the State Highway Department and the citizens of Michigan are not resting on their laurels—or their juniors," says Little. "They are hard at work even today, taking advantage of the natural beauty of the state in the planning and building of highways." His article continues:

As a matter of fact, Michigan was one of the first in the first to apply for funds under the brand-new Federal Highway Beautification Act. The act will add new federal emphasis to this state's highway beautification program.

Already the Highway Department has announced tentative plans for creation of 350 miles of roadside plantings for highways and for freeway interchanges, for reconstruction of 15 additional miles of highway and for the striping of 137 unsightly and the spacing of areas adjoining highways and for billboards in these commercial acquisition of 112 easements to large "on premise" advertising maintain natural beauty spots as they are.

Details in use of the program for these purposes have yet to be worked out, but the plans indicate the current trend of thought on the subject.

It looks like a modest victory has been won with passage of the new federal beautification act. The victory will not be complete, however, unless the state legislature enabling legislation that qualifies Michigan for federal funds under the new act. The Michigan Legislature has until January, 1968, to take action to control billboards.

"Effective control" under the new federal act means that no billboards may be permitted within 600 feet of the right-of-way on interstate and primary highways, except in commercial and industrial areas.

The act also gives the state the authority to establish commercial and industrial zones, but they must conform to the intent of the act.

Striping, primarily for the purpose of placing billboards in certain areas to overcome the innumerable instances for billboards at highway interchanges, for reconstruction of 15 additional miles of highway and for the striping of 137 unsightly and the spacing of areas adjoining highways and for billboards in these commercial acquisition of 112 easements to large "on premise" advertising billboards, for example at gas stations, restaurants and other facilities, will be permitted along all parts of the highway system.

Non-conforming billboards in existence before September 1, 1965, must be removed by July 1, 1970. The federal government will pay 75 percent of the cost for removal of such signs.

Also, encouragement will be given to all states to establish more information centers along freeways as a way of helping local businesses overcome loss of billboard advertising potential. These centers will have maps available for use in planning public and other informational directories and other literature.

Additional state legislation is also needed for controlling billboards along interstate and primary highways.

The lack of this legislation will mean a loss of federal aid.

Control in this case means screening or removal of junkyards within 100 feet of the highway. A junkyard which cannot be screened properly must be removed.

The federal government will pay three-fourths of the cost of screening or removal of these junkyards.

Work on the first screening project in Michigan was started within days after signing of the new bill, and several more projects are ready to start in the near future.

Under the new federal act, the Secretary of Commerce may authorize payments for these beautification projects. He may approve for federal aid the cost of landscaping and roadside development within the right-of-way and for acquisition and development of scenic strips and rest and recreational areas outside the right-of-way.

Three percent of each state's federal aid apportionment will be allocated for such scenic area development, and this need not be matched by state appropriations. Michigan's share will be about $7.2 million for the 1965-67 period, or $3.6 million annually.

If Michigan does not establish provisions for adequate control on billboards by January 1, 1968, all subsequent federal aid apportionments made to Michigan will be reduced by 10 percent.

This will amount to a $12 million annual loss in federal highway funds for Michigan, based on the estimated 1966 fiscal year apportionment.

Meanwhile, the problem of littering along our highways has been a growing concern for the Highway Department. Department leaders have watched litter clean-up costs climb steadily over the years. Other state agencies, such as the Department of Conservation and the Michigan Tourist Council, have also watched this careless habit of littering grow in our society.

Fortunately, individuals and organizations have been standing by to help with the problem, and each started its own program to stem the flow of litter on our highways, in our parks, and at other scenic points where the habit is particularly obnoxious.

Thus, on a national scale, the Keep America Beautiful, Inc., program was organized, and leaders launched an all-out campaign against the senseless practice of discarding papers, bottles, cans, tires, bed springs, and the like to public view.

Keep America Beautiful has led the way in changing this careless habit of our people. The organization has had a hand at the social signs that attaches to anyone who litters, public and private property, and there is no doubt of the effects of this campaign.

Some states have even tried to ban the sale of certain products as an answer to the litter problem, only to find that the litter continued to mount regardless of such laws. Banning a product because it can be thrown away makes about as much sense as banning the automobile because it often kills people.

But we live in a rich society, and think little of the cost of an

MAN AND BEAVER

IN THE OPEN

By Lee Smits

The best duck hunter between Port Huron and Toledo might be excessive. However, it can be said that there were none better. Sidie, who weighed maybe 130, he wore glasses, smoked cigars, and was a long holder. An accidental clip with an axe when he was a boy had given him a wry neck from which his nickname was derived.

Sidie was a lonesome, sharp-spoken, opinionated. At one time his wife, Em, shot with him but not after they hauled their houseboat out at Gibraltar and built a snug home around it. His open motorboat, snarkboat and decoys of his own making were always kept in his back yard. Even in a sudden fall gale, Sidie would manure, single-handed, to pick up 100 decoys with 25-foot strings and make port with no fuss. He was deadly with a pump gun.

After an even half century of shooting Sidie said he was through. He and Em retired to Florida, where Sidie died a few years ago.

In his teens Sidie was employed by Alex Talsman and later by August Marxhausen, who in turn owned Calf Island opposite Trenton. At the upper end of the Island there was a concrete blind. At the lower end a pair of Irish water spaniels—rat-tails—tried dead ducks as they floated past, chased cripples and kept the day's kill neatly piled on the beach.

Sidie belonged to a duck-hunting family. His brothers, Uncle Bill and Cuddy, were famous on the river and the upper end of Lake Erie. Cuddy was a pioneer in layout-shooting. He operated a place called the Casino and the dimensions were arrived at by making the outline of the boat around Cuddy's low-lying flat on the dance floor. Uncle Bill, a carpenter and builder, made his own decoys. Their nephews, Hy Dalhka, marine contractor, and Hy's brother, Captain Kenneth Dalhka, owner of the charter yacht, Dee Dee, are prominent wildfowling. Hy Dalhka is the originator and permanent chairman of the Duck Hunters Tournament, held annually at the Pointe Mouillee Game Refuge Area, headquarters for 18 years.

All winter Sidie bought grain to feed ducks at the lower end of the Detroit River, opposite his home. That tradition is carried on by his nephew, Hy, who can look out of a big picture glass window in his home, in Gibraltar, and enjoy the spectacle of a hundred or so feeding ducks, bluebill, mallard, blacks, a few canvasback and red-head.

What brought on these recollections is a flock of ducks, feeding in the Detroit River at the foot of Third St. These are golden-eye, also known as whistlers or whistle wings, because of the sound made by their wings. Of the 200 ducks in this flock, no more than eight or ten are females, a ratio not uncommon since males and females spend considerable time apart from each other.

Duck hunters have local nicknames for various species. Sidie Dalhka called goldeneyes "ban-ton ducks." During the winter shot them in openings in the river and lake ice, using, a most, half a dozen decoys. Saturday in that far-off time was payday and Saturday night was given to beer-buying and good fellowship.

Sidie would attire himself in a white hunter's rig, complete with a white hunter's gown, and enter a snuggly festooned with the week's kill of whistlers. He explained that he had just stopped in for a short beer, but would immediately be surrounded by convivialists, burdened with their week's pay. They wanted to buy ducks. Sidie was reluctant to see, having other plans for disposing of the whistler wings.

However, under pressure, Sidie would hold a kind of impromptu auction, letting his ducks go to high bidders until he had received a dollar or more each for two or three dozen ducks, and not very flavorsome ducks, at that.

But a buck whistler is spectacular, with black and white plumage and a glossy black-green head. A whistler weighs almost as much as a redhead, but looks bigger because of heavy feathers.

No purchaser ever complained and Sidie always had a kindly feeling toward the ruckus species.

Mr. Smits' column is presented through the courtesy of the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co.

NEWSPAPERS MAKING RAPID, CONTINUOUS GROWTH

Since World War II, employment in the newspaper business has increased faster than total employment in the U.S. Between 1947 and 1963, newspaper employment increased 33 percent, total U.S. employment increased 12 percent, and manufacturing grew 9 percent. (This means that a free press is also an important employer and growth business, in addition to keeping people informed.)

Understanding your HEALTH

By Albert E. Heustis, M.D., Director Michigan Department of Public Health

Many Michigan folks I have talked to seem to believe in the idea of "instant disease." That is they apparently accept an "instant heart attack," or "instant cancer."

Perhaps it's a sign of our times.

The truth is nobody gets heart disease, stroke or cancer overnight. I can assure you that the groundwork for these diseases is laid during a period of weeks, months, and often years before becoming critical. During these conditions from the time of an attack is like dating car trouble from the first time the engine won't start.

Many deaths could be prevented or postponed by discovering these diseases earlier, so they could be treated sooner.

Last year more than two-thirds of all the deaths in our state were caused by heart disease, stroke and cancer. And these were not all old folks for whom death was imminent, anyway.

Of the heart-deating two conditions dominate the scene: coronary artery disease and hypertension. The early symptoms of hypertension or "high blood pressure" also usually show up in an ordinary physical examination long before the victim suffers the obvious symptoms. Modern treatments can lower the blood pressure and prevent permanent damage to the heart and circulatory system.

And the situation with stroke, a blockage of rupture of the blood vessels supplying the brain, is much the same. Many of the preconditions and early signs are known, but unless potential stroke victims get to a doctor periodically, they can hardly benefit from this knowledge. New drugs can work to dissolve clots and open restrictions in the blood vessels. But, again, recognition of the condition is the key.

Cancer follows the same pattern. Early diagnosis and treatment often mean recovery. For example, cervical cancer in women is almost 100 percent curable when discovered early by the simple "Pap" test. And yet many women continue to die each year from this condition. Radiation treatment, new drugs and surgery offer new hope for most types of cancer victims.

Remember, a periodic check-up from your doctor could add many pleasurable and useful years to your life.

The Hi-Light

Edited by Students of the Chelsea High School Journalism Club

The Latin club is now in the process of planning the Roman banquet. The Roman banquet is a yearly affair put on by the club with Mrs. Bechtachmer. At present the date for the banquet is set for May 14.

The Student Council is planning to sell books every Friday afternoon. The Council has tried to sell books to the students before but this activity did not meet with much student success.

The Student Council has also sent away for a film to be shown in the near future; the film is entitled "Viet Nam: Why?"

Sometimes next week the students will hold a "gripe day" when for one hour the students meet and name their grievances to each other. No teachers will be present.

In the past, legitimate topics for student discussion have included school rules, dress, hair styles, grades and the possibilities of a student court has come up in previous meetings.

The show is gone and spring is here. At CHS, "spring" is synonymous with "prom." May 21 is the date set for the big event this year. A name hasn't been picked yet, but the general theme is "Arabian Nights."

Decorations for the prom have been rented from LaVan Displays of Lansing. The entire room will be draped with a satin material in vivid Arabic colors. A band, yet to be selected, will provide music for dancing in the balcony. Dinner will be buffet style.

All the planning and work has been broken down into various committees including food, decorations, invitations, program and serving committees. A fund-raising committee has been set up also.

Boys and Girls physical education classes have, for the past three weeks, been alternating bowling and learning to square dance.

Mr. Dussau, the boys' physical education instructor, takes half of each class every day to Chelsea lanes to bowl. Mrs. Puckler, at the same time instructs the remaining students in square dancing. Mrs. Puckler says there may even be a square dancing party next week.

Bowling and square dancing will continue through next Friday.

Revival Meetings

Set at Sharon Church

Virgil P. Brock, author of "Be- and the Sun," his wife, Martha and the Rev. A. J. Berry will hold a series of revival meetings at the Sharon Community Bible church located at the corner of Sylvan and Washburn Rds.

The Rev. and Mrs. Brock will direct their messages primarily to young people. The Rev. Berry will preach each evening.

The meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m. and close at 10 p.m. beginning April 10 and continuing through Sunday, April 17, with the exception of Saturday.

The public is invited to attend the series. Driving carefully may not get you anywhere as fast as possible, but it will probably get you there.

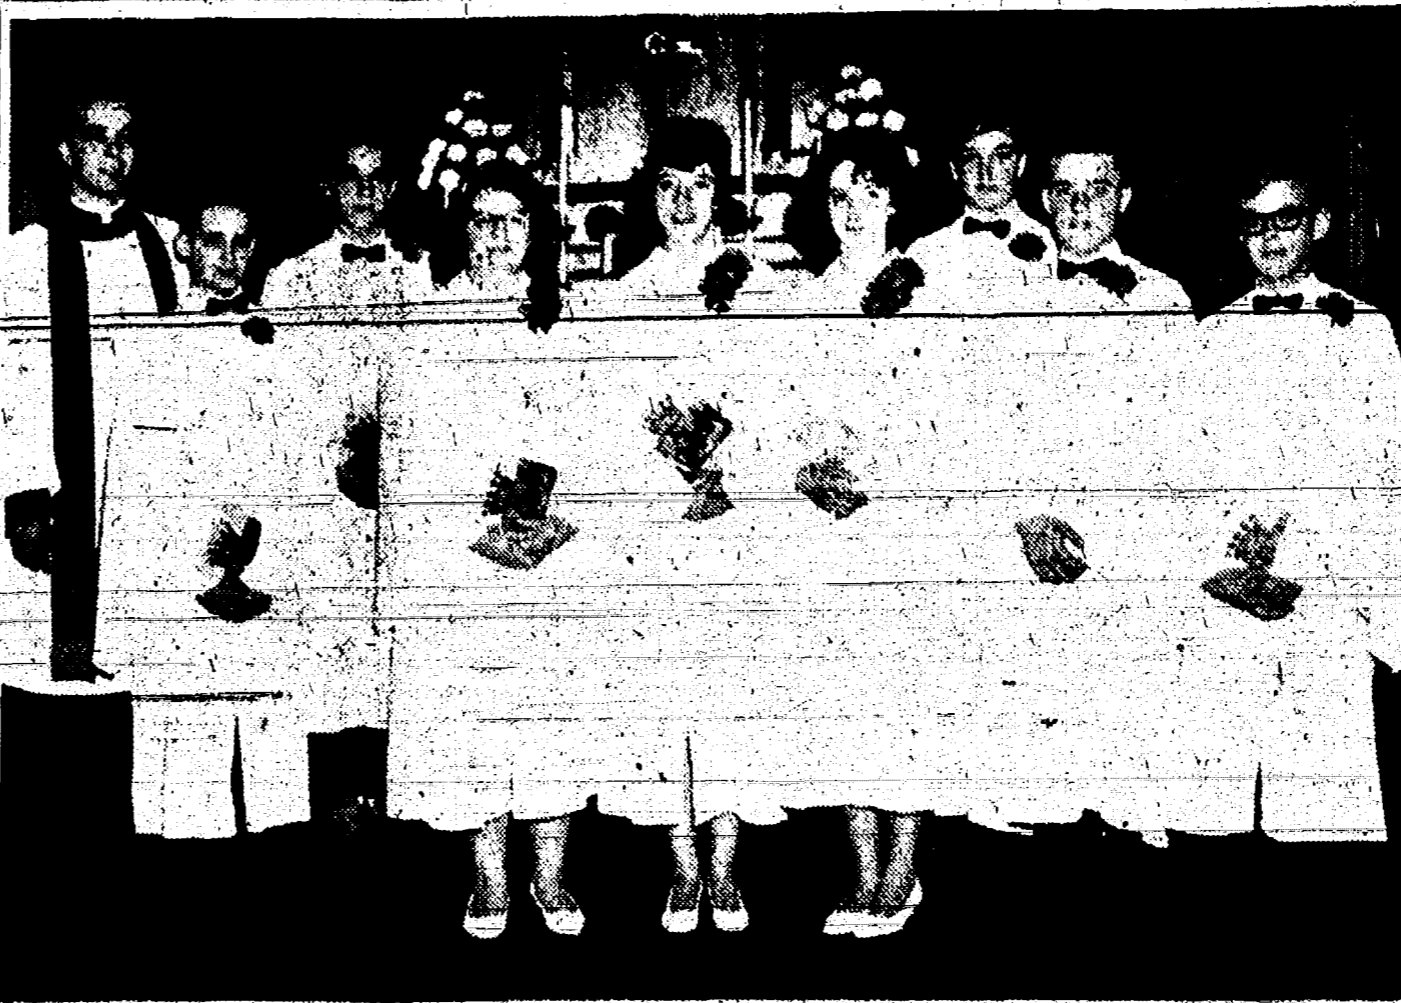

Philip L. Spike Wins State FFA Silver Award

Philip Lowell Spike was one of 31 Future Farmers of America to receive a silver award at the recent Future Farmers of America meeting in Lansing.

It was the third silver award to be presented to the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Spike of 3260 Sharon Hollow Rd. In previous years, Peter and Douglas Spike also received the silver award. Peter, a graduate student at Iowa State University at Ames, Ia., will receive a master's degree in animal genetics. Douglas is a sophomore at Michigan State University in East Lansing and a past state FFA officer.

Philip, a senior at Manchester High school, and Douglas last summer rented and worked a farm adjacent to their parents' farm. The farm consisted of nearly 500 acres of farm and grazing land.

Already enrolled at Michigan State University for the fall of 1966, Philip plans to study agriculture. He was selected to receive the award from among 10,000 Michigan high school youths who are members of FFA.

EIGHT CONFIRMANDS were welcomed into membership of the Zion Lutheran Church at Rogers Corners on Palm Sunday. The eight, shown with Pastor Donald Baacke, are, from left, Dale Barth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barth, Jr.; Stephen Bismann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bismann; Terri Freysinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Freysinger; Karen Manzel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Manzel; Jeanne Hinderer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Hinderer; Robert Koenigter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Koenigter; Richard Schenk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schenk; and Daniel Wenk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wenk. The group has been studying for two years in preparation for their confirmation.

Government Oks Mentally Retarded Training Program

A major breakthrough in employment of the mentally retarded was welcomed by Norman Quakenbush, president of the Washington Association for Retarded Children.

A contract was signed Wednesday between the U. S. Department of Labor and the National Association for Retarded Children to place 1,500 mentally retarded persons in on-the-job training programs in the nation's retail chains.

"This demonstration," Quakenbush said, "is most heartily welcomed by everyone of NARC's 1,000 state and local associations. On the national level it signifies an awakening to the challenge of the untapped source which the country's two-million able though unemployed retarded represent."

Here in Washtenaw county we have an almost concentration in supplying the retarded individuals to enter this training program, in being that they are ready for the job and supplementing their own work experience with counseling, guidance and recreation.

According to the contract which was signed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and NARC President Thomas A. Tucker on Wednesday, the trainees will be paid $1.25 an hour for a 40-hour week for the existing minimum wage rate. The employers will be reimbursed by the government for half this amount and upon successful completion of training the mentally retarded workers will attain equal pay and status with fellow employees.

At the ceremonies in the labor department secretary's office, NARC President Tucker concluded his speech of acceptance and appreciation with these words:

"I would point out that over a period of 10 years, the trainees who enter the program we have signed today will have paid back in taxes on the wages they have earned as equal status employees, double what it cost to train them."

You can usually judge your friends by what they do rather than by what they say.

Council Briefs

The invocation at the April 5 Village Council meeting in the Municipal Building was given by the Rev. Father Francis Maliszewski.

A public hearing, as required by law, was held regarding the 1966 Village Budget which was accepted as read. The budget totals $229,000.

Discussion was held with Frank Manner of Dexter regarding the sighting of a UFO at his residence near Dexter. A detailed report of the sighting was submitted by Elwyn Beach.

Discussion was held with Edwin Oram, owner of the present trailer park located on N. Main St., regarding a proposed home park. Oram wished to relocate his present trailer park from N. Main St. and to increase the size of the park substantially. Tentative plans call for all utilities such as electricity, telephone, so forth, to be installed underground, with blacktop streets, etc. Oram was authorized the village planning consultant to submit a mobile home park ordinance for council approval in the near future, and any request for a rezoning hearing would hinge on the adoption of the proposed ordinance.

A discussion was held with Jack Merkel regarding the possibility of the installation of sanitary sewer facilities in the "Peggy" Rd. area. No definite date for sewer construction in any area of the village can be set at this time. A study of the entire problem is being planned at this time.

Discussion was held with Village Attorney John Keusch regarding the organization of an Area Planning Commission. President Baldwin appointed Trustees Chapman and Weber to investigate the feasibility of an Area Planning Commission and to make recommendations to the Council.

Former Sheriff's Dept. Officer Promoted By Insurance Firm

Charles F. Cook, a former Washtenaw County Sheriff's officer, has been named Kentucky state supervisor of the Independent Order of Foresters, a fraternal insurance firm.

Cook is a former Chelsea restaurateur, having operated a restaurant located at the corner of M-52 and Old US-12. He later joined the sheriff's department, where he served for 10 years as a uniformed deputy, a detective sergeant and a training lieutenant. He left the sheriff's department in 1964 to become a representative of the Forester company. He was moved up to district supervisor recently and the new appointment makes him head of the firm's Kentucky sales forces which eventually will include 50 men.

He and his wife, Grace, live at 327 Westwood, Ann Arbor.

About half the ill that afflicts the human body originates in a pampered mind.

Confirmands Honored At Family Dinners

Ernest Hinderer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hinderer, who was one of the two confirmands of St. John's United Church of Christ at Rogers Corners, was honored at a dinner following the confirmation service and at sports houses during the afternoon for friends and relatives.

Present for the dinner were Miss Elsie Hinderer, Mr. and Mrs. George Elkins, Gary Soitz and Mrs. Phillip Soitz. Among those who called in the afternoon were the Rev. and Mrs. Stephen Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hinderer and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Hinderer.

David Pratt, the other confirmand at St. John's church, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis P. They entertained at a buffet per for 35 guests in his home. Among these were his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Prater, Manchester and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Trinkle.
