The Park Ridge-Niles School District 64 Board of Education on Dec. 14 anproved the district's 2009 tax levy, an increase of 4.92 percent over the previous vear.

The 2009 levy totals $56.9 million. Due to a tax can school districts cannot levy more than 5 percent above the previous year's levy.

The levy will not appear until the fall 2010 tax bills of District 64 property owners. The effect it could have on property taxes is currently not known and is based on several factors.

District 64 Business Manager Rebeeca Allard explained that while the district has asked for nearly 5 percent more in taxes than the previous year, it is likely the full amount will not be received.

"Traditionally it's common for schools to ask for a little more than we anticipate getting," she said. New construction and property reassessments will impact property values and how much owners member Russ Gentile voted against the levy, saying he believed now is the time for the district to consider a "modest budget reduction" rather than an inthrough the township's food

Teachers union rejects salary freeze

By TONY BERTUCA tbertuca@pioneerlocal.com

Maine Township High School District 207 teachers union has voted against reopening their contract to mitigate heavy job cuts proposed by the school district, but union members were discussing voluntary contributions to save jobs.

District officials announced plans last month to eliminate 75 teaching positions to help close a $17million deficit, but said about 50 jobs could be disappointed with the outsaved if the teacher's union were willing to negotiate

ductions

But that way forward was blocked when the union voted Dec. 11 to keep the contract closed. Maine ident Emma Visce said the final vote tally 243-325.

"These are tough economic time for our niembers," Visce said, "Many of them live with spouses who have recently lost jobs and they need to take care of their families."

District Superintendent Ken Wallace said he was come of the vote.

By TONY BERTUCA tbertuca@pioneerlocal.com

Former Niles mayoral e:indidate Chris Hannsiak has resigned from the Citizen's Compliance Plan Subcommittee of the Niles Ethies Board to serve as an appointed member of the Plan Commission and Zoning Boaid.

Hanusiak had to resign because, under the law, he eannot serve on a citizen's committee and be an appointed village official at the same time.

"It has been a rewarding experience working with niany of the other members of the (ethics) committee. and I leave with a certain sadness since I spent so many fruitful and productive hours working with good and decent fellow citizens," Hanusiak wrote in a resignation letter sent to Mayor Robert Callero carlier this month. "In my new position I will carry many of the ideals and goals I learned while on the Citizen's Compliance Plan Committee?

Hanusiak became active in the village after losing to Callero in the April election.

Along with being appointed to the ethies subcommittee, he has also helped spearhead an effort to resurrect the Friends of the Niles Library booster group. He was appointed to the Plan Commission and Zoning Board in November Hanusiak's subcommittee recently erafted a new draft of the Niles ethics code, which is currently being discussed by the Ethics Board.

Math, science careers for girls touted

ihaskitt@pioneerlocal.com

A conference recently held at Niles West High School aimed to encourage fifth- and sixth-grade girls to pursue careers in math

This is the first year Niles Township District 219 has offered Girls Empowered by Math and Science (GEMS)

"It was an outreach program to talk to fifth- and sixth-grade girls about how they could pursue careers in math and science and to show them different role models. There are women scientists and there are women engineers out there. I don't know if they really get to see enough of that, Ami LeFevre, Niles West science teacher, said.

GEMS was hosted by Niles West seience teachers LeFevre and JulieAnn Villa and open to any girl who attended school in Niles Township, About 70 fifthand sixth-grade girls attended the conference.

"I've attended a lot of girl and women tech conferences ... and they've done research and they've talked to researchers about the age that's most impressionable and they've come out with that (fifth- and sixth-grade) age group. So if you want to eatch them and you want to motivate them to keep going into math and seience, that's a key age," LeFevre said.

Work study program could end up on chopping block

Niles Township High School District 219 is considering climinating the work study program that has been a part of the district for 40 years.

"We think we're doing the of the planned cuts is in the prudent thing. We're not area of Applied Sciences doing this from a cost-cut- and Technology, where the ting move at all. Hankes said, "Our their desire to have more national qualifiers that we do have for DECA come direetly from CDE the class, so if we lose CDE the class we will still have DECA the club but it will not be as successful as it has been."

DECA is a business club that is offered to anyone enrolled in marketing, advertising, accounting or the work study program.

"We're trying to adjust these priorities as best we can and just try to do the right thing. We'll continue the dialogue. This is just the start," Silverman said.

With the exception of the work study program, which is up for complete climination, the other areas are for restructuring which means they might still be there but under a new design according to Superintendent Nanciann Gatta.

"Our goal during this period of restructuring is to develop models, not do away with things but develop new models that are more cost effective and better serve students." Gatta said.

The board did not vote on the cuts Dec. 14. They only voted on directing administration to continuing evaluating which programs to cut with the main focus on the ones already targeted according to Silverman.

Seventeen positions were climinated last year to save the district money. However every single person eliminated had an opportunity to another job in the district according to District 219 Community Relations Director Jim Szczepaniak. Comment: pioneerlocal.com

The lesson of Christmas: We can do so much better

Christmas?

How do we celebrate in a time of massive unemployment and dreamdestroying home forcelosures?

How do we wish each other peace on earth in a time of expanding war?

Perhaps the answer to these painful questions is that Christmas -- like other religious observances - is a crucial reminder that we can do better than this, be better than this. Christmas reminds us, in Abraham Lincoln's memorable phrase, of the better angels of our nature.

Yes, the world may be a mess, and we may be who messed it. But that's not all we are, or all we can be.

There is war and poverty and selfishness. But we can be better than that. There also is love and generosity and kindness. There is within us the aspiration to do better, to be

While you read this, I'm eireling Woodfield Mall ooking for a parking place.

I found this zany quiz (below) left by a guy with funny cars and wearing green. I thought the dude was an elf, but he insisted he was in "Avatar:"

1. In the song, "The 12 Days of Christmas," what did "my true love" give on the fifth day?

(a) A nicotine patch (b) Five golden rings, which were sent to one of hose gold exchange places

(e) An Advent calcudar ansacked of its chocolates 2. When the dude runs to his lawn to see "what was the matter,"

(a) Rod Blagojevich recording his WLS radio (b) The Real Elves of the show before the trial (b) Striking union elves roughing up Rudolph (e) Sarah Palin bagging a True or False moose while signing copies of her new book 3. Santa's reindeer endure many indignities. including:

(a) Vixen is teased mercilessly by the others for being a Victoria's Secret prop

(b) Blitzen in a huff after G8 conference confuses him with Hans Blix, former U.N. weapons inspector (e) Rudolph snarls he's no

Bunker for bears set at Brookfield

Zoo prepares wilderness exhibit for spring opening

By ROB SIEBERT rsiebert@pioneerlocal.com

Though they're oblivious to it now, the five bears living at Brookfield Zoo will be moving this Spring.

But they won't be moving far. The three polar bears and two grizzly bears will be moving into the zoo's new Great Bear Wildnerness Exhibit.

The exhibit encompasses 7.5 aeres, and eost about $27 million to build. It contains three 9,000square-foot living spaces for the bears to roam through. The exhibit will also house space for bison, bald eagles and Mexican gray wolves.

The living areas for the bears eontain temperature eontrolled pools for the bears to swim in, which have windows installed so visitors can see the animals swimming underwater.

To keep the animals entertained, keepers will place food portions around the exhibit for the bears to hunt for. In addition, stainless steel dens adjacent to the three living spaces allow keepers to alternate the bears between exhibits.

"Whenever they come out, it won't be the same presentation," said Jay Petersen, eurator of mammals at the zoo.

Problem roommates

The bears' keen sense of smell will make the experience of switching habitats even more intriguing to them.

"That ereates a lot of interest. because they can smell the other bears," Petersen said.

Interestingly enough, the presence of other bears isn't always a good thing. The zoo's two male polar bears, 20-year-old Aussie and his 3-year-old son Hudson, have to be monitored very closely when in the same vicinity, as they both have a strong desire to be the alpha-male bear. This could potentially result in a fight between the two.

"It's just bear biology," Pe-

Oddly enough, no sueli tension exists between brothers Jimmy and Axhi, the 14-year-old grizzly

The zoo's eurrent bear habitats are three times smaller than their new ones. They also eontain more natural substrates, in addition to sand traps for the animals to dig in.

"They like to dig and ehew and basically mess with everything if possible," said Mike Kenney, project engineer for Great Bear Wilderness.

While there was nothing wrong or unsafe the existing bear exhibits, they opened in 1934, and Brookfield's bears were long overdue for a living space up-

"The old facility was state of the art 75 years ago," lead bear keeper Mike Brown said.

Great Bear Wilderness is Brookfield Zoo's latest attempt to try and move the facility into the new millennium, and connect humankind with nature.

Stuart Strahl, president of the Chicago Zoological Society, said bears are the most viewed animal at the Brookfield Zoo, which may not be coincidence. Strahl said bears have had a strong soeial, eultural and mythological presence since they've existed.

Strahl said 80 percent of Americans now live in highly urbanized areas, and have very little contact with wildlife. As a result, very few people understand their relationship with nature. With exhibits such as Great Bear Wilderness, Strahl hopes to open people's eyes to the symbiotic relationship between themselves and animals

"Our goal as an institution has always been to make that eonnection between humans and wild life, and to inspire conservation," Strahl said

In the coming weeks, one of the bears themselves may remind zoo guests of the importance of eonservation. Arki, the zoo's 20year-old female polar bear, may or may not be pregnant with another set of eubs (she and Aussie eoneeived Hudson, and numerous other eubs who were given to other zoos).

The expanded space offered by the exhibit will give the Chicago Zoological Society the opportunity to expand its polar bear breeding program, and subsequently increase their population in North American zoos.

Bear keepers can never be fully sure if a female is pregnant (though there are telltale signs). Brown and his staff at Brookfield will have a "maternity igloo" for bears that give birth in the future. Brown said mother bears typically prefer to be enclosed around their cubs, so the igloo gives them a sense of comfort. The igloo is a short distance away from a 5-foot pool, in which a mother bear ean teach her cubs to swim — the hard way. "Basically, to teach them to swim, she just drags them into the deep water," Brown said.

Great Bear Wilderness will also include an education center, gift shop and restaurant for visitors. The exhibit opens to the public May 8.

But, since 2002 he's been leading Aga-Boom, a three-elown troupe eoming to Centre East in Skokie Dec. 26-28. The non-stop 75minute slapstick show, full of paper fights, inflated garbage bags, juggling suiteases, enormous rubber balloons and audience participation is like Blue Man Group erashed its ear into the Ringling Brothers Circus bus.

"We're full of paradoxes," said Bogatirev, who used to elown for Cirque Du Soliel.

Funny, not scary

Aga-Boom's show strives to deflate what Bogatirev ealls an American-born notion that clowns are seary or evil by not giving the audience time to think about anything except for what's happening on stage. In other parts of the world, he said, clowns are seen as "We look like eartoon eharaeters. Kids believe we exist, like Sponge Bob Squarepants," he said. "If kids see us from afar, they think we're toys. But, if kids see us eloser, they get seared."

Typically in American circuses, he said, elown performances are broken up by, say, trapeze artists or lion tamers. The elowns come out so the other acts can set up. This, he said, gives audience members time to think about the stressful parts of their lives.

But, with Aga-Boom's constant barrage of slapstick humor, audienee members think only about how ridiculous the clowns are.

Relaxation

"It's a kind of stress relief," Bogatirev said.

CRAZY HEART * * * 1/2

A familiar story rendered more subtly in 1983's "Tender Mercies." "Crazy Heart" nonetheless gets a lot of emotional mileage out of the saga of Bad Blake, a broke-downand busted country music legend hadly in need of redemption thanks to an Oscar-worthy central perform ance from Jeff Bridges. As the old. tired, perpetually drunk and impressively pot-bellied Bad. Bridges never ism instead of wallowing in the grandeur of court life, with a near-total emphasis on the drama that takes place behind the throne, and a sharp script by Oscar-winner Julian Fellows ("Gosford Park"). And the chief pleasure in the film is the performance of Emily Blunt (most familiar as Meryl Streep's obnoxious assistant in 'The Oevil Wears Prada"), playing the young gueen first with girlish naiveté then with growing strength and maturity. But, of course, there's no shortage of troubled romance with her diffident awkward nice-nuv prince (Rupert Friend, uncanned). (BI) (100 min.) Rated PG for some mild sensuality, a scene of violence, and brief incidental language, and smoking.

FILM CLIPS

INVICTUS

± ±1/2 An inspirational story that falls short on artistic inspiration, "Invictus" has an almost unbelievably high-stakes tale to tell. Yet it's told in a way that almost determinedly undercuts emotional involvement. And that takes some doing, considering that we're talking about a root-for-the-underdog sports movie here crossed with a political drama with the fate of a nation at stake. Morgan Freeman stars as the recent ly elected South African President Nelson Mandela, who enlists the aid of the white captain (Matt Oamon) of the national rugby team in an attempt to inspire his dangerously racially divided country with an unlikely attempt to win the World Cup. "Invictus" has all the makings of a ripping varn especially considering that in broad outline, it's basically true. Yet director Clint Eastwood's observation of events from a middle distance, with cool detachment and restraint consistently underwhelms (BI) (134 min.) Rated PG-13 for brief strong language.

THE PRINCESS AND THE FROG ***

The writing/directing team of John Clements and John Musker ("Aladdin." "The Little Mermaid") return for this old-fashioned, handdrawn animated Disney adventure. which serves as an excellent reminder of how entertaining two dimensions can be. The sassy musical fairy tale about a poor little girl with a frog phobia who grows up and reluctantly kisses a frog when he promises to turn into a handsome prince (and give her enough cash to open her dream restaurant), only to be turned into a bugeating amphibian herself, is often surprisingly funny, And the vintage New Orleans/bayou/voodoo story elements are imaginative and exotic. A clear throwback to the run-ofthe-mill Disney style of the late-'60s and early '70s. "Princess" is naturally going to be most enjoy able if you happen to be under 4feet tall. But it's not bad by a long shot. (97 min.) Rated G.

ARMORFO

A group of guards for a security company conspire to steal $42 million from an armored car (82 min) Rated PG-13 for sequences of intense violence, some disturbino images and brief strong language.

RROTHERS ★★★1/2

If you're not familiar with the 2004 Danish film on which this is modeled. "Brothers" might seem to be a perfect setup for sleazy exninitation: When a soldier is believed lost in combat, his black sheep brother moves in with his hereaved wife and children and one thing leads to another until the sol dier returns from the dead with re venge in his heart. But there's something much more interesting going on in director Jim Sheridan's ("In America," "My Left Foot") wartime drama which ultimately becomes a story of misplaced quilt rage and forgiveness. "Brothers" benefits from a general sense of restraint, with its short, emotionally undercut scenes and no-frills diafocue and from strong performance es by Tobey Maguire. Jake Gyllenhaal. Natalie Portman and Sam Shepard and from long-suppressed tension that constantly threatens to erupt. (105 min.) Rated R for lan quage and some disturbing violent

EVERYBOOY'S FINE ***

An aging widower (Robert Oe Niro) takes a surprise cross-country trip to visit his widely dispersed chil dren (Kate Beckinsale, Sam Rockwell and Orew Barrymore) and discovers their lives are not as spectacularly wonderful as he had believed in this expertly handled remake of Giuseppe "Cinema Paradiso" Tornatore's "Stanno Tutti Bene" - which starred the great Marcello Mastroianni. Writer/director Kirk Jones. who made his debut with the delightfully greedy Irish comedy "Waking Ned Devine," keeps the pace slow and easy (though ultimately a little wearisome, perhaps) and generally keeps the sentimentality in check. Though it's ultimately hard to feel much of anything after the artificial way the story resolves itself. (BI) Rated PG-13 for thematic elements and brief strong language

THE OFFICIAL MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL WORLD SERIES FILM COLLECTION

It's official all right, This exhaustively thorough collector's set from A&E includes the Major League Baseball film for every Fall Classic from 1948 to 2008,

"The Official Major League Baseball World Series Film Collection" bound up in a coffee table book format that gives a detailed history of every World Series going all the way back to 1903.

NORTH BY NORTHWEST

50th ANNIVERSARY EDITION Fifty years after its release, Hitelicock's "North by Northwest" is still a dazzling classic of suspense and it's never looked better than it does in this gorgeons Warner Brothers reissuc - meticulously restored and remastered in 8K hi-definition resolution. The Blu-Ray edition includes a new one-hour Hitchcoek documentary and a 44-page photo book.

THE PAUL NEWMAN TRIBUTE COLLECTION

20th Century Fox assembled this handsomely packaged tribute to the great Mr. Newman, featuring 13 films including: "The Long Hot Summer," "Rally 'Round the Flag Boys,' "Exodus," "The Hustler (Special Edition)," 'Hombre," "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (Special Edition)," "The Verdict" and "Towering Inferno (Special Edition)." All of these films have been previously released, but the repuek: iging cuts the price eonsiderably.

PRIDE & PREJUDICE: BLU-RAY

A&E's hi-def reissue of this Emmy-winning BBC production of Jane Austen's classie novel (featuring a star-making performance the much-inmented image quality of previous DVD and VHS releases - but not in spectacular fashion. The series itself is a firstrate example of its type, though, if you know a fan of British TV drama who has someliow failed to see it.

THE PRISONER: BLU-RAY EDITION

Patrick McGoohan's elassie 1960s exercise in espionage weirdness, about an English seeret agent who resigns and then finds himself assigned a number and quaintly imprisoned in the The Village, has been re-presented in the Blu-Ray format by A&E with dazzlingly crisp and detailed results, "The Prisoner" has never looked so good.

ROCKY: THE UNDISPUTED BLU-RAY COLLECTION

If you just can't get enough Rocky Balboa, or vou know someone else who can't, this one's for you, "The Undisputed" collection assembles all six movies, from the Oscarwinning "Rocky" to the surprisingly solid "Rocky Balboa" released 30 vears later, in one hard-hitting nuckage. There's not much to speak of in terms of bonus features, but it's nice to have all of the Rock's big bouts museled into one liard-hitting paekage. Yo!

Extreme case of Sherlock

MOVIE REVIEW

By BRUCE INGRAM Film Critic

> SHERLOCK HOLMES $\star\star\star1/2$

In this new "Sherlock Holmes," when the game is afoot, it's a full-contact snort, with less emphasis on deductive powers and more on outrageously hyperbolic action, It's a lot of fun, though, if you don't mind the idea of a nontraditional master sleuth.

As re-imagined by producer Joel Silver ("The Matrix," "Die Hard") and director Guy Ritchie ("Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels"), Robert Downey Jr., gives us not only an action Holmes but a kung fu Holmes - and a comedy Holmes as well. It's hard to say whether it's stranger to see Sherlock Holmes stripped to the waist and enjoying a little recreational no-holdsharred boxing or making with the wicked nunch lines. It seems certain no one has ever gotten so much comic mileage out of a comatose bulldog as ever cared for. Downey when he nonchalantly admits that he has indeed been experimenting with various poisons and paralyzers on Watson's pet. Jude Law makes an action Watson as well, which is a good thing, since he and Holmes are thrown into comhat together from the opening moments and generally against unfavorable odds. ("Will you have meat or potatoes?" Holmes asks when they are menaced by a hulking giant and two smaller thugs.) There's plenty of meat and potatoes and breathless exploits marshaled by Richie in his usual stylefirst, substance-optional fashion, as Holmes and Watson investigate the apparent reanimation of the recently hanged, Satanworshipping Lord Blackwood (Mark Strong), who plans to take over the world. This seems likely to be the Baker Street boys' last case, and one Watson only undertakes grudgingly, heeause he plans to move out and marry. That prospect alarms Holmes much more than the impending world rule of a satanic overlord (and insnires a petulance hinting at feelings for Watson that are considerably more than collegial) and he sets out to sabotage the engagement as a side project. Meanwhile, his female troubles are compounded by the arrival of Irene Adler (Rachel McAdams), a world-class criminal and the only woman he has

Though it comes at the cost of much of what makes vintage Holmes a pleasure, there's no shortage of entertainment in the new "Sherlock." And Downey is perfectly at ease in a role that might well have been written for him. with his cocky nervous fitfulness and underlying vulnerability — and familiarity with self-destructiveness and substance abuse.

IT'S COMPLICATED * * *

The latest from mid-life romantic comedy writer/director Nancy Meyers ("Something's Gotta Give," "The Holiday") makes the most of an agreeable little fantasy: A eouple of long-divorced exes get back together a little older, a little wiser and find they're still nowerfully attracted - and consider giving married life another go. But really, folks, how long would it be before they started going after each other with the steak knives?

As it happens, in "It's Complicated," the steak knives stay in the kitchen drawer and faux sonhistication sets the tone in this romantic eomedy with fareical highlights and a bittersweet undereurrent. Meryl Streep plays a wellheeled divorcee, who has successfully raised her kids as a single mom, established a thriving career as a baker/restaurateur and is now settling down to a lonely life as an empty nester. Soon though, a fling with her high-powered lawyer ex (Alee Baldwin), in which she turns the tables on the nubile young shrew who stole herhusband, gives her slightly eonseienee-strieken bragging rights when she's sipping chardonnay with her gal pals. And the situation grows even more complicated when she attracts the attentions of the niceguy architect (Steve Martin) who's adding a wing to her already perfect home. You might find it a little hard to work up sympathy for the divorce traumas of the rich and suntanned, but, otherwise, "It's Complicated" is generally pleasant, elever and well-played, if only intermittently funny. But Meyer gets bonus points for not tying things up at the end with a perfect little bow.

'Scientology' cast terrific, but material stretched thin

Children's Scientology Pageant' through Jan. 3 at Next Theatre. 927 Noyes, Evanston. Visit www.nexttheatre.org or call (847) 475-1875. Ext. 2.

By CATEY SULLIVAN Contributor

Of all the holiday shows that pop up like poinsettias in the grocery store floral department this time of year, perhaps the oddest is running at Evanston's Next Theatre Company, "A Very Merry Unauthorized Children's Scientology Pageant" has a cast of eight elementary and middle-sehool-age ehildren, but the show itself is definitely not for kids. It's a production with grownup intentions - to make mock of L. Ron Hubbard and the "religion" lie founded, Scientology.

Delving the life of Hubbard and his multibillion dollar industry would make for a weird story any time of year. This is, after all, a belief system that rests on the premise that alien beings live within our human bodies, that post-partum depression is a character defeet and that psychiatry is evil and must be destroyed. Told by children within the framework of a traditional Nativity Pageant (L. Ron begins his tale in a manger) "Seientology Pageant" is strange indeed. It's difficult to say who the audience is for this 65minute skit. If you aren't a Scientologist, the subject is probably more odd than interesting. If you are a Seientologist, you'd be far more apt to picket the show than to buy a ticket

But the primary problem with the piece - and with its ability to find an audience - lies in author Kyle Jarrow's weak storytelling. Based on a concept by Alex Timbers, Jarrow's seript plays like an overlong, mid-level SNL skit. As a 10-minute bit, "Scientology Pageant' would be amusing. An hour feels like overkill.

That said, director Kathryn Walsh elicits guileless and therefore terrifically effective performances from her young cast. There isn't a weak link in the octet. It helps that these aren't your typical school play actors, but rather young professionals with extensive television, modeling and theater eredits playing seliool play actors. As an ensemble, the group is infectiously enthusiastic and engaging. Individually, everyone gets a chance to shine (and does just that) whether impersonating Tom Cruise (Nicole Rudakova) or depicting a hard-charging IRS investigator (Kevin Wyant).

Front and eenter for most of the show is Jason Krause as L. Ron Hubbard He's a comic wonderkid, singing, dancing and preaching the gospel of Diancties with a disarming verve. He keeps an air of earnest sincerity while exposing L. Ron's highly debatable theories in all their lunacy - er, debatability. And that air makes the send-up all the funnier. The temptation might be to portray L. Ron as either a buffoon or a sinister businessman who finds a way to make millions by preying on the emotionally needy. By having Krause play it straight, director Walsh lets the audience come to its own, (inevitable) conclusions about the man and his theories.

Also a stand-out is Sara Geist, a young lady with charisma to burn. Portraying a lost and lonely starlet who finds happiness by embraeing her inner Thetan, she also demonstrates some wonderfully emotive karaoke skills. But for all the cast's effort, the material remains problematic. Yes, it's amusing watching L. Ron and the dubious science of Dianeties confronted with actual scientifie facts (not to mention the IRS). But it's not worth going out of one's way to see what amounts to a single punehline stretched out to an hour's length. Comment: pioneerlocal.com ao.

HOROSCOPES

For the week of Dec. 28 - Jan. 3

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The New Year brings challenges that can change many things in your life. You need to be prepared not only to confront them, but also to deal with what happens afterward.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You have what it takes to set your goals quite a bit higher this year. Learn what you need to know and put what you learn into your efforts. A partner offers oving support.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) In true Gemini Twin fashion. you're conflicted about a decision you know you'll have to make in this New Year. Best advice: Get the facts before you make any commitment.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A friend offers you an exciting opportunity for this New Year. Although your positive aspects are strong in most respects, caution is advised. Investigate before you invest offers changes that you might feel you're not quite ready for. Best advice: Deal with them one step at a time, until you've built up your self-confidence. In Memoriam A AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Travel is a dominant aspect of the New Year. This could mean relocating to another city (or even another country) in connection with your education or your career. PISCES (February 19 to March or emai 20) This New Year brings news about a change you've been anticipating. You might have a deathnotice problem persuading a loved one about your new plans, but he or Opioneerlocal.co she will soon go along with them. Roomier Outback debuts for 2010

BY IRA SIEGEL

SearchChicago-Autos Correspondent

Subaru has completely revised Outback for the 2010 model year with an offering that is much roomier than its predecessor.

Built on an entirely new platform, Outback's interior volume is up almost 7 percent. The structure is now taller (2.3 inches), wider (2 inches) and features a longer (2.8 inches) wheelbase. Yet the overall length of the vehicle is actually slightly smaller than its predecessor. So there's no need to worry about the new Outback's park-ability. Call it Subaru magic.

The momier cabin is quickly noticed by anyone slipping into the back seat. I greatly appreciated Outback's extra headroom both in front and back and almost 4 additional inches of rear seat legroom,

I'm quite comfortable riding in Outback's front or rear seats. Plus, the cabin offers exceptional versatility. However, some looking for smaller quarters and a more agile ride may not agree with the new Outhack's dimensions. And those looking for a roomy, comfortable crossover may actually prefer the larger Forester model.

But for those with active lifestyles who need something about this size, along with versatility and an excellent road-

gripping all-wheel-drive system. Outback is among the best.

For 2010, Outback buyers can choose the fuel-efficient four-cylinder engine or a performance-tuned six-cylinder.

Both engines feature a Subaru-trait horizontally-opposed engine block. This less Subaru mount them low in the chassis, which helps prevent lots of body sway when cornering

The 2.5-liter four-eylinder (1-1-4) puts out 170-horsepower, while the new. larger 3.6-lner six-cylinder (H-6) is rated at 256-horsepower.

Outback's H-4 is mated to either a new six-speed manual gearbox or an available new continuously variable transmission equipped with a manual mode and steening wheel paddles.

The new H-6, which now runs on regular unleaded fuel, comes only with a fivespeed automatic transmission that features a manual mode, along with steering-wheelmounted paddle shifters.

For 2010, the Outback is offered in the following trim levels: 2.5i, 2.5i Premium. 2.5i Linuxed, 3.6R, 3.6R Premium and 3.6R Limited.

The 2.5-lner four-cylinder (I-I-4) puts out 170 horsepower, while the new, larger 3.6-liter six-cylinder (H-6) is rated at 256 horsepower.

The roof rack is standard on all models and is new and unique. It features stowable crossbars. When not needed, the crossbars can eleverly be folded out of the way to cut down on noise when driving at highway speeds.

Those looking for more amenities will want to step up to a Premium or Limited trim level. Stepping up to the 2.5i Premium adds 17-inch alloy wheels, 10-way power driver's seat, for lights and a few more goodies.

The 2.5i Limited adds the CVT as standard a 440-wan harman/kardon sound system, leather-trimmed upholstery, Bluetooth connectivity, an all-weather package and more. The 3.6R madels are similarly equipped: however, all feature a five-speed autoniatic transmission.

My tester was a 2.5i Limited model and I enjoyed the upgraded sound system and leather upholstery. The only options on my tester were a power moon mof and a navigation system.

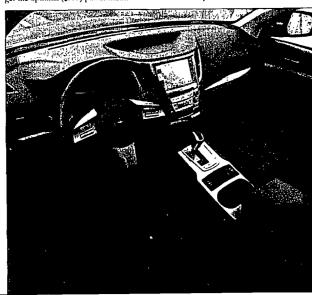

Unfortunately, though, the way Subaru packages these options, you have to step up to the Limited to have the option of the navigation system. And if you do want the navigation system ($2,000), you also have to get the optional ($995) power moon roof.

The 11-4 in my 2.5i Limited delivered impressive fuel economy, but with all the seats filled it felt underpowered.

I also didn't care for how much road noise entered the cabin and I was surprised that an auto-dimming rear view mirror wasn't available or at least standard in the Limited. Another dislike is that Outback's side mirrors don't fold away.

Still, Outback delivers a smooth, confident ride and provides sure-footed traction regardless of road conditions.

Heek. Subaru's phenonienal all-wheel drive system, along with Outback's versatility and friendly size, make it almost irresistible.

For its outstanding work in creating a positive environment for youth athletes. Niles North High School has carned Positive Coaching Alliance's coveted "Honoring the Game" Award. Niles North Athletic Director Karl Costello accepted the award in a ceremony at today's Winter Spirit Assembly at Niles Mount Prospect.

The award goes to schools or organizations serving athletes of high school age or younger that embody Positive Coaching Alliance principles in using sports to teach life lessons. Niles North is the first school in the Midwest to receive the award.

"Winning an Honoring the Game Award is an amazing achievement because of the amount of work it takes to establish and maintain a positive culture in the face of so many negative influences."

said Jim Thompson, PCA's founder and executive director. "While we honor the youth sports leaders, the real winners are the youth athletes and families who benefit from a positive sports cul-

Niles North's Costollo has expanded the school's threeyear PCA Partnership to inelude local elementary and middle schools and park-andrec sports programs that feed into Niles North, "We're building a culture of athletic excellence here," Costello said. "That's why we're starting at the youth sports level." In a culturally diverse community with a scarcity of resources at local middle schools and few centralized youth sports organizations. "PCA has given us a tool to bring all these groups together." Costello said. "We've told parents that this is for the total development of your ehildren, and we are facilitating workshops, paying some extra money, filming workshops and putting spots onto our local cable network to spread word about our partnership and what it means to families." Libations that give holidays a memorable glow

A coektail is more than a mixed drink with a liquor 'o base that's iced, sweetened and flavored, Professional mixologists will tell you it's inspiration, skill and panache in a glass.

If you were to ask George Syregelas what constitutes a good eocktail, the partner in family-run Standard Restaurant & Bar in Elmhurst wouldn't hesitate to tell vou there's no definitive answer.

Personal taste

"Is a drink out of balance ? and too strong? Or too sweet? It's largely a matter of personal taste," said the 35-year-old veteran barman. Though he personally prefers an even-handed approach, Syregelas added, "You have to be openminded, listen to your eustomers and be flexible."

Whether he's working with vodka, rum or some other spirit, Syregelas enjoys the trial and error involved in the process of developing a new eoektail. "Sometimes it works, some times not. I think the most important thing is to use fresh ingredients, especially fruit. It always makes a drink taste better," he said.

For the holidays, Syregelas typically introduces a seasonal coektail of his own devising. This year it's the Doe Holliday, which Syregelas makes with equal parts RI Premium Rye Whiskey, Liquor 43 (a citrus-vanilla iqueur produced in Spain) and a made-in-house blackberry syrup; it's shaken and popular Cosmopolitans to classic Manhattans.

In Artisanal Cocktails (Ten Speed Press), author Scott Beattie, who helped shape the eoektail program at Cyrus Restaurant in California, recalls how in the late 1990s and two preceding decades an exotic cocktail was an off-putting, overly-sweet, high-alcohol affair defined by eheap artificially flavored bottled mixes that were paired with cies to give extra drama.

Beattie broadened his horizons and added dimension to his eocktails by working with freshly squeezed juiees, housemade syrups as well as organie herbs and edible flowers. He went on to perfect the use of foams dehydrated fruit and pickled and candied delica-

When it eomes to ice, Beattie recommends shying away from cubes made in one's refrigerator because they are apt to absorb flavors of other foods; they also are generally too large.

The Ultimate Bar Book (Chroniele Books) by Mittie Hellmieh ean function as a handy, indexed guide for home mixologists who want to improve their skills and expand their repertoire. It includes recipes for more than a thousand coektails.

Food writer Louise Piekford, in Hot Drinks (Ryland Peters & Small), offers warmed alcoholic and nonaleoholie drinks. Her easyto-fix Peanut Butter Cruneh is one that both adults and ehildren can enjoy.

Grandparents Day At SJB

On Monday, October 19th, SJB School honored grandparents and special friends.

The day began with a liturgy celebrating the Feast of St. John Brebeuf. Following mass, the grandparents and special friends were invited to the classrooms to read, sing, draw, play games and decorate cookies. A reception for everyone was held in the Parish Ministry Center. The PSA provided lots of food and beverages. Each student designed a place mat for their special guests and entertainment was provided by the second and third graders.

As a special memory of the day, each grandparent and special friend was given a portrait drawn by the students. SJB School is thankful for the guidance, wisdom and love that grandparents and special friends share

It is also our hope that by making a common promise on a common day, young people will realize the multiplication effect of individual decisions to end gun violence. Students and teachers reaffirmed our own responsibility for making this country safer from violence.

On the National Day of Concern, we discussed the issue of violence in our country and pledged individually to use our collective power toward change. Our students signed a poster on each grade level, to be kept in the halls of SJB for the remainder of the school year as a reminder of the role each of us must play to ef-

WRESTLING - When asked to name a team meniber who has been a pleasaut surprise this season. Niles West hend conch Anthony Genovesi barely hesitated before mentioning Elias Shiheiber.

The junior will enter the new year with a 20-9 record after placing fifth in the 130pound division at Saturday's Lake Park Invite.

"He's wrestled well after only having a few varsity matches last season," Genovesi said regarding Shiheiber, who also plays football and is a gymnast as well. "Elias did some offsenson wrestling and a little during the summer when we went to a team eanip. He's worked hard and gotten stronger, and is having a good year so far."

Beierwaltes' biggest eontribution may be teaching the three sophomores on varsity this season.

"She really helps the younger kids out," Hanusiak said. "For a lack of better words, she's grooming them. She's so smart and that really helps her."

And while Maine East is still below .500 this season, Beierwaltes has kept the team close in most games.

"The big reason for this is her rebounding, especially on defense. She puts herself in a really good position and that's been huge for us," Hanusiak said. "You can limit someone to one shot and then she can start that break for us. One of our biggest problems last year was allowing two, three and four shots."
