Companies to bring 100-plus jobs to airport

Large facilities planned for airline mechanics, boat builders

By BETSY CALVERT
STAFF WRITER

More than 100 jobs are expected from two companies now negotiating leases at the Punta Gorda Airport.

Intrepid Aerospace of Fort Myers is an airplane mechanic company that will be opening the soonest of the two companies and bringing in the most jobs — more than 100, the county's Interim Economic Development Director Dave Gammon told the Sun. The second company is Megal Corporation, which builds metal rescue and firefighting boats. It plans to use the Charlotte Harbor region and a retention pond near the airport to test its boats in both salt and fresh water, Gammon said.

The Airport Authority will discuss both leases at its meeting today.

"This is a big deal," Gammon said of the Intrepid prospect in particular. "They're hoping to be operational in six months."

Large airplane maintenance facilities like this normally operate at big airports, such as in Tampa or Miami, he said. They were drawn to Punta Gorda by the quality of the airport management and the location, he said.

STAFF REPORT

NORTH PORT — A trial is underway for a North Port foster parent accused of molesting a 3-year-old sometime in 2015 at a home in the North Port Estates.

RIOS JR.

Gilberto Rios Jr., 63, was arrested a year ago on allegations of sexual battery by a perpetrator older than 18 on a victim under 12-years-old.

The allegations came to light during spring break 2018 when the child was playing with Barbie dolls and "simulating" the dolls performing a sex act. The girl's caretaker spoke with the child; the child said she'd "bit" a man's genitals.

The child had been discussing it with a teenage girl she was also living with at the time — and the teenager told her to talk to their caretakers.

She would later identify Rios by describing him as the husband of a woman she'd lived with. The Department of Children and Families were informed the next day.

The victim, who was in foster care at the time of the allegation, said during an April 12, 2018 forensic interview that Rios forced her to perform oral sex, then "ran into her room and locked the door," according a probable cause affidavit.

According to the affidavit, he told her not to tell anyone.

She said along with Rios and his wife, she lived with "a little boy, two baby girls, a big teenager ... and another boy teenager."

In the interview, the child was able to talk about the wife and describe the house — a white and black residence — although she wasn't entirely sure

Law enforcement officers from multiple local agencies took a 10-mile run Wednesday from Publix at Punta Gorda Crossings to Publix at the Quesada Commons in Port Charlotte to support Special Olympics Florida.

"This is a great opportunity for the community to be involved," said Cpl. Mark Schaible. "This is the first year we had Charlotte County Fire & EMS involved. It gets all the deputies out, brings everyone together."

The annual Florida Law Enforcement Torch Run is the largest public relations and fundraising event for Special Olympics Florida. Statewide, chiefs, officers, sheriffs, deputies, agents, and cadets from approximately 300 different agencies participate.

Chris Vinci, an athlete who plays tennis in Special Olympic events, said for him, the event is all about making friends. He's been participating since 1989 and knows many of the law enforcement officers.

"They're all good friends," he said.

North Port police to partake in Torch Run

Relay may affect traffic in city along Tamiami Trail Friday

By TOM HARMENING
STAFF WRITER

NORTH PORT — Rush hour traffic may have a new wrinkle on Friday morning.

The North Port Police Department is taking part in the National Law Enforcement Special Olympics Torch Run Relay and will travel with the torch through the city along Tamiami Trail.

The police team is slated to leave the Publix Supermarket in Coco Plum Shopping Center at 8 a.m., move along U.S. 41 and hand off the torch to Sarasota County deputies at Ortiz Boulevard on the west side of the city.

The police team will stay together as a group and be accompanied by a command bus and a traffic unit patrol car.

They will travel on the north side of the highway in the right lane. The group will move at the pace of the slowest runner.

Trump cracks down on Cuba, Nicaragua and Venezuela

By GISELA SALOMON, DEB RIECHMANN and MATTHEW LEE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — The Trump administration on Wednesday intensified its crackdown on Cuba, Nicaragua and Venezuela, rolling back Obama administration policy and announcing new restrictions and sanctions against the three countries whose leaders national security adviser John Bolton dubbed the "three stooges of socialism."

"The troika of tyranny — Cuba, Venezuela and Nicaragua — is beginning to crumble," Bolton said in a hard-hitting speech near Miami on the 58th anniversary of the United States' failed Bay of Pigs invasion of the island, an attempt to overthrow the Cuban government.

AP PHOTO

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo speaks during a news conference at the State Department in Washington, Wednesday. The Trump administration announced that it's allowing lawsuits against foreign companies operating in properties seized from Americans in Cuba.

Bolton announced a new cap on the amount of money families in the United States can send their relatives in Cuba. The Obama administration had lifted limits on remittances, but the new limit will be $1,000 per person per quarter, Bolton said. Remittances to Cuba from the United States amounted to $3 billion in 2016, according to the State Department.

Bolton also announced that the U.S. was sanctioning the Central Bank of Venezuela, which the Trump administration says has been instrumental in propping up the embattled government of Venezuelan President Nicolas Maduro. He also announced sanctions against financial services provider Bancorp, which he claimed is a "slush fund" for Nicaragua's President Daniel Ortega.

"The United States looks forward to watching each corner of this sordid triangle of terror fall: in Havana, in Caracas, and in Managua," Bolton said

Family raising money for injured motorcyclist

By ANNE EASKER
Staff Writer

Justin Mason, the 22-year-old motorcyclist injured in a crash last week, is still in a coma, though his mother said he's showing signs of improving.

"Friday afternoon the brain surgeon told us Justin was not going to survive the night," Melissa Mason said. "But I'm a strong woman of faith, and I just screamed out that I was not going to bury my son, and he was going to pull through this, and praise God, he did a 180 in that surgery."

His family has started a Go Fund Me to help pay for medical costs, as Mason is expected to remain in the hospital another month and spend about a year recovering. He has no health insurance to cover the hospital bills.

Melissa Mason said Wednesday her son is starting to show signs he's trying to wake himself up. Since the crash, he hasn't been breathing on his own. He aspirated blood and saliva into his lungs, had a skull fracture and brain damage, as well as a broken wrist and hand. His jaw was broken in three places, and he lost two teeth.

The crash happened Thursday, April 11, around 8:45 p.m. Mason, a Port Charlotte resident, was driving home from working at Sprint in Port Charlotte when Nelson Michael, 64, a driver from Arkansas, reportedly did a U-turn into the middle northbound lane of U.S. 41. The front of Mason's motorcycle collided with the rear of Michael's truck, according to the Florida Highway Patrol.

Mason was wearing a helmet but still suffered critical injuries and was transported to Lee Memorial Hospital. No citations have been issued in regard to the crash, but it remains under investigation.

Melissa Mason said some of her son's friends were riding by at the time of the crash and called his girlfriend, saying there was a mangled bike on the road that looked like Justin's, but they weren't close enough to find out for sure. When his girlfriend couldn't get in touch with him, she called Melissa.

"I was a frantic wreck," she said. "This is my second born child. He's always been very healthy. He doesn't drink, doesn't do drugs, doesn't even smoke a cigarette. He's never had any health issues. When I got the call, something just told me it was him."

She called her parents who live in the area and were able to go to the site of the crash and confirm the motorcyclist was Mason. She immediately got into the car with her husband and two youngest children to go see him.

After the surgery when she learned he was improving, she said it felt like a truckload had been lifted off her shoulders. He had wires monitoring his brain activity to make sure the swelling doesn't return. He was preparing for another surgery to reattach his jaw.

Mason said since the crash, her phone and Facebook have been blowing up with people offering prayers and support and saying how much they love Justin.

"I didn't realize how many people he had touched," she said.

Mason has an 8.5-month-old son, and his mom said he is very family oriented.

"For being 22, he's got a really good head on his shoulders," she said. "He still acts like a kid. He likes to get down on the floor and play with the baby and the dog. He comes and visits his little sisters and plays basketball, takes them go-carting. Really family-oriented, just a happy, go lucky kid."

CoolToday Park to open Tomahawk Tiki Bar this weekend

By ALEXANDRA HERRERA
West Villages Sun Editor

WEST VILLAGES — While the excitement of the first Atlanta Braves game has passed, CoolToday Park won't sit shuttered until next season.

This Saturday, the park will officially open its Tomahawk Tiki Bar. The eatery, which sits along the third base line is one of the features that will be open through the year.

Those visiting the bar can enjoy a drink or dinner with a backdrop of the baseball field.

The celebration kicks off at 4 p.m. Saturday, and includes live music starting at 7 p.m. by The Tams.

The weekend will also kick off the upcoming concert series at the park, other bands have not been announced yet.

Ahead of the opening of the tiki bar, Saturday, CoolToday Park will also host the first coffee and cars event.

The coffee and cars event is a casual event for car enthusiasts to gather, display their cars and chat. There is no entry fee or contest, just a casual event for fans, according to CoolToday's Facebook page.

Coffee, light snacks and cool drinks will be available for purchase during the meet up. The event begins at 8 a.m. and goes until the opening of the tiki bar at 11 a.m.

Saturday's opening is the first of several events that begin this month and go into May. On April 25, movies in the park begins with the baseball classic "Field of Dreams."

Movies at the park will be shown the second and fourth Thursday of the month.

Concessions will be open for those coming to the film to enjoy, according to CoolToday Park's Facebook page.

Tickets to attend the film are $5 per person, and free for Beach Club members. Tickets can be purchased by visiting the box office at the park or calling 941-413-5000.

In May, the park will host its first play day in the park. Play day in the park invites families to play on the field and enjoy an afternoon in the park.

Tickets are also on sale for the May 25 presentation of the Venice Symphony Patriotic Pops, which includes a fireworks presentation. The Venice Symphony will also include guest soloist U.S. Army Staff Sgt. Randall Wright of the Army Field Band.

Prices for the Venice Symphony at the park range between $15 and $75 and are available for purchase through www.venicesymphony.org.

While these will be the first community events on April 5 and 12 the park hosted the first Mizuno Invitational between North Port and Venice High School baseball teams.

CoolToday Park is located at 18800 West Villages Parkway, North Port.

The Tomahawk Tiki Bar will be open daily for lunch and dinner from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. for lunch and dinner.

Alleged campaign violations dismissed for State Attorney Amira Fox

Ethics Commission rules no probable cause

By ANNE EASKER
Staff Writer

The Florida Commission on Ethics announced Wednesday it has dismissed the complaints of alleged campaign violations by State Attorney Amira Fox during the 2018 election.

FOX

"The Ethics Commission's finding of no probable cause and dismissal of the complaints brings to an end the shameful political tactics used in the race for the Office of State Attorney of the 20th Circuit," Fox said in a press release Wednesday afternoon. "The citizens of SW Florida deserve political candidates and elected officials who follow the law as I do and as confirmed by the decision today. I am honored that our citizens put their trust in me and I will continue to work hard and serve with distinction."

Fox was accused of misusing her position as Chief Assistant State Attorney while running for office by attending political events during work hours, making social media postings on campaign-related sites during work hours, and using a state vehicle and gas card to travel to campaign-related events.

The complaint against her was one of 16 matters considered by the commission on April 12 after an investigation by commission staff.

County Sheriff's Office, the Department of Corrections, probation, the Punta Gorda Police Department, Florida Fish & Wildlife Conservation Commission, and Charlotte County Fire & EMS.

Schaible estimated there were around 65 participants.

CCSO Deputy First Class Leamon Combs said he's been a part of the event from the beginning.

"It's a worthy cause," he said. "It's almost a tradition for us. We like to be a part of it, something bigger than us. It's just a great feeling doing something for the community."

Laura Collins, director of the Florida Law Enforcement Torch Run, said around $750,000 is raised each year from grassroots efforts like the Torch Run, Tip A Cop, and other fundraisers.

"It's really important to us because we provide year-round training for athletes, never at any cost to the athletes or their caregivers," she said.

A lot of people assume the Special Olympics is a single event, Collins said, but it actually holds around 500 events each year in regional, state, national, and world competitions.

The Sarasota County Sheriff's Office will hold its Law Enforcement Torch Run on Friday at 8 a.m., beginning at Gulf Gate Pavilion and passing the torch to the Sarasota Police Department in front of Paradise Plaza at Bee Ridge Road. More information can be found at specialolympicsflorida.org.

where it was located. Rios' home, in the 7000 block of Beckwith Avenue in North Port Estates off Ponce De Leon Boulevard, is a white building with black trim.

After the interview with the girl, conducted by North Port Police, DCF informed North Port Police that there had been "another allegation of sexual abuse involving the defendant" sometime in 2016.

A redacted report says a physical examination took place but an interview didn't happen because of the child's age.

In a report Wednesday, Gatehouse Media said Rios and his wife have had 48 foster children in their North Port home, including some put into their care after the 2016 allegations surfaced.

Rios was listed as retired.

Rios' wife is not charged with any criminal activities and is set as a witness for the state.

in South Florida, which is home to thousands of exiles and immigrants from Cuba, Venezuela and Nicaragua.

He said Obama administration policies gave the Cuban government "political cover to expand its malign influence" across the region, including in Venezuela. Cuba has trained Venezuelan security forces to repress civilians and support Maduro, Bolton said.

"Havana continues to prop up Maduro and help him sustain the brutal suffering of the Venezuelan people," Bolton said. "As President Trump has said, Maduro is quite simply a 'Cuban puppet.'"

"Thousands of Cuban doctors in Venezuela are being used as pawns by Maduro and his Cuban sponsors to support his brutal and oppressive reign."

Bolton's pledge to "never, ever abandon" the people of Cuba, Venezuela and Nicaragua in their fight for freedom also might ring hollow in light of the historical events he sought to highlight at the event hosted by the Bay of Pigs Veterans Association.

Bolton spoke just hours after Secretary of State Mike Pompeo announced in Washington a new policy that allows lawsuits against foreign firms operating on properties Cuba seized from Americans after the 1959 revolution. The United States has enforced a trade blockade against Cuba since the early 1960s.

The announcement comes at a moment of severe economic weakness for Cuba, which is struggling to find enough cash to import basic food and other supplies following a drop in aid from Venezuela and a string of bad years in other key economic sectors.

Pompeo said he won't renew a bar on litigation that has been in place for two decades, meaning that lawsuits can be filed starting on May 2 when the current suspension expires. The decision could cost dozens of Canadian and European companies tens of billions of dollars in compensation and interest.

Pompeo's decision gives Americans the right to sue companies that operate out of hotels, tobacco factories, distilleries and other properties Cuba nationalized after Fidel Castro took power. It allows Cubans who became U.S. citizens years after their properties were taken to sue.

The Justice Department has certified roughly 6,000 claims as having merit, according to Kimberly Breier, the top U.S. diplomat for the Americas. Those claims have an estimated value of $8 billion: $2 billion in property and $6 billion in interest, she said. In addition, another 200,000 uncertified claims could run into the tens of billions of dollars, she said.

Breier said there would be no exceptions to the decision, which has already prompted stern responses from Canada and Europe as they have vowed to protect their businesses from lawsuits.

"European companies that are operating in Cuba will have nothing to worry about if they are not operating on properties taken from Americans," she said.

The decision deals a severe blow to Havana's efforts to draw foreign investment to the island and comes as Trump steps up pressure to Venezuela's Maduro, who is holding power with help from other countries, including Cuba, China and Russia.

Spain, which has large investments in hotels and other tourism-related industries on the island, was the first to react. A senior government official told The Associated Press that Madrid would ask the European Union to challenge the U.S. move in the World Trade Organization.

Businesses from Canada, France and Great Britain among other countries also conduct business in properties nationalized after Castro took power.

airplane mechanics. At Megal, the jobs will include welders, marine riggers, managers and administrators.

Both companies have plans to build large facilities on site. Intrepid is moving the quickest and its April 9 letter of intent announces plans to build a $1.8 million temporary hangar to work on commercial aircraft. Within a few years, the company will build a permanent facility at another location at the airport, Gammon said.

Megal is a Florida-based corporation set up over three boat manufacturing entities: MetalCraft Marine, Stanley Aluminum Boats and Connor Industries. Metalcraft is a New York and Canada-based company that first announced its Charlotte County plans in 2017. Since then, the company's plans have expanded dramatically. It 2017, the plan was to buy a 5-acre private lot and to build a 10,000-square-foot facility. Now, Megal's plan is to lease 60 acres from the airport and build a 25,000- to 60,000-square-foot facility, according to a Feb. 13 letter of intent.

"They've got several contracts they need to fill, and they need the capacity to fulfill them," Gammon said.

Charlotte County Commissioners in 2017 agreed to grant MetalCraft, via Megal, a tax incentive worth up to $86,500 over 10 years. In exchange, MetalCraft projected $14.5 million in sales. It also promised then to hire at least 10 and up to 30 full-time workers. MetalCraft estimated in 2017 that the average salary would be $40,560 — above the county average. That makes the company eligible for a state tax incentive of $5,000 per job.

Gammon said the tax incentives remain. Part of the reason for the delay for MetalCraft, Gammon said, was its decision to build bigger than its first proposal. That required getting more investors, he said. Also, Gammon said, gaining water access to a retention pond proved too lengthy on private land near the airport, so the company will be leasing from the airport, which cannot sell its land.

Sarasota School Board may soon change budget savings policy

By VICTORIA VILLANUEVA-MARQUEZ
Staff Writer

SARASOTA — The Sarasota County School Board discussed changing its savings policy Tuesday, with some board members noting the decision comes as the district faces a rising budget deficit.

Superintendent Todd Bowden proposed changing the district's policy to align with the state's after discovering that the district has a different method of calculating its fund balance.

The school district's policy says that it must maintain 7.5 percent of expenditures in reserves, while the state requires all districts to keep at least 3 percent of revenue in reserves.

The board approved advertising the policy change in a 3-2 vote, with School Board members Eric Robinson and Bridget Ziegler dissenting.

The final vote will take place at an upcoming meeting.

Robinson and Ziegler pointed out that the proposal to change the policy only came after the school district learned of its deficit spending, which would cause the district to drop below its own 7.5 percent requirement.

They noted that none of the board members raised concerns when the policy was reviewed last summer.

"Instead of changing the behavior of the spending practices, we're changing the calculation," Ziegler said.

School Board vice chairwoman Jane Goodwin noted that the district's reserves appeared lower than other districts because of how the district calculates its fund balance.

"I reviewed a lot of other districts around the state and I thought, 'Gee they have much better fund balances than we do,'" Goodwin said. "And that's when I started investigating it because I knew that many of them did not have healthier fund balances."

Robinson argued that it was "fiscally irresponsible" to change the 7.5 percent requirement, which lets the board know whether or not there is enough money in the fund reserve.

"The 7.5 percent is like an indicator light telling you how much gas you have left in your tank, so what we're doing, instead of stopping to get gas or changing how we do things, we're just going to change the indicator light, so that it goes off when we have even less gas in that car," Robinson said.

She added the board should follow the law and avoid being penalized by legislators who could cut their salaries, as well as the superintendent's.

Despite the district's efforts to keep a healthy fund balance, Goodwin said legislators have made significant budget and property tax cuts. She said the district has also had to share referendum money with charter schools, noting that many other districts were not granting that money to charters.

"I think we're going to have to have a very sharp pencil this year," she said.

Man charged for lewd act at park

A 65-year-old man was arrested Tuesday in an undercover operation by the Charlotte County Sheriff's Office geared to combat unlawful sexual activity at Charlotte County parks.

Stephen W. Brennan, of Cape Coral, reportedly told an undercover deputy at Charlotte Flatwoods Environmental Park he would perform a sexual act on him if the officer performed one on him first. They conversed about a "safe" spot to perform the acts, and Brennan then exposed his genitalia, according to an arrest affidavit.

The deputy gave the other units the "take-down" word, and two other law enforcement officers soon arrived on scene to handcuff Brennan, the affidavit stated. He was placed under arrest for exposure of sexual organs and lewd lascivious exhibition.

OUR VIEW

Coping with two divisive, unnecessary proposals

OUR POSITION: National debates, local stage.

Local politics is usually free of the hot-button issues and corresponding grandstanding that infects the national pseudo-conversation — the stuff that dominates mainstream talk TV, Fox News, CNN and MSNBC.

Thankfully. This level of government where locally elected people get things done. Where the people you run into at the supermarket or gas station do the concrete things that affect your day-to-day life. Things that all too often simply divide us into broad philosophical "camps" of, oh, whatever the politics are that continue to divide us. That stuff.

Last week in Sarasota County came two proposals that were uncomfortably and unnecessarily divisive.

One was a resolution offered by newly elected Sarasota County Commissioner Christian Ziegler that the county adopt a prohibition of so-called "sanctuary" policies for undocumented immigrants detained by law enforcement. As if.

As noted by Ziegler in a Sun story by correspondent Warren Richardson, some 513 undocumented immigrants have been deported in the decade since Sarasota County Sheriff Tom Knight first took office. The county had 54 foreign-born people in custody in mid-February. One dozen were being held in jail for U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement action, according to the Sheriff's Office.

Explaining his resolution, Ziegler said, "I think the public wants to hear where their local government stands."

Good sound-bite stuff that has nothing to do what is already taking place and which has, in our estimation, approximately zero chance of affecting a policy that might change in the foreseeable future here.

Ziegler also acknowledged the resolution would reinforce a sanctuary-prohibition proposed in the Legislature by newly elected state Sen. Joe Gruters, R-Sarasota. Gruters is also the chairman of the state Republican Party; Ziegler is vice chairman.

Fortunately, the commission deferred. Not that they didn't support it philosophically, but they were, appropriately, unwilling to weigh in on what was, essentially, a state or national policy question. A divisive political issue at that.

"This is like lighting a match in a wood pile," she said, according to the Sarasota Herald Tribune. "I don't see that it's necessary for us to jump into that level of politics. I don't think it's what the county does."

It has not, and it should not.

Unfortunately, Detert subsequently injected another type of partisan politics in county business when she suggested the county redraw commission districts in time for the 2020 elections.

Redistricting typically occurs after the 10-year census. It is scheduled for 2020.

Last November, though, voters overwhelmingly approved a charter amendment that did away with county-wide voting for commission seats. Starting in 2020, only voters in a specific district will vote for a candidate from that district.

In reality, the new system threatens the dominant Republican Party's virtual lock on big-county Sarasota positions. The thinking is, Democrats may now have a chance of winning in a smaller, single district, most likely the northern Sarasota district that tilts Democratic. In 2020, incumbent Commissioner Mike Moran, a Republican from that district, is up for re-election.

Reacting to Detert's proposal for snap-redistricting, Democrats were ballistic. One called it "partisan gerrymandering" intended to skew the numbers to boost Moran's chances.

Who can blame them? Despite Detert's assurances the redistricting would be transparent and fair, the smell of "partisan gerrymandering" is inescapable. That notion was reinforced by Detert's additional assertion she had "no intention of turning it over to a blue-ribbon committee made up of people who aren't elected," an alternative suggested by Democrats.

Again, given what we witness on the national scene, this is bound to be viewed as a partisan exercise. It is unnecessary at this time, and it is politically divisive. The alternative is to conduct redistricting, as usual, after the census is completed, and to do it, then, as openly and transparently as possible.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Billionaires should rebuild Notre Dame

Editor:

The disastrous fire at Notre Dame cathedral is truly a tragedy for the world. An internet search shows me that there are 680 billionaires in the U.S. as of 2018, and 2,754 world-wide.

Here is an opportunity for President Trump to show he is a world leader. Let him commit $1 million to the re-building effort with a challenge for every other billionaire to do the same. Worldwide, that would raise $2.75 billion, and the surplus from the Notre Dame rebuild could be distributed as disaster relief to the many places around the world that are still recovering from the natural disasters of 2018.

How about it Mr. President?

Sanctuary cities should take migrants

Editor:

Why aren't sanctuary cities offering to take in the migrants that are coming through the southern border?

Then they could follow New York state and enact their own "Dream Act" to allow free college to undocumented students as long as they are in the U.S. for 30 days and have a GED. Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo has confirmed he will sign the measure into law. This law takes money away from legal residents and comes at the expense of taxpayers.

At the same time the Democrats tried to stop college funding for Gold Star Families. Thankfully that did not happen.

Pass the test, or try again

Editor:

I have been following this interesting story about teacher testing for a week or so and saw the sample test questions in the Sun. Reading today's paper I have to agree with a letter writer who advocates not changing the test and implies colleges are passing through sub-standard wanna-be teachers.

Unfortunately, it goes back further than college. The test questions I saw appeared to be maybe Grade 6 or 7 level. Our primary schools are guilty of pushing people through, oftentimes due to the pressure to be politically correct. Students reaching college with a high school diploma often lack the basic skills required to successfully navigate through many programs. The dumbing down continues here, especially if the college is meeting quotas.

Fixing the problem would require something few politicians and administrators (school) seem to have — a rigid backbone. If you cannot pass the test, you are not qualified and should be let go. No two-year mentor program, go back to remedial classes on your own, reapply and pass the test when you are actually qualified to teach so we do not keep repeating the process, over and over.

Group protests Homestead center

Editor:

A few hours south and east of Punta Gorda is a federal "emergency shelter" which currently houses over 1,300 migrant children under the age of 18. These incarcerated young people are guilty of the crime of making the long and perilous trek north to escape gang violence in their home countries. There are plans to expand the Homestead shelter to house children from the now closed facility in Tornillo, Texas.

Since the Homestead facility is located on federal land, it does not have to comply with state standards regarding the care of children. Efforts by elected officials to tour the facility have been denied by staff of Health and Human Services. Three Florida congresswomen who were denied access claim the denial is illegal, citing a recently passed law which prohibits restricting congressional oversight access.

A group called "Witness Tornillo: Target Homestead" continues daily protests and provides updated information on their Facebook page as they seek justice for the incarcerated children. The Miami Herald has also written in detail about this facility and the children held there.

It is unfortunate we have not read about this situation in our local Sun.

Veterans should demand the Wall

Editor:

I get so irate with these people who cross our border illegally and these "sanctuary cities." This is an insult to the men and women who fought for our rights.

My grandfather came from Germany the legal way. He needed a sponsor, a place to live, a job waiting and had to stay on Ellis Island for awhile before they let him leave. He became an American and fought in World War I. My father was 100 percent DAV.

This so irritates me that our veterans fought for our freedom and some of us are really angry about our border situation. Our veterans should be so angry and demand the wall be built. If not, then come up with a different answer.

There are too many people who served and are now suffering for defending us and how can you just give that away to someone who is not an American? It is disrespectful and unkind to the people who have served.

My father was in a wheelchair for a long time from World War II. So how can anyone not want for people to come to this country legally.

Just one simple word. I come from a military family going back to the Civil War. So don't let illegal immigrants into the United States of America or will it be the United States of Mexico?

Talon Bay issue raises questions

Editor:

Re: Proposed utilities garage on Talon Bay Drive.

Why are there so many questions and oddities surrounding this recent decision by the North Port commissioners regarding this?

Ponder this: Why was the vote kept so secretive? Talon Bay residents did not even know about it until the morning of the vote.

Who owns that property? Does anyone stand to personally benefit from this decision?

Why wasn't an expansion of the existing utilities garage considered as a more obvious solution?

Does politics play a role in this?

Was there an underlying reason the Pan American Boulevard location was eliminated? The Talon Bay location construction would have unfavorable consequences not addressed such as increased noise levels, upheaval of nature existing in this area, routing of increased traffic resulting from this building.

Why do our commissioners feel the need to use "threatening" language in an effort to pacify our concerns, saying that the land is commercial and could otherwise be used for a "six-story hotel, a bar that is open until 2 a.m. with loud music, a pawn shop or a strip mall." Is that an attempt to quiet our concerns?

Personally we have already suffered the consequences: A potential buyer of our home has withdrawn his offer because of this proposed construction.

Unable to leave a message on the commissioner's phone, "voicemail is full," just have some real questions to be answered.

Washington Post

Kathleen PARKER

At least he recognized the urgency.

As the world gasped in horror at the sight of Paris' Notre Dame Cathedral burning in a cataclysmic moment, the president of the United States imparted these words of wisdom: "Perhaps flying water tankers could be used to put it out. Must act quickly!"

Well, Jesus, Mary and Joseph. Could we possibly be more banal?

Ever too-soon to the tweet, Donald Trump didn't think before typing — or worse, he did. Mightn't a clever president — or one of his staffers — suffer through a brief Google search before launching? Or, better, skip the Quick-Fix-It blurb and say something normal? How about: America's heart breaks for Notre Dame. Instead, the French civil defense agency tweeted back that "water-bombing" the 850-year-old cathedral could "lead to the collapse of the entire structure."

Pope Francis, whose words the Catholic world especially wanted to hear, waited several hours before offering his considered remarks in a public letter to the archbishop of Paris. Appropriately, Francis expressed sadness and offered prayers. No mention of a squadron of angels dragging tidal waves to Paris to extinguish the flames.

Meanwhile, the rest of the world watched in silence, muted by the horror of the unthinkable — the disintegration of one of the world's greatest monuments. The fire consumed much of the roof's wooden latticework, which was called "the forest" because it took 52 acres of oak trees to build it. Begun in 1163 during the reign of King Louis VII, the cathedral took nearly 200 years to construct. It only took 12 hours of blistering flames to reduce its core to ashes.

The weight of the symbolism — layers upon layers — is almost too much to bear. Millions of words by now have been spilled as writers and mourners seek the right ones to express the enormity of this loss, not just to Paris, the French and Catholics, but also to humankind. The destruction of so much history and beauty is overwhelmingly sad.

Of course, Parisians and the French feel the loss most acutely. Notre Dame has always been part of daily life and is, as so many have said, the heart of a city that has survived revolution and wars. But, just as Notre Dame has been a place of transcendence for those who have entered there, its splendor and meaning transcended boundaries of nationality and religion. When the 300-foot oak spire toppled, the audible gasps of nearby onlookers were echoed in offices and homes in London, Moscow and Oklahoma City. Also, in Charleston, South Carolina.

The image of Notre Dame burning took my breath away. And, yes, I was speechless. A series of thoughts raced through my mind, some fairly apocalyptic. It wasn't just Notre Dame — "Our Lady" — that was being destroyed. To my mind, I was witnessing the immolation of Western Civilization. The words that kept repeating themselves as I tried to make sense of what I was seeing were simpler: This is so wrong.

Notre Dame isn't supposed to burn. It is immortal in the hearts and minds of men and women who have lived and died for generations in its shadow. Airplanes aren't supposed to crash into buildings, either. One couldn't help connecting the burning of Notre Dame to the destruction of the World Trade Center Towers. Even though very different, one a monument to money and the other to God, both instances felt wrong in the way of civilization unraveling.

There's no evidence that the fire was anything but accidental — just one of those things, despite fire monitors that checked the framework under the roof three times daily and an on-site firefighter. But monuments of this kind are few and we cling to them as a connection to historical continuity as we face contemporary calamities. Ah, yes, wars and revolutions come and go, but Notre Dame stands.

This, perhaps, is why we stand aghast. Fire, alternately nature's most ruthless element and also a most-efficient purgator, released its fury upon one of humanity's greatest monuments to the holy trinity — God the father almighty, maker of heaven and earth; Jesus Christ, his only son; and the Holy Ghost, forever and ever. The layers upon layers of symbolism in the devastation of art, beauty, faith, history and our ultimate vulnerability are almost too much to bear.

Which reminds us that when the Twin Towers collapsed on Sept. 11, 2001, the man who would become president of the United States 15 years later boasted that his was now the tallest building in New York.

Charlotte County 211 connects people to help

Carrie HUSSEY

For more than a decade, Charlotte 211 has provided our community with answers and connections to resources. By calling 211 on your phone (or 941-205-2161 for Englewood, TTY or out-of-area calls) our staff can help with a variety of issues, from health care to food and shelter needs, to financial assistance and anything in between. We have recently overhauled our program and we'd like to share some of the ways we have worked to improve your experience with 211.

Intake coordinators

We have blended Family Services program specialists who process applications for financial and energy assistance with our 211 operators and created an intake coordinator position. What this means is we have doubled the amount of staff who take 211 calls and those coordinators can now provide assessments and process applications for services themselves. The person who answers your call can now help you through the entire process, as well as refer you to community partners. It's a full-service approach that offers a better experience for our clients.

Veteran resources

In Charlotte County, we are blessed with a high population of veterans. Veteran needs can vary drastically based on their experiences and ages. Younger veterans who served in Afghanistan or Iraq may require completely different services than Vietnam vets.

Charlotte County 211 is proud to partner with Tampa Crisis in a new program called My Charlotte FL Vets that provides for the development of resources for veterans in our community. Expanding the 211 database with additional veteran programs is essential to meeting the needs of those who served. In addition, My Charlotte FL Vets will provide case coordination for any veteran struggling with addiction or mental health issues. This program will fully launch in July. A community committee dedicated to the success of this initiative is already in place.

Community Point

Our 211 database of community partners and programs is now available and searchable. Until recently, all 211 data could be searched only by our operators. Community Point will launch online on May 1 and will allow you, as a Charlotte County resident, to search for help by category or ZIP code. Categories include food, shelter, senior services, veteran services, health care, financial assistance, etc. The site has icons that make it easy to navigate and our community partners can update their own pages with current information. Visit www.charlotte211.com.

Volunteer

There are lots of changes and improvements happening in Human Services and we aren't finished yet. Our department specializes in self-sufficiency, housing, senior services, veteran services, jail re-entry, juvenile civil citation, homeless prevention and case management. We are always looking for better ways to serve our community. To that end, if you are interested in volunteering in our office we would love to have you. Helping people feels great, we promise.

As always, for information and assistance you can call 211, but now you can also go online for services or come to our department at 1050 Loveland Blvd., Port Charlotte. Our mission is to connect people with resources.

Florida Politics.com

Joe HENDERSON

Rick Scott is a strong supporter of President Donald Trump, so it's reasonable to assume Scott has some understanding about what makes the chief executive tick.

With that in mind, consider this statement from Florida's former governor and current U.S. senator. He was talking to CNN on Sunday about Trump's threat to release immigrants into so-called sanctuary cities.

"I don't know whether it's legal or illegal. I mean, maybe he's just saying this to make everybody crazy. Make everybody talk about it on their shows," Scott said.

What, this President saying something that will never happen just to get a rise out of people? Of course, he's trying to make people crazy because that beats talking about separated families and a silly border wall.

Scott said on the same CNN show that there is a major problem at the border.

"I've been in the Senate for 90 days (and) we're not securing our border. We're not enforcing our laws," he said.

I'll answer: It doesn't.

The president and members of his party blame Democrats.

Democrats say the president is exaggerating the problem so he can build the wall he promised his almighty base. The President counters that Democrats want open borders and hate America. Democrats say the president's plan is extreme, vile and a cynical hate-filled rant for votes. How does any of this help the country?

I'll answer again: It doesn't.

This is the point where most columns would include a couple of paragraphs calling on the president to tone it down and show some leadership.

(Pause for laughter).

We all know that it is not Trump's style. After eight years of no-drama Barack Obama, we have what Jeb Bush correctly predicted would be the "chaos president."

He lives to please his base and drive opponents crazy. Conventional negotiations and politics don't work with this president. Even if he tried that route, he would revert into chaos as soon as Ann Coulter and Rush Limbaugh ripped him.

Trump said he wanted to be an unpredictable president, but he is anything but that. Whether that is enough to drive him from office in 2020, I guess we'll find out. I wouldn't bet on it at this point, no matter what the polls say.

Millions of Americans still don't trust the government. Trump sits atop the government depth chart, but his supporters believe the other guys who don't follow him are the problem.

So, sure. I think Rick Scott is absolutely right.

The threat to send migrants to sanctuary cities is empty and offered only for effect. That wouldn't be presidential and probably is against the law, but we're talking about it. And President Trump is laughing his backside off the whole time.

Joe Henderson has had a 45-year career in newspapers, including the last nearly 42 years at The Tampa Tribune, where he covered sports, politics and city government. The column moved on FloridaPolitics.com.

Letter to the Editor

Solution to pollution: Replace old sewers

Editor:

Charlotte County commissioners must admit that their priorities of the past are wrong.

Building new sewers to replace septic systems is a waste of money and should not be done before replacing crumbling sewers. Replacement of old sewers should be top priority now. Replace them before they all start failing.

If Sen. Joe Gruters' legislation is passed, fines of $2 per gallon of spilled sewage will be even more expensive for the taxpayers. Rather than using BP money to replace septic systems with sewers, these funds should be used to replace all old sewers.

Delaying replacement of old sewers will cost taxpayers more. Costs will never go down. The current plan of our commissioners is to replace septic systems with sewers. Meanwhile, old sewers continue polluting our waters with untreated or partially treated sewage.

Dilution is not the solution to pollution. It makes both environmental and financial sense for government to allow property owners to maintain their own septic systems. Septic owners who don't maintain their systems give commissioners no choice but to institute a county-wide septic maintenance program.

To my knowledge, the Ackerman/Countryman area is the only area in Charlotte County required to have their septic systems inspected and tanks pumped every five years. My system will be inspected and pumped later this year — the third time since moving here. The cost to replace old sewers will always rise. Common sense dictates replacement of deteriorating sewers before replacing functioning septic systems.

Englewood starts hunt for fire chief

Fire District hunting for Lane's replacement

By STEVE REILLY
Staff Writer

SUN FILE PHOTO BY STEVE REILLY

Englewood Area Fire Control District Commissioners have taken the first step to replace Fire Chief Scott Lane, who is heading to the North Port Department to serve as deputy chief.

ENGLEWOOD — The hunt is on for a new Englewood fire chief.

Ron Davison, chairman of the Englewood Area Fire Control District's elected commission, will develop a draft of a job description and list of qualifications for fire chief. Fire commissioners agreed Wednesday to meet again May 2 to review and approve the job description before searching for candidates.

"We want to make sure this selection is thorough," Commissioner Charlie Bray said, noting that it will be difficult to replace Chief Scott Lane.

Lane — who's been with the department since 2004 and its chief since 2013 — plans to move onto the North Port Fire Department as its deputy chief.

Lane's three-year contract with the fire district expires, and his last day with Englewood is April 29. Lane said he doesn't believe his departure will disrupt the fire district since he, the firefighters and others in the district have always worked as a team.

In the interim, Assistant Chief John Stubbs will fill in as the acting fire chief.

Commissioners say it shouldn't take longer than two or three months to get someone into the position.

"I'm not sure yet," Stubbs said Wednesday when asked whether he intends to apply for the position.

He's already served more than 27 years with the fire district and intends to serve another three or more years. What he and the other firefighters want, Stubbs said, is "to keep the fire district strong."

Stubbs won't be handling the administrative duties of the fire district alone.

Fire commissioners agreed to email battalion chiefs and other firefighters to see who is interested in assisting Stubbs through the transition.

ENGLEWOOD AREA FIRE CONTROL DISTRICT SPECIAL MEET

When: 9 a.m. May 2
More information: 941-474-3311 or visit www.englewood-fire.com.

Whoever steps up will no longer be working a firefighter's shift of 24 hours on, 48 hours off, and will work a five-day, 40-hour week. The pay scale will remain the same since the position will be viewed as a short-term, volunteer position.

'Pickleball noise creates a human health risk,' study says

By DANIEL SUTPHIN
Staff Writer

SUN PHOTOS BY DANIEL SUTPHIN

Punta Gorda Historic District homeowner Bernie DePaul presents his story on suffering a stroke he connected to pickleball and presents findings from a 2017 noise impact study he had conducted at the Gilchrist Park pickleball courts.

Punta Gorda Historic District homeowners in Punta Gorda served up another shot against pickleball play in Gilchrist Park at Wednesday's City Council meeting.

During previous council meetings, homeowners along West Retta Esplanade said the noise causes anxiety, panic attacks and insomnia.

Bernie DePaul, who owns a house across from the courts, blames the noise for his stroke a few years ago.

"The noise across the street was relatively constant," DePaul said. "I didn't need a medical doctor to tell me it was bothering me. It's been bothering me for years. When I went into the emergency room, the physician said there is nothing wrong with you ... we can't figure it out."

Wednesday, DePaul presented to the council findings from a 2017 noise impact study he paid to have conducted in the area.

William Thornton, of Thornton Acoustics and Vibrations, wrote in his findings:

- The pickleball noise creates a human health risk as the link between certain types of noise (which includes the type of noise emitted by pickleball) and the risk of hypertension, heart disease, etc. is well established.
- The pickleball noise exceeds the limits set for in objective, science-based community noise ordinances as promulgated by communities similar to Punta Gorda.
- The pickleball noise exceeds accepted U.S. and international standards and guidelines (such as those produced by the United States Environmental Protection Agency, World Health Organization, etc.) for community and environmental noise emissions/levels.
- The pickleball noise significantly increases the community noise levels (relative to existing ambient noise levels) and the relationship between community noise increase and human impact/annoyance is well established in the scientific body of knowledge.
- There are no effective means (other than enclosing the entire pickleball court in a well-designed building) of reducing the noise emitted by the pickleball courts such as noise walls, barriers or screens. Although these types of solutions are frequently suggested, they are not effective (for reasons of fundamental physics) and will not reduce the noise to acceptable levels.

Thornton Acoustics has completed over 1,500 projects of similar nature since 1972, according to the company's website.

"For the last 19 months, I've had every test that you can run that's pertinent to my situation again and again," DePaul said. "I have seven physicians – neurosurgeons, neurologists and cardiologists – that are waiting and ready to be deposed. I don't have any more time for this ... I've never sued anybody ... but there's no more time as far as I'm concerned."

The City Council members did not comment on DePaul's presentation.

Vice Mayor Lynne Matthews told the Sun that since council members just appointed a committee to review all the aspects of the pickleball situation, "we need to let them do their due diligence job."

On March 6, the City Council established a pickleball committee as a fact-finding initiative. The committee suggested having a new noise impact study conducted. Details of that study were not available at the time of this report.

City staff is also in the process of purchasing and constructing an "acoustical" fence to dampen the noise at the Gilchrist courts. The timeline for that action is still being determined.

"Citizens are only asking you to uphold your sworn duty to protect our health, safety and welfare," said Peggy Keen of the Historic District. "Pickleball is only a game, but the stakes for the residents of the Historic District are more dire."

This New Bladder Control Pill May Replace Adult Diapers

Clinical studies show new pill may be effective enough to replace adult diapers for bladder control; initial users show dramatic reduction in trips to the bathroom, embarrassing leaking, and nighttime urgency.

Robert Ward,
Associated Health Press

NEW PILL MAY REPLACE DIAPERS FOR BLADDER CONTROL: This new patented clinically proven pill solution is now available nationwide

AHP – Adult diaper sales are expected to plummet as results from a clinical trial on a new, patented bladder control pill have finally been released.

Perhaps more impressive, it also targets the tiny muscles around the bladder, which helps the bladder to create a tighter seal.

This would explain why the average UriVarx™ user in clinical trials experiences a 66% reduction in urinary incontinence symptoms, such as day and night leaking and sudden urges to urinate.

NEW DISCOVERY IN BLADDER CONTROL

Until now, doctors believed it was impossible to strengthen the muscles that control the bladder. They are amazed to see that it can now be done with the non-prescription UriVarx™ pill.

"As you get older, and the involuntary muscles around your bladder weaken, you lose urinary control. With your bladder wall unable to properly seal, you constantly leak and feel pressure to urinate" explains Dr. Bassam Damaj of Innovus Pharmaceuticals.

"UriVarx™ targets the bladder muscles and help restores vital kidney health, reducing urgency and frequency. It also helps you "hold it" for hours so you never have to worry about embarrassing accidents ever again!"

FREEDOM FROM SUDDEN URGES AND LEAKS

Since hitting the market, sales for the patented UriVarx™ pill have soared and there are some very good reasons why.

To begin with, the double blind large clinical studies published in the clinicaltrials.gov have been impressive. Participants taking UriVarx™ saw a stunning reduction in urinary frequency, which resulted in fewer bathroom trips both day and night.

They also experienced a dramatic decrease in incontinence episodes, such as leaking and bed wetting.

The active ingredients in UriVarx™ comes from a patented formula. It is both safe and healthy. There are also no known serious side effects in its history of use.

Scientists believe that the ingredients target the muscles of the bladder to grow stronger. These muscles are responsible for keeping the bladder tightly sealed. They also help the bladder to completely empty, allowing bacteria to be flushed from the urinary tract.

Research has shown that as you get older, certain hormonal changes in the body cause these muscles to shrink and become lose. This is what causes the bladder to be over active and the resulting urine accidents and why UriVarx™ seems to be so effective in the published clinical trials.

EXCITING RESULTS FROM URIVARX USERS

Many UriVarx™ users say their bladders have never been stronger. For the first time in years, they are confident and in complete control. Adult pads and diapers are no longer a big worry.

"After my third child, I couldn't control my bladder. I was running to the bathroom all the time! And once I hit my 60s it became so unpredictable I needed to wear adult pads every day" explained Marie L. of Danbury, CT.

"I was embarrassed so before going to my doctor I decided to try UriVarx and I'm so glad I did! The urgency is gone and I no longer feel like my bladder is about to explode. I can also "hold it" when I need to so I'm no longer living in constant fear of finding a bathroom."

IMPRESSIVE CLINICAL RESULTS

The exciting clinical results published on the government clinical website clinicaltrials.gov show that UriVarx™ can strengthen your bladder fast, significantly reducing the urine urgency and leaks.

In a new double-blind, placebo-controlled clinical study, 142 men and women with bladder control issues were separated into two groups. The first group was given a placebo while the other received UriVarx™.

The results were incredible. The participants who received UriVarx™ saw major improvements in leaking, pressure, and the urgency to go – all without the usual side effects seen in prescription drugs! They also reported fewer trips to the bathroom both day and night.

Overall, the UriVarx™ group experienced:

- 56% Reduction in Urge Incontinence
- 66% Reduction in Stress Incontinence
- 61% Reduction in Urgency
- 33% Reduction in Frequency
- 46% Reduction in Nighttime Bathroom Trips

Additionally, at the end of clinical trial and after seeing the results, 84% of the participants taking UriVarx™ said it significantly improved their quality of life.

"The clinical findings are incredible, but people still wonder if it will really work" explains Dr. Bassam Damaj. "It's normal to be skeptical, but we've seen thousands of UriVarx™ users get results exactly like the participants in the study. It's an amazing product."

HOW IT WORKS

The active ingredients are patented natural extracts.

Research shows that as we get older, the muscles which surround the bladder weaken. This is caused by hormonal changes in the body that causes the muscles to atrophy and weaken.

When they become too small and weak, they cannot seal your bladder shut, which causes leaking, accidents, among other incontinence symptoms.

It also prevents your bladder from fully emptying, which can result in persistent bacterial infections and UTIs.

UriVarx's™ active ingredient targets the muscles around the bladder, making them stronger. Supporting ingredients in UriVarx™ support kidney function and overall urinary health.

BLADDER PROBLEMS GONE

With daily use, UriVarx™ can restore strong bladder control and help users overcome leakage without the negative side effects or interactions associated with drugs.

Leakage sufferers can now put an end to the uncontrollable urges, the embarrassing accidents, and enjoy an entirely new level of comfort and confidence.

Buffett dabbles in cannabis

New brand to debut at North Port on Friday night

By TOM HARMENING
Staff Writer

NORTH PORT — A new cannabis brand, carrying the endorsement of singer Jimmy Buffett, is set to debut in North Port this weekend.

A kick-off event for Coral Reefer products will take place at the Surterra Wellness Center from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. Friday night.

Buffett, who had developed the Margaritaville brand of resorts and restaurants, became involved in the cannabis business because, as he put it, "life is supposed to be about having fun and staying healthy to enjoy it and I believe Coral Reefer products will help a lot of folks do that."

Buffett has a touring and a recording band named the Coral Reefer Band.

Surterra has a wall of featured products which shows their product line, how it can be dispensed and how much THC and CBD are in the products.

The new line of products are vaporizer formulas that include "Seas the Day," "Cabana Daydreamin,'" "Stores We Could Tell" and "Surfin' In A Hurricane."

Medical marijuana was legalized in Florida — with Gov. Ron DeSantis signing smokable medical marijuana into law in March.

THE BACK NINE

The frustration of bad putting

The game of golf would be a lot easier if I never had to bring that little flat stick out of the bag. The fact that my score often inflates greatly while I'm holding that one club is an absolute abomination to my overall game.

Greg BARTZ
Columnist

You may have heard the old golf course trope, "Drive for show and putt for dough." I've always thought of this as a myth. If you can't get to the green in regulation, or an acceptable amount of strokes, who cares how you putt? A great short game doesn't get you far with no long game.

But if your game is good enough to get on the greens in regulation, a lack of putting skills will bring you down every time. After many years of golf, I am finally to the point where the putter matters.

We play golf after work every other Wednesday. This past week, I hit the ball pretty well. Even when made mistakes with the driver, the ball was always where I had a shot to get it to the green, and for the most part I did.

However, once I got there, it was like a house of horrors. Out of the nine holes we played, I three-putted on four of them. Not good. I will offer up one excuse: I have never been great on turtle-back greens. Something about them makes me lose my mind and I simply can't read them.

Anyway, it finally dawned on me that the old phrase about putting for dough now carries some weight. If I could have made it in the cup in two putts, I would have shot a mere two over par. But I blew it and ended up six over par.

So, back to the drawing board with the putter. I am going to take a slightly different approach to my putting game. If I hit the ball closer to the flag, my putting distance will be shorter. That should mean fewer chances to miss. I also need to work on the lag putting. If I can get better at judging the speed of the putt, I should be able to get it closer to the hole. That by itself should eliminate the three-putting.

If I can put those pieces together, then I'll be able work to better focus on reading the greens. Once I master that, I'll be at the goal: To be able to drop the ball into the hole with a single putt, from any distance. For now, though, I'll go in measured steps.

The good thing about my game is that my ball striking has gotten better, which gets me

A visit to Arcadia's exotic animal refuge

Gibbons howled, peacocks screeched, and other birds crowed as I arrived at Lions, Tigers & Bears, Inc., in Arcadia. A male peacock strutted up and looked me over. Apparently I met his criteria, as he then allowed me into the facility.

Jennifer A. HUBER
Columnist

Lions, Tigers & Bears is home to about 150 exotic and native animals, and each has its own story. Founded in 1998, this is not a zoo. It is a nonprofit, 40-acre wildlife refuge. The co-founders, Lynn and Dennis Wittmeier, have been working with wildlife since the 1990s.

Lynn estimates about 95 percent of the animals come from private owners; the rest are from other sanctuaries or government confiscations. These animals, including a black bear, bobcats, white-tailed deer and cougars, cannot be released into their native habitats because they lack the skills to survive. However, the refuge does rehabilitate native wildlife out of public view, and will release them if they are capable of fending for themselves. Most other animals, as servals, tigers and a lion, were born in captivity and found their way to the rescue facility.

Lynn introduced me to several of the residents, many of which came from what she calls Florida's "picture trade." Each state regulates the ownership of dangerous exotic and native animals, whether for private, commercial, or educational use.

Here, the Florida Fish & Wildlife Conservation Commission oversees permitting. Under state law, small young cubs (between the ages of 8 and 12 weeks and less than 25 pounds) can interact with the public, including being handled.

Many of the residents here began their lives as photo props at an attraction. Once the animal is older than 12 weeks or heavier than 25 pounds, it can no longer have human interaction. The fortunate ones find permanent homes — like Lions, Tigers & Bears.

Samson and Delilah, a pair of Siberian tigers, landed at the refuge in 2010 when they were 6 weeks old. They were bred for the "picture trade" but found their way to another sanctuary and then to the care of the Wittmeiers. She describes raising them as "privilege." Samson weighed 2 pounds at birth. Today, he's about 800 pounds. Delilah weighs about 400 pounds.

Prepare your yard before hurricane season begins

With so many of our residents preparing to leave for the summer, and just over six weeks left until the official start of hurricane season, I thought it would be a good time to talk about what you can do now to prepare your yard for the possibility of severe weather in your absence.

Becky COPENHAVER
Columnist

Let's start with what I hope is the obvious: Stowing garbage cans and any loose items in your garage or house and securing outdoor furniture. What about bird feeders, bird baths, pots and yard art? Well, smaller pieces should be brought in — but large bird baths and heavy decorative yard items may be more difficult, if not impossible, to move. These can be set on their side in place and tied to a stake to keep them there.

Medium-sized pots that still hold plants can be grouped, tied together and placed near a structure that would block the wind. It's probably not feasible to do any of these with very large planted pots, so one idea is to drive heavy-duty stakes into the ground on three sides of each pot and secure with rope or wire. This should at least keep the pot upright during a storm, rather than it blowing over and rolling around the neighborhood.

If the large pots are on a hard surface where staking is not an option, at least try to move them into a corner or closer to a structure that could help block the wind. And as for the plants that are contained in those pots, close your eyes and hope for the best.

When it comes to prepping your gardens for a potential hurricane, there are several things that can be done now to ease your worries (and probably those of your immediate neighbors as well). You don't have to severely prune basic landscape shrubs and hedges back to bare wood. As a matter of fact, that can cause problems that you haven't anticipated.

Some plants like bougainvillea, copperleaf and hibiscus, in an attempt to grow new life-sustaining leaves as quickly as possible, will sometimes send out very long shoots of new growth that are weakly attached and vulnerable to snapping off in high winds. It's stressful for the plant and serves no real purpose for hurricane preparedness.

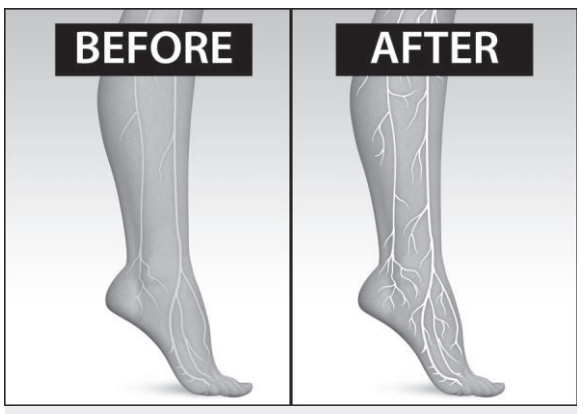
California Mom Had Leg and Feet "Hot Flame Pain" So Bad She Could Not Even Walk – But Now Walks Everywhere

97-Cent Natural Relief for Leg and Feet Burning, Tingling and Numbness That Doctors Don't Know About

By Michael Plane — National Health Press

What if your leg and feet pain was so bad you couldn't even walk?

That's how bad it was for California mom Katerina McCausland. " I would get "hot flames" in my legs and feet. The pain was so bad I could not even walk. When I could walk, barely, I had to constantly hold onto things. I was terrified of leaving the house and falling. My life was very limited and terrible."



Oxygen flow to the legs and feet before and after using the Chinese herbs in Neuroflo. The increased oxygen flow indicates soothing relief of burning, tingling and numbness in the legs and feet.

Katerina suffered from leg and feet pain for many years. She tried one prescription drug after another. Then electrical stimulation. None of these worked.

At her wit's end, and fed up with suffering, Katerina took charge of her health. She went to the University Of California library. She started researching what herbs relieved leg and feet pain and burning, tingling and numbness. Then she lucked out and found a company that made a supplement with these proven safe herbs people in China have taken for over 3,000 years.

On the third day, her pain, burning and "hot flames" began to lessen and now they are almost entirely gone. Today Katerina walks everywhere.

"If I kept listening to my doctors, I'd be a cripple today. I'd be stuck in a wheelchair or nursing home or with my legs amputated and cut off."

Leg and feet problems could have been almost like a death sentence for Katerina – and a shame for her suffering family. It is a terrible way to live out what should be the best year of your life.

Leg and feet nerve pain is like a wildfire. It starts small, but then quickly turns into a raging fire. The pain and suffering are terrible - and get worse if left alone or treated in a way that doesn't work. 86,000 Americans need a limb amputated each year.

Finally – You Don't Have To Suffer Anymore

Here's why you have pain now: Your arteries have weakened. Your arteries can't carry enough blood, nutrients and oxygen down to your legs and feet. This damages your nerves and causes your burning, tingling and numbness.

The 7 herbs in the pill NeuroFlo strengthen your arteries that carry blood, nutrients and oxygen to your feet and legs. It improves your circulation so oxygenated blood goes to the nerves and repairs them. This makes your nerves grow stronger so your pain fades away and your legs and feet feel much younger again.

Until now, scientists could not combine all these herbs into one pill without losing their full potency, but finally, they have succeeded.

Dr. Ryan Shelton, M.D. says "This is new and different. It works for people who've tried many other things before. It is natural with no side effects. Don't give up hope for your leg and feet pain, burning, tingling and numbing. This pill is working for countless people after other treatments have failed them." From word-of-mouth, over 30,000 doses of this Chinese miracle have already been sold in America.

Instead of letting their doctors control their health with no real relief, people are taking this natural approach. They are staying active and independent as they age – and creating a bright future they are excited about, instead of fearing. Now you too can enjoy your best years yet.

Conventional Treatments All Wrong

In America, drugs and other OTC formulas try to superficially suppress the symptoms. This may be going after the problem completely wrong. Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) believes nerve problems are largely caused by stagnant blood circulation. This causes your legs and feet NOT to get enough oxygen-rich, nutrient-rich blood they need to heal. The ingredients in NeuroFlo get this crucial blood flowing to your legs and feet like a fast-running river stream so they can feel better fast.

Want proof? To show how important oxygenated blood flow is, hold your breath. Hold it too long and you'll pass out. This is what's happening to your feet and legs now -- they are not getting the oxygenated blood flow they need to feel healthy.

Now you can get a good night's sleep - peaceful, restful sleep – with no pain, tingling, zinging, itching or zapping. Improve your balance and coordination. No side effects – safe to take with other medications. Enjoy your favorite activities and hobbies again. Be more active, have more fun, enjoy life more. Don't risk irreversible damage to your feet and hands. Don't get worse and wind up in the hospital or a nursing home.

Neuroflo is GUARANTEED to work great for you – or you PAY NOTHING with a 90-day unconditional money-back guarantee. It is NOT sold in stores or online. No prescription or doctor visit is required.

"I couldn't drive before due to my leg and feet pain and burning. I was stuck in the house and that was very depressing. But now, thanks to Neuroflo, I drive everywhere! I am more active and have more energy. It is a terrific supplement."
- Valerie Van Dyke, Pensacola, Florida

Special Offer For Readers in Florida

This is the official nationwide release of NeuroFlo in the United States. And so, the company is offering a special discount supply to anyone who calls within the next 48-hours.

A Regional Order Hotline has been set up for local readers to call. This gives everyone an equal chance to try NeuroFlo. Starting at 7:00am today, the order hotline will be open for 48-hours.

All you have to do is call TOLL-FREE 1-888-387-0523 and provide the operator with the special discount approval code: NEF158. The company will do the rest.

Important: Due to NeuroFlo's recent media exposure phone lines are often busy. If you call, and do not immediately get through, please be patient and call back. Those who miss the 48-hour special discount offer must pay more for NeuroFlo.

"I had hands and feet tingling and snapping and burning feeling. It made my life very uncomfortable. I had a hard time walking, my legs felt like they each weighed 50 pounds. Once I got in my car and my feet felt so heavy I couldn't even drive the car. With Neuroflo I have no more tingling, cold or burning painful feet. It went away. It helped me I had a good reaction with it. I'm glad to tell other people about something good that works. I am impressed with it."

LIFE ON TWO WHEELS

Riding on a rainy day.

Why aren't you riding?

Court NEDERVELD
COLUMNIST

I see many of you out riding your bike to whatever destinations you've set for yourself.

I've got a regular breakfast meeting every Friday morning. Granted, it's only about five miles from my house — but somehow I manage to sneak in an extra 35 miles on top of it, so the breakfast tastes mighty fine. Once or twice a year, it's off to the doctor's office — again, roughly five miles away. But just for fun and to drive the doctor crazy, I find a route that adds another 40 miles to the trip.

As I travel around, I see you and your bikes at doughnut shops, the grocery store and the restaurants downtown. More and more, I'm seeing what must be commuter riders traveling on the new bike lanes graciously provided by FDOT on U.S. 41.

I even saw a rider coming over the bridge with what appeared to be custom-built fishing pole holders mounted to the frame of the bicycle, along with what looked like a bait bucket and fish bucket attached to the rack on the back of the bike. A thrifty rider, I suspect — saving gas money, insurance money, maintenance money, and if he catches some fish, even some grocery money. To all of you, I salute your efforts to use a bike as transportation.

But there is still a number of you that are not riding your bike. After 15 years of riding I think I've heard just about all the excuses (perhaps even used a few myself) for not riding to work, or the store, or for pleasure, or to prevent that heart attack, or get the doctor off your back because of the extra pounds hanging over your belt.

Weather

Mother Nature isn't always your friend. Most of the time in our little area of paradise, the weather is comfortable. It's warm, the sun is shining, a gentle breeze blows, a sandhill crane watches you roll by — there are even flowers in bloom, probably just for you.

Then a shadow passes overhead, and you look up just in time to see a bolt of lightning cross the sky like a millisecond warning that rain and wind are coming fast. The problem isn't always storms. Sometimes it's pollen, or even some cold weather.

What's a rider to do? You could limit yourself to being a fair-weather biker, but you'd miss a huge number of perfectly good days of riding. Or embrace the weather. Challenge Mother Nature to ruin your ride. Be a Boy Scout and be prepared.

Check the weather radar and adjust your ride accordingly. Many times the weather has called for thunderstorms, but a check of the radar shows no rain in the forecast for at least two hours. Maybe it's raining, but the radar map shows the storm passing in 30 minutes — still plenty of day left to get in a run to the store.

Pack a lightweight rain poncho in a seat bag. Don't be afraid to tuck under a bridge or store awning if one is close. Should you get stuck out in the perfect storm, with rain for 40 days and nights, pull out the cell phone and call Uber. Remember to tell them that whoever they send will need to load your bike too. Adopt the unofficial slogan of the Marines: Improvise, adapt, overcome.

I'll smell bad

Another reason for not riding to work or other important destinations is that if you ride, you sweat — and if you sweat, you will stink. It's a fact of nature, and this physiology can't be changed.

However it can be ameliorated with some forethought. Heading into work in the morning, ride easy, give yourself an extra 15 minutes to get there. Another growing and very popular solution is an electric-assist bike. It takes very little effort to pedal the bike, so minimal perspiration.

Unfortunately there are times here when the sun is like 300 degrees, and even if you don't move you'll sweat. If you are going to work, maybe they have showers you can use to freshen up. Pack work clothes in a backpack and change when you get there. If you have an office or locker, keep a clean set of clothes at work.

If no facilities exist, try Plan B: Ride to work and wait a few minutes to cool down (because if you change immediately from sweat-soaked clothes to fresh clothes, the sweat simply transfers from one to the other). Then head to the restroom and use some wet wipes. Better yet, bring a washcloth, wet it down and do a once-over before changing clothes.

You won't stink anymore, and your coworkers will think it's amazing that you can ride to work and be presentable.

I might crash

Yup, it happens. Usually it's something like forgetting to put your feet on the ground when stopping at an intersection. Terribly embarrassing, but rarely painful. Sometimes in wet conditions, the white lines on the roadway act like ice and a wheel goes out from underneath and the rest of you hits the pavement. Bruises, some scrapes, maybe even a drop or two of blood. Just get up and shake it off — or, as my grandmother used to say, rub some dirt on it and keep going.

My own experiences with the ground tell me that 99 percent of the time, a crash is the rider's fault. Occasionally it can be mechanical, but if you keep your bike in good condition, this is very rare. Mostly, you just screw up. The toughest part is getting back on the bike. It can be scary and nerve-wracking for a few rides after that, but in the end you'll be fine.

Now that at least three reasons not to ride a bike have had a spike driven into them …

LIVING

Cassie, a Bengal tiger, ended up at the facility in 2000 because of her fur color. She came from a white tiger breeder but was born orange. Walking up to her pen, she huffed a "chuff-chuff" sound, which indicates happiness.

As I toured the grounds, I had the honor of hearing Alex the lion roar. The 5-year-old arrived at the refuge last year after living in the Tampa Bay area. He didn't begin roaring until he was 4, which proved bothersome in the urban area.

Sydney, one of two gibbons, was also vocal. She provided the background music throughout the day with her "WHOOO-whooo-WHOOO" which reminded me of a police siren. Sydney was a woman's pet. However, when these small apes reach maturity, they become aggressive and potentially dangerous. She spends her time playfully swinging from bar to hoop to bar and gaining the attention of visitors.

John Deer likes to interact with refuge visitors. The white-tailed deer is about 13 years old and came from a Florida boys' camp, where he was handled by about 150 children a day. In addition to his fondness of cozying up to visitors, his short, velvety antlers stand out. Apparently, he was neutered while still in velvet and will remain that way.

Besides the big cats, gibbons and John Deer, Lions, Tigers & Bears is also home to exotic and domestic birds, reptiles such as an 18-foot Burmese python and tortoises, and other mammals.

FWC oversees Lions, Tigers & Bears. The rescue facility is staffed by volunteers and is a family-friendly experience. The grounds are lush with green grassy areas, trees for shade, and a covered picnic area which is used by school groups and families.

While providing a caring home, Lions, Tigers & Bears educates visitors. Visit to see big cats and other exotic animals — but also to learn about each animal, how they ended up there, and the impact of owning exotic pets.

"I would love to see these animals go back to the wild … our ambition is to stop private owners from getting these exotics," Lynn told me, then added, "Or, if they're going to get them, do something where you're doing something like we are — teaching people about the animals, about the environment and how the two of them mix."

The refuge is not big, but the stories of each resident (including the founders) will fill your heart.

Thursday to Sunday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

July, August and September visitation is by appointment only.

The facility can only be explored through guided tours that are offered every hour. Although it's a walking tour, a golf cart is available to transport guests with mobility issues. Tours are about a 60 to 90 minutes.

The refuge is located near the Arcadia Stockyard and you will drive down a narrow, unpaved road to reach it. Look for the white signs stating, "Lions, Tigers & Bears."

Admission: Adults $15 minimum donation; kids $5 minimum donation. Wear comfortable walking shoes, bring water, insect repellent.

Need something to do? They are always looking for enthusiastic people to spend a few hours a week volunteering. Duties range from gardening to cleaning the animal pens.

Friday and Saturday of Easter weekend (April 19 & 20) are their popular "Hot Dog Days" — visitors receive complimentary hot dogs and drinks with minimum donations of $15 for adults and $5 for kids. Kids will receive an Easter gift bag.

PUTTING

on the green more often than not in regulation. So now my accuracy to the flag, minimizing the distance to putt the ball, needs to come into play. If I can shorten that distance up by getting the ball closer to the hole on my approach shot, I should be able to get the ball down in a maximum of two strokes on the green.

If you're having issues with your putting, I'd suggest starting by trying to get closer. If you're always 30 feet from the hole on your approach shot, work on your accuracy approaching the green. If you are a good putter, this recipe to take strokes off your game may not be for you. For me, as a notoriously bad putter, it will hopefully eliminate some strokes I am losing on the green.

My putter and I have never gotten along. I have tried numerous clubs, different stances, altering my grip, whatever. I have come to the conclusion that it simply is the weakest part of my game. However, it's time I fixed it, so I'm glad to have a plan. Will it work? I'll know soon enough — the weekend is upon us, and I'll be heading out to play somewhere.

Here's hoping we all do a little better on the greens.

PREPARE

Thick, full plants survive much better than thin and struggling ones. All that should really be necessary here is to just tidy up before a storm.

Now when it comes to trees, there may be a bit more to consider.

Pine trees planted in groups close together are very wind-resistant. But a single tall pine tree may become a victim to hurricane-force winds.

Nature planned for pine forests to contain large numbers of these trees growing in close proximity to one another. This reduces the force of the wind as it blows through them, thus strengthening the entire group. A single pine tree in a small neighborhood yard could be a hazard to the entire neighborhood.

Pines are such an important resource for wildlife that I encourage their use in the landscape, just make sure to plant them in groups of three or more and close together to ensure their success.

Hardwood trees should be examined closely. In all likelihood, they will need to be thinned out. Thinning out hardwoods is not the same as "topping" them.

Thinning out is the practice of removing interior limbs and branches that cause the canopy to become very thick and dense. This leads to increased wind resistance. Thinning out the canopy allows wind to move through the tree with less resistance. In doing this you also remove dead and dying branches that would become projectiles in a high wind situation as well as unstable branches that would probably split under those same circumstances.

"Topping" a tree is a practice where the entire canopy of the tree is shaped like a big, unnatural topiary, usually flat on the top. This creates incredible wind resistance. Like strong winds hitting a billboard, something will have to give — and it won't be the wind!

Don't ever start this practice with your trees. If you are already doing it, stop. Let the tree grow out enough so that you can then thin the interior to restore it to a strong natural tree.

Thinning of large hardwood trees should probably be left to a certified arborist, unless you like the idea of being on a ladder 20 feet in the air with a chainsaw. Not me, not anymore!

Besides, a professional will know what to cut out — and more importantly, what to leave. Branches near a roof or power lines will need to be cut away, but there is a right way and a wrong way to do that too. Leave it to a pro. He or she will also be aware of how much to thin the interior while still leaving cover for nesting birds and other wildlife.

Always be wary of anyone coming to your door and offering to trim your trees for you. More likely than not, he'll have zero insight as to how to correctly trim trees, which in the event of a hurricane can create more problems than it solves. He may have a chainsaw and a ladder, but you really need someone who is educated in his field and knows his business.

So what to do about palm trees? Palm trees are really the easiest plant in the landscape to get prepared for hurricane season: Just keep them healthy. Healthy palms require almost no advance hurricane prep, other than removing dead fronds and seed pods that do not naturally drop on their own. Healthy palms have a good chance of surviving a hurricane.

If you are lucky enough to have a row of areca palms on your property, thank them for providing you with an almost perfect natural windbreak. Areca palms greatly reduce the force of wind as it passes through them, potentially protecting home and property from severe wind damage.

Too many people, including some tree companies, think that palm trees should be "hurricane cut" before the start of the season of storms. Nothing could be further from the truth.

This week I was horrified to see five beautiful cabbage palms in my neighborhood completely devoid of any fronds save for three at the top of each tree. It's unimaginable that someone would think this is the proper way to trim palms. It's wrong, and it's illegal. I'll explain why:

'Hurricane' cutting of palms is a technique where all but a few fronds at the top are removed. It's thought that this will somehow allow the wind to blow past the tree, therefore saving it. The actual truth is that hurricane cutting palms makes them less able to survive a severe wind event and is extremely stressful for the palm.

The fronds that are removed are the very ones that protect and support the only growing point on a palm tree; the heart. Palm hearts are located in the top center of the tree and extend downward (generally to where the lowest green frond is attached, depending on the species).

Take away those green fronds and you've taken away its total support system — its scaffolding, so to speak — thus making it likely that high winds could snap the heart of the palm like a twig. If the heart of the palm goes, the whole tree dies. It's that simple. They do not recover.

Both the City of Punta Gorda (Article 12.3 [h]) and Charlotte County (Article IV Sec. 3-9-100.3 [O-1, 1a]) have ordinances prohibiting the practice of hurricane-cutting palms, but most residents and many tree service contractors are unaware of these codes. Now that you know, it's time to enlighten the rest of your neighbors and the people you hire.

So, here's the gig: Make your landscape maintenance plans in advance and carry them out before you leave for the season, but don't over think it and don't overdo it. A healthy landscape will survive a hurricane and recover over time as long as you don't do anything beforehand to make it even more difficult.

60 people charged in illegal prescription opioid crackdown

'White-coated drug dealers' tied to 350,000 prescriptions, 32 million pills

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Federal authorities said Wednesday they have charged 60 people, including a doctor accused of trading drugs for sex and another of prescribing to his Facebook friends, for their roles in illegally prescribing and distributing millions of pills containing opioids and other drugs.

U.S. Attorney Benjamin Glassman of Cincinnati described the action, with 31 doctors facing charges, as the biggest known takedown yet of drug prescribers. Robert Duncan, U.S. attorney for eastern Kentucky, called the doctors involved "white-coated drug dealers."

Authorities said the 60 includes 53 medical professionals tied to some 350,000 prescriptions and 32 million pills. The operation was conducted by the federal Appalachian Regional Prescription Opioid Strike Force, launched last year by the Trump administration.

Authorities said arrests were being made and search warrants carried out as they announced the charges at a news conference. They didn't immediately name those being charged.

U.S. health authorities have reported there were more than 70,000 drug overdose deaths in 2017, for a rate of 21.7 per 100,000 people. West Virginia and Ohio have regularly been among the states with the highest overdose death rates as the opioid crisis has swelled in recent years.

Among those charged was a Tennessee nurse practitioner who dubbed himself the "Rock Doc" and is accused of prescribing dangerous combinations of drugs such as fentanyl and oxycodone, authorities said.

An indictment states that Jeff Young operated a clinic in Jackson, Tennessee, and promoted his practice with the motto "work hard, play harder." The indictment states he prescribed drugs that were highly addictive and at high risk of abuse as he tried to promote a "Rock Doc" reality TV pilot and podcast while obtaining sex and money for prescriptions.

Another western Tennessee doctor is also accused of often trading drug prescriptions for sex.

Others charged include a Kentucky doctor who is accused of writing prescriptions to Facebook friends who came to his home to pick them up, another who allegedly left signed blank prescriptions for staff to fill out and give to patients, and a Kentucky dentist accused of removing teeth unnecessarily and scheduling unneeded follow-up appointments.

A Dayton, Ohio, doctor was accused of running a "pill mill" that allegedly dispensed 1.75 million pills in a two-year period. Authorities said an Alabama doctor recruited prostitutes and other women he had sexual relations with to his clinic and allowed them to abuse drugs in his home.

Most of those charged came from the five strike force states of Alabama, Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee and West Virginia. One person each was also arrested in Pennsylvania and Louisiana.

Mueller report release spirals into political gamesmanship

Special counsel Robert Mueller's redacted report on Russian interference in the 2016 election is expected to be released publicly today. Attorney General William Barr has said he is redacting four types of information from the report, but congressional Democrats are demanding to see the whole document and its evidence.

Justice Department plans to release redacted version of special counsel's report on Russian election interference

WASHINGTON — After nearly two years of waiting, America will get some answers straight from Robert Mueller — but not before President Donald Trump's attorney general has his say.

The Justice Department on Thursday is expected to release a redacted version of the special counsel's report on Russian election interference and Trump's campaign, opening up months, if not years, of fights over what the document means in a deeply divided country.

Even the planned release of the report quickly spiraled into a political struggle Wednesday over whether Attorney General William Barr is attempting to shield the president who appointed him and spin the report's findings before the American people can read it and come to their own judgments.

Barr will hold a 9:30 a.m. news conference accompanied by Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein, who oversaw the investigation after Mueller's appointment in May 2017. But Mueller and other members of his team will not attend, special counsel spokesman Peter Carr said.

Trump vetoes measure to end US involvement in Yemen war

Congressional resolution sought to end U.S. military assistance in the Saudi Arabia-led war

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Donald Trump vetoed a resolution passed by Congress to end U.S. military assistance in Saudi Arabia's war in Yemen.

The veto — the second in Trump's presidency — was expected, and Congress lacks the votes to override it. But passing the never-before-used war powers resolution was viewed as a milestone for lawmakers, who have shown a renewed willingness to assert their war-making authority after letting it atrophy for decades under presidents from both parties.

"This resolution is an unnecessary, dangerous attempt to weaken my constitutional authorities, endangering the lives of American citizens and brave service members, both today and in the future," Trump wrote in explaining his Tuesday veto.

Many lawmakers also criticized the president for not condemning Saudi Arabia for the killing of Jamal Khashoggi, a Saudi who lived in the United States and had written critically about the kingdom. Khashoggi went into the Saudi consulate in Istanbul last October and never came out. Intelligence agencies said Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman was complicit in the killing.

The U.S. provides billions of dollars of arms to the Saudi-led coalition fighting against Iran-backed rebels in Yemen. Members of Congress have expressed concern about the thousands of civilians killed in coalition airstrikes since the conflict began in 2014.

Florida teen obsessed with Columbine takes her own life

She may have been planning an attack just days ahead of 20th anniversary

By KATHLEEN FOODY and COLLEEN SLEVIN
Associated Press

LITTLETON, Colo. — A Florida teenager who authorities say was obsessed with the Columbine school shooting and may have been planning an attack in Colorado just ahead of the 20th anniversary was found dead Wednesday in an apparent suicide after a nearly 24-hour manhunt.

The body of 18-year-old high schooler Sol Pais was discovered in the mountains outside Denver with what appeared to be a self-inflicted gunshot wound after investigators got a tip from the driver who took her there, the FBI said.

Police and the FBI were tipped off about Pais after the Miami Beach high school student made troubling remarks to others about her "infatuation" with the 1999 bloodbath at Columbine High and this weekend's anniversary of the 13 killings, said Dean Phillips, FBI agent in charge in Denver. He did not elaborate on what she said.

Pais purchased three one-way tickets to Denver on three consecutive days, then flew in on Monday night and went directly to a gun store, where she bought a shotgun, authorities said.

In Pais' hometown, Surfside Police Chief Julio Yero asked that the family be given "privacy and a little time to grieve." Pais' parents had reported her missing on Monday night, police said.

Authorities said she did not threaten a specific school. But Columbine and more than 20 other schools outside Denver reacted by locking their doors for nearly three hours Tuesday afternoon, and some canceled evening activities or moved them inside.

Pais' body was found off a trail not far from the base of Mount Evans, a recreation area about 60 miles southwest of Denver, authorities said. She used the weapon she bought, Phillips said.

Sheriff Jeff Shrader said the sale of the shotgun followed the state's legal process. Out-of-state residents who are at least 18 can buy shotguns in Colorado, but must provide fingerprints and pass a criminal background check.

Official seeks money for more gun license processing

By BRENDAN FARRINGTON
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The Florida agency that issues concealed weapons and armed security guard licenses has cut processing time by about half despite a surge in applications, but Agriculture Commissioner Nikki Fried said the efficiencies aren't sustainable unless the Legislature allows her to tap into a trust fund to hire more staff.

Fried took office in January with a promise to make changes at the Division of Licensing, which had come under scrutiny after reports of licenses being issue improperly.

Since then, the average time to issue an error-free application has dropped from 50 days to 20 days and the average time to review an application flagged because of errors or information in a background check has dropped from 88 days to 48 days, according to figure provided by the department. And that's happened while the number of applications has increased from a previous year average of 13,806 a month to 23,537 last month.

"We saw the previous administration drop the ball," Fried said this week. "We came in and made some huge changes ... Making sure that background checks were done in a timely manner was one of my main campaign promises. Safety of our citizens has got to be our first and foremost priority."

Fried is asking for 77 new full-time positions in the licensing division, and so far the Legislature isn't going along. The state budget being negotiated by the House and Senate doesn't contain money for the positions, and Fried is scrambling to get authorization to use a trust fund built on concealed weapons license fees to make the hires. She said the trust fund has $90 million, so the positions wouldn't require a new appropriation. Still, she only has less than two weeks to get language in the budget authorizing $4.6 million for the positions.

While it seems like boasting about cutting processing time in half despite a surge in applications is an argument against new hires, Fried and division Director Stephen Hurm say the department can't keep that pace. Many of the current staff is working 60-hour weeks, and the office has been open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. seven days a week.

"We just can't sustain that long term. Somebody might look at that and say, 'Well, you don't need any more positions, you're doing just fine. You brought the numbers down.' But we can't sustain a MASH unit," said Hurm, who Fried appointed in February. "We need to have these additional positions so that we can ensure that this goes forward without taxing our folks with 15 to 20 hours a week in overtime."

Since Fried took office, the licensing division staff has worked about 2,300 hours of overtime at a cost of about $54,000. Staff makes an average of $27,842 annually.

Arming teachers brings contentious debate in Florida Senate

By BRENDAN FARRINGTON
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Democrats failed to strip language out of a Florida Senate school safety bill that would expand a law allowing some teachers to carry guns in school. They argued Wednesday that more guns in school could make them more dangerous.

Senators spent nearly two hours debating proposed amendments to a wide-ranging bill that would revise a law passed last year after 17 people were killed at a Parkland High School. The bill seeks to act on several recommendations of a commission formed to study the shootings at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School, the most contentious of which could allow more teachers to be armed.

A law enacted last year allows some classroom teachers to volunteer to carry weapons after they undergo training and psychological evaluations in districts that adopt the "guardian program." But those teachers also have to have a role outside the classroom, such as an athletic coach. The bill being considered would allow any teacher to participate, and that frightens Democrats.

Democratic Sen. Oscar Braynon said there were 34 confrontations between students and teachers last year in Miami-Dade County, where he lives.

"Do we think it benefits those confrontations if we insert a firearm?" Braynon asked. "That happened 34 times. How many school shootings have we had in the past 200 years? One."

Braynon suggested that if teachers shoot students and claim self-defense, they'd likely be acquitted by juries. It was a reference to Florida's "stand your ground" law that allows the use of deadly force if someone feels threatened.

Republican Sen. Manny Diaz, who is ushering the bill through the Senate, said districts don't have to arm teachers, but noted in some rural areas, the nearest law enforcement officer may be 20 minutes away if there is a school shooting. Other Republicans also argued that no teacher or district would be forced to arm teachers. So far, 25 of Florida's 67 school districts have approved participation in the guardian program.

Democrats said they support other aspects of the bill, which includes provisions requiring schools to report violent incidents, an increased focus on properly assessing and responding to potentially threatening behavior and requiring schools to promote suspicious activity reporting tools.

A similar bill is being considered by the House.

Girl dies, 7 hurt in crash on Florida's Alligator Alley

WESTON, Fla. (AP) — Authorities say a 9-year-old girl has died and seven other people suffered injuries in a three-vehicle crash along Alligator Alley in South Florida.

Broward Sheriff Fire Rescue Battalion Chief Michal Kane tells news outlets that one vehicle rolled over in the crash, which happened around 3 a.m. Wednesday.

The Florida Highway Patrol says the 9-year-old girl was ejected from a vehicle. Authorities say the girl and a 17-year-old who suffered a serious head injury were flown to hospitals, where the child died.

An 18-year-old man also suffered serious injuries and was among six people taken by ambulances to hospitals.

Amendment 4 advocate on Time's list of most influential

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A driving force behind Florida's ballot initiative to restore voting rights to Floridians with past felony convictions has been chosen as one of Time magazine's 100 most influential people in the world.

Desmond Meade will be on the magazine's list when it hits newsstands on Friday. In a statement, Meade called the recognition "an unexpected honor."

Nearly 65 percent of Florida voters last November approved Amendment 4. It applies to all felons except people convicted of murder or sex offenses.

House passes bill expanding law enforcement drone use

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Law enforcement agencies in Florida could use drones for more purposes under legislation passed unanimously by the state House.

Under the measure passed 114-0 on Wednesday, drones could be used to monitor crowds of 50 or more people and for traffic management. Drones could not be used to gather evidence for traffic citations.

Bill allowing medical personnel to carry guns clears House

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Legislation allowing medical personnel to carry guns when they are involved in tactical law enforcement duties was passed by the Florida House.

The vote Wednesday was 111-2 in favor of the bill, which specifies that medical personnel could only carry guns if they have a concealed weapons permit and are assigned to law enforcement units such as SWAT teams. They would have to undergo firearms training and training in the law enforcement agency's use-of-force policies.

The medical professional would have no duty to retreat and could use deadly force only for self-defense or the defense of others. The measure would apply to a paramedic, physician or osteopathic physician assigned to a tactical law enforcement unit.

Long-lost Kafka works could emerge after messy legal battle

By ARON HELLER
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — A long-hidden trove of unpublished works by Franz Kafka could soon be revealed following a decade-long battle over his literary estate that has drawn comparisons to some of his surreal tales.

A district court in Zurich upheld Israeli verdicts in the case last week, ruling that several safe deposit boxes in the Swiss city could be opened and their contents shipped to Israel's National Library.

At stake are untouched papers that could shed new light on one of literature's darkest figures, a German-speaking Bohemian Jew from Prague whose cultural legacy has been hotly contested between Israel and Germany.

Though the exact content of the vaults remains unknown, experts have speculated the cache could include endings to some of Kafka's major works, many of which were unfinished when they were published after his death.

Israel's Supreme Court has already stripped an Israeli family of its collection of Kafka's manuscripts, which were hidden in Israeli bank vaults and in a squalid, cat-filled Tel Aviv apartment. But the Swiss ruling would complete the acquisition of nearly all his known works, after years of lengthy legal battles over their rightful owners.

The saga could have been penned by Kafka himself, whose name has become known as an adjective to describe absurd situations involving inscrutable legal processes. Kafka was known for his tales of everyman protagonists crushed by mysterious authorities or twisted by unknown shames.

Kafka bequeathed his writings to Max Brod, his longtime friend, editor and publisher, shortly before his death from tuberculosis in 1924 at the age of 40. He instructed his protege to burn it all unread.

Brod ignored his wishes and published most of what was in his possession — including the novels "The Trial," "The Castle" and "Amerika." Those works made the previously little-known Kafka posthumously one of the most celebrated and influential writers of the 20th century.

But Brod, who smuggled some of the manuscripts to pre-state Israel when he fled the Nazis in 1938, didn't publish everything. Upon his death in 1968, Brod left his personal secretary, Esther Hoffe, in charge of his literary estate and instructed her to transfer the Kafka papers to an academic institution.

Instead, for the next four decades, Hoffe kept the papers stashed away and sold some of the items for hefty sums. In 1988, for instance, Hoffe auctioned off the original manuscript of "The Trial" at Sotheby's in London. It went for $1.8 million to the German Literature Archive in Marbach, north of Stuttgart.

When Hoffe died in 2008 at age 101, she left the collection to her two daughters, Eva Hoffe and Ruth Wiesler, both Holocaust survivors like herself. Both have since also passed away, leaving Wiesler's daughters to continue fighting for the remainder of the collection.

Indonesia's Joko Widodo set for 2nd term as president

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesian President Joko Widodo has won a second five-year term, preliminary election results showed Wednesday, in a victory for moderation over the nationalistic rhetoric of his rival, Prabowo Subianto.

Vote counts from five independent survey groups showed Widodo with a clear lead over Subianto, a general during the era of the Suharto military dictatorship who warned Indonesia would fall apart without his strongman leadership.

The so-called "quick counts" from reputable survey organizations that use a sample of polling stations have been reliable in past elections. With an average of 80% of sample polling stations counted, the five survey organizations showed Widodo winning 54-56% of the vote, a modest improvement on his 2014 showing.

Indonesia, the world's most populous Muslim-majority nation, is an outpost of democracy in a Southeast Asian neighborhood of authoritarian governments and is forecast to be among the world's biggest economies by 2030. A second term for Widodo, the first Indonesian president from outside the Jakarta elite, could further cement the country's two decades of democratization.

Addressing jubilant supporters a few hours after polls closed, Widodo said he was aware of his lead and called for the nation to reunite after the divisions of the campaign.

"From the indications of the exit poll and also the quick counts, we can see it all, but we must be patient to wait for the official counting from the Election Commission," he said.

Ex-Peru president kills himself as police try to arrest him

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Former Peruvian President Alan Garcia shot himself in the head and died Wednesday as officers waited to arrest him in a massive graft probe that has put the country's most prominent politicians behind bars and provoked a reckoning over corruption.

Authorities broke through a door at Garcia's mansion in a leafy, upscale neighborhood of the Peruvian capital after hearing gunfire. The 69-year-old former head of state was rushed to a hospital, where a team of doctors performed emergency surgery but could not save him.

"The president, upset over this situation, knowing his absolute innocence ... had this terrible accident," said his lawyer, Erasmo Reyna.

It was a shocking end for a man who twice ruled Peru — once in the 1980s and then again more than two decades later. In more recent years, he became ensnared in Latin America's biggest corruption scandal, a sweeping investigation of politicians' dealings with the Brazilian construction giant known as Odebrecht.

No country outside Brazil has gone as far in prosecuting politicians tied to Odebrecht, which admitted in a 2016 plea agreement that it paid nearly $800 million throughout Latin America in exchange for lucrative public-works contracts.

In Peru, politicians have described the accusations as a political witch hunt. Prosecutors and anti-corruption advocates insist the arrests show the South American nation is finally holding leaders accountable.

A new Swiss study has found that men with beards carry more germs than dogs. Sorry, hipsters.

Study author professor Andreas Gutzeit told the BBC that the researchers found a significantly higher count of germs and bacteria in men's beards than dogs' fur. Researchers from the Hirslanden Clinic in Switzerland took swabs from the facial fuzz of 18 men and the necks of 30 dogs, across a range of breeds, and compared the results between the two. Seven of the men tested positive for microbes that actually posed a threat to human health.

All of the men in this small study, who were aged from 18 to 76, had high counts of bacteria in their beards, while only 23 out of the 30 dogs carried high levels. In good news for pet lovers, the other dogs tested had only medium to low levels.

The takeaway, say the experts, is that men should shampoo their beards more regularly.

Ivanka Trump says she passed on World Bank job

ABIDJIAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — White House senior adviser Ivanka Trump says her father asked her if she was interested in taking the job of World Bank chief but she passed on it.

In an Associated Press interview, President Donald Trump's daughter said Wednesday she was happy with her current role in the administration. She spoke during a trip to Africa to promote a global women's initiative.

Ivanka Trump says her father raised the job with her as "a question" and she told him she was "happy with the work" she's doing.

Asked if her father had approached her about other top jobs, Ivanka Trump said she'd "keep that between" them. She says she doesn't see a run for office in her future.

North Korea test-fires new tactical guided weapon

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korea announced that it has test-fired a new type of tactical guided weapon.

The Korean Central News Agency says Chairman Kim Jong Un observed the firing of the weapon Wednesday by the Academy of Defense Science.

The agency reports that Kim said "the development of the weapon system serves as an event of very weighty significance in increasing the combat power of the People's Army."

The agency says Kim mounted an observation post to learn about the test-fire of the new-type tactical guided weapon and guide the test-fire.

The announcement came after reports of new activity at a North Korean missile research center and long-range rocket site where the North is believed to build long-range missiles targeting the U.S. mainland.

Testimony ends in murder trial over fire in secret tunnels

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — Jurors are set to hear closing arguments in the trial of a wealthy stock trader charged with murder in the death of a man who was helping him dig tunnels for an underground nuclear bunker.

Defense attorney Robert Bonsib said his client, 27-year-old Daniel Beckwitt, didn't testify before prosecutors and defense lawyers finished presenting evidence from witnesses on Wednesday. Attorneys are scheduled to give closing arguments on Tuesday.

Beckwitt is charged with second-degree murder and involuntary manslaughter in the September 2017 death of 21-year-old Askia Khafra.

Khafra died in a fire that broke out as the two were secretly digging the tunnels at Beckwitt's Bethesda home.

Guatemalan presidential candidate arrested on drug charges

Manhattan U.S. Attorney Geoffrey Berman says Mario Amilcar Estrada Orellana promised to let a drug cartel use Guatemalan ports and airports.

He says Estrada and a second defendant also conspired to try to arrange the assassinations of political rivals. Estrada was arrested Wednesday in Miami along with fellow defendant Juan Pablo Gonzalez Mayorga.

Both were charged with conspiring to import cocaine into the United States and a related weapons offense.

Man accused of throwing iguana in restaurant

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Police say an unruly customer at a restaurant in Ohio pulled an iguana from under his shirt, swung it around and threw it at the manager.

Painesville police were called to the Perkins restaurant around noon Tuesday.

Police say they apprehended the suspect a few blocks away in the city roughly 30 miles northeast of Cleveland. Authorities did not say what provoked the attack.

Police say the lizard, whom they named "Copper," was taken to the Lake County Humane Society to be checked by a veterinarian.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal grand jury meeting in North Carolina is weighing whether to recommend criminal charges in the tainted congressional race.

The grand jury is meeting Tuesday through Thursday in Raleigh to review election irregularities in the 9th Congressional District.

State elections board spokesman Pat Gannon said Wednesday that the agency turned over extensive documents subpoenaed last month. Documents also were turned over by former Republican candidate Mark Harris.

Harris had a narrow lead after November's election before details emerged that his political operative in rural Bladen County collected ballots from voters.

Leslie McCrae Dowless and four people Dowless allegedly hired to collect ballots were charged with state felonies, including possessing mail-in ballots. A state district attorney is investigating additional potential crimes in connection with activities leading up to the election.

Trial date set for woman charged with 1990 clown killing

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A trial date has been set in Florida for a woman accused of dressing up like a clown in 1990 and fatally shooting the wife of her future husband.

A Palm Beach County circuit judge on Wednesday set the first-degree murder trial of 55-year-old Sheila Keen-Warren to begin Jan. 31, 2020. Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty.

Keen-Warren was arrested in 2017 and extradited from Virginia, where she lived with husband Michael Warren.

Officials say Warren's then-wife, Marlene Warren, was shot in the face in May 1990 by a clown delivering carnations and balloons. Investigators say new DNA testing led to Keen-Warren's arrest.

Several witnesses told detectives Sheila Keen and Michael Warren were having an affair before the killing, which they both denied. They married in 2002.

Keen-Warren denies the killing.

Surveillance video of Robert Kraft's day spa visit will be made public

By SARAH BLASKEY
Miami Herald

MIAMI — Surveillance video of New England Patriots owner Robert Kraft allegedly paying for and receiving oral sex during a visit to a South Florida day spa in January will be released by the Palm Beach State Attorney's Office, according to an official notice to the court filed by the agency Wednesday morning.

"We believe these videos are public records," said Michael B. Edmondson, executive assistant to the state attorney. "We're going to comply with (Florida records law) unless and until we hear differently."

The office is currently processing public records requests and plans to release the videos because they are no longer exempt as part of an ongoing criminal investigation, Edmondson said. The South Florida Sun Sentinel reported redactions will include blurring nudity.

Kraft was charged with two misdemeanor counts of soliciting prostitution at the Orchids of Asia day spa in Jupiter in late January. He was busted as part of a sweeping investigation into a prostitution ring that spanned two Florida counties, and resulted in five spa closures and charges against more than two dozen men who allegedly had paid for sexual acts at the spas. Several managers and owners of the spas were arrested on charges of running a house of prostitution.

Although authorities initially indicated their investigation focused on possible human trafficking, prosecutors said late last week they had no evidence that trafficking had occurred.

Key evidence in the prosecution's case are videos from surveillance cameras placed inside the spas via a warrant obtained through a local judge.

In March, Kraft's attorneys filed a motion to block the release of the videos during the legal discovery process in the cases against the spa owner, claiming their release would be both an invasion of Kraft's privacy and could undermine his right to a fair trial.

In a court filing Wednesday, attorneys for Kraft called the state attorney's decision "an extraordinary and alarming development" and a "bad faith attempt to circumvent judicial review prior to a resolution of the pending motions for protective orders."

The Miami Herald along with other media organizations joined the lawsuit in an effort to push for the release of the videos.

"There are many questions about this case, including how and why police videotaped inside Orchids of Asia," said Miami Herald Managing Editor Rick Hirsch. "The Herald sought the release of the videos because we zealously fight for access to public records to fully understand the stories we tell. We have no desire to show video of Mr. Kraft or women who may have been exploited engaged in a sex act."

An Italian shipping company admitted in the U.S. to dumping oily waste and other pollutants at sea rather than paying to dispose of them properly, and will pay a $4 million fine.

U.S. authorities in New Jersey say d'Amico Shipping Italia S.p.A. pleaded guilty Wednesday in Newark to violating the Act to Prevent Pollution from Ships.

The charge involved the oil tanker Cielo di Milano that visited ports in New Jersey, Maryland and Florida multiple times in 2014 and 2015.

The Palermo-based company admitted that the ship's crew intentionally discharged bilge water and oily waste from the vessel's engine room into the sea, according to court documents.

It also admitted falsifying and destroying records, and lying to the Coast Guard during inspections.

According to statements made in court, and in court documents, the company admitted the ship's crew intentionally bypassed required pollution prevention equipment by discharging bilge water and oily waste from the vessel's engine room through its sewage system into the sea.

Some of the discharges were made within the 200-mile territorial limits of the U.S.

One chief engineer falsified the ship's Oil Record Book to state that bilge water had been processed through the vessel's pollution control equipment when, in fact it had not. And the crew routinely hid equipment used to conduct the discharges when the vessel entered port.

The company also admitted that crew members made false statements to the Coast Guard during its inspection of the Cielo di Milano in January 2015; and destroyed a record book after the Coast Guard had boarded the vessel, according to court documents.

Actress Georgia Engel dies at 70

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Georgia Engel, who played the charmingly innocent, small-voiced Georgette on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and amassed a string of other TV and stage credits, has died. She was 70.

Engel died Friday in Princeton, New Jersey, said her friend and executor, John Quilty. The cause of death was unknown because she was a Christian Scientist and didn't see doctors, Quilty said Monday.

Engel was best known for her role as Georgette on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," the character who was improbably destined to marry pompous anchorman Ted Baxter, played by Ted Knight.

Engel also had recurring roles on "Everybody Loves Raymond" and "Hot in Cleveland." She was a five-time Emmy nominee, receiving two nods for the late Moore's show and three for "Everybody Loves Raymond."

Georgia Bright Engel was born in July 1948 in Washington, D.C., to parents Benjamin, a Coast Guard officer, and Ruth Engel. She studied theater at the University of Hawaii.

Her prolific career included guest appearances on a variety of series, including "The Love Boat," "Fantasy Island," '"Coach" and "Two and a Half Men." Her "Hot in Cleveland" role reunited her with Betty White, her co-star in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" (1972-77) and "The Betty White Show" (1977-78).

Georgia Engel, who was part of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," died Friday, in Princeton, N.J., at age 70.

Engel appeared on Broadway in plays and musicals including "Hello, Dolly!", "The Boys from Syracuse" and, most recently, "The Drowsy Chaperone" in 2006-07. She starred in an off-Broadway production of "Uncle Vanya" in 2012.

Health care companies lead US stocks lower

By ALEX VEIGA
AP Business Writer

Stocks finished a wobbly day of trading on Wall Street Wednesday with modest losses that erased most of the market's slight gains from a day earlier.

A sharp sell-off in health care companies far outweighed gains in technology and other sectors. Smaller company stocks fell more than the rest of the market.

Insurers drove the health care sector slide for the second straight day. Investors fear the potential impact on profits from health reform ideas being discussed in Washington and on the presidential campaign trail.

Qualcomm led the gainers in the technology sector. Intel climbed after pulling out of the smartphone modem market. And T-Mobile and Sprint slumped on reports the Justice Department is questioning their proposed merger.

PepsiCo and Morgan Stanley rose after delivering better than expected quarterly results Wednesday. IBM and Netflix fell a day after reporting their earnings.

Investors are poring over company earning reports this week, focusing on companies' profit and revenue outlooks for the rest of this year. Analysts expect the first quarter results for S&P 500 companies overall to be the weakest in nearly three years.

"The market is in wait and see mode," said Jamie Lavin, global investment specialist at J.P. Morgan Private Bank. "We're only 10% through earnings season, but so far, so good."

The S&P 500 fell 6.61 points, or 0.2%, to 2,900.45. The Dow Jones Industrial Average dropped 3.12 points, or less than 0.1%, to 26,449.54.

The Nasdaq composite slid 4.15 points, or 0.1%, to 7,996.08. The Russell 2000 index of small-cap stocks gave up 15.19 points, or 1%, to 1,567.60.

Bond prices held steady. The yield on the 10 year Treasury note remained at 2.59%.

The market has rebounded strongly from a steep sell-off late last year. The Federal Reserve helped spur the market's rebound early this year when it said that it may not raise interest rates at all in 2019. The benchmark S&P 500 remains within 1.5% of its most recent all-time high on September 20.

STOCKS LISTING CHANGE - REQUESTS WELCOME!
Mutual funds listings will run on Saturdays.

The Sun Newspaper is tweaking the way stocks are listed in the daily paper. We will continue to run a wide range of stocks, but we're trying to eliminate stocks our readers don't want. Anaphylaxis happens within a few minutes of exposure

Dr. Roach

DEAR DR. ROACH: I heard recently someone say that they had an anaphylactic reaction to a vaccine many hours after administration, say, 14 hours later. Can anaphylaxis actually happen that long after exposure to an allergen? This is a general question, not vaccine-specific. I've always been under the impression a reaction like this happens much more quickly. — A.F.

ANSWER: Anaphylaxis is a life-threatening allergic reaction. Less than 2 percent of people will experience anaphylaxis in their lifetime. It can happen because of medications, such as allergy immunotherapy, and less frequently because of other medications, especially those that are injected, including vaccines. It also can happen due to foods, including legumes (peanuts) and tree nuts.

Anaphylaxis usually comes on within a few minutes, rarely up to an hour after exposure. It is treated with epinephrine to counteract the circulatory system collapse that is part of the reaction.

Approximately 20 percent of people with anaphylaxis will have a second set of symptoms after the initial symptoms are successfully treated. These can be prevented, to some extent, with use of steroids, which is why anyone with anaphylaxis needs immediate evaluation, even if they successfully treated themselves with an injection of epinephrine. The second set of symptoms comes most frequently within three hours, but cases up to 10 hours later have been described.

In the case you are describing, it is possible the initial symptoms were treated and the person noticed a second set, although 14 hours is longer than I have seen reported.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I had half my thyroid removed many years ago and have been taking 37.5 mcg of Synthroid since. My latest TSH test is 1.28. While that's within the normal range, I wonder if it's too low for me, as I have little energy, even for an 88-year old. But higher doses kick in my essential tremor. — H.A.

ANSWER: Experienced clinicians know that sometimes doses of thyroid replacement hormone need to be individualized to symptoms, and that for some people, their result may not be optimal even it is within the normal range. On the other hand, too much thyroid hormone is bad for the bones; in your case, bad for your tremor; and perhaps most worrisome, bad for your heart. Too high a thyroid replacement dose and you risk developing atrial fibrillation.

Thyroid testing has many moving parts. T4, also called thyroxine, is converted to T3, triiodothyronine, which is the active thyroid hormone. FTI, the free thyroxine index, adjusts the level of thyroid hormone for the proteins that bind thyroid hormone). The higher the T3, T4 and FTI, the more thyroid hormone you have.

TSH does not measure thyroid hormone. The thyroid stimulating hormone is made by the pituitary gland, and in almost all cases, the higher the TSH, the lower the thyroid hormone level, since the pituitary makes more TSH if the body senses the thyroid hormone level is too low.

The rare exception is the brain making too much TSH, which is usually due to a tumor.

In the lab in my hospital, a normal TSH level is between 0.5 and 4. This would mean that you don't have a lot of room to increase your thyroid dose without having a frankly too-high level, with its risks.

Finally, a small minority of people have difficulty converting T4 to the active T3.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have demanding jobs neither of us is crazy about. I sell insurance; she manages a hairdressing salon for a large company. At day's end I keep the events of the day — good or bad — to myself. I have heard the saying "Don't bring your family problems to work, and don't bring your work problems home," so I don't carry any "baggage" home with me.

How do I get my wife to leave her work problems at work? It's the last thing I want to hear about. If I offer an opinion or respond to her, I get criticized and accused of not appreciating how hard she works. She has actually said, "No one else in this world works as hard as I do!" — Baggage-Free

DEAR BAGGAGE-FREE: If your wife can't discuss her frustrations with you, who else can she safely confide in? A word to the wise: Women often just need someone to LISTEN.

Because this is getting to you to the point that you would write to me about it, rather than offer suggestions or opinions, it's time you tell her exactly what you have conveyed to me.

DEAR ABBY: This is my suggestion for "Unfulfilled Grandma in Minnesota" (Jan. 15), the senior citizen looking to help children. Schools need help!

Our youngest daughter sent me a text. She indicated my grandson's kindergarten teacher was asking for help in the computer lab. Being a retired geek, I showed up the following Thursday, working for just an hour. After three weeks the teacher asked me if I would be willing to help her in the classroom for four hours every Thursday. I agreed.

After three months, I told my wife it was the best four hours of my week. Without blinking an eye, she smiled and said, "You know, it's the best four hours of MY week, too!" Wait? WHAT? — Fulfilled Grandpa Out West

DEAR GRANDPA: Thank you all for these important acts of service, and for sharing the information with me and my readers.

Spring up and volunteer

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers:
Warm springtime weather can put us in the mood to give back. How about VOLUNTEERING with your kids or grandkids? Teaching children about volunteering can benefit them in so many ways:

* Kids learn it feels good to share and give back; they are less likely to put value on material things.

* Time away from the TV, cellphone and computer is always good.

* Kids can develop a heightened sense of self-worth by volunteering, and these "feel-good" feelings are healthy and can lower stress.

What are good volunteer activities? Visiting kids in a hospital with toys and homemade cards; reaching out to kids whose parents are deployed or away from home; putting together care packages for kids and moms at shelters; and there are tons of opportunities at animal shelters. — Heloise

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The epiphany will not be a thunderbolt. It won't come with the opening of clouds and a booming voice from heaven. Rather, it will unfold in stages and a series of ideas, each building on the last.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Motivation is an unreliable fuel source, so don't count on it today. Get started and a half-hour later, motivation may kick in, though it probably won't stay. You don't need it. You can work without it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Prevention isn't glamorous or dramatic. It's the opposite of a story, since you don't really ever know the extent of what you're preventing. Still, you sense it's the better option, and it is.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). It may not be as clear to you as it really should be, but you need a break. You're like that frog in the pot of water being incrementally raised one degree at a time, so you hardly notice when the cooking starts. Get free.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). What if you forgive someone and the person does the exact same thing again? Maybe what's needed is something other than forgiveness. Maybe what's needed is to learn a person's nature and design your part of the relationship accordingly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Like spotty cellphone service, you'll get moments of clarity and plenty of blanks to fill in, which you're perfectly capable of. Look at this like a puzzle or a game and you'll have some fun with it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You'll do what you can. It's good enough. It's more than good enough — it's the reality. So you may as well accept yourself and feel positively about your contribution. With that mindset, growth will definitely come naturally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). To better understand what's going on, you'll slip into a state that's neither logical nor illogical, both of the body and beyond it. You'll do what the spiritual guru calls "entura," meaning "entering the aura."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). It won't be enough to face, or even to embrace, your fear. Snuggle it instead. Get very vulnerable. Curl up. Let it envelop you, and do the same back. You are, after all, in this together.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Stay connected to the group even though the project seems to be taking forever. It won't take forever. In a finite amount of time, you will reach the end and reap well-deserved benefits. Keep chipping away at it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You can learn something from almost anyone today. You'll use some people as role models and others as reverse role models, as their lives play out like cautionary tales.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Just as a change in music can switch a movie scene from funny to scary, or create a mood that's epic, folksy or any number of tones, music can also do this in your life. Today it will lighten, lift and inspire you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 18). This year's sense of forward motion is unparalleled — it's like a theme park ride. You're always on trend or leading the trend. An upgrade to your domestic life leads to more improvements. New relationships have a positive influence on your work and will set you on an adventure in August. Leo and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 3, 30, 22 and 19.

The bidding:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST

Opening lead: Jack of ♣ West had no reason to find a diamond lead and his choice of a club cannot be faulted. Had East made a lightweight two diamond overcall, North-South would likely have ended up in four spades instead of three no trump. Four spades can be made several different ways.

The opening club lead went to the king and ace, and East shifted to the king of diamonds. Declarer ducked this and East reverted to clubs. South won with his queen, crossed to dummy with the king of spades, and led a spade to his jack. West won and cashed three club tricks for down two. Was this bad luck or could South have done better?

South should have ducked the second club at trick three. Should the defense continue with a third club, South will win and run the jack of spades into the safe East hand. As the cards lie, this would discover the anti-percentage way to avoid a spade loser altogether. Should the defense go back to diamonds at trick three instead, South can win the second diamond and safely take the spade finesse into West, who can't hurt him when he wins with the queen.

That's nine tricks or more either way and a reason for declarer to feel proud of his technique.

Bells ring in tribute to Notre Dame

Firefighters keep weakened landmark under surveillance

By SYLVIE CORBET and NICOLAS VAUX-MONTAGNY
Associated Press

PARIS — Bells of cathedrals across France rang in a moving tribute Wednesday to Notre Dame as firefighters and experts continued to keep the beloved but weakened landmark under close surveillance.

From Sacre Coeur in Paris to the cities of Strasbourg in the east and Rouen in the west, the architectural treasures of France solemnly marked the inferno, two days after it ravaged the gothic cathedral, widely regarded as the soul of France.

"I just arrived for the first ring of the bells and immediately there was an emotion. Incredible, indescribable, I just can't explain it," said Nadia Pascassio-Comte, in Strasbourg. "It was beautiful and sad at the same time. I had tears in my eyes at one point, and I think that this solidarity is magical, it really unites a lot of people."

At Saint Sulpice church, the second-largest house of worship in Paris, French first lady Brigitte Macron attended a special service for the annual blessing of the oils during Holy Week, ahead of Easter Sunday.

Meanwhile, restoration specialists questioned President Emmanuel Macron's ambitious five-year reconstruction timeline for Notre Dame, with some suggesting it could take more than three times that amount of time.

Prominent French conservation architect Pierluigi Pericolo told Inrocks magazine the restoration work could take "no less than 15 years. ... It's a colossal task."

Pericolo, who worked on the restoration of the 19th-century St.-Donatien Basilica, which was badly damaged in a 2015 blaze in the French city of Nantes, said it could take two to five years just to check the stability of Notre Dame, which dominates the Paris skyline.

"It's a fundamental step, and very complex, because it's difficult to send workers into a monument whose vaulted ceilings are swollen with water," Pericolo told France-Info. "The end of the fire doesn't mean the edifice is totally saved. The stone can deteriorate when it is exposed to high temperatures and change its mineral composition and fracture inside."

Macron received some support for his lofty five-year restoration goal from his presidential cultural heritage envoy, Stephane Bern, who said it was realistic to reopen Notre Dame to the public in time for the Olympic Games in Paris in 2024. However, he did not indicate whether the reconstruction work would be completed by then.

According to a French government official, the building would have burned to the ground in a "chain-reaction collapse" had firefighters not moved as rapidly as they did to battle the blaze racing through the building.

The firefighters acted aggressively to protect wooden supports in the twin medieval bell towers from the flames, averting a bigger catastrophe, said José Vaz de Matos, a fire expert with France's Culture Ministry.

"If the fire reached this wooden structure, the bell tower would have been lost," de Matos said.

Monday's fire destroyed most of the lead roof of the 850-year-old architectural treasure and caused its spire to collapse.

An initial fire alert was sounded at 6:20 p.m., as a Mass was underway in the cathedral, but no fire was found. A second alarm went off at 6:43 p.m., and the blaze was discovered on the roof. No one was killed in the fire, after firefighters and church officials speedily evacuated those inside.

US astronaut to spend 11 months in space, set female record

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A NASA astronaut will spend nearly a year at the International Space Station, setting a record for women.

Station astronaut Christina Koch will remain on board for about 11 months, until February — approaching but not quite breaking Scott Kelly's 340-day U.S. record.

"One month down. Ten to go," she tweeted Wednesday. She said it feels awesome having so much extra time in space and "a true honor and a dream come true."

Koch knew before launching last month that her flight might stretch into 2020 and sought advice from Kelly as well as retired astronaut Peggy Whitson, the current record-holder for female space fliers.

AP PHOTO

Koch will break Whitson's 288-day record for the longest single spaceflight by a woman at the end of December.

"I hope that me being up here and giving my best every day is a way for me to say thank you to people like her," Koch said in a NASA interview broadcast Wednesday.

An electrical engineer who's worked in Antarctica, Koch will undergo medical tests during her stay. More subjects and more diversity are needed, she noted, to better understand the effects of long-term spaceflight as NASA aims to return astronauts to the moon within five years.

Koch was supposed to become part of the first all-female spacewalking team, but instead ventured out a few weeks ago with a male crewmate. Only one usable medium spacesuit was available, and the two women on board both needed mediums.

Another NASA astronaut also will have an extended stay. Dr. Andrew Morgan will launch to the space station this summer for a nine-month mission — also considerably longer than the usual six months. The physician and Army officer will lift off from Kazakhstan with an Italian and a Russian on July 20, the 50th anniversary of the first manned moon landing.

Both Koch and Morgan are part of NASA's Astronaut Class of 2013, the first to have a 50-50 split between women and men.

Russia still holds the world's space endurance record. A Russian cosmonaut-physician spent nearly 15 months on a single mission aboard the former Mir space station in the mid-1990s.

Kelly returned to Earth in 2016 and Whitson in 2017. Both are now retired from NASA.

REPORT

The news conference, which was first announced by Trump during a radio interview, provoked immediate criticism from congressional Democrats, including House Judiciary Committee Chairman Jerrold Nadler of New York.

Nadler tweeted Congress won't receive the report until 11 a.m. or noon, a move he called "wrong." House Intelligence Committee Chairman Adam Schiff, D-Calif., said in a tweet that Barr will "spin a report no one has read" and encouraged people to "wait to read Mueller's words for yourself."

Barr formulated the roll-out for the report and briefed the White House on his plans, according to a White House official who was not authorized to discuss the matter publicly.

Trump spokesman Hogan Gidley declined to comment on an ABC News report that the White House had been briefed on the contents of Mueller's report beyond what was relayed by Barr in a public letter last month.

The Justice Department also plans to provide a "limited number" of members of Congress and their staff access to a copy of the Mueller report with fewer redactions than the public version, according to a court filing Wednesday.

The nearly 400-page report is expected to reveal what Mueller uncovered about ties between the Trump campaign and Russia that fell short of criminal conduct. It will also lay out the special counsel's conclusions about formative episodes in Trump's presidency, including his firing of FBI Director James Comey and his efforts to undermine the Russia investigation publicly and privately.

The report is not expected to place the president in legal jeopardy, as Barr made his own decision that Trump shouldn't be prosecuted for obstruction. But it is likely to contain unflattering details about the president's efforts to control the Russia investigation that will cloud his ability to credibly claim total exoneration. And it may paint the Trump campaign as eager to exploit Russian aid and emails stolen from Democrats and Hillary Clinton's campaign even if no Americans crossed the line into criminal activity.

The report's release will be a test of Barr's credibility as the public and Congress judge whether he is using his post to protect Trump, who said Wednesday he may take questions about the report after its release.

Barr to hold morning news conference

WASHINGTON (TNS) — Attorney General William Barr plans to hold a news conference at 9:30 a.m. Eastern time Thursday as the Justice Department prepares to release a redacted version of the report on the Russia investigation by special counsel Robert S. Mueller III, according to a spokeswoman.

Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein, who appointed Mueller and supervised his work, is also scheduled to participate.

It was not immediately clear exactly when on Thursday the report will be released. The report has gone through a redaction process to remove sensitive information, such as grand jury evidence and classified intelligence, since it was filed on March 22.

Mueller's report is nearly 400 pages long, Justice Department officials have said. It is the product of an investigation that began in mid-2016, when Moscow was in the midst of a covert operation to try to sway the U.S. presidential election by hacking emails and spreading disinformation on social media.

When President Donald Trump fired James B. Comey as FBI director in May 2017, Rosenstein chose Mueller as special counsel to lead the probe. The investigation also expanded to examine whether Trump had obstructed justice.

Barr released a four-page letter on March 24 summarizing what he called the "principal conclusions" from Mueller's work. He said the investigation did not establish a criminal conspiracy between Trump's campaign and the Russian government.

Barr also wrote that Mueller did not reach a conclusion on whether Trump obstructed justice. Barr and Rosenstein decided that in their view, the evidence did not show Trump committed a crime.

House Democrats have pledged to fight for the full, uncensored version of Mueller's report. They've approved a subpoena that could be sent to the Justice Department, a step that would likely spark a lengthy court fight.

Winning lottery ticket almost blew away in wind

RALEIGH, N.C. (TNS)— A North Carolina man is "counting his blessings" after beating the almost 1-in-a-million odds to win a lottery prize, according to the NC Education Lottery.

And it all happened after he came uncomfortably close to losing his lucky ticket, the lottery said on Twitter.

"Whenever I get my tickets, I put them in my car door," said John Hepburn of Fayetteville, per the lottery's Twitter post.

Then last week, "a few of my tickets blew out of the car," he said, according to the lottery's news release.

"So I figured I should probably check the other ones and see if I won anything," Hepburn continued.

Hepburn, a retired Goodyear Tire plant manager, checked a ticket for Friday's drawing and discovered he won a $489,211 prize from the Cash 5 game, according to the lottery.

Hepburn gets more than $346,000 after tax withholdings, the release said. He will put the prize money toward his grandchildren and mortgage payments, according to the lottery.

Few answers forthcoming after shocking loss

By DIANA NEARHOS
Tampa Bay Times

TAMPA — Braydon Coburn sat half undressed, staring straight ahead, at nothing.

While the dressing room emptied out, the Lightning ready to flee Columbus, Coburn didn't seem in much of a hurry.

He sat shirtless, still in pants and skates, with a dead stare. Finally, he seemed to emerge from his thoughts, pack up his gear and walk toward the shower.

Coburn didn't share his thoughts, his internal focus was so strong he might not even have heard the request as he walked by.

But the anguish was clear. And shared among his teammates.

"I guess it just wasn't our time," Nikita Kucherov said.

There were a lot of words said and yet none of them seemed to explain anything, even to the people saying them. Teamp captain Steven Stamkos suggested if they knew the answer to what had gone wrong, they would have fixed it.

Throughout the six-day series, Tampa Bay coach Jon Cooper repeated that the Lightning hadn't faced adversity all year and was thrown off its game when suddenly faced with it for the first time in the playoffs.

Ryan McDonagh wasn't quite as ready to buy into that, though. He pointed to the amount of playoff experience on the team (1,301 games collectively, compared to Columbus' 439).

This team, and this core group of players, has seen playoff adversity in previous years if not this year. Last year, the Lightning lost Game 1 to Boston then won four straight to win in the second round. Then Tampa Bay came back from a 2-0 series deficit to lead before coughing up two more losses to Washington.

It might have been a different version of the Lightning, but the personnel was largely the same. The players learned that lesson. They shouldn't have needed adversity this regular season to learn how to handle it. The core group that played on the 2014 team also knew the sting of being swept in the first round by Montreal.

Ryan Callahan said before Game 3 that the Lightning could call upon its previous experience.

So, it wasn't lack of adversity. Cooper also suggested Tampa Bay was a victim of its own success.

"It's a blessing and a curse because you don't play any meaningful hockey for a long time," he said.

No Presidents' Trophy team had ever been swept in the first round, and only four lost in the first round.

The Lightning scored 319 goals in the regular season. Three players had 40 apiece. That talent doesn't disappear because the playoffs started.

And yet, the goals disappeared until Game 4, by which point Columbus was too hot to slow down.

Maybe it was a mental issue. Maybe that's why shots sailed wide of open nets, like Stamkos' typically reliable power play one-timer.

Or why players put themselves in bad positions. Dan Girardi screened Andrei Vasilevskiy on the first goal of Game 3 and then Coburn ran into the goalie on the second.

Columbus deserves credit for a good game plan. John Tortorella had no answer for the Lightning in the regular season, but put everything together in the playoffs.

ENGLEWOOD — Ella Kraszewski tossed her second consecutive shutout and Lemon Bay defeated Port Charlotte, 7-0, in a non-district softball game Wednesday night.

One night after no-hitting DeSoto County, the freshman hurler gave up a single in the first inning to Sarah Tirb, then set down the next 16 Pirate batters in order before Breanna Beck singled with two outs in the sixth. Port Charlotte ultimately finished with four hits.

Bailey Grossenbacher got the Manta Rays started in the bottom of the first by drawing a walk off of Pirates starter Alexis Queior. Grossenbacher stole second, went to third on a ground out, and scored on a single by Leanna Kelly, the first of Kelly's three hits on the evening.

Three Port Charlotte errors led to three more Lemon Bay runs in the second inning. The key hits were a single by Grossenbacher that got

NEW YORK — The NFL's 100th season will begin with its most classic rivalry and feature the Super Bowl champion Patriots hosting Pittsburgh in the first Sunday night game.

As previously announced, NFL 100 will kick off with Green Bay at Chicago for the 199th meeting of a series that began in 1921.

That Sept. 5 game in the Thursday night slot usually reserved for hosting by the NFL champ forced New England to open three nights later.

The Patriots have a home schedule loaded with top attractions, including Kansas City on Dec. 8 in an AFC title game rematch, and Dallas on Nov. 24.

Monday night's doubleheader on ESPN will feature Houston at New Orleans and Denver at Oakland.

Week 2 includes an intriguing Monday night matchup of Cleveland at the New York Jets. The very first Monday nighter was a Browns win over Joe Namath and the defending champion Jets in 1970. This one will feature the return to the Meadowlands for now-Browns receiver Odell Beckham Jr., and two young, potential star quarterbacks in Cleveland's Baker Mayfield and New York's Sam Darnold.

National broadcasts rarely have included the downtrodden Browns, but they're a popular choice this year: Cleveland will have four prime-time games, also facing the Rams, San Francisco and archrival Pittsburgh.

Every team will have at least one national TV appearance. New England, Pittsburgh, Kansas City, Green Bay, Seattle and the Rams get the maximum prime-time games, five.

The traditional Thanksgiving Day games will have Detroit at home to Chicago, then Buffalo at Dallas. The night game to close the holiday schedule will be New Orleans at Atlanta in another long-time rivalry.

The NFC champion Los Angeles Rams will host Cincinnati in London for one of five international games on the 2019 schedule. The Rams and Bengals will face off at Wembley Stadium on Oct. 27.

Earlier in October, the league will play two games at Tottenham Hotspur's new stadium in London.

The Raiders will host the Bears on Oct. 6, and the Buccaneers will be the home team against the Panthers on Oct. 13.

Wembley will be the site of the fourth London match, with Houston facing host Jacksonville on Nov. 3.

The league returns to Mexico, after last season's Chiefs-Rams game was moved to Los Angeles because of poor field conditions at Azteca Stadium. On Monday night Nov. 18, the Chiefs will play LA's other team, the Chargers.

Miami QB competition rolls on

Martell, Perry, Williams will fight through summer for job

By Christy Cabrera Chirinos
Sun Sentinel

CORAL GABLES — Considering the Hurricanes' young trio of quarterbacks is adapting to a new coach and learning a new system, it was no surprise Tuesday that offensive coordinator Dan Enos said neither N'Kosi Perry, Tate Martell or Jarren Williams had done enough this spring to earn the starting job, even with Miami set to wrap up drills with an Orlando scrimmage on Saturday.

But at least now it's official and the three quarterbacks — along with the fans — know there is still a good amount of work to be done this summer before the Hurricanes reconvene in late July and truly begin the work of preparing for their Aug. 24 opener against rival Florida.

"These three guys continue to improve. … All of them have good days, then one will be ahead and another one bumps ahead. It's too close to tell right now. But I will say this: They're all getting better. It's been really encouraging to watch their pocket demeanor, their fundamentals, their eyes, their feet, coming off their reads," Enos said. "Jarren, for example, Saturday did something in the scrimmage that's a very small thing, but it's something I've showed those guys on tape for about a week and a half and it translated. He did it. You know what I mean? I was like, 'Oh my goodness gracious.' They all had moments like that, which are good things."

So what are the things Enos would like to see his quarterbacks continue to work on in the coming weeks? He noted it's about more than simply footwork or mechanics.

But after Perry, Martell and Williams all had varying levels of success in last week's open scrimmage, Enos wants to

The Amazing Sex Secret of 78 Year-Old 'Italian Stallion'

"My husband shocked me with more sexual passion than he's had in years. He took me in the bedroom like we were newlyweds and gave me a night I'll never forget"

The Inside Story on Great Sex!

This week I got a letter from a reader about a "little secret" that has made her sex life with her husband absolutely explosive! (Those Texas women are spicy!)

Tina writes:

Dear Karen,

For years my husband and I had a great love life. He was sexy, passionate and so confident. But when he reached his 50s, he started to struggle with getting and keeping an erection. The few times we did have sex, his erection was definitely softer, leaving us both unsatisfied. He tried every product out there; prescriptions, creams, testosterone, male enhancement pills… but nothing worked. I know this is terrible, but I found myself thinking "My strong, passionate husband has become a sexual weakling." I had no idea it would all turn around in just 3 weeks!

Last month, he came home from a business trip in Europe and shocked me with more sexual energy and passion than he's had in years. Hard as a rock, he tossed me around the bedroom like we were newlyweds' and gave me a night I'll never forget! It was incredible and so exciting!

He flat wore me out that night and it's been like that ever since. His erections are so hard and powerful, they trigger the most intense, toe-curling 'moments' I've ever had! So here we are, enjoying the best sex of our lives… in our late-50's!

When I asked my husband what caused such a dramatic change, he said on his trip he stayed in a hotel room next to an Italian nutritionist and his wife. Through the walls, he heard them passionately making love every single night, and sometimes again in the morning. One afternoon, he saw the husband leave their room and he couldn't believe it. The man looked much too old to be having so much sex.

My husband couldn't help himself, so he asked the man his secret. The nutritionist smiled, introduced himself as Vito, and told my husband he was 78 years old, his wife 65, and that after 32 years of marriage, their sex life was as good as ever. Then he took a small pack of tablets from his satchel, gave it to my husband, and said "These come from a small town in northern Europe and are made from naturally pure plant extracts, packed with densely rich sexual nutrients. They will give you back the sex-drive you had when you were young, and make you harder than you can imagine." Then he laughed and said, "You'll become an Italian Stallion like me!"

Italian Stallion is right! These past several weeks have been a dream. My husband's desire for me is through the roof. He takes me whenever he wants, and he even wakes up most days with a 'morning salute' like he did years ago. I love it! He's a sexual powerhouse, beaming with confidence, and our marriage is stronger than ever.

Karen, here's why I'm writing you. The pack of tablets is about to run out and we desperately want more. I've looked everywhere but can't find them. Do you know anything about these tablets from Europe and how to get some here in the States?

Sincerely,
Tina C.,
Fort Worth, TX

Tina, you and the rest of my readers are in luck because I do know about these secret European sex tablets. Ever wonder why older men from Italy, Greece, Spain, and all over Europe have the lowest use of ED drugs, but are famous for staying energized, passionate and sexually active well into their golden years? Well, for decades, these men have relied on a unique blossom extract called Provarin to enhance their sexual performance and satisfaction.

Milled on the fertile plains of northern Europe, the key ingredients come naturally from pure extracts found along the Baltic Sea. Finely ground and pressed into tablets, Provarin has a legendary reputation throughout the European sexual underground for naturally fueling extremely hard erections, and a powerful climax. As Giovanni from Amsterdam put it, "It's like sexual rocket fuel, especially for us older guys!"

The best part from a woman's perspective, as you well know, is that the extreme hardness and ongoing power is enough to send us over the blissful edge! I found out about Provarin a few years ago when I was dating a cowboy from Wyoming. He took Provarin every morning and believe me, that good ol' boy sure rocked my nights!

All-natural and safe to take, Provarin is still a well-kept secret for those in the know and they like to keep it that way. It's an old-school, family business and product is still harvested by hand twice a year. They don't have a website and don't do any advertising. They don't need to. Long-time customers and word of mouth ensures their limited stock is sold out every year.

They do have a distributer here in the U.S. When I reached out to them for this article, a spokesman said they were proud to produce the highest quality product for men and couples. He went on to say that if any of my readers call to place an order today and mention this article, they'll get a one-time 50% discount!

Wow, so there you go, Tina - and the rest of you readers! Just give them a call today and mention this article. The number is 1-800-598-0679.

Aren't you glad you asked?

■ MLB: Rays 8, Orioles 1

Lowe, Choi, Diaz lead power fest

By DICK SCANLON
Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — Orioles right-hander David Hess took the slow walk off the Tropicana Field mound as Daniel Powter's "Bad Day" echoed throughout the stadium. Hess' outing Wednesday night against the Tampa Bay Rays matched up far closer to the song's title than its status as a one-hit wonder.

The Rays pounded Hess in their 8-1 victory, striking for six runs in his two-plus innings. Hess faced 13 batters, with 11 putting the ball in play at more than 97 mph, nine smashing 100-mph drives, eight recording hits and none striking out. In all, Hess allowed an average exit velocity of 102.3 mph, the highest of any starting pitcher in the majors this season, per Statcast data.

Three of those hits went over the fence. Brandon Lowe provided Tampa Bay an early lead with a three-run homer in the first inning, and Ji-Man Choi and Yandy Diaz ended Hess' outing with consecutive home runs to begin the third.

The Rays (14-4) were unrelenting in dealing their damage. Reigning American League Player of the Week Austin Meadows began the bottom of the first with a 115.4-mph single.

Choi followed Tommy Pham's 102.3-mph flyout with a 97.1-mph single before Diaz lined out at 105.6 mph. Lowe then redirected a Hess changeup, sending it over the right-field fence with an exit velocity of 108.9 mph.

Tampa Bay added another run in the second inning when Kevin Kiermaier's 105.5-mph double preceded Mike Zunino's 98.5 mph RBI single. Willy Adames then doubled at 101.2 mph, which Meadows exceeded with a 104.2-mph liner into a shifted Baltimore infield; shortstop Richie Martin snared it and threw to third for a double play as Zunino jogged toward home. The inning ended on Pham's 86.1 mph flyout, the softest contact Hess allowed.

Between Choi and Diaz's homer, there were some fireworks between the Orioles dugout and home-plate umpire C.B. Bucknor.

During Diaz's at-bat after Choi's solo shot, Bucknor turned toward the third base visitors' dugout and issued an ejection, though it prompted confusion from the Orioles. Field coordinator Tim Cossins, who handled managerial duties after Hyde was ejected Monday against the Boston Red Sox, was ejected for seemingly arguing about Bucknor's strike zone, one that led to three looking Orioles strikeouts in the top of the inning.

But Hyde was standing in front of Cossins in the dugout and seemed to believe Bucknor instead ejected him, though he had no idea why.

TV cameras caught Cossins in the dugout repeatedly saying, "I said it," toward Bucknor, trying to clarify the confusion. Four pitches later, Diaz homered.

The Rays' opener strategy proved effective Wednesday, with Ryne Stanek striking out three around a Dwight Smith Jr. double and Yonny Chirinos cruising through five one-hit innings as the Orioles went six innings without a run.

Venice boys, Fort Myers girls take districts

By CHUCK BALLARO
Sun Corespondent

PUNTA GORDA — The Venice High School boys tennis team got the most of their abilities during the finals of the District 3A-11 tennis tournament Wednesday at Charlotte High School, taking four of five singles finals and both in doubles to win the team championship

But while the Venice girls were also able to sweep doubles, it lost four of five finals in singles, which allowed Fort Myers to sneak past them and win district by a single point for the second straight year.

The two teams plays each other in all 14 finals, with Venice winning nine of them.

"I'm pleased. We knew for the girls we had to win two of the singles matches and only won one. That was a bummer," said Venice coach Wayne Robertson. "But I loved that we swept the doubles. That showed me that the team cares and play hard to the last point."

Benjamin Zipay, Venice's No. 1 singles and doubles player, will go to states in both after beating Tyler Carlin of Fort Myers 6-4, 6-1 in the finals and teaming up with Ryan Rajakar to win No. 1 doubles 6-2, 6-0.

Zipay struggled at the start, falling behind two breaks before getting going

"I got off to a slow start, but I got my serve back, held it a few times and got back to win the first set and went through from there," Zipay said. "I could be demoralizing and we had some long points that maybe fatigued him."

Few of the matches produced any real drama, as only one went to the third set tiebreaker. Jaden Wiesinger, Venice's No. 3, rallied in the third set to defeat Nathen Smiley 6-2, 6-7 (4-7) 10-4.

Wiesinger had three match points in the second set but couldn't close out. But instead of folding, he dominated the tiebreaker.

"I started out solid but he started making a lot more shots and made me play a lot of hard points," Wiesinger said. "I just thought I had to win 10 points and it was over."

Rajakar won No. 2 singles with a 6-4, 6-2 win over Chris Zuk, and Ryan Sherwood beat Samuel Smiley 6-0, 6-4 in the No. 5 finals.

Boys No. 2 doubles also went the distance, with Wiesinger and Alessandro Dina winning 1-6, 6-2, 11-9 over Smiley and Spencer

For the girls, Nicolette Kulcsar was the lone singles winner for Venice. She won the No. 2 finals over Gabriella Mazzorana 6-2, 6-1.

However, Shani Idlette, Alexandra Dorofeev, Katelyn Houston and Valeri Meruvia were all straight set winners for Fort Myers in the Nos. 1, 3, 4 and 5 groups, respectively.

The Indians got their revenge in doubles as Jia Johnson and Laura Kulcsar earned a trip to states by beating Idlette and Paris Thompson 6-3, 6-0. Katelyn Houston and Nicolette Kulcsar beat Mazzorana and Dorofeev 6-1, 6-0 in the No. 2 final.

"I don't know if one match would have completely changed anyone's spot. It was a team effort. If any one of us have gotten that extra point it would have changed things," Johnson said.

Venice softball hangs with nation's No. 1 team

By VINNIE PORTELL
Sports Editor

The Venice softball team hosted the No. 1 team in the country on Wednesday night, and the Lady Indians proved they can hang with the best.

Though Lakewood Ranch starting pitcher Kayla Howald threw a complete game no-hitter, Venice countered with good pitching and defense to hold the Mustangs to one of their lowest totals of the year in a 3-0 loss at Venice High School.

"She's given up zero runs this year," Venice coach Steve Constantino said of Howland. "She's pitched nine games and given up nothing. We didn't battle enough early in our at-bats. The first three innings, our plan was to give them a chance through the lineup to see if they could manufacture some hits on their own. But she had complete command of her pitches."

After losing to the Mustangs, 10-0, on Feb. 20 in a game where the Indians allowed nine runs to score in the first inning, Venice played a much more calm and controlled game on Wednesday.

Despite allowing a first-inning run on a walk and two singles, Indians starting pitcher Micaela Hartman settled in to allow two hits and no runs over the next two innings.

However, a double and a two-run homer to start the fourth signaled the end of Hartman's night. In relief, Haley Adrian kept her team in the game. The senior got three straight ground ball outs to escape the fourth and went on to allow two hits and no runs over the rest of the game — keeping Venice down 3-0 and within reach.

"Haley Adrian is totally back," Constantino said. "Our pitching and defense came up big for us. I'm proud of the kids. Nobody likes to lose, but when you play like that, how can you complain?"

Venice opened the home half of the first with Antonio "Peanut" Rosa reaching on a walk, and advanced to second on a passed ball. But a pop-out on a bunt, a groundout and a strikeout took care of the Indians, and they weren't able to apply much offensive pressure after that —as they could only get one more batter to reach base for the rest of the game.

The pitching of Howald kept Venice from ever truly starting its comeback efforts, but the Indians never gave in. Megan Hanley likely saved some runs with two catches off the fence and Bri Weimer and Kayleigh Roper played flawless defense on the left side of the infield all night long.

When it came down to the final outs, the Indians on the bench were on their feet and loudly supporting their teammates up to bat.

While they ultimately couldn't knock off the No. 1 team in the country, Constantino said his team showed that they have the mentality to play with the best.

"We just played the No. 1 team in the country who's beating up on the best teams in the state of Florida," he said. W"e don't like to lose, but I think you can learn a lot from a loss. I think we learned a lot about who we are. You could hear it, we were in the game mentally from start to finish.

"But they're as good as advertised."

Riverdale edges Lady Tarpons in 7th

The Lady Raiders (14-6) scored two runs in the top of the seventh inning to edge out the Lady Tarpons on Wednesday.

Down 2-0 in entering the bottom of the third, Charlotte (13-6) plated three runs off an RBI from Savannah Thomas and a fielding error off a Sydney Thomas hit. Charlotte added to that lead with a run in both the fifth and sixth innings to take a 5-4 lead into the final inning.

Gomez eruption helps end Stone Crabs' skid

Seven-game losing streak snapped

By STONE CRABS

PORT CHARLOTTE – Moises Gomez homered, scored three runs and delivered a walk-off sacrifice fly Wednesday, helping the Charlotte Stone Crabs beat the Dunedin Blue Jays 4-3 to snap a seven-game losing streak.

In a 3-3 game in the bottom of the ninth, Stone Crabs (4-10) center fielder Garrett Whitley singled to left to lead off the inning. With one out, Jim Haley was hit by a pitch before Vidal Brujan walked to load the bases. The next batter was Gomez, who lofted fly ball to right field to chase home Whitley with the winning run.

With Charlotte trailing 2-1 in the bottom of the third, Gomez demolished a solo home run over the Blue Jays' (9-5) bullpen in left. That homer was the Stone Crabs' first home run in nine days.

In a tie game in the top of the fourth, Dunedin catcher Christopher Bec walked and then stole second. The next batter was Cal Stevenson, who lined a single to center to score Bec and give Dunedin a 3-2 lead.

With Charlotte trailing by one in the bottom of the fifth, Gomez and Zach Rutherford both drew one-out walks. After a pitching change, Carl Chester lined a single into left to chase home Gomez and tie the game at three. Gomez scored the first three Stone Crabs runs before driving in the game-winner.

For the second straight day, the Stone Crabs bullpen recorded five-plus innings of scoreless relief. Miller Hogan went two hitless frames in his High-A debut.

Simon Rosenblum-Larson then delivered 2 1/3 shut-out frames, but passed down a two-on, one-out scenario to Chandler Raiden (1-0) in a tie game. That's when Stevenson lined a ball towards right, but Charlotte first baseman Seaver Whalen made a diving catch and started a double play to get the Stone Crabs out of the jam.

by the left fielder for an error that allowed Caroline Hill, who had reached on an error, to score. Christain Chandler then followed with a triple that was her sixth of the year, setting a new single season record for Manta Ray batters.

Lemon Bay got two more runs in the bottom of the fifth as Kelly led off with a triple and came home on a single by Karlie Sweiderk.

Sweiderk stole second, moved up on a ground out, and scored on a base hit by Destiny Ashcraft.

Kelly had an RBI single in the sixth inning to complete the scoring.

"Ella did a great job tonight and defensively, that's our first game all year without errors," Lemon Bay coach Kim Pinkham said. "They're playing better and playing for each other. We're getting contributions from one through nine in the order at different times, so that was a great team win and a great end to the week."

Kraszewski didn't walk anybody and struck out four as Lemon Bay raised its record to 11-7 with its fifth win in a row. The Pirates fell to 9-9 on the season.

"We were making contact, we just weren't following through with our swings," Port Charlotte coach Ryann Baker-Brose said.

"We came back later in the game and we started hitting the ball a little more solid, but we were just hitting it right at them. We just didn't execute when we had the opportunities to. Our defensive errors killed us tonight more than our bats did."

Anderson's spiked bat leads to fracas

CHICAGO (AP) — Fiercely energetic Tim Anderson spiked his bat to celebrate a home run and Kansas City's Brad Keller responded by drilling him with a fastball, setting off a benches-clearing fracas in the Royals' 4-3, 10-inning victory over the Chicago White Sox on Wednesday.

Anderson tossed his bat toward the White Sox dugout following his two-run drive in the fourth inning. Keller hit him in the buttocks with his first pitch leading off the sixth.

Anderson, the AL's leading hitter, was restrained by Royals catcher Martin Maldonado but kept jawing with Keller on the way to first base. The dugouts and bullpens emptied, though no punches appeared to be thrown. White Sox manager Rick Renteria and Royals bench coach Dale Sveum shoved each other, and the usually mild-mannered Renteria was particularly animated.

There were four ejections — Anderson, Keller, Renteria and Sveum.

CARDINALS 6, BREWERS 3

Michael Wacha cooled off NL MVP Christian Yelich, Matt Carpenter and Marcell Ozuna each went deep, and St. Louis beat Milwaukee to avoid being swept.

Yelich came in batting .556 with four home runs and 10 RBIs in the series, but he was 0 for 2 with a strikeout and a walk against Wacha. Yelich did single in a run in the eighth.

Wacha (1-0) bounced back after a tough start Thursday against the Dodgers. He struck out seven over six innings, allowing two runs and five hits to improve to 6-0 career against the Brewers. Jordan Hicks pitched the ninth for his fourth save.

Milwaukee starter Corbin Burnes (0-2) got beat by the long ball again. He surrendered three home runs in each of his first three starts, then coughed up two more against St. Louis. He's allowed a major league-most 11 on the season.

PHILLIES 3, METS 2

Jake Arrieta pitched neatly into the ninth inning, Scott Kingery and Cesar Hernandez hit solo homers and Philadelphia beat New York.

Hector Neris blew a 95 mph fastball past Keon Broxton with a 3-2 count and the bases loaded for the final out and his second save.

Arrieta (3-1) allowed two runs and six hits, inducing three double-play grounders. The veteran righty has pitched like the ace who won the 2015 NL Cy Young Award with the Cubs. He lowered his ERA to 1.93.

DODGERS 3, REDS 2

A.J. Pollock hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning, and Los Angeles tied the major league record by homering in its 32nd consecutive home game.\

Pollock broke open a scoreless game when he connected off Sonny Gray (0-3). Los Angeles has homered in every regular season game at Dodger Stadium since last Aug. 21, including 13 straight this season.

The Dodgers matched the mark set by the Colorado Rockies in 1999, but won't get the chance to break it until April 26 when they return from a road trip.

YANKEES 5, RED SOX 3

Brett Gardner hit a grand slam off Ryan Brasier in the seventh inning for his 100th career home run, and the New York Yankees rallied to beat the Boston Red Sox 5-3 Wednesday night for a two-game sweep of the reeling World Series champions.

J.D. Martinez hit a first-inning home run off Yankees starter J.A. Happ, just like he did in the AL Division Series opener last October, and Christian Vazquez hit a two-run homer in the second for a 3-0 lead. The Yankees were on the verge of failing to win any of their first four home series for the first time since 1913, according to the Elias Sports Bureau.

Clint Frazier started the comeback with an RBI double in the fourth against former Yankee Nathan Eovaldi, and New York loaded the bases in the seventh against Brandon Workman on Frazier's single and walks to Mike Tauchman and Austin Romine.

Boston dropped to 6-13, the worst start for a World Series champion since the 1998 Florida Marlins opened 5-14. The Red Sox did not lose their 13th game last year until May 14 and already face daunting math: No team has lost 12 or more of its first 18 games and reached the playoffs since the 2002 Anaheim Angels, who won the World Series. They're eight games behind the AL East-leading Tampa Bay Rays.

Red Sox second baseman Dustin Pedroia left in the second inning because of left knee discomfort, a sign that a return trip to the injured list is possible.

Eovaldi and Happ both remained winless. Eovaldi allowed an unearned run and three hits in six innings, while Happ gave up three runs and six hits in 6 1/3 innings. Happ has allowed six home runs in 18 2/3 innings.

NATIONALS 8, GIANTS 6

Juan Soto and Howie Kendrick hit first-inning home runs, Matt Adams and Kurt Suzuki connected in the seventh, and the Washington Nationals beat the San Francisco Giants 9-6 on Wednesday night.

Soto's two-run drive, Kendrick's solo shot and an RBI single by Adam Eaton put Washington ahead 4-0 against Jeff Samardzija (1-1) in the second.

Facing rookie Travis Bergen in the seventh, Adams delivered a three-run homer and Suzuki followed a single by Kendrick with a liner inside the left-field foul pole for a 9-2 lead.

Gerardo Parra and Steven Duggar each hit two-run homers.

Celtics take two-game lead on Pacers behind Irving's 37 points

Kyrie Irving scored 37 points and the Boston Celtics rallied late in the fourth quarter to beat the Indiana Pacers 99-91 on Wednesday night and take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven, first-round series

Coming out of a timeout and with a chance to tie, the Pacers' Wesley Matthews threw an in-bounds pass into the bench on the other side of the court with 12.1 seconds left. On the ensuing play, the Celtics' Al Horford passed to Jayson Tatum, who was fouled on a two-handed dunk. He completed the three-point play to make it 97-91 with 8.8 seconds left.

The Pacers turned it over again and the Celtics were able to close out the game at the free throw line.

Tatum scored 26 points, including a thunderous dunk down the stretch to help punctuate a 10-0 run by Boston over the final five minutes.

After scoring only eight points in the third quarter of Game 1, the Pacers scored only 12 points in the fourth quarter of Game 2.

Bojan Bogdanovic led Indiana with 23 points. Thaddeus Young added 15 points.

Game 3 is Friday in Indiana.

Darren Collison scored seven points during a 10-0 run that gave the Pacers a 70-58 lead in the third quarter as turnovers began to pile up for the Celtics.

Indiana led 79-68 entering the fourth. Horford opened the final period scoring on a hook shot in the lane and Tyreke Evans responded with a 3-pointer on Indiana's first possession.

But then Boston caught fire, using a 16-0 run, including eight straight by Irving, to take an 86-82 lead with 5:04 to play. Indiana missed 10 straight shots during the run, finally breaking a nearly eight-minute scoring drought with a 3-pointer by Matthews in front of the Celtics' bench.

Bogdanovic hit a 3-pointer from virtually the same spot as Matthews to put the Pacers back in front. Gordon Hayward responded with a jumper, before Bogdanovic hit another 3 over Horford that made it 91-89 Pacers with 2:16 remaining.

Late Tuesday

Raptors 111, Magic 82

Kept off the scoreboard in a Game 1 defeat, Toronto Raptors guard Kyle Lowry was "at his finest" in Game 2, at least in the eyes of coach Nick Nurse.

Fellow All-Star Kawhi Leonard wasn't too bad, either.

Leonard scored 37 points, Lowry bounced back with 22 and the Raptors routed the Orlando Magic 111-82 on Tuesday night, evening their Eastern Conference first-round series at one win apiece.

Pascal Siakam had 19 points and 10 rebounds for the Raptors, who never trailed and led by as many as 34.

Game 3 is Friday night in Orlando.

Lowry, who missed all seven attempts in Game 1, shot 8 for 13 and led his team with seven assists.

Despite playing in foul trouble for much of the night, Leonard finished with a career playoff-high 15 field goals. He made his first nine attempts from inside the arc before missing a layup.

Leonard shot 15 for 22 before leaving to a standing ovation with 4:46 remaining and Toronto ahead 104-73.

Aaron Gordon scored 20 points, Terrence Ross had 15 and Evan Fournier 10 for the Magic, who won the opener 104-101 on a tiebreaking 3 by D.J. Augustin with 4.2 seconds to go.

Nikola Vucevic, who shot 3 for 14 in Game 1, struggled again in Game 2, going 3 of 7 and scoring six points.

Augustin, who had 25 points Saturday, shot 1 for 6. Seven of his nine points came at the free throw line.

Orlando didn't score for almost five minutes to start the game, missing its first six shots and four straight free throws. The drought ended when Gordon rebounded and scored on Vucevic's miss from the line at 7:14 of the first, answering an 11-0 Toronto run.

Lowry scored 11 points in the second and Siakam added six, putting Toronto up 51-39 at halftime. Orlando shot 13 for 40 in the opening two quarters.

Leonard connected of seven of nine attempts in the third, scoring 17 points. The Raptors outscored the Magic 39-27 to take a 90-66 lead into the fourth.

Pastrnak scores twice, Boston evens up with

TORONTO (AP) — David Pastrnak scored twice in quick succession, Brad Marchand had a goal and two assists and the Boston Bruins held off the Toronto Maple Leafs 6-4 on Wednesday to tie the first-round series 2-2.

Charlie McAvoy had a goal and an assist, Zdeno Chara and Joakim Nordstrom also scored and Tuukka Rask made 38 saves.

Auston Matthews scored twice for Toronto. Zach Hyman and Travis Dermott also scored and Frederik Andersen stopped 25 shots.

After the Maple Leafs overcame a 2-0 deficit to tie it early in the second, Pastrnak put Boston back in front at 3:16 when he redirected a pass from Marchand on a 2-on-1. The Bruins then got a power play when Matthews went off for roughing, and Marchand whipped a backhand pass to a wide-open Pastrnak, who snapped the puck short-side on Andersen.

Molinari refocuses after letdown at Masters

Sting remains for golfer after losing two-stroke lead with seven holes left at the Masters

By PETE IACOBELLI
AP Sports Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Francesco Molinari feels worn out after collapsing on the final nine at the Masters last week and is looking to conjure up the mental energy to compete at the RBC Heritage.

Molinari, the reigning British Open champion, carried a two-stroke lead with seven holes left before a pair of uncharacteristic mistakes. He landed shots in the water on the 12th and 15th holes for two double-bogeys at Augusta National that dropped him from contention into a tie for fifth, two shots behind winner Tiger Woods.

Molinari acknowledged Wednesday that he is still seeking the spark to move past last Sunday and get him going at Harbour Town Golf Links.

"You try," he said. "You're never quite sure how long that's going to take."

Molinari won't have long if he plans to contend. He faces another stacked field that includes Masters' runner ups and Dustin Johnson and Xander Schauffele, along with Webb Simpson, who finished tied with Molinari.

In all, 11 of the top 30 players in the world, led by No. 1 Johnson, will tee it up to start Thursday.

Woods, who has only played in one RBC Heritage in 1999, is off this week.

Molinari said his mistakes were straightforward and easy enough to diagnose with a bad swing on the par-3 12th and a bad choice on the part-5 15th.

"But more than that, my concern is just having the mental energies to perform this week and be competitive against a really strong field. That will be the challenge for me," he said.

Molinari, 36, has been a revelation, especially in majors, the last two seasons. He's posted four top six finishes, including his British Open win at Carnoustie last July, over his past six major tournaments after never finishing better than ninth in his first 32 such appearances.

Johnson was pleased with his performance at Augusta, despite missing a birdie putt on the 72nd hole that might have tied him with Woods.

"Obviously, one stroke, definitely could've found that somewhere," Johnson said. "But all in all, it was a good week and I played well when I needed to."

Johnson, a South Carolina native, returned to Harbour Town last year for the first time in almost a decade and finished tied for 16th, his best RBC Heritage showing in three appearances. The speculation on Johnson's extended absence are similar to theories about why Woods does not play here — tight, unforgiving fairways where positioning shots is as important as bombing them a long way.

"If I'm playing well, I enjoy any golf course," Johnson countered.

"If I'm hitting the ball where I want to, no matter what type of course it is, I like it. This is the kind of golf I grew up playing. It's something I'm used to. Last year, I had some success and I'm looking to have some more success this year."

"I know what to do around this golf course," he said. "It's kind of a quirky, tricky golf course, but I always love being here."

Despite last week's events, Molinari said he carries much more confidence into all his tournaments these days. His three PGA Tour victories have all come since last July, including a win last month at the Arnold Palmer Invitational.

"I've never been a guy who showed up on tour and started winning straight away," Molinari said. "Definitely the last few steps have been more mental rather than technical or anything else."

Molinari, ranked seventh in the world, will put that to the test when this tournament ends with three weeks off before returning to action at the PGA Championship at Bethpage Black in New York. Molinari backed up his British Open win with a sixth at the PGA last August and is anxious for the next one.

"I'll analyze with a colder mind what happened (at the Masters) and just move forward toward Bethpage," Molinari said.

MIAMI

make sure each is developing emotionally and mentally as well as physically, especially given the situation the starter will be walking into when he takes the field at Camping World Stadium in August.

"All these three guys are, in my opinion, very, very young. They're learning every day there's something new to learn. But, you've got to know not only how to handle adversity, but how to handle success, too," said Enos, who spent last season tutoring Alabama's Tua Tagovailoa and Oklahoma's Jalen Hurts in Tuscaloosa. "I've had two or three good plays, and then I make a huge mistake because maybe I did relax, maybe I did get complacent for a play. They have to learn how to clear the mechanism, if you will, every play and play the next play. Learn from the past play, good or bad, and then move on to the next play. That's an attribute we're working with these guys on a daily basis. But, that one's reared its ugly head here in the last couple practices."

While all three of Miami's quarterbacks are adapting to Enos' system, the offensive coordinator noted that the one likely facing the most pressure is Martell, the highly touted Ohio State transfer who many Miami fans expected would challenge for the starting job.

He didn't play much at Ohio State, though as a redshirt freshman last season, Martell completed 23 of 28 passes for 269 yards and a touchdown. He added another 128 rushing yards and a pair of rushing touchdowns, showing some of the dual-threat skills that made him a coveted four-star prospect coming out of Las Vegas powerhouse Bishop Gorman High. There, Martell was unbeaten as a starter and he threw for 7,507 yards and 113 touchdowns, while rushing for another 2,294 yards and 35 touchdowns.

Since arriving in Coral Gables, Martell has sometimes struggled. In Saturday's scrimmage, he was 4 of 11 for 78 yards with an interception. Perry and Williams had better completion percentages, with Williams going 7 of 12 for 79 yards with a touchdown and Perry going 9 of 15 for 78 yards.

Still, Enos said Martell bounced back in Tuesday's practice and likely had one of his best days of the spring.

"He's talented. He can run. He's got good arm talent. We've asked him to learn a new system. We've asked him to learn new fundamentals and techniques. We asked him to move to a new city. He's got a lot of pressure on him. Let's be honest — he comes in with all the accolades, you know what I mean? There's a lot going on in that young man's life and you know what? At the end of the day, he's just a young man and we're trying to help him get better every day," Enos said.

UCF QB Milton has no ill will after injury

At Better Man Event, a meeting with USF'S Wilkins, whose tackle injured his knee

By Chris Hays
ORLANDO SENTINEL

ORLANDO, Fla. — McKenzie Milton and Mazzi Wilkins had not seen each other since Nov. 23, on Black Friday of Thanksgiving weekend, but there was little for the two college football rivals to be thankful about on that holiday.

Wilkins delivered a tackle during which Milton suffered a catastrophic knee injury that nearly forced doctors to amputate his leg.

Saturday night at the Better Man Event in UCF's Additions Financial Arena, the two came face-to-face for the first time since their lives were changed forever.

"It was neat, man. I was a little shell-shocked, but it was something very cool and a cool experience, for sure," Milton said after meeting Wilkins on stage.

Milton said he did not know about the meeting beforehand.

"It's come full circle and there's no ill will there and our fans shouldn't have any ill will toward Mazzi, either," he said.

"He goes to USF, I go to UCF, we battle out on the field, but off it, we're like brothers … we're friends now and it just goes to show what football can do. It can bring people together, like a USF Bull and a UCF Knight together, which is something special."

Coordinator of the Better Man Event, Brian Buckley came up with the idea to bring the two together at the event under the theme of forgiveness, but Milton didn't really see any need for forgiveness in this case.

Wilkins jumped at the chance to meet with Milton when he was approached by Buckley.

"I really felt for him," Wilkins said. "He had a lot going … he still has a lot of potential and a lot of stuff going for him, but you don't ever want to block somebody's blessings, so I just wanted to meet him and be genuine with my guy. I got a friend now. I can finally say I got a UCF friend now."

In their first meeting, UCF quarterback Milton and USF defensive back Wilkins were involved in a collision on the football field that rocked college football last season. Wilkins tackled Milton as he ran up the field at Raymond James Stadium and Milton's knee buckled awkwardly underneath him.

A hush went over the stadium, the teams gathered around Milton as doctors tended to him. Everyone knew the news would be bad. Sure enough, Milton missed the rest of the season, endured multiple surgeries and faces a tough fight trying to play football again.

UCF Nation was crushed. The Knights' quarterback would not be available for the rest of the year, including the Fiesta Bowl matchup with LSU. The UCF football team would not be the same.

But in the shadows, Wilkins, also, would never be the same. He was devastated to be part of such a horrific moment. He made the tackle. He blamed himself, but he knew it was football. It happens. Anonymous fans in the social media universe were not so forgiving. He received death threats and horrible messages about his mother and family. Vicious trollers of the internet hurled hatred at the former Tampa Plant star just because he made a tackle.

"Excuse my language, but it was some BS what our fans were doing or just people … giving death threats, talking about his family. I mean, it's football. Injuries happen," Milton said. "Like I said, there's no ill will there and in all honesty, I'm a little disappointed in people."

Both Milton and Wilkins knew the risks of playing the sport of football. They both knew that anything can happen, especially season- and career-ending injuries. They just never imagined it would happen to them. The backlash was devastating for Wilkins.

"I look on Twitter (after the game) and my name is trending and I'm like, 'Whoa, what?' … And before you know it I'm getting message after message," Wilkins said. "I showed my mom. … I said, 'Look mom, they're talking about you.' And my mom was like, 'Don't worry about it,' so at first I played it like, 'You know what, it happens. I'm not going to worry about it.'

"But you can't help but to look at it. So when you look at it, I really felt myself getting irritated. … Little do they know as soon as it happened, I got on a knee and I prayed for him. … We play the sport, but we don't play it to injure anybody."

AP PHOTO

UCF quarterback McKenzie Milton suffered a catostrophic knee injury last month at the hands of USF defensive back Mazzi Wilkins. The two met Saturday at the UCF Better Man Event.

Buckley was thrilled with the opportunity to get the two players together.

"I was reading the Orlando Sentinel … and it talked about that Mazzi was getting death threats and Mazzi was going through social media bullying," Buckley said. "So I thought what would it look like if we can bring these two together at the Better Man Event and show reconciliation. … I reached out to Mazzi and he said, 'I'm in,' from the start."

Wilkins wanted to take advantage of the opportunity to engage with Milton. He could have let things play out the way they already had. The senior is now preparing for the NFL opportunity and hoping to get his shot. Milton will continue to rehab in an effort to get back on the field.

For a moment Saturday night, however, Wilkins and Milton shared a moment they never imagined was possible.

As Milton said, now he has a friend forever. A USF Bull friend.

Nadal opens clay season with Monte Carlo win

By JEROME PUGMIRE
AP SPORTS WRITER

MONACO — Back on his favorite surface, Rafael Nadal showed no lingering effects of a recent injury as he breezed into the third round of the Monte Carlo Masters on Wednesday with a 6-1, 6-1 win against Roberto Bautista Agut.

Nadal was making his season debut on clay and playing his first match since suffering a knee injury at Indian Wells one month ago, but the defending champion looked sharp from the start and secured an early break of serve for 2-0.

Aside from having to save five break points across two games — at 0-40 down in the fourth game and at 15-40 in the sixth— Nadal was otherwise untroubled by his Spanish countryman.

"I was able to move well and be confident in the things that I did," the 32-year-old Nadal said.

"Now what I need is to play matches, spend hours on court, and of course the victories help. Every victory is a positive energy, confidence in the game, confidence in the body. Today was a good start."

Nadal is looking to win the clay-court tournament for a record-extending 12th time and increase his Masters record to 34 titles. He next plays Grigor Dimitrov, whom he has beaten 11 times in 12 matches. One of Nadal's wins against the unseeded Bulgarian was in last year's semifinal.

Third-seeded Alexander Zverev, No. 4 Dominic Thiem, No. 6 Stefanos Tsitsipas, No. 10 Daniil Medvedev, and No. 13 Fabio Fognini also advanced to the third round Wednesday. But No. 5 Kei Nishikori, who lost to Nadal in last year's final, was beaten by Pierre-Hugues Herbert 7-5, 6-4.

Zverev won 6-1, 6-4 against Felix Auger-Aliassime, breaking the 18-year-old Canadian's serve six times, while French Open runner-up Thiem won by the same score against Martin Klizan.

Tsitsipas downed Mikhail Kukushkin 6-3, 7-5 and next faces Medvedev.

The Russian beat Radu Albot 6-1, 6-2, while Fognini had a walkover after Gilles Simon pulled out with a back injury and next takes on Zverev.

There were also second-round wins for unseeded players Dimitrov, Taylor Fritz, Cameron Norrie, and Dusan Lajovic.

Fritz won 6-4, 6-2 against Diego Schwartzman and the 21-year-old American next plays top-ranked Novak Djokovic .

Norrie beat Marton Fucsovics 7-6 (3), 6-3, Dimitrov won 7-6 (2), 6-4 against Jan-Lennard Struff, and Lajovic upset No. 16 David Goffin of Belgium 6-3, 6-4.

Highly recruited guard Beverly signs with Miami

CORAL GABLES (AP) — Highly recruited 6-foot-4 guard Harlond Beverly has signed with the Miami Hurricanes.

A native of Farmington Hills, Michigan, Beverly joined Montverde (Florida) Academy for his senior season and led the team to a 22-3 record and the semifinals of the high school nationals.

Beverly also considered signing with Michigan State, Georgia, Michigan, Indiana and Kansas.

Gonzaga's Clarke declares for draft

Gonzaga forward Brandon Clarke, who led the nation in blocked shots this season, plans to skip his senior year and enter the NBA draft.

Under new NCAA rules, the junior can sign with an agent and still return to school if he chooses. Clarke has until May 29 to make a final decision.

Clarke's 117 blocks were the most in the country. He averaged 16.9 points and 8.6 rebounds per game in his first season with Gonzaga after transferring from San Jose State. Clarke also led the nation in field goal shooting percentage (68.7).

Earlier this week, Gonzaga forward Rui Hachimura also said he would skip his senior year to enter the NBA draft.

MSU signs top guard

Michigan State has signed 6-foot-3 guard Mark "Rocket" Watts.

The school announced Wednesday it received a letter of intent from Watts, who attends SPIRE Academy in Ohio and is from Detroit. He joins 6-foot-8 forward Malik Hall in Tom Izzo's recruiting class.

Watts is ranked No. 32 and Hall is No. 55 overall in 247 Sports composite national rankings.

Watts made 15 3-pointers and scored 64 points in a game as a senior in a win over St. Edward in Ohio.

He previously attended Old Redford Academy in Detroit, where he averaged nearly 27 points per game.

Loyola-Chicago's Moser turns down St. John's coaching offer

Every coach in the business gave Porter Moser the same advice: Take the job. Sign the juicy contract. Play in the Garden. Move up to the Big East.

But they don't know Moser as well as Moser knows himself.

"You can be rich without the dollar signs," Moser told the Tribune on Tuesday afternoon after turning down a reported eight-year deal from St. John's worth a reported $17 million to $18 million to remain at Loyola Chicago.

George Bailey from "It's a Wonderful Life" needed a long stretch to realize how good he had it. Moser needed less than 24 hours.

"Their AD was great, a Duke guy," Moser said of being courted by St. John's athletic director Mike Cragg. "It's the Big East and Madison Square Garden and all that.

"But when you step back and look … I've put so much blood, sweat and tears into this program. We have a new practice facility. I got two commitments Sunday morning, and the moms were hugging me. And then I'm calling three days later to tell them (I'm leaving)? I can't do that."

Moser turned down UNLV after the season.

And now he's rejecting St. John's, even though he has received no assurance he'll get a raise from his approximate $900,000-a-year salary.

ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

BASEBALL, DESOTO COUNTY

Senior right hander Braden Steele gave up two first-inning hits and then no-hit the Lemon Bay Mantas the rest of the way in a 92 pitch 4-0 district win. The win ended the Mantas 22 game district win streak dating back to March 31 2015. Steele struck out 8 and only allowed 3 balls to leave the infield after the first inning.

Steele threw a no-hitter earlier this year against Community Christian. Steele is working on the team triple crown as he leads the team in batting average, RBIs and is tied in team homers.

"Braden's outing against a district opponent like Lemon Bay was as dominant as you'll see," DeSoto coach Mike Klossner said. "That's why Braden has been called upon to pitch most of our district games."

Eunice Noel

TRACK AND FIELD, CHARLOTTE

Junior Eunice Noel was nearly unstoppable on the track Tuesday. She earned district titles in the 100- and 300-meter hurdles as well as the 400-meter relay.

The hurdles weren't much of a struggle. In the 100, Noel finished .79 seconds ahead of Ida Baker's Dashnie Dervil with a time of 14.25 second. In the 300, Noel again pulled away with a finish in 48.13 seconds.

"We added one more thing to her plate this week, long jump (2nd place finish) along with prelims in the 4x100 relay and she responds with three firsts and a second," Charlotte coach Jerry Voss said. "She epitomizes the hard working crew of girls we have on this team."

FROM THE PUBLISHER'S DESK • CAPT. JOSH OLIVE

Tackle shop chatter is interesting. There's a mix of bragging and questioning, a blend of information exchange and chest-thumping. A fair chunk of it is inaccurate, but you have to learn to let that slide.

Most of the time, anyway. But when I hear someone talking about the gag grouper they caught a few days ago and how delicious the fillets were, it's time to say something.

"Maybe you didn't know, but gag are closed right now," I offered. He countered with, "Nope — I got an email from FWC says they're open as of April 1."

And he did get that email. I know for sure, because he showed it to me on his phone. He was feeling vindicated, right up until I pointed out that if you read past the headline, the email said gag were opening in Gulf state waters off Franklin, Wakulla, Jefferson and Taylor counties. That little four-county section of the state 200 miles north of here has an open gag season from April 1 to June 30, and then again Sept. 1 through Dec. 30. In other Gulf state waters, gag are open from June 1 to Dec. 31. (There's a cool map that illustrates the situation very well at http://bit.ly/2UjXQeH.)

He seemed a little sheepish about his misunderstanding and said he needed to take some photos off Facebook. I told him he wasn't the only one to make this mistake. Our fishing regulations are often convoluted and difficult to understand. I have a pretty good memory, but I regularly refer to the regulations page here in WaterLine. It's the only way I can keep everything straight.

The FWC has several times suggested that perhaps localized regulations might be a better way to manage fisheries. On a biology level, I agree — but they need to realize it could never work, and the reason is communication.

When FWC sends out a notice that a season is opening or closing, there's no way for them to be sure who's going to see it. People who live in closed areas will think season is opening, and vice versa. Even if the messages could be targeted just to those affected, many people in other places will still see the notices reposted on social media or in print.

Right now, there are relatively few opportunities to make these mistakes. But if management became more localized, there would be many more. Imagine if redfish had a closed season in Charlotte County but not in Sarasota. How many people would get the wrong message, or maybe just ignore the closure when they saw other nearby anglers posting photos?

Ideally, fishing regulations should be straightforward and simple to understand. But they aren't, and it seems like the era of instant communication has only brought us greater confusion. As before, we'll do our best to keep our rules page up-to-date and accurate. Even so, it never hurts to double check.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Capt. Josh:
Love your magazine. Capt. Van is always on the money — greed and stupidity are at the heart of our coastal problems. Thanks for all the advice and tips. But why do you continue to publish photos of folks holding large fish by the jaw? In the current issue, there's a huge bass being held up by the lip. You say this is terrible for the fish, yet you continue to publish photos contradicting your stand?

— Bob Kinsley

Bob:
I get this question fairly often, usually in face-to-face conversations. Our photo policy says that we don't run photos of poorly handled fish, if they must be released. However, if the fish are being kept, I figure the anglers can handle them as they see fit. The challenge is in fish that are legal to keep but being released anyway. You don't want to see them mishandled because it increases their chances of dying or having severe health issues after release. On the other hand, if I change the policy to require ethical handling of all fish, I'll have to exclude a lot of photos that I think people would like to see. And what should I do with photos of release-only snook being handled with dry towels when those fish were caught during a veterans charity event? Run them and mention the poor handling? That shames people publicly. Don't run them? I'd like to support the event, which is a good one. So what I end up doing is judging all the photos we get on a case-by-case basis. There are some that I run despite feeling marginal about them. There are many others I reject, generally notifying the sender why (unless it's someone who I already know should know better). Ultimately, it comes down to my judgment, which is imperfect and fallible. All I can do is keep trying to maintain the balance between the welfare of the fish we catch and our desire to show them off.

— Capt. Josh Olive, WaterLine Publisher

Capt. Josh:
A word of caution regarding footwear on the boat: My choice of sandals has worked well for many years, until recently. A small shell, stick, or some foreign managed to create a small puncture in my second toe. I am now entering my fifth week of IV therapy to cure a bone infection to avoid amputation. During this time, I've spoken to several other patients with similar issues and fewer toes. Consider the condition of our waters. There are vast amounts of bacteria living there that seem to enjoy living in you. If you get a nick, inspect and disinfect (sterile saline), then smear on Polysporin and cover. It can't hurt.

— Cliff Limpert

Cliff:
That's why I don't generally recommend sandals to other people. Everyone has to decide for themselves the level of risk with which they're comfortable.

	INSHORE & FRESHWATER	GULF & OFFSHORE	BEST BET
ASHLEY L. ECONOMY TACKLE Sarasota 941-922-9671	The redfish and snook bite has been very steady, with the reds more abundant than anyone expected (although the best bite has been north and south of Sarasota Bay for now). Juvenile tarpon have been in the ICW, and we're waiting for the big ones to show up. A few crabs are moving out on the big tides. In fresh water, we're getting a lot of bass on live worms and some on plastic frogs.	The kingfish bite is solid within 5 miles of shore. We're also seeing lots of Spanish mackerel, but sheepshead are down to about nothing. Permit are on the nearshore wrecks eating crabs. Mangrove snapper reports are still good as well.	Trout action has been great around Palma Sola and Vamo. The biggest ones are hitting live bait, but we're also catching on soft plastics too.
MALCOLM COOKS SPORTLAND Venice 941-493-0025	The water should be clearing after this last front, and more fish will be moving out to the beaches. The backcountry has been clear all along, and a lot of our snook and redfish have moved back into those areas. Trout action should also be picking up. In the fresh water, bass are still working on the spawn. Look for them feeding around steep banks and chasing minnows. Catfish are good around moving water.	No reports this week — way too windy.	Hit the ICW for a mixed bag. From the Circus Bridge to the Manasota Bridge there should be lots of activity.
JIM FISHERMAN'S EDGE Grove City 941-697-7595	There has been a good trout bite along the ICW from Placida to the north end of Pine Island Sound on soft plastic jerkbaits. Pompano are scattered from the beaches into the backcountry. Spanish mackerel are riding the tides into the lower Harbor. Tarpon have been in and out of Boca Grande Pass, but also in the Harbor and Pine Island Sound. The Lemon Bay docks are still holding some sheepshead.	Good numbers of kingfish are coming from just a couple miles off the beaches. Porgies and grunts are on the nearshore reefs, and we're also seeing some lane snapper a little deeper. Permit have been fairly numerous on the wrecks. Out at 100 feet, there are red grouper, but few really big ones.	Snook are hot around the mangroves and out toward the beaches, though there are few in the surf yet. Fish soft plastics or live bait.
JEFF CAPT. TED'S TACKLE Port Charlotte 941-627-6800	(4/11 report) Fish have been hungry this week. Cut bait has been working well, but so have Sebile Stick Shads and soft plastics. The west wall and Placida Sound have been great for trout, snook and redfish. Fish have also been seen on the east side too, but they're not biting quite as strongly. Smaller sharks have been abundant in the lower Harbor.	On the days that allow, it's common for anglers to catch limits of snapper on the deeper reefs and wrecks. Blackfin tuna are also on those structures and responding well to chum. Sharks are out there too, eating many fish as they're being caught.	Tarpon are at the U.S. 41 bridges and in the Harbor. A few fish have been caught in the big pass as well, but not that many. Cutbait and small crabs are catching fish.
ROBERT FISHIN' FRANK'S Charlotte Harbor 941-625-3888	Snook and redfish are scattered all around the Harbor, mostly along mangrove shorelines. If you want tiny snook, use whitebait. If you want a real fish, try ladyfish chunks. Trout are coming out of Pine Island Sound and Matlacha. Tarpon are scattered around the 20-foot holes and Boca Grande Pass, mostly late in the day. Sheepshead action is thinning out around Placida and the oyster bars.	It's been rough, but the School Bus reef has had a mixed bag of snappers and some kingfish around the edges. Permit reports have been trickling in from Venice and Fort Myers Beach, so there must be some here as well. Spanish mackerel are from the passes to the nearshore reefs; trolling is best.	Smaller sharks — blacknose, sharpnose, blacktips — are all over from the 20-foot holes through Placida Sound. For bigger ones, fish the shrimp boats.
CAMERON RIO VILLA BAIT & TACKLE Punta Gorda 941-639-7166	Spanish mackerel have been caught trolling spoons around bait pods in the Harbor and outside the bars in 6 feet of water. Some bluefish are mixed in. Catch-and-release snook action is good on live whitebait in the canal mouths. Largemouth bass around the spillways of Port Charlotte are eating live shiners and Rat-L-Traps. If you're throwing a small enough lure, tilapia will also hit it.	No reports.	Look for tarpon, anywhere from the holes to the I-75 bridges. Slow troll a live ladyfish or silver mullet, let the rod holder do the work. Keep a rod rigged in case a cobia swims by.
CAPT. JOHNNY D&D MATLACHA BAIT & TACKLE Matlacha 239-282-9122	Big jacks have been cruising all around Matlacha around the bridge and the edges of the flats. Snook have been in the canals and on the mangrove shorelines. Redfish have been around, eating cutbait but liking live bait better. Trout fishing is slow, but there are some in the backcountry. Tarpon have been around but hard to pattern. If you see any, offer them whatever you have.	It's been mostly too rough to get out.	Small bull and sharpnose sharks are all over the flats off Pineland. Any fresh or frozen cut fish is going to get attention.
JACK BAIT N WAIT Fort Myers Beach 239-466-8737	Snook have been under the Hurricane Bridge and a few tarpon are under the Sanibel Causeway. The red seaweed has cleared up.	No reports.	Sharks have been all over from the ICW to the beaches, making fishing tough (unless of course you like catching sharks).

THE FISH COACH'S TIP OF THE WEEK: A lot of anglers are switching to whitebait, if they can catch any. Catching whitebait is only a part of the equation — if you can't keep it alive, you might as well buy it frozen at the tackle shop. Here are some tips for keeping your whitebait frisky: Don't overload the well, especially on a rougher day. The ride to your fishing spot will probably kill a bunch of your baits. Round wells work a lot better than rectangular ones for this purpose. If your boat doesn't have one, consider having one installed if you plan to do a lot of whitebait fishing. A well full of bait needs a lot of oxygen, but forcing the baitfish to swim against a strong current will weaken them. A wide outlet that flows a little slower will keep your bait healthier than a high-pressure small outlet (same for the drain). You can also add an aeration system to help supply plenty of oxygen for your baitfish. — *As the Fish Coach, Capt. Josh Olive offers personalized instruction on fishing techniques. A LIFE ON THE WATER • CAPT. VAN HUBBARD

I was recently accused of being negative. I'm not a negative person by nature. However, the facts are negative, and we do have problems to address. Taking for granted that everything will work itself out was OK about 20 million residents ago, but it's not working anymore.

Up until now, our growth has been a huge benefit to our economy. If we want to maintain that economy, it's time to look at how to keep up our quality of life. Sustainability needs to be our focus now.

Last year's water quality problems shook us all up. I'm happy to see we are OK for the moment, but it won't last unless we do something to resolve the root of the problems. Are we depending on someone else to fix our water issues? Who do you trust to do that? We must all educate ourselves and then contribute more to solutions than to pollution. We can each reduce our impact on the environments we need to save and enjoy.

On the surface, our waters seem fine to most right now. But take a closer look. We have way too many nutrients in our waters. Witness the red algae problems along Fort Myers Beach. This also happens in our local waters. Look at how our seagrasses are covered up right now by algae. The nutrients don't show up in water testing because they are tied up in the algae. As algae dies, decomposition re-deposits those nutrients back into our waters.

Some ask how nutrients can be such a problem. At moderate levels, nutrients are good and feed plankton and grass. But excessive nutrients also feed algae blooms. Think about houseplants. A little fertilizer helps them grow luxuriantly. Too much burns them and can even kill. That's what we're doing to our coastal waters.

Another area to address: No one wants to talk about this but it is current and an expensive problem. A study by the University of Notre Dame found 62 percent of coastal homeowners are not considering any action to protect their homes from storms. This is scary, and it's exactly what I'm concerned about with coastal development.

Beachfront sand is not stable. It's going to move around! Folks come here and fall in love. They don't understand the risks of beachfront ownership. It's beautiful — until the storms come and take your beach, and maybe your house too.

Post-recovery efforts cost four to 10 times more for repairs than the protections. Folks depend on insurance and governments to fix their problems after damage. Why should everyone else fix your mistakes? More than 60 percent of those surveyed had neither protective covers nor impact-rated entry doors! Lack of education because we want to sell beach front properties is not good business. We all get stuck with billions of dollars in rebuilding, and it frequently happens repeatedly. Now you know why home insurance is so expensive in Florida.

If you choose to live on the open water beaches, you ought to accept responsibility for your risks. Look at the costs of beach renourishment as another example. Charlotte County will blow $30 million in November to pump silt-laden sand onto our beaches. How long will it stay? Take time to look at the numbers, but be sure you're sitting down when you look.

They use the point that we need to protect the public beaches as a reason for this investment in our future. But if we had no beachfront developments, we would have plenty of sandy beaches for everyone to enjoy with far less cost and risk.

Our local beaches developments started blowing up in the '70s when developers realized they could buy beachfront land cheaper than bayfront, since the locals knew better than to build out there. Our beach lifestyle is extremely marketable, and winter visitors flocked in to enjoy our beautiful shores. Property values soared, and these taxes were liked by county commissions. Up and down our coast, not just here, they spent all "their" new wealth faster than it accumulated.

Property values increased so fast once I-75 was completed that locals were forced to sell out because they couldn't afford the taxes. The out-of-town owners enjoyed 10 percent and higher appreciation on their new digs. On the surface, it seemed a dream for many (the winners, anyway), but locals continue to carry the burdens.

We don't get involved enough. I watch our commission meetings and we rarely have public comments, partly because working folks can't take off to go. Another big factor is we don't get the respect we deserve for our opinions. Just watch any of the public comment opportunities. Judge for yourselves how much our public officials care.

These are important challenges that have gotten worse by most of us ignoring them. Please, before growth overwhelms us, understand that we need to focus on sustainability. More expensive problems are right around the corners lurking, and the ones we've already seen will be back to haunt us. I'm praying they'll stay away for a while, but I can tell you now we haven't seen the last of them.

FISH PROFILE • GUITARFISH

SIZE LIMIT: n/a

BAG LIMIT (per harvester per day): 100 lb

SEASON: No closure.

LOCAL AVERAGE SIZE: 2 to 3 lb

MAXIMUM SIZE: About 10 lb

FOOD VALUE: Poor. The flesh is gelatinous and has a disagreeable aftertaste.

HABITAT: Open sandy or muddy bottoms in brackish or salt water up to about 60 feet deep. Most often found along Gulf beaches.

FISHING TIPS: Not targeted, but sometimes hooked by anglers surf fishing with shrimp, squid or clams.

WaterLine FISHING RULES

State and federal regulations for Southwest Florida waters as of March 26, 2019. All bag limits are per harvester per day. Other limits may apply. For full rules, visit MyFWC.com/fishing and GulfCouncil.org/fishing_regulations.

LICENSES

Resident saltwater or freshwater: Annual $17, 5-year $79. If you fish from shore in salt water only, a license is required but it is free. A combo license for both freshwater and saltwater fishing is $32.50 annually.

Resident senior: If you are a Fla. resident 65 or older, your driver's license or ID card replaces your fishing license. Gulf Reef Fish Survey (see below) and tarpon tags still required.

Nonresident saltwater or freshwater: 3 days $17, 7 days $30, annual $47. Free shore fishing license not available for nonresidents.

Annual permits (required only when a license is required): Snook $10, lobster $5

UNREGULATED SPECIES
In state waters, limit 100 pounds or two fish, whichever is more: Blackfin tuna, catfish, cero mackerel, croaker, grunts, ladyfish, little tunny, jack crevalle, pinfish, porgies, rays, sand trout, silver trout, spadefish, whiting, etc. See http://bit.ly/2HHkTOQ.

NO-HARVEST SPECIES

NOTES

1. Measured fork length (the straight line distance from most forward part of the head with mouth closed to the center of the tail).

2. Measured total length (the straight line distance from the most forward part of the head with the mouth closed to the farthest tip of the tail with the tail squeezed together while the fish is lying on its side).

3. Bag limit zero for captain and crew of for-hire vessels on a paid trip.

4. Reef fish gear rules apply. Anglers must use inline circle hooks when using natural baits, and must possess a dehooking device. Venting tool not required. Also, cannot be taken by powerhead in the reef fish stressed area (see http://bit.ly/2xDjLVR).

5. Must remain in whole condition (head and tail intact) until landed ashore. Removal of gills and internal organs OK. Cannot be used as cut bait.

6. Harvest by spear, gig or bow prohibited.

7. Use of multiple hooks (more than one point on a common shank, like a treble hook) in conjunction with natural bait prohibited.

8. Harvest by snatching prohibited.

9. Reef fish; illegal to use as bait in federal waters. In state waters, legal-size reef fish may be used as bait but must remain in whole condition and count against bag limit.

10. Included in aggregate 4 grouper bag limit.

11. Included in 20-fish reef fish aggregate bag limit in federal waters (includes vermilion snapper, lane snapper, almaco jack, gray triggerfish and all tilefish species).

15. No bag limit in federal waters.

16. HMS permit required to target or harvest in federal waters; see http://bit.ly/2R5mFe8

FRESHWATER FISH*

LARGEMOUTH BASS: No min. size; limit 5. Only one fish can be longer than 16″ (tournaments may apply for a permit allowing participants to weigh more than one over 16″)

CRAPPIE: Aggregate white/black limit 25

AMERICAN EEL: Min. 9″, limit 25

BUTTERFLY PEACOCK BASS: Max. 17″, limit 2 (may possess 1 over 17″)

GRASS CARP: Must be released immediately.

OTHER EXOTIC FISHES: Keep and eat or otherwise destroy; may not be used as live bait.

PROHIBITED: Alligator gar, sturgeon.

I got the hard one out of the way first. I'd launched my little lake boat after supper one evening last week and had decided that I'd spend the remaining 90 minutes of daylight waving a fly rod for bluegill. I didn't set out to catch a one-fly slam. I don't even think the slam I caught is an officially recognized slam — but hey, it's my game, so I get to make up my own rules.

I have a little 7.5-foot 3-weight flyrod, perfect for short casts in tight quarters on small, brush-clogged creeks and so lightweight that it's almost effortless to cast it for hours. It's also so small and whippy that landing modest-sized fish turns into a real battle. A hand-sized bluegill will bow it double, and anything larger is touch-and go. I usually fish a 4-pound tippet on this tiny rod, since anything stronger would be too much for the wispy rod to break anyway.

On the evening of my recent adventure I was using my favorite go-to fly: A bead-head woolly bugger in olive in about a No. 12. It's a fly in which I am supremely confident, kind of like the freshwater fly equivalent of throwing a Beetle Spin on ultralight spinning tackle.

I'm not really sure what prey item the woolly bugger is supposed to imitate. To me, it just looks vaguely bug-like — but everything eats it. At least half the fish I catch on it take the fly on the initial drop before I've even moved it, which is why I favor the faster-sinking bead-head version of this well-known fly.

The bead-head fly is a bit heavy for a 3-weight rod, but the majority of the casts I make are pretty short, mostly in the 15- to 20-foot range, with very few ever approaching 30 feet. The little rod can manage chunking that heavy fly those short distances.

But back to that slamming evening. After about 10 minutes of casting to pockets in the heavy shoreline cover fringing a smallish creek, I caught a black crappie (also called a speckled perch or speck). I've never caught many specks on fly, and this one hit right up against the bank. Not a classic crappie scenario, but as they say, I'd rather be lucky than good.

The next fish came only a few casts later, but there was a problem: This fish had shoulders and could not be bullied by my little fly rod. Fortunately, it headed toward the center of the creek and fought in open water — a strategic mistake which allowed me to wear her down in a tough fight of about five minutes. I say "her" because it was a nice bass of around 2.5 pounds which appeared to be a spawned-out female.

The next fish was a scrappy Mayan cichlid taken on the same fly. When it was followed in short order by a stumpknocker (spotted sunfish, if you prefer), I had four consecutive fish of four different species in about 20 minutes. The one-fly streak almost ended at that point when I hung the fly in a clump of leather fern and broke the leader while trying to snap it free, but I saw where the fly was hung and was able to retrieve it.

After a quick re-tie I caught species number five — a bluegill, which was the species I'd set out to catch in the first place. Again, it's better to be lucky than to be good.

So five fish of five species on a single fly in about 30 minutes. I don't know if a crappie, bass, Mayan cichlid, stumpknocker, bluegill slam is really a thing, but I'm saying that it is. Maybe I'll get a T-shirt made — that would remove all doubt.

I did catch a few more fish before hordes of mosquitoes chased me off the water at dark, but they were repeats of stump-knockers, bluegill and Mayans. I dragged the fly in front of a couple of gar in hopes of adding a sixth species to the slam, but could not get any of them interested. So I took my fly and went home, happy.

SLACK TIDES NEWS OF INTEREST FROM AROUND THE GLOBE

HEY, SMELL THIS SHARK PUKE

A queasy 10-foot-long shark being tagged off the East Coast resorted to vomiting up its lunch on a research vessel, giving scientists a disgusting challenge they simply could not resist. What had the tiger shark been eating? In a video posted by OCEARCH, one of the world's leading shark research nonprofits, the scientists are shown not only handling regurgitated food, but employing old fashioned sniff testing as well. The video has been viewed more than 29,000 times since being posted April 10. "Sometimes science can be a little gross," said OCEARCH, in its Facebook post. "The good news for scientists is that it presents a valuable chance to learn more about tiger shark diets." In the video, Gavin Naylor of the Florida Program for Shark Research explains the stomach contents included "very, very dark red meat and some structure here which is really peculiar. It's kind of spongy." It could be cartilage, he says. "We're not quite sure what it is," he says in the one-minute video. "I'm guessing all three (pieces) are from the same animal...We'll take samples of DNA from them, and then we'll sequence it and find out what it was." It could have been a turtle, he guesses. However, the video shows fellow scientist Bryan Franks sniffing chunks of stomach content and concluding "it doesn't smell like a turtle." "It smells more mammal to me," Franks says, holding chewed red meat to his nose.

RIGHT WHALE BABY BOOM

Researchers have spotted another two right whales off the coast of Massachusetts, bringing this year's total to three. Last year, scientists failed to spot a single calf. The mini baby boom is good news for the endangered species. Scientists estimate there are only around 450 right whales living in the ocean. The two new whales were spotted in the southern portion of the Cape Cod Bay. Scientists from Center for Coastal Studies in Rhode Island spotted the two calves each swimming with their mothers. The new right whales were born off the coast of Florida and Georgia during the winter. Right whales mate and give birth along the Southeastern coast and feed in the waters just off the New England coast. Earlier this month, scientists spotted the first right whale calf of the season during an aerial survey. Because right whales boast a large blubber content and tend to hug the shore, they were a popular target for whalers. By the end of the 19th century, whalers had nearly wiped out the species. Today, right whales are protected. In 2016, the federal government expanded the species' protected habitat along the East Coast. But the North Atlantic right whale remains one of the most endangered large whale species in the world, with boat strike and entanglement in fishing gear the greatest threats.

DON'T MESS WITH BIG BIRDS

A large, flightless bird called the world's "most dangerous" attacked and killed its owner when the man fell on his farm in Florida, authorities said Saturday. The Alachua County Sheriff's office told CBS affiliate WGFL-TV that a cassowary killed the man Friday on the property near Gainesville, likely using its long claws. The victim was apparently breeding the birds, which are native to Australia and New Guinea, state wildlife officials said. "My understanding is that the gentleman was in the vicinity of the bird and at some point fell. When he fell, he was attacked," Deputy Chief Jeff Taylor told the Gainesville Sun. He said first responders got a call at 10 a.m. Friday and rushed the man to a hospital for trauma care but he died. The county sheriff's office identified the victim as Marvin Hajos, 75, and said a death investigation has been opened. "Initial information indicates that this was a tragic accident for Mr. Hajos," said Lt. Brett Rhodenizer, a sheriff's office spokesman, in an email to the paper. "The cassowary involved remains secured on private property at this time."

JUMPING TOO SHALLOW

A Daytona Beach woman jumped off a pier to save a boy, but she ended up with serious injuries. Hanna Pignato, 19, was working a shift as a waitress at Joe's Crab Shack Saturday night on the Main Street Pier. At about 8 o'clock, she heard a commotion below, realizing it was a mother screaming for her boy who was struggling in a rip current. "She was so scared, it scared me so bad," said Pignato. With nobody around trying to save the boy, she jumped into action. "I surf and I swim, so I thought, I can get to that kid," said Pignato. That's all the convincing the waitress needed. "I don't even remember taking off my shoes and then I just jumped," she said. What she didn't see was a sandbar below the pier. The water was less than three feet deep where she landed, breaking her back and foot on impact. Despite her injuries, she kept swimming. Moments later, Pignato was rescued — she recalls a stranger comforting her on the beach. She was rushed to Halifax Health Medical Center of Daytona Beach for treatment and has since been overwhelmed with love and support for her act of bravery. The boy was rescued, but Pignato wants her story to inspire others to rise to the occasion to help. "To go out of their way to help people, if you see somebody hungry on the street and you have something extra, give it to them. If you see somebody sad, smile at them," said Pignato.

MAN CHASES ROD OVER, DIES

A man who jumped into the Intracoastal Waterway in West Palm Beach to retrieve his fishing pole near Summa Beach Park on Saturday has died. Caesor Allen, 68 of Boynton Beach, was transported to Good Samaritan Hospital where he was pronounced deceased. After Allen lost his pole, he jumped in the water and was caught in the undertow. He was pulled from the water within 10 minutes after he fell into the intracoastal waterway, said West Palm Beach Assistant Fire Chief Brent Bloomfield.

MANATEE SAVED FROM DITCH

(Fort Myers News-Press) — What could have been a lonely death for an 800-pound manatee instead ended with the aquatic mammal rescued from a shallow south Fort Myers drainage ditch where it was stranded April 15. Passersby walking along Brantley Road near Summerlin Road on Monday morning spotted the gray-brown sea cow floundering in the shallow water and called 911. Wes Weigel of Iowa said he was walking along Brantley when he saw something in the water. "I thought it was just a smooth rock," he said. "Then on closer look it was, wow, that's a manatee." The emergency call brought the South Trail Fire Department and FWC officers to the scene. "I thought it was misinformation at first," Nate Burley, division chief of fire and life safety for South Trail, said. "It was rather labor intensive; your boots stuck in the mud. And try moving an 800-pound manatee. They are a lot stronger than they look." The rescuers, standing for several hours in calf-deep muck and water, continually sprayed water over the manatee. When the early morning overcast burned off and the full sun bore down on the creature, several firefighters unfurled a tarp and held it over the animal. Biologists, officers, and firefighters helped lift the manatee. The mammal was to be taken to SeaWorld Orlando for a health assessment. Later on, an FWC official said the animal was healthy enough to be released immediately back into the wild.

The changes of life

FLORIDA IS WILD • CAPT. JOSH OLIVE

Recently I was with a fishing client out on the water. We were discussing everything we saw out there, not just the fishing stuff. One of those things was a flock of white ibises wading across the shallowest part of a grass flat. I told her a little about what kinds of things they like to feed on, and pointed out that the juveniles are a patchy brown color with dull orange bills and legs instead of pure white with salmon orange bills like the adults.

"Why?" she asked.

Well — um, I . . . I don't know. They just kind of are.

On the one hand, I hate it when someone asks me a question I can't answer. I like being the person who has the answers. But on the other hand, the only way to learn anything is to start by saying, "I don't know."

Changes that animals undergo as they transform from juveniles into adults are called ontogenetic. They include many things besides coloration. For example, turkeys develop wattles, beards and spurs. Many hoofed mammals grow horns. In humans, babies start out with proportionally huge heads and stubby limbs, then in puberty grow body hair and develop secondary sexual characteristics. Yes, that's right — you have experienced a lot of ontogenetic change for yourself.

Some species don't exhibit any ontogenetic changes once they grow past the earliest stages. Snook, for example, look like miniature versions of their parents from the time they're only 2 inches long. Others are so different as to be mistaken for separate species. The young of African pompano have threadlike fin extensions many times the length of the fish and have a much taller body profile.

Sometimes the changes have obvious usefulness. Black racer snakes, which are much more at risk from predators when they're young, start life with a blotchy camouflage pattern that helps them stay hidden. Adults, which depend on speed to stay safe, are a solid black color. Wouldn't they also benefit from camo? Sure — but apparently their dark color, which allows them to maximize heat absorption (important to a species which needs to be fast but is also cold-blooded), is more important.

Many other species utilize coloration this way: Babies stay hidden, adults stand out. In a lot of cases, the bright colors of adulthood serve to let others of the same species know the maturity level of another individual. A young male wood duck has dull coloration for the same reason most parents won't allow elementary-school girls to wear heavy makeup and low-cut tops: It sends a signal that's not age-appropriate. (By the way, this may be the reason for the color change in ibises.)

In other cases, the reasons for ontogenetic changes are much more cryptic. Why do young brown anoles often have bright orange heads? How does it benefit juvenile angelfish to have a totally different color and pattern from adults, yet they are just as brilliantly hued (in some cases, easier to spot than their parents). Dunno. Can't find anyone who does, either.

Most birdwatchers are keenly aware of ontogenetic color changes. Juveniles can look completely different, or the distinction might be as subtle as bill coloration going from orangey-yellow to yellow-orange. When you're out with bird nerds, you might hear things like, "Glaucous-winged gull, second summer." In that crowd, you're a lot cooler if you can tell the age of a bird from just its color. No one else understands, which is why birders flock together.

Sometimes the process goes awry. When an animal that would normally undergo ontogenetic change instead retains its juvenile characteristics, it's called neoteny. In most species, this is a rare abnormality. In others, it's become a way of life.

You're probably familiar with the life cycle of frogs: Adults lay eggs, the eggs hatch into tadpoles, the tadpoles sprout legs and become little frogs. The related salamanders have a similar cycle. One species of salamander called the axolotl always shows neoteny. Instead of losing its gills and crawling out onto dry land like the related tiger salamanders, it keeps its juvenile appearance all its life — and yet becomes sexually functional, which is why we still have axolotls around.

Another good example of neoteny is found in dogs. As part of the domestication process, we have repeatedly chosen animals that retain more juvenile characteristics such as rounded heads, floppy ears, waggy tails and smaller teeth. A comparison of dog and wolf skulls shows that even wolflike breeds such as Siberian huskies bear more similarities to wolf pups than to the big bad adults.

Did we cover all the reasons for ontogenetic changes? No, of course not. But hopefully we both know a little more about it that we did before. So thanks for asking a question I can't answer, even if it drives me just little more nuts than I already am.

WHY IT MATTERS

Baitfish aren't just "free bait" for us — they're also a crucial food source for predatory fish, including the gamefish we want to catch.

HOW WE HARM IT

Over-harvest of baitfish disrupts the natural feeding of gamefish and seabirds, forcing them to work harder for less food. Live chumming with baitfish also changes how and where fish (especially snook) feed and live.

MAKING BETTER CHOICES

It's OK to net and use live bait. The problem is how much is taken and how we use it. These tips will help ensure we have a healthy population.

- Take only what you need for the day's fishing.
- Don't overcrowd your well and kill baitfish pointlessly. Know your capacity.
- If bait dies in your well, put it in the cooler and save it for later. It's great chum for another day. Or donate it to a wildlife rescue organization.
- Avoid throwing a net with mesh that's too large. Gilled baits (called a "Christmas tree") rarely survive — bad for the bait and your net.
- Don't throw too much live chum. A small handful is more than enough most of the time. Better yet, avoid live chumming altogether.
- If you have leftover bait, release it on the flats. Bait released at the ramp will probably die.

ANGLING 201 • CAPT. STEVE 'PEGLEG' PHILLIPS

Live bait is much more effective when it's alive, so keep it that way.

We are approaching another hot Southwest Florida summer and as we all know it becomes very difficult to keep your bait alive. I thought it would be a good time to share some of the tips and tricks I use with live bait to keep it alive and spunky to attract the fish I'm targeting.

SHRIMP

Let me go ahead and get this out of the way first: The shrimp are going to get smaller as the summer months arrive. Just like us, they like to be cool. When the water heats up, the larger shrimp head out in the Gulf for the comfort of deeper, cooler, more oxygen-rich water. Yes, the shrimpers can still catch them, but when they come from deeper water they get the bends from the pressure and die. Instead, they'll be catching the little ones that live inshore. Just a heads up so you don't yell at the guys at the bait shop (because I'm one of those guys).

If I'm fishing from the shore, I keep my shrimp in a five-gallon bucket with a lid and a good aerator. I also freeze a bottle of water and put in in my bucket to keep the water cool. I try to avoid putting my shrimp in the Harbor water in summer — it's too hot and too fresh from all the rain we get.

If I'm in my boat, I'll keep my shrimp in the livewell but try to avoid running the water pick up. If your boat doesn't have an aerator in the well, you can purchase a 12-volt aerator and hook it to your batteries. Just be sure your well is plugged before you pour the water from the bait shop into it. If I do pump in water, I try to only do so in deeper water or near the Gulf.

If you're going to buy your shrimp the day before, put the shrimp in the house or in the fridge in the garage to keep them cool and healthy.

Another method that works great for shrimp is dry-packing. To do this, take a small cooler and place a couple frozen ice packs in the bottom. Get a clean towel (make sure it has not been washed with bleach or other harmful chemicals) and bring it with you to the bait shop. We'll wet the towel with salt water, wring it out and wrap your shrimp in the damp towel. Then you place them on top of the ice pack. Now, make sure it's not just ice. Ice is made from fresh water, and when it melts it will kill your shrimp. As long as the ice packs are cold and the towel is wet, your shrimp will stay alive for days.

TARPON CRABS

These things are expensive, so we want to keep them as healthy as possible. If they're kept in water, they can actually drown. I take a plastic storage container, wet a towel with salt water, and place it in the bottom of the container. I put the crabs on that damp towel, then wet another towel with salt water and place it over the top of them. Place the container in a cool location, preferably in the house. Shaded outdoor locations can also work. Make sure to keep the towels wet with salt water.

BAITFISH

Pinfish, threadfins and greenbacks can be tough to keep alive. The best advice I can give you on these is fill your livewell with water where you caught them keep a very good aerator on them. Don't run your water intake for the same reason as discussed earlier.

It's also important to limit the amount of bait in your well for two reasons: First, with fewer baits, it's easier to keep them alive, and second, to preserve the future of our baitfish.

FROZEN BAIT

Obviously, frozen bait isn't alive, but it needs proper care all the same. Put it in a good cooler with ice and only take out what you're going to actually use. Keep the rest in the cooler so it doesn't thaw out and get mushy.

Follow some of the simple procedures and you will have much more success with your bait this summer. Remember, get your kids hooked on fishing and they won't be able to afford drugs.

WE WANT YOUR PHOTOS!

Here's how it works: Take pictures of your outdoor adventures. Send your high-quality digital photos to Editor@WaterLineWeekly.com. DO NOT send us photos of oversized or other release-only fish being poorly handled. Photos of such fish being gaffed, held by the lower jaw only or obviously damaged or dead will not be published, no matter how big the fish or how proud the angler may be.

ANGLING 101 • ROBERT LUGIEWICZ

Jake Evans from Lake City, Minn., knows it's still loads of fun to go catch fish even if you can't keep them. This is the second big redfish he released while fishing with his Grampa.

How did we get so spoiled?

I can't catch any fish to eat because the seasons are all closed! Why do I have to drive so far to find good fishing? I want to catch a tarpon but I can't find any where I want to fish! Why does everything always happen to me?

When did we get so spoiled? Sure, things aren't perfect, but there's a lot of opportunity out there on Southwest Florida waters. To snub them because we can't have them served to us on a silver platter by a well-bred English butler is petty and ultimately self-defeating.

So, what's closed? Snook, redfish and trout over 20 inches long. That's it. Let's take a look at how that really affects us.

The bag limit on redfish is only one anyway. How much food does one 25-inch redfish really provide? With snook, most anglers are lucky to catch one legal slot fish during a season. What's the difference in the fillet you get from a 20-inch trout versus an 18-inch trout? You can keep four of those 18-inchers. And yet, people are staying off the water entirely because they have a mental block that it's not worth fishing if they can't keep a redfish.

Most anglers release most of their fish anyway. I get it that some folks don't like having the choice taken away from them. But if it's a fish dinner you want, there are alternatives.

Mangrove snapper are plentiful inshore. So are Spanish mackerel, at least for the time being. A short trip into the Gulf to catch grunts and porgies from the nearshore reefs is a realistic proposition. Bonnethead and blacktip sharks are abundant and tasty. Black drum are around also.

Here's a thing: Most of us refuse to eat saltwater catfish because we've been told they're no good. Can you imagine what this place was like a thousand years ago? The huge schools of redfish, snook under every bush – all the fish you could possibly want. And yet, in the waste piles left behind by Native Americans living here at the time, one of the common items is catfish spines. They could have had any shallow-water species they wanted. They chose the catfish. That's gotta say something.

Sometimes you may have to travel to get to where a specific species of fish is. Yes, maybe it's easier to fish close to home. But it's not like you have to hitch up a horse and take a wagon 25 miles or walk there. You have a vehicle that can take you there.

The internal combustion engine has made life so much simpler. Turn the key, apply pressure to the throttle, and off you go. Think about how much you take that for granted, and how much harder it used to be to get around, and it doesn't seem like you have things so tough any more.

Some fish are harder to find than others. Tarpon are often near the top of that list. They're very powerful swimmers, and they range widely. It's not unusual for an individual fish to move from the river mouth to the open Gulf over the course of a few hours. When you're dealing with a fish that moves as far and as quickly as that, then of course you have to expect to spend a bit of time looking for them.

We have always sought to make our lives easier and more simplified. In many ways, we have succeeded. But the more we do that, the more we seem to expect all of life to be that way.

Fishing is not. It's never going to be — at least, not for longer than brief moments. It's the challenge that makes it such an appealing activity anyway. Stop complaining. Embrace that it can be difficult, and that is one of the top reasons to go do it anyway.

Snook and redfish will eventually be back on the menu. But you'll never be able to get this time back. Get out there and fish anyway. Ignore the small annoyances, which is really what they work out to be in the overall scheme of things.

We are blessed to live in a land of plenty, and we should be thankful for it. But since we're all toddlers at heart, we instead focus on the things we want but can't have. Well, it's time to grow up. If you count your blessings instead of your hardships, you'll be much happier.

OUTDOOR NEWS BULLETIN BOARD

If you have an event you want included in the Outdoor News Bulletin Board, email it to Editor@WaterLineWeekly.com

EL JOBEAN FISHING PIER CLOSED

The El Jobean Fishing Pier and parking lot will be closed April 23 and 24 for parking lot repairs. There will be no access to the fishing pier during this time. It will reopen April 25. For information, contact Michelle Long at 941-639-5828 or Michelle.Long@CharlotteCountyFL.gov.

AUDUBON SOCIETY MEETS

The April meeting of the Peace River Audubon Society, scheduled for 6:30 p.m. April 18 at First Alliance Church (20444 Midway Blvd., Port Charlotte), will feature a presentation titled "Love is in the Air" by Reinier Munguia. Reinier is a full-time naturalist and nature photographer whose work has appeared in books, magazines and scientific publications. Everyone is welcome. For more info, call Mike at 863-244-2652 or visit PeaceRiverAudubonSociety.org.

AUDUBON YARD SALE

The volunteers of the Peace River Audubon Society are holding a yard sale of miscellaneous items plus plants and baked goods at Audubon-Pennington Nature Park (1153 Alton Road, Port Charlotte) from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. April 20. Proceeds from the sale are to benefit the butterfly garden as well as the raised planters in the parking lot with native plants to attract butterflies. For more info, email Cindy at cinmac18@gmail.com.

ID BIRDS WITH VENICE AUDUBON

The next meeting of the Venice Audubon Society will be held from 6 to 8:30 p.m. April 23 at the Venice Audubon Center on Annex Road (behind the R.L. Anderson Admin Bldg). A PowerPoint presentation with active participation will cover the eight woodpecker species that are found in Florida. Come test your ID skillls, learn key field marks, and some fun facts. There is a good chance that there will be some surprises. There will be a quiz or two, so take good notes! The public is welcome and there is no charge. Call 941-496-8984 for more info.

BIRDING TALK IN NORTH PORT

North Port Friends of Wildlife will sponsor a talk by Bob Clark from 6 to 7:30 p.m. April 23 at the Shannon Staub Library (4675 Career Lane, North Port). Bob, a member of the Venice Area Audubon Society chapter, will bring us up to date on that chapter — who they are, what they do and will include news of their bird rookery. In addition, he will speak about eBird, Cornell's Lab of Ornithology's bird sighting reporting/tracking website/app (eBird.org), including the benefits of using it and how to use it. Currently, North Port has very little statistical reporting input into eBird and we want to change that. No cost; the public is welcome to attend.

WALK AT TIPPECANOE

Join Kate Borduas on a guided walk through 308-acre Tippecanoe Environmental Park at 9 a.m. April 24. This Charlotte County park includes habitats such as scrub, pine flatwoods, marsh and wetlands. Meet behind the Charlotte County Sports Park (2400 El Jobean Road, Port Charlotte). For directions or more info, call 941-475-0769.

ARBOR DAY EXPO

UF/IFAS Extension Charlotte County will be holding their annual Arbor Day Expo from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. April 26 at the Environmental Campus (25550 Harbor View Road, Port Charlotte). This year's expo will have something for everyone, such as plant vendors, demonstrations providing tips on planting and pruning, and a Master Gardener plant clinic. There is no cost to come to the expo. There will be free trees given out to participants who take part in tree planting demo (choice of three different varieties, while supplies last). For more info, call 941.764.4340 or visit Charlotte.ifas.ufl.edu.

CELEBRATE EARTH DAY WITH AUDUBON

The Peace River Audubon Society will be holding an Earth Day hike at 8 a.m. April 27. This year's Earth Day theme is "Protect Our Species." Participants should meet at Deep Creek Preserve (10797 SW Peace River Street, Arcadia). Deep Creek Preserve is a 2,000-acre property managed by Southwest Florida Water Management District. Florida Naturalist Jamie Reynolds will be leading the group along easy wide trails of pine flatwoods, oak scrub and under ancient moss-draped oaks. Participants are encouraged to pack a lunch to enjoy in the picnic area under the large oaks following the hike. If a cooking fire is allowed, there will be hot dogs served at 4 p.m. Bring your chair, binoculars and stories to share as we celebrate Earth Day 2019. No cost; all are welcome. Call Nancy Turner at 941-627-9107 for more info.

VOLUNTEERS NEED FOR FISHING CLINIC

CHNEP seeks ambassadors to share their love of fishing at our sustainable fishing clinic, planned for April 27. Morning and afternoon shifts available. The clinic will be held at The Big Calusa, a week-long celebration of the Caloosahatchee River at North Shore Park, 13001 N. Cleveland Ave., (North Fort Myers). Volunteers will teach skills like casting, knot tying, hook safety, fish ID and more. Participating kids will receive a free rod and reel. You can register to help out at http://bit.ly/2OuSvzV.

TREE FAIR 2019

People for Trees, a non-profit native tree advocacy group that has been sponsoring tree festivals since 1999, will host Tree Fair 2019 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 27 at the North Port Community Education Center (4940 Pan American Blvd., North Port). Hundreds of 3-gallon native trees (approx. 6 to 8 feet tall) will be for sale for only $15 each; Florida sweetgum, American elm, bald cypress, slash pine, southern red cedar, red maple, dahoon holly, pignut hickory. Alice White, chair of People for Trees since its inception in 1997, will lead a number of informational "walk and talks" about the trees that will be for sale so attendees can choose just the right trees for their yards. Attendees can see the correct way to plant a tree at a demonstration plot. Arborists from Simply Trees will be doing tree-climbing demonstrations throughout the morning, from 10 to noon, and be available to answer questions about tree pruning, maintaining a healthy tree, etc. There will be a "Fairy Gathering" at 11 a.m. led by "Rev. Faerie" Elaine Silver who will also provide the musical entertainment. For more info, contact Alice at 941-468-2486, treelady12001@yahoo.com or visit PeopleForTrees.com.

EARTH DAY SUNDAY FESTIVAL

The sixth annual Englewood Earth Day Sunday Festival will be held from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 28 at Buchan's Community Park (1390 Old Englewood Road, Englewood). As in years past, the festival will feature guest speakers who will hold forth on such subjects as wildlife rescue and rehabilitation (presented by Peace River Wildlife Center; Florida garden medicine from the point of view of Cristina Babiak, M.D.; the plight of vanishing species such as the threatened gopher tortoise and Florida scrub jay; and a goat milking opportunity (by local goat rancher Nicole Kastor and her team of 4H volunteers). No cost; bring your kids and your arms — trees to hug will be provided. For more info, contact B. Shawn Clark, Assistant Englewood Earth Day Sunday Coordinator, at Clark@PlanetEnglewood.com or 941-404-4704.

ENGLEWOOD EARTH DAY FESTIVAL

The Englewood Earth Day Festival celebrates sustainability with family-friendly activities, raffles and demonstrations. The event is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. April 28 at Buchan's Community Park (1390 Old Englewood Road, Englewood). CHNEP needs your help to spread the word about clean water and plastic pollution! Sign up as an ambassador to assist at our educational booth for the event — let's make every day Earth Day! Morning and afternoon shifts available. To volunteer, go to http://bit.ly/2Yskghd.

CAPT. JOSH SPEAKS AT CG AUX MEETING

The next meeting of Flotilla 98 of the Coast Guard Auxiliary will be held at 7 p.m. May 1 at the Punta Gorda Isles Civic Association (2001 Shreve Street, Punta Gorda). The flotilla will welcome Capt. WATER QUALITY MONITORS NEEDED

The health of Lemon Bay is important to us all. Each month volunteers monitor the water quality at sites from Alligator Creek in Venice to Bull Bay in Placida to see that it stays that way. On the first Monday of each month, trained volunteers travel to one of 16 sites to test the water for various parameters such as pH, dissolved oxygen, salinity, etc. This information is collected and stored in a database with the Florida DEP. Most sites are land-based and no boat is necessary. All that is need is an interest in our waters and a commitment of 1 to 2 hours per month. A training session for those interested in assisting in the Volunteer Water Quality Monitoring Network will be conducted at 10 a.m. May 2 at Cedar Point Environmental Park (2300 Placida Road, Englewood). Call 941-475-0769 for more info.

MOMS CRUISE FREE

King Fisher Fleet, headquartered at Fishermen's Village in Punta Gorda, invites all moms to cruise for free in honor of Mother's Day. We think mothers deserve more than just one day of celebration, so we are offering free cruises for moms all of Mother's Day weekend.! Here's the schedule: Friday, May 10: 7 p.m. Sunset Cruise, 90 minutes | Saturday, May 11: 9 a.m. Cabbage Key, full day; 1 p.m. Harbor Tour, 90 minutes; 7 p.m. Sunset Cruise, 90 minutes | Sunday, May 12: 9 a.m. Cabbage Key, full day; 9 a.m. Cayo Costa, full day; 2 p.m. Harbor Tour, 90 minutes; 4 p.m. Harbor Tour, 90 minutes; 7 p.m. Sunset Cruise, 90 minutes. All moms cruise free on all of the above listed cruises with full-price paid accompanying ticket. Advance reservations are recommended. For more info about the special Mother's Day offer, call 941-639-0969.

PADDLE THE PEACE RIVER ROOKERIES

Paddle with the Greater Charlotte Harbor Sierra Club on May 24 down to the rookeries to see active nest-building and hatching, and then up side channels or the river to the Nav-A-Gator for lunch. Return via a different Peace River route. Free and the public is invited. Donations to the Sierra Club always gratefully accepted. Participants must provide own watercraft and PFD, and be able to swim. Reservations required; call 941-637-8805.

SAILING SUMMER CAMP

Hey, kids: Learn to sail or improve your skills on Lemon Bay this summer. Registration is now open for youths ages 10 to 17 at the Englewood SKY Family YMCA (701 Medical Blvd., Englewood). Camps provide supervised instruction in the fundamentals of sailing, boat handling, water safety, seamanship and environmental awareness. Instruction is provided by adult US Sailing certified instructors trained in CPR/First Aid. The ability to swim is required. There will be three weeklong sessions: June 10-14, June 24-28 and July 8-12. During each session, camp will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily. Cost for each session is $150 per camper. Camps are held at the ESA Sailing Center (Indian Mound Park, 210 Winson Ave., Englewood). For more info, contact Hugh Moore at 941-500-9622 or the Englewood Y at 941-475-1234. Sessions are limited to 22 campers each.

LEARN TO FISH CAMPS

Charlotte Harbor Environmental Center will be once again offering week-long "Learn to Fish" camps for children ages 8 to 13 at Cedar Point Environmental Park (2300 Placida Road, Englewood). Knot tying, fish identification, cast netting, rods and reels, and more will be delivered through games, practice and time surf fishing in Lemon Bay. These catch-and-release camps teach sustainable fishing practices in collaboration with the FWC protocol with the assistance of local fishing guides. There will be three weeklong sessions: June 10-14, June 24-28 and July 8-12. During each session, camp will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily. Cost for each session is $150 per camper for non-CHEC members or $135 for CHEC members. Pre- and post-care will be available for additional cost. For more info, call 941-475-0769 or email Bobbi@CHECflorida.org.

FREE VESSEL SAFETY CHECKS

The Coast Guard Auxiliary is conducting free vessel safety checks in Englewood. They'll make sure the safety equipment mandated by federal and state regulations is onboard. If an inspected vessel is found to be safe, a "Seal of Safety" decal is awarded to the boat owner and affixed in a prominent location. For more info or to schedule an appointment, call Bill Shaw at 941-474-2705 or email ShawCo1@att.net. Visit Flotilla 87 at CoastGuardEnglewood.com for more info.

CHEC NEEDS VOLUNTEERS

Enjoy learning about and teaching others about nature? Looking for a fun and educational way to meet like minded people? Consider becoming a volunteer with Charlotte Harbor Environmental Center at Cedar Point Park (2300 Placida Road, Englewood). Office volunteers work shifts from 8:30 a.m. to noon or noon to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday. Volunteers can work one shift per week or just a shift a month. Volunteers are need as trail guides to lead guided nature walks through several local Charlotte County properties. These are usually from 9 to 11 a.m. on various days of the week. If interested, a training session will be scheduled. You will learn some plants, animals and interpretive techniques to help you lead these "walks in the woods." Contact Bobbi Rodgers at 941-475-0769 or Bobbi@CHECflorida.org.

FROM HOOK TO TABLE • CHEF TIM SPAIN

I did a lot of bass fishing while growing up in Zolfo Springs. We had a couple ponds that we could fish, but we weren't allowed to keep the bass because they stocked ponds and we wanted them to stay that way. If we wanted to catch some bass to eat, Dad would take us to the river or Charlie Creek. When he had the time, he'd haul us all the way over to Sebring in his old green 1974 F-100 dragging a jon boat.

Back then and still to this day, my favorite bass bait other than shiners is a purple firetail Culprit worm with a purple bullet weight in front of that weedless hook. When we were kids, my brother and I wore out a few Zebco 202s reeling those worms around looking for a bite.

When we got a bit older, we got the bright idea that we had to have baitcasters because that was what we saw ol' Bill Dance using while fishing on TV. We kept after Dad about those baitcasters.

I guess he'd heard enough, because one day he said, "Alright, here are two baitcasters that have plugs on them with the hooks cut off. Go out in the yard and learn to cast them. I'll bet it won't be long before you two knuckleheads will be asking for those 202s back."

He was right, I still don't own one. I'm the king of the bird's nest. My brother Tom can throw a baitcaster pretty well, but I gave up trying a long time ago.

When I was 7 years old, my brother and I were fishing one of our ponds. Tommy had a Snoopy pole that actually had Snoopy on it. His little pole bent over and line was ripping out of that little reel. I jumped in front of him and grabbed the line to help pull in whatever was on the other end. Tommy started hitting me in the back up the head with the Snoopy pole and yelling, "Stop trying to steal my fish!"

By then we had the fish almost to shore. He started walking backwards and pulled about a 10-pound bass up onto the bank. We were so excited that even though Grandpa had told us not to take any fish, we did anyway because we wanted to show it to Dad. We took the bass in the house and put it in the bathtub and filled it up.

Mom came back from the neighbors and started yelling at us when we she found that bass swimming in her bathtub. We laughed as she grabbed the bass and headed back to the pond to release it. However, Tom and I didn't know what chlorine was, and it killed the fish.

Mom then said, "Well, it's dead and I guess we're going to have to eat it. Before we do, let's take it to Gran and Pa's store in Ona and show it to them." Gran and Pa were my maternal great-grandparents .

Tom and I have always kept a Snoopy pole ever since that day — they've just been upgraded. The one I have has an older Stradic Ci4+ on it. He says I'm cheating, but I say we didn't establish any rules.

At our house, Dad always fried the fish and always had some hushpuppies to go with it. He'd give us some to hush us up while we were waiting for the fish to get done frying. They work just as well on kids as they do on dogs.

HUSHPUPPIES

WaterLine

— Recipe by Chef Tim Spain

3/4 cup cornmeal
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
2 tbsp sugar
1/4 tsp baking powder
1/4 tsp cayenne
1/4 tsp salt
1/4 cup chopped onion
1 lightly beaten egg
1/2 cup buttermilk

Combine all the dry ingredients, then combine all the wet ingredients. Finally, combine the wet with the dry. Use a serving spoon to portion your hushpuppies and fry them at 375° until they are floating in the hot oil.

PAN-FRIED LARGEMOUTH BASS

WaterLine

— Recipe by Chef Tim Spain

4 bass fillets (about 8 oz each)
1 cup all-purpose flour, divided
3 eggs
1 tbsp Everglades seasoning
1 tsp salt
1/2 cup seasoned flour (pre-mixed or make your own)
1/4 cup corn meal
1/4 tsp baking powder
1 quart frying oil

In a large cast iron skillet, carefully heat your oil to 375 degrees. While it's heating, set up your flouring station. Place 1/2 cup of flour in a shallow dish. Mix the seasoned flour, Everglades, salt, baking powder and cornmeal together. Crack the eggs into a shallow bowl and beat them well. Remember to watch the oil and don't overheat it. Pat the fillets dry. One at a time, dredge the fillets in plain flour, then coat with the egg wash, then dredge in the seasoned flour and cornmeal mix. Carefully place them in your hot oil and cook on both sides for 1.5 minutes.

AT THE RANGE • BILLY CARL

Come on, man — you've got to be kidding Nope, they are actually really still here. Flashback to the 1950s and duck hunting or just shotgunning in general. Paper shells were the norm. When fired, they had a particular smell or aroma that was special and really brings back early memories. I was just a kid, but I can still remember the smell — kind of sweet toasted walnuts and burnt wax or candles mixed together. Nothing like plastic shells.

Actually paper shells go way back. They were commercially introduced in the 1870s as a lower cost and lighter alternative to brass shells. Commercial versions were lightly coated with wax to help with water resistance. They remained widely used until the introduction of plastic shells in 1960. In muzzleloading class, the instructor had us make some shotgun shells using the paper from a phone book page. If you were really careful, they worked just fine.

I didn't realize it, but the paper shells really never did die out completely. Companies such as RST in Friendsville, Pa., cater to paper shell aficionados, offering options in a range of gauges, including some with No. 6 shot (very popular with ring-necked pheasant hunters).

We don't have wild pheasants here in Florida. But in the northern and prairie states, pheasant is a real popular hunt with dogs that make it a true art form. I have hunted pen-raised pheasants in Florida but it's not the same (just like pen-raised quail can't begin to match wild birds).

The interest in paper shells with some real serious shotgunners remained strong enough that even some of the large manufacturers have rolled out new versions lately. Last year Federal revamped its Gold Medal Grand Paper brand, and RIO Ammunition introduced its line of Vintage 1896 paper shells. Kind of like some old wine that tastes really good.

While the old shooters like me find them, nostalgic the young shotgunners say, "Wow, these are really cool." Nostalgia aside, there are other reasons that the paper shells persist. They have kept a following in the ever-popular world of trap and skeet because the softer hulls can reduce felt recoil compared to plastic. In high-volume tournaments, shooters' shoulders maybe only get a little yellow instead of black and blue.

As environmental concerns about plastic continue to grow, paper shells may well be in a position for a bigger future. Despite all our efforts to pick up our plastic shell casings, many times for various reasons they (or at least some of them) get left behind. With more hunters becoming conservation-minded, biodegradable products can't help but become more popular — especially around water.

All this being said there are still some problems with the paper shell casings. They cost more at the present to produce, and even when coated with wax, some guns (especially auto-loaders) have problems digesting the paper hulls reliably. I have, however, read some good reports of shooters who really liked how the RIO shells shot and performed on clay birds.

I recently got to give some a try, and you should too. When you yell "Pull!" and the clay bird shatters, don't forget to take a whiff of the smell. For me, it brought back good memories of the old days and good duck hunts or pheasants rising out of a field and, of course, old great gun dogs too.

Safe shooting.

SHRIMP QUICHE

A clip-n-save seafood recipe provided by WaterLine

2 9-inch pie crusts
1-1/2 cups heavy cream
1 tbsp butter
1 tbsp fresh tarragon, chopped
1/2 cup onion, chopped
1 tbsp fresh basil, chopped
1/2 cup bell pepper, chopped
1 tbsp fresh parsley, chopped
1/2 cup mushrooms
1 tsp salt
1/2 cup tomatoes, chopped and peeled
1 tsp black pepper
1 cup shrimp, peeled and chopped
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese, optional
3 eggs, lightly beaten

Sauté chopped vegetables and shrimp in butter until soft and shrimp is cooked. Remove from heat, drain off any excess liquid and cool. In a bowl, combine eggs, cream, herbs, and spices. Stir in cooled vegetables and shrimp; pour mixture into prepared pie crust. Sprinkle with cheese and cover with other pie crust, crimp edges to seal crust and cut four slits in top crust to allow steam to escape. Bake in 400°F oven for 35-40 minutes until crust is golden brown. Let stand 15 minutes before serving. Yields 6 servings.

What would you change?

THE RV LIFESTYLE • GREG BARTZ

Photo provided

You can bet the owner of this little camper wishes for more space, at least sometimes. But every positive change you make also has negative consequences: More expense, more things to break, a bigger load to tow, etc.

Even if your RV is perfect, it could still be better

So, you bought your RV, and for a while you thought it was the most amazing thing on the road. Now you have owned it for a while and, if you're like me, you probably wish you could change a few things. That's where I'm at with our RV: Love it, but wish I had a few other things to make it even more special.

Let's just put this out there right away. I am getting older and I think I am getting to that point in my life where I want to be much more spoiled. I want all the luxury comfort items I have at home when I'm in the RV. Maybe I'm taking it a little over the top — but hey, why not? We love being out and about, and I simply want all I can have when we are out and away.

What would I add? I would start with space. We have a 24-foot unit with one closet and two drawers for our clothes. Actually, we have more than that, but we never seem to utilize the cabinet space above the bed. Maybe that's me just being an idiot about things because we have more space than I think we do. But the truth is those cabinets are inconvenient, so we never use them.

Outside of the space issue, I would love a bigger refrigerator. We have a single-door small unit with one freezer shelf above the refrigerated area and that's it. My wife loves to cook creatively. Even when we travel, she likes to have a wide assortment of seasonings and spices. We simply don't have that space for all that stuff. The refrigerator works great if we're going to be gone for a few days. But when we travel for a week at a time, we just don't have the refrigerator or freezer space to take everything along that we'd like to.

Have you seen RVs with a small refrigerator and sink that are outside of the living space? You know, where you lift up the compartment lid and you have the sink and refrigerator outside. I love those. As much as we sit outside, we do not have the TV nor the outside refrigerator on our unit. I see them on a lot of the newer RVs. That's one thing that I can't wait to have when we finally decide to upgrade. Talk about easy. We would get more use out of that outside refrigerator than we would on the one inside.

I also want a couch. Right now we have a table that can be removed, and the dining area then becomes your living room area once the table is gone. I want those to be separate entities. That is something that my wife and I both want. We know that to get it, we'll need to step into a bigger RV, which we will do at some point in time.

We all have ideals that we would love to have satisfied. I look at it this way: Missy and I are fortunate to have the things we do. I want to take care of the things that we have. That doesn't stop me from wanting to have something just a little better when I know that it's obtainable. But, like everything else in life, the timing has to be right. We aren't quite there yet, but we're getting closer.

Here's to hoping that you all have what makes you happy, and you are doing what makes you happy. I know that when I'm in the RV and the boat is in tow, I'm extremely happy. I'm looking forward to more days like that.

Meet the mangrove family

Photo provided

ASK YOUR SEA GRANT AGENT • BETTY STAUGLER

Mangroves are woody plants which are found along almost every coast that has a tropical or subtropical climate. Worldwide, there are approximately 50 species of mangroves. The most diverse location for mangroves is the Indo-Pacific region, containing approximately 40 different species. Somewhat less diverse are the mangrove regions of West Africa, the Caribbean, and the Americas, containing around eight different mangrove species.

Three true species of mangroves comprise the Florida mangrove forests, along with a forth mangrove associate, the buttonwood (Conocarpus erecta). Florida's mangrove species, which are described in detail below, are the red mangrove (Rhizophora mangle), the black mangrove (Avicennia germinans), and the white mangrove (Laguncularia racemosa).

Mangroves are among our most important trees. They are the backbone and protector of estuaries. They purify water, prevent shoreline erosion, provide habitat for many birds and animals, and sequester carbon. Additionally, mangroves support our recreational and commercial fisheries, and provide tourism opportunities.

The mangrove environment is characterized by unstable and anaerobic (without oxygen) sediments, fluctuating water levels, and waters high in salt concentrations. To survive in these harsh environments, mangroves have evolved adaptations to their root systems to deal with the anaerobic soils, mechanisms for maintaining salt balance, and reproductive dispersal strategies. Interestingly, individual species have evolved different solutions to these same problems.

RED MANGROVES

The red mangrove is generally found closest to the water and is probably best known for its "walking" prop roots. Prop roots support the plant in mucky sediments and have pores called lenticels which allow gas exchange with the buried roots. The red mangrove separates fresh water from salt water by salt exclusion in a process known as nonmetabolic ultra-filtration (similar to reverse osmosis).

Red mangroves produce yellow flowers. After pollination, a small fruit, and a 12- to 18-inch propagule is formed. The propagule is an embryo which begins germination and development while still attached to the tree in a process known as vivipary. Once the propagule breaks away from the tree, it floats freely for up to a year before being washed ashore, where it develops roots and becomes a new mangrove plant.

BLACK MANGROVE

The black mangrove is most easily recognized by its system of shallow aerial roots, called pneumatophores (say "new-MAT-uh-forz"), which extend like fingers up from the sediments. These pneumatophores provide oxygen to the buried root system. Black mangroves generally occupy a slightly higher elevation than red mangroves. In these higher soils, salt deposits accumulate. Black mangroves excrete salt from salt glands on the leaf surface (if you lick a leaf, it's very salty).

The leaves of this mangrove are dull green to gray, and the flowers are a creamy white and form clusters at the branch tips. These flowers produce a fruit resembling a lima bean which functions as its propagule. Like the red mangrove, black mangroves utilize vivipary and propagule dispersal reproductive strategies.

WHITE MANGROVE

The white mangrove usually grows more inland behind the red and black mangroves. White mangroves are the smallest of the three Florida mangrove species, rarely reaching 50 feet in height. White mangroves have yellowish green leaves that contain two small nodules at the leaf stalk, which serve as nectar glands.

White mangroves typically do not exhibit aerial roots. However, in deeper or stagnant waters, some may express roots similar in appearance and function to the black mangrove pneumatophores. White mangroves use the same salt-excreting and reproduction strategies as exhibited by their black mangrove counterparts.

Mangrove soils have a characteristic black color and nose-turning smell. Because mangrove soils are perpetually waterlogged, there is not much free oxygen available. Aerobic bacteria use up any available oxygen quickly. Anaerobic bacteria (which need an low-oxygen environment) perform many important functions. In doing so, they produce sulfur dioxide, which is that rotten-egg smell familiar to most of us. In addition to being particularly pungent, sulfur dioxide also creates conditions hostile to most other plants — giving mangroves a competitive edge in the coastal environment.

What do patients think about Audibel Hearing Aids?

Rosalie

"I was fit with custom Audibel hearing aids. I survived polio at age 20 and was told I would not hear in my left ear. With my new Audibel hearing aids I hear better than ever. My family and I are very happy and thankful for Audibel."

Mina

"I am as happy as could be. I've been laughing, I've been talking, I've been listening, it's a miracle and I never expected it to be so good! I've been talking to people a lot more. It's opened up a whole new world! Audibel has made me a very happy person!"

Render

"My new Audibel hearing system is the absolute best thing I have ever done for my hearing. I thank you so very much for your care and professionalism. I would recommend going to Audibel if you need hearing aids."

THE PATIENT JOURNEY PHILOSOPHY

1. Patients are the most important people in our practice, whether we are caring for them in person or over the telephone.
2. Patients do not depend on us. We depend on them.
3. Patients are not an interruption of our work. They are the purpose for our work.
4. Patients favor us with their patronage. We are fortunate to have the opportunity to serve them.
5. Patients come to us for help and guidance. We are to provide it with patience and compassion.
6. Patients will always be treated with dignity. They are human beings with needs, feelings, and emotions like our own.
7. Patients are not people we argue with. They are people we listen to in order to understand their unique needs.
8. Patients are people who bring us their needs. It is our job to identify and fill those needs.
9. Patients are deserving of the most courteous and attentive experience we can give them.
10. Patients are not just a part of our practice, they are a part of our family.

Steve Peet

"When my wife ordered me to come to Audibel to get aids, I fought her at every turn. Finally, I gave in and lucky I did! The aids have been a godsend for me! They help me so much and I cannot go without them."

Felicia Vick-Mitchell

"Audibel's hard work, dedication and going above and beyond for me are indescribable, and I am and will forever be thankful."

Albert Marcantonio

"I am so completely satisfied with all aspects of my association with Audibel – beginning with the friendly service from the front desk, to the professionalism in the overwhelming examination equipment room."

Dorothy Kenesie

"My new Audibel hearing aids are beautiful and wonderful! I can hardly feel them and can't even see them. It's almost like my own natural hearing is back."

Eileen Wood

"I have been pleased with everything and the best of all is that I can hear and understand others, including the telephone."

Thomas Coughlin

"I had hearing aids for approximately 4-5 years. I had purchased these from Audibel and continued to go there for service. My experience has been OUTSTANDING."

Helen Morse

"I didn't realize how poorly I was hearing until I started wearing Audibel aids. I love them and they have made a big difference in my everyday life."

Bonnie Novak

"My hearing aids have brought about the most remarkable change to my life. Since I purchased them I feel more confident when I'm out in a crowd because I don't feel like I'm missing out on anything."

Carolyn Roberts

"I want to thank Audibel for giving me back my hearing. At age 81 I wasn't the easiest listener. The specialist was very patient bringing me through the process."

Douglas Willis

"I wish I would have come in a long time ago, but I kept putting it off – now I'm so glad to be able to understand and enjoy things around me. I can hear the birds sing and talk to my wife, grandkids, and kids."

Marjorie & Charles Johnson

"We have never had hearing tests like the specialist at Audibel gave us. We now hear sounds we never heard before."

Frances Ingallinera

"I have had hearing aids for about 40 years. For TV I relied on closed captioning. Since I have been wearing the new aids, I find myself listening to TV and not relying on the captioning."

Catherine Brownell

"They are small, comfortable, adjustable, and let me know when I need batteries. I would highly recommend Audibel."

Terry Muse

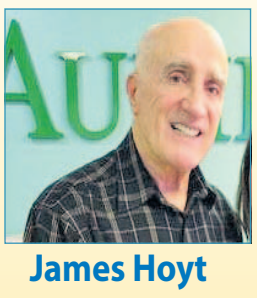
"The personnel are so friendly and helpful. I would recommend Audibel to anyone looking for a rewarding experience – easy, affordable and hassle FREE."

Bobby Giggleman

"I am hearing sounds I haven't heard in years. I am able to enjoy being around people and hear complete conversations. You never know how much of life you miss when you can't hear."

Janice Clark

"Any problems incurred are handled with a friendly attitude and properly dealt with too. Complete satisfaction with the hearing aids and the expertise and kindness of my specialist."



James Hoyt

"I first began wearing Audibel hearing aids when I was a professor and traveled internationally to teach. Audibel provided me an international number and representatives in many nations to help me if I encountered issues while travelling and teaching abroad. I have found all staff members to be helpful and accommodating."

Brent Tharp

"Losing some of my hearing was devastating and depressing for me. I was plagued at an early age – running into my adulthood with chronic ear problems. I thought that was just how life was supposed to be. Until, I met the professional staff at Audibel."

J. Michelle Cianfarra

"I lost a great deal of my hearing in a vehicle accident ten years ago. This new set of Audibel wireless, Bluetooth-enabled hearing aids have given me a better hearing experience with greater variety than I had with my last pair (which were not Audibel's). I feel refreshed since wearing my new Audibel hearing aids. I don't feel as if I'm relying on other means of communication as I was before. They have enhanced my living experience as I come in contact with others every day and can communicate better all because I hear so much better than I did before. The friendly staff are customer-service oriented and help me with my hearing challenges. Thank you for this experience."

Evelyn Straughn

"I am so glad I have Audibel Hearing Aids. I now know I have missed a lot by not hearing what goes on. I would recommend them to anyone and I'm very pleased with the ongoing help with any questions or concerns."
