WINTER HAVEN – Three legislators representing Polk County spoke about the 2018 Florida Legislative Session April 4 at the Chain of Lakes Complex. Legislative sessions, generally speaking, are the two months of the year when bills are sent to the governor to be signed into law.

May. In even years like 2018, they can start whenever. The 2018 session began in January and ended in early March.

“It was a very difficult session,” said Sen. Kelli Stargel (R-Winter Haven). “I would say of all the sessions that I have been a part of this one was the most challenging.”

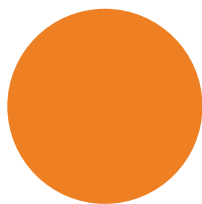

What made the 2018 session so unusual was that in the middle of it, 17 Floridians were murdered in Parkland sparking an uproar of emotions that led to a demand for fast action. Had the tragedy happened last week instead of in February, for example, only a special session ordered by the governor could have led to a law being passed that quickly.

Sen. Stargel and Representatives Mike LaRosa (R-Lake Wales) and Sam Killebrew (R-Winter Haven) all said they were proud of the recently passed gun legislation

In odd years they begin in early March and end in

THE EDUCATION CONNECTION

Cafe' Bleu Culinary Arts Academy: the food creatives

WELCOME TO A SERIES ON EDUCATION ...

sponsored by the Greater Winter Haven Area Chamber of Commerce and Sun Central Media Group. In this space, you will meet some of the area's schools and see how you can get involved. Schools need help from their communities to succeed. And a successful school helps build tomorrow's workforce.

By KATHY LEIGH BERKOWITZ
KLBERKOWITZ@SCMGINC.COM

Students in The Cafe' Bleu Culinary Arts Academy at Winter Haven High School get a chance of a lifetime as they meet the world of food creativity.

The program sees about 350 students a year, and the courses provide a chance for students to grow their reading and writing skills to prepare them for finding and keeping a "meaningful" job.

Culinary Academy teachers are Sandy Brown and Betsy Zinsmeister.

Principal is Gina Williams.

Courses include topics such as safety and sanitation, employability skills, different cuisines, measuring and reading recipes. "The students learn to apply these skills as we learn in both residential and industrial kitchens," said Williams.

"Each year is filled with guest speakers, culinary vocabulary, and applied learning. We host culinary events, learn how to clean and maintain a kitchen, sample new foods and flavors, and have field trips to explore the opportunities available after high school. The Cafe' Bleu Academy encourages students to step outside of their culinary routines and try something new."

The school says that the community could help the Culinary Academy by providing people who are willing to come to the school and tell the students about their successes and experiences in the culinary field. "We would also greatly appreciate donations of food and money to help provide the students with varied labs and more opportunities within the culinary field," says the principal. The students are also always looking for related job opportunities in which they can get hands on experience.

AUTISM DIARY

Dear Diary of an Autism Mom,

Editor's Note: Every week during the month of April, we will feature a diary entry written by the parents of an autistic child. This is in honor of Autism Awareness Month.

Real life autism. Wow. I was asked to write about how a family lives in an autism home every week. I would need a GOPRO around my head for people to understand. Ava is truly a wonder. Every day is different. I have been interviewed by several magazines and newspapers about raising a child with autism. It is hard to sum up what life is like for a family living with autism. If I could say what I really feel, I would say I sometimes want to drink a bottle of wine at the end of each night. My story and thoughts are completely different than another family living with autism. Autism is different for each child.

Everything I write is coming from my own opinions and ways that our family has coped throughout the years. I am not an expert, just a mom who wants her child to be accepted in this world she does not understand and make her the best person she can be.

I used to get upset if I would hear people talking about how stressed out they were because they had so many family events, birthday parties or extracurricular activities to attend with their family over the weekend. Those are all things I long for in our family life. A lot of times we are forced to pick which parent is going to a birthday party or an activity for my other daughter, Kendall. Activities that are not familiar to Ava can be very stressful for her. Over the years, I have had therapists come with us to events or unfamiliar activities with Ava. They help us by encouraging us to use behavioral interventions to help Ava adapt better to an unfamiliar environment. It is a lot of work, but worth it in the end. There are a lot of events we do not attend with Ava because it would truly stress her out and that is something we have had to accept.

Weekends in an autism home are more like this: waking up and worrying about what will happen when the new babysitter (because babysitters come and go) watches Ava because Brian and I need to attend our other daughter, Kendall's, soccer game. Sometimes when I am not at home, Ava can get upset and melt down. I will get phone calls from the babysitter and need to come home. I can't take Ava because the last time I did, Ava screamed for the park that was in the distance and doesn't like the heat. Too many people screaming for the games upset her. Therefore, I sat in my car with Ava and watched Kendall play soccer from the parking lot.

Later that evening, we want to attempt to go out to eat. We must make sure that the restaurant has a booth available to enclose Ava, so she does not want to flee if something bothers her. Also, there needs to be enough noise, so her noises or IPAD don't "offend" anyone's dinner time and make me give the people dirty looks. Staring is one of the most upsetting reactions for an autism family to face, at least for me it is.

Don't get me started on the grocery store. I have left the grocery cart full of food and walked out because Ava was having a tough time shopping. Sometimes, I don't even know what sets her off. I usually don't give people eye contact as I am leaving. I always just hope they are saying a prayer for Ava.

As the weekend continues, we can't attend Church together as a family because Ava cannot handle the sensory stimulation of church and will often get loud. Juggling situations is how our family often feels.

Separate events are how our family lives. Trying to bridge that gap is difficult because you feel like if you do something without your child with autism, you are leaving them out. It can be a very lonely experience at times.

Since hearing Ava's diagnosis years ago, I have changed so much over the years. I can't remember what life was like before Ava or who I was for that matter. All I know, is I can probably lift a car with all my autism adrenaline. Yes, the adrenaline I feel daily trying to make sure Ava's day is structured and filled with an environment that makes her successful. Ask my and specifically the $104M in re-occurring spending for mental health in schools.

Sen. Stargel is up for re-election this year. Her opponent in the election, Robert Doyel, a Winter Haven Democrat and retired judge, took issue with her comments about the legislation.

"She still doesn't grasp the gravity of the slaughter in Parkland," Doyel said. "Today she repeatedly referred to the killing of 17 human beings with an assault rifle as the 'situation in Parkland.' What happened in Parkland on Valentine's Day was a tragedy, not merely a situation."

The recently passed gun legislation had first year costs of around $400M and reoccurring costs of around $200M. Since legislators had not planned to spend that kind of money at the onset of the 2018 Legislative Session, some other things suddenly got funded at lesser levels. Funding for the arts, for example, took a hit according to Sen. Stargel, as did water projects and funding for universities. Theatre Winter Haven Producing Director Dan Chesnicka used the word "decimated" to describe theater funding levels this year.

Toward the end of the event, the topic of school choice came up. School choice was not debated much in the 2018 Legislative Session but it was a huge part of the 2017 session, a two-month time frame described by some as a Republican civil war. In 2017 House and Senate legislators were in favor of funding charter schools but Gov. Rick Scott was less inclined. The governor wanted funding for tax incentives for businesses moving to Florida and tourism promotion. When the 2017 session ended without a compromise on school choice or tax incentives, Gov. Scott called a three-day special session. The result of the special session was a law known as HB7069 which transferred millions out of traditional zoned schools to fund charter schools and mandated that any schools with "persistent" failing school grades be turned over to charter or private administration. In exchange, the governor got millions to lure more corporations to Florida.

Polk County School Board member Billy

Florida Senator Kelli Stargel (R-Winter Haven) participated in the 2018 Legislative Wrap Up at Chain of Lakes Complex April 4.

Townsend has been outspoken about HB7069 ever since and he has repeatedly blamed legislators who supported the change. The only Polk County legislator who did not vote for it was Sen. Denise Grimsley (R-Bartow) who has reached term limits and is now in a crowded race for Commissioner of Agriculture. Sen. Stargel and Representatives Killebrew, LaRosa and Ben Albritton (who has reached term limits in the House and will be facing Catherine Price of Lake Wales for Grimsley's Senate seat) all voted in favor of HB7069.

On April 3 Townsend posted a video online of him challenging Sen. Stargel at a Legislative Wrap up in Lakeland. The following day at the Winter Haven Wrap Up event, Sen. Stargel returned the favor.

"Obviously it's no secret that we have a certain school board member who is continuously challenging me on these concepts of education," she said. "I support our school systems and there is room enough for all of them."

She and Rep. LaRosa both defended HB7069 with Rep. Killebrew remaining silent on the matter. Rep. LaRosa has taken repeated actions to help the Lake Wales Charter School Board.

"If there are failing schools because the kids

have gone to magnet or a choice program then it's incumbent on our school board to come together and figure out how they can address the needs of that (failing) school whether its reworking district lines or bringing in support systems... that is the challenge of our school board.

Sen. Stargel said her only role in the matter has been preventing schools from perpetually failing by helping to pass a law about schools that fail five years in a row. "It's no different than we do in business," she said. "I think many of you have seen the TV show The Profit, where he comes in and helps a business figure out how they are going to work their business better."

After the Wrap Up event, Sen. Stargel was asked if she wanted a rebuttal for allegations made public by Townsend.

"Unfortunately Mr. Townsend has taken the position that there is nothing he can do," she said. "He is the only one who can do something. Our school board is the only one with the ability to come up with policy to fix those schools. All we do is come in and say you have to fix it. I would hope that they would get together and not listen to Mr. Townsend and try to figure out how to fix those schools."

*PHOTOS BY CHARLES A. BAKER III

Townsend, who was not in attendance, was contacted later for a response.

"If she believes the nonsense she says, come say it where I can discuss it in front of people," Townsend emailed. "If she believes her own nonsense, she should come to our school board meeting April 24. I've certainly come to her office in Tallahassee. She should return the favor."

While the agenda has not been published, on April 24 the Polk County School Board votes to determine what to do about their "persistent" failing schools, Townsend said.

Polk County School Board member Sara Beth Reynolds attended the Winter Haven Wrap Up event.

"I do think they have redirected a lot of our funds where it's going to charter schools instead of coming through the district," Reynolds said. "If we funded our traditional (zoned) public schools properly than a lot of these problems would not be happening."

Last summer the Polk County School Board joined a class action lawsuit with other school boards against the state over HB7069.

Lock it, Hide it, or Remove it

By GRADY JUDD
SHERIFF

We all love it when crime is low, and what I am about to tell you would actually make the crime rate in Polk County even lower. This is the easiest thing to do, and it would prevent one of the easiest crimes that occurs. Lock it, hide it, or remove it. It really is just that simple.

One of the crimes we see occurring over and over again, is burglaries of cars. And an overwhelming majority of the victims of car burglaries are people who left their cars unlocked. Thieves will simply walk from car-to-car, flipping door handles. If they find one unlocked, they will get in and take whatever they can find. If you leave your car parked outside, lock it.

Occasionally, thieves break windows to get into a car. And the reason they do that is because they saw something valuable sitting on a seat, or the floor. If you have something valuable in your car, hide it.

The best thing to do would be for you to remove anything of value, or anything that looks like it could be valuable. Don't leave empty backpacks or boxes in sight. Thieves don't know they are empty.

Car burglaries can then lead to other crimes. If they steal your purse, they could get your house keys, or credit cards, or even firearms.

So please, take the extra time to lock it, hide it, or just remove it.

Soaring Eagle Award ceremony

On April 18, the Greater Tampa Bay Area Council, Boy Scouts of America will be honoring Jason Odom with the Soaring Eagle Award at the Bartow Civic Center (2250 South Floral Avenue, Bartow). The Soaring Eagle event is designed to recognize individuals who represent the ideals of Scouting through their service to the community and youth of America. Soaring Eagle Award honorees are people who have been unselfish in their service to others on both an individual and community basis. In addition, they seek no return for their service other than satisfaction of aiding their fellow citizens, their community and their nation. Hector Centeno, District Executive for the Polk County area, says "Odom is truly deserving of being honored with the 2018 Bartow Soaring Eagle award. A Bartow native, he and his wife Linda continue to support youth, not only in his hometown of Bartow, but in the Tampa Bay area as well."

Centeno says Odom's successful career began with an athletic scholarship to attend the University of Florida in Gainesville, Florida, where he was an offensive lineman for coach Steve Spurrier's Florida Gators football team from 1992 to 1995. Odom was a four-year starter, a senior team captain in 1995, a first-team All-Southeastern Conference (SEC) selection in 1994 and 1995, and a unanimous first-team All-American in 1995. In his four years as a Gator, the team won three consecutive SEC championships (1993, 1994, 1995), and played for a Bowl Alliance national championship in the 1996 Fiesta Bowl. He was also the recipient of the SEC's Jacobs Blocking Trophy, recognizing the best blocker in the SEC, in 1994 and 1995. But Odom's success did not stop there. Centeno adds that after graduating college, Odom was chosen in the fourth round (ninety-sixth pick overall) of the 1996 NFL Draft "by the amazing, Tampa Bay Buccaneers, and played offensive tackle for the Buccaneers for four seasons from 1996 to 1999. He started forty-one of the forty-six Buccaneers games in which he played.

"Even after football, Jason continues to leave a legacy," says Centeno. "After his successful football career, Jason wanted to give back to his community and became a Deputy Sheriff in Hillsborough County. Jason continues to find time and mentor the youth through many youth programs in central Florida."

The ceremony will take place on April 18, at 7 a.m. at the Bartow Civic Center. Guest speaker is Adam Putnam.

Friends unite for cleanup

By KATHY LEIGH BERKOWITZ
 KLBERKOWITZ@SCMGINC.COM

She found the bird, a water turkey, hanging, dead, at Lake Eloise, his leg caught by a fishing string.

Such things are the back draft of what motivates Susan Stewart and Tracy Mercer to "Keep Winter Haven Clean and Beautiful." Both retirees from the City of Winter Haven (solid waste department), they dedicate their time to raising awareness of how much trash ends up in the lakes and how helpful it is that the community get involved. Mercer also sits on the Lake Region Lakes Management District Board, and Stewart is likewise heavily involved in the community.

Project E.A.G.L.E. is coming soon, labeled by the women as "a long standing tradition" in the Chain of Lakes. Volunteers are asked this year to join them at Lake Shipp Park, on Saturday, April 28, at 8 a.m. for registration, a T-shirt and supplies.

Participants can choose a lake, go clean it up, and later rejoin the rest of the crew for a lunch starting at noon.

The event is also family friendly, with family activities beginning at 10 a.m., including environmental and educational showings, face painting, rock painting/hiding, bounce houses and more.

Gloves, bags and hand tools will be provided. Mercer says that volunteers can either walk the shore or bring a watercraft.

Watercraft volunteers will need gloves and a net or pike pole to collect trash.

Second Bartow solar farm in works

By CHARLES A BAKER III
CBAKER@SCMGINC.COM

BARTOW – The second of what may become three solar farms surrounding Bartow was discussed at length by the city commission April 2.

On March 31 the first solar farm, the city-owned NovaSol farm east of Bartow near Clear Springs, came online. Plans for the second and third solar farms have yet to be publicly approved, but are in the works. Land for the second solar farm, which will be called Peace Creek Solar, was recently purchased by TECO. Prior to starting construction, they must first get public approval to change the land use plan from agricultural use only to planned development. Doing so requires an ordinance that needs three public hearings before a final vote. The first public hearing about ordinance 2018-05 was April 2.

No members of the public objected at first reading. City staff, city commissioners and TECO representatives discussed Peace Creek Solar. The land, which is east of SR17, north of SR60 and south of Bartow Airport on 400+ acres, is reclaimed land from a 1950s era phosphate mine. The reclaimed land would likely be too expensive to develop houses on, several said.

Much of the property is wetlands but TECO officials said the 548,000 solar panels would all be built on higher ground and that their plans are being reviewed by the Florida Dept. of Environmental Protection.

Bartow Commissioner Trish Pfeiffer has previously gone on record for opposing the plan because she said the land for the second and third proposed solar farms would be better utilized for residential development, but the commission voted unanimously to move forward April 2.

Bartow City Manager George Long and Planning Director Robert Wieggers said more information about the project will be made public at the commission meeting April 16, specifically how much tax money would come to the city if the property had residential development compared to income produced by the proposed solar farm.

TECO staff has already agreed to freeze current tax exemption levels over the course of the contract. Current state law on solar farm taxes is 20 percent of assessed values. The Peace Creek Solar project is estimated to be an $82 million project.

City manager Long said it is likely a solar farm would generate more tax income than a farm for cattle grazing taxed at a higher rate.

Mayor James F. Clements and Commissioners Billy Simpson and W. Patrick Huff all expressed support of the plans. Commissioner Leo Longworth did not express opinion but voted in favor. Commissioner Pfeiffer said she was looking forward to more information about tax benefit, possibly by April 16.

Several proclamations were made April 2. April 27, 2018 was proclaimed Relay for Life Day. In previous years, the event was held at Bartow High; but due to construction there, the event will be at Mosaic Park this year where a track will be marked out. Stephanie Shultz accepted the proclamation as a first year chair of the event. This will be the first time that the Relay event will be combined with events from Lake Wales, Frostproof and Ft. Meade.

April 21, 2018 was proclaimed Keep Bartow Clean and Beautiful/Great American Cleanup Day. Accepting the proclamation was Bartow Solid Waste Interim Director Richard Frazier. Email solidwaste@cityofbartow.net for more information. T-shirts, gloves, garbage bags and a map of areas that need to be cleaned will be provided to those who register. Lunch is served at noon that day.

“It’s a little disappointing,” Frazier said. “For the past five or six years, the event seems to be getting smaller. We promise we won’t work you too hard, and we will feed you well at the end of the day.”

April 25, 2018 was proclaimed Parental Alienation Day. Kids Need Both Director Danica Joan accepted the proclamation and said her organization focuses on how contested divorce can affect children. Her organization provides mediation services, custody coaching, de-escalation techniques and online courses and webinars.

Curb piles could result in tax liens

By CHARLES A BAKER III
CBAKER@SCMGINC.COM

BARTOW – On April 3, the Polk County Board of County Commissioners quietly passed an ordinance to go after landlords who put couches and other bulk household items on the curb after evicting tenants.

“We want the landlords to do a better job,” said board chair Todd Dantzler. “If they don’t, we will put a lien on their taxes.”

The ordinance, called the Excessive Bulk Waste Assessment, gives the county the ability to foreclose on a house if the penalty tax “assessment” is not paid. The lien would be “equal to a lien for nonpayment of property taxes,” according to the ordinance text.

In layman’s terms, that means if a landlord or homeowner with property in unincorporated areas of the county puts bulk trash like a couch at the curb for collection, the county will warn the property owner to take it to the dump on their own or the county will charge the owner the cost of dumping plus administrative costs, court filing fees and interest if the bill is not paid.

Commissioners Todd Dantzler and Melony Bell said no opposition to the ordinance was received and that the only discussion on the matter was done in workshops. The workshops, while public, are not covered closely by the media and few if any members of the public normally attend them. Both said no public hearing was required before the ordinance was voted upon.

The ordinance defines bulk waste as anything that will not fit into the provided garbage cans up to 10 feet from the curb. This would include organic waste that cannot be picked up by the grapple trucks or hazardous waste.

According to the ordinance, when the county is made aware of a bulk waste infraction, the trash will be “tagged” and the owner would have seven days to take it to the dump or request a hearing.

If unpaid, the assessment would be added to the owner’s property tax bill. The vote on the ordinance was unanimous. By the time they voted on the matter, it did not appear any members of the public were present.

Asked about the ordinance at a recent land conference near Orlando, neither Dantzler nor Bell could recall how much money it cost county taxpayers to remove the bulk waste leading up to the vote.

“We have to have a clean county,” Commissioner Bell said.

H. W. Snell, Winter Haven's First Banker

By BOB GERNERT

WINTER HAVEN MUSEUM OF HISTORY

Henry W. Snell was an early Winter Haven merchant. He had actually relocated to Florida from Georgia, opening his first mercantile in Bartow. Snell would soon own four such stores in this area, one being located on Fifth Street, SW where the Bank of America is located today. At that time, the road was known as West Park Street. Snell had a safe in the Winter Haven store, and residents would bring their money to him for safekeeping. Soon he was making loans.

In 1906, he had the opportunity to sell his four stores, and he then served Polk County in the Legislature while keeping his Winter Haven home.

In 1909, he organized H. W. Snell & Company as a private bank. It had capital stock of $7,500. Two years later, he reorganized as the Snell National Bank. Snell served as president and J. H. Ross, MD as vice president. The bank building is an iconic Winter Haven location, having added the four-faced McClintock Clock in 1925. The building was originally a two-story structure, but a third floor was added prior to the 1920s. The original structure is known today as the Time Square Building, home to Arabella's Restaurant, Avenue Bar and Bistro Pizza.

The Snell Bank would later become the Exchange National Bank, moving in 1955 to the Magnolia Avenue building that now houses BB&T Bank. Exchange was merged into NCNB, then NationsBank, to Barnett and finally Bank of America. Ironically, the residual assets of the Snell National Bank now reside in the building that occupies the site of Snell's Mercantile.

Snell and his wife, Mary, had four children: W. Ray; Claire C; H. W. Jr. and Mary Louise.

Mr. Snell was a 32nd degree Mason, a member of the Scottish Rite and Mystic Shrine. He was also a charter member of the Methodist Episcopal Church where he served as a trustee for many years.

The Snells eventually retired to Lake Lowry.

The information for this column was taken from The History of Winter Haven by Josephine Burr and news clippings of the day.

The Museum of Winter Haven History is open Saturdays from 9 a.m. to Noon. A walking tour of the museum exhibits occurs at 10 a.m. each Saturday. There are many new displays and pieces of Winter Haven history to see. Group visits are available by appointment. Contact Bob Gernert at 863-206-6855 or bobgernert@gmail.com.

Ack's Angles

By BRIAN ACKLEY

SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

It's nothing like Friday Night Lights, and the state finals are webcast live online for everyone to see.

But for the almost 500 local students who gathered at the Bartow Civic Center for the fourth or fifth time this past school year on March 10, the Polk Scholastic Chess championships were no less thrilling and nerve-racking.

For some 30 years now, the group has been bringing together the best young chess players in the county for several events during the school year, culminating in "Championship Saturday," highlighted this year by Polk County Sheriff Grady Judd.

"At the end of the day, I hope you all have fun today. You are already winners ... Compete, be honest and ethical, but more than anything, dream your dreams and work towards them. And you can attain them," he noted.

Bartow lawyer Maria Gallo was presented the Richard Lewis Lifetime Achievement Award. Gallo served as a long time board member for the group.

The president of the group, Malay Shah, helped bring the 2017-18 season to a close.

"We conclude our 2017-18 Scholastic Chess Season with a special note of thanks to the wonderful teachers and coaches from Polk County schools, volunteers and parents," said Shah. "Without the help of such dedicated chess family members, this non-profit organization could not have sustained its scholastic operations for three decades."

International Chess Master Victor Adler traveled from Daytona Beach Shores to help present awards.

Following are the top three division winners and the schools they represented:

Guppy Division: Johan Bijyos (Lincoln Avenue Academy), Nicholas Harrison (McKeel Academy Central) and Arnav Gupta (Lincoln Avenue Academy).

Primary division: Laith Kazmier (Lincoln Avenue Academy), Tzak Lau (All Saints Academy) and Nathan Choppara (Lincoln Avenue Academy).

Elementary Division: Jakob Diaz (Brigham Academy), Soham Patel (Valley View Elementary) and Benjamin Rafool (All Saints Academy). Diaz was third in elementary division last year.

Middle Division: Luke Hamilton (Mulberry), Niriham Shah (Union Academy) and Sachin Sivakumark (Lawton Chiles Middle Academy). Shah took first in the middle division last year.

Senior Division: Octavio Vazquez (Kathleen), Caeden Deboer (Independent), Shulagra Shah (Bartow IB). Shah was last year's senior championship first place finisher.

The first of four events prior to next year's championships will be held Oct. 13 at the civic center to kick off the 2018-19 season.

Scouting Report

By BRIAN ACKLEY

SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

KICKING IT – Our friends in Auburndale usually turn out some pretty good soccer teams. One of the reasons is kids get a chance to kick it around indoors during the summer months, when, let's face it, it's not as appealing to do that outside. The city's parks and recreation department will run an indoor soccer and futsal league this summer. Registration is open now for the season that runs from late May to August. The indoor soccer program is for boys and girls, ages four to 10. The futsal program – soccer played on a basketball course basically – is for boys and girls ages 11 to 16. Total fee for both programs for the summer is $40. Contact the rec department at 421-3700.

KNIGHTY KNIGHT – You might be surprised at the number of youngsters in our area who play chess, both for fun and competitively. Many elementary, middle and high schools in Eastern Polk have chess teams that regularly play against each other. See this week's Ack's Angles about the recent championship event that drew more than 400 students to compete last month at the Bartow Civic Center. If you're in the Winter Haven area and interested in learning how to play, or play better, the rec department just started its Community Chess Program this week. The group is for kids ages 6 to 13, and meets at 10 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Winter Haven Cultural and Recreation Center. Call 291-5675 for information. And in the best news of all, it's free!

TAKING AIM – A number of different organizations and groups do shooting fundraisers, but this one coming up later in April is pretty special. The "Shoot to Salute" is presented by the Florida Sports Hall of Fame, and is hosted by National Football League great Jack Youngblood. Each four-shooter team competes, along with a Florida Sports Hall of Fame celebrity, or a member of the Armed Forces, in a 50/50, 15-station clay sporting competition at Tenoroc Shooting Sports in Lakeland. All proceeds for this event benefit the American Valor Foundation, a 501-c3 corporation which supports military veterans, first responders and their families. The group was the brainchild of the family of "American Sniper" Chris Kyle. For more information, visit www.flasportshof.org/shoot-to-salute/. The event runs April 20-21.

Five Minutes with John Haggar

By BRIAN ACKLEY

SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

(It's been, well, forever it seems since East Polk has had any big time tennis fall into its lap. But April 28, at the Country Club of Winter Haven, four tennis greats from the not-too-distant past will be in town for the entertaining for the One-on-One Doubles Prize Money Shootout, a two-hour round-robin event that will serve up plenty of excitement, according to facility tennis pro John Haggar. On the program: Emilio Sanchez, three time Grand Slam Doubles Champion, Luke Jensen, 1993 French Open Doubles Champion, Fritz Buehning, Grand Slam Doubles Finalist, at the U. S. Open, in 1983 and Mel Purcell, former top 20 in the World's ATP Singles player. The evening includes a free concert by Chicago blues artist R.J. Howson. For more information, see www.oneonedoubles.com.)

SCMG: How did you guys get involved in bringing this here? It sounds pretty interesting.

JH: "This is something started by a guy, Ed Krass, and basically anybody who's anyone in tennis knows Ed. He has access to all these former and current players, so it makes it easy to get guys together for an event like this. There's prize money. This is probably one of the bigger tennis events to come to Polk County in a really long time. I don't recall anything where you've got four guys who have won grand slams or were top five in the world in singles or doubles. It's really incredible that we have got these guys here. A lot of the other clubs are scratching their heads. I am getting calls like, 'How did you get these guys here?'

SCMG: For the layman, describe how the tennis part of this works.

JH: "You're playing like you're playing doubles, but half the court is out of play. You actually draw a line down the middle of the court. What it does is these guys probably couldn't put on a real competitive show if they're expected to play full court. This extends the life of a tennis player. And for this tournament, and most of the tournaments that Ed does, the person that is serving is required to serve and volley. If they're serving, they have to come into the net. So it makes for exciting, quick points, a lot of angles and drop shots. It's really viewer friendly and people that enjoy tennis are going to really, really enjoy this. They don't take it so seriously that they don't have fun, and they interact with the crowd. We've got really good personalities coming." SCMG: Can you describe the type or level

SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

UPLIFTING EXPERIENCE – Auburndale’s Darren Crooms has another first-place wrestling medal to add to his collection. The Bloodhound senior already had one championship under his belt, and took the 129 pound title this past weekend in the Class 2A state event in Panama City Beach. His combined lift of 470 pounds (255 bench and 215 clean-and-jerk) out-classed the rest of the field by 20 pounds, Lake Region’s William Davis got a second at heavyweight (375/280). Fort Meade’s Cleveland Reed, who will continue his athletic career as a lineman for the University of Miami next fall, grabbed a fourth place in the state 1A heavyweight finals, with lifts of 420 and 275.

LOVIN’ IT – The Lake Wales Highlanders earned the East Polk boy’s tennis title last Friday, behind the impressive effort of Ian Morrison. The senior won the No. 1 singles title with an easy 6-1, 6-0 sweep of Anay Patel of Winter Haven, and then teamed with Brooklyn Levine to score a 7-6, 6-2 win over Patel and Jake Myers to take the doubles crown. The All Saints duo had won last year’s doubles trophy. The Highlander winners will move on to take on the West Polk winners this week. Lake Wales No. 3 singles player Jack Edwards also will move on with a win over Jacob Bruschat, 6-1, 6-1.

U.S. OPEN CUP – Polk County will be represented in the prestigious Lamar Hunt U.S. Open Cup in 2018, but local fans won’t get a chance to see the Lakeland Tropics in action unless they’re willing to take a heck of a road trip. They will get a chance to welcome their local soccer heroes back to the pitch in their second season in the USL Premier Development League when the Tropics have their home opener on Saturday, May 12 at Bryant Stadium. But three nights prior, the Tropics will play an opening round Cup game in Texas to take on the Midland-Odessa Sockers, who play in the National Premier Soccer League. The Tropics had hoped to have a chance to host at least one game in the single-elimination knockout tournament which will have a field of 97 sides in 2018, including all 20 U.S. Based Major League Soccer squads, but U.S. Soccer Federation officials discovered that the field dimensions at Bryant Stadium were just short of regulation. The first round kicks off May 5-6, which was added to accommodate the Jacksonville Armada, Miami FC 2 and New York Cosmos B. The first round will consist continue with one match on May 8 followed by 25 others played May 9 and feature teams from the Premier Development League (PDL) like the Tropics, National Premier Soccer League (NPSL), and Open Division local division qualifiers. The second round will add 22 teams from the Division II United Soccer League, like the Tampa Bay Rowdies. Potential second round matchups will be announced today (April 11).

ROLLING THUNDER – One popular song lyric asks “who’ll stop the rain?” In East Polk, it might more appropriately by “who’ll stop the Thunder?” The Lake Region softball team won its second straight prestigious tournament title in two weekends by winning the gold division of the Kissimmee Classic. Prior to that, they had won the Bartow Home of the Champions event. In Kissimmee, Lake Region took a 3-0 lead into the final inning against Cooper City in the title tilt, and proceeded to plate nine runs in their final at bat for the lopsided 12-0 final. Savannah Barnett whiffed eight in getting the shutout. She also had two hits and two RBI, while teammates Brandice Boatwright, Alexis Bridges and Ciara Ford also all had two hits each. Bridges also plated two runs for Lake Region, who has won 10 straight to improve to 16-5 on the season.

THEY DID IT – We can’t fully explain what motivates them to do it, but Ironman 70.3 Florida was another impressive spectacle to watch, especially Rafael Sousa and Deanna Newman. Sousa won the overall men’s title in Sunday’s event in Haines City, completing the 1.2 mile swim, 56 mile bike ride and 13.1 mile run in 4:11.56. He was fourth last year. Newman’s time was 4:42.22. She was the runner up last year, missing the best overall time for women by just 25 seconds.

Jared DeLong takes over at Lake Wales Airport

By CHARLES A. BAKER III

CBAKER@SCMGINC.COM

LAKE WALES – Recently hired Lake Wales Airport Director Jared DeLong was introduced to the Lake Wales City Commission April 3.

DeLong hit the ground running as construction is ongoing at the airport where the main runway and taxiway are being improved as a means to attract corporate jets as customers at the city-owned property.

DeLong thanked city staff and the commission for the opportunity to lead the airport into the future. Mayor Eugene Fultz replied by saying DeLong had come highly recommended. City Manager Ken Fields said he has the same level of energy as Alex Vacha, the former Lake Wales Airport Director who recently accepted a job leading the Winter Haven Airport.

Like Vacha, DeLong is a U.S. Airforce veteran with years of experience in aviation. DeLong was a load master on HC-130 aircraft, huge planes used to transport large cargo and other varieties get used in combat situations. Prior to being promoted to load master, DeLong led combat control teams on recon and other military missions.

After an honorable discharge, DeLong was hired as a Airport Operations Specialist at Lakeland Linder Regional Airport. Most recently, DeLong held the title of Project Coordinator for the Florida Department of Transportation. City Manager Fields said DeLong exhibited an ability to help obtain grant money to lead the airport into the future.

Construction at the airport is tentatively scheduled to be completed by July, DeLong said.

of play fans can actually expect?

JH: “They’re real good. It’s going to be world class tennis. You’re not going to be able to go to the club and witness the type of tennis that these guys are going to put on. The level of tennis is fantastic. And a lot of that is helped by the fact, again, they only have to play half the court. There’s a DJ. There’s a concert after. It’s a real fun event. The spectators are going to have a blast. And the guys are playing winner-takes-all, three thousand bucks. Back in the day, these were the guys. Emilio Sanchez, he was an Olympic champion, No. 1 in the world doubles, top five in singles. There’s not many people that follow tennis that don’t know these guys.”

SCMG: So, whose your pick?

JH: “Oh, that’s a tough one. I’m going to say, and it’s probably the guy people would pick the least, but I’ll think Mel Purcell is the favorite. He’s got the right type of game and he’s still playing a bit, so I think he might have a little edge.”

BARTOW NEWS

The electoral burden rests on me

By S.L. FRISBIE
NEWS COLUMNIST

It's not an easy burden, and certainly not one I sought.

But it has been thrust upon me.

According to a barrage of increasingly desperate e-mails, the outcome of the November election — and with it, the very survival of the Republic — rests on my not-so-young shoulders.

I get almost daily reminders from four candidates — three of whom will not even appear on the ballot I cast in the general election — that their campaigns are in desperation mode, and without my support, are doomed to failure.

Two address me as Sayre — not my first name (which is Sayer) — one obviously having sold or given my name to the other. One addresses me as "S.", not the S.L. that I have been known by since my birth 77 years ago. One calls me simply "Friend," a semi-honest acknowledgement that we have never met and never will.

For the record, two of these electronic pen pals are Democrats, two are Republicans. I have never met three of the four, and from what I know of them, would never vote for any of them. One of them I know, and support, despite the fact that his campaign team has scolded me (in error) for my absence from his list of donors.

These, and other candidates, have warned me that without my support (preferably in the amount of $500 "but no amount is too small") I will be personally and solely responsible for the survival of the demonic political schemes of either Donald Trump or Nancy Pelosi, depending on the party of the sender.

Each expresses a sense of desperation, linked to a deadline by which it is imperative that I give as much as I possibly can, using one of several "CONTRIBUTE NOW" bars appearing in their messages.

Despite the burden that each of these candidates tries to impose on me, I am at peace. It is their fight, not mine.

(S. L. Frisbie is retired. The 2016 general election is the first in which he did not disclose, even to his family, how he voted. He did not consider either major party candidate worthy of his support. His opinion has not changed.)

Woman's Club plans to slay hunger

By KATHY LEIGH BERKOWITZ
KLBERKOWITZ@SCMGINC.COM

A little food pantry could be the future of fighting hunger in Winter Haven.

At a recent Winter Haven Woman's Club meeting, Lisa Brown suggested the pantry and proposed a partnership with Heart for Winter Haven and Elder Point Ministries.

Brad Beatty LCSW from Heart for Winter Haven and Jane Hammond from Elder Point Ministries joined the club for a luncheon and shared their work and mission.

"We are eager to implement Lisa's suggestion of establishing a Little Food Pantry in a prominent Winter Haven location and Brad and Jane are active in servicing those in need of food, transportation and relationships," said club President Jane McGinnis. "It was an alarming statistic to learn the Lakeland-Winter Haven area is second highest in the country in food insecurity. The first highest area is Bakersfield, California."

"Food insecurity is different than hunger," said Beatty, in an interview with The Winter Haven Sun.

"It's not what we think about with respect to food and some of those issues, when we think about Ethiopia or Africa, or China."

Having access to healthy food, knowing you have money to buy the food, and having the ability to go get the food and bring it home to cook are all variables that can be challenging.

"There is a nutritional point. Just getting any old food doesn't answer food insecurity," says Beatty.

"Typical food pantries are stocked with a lot of shelf stable items. Unfortunately, a lot of that stuff is not good for us.

I love peanut butter, but peanut butter does not solve this problem, neither does SpaghettiOs."

The USDA has maps of "food deserts," where it is difficult for those people to have access to affordable, nutritious food.

Even if a person lives across the street from a grocery store or market, there could be accessibility issues.

Beatty says it is interesting to note that according to the Food Research Action Council, the Lakeland-Winter Haven area is tenth on the list of those who struggle, who are listed as

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

FROSTPROOF— Florida Main Street and National Main Street representatives will be conducting an economic strategy visit on April 24 -27 in Frostproof. The visit will help in clarifying a vision for downtown and identify market opportunities for Frostproof, based on community input and market data. Your feedback is important to us and we would like to ask you to take 5-10 minutes to complete this on-line survey. The results are confidential and being collected by the National Main Street Center. Results will be shared at a public meeting on the evening of April 26 at City Hall. The survey will close on Wednesday, April 18 at 5 p.m. and this is the link: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/9ZDH69J>

WINTER HAVEN — The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Polk County Flotilla 7-7 Offering their Safe Boating Class "All About Boating Safety" from 8 a.m. till 5 p.m. on Saturday, April 28 at the Polk County Sherriff Office, 3635 Avenue G, N.W. in Winter Haven.

This About Boating Safety presents fundamentals about boat handling and boat safety materials in an eight hour, one day class room presentation.

Boaters that attend and complete the course are presented with About Boating Safety Certificates, a Florida State Wallet Size Boating License and a complimentary membership in BOAT U.S; plus may be eligible for boating insurance discounts.

This class is approved by the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation and satisfy the Florida Law Requiring Boaters born on or after January 1, 1988 to complete a boating education course and possess a Florida Boaters Safety Education I.D. Card while on the water. To register, call 1-800-596-9688, toll free or email Gthomas901@msn.com BARTOW— Bartow Police and Fire Departments will be hosting a softball game on May 4, a fundraiser for the George W. Harris, Jr. Runaway and Youth Crisis Shelter in Bartow.

"This is especially important for the youth at the shelter, many of which have had difficult encounters with law enforcement and other authority figures in the past – it is so helpful for them to see that these individuals are truly giving and that they care about the kids and their welfare," says Michelle Crawford, Leadership Council Chairperson for the event.

A $5 donation at the door will be collected, benefiting the shelter. There will be concessions available and prize drawings.

City election is 36 cents well spent

By S.L. FRISBIE
NEWS COLUMNIST

It should come as no secret to even the most casual political observer that politicians prefer to run without opposition.

While political correctness may require them to say publicly that they welcome all comers, we have heard numerous politicians — both incumbents and newcomers — acknowledge privately the sense of relief that comes when qualifying ends and theirs is the only name on the ballot.

Persons running for the Bartow City Commission can expect to find their name on the ballot next to Gerald Cochran's sooner or later, either in the contest for one of the two at-large posts or in the district in which Cochran lives. Only the two commissioners who do not live in Cochran's district are exempt from this political rite of passage. Even Cochran is unsure of how many times he has run; he estimates 25 times. He has never won, but that does not stand in the way of his eternal quest for election.

He has been more successful in his twice-a-month appearances at city commission meetings, a tradition which precedes even his pursuit of elected office.

One of his more successful campaigns was against what he called "swill" leaking from city garage trucks. (The polite term is "leachate.") Today's fleet of trucks no longer leak.

Most (not all) of Cochran's complaints have some merit; his lack of tact in airing them is a hallmark of his comments, and wins him no friends on the commission. At last week's commission meeting on Monday, April 2 — one day before Election Day — Mayor James Clements lectured Cochran on the costs he causes the city to incur by running for office.

Clements said the city's cost to hold an election is $7,000.

He told Cochran he should consider that expense before filing for office.

Cochran, incidentally, was Clements' only opponent in the election held the following day. (There also was one other race on the ballot.)

Cochran gave no indication that he is ashamed of running for office, and in fact, indicated to this newspaper on Election Day that he plans to be back on the ballot next year. A couple of numbers are significant: Cochran received 539 votes this year, garnering 34.71 percent of the ballots cast in his race. As best we can recall, this is Cochran's highest vote total. (Last year, he received only 283.)

It hasn't been that many years since 500 votes would generally win a Bartow city election.

And while the $7,000 spent to ensure that the voters have an opportunity to go to the polls and express their preference for the commissioners who will oversee Bartow's $57 million budget is more than a pittance, it comes to a little less than 36 cents for each resident. We believe that it's 36 cents well spent, and we suspect that at least the 539 voters who cast their ballots for Cochran agree.

"families with children."

What makes the area "number two" in the nation is a different dynamic: the aging population.

Retirees who settle in middle Florida tend to be on fixed income, versus those who live on the more expensive Florida coast. Additionally, if they are cut off from their families because of distance, and do not rebuild a civic, social, or church network, over time, "they are at risk," says Beatty.

One idea as to what the future pantry could look like is something like a vending machine that offers refrigerated food, accessible with tokens (instead of money), which are either purchased or earned through a special program, placed in a prominent area.

Breakthrough implant for osteoarthritis

LAKELAND — Watson Clinic says their board-certified podiatric surgeon Ripal Y. Patel, DPM is the first specialist in Polk County to offer Cartiva, a breakthrough synthetic cartilage implant that eliminates the presence of osteoarthritis in the big toe.

“Osteoarthritis is an inflammatory disease of the joints that afflicts tens of millions of Americans,” says Dr. Patel. “When this disease impacts the big toe region, it can lead to severe discomfort and debilitation.”

Previous fusion procedures have locked the joint in place, thereby resulting in a longer recovery time and a highly restricted range of movement. Cartiva is the only FDA-approved alternative to fusion. The implant’s durability closely mimics human cartilage, which makes it a more natural fit when implemented into the structure of the toe. The entire procedure can be completed in well under an hour, and the results are immediate.

“The response to the implant has been overwhelmingly positive,” reports Dr. Patel. “Patients enjoy instant relief, enhanced flexibility, and the ability to bear weight on their toe almost immediately.”

Dr. Patel received his doctorate of podiatric medicine at Temple University School of Podiatric Medicine in Philadelphia, PA. He completed an internship and residency in podiatry at Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk, VA, and an additional residency in podiatric surgery at San Pedro Peninsula Hospital in San Pedro, CA.

Dr. Patel is a member of the American College of Foot and Ankle Surgeons, the American Podiatric Medical Association and the Florida Podiatric Medical Association. He is board-certified in Foot Surgery.

Dr. Patel counsels and treats patients from Watson Clinic Bartow at 2250 Osprey Blvd., Suite 100 in Bartow. For more information on Cartiva, and to schedule an appointment, call 863-680-7214.

WH Hospital holds blood drive

WINTER HAVEN – The Winter Haven Hospital Community Blood Center is having blood drive events in April.

The Community Blood Center Bloodmobile will stop at two Walmart locations in Polk County this month. The Auburndale location, 2120 Hwy. 92 W., will welcome our team on April 7 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Donors will also have an opportunity to give on April 21 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Lake Wales location, 2000 State Road 60 E.

Those who give will receive a free Walmart gift card and a free wellness check-up, which includes a check of blood-pressure and hemoglobin levels, along with a cholesterol screening.

April 16 is Donor Appreciation Day, this month, and also Movie Monday. Those who give blood on the Community Blood Center, 460 First St. N., in Winter Haven, will receive a Fandango movie voucher and free food and treats, along with a wellness check. The center is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Winn-Dixie supermarket in Lake Wales, 1860 S.R. 60 E., will sponsor the blood drive on April 28 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Donors will get a Winn-Dixie gift card and a wellness check-up to show our appreciation.

The Community Blood Center is the sole provider of blood and blood products to Winter Haven Hospital, Winter Haven Women’s Hospital and Lake Wales Medical Center. All blood types are encouraged, with an emphasis on O-negative and A-negative. O-negative donors are urged to ask about our “Blood for Babies” program.

If your blood type is A-positive and you have about two extra hours to spare every 2 to 3 weeks, you could be a platelet donor. Call 863-297-1840 for details.

Teen Driver Challenge

Got teen drivers? Sign them up for the Polk County Sheriff’s Office Teen Driver Challenge.

Teen Driver Challenge Dates are April 27, and 28.

The Teen Driver Challenge provides young drivers with hands-on experience and classroom learning, reducing their risk of becoming another tragic statistic. “We encourage parents and teenagers to get involved in this valuable program.

All it costs is 12 hours of your time - but the rewards are priceless,” says the PCSO.

For more information, contact Deputy Sheriff Johnny Wombles at 863-297-1109 or email them at teendriverschallenge@polksheriff.org

husband, he always asks “are you ever going to just relax?” I don’t know. Probably not. I am always thinking of ways to better her and what I can do to help her, but I do know deep down that I also must make sure I am healthy in spirit and physically. I also have my other daughter who could probably run a business right now with all the responsibility I throw on her. I sometimes feel guilty because I feel like Kendall has had to grow up and accept things other children her age do not and without complaining about it. Kendall knows this is her life. She is the youngest, so autism has always been a part of her life. She doesn’t know anything different.

The other day Kendall mentioned to me “Mommy, my friends said that if it weren’t for Ava they would have never known what autism was.” She felt very proud that her big sister could spread that sort of awareness to her friends. She always celebrates Ava’s successes. I want her to always be Ava’s biggest cheerleader because Brian and I will not be around forever. Kendall has a big heart for Ava and I know she will always protect her.

As you might have figured it out, worrying about planning is what I do best. We are very fortunate to have built an autism village, yes, a village. Establishing the people who will be in your autism village is critical for an autism family. I knew I could not stop living. I knew that I could not sit in my house and feel sorry for my child, family, and myself. I had to build a village. I selected a village that my child would thrive in daily.

Each week I will emphasize the importance of each group in my autism village. Every autism family has their own select group or village of people who enter their universe. I have had many people not want to be a part of our autism village and that is fine. Our family is fortunate to have several people who want to help Ava and be a part of her world of hope. Last week was a tough week for our family. This week has been great. Autism is like that. Every day is new, and I know I must keep living in this world. I am allowed days like that, any parent, whether you have a kid with or without autism is allowed a moment of distress, but always know dusting yourself off and getting back up is the key. It is hard, trust me. My autism village last week came to our family’s rescue. The love and strength I get from others, helps me keep marching for Ava. Courage is contagious.

I can’t wait to share my autism village in my upcoming entries. All the stories and real-life disappointments we have had over the years, have paved a path of courage. At the beginning of our journey, our autism village was just my husband and I trying to find our way through the darkness with Ava. I am proud to say that today, Ava’s autism village is overflowing with love, patience, acceptance, and compassion.

Sincerely,
Janina Freeland

Polk State hosts open house

WINTER HAVEN — Polk State College is hosting two open house events where prospective students will have the opportunity to learn about academic programs, complete their applications, and receive assistance with the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

Open house at the Winter Haven Campus, 999 Ave. H N.E., is scheduled for Thursday, April 19, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the Student Center, WST 126 and 127.

Open house at the Lakeland Campus, 3425 Winter Lake Road, is scheduled for Thursday, April 26, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the Lakeland Technology Building, LTB 1100.

Attendees will tour the campuses, meet with staff and faculty members, and learn about student clubs and activities.

Open enrollment for Summer 2018 is underway. Classes start May 9. Open enrollment for Fall 2018 will begin June 4 with classes starting August 20.

Currently enrolled students may register through PASSPORT. They should also check PASSPORT for possible holds on their accounts that may prevent them from registering so that those holds can be resolved.

Prospective new students must submit an on-line application to Polk State. Information on how to complete orientation and register for classes is included in the College's admission letter and online at the Admission Steps.

Students may complete orientation online through Admission & Aid, where they can also take their "personal snapshot" - an academic advising tool that allows students to assess their abilities in math, reading, and writing, as well as responsibilities outside the classroom, such as work and families.

Students are also encouraged to begin the financial aid process as early as possible. The first step is to complete the FAFSA. Assistance completing the FAFSA is available through the Office of Student Financial Services. Throughout the registration and financial aid process, students should regularly check PASSPORT and their College email accounts for important registration and financial aid information.

Opening markets to foreign competition

China president's conciliatory trade gesture raises optimism

By PAUL WISEMAN and JOE McDONALD
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIJING — Investors and China watchers welcomed President Xi Jinping's pledge Tuesday to open his country's market wider to foreign competition, hoping it will ease a trade dispute with Washington that has unsettled financial markets and could jeopardize a global economic expansion.

Xi's vow to cut Chinese auto tariffs, allow more competition in banking and better protect intellectual property calmed investors who have been on edge since the world's two biggest economies last week announced plans to slap tariffs on $50 billion worth of each other's products.

Stock markets rallied worldwide on optimism for relief from what has become the most high-stakes trade confrontation since World War II. The Dow Jones industrial average was up more than 400 points in early afternoon trading.

"This is a promising signal that there can be a path forward to address (America's) concerns without a full-on trade war emerging," said Stephen Ezell, vice president of global innovation policy at the Information Technology & Innovation Foundation, a think tank that has criticized both China's aggressive trade practices and President Donald Trump's confrontational response to them.

At the same time, Ezell and other longtime China observers cautioned that Beijing has promised in the past to open its market and curb hardball tactics to acquire foreign technology without following through on those pledges.

"This is positive, but we need to see action," Ezell said. Speaking at a business conference Tuesday, Xi didn't directly mention either Trump or the trade standoff with the United States.

He promised progress on areas that are U.S. priorities, including opening China's banking industry and boosting imports to China. He did not, however, address some key irritants for Washington, including a requirement that foreign companies work through joint ventures that require them to give technology to potential local competitors.

Last week, the Trump administration unveiled plans to impose tariffs on 1,300 Chinese products, worth about $50 billion a year in imports to the United States. It characterized those tariffs as a penalty for Beijing's forcing American companies to hand

In this photo released by Xinhua News Agency, Chinese President Xi Jinping delivers his opening speech at the Boao Forum for Asia Annual Conference in Boao in south China's Hainan province on Tuesday. Xi promised to cut auto import taxes, open China's markets further and improve conditions for foreign companies in a speech Tuesday that called for international cooperation against a backdrop of a spiraling dispute with Washington over trade and technology.

Bolton takes the helm on national security at time of tumult

By JOSH LEDERMAN and CATHERINE LUCEY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. military is bracing for a possible strike in Syria. Preparations for a high-risk North Korea summit are barreling forward. The White House staff is on edge, unsure who will be fired next, and when. And the national security team is holding its breath to see whether their new leader will be a shock to the system.

Enter John Bolton, the pugnacious former U.N. ambassador who took over Monday as President Donald Trump's national security adviser — the third person to hold the job in barely 14 months. Trump's selection of Bolton last month set off a guessing game in Washington as to just how much of an imprint his take-no-prisoners approach to foreign policy will have on Trump's team, already beleaguered and exhausted after a tumultuous first year.

If Bolton had any first-day jitters, he had little time to indulge them. A daunting to-do list has awaited him, punctuated over the weekend by a suspected chemical weapons attack by Syria's government that led Trump to start exploring potential military retaliation.

Although Bolton didn't formally start

Attorney-client privilege is not 'dead' — and not absolute

By MARK SHERMAN and SADIE GURMAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Federal agents were treading on sensitive, but not new, legal ground when they raided the office of President Donald Trump's personal attorney, Michael Cohen, and seized records about a $130,000 payment to porn actress Stormy Daniels, among other topics.

Such raids are unusual because of attorney-client privilege: protections for discussions between a client and his lawyer. Trump tweeted Tuesday that the raid demonstrates that "attorney-client privilege is dead!"

But the privilege is not absolute. It does not apply to every conversation between lawyers and their clients, and it can't be invoked when the discussion was part of an effort to commit a crime.

Attorney-client privilege has existed for hundreds of years and is meant to "encourage full and frank communication," the Supreme Court has said.

It's based on the idea that a lawyer must have a complete picture of a situation to provide sound legal advice. The legal system does this by telling people that "what you say is just between you and your counsel," said Barry Pollack, a criminal defense lawyer in Washington.

For that reason, Pollack said, it is "extremely rare" for authorities to conduct searches in lawyers' offices.

Given the importance of attorney-client privilege, authorities have to clear a higher hurdle than normal before even seeking a search warrant like the one for Cohen's office.

A search warrant for a lawyer's office is a measure of last resort because of problems posed by the attorney-client privilege, according to the Justice Department's manual for federal

FEMA faulted for failed contracts to deliver hurricane aid

By MICHAEL BIESECKER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Emergency Management Agency awarded contracts for hurricane supplies without adequately researching whether winning bidders could deliver what they promised, according to a new investigation by Democrats on a Senate oversight committee.

The investigation followed disclosures by The Associated Press in November that a newly created Florida company with an unproven record had won more than $30 million in FEMA contracts to provide 500,000 tarps and 60,000 rolls of plastic sheeting for repairs after Hurricane Maria damaged tens of thousands of homes in Puerto Rico. That vendor, Bronze Star LLC of St. Cloud, Florida, never delivered those urgently needed supplies.

The report from Democrats on the Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs described failures by the Trump administration that prevented timely delivery of tarps and sheeting to hurricane victims after the summer's storms. It focused on the Bronze Star contract and another awarded to Global Computers and Networks LLC of Fort Washington, Pennsylvania.

Bronze Star was formed less than two months before bidding on FEMA's tarp and sheeting contracts. Global Computers registered as a federal government contractor in September, about one month before it won its FEMA contract.

over technology to gain entry to China's market.

Within hours, Beijing counterpunched with similar plans to impose tariffs on $50 billion in American products, including soybeans and small aircraft. Then, Trump ordered the U.S.

trade representative to consider another $100 billion in Chinese imports to tax.

David Dollar, senior fellow at the Brookings Institution, noted that the United States won't impose its tariffs until after it gives the American public weeks to comment on the plans. That leaves time for the two countries to negotiate.

"You hope that reason prevails," said Dollar, a former official at the World Bank and U.S. Treasury Department. "Every time the administration talks tough, the market drops. And every time the administration says 'We're going to negotiate' the market goes back up."

"The Chinese are not going to make overwhelming changes in the next 60 days," Dollar added. "But maybe the Chinese will agree to a few things, and the Trump team will be able to declare victory."

Trump himself tweeted Tuesday that he was "very thankful" for Xi's comments and praised the Chinese president's "enlightenment."

"We will make great progress together," Trump added.

Still, Sarah Huckabee

Sanders, the White House press secretary, told reporters that "we want to see concrete actions from China, and we're going to continue moving forward in the process and in the negotiations until those happen."

With his promises Tuesday, Xi sought to position China as a defender of free trade and cooperation despite its being the world's most-closed major economy. He hopes to contrast his softer stance with Trump's "America First" approach, which has focused on restricting imports and renegotiating trade agreements to win better terms for the United States.

"China's door of opening up will not be closed and will only open wider," Xi said at the Boao Forum for Asia on the southern island of Hainan.

until Monday, he was spotted entering the White House over the weekend, carrying an umbrella as he strolled down the driveway toward the West Wing on a rainy Saturday.

And on Monday, he appeared at his first Cabinet meeting, where Trump talked up his forthcoming meeting with North Korean leader Kim Jong Un, chided China for taking advantage of the United States and condemned the "atrocious" chemical attack in Syria. Bolton didn't speak, but was seated prominently behind Trump as reporters were briefly allowed into the meeting.

Inevitably, Bolton's past statements in public jobs and as a Fox News commentator follow him into the job. At the White House press briefing Monday, spokeswoman Sarah Huckabee Sanders was asked about a comment Bolton made in 2013 on "Fox and Friends" — he said he would have opposed an authorization to use force in Syria.

"The point of view that matters most here at the White House, as you well know, is the president's," Sanders replied.

Apprehension outside the White House about Bolton's influence has been matched by hand-wringing in the West Wing about whose fortunes will rise and fall as the new national security adviser takes charge.

In Trump's

reality-show-infused White House, it's become a truism that when a powerful aide departs — like the chief of staff, national security adviser or a Cabinet secretary — others who were considered aligned with that aide are often the next to go. There have been many such shake-ups, even in just the past few weeks. And Bolton, in his former jobs at the U.N. and at the State Department, developed a reputation as someone who doesn't suffer fools quietly.

Even before Bolton started, rumors were circulating about potential exits on the national security team. The night before Bolton started, the White House said National Security Council spokesman Michael Anton would be departing, a high-profile public face of national security team. The White House said Trump thanked Anton for his service, but his departure marked another moment of upheaval in an administration marked by months of in-fighting and high-level departures. Although it's unclear whether Bolton will "clean house," two U.S. officials and two outside advisers to the administration said that the White House has been considering a significant staff shake-up in the part of the NSC that handles the Middle East. That comes as Trump prepares for a key decision next month on whether to withdraw from the Iran nuclear deal, the 2015 accord that Bolton has long derided.

prosecutors. "Only if they have considered other means for obtaining the evidence they are seeking and have decided that other means are not going to be effective," said Pollack, a former president of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers.

After prosecutors decided they needed a warrant, they still had to get authorization from the top federal prosecutor in New York or a high-ranking Justice Department official. Prosecutors also had to confer with the department's criminal division, according to the rules.

Once they jumped through all the legal hoops at the Justice Department, the prosecutors had to persuade a judge to authorize the search by showing they had probable cause of criminal activity and would likely find evidence of wrongdoing in a search.

The rules also say that lawyers who are not otherwise involved in the case had to be brought in to review what was collected to "ensure privileged materials are not improperly viewed, seized or retained during the course of the search." Any documents protected by attorney-client privilege have to be returned to Cohen.

How might attorney-client privilege affect evidence related to the payment to Daniels, who claims she had sex with Trump?

Trump has denied having sex with Daniels, and he has said he was unaware of any payment to her. If he did not know Cohen was paying her, "then it seems that Trump could not have had an attorney-client relationship with Cohen regarding the Daniels payment in the first instance," Paul Rosenzweig, a former official in President George W. Bush's administration, wrote on the Lawfare blog.

If Trump did know about the payment, it is possible documents about it might be protected from prosecutors, Rosenzweig wrote. But if "Trump sought Cohen's legal advice regarding the Daniels affair for an illegal purpose (e.g. to avoid Federal election campaign laws or to conceal the true source of the funds with which she was paid or to threaten her)," then the material wouldn't be protected, Rosenzweig said.

The Supreme Court has spoken to this possibility as well.

Renters can be liable for fines in South Lake Tahoe. RENO GAZETTE JOURNAL

In Tahoe, fines for visitors is no vacation

Jason Hidalgo
Reno Gazette Journal
USA TODAY NETWORK

South Lake Tahoe's beefed-up vacation home rental law was supposed to help prevent noise violations, obnoxious partying and bad actors from disturbing the city's residential neighborhoods.

Three months since the ordinance went into effect, however, the law has primarily turned into a tool for doling out $2,000 parking tickets against non-disorderly visitors who rent houses through sites such as Airbnb and Vacation Rentals by Owner, a Reno Gazette Journal investigation found.

South Lake Tahoe's updated law added caps and steep fines in response to community concerns about the growth in tourists using residential homes for lodging.

A regular user of online listing sites such as Airbnb and VRBO, Shirin Oloumi-Knerr says she enjoys going on ski trips with her husband and three other couples.

While visiting in February, Oloumi-Knerr noticed something about the South Lake Tahoe house where they were staying.

The property was peppered with warning signs threatening steep fines for what she considers "harmless, arbitrary acts" such as parking on the street and hot tub use. In addition to paying a minimum $1,000 fine, Oloumi-Knerr says she was shocked to find out that property managers also get fined $1,000 by the city for renter violations, but the fine is typically passed on to guests.

This means vacation home renters essentially get fined twice to the tune of $2,000 total.

"I'm a government lawyer — rules and regulations are my bread and butter," Oloumi-Knerr said. "(But) these rules seem to have no rhyme or reason and have the potential for abusive enforcement."

South Lake Tahoe is just one of many cities playing catch up with their laws. After years of community debate, South Lake Tahoe approved its updated vacation home rental or VHR ordinance in November, with the law taking effect Dec. 22.

The response from the industry to South Lake Tahoe's stricter ordinance has been mixed so far.

HomeAway and Airbnb, struck a conciliatory tone.

"We applaud South Lake Tahoe's pursuit of common-sense vacation rental regulations," said Eric Donovan, a spokesman for HomeAway.

Airbnb was more measured. "We are committed to promoting travel and tourism to South Lake Tahoe and to making sure that the local economy ... is able to prosper," said spokeswoman Jasmine Mora.

Anabolic steroids are not studied for benefits in the gym

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am interested in finding out more about steroids in sports, but I am having a hard time finding medical research on anabolic steroids. One source I found even stated: "There has been no scientific research performed to find out the effect of a specific amount of steroid on a weight-training program." I find this hard to believe. Do you have any insight as to why this is? — A.W.

Dr. Roach

ANSWER: The use of anabolic steroids, a type of performance-enhancing drug, actually is more common in recreational athletes (18 percent, across many studies) than it is in professional athletes (13 percent). Men are four times as likely as women to use them. The source you read regarding lack of information is believable, not only because I couldn't find any good research on the topic, but because anabolic steroids are not medically indicated in order to improve performance of healthy people. True to their name — "anabolism" means "building up," as opposed to "catabolism," which means "breaking down" — anabolic steroids build muscle and bone strength, and are used in men with low levels of testosterone resulting from a variety of medical conditions.

There are many steroids, but the main groups are glucocorticoids, which are potent anti-inflammatories and immune suppressants; estrogens and progesterones, which have multiple effects on the female reproductive system and the body system as a whole; and anabolic steroids, such as testosterone.

Since there are no good studies on how much, how often or even what drug to use to improve performance, athletes who use these drugs rely on friends for advice. Unfortunately, that may lead to dangerous patterns of use. Athletes often will use escalating and then tapering off of doses (called "pyramiding"), using more than one drug ("stacking") and using other drugs to counteract side effects.

The potential side effects of this kind of anabolic steroid use are terrifying, and I have seen firsthand how severe they can be. I understand the desire to improve athletic performance, but these drugs have too much risk.

DEAR DR. ROACH: My wife and I are senior citizens and still enjoy our intimate times together. I've been on high blood pressure meds for several years, and the past few years have experienced erectile dysfunction. Atenolol is one of my high blood pressure meds, and I am wondering if it could be a contributor to ED. If so, why wouldn't my doctor, who has a list of all my meds, be aware of it? — R.O.C.

ANSWER: Your doctor certainly is aware that blood pressure medicines, especially diuretics like HCTZ but also beta blockers like atenolol, may cause erectile dysfunction. But, he may not know that you have that concern. Doctors often forget to ask about sexual health, and some people don't feel comfortable bringing it up themselves. So please discuss it with your doctor, who may wish to try a different blood pressure medication.

Mom is rattled to learn son has started cross-dressing

DEAR ABBY: My son's girlfriend confided to me that my son is cross-dressing. I knew his life was in flux and his appearance had changed, but it stunned me. He hasn't mentioned anything, she said he would be upset if I knew.

Dear Abby

When I saw him the same day, I made sure to hug him and tell him I love him. Please tell me what to do or say. — What To Say In Texas

DEAR WHAT: Do nothing, say nothing. This isn't your business, and the girlfriend was wrong to betray your son's confidence.

It may reassure you to know that cross-dressing has been around for centuries and has been present in many cultures. Your son isn't the only cross-dresser in the United States or even the state of Texas. Most male cross-dressers are heterosexual and do it because it feels good to them. It is no reflection on their morals, their sexual orientation or gender identity.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 6-year-old son, "Tyler," from a previous relationship. I have been dating a man I'll call Chad for four years.

My problem is, Chad can't seem to have any kind of relationship or interaction with Tyler. Chad isn't abusive, but he constantly ignores my boy and gives him no attention. I thought after all this time Chad would be used to my son, but it hasn't happened. Sometimes he seems annoyed when Tyler is in the same room. I'm not sure if I should end the relationship or stick around. Any advice would be helpful. — Losing Hope

DEAR LOSING HOPE: Your first responsibility is to your son. The way Chad treats Tyler will eventually damage the boy's self-esteem if it hasn't already. Children are perceptive. When they are ignored, they know something is wrong and think it's their fault — that there's something wrong with them and that they don't measure up. My advice is to tell Chad the romance is over and why. Frankly, you should have done it years ago.

Feathery algae in vinegar

Dear Heloise: I found some type of algae floating in a bottle of vinegar in my pantry. This is a rice vinegar I bought for an Asian dish I was preparing, but now I'm afraid to use it. — Anna R., Bradenton, Fla.

Hints from Heloise

Anna, those feathery bits that float in vinegar are called "mothers," and they are harmless. They usually appear in unpasteurized vinegar because of the non-fermented sugar or alcohol. Use a strainer to strain out the mothers. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: Can wine go bad? — Patty C., Aberdeen, Wash.

Patty, once in a while wine will go bad. Look for mold growth under the foil capsule. Red wine may have a tendency to look cloudy. Do not use it if that happens. If you taste vinegar in the wine, or the cork has been leaking, it may be spoiled. Wine usually is stored on its side to keep the cork wet, which is vital to keeping wine safe. — Heloise

Fake pot likely tainted with rat poison kills 3, sickens 100

By LINDSEY TANNER
AP MEDICAL WRITER

Fake marijuana likely contaminated with rat poison has killed three people in Illinois and caused severe bleeding in more than 100 others, including a few in four other states.

The federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has alerted doctors nationwide that patients with severe, unexplained bleeding may be additional cases.

The CDC is helping Illinois authorities investigate the outbreak in that state, which began in early March. Illinois reported seven more cases on Tuesday, bringing the nationwide total to at least 116.

Several patients and samples of so-called synthetic marijuana from Illinois have tested positive for a lethal ingredient often used in rat poison, the CDC and Illinois authorities said. Symptoms include coughing up blood, blood in the urine, severe bloody noses, bleeding gums and internal bleeding. CDC's alert says outside Illinois, emergency rooms in Indiana, Missouri, Wisconsin and Maryland have treated affected patients since March 10.

Illnesses have been linked to fake marijuana before but this is the first outbreak involving rat poison contamination, said the CDC's Renee Funk. Those sickened require hospitalization and treatment with vitamin K to control bleeding, she said.

"This is an unusual outbreak," Funk said Tuesday, adding that it is unclear how the contamination occurred.

Fake marijuana, also called synthetic cannabinoids, contains man-made chemicals that produce a high similar to marijuana. It is sold in smoke shops and other stores as liquids that can be used in e-cigarettes or in dried plant material that can be smoked. Nicknames include K2, Spice and Kush.

"The number of cases continues to go up each day," Melaney Arnold, spokeswoman for the Illinois Department of Public Health, said Tuesday. "Synthetic cannabinoids in general are not safe and this is one example of not knowing what chemicals are in the product. We are telling people don't use synthetic cannabinoids."

The federal government and many states have banned some of these products or specific ingredients, but the CDC says manufacturers skirt these laws by creating new products or labeling them "not for human consumption."

In this file photo, a man holds a bag of synthetic marijuana in Houston. In a report released Tuesday, fake marijuana likely contaminated with rat poison has killed three people in Illinois and sickened more than 100 others in the past month.

Tests on fake pot bought at a Chicago convenience store by undercover agents detected the rat poison ingredient, the U.S. attorney's office said in a news release. Three store employees were arrested and face federal drug charges.

Illnesses from fake marijuana have increased in recent years; a CDC report noted at least 456 cases between 2010 and 2015. The products are up to 100 times more potent than the active ingredient in marijuana and severe reactions have included seizures, coma and delirium.

Study: South's native talent suffers without better schools

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A new study says the South's increasingly diverse homegrown talent won't share in the region's economic growth unless state leaders commit to spending more on public schools and higher education.

The State of the South 2018 report found that 13 states across the region are relying heavily on an influx of newcomers with college degrees to fill higher-paying jobs. At the same time, the report finds that state leaders have failed to adequately invest in public schools, higher education and other resources to prepare the next generation of workers.

David Dodson is president of the nonprofit education and job development advocacy group MDC, which published the report. He said that if states import skilled workers without nurturing their own, the next generation of homegrown talent won't get the benefits of the best jobs.

The report notes that half of the country's population growth since 1970 has occurred in the South.

Cops arrest 12-year-old boy with loaded military-style rifle

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia police say a 12-year-old boy toting a loaded military-style rifle and his 19-year-old brother with a handgun have been arrested after brandishing the weapons in a dispute with another boy.

The police department posted a picture on Twitter of an officer with the seized guns.

Lt. Dennis Rosenbaum tells Philly.com the older brother had a dispute with another kid in the neighborhood, grabbed his mother's gun and went to the boy's house Saturday.

Rosenbaum says the older boy told his little brother to "go get my gun" and the child returned with the assault-style weapon.

The 19-year-old faces charges including terroristic threatening and gun offenses. The boy was charged as a juvenile with similar offenses.

The boys' mother says the handgun was in a safe and tells police she's furious about what happened.

INVITATION TO BID 14

Notice of Intent

Duke Energy is seeking qualified Bidders to provide land reclamation for one (1) Florida Department of Environmental Protection (FDEP) Non-Mandatory Land Reclamation Program located at the Duke Energy Hines Complex in Sections 35 and 36, Township 30 South, Range 24 East, and Sections 1 and 2, Township 31 South, Range 24 East in Polk County, Florida. The parcel is identified as IMC-N-019 (881.0 acres). The proposed work involves vegetation clearing, general earthwork, upland revegetation, and establishment of vegetation.

It is the intent of Duke Energy to seek fixed-price, lump-sum bids for all efforts required to fully accomplish reclamation as described in the plans and specifications and by direction of the Engineer (Florida Engineering and Design, Inc., hereafter referred to as FEDINC). A complete package of Bid Documents for this project will be made available to qualified bidders by Duke Energy through PowerAdvocate, a sourcing software tool used by Duke Energy. The prebid meeting invitation, plans and specifications will be available within the Power Advocate Request for Proposal Competitive Bidding Event. Qualified bidders must provide the name, phone number and email of the person within their company who will be responsible for registration, downloading and uploading of documents within the PowerAdvocate Tool. The pre-bid is scheduled for April 27, 2018 at 10:00 AM.

INVITATION TO BID 14

Bidders will be required to provide a list of completed or active projects to Florida Engineering and Design, Inc., 255 County Road 555 South, Lakeland, Florida 33830, no later than April 17, 2018. The list is to be "the Contractor's relevant experience statement" and shall include the project name and/or parcel number, acreage, contract value, date completed, current status (if active), Owner's name and address, and a telephone number of the Owner's representative.

Duke Energy leverages Avetta as their contractor safety certification process partner. Avetta, a third-party administrator and information verification company, will collect, verify and maintain contractor prequalification-related information to streamline Duke Energy's contractor safety rating process. In order to be pre-qualified, Contractor's must either already be in the Avetta system, or participate in the Avetta "QuickVett" as described in Exhibit A. Note that Contractor MUST have an approved safety review in Avetta in order to be awarded the work.

The awarded Bidder will be required to provide to Duke Energy either a Parent Guarantee or a Standby Letter of Credit for 15% of the Purchase Order price. Information regarding the Parent Guarantee or Letter of Credit will be provided at the prebid meeting.

Each prospective bidder agrees to waive any claim it has or may have against Duke Energy, the Engineer, and their respective employees, arising out of the qualification of prospective bidders or in connection with the administration, evaluation, or recommendation of any bid. The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all proposals, to use reasonable judgement for minor discrepancies, and to re-advertise if necessary. April 11, 2018 269698 3567514

DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY

FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY

Proposed Flood Hazard Determinations for Unincorporated Areas of Polk County, Florida, Case No. 17-04-4685P. The Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) solicits technical information or comments on proposed flood hazard determinations for the Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM), and where applicable, the Flood Insurance Study (FIS) report for your community. These flood hazard determinations may include the addition or modification of Base Flood Elevations, base flood depths, Special Flood Hazard Area boundaries or zone designations, or the regulatory floodway. The FIRM and, if applicable, the FIS report have been revised to reflect these flood hazard determinations through issuance of a Letter of Map Revision (LOMR), in accordance with Title 44, Part 65 of the Code of Federal Regulations. These determinations are the basis for the floodplain management measures that your community is required to adopt or show evidence of having in effect to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program. For more information on the proposed flood hazard determinations and information on the statutory 90-day period provided for appeals, please visit FEMA's website at www.fema.gov/plan/prevent/fhm/bfe, or call the FEMA Map Information eXchange (FMIX) toll free at 1-877-FEMA MAP (1-877-336-2627).
