SHOT AT THE TRAMP.

Mrs. Lester Lyke's Exciting Experience With a Hobo.

DELIBERATELY KNOCKED HER DOWN WITH HIS FIST.

Shot Twice at Him With Revolver As He Flew.

The vicinity of the huckleberry farms a few miles west of the village was all excitement Saturday afternoon over Mrs. Lester Lyke's exciting experience with a tramp. She says a tramp called about 2:00 o'clock and demanded something to eat. She started to get it when upon the tramp insisted upon entering the house, and upon her refusal to let him come in he hauled off and deliberately knocked her down. She fell inside the house and as she dropped her little girl who was alone with her at the time grabbed a revolver from a shelf and handed it to her mother. At this the tramp started across the garden back of the house towards the woods.

Mrs. Lyke, though dazed by the blow she had received from the butly tramp shot and the subsequent fall on the hard floor, managed to get to the door and taking quick aim fired twice at the fleeing figure. She thinks the bullet must have taken some effect as the tramp fell at each shot but finally scrambled to his feet and reached the woods and disappeared. Neighbors were quickly aroused and while they were able to track him in the damp ground to the woods, they search further as yet in vain. It was thought he kept in hiding until night and then made his escape under cover of the darkness. Mrs. Lyke describes her assailant as a large thick-set fellow wearing brown clothes and had sandy whiskers. This is not Mrs. Lyke's first use of fire-arms. She is a navy woman and but a short time ago saved her chicken-coop from being robbed by shooting at a couple of men in the act of entering it.

Mrs. Lyke was in the village at the time and his first intimation of the trouble was from a messenger who came for him about 2:00 o'clock.

FUNNY IF TRUE

How a Farmington "Best Girl" Lost Her Lover.

Some time ago a young fellow was engaged in evangelistic work at Farmington and as he was quite a devotee he made a great hit among the fair sex. He began a sort of general knock-up, finally selecting a very estimable young lady as his "best girl." While temporarily engaged there he was called to Flint to take part in a musical, and took with him a very large valise filled with song books. He returned by train to Novi at 9:00 o'clock one night and imparted the information to a young girl friend of his that he expected his best girl to meet him with a rig to take him over to Farmington. The agent overheard this and decided to test the dude evangelist's power of endurance so the telephone bell rang and the agent said: "Yes, this is the depot—yes I think so, he looks like a preacher. Oh, all right if he enquires I'll tell him Good bye."

Of course the evangelist had heard it, and hurriedly made the novitiate, and was informed that his best girl had been on the road half an hour and must be near the village then. The young man said: "Well I guess I'll start, and will very likely meet her close by, and began his pilgrimage with his heavy valise dangling about his slender legs. He continued his pilgrimage about all the way to Farmington, a distance of five miles. Of course his best girl had never started for Novi, and when the fellow revealed the trick, he lost his best girl—Told by an ex-Novitiate.

Maud—Last night Jack told me that he wouldn't marry the best girl living unless—what—unless she took Rocky Mountain Tea Bright fellow. Ask your Druggist.

BIGAMY; ASSAULT

Two More Warrants Out for Tom Evans.

ALLEGED TO HAVE ONE WIFE TOO MANY.

Wanted in Northern Michigan on that and Assault Charge.

Tom Evans of Meads Mills, Michigan, fame is up against it again. When his 90 days engagement at the house of correction expires next month he will find two fresh warrants of a serious nature awaiting him.

One is from Crawford county, Michigan, and the charge is criminally assaulting the then 14-year old Rose V. Ward of near Grayling, Mich. The second warrant is sworn out by the sheriff of Cheboygan and the charge is bigamy. Lovina Higgins Evans of Alpena claims that Tom married her in April 1900. With him she lived a little over two years before being deserted. The records there show that at Cheboygan in March 1897 Tom again took upon himself another matrimonial yoke and married the Widow Mary Johnson who is at present living at Meads Mills. Mrs. Evans No. 1 says that Tom has no legal separation from her and that the first she was aware of his second marriage was upon the occasion of the recent visit of Northville officers, and she was more than willing to go to Cheboygan to give evidence in getting out the warrant. This Mrs. Evans keeps house for her father in Alpena. She is a bright young woman of about 20 years and is well spoken of by people of that city.

It is said that still other warrants, one for assault and one for perjury, are ready to be sworn out by the officials there as soon as there is an opportunity. The credit of securing the evidence that led to the issuance of these warrants is due the efforts of Detective White who went to Alpena and Cheboygan last week and upon his return brought the papers with him and placed them in the hands of Capt. Nicholson of the house of correction Saturday.

MISSIONARY TEA AND RECEPTION

IN HONOR OF MISS DEAN AND MISS COLEMAN.

A Delightful Time on the Root Lawn Tuesday Afternoon.

Probably one of the most enjoyable gatherings of the kind ever held in Northville was the missionary tea and reception given Tuesday afternoon from five to eight by the ladies of the Presbyterian church at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Root in honor of Miss Jennie Dean of Detroit and Miss Jennie Coleman of Chicago, missionary-teachers of the above denominations in Persia and India. By a fortunate and unusual coincidence the two were able to be here together, both coming to visit friends and relatives, and the missionary society improved the opportunity in a never to be forgotten manner. Miss Dean who is sister of Northville's oldest resident, Mrs. B. J. White, entered the field in Persia over thirty years ago. Failing health compelled her return to her native land a few years since but with returning vigor has come the desire to be again with the people to whom she has given so much of her life, and she starts next week to cross the ocean for the seventh time, expecting to spend her remaining years in her chosen work. Miss Coleman took up the work in India nine years ago, feeling impelled to take the place made vacant by the death of a dear friend. She has been spending a year at home and goes back in September. A remarkable fact relating to her vocation is that herself and her relatives have been represented in over one hundred years of foreign missionary work. She is an extremely entertaining speaker and from her fund of incident and experience gave many glimpses of a strange land in the most charming manner. Miss Dean also gave a very delightful talk and one has but to see and hear these sweet christian teachers to realize what makes them beloved and successful in their noble work. We wish it were possible to give the readers of the Record a detailed account of these talks and their illustration by the curious and ornamental articles shown and of the many pleasing features of the day. The Root home is peculiarly adapted to an out-door function of this sort and no pains had been spared to develop its possibilities. The handsome grounds and the beautiful arbor were elaborately decorated with the national C. E. colors and Chinese lanterns, while flowers, rugs, cushions and easy chairs in profusion added to the attractiveness of the scene. Many small tables were arranged on the spacious lawn in the rear of the house and under the arbor and at least a hundred and fifty guests were served by the young ladies of the C. E. with the delicious refreshments provided for this long to be remembered occasion.

317 YES AND 12 NO.

That Was the Size of Monday's Special Election.

VILLAGE BONDS FOR ELECTRIC LIGHTING PLANT.

Five Improperly Marked Tickets Were Thrown Out.

Monday's special election to decide the question of bonding the village for $27,500 for purchasing an electric lighting plant brought out an unusually large vote. There were 317 votes cast, the number being within 16 as many as at the village election in March last. Of the votes cast there were 317 yes, 12 no and five improperly marked ballots. Of the latter one had a dot in the square instead of an 'X', another had an 'X' in both squares, another voter had put an 'X' in the wrong square and then after trying to erase it jabbed another in what he thought was the correct place while two other voters instead of marking an 'X' just drew lines across the question and square. Of course the whole five had to be thrown out.

A DEARTH OF CATS

Train-master Ed Wood's Practical Joke at Plymouth.

Ed. Wood who used to be a train dispatcher for the F & P M. at Saginaw and who is now the train master at Plymouth is known as one of the greatest jokers on the road. Ed told a wag at Wayne that he was desirous of getting up a fine collection of cats and offered 15 cents a piece for all acceptable specimens that were brought to him at the junction on or before a certain day. Every kid in the vicinity brought cats and there were nearly 200, but only one or two passed the rigid examination that Ed put them through, and a strange feature was that everyone of the cats accidentally got away during the examination and there was great cat-chasing. The landlord of the Junction house swore that Ed had a grudge against him and got the cats down there to prepare him for the asylum.

Suburban News.

The Flat Rock News is four years old but has not yet assumed suspenders. Plymouth had a $150 burgle one night last week, a local meat market being the scene of operations. Plymouth furnished nearly 200 people to help make up the Sunday attendance at the big C. I. convention in Detroit. Penton has over 500 bicycle riders and some of them have been making a path for that kind of vehicles from their town to Long Lake. Penton's pleasure resort. Rochester pays two-thirds of the cost of all cement walks laid in that village. Pontiac pays one-third of the expensior similar improvements within her boundaries. The St. Jonas News last week commented on a certain church arrangement there as 'an admiral plan.' The proof reader was evidently all at sea and ought to be shipped or have his wages docked. Merritt is not always recognized, and even Angells may fall, as proven by a bicycle collision at Salem one night lately between two riders of the above names in which the man with the celestial cognomen badly damaged Merritt. The woes of the down trodden and abused census enumerator will have been some what mitigated under the new law, as he—or she—has some means of redress provided. Women who won't tell their age or don't tell them according to the family bible are liable to a $100 fine, and all refusals to answer the prescribed questions, also all untruthful replies, carry the same penalty. So if you have for the past ten years been wasey false in regard to your sex, color, degree of ignorance or previous condition of servitude you've got to own up now or stand the consequence. The post-office at Holly was entered by burglars last week and between $200 and $300 taken. The dynamite method was used for opening the safe. The thieves did not make a very clean sweep, being evidently much pressed for time as they left considerable cash scattered around—the floor and the receipts for the day in a drawer untouched. On a recent Sunday the Methodist pastor at Orion preached on the subject, "To Hell with the Railroad." An elderly lady in the village who always keeps posted on the subject for the Sunday sermon and on the Sunday in question as she was getting ready for church, someone asked her what the subject was to be that evening. She promptly replied "To Hell with the Railroad." Milford Times is puzzled over the fact that a man named Edward Smith, who took too much laudanum at an Indiana town, claimed to nail from Milford. Seems 'sif that name-sounds familiar some how. If the first name had been John now, there wouldn't have been the slightest difficulty in locating the man, as we'd be positive we'd heard of him some where and not very long ago either. Sure it wasn't John Smith?

IN OUR GREAT STATE.

THE HAPPENINGS IN MICHIGAN BRIEFLY RELATED.

The Dry City Manufacturers of Beet Sugar Will Doubtless Apply to the Courts to Obtain Injunction - A Lost Watch Stolen by a Freightman.

Will Have to be Settled in the Courts. The Michigan Sugar Co. of Bay City, maintains that the bounty law of 1897 is constitutional, but Atty-Gen. Owen says it is not. Two weeks ago, Land Commissioner French issued a certificate showing that $1,000,000 was due for sugar manufactured in January and February of this year. Dix referred the matter to the attorney-general for an opinion as to his right to draw a warrant for the payment of the amount from the general fund. The attorney-general has concluded that the expense is not a general expense of the state government or which the legislature can predicate a tax under section 1, article 14, of the constitution, which says that "The legislature shall provide for an annual tax, sufficient with other resources, to pay the estimated expenses of the state government, the interest of the state debt, and such deficiency as may occur in the resources." This squarely raises the question as to the constitutionality of the law.

Barbar Uncovered an Old Crime. During the last presidential campaign Mrs. R. A. Myler, of Buchanan, attended a political meeting in the opera house, and on leaving the building left her purse containing a gold watch and a $5 bill on the chair she occupied. No clue to the finder was discovered until a few days ago, and then it came about in a peculiar manner. On July 4, while the family was away from home, the house of a farmer residing southwest of Buchanan, was burglarized and among the booty secured were two gold watches. The burglar was captured and the goods recovered. Among them was found the watch of Mrs. Myler. It now comes out that the farmer picked up the purse and kept it, and he was arrested and will doubtless suffer for his crime.

A Destructive Smudge. Richard Looke a farmer near Standish started a fire to keep away mosquitoes, and the blaze spread to his barn, which was totally destroyed, together with the houses inside it. Another occurrence of a similar nature last week was at Mason, where a man started a smudge in his chicken house to drive out the chicken lice. The barn caught fire, and while the man was hushing around to put out the fire he fell down a flight of stairs and broke his wrist. The fire department put out the fire before the barn was burned, but the chicken house was still doing business at the old stand.

A Big Iron Ore Bed Found. The largest iron ore find reported this year has been made by Pickens, Mather & Co., the Cleveland O., iron ore men upon the land of John Stambaugh in Stambaugh township in Iron county. The property is located about two miles south of the village of Stambaugh and adjoins the Deber mine and Olive mining property on the south. The discovery was made with a diamond drill, a hole having penetrated over 200 feet of the formation 60 feet of clean ore was found that contained 40 per cent in metallic iron and an average of the whole length of the hole gives nearly 70 per cent iron.

Indians Looking After Their Cash. A band of Pawnee Indians want to Kalamazoo recently from southwestern Michigan to make suits for to establish claims for money which had once been granted them by the courts but was either mislaid or misappropriated. The lands for which they were to receive pay were 49 sections near Niles, 16 near Mendon and 91 around Schoolcraft. The money $100,000, they claimed was paid according to an old census roll, consequently 362 members of the tribe received no pay and 72 received the money.

For a National Filter. The fact that in the near future a filtering plant to cost $30,000 will be a necessity at Lake Gogewic, the source of Battle Creek's water supply, has caused a novel suggestion in the lake near pumping station, is Ward's island, composed of sand and gravel. The suggested experiment is that a reservoir be dug in the center of this island, and the water be allowed to filter naturally through the sand from the lake, which process, it is claimed, would purify it, and save the expense of the proposed plant.

Cass County's Sea Serpent. The Indian lake sea serpent has been seen several times this summer. It appears to be about 12 feet long and can propel itself through the water like an arrow. Thus far very few have been able to get a close view of it, owing to its shyness. The only danger to be felt is that it might suddenly rise some time under a boat, capsize the occupants and possibly kill some of them with its tail in its effort to get away.

$100,000 Label Suit. The limit of endurance was reached when the Detroit Evening News published an article alleging that it was Gov. H. S. Pingree's intention to fasten a 48-year street railway franchise on the city of Detroit for a million dollars for it, and then retire from politics. Accordingly the governor has commenced a label suit against that paper for $100,000.

It cost Jackson county $7500 for the care of its indigent insane at Kalamazoo during the last three months.

K. O. T. M. Review at Port Huron.

The first day's gathering of delegates to the biennial review of the Supreme Tent, K. O. T. M., resembled the preliminary work of a political convention. All day the delegates were gathered in groups in various apartments of the hotel and from early morning until late at night. The review was the central figure of first one group and another as he discussed Maccabeanism generally and the present situation more particularly.

The reports submitted showed that the Supreme Tent had a membership of 23,120 at the beginning of 1892, at the close of 1898 it had a membership of 162,252, standing fourth in numerical strength among the fraternal benevolent orders of the day. On June 30 last the condition of the life benefit fund was as follows: Cash on hand, $118,632.11, U. S. bonds full face value $700,000, $77,425.00; Port Huron bonds, $20,700, deposited at St. Louis, Mo. $4,000, total, $710,218.20. Against this there were outstanding warrants and claims in process of adjustment, $247,081.40, leaving a surplus over all liabilities of $463,136.80 to which the June collections, estimated at $120,000, must be added. This is an increase in the surplus fund during the past two years of $267,533.00. The total management expenses for 1898 was $210,150.93, against $195,707.69 for 1897. The per capita expense of conducting business has decreased from $2.15 in 1890, to $1.29 in 1898, a reduction of 89 cents per member, or 40 per cent less than they were nine years ago. With the order's new building paid for, and no rent to pay, expenses will be further reduced.

During the past term the Supreme Tent has paid to disabled members and the beneficiaries of deceased members $2,460,277.72, divided as follows: Life benefits, $2,261,503.40, total disability, $83,320.25; sick, funeral and accident, $115,454.07. The death rate for the past term was about six per thousand, against 5.66 for the previous term.

L. O. T. M. IN THIRD BIENNIAL REVIEW. On March 24, 1886, a little band of women under the leadership of Mrs. A. G. Ward, met at her home in Muskegon and apitied themselves in an organization to be known as the Lady K. O. T. M., their object being to aid and comfort the sick and needy of the order and for mutual improvement and social intercourse. Today this little band numbers 70,000 members, with hives established in 30 states. The total amount paid out in death claims for the term was $,599,700, with $43,500 in process of adjustment, making a total of $643,200. During the term there were 217 deaths an average annually of 5.25 to each 1,000 life benefit members. The mortality rate is decreasing, owing to the careful selection of risks, and the order is in favorable condition.

A Rid Case of Hydrophobia.

Mrs. John Edgett, living three miles east of Lakerville, began to develop symptoms of hydrophobia on the 12th and the following morning she was raging mad. Mrs. Edgett is but 31 years old and has been married less than a year. Some time after her marriage, she was bitten by a little "whiff" dog but experienced no pain or evil effects from the bite. The first noticed of this terrible malady was the queer action of Mrs. Edgett on the above date. She had harnessed herself to a rig, taken the bits in her mouth and had drawn the buggy about a quarter of a mile. Several neighbors took her home and looked her in the barn where she began to eat hay in a ravenous manner. Doctors pronounce it a rare case of hydrophobia. The patient larks spittle and foams at the mouth and her suffering is terrible to witness. The physicians have trapped her on a bed in which position she will probably remain until death comes to relieve her of her terrible agonies.

Very Clever Game.

Here is the very latest game gotten up by promissory note swindlers and worked in southwestern Michigan. A well dressed man of clerical appearance drives up to a farmhouse and asks permission to stay for the night. Before the family and their guest retire for the night a man and woman stop at the house and inquire the way to the nearest minister saying they wish to get married. The guest says he is a clergyman and offers his services. A "marriage certificate" is filled out after the ceremony has been gone through with, and the farmer and his wife are asked to sign it as witnesses. They do so and a few weeks afterward the certificate turns up as a promissory note for several hundred dollars which has been sold to some bank which proceeds to collect the amount.

$100,000,000 Worth of Untaxed Property.

One of the duties of the state tax commission is to reach the vast amount of personal property which now escapes taxation. In order to do this experts must be employed. The commission predicts that with an expenditure of from $25,000 to $30,000 including the salaries of the commissioners, not less than $100,000,000 of property will be added to the assessment rolls of the state for the year 1900. If this shall be the result, and the average rate of taxation paid by the other property of the state is collected hereon, the returns for the expenditure noted will be not less than $2,000,000, and the other property now being assessed therefor will be relieved to a like extent.

Fall of the Bastille Celebrated in France. July 14th was the national fete day at Paris. All public and many private buildings were decorated. Deroulede and Marcel Herbert and several hundred members of the Patriotic League marched to the Place de la Concorde and deposited a wreath at the foot of the Strasbourg statue, amid cries of "Vive la Republique." "Vive Deroulede." Deroulede in turn, shouted "Vive la Republique Francaise." "Vive la nation Francaise." "Vive l'Alsace-Lorraine." He then requested the leaguers to disperse. Some of them attempted to continue the demonstration, but the police scattered them. Settling Our Population. Almost complete returns to the bureau of immigration of the treasury department of immigrants arriving in the United States for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1899, show an increase of $2,579 over the fiscal year ended June 30, 1898. The returns yet to be received will not change the figure materially. The number of immigrants arriving in 1899 was 311,578, as against 299,299 for the previous year. Immigration for 1898 was the smallest for 11 years. Dynamite Used by Strikers. An attempt was made to blow up the elevated structure at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fifth street in Brooklyn early on the morning of the 18th. The police say that it was the work of the strikers or sympathizers. One of the pillars of the structure was shattered by the explosion of dynamite and the entire base of the pillar was blown to pieces, and the sides of the pillar several feet up were torn away. Several pieces of steel were thrown through neighboring houses. One piece of large size, nearly an inch in thickness, was blown through the brick wall of a house. Reciprocity Treaty Signed. Plenipotentiary Kasson, for the United States, and Secretary and Charge Tower, for Great Britain, have signed the reciprocity treaty made under the terms of section 4 of the Dingey tariff act with British Guiana. The treaties governing Jamaica and Bermuda went over, but the formal execution is expected to take place with a few days. This concludes the reciprocity work so far as Great Britain is concerned, treaties having been made with Barbadoes, Bermuda, British Guiana and Jamaica. 25 Firemen Injured. Fire on the 18th destroyed the Grace hotel, a four story brick structure at Milwaukee, and about 25 firemen were injured of whom five may die. At a time when the fire seemed to be under control and when several firemen were in the structure to subdue what little flames were left with 10 others on the roof the structure collapsed and nothing but debris was left. ### The City in Brief.

Where are the twelve? Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hathaway, July 18, a boy. Evidently there are a few old foggies still in the village. The stone crusher was set to work yesterday and made a satisfactory grind. It's no trouble to raise money with a glib fake talker and a gasoline light on the corner. Jas. Huff has started a tin shop at Plymouth in connection with Hueston's hardware store. Mrs. Fred Elm, who underwent an operation at Grace hospital, Detroit last week, is getting along nicely. Married at Wayne on the 8th inst by Rev. W. H. Shannon, Mr. James Wilsey to Mrs. Mary Holt, both of Northville.

10 cents buys pure Manilla binder twine at M. S. Ambler's.

Can you find a nicer 10c assortment of Carlsbad China than at Mrs. Coleburn's Bazaar.

Look out for the "kissin' bug" Potato growers report that last week's rains materially aided the growth of their crops, but insist that still more is needed.

Rev. Mr. Lloyd of Farmington will occupy the Methodist pulpit Sunday morning while Mr. Ward goes over and talks to Pontiac sinners.

Ed. Mooney of this place, a former sergeant in the 35th Mich. U.S.V. has enlisted in the U. S. regular army and may soon go to the Philippines.

The D. P. & N. are grading and setting poles for their track south from the village toward Plymouth. Work in that village however is yet at a stand still.

A couple of Northville's young men, it is said, have launched out in the fakir business. They gave a medicine that will cure everything from a toothache to corns.

One hundred and thirty-one Northville people braved the elements and tool in the 2nd Detroit excursion last week Saturday. On Wednesday of this week one hundred and forty went.

We congratulate Northville on having secured a refrigerator factory.

And we congratulate the News on finding it out. The refrigerator factory was secured some five years ago.

The Holly Advertiser is the latest "country" weekly to adopt all-home print. The advertiser recently improved its plant by the addition of a Campbell cylinder press, one of the best and fastest presses made. Nov. will have a Harvest Festival and gala day, Friday July 28 all day. The committee in charge has arranged a splendid program consisting of races, parades, balloon ascension, orations, etc. for the principal features. A big time is predicted. See small bills.

Ward T. Bower of Detroit, son of Seymour Bower of the Michigan fish commission and Leonard M. Tongue of Washington D. C. are the two new appointees at the U. S. fish station here to succeed Messrs. Manchee and Tubbs, promoted. The former will remain at the station here however on detail service.

F. S. Neal, publisher of the Northville Record was a pleasant caller at the Advertiser office last Friday afternoon. Mr. Neal gets out one of the best local papers on our exchange list, which fact seems to be appreciated by the business men of that place, who crowd the columns of the Record every week with advertisements.

Of the numerous guesses received by the Record as to who committed the crimes of "Lost Man's Lane," Henry Britton of this place was the only person to make a correct guess. Mr. Britton however failed to comply with the exact terms of the contest but inasmuch as he was the only contestant to name the right man, the Record has sent him a check for $2.00 as a compromise between first and second prize.

Surveyors on the Northwestern railway are at work on the base-line route and have about reached the village by this time.

There will be a lecture on Christian Science by Judge W. G. Cwang C. S., of Chicago in the Village hall, Plymouth, Sunday July 23, at 4.00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Miss Addie Dibble and Frederick Bennett of Plymouth started out with a party to go camping, but dropped at Northville long enough to get married.—Ypsilantian.

A petition has been circulated this week asking the council to change the D. & N. W. railway's route into the village from Cadz street to Beal avenue via the Puddy Yerkes addition.

Regular Meeting of Orient chapter No 77 OES this Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Several matters of importance are to come before the meeting and a good attendance is desired.

The largest rose blossom yet seen in Northville this year found its way into the Record office last week with the compliments of Mrs. L. E. McRobert. It measured five inches in diameter.

A couple of Northville well known young ladies while attending the C. E. convention in Detroit last week passed off a lot of Puddy's coupons for street car tickets. They went too,—for a while.

The Columbia Refrigerator factory at Northville will be greatly enlarged and partly take the place of the Globe Works, recently burned. Northville evidently does not propose to die of her loss, as she has landed three new factories which will be put up soon.—Ypsilantian.

In a recent interview J. A. Dubuar of the J. A. Dubuar Mfg. Co., gave the Record some interesting figures to prove the value of factories to a town and how many persons were dependent upon the employment of each man in the factory. "Take our factory for instance," said Mr. Dubuar "For the first six months of 1899 we paid $12,297 for labor and gave employment to 74 persons, and upon inquiry I found that these men were supporting in their own families including themselves 184 persons, an average of two and one half to each employe." These figures show the support the factory gives direct to employes and their families and the indirect support to the business in general is far reaching.

Keep off of this lawn unless you have a permit from the city council! is the large unique sign that adorns the pretty lawn of A. K. Carpenter on Rogers street. "Carp" is just about as mad as they make 'em. He says the council committee not satisfied with locating the stone crusher and its auxiliaries of noise, stone and dirt adjacent to his home, breaking down shade trees, etc., the members persist in shortening their walk to and from the plant by cutting across his lawn. "Carp" says he assumes that the council can do anything on earth without limit but believing he still has a few rights left he proposes to oblige the balance of us mortals to obtain a "trespass permit" from the "city council" before venturing across his green sward.

Where Are the Twelve?

Oh where are those wandering boys tonight? The twelve who did not dare Who voted for darkness rather than light And 'or progress had no care? Oh there are the half score and two Who thought there was nothing to do But sit down in de-pair And set out upon air. Whose our village dried up like the dew? Oh where are those persons dozen today Who no feared for their dollars and dime? And would not through the one horse? In these bustling trolley times? Oh where are the dozen today? Who don't want to stand out of the way And wait the procession Of Northville's procession. Because they're afraid it won't turn.—D. C. H.

A Northville man raised 67 bushels of strawberries on half an acre of ground. He was bragging over the money it brought him, when he read that Lewis of Ypsilanti, had sold a measly three months' old Cocker Spaniel pup for $120, and he was so mad that the strawberry mark under his left ear faded out entirely.—Adrian Press.

It may make no great difference in the end but it seems as it would have been better judgement on the part of the B. P. W. to not have excavated on Main street for the paving on but one side of the street railway track at a time. Only one side should be fixed at a time in order to give the public the use of the street on the other.

Who is the "dot" voter? There is one man in this village who steadily year after year persists in marking his ballot with "dot" instead of the regulation "X." He was in evidence at Monday's special election as usual, and as usual his ballot was thrown out. The man should take a tumble and learn something or quit visiting the polls.

As an illustration of the "bun of suckers" at the rate of sixty to the minute, an electric belt fakir on the corner Friday night, sold fifteen 25 cent electric belts "just to advertise them" for $1.00 each. He was a smooth talker and made good his claim that he would give a free exhibition of hypnotism and mesmerism. He had a hundred or more people mesmerized by his stall and hypnotized some fifteen or twenty into giving up hard earned cash for a worthless "fame back cure" electric belt. It was the old game of selling something for a dollar and buying it back for $2—only this chap didn't buy it back. "Who'll take the next box for a dollar and stand where he is?" said the man with the corn knife, and in their scramble to get rid of their silver dollars, some of the "free show" patrons even bought two or three of the belts.

August Flower.

It is a surprising fact says Prof. Higginson—that in my travel in all parts of the world, for the last ten years, I have met more people having used Green's Flower than any other remedy for dyspepsia, deranged liver and stomach, and for constipation. I find it for tourists and salesmen, or for persons filling office positions, where headaches and general bad feeling from irregular habits exist, that Green's August Flower is a grand remedy. It does not injure the system by frequent use, and is excellent for sour stomachs and indigestion. Sample bottles free at Murdock Bros. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries.

CHAPTER III.

It was her pleasure to accompany me to my room, whither I led her according to her direction, her hand resting on my arm. We were nearly of equal height, which made it specially easy for me to become her guide.

She left me after a while, having assured herself that things had been made comfortable for my reception. And, indeed, a far more captious person than I, and one used to far greater luxury, could scarcely have found anything to complain of in the small suite of rooms—chamber, sitting-room and bath—that had been recently appointed, in view of the fact that Madam was about to receive into her house a new inmate.

I made a cursory inspection of my apartments, disposed of the hangings for the night, after refreshing myself with the dainty supper which Madam insisted I should take in my room, being firmly of the opinion that I was too fatigued to dine below stairs, went to the window and stood for some time gazing in dreamy abstraction out into the night.

A small crescent of light hung low in the heavens, and shed the tenderest of possible illuminations over the world. The night was so still that an almost unearthly hush seemed to have fallen from its wings. On the left, winding away into unfathomable distance, was the avenue which had been my way hither and far below on the right dimly and partially discernible through the sombre branches of the gnarled and forbidding poplars gleamed forth that cold and spectral mass of masonry that formed the house which had attracted my notice as I approached the Ivies.

Almost beneath me it lay for I was in a wing of the house in close proximity to the cliff that overhung it. Its utter gloom, therefore, no habits but cold and an of ghastly mystery struck cold and chill upon my fancy. I felt it to be a house with a history and full of wonder and yet that history might be traced in the olden days, and in the lives of its inhabitants, and in the deeds of its ancestors, and in the lives of its descendants. I felt it to be a house with a history and full of wonder and yet that history might be traced in the olden days, and in the lives of its inhabitants, and in the deeds of its ancestors, and in the lives of its descendants.

fulfillment, so evidently an embodiment of a living grief, that one instinctively shrank from contact with so unmistakably an abstraction of despair.

Have you ever seen a garden so fair and gracious of appearance that to gaze upon it satisfies every aesthetic craving of your nature; a garden whose form and design seem absolutely perfect, whose flowers are of the rarest species and most exquisite development, in which the sun loves to linger like a lover, and over whose pleasant paths and verdure the blue skies brood tenderly and peacefully? Have you, later, beheld this scene of natural and cultivated loveliness after it has been devastated and laid waste by some monstrous cataclysm, after it has been swept and ravaged by a ruthless wind, and all its gentle features have been marred and distorted by stress and storm?

That is the only parallel I can think of to the impression this woman produced upon my mind at first sight. Later I came to pity her to tolerate her presence without shrinking to endeavor to cheer and comfort her even, but it took a mighty effort to conquer my natural reluctance to approach within the circumference of that depressing atmosphere which she exhaled. All the buoyancy of my young spirit shrank from the contagion of her misery.

She had been probably in youth somewhat above medium height, but her spine was so curved that the crushing weight of adversity that she had borne had bent almost to deformity. One would have taken her for a dwarf at a casual glance. Her face still preserved traces of a once beautiful countenance, and this very suggestion of former beauty, disfigured and despoiled as it was, marred her countenance far more deeply than native ugliness would have done. Her features were so small and regular, those of a French doll, but eyes, originally blue, were now, through constant weeping, a faded, dead color. Her cheeks, of rosy white, were so long as the mere wrinkles of her years that they were ploughed with lines worse than the wrinkles of extreme age. All this was repellent enough, but the most repulsive feature of her personality was the strange incongruity that existed between her scarred and pallid countenance and the glorious mass of golden hair that curled luxuriously back from her seamed brow. I have never in my life seen in color or texture, the like of her hair. It was like a flood of sun shine falling upon a desolate, devastated ruin. There was not a grey thread in it. It did not fade in any degree, nor had it lost any of its rich abundance. On the head of a girl, accompanied by the bloom and freshness of youth it would have aroused the admiration of the beholder. On the head of this faded, miserable woman it jarred upon the sight. Her hair, moreover, was so abundant that it might be supposed to be a wig, and indeed, she had said to me as I started to confront her, I have unconsciously allowed her with my eyes, perhaps, but I have never seen a wig so abundant.

"This is Miss Lothrop?" she asked. I bowed assent.

"You will not allow yourself to be discouraged or dissuaded by the dreariness of this place?"

"I think not."

"As I uttered this commonplace phrase, imagine my surprise at seeing this curious creature thing herself up on her knees beside me, seize a fold of my gown in her thin claw-like fingers, and lift a pleading, beseeching face to mine, while she cried, in a very agony of entreaty:

"Ah! do not, do not! I have seen, this morning upon my mistress's face the first ray of brightness that has crossed it since—O God! since when—since when?"

She let her clutch upon my skirt, and covering her face with her hands, burst into a fit of uncontrollable weeping, cowering like a whipped dog at my feet.

It was evident that she was stirred by some powerful memory, and I felt miserably embarrassed in the presence of this passionate outburst, which I knew not how to comfort or soothe. However, I could reassure her upon the point which had seemed to provoke the attack, the probability of my remaining at The Ivies, and thus I proceeded to do.

I was entranced in this attempt when her quick and carefully-trained eyes detected a sound that escaped my own. The sound of her mistress's arm, and stately tread approaching from her boudoir. She rose at once, and catching up my hand to her lips, pressed a tremulous kiss upon it, before she whisked quickly. My dear, you will be doing monstrous work if you remain and then, gliding noiselessly out of sight, left me to meet Madam and conduct her down the wide staircase to the dainty morning room in which it was her custom to breakfast.

As far as comfort and luxury were concerned, life at The Ivies was ideal. The staff of domestics was limited in number but fully adequate in service. It consisted of the house-keeper and butler whom I have named, an old general out-door servant, who slept in a room in the stable, and attended to the grounds and to the pair of old coach-horses that alone composed Madam's stud, and a cook and house-maid, middle-aged women, nieces of Franklin, who had occupied the same positions since they were girls. Mayberry also served as Madam's maid and I soon discovered that she was exceedingly jealous of any attempts to roo her of the performance of her duties in this capacity.

My duties proved to be thoroughly congenial and in no degree onerous. Madam fulfilled my most extravagant anticipations, and charmed and fascinated me by her many gifts and rare intellectual gifts. The most cultivated minds might have found her a congenial companion to a young and unexpressed lover, such as I then was. She appeared almost divinely endowed and accomplished. She never forgot that first mention of it, made allusion to her blindness, but I felt sure it must have been of recent date for she had made no attempt to train her other senses to the assistance of this defect as would naturally have been the case if the affliction had been of long standing.

At the end of the first week she questioned me as to my willingness to remain, and the favor of my response set that matter for ever at rest between us. From day to day I could see that she grew dependent upon me, and that hatred me and increased my enthusiasm for my work. It was scarcely that the service which was required of me. It was employment, it is true, but the soul of employment that is dearest to my soul and which was unimpaired as well as occupation to one of my tastes.

Old Franklin and Mayberry were grateful to me for the benefit which they derived from my presence. I was doing them better than I could have done otherwise. I was in contact with Madam of whom the house-keeper was never, perhaps, so much as I was. I was doing them better than I could have done otherwise. I was in contact with Madam of whom the house-keeper was never, perhaps, so much as I was.

My little Dorothy, she said, on one matter Mayberry, Franklin and I were in perfect accord. We all agree in thinking that nothing in this great house can be put to better use than in helping to detain and attract the simpering that has strayed through the blessed shelter of our lives. Let them have their way, my child. It is a great pleasure to them, and I do not regret their doing it.

The return of my experience was, without comparison, Madam's, and absolutely in the line of my own. I had been with Madam about three months when one day, in the middle of May, I rose in the morning with a tight iron band about my head. The weather for a week had been an almost incessant downpour, so wet that only an amphibious creature could have found it inviting. Madam and I had been deeply interested in a new German work which I had been reading aloud, and either application to its dazzling text, or too close confinement to the house, or perhaps a combination of both causes, had resulted in this acute physical depression. Feeling a longing for fresh air, and believing that a brisk walk would be my best medicine, I obtained Madam's consent to postpone my usual morning duties until later in the day, and started out on an errand that would carry me well into the village, a distance of perhaps four miles.

Although I was a stranger to its people, for I had only recently begun to administer Madam's bounty among the poor, I was by this time fairly familiar with the little hamlet. I had called upon Mr. Booth to acquaint him personally with the change Madam proposed making, and had found him more than pleased to welcome an assistant in his parish work. He was an agreeable man, earnest, sincere, but extremely modest and retiring, a bachelor, living alone, with a maid-of-all-work to minister to his needs. Save the few poor people whom I visited, he was the sole acquaintance I had made in the place.

I had done my errand, not without some physical discomfort, for the living room of the cottage in which I had been received was close from the fumes of tobacco and strong vegetables and over-heated by a fire burning in the range, and was returning through the village street when I felt myself overcome by a distressing dizziness. It came upon me suddenly, but not before I had found strength enough to push open a little gate close by me, and stagger up the narrow path which led to the doorstep of a quaint little house which I had frequently noted in my walks.

I remember seeing a lady sewing in the window, but that was my last glimpse of consequence until I found myself lying on a sofa in a cosy sitting room, having my iron band by me, and a comfortable hot towel on my forehead. My head was turned to the left, and I found myself in a room which I had frequently noted in my walks.

I THINK SHE IS MRS. ELDRIDGE'S COMPANION. I dress someone out of my range of vision. She did not observe the unclosing of my eyes, and I hastily shut them again, being so weak and languid of spirit that I had no inclination to meet or respond to interrogatories.

"I think—indeed, I am sure—she is Mrs. Eldridge's companion, David," she was saying. "Poor child, she is young to be doomed to live in this such shadow."

There are worse fates than that, mother. A girl who is forced to earn her own living may console herself if fortunate if shadows are the only evil she has to combat.

I recognized the voice at once. Its cheery tones had comforted me once before. "She seems a fragile creature to fight her way through life and too she has more to busy than it is altogether sordid for a working woman to be adorned with. Look David, what richness and abundance."

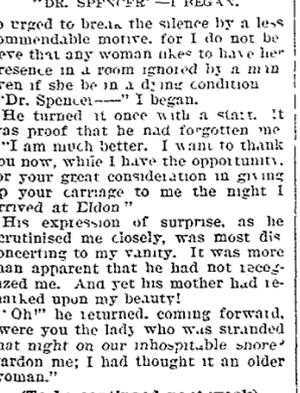

She laid her hand upon my hair from which she had drawn the pins that she strain upon my head might be removed. Its masses overflowed the collar and fell upon the floor. I felt that I had no right to be there and I listened to further but evaded and sud only opening my eyes met her selfish gaze.

"Ah that is right my dear," she said kindly. "You're better than you are. You've come to yourself."

"Do not try to exert yourself quite yet," he said as I made a motion as if to arise. "Please rest as you are until my mother shall have prepared a cup of tea for you. You will be all right then, I think."

I was again willing to follow his advice, and with a little nod of acquiescence again closed my eyes. My hostess bustled away, and silence took possession of the room. Presently, however, I opened my eyes again to discover what my companion might be doing. He was standing at the window with his hands in his pockets, looking out into the street with an expression upon his face which suggested me that he had forgotten there was such a person in existence as Dorothy Lothrop, and that his thoughts were far distant from the present scene.

He was a tall man, broad shouldered and vigorous of frame, with a strong intellectual face, blue eyes and fair hair. I could not tell his age very exactly, for there was a look of mature gravity and wide experience about the eyes and mouth, contrasted with the rest of his appearance. He might have been anywhere between thirty five and forty. I had been prepossessed in many a room the moment I addressed me on my arrival at the Eldon street and this second good turn he had done me quite won my heart. It occurred to me that I would in acknowledgment of his former kindness and act of self sacrifice, and I seized the present occasion to make it. Perhaps I was all

Samoan High Commission's Proclamation.
The high commission at Samoa has issued the following proclamation: "The high commission appointed by the three great powers to talk over the government of the Samoan islands, having, by virtue of the supreme powers in them invested, and in order to maintain peace and to establish a firm and stable government, required native Samoans to surrender their arms and ammunition; and such requirements having been in part complied with, notices is hereby given that all arms and ammunition still remaining in the hands of the native Samoans must be delivered to the commissioners at their rooms in the International hotel, in Apia, before June 20, 1899. That receipts will be given for all arms and ammunition so received and the same will be returned to the owners after the restoration of peace, or full compensation made therefor, but all arms and ammunition remaining in the possession of native Samoans after June 20, 1899, will be confiscated and persons in whose possessions they may be found will be punished by a fine not exceeding $100, or by imprisonment not exceeding 30 days, or by such fine and imprisonment." #### The Pope Approves Decisions of Bishops.

The pope is reported as much pleased at the success of the council of the bishops of the Latin-American church, which has just concluded its deliberations at Rome. Subjects which were expected to show differences of opinion almost impossible to reconcile were disposed of with a minimum of friction. Perhaps the most important was the scheme for serving the Latin-American episcopate from the jurisdiction and control of the Spanish-primacy. This was finally imposed despite vehement protests from the Spanish church. Henceforth the church of South America will have an American-born primate chosen by the pope himself. In the future, also, there will be an identical liturgy ecclesiastical code, etc., for the South American churches irrespective of the states wherein they are located. The council's report was submitted to the pope and was formally approved. The new primate will be nominated at the next consistory and will be immediately raised to the dignity of cardinal.

Three Killed and Several Wounded.

At New Boston Tex. on the 14th, there occurred one of the wildest and most desperate street battles that has yet been recorded in the fighting history of that town. The trouble emanated from a race over a barbed wire fence which separated the farms of Ira Smith and W. D. Hays. The difficulty was brought before the peace officers and the men were arrested. At their trial while a recess was on, the difficulty was reopened. Smith went into a saloon. W. D. Hays and his brothers, Hall and S. I. Hays followed him. Shooting began at once. Smith, who is said to have been unarmed, was killed outright. His friends came upon the scene and took part in the conflict. They were Jack John and Bill Fricks. A general battle then ensued. When their revolvers were emptied the participants used the butt ends of their weapons with deadly effect. The two Mr. Hays were killed and several bystanders, not participants, were wounded.

Statement of Exports.

The monthly statement of the exports for June 1899, of domestic breadstuffs, provisions, cotton and mineral oils, issued by the bureau of statistics, shows as follows: Breadstuffs, $91,781,057 decrease as compared with June, 1898, about $9,321,000, cotton, $8,072,706 increase $547,000, cattle and hogs, $2,644,446 decrease, $156,000, provisions, $1,056,623, increase $2,205,000, mineral oils $5,481,991, increase $509,000 total, $81,037,748, net decrease, $6,215,000. For the last month the statement is as follows: Breadstuffs, $263,055,103, against $247,060,060 last year, cattle and hogs $25,605,079 last year $16,910,482 provisions, $162,618,773 last year $158,690,561 cotton, $268,713,969 last year $226,940,477, mineral oils, $5,317,269, last year $5,171,060. Total $715,940,001 last year $648,818,781.

Fatal Family Row.

Following a family quarrel on the 16th Mrs. George Treder shot and killed her mother, wounded her husband and killed herself.
