THE WAYNE-WESTLAND school board is scheduled to name a new John Glenn High School principal in a special meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. today.

The meeting will be held in the central administrative offices, on Marquette between Wayne Road and Newburgh.

The new principal will succeed James Myers, who left Friday to start his new position as a Farmington High School assistant principal.

DONALD MASSEY is well known as a longtime Cadillac and Rolls Royce auto dealer in Plymouth Township.

But he shouldn't be confused with the man who is principal of Patchin Elementary School, on Newburgh south of Warren Road.

Patchin's Massey noted that he has "always been a GM man" because of his father's employment with the auto maker.

To make sure he isn't confused with the luxury car-Massey, the school principal drives an '81 Chevrolet station wagon.

THE FRIENDS of the Wayne-Westland Public Library will hold its third annual golf outing Saturday afternoon at the Westland municipal golf course, on Merriman south of Cherry Hill.

Tee-off time is 1 p.m. with $100 team prizes offered to the men's, women's, and co-ed's teams.

There will also be a $10,000 prize given to the first person to have a hole-in-one on the seventh hole of the course.

Tickets are $30 which includes nine holes of golf, dinner, and prizes.

For those who just want to eat, dinner tickets are $10.

Golf outing applications are available at the library, on Wayne Road at Sims, Wayne, and at municipal buildings.

For more information call Mary Gale, 595-2123.

ON THE TOPIC of golf, the Westland recreation department will join forces with Burger King to hold a junior golf tournament Friday for boys and girls ages 11 to 16.

The event will be at the Westland municipal golf course, on Merriman south of Cherry Hill. Entry blanks are available at the Burger King outlets on Merriman-Cherry Hill, Wayne Road-Cherry Hill, and the golf course.

Entries must be received by Wednesday. The entry fee is $5.75 which includes a certificate for a Burger King meal and golf equipment.

There will be first and second place awards in each of the age and gender divisions.

THE WESTLAND Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual fall outdoor garage sale Saturday, Oct. 6 in the Civic Center parking lot between City Hall and the Westland police station.

Table space rents for $14 or $17, call the chamber office, 326-7232.

Sale hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Rain date is the next day, Oct. 7.

THE CHAMBER is also planning a ticket sale this year and next as part of the city of Westland's 25th anniversary celebration.

Allan Brooks, chamber board member, commercial photographer, and antique car buff, told a chamber audience last week that the group is planning to having a drawing for a historic made in 1966, the year Westland was incorporated.

James Myers remembers the kids

Myers to miss 'second family'

By Leonard Pogor
editor

James Myers said he will be sorry to leave his "second family" at John Glenn High School.

That's how he referred to the student body Thursday morning as he packed his personal mementos to start his new duties this week as a Farmington High School assistant principal.

"The kids" are what Myers said he will miss the most.

"THE KIDS were always so friendly," the Canton Township resident said. "When my wife and I were having ice cream with the

'They saw me as a sort of a father. They trust me enough to let me know about a problem and take care of it.'

— James Myers

the kids and their parents would always come up to us and talk to me about school."

When he entered the Glenn locker room after athletic contests, the athletes always welcomed him and didn't make him feel uncomfortable.

"They saw me as a sort of a father. They trust me enough to let me know about a problem and take care of it."

His relationship with students is also evident when Myers said he would like to leave "the 5,000 graduates who remember me as their principal" as his legacy.

WHAT WILL Myers miss most?

as he moves to his new position? "The number of meetings I have to attend" outside the school. "Often the meetings don't amount to much" and many are "sterile."

"I feel I missed a lot if I'm out of the school for two to three hours.

"I like to be close to the kids and let central office handle the budget and millage issues and other matters."

MYERS DISCOUNTED the Wayne-Westland school district's current financial problems as a factor in his applying for the Farmington High post.

These children might seem to be in danger of burning up in a house fire, but appearances can be deceiving. They're in training at the Westland Fire Department's Fire Safety House on Ford Road.

City teaches fire safety to children

By Ralph R. Echinaw
staff writer

More Americans died in house fires during the Vietnam War than were killed in combat in Southeast Asia.

The U.S. leads the world in per-capita fire deaths.

More than 50 percent of the smoke detectors in Westland don't work.

These sobering statistics come from George Riley, the Westland fire department's public education officer.

The department might be attempting an impossible job, but it's

'With fire you don't get a second chance. If you make a mistake, it could be your last mistake.'

— George Riley
public education officer,
Westland fire department

trying to educate people about fire safety.

Part of that effort whirled around the fire safety house, at the central fire station on Ford at Carlson.

FIREFIGHTERS steer groups of children and adults through a fire safety program that periodically includes realistic training in the fire safety house.

Last year, about 10,000 of Westland's 85,000 residents took advantage of the program.

Participants stand in a room filled with non-toxic smoke and see first-hand how little they can, well, see.

"Seventy percent of all fires are caused by human carelessness," Riley said. "We know through proper education that we can change society (to prevent that)."

RILEY ATTRIBUTES the preponderance of house fires to lack of concern and ignorance of danger.

"The only obvious reason is that we're an apathetic society," he said.

Smoke detectors, for instance,

Still no teachers contract

Negotiators for a new teachers contract in Wayne-Westland schools have not reached an agreement.

William Taylor, chief negotiator for the school district, characterized the meetings so far as "positive but slow."

While both sides have agreed tentatively on about half the contract, Taylor said, financial issues like pay raises have not been discussed yet.

The parties met twice last week and expect to meet four or five times this week.

Teachers are scheduled to report for work next Monday, the day the current contract expires, with students expected to report for classes the next day.

Wayne-Westland Education Association President Bill Reese, chief negotiator for the union, could not be reached.

Man pleads guilty to gun charge

A Southfield man accused of possession of illegal fireworks in Westland pleaded guilty in Detroit Recorder's Court last Thursday to carrying a concealed weapon.

The fireworks charge against Jeffrey Stephen Schmideberg, 41, was dropped in exchange for his guilty plea on the more serious offense.

Schmideberg was arrested July 3 by Westland fire marshal Robert Perry at a Ford Road store where illegal fireworks were allegedly sold.

Perry testified that Schmideberg removed a .38-caliber, two-shot derringer from his back pocket upon being arrested and tossed it on a shelf. It was Schmideberg's third weapons offense.

The maximum sentence for carrying a concealed weapon is five years in prison. Schmideberg, free on a $25,000 bond, is scheduled to be sentenced Sept. 13.

Tom Landry, former coach of the Dallas Cowboys and recently inducted into the Football Hall of Fame, spent an hour at the Westland Meller store Thursday autographing copies of his newly-published autobiography. He chatted with book buyers about football and broke into a rare smile when he said that the book is a hot item in Dallas. Landry coached the Cowboys for 29 years before being fired last year by the team's new owners.

Rec director stresses activity over winning

By Ralph R. Echlinaw
staff writer

Maybe Vince Lombardi wasn't such a good influence after all.

George Gillies, Westland's parks and recreation director, pushes physical activity and athletics, but adamantly opposes coaches and parents who subscribe to the win-at-all-costs philosophy so dear to Lombardi, late Green Bay Packers head coach.

"Don't put the emphasis on winning," Gillies said. "Put the emphasis on (being) there to participate and learn. It's really kind of a sad scenario. You see some of these kids and you see them cry. Winners don't have a positive attitude because they win. They win because they have a positive attitude."

Although Gillies presides over Westland's many organized recreation activities and administers the city's 17 parks which covers 232 acres, he has found cause to wonder what win-obsessed parents and coaches are doing to children.

"We're experiencing a tremendous burnout between the ages of 13 and 18," he said. "A lot of these kids have dropped out of programs. I'm not sure this country is doing a whole lot to look for ways to alleviate that problem."

Gillies insisted that education should be always placed before athletics, certainly before winning.

"We need to put the brakes on now and try to help those kids with their education," he said. "The parents must take a stronger stand and work with their children. The volunteer coaches are the ones we need to look at to get them better organized. We have to teach them positive attitudes and how to handle winning and losing. Nobody wants to lose, but they can be better prepared to lose."

IF WESTLAND taxpayers get their money's worth out of any city service, those provided by parks and recreation are probably a good bet.

Currently there are programs for men's and women's basketball, youth and adult beach volleyball, swimming, dart throwing, touch football, weight training, cooking, gymnastics, karate, tap dancing, square dancing, and two sports played on a racquetball court, wallyball and brewball.

New programs being introduced this year include a Frisbee game played on football fields, a three-on-three basketball league and youth bowling.

Gillies recently compiled a list of all 126 parks and recreation departments in Michigan and ranked them according to how many new programs they plan to introduce. Westland came in ninth. "Out of 126, it makes us pretty good," Gillies said. "Most cities don't have new programs. It was kind of astounding."

Gillies has a full-time staff of six working for him, supplemented by 26 part-time people. A firm believer in teamwork, he attributes the success of his department to those employees.

"What makes things easy is that I've got a great staff," he said. "It's the people that work, all of us together, that make things happen. You've got to win at your job every day."

cop calls

A VICIOUS FIGHT took place on Delton Street Aug. 11 and was followed by a severe beating in the early morning hours of Aug. 12, according to two police reports.

The first incident occurred at 9:42 p.m. Aug. 11 when police were told several people had a fight at the end of Delton Court. The fight included thrown beer bottles and cans, punches, a smashed car window, a kick in the groin and a man jumping into a moving car and grabbing the steering wheel. Police found that three people wanted to press charges against four or five others.

Less than five hours later, police responded to reports of a man who had been beaten badly.

The 20-year-old Inkster man police found lying on the ground was one of the accused malcontents in the previous fight. Witnesses told police six to eight men, armed with chains and baseball bats, chased the victim, beat him severely, and drove away.

A ROMULUS woman, 25, told Westland police she was robbed of two necklaces while sitting in her car at the Van Born Market on Van Born. She said a black man with several front teeth missing reached in the open window and ripped the chains from her neck at 3:15 p.m. Aug. 11. The man drove away in a maroon Ford Tempo or Mercury Topaz. The woman said the chains are worth $400.

Myers leaves for new job

While the money problems were a secondary factor, Myers stressed that the major reason for his seeking another position is that he wanted to "go out and experience other things."

"I want to spread my wings. I want to know of different ways of doing things."

He hopes to advance in the Farmington school system, which is still growing and offers a lot of potential.

"I have a loyalty to the Wayne-Westland district and didn't want to look like I was bailing out" after voters twice rejected a property tax increase and renewal.

"The district has always been good to me and I feel I owe them more," Myers said.

When the two schools compete in athletics, "I will be wearing the (Farmington) Falcons blue and white, but there will always be a place in my heart for John Glenn."

City teaches fire safety

 The smoke in a house fire gets so thick that a person can't see their hand in front of their face. One good whiff of the smoke, he added, can destroy the lungs.

Riley recommended keeping low to the floor, where visibility is best, and crawling out of the house.

"With fire you don't get a second chance. If you make a mistake, it could be your last mistake."

One serious mistake a homeowner can make, Riley said, is putting extra locks on the doors and bars on the windows.

ALTHOUGH he admitted adding such things could deter criminals from breaking into one's home, the ironic twist is that the same devices could ensure death in a fire.

Groups can obtain information on the fire safety house by calling 467-3182.

The Fire Safety House was built three years ago by Westland firefighters. During demonstrations, it is filled with simulated smoke to show children how to escape from house fires.

Most people, Riley said, wait until "the heat is licking at your hindside" before deciding what to do, rather than having a plan.

"Take the time to figure out what you would do in case of a fire," he recommended. "Remember that that building you live in can be replaced. None of you can."

RILEY TOLD a group of children recently that 80 percent of people who die in home fires die from smoke inhalation.

Fire department public education officer George Riley (left) teaches a group of children about fire safety at the Fire Safety House on Ford at Carlson.

The fire department took about 10,000 people through its Fire Safety House last year. Public Education Officer George Riley (right) led this group of children through the safety program last week.

Westland joins in bridge walk

The city of Westland's CATV/community relations department is accepting reservations for the second annual Westland-Labor Day Bridge Walk. The program, sponsored by the department, is another part of "Project Pride," created to foster pride in the city, establish community spirit and boost the image of Westland across the state.

Each participant will receive a Westland sweatshirt to wear on the walk, so the other 50,000 walkers, non-Westlanders will be sure to know that Westland is the city of "Pride," "Progress" and "Promise."

Due to heavy tourist traffic that Labor Day weekend, there is a three-night minimum stay requirement. Participants may make their reservations for either the evenings of Friday, Saturday and Sunday (Aug. 31, Sept. 1, Sept. 2); or Saturday, Sunday and Monday (Sept. 1, 2, 3). The per-person cost of the three-day program is based on the city's actual costs for the separate components: Affordable Inn (foot of the Mackinac Bridge in Mackinac City); family-style picnic in the park; brunch at the Grand Hotel; the ferry ride; and the Westland sweatshirt and various handouts. The cost of the weekend ranges from $355.55 for one person to $124 per person for four in a room. Cost to participants making their own lodging arrangements is $50.

Somewhere in time

Church turns back clock to celebrate

By Leonard Pogor
 editor

Garden City Presbyterian Church members Wednesday stepped back in time to recreate the congregation's first service.

There were a few differences on the 150th anniversary service at the church — such as the squealing tires from a passing motorcycle.

But most of the activities during the service at the community's first church was the same as the first one for 15 people Aug. 15, 1840.

"God must have had a plan and purpose for this church," the Rev. Gareth Baker, pastor for the past 17 years, said in reflecting on the church's growth to the current 490 members.

He urged the congregation to "keep the faith and carry on its ministry."

MANY OF the estimated 150 people at Wednesday's service were dressed in mid-19th century dresses and suits.

Church members also took part in historical skits or readings, including one dealing with a Presbyterian leader and newspaper editor/publisher urging the abolition of slavery.

There would be no child care at the service because when the church was organized parents and children worshiped together, Baker said.

The service concluded with the burial of a time capsule on the church's side lawn.

The church 'has sustained the lives of local residents through wars, baby booms, depressions and good times.'

— the Rev. Gareth Baker
 pastor

The capsule, which contains church records, current newspaper stories, tapes of 1990 music and photos, is planned to be opened on the church's 200th anniversary in 2040.

DURING THE service, Baker told the congregation of the beginnings of the church, which started with 15 members.

The community was first settled by John Lathers and relatives who came from Ireland.

Several years later, the Irish potato famine generated a large migration to the area, which was soon called "the Irish settlement" with the first church on what is now the northeast corner of Ford and Inkster Road.

Other settlers came from New York, Ohio and Scotland.

The first settlers of the area had to be self-sufficient or they wouldn't have survived, Baker said.

THE CURRENT church has been at its present site on Middlebelt and John Hawk since 1928.

The church "has sustained the lives of local residents through wars, baby booms, depressions and good times," Baker said in the program detailing the service.

He and his predecessor, the Rev. R.R. Rives, served a combined 51 years, or one-third of the church's history, said Baker, the church's 51st pastor.

Others taking part in the service were Gail Smalley, Keith Christenson, Cecily DeCapo and Deborah Elson.

Taking part in the burial of the time capsule were church youth group members Becky Dole, Abdollah Jano and Sara Jarmusevich.

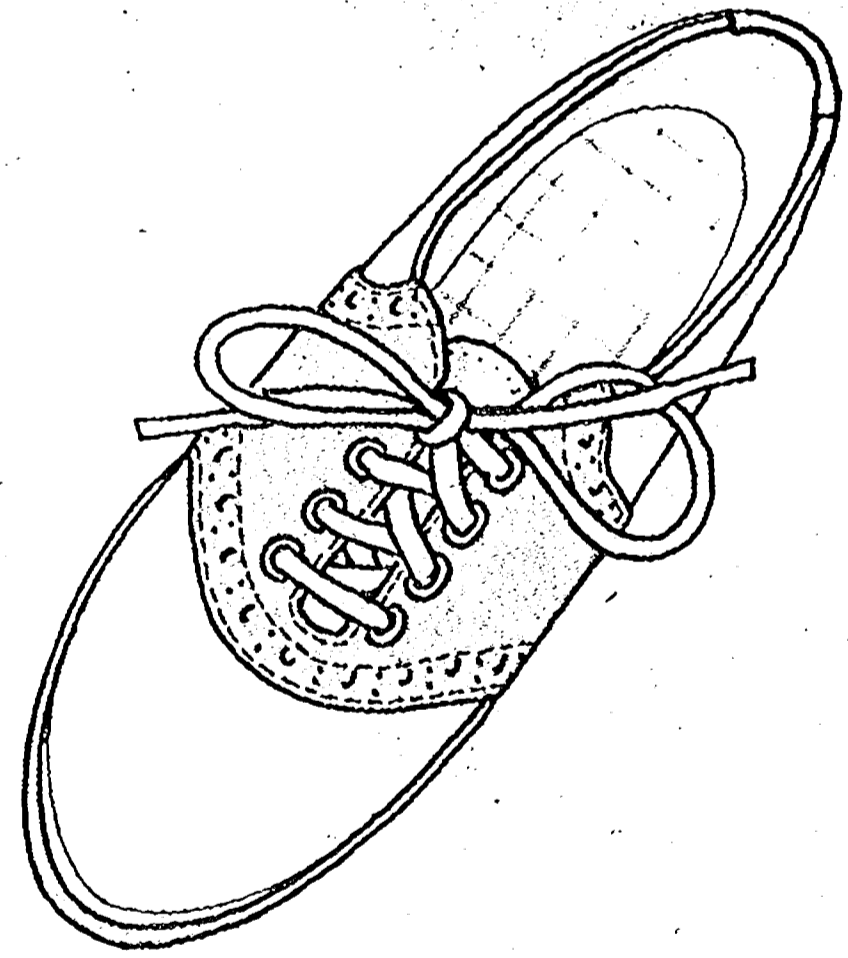

Others participating in the project in recent months were Erin and Jason Henry and Kristl Jarmusevich.

THE CHURCH has been marking the anniversary most of the year.

The next major event will be a sesquicentennial celebration dinner Sunday, Sept. 23, in the Garden City High School cafeteria.

AUTOGRAPHED BASEBALL NIGHT AT TIGER STADIUM SAT., AUG. 25th TO FIRST 15,000 FANS

Controversy continues at SC

By Wayne Poat
Staff writer

Schoolcraft College trustees will again grapple with their biggest controversy in years — replacement of college legal counsel — at Wednesday's board meeting.

Trustees could hire a new law firm on the spot, but whether they will do so is unclear.

"It's on the agenda, but because there's been some division on the board, we don't know if it will come to a vote or not," Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell said.

ALLEGATIONS of favoritism erupted at an emotional board study session last month, as trustees discussed replacing Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone of Detroit the college's longtime legal representative.

Controversy has centered on the replacement firm selected by an ad hoc board study group, Law, Hemming, Essad & Polaczyk of Plymouth, and on the relationship between partner Robert Law and board president Mary Breen.

Trustee Jack Kirksey, who wasn't a group member, protested the selection and the selection process and threatened to resign over the selection process.

Law, Hemming was the only firm interviewed by the ad hoc study group.

Kirksey accused Breen and Law of using "undue influence" in pressing other board members to make Law's firm the college legal representative.

Breen has said her family and Law's were friends, but that the friendship had nothing to do with the recommendation. The recommendation, she said, was made because Law, Hemming was the best qualified local firm.

Adding to the controversy, the Livonia Bar Association has written a letter to McDowell, Breen and all other trustees requesting the board invite local law firms to submit bids and interview all applicants.

"WHAT BOTHERED us was statement from board members that this was the only qualified firm," Livonia Bar president Charles Gallagher said.

Gallagher said he was considering whether to attend Wednesday's meeting. The Livonia Bar has 90 members. Law, Hemming is not represented in its membership, Gallagher said.

A letter, and possibly in-person meeting visit, is also expected from Miller, Canfield.

While some trustees expressed displeasure with Miller-Canfield's handling of a land development contract involving the college, others praised the firm for its long service and said any problems were quickly and successfully resolved.

Though Miller, Canfield has been the college's legal representative, Law was recently hired as Schoolcraft's lobbyist in Lansing.

Schoolcraft's legal counsel is paid for services rendered. No retainer fee is involved.

Sister Lauriana became Madonna academic dean in 1985 and headed the development office since 1975. She received her undergraduate degree from Madonna and holds master's and doctoral degrees in education from Fordham University, New York.

Sister Nancy Marie Jamroz has been appointed vice president for student life. She had been dean of student development.

A doctoral candidate at the University of Detroit, Sister Nancy holds a bachelor's in biology from Madonna and a master's in education from Marygrove college.

While few people have ever been hit over the head with a frying pan, many have been hit in the breast. The prostate gland is the organ that produces and sends the sperm out of the body. It is a gland, like the thyroid gland, and it can become inflamed and enlarged. This is called Prostatitis. It can cause pain and discomfort. It can also lead to complications. JOINT PAIN THAT COMES - THEN GOES

Probably you have experienced pain in the shoulder, or other joints, that suddenly came, then just as abruptly, left. If such an episode occurs once, you can ignore it. But if the pain returns, or goes to other joints, what should you do? Continue to disregard the pain, treat it yourself, or see your doctor soon?

Joint pain that is momentary, even if recurrent, is unlikely to be serious, and does not need your further attention. If the pain comes daily, but lasts no more than 20-30 minutes, you can undertake your own trial of treatment. Begin with heat or mild activity. If this "warming up" eases the discomfort and allows you to carry on your usual recreation or activity, then you probably have a tendon injury that will heal in time.

If your pain is not so readily controlled, try an aspirin type drug. If medication in the range of 1-3 tablets a day suffices, then such self treatment is appropriate.

If the above approach fails, or if the pain begins to last longer each day, involves more joints, becomes worse with activity, or joint swelling occurs, then see a doctor. Be prepared to explain what brings on the pain, eases it, where it starts, and whether it moves. These observations assist the doctor to make an early diagnosis.

Family 'Fun Book' also has a serious side

By Wayne Poal
staff writer

It's called the "Family Fun Book," but it could be the closest thing to a parenting manual area families are likely to find.

Compiled by Oakland County Youth Assistance, the 412-page volume tells parents where to take their children — either for a pleasant outing or for help with serious family problems. It also offers tips from health-care professionals on how to become a better parent.

"We don't think there's another book of this kind anywhere," said Richard Thibodeau, who edited the volume.

ITS BROAD scope grew out of a simple premise.

"We wanted to put together a guidebook of every kind of activity parents and children could do together in metro Detroit," Thibodeau said.

While pleased with the initial 50-page guide, an update of a booklet that appeared in 1978, compilers generally agreed it didn't go far enough.

"As an arm of the probate court, one of our duties is to combat juvenile delinquency. So we felt we had to do more."

People will buy the book for the family activities, Thibodeau said, then keep it as a reference book should family problems arise.

"I DON'T think there are too many family members in metro Detroit that aren't touched by some kind of problem at some point in their lives."

Designed to be comprehensive, the book offers a listing of family-or-ented attractions throughout the tri-county area and nearby regions.

Some, such as the Detroit Zoo, are familiar. Others, such as the Howell Melon Festival, may be less so.

The book also includes a list of family activities — including information of how to throw a child's birthday party, complete with names and telephone numbers of clowns, party favor shops and professional party planners.

THE BOOK'S second half includes suggestions for parents on such topics as homework — telling parents to regularly check their child's work and study habits — to teen sexuality (it tells youngsters there's nothing wrong with saying no, while offering several ways to politely do just that).

The book also includes a list of family assistance programs and agencies throughout the area, as well as a bibliography of other reference books for specific problems.

Although drawn from professionals, advice is a firm statement of middle American values — even to the point of suggesting family meal-time prayers for various denominations.

The volume's "common sense" approach was shaped by many different perspectives, Thibodeau said.

Troy-based K mart Corp., the book is available at Walden Book Stores throughout metro Detroit.

Special efforts are being made, Thibodeau said, to get the book into more than just suburban hands.

Plans are under way to distribute the book to the Detroit schools, as well as to area foster parents associations.

Although the initial 1978 family fun booklet sold 5,000 copies, plans are more ambitious for the updated and expanded model.

"We hope this becomes a best-seller."

"Family Fun Book and Wellness Guide" is available for $9.50 at Walden Book Stores throughout metro Detroit. Copies can also be ordered for $10.50 through Oakland County Youth Assistance, Advisory Council, 1200 North Telegraph, Pontiac, Mich., 48053.

Area boasts numerous family fun spots

"There's nothing to do!"

For that old refrain — especially prevalent in these waning days of summer vacation — the Family Fun Book and Wellness Guide offers numerous suggestions.

Here's a sample of activities available for children in Detroit and suburban Wayne County alone:

- Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum — 2900 Oakwood, Dearborn. The village, with more than 100 historic buildings, and museum are open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Call 271-1620.

- Henry Ford Estate/Fair Lane — on the grounds of the University of Michigan-Dearborn, 4901 Evergreen. Home of the auto magnate, the Fair Lane estate is open 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, 1-4 p.m. Sundays. Call 593-5590.

- Trolley Tours — The Dearborn Trolley, 22264 Michigan Ave., offers tours to Greenfield Village. Call 274-6300 for details. Detroit trolley lines run from Renaissance Center to Grand Circus Park and include stops at Hart Plaza and Cobo Hall. Call 224-1550.

- Greenmead Historical Village and Hillhouse Museum — 38135 Eight Mile, Livonia. The site features a Greek revival house, dating from 1841, as well as other period buildings honoring early area settlers. Call 477-7375 to arrange a visit.

- Plymouth Historical Museum

- 155 S. Main, Plymouth. The museum features exhibits tracing city history through the first eight decades of this century as well as special exhibits. Open 1-4 p.m. Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. Call 455-8940.

- Belle Isle Aquarium — On Belle Isle, Detroit. The aquarium is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Call 267-7159.

- Detroit Science Center — 5020 John R, Detroit. The center includes numerous displays, including a special summer exhibit featuring mechanical dinosaurs. Open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and noon to 7 p.m. Sunday. Call 577-8400.

No more superfecta for single-race wagers

The superfecta, which requires bettors to pick the first four horses to finish a race in exact order, will no longer be offered as a single-race wager at pari-mutuel tracks in Michigan.

The decision to discontinue the single-race wager takes effect today, state racing commissioner Luke Quinn announced last week.

The agreement to eliminate the superfecta, except as part of a multiple-race wager, resulted from questions raised about the wager during the current Office of Racing Commissioner investigation of the 11th race at Hazel Park Harness Raceway on July 9, triggered by a low superfecta payoff.

"The wager has also been a factor in past races that were called into question," Quinn said.

THE SUPERFECTA can attract unscrupulous practices because of the high payoff and appears particularly susceptible when the number of horses in a race is limited, said Kenn Christopher, ORC spokesman.

If a bettor can be assured that several horses out of an eight-horse field will not be serious contenders for the first four positions, the bettor can buy tickets combining the remaining horses, and have an unfair betting advantage over other bettors, he said.

"The integrity of the Michigan racing industry is the foremost concern of this office," Quinn said.

"We will continue our ongoing industrywide cooperative efforts to remove any opportunity for wrongdoing and improve pari-mutuel horse racing in Michigan."

"The bad part of town"

Abandoned cars. Sidewalks scattered with crack vials. Bombed-out buildings.

A neighborhood whose spirit is as broken as the bits of glass that dot the street. There are only two things to do if your neighborhood becomes a war zone: give up or take action.

The Philadelphia Story

One day, in the "bad part" of Philadelphia, a neighbor complained to a neighbor. And then to another. And then to more. People didn't like their homes being "taken over." Feelings of helplessness and resentment turned to action.

They went to the police for help.

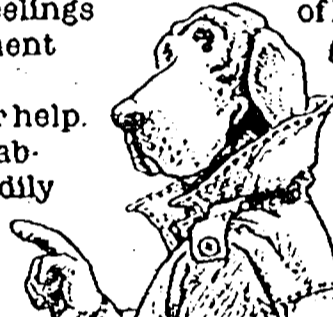

Soon a substation was established where folks could readily report crime. Weekly meetings began. Community watches started. Things started getting fixed up. Vacant lots were cleaned up and fenced. Abandoned cars were towed away. Painting and repairing programs began.

The neighborhood was cleaning itself up. The local 4-H Club even helped set up garden clubs where kids, teens and adults could work together on plants and flowers while talking over ways to raise awareness.

When people care and get involved, neighborhoods change. When a block doesn't look like a haven for crime and drugs, it won't be. And in this part of Philly, where once only apathy grew, seven gardens now bloom.

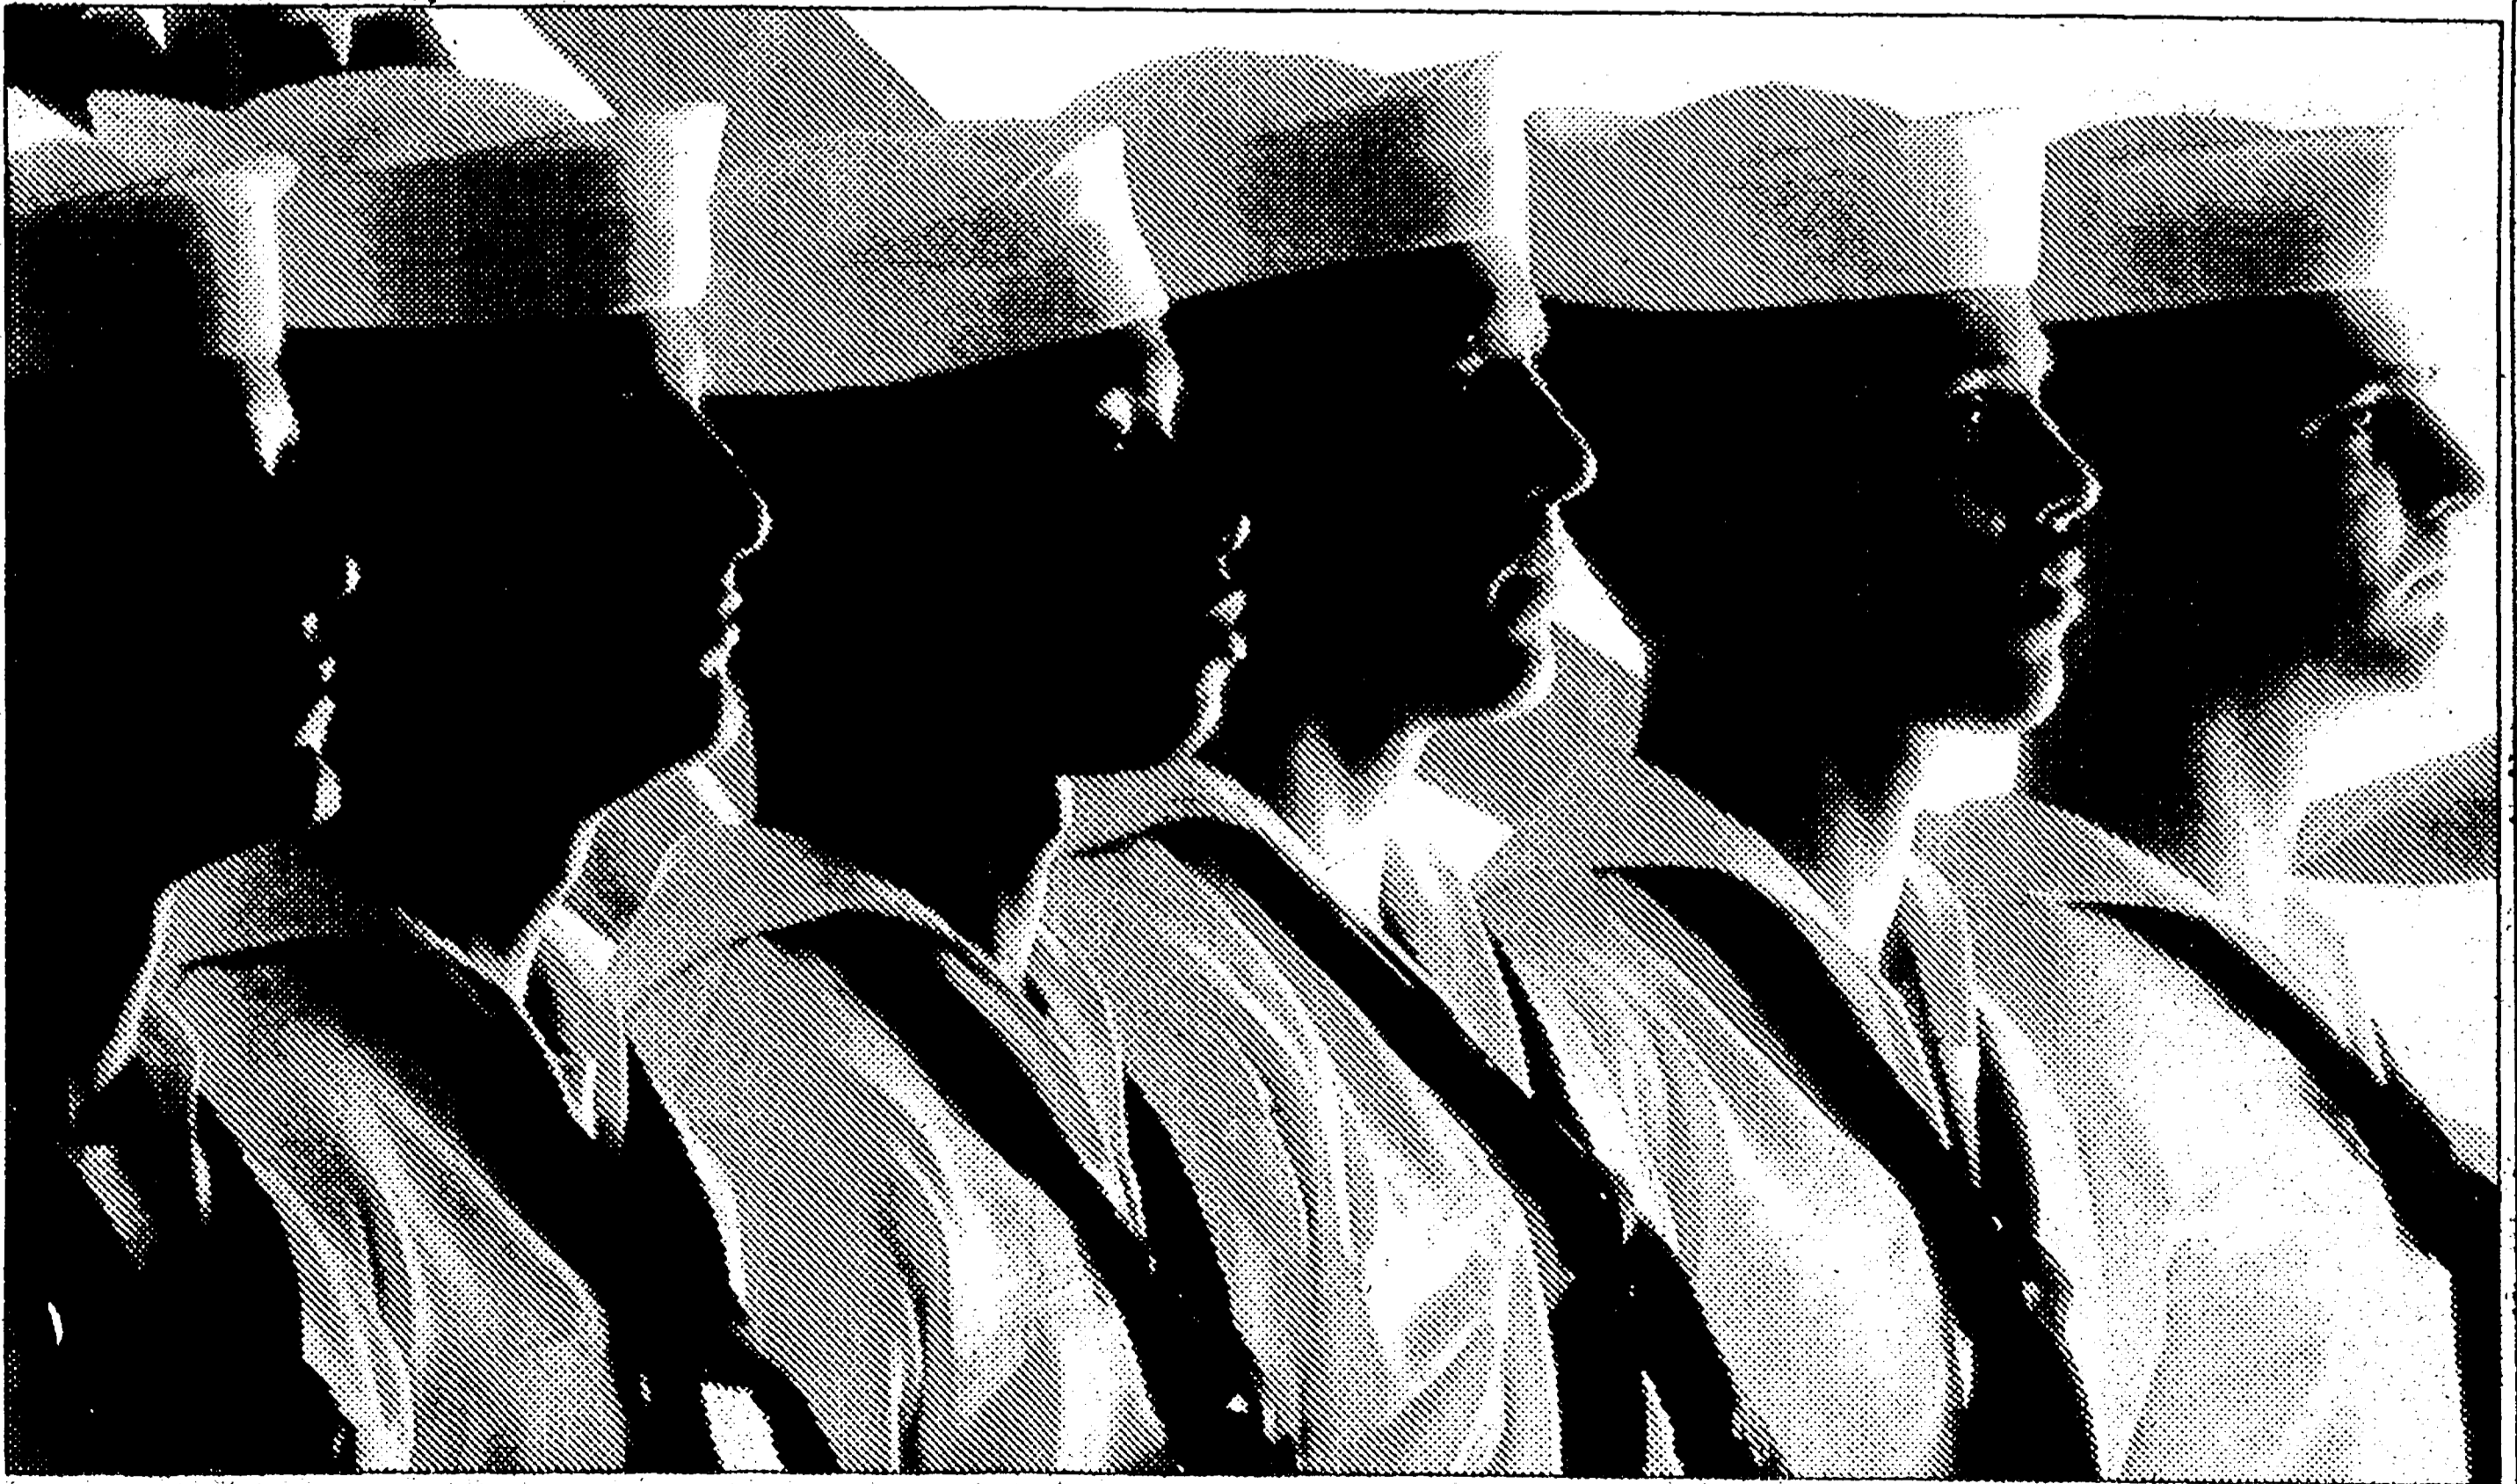

This is only one success story of many. To find out what can be done in your neighborhood, write: The McGruff Files, 1 Prevention Way, Washington, D.C., 20539-0001. And help...

Churned ice cream was finale

Picnics were always a special time growing up in Wyandotte. When Dad got an occasional day off from his swing shift at McLouth Steel, we would load up in the big Impala and head for either Elizabeth Park in Trenton or Sterling State Park in Monroe.

The Janes family had a rather large wicker hamper that was filled to the brim with Momma's delectable fried chicken, a cold potato salad, and a homemade fruit pie complete with lattice top that to this day I'm still hoping Mom will show me how to master. If memory serves, we didn't own a cooler but instead filled a large washtub up with pop, beer and everything needed to make homemade hand-churned ice cream.

Heck, it took my older brother Jimmy and myself all our strength just to tote the big washtub filled with ice and refreshments to the picnic spot. I remember we kept it cold and well covered with some handmade old rugs Aunt Marie made.

We never opted for a red checkered tablecloth. Mom made sure the picnic table was well scrubbed by the time all the necessities were unloaded from the trunk.

Despite the hot, humid weather the meal was large and filling. We kids no sooner finished our climb on the monkey bars and swing sets than we were told that dinner was being served.

DAD ALWAYS HAD the proverbial plate of fresh radishes and sliced cucumbers. In those days, nobody much cared about the amount of salt that flowed from the blue salt box, but we were warned to save at least half the box for the homemade ice cream.

Since no one cared about the salt flow, nothing was ever said about the lard Momma used to fry the chicken. The last time I ate chicken fried like that, I was seated in a greasy spoon smack dab in the middle of the Kansas City Farmers Market.

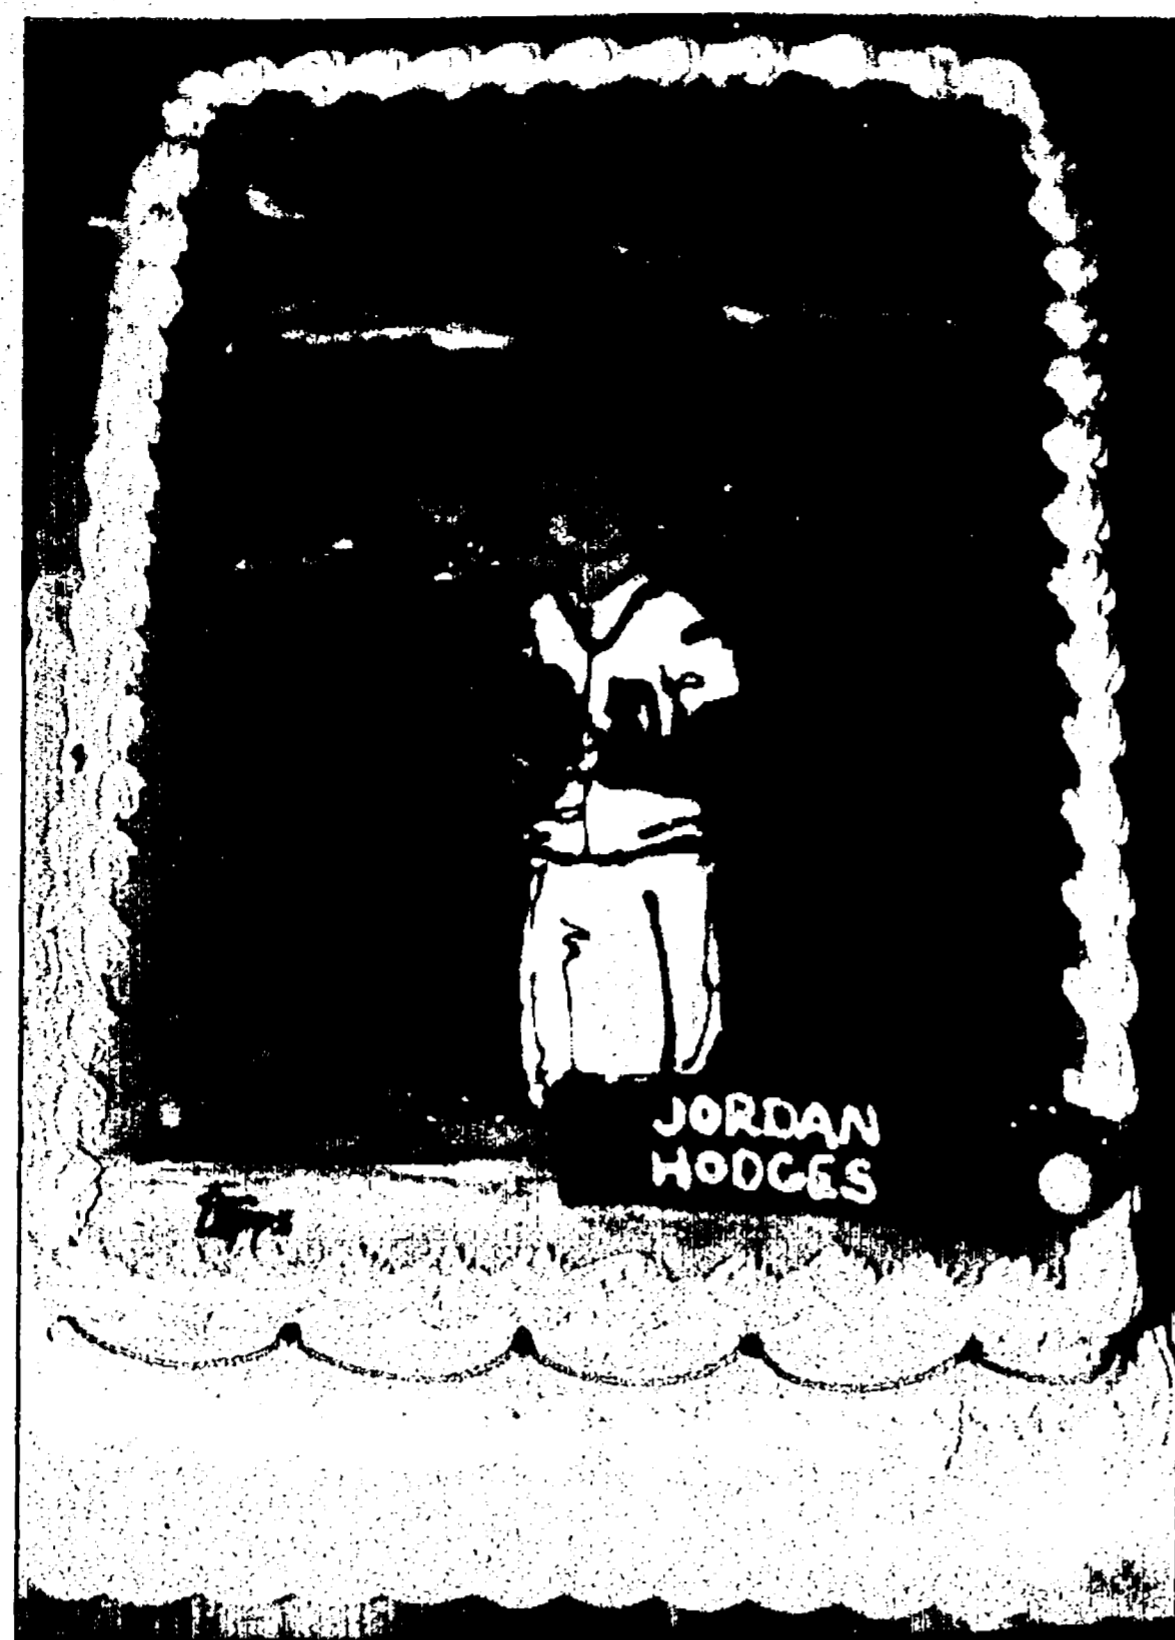

That restaurant had a 55-gallon drum with the words "lard" stenciled in white paint nestled in a corner by the stove. And with all due respect to the new "healthy chicken" places springing up all over town, good old-fashioned country fried chicken just isn't the same when it's broasted or whatever they do to it to make it healthy.

After dinner, we were all given some spare change and told to find the snack bar and spend our nickels and dimes on handfuls of penny candy. When we returned, the picnic table was magically cleaned up and all the necessities for making the homemade ice cream were in place.

An old oak bucket fitted with an aluminum can and wooden blade dasher (still in Mom and Dad's basement, I might add) was sitting next to a quart of cream in a glass bottle, fitted with a cardboard top.

MOMMA THEN PULLED the Thermos from the picnic hamper and in a large stainless bowl poured the pre-cooked dissolved sugar and egg mixture, the cream and just a speck of salt. While we kids took turns cranking the freezer, Momma and older sister Rosie would slice the strawberries, most of which ended up in the ice cream freezer. When we kids could no longer turn the old hand crank, it seemed like eternity waiting for the creamy mixture to "ripen" per Dad's orders.

Yes, those were the days. But this year, the Janes Gang has invited Mom and Dad to join us in starting a new picnic tradition. There will be the proverbial plate of radishes and cucumbers, the fried chicken (if I can locate some lard), a bowl of potato salad, a pocketful of change and, yes, the old ice cream freezer, which will be resurrected and ordered to fill the hearts and tummies of a new generation of Janes kids. The menu might be the same, but the memories will never be forgotten. Hope you do the same.

Artist's cakes are pretty as a picture Sweet Art

By Norcan Flack
special writer

THE CAKE IS her canvas, the frosting is her paint, the palette knife is her brush and the kitchen is her studio.

Marianne Souvie of Royal Oak, an artist in her own right, has given new meaning to cake decorating.

Born with what she considers a creative flair, this native Kentuckian is credited by some of the most prominent bakers in the area for capturing the market on "Sweet Art."

"We don't know of anybody who has such an imagination (as Marianne) and is able to put it on a cake, making them unique in their decorating," said Nils Johansson, president of Bowman's Catering in Berkeley. "You can go anyplace and get a cake that is decorated with flowers or a picture sprayed on it, but she personalizes every cake in a manner that no one else can." Souvie, owner of Sweet Art by Marianne Inc., continues to contract her services to Bowman's Catering.

In 1970, Souvie attended Macomb County Community College, studying commercial art. She began work as a mail carrier to pay her way through school.

BUT IN 1976, she got married and decided to concentrate on homemaking. So she quit her job and tossed aside her plans of becoming a commercial artist. Three months later, she found her creative energy still needed an outlet.

She signed up for a cake-decorating class through the Royal Oak adult education program, never realizing what fate had in store for her.

"I never thought I would sell my art on cakes, but it works," she said. "People get what they want, and I get what I want."

Souvie hired an assistant, Mary Travis, to keep up with the demand. Travis is her "right arm," she said. "Let's just say she knows her way around the kitchen. She's very accomplished at baking."

But there are certain things only Souvie can do. "I can get help and I can get assistants, but in the end, I'm the only one who can do this. If you want a painting by a particular artist, you aren't going to settle for someone else's work."

RECENTLY, SHE tried giving commercial art another try, but after dusting off her easel and testing out the paints, she found herself back in the kitchen. Paint on canvas just "didn't spread like frosting," she explains.

After answering a help-wanted ad for a baker 12 years ago, Souvie was hired at Machus Bakery. It was at Machus where she learned how to decorate cakes professionally while also using her own techniques.

"She's very proficient in an artistic way," said Pearl Thoun, Machus' bakery manager. "I haven't found anything that she couldn't do."

Souvie's works of art range from patriotic theme cakes to family portrait cakes.

"After a few minutes of talking to a customer, I can put a picture in my mind and draw it," she said. "Sometimes they bring a photo along, and we put something together from that." Souvie now teaches the Royal Oak cake-decorating class she once attended as a student. "But I can't teach this," she admits. "I can't teach someone how to draw."

SOUVIE HAS baked for many organizations and events, including a People Magazine party where she designed cupcakes with the faces of famous people, such as Oliver North, Pope John Paul II, Cher, Michael Jackson and Pee Wee Herman. And for the grand opening celebration of the Palace of Auburn Hills, she spent eight hours creating a palace-like model cake, two-level roof and all.

Ginopolis' touch comes to new grill

This new spot is the second for the Ginopolis family who started out with a burgers-and-beer pub in Farmington Hills, then expanded into fine dining, specializing in ribs and fresh fish.

The Farmington restaurant enjoys a reputation for very good food and excellent service. Under the guidance of Johnny and Peter Ginopolis, the Rochester restaurant undoubtedly will cultivate a similar reputation. At present, however, it has an inconsistent showing from the kitchen. Sometimes the seafood is carefully prepared, sometimes it isn't.

We loved the seasoning on both the perch and the blackened yellowfin tuna on a recent visit, but both dishes were overcooked. Worse yet, the paprika and flour breading on the perch was soggy, apparently from being drenched with lemon. Personally, we prefer having fresh wedges of lemon served on the side so we can gently sprinkle the fish.

TOO BAD. The fish appeared fresh and the seasonings were tasty. A little less cooking might have saved the day, or the dish, at least. Because the seafood prices are on the high side ($13.95 for the lake perch, $12.70 for the tuna, $10.50 for scallops, $10.75 for rainbow trout), customers tend to have higher expectations that the chef will have to live up to.

The entrees came with cole slaw and a choice of redskin potatoes or fresh vegetable. For an extra $1.25, guests can order a house salad or for $1.95 add a Greek salad to the meal. The cole slaw, with its slightly tart vinaigrette dressing, is a very good alternative to the traditional lettuce salad. On the other hand, the house salad here is very good, complemented with black olives and chick peas. Because the kitchen applied more than an ample amount of bleu cheese dressing, we'd suggest asking for the dressing on the side.

While the redskins were fine, the fresh green beans with almonds suffered from the same malaise as the fish — overcooked to the point of mushiness.

Greek dishes are sprinkled through the main menu, starting with a saganaki baked cheese appetizer ($3.25) and including a very tasty Greek chicken dish in which the chicken is marinated in olive oil, oregano, garlic and lemon juice ($10.95). Ginopolis' ribs are sprinkled with a delicious assortment of seasonings before being chargrilled and served with a fantastic, zesty barbecue sauce ($13.95).

Appetizers include breaded and deep fried artichoke hearts, which we really enjoyed, as well as mushroom caps, mozzarella cheese sticks, and nachos.

A FEW WEEKS AGO, the restaurant added a Sunday buffet that is starting to pack the place from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. This is a dinner buffet (no breakfast items) with various salads, pastas, meats, chicken, fish, desserts and beverages. At $7.95 for adults and $4.95 for children, it's reasonably priced for all the food available.

The restaurant has an invitingly casual atmosphere with overstuffed booths, padded chairs, glass block dividers throughout and natural light streaming in the windows. Ginopolis shares the building with another eatery, Heartland, a family restaurant specializing in burgers, sandwiches, homestyle dinners such as turkey and dressing, and round-the-clock breakfasts.

Unlike the Palace model, most cakes take between 20 minutes and two hours to make. "If I couldn't do this at the pace that I do, I would never make any money," she said.

Depending on the time and amount of detail, required, her cakes range in cost from $25 to $200.

During Souvie's busy season, such as graduation time, she will make as many as 45-50 cakes during the week and then make another 25 basic design cakes on the weekend.

SOUVIE SAID Bowman's is committed to quality. "I couldn't work for a place that doesn't have a commitment like that," she said.

Good looks aren't the only ingredient in "sweet art." The taste of the cake is just as important, Souvie believes. She uses premium ingredients such as real butter and quality vegetable shortening.

There is no question that Souvie is a busy woman. Aside from teaching classes at Royal Oak, she spends time with her family: her husband, Tom, her son, James, 9, and her daughter, Chelsea, 6. She also attends classes at Oakland Community College and is working toward a degree in psychology.

"When I hang up my apron and go to the big kitchen in the sky, I don't want them to say, 'Well, she made some great cakes,'" Souvie said.

"Somehow, I want to combine my work here with psychology and positive thinking to really have an impact on people."

Country Fried Chicken goes on family picnic

See Larry Jones' Taste Buds column, Page 1B.

COUNTRY FRIED CHICKEN

Two 3-pound chickens, cut up
2 cups buttermilk
1 1/2 cups flour
1 1/2 cups yellow cornmeal
2 teaspoons dried thyme
2 teaspoons paprika
2 teaspoons salt
Fresh ground pepper
2 pounds lard or solid vegetable shortening (for frying)

Pat the chicken dry. Place in a large bowl; add buttermilk. Let stand 2 hours, turning occasionally. Mix flour, cornmeal, thyme, paprika, salt and pepper in a shallow bowl. Shake buttermilk off the chicken. Roll in flour mixture. Arrange chicken in a single layer on baking sheets. Let stand for 30 minutes to firm coating. Add enough lard or shortening to 2 heavy skillets to come 1/4 inch up to the sides. Heat to high until almost smoking. Add chicken, skin side down in batches.

Do not crowd. Reduce heat to medium, cover and cook 12 minutes. Turn chicken over and cook uncovered until dark brown, about 12 minutes more. Transfer to paper towels.

PEAS AND POTATO SALAD

3 cups loosely packed fresh mint
3 eggs, room temperature
5 tablespoons white wine vinegar
3 tablespoons Dijon mustard
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
3/4 teaspoons fresh ground pepper
2 cups vegetable oil
4 1/2 pounds new potatoes, cubed
4 1/2 cups shelled fresh peas

Combine mint, eggs, vinegar, mustard, salt and pepper and oil. Mix well. Place potatoes in a large saucepan. Add cold, lightly salted water to cover. Simmer until almost tender, about 7 minutes. Add peas. Cook 4 minutes. Drain. Rinse peas and potatoes under cold water. Drain and transfer to a bowl. Mix in enough dressing to coat. Season with salt and pepper, if desired.

Good Harbor: leader in Leelanau

Last week's wine column focused on the prospects of successful cultivation of European grape varieties (vitis vinifera) in Western Michigan. Western Michigan and the Leelanau Peninsula wineries have perfected the art of making wine from French-American hybrids, the wintery-hardy vines with hard-to-pronounce names.

They also have planted vitis vinifera grapes and are making great strides with these wines, especially chardonnay and white riesling.

Among the leaders in the Leelanau area is Good Harbor Vineyards.

"My family has been in the fruit business on the Leelanau Peninsula since the mid-1950s," said winemaker Bruce Simpson. "In 1978, after I completed my grape growing and winemaking studies at the University of California at Davis, we began planting wine grapes."

Simpson's first plantings were the French-American hybrids vignoles and seyval, but he has added the European varieties white riesling, chardonnay, carmine, lemberger and pinot gris to bring bearing acres to a total of 25.

Additional acres of chardonnay, cabernet franc, pinot meunier, lemberger and vignoles will be planted in spring 1991.

SIMPSON AND A partner established a vineyard management company to provide expertise and equipment to new grape growers on the Leelanau Peninsula. This spring, they planted 20 acres of chardonnay, vignoles and pinot noir. More vineyard planting is planned for spring 1991.

"I'm sure that saying, 'Our wines are made in the vineyard,' is an overused statement in the wine industry," Simpson claims. "It is, however, the way I approach winemaking. I grew up growing fruit and take great pride in having clean, ripe fruit at harvest.

focus on wine

Eleanor and Ray Heald

"Given the weather conditions in Michigan, this plan does not always materialize. But in most years I get fruit that does not have to be manipulated to realize a balanced wine. A winemaker who gets to work with good fruit cannot make excuses for turning out inferior wines."

Simpson states his marketing aim is to offer a line of products that are true values to the consumer. "I try to make semi-dry wines that are fruity, clean and balanced," he said. "Our dry wines are clean and fruity, with some oak flavors. They are capable of developing complexity and balance with age."

"I'm trying to keep retail pricing in the $5-$10 range. If some of the tax increases under consideration are actually enacted, pricing will have to increase."

THE FOLLOWING Good Harbor Vineyards wines are available and represent some of the best values in the price range.

1987 Vignoles (#7) has fuller flavor with riper fruit components than the chardonnay. Citrusy aromas and flavors are deep and exceptionally appealing. This wine makes a great match for any grilled fish.

Wine Selection of the Week

1989 Chardonnay (#9) is a typical cool-climate version of this variety with the fresh fragrance of apple blossoms and green apples. Lean, clean, balanced with acid on the high side, it finishes delicately. This wine, the first chardonnay vintage produced by Good Harbor Vineyard, showcases fruit rather than winemaker manipulation. It will taste better with another year's bottle aging and reward those who are patient.

"Vignoles is one of the most underrated grapes grown in the Eastern U.S.," Simpson attests. "It consistently produces a wine with fine fruit characteristics and surprising body."

The 1989 Vignoles (#7) has just been released. It follows in the style of the 1987 but could use some bottle aging to round out the youthful, crisp finish.

The 1989 version of the non-vintage Trillium (#6) continues the style of this wine created by Simpson. It is an off-dry blend of white wines from the Leelanau Peninsula. It is always fresh, fragrant, straightforward, quaffable, enjoyable and seriously made. At the price, it's the best picnic wine around.

"I've tried to maintain the taste and style of Trillium over the years," Simpson said. "Given Michigan's weather patterns, this has been a challenge."

1989 Riesling (#7) was produced from the coolest vintage Simpson has experienced since his estate riesling started to bear. With alcohol less than 11 percent, it is light yet flavorful, reminiscent of a German Kabinett wine. The appealing citrus/spice aromas and balanced acid finish make this a most handsome presentation. Drink it well chilled with lighter foods.

If you're looking for a light red wine, the 1989 Marechal Foch, produced from 92 percent Marechal Foch and 8 percent carmine (#7) may be just the ticket. The cherry, strawberry aromas and red fruit flavors, with just a touch of oak, make it serious drinking, yet deliciously light and enjoyable.

'My family has been in the fruit business on the Leelanau Peninsula since the mid-1950s.'

1 tablespoon (or more) hot pepper sauce

Whisk all ingredients except 1 tablespoon hot pepper sauce in a bowl. Add 1 tablespoon or more of hot pepper sauce, to taste. Makes about 3 cups.

Note: This recipe can be prepared one week ahead. Cover and chill. Bring to room temperature. Tamarind paste is available at Indian and Southeast Asian markets.

Cookbook offers regional recipes

Early this summer, the number of new Italian cookbooks released exceeded all the other categories. I can tell you without hesitation that Italian cooking is still "in."

"Cucina Rustica" by Viana La Place and Evan Kleiman (William Morrow, 1990, $20.95) stands out in front of the crowd.

Cookbook writing is not new to these two female chefs. "Cucina Rustica" is their third venture together, preceded by "Cucina Fresca" and "Pasta Fresca." Viana La Place was a chef in Los Angeles before turning her talents to teaching Italian cooking. Evan Kleiman is executive chef and co-proprietor of Los Angeles' Trattoria Angeli, Angeli Caffe and Angeli Mare.

"Cucina Rustica," which translates to "simple kitchen," emphasizes wholesome cooking through a variety of regional country dishes. Among the mostly traditional chapters of antipasto, salads and soups are entire chapters of risotto and polenta.

There are so many appetizing recipes to choose from. Among my favorites are fettuccine with borlotti beans, baked sliced potatoes, peppers and tomatoes, pasta with artichoke and cream sauce or grilled radicchio with smoked mozzarella.

Now, if only there was enough time to cook my way through the entire book.

PEPERONI GIALLI RIPIENTI DI PASTA

(Yellow Peppers Stuffed with Pasta)
6 small yellow peppers
1/2 pound imported tubetti pasta

1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil, divided, plus additional for oiling baking dish

1 pound tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped

2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
Small handful chopped fresh mint
1 bunch Italian parsley leaves, chopped

1/4 cup grated Pecorino Romano cheese, plus additional for sprinkling on peppers
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

Cut the tops off the peppers and remove the cores, seeds and membranes. Reserve the tops. Cook the tubetti in abundant salted boiling water until cooked about halfway. Drain well and toss with 1 tablespoon of olive oil. Place 3 tablespoons of oil, tomatoes and garlic in a medium-sized saute pan and cook over high heat for 10 minutes or until the sauce thickens. Let cool. Toss the cooked pasta in tomato sauce and add the mint, parsley, grated cheese and salt and pepper.

Lightly oil a baking dish just large enough to contain the peppers without crowding them. Lightly moisten the peppers inside and out with oil and arrange in the baking dish. Salt the interiors of the peppers. Spoon the tomato-pasta mixture into the pepper cases. Drizzle peppers with a teaspoon or so of oil and sprinkle with extra grated cheese. Place the reserved tops on the peppers. Bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for 30 minutes or until the peppers are just tender and the pasta is cooked al dente. Serve hot or at room temperature. Serves 6.

Ice cream a hot weather treat

The heat is on, the humidity high. You're trying to keep cool, but your mouth is dry.

In the hottest month of the year, there's nothing quite like ice cream's smooth, delicious taste to soothe your palate and cool you down. Ice cream is always a winner when it comes to entertaining. Whether the occasion is a child's birthday party, a fancy dinner party or a good old-fashioned family barbecue, serving ice cream for dessert is a genuine treat.

With today's hosts opting for simple, elegant entertaining, ice cream is quick to prepare and a delicious ending to a lovely meal. Use your imagination. Ideas for socializing with ice cream are limitless. Ice cream can float in coffee, blend into fascinating drinks or be layered with fresh berries in a parfait glass.

In "light" of your health, you may want to sample a few of the lighter frozen desserts available. Ice-milk, dietary frozen dessert and frozen yogurt have fewer calories and milkfat than regular ice cream. Experiment with the following Weight Watchers recipes and discover how scrumptious ice cream can be — minus the extra calories.

A CHOCOLATE-CHERRY Frozen Pie with whipped topping looks extravagant, yet takes only minutes to prepare. Chocolate Chip and Nut "Ice Cream" is as easy as spooning your favorite softened low-cal frozen dessert together with mini chocolate chips and almonds, and putting the mixture in the freezer. For a special celebration, present Anniversary Sundae Spectacular. Snickers-Style Dessert Bars is also a creamy dessert sure to please your family and guests.

Treat your sweet tooth this August. After all, what could be better than ice cream when the sun is shining and it's 90 degrees.

CHOCOLATE-CHERRY FROZEN PIE

Makes 6 Servings

- 2 tablespoons plus 1 1/4 teaspoons chocolate syrup
- 12 graham crackers (2 1/4 inch squares), made into crumbs
- 18 ounces chocolate dietary frozen dessert, softened
- 3/4 cup thawed frozen dairy whipped topping
- 12 large fresh or frozen pitted cherries (no sugar added), cut into halves

In small bowl drizzle chocolate syrup over cracker crumbs and, using a fork, stir to combine. Using the back of a spoon, press crumb mixture over bottom and up sides of 9-inch pie plate; set aside.

Using electric mixer, in medium mixing bowl beat frozen dessert until smooth; carefully transfer to graham cracker crust. Cover with plastic wrap and freeze until firm, about 1 hour.

To serve, spread whipped topping over pie, or fit a pastry bag with star tip, fill bag with topping, and decoratively pipe topping onto pie; arrange cherries on top.

Each serving provides: 1 Bread Exchange; 1 Fruit Exchange; 1/2 Milk Exchange; 80 Optional Calories.

ANNIVERSARY SUNDAE SPECTACULAR

Makes 4 Servings

- 2 ounces white chocolate
- 1 tablespoon each chocolate-flavored liqueur and whipping cream
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 2 cups strawberry, vanilla, or chocolate ice milk
- 1 cup strawberries, cut into halves
- 1/2 ounce chopped macadamia nuts, lightly toasted

In double boiler combine white chocolate, liqueur, cream and vanilla and cook-over hot (not boiling) water, stirring frequently, until chocolate is melted and mixture is smooth and thick, 3 to 4 minutes; keep warm.

Into each of 4 dessert dishes scoop 1/2 cup ice milk, then top each portion with 1/4 of the chocolate mixture and surround each scoop with 1/4 of the strawberry halves; sprinkle each sundae with 1/4 of the nuts and serve immediately.

Each serving provides: 260 Optional Calories.

Lindsey is a 5-year-old diabetic. Her daily insulin shots, diet restrictions and constant blood monitoring only provide day-to-day control over the disease. They do not cure it. So Lindsey, along with 11 million other Americans, still faces the long-term risks of diabetes — like heart disease, blindness, stroke, amputation and kidney disease. The complications of diabetes will account for an estimated 150,000 deaths this year alone.

But thanks to your contributions to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, Lindsey and millions like her have something more to look forward to. In the past decade, JDF research has made great strides in isolating the causes and conditions of diabetes, bringing us closer to a cure. At the same time, diabetes increases by 6% every year. And in ten years the number of diabetics will have doubled.

So you see, your help is needed more desperately than ever before. For more information on the warning signs of diabetes and its treatment, and what you can do to help, call JDF at (313) 569-6171.

You too, can go to the zoo!

Yep, you can be one of the smiling, happy faces you see here when you're an Observer & Eccentric carrier. Each year, our carriers get to treat their folks to an evening at the Zoo—we call it Carrier Night at the Zoo, and everybody gets in free. When you're a carrier you get a chance at winning some really neat prizes during the year— 10-speed bikes and cool stuff like that. There's work and responsibility, too. That's the serious part of being a carrier. But you learn a lot—like the kids here—and have fun at the same time. If you'd like to be an Observer & Eccentric carrier and you're between 11 and 14 years old, just call one of the numbers below and apply for your very own route.

Call 521-0500 in WAYNE COUNTY
644-1100 in OAKLAND COUNTY
655-7575 in ROCHESTER/ROCHESTER HILLS

Above: The Zoo goes better with Coke. At right: Kim Alsop of Southfield agrees. Below left: Amber Teddy and Angie Schwendemann find a baby elephant and (right) a carrier's dream dinner—cotton candy, popcorn, and pop.

Wineries challenge cherries in Traverse

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Winemakers are planting dreams on the rolling emerald hills in the Traverse City area and they welcome visitors to taste the fruits of their labor — free of charge.

The city best known for its cherries is becoming a haven for wine lovers discovering — Boskydel, Chateau Grand Traverse, Good Harbor Winerys, L. Mawby and Leelanau Limited Ltd. — dotting the Leelanau and Old Mission peninsulas.

After a five-hour ride from metro Detroit, along I-75, you are in the state's little finger — a place where nature lovers escape for a break, writers pray for inspiration, and more recently, a retreat for wine connoisseurs tasting Michigan's answer to Napa Valley.

Scenic routes to the wineries along two lane highways are lined by trees and occasional glimpses of diamond blue waters. The rides are between 15 and 45 minutes from downtown Traverse City.

IF YOU get lost going to L. Mawby or Boskydel, you are not alone. Signs on the road leading to the wineries are small and hidden by tall grass. The out-of-the-way locales and rustic settings are part of the allure.

Larry Mawby of L. Mawby and Bruce Simpson, Good Harbor Vineyards, predicts that more winemakers will be drawn to northern Michigan. And they started a vineyard managing service to help wary newcomers and to cash in on the new demand.

"It's for people who have no idea how to do it, or people who don't have the time to do it," Mawby said. Each of the wineries has something different to offer.

Wine prices range from $3.95 a bottle to $30 a half bottle.

SOME OF the northern Michigan pioneers want to compete with world famous French and California wines. Others capitalize on a different taste that they say is special to the Traverse City area.

And a couple of the wineries feel growing pains. Chateau Grand Traverse boasts international awards, while Boskydel and L. Mawby don't want to grow too big.

All of the winemakers are hoping for better times.

The Traverse City area may be known for its cherries, but it's also earning a reputation for its grapes. Vineyards dot the rolling hills along the Lake Michigan shoreline, making the area Michigan's answer to California's Napa Valley.

Chateau Grand: Making wines in a grand way

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Edward O'Keefe describes himself as competitive and plans to give French and California winemakers a run for their money.

After sinking $4 million into the winery, he readily lists prestigious awards to prove that Chateau Grand Traverse can play with the big boys and win.

He sells himself as offering the premier wines of northern Michigan. And the prices, $9 to $35 a half bottle, back the claim.

O'Keefe bulldozed one million cubic yards of dirt to re-arrange the landscape and create a new climate for the winery he built in 1974 on the highest point of Old Mission Peninsula.

Edward O'Keefe is trying to convince farmers to switch from producing cherries, which have fallen in price from too much supply to planting vinefra vines.

His principal wines, German in character, are Chardonnay, Johannisberg Riesling, Merlot, Pinot Noir and Gamay. One of O'Keefe's best known wines is the Riesling Ice Wine that sells for as much as $65 a half bottle at The Whitney Restaurant in Detroit.

After years of seeing barrels of red ink, O'Keefe said, "we're making money now and it looks like a damn good investment."

The Pennsylvania native and transplanted Southfield resident ships to exclusive restaurants in the Detroit area. The winery produces 15,000 cases of estate bottled wines.

HIS AWARDS include a gold medal from the prestigious American Wine Championships in San Francisco and a first-place award in the International Wine Tasting held at Herxhelm, West Germany.

Above all, O'Keefe prides himself on making wines from the prestigious vinefra or pure vines, used in European and California wines, as opposed to hybrid vines. He planted 60 acres.

Transplanted Southfield resident Edward O'Keefe ignored the son Edward III, he plans on giving German and California comments about his folly, Chateau Grand Traverse. But with winemakers a run for the money.

"We wanted to be judged around the world," O'Keefe said.

Even though Michigan is considered the fifth largest wine state, it falls when considering quality. If Michigan produced more vinefra wines that would change, he said.

O'Keefe is trying to convince farmers to switch from producing cherries, which have fallen in price from too much supply to planting vinefra vines.

"The others (winemakers) are doing a good job, but not for the London Chop House and the places we want to get into," he said. There was a debate among northern Michigan wineries about who introduced the vinefra grape to the state.

"My father brought vines and people from Germany and tried to convince people there that these grapes could be grown here," according to O'Keefe's son, Edward O'Keefe, III. "It was called O'Keefe's folly and it makes you feel real good that you found out you're right."

HIS FELLOW winemakers up north stressed that the debate was blown out of proportion. Others had known that the vinefra could be grown, they said, but they were not sure it would pay off.

O'Keefe left a trail of varied jobs and investments before turning to making wine.

He majored in health and physical education in college in Westchester, Pa., served as an Army Green Beret during the Korean War, worked in the FBI as a narcotics agent, studied law, co-founded a business counseling service for physicians and operated seven Michigan nursing homes.

Along the way, he made so much money that he was looking for a tax write-off. O'Keefe was sitting in a Southfield bar drinking a glass of wine when he said, "I said I could make wine better than that."

Their market is primarily concentrated in Michigan, according to the younger O'Keefe. Wine lovers in Chicago, San Francisco and even Japan and Denmark can find the Chateau Grand Traverse label.

"We would rather hear that this is as good as any wine, ever," the younger O'Keefe said.

Keeping a foot on the ground, he also said: "Wine should be fun and enjoyed and not used to intimidate you."

Bernie Rink, considered the pioneer of Northern Michigan wineries, samples a bottle of his Boskydel wine. He established the winery in 1975.

Boskydel: 'Pioneer' winery

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Bernie Rink, the man other winemakers in the area refer to as the pioneer of Northern Michigan wineries, started Boskydel overlooking Lake Leelanau in 1975.

In characteristic Rink style, clad in a hat and suspenders, he jokes about how his winery was started.

"Everytime I sat on the sofa next to my wife (Suzanne), we had a son (five in all)," he said. "We had to give them something to put them to bed at night."

And they fell asleep quickly after working in the vineyard.

His son, Jim, 33, who lives in the Detroit area, said it was hard work, but he wouldn't have had it any other way.

"You learn values and you learn how to work hard," Jim said. "You learn how to see a job through and to take pride in your work."

Referring to the cramped, rustic setting, Rink said, the sales are mostly from repeat customers who love the "ambiance."

"THE BARTENDER is the owner and what else could you want?" he said.

His wines are mostly French in character from French-American hybrid vines. His varietals include Aurora, Vignoles, Soleil Blanc, Seyval Blanc, deChaunac and Rose de Chaunac.

Rink refuses to ship his product to wine stores and restaurants. If you want Boskydel, you're going to have to go to the winemaker. And hope for a light day. If it gets too busy in the tasting room, like it did one day last October — "I shut the door and locked it."

And he doesn't encourage bus tours, because it gets too crowded.

Rink sells between 2,500 and 3,000 cases of Boskydel annually. As much as 5 percent of the wine he makes is poured in the tasting room "right down the hatch out there free of charge."

Behind the counter pouring tastes of the fermented juices, Rink talks as much about the state of the nation, national deficit, taxes and Bible passages as he talks about his wine.

"Politics end at 5 p.m. and then I give the sermon," he said.

Rink understandably likes the Bible verse about the wedding at Cana where Jesus Christ makes wine from water.

"He made 180 gallons," Rink said. "That's a hell of a wedding."

Standing in the cramped tasting room and glancing out a small window, that looks more like a framed painting, down a steep slope of green carpet to the sparkling blue waters of Lake Leelanau, Rink said, "It's real tough to look at."

MOVING PICTURES

James Belushi plays an escaped con who finds the lost datebook/organizer of an ultra-organized advertising executive, played by Charles Grodin, in "Taking Care of Business."

'Taking Care of Business' is too obvious to be funny

Spencer Barnes (Charles Grodin) is the ultimate yuppie, completely devoted to "Taking Care of Business" (C+, R, 105 minutes). That business is advertising and Spencer's boss, Walter Bentley (Stephen Elliott), is the ultimate tyrant.

That doesn't leave Spencer much time for life, love and his wife, Elizabeth (Veronica Hamel). Assigned to a major client, the Japanese food packaging executive Sakamoto (Mako), Spencer rushes off to L.A., where he leaves his daily planner at an airport telephone. That folder contains all his appointments and credit cards and the key to Bentley's palatial villa.

Meanwhile, back at the local prison, Jimmy Dworski (James Belushi), a Chicago Cubs fan and a car thief about to be paroled, wins two tickets for the sixth game of the Cubs-L.A. World Series.

Under cover of a prison riot engineered for that very purpose, Dworski escapes to attend the series. Naturally, he discovers Barnes' daily planner in the airport and assumes the ad exec's role in the fast lane.

THERE'S SOME funny stuff in this mistaken identity/unusual buddy film, but a good part of the proceedings falls flat because of uninspired direction and fairly leaden acting.

Barnes is caught in a strange web of women — his wife; Bentley's sexy daughter, Jewel (Loryn Locklin), who is being romanced by the Dworski everyone thinks is Barnes; Sakamoto's West Coast manager, Diane (Gates McFadden); and an old acquaintance he meets on the plane, Debbie (Ann DeSalvo).

The comic potential here is largely lost as everyone plods through their lines without the complications, timing and enthusiasm necessary for such humor.

Similarly, Belushi's transition from car thief to polished executive isn't funny because there's no tension. Will he get away with it or will he get caught?

No contest — it's all too easy and too obvious to be funny. The same may be said for the film's conclusion.

LAST-MINUTE TECHNICAL corrections to prints precluded a critics' screening of "My Blue Heaven" (PG-13), but the idea of Steve Martin as an ex-mobster in the Federal Witness Protection Program sounds pretty funny. Particularly since Nora Ephron ("Silkwood" and "When Harry Met Sally") wrote the screenplay. Rick Moranis plays the FBI agent assigned to relocate and protect Martin.

"The Exorcist III: Legion" (R) is now available on your neighborhood screen. It's billed as the official sequel to the original story, beginning where "The Exorcist" ended. I don't know what that means for the status of "Exorcist II," but I suspect the fate of the western world is not involved. George C. Scott stars.

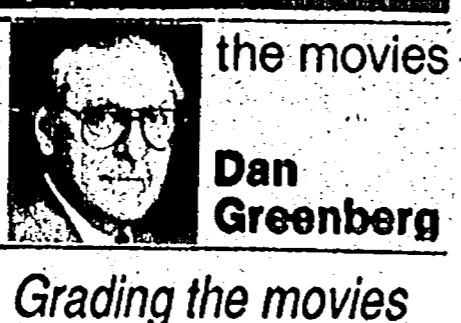

STILL PLAYING:
 "The Adventures of Ford Fairlane" (F, R, 90 minutes).
 Andrew Dice Clay in little role is as offensive as possible in this poorly done story, which falls miserably in blending hard-boiled private-eye genre with rock and roll.

"Air America" (B-, R, 105 minutes).
 The insanity of war and the human sorrow of Southeast Asia in a jumbled but interesting story about two CIA pilots in Laos.

"Another 48 Hrs." (C, R, 90 minutes).
 Murky plot and lots of violence. By and large this Nolte-Murphy reunion is unsatisfying.

"Arachnophobia" (B-, PG-13, 95 minutes).
 Killer spiders from Venezuela are no match for Jeff Daniels despite his fear of furry little, eight-legged creatures.

Fine comedy nicely synthesizes American ethnic diversity, family values and the problems of being an individual in today's mass culture.
- "Days of Thunder" (A-, PG-13, 116 minutes).
Made to order for Cruise fans as Tom conquers machines (race cars), pretty girls (Nicole Kidman) and himself.

Just the right mix of "slam-bam-pow!" cartoon characters, '30s nostalgia and warm human relationships.
- "Die Hard 2" (B+, R, 105 minutes).
A successful, high-style sequel. This time Lt. John McClane (Bruce Willis) liberates Dulles International Airport from terrorist control.

Scrooge McDuck from daytime TV in an entertaining and exciting animated feature that owes a great debt to Indiana Jones.

Moody, atmospheric, suspenseful story of five med students experimenting with death.

Brando is terrific in a satire of his "Godfather" performance, but the story here is too complicated and poorly told to make a worthwhile film.

Banker's ghost (Patrick Swayze) hangs around after life to protect loved one (Demi Moore). Spiritualist (Whoopi Goldberg) helps him and this romantic/comedy/thriller.

- "The Jungle Book" (A, G, 78 minutes).
Re-release of 1967 Disney animated feature based on Kipling's Mowgli stories.
- "Mo' Better Blues" (D, R, 120 minutes).
Long, boring, corny, 1930-style musical set in the black idiom.
- "Navy Seals" (R, 113 minutes).
U.S. Navy Commandos hit the beaches to save American helicopter crew from terrorists.
- "Pretty Woman" (A-, R, 120 minutes).
Charming, romantic fantasy with Wall Street mogul (Richard Gere) falling in love with prostitute (Julia Roberts).
- "Presumed Innocent" (B+, R, 125 minutes).
Well-done courtroom drama with interesting, surprise (if you haven't read the book) ending.

"Problem Child" (F, PG).
Suburban couple adopt mischievous child.

"Quick Change" (C-, R, 85 minutes).
An unusual gang robs a bank but has trouble getting out of New York City afterward. Contrived, stilted and very weak, even for Bill Murray fans.

"Robocop 2" (F, R, 115 minutes).
Grossly violent and stylistically empty sequel.

"Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles" (PG).
You guessed it. Lean, green and on the screen.

"Total Recall" (D, R, 109 minutes).
Exceedingly violent, gross and unimaginative sci-fi trip to Mars, where Arnold Schwarzenegger searches for his identity.

"The Two Jakes" (B+, R, 140 minutes).
Tangled conclusion detracts from this sequel to Jack Nicholson's earlier (1974) success in "Chinatown."

"Young Guns II" (C-, PG-13, 100 minutes).
Billy the Kid still rides the range — this time in an adult western that is uneven and talky.

'Wild at Heart' opens at DFT

By John Monaghan special writer

In a recent interview, writer/director David Lynch outlined a simple formula for making movies. Just write down 70 ideas on 3-by-5 cards and string them together in a script.

"Wild at Heart" injects some of the director's darker ideas into a road movie populated by bizarre and distorted characters. Though not as intense as his brilliant "Blue Velvet," it is wildly weird and entertaining.

Playing at the Detroit Film Theatre for a second weekend, "Wild at Heart" is the year's most talked about art film. Lynch has become a household name with the success of "Twin Peaks," the TV series he was instrumental in launching.

Sailor (Nicolas Cage) and Lula (Laura Dern) are lovers consumed by passion. When he does a prison stretch for manslaughter, Lula waits for him. Sailor breaks parole and they head for sunny California. On the way, they encounter Lynch's stock company of freakish characters.

HERE, THE setting isn't the northern lumber towns of "Blue Velvet" and "Twin Peaks," but the South at its sleaziest and steamiest. You don't need Lynch to make New Orleans look strange — actually, it looks surprisingly tame here.

But tiny Tuna, Texas, where Lula and Sailor get stranded with car trouble, has the desired quality of concealing something sinister beneath the surface.

William Defoo brings rotting teeth and a sick sense of humor to Bobby, the small-time Tuna operator who spells trouble for the lovers. Harry, Dean Stanton is a playful puppy dog of a detective sent by Lula's mother to bring the lovers home. Several cast members from "Twin Peaks" appear in cameos.

Nicolas Cage and Laura Dern have their best moments on screen here. Wearing a snakelike jacket ("a symbol of my individuality"), Sailor is everything Elvis Presley should have been. He even sings a couple of Elvis songs.

Playing characters on the fringe is second nature for Cage. Dern, however, is surprisingly effective as the trumpy Lula. Dressed in tight-fitting Natassia Kinski ("Tess") is back, this time with Timothy Hutton ("Ordinary People") and Valerie Gollino ("Rain Man"), in "Torrents of Spring" (1990, PG-13, color, 102 minutes).

The reasonable assumption that all those excellent performers would produce a good film is sadly untrue. Despite excellent photography and fine costumes, "Torrents of Spring" matches HBO's release earlier this summer of Kinski's "Magdalene," another loser.

In that one, Kinski, in the title role as a mistreated, but provocative young barmaid, seduces the priest who co-wrote "Silent Night." Of course, he helped matters along!

In "Torrents," Kinski again plays the femme fatale, a wealthy noblewoman of questionable morality and poor health. She beguiles a Russian nobleman, Dimitri (Timothy Hutton), who deserts his recently acquired fiancée, Gemma (Gollino). Gemma had just shucked over her longtime fiancée because he left the party rather than defend her honor in a duel after she was insulted by the Baron. Of course, Dimitri took up the challenge and marriages have been made of less.

Well, the script and directing are so retarded that nothing much happens despite the potential for emotional and physical thrills. Dimitri's duel with the Baron is so slow and deliberate, for example, that it was more like looking at a painting than

How to be an advertising whiz.

You have to buy a newspaper ad in the Detroit market and you're faced with a real dilemma. Circulation is down for the Detroit News and Free Press. Ad rates are up. How do you juggle the numbers, stretch your budget, and get the biggest bang for your buck?

See for yourself how SPRING measures up.

You don't need a yardstick to see that your advertising dollar can buy more in SPRING. SPRING's network of 39 suburban Detroit newspapers reaches more than 1,000,000 readers at a cost-per-inch that's below that of the News or Free Press — daily or Sunday editions.

That means you can run bigger ads or run more ads when you put SPRING in your media buy.

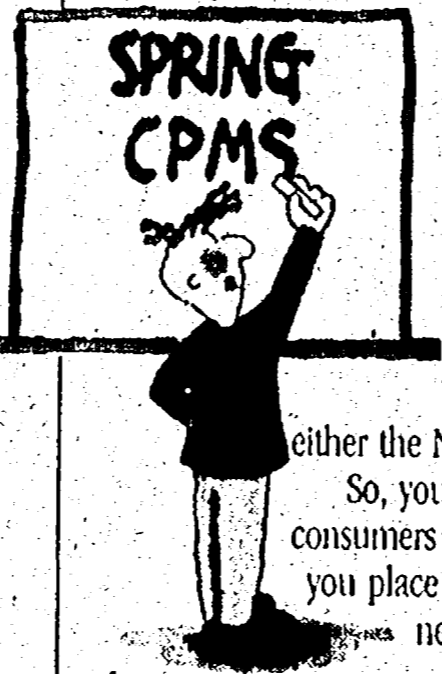

Get the lowest CPMS.

This is pretty easy — even for math phobics. Just take the total cost of your newspaper ad and divide that number by the circulation (the DNAs un-audited figures, or SPRING's audited numbers).

You'll find SPRING delivers Detroit's upscale suburban market at a lower cost per thousand than either the News or the Free Press.

So, you can reach more consumers for less money when you place your ad in SPRING's newspaper network.

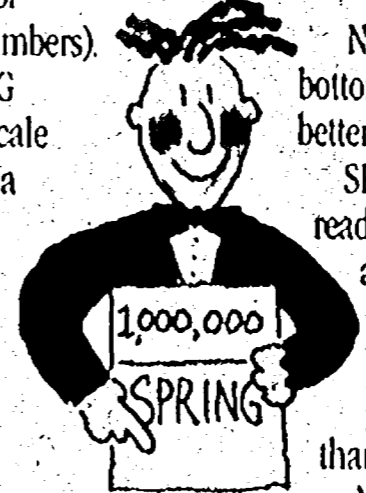

The bottom line? SPRING delivers the suburbs best.

No matter how you add it up, the bottom line is this: SPRING is simply a better buy.

SPRING reaches more than one million readers. SPRING's circulation is strong and stable. And all SPRING newspapers are audited by either CAC or ABC.

Best of all, SPRING costs less per thousand — and less per inch — than the Detroit dailies.

Now that you know the score, shouldn't you put SPRING in your advertising plan?

One call. One order. One ad. One million readers. One heck-of-a-buy.

It's tough to trick clock

Dear Barbara,
I work the night shift that is 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. I have been on this shift for a month. It seems that my body and my mind are in a constant battle. My body wants to sleep, but my mind needs to be alert.
There is no way I can get off this shift at present. Is there anything I can do to put my body in the same place that my head is at?

Jack

Dear Jack,
I'm sure that what you are trying to say is that both mind and body want to sleep, but that both need to be alert to get the job done.

In my response, I want to tell you both the psychological and biological research and then to comment more personally on what I have observed in human nature.

Biologically, you are experiencing the consequences of a disruption to your body's natural daily cycles (its circadian rhythms).

The human body has a biological clock that controls many physiological functions. Sleep cycles are one of these and are controlled by light coming in through the eyes and then sending "awake" messages to the brain.

When circumstances make it impossible for you to follow this normal sequence, you may become fatigued, irritable, inattentive and possibly even more prone to disease.

IT IS estimated that between 7 and 10 million Americans work at night. Reports indicate that more than half of these fall asleep while on the job.

Three Mile Island, Bhopal, Chernobyl and Exxon Valdez all occurred in the very early morning when the body is at its lowest point for alertness. The problem is pervasive and serious.

Recent research has focused on attempts to use artificial light to trick the brain and fool the body's natural clock. Subjects in these studies were exposed to bright light at night and to nearly complete darkness during the day. Significant improvement in alertness was reported.

HOWEVER, NONE of this research takes into account the extraordinary capacities of the human brain to adapt and cope when there is a reinforcing motivation.

Among men and women who work the night shift, there are those who do adapt and thus meet the challenges of a taxing reality. I marvel at their capacity for coping. Perhaps without a reinforcing motivation, there is a resistance to reality's demands and thus diminished capacity in dealing with difficulty.

Your problem could thus be attacked in two modalities.

ONE, YOU might find a professional who knows about light therapy and will be able to prescribe suitable treatment. I do not know who is qualified to do this and would appreciate any help our readers might provide.

Two, you might want to see a psychotherapist and explore motivational issues.

However you solve the problem, I hope you feel more rested.

Overall, "Wild at Heart" is not top-notch David Lynch, but the 70 ideas are good. Few directors have as many really good ideas in a lifetime of making movies.

Darian: Finding a niche in comedy

By Sue Mason
staff writer

"If Ron Darian has his druthers, he'll have a niche just like the one Steve Martin has created for himself.

He would do a TV series, occasional films a couple of times a year and consider himself as having made it when he appears on the covers of "National Lampoon" and "Mad Magazine."

"I think Steve Martin has the right idea," said Darian. "He does nothing remotely related to stand-up (comedy). He writes and performs in films. That's a niche I'd like to fill."

Darian, 35, who will be at the MainStreet Comedy Showcase in Ann Arbor this weekend, has been doing stand-up comedy for 10 years, but has been in show business for 14 years. A native New Yorker who has since moved to Los Angeles, he got hooked on the footlights while in college.

"I met a lot of funny people in college who are now in show business," he said. "I hung around these funny and talented people and it kind of rubbed off on me."

At the time, Darian was studying engineering. He kept the major, but also performed in shows at coffee houses and college revues, which were "good training because I was hardly going to class."

Once he graduated, Darian headed for drama school and fresh from his theatrical training, landed a role in the Broadway production of "Grease" during its waning days on the Great White Way.

PERFORMING ON Broadway was both exhilarating and humbling for the actor/comedian. Before joining the cast, he had worked as a security guard for Burger King and at an answering service. He did six months with the show and then returned to the answering service.

"It was my first year in show biz and I said 'wow, I've made,' then reality set in," he said. "It was a very humbling experience."

Since then Darian has gone on to perform at some of the country's best — and yes, smallest — comedy meccas like the Improv in both New York and Los Angeles, Catch a Rising Star, the Comedy Cellar and a place in Presque Isle, Maine.

With the sudden growth in comedy, Darian admits he has performed in "the tippy top of Maine and some places in the middle of nowhere."

"They're little places where you take an airplane to one airport to catch a plane to another airport until you're flying in Joe's Cessna."

He's also performed on "Caroline's Comedy House" on cable's A&E channel, Fox's "Comic Strip Live," "Nightlife with David Brenner" and "The MTV Comedy Half Hour." He also has been a three-time winner on TV's "Star Search."

HIS ACTING credits include appearances on "The Equalizer" and "Anything But Love" on TV and in the film "Bum Rap." His latest project is "Pizza Man," a comedy ("I hope") film with Bill Maher.

Four to five years ago, Darian spent 50 percent of his time on the road, doing stand-up in local clubs. He has trimmed the traveling back to spend more time in L.A. pursuing his acting career. He does find time, however, to attend Space Camp and a baseball fantasy camp with the New York Mets each year.

"I've had a fantasy to do those things — be an astronaut or a ball player," Darian said of his camping experiences. "Some day, if I'm don't get hired as an astronaut, I'll buy a ticket because by 2020, we'll have permanent habitats up there and they'll need entertainment. Where people go, comedy follows."

Darian describes his comedy as observational "with a mixed bag of impersonations, some sight gags and some political humor." His agent Paul Roger describes it as "clean-cut All-American."

His inspirations have been Jay Leno — "I really think he's incredible," and Jerry Seinfeld, although he admits he grew up with the humor of Robert Klein and George Carlin. As for comedy's "bad boy," Andrew Dice Clay, Darian thinks he's "a very talented performer," even though "too many people who don't know he's kidding listen to him."

"He shouldn't be idolized; he should be an ironic figure," Darian said. "I don't think the people get his irony."

As for following in Martin's footsteps, Darian is working on a couple of scripts, some feature and one possibly for a cable network.

"Some people say comedy has bottomed out, I hope not."

Ron Darian will perform Friday and Saturday, Aug. 24-25, at the MainStreet Comedy Showcase, 314 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. For reservations, call 996-9080.

Good Harbor adds grapes to its harvest

By Diane Gale
staff writer

If they swing clear of a second prohibition, wineries in Michigan should thrive, according to Bruce Simpson, owner of Good Harbor Vineyards.

The demand for wine could dry up if the trend against drinking continues, he said.

"You can't argue that alcohol is good," he said.

However, he takes a subtle approach. For instance, an article on the wall of his tasting room, points out health benefits — like lowering cholesterol — if you drink wine in moderation.

Still, a national scare against drinking anything at all frightens wine growers he said.

"Do the millions who don't abuse alcohol have the right to a beer or glass of wine in daily life?" he said. "The scariest part is you don't know how far this thing will cycle. Most people are moderate in their habits."

Simpson welcomes visitors to a wide open tasting room with a self-guided tour that explains how to make wine in the next room.

The winery was started from the family farm in 1980. Before that the Simpsons grew cherries. And they have not forgotten that market. They harvest cherries in the summer and grapes in the fall.

AFTER SIMPSON graduated from Michigan State University, he went to the University of California to study and it was there that he realized that growing grapes was more interesting than growing cherries.

"It's fun to start to grow something from the time you plant the vines to packaging and say 'I grew this,'" he said. "It also helps that the cherry industry is in dire straights."

Simpson puts blame for the cherry growers' on farmers who over-produce cherries, increasing the supply and pushing prices down.

His wines range in price from $3.99 to $8.99. The biggest seller is Trillium, which is fruity and semi-dry.

"It's meant to be sweet enough that it doesn't attack people's palates," Simpson said. The label has the bright white Michigan wild-flower.

"Trillium and Riesling are the most natural wines out of this area," he added.

Other Good Harbor varieties are Vignoles, Seyval Blanc, Marechal Foch, Riesling

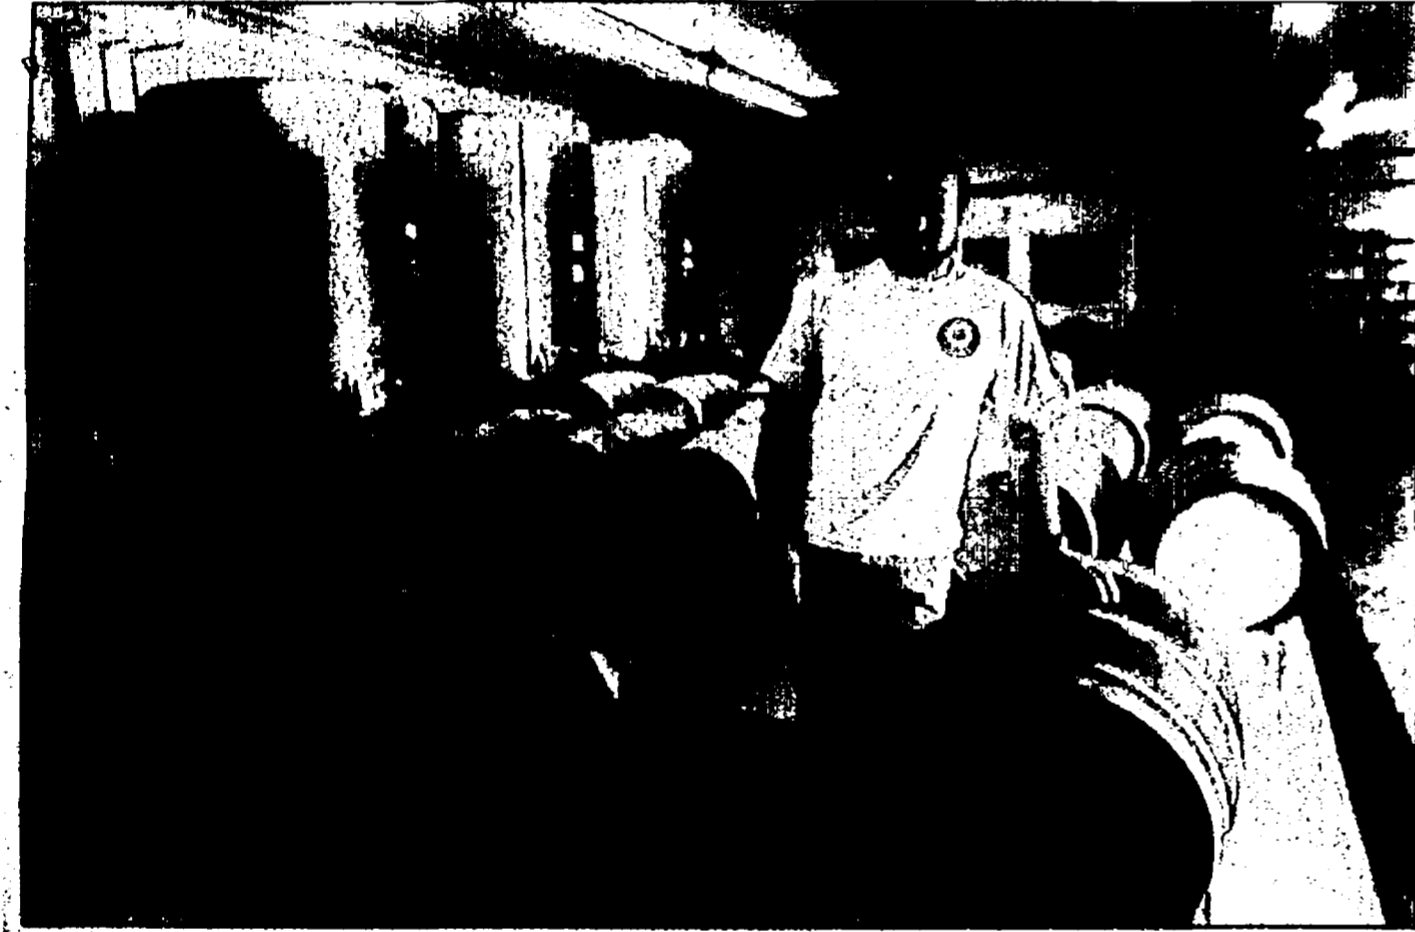

AND YOU don't grow real fast without incredible pain," Simpson said.

"I want to make sure that the wines I put on the market that I'm proud of the quality," he said. "That's while I'm making money they represent a good value relative to wines all over the world and that they can buy them."

"To my pallet and pocket book I think we treat people fairly."

Simpson said he couldn't promise that he would stay in the winery business explaining that rising costs could nudge him out of the market.

"People are not consuming as many beers or wines as they have in the past," he said.

Bill Skolnik, general manager and winemaker of Leelanau Wine Cellars Ltd., hopes to polish the 18-year-old winery's tarnished image and make it live up to its motto — "Leelanau Wine Cellars, a taste of northern Michigan."

Leelanau Cellars: Biggest and trying to be the best

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Bill Skolnik, general manager and winemaker of Leelanau Wine Cellars, Ltd., has big dreams for the 18-year-old winery half way out on the Leelanau Peninsula.

And he knows what it means to start from scratch.

When Skolnik came to Leelanau Wine Cellars, owned by attorney Mike Jacobson, he said the perception of the winery was poor and he knew that dramatic changes had to be made to turn it around. He drew on experience while working at Chateau Grand Traverse.

"People look up to Chateau Grand Traverse, because they've been doing it right for a long time," he said. "The winery (Leelanau Wine Cellars) and these wines were at the bottom of the heap."

Today, Leelanau Wine Cellars is one of the largest wineries in northern Michigan and there are plans to keep growing by planting another 20 acres at the rate of five acres annually. And it's Skolnik who determines the wine blends and develops new styles. That takes marketing strategies.

"IN 1987, we came up with the logo — 'Leelanau Wine Cellars, a taste of northern Michigan,'" he said.

Prices range from $3.99 to $15 for the 18 different wines that vary from Aurora, Vignoles, Baco Noir, Riesling, Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. Labels include Spring Splendor, Summer Sunset, Autumn Harvest and Winter White.

The cherry some of the other fruity wines will never be considered champion wines, he said, but some customers, especially those with a sweet tooth, are drawn their way.

And as long as they keep buying the wines, Leelanau Limited will continue to oblige their tastes, he said.

When he came to the job, Skolnik went through and tasted every wine. He decided to sell most of it as vinegar. After a lot of work developing the wines and shining the tarnished image, he now distributes to Meijers, Kroger and Farmer Jack.

About 3,000 cases of wine are sold directly from the spacious tasting room and 800 cases, or 3,600 bottles, are poured free of charge to visitors.

In 1987 the winery sold 5,000 cases and in 1990 Skolnik plans to sell 15,000 cases.

"WE EXPERIENCED 120 percent growth from last year," he said.

Skolnik said it does not matter that Michigan wines are fifth in the nation, because as far as producing quality wines it still has a lot of room to grow.

Jim Thompson, Leelanau Limited vineyard manager, said their targeted market is varied.

"We're not looking to sell only to connoisseurs; we make sweet wines to satisfy people," he said.

Some of the other better wines can compare with their European counterparts, Thompson said. And if the beverage maintains its popularity, he wouldn't be surprised to see "fairly large vineyards and wineries crop up" in northern Michigan.

Winemaking becomes art with that Mawby 'touch'

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Larry Mawby has to have a hand in every part of making and marketing his wine.

He speaks of winemaking as being more of an art than a process. The burly artisan with a black beard and easy laugh mixes a great portion of literature with the usual wine ingredients.

"You grow the fruit, make the wine, bottle it and sell it," Mawby said. "You start from the soil and take the process to the end product. For smaller wineries it's become an art."

He produces about 30,000 bottles, or 2,400 cases, a year. He sells 30 percent of his wine to visitors, 20 percent to companies in the Traverse City area and the remaining 45 to 50 percent in metropolitan areas, including Detroit. A small amount goes to Chicago and San Francisco.

Mawby predicts that he can increase his 2,400-case production to 3,000 cases annually. His vineyard spans 12 acres.

"So far we sell everything we make," he said. "I'll make enough wine as I can make. I don't have a lot of money, so I can't buy labor-saving machines."

"I have to do it by hand," he said, illustrating the point standing on a small stool sterilizing bottles, one by one.

"If you add up hours for the amount of compensation, you would think I was out of my mind," Mawby said.

LONG HOURS are the pay back for doing something he loves, he said, adding that only a minority of people enjoy their jobs.

"It's about wine as an expressive beverage," he said.

His varieties include Vignoles, Seyval Blanc, Marechal Foch, Pinot Noir, Pinot Gris and Chardonnay.

Mawby has been growing grapes since 1973 and has been making wine since 1978.

Every L. Mawby label, most of which are designed by his girlfriend Peggy Core, "has a tall or tale," Mawby said explaining that each label has an animal tall or wispy tale about life, which he writes himself.

A tale on his "Summer" wine says: "Smell of vineyard and sunlight; mushroom raspberry earth; apricot peachflower rain; life's awful alchemy; summer's endless renewal."

Another wine, P.G.W. Pun, was named for Pretty Good Wine. The posey on the label says: "Aroma of citrus, fruit and spice; banana melon flavors lingering a delicate sweet kiss; music in your mouth; laughter in your heart."

The tales on the labels are an outlet for a grand desire to write.

"I would love to have six weeks to spend a couple of hours a day in the winery and vineyard and it would give me time to write," said Mawby, who earned a degree in English.

AND HE casually flicks aside the importance of wine contests and awards.

"I don't think they're meaningful," he said. "It's catering to the public's desire to have complex questions answered simply. They want a group of people to act like taste police and say this is good. It doesn't mean anything to the consumer who is looking for a wine to have with dinner."

For Mawby wine and literature blend.

"I like wines to be complex with layers of flavors and aromas," he said. "I like that in my literature, too. Most commercial wineries in this country are technically clean, but there's no soul."

"If I ever get to a point that I make a wine that I'm totally satisfied with, I'll quit," he said. "Without becoming smug, or self-satisfied, you have to say this is wonderful... but I want something better."

Creative metalwork

Artist creates wall sculpture out of brass, copper

By Linda Ann Chomin
special writer

BRAZILIAN-BORN artist John Bergasse believes there are two reasons why people buy his brass and copper wall sculptures. "People like the art I create," he said modestly during an interview in his Southfield studio. "But people also like the idea that it's affordable."

Bergasse's theory must be correct because his sculptures, ranging in price from $5 to $1,500, are displayed in homes, offices and lobbies of corporations throughout the Midwest and East Coast.

For the past 10 years, Bergasse and partner Roy Wrugby of Birmingham have owned and operated the sculpture studio, Studio One Metal Designs in Southfield.

Bergasse recently completed a commission for the Troy office of Long Manufacturing Ltd. The sculpture, displayed in the lobby of the corporation, is a metallic replica of the downtown Detroit skyline as seen from the Canadian riverfront. The Renaissance Center, Ford Auditorium, Penobscot Building and Guardian Building are all encompassed in the copper creation.

LONG, A Canadian corporation, commissioned Bergasse to create the Detroit skyline out of the product it manufactures: heat exchangers. "To create the sculpture, I used parts that are in what they manufacture," Bergasse said. "The radiator fins lend themselves very well to the facade of a building."

"I'll do anything creatively. I will take some special orders for logos, like the one I'm currently working on for Manchester Trust Bank in Lakehurst."

"I've done a number of pieces which B'nai Brith gave as awards," the Ferndale resident said. "I retail and wholesale my art throughout the Midwest, Pennsylvania and New Jersey."

Newton Furniture in Livonia and the House of Denmark in Rochester Hills, Livonia and Keego Harbor are two of several stores that retail his sculptures.

Bergasse was born in Rio de Janeiro. In 1968, at 22, he came to the United States. "I was enchanted by the lifestyles and the opportunities here in the States," he said.

Bergasse apprenticed under William Bowie at the Sculpture Studio in Manhattan before arriving in Michigan in 1973.

BECAUSE OF the continuous expansion of his successful sculpture business, Bergasse has been able to employ a full-time assistant, Ed Buckmaster of Berkley.

Buckmaster stood at the work bench brazing copper tubing from the end of the torch, throwing off orange sparks like a sparkler on the Fourth of July.

"Ed's inability to hear hasn't stopped him," Bergasse said, referring to his assistant's hearing impairment. "Ed's a hard worker. He's taught me a lot."

"Ed's taught me enough sign language that we're able to communicate about whatever the job, at hand."

About 1½ years ago, Bergasse married his Brazilian wife, Christina. "Christina was a psychologist at a clinic in Brazil," he said proudly.

It's apparent that family is very important to him. His sense of pride fully extends to his two sons from his first marriage, Joshua, 17, and Mark, 13.

"Both of my sons are excellent dancers — jazz ballet, tap," Bergasse said. "In a way, I don't want them to follow what I'm doing. It's full of hardship."

TOUCANS AND red-shouldered parrots, native to his South American homeland, hang on the studio walls. "They are so common there," he said, referring to the birds. "I like birds a lot, but there are none like those, here, so I created them."

Brazil, it is obvious, is still in his heart. "The globe sculptures I make, someone pointed out to me the position of the land mass South America and Brazil, especially, is in the center of my globes."

Bergasse does a bustling business, selling his metal sculptures retail, wholesale and on commission.

"I was enchanted by the lifestyles and the opportunities here in the States."

Concrete dresses up with stamped patterns

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Paving brick, slate, field stone, tile, hardwood and cobblestone driveways, decks and foot paths on a poured concrete budget? Well not quite, but a reasonable alternative can be found in stamped concrete.

"As soon as more people see it and become aware of it, more people will want it," Paul Albanelli, vice president of Albanelli Patterned Concrete in Farmington Hills, said.

Stamped concrete can be used just about anywhere that regular concrete is used, Albanelli said, but where a little flash is desired.

Driveways and patios are fairly common uses of stamped concrete, but he's also done automobile showroom floors, pool decks, sidewalks, building entries, a fast food restaurant drive-through lane and even some interior residential work.

LEE BARTHEL, manager of Bomanite of Michigan in Northville, said stamped concrete's main advantage over brick paving is its "walkability."

"It has the appearance of a rough surface — which people like — but it is actually much smoother," he said. "Anytime you're concerned about people twisting an ankle or women's shoes getting caught in the cracks, that's when you want to think about stamped concrete."

Bomanite concentrates mainly in large commercial, office and even municipal jobs, but sometimes will do residential jobs as well, he said.

Cost is a factor, he said, but not as much as some might think. "I'd say it's comparable to a good brick paving job, but there are people doing cheap (brick paving) jobs that look good but won't last."

Stamped concrete jobs, he said, range from $5 to $8 per square foot.

Vicki Archambault, communications director for Patterned Concrete Industries in Houston, Texas, said the greatest misconception about stamped concrete is it will crack and break up easily. "We have stamped concrete projects in San Antonio that are 75 years old and still look good," she said.

ADVANCES IN technology are improving the end product so much that stamped concrete lasts longer today in the North. "We're seeing more stuff in the North than we would have seen even a few years ago."

Chemical hardeners, accelerators that speed drying, and retarders that stop cracking are added to the concrete to make for a much longer lasting job, she said.

Another problem faced by stamped concrete, according to Albanelli of Albanelli Patterned Concrete, is the placement of crack control joints. "People don't like to break up the pattern, but without them the concrete will break up because of ground movement."

Crack control joints are less of a problem now than in the past because specially-designed saws enable concrete contractors to cut thin joints within the patterns, he said.

Installation is the key to a durable job. First, the concrete is poured and a color is added and worked into the surface.

In high traffic areas, where heavy traffic is likely to chip the concrete, the color is integrated in during the concrete mixing. Color added to the surface is brighter and more vivid; color mixed throughout is more subtle.

AFTER THE COLOR is added, the cement is troweled and patterned using special templates, tools and meshes. Finally, the surface is sealed in one of several different ways depending on the concrete's intended use. An interior project may get a wax coating, while an exterior may get a water seal.

Pattern Concrete Industries' Archambault said stamped concrete sales have grown gradually each year since her husband bought the company in 1978.

Patterned Concrete licenses franchisees to 43 stamped concrete contractors in the U.S., Canada and Europe under the trade name Patterned Concrete. Exclusive territorial franchises — sometimes as large as a 2,000 mile radius — are granted to contractors.

The total square footage of stamped concrete poured by Patterned Concrete affiliates topped one million square feet in 1989.

Stamped concrete's advantage over paving brick, Archambault said, is that a monolithic slab has greater strength. "You aren't going to see a paved brick foundation because it won't take the weight."

The biggest disadvantage, she said, is stamped concrete — unlike paving brick — cannot be disassembled. In a situation where heavy trucks are used or where utility lines will run beneath a project, Archambault said she will recommend not using poured concrete.

BOMANITE OF Michigan's Barthel said there are relatively few contractors doing stamped concrete Stamped concrete can offer a less expensive option to paving stones, slate, brick and cobblestone that also gives an attractive alternative to standard pavement.

work, but he expects that number to grow. It is not something that can be learned over night, he added.

"It may look easy, but there are little tricks to it," he said. Contractors must work in fairly small amounts of concrete because the stamping has to be done at just the right time to ensure a better job.

When he first inquired into becoming a Bomanite licensee, it was after another area contractor had given up on the product.

"I saw (a job done at Meadowbrook Hall in Rochester Hills) and some of it looked really good — but some of it looked really bad," he said. "I thought I saw what the problem was, so I decided to give it a try."

Legislation unneeded

Can you tell me your opinion on proposed House Bill 4866 that has been passed by the state House and is now being considered by the Senate as it regards condominiums?

condo queries
Robert M. Melsner

The bill provides that at least once every 90 days notice of a meeting of the board must be disseminated to all members of the association and members of the board. The bill requires that the directors of the association be staggered in their terms. It also provides for time limitations regarding the calling of a special meeting for, among other things, removal of directors of the association.

condominium association or the developer in establishing the condominium project.

For example, mandating that the terms of the directors be staggered and that certain meetings of the board must be open to all members of the association may cause extreme financial and logistic hardship in various condominium associations and may discourage persons from running for the board of directors. It is generally difficult to obtain and attract good directors to the association because of the fact that they serve without compensation, or may be subject to potential liability and co-owner abuse.

The bill is unnecessary and should be defeated because it serves no useful purpose that is not already protected by good condominium practice or condominium bylaws.

While it would appear on its face that there are some beneficial aspects of the bill, as a whole it, in my opinion, interferes with the orderly operation of the association. Many of the provisions that the bill mandates are included in many condominium bylaws now and that would be left to the discretion of the particular
