Increased voter turnout expected

More Westland voters are expected to go to the polls Tuesday than four years ago, according to Diane Rohruff, city clerk.

But Rohruff said two state ballot proposals — not the city mayoral and council elections — may be responsible for generating the higher turnout.

Rohruff predicted a 30-35 percent turnout of the 45,962 registered voters. That would mean about 14,000-16,000 casting ballots, or anywhere from 2,000-4,000 more than the 24.5 percent turnout for the 1985 mayoral/city council election.

"I think with the (state) proposals on the ballot we're going to see at least a slight increase in the number of people voting," Rohruff said Wednesday. "There were no proposals last time."

Proposals A and B seek increases in the state sales tax to provide additional money for public education in Michigan.

Rohruff said the city had mailed about 2,100 absentee ballots to voters as of Wednesday. That number was "typical" for the week before a mayoral election, she said.

PEOPLE VOTING by absentee ballot have until 8 p.m. election day to get their ballots to the clerk's office.

Both Mayor Charles Griffin and challenger Robert Thomas are claiming a large turnout will help their chances. Traditionally, a low turnout helps the incumbent while a large turnout favors the challenger.

"There's a lot of people out there talking about (commercial and industrial) over-development and I think they're going to vote their feel-

Neighborhood block party or political rally?

That's the question some Westland residents were asking after attending an Oct. 21 outdoor party on Mackenzie in the city's north end.

Several people who attended the party complained about what they said was excessive involvement on the part of Mayor Charles Griffin, seeking a second term in Tuesday's election, and the presence of a manned city police car and fire truck at the party for part of the afternoon.

Estimates of how many people attended the party ranged from "almost nobody" to 70 or 80 people throughout the afternoon, according to organizers and guests.

"It was definitely more of a political thing," said Carol Miller, a resident of Mackenzie. "I mean who else is going to put on a block party in the middle of October when it's 45 degrees outside?"

"Even the invitations said 'Meet Your Mayor,'" Miller said.

Signs boosting Griffin's re-election bid were distributed from the back of the fire truck, said another ings," Thomas said last week.

Griffin meanwhile, said that voters, noting the progress the city has made since his election in 1985, "will want to make sure that progress continues."

"A large turnout will mean that the people have truly spoken and I'm confident about my chances," Griffin said.

In addition to the mayor's race, voters will fill four seats on the Westland City Council. The top three finishers will win a four-year term and the fourth-place candidate will get a two-year term on the council.

Three incumbents, Ben DeHart, William Ziemba and council president Ken Mehl, are seeking re-election.

Nursing home patient's body found in field

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

The body of a Nightingale Convalescent Center resident who had been missing from the nursing home for a week was found by police Friday morning in a field near the home, on Newburgh south of Joy.

The man was identified as Edward Jarembo, 71, said a spokesman for the Wayne County medical examiner's office. An autopsy was scheduled for Saturday morning.

Police don't believe foul play was involved, although an investigation into the incident is continuing, Sgt. Michael Terry said Friday.

In a press release Friday, police confirmed the dead man was a resident of a local nursing home, but declined to name the home or identify the victim, pending notification of his family.

Jarembo was reported missing from the Nightingale home on Oct.

27. An employee of the nursing home told police Jarembo walked away from the home between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m.

NORMAN BERGER, Nightingale administrator, refused to confirm the man's identity or comment on the incident.

"We have people walking around (the grounds) here all the time," Berger said Friday.

With the help of a police tracking dog, the man's body was found at 11 a.m. in a wooded field adjacent to the partially-completed Warris Farms apartment complex, Terry said. The complex is across the street and just south of the nursing home.

There was no estimate on the date or time of death, and Terry declined to speculate on how long the body had been there.

Auction of decorated pumpkins raises seed money for museum

Friends of the Helen C. Brown Historical Museum raised approximately $50 at a pumpkin auction Oct. 28. The auction was at the museum, 857 N. Wayne Road.

Sixteen people entered pumpkins in a decorating contest. The pumpkins were auctioned to the highest bidder.

Many expenses were involved that prevented the group from realizing a larger profit, said Beverly Melasi, a member of the Westland Historical Commission, which sponsored the auction.

THE TOP three winners in the carved pumpkin category were Bryan Sleek, first; Sue Espinoza, second; and Anthony Cross, third.

In the decorated pumpkin category, the winners were Lori Longmate, first; Carolyn Nelgum, second and third. All five winners are Westland residents.

Michigan PTA campaigning for exemption from sales tax

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

A bombshell dropped at a Parent-Teacher Association convention in May has forced the 800 PTA chapters around the state to do something they never did before — pay the state's 4 percent sales tax on items they either buy or sell at school fundraisers.

The Michigan PTA is now campaigning to convince the state's lawmakers to pass legislation exempting the non-profit group from paying or levying the state sales tax.

The PTA is urging passage of either of two bills, House Bill 5130, which was aired in a hearing Wednesday before the House Taxation Committee, or Senate Bill 581, soon to be aired in the Senate Finance Committee.

HB 5130 would exempt schools and community colleges from the state sales tax. SB581 would do the same for all non-profit organizations in Michigan.

THE PTA WAS informed of the new policy by agents from the state Treasury Department.

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, vice-chair of the House Taxation Committee, explained what happened:

"There apparently was an audit and the Treasury Department found that they were not enforcing an obscure section of an act passed in 1933. The act says that non-profit organizations should pay a sales tax on items bought or sold. They decided to enforce the law."

Berkley resident Marc Katz, who serves on the Michigan PTA's legis-

cop calls

A HOMEOWNER on the 38800 block of Monmouth told police someone entered his house Wednesday and stole a video camcorder, television set and jewelry.

The homeowner said the stolen merchandise was worth at least $1,200.

He said the culprit walked into the house through an unlocked back door between 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. while nobody was home.

POLICE believe a car fire early Wednesday on the 35800 block of Glen was deliberately set.

The fire heavily damaged the interior of a 1989 Chevrolet, police said. Traces of a flammable liquid were found by officers on the floor near the front seats.

The car was parked at the rear end of a driveway when it was set on fire between midnight and 7 a.m., police said.

A RESIDENT on the 8000 block of Coventry reported that someone stole her car from in front of her home Wednesday morning.

The locked 1985 Ford Tempo was stolen between 8-11 a.m., the resident said.

PTA campaigns

lative committee, told what happened at the convention after the new policy was announced.

"When they said we had to be considered like any vendor and charge a sales tax when we sell an item, like K mart or Sears, well, it could have blown the roof off the building. It would have registered 30 on the Richter scale."

Peg Sippola said the news created the most confusion and the biggest uproar she has seen and heard in her two years as PTA state treasurer.

"I've been fielding calls from PTAs all over the state wanting to know what is taxable and what isn't," Sippola said.

WHILE THE law applies to fundraisers held by any non-profit group, including the Boy or Girl Scouts, Lion's Club and veterans' groups, the PTA is one of the few groups in the state that decided to fight it.

The PTA said it objects to the administrative paperwork of forcing volunteer parents to collect taxes and fill out government forms.

"These are just moms and dads who don't want to get involved in taxation matters," said Pat Tancill, former president of the Livonia PTA, the state's largest.

The PTA also objects to giving money to the state that in past years was funneled back into the schools.

Kosteva said PTA spokespersons will say at Wednesday's hearing that the state is taking money that should go back into the schools.

"They will say that they are reducing the state's burden in supporting the schools," Kosteva said.

On the other hand, Kosteva said, state treasury officials will argue that schools should not be treated any differently than any other non-profit organization.

"They will say how much money (the exemption) will cost the state and argue for taxpayer equity," Kosteva said.

CAROL STROM, vice president for legislative activities for the Michigan PTA, said the PTA has advised all Michigan PTAs to collect and pay the tax.

Compliance means that youngsters at school Santa Shops this Christmas will pay an extra 4 cents when they buy a $1 gift for their parents.

It means that a school PTA will pay the state's sales tax when it buys a computer for the school's library.

It means that high school seniors will pay sales tax on their yearbook.

It means that popcorn sold at a school fair in a sealed box won't be taxed, but that popcorn sold in an open box will be.

In urging compliance with the law, Katz said the treasury department has opened a "big can of worms" for non-profit organizations.

guest, who declined to give his name.

OTTO STOUT, a 33-year Mackenzie resident, organized the party after younger residents on the block suggested it, he said. The mayor, who did stop by, was an invited guest, Stout said.

"Some of my neighbors went to a party on Merritt last summer and they asked me how come we've never had one," Stout said. "So I sent out a petition asking them (the city) to close the street."

Residents were asked to bring a dish to pass and there were games for children at the party, Stout said.

GRIFFIN ATTENDED the party as a guest and no political material of any kind was distributed, the mayor said Thursday.

"I didn't have any role (in organizing) it. They invited me and I went as a guest," Griffin said.

Sending a police car and fire truck to neighborhood block parties for public safety education has been "done around here as long as I can remember," Griffin said.

Personnel manning the vehicles are "on call" and can be summoned away to handle any emergency situation, he said.

that at least one of five challengers will win a seat on the council.

THE FIVE challengers who survived the September primary election are Ethel Bollinger, Michael Bradley, Sandra Cicirelli, Terri Reighard Johnson and Dorothy Smith.

Bollinger finished narrowly out of the running in the 1987 council race and Smith has run several times since 1980.

There are 37 precincts, in city hall, elementary schools and other community buildings. One change from the 1985 election, voters in precinct 28 will cast their ballots in the clubhouse at the Westland Meadows mobile home park, rather than at the Peoples Community Baptist Church.

The polls will be open 7 a.m.-8 p.m. People standing in line at 8 p.m. will be allowed to vote.

Missing man's body found

Terry said a search of the area, made shortly after the man's reported disappearance, turned up nothing.

"We had to borrow the dog from the Wayne County Sheriff's department and that took a couple of days," Terry said.

Following the initial report, Westland police notified police departments in Livonia and Canton Township about the missing man, Terry said.

Holiday spirit shines early

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

The Thanksgiving spirit arrived three weeks early at Westland's Friendship Center. Same as always.

Thursday's annual Thanksgiving dinner drew nearly 400 seniors, many of whom said enjoying the holiday meal with friends and helping contribute to holiday fruit baskets for area shut-ins are the highlights of their Thanksgiving.

"With all the things going on in the world today, it's wonderful to be able to get together this way and celebrate," said Elsie Davies of Westland.

Norbert Cortina of Detroit, attending his fourth or fifth dinner (he wasn't sure which) with his sister, Maria Garcia of Westland, said the opportunity to be with family members he doesn't see often was appreciated.

"And the food's not too shabby either," he said with a smile.

One whiff of the steaming trays set up at the back of the room proved him right. Turkey, stuffing, mashed potatoes, green beans and carrots, cranberry slices — all the traditional Thanksgiving trimmings were there, right down to the pumpkin pie with whipped cream.

MAKE THAT 56 pumpkin pies. Enough to feed the small army of seniors from Westland and adjoining communities who began making reservations for the dinner last summer, said Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, executive director of the city's senior resources department.

The fruit baskets, also an annual tradition, allow seniors to share the holiday with less fortunate families.

Each participant is required to bring in a piece of fresh fruit to be placed in to a basket that they will deliver personally.

"It (the basket program) accomplishes three things," said Kozorosky-Wiacek. "There's the fact that they're doing something to help others less fortunate, they take it themselves to a friend and they get a chance to visit."

On Thursday, some 60 baskets of bananas, grapes, apples, oranges and raisins were put together for area shut-ins. The baskets will be delivered in time to be part of their Thanksgiving holiday.

Hundreds of well-wishers attended Polly Malaney's retirement party Friday afternoon at the Dyer Senior Center in Westland. Malaney (center) was director of the Wayne-Westland school district's seniors' program for 13 years and a school employee for 28

Police seek driver in hit-and-run

By LeAnne Rogers
staff writer

Police are looking for the car that killed a man last week.

George Korona, 46, of Pardo Street was struck by a car between 1:30 a.m. and 2:10 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 31, in the parking lot behind the Powerhouse Gym. The car that hit him did not stop.

Korona was apparently walking across the parking lot when struck by a car traveling east, Garden City police Sgt. Cory Coldren said. Although the parking lot is lighted, areas near the building can be shadowy, and Korona was wearing dark clothing.

The driver probably is a local person since the parking lot apparently was being used as a shortcut to Pardo, Coldren said.

"The vehicle would have front end damage. They would definitely know that they hit him. The victim was probably struck and landed on the hood. He fell off then they stopped."

POLICE WERE contacted after a second car hit Korona while cutting through the parking lot.

"The body was in the shadows, and they saw it at the last second. They saw the body at the last second and swerved to miss it."

The occupants of the second car, whose names are being withheld while the investigation continues, checked on Korona and found no signs of life.

If you have any information, call police at 422-1122.

Madonna the scene of Halloween fun

In spite of the dense fog on the Saturday before Halloween, hundreds of children with their parents managed to attend Halloween Haunt II at Madonna College.

There was something for everyone: a haunted house, pumpkin coloring, bowling for gravestones, pin-the-bones on the skeleton, face painting and "all-me-the-ghost," the throwing of whipped cream-filled sponges at a live ghost.

There was even an 11-foot, 40-pound python snake by the name of Monty who was available for petting. The snake spent the day lovingly draped around the neck of Dave Bydlowski, an adjunct professor of Madonna College and director of the Sassafras Trails Nature Center in Wayne-Westland Community Schools.

There were plenty of original costumes, worn by the children, many of their parents and even a few of the Felician Sisters, who retained their usual brown habits with a few innovations.

McNamara threatens to veto county budget

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara said he will "absolutely" veto the county's new budget.

Though he had not yet received a copy of the revised document, McNamara said Friday he would veto the budget unless commissioners restored his original figures.

"Really, it's the whole budget," McNamara said outlining his disputes with the commission.

McNamara said the commission was spending money the county doesn't have.

"That's the old game," he said. "That's why the county was in financial trouble for so long."

The executive is particularly upset commissioners increased general fund spending — including raising county clerk's office fees — and restricted spending for the new county jail.

Commissioners approved the revised budget Thursday. A veto battle, should it emerge, is expected to be resolved by Dec. 1, when the new budget is scheduled to take effect.

Commission Chairman Arthur Blackwell II called the revised document: "A balanced budget that protects the county's solvency."

McNamara, however, said commissioners threatened county finances by "playing the old game."

AT ISSUE is an estimated $1.3 million added to the $222.8 million general operating budget proposed by McNamara.

The additional money is to go for a variety of police and drug enforcement activities. It includes hiring new legal staff, probation officers and a victim rights advocate. All would assist in drug and other criminal cases.

Additional money would also go for bullet proof vests and chemical testing equipment for the sheriff's department, as well as for drug education programs aimed at school children.

Commissioners, however, believe McNamara's original budget projections were overly conservative. They believe, the county will receive at least $176,000 more in interest than projected in the executive's budget.

"That's a conservative estimate, too," said commission budget adviser Marya Sleminski. "But we felt the original estimate was too conservative."

Grants, additional revenue estimated to be raised through confiscated drug revenue, and nearly $300,000 pulled from drug forfeiture fund reserves, are also expected to finance anti-drug efforts.

IN ANOTHER major step, the commission approved fee increases for the county clerk's office. Those increases are expected to produce $412,500 in additional revenue during the coming fiscal year. McNamara said he would veto them along with the budget. (See related story.)

Disputes not only center on money put into the budget, but money taken out.

Commissioners approved a total county budget of $1.3 billion — including capital projects, like roads and sewers.

Another dispute centers on a $37.8 million cut commissioners made to the overall budget.

The cut was taken from $49.5 million McNamara had set aside for jail construction.

Commissioners said they deleted the money from the budget because bond financing hadn't yet been approved. In a related move, commissioners established a contingency fund for $11.7 million expected to be raised through the county's new jail construction tax. That move assures the commission will maintain control over jail spending, commissioners said.

McNamara, however, said the action jeopardizes swift completion of the Hamtramck jail.

"This just ties our hands," he said. "It means we'd work for two days, then sit around waiting for two weeks for the commission to take action."

Commissioners also said they would set aside money for a county work academy for young offenders.

A key project of former commission chairman Arthur Carter, the youth academy has been less of a priority with McNamara. McNamara can veto the budget 10 days after receiving it from the commission. To sustain his veto, however, he would have to change the minds of at least six commissioners.

Commissioners approved the budget 12-3, with new commissioners Kevin Kelley, D-Redford and Susan Hubbard, D-Dearborn joining William O'Neill, D-Allen Park in rejecting the budget.

Kelley said he was concerned with budget projections, but believed the budget was generally sound. He added he expects to meet with Blackwell to discuss his concerns.

The commission and executive have traditionally argued over the budget, however, and their indications this year's disputes aren't as great as those in years past.

"Two years ago, we were livid, last year we were angry," McNamara said. "This year it's, 'Hohum, here we go again!'"

... county fee increases also face veto

It will cost Wayne County residents more to be born, more to get married and more to die, unless the board of commissioners falls to override an expected veto by county executive Edward McNamara.

The increase in fees would be used to help the clerk's office become computerized.

New fees would take effect Dec. 1. The fee increases would be temporary.

"We have it tabbed as a five-year project," chief deputy clerk Steven Kelley said. "But it's hard to say just when it will be complete."

McNamara, however, said the move was a tax increase in disguise and that he would veto it along with the proposed 1989-90 county budget.

The new fee ordinance contains a provision allowing the clerk to waive fees for needy county residents who provide a Medicaid, county care or food stamp card or a signed affidavit based upon a general assistance or disability number.

Among the increases:

• Birth information — Birth certificate, $23, up from $15; determination of birth, $23, up from $15; birth card, $15, up from $10.

• Marriage information — Marriage license affidavit, $28, up from $20; license certification, $23, up from $15; marriage record search, $15, up from $10.

• Death information — Death certificate, $23, up from $15.

Concealed weapons registration increased from $40 to $48, though the fee remains $10 for retired police officers and police reserves.

Among commissioners, William O'Neill, D-Allen Park, Milton Mack, D-Wayne, and Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, voted against the increase.

"I understand fees are necessary, but I do worry about where the money goes," said Heintz, who has traditionally opposed any fee increase.

Contributing to the common good BUSINESS SOMETIMES GETS a bad rap for being what it is — business. The connotation is that it is cold and profit-driven, with little concern for the human side of life.

Of course, most of this isn't true. Many businesses in our suburbs and elsewhere strongly back the United Way and urge their employees to participate, rally for holiday and emergency giving, and on a very local level can be counted on to take out that ad in the high school yearbook or to donate merchandise or food for that PTA potluck.

I was struck by three recent examples of area business contributing in various ways to the common good:

• Blockbuster Video, with locations throughout our suburbs, from Garden City to Auburn Hills, now has available without charge 40 videos focusing on real-life issues such as substance abuse, crime and personal health in a new community service section.

Some are for kids, ranging from "When Mom and Dad Break Up," to "Rome Alone" — a way for kids to learn what to do in an emergency and fun ways to spend their time — to "Where Did I Come From?"

Teens can get the lowdown on college from "College Survival Guide" and on love through "How Can I Tell If I'm Really in Love?"

Adults have a variety of options from "Radon: A Homemaker's Guide" to "Breast Self-Examination" to "CPR — The Way to Save Lives."

"They decided to be a little different, to set aside these videos, to be closer to the communities," said Blockbuster spokeswoman Carolyn Hakes.

The community service videos are available free for three days to members of local Blockbuster clubs. Memberships are free, but must be secured with a major credit card and driver's license.

Community organizations that have made videos and would like more people to see them can also apply to have them put into the Blockbuster free library on a rotating basis, Hakes said.

• Bob Saks Motormall-Jeep/Eagle and its employees have given a homeless couple the 1978 van in which they had secretly been living in the Farmington Hills dealership's back parking lot.

"Most people don't think of car dealers as places with much of a heart," said sales manager Steve Radulovich.

"The initial reaction was to call the police and get them out of here," Radulovich acknowledged. "Then we realized that our employees were sneaking food back to them and kind of adopted them."

The dealership and its employees raised $400 for the van and a six-month insurance premium, discounted through Tim Little of All-State Insurance in Canton. The couple was also given $200 to spend.

"No transportation and no job — that's not a prerequisite for success," Radulovich said. "They got themselves a fresh start."

• On a slightly different tack, the new logo of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce is designed to mend some fences as well as promote that community's business district.

The logo — which depicts both a business and residential skyline — gives equal play to the residential and commercial districts, two areas that have waged turf wars in the not-so-distant past.

The logo was designed to show the interdependence of the two, said Karen Bota, who has made substantial changes in the direction of the chamber since she became executive director in April, 1988.

"It sums up what we're about," she said. "Our goal is to promote economic stability and balanced community growth. To keep the community healthy, we need both sides working together."

Unions knock on election

To the editor: An incumbent (city council) candidate recently patted the present city administration on the back for having increased the number of police officers to 109.

When Charles Griffin became mayor (in 1985) there were 89 sworn police officers. There are presently 87 officers with four of those in a police academy and four being trained on the job. The present administration has not increased the number of officers in this city. They have actually been derelict in keeping pace with replacing officers who retired and those disabled in the line of duty.

Mayor Griffin in 1988 deleted one police inspector position from the budget and has failed to fill a second. Therefore, we don't have a second in command when the chief is absent.

Maybe this is the reason we have lost two police chiefs during the Griffin administration. Both chiefs are now (with police departments) in other communities.

Why? Isn't everything wonderful in Westland? The current administration thinks so.

Westland, with an estimated 1990 population in excess of 90,000 people will require more than 87 officers. The FBI staffing level is pegged at 1.5 officers for every 1,000 people. Westland would need 135 officers (to meet this level).

It appears the safety and welfare of Westland residents are being neglected. Residents are faced with new problems, added threats to their peace, comfort, security and welfare.

Meanwhile, let's pat our politicians on the back for being concerned with issues of public safety.

Robert J. Barthold, president, Lieutenants and Sergeants Association

Be serious on election

To the editor: I found it degrading that your paper has put our mayoral and city council election in the hands of a psychle and astrologer named Elizabeth.

What has happened to issues and philosophies of candidates? Has this paper so little regard for their readers' intelligence that it has to resort to this sort of mockery?

I hope in the future you will regard our council and mayoral election with the class and dignity it so rightly deserves.

Carolyn J. Ziemba, Westland

Hate mail is disputed

To the editor: It would appear that the Observer has entered into a new era of journalism. You have now become the purveyor of "political hit and run" hate mail.

Your decision to sanction such garbage without even providing your victims with equal space for the truth is sad testimonial to the current state of your tabloid. Interestingly enough, the Westland Eagle across town refused to run the garbage you gleefully showcased.

I won't try to respond to each of your excursions into bad taste, but I do want to comment on your recent letter from Florida. That letter from a very bitter lady who once held, and later lost, the loyal trust of Mayor Griffin, speaks more about your newspaper than it did about the mayor.

We know the whole story about how Shivers worked for Mayor Griffin's election, became his trusted friend, was later hired as his secretary and provided with total access to the mayor's office.

We also know about how hard Griffin worked to get her straightened out. And we also know, that in spite of Griffin's efforts to help her, she refused to act in a responsible manner, forcing even the loyal Mayor Griffin to let her go.

So why did your tabloid run that letter? To enlighten, to entertain, to influence voters, to rehash the past, to gossip? Or did you run the letter because it provided information, perverted as it was, on the issue of the work ethic of the mayor?

If it was run for this last reason, then perhaps your editorial opinion on the same page should have been rewritten. Your opinion was that Robert Thomas' work record was not a valid issue and should not be discussed in this election. That's a strange position since only your tabloid is now endorsing "hit and run" political hate mail as a valid part of this campaign.

R. Sartore, Westland

Criticism is no surprise

To the editor: It came as no surprise to me to read Joe Doline's letter to the editor criticizing Mayor Griffin. Every year at election time, Mr. Doline "comes out of the shadows" and "contributes" to his community by speaking lies and deceit through his letters.

I know Joe Doline. At one point in time, we belonged to many of the senior citizen organizations. Like Mr. Doline, I am a former member of the Commission On Aging and a past winner of the Friendship Center's senior of the year award.

Where we differ is in the fact that unlike Mr. Doline, I have remained active in our community and positive about our community. Mr. Doline chooses to be a bitter individual criticizing all those who disagree with his opinions.

His bitterness stems from the fact that he was not reappointed to the Commission On Aging. I would just like to remind Mr. Doline that a lot of other outstanding individuals, Paul Plante and Jack Hickey to name two, also failed to be reappointed but they remain positive individuals who contribute to the betterment of our community. Please keep these thoughts in mind when you vote Nov. 7.

Madonna drive sets $10 million as five-year goal

Madonna College has launched a five-year, $10 million fund-raising campaign with pizza mogul Mike Illitch and downriver businessman Heinz Prechter co-chairing the drive.

"It is our most comprehensive effort to date," said Sister Mary Francilene, president of the Livonia college, which has an enrollment of 4,000 students.

The $10 million figure was calculated by a long-range planning team of college administrators, deans and faculty. The college has already received $2.4 million in pledges and cash, Francilene said.

"Madonna is Michigan's most affordable independent four-year liberal arts college," Francilene said.

"Our campaign for academic excellence is based on the needs of all students and the programs and tools to assist them in developing their talents and reaching their goals."

MONEY DONATED to the campaign will go toward: student scholarships and grants ($4 million); faculty development, international studies and honors programs ($3 million); programs for disabled people, fund for high school outreach, sign language and interpreting for deaf students ($2 million).

The remaining $1 million will be spent on improving computer equipment, library automation and instruction aids for math and science projects.

"We wanted to make sure that more than one-third of our goal, actually 40 percent, would be earmarked for student scholarships and grants. Those who have the ability and ambition but who lack financial resources are our priority," Francilene said.

THE CAMPAIGN co-chairmen were chosen by the Madonna Board of Trustees.

In addition to Little Caesars Pizza, which he founded in 1959, Illitch is owner of the Detroit Red Wings. His latest acquisition is the nationally known, historic Fox Theatre.

Prechter founded American Sunroof Co. in 1985 and later branched out to three divisions. He also is founder of Heritage Network Inc., a group of southeastern Michigan companies involved in the transportation, hospitality and communications industries.

He also owns a real estate development company and a weekly newspaper chain.

"Both are benefactors of Madonna College, business leaders, and were gracious enough to accept when asked," Francilene said.

A HOST of business and education

Sister Mary Francilene, president of Madonna College, discusses fund-raising strategy with Mike Illitch (left) of Little Caesar Enterprises Inc., Dean E. Richardson, chairman of Manufacturers National Corp., and David Treadwell, managing director of Heritage Development Group. (representing Heinz Prechter). Illitch and Prechter are co-chairing the college's fund drive. Richardson is the honorary chairman.

leaders were invited to a campaign kickoff breakfast at the Hotel St. Regis in Detroit late last month.

An executive committee was formed and a meeting scheduled for Nov. 14 to plan strategy. Dean Richardson, chairman of Manufacturers National Corp., was named honorary chairman.

"I'm very optimistic we will reach our goal," Francilene said. "This is a step toward a future beyond mere survival. It is a plan for continued and expanded quality."

FRANCILENE HAS been president of Madonna for 13 years. A national study of college presidents identified Francilene as one of the 100 most effective college presidents in the nation in 1987.

More than half of Madonna's student population are first-generation college students. Many transfer from area community colleges. Current undergraduate tuition is under $4,000 a year.

The 42-year old college, founded by the Felician Sisters of Livonia, has always operated with a balanced budget and no debts. The current budget is just over $14 million, with instruction accounting for almost 39 percent of expenditures.

What began as a women's college turned co-educational in 1972. Although Madonna College is a Catholic institution, Protestants, non-Christians and those affiliated with no formal religion comprise nearly half the student population.

WITH ARTHRITIS, THE END DOESN'T MEAN IT'S OVER

If you are fortunate, treatment for arthritis stops the condition. However, do not conclude that your joint problems are gone.

Rheumatoid arthritis of the hands illustrates this point. Frequently, inflammation attacks the tendons where they cross the large knuckles. The tendons lose their taut character and the fingers start to slant to the outside of the wrist, a state called ulnar drift.

Fingers that assume this position lose their strength and ability to grasp. Even if the arthritis is stopped, ulnar drift will not reverse, and is likely to worsen. The reason is that the tendons initially weakened now are stretched, causing more weakness and further tendon stretch.

Neither hand splints nor medication will stop this self-perpetuating cycle. Only surgery, which carries risks, can possibly shorten elongated tendons, repair torn joint capsules, and clear cartilage of inflamed tissues.

Similar difficulties are found in the feet, shoulders, and knees after arthritis has ended. These joints are subject to deformity from the arthritis itself, and from accelerated wear and tear thereafter.

Thus, arthritis may stop, but the concerns it brings may continue.

Disposal plan is released

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County's revised solid waste management plan isn't a question of how much, but of how.

In a compromise between a faction favoring recycling and one favoring incineration, the new county plan mandates communities must begin cutting waste 40 percent by the year 2000 — while exempting communities that have implemented weekly curbside recycling, composting and waste reduction education programs.

"We feel we've pleased everyone," said county commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, who heads the county's solid waste implementation committee.

THE PLAN was being circulated to county officials Thursday and Friday.

It is expected to be placed in area public libraries prior to a public hearing 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 5, at the Wayne County Intermediate Schools auditorium, 33500 Van Born, Wayne.

"We've accepted incineration as a viable option, but, in my mind, the edge goes to recycling," Mack said.

Communities that routinely recycle would be judged in compliance with the county plan, even if their total waste reduction fell below the 40 percent level.

"Even if it's 25 percent, that's still a big accomplishment," Mack said. "That means that's 25 percent less going to landfills."

OFFICIALS HAVE warned county landfill space would dry up by the end of the next decade.

Those pushing incineration, however, believe trash burning is the only way to enact massive cuts in the amount of waste going to landfills.

An initial draft would have required 75 percent cuts in each community's trash output. At the time, many community leaders said such a requirement would force them to build costly, environmentally unpopular incinerators.

In his role as committee chairman, Mack has championed recycling and source reduction — eliminating waste by reducing unnecessary packaging.

CURBSIDE RECYCLING already occurs in many East Coast and Midwestern communities.

It requires consumers to separate waste as many as a half-dozen ways, for shipment to recycling centers. Normally, glass, cardboard, plastic and metal items are disposed up separately under such a plan.

Getting fired up over food

O.K., I'll admit it. I'm more than a foodie. The preparation seduces me. The aromas ignite a passion from within. The presentation conjures thoughts of an artist's palette strategically positioned with cherries a ruby red, pea pods a glistening emerald intermingled with an amber-embazoned chowder.

Think about this one for a minute: Which has more allure, the first taste or the lingering finish? Is it the explosion of cherry liqueur that you enjoy when biting a chocolate-covered cherry or is it the overwhelming satisfaction emulating from a sugar rush that just satisfied your sweet tooth?

For some odd reason, I think the anticipation of a food can be even more sensual than the taste itself.

I remember the first time I tasted a truffle. Having done my homework and research, these little black beauties surely must be the epitome of mushrooms. The summit. No wonder they were $500 per pound. You needed specially trained pigs to sniff them from the ground.

I EVEN WENT out and paid $12.50 for a stainless-steel truffle slicer so that I could "shave" off tender morsels. At $31.25 per ounce, I thought they were tough, pungent and, needless to say, highly overrated for the price.

Another one of the chic foods that always sounds better than it tastes is caviar. I can't tell if it's sturgeon, salmon or carp, fish eggs are fish eggs. They taste salty and I always seem to get them stuck between my teeth, so it never fails that when I'm enjoying a slice of pie for dessert one becomes dislodged and I get that awful taste of salty fish with my next two bites of pie.

And forget the letters, folks. Yes, I have tasted Beluga, and the only thing that makes caviar go down any easier is the consistent shots of vodka.

On a recent trip to the Big Apple, I was lured to the one and only establishment that can now serve the dreaded Japanese fugu fish. Fugu is the seafood-lovers' version of Russian roulette, and if not prepared properly contains tetrodotoxin, a deadly poison that is said to kill more than 100 Japanese diners a year.

I paid $50 for about 2 1/2 ounces of razor-thin fugu that deserved a minus two on a scale of zero to 10. It didn't taste like fish. As a matter of fact, it didn't taste like anything. Period. Zip. Nothing. For 50 bucks, all I got was a good chew and, yes, it was chewy. When I complained to a fellow foodie, I was told that fugu loses a lot when it's frozen. I felt like I lost $50.

NOT EVERYTHING chic has to be expensive. Take tofu for instance. Coming in at just under $1.59 per pound, this trendy Asian import makes its way into stir-fries, sandwiches, casseroles and even ice cream.

Honestly now, have you ever stuck your finger into a batch of tofu? Worse yet, have you ever tasted said finger after removing it from the tofu? Not only does it just sit on your tongue, it's bland, tasteless, unimaginative, boring and downright nauseating.

When you stir tofu into chili in place of meat, you get little lumps of tofu the same color the ceiling was painted in the house you grew up in. It doesn't melt, and God only knows it will never incorporate into a sauce.

But why are these chic foods so chi-chi? My guess is that there will always be folks like me who will be dumb enough to plow down 50 bucks a crack to sample what some culinary guru from the West Coast says is de rigueur.

This is only a smattering of what some folks call trendy foods. Yes, it's my job, and for the sake of my job, I will continue to sample the likes of goose livers, thymus glands and chill-stuffed hot dogs that plump when you cook 'em. But just between you and me, I'll always welcome the sight of a BLT, the aroma of a bowl of Momma's bean soup and a tall, cool, frosty A&W root beer with a scoop of artificially flavored vanilla ice milk floating on top. Bon appetit!

A healthy grocery bag

By Larry Janes

THE HEALTH FOOD store of yesterday, which seemed to cater to the likes of folks in tie-dyed T-shirts and Earth shoes, is slowly being replaced by the larger, more upscale and much more diversified natural food stores of today.

Whereas before, "health-food" type stores stocked an assortment of vitamins, supplements and occasional packs of tofu (bean curd), the full-line natural food markets now cater to families who predominately spend almost 50 percent of their weekly food budget on items like soy milk, organically grown veggies, and plastic cartons brimming with vegetarian tabbouleh, hummus, brown rice dishes and an occasional oat bran muffin.

Today's shopper for these gourmet, natural-food havens can find aisles chock-full of all-natural, fruit-flavored cereals even the Janes gang kids love, naturally-fruit-sweetened cookies and treats, and an assortment of flours ranging from whole wheat to cracked wheat to barley, not to mention healthy-for-you canned products ranging from soup to nuts.

Speaking of nuts, health food groceries stock one of the most complete assortment of nuts available — raw cashews, pine nuts, walnut-flavored oil and even nut flour.

AND YOU THOUGHT today's health food stores were mainly filled with vitamins and supplements? Look again. Betty's Grocery at 877 S. Hunter in Birmingham has been in existence for more than 14 years. The store's trade has grown from basic health foods to a full line of canned goods, bakery items, organic produce, organic poultry, herbs, dairy products and even a deli, all specially earmarked for the health-conscious shopper.

Stacey Hessen, store buyer and deli manager, started working for Betty's more than four years ago. At that time, she was some 80 pounds overweight and her diet consisted mainly of pizzas and Cokes. Today, she is a svelte, vivacious young woman who follows a vegetarian re-

Her cookbooks a way for sharing recipes

Updated version published

The Redford woman with a big heart is at it again.

Ann Miller has produced her second collection of mouth-watering recipes. She is selling copies to benefit Children's Hospital of Michigan research projects into all forms of childhood cancer.

The book, "Sharing Recipes II," is selling for $6 per copy. Proceeds from sales of the softcover book will be given to the fund-raising organization Leukemia, Research, Life, Inc.

"I don't look at it as much from the profit standpoint," said Miller, a retired Michigan Bell Telephone Co. operator.

"The more books we can sell, the better. It's good for public relations and a little extra way of raising money. If we can sell some cookbooks, we can save a few kids."

Miller and her husband, James, a tool and die welder with Tel-X in Garden City, are eight-year members of Leukemia, Research, Life, Inc.

The non-profit organization sponsors several fund-raisers annually to support ongoing research projects at Children's Hospital.

"Sharing Recipes II" contains approximately 250 recipes. Its cover is white with royal-blue lettering and graphics. Miller compiled an earlier cookbook in 1985. That edition, with a blue-and-yellow cover, sold 2,200 copies.

"WHY DID I update it?" Miller said. "People would say, 'Are you going to do another one?' A lot of people told me they like the cookbook because it contains people's favorite recipes."

The cookbook features several of Miller's own favorite recipes, including the unusual, molded potato salad that won Miller first prize in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers contest last year.

"I really like that one because it's different," Miller said of her winning recipe. "Although a lot of people prefer creamy potato salad."

For Miller's new cookbook, her daughter, Betty Fryer of Westland, contributed a recipe for Swiss chicken casserole.

Janie Grandinett of Livonia — another active member of Leukemia, Research, Life — chipped in with her recipe for low-cholesterol baked chicken with sweet-and-spicy sauce.

"There are so many good things in here," said Miller, who has tried many of the recipes herself. "A day doesn't go by that I don't pick the book up and look at it."

MILLER HAS successfully solicited recipes from celebrities and politicians for inclusion in the book. President George Bush obliged by sending a recipe for all-American clam chowder. Miller tried it and gives the recipe a thumbs-up.

Columnist Ann Landers sent her recipe for lemon pie. Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher sent a recipe for her favorite orange and walnut cake.

The Millers don't have a child suffering from leukemia. They are simply among the legions of people who are concerned about finding a treatment or cure for childhood cancers.

The couple has two grown daughters and a grown son, and "six healthy grandchildren," according to Miller.

BUT THE Millers have experienced their own tragedy — the death of their oldest son, John, 10 years ago at age 29. He was struck and killed while riding a bicycle.

Working to raise money for cancer research has helped channel some of the grief, Miller said. And the entire family has rallied to the cause.

"You do open yourself to hurt," said Miller, who has comforted friends whose children have died.

But she has also rejoiced with others, such as David and Janie Grandinett, whose son Scott's leukemia is in remission.

"I think it helps if you have personally lost a child through illness or accident," Miller said. "You know what feelings come and go, and I think it helps."

Cooking also is therapeutic for Miller, who pulls out the stew pots and baking tins when she needs diversion.

For several years, Miller has handled major baby-sitting chores for grandsons Christopher Fryer, 6, and his brother Scott, 3. She likes to get the boys into the kitchen to measure spices and crack eggs.

THE LEUKEMIA research group puts on several fund-raisers each year. These include a March dinner dance, which this year raised almost $30,000.

The group also had a golf outing, sponsored by a police officers organization, and a sock hop in St. Clair Shores.

The Millers also are involved in other charitable work. Jim Miller, who served in the U.S. Navy, is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Ann Miller is a former counselor with RALY (Redford Assisting Local Youth), which works with troubled youths.

Ann Miller is a former hospice volunteer with Angela Hospice. The hospice, affiliated with Madonna College, gives comfort and friendship to terminal patients in their homes.

Ann Miller is a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America, a philanthropic group among communications workers. And she is an advocate for the handicapped at her parish, St. John Bosco Catholic Church of Redford.

Both Millers are active in the Livonia Civitans.

gime and reads all she can about vitamins, natural foods and natural food cookbooks.

Hessen is one of 14 store employees who strictly adheres to a healthy lifestyle, mainly to maintain her health but also to help educate her buying public. As with most of the Betty's employees, she can answer just about any question concerning natural cuisine for her demanding customers.

Hessen claims that Betty's Grocery services a well-diversified customer, ranging in age from eight to 80. "We like to think of Betty's as a full-line grocery specializing in natural foods," says Hessen. "Sure, many of our customers come in looking for exotic herbs, vitamins and supplements, but now that we have expanded to include a deli, bakery and full-line dairy, we can cater to just about everyone looking for a more healthy lifestyle."

Looking for great recipes to begin a healthy lifestyle with? Try these for a sure taste treat.

- MISSING EGG SALAD
(no eggs, but tastes just as good)
1 pound fresh tofu, drained and rinsed
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 tablespoons soy sauce or tamari
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon turmeric (for color)
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons finely chopped celery

Combine all ingredients in a non-metallic bowl. Mash with a fork, mix well, cover and refrigerate at least for 1 hour before serving.

SHE ADDS, "We're seeing more men, especially with the popularity of weight gain and body building products that are presently the rage."

The average customer at Betty's Grocery spends between $30-$40 at the checkout. If the shopping carts are filled with Amish-raised chickens from Indiana and organically raised fruits and vegetables without a trace of pesticides, not to be outdone is the library and literature section. Here, customers can browse through their favorite natural reading materials and get information on supplements and vegetarian diet regimens.

Clear across town is the venerable Good Food Company in Livonia. "We just celebrated our five-year anniversary," says Joe DeFranco, general manager. At 33251 W. Eight Mile Road in the northern part of Livonia, the Good Food Company is to the west side as Betty's is to the northern suburbs. DeFranco is quick to point out that the Good Food Company is unlike most health food stores, and places its emphasis on food more than vitamins.

"Sure, we carry everything the naturalist demands with regards to herbs, vitamins and supplements, but we try to make more of an effort, giving our customers the freshest, organically raised produce, dairy and deli items in the area," DeFranco says.

For moral reasons, the Good Food Company refuses to stock meat items, even those organically raised. After a recent visit, this writer was surprised to see the vast array of dairy items, in addition to organically grown produce. DeFranco says Good Foods' main competition is the larger-chain groceries such as Farmer Jack, which has recently jumped on the natural food bandwagon.

BOTH, DEFRANCO and Stacey Hessen of Betty's believe their stores are far superior to the larger chains, mainly because of the knowledgeable salespeople that come with the territory. Although you don't have to be a vegetarian to be employed at either location, both stores stress that the employees usually adapt to a healthier lifestyle after their initial indoctrinations.

In general, the average shopper at either of these two unique groceries can expect to pay about 50 percent more for organically raised produce. Canned goods and processed foods are about 40 percent more expensive, mainly due in part to the specialized production methods, natural ingredients and special handling required. Both locations have oodles of literature on all aspects of healthy living, including information on massage, body building, herbology, supplements and all-around alternative healthy lifestyles.

Nutritious meal helps getting over Halloween

Phew, it's over! The pumpkins carved with such excitement and anticipation have bit the dust and hit the garbage can.

The costumes once again assembled at the last minute are resting in peace in the attic, ready to be resurrected and recycled next year.

And now, as I pull down the last fake spider web and stash the bats, I can finally reward myself for making it through another Halloween by savoring snatched candy from my sons' Trick or Treat bags. I hate to admit it but, after all, what would Halloween be without candy?

That's enough sweet talk. The reason I'm here is to present one Family-Tested Winner Dinner each week, based on the premise that each family has at least one or two dinners everyone in the family likes and will eat.

It is not difficult to get children to eat candy but getting them to eat a nutritious dinner can be a real challenge. Thus, I encourage you to send in your family's favorite dinner menu because what works for your family may work for others as well.

THIS WEEK'S Winner Dinner, Chicken Souffle Casserole submitted by Patti Devine of Plymouth, is truly divine and delicious. The mother of two young girls, Devine works full-time as a speech therapist in Ann Arbor. With an hour-long commute each day to contend with, Devine particularly likes this casserole, as it is made a day in advance and all she has to do when she comes home from work is pop it in the oven and let it bake.

She likes to serve it with steamed broccoli spears and a spinach salad filled with all kinds of interesting things. Devine has served this versatile dish to company as well as to her family, and even takes it on the road to potluck parties and to welcome-home new babies and their weary moms.

Thank to Devine for sharing her family's Winner Dinner. Hopefully, it will uplift sagging culinary spirits and please palates across the land.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. Please include a complete dinner, with recipes as needed. All submissions become the property of the publisher.

Recipes

CHICKEN SOUFFLE CASSEROLE

This delicious casserole takes minutes to put together once the chicken has been cooked and cubed. It should be prepared a day in advance of when you would like to serve it.

- 7 slices of white bread, crusts removed
- 4 cups cooked chicken, cut into bite-sized pieces (I used 2 whole breasts)
- 1/2 cup or more sliced mushrooms
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1 (5-ounce) can of sliced, drained water chestnuts
- 8 ounces grated sharp cheddar cheese
- 4 eggs
- 1 1/4 cup milk
- 1/2 cup mayonnaisse
- 1 (2-ounce) jar of chopped pimento
- 1 can cream of celery soup
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup
- 2 cups buttered bread crumbs (These can be made from the crusts by placing the crusts on a baking sheet and baking them at 250 degrees for 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Place the crumbs in a zip-seal plastic bag and roll with a rolling pin until crusts are crushed.)

Use a non-stick spray on a 13-by-9-inch baking dish. Line the bottom of the dish with the crustless bread. If using fresh mushrooms, saute in butter for 5 minutes. Place the chicken on top of the bread, followed by a layer of mushrooms and then water chestnuts. Top with grated cheese. Beat the eggs with milk and pour over all. Mix the soups, mayonnaisse and pimentos together and spread over the top. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Bake at 325 degrees uncovered for 1 1/2 hours. Sprinkle the bread crumbs on top during the last 15 minutes of baking.

STEAMED BROCCOLI SPEARS

Wash broccoli and remove the large leaves and the tough part of the stalks. Steam in 1 inch of water in a tightly covered saucepan until it is barely tender, 10-12 minutes. Serve as is or sprinkled with a little melted butter or margarine.

SPINACH SALAD

A choice of the following ingredients can be used with fresh, washed spinach: bean sprouts, chopped hard-boiled eggs, crisp bacon pieces, sliced water chestnuts, chopped green onions and tops, mandarin orange sections or pineapple bits.

Dressing

- Mix together and refrigerate 2 or more hours:
- 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup catsup
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon A-1 Sauce

Stover fuels Rockets to 20-7 victory

By Bill Parker
staff writer

Westland. John Glenn football coach Chuck Gordon said last year's trip to the Michigan High School Athletic Association's Class A state playoffs — in which the Rockets lost to Catholic Central in the regional final — left his team hungry.

"When you've been there and tasted it, it makes you hungry," said Gordon.

The Rockets satisfied some of those hunger pains Saturday as they made a meal of host Dearborn Fordson in the opening round of the 1989 Class A state playoffs with a 20-7 victory. Glenn, 9-1 on the season, hosts top-ranked Birmingham Brother Rice, 10-0, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in this year's regional final.

Senior quarterback Eric Stover fueled the Rockets Saturday, completing 15-of-24 passes for 206 yards and two touchdowns.

"I have a lot of confidence in Eric," Gordon said. "The whole team does. We weren't going to move the ball on the ground against Fordson and that's why we started throwing."

AFTER A 7-7 first half, the Rockets turned momentum in their favor early in the third quarter when they capitalized on the first turnover of the game.

Glenn's Mark Johnson pounced on a fumbled Fordson pitch giving the Rockets possession at the Tractors' 45-yard-line. Five plays later, after completions of 37 and 7 yards to David Ryan (eight catches for 89 yards), Stover hooked up with Garnett Woody on a 7-yard touchdown pass. Wes Taylor's extra point put the Rockets ahead to stay, 14-7.

"That fumble was a big play," said Gordon. "I told the kids at halftime that someone needed a big play to get us going and that was it."

Another play in that series gave the Rockets a mental boost. Facing second-and-15 at midfield, Stover dropped back and lofted a pass over the middle. But Fordson's Marcelo Ortiz stepped in front of the pass, intercepted it and streaked down the sideline toward paydirt. Stover, the last Glenn player between Ortiz and the end zone, leveled Ortiz with a bone-crushing tackle. Although the play was nullified by offsetting penalties, Stover's determination sparked the Rockets.

"I was so mad at myself," Stover said. "I saw him running down the field and there was no way he was getting past me. After I hit him, everyone seemed even more jacked-up to win."

GLENN'S DEFENSE led by the hard hitting of Sam Weddington and Jason Gould, stifled Fordson on its next possession. After a shanked Fordson punt Glenn again took over at the Fordson 45. Stover completed three passes, including a 15-yarder to Mark Wetmore, and marched the Rockets to the Dearborn 23 before Taylor put the Rockets ahead by 10, 17-7, with a 41-yard field goal.

"Their quarterback is awfully good and their kicker is outstanding," said Fordson coach Charlie Jestice, who slips quietly into retirement with the loss. "They started throwing quick-outs and we lost control of the game. They have a really nice team and I give them credit. I wish them luck."

Taylor rounded out Glenn's scoring with a 28-yard field goal with 9:40 remaining in the game. Tom Luxton sealed the victory for the Rockets when he intercepted Fordson on both of its' final two possessions.

FORDSON CONTROLLED the game in the first quarter and mounted a couple nice drives. But Glenn's defense came up with the big plays when they needed them. Chris Maddish made a great play in the secondary, batting away a sure first-down pass on third-and-seven. Gould, Sean O'Brien and Kraig Kuban each recorded tackles-for-loss on Fordson's second possession as the Tractors closed in on the goal line. Faced with fourth-and-14 at the 20, Ford-

The passing game was a big part of Saturday's success as the Rockets gained 206 yards in the air. David Ryan, 80, had this pass broken up by Fordson's Marcelo Ortiz, 5, but Ryan had a great day, finishing with eight receptions for 89 yards.

son attempted a 37-yard field goal that sailed wide of the goal post.

Glenn opened the scoring at 6:42 of the second quarter on a 15-yard TD pass from Stover to Wetmore. Taylor's PAT gave the Rockets a 7-0 lead. The 80-yard drive was kept alive by a pair of critical off-side penalties by Fordson, and a 47-yard pass from Stover to Woody.

Fordson scored on its' ensuing possession, marching 51-yards in eight plays. The Tractors scored on a determined 16-yard run by Ed Ortiz. Raid Jewad kicked the extra-point to tie the game at seven apiece.

On the afternoon, Glenn racked up 298 yards of total offense. Shannon Layne led the running game with 83 yards on 25 carries. Fordson totaled 172 yards, led by Yousef Sareini with 72 yards on 16 carries and Mohamed Baldoun with six completions in 14 attempts for 51 yards.

Plymouth Salem shocks Shamrocks

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Jeff Gold is considered the best player on the Plymouth Salem soccer team but not the only quality player, he wants people to know.

His affirmation will be put to the test Wednesday when the Rocks meet Portage Northern at 2 p.m. in a Class A semifinal game at Okemos High School.

Gold, who scored two goals Saturday to help Salem defeat Redford Catholic Central 5-1 and win its first regional championship, received a red card and will have to sit out the next game.

But it wasn't necessarily a costly victory, according to Salem coach Ken Johnson and Gold.

"As long as he's alive for the next game, I'm sure the boys will carry the game for him," Johnson said. "I think we have such overall strength, the boys will be there for him. He'll still be the emotional leader."

Gold, who put the Rocks on top 2-0 in the first half, pointed to the fact his teammates, after his ejection, scored three quick goals without his help to ice the victory.

"WE HAVE guys on the bench who can fill in easily," said Gold, who has scored a team-leading 30 goals and has 19 assists. "I'm confident we'll be fine."

With the Rocks leading 2-1 early in the second half, Salem had a man advantage after CC's Scott Lead-better was red-carded for pushing Gold to the ground.

That was nullified a short time later when referee Steven DiClemente sent Gold to the sideline. Gold was carrying the ball into CC territory when he got tangled among three Shamrocks. CC defender Chris Williams had to leave the game after being shaken-up on the play.

"One of their guys pushed me into one of their players," Gold said. "He fell over the guy laying on the ground and kicked him in the head. But the ref said I stepped on his face because he didn't see it."

"It's kinda upsetting because I didn't do anything. But right now it doesn't mean anything. A 5-1 win against this team is great."

Gold said he told his teammates at the beginning of the season Salem (17-3-1) would have to beat either Livonia Stevenson, Livonia Churchill or CC — or possibly two of the three — to win a state title. The No. 5-rated Rocks faced No. 2 Stevenson and the No. 3 Shamrocks (18-3-1) in the regional.

"The guys were kinda scared of CC earlier in the year," Gold said. "They have nine players on the state team, a lot of known players, and that was kinda intimidating."

"AS A TEAM, they talked about how they were going to beat us. But (my teammates) just came out today and showed them who the real team is."

Following the game that included physical play on both sides and the issuance of three red cards — CC's Jim Bernthal received the other — and four yellow cards, CC coach John Boots was not impressed by what he saw from the Rocks.

"They're the dirtiest team we've played this year," he said. "I've got one kid in the hospital and four others limping. That's not skill (the Rocks used to win the game); they just beat the hell out of us."

"They've got two or three decent players, and the rest kick the ball and run to it. But it's efficient."

"I'm just not impressed with them," he added. "They won the game, but they don't play good soccer."

Johnson said Boots is entitled to his opinion but thought the Shamrocks were just as rough. He added his team's only intention is to play tough soccer.

"The boys are told never to hurt anyone deliberately," Johnson said,

"I wouldn't stand for it."

SHORTLY AFTER Gold's departure, Bill Joker gave the Rocks a 3-1 lead with a hard shot from 25 yards out front. The ball bounced off the hands of CC goalkeeper J.P. Angell and dropped behind him.

A quick switch led to an even greater turn in momentum for the Rocks.

Tom Baker made a big play, heading the ball away from the Salem goal, and Andy Cosenza picked it up at midfield where two CC defenders collided and fell. That allowed Cosenza to go 1-on-1 with Angell, and he maneuvered around Angell for a 4-1 score after the goalkeeper committed himself.

Then, less than a minute later, Greg Christensen took a cross off a free kick and scored the final goal on a header.

In tournament play, the Rocks have seen their fortunes do a 180-degree turnabout from late in the regular season when they couldn't score despite dominating games. Salem has averaged nearly five goals in five post-season contests.

"Every goal we've scored has been an opportunistic goal," Johnson said. "We're following up, taking every possible chance."

"It's not one player," said Gold, citing the team effort. "It's just incredible. The team has come together and is playing as one, and it's just awesome."

Gold's goals sparked Salem in the first half, but Williams kept CC within one at halftime. Salem goalie Matt Tudor caught his free kick but leaned back into the goal doing so, allowing the ball to break the plane nonetheless.

"I felt it was our game after (Gold scored twice into the wind)," Johnson said. "That was all speed, opportunism, anticipation on his part."

For Pete's sake Outgoing coach can stand tall

FOR PETE SCERRI, it didn't have to end this way.

Not for a coach with a 242-19-20 record, the most successful prep soccer coach in state history.

Scerri, however, was under the microscope at Livonia Stevenson High where winning four boys state titles and finishing second two other times was at times not quite good enough.

Parents drove him batty, and finally, as he had threatened to do several times before, he abruptly announced he was retiring from coaching.

Scerri was fed up with some of the things swirling around him long before last Saturday's emotional victory over city rival Churchill.

And when Plymouth Salem put an end Wednesday to his long and illustrious 15-year coaching career at Stevenson, Scerri was officially gone.

There's not a chance he'll return. I'm almost certain of that.

But from my standpoint he should never be forgotten.

NORTHVILLE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR Dennis Colligan, who has hosted many a district, regional and state soccer tournaments, told me that Scerri was his favorite visiting coach.

"He always had a kind word for me," Colligan told me at the district final. "A very classy individual. Never once had he complained to me. He was always very sincere."

That's what may have gotten Scerri in hot water with some of these overzealous parents.

He didn't play politics. He was always straightforward. Yes, he had some faults, like everybody does. But the positives far outweigh any of the negatives.

Times have changed and Scerri had a hard time dealing with a new mentality which has crept into the high school soccer ranks.

It's the day and age where All-State and All-League means more than State Championship.

It's where the tags of being "State Select, Olympic Development and All-Midwest Regional" put you among the Gods.

IT'S A SIGN of the times when individual honors are more important than team goals.

It starts when a summer camp counselor sends home an evaluation form telling the parent that "your child can start on any high school team in the state."

Newspapers face the same pressures.

One parent called my office to find out if there was any recourse for moving their child up from second-team All-State to first-team All-State.

Parents also believe the more your name is in the newspaper, the better chance the player has at winning a college scholarship.

Fortunately, I don't know of any college coach who is going to mortgage the future of his team based on the volume of press clippings.

It's a fallacy to believe that making All-Observer is going to guarantee you a college scholarship.

In Scerri's early years, the team that stands out is his first, the 1982 state champions who won a perfect 22-0.

The leader of that team was the humble captain Gary Mexicotte, who scored close to 50 goals.

But Mexicotte, who later went on to play at Bowling Green, continually praised his teammates and coach. At times he was almost embarrassed by the all the attention he was drawing.

THE OTHER player that sticks out in my mind is Lars Richters, who was cut out of the same cloth as Mexicotte.

Now a player at Yale University, Richters was mature, a leader and foremost a team player.

Most of Scerri's players over the years were "team players." They wouldn't have won as many titles if they hadn't been unselfish.

But it seems the parents have a hard time being "team players." They can't stop coaching their kids from the stands.

Nov. 16 is the Stevenson Soccer Banquet at Roma Hall, and Scerri will be there even though only a week ago, because he was so disgusted, he was not going to attend.

And like all Stevenson soccer banquets, Scerri will not say much, but the players will be lavished with praise from everyone who surrounds the team.

But if anybody who deserves praise at this particular gathering it's Scerri, the man who put Stevenson soccer on the map.

No, it doesn't have to end this way.

Youths enjoy Jamboree

STATE AND LOCAL OFFICIALS of the Young American Bowling Alliance (YABA) met last weekend at Drakeshire Lanes in Farmington Hills for their Jamboree.

The purpose of the gathering was to review rules and preview the upcoming state tournament.

The Jamboree also included a no-tap tournament for those in attendance.

The sight for the Jamboree is always the same: as the location of the next YABA tournament. The tourney will begin March 25 and run through April 30, 1989.

Last season, the tournament was held in Grand Rapids. About 600 teams, along with some 2,000 doubles and singles competitors entered the tourney.

Last season's event was attended by YABA Field Representative John Meyer. He traveled from the YABA Headquarters in Milwaukee, Wis. to attend the event.

The tournament is divided into various divisions; with four scholarship prizes being awarded. The four categories are: boys and girls, eighth grade and under; boys and girls, ninth grade and up.

The winners will be decided by the most pins over average in each category. Most of the adults involved in the Jamboree are the coaches for the various YABA sanctioned leagues.

There will be a meeting Wednesday at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park to review the YABA Scholarship Tournament.

The local YABA people are doing a great job of organizing these kids and helping them develop into the next crop of league bowlers.

Is A Rose Always A Rose?

Several yesterdays ago it was safe to say "A Rose Is A Rose Is A Rose." Today, we're faced with flowers of different petals.

The rose on the left is indeed a rose. The rose on the right is man made—of silk. See the difference?

You can't always see the difference in kitchens either. That's why you need to invest some time examining Merillat Kitchens in our KSI Showrooms. We will demonstrate how Merillat craftsmanship is more than skin deep—the many innovative features such as the Whisperglide® Roller Drawer System—and best of all how Merillat gives you the custom look without the custom price tag.

Tired of losing

Bogataj believes cagers have right stuff

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Expect a different look from Schoolcraft College's mens basketball team this season.

One telltale sign that things will be different is coach Dave Bogataj's attitude.

"I don't sound like my usual optimistic self, do I?" Bogataj said after describing his '89-90 squad. "I still am, but I'm a little more of a realist after the last two years."

"I do think we'll be a better team than last year."

A coach like Bogataj has needed his optimism the last couple of seasons. He came to SC as a last-minute replacement for Bob Wetzel just before the 1987-88 season. The results were predictable, recruiting problems, academic problems, and an 8-21 record.

Last year, Bogataj was more hopeful. He had been on the job a full year, he had some promising recruits, and although he wasn't predicting a championship, he figured the Ocelots could reach .500.

Then came the end of the first semester in January. Seven players were lost, four to academic deficiencies and three others who just quit. The result: another dismal season and a 6-24 record.

Anyone's optimism would be tempered after two such disappointments. And yet, this year Bogataj has better reason to approach the season with high hopes than any other.

Schoolcraft sports

INDEED, THIS group of Ocelots is better than any since Rocky Watkins left as coach in 1986.

There's experience, with six sophomores returning; there's talent, according to Bogataj ("We're in a position where we're going to play eight or nine kids"); there's size, with four players standing 6-foot-5 or better; and, best of all, there's depth, with 14 names on the roster.

Of course, one pivotal question remains: Are there grades? Can these guys cut it academically?

"We're going to be fine," Bogataj said when asked about the Ocelots' past academic troubles. "We'll be all right."

One reason for his assuredness is SASS — the Student-Athlete Support System, a program designed to make certain athletes are fulfilling their academic requirements. Included is a weekly check; if a player stumbles in the classroom, he can't play until he gets back on track.

"I know it's forced learning," Bogataj said. "But at least we've got them opening their books. Hopefully we won't have the devastation we had last year."

That would be a major victory in itself. And it will result in some on-court victories, as well.

BECAUSE THERE'S another factor to consider as SC opens its '89-90 campaign 5:15 p.m. Wednesday against Siena Heights junior varsity in Adrian: With 14 wins in 59 games over the past two years, the Ocelots should be seeing red every time the ball goes up to start a game.

"I think that ate at the kids," Bogataj said. "People came out and just flat beat us. (The sophomores) have played a lot of basketball this summer. They came in in shape. They were ready."

"But besides working on their own game, they've been taking the freshmen aside and basically telling them, 'We're not going to put up with what happened last year.'"

But can the players he has change that history?

Six who started some time during last season are back (of course, almost everyone got a shot at starting for SC last year).

The biggest is Al Hudson, a 6-foot-7 center who would be better suited to forward. Still, Hudson, from Romulus, averaged 10 points and nine rebounds per game and, Bogataj said, "has really worked at his game."

Ken Fuster, a 6-2 guard from River Rouge, also returns. Fuster averaged 12 ppg last year. Rob Harmon (6-3 from Redford Bishop Borgess), Mike Mercer (5-10 from Southgate Aquinas) and John Moran (6-1 from Allen Park Cabrini) are back, too; each averaged approximately eight points a game last season.

ANOTHER RETURNEE is Ed Hudson, a 6-3 forward from Royal Oak Shrine who was leading the Ocelots in scoring (16 ppg) when he was sidelined by poor grades last January.

Among the newcomers who could crack the starting lineup are Tony Rumble, a 6-0 guard from Wayne Memorial; Jeff Elliott, a 6-3 guard-forward from Plymouth Salem; and Randy Waters, a 6-4 rebounder from Milford-Lakeland.

Sean Hansen, a 6-2 guard from Berkley, is expected to contribute when he recovers from a broken jaw suffered in a batting cage accident in August.

Others Bogataj is counting on are 6-7, 240-pound Butch Layow (Whitmore Lake), who will back up Al Hudson and provide inside defense and muscle; 6-5 forward Dave Hamilton (Taylor Center); 6-5 forward Chris Hebner (Wayne Memorial); and 6-1 guard Tom Progar (Dearborn Divine Child).

"We're deeper on the bench, and a little taller," Bogataj said. "I hope we can finish in the middle of the (Eastern Conference) pack. I'm optimistic we're going to be very competitive."

Which would already be an improvement over the past two seasons.

Lady Ocelots must find point guard

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Don't expect Schoolcraft College's womens basketball team to match last year's start. Coach Jack Grenan would like to, of course. But what he'd rather do is improve the finish.

Grenan has guided the Lady Ocelots to a 32-10 Eastern Conference record in three seasons; twice they've shared the conference crown, including last season with an 11-3 mark.

But it bothered Grenan that his team started out winning its first 18 games, then stumbled, playing .500 ball over the final eight to finish 22-4.

"I thought we might have gotten a little bit tired at the end of last year," said Grenan. Three players were lost to assorted ailments, a key factor in the Lady Ocelots' season-ending slump.

So Grenan cut back on the number of pre-Eastern Conference games, hoping to keep his players fresh — particularly the nine freshmen, who aren't used to playing a 30-game schedule.

DEVELOPING THOSE freshmen will be the No. 1 task for the fourth-year coach. Aiding him in that job will be five returnees, including three starters from last season's squad.

One "big" reason SC can be expected to vie for the conference crown again is 6-foot-2 center Barb Krug, from Plymouth Salem. Krug averaged 15 points and 10 rebounds per game in her freshman season at SC, but it wasn't until the final five games that she came into her own. According to Grenan, she averaged 20 points and 15 boards a game in that stretch.

"She's worked really hard in the off-season," Grenan said of Krug. "The biggest thing about Barb now is she's mean."

Krug's new-found aggressiveness is one reason Grenan anticipates a strong post game from his '89-90 Lady Ocelots, who open their season Tuesday at Cuyahoga Metro CC in Cleveland.

Another is 5-10 power forward Lisa DePlanche, a sophomore from Allen Park Cabrini who averaged 13 points and eight rebounds a game last season. The third returning starter is Tracy Osborne, a 5-7 guard from L'Anse Cruse North who hit 40 percent of her three-point opportunities as a freshman, averaging nine points.

OSBORNE ALSO excels defensively. So does sophomore Ann Hardy, a 5-8 guard-forward from Inkster who filled the sixth-person role last season until a rare problem was discovered — Hardy had three kidneys. She's been cleared to return and is currently battling Osborne for the starting point guard position.

Last season, the point was an SC strength with Denise Wendt and Denise Bazner. Both are gone, which leaves a big hole in the lineup.

"I've got six preseason games to figure it out," said Grenan. "I've got to find two or three, not just one. Point guard is a tough position, No. 1 because I expect them to be the coach on the floor, and No. 2 because I expect them to take charge."

So far, none of his incoming freshmen has exhibited those traits. Developing those areas ranks high on Grenan's list of priorities for the "preseason," or preconference season.

One player Grenan is looking forward to having back is Denise Kokowicz, who played for SC in 1987-88. A 5-10 forward from Garden City, Kokowicz averaged 11 points and seven rebounds a game that season, but sat out last year with academic problems.

"SHE BRINGS back maturity," said Grenan of Kokowicz. "She has an excellent outside shot. I'm looking for double-figures from her in both (scoring and rebounding)."

At least four of his five sophomores will start. The fifth position is wide open, depending on whether Hardy returns to her sixth-person role and which freshman steps forward.

Allish Winters is a 6-1 center from Dearborn Heights Crestwood who should be more than adequate as a back-up to Krug; Carlatta Dancy is a 5-6 guard from Wayne Memorial with excellent quickness; Laurel Haener is a 5-8 forward from New Boston Huron who possesses solid fundamentals; and Teresa Farkas is a 5-9 point guard from Melvindale who's been hampered by a bad knee.

Several others will contribute for SC. Mo Merritt is a 5-9 forward who played center at Dearborn St. Alphonsus and must make the adjustment to a new position; Michelle Neff is a 5-6 guard who last played for Livonia Stevenson several years ago; and Kristen Kindred is a 5-10 forward from Dearborn Fairlane Christian.

TWO OTHERS, Bev DeJohn and 6-1 Tricia Lucas, will join the team after their current seasons end. DeJohn is playing for the SC soccer team, and Lucas is on the volleyball squad.

With much still in doubt — Grenan admits he's wrestling with "a dilemma, either to go inside or to use everybody and run up and down the court," — don't expect an 18-0 start. "This team is about a month behind last year's in practice (and development)," he said.

So Grenan won't be counting victories as measures of success. He knows there'll be mistakes, particularly as he tries to get the freshmen the playing time they need.

OU boots CMU, 3-0

Alan Stewart plagued Central Michigan University throughout Wednesday's soccer match at Oakland University, setting up all three Pioneer goals in their 3-0 triumph.

The victory was the third straight shutout for OU and the fifth of the season for keeper Ralph Torre, who made five saves. Torre has also split time in the nets with back-up Vince Alliberti in two more Pioneer shutouts.

Erik Enyedy, the junior midfielder from Southfield, opened the scoring at 10:03 with his first goal of the season, Paul Phillips and Stewart assisting. Senior forward Earl Parris made it 2-0 at 28:03, assisted by Dan Weinerth (from Rochester Adams) and Stewart.

The final goal was scored by freshman midfielder Derek Williford (Livonia Stevenson) at 58:49, with assists going to Stewart and Parris.

The Pioneers outshot CMU 17-7 and forced Chippewa keeper Mike Turko, a senior from Birmingham Brother Rice, to make seven saves.

The win improved OU's record to 12-4-2; the Pioneers are currently ranked 10th in the NCAA Division II. CMU fell to 11-8-2.

OU was awaiting word on its first-round NCAA II playoff match. Opponent and site were announced late Sunday.

OU VOLLEYBALL: The soccer team may not be the only Pioneer team to extend its season. OU's spikers whipped Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference rival Hillsdale College in three straight games, 15-10, 15-5, 15-12, Tuesday at Hillsdale.

The win was the Pioneers' ninth in a row and 20th of the season, improving them to 20-5 overall and 9-2 in the GLIAC. Hillsdale is 11-19 overall, 2-13 in the conference.

Birmingham is man prowling the paths of black leopards

THERE IS NO camouflage jeep sitting in the driveway and no hi-tech, ultra violet tracking devices stashed in the corner of the basement. But inside the home in this affluent Birmingham neighborhood lurks a man on the prowl.

John Castle is that man. And he's stalking Michigan's phantom feline: the black leopard.

To some, Castle is little more than a ghost buster. Many people are convinced the reports of sightings of a large panther-like cat are merely from confused individuals who have seen either a black Labrador, a coyote, a feral house cat or a fisher. They remain convinced, in their own minds, that there is no large-cat population in Michigan.

But to hundreds of other reputable people who claim to have seen a large, black, panther-like cat, Castle is their only link to the bottom of this unsolved mystery.

"I've seen enough reports that I'm convinced we have a small population of breeding black leopards in Michigan," Castle said.

IF ANYONE has an inside track on the existence of a black leopard population in Michigan, Castle does. He has been studying and following up on the reported sightings for 36 years. Since 1980, Castle has been stalking the cats full-time and has traveled thousands of miles and spent thousands of hours investigating the reports.

Castle received his first report of a panther sighting in 1953 while serving as the city editor of the Pontiac Press (now the Oakland Press).

Although intrigued by the idea, Castle decided the sighting was probably that of a cougar under poor lighting conditions. He assumed the cat was probably an escaped pet.

More recently however, there have been a rash of sightings, centered around a number of reports from Michigan's southern Lower Peninsula, which began in 1984.

At that time, Castle had recently retired from an executive speech-writing position at General Motors and had the time to spend to seriously investigate the reports.

"In the early '80s I got the drive to get to the bottom of this mystery," said Castle. "I was a newspaperman, so naturally I was skeptical. But the more I've gotten into it, the less skeptical I've become."

Bill Parker outdoors

ALTHOUGH NO panther, leopard or cougar has yet been caught, killed or otherwise positively identified in Michigan, Castle has gathered enough physical evidence to raise the eyebrows of even the most ardent skeptic.

Castle follows up on most sightings reports. He discards many, however, such as sound reports and night sightings. He is also very skeptical of reports after an initial report. "Initial reports tend to develop hysteria," he cautioned.

Despite the discarded reports, Castle has files and files of reputable reports, including some which even leave the skeptics with unanswered questions.

Pat Folaron of Clio saw a panther-like cat on her property 15 different times from 1985-1987. During that time the remains of a neighbor's pet dog were found wedged in the crotch of a nearby tree. At one point, Folaron snapped a picture of the creature. Although the photograph was a little blurry, David Tetzlaff, leopard trainer at Cedar Point Amusement Park, identified the animal as a black leopard.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Agent Don Burger and a police officer friend spooked a large cat-like creature which was lying on a moonlit trail in Manchester. Burger returned later with a 30.06 and a scope, hoping the cat would return. It did, but Burger couldn't get a clear shot. "I could see it clear as day in my scope. It was a black leopard, probably weighing 70 to 75 pounds," Burger told Castle.

In July 1986, Silvio Fini, a Milford farmer whose land borders Kensington Metropark, found one of his saddle horses dead in one of his fields. The neck of the horse had been ripped open. Following a blood trail, Fini said he jumped a "huge black cat" and took a shot at it. Later that night a Milford police officer fired two shots at a similar looking creature.

These reports don't prove anything. But they don't disprove anything either.

CASTLE ALSO has dozens of plaster casts of footprints left in the area of panther sightings. Some casts leave unanswered questions as to what type of creature actually left the print, but other tracks were undoubtedly left by a large member of the feline family.

Although Castle has concentrated his efforts in Michigan, he has ventured throughout the nation in his pursuit. He has polled every regional wildlife office in the United States and Canada.

"My survey did yield an eye-opening statistic," Castle said. "Twenty-nine states and five Canadian provinces have received black panther reports in the past 10 years. Sightings number in the thousands. Where there are that many tales, there must be panthers."

CASTLE'S BIGGEST problem is authenticating the existence of these cats.

"If people see something, they know what they see so they aren't concerned with finding the fresh tracks and making a mold or getting a good picture," said Castle. "People have to understand that if they see something, they must find the trail immediately. They can't wait until tomorrow or all kinds of animals can come through the area and they may never find the correct set of tracks."

Even with tracks and pictures, many people will doubt the existence of black leopards in Michigan.

"The best way to authenticate their existence is to put one up a tree, tranquilize it and cage it," Castle said. "Or if one was killed, either by a hunter or a car, but I don't advocate that and I would hate to see it."

For now, Castle will continue his hunt with hopes of someday hitting the jackpot. But he knows the mystery could go on for years. "They have been called the feline flying saucers," admitted Castle. "But I've got so many credible reports, I just can't ignore it."

Castle can be reached at 646-0233 or by writing to him at 1909 Latham, Birmingham, 48009.

(Bill Parker is happy to answer questions readers may have regarding the outdoors. Hunters are also urged to report their success. Send your question or comments to: Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009.)

Patriots advance in playoff; Cougars close in on co-title

Senior forward Cheryl Hintz tallied a game-high 16 points to lead Livonia Franklin to a 41-35 triumph Thursday over visiting Livonia Stevenson in the first round of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Franklin took a 19-17 lead into halftime, but managed to outscore Stevenson 12-6 in the third quarter to pull away and record the victory.

Sophomore guard Dawn Warner complemented Hintz with 10 points and eight steals for the Patriots.

Forward Teresa Sarno scored 10 points for Stevenson in the losing cause.

"We didn't play as well as we could have," Franklin coach Dan Freeman said. "We were disciplined, but not at the top of our game."

The Patriot overall record improves to 15-2, while the Spartans drop to 9-9.

CANTON 64, JOHN GLENN 50: Plymouth Canton had an easy time handling Westland John Glenn Thursday in its own back yard.

The Chiefs were led by Susan Ferko's 28 points. Stacey Thompson added 12 and Jenny Russell 10 for Canton (15-3).

Cathy Mruk poured in 13 points for the Rockets, while Carrie Rachwal added 12.

John Glenn (6-12) managed to convert on 14 of 21 free throws. The Chiefs were successful on five of seven.

"The kids did a nice job of getting the ball to Ferko tonight," said Canton coach Bob Blohm, whose team advances to the WLAA semifinals. "This is a big win."

SALEM 37, NORTHVILLE 21: Emily Giuliani and Sarah Ruete each netted 11 points for Plymouth Salem, as they defeated Northville on the road Thursday in a WLAA quarterfinal.

The Rocks (11-7) decided the Mustangs' fate in the opening half by building up a 18-7 lead.

Katie Houstain led Northville with 10 points.

"I am very pleased with our team and how we got things done tonight," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "We did a great job of taking away their scoring areas in the first quarter."

CHURCHILL 42, W.L. CENTRAL 33: Livonia Churchill, thanks to Chrissy Daly's 14 points, managed to put together a victory Thursday over visiting Walled Lake Central.

Junior forward Fran Priebe poured in 10 and Christina Gary eight for the Chargers (4-14).

girls basketball

Senior guard Karyn Koslowski boasted a game-high 16 points for the Vikings (4-14).

GARDEN CITY 43, REDFORD UNION 34: Senior guard Lynn Gowen pumped in 16 points and added six steals last Thursday, leading the host Cougars (11-7, 6-1) to the Northwest Suburban League triumph over the Panthers (6-11, 1-6).

"We were a little flat tonight," GC coach Marshall Henry said. "But Gowen's been a consistent player for us all year."

Junior forward Krystal Matesic added 10 points and 17 rebounds for the winners, who can clinch a share of the NSL title with a win this Thursday at Dearborn.

Sophomore guard Shannon Morris paced RU with a game-high 17 points.

WAYNE 45, BELLEVILLE 37: Senior center Dorris Bathwell was tough to stop inside Thursday, scoring 21 points and adding 23 rebounds in the Zebras' Wolverine A League win against the host Tigers.

Wayne is now 11-6 overall and 9-3 in the league.

Wayne Lewis, a senior guard, chipped in with 16 points.

Jennifer Chapla paced Belleville with 13.

HAMTRAMCK 34, CLARENCEVILLE 28: Danielle Rose's 12 points weren't enough Thursday, as host Livonia Clarenceville fell to the Cosmos in a Metro Conference encounter.

Kim Ryans and Regan Cochran tallied 16 and 10, respectively, for the victors.

LUTH. WESTLAND 74, GREENHILLS 48: Steph Locke poured in a career-high and school-record 36 points Thursday, leading Lutheran Westland to a romp over host Ann Arbor Greenhills.

The Warriors (11-5) jumped out to a 24-2 first-quarter advantage and never looked back.

Junior guard Stephanie Otto contributed 10 points.

Standish Steward paced the Griffins with 20 points.

Martin, Orris lift Spartan Aquatic

The Livonia-Novi Spartan Aquatic Club hosted an A-B age group meet this past weekend and finished high among the 28 teams entered.

Matt Martin and Ron Orris won honors in the 13-14 and open categories, respectively.

Martin captured the 100-yard backstroke, the 200 backstroke and the 200 freestyle. Additionally, he placed second in the 100 and 1,000 freestyles, the 200 butterfly and the 400 individual medley, finished third in the 200 breaststroke and placed fifth in the 100 breaststroke.

Orris, a Plymouth Salem High senior who was recently selected to represent the United States in Paris and East Berlin in February 1990 as a member of the Junior National Team, won all nine events he entered during the meet.

Orris won in the 50, 500 and 1,000 freestyles, the 100 and 200 backstrokes, the 100 and 200 breaststrokes, the 100 butterfly and the 200 individual medley.

Songmen: Glasnost continues

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

The glasnost begun by Mikhail Gorbachev goes on. The Moscow Circus is coming to town and so is the latest musical glasnost entry, The Songmen.

Soviet singers Thomas and Tarmo, better known as The Songmen, have only been in the United States for five months, but already they are beginning to re-interpret the usual role of a performer.

Whereas most American rockers are aiming for a record deal and arena-sized gigs, The Songmen are interested in neither.

The Songmen are more at home in a small setting. In fact, they will make their Midwestern debut with a pair of performances 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 6-7, at the home of Kathy Korpi in West Bloomfield.

Much to the chagrin of their manager, The Songmen seem to feel that getting a record deal is low-priority and are taking their time making a demo.

And, as far as arena-sized gigs, well, that would distract from their original purpose — to teach and heal through their music. Thomas and Tarmo feel that this can best be achieved through small, intimate performances.

"Americans are only taught to have fun," said Tarmo in a telephone interview at the New York home of Muppets creator Jim Henson. "They also need to learn the essence of the music, to go into the back yard of a song."

"IN HOUSES, we play to smaller group so there is more concentration. They experience something more than pay me, then go home."

For the Songmen, performing in America is a continuation of 20 years of performing together as troubadours.

"Being Songmen means singing is not a business, but a way of life," said Tarmo.

The Songmen say that, like nightingales, they sing because they must sing.

"If there are wars, if there are different political situations," Tarmo said, "the nightingale sings — a nightingale sings all of its life. If it ceases to sing, it ceases to exist."

"There are many songs that are physically healing people from disease. Every song has a magic, its own vibration. If you are part of it, this already is a blessing."

For many years, Thomas and Tarmo lived in Estonia under the oppression of a totalitarian regime, continuing to create their songs. They are extremely well-known in Estonia, Finland, Lithuania and Sweden.

The name, Songmen, was given to them by the newspapers and audiences of those countries. Songmen were the singing medicine men of the deep past. They are heroes in Scandinavian mythology.

In 1979, Tarmo married an Italian. That began a nightmare that would eventually lead Tarmo and Thomas defecting in October of last year.

IN 1979, marrying a foreigner was considered an ideological crime. It placed Tarmo on the KGB blacklist and led to many years in and out of jails and mental asylums.

The Songmen would perform together whenever Tarmo was released from jail. Their music began to be considered "dangerous" by the authorities. Although their songs are politically subtle to Americans, they were growing threat to the Soviets because they demonstrated a belief in God and freedom.

"In a country of darkness," Tarmo said, "even a firefly can be dangerous, because it makes people see that light exists."

When perestroika began, Thomas and his friends wrote to Gorbachev about Tarmo. Many officials were afraid of perestroika and the ramifications on their own lives, they said.

The reply came back from the Kremlin, "Resolve this immediately."

Tarmo was released in April of 1987, after eight years in and out of every possible jail and mental asylum. The nightmare ended, but there was always the possibility that he would be taken again.

The release of Tarmo made it possible for The Songmen to perform full time again. They sang all over Estonia — small concerts, large concerts, cathedrals, open fields.

FOR THE PAST few months, The Songmen have been on an unusual concert tour. Instead of taking the usual route of playing in small, beer-soaked clubs to indifferent strangers, Thomas and Tarmo have been playing at small gatherings in private homes across the country. For such newcomers, the list of homes they play at is impressive, including the home of Arlo Guthrie.

So far, Tarmo finds America a pretty agreeable place except for one thing.

"I like America very much," he said. "It is a very beautiful place. The only thing that has damaged Americans is niceness. I think the word 'niceness' connects with 'to lie.'"

"Many people feel I am rude because I tell the truth and they do not want to hear the truth."

For information call 334-0808 or 335-0433.

Thomas and Tarmo, or The Songmen, are the latest bit of the musicians are beginning to reinterpret the usual role of a glasnost to invade the United States from the Soviet Union. And performer.

"Hey, how come I never get to run the baloney slicer?"

When in need, call an 'angel'

By Carolyn DeMarco
staff writer

Wanted: licensed pilots to donate time, airplane, fuel, telephone and other incidentals to fly people in need of non-emergency medical help and to transport organs and rare blood types for transfer. No remuneration except for the sincere thanks of grateful passengers. Call 878-2148.

Think it's just pie in the sky, that only an angel would apply?

No and yes. The service does exist, and angels are part of it. It's Angel Flight, officially known as the American Medical Support Flight Team of Southeast Michigan.

But these angels live on earth. They include two dozen area private pilots with job titles as varied as microbiologist, pipefitter, certified public accountant and physician.

They volunteer their time to take cancer patients for out-of-state treatment, to deliver eyes from, recently dead bodies to give sight to blind people, to transport medical equipment and personnel, and for other missions of mercy. And they get no reward except for the feeling that they've helped.

"IT'S AMAZING how few people know of us," said Jim Quinn, Angel Flight's coordinator, "although we've approached a number of area hospitals, offering our help.

No one believes you get something for nothing."

Quinn, a Troy resident who works as a design engineer for General Motors, began the local chapter of Angel Flight three years ago. As a member of a flying club he was looking for a way to keep up his cross country trips. He contacted the national club and found there was no medical support flight team in Michigan.

He began his own unit by recruiting members of the flying club.

The group is no frills, non-structured. Members pay $35 per year and get together infrequently.

"PEOPLE JUST don't have time for meetings," Quinn said. Their only reason for being is to give their services to those who need them when called upon.

Organization members stand ready to help anyone in need at no cost to the individual or medical organization. Angel Flight is not an air ambulance for emergency runs, Quinn stressed. Passengers are those who for financial or comfort reasons are unable to fly on commercial flights. Passengers must be ambulatory and cannot be so ill that they need medical care while in the air.

Angel Flight does not supply medical care but does allow passengers to bring their own oxygen, usually a prohibition on commercial flights.

MOVING PICTURES

Woody Allen and Mia Farrow star in a scene from Allen's film, "Crimes and Misdemeanors."

'Crimes, Misdemeanors:' Woody Allen at his best

"Crimes and Misdemeanors" (A+, PG-13, 100 minutes) is one of the decade's better films because at one and the same time it is an entertaining, romantic comedy and a profound statement about moral choices and ethical behavior.

That's a pretty tall order, but Woody Allen fills it, because you can take the ethical debate or leave it. Whatever you choose, the film is still a very entertaining, romantic comedy — Woody Allen at his best — and he never mentions his mother.

Cliff Stern (Allen) is an obscure documentary filmmaker, working on a documentary about Professor Louis Levy (Martin Bergmann), an Auschwitz survivor modeled after Primo Levi. Cliff's marriage is crumbling, apparently because his wife, Wendy (Joanna Gleason), is unhappy with Cliff's failure and with his cynical view of materialistic success.

Wendy's brother Lester (Alan Alda) is the antithesis of Cliff — and the butt of a good many, very funny and very typical Woody Allen one liners. "Crimes and Misdemeanors" is enriched throughout by the wry, ironic vision associated with Allen's humorous self-deprecation. Lester is a lecherous but extremely successful television producer.

There's another brother, Ben (Sam Waterston), a rabbi who is going blind. Ben's ophthalmologist, Dr. Judah Rosenthal (Martin Landau), is an incredibly successful medical practitioner, businessman and philanthropist. His trappings of success include a marvelous country home, a lovely wife, Miriam (Claire Bloom), a daughter, Sharon (Stephanie Roth), and a neurotic girlfriend, Delores Paley (Anjelica Huston). Judah also has a brother on the fringes, Jack (Jerry Orbach).

CLIFF IS TRYING to educate his niece Jenny (Jenny Nichols) in the ways of the world, as he promised her father before the father died. This education involves a lot of old movies. Cliff also spends a lot of time at the movies with a TV producer, Halley Reed (Mia Farrow). They met while Cliff was directing a documentary about Lester for public television.

Got all that? Sounds pretty complicated, doesn't it? But it plays better than it reads because of the skill and clarity with which Allen tells this complicated story about a lot of very interesting characters.

This accomplished cast, both stars and supporting members, are excellent, as is Sven Nykvist's photography — lots of warm colors and an integration of the eye/camera imagery. But clearly Woody Allen's talented writing and directing make a difference. The naturalism of every aspect of the film is its great strength. There are never any real, significant moral dilemmas.

As Professor Levy says in one of the segments in Cliff Stern's documentary: "We give meaning to the universe by the choices we make. We define ourselves by the choices we make."

Woody Allen has given meaning to a particular corner of the universe by creating a very fine film, one which discusses at any price, giving, taking, complaining. It is to his credit that he presents people we can care about as examples of the choices we must make.

"Dealers" (R) features Rebecca DeMornay as a brilliant securities trader at London's Whitney Paine Bank. There are big losses and major gains while everyone's love life is at stake.

week without benefit of screenings, so viewers are on their own. Martial arts movie fans may be interested in "Bloodfist" (R), starring Don "The Dragon" Wilson and others. (Who ya kidding?)

"After Midnight" (R) is about a woman taking a college course in the psychology of fear.

"Second Sight" (PG) is a comedy about two detectives, one of whom has psychic powers. The Cardinal of Boston and his secretary have been kidnapped and need rescuing.

While we're on the comedy kick, "Erik the Viking" (PG-13, 104 minutes) is a Monty Python style story of ancient rape and pillage with an all-star cast featuring two Python people, John Cleese and Terry Jones (director of "Life of Brian"). Jones wrote and directed this epic, whose cast includes Mickey Rooney and Eartha Kitt.

Besides the re-appearance of Eartha Kitt ("see Video Viewing") Menahem Golan has risen from the ashes of Cannon Films with the 21st Century Film Corporation's production of "Phantom of the Opera" (R). This version stars Robert Englund, best known as Freddy Krueger in the "Nightmare on Elm Street" films.

STILL PLAYING:

"Animal Behavior" (PG). Romantic comedy about conflict between career and romance starring Karen Allen, Armand Assante, Holly Hunter and Josh Mostel.

"Batman" (C+, (PG-13) 120 minutes.

Michael Keaton is a dud in the title role but Jack Nicholson's Joker is terrific.

"The Bear" (D-) (R) 120 minutes. Excellent nature photography but film often lags continually and gets pretty sappy at times.

"Black Rain" (D-) (R) 120 minutes. Unpleasant, trite detective story stars Michael Douglas.

"Breaking In" (R). Burt Reynolds is an older, "professional" burglar teaming up with larcenous newcomer Casey Siemaszko.

"Dad" (B) (PG) 119 minutes. Excellent acting by Jack Lemmon, Ted Danson, Zakes Mokae and Olympia Dukakis marred by cliches. "A Dry White Season" (A+) (R) 100 minutes.

The worst of South African apartheid and the best of human sacrifice for brotherhood in this excellent story of one man coming to grips with government terror.

"The Fabulous Baker Boys" (R). Two brothers — Jeff and Beau Bridges — add Michelle Pfeiffer to their cocktail lounge piano playing act.

"Fat Man and Little Boy" (A-) (PG-13) 120 minutes.

Well-crafted, superbly acted film about the Manhattan Project during World War II.

"Gross Anatomy" (C-) (PG-13) 105 minutes.

Bland, slow, weakly structured romantic comedy about five, first-year med students.

"Halloween 5." Donald Pleasence and others in more of the same.

"Honey, I Shrank the Kids" (B+) (PG) 105 minutes.

It's fun, but it ain't easy to be small.

"Immediate Family" (B+) (PG-13) 95 minutes.

Childless couple adopting baby from young mother and her boyfriend who love, but cannot afford, the baby.

"An Innocent Man" (B-) (R) 90 minutes.

Tom Selleck is unjustly imprisoned and must come to grips with the vicious penitentiary world.

"Lethal Weapon II" (B+) (R) 115 minutes.

Glover and Gibson do it again in high, albeit violent, style.

"Look Who's Talking" (C+) (PG-13) 97 minutes.

Contrived, poorly structured story of pregnant CPA (Kirstie Alley) and her search for a perfect father for her baby. Bruce Willis is the baby's voice.

"Sea of Love" (C) (R) 110 minutes.

Al Pacino as a burned-out detective adds nothing to the cliché nor does a very weak script.

VIDEO VIEWING

If you're in the mood for some very funny, pointed French satire, look for Claude Zidi's "My New Partner" (1985, color, 104 minutes, R) in video cassette Nov. 8.

"My New Partner" garnered Cesar (the French equivalent of Oscar) awards for best picture, director and editing. Media Home Entertainment's video cassette has excellent yellow subtitles with black outlines that are easy to read, if you don't mind occasional misspellings and a lot of confusion in translating French-francs into American dollars.

The money is important since "My New Partner" is about a corrupt cop, Rene Bolsmond (Phillipe Noiret), who arrests his own partner, Pierrot, when they get caught robbing a pimp. Shaking down everyone they can — when they're not skimming and scamming — is their way of life.

The very French tone is set right at this opening moment as Rene entrants Pierrot, "Let me arrest you, no sense both of us getting caught." Pierrot wants to know why Rene should get off by arresting Pierrot. "Because," Rene responds, "I thought of it."

MT screens 'Dybbuk'

By John Monaghan special writer

In Jewish folklore, dybbuk means ghost — the tormented soul of a person who died before his or her time.

A 1937 Polish film about hassidic apirlits makes its own haunting return to Ann Arbor's Michigan Theater next weekend in a newly restored print.

"The Dybbuk" first surfaced as a play, written by S. Ansky based on 1912-1917 and based on folk tales he collected during travels throughout small villages in Eastern Europe. It has since become the most widely produced play in Jewish theater.

Michael Waszynski worked with F.W. Murnau and Stanislavski and directed some 25 other films before tackling "The Dybbuk" in 1937. This accounts for both the German Expressionist imagery and understated performances from his talented troupe of actors.

This dybbuk is a young student, Khonnon (Leon Liebgold), scorned by love. He asks for the hand of the beautiful Leah (Lilli Lilliana), betrothed to him at birth. Leah's father, forgetting the promise he made to Khonnon's father, insists that she marry a wealthy man instead.

KHONNON turns to mystic rituals and Satan worship to change his fate, only to die in the process.

The film links the everyday spiritual and even supernatural aspects of Jewish life. Leah visits the graveyard to ask her dead mother to attend her wedding. She even invites Khonnon.

He shows up — his spirit anyway — and magically enters her body. In one of the film's more bizarre sequences, astonished wedding guests look on as Leah dances in a trance-like state with a spectral hooded figure.

The supernatural aspects are occasionally handled with camera tricks like the mysterious Messenger who appears out of nowhere to remark on the actions occurring on the screen. Leah's transformation, however, is depicted by a subtle drop in her voice.

The film also features popular Yiddish actor Max Bozyk as the comic servant Note. His widow, Reizl, played Army Irving's grandmother in "Crossing Delancey."

A European hit upon release, "The Dybbuk" screened in New York and toured metropolitan American cities in 1938. A year later, with Poland ravaged by World War II, original negatives of the film were destroyed. The film has been available since, but only in incomplete and badly washed out prints.

The restored print, funded by the National Center for Jewish Film, arrives after five years of painstaking detective work. It's comprised of five different prints from the United States, Australia, Canada and England. Each provided important footage, including the rare exorcism scene that caps the film.

Those who have seen the 123-minute version during recent runs in New York and Boston call it the most artistic and gripping of early Yiddish films.

Astonished wedding guests look on as Leah dances in a trance-like state with a spectral hooded figure in "The Dybbuk."

temporary problems in municipal administration.

RENE REALIZES he must do something to corrupt Francols so he can get along with his business — shaking down the neighborhood and playing the horses.

His girlfriend, Simone (Grace de Capitani), a retired hooker who is constantly enlightened about men, if not about horses, sets up Francols with a lady of the night, Natasha (Regine). The concept here is that Natasha will corrupt Francols, who will then stop hampering Rene's scams.

The plot works, even better than Simone or Rene expected, but in several different ways. The Gallic flavor is there in full force. "My New Partner" is a well-told tale guaranteed to delight all.

HAVE YOU ever wondered what's behind the aisles and aisles of lurid, suggestive video cassette covers? Have you ever leafed through a 30-page Cannon Film advertisement in Variety and imagined the sensational experience of the heroes and heroines of those impossible film worlds?

From the highest ecstasy to the grim and grisly ancient dungeons, it's all there — at least in the advertisements. Although Golan and Globus' Cannon Films has gone down the financial tubes, Menahem Golan has resurfaced as the 21st Century Film Corporation (see "The Movies" review of "Phantom of the Opera").

Whether Cannon or 21st Century, none of the exaggerated, tantalizing promises are missing from the ad copy. It's just that anticipation is far greater than realization.

"Master of Dragonard Hill" (Color, 1981, R, 92 minutes) — left over from Cannon Films — is advertised as containing "the savage passions of a land enslaved." It turns out to contain the rather trite adolescent fantasies of inept scriptwriters, the usual big-budget B-movie.

This time it's the story of 18th century St. Joseph's Island in the Caribbean, complete with obligatory pirates, rape, miscegenation, torture, frontal nudity, graphic sexuality and the old-god-guys-storming-the-castle routine.

What is surprising is that it stars Oliver Reed ("Oliver") "The Three Musketeers") as the evil Captain Shanks, noted songstress Eartha Kitt as the mistress of the local bordello.

Peter Murphy: Communicating

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The man whose music has been something of hieroglyphics in the past has decided to communicate in exquisite handwriting this time.

For Peter Murphy, that's almost akin to printing in block letters. Chances are, though, Peter Murphy fans will not complain when they get a listen to his new album, "Deep," due out in January on RCA/Beggars' Banquet.

A 12-inch single, "The Line Between the Devil's Teeth," has already been released off the LP.

One of the creative forces behind one of post-punk's most influential groups, Bauhaus, has made an album that is something of a crystallization of thoughts previously hid behind dark, swirling images.

The lines of Peter Murphy are somewhat easier to see — even for Peter Murphy.

"It wasn't consciously like that," said Murphy in a telephone interview from New York, "but it turned out that way, didn't it?"

More than that, "Deep" signals an artist who is in command of his craft. His Bauhaus days are behind him as Murphy's solo work increasingly becomes his calling card.

With each album, Murphy said he discovers more about himself. As a result, he's found some of the most intimate feelings are best said. Such is the case with "Marlene Dietrich Favorite Poem," a cut off his latest album.

"I was watching a TV documentary where Marlene Dietrich was being interviewed," Murphy said. "She wasn't being filmed because she wouldn't allow it. She was talking about what it is like to be a star and all."

"Then she started talking about her feelings on death. She really started talking from her heart. It was magical. I thought it was an interesting and wonderful moment. I thought I'd write specifically about that."

SUCH SOURCES of musical inspiration should be of no surprise. After all, this is someone who lists such influences as Doris Day and the incandescent lullabies his mother used to sing to him.

Murphy's story hasn't been so much who influenced him, but rather who he has influenced. Bauhaus defined a genre of music with its overpowering and visionary performances in the late '70s and early '80s.

The group disbanded in 1983, part of the remains became Love & Rockets. Yet in its wake, several bands were spawned in the goth-rock tradition — Jesus and Mary Chain and Sisters of Mercy. Some were good, but more than a handful have been rather lame.

"I guess it's someone recognizing a good thing visually and dressing up in black, wearing make-up and using floodlights," Murphy said. "That is about as far as it goes. Then it comes down to their talent. No one can be Bauhaus. No one can be Led Zeppelin, but 1,001 rock acts are trying to be Led Zeppelin."

Murphy gets a little testy when the list of Bauhaus questions exceeds one. ("Is this a Bauhaus interview?," he asked. "If not, let's get our priorities straight here.") Perhaps that is understandable since Bauhaus tended to stir in brooding disillusionment.

MURPHY'S FIRST two solo endeavors were marked by introspective intensity. "Love Hysteria" was his last LP in 1988 and was well-received by critics.

Obviously, Murphy hopes to capitalize on the follow-up. He's already preparing for a tour that will start in February. His live performances have often been marked by theatrical displays with Murphy lurking about in and out of the shadows he creates musically.

Murphy is also busy writing new material. He plans to play the stuff from scratch and see what develops. That technique worked on the "The Line Between the Devil's Teeth," which is on "Deep."

He wrote the number alone and then went into the studio with his band, Hundred Men.

"I wanted the band to perform much of these songs live-ish, getting energy from individuals in the studio," Murphy said. "Once the band was set up, I took them through these chords and directed them, almost like a Bauhaus song."

With each album, Peter Murphy discovers more about himself in his post-Bauhaus life.

LIVE

BOB DYLAN — Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor

Bob Dylan took the stage at Hill Auditorium a little after 9 p.m. Wednesday.

At 10:20 p.m., he spoke his first words to the audience — "Thank you" — and left the stage, closing his regular set.

Some misguided fans nearby insisted upon shouting, "Talk to us, Bob" throughout the show. He was talking, guys. You weren't listening.

Dylan spoke to the lively crowd of nearly 4,000 in ways that no one else can, simply through the power of his words and music.

He relied only upon his soul-searching lyrics, sung with confidence and clarity. As opposed to stadium or outdoor pavilion shows, fans were close enough in this venue to hear Dylan's lyrics, to watch his steady rhythm guitar hand, to study the lines on his face.

The 90-minute, 17-song set spanned Dylan's nearly 30-year career, including five cuts from his latest release, "Oh Mercy," and going back as far as his 1962 tribute to Woody Guthrie, "Song to Woody." Dylan opened the show with two electrified numbers from his 1962 folk masterpiece "The Freewheelin' Bob Dylan," — "Don't Think Twice, It's All Right" and "Masters of War."

He had much of the Hill crowd on its feet by the third song, "Positively 4th Street," snarling with as much venom as ever, "I know you're dissatisfied with your position and your place/Don't you understand it's not my problem?"

Dylan and guitarist G.E. Smith of "Saturday Night Live" teamed for a few acoustic numbers, including a chilling "It's All Right Ma, (I'm Only Bleeding)" and the mystical "Visions of Johanna."

Dylan's songwriting prowess is well-noted, but his guitar work was shocking. Playing as if he'd been watching nothing but Eric Clapton videotape for six months, Dylan tore through some fine guitar interplay with Smith. Their crisp arrangements ranged from boppin' blues on

"I'll Be Your Baby Tonight" to straight ahead rock on "All Along the Watchtower" and "Highway 61 Revisited," which featured Smith on a searing slide guitar.

On the harmonica, Dylan was typically strong, and he was also impressive on the piano on "Disease of Conceit," standing up and banging the ivories not unlike the Killer himself.

The autumn evening in Ann Arbor, which began with an erratic set from Tennessee's country rockers Jason and the Scorchers, ended with artist/audience dialogue. (See, guys, he did talk.) Dylan repeatedly wailed the question — How does it feel? And the audience echoed the appropriate response — Pretty damn good, Bob.

REVIEWS

THE BEST OF DARK HORSE (1976-89)

— George Harrison

On one of his 1970s albums, George Harrison introduced himself as "Ohnothmagin'" in joking reference to the critical and commercial drubbing his work was receiving at the time.

Riding high after the twin triumphs of "Cloud Nine," his 1987 solo smash, as well as his part in the Traveling Willbury collaboration, Harrison is a lot more welcome now.

Although it's no replacement for an album of all-new material, this greatest hits set (Warner) shows that at least some of Harrison's late '70s-early '80s recordings have aged well and may, in fact, have been better than we all believed at the time.

Particular standouts are three songs drawn from his self-titled, though ignored, 1979 album. "Blow Away," its hit, "Love Comes to Everyone" and "Here Comes the Moon" (that's right) show a gentle pop touch not often associated with Harrison. The latter song sounds especially fine on CD.

"I Got My Mind Set On You," a No. 1 hit from last year, as well as the witty, very Beatlesque "When

MONSTERS — Fetchin' Bones

Fetchin' Bones is a southern band (North Carolina) that can more than hold its own in any music circle, be it the trendy college/alternative scene or Fred's Bowling Center Pub.

Simply stated, this band can rock. (People can find out for themselves as the band performs Wednesday, Nov. 8, at the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor.)

Except rock here is not uttered in the banal argot of the headbanger crowd. This has bite. This has verve.

Granted, Fetchin' Bones can go overboard on occasion, namely the opening three cuts on "Monsters" (Capitol). But the group more than makes up for it with some funk-twined rock and roll.

Hope Nicholls is the lead vocalist for Fetchin' Bones. Her voice is raw and impassioned. At times, her fury strikes memories of Janis Joplin.

Some of her songs are filled with references to "I, my and I'm." That does become annoying at times.

Her saving grace is when she comes to terms about what exactly she wants from life. "Deep Blue" is this album's best song for that reason. Instead of hammering it home, Nicholls and her fellow Bones slow things up. As a result, her voice becomes more mellow and focused.

Then the rest of the hard-edged songs become more palatable, if not downright enjoyable. Some stand out on their energy alone, most notably "I Dig You" and "You're So Much Bonework."

The Errol Stewart-Aaron Pitkin guitar combo burns throughout the LP. Along with Damima Festos on bass and violin, they lay down the perfect funk-rock lines in which Nicholls can work.

This LP may have some warts, but Fetchin' Bones' better days certainly are ahead.

— Larry O'Connor

Other songs show Harrison's less-attractive side — ponderous melodies coupled with defensive lyrics. Certainly, no rock musician has ever defended himself so vigorously, or so often, from alleged abuse at the hands of critics.

That means this isn't a must-have album.

IN HEAT

— The Fuzztones

In 1985, The Fuzztones backed Screamin' Jay Hawkins for a delirious swing through Hawkins' bigger songs. The resulting EP was the third release by the then-New York-based quintet, and probably their best. They brought the often erratic Hawkins to the peak of his form.

Since then, Fuzztones leader Rudi Protrudi has moved to Los Angeles, and toured Germany with a new lineup. "In Heat" is comprised of tracks by the "new" Fuzztones produced by the deservedly legendary and supposedly retired Shel Talmy.

Talmy produced many classic British Invasion bands — most notably the Kinks and the Who — and on paper he's probably the ideal producer for The Fuzztones. After all, the band plays instruments from Talmy's heyday (Vox and Rickenbacker guitars, and every-so-cheesy Vox Continental and Farfisa Organs) and The Fuzztones clearly aspire to the driving R&B-based rock sound that Talmy helped invent.

But "In Heat" is a pale echo of Talmy's '60s efforts, and even worse. It's also a pale echo of past Fuzztones outings. Somewhere along the road, or maybe the Autobahn, The reproduced to simulate stereo wouldn't save it. The songs are all acceptable knock-offs of various mid-'60s nuggets.

But rerecording this record into glorious monophonic sound electrically

Fuzztones lost their strunk Part of the problem is modern recording technology, which is unkind to Protrudi's thin and often weakly rasping vocals.

Each instrument is so distinct in the mix, it sounds like the band members were all in separate rooms. The sounds never mingle, never cross-pollinate, and never develop into the giddy, grunge-soaked buzz that obviously inspired Rudi Protrudi.

Only "Chrysanthe Rider," a movie-bitar psychodrama (with a guest Harley-Davidson solo by Billy Idol, among others) has the requisite kick and spit.

Best to play it safe dating

Dear Barbara,
I am 35 and have been divorced for nine years. I have been raising my children and so have not dated much since my divorce. I am nervous about re-entering the dating scene, mainly because of sex and the diseases it can cause.

"How long should I wait to sleep with a guy and how dangerous is it for me to sleep with more than one at a time?"

Thank you in advance for helping out. I like your column.

Scared in Royal Oak

Dear Scared,

Recently, a local paper reported that private detectives were being hired by Birmingham divorcees to follow prospective mates after they had left their intended's home. These women, the article said, were afraid that their fiances or boyfriends might be frequenting prostitutes in the after-hours.

Such then is the paranoia in our society, and worse, it is justified. In today's world, sex has become extremely risky and if the statistics about infidelity are correct, the risks when married are, while diminished, still present.

Only abstinence will keep you completely out of danger and I take it from your letter that you are ready to explore intimate companionship.

After abstinence, the next safest alternative, combines condoms, confrontation and judgment. Don't ever have sex without using a condom. Is rule number one.

Then be forward and assertive about asking your partner about his past sexual history, whether or not he has been tested for AIDS and/or venereal disease and whether he currently is intimate with only you or others as well.

If you agree to an exclusive relationship, you both might be tested at the onset and with trust between you, forego the use of a condom afterward. Again, judgment plays an ongoing role in the continual assessment of whether or not your partner is safe.

It is reasonable to understand that a widower who has been married for some years is a safer bet than a young hedonistic single who has been dating for those same years. But even at these extremes, individual differences can be paradoxical.

Of course, if you are intimate with two men, you double your chances for danger. With three, your triple it and so forth.

FEAR & LOAFING

Introducing Media Mania — Part 1

By Karl Nilsson
special writer

P.T. Barnum once said, "There's a sucker born every minute."

Unless you're running a leech farm, that's not good news.

With the peak shopping season coming up fast, Madison Avenue is working overtime to lighten your wallet. To avoid being clipped, it's important to understand the hidden psychology behind different categories of advertising:

1. Some ads appeal to our greed.

Laboratory tests prove that when the words "easy money" are flashed on a screen, a little understood gland in our neck releases a hormone that suspends all rational thought and prepares the fingertips to dial an 800 number.

A recent TV ad is based on this research — "Become a millionaire this fall . . . with the Cash-O-Matic leaf shredder!"

"Any lawn shredder can chop up leaves and twigs to make mulch for your garden. But even if you could sell every bag you produce for five bucks a hit, you'd still be a long way from retiring in Bloomfield Hills.

"Now, for just $449, you can earn easy money right in your own backyard. Here's how it works. Leaves and shrubs go in the funnel and crisp green $10 bills come out the other side. Obviously, to avoid being copied, we can't explain exactly how this happened, but believe me, there are plenty of luxurious homes in West Bloomfield filled with former skeptics just like you.

"Think of it. For the first time in your life, raking leaves will be a pleasure. Instead of dreading fall, you'll be out in the yard shaking the trees, vacuuming your neighbor's lawn and smiling all the way to the bank.

"For even faster riches, order the deluxe model, Cash-O-Matic II, for just $549. Same easy loading chute, same electric start motor, but this beauty pumps out 20s instead of 10s.

"Call now and remember our motto: Rake up the leaves and rake in the easy money."

2. Some ads appeal to our sense of destiny.

Many of us feel fated to someday live a life of luxury. And what better way to get rich quick than by winning a contest we never entered. Combined with the impact of a telegram, the kismet approach is virtually irresistible.

"Congratulations! You have already won a prize! You are a guaranteed winner of one of the following grand prizes . . .

- A. Ferrari Testarossa.
- B. $50,000 in cash.
- C. European dream vacation.
- D. S coat hanger.

"Conditions: You must redeem your prize in person at the Tidal Wave Resort where you'll enjoy a brief five-hour tour of the underwater homesites. Even if you've never paddled a glass-bottom boat before, you'll quickly get the hang of it as your SCUBA guide points out future golf courses and tennis courts. Choose your lot now, and when the swamp is drained, you'll be among the first to enjoy vacation living at its best.

"After a fascinating slide show by the Army Corps of Engineers, you'll be invited to join other lucky winners stacking sandbags along the creek bank.

"Due to all the fun and excitement, some older contestants may collapse while waiting for their prize to be processed. Don't be alarmed. Should you choose to take a nap at our visitor's center (it's the building on stilts), hip-boots and mosquito netting will be available for a small service fee . . .

3. Some ads appeal to our desire to be self-sufficient.

This survivalist mentality is what sells thousands of 4-wheel drive trucks to wimpy office workers. Ad men use it to sell just about anything:

"Worried about the rising cost of energy? Now you can do something about it. Stop paying those monthly utility bills and start generating your own power with our easy-to-build nuclear reactor.

"Everything you need to do on-line is included

A. Large bag of glow-in-the-dark uranium pellets.

B. Control rods (so helpful in preventing annoying meltdown).

C. Concrete shielding (for your nervous spouse).

D. Wacky 'Gone Fission' bumper sticker.

"With this step-by-step video, your home reactor will reach critical mass in no time! All instructions are in clear easy-to-understand language — Here's the deal, dudes. Heavy nuclei are bombarded with these far-out neutrons and like split into two particles of mass, producing really hip kinetic energy, which provides totally awesome heat to drive steam turbines, which can run your guitar for free, if you dig that action. Accompanying the reaction is the release of up to seven wild and crazy neutrons, those party animal gamma rays, the always fun beta particles and just back from a world tour, the fabulous neutrinos . . .

"Order now and receive two free bonus books — 'How to Disguise Radioactive Waste for Weekly Trash Pickup' and 'How to Extract Weapons-Grade Plutonium from Breeder Fuel,' formerly titled 'How to Attract Unstable Governments to Your Next Garage Sale.'"

Got the picture? Yeah? The happy shopping.

STREET CRACKS

Soupy: Laughing and loving work

By Shirlee Rose Iden
staff writer

Anyone who was a kid in the 1960s in Michigan probably had lunch with Soupy Sales.

"I became a hero when kids began eating veggies," said Sales, a lanky, salt and pepper-haired comedic star of radio, television, comedy and nightclub who once reigned as the king of comedy on Detroit television.

As one fan from out of the past ventured: "He threw more pies in more faces and did more in the slapstick vein than anyone around in those days."

"But what delighted us fans about Soupy is that he didn't take himself seriously."

Guessimations set the pie-in-the-face number as around 19,000, give or take a few coconut cream or lemon.

Sales, who was born Milton Hines in Franklinton, N.C., said he is always running into parents who were "my kids" way back then.

"I knew all along that half the people liked me and half hated me," he said.

Scheduled to play at Joey's Comedy and Sports Emporium in Allen Park Wednesday, Nov. 8 through Saturday, Nov. 11, Sales acknowledged he'll have to be prepared for anything, including the weather.

"MICHIGAN ALWAYS did have a great device for getting rid of snow — it's called July," he quipped.

Commenting on Detroit's recent red hot Devil's Night, the comedian said, "I live in New York City where nothing can burn. Here, they're just out mugging and stabbing each other."

While most people believe Sales, a Detroit fixture for so long, was a native, he answers those who ask: "Well, I wasn't born in Detroit, but I died there a couple of times."

Arriving in town as Soupy Hines, his first adjustment came when John Pival, general manager at Channel 7, who discovered him, decided his name might conflict with food products (such as Heinz) and dubbed him "Sales."

"In 1957 I legally became Soupy Sales, in court," he said.

Sales' fantastic television success in Detroit began in 1953 and lasted about seven years. For a while, he was starred in an unprecedented 11 hours of TV time each week and reigned as the area's top-rated television personality.

"Once I signed 7,200 autographs in one session," he recalled.

"Lunch with Soupy Sales" was one of his greatest triumphs. Mothers everywhere had to toe the mark, serving up the lunch on Soupy's blackboard if they wanted their kids to eat. A Saturday noontime version was picked up on the ABC-TV network.

SALES GREW UP in Huntington, W. Va. (to be near his mother), where he first became interested in dramatics in high school. He earned a journalism degree at Marshall University and landed a $20-a-week job as a radio script writer at a small Huntington station.

Evenings he would often drive 80 miles to do his comedy shows for $15 a night.

"The experience was invaluable," he said.

Diverted by World War II, Sales served in the U.S. Navy and took part in the invasion of Okinawa.

"I found a way to beat the Army," he said. "I joined the Navy."

After scoring as a top-rated disc jockey, he ventured to television and in 1950 his "Soupy's Soda Shop" became the nation's first television teenage dance program.

Sales parlayed his seven years of success in Detroit to a move to the West Coast in 1960. There he built his "Soupy Sales Show" into LA's No.

Soupy Sales, once the king of television comedy in the Detroit area, will be back in town for appearances at Joey's Comedy and Sport Emporium in Allen Park this week.

1 television offering. Two sons were born to Sales and his wife in California.

Over the years fans have seen the comedian in nightclubs, on game shows and on TV's "Bloopers and Practical Joke" where he has made regular appearances.

ON HIS RETURN to the metro area, he will rehearse a Channel 20 appearance that will mark his dramatic debut on the air in "Monsters" as a guest star.

Five years ago, Sales sold a screenplay to Warner Brothers with a small part written in for himself.

"So far, it's not been done, but I did sell it," he said, adding that he still hopes it will be produced.

He also would like to do a situation comedy or his own show again.

"Television should be a great medium for escape and relaxation," he said. "There should be more live programming and amateur shows. We've got to give something back. How many news shows can you air?"

"The problem is TV stopped being entertainment when salesmen took over the television business in 1960."

Sales peers back on a colorful career, while looking forward: "What's been wonderful has been that I've done what I wanted to do," he said. "Lots of people get up in the morning to jobs they don't want to go to. I will work anywhere and I love it."

Q: Can you help two couples who want desperately to vacation in Europe? We all backpacked through Western Europe at some time, but now we want to do it comfortably. Not luxury class. Not on a bus tour. On our own. But the more we hear about the cost of traveling in Europe, the farther away it seems!

A: There is a whole world of European travel out there between back-packing and luxury hotels. A $200-a-night room in a London hotel would scare most of us, but there are ways to avoid both the high expense-account travel done by business travelers and the regimentation of tour buses.

Since you have all done a once-over of the continent already, choose an area and a travel style that suits both your interests and your budget.

This week we'll talk about a trip to the Republic of Ireland, which you can use as a launching pad for England, Scotland or the continent. Next week, we'll look at Yugoslavia, by car or boat. That gives you an English-speaking destination and a more exotic one—two of many good choices for the cost-conscious individual travelers.

Four travel categories determine your budget — airfare, car rental, accommodations and the level at which you eat, drink and shop. Start watching the airline ads and call airlines like Pan Am, American, British Airways, Delta, TWA and Aer Lingus for low fares to Shannon, on the west coast of Ireland.

TRAVEL OFF-SEASON, preferably in the spring or fall. Check profit and non-profit tour groups that offer air-only fares. Call Canadian airlines, too. Cut air travel costs to the bone.

Contact the World Travel desk of the Automobile Club of Michigan for car rental rates and book ahead. Explore an air fare that includes car rental. If any of you have frequent flier points, they might apply to car rental. Some credit cards give you points toward air travel. Start now and check them all.

Ireland offers one of the most extensive and least expensive accommodation alternatives in Europe — bed and breakfast, country homes, farmhouses and townhouses. Ireland wants tourists, but they don't have enough big hotels, so the government gives private citizens grants to build guest-ac-

The Irish Tourist Board rates them and sells guidebooks for $2-3. One guide is overall, others focus on farm houses or castles, etc. You can get a fine, comfortable room for two people, including a good Irish breakfast, for $25.

Money isn't the only incentive. This is a way to explore the city and village, to meet Irish people as well as other travelers, and get a feeling for the country over breakfast or dinner, or at pubs and restaurants recommended by your hosts.

At a farmhouse, called Farnatran House, in County Wexford, for example, our hosts were standing at the farmhouse door, hands outstretched in welcome, when we arrived. And they were standing there, waving goodbye, when we left. We felt like cousins saying goodbye to family, except we had only been there one night.

THE BIG STONE farmhouse goes back to 1798, the same date as the uprising on Vinegar Hill in nearby Enniscorthy. When I called from a public telephone booth at 5:30 p.m., I was told that it was too late to order dinner, but they would make us "a little tea." That turned out to be hot homemade soup, cold chicken and salad with bread, cake and tea or coffee, quite enough "dinner" for us.

We took the last cup into the lounge where their son Frank was watching an American football game on television. Just after 9 p.m. we joined Cy and Willy for more tea, cake and talk at the kitchen table.

I liked the story they told about the couple who went to a pub, got lost, didn't know the farm name or the family name, went to several other B&Bs in vain, slept in the car and got back to Farnatran House at 2 p.m. the next day.

That farmhouse offered very basic accommodation, a clean plain room on the second floor with a double bed and the bathroom down the hall. We stayed in many that were more luxurious and had bathrooms in the rooms, but none that offered better hospitality.

Diamond Hill, in Slieverue, a suburb of Waterford, was a large stucco house recommended by Susan Poole, author of Frommer's "Ireland on $30 a Day." Hostess Mary Malone brought us a tray of tea and biscuits to wash the road away when we checked into a room with a queen-sized bed.

Bathrooms are usually "down the hall," but Diamond Hill, like many guest houses, offers rooms with bathrooms en suite for another er $5 or so per person.

MANY PLACES, like Diamond Hill or Shangri-la, which overlooks Bantry Bay in County Cork, are private homes where the residents have added on a wing for guests, so you are not really in the family kitchen as we were at the Heffernans.

Some accommodations are in the heart of a town. We stayed on the top floor of the The Presbytery, a high narrow private home in a street of attached houses. It was once the presbytery of a nearby church. We walked easily to downtown Kinsale (County Cork) and swapped stories over breakfast with other travelers in the spacious breakfast room.

Each place has its own setting and attractions.

From Diamond Hill, we toured the plant where Waterford crystal is made. From Bantry, we watched the clams being harvested in the bay—and then drove the Ring of Bear, one of three peninsulas that stick out like fingers into the Atlantic. (Most bus tours do the Ring of Kerry.) We especially love the Dingle Peninsula, where Gaelic culture and language still reign.

Doyle's Seafood Bar in Dingle is popular, its second-story rooms are nice, but it's not in the tourist guide because it charges more than the government will accept for its guide book. We stayed in a contemporary house called Cleevan, just out of Dingle, for $25.

In Kenmare, County Kerry, on the other hand, we gladly chose the unlisted Hawthorn House when we found it in the dark of night and were rewarded with a pot of tea beside a warm fire and the smells of a fine dinner. Dinner was expensive, about the same price as the room.

MANY IRISH B & Bs offer dinner, usually for about 10 pounds Irish per person. Sometimes you must reserve before noon to get it.

Each country offers its own style of personal accommodations: Northern Ireland manor houses. Welsh farmhouses. Scottish castles. English bed and breakfast homes. In season, university dorms are an alternative.

Contact the Irish Tourist Board, 757 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017 or the British Tourist Authority, 40 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019, for information.

Angel Flight pairs pilots with patients

Examples of a potential passenger are "one who cannot sit up for an extended time period or one whose immune system is so suppressed that entering an airport is inviting disaster."

"THERE HAS to be a medical need, but that's pretty broad. We rule out taking doctors to golf outings, but a person vacationing in Florida and has a medical problem qualifies."

Recent flights have included taking eyes from Pellston to Cadillac for the Michigan Eye Bank and taking an 18-year-old cancer patient to Johns Hopkins in Baltimore.

Largely because of costs, trips have been restricted to a 500-mile radius. Costs average $30 to $50 per hour. An average plane travels 100 to 125 miles per hour.

"If you're flying five hours, 10 hours round trip, that gets a little expensive. They're willing to pay for one or two trips a year. Beyond that, it gets expensive."

THE ORGANIZATION is looking for more pilots to defray the costs as well as financial angels to support the flying angels so that the service can be expanded.

"We ask the pilots to pick up the tab. If the trip were financed, they'd go (more often), anything for free flying."

"We're looking for new pilots and a lot of things at once. If we have the missions, we need pilots. And we need pilots with a lot of money. Actually all three at once."

The organization is trying to get the word out to those who could use it. Angel Flight is often asked, Quinn said, "Are they real pilots? They're not just practicing?"

Try your level best to communicate

Poor communication causes many problems — from organizing to misunderstandings to hurt feelings. Good techniques enhance relationships, allowing your mind to be clear and helping you think better.

The keys are simple:

- The speaker's willingness to communicate.
- The listener's response.

If people don't interact at the same level, however, problems may arise. The five levels of communication help explain problems:

LEVEL 1: Cliche Conversation. This is typified by the familiar, "How are you?" and the "Fine, how are you?" response. While shallow and the weakest and most distant way of relating to others, it is a necessary and healthy exchange and serves the purpose of saying, "Here's a friendly greeting." There is no sharing at all, however.

organizing

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

LEVEL 2: Reporting Facts About Others: Also necessary, this is the lowest level of real conversation. It lacks opinion, reveals nothing of ourselves and invites none from others. This may include jokes, stories, gossip or rehashes of sports or the stock market. It might be referred to as Safe Speech.

LEVEL 3: Ideas and Judgments. This level includes a cautious risk of revealing some facts about self. A person may say he is a Republican but won't reveal the reasons why. The information is carefully censored to "test the waters" of how it will be received. At the first sign of negative response, the speaker will revert to Level 2.

LEVEL 4: Feelings/Emotions. Once an adequate comfort level is attained, the speaker can risk sharing gut-level inner feelings. This is the level of a trusting relationship that might include a shoulder to cry on. At this level, a person begins to explain his convictions about personal life, religion, etc. Again, if it is not well received, the speaker will withdraw.

LEVEL 5: Peak Communication. This is based on absolute openness and honesty. There is no holding back, and it can only be maintained between two people in almost perfect harmony.

Like two finely tuned instruments playing the same note, two friends totally understand each other. Judgment has no place in their communication, and there is no threat in disclosing innermost thoughts.

Childhood friends who grow up together often experience this level of disclosure — even years later after extended separations.

An important element of interaction is the willingness of an individual to open up to others. If one person is willing to share but the listener is judgmental, for instance, this could explain communication failure.

Conversely, some people complain that everyone seems to "dump" their woes on them, not realizing that they regularly give Level four or five responses, even when they do not wish to invite deeper communication. Only when both parties cooperate can deep levels be attained.

A more thorough explanation of this theory may be found in the book entitled "Why Am I Afraid to Tell Who I Am?" by John Powell.

Color expands RV feeling of space

Q. We're buying a fairly large recreational vehicle — about 30 feet in length — to live in during our winter stay in Florida. We've never owned one before and our concern is that we choose the right color for the interior to help us avoid any possibility of claustrophobia. Because of the large investment, we know we'll have to live with our choice for a long time. Neither of us have a very strong preference for the color options being offered. They are mauve, blue, beige and seafoam green.

A. Because each of the color options is quite muted and the patterns and textures coordinated to avoid any strong impression, the best choice will center around key optical qualities and your potential reaction to the chosen color over an extended period of time.

Warm colors such as mauve, or rose, give the impression of advancing, while cool colors, such as blue, appear to recede. Greens fall somewhere in between, balancing the receding with the advancing tendencies.

Because beige is the least stimulating for its absence of hue (color), your response is to its level of darkness or lightness. Each color has other positive and negative qualities: mauve conveys a coziness and warmth but it will also make a space appear somewhat smaller; blue suggests calm and helps in the appearance of openness, but it can come across as cold and uninviting; green's sense of balance is the very quality that aggravates some people; and beige becomes boring although it can open up a sense of space.

all about color

Helen Diane Vincent

Given all of these conditions and the fact that you are dealing with a vehicle and not an actual home, my recommendation is to choose blue, as long as the textiles for the upholstery and the curtains include a touch of terracotta for optical balance.

My reasons are that in such close quarters, you need a calming, somewhat cool setting that expands the sense of space. You can also be assured by the fact that blue remains high on the list of most preferred colors. Green would be my second choice for its sense of balance.

Q. I can't help but notice how different our son's pictures are from his classmates in kindergarten. They are bright, freely drawn and colorful. Our son's pictures are finely detailed and lack color. Could this be a clue to a larger problem?

A. Before anyone can determine whether or not your son has a psychological problem, you ought to have him tested for his capacity to see the full color spectrum. The whole matter might come down to having a color deficiency (inaccurately called color blindness) so much more characteristic in males than females.

Once that matter is settled, I would take the following into consideration: your son may be passing through a phase in his young life that will correct itself. Putting undue attention on it might just extend the matter. If his behavior seems otherwise normal, you might have to recognize that he is a natural introvert with a sense of precision and organization.

If that is the case, he has as much right to his psychological orientation as an extrovert; in time, both of these qualities balance each other, with introversion or extroversion being most dominant.

Pianist/conductor on podium Thursday

John Covelli, pianist/conductor, will be on the podium for the first pops concert of Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra's new season at 9 p.m. Thursday. It will be held in Handeman Hall, Temple Beth El, 14 Mile and Telegraph, Bloomfield Township. Felix Resnick is the permanent conductor and artistic director.

John Covelli

As a pianist, Covelli has won many awards, including the Busoni International Prize in Bolzano, Italy. In his conducting career, he began as a protege of Pierre Monteux and he has held conducting positions with the St. Louis Symphony, the Milwaukee Symphony and the New York City Opera. He is currently music director and conductor of the Birmingham (New York) Symphony.

The Thursday concert will include Smetana's "Dance of the Comedians" and Offenbach's "Orpheus in Hades" Overture. "The Classic Piano Goes to the Movies" is the title for part of the concert. For a conclusion, Covelli and the orchestra will perform Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." For ticket information, call 645-BBSO. Ticket sales have been brisk. Any that become available will be at the door.

Symphony benefit

Laurel Place Mall will host a benefit for the Livonia Symphony Orchestra 7-9:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15; that promises to be a culinary treat as well as a fine night of music.

And if you're a model train enthusiast — you'll really be in your glory. All three events will be combined in the center court of the new mall at Six Mile and Newburgh roads, Livonia.

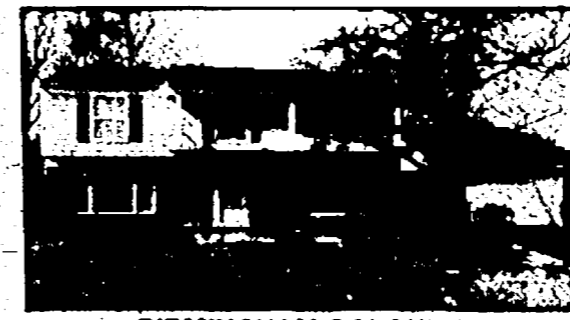

Featured soloist will be Nancy Detewsky Villeneuve. Francesco DiBiasi will conduct the symphony in selections from Broadway musicals and excerpts from "Les Miserables," "Sound of Music," "The King and I" and other popular favorites.

Fifteen Livonia area restaurants will present culinary delights as guests mingle and view the Lionel Train exhibition — as well as tour the newly completed Laurel Park Place Mall.

Tickets are $20 per person and black tie is optional. For reservations and information, call 462-1100. Tickets will also be available at the door. Valet parking will be available at the Six Mile entrance.

"It's the best kept secret in Livonia."
 It's called Woodridge Apartments. It's the most perfect combination of luxury and comfort I've found. And I love being just a couple of minutes from the great malls in Livonia, and I-696. (Of course I love to shop—who doesn't?) I also love the tennis and pool right here, and the fact that I have covered parking for my car. The rent makes sense to me too. Since I have so many other things I want to spend my vast (?) resources on. Call 477-6448...and see for yourself today.

Prudential 1000 Town Center is shaped like a gold cube rotating within a bronze cube, creating eight corners — one of the most attractive features to companies looking for space in office buildings.

Prudential snips ribbon on latest office building

It has been called the single most impressive office project in Oakland County, the best example of good architecture in Southfield and one of the most convenient locations in southeastern Michigan.

Nearly two years after ground breaking, Prudential 1000 Town Center was opened recently in a gala affair for business representatives and government officials replete with catering by the Golden Mushroom restaurant, wine tasting, musicians, caricaturists and a drawing for a trip to Paris, France.

Scott Swedburg, vice president of the Prudential Property Co., said 1000 Town Center will be an outstanding contribution to the town center complex, but it is also special in its own right.

"The architects were charged with coming up with a design that would have its own identity, but would also match the rest of the town center," Swedburg said. "I think they've succeeded."

Designed by the Houston, Texas-based architectural firm of Sikes, Jennings, Kelly and Brewer, 1000 Town Center has unusual qualities, but perhaps the most intriguing feature is the actual design, Swedburg said.

Shaped like a gold cube rotating within a bronze cube, the design creates eight corners — one of the most attractive features to companies looking for space in office buildings, Swedburg said.

Bill Pankhurst, vice president of Grubb and Ellis, the office leasing agent for 1000 Town Center, said it will take 2 1/2 to three years to fill the building. Approximately 145,000 of the rentable 570,000 square feet have been leased.

COMPUTER COMPANIES like Bull Worldwide Information Systems and Sun Micro Systems, Toshiba Electronics, the commercial real estate broker Coldwell Banker, and the law firm Brooks and Kushman are some of the major tenants, Pankhurst said.

"We're seeing a lot of professional companies, but we're seeing more and more high-tech firms," he said. It is essential for these high-tech firms to be able to get to all parts of southeastern Michigan quickly, and 1000 Town Center provides that, Pankhurst said. Once I-696 is complete, travel will be easier still.

Prudential's Swedburg said the office vacancy rate in Southfield — 20.4 percent according to the third quarter major office market report by the Southfield marketing firm of Cushman and Wakefield — does not disturb him. "It's a competitive market, but our product is such that the added benefits will induce leasing."

PRUDENTIAL OWNS 23 acres east of 1000 Town Center on Evergreen Road, Swedburg said, and is in early planning stages for the property.

"It could be residential, it could be office, it could be retail."

Donald Gross, Southfield director of strategic planning, said that while the town center is not synonymous with Southfield, it is one of the most prominent landmarks in the city and perhaps southeast Michigan.

"It provides us with a lot of the basic ingredients of a downtown," he said. "We use it as a focal point of the community — as a foundation for a city center."

As for the remaining acres, Gross said Prudential Properties has preliminary plans for at least one more high rise building, which is expected to be an apartment building, as well as an upscale retail center.

"Then it would be a city within a city, so to speak," Gross said.

Early conversations have centered on stores like Bloomingdale's, but no plans have been completed.

More upscale shopping at the town center would complement both the center and surrounding areas, Gross said, and could only benefit other areas in southeast Michigan because of the town center's proximity to several major freeways.

Parcel two-thirds developed

By Gerald Frawley
special writer

Another piece in the Prudential Town Center puzzle was added to the picture with the official opening of 1000 Town Center, but the gleaming gold and bronze building is only part of a 67-acre, multi-phase development started on a largely vacant tract of land nearly 20 years ago.

The Prudential Property Co. purchased the 67-acre tract in 1972 and broke ground on 3000 Town Center, a 32-story office building with two floors of retail space, a year later. The complex was officially opened in 1975.

The 4000 Town Center, a 20-story office building with two floors of retail space, and the two-story medical offices complex, 4400 Town Center, were completed four years later in 1979.

In 1980, Prudential Property Co. began construction on 5000 Town Center, a 33-story residential tower. The 216-unit apartment complex was completed in 1982.

Work on the next phase of the town center project, the 28-story office and retail 2000 Town Center, was concluded in 1986.

The 12-story, 385-room Radisson Plaza Hotel was completed in 1987. Elevated walkways connect the hotel to the high-rise office towers and the three parking structures with available space for up to 6,350 vehicles.

In November 1987, work began on 1000 Town Center. While the work force may not match that of the cathedrals of Europe in the Middle Ages, more than 450 skilled tradesmen, laborers and supervisors were involved in on site construction.

The entire Prudential Town Center includes four high-rise towers and two smaller buildings that include 2.1 million square feet of office space, 169,000 square feet of retail space and 31,000 square feet of medical office space.

Bonus room provides space to grow

Visitors to this 3,239-square-foot home are welcomed in a two-story foyer leading to a two-story great room. That expands to the breakfast room or sun deck. The breakfast, kitchen and dining room are in a line, backing to each other. A tray ceiling sets off the dining room, and another is found in the master bedroom.

There are two bedrooms on the first floor, one a master bedroom suite with two walk-in closets and bath. The master bedroom measures 15 by 18 feet. The second bedroom, 13.6 by 12 feet, is intended as a guest room.

There are two bedrooms and a bonus room on the second floor. A bath is shared by the two bedrooms.

A span of balcony and open rail is shown for the upper hall, which offers a view of the great room.

The formal exterior style is strengthened by multiple roof breaks and highlighted by one stacked bay window, one single bay window and an expanse of glass above the main entry allowing a flow of light throughout the center portion of the home.

The plan is No. 3218. The square footage includes the bonus room. All W.D. Farmer plans include construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For information, write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, Ga. 30345.

2 questions of wifely concerns

Please explain why it is necessary to obtain the signature of a wife on a purchase agreement if the husband, who owns the property alone, has signed the purchase agreement and they do not own the property as tenants in common.

I am not totally clear from your question exactly what the facts are, but it would appear that to the extent the sellers of the property are married, the wife has a "dower interest" in the property. Accordingly, the purchase agreement may not be binding upon the wife in regard to releasing her dower unless her signature is affixed to the purchase agreement.

You should ensure that she is prepared to enter into the purchase agreement or otherwise release her dower, as well as to confirm exactly what interest she claims to have with respect to the property. It is better that you resolve these problems before proceeding to closing and, if it is hoped, before any further problems arise.

I am selling my condominium on my own and have received an offer from a prospective purchaser who is married. His wife has refused to sign the purchase agreement, but both names are on the purchase agreement. Does this pose a problem?

You have a problem if you intend to have a conveyance to both husband and wife. The purchase agreement technically only obligates you to have entered into an agreement with the husband. If, of course, the wife consents to a deed to her and the monies are paid to you at the time of closing, you should have no objection to conveying it to husband and wife, so long as the husband is in agreement.

But the fact that the wife is not willing to sign the purchase agreement should create suspicion in your mind. Perhaps you should contact an attorney to advise you specifically on the facts and circumstances of your case after reviewing the purchase agreement in question. Remember, discretion is the better part of valor.

I am interested in buying a cooperative and have looked at one in the Lafayette Park area. The association claims that they do not have a set of bylaws or articles of incorporation but merely the proprietary lease. I have sought advice from counsel who indicated that there must be some set of documents, such as bylaws, in effect. I have decided to go ahead without counsel, but am wondering what suggestions you would have.

It appears that you are between a rock and a hard place. No doubt the cooperative association is a non-profit corporation that has a set of articles of incorporation. Similarly, it presumably has a set of bylaws and, in fact, if it does not, you should look into the question seriously of whether you wish to enter into an arrangement in such a cooperative.

The fact that you are already being put on notice about the possible inadequacy of the cooperative documents should lead you to the inescapable conclusion that legal counsel is necessary to protect your rights.

Some of the best deals made are the ones that are not consummated. For example, if the cooperative is that disorganized, you may not wish to become a member of it because it is likely to guarantee future problems for you as well as the other members of the cooperative association.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
