Split board votes on teacher pact

Board trustee Fred Warmbier feels that the proposed teachers' pay raises are too high considering the economic slump, but most of his colleagues are expected to ratify a new union contract tonight.

By DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A sharply divided Wayne-Westland school board is expected to cast a split vote tonight (Monday) in approving a new teachers' union proposal which includes pay raises.

Some board members have predicted a 5-2 vote when the board considers the proposed pact that would give teachers a 3-percent salary increase this year and a 5-percent raise next year.

The board will decide the issue during a meeting that begins at 7 p.m. at the board office on Marquette, between Newburgh and Wayne.

The board's decision will come after teachers vote today, by secret ballot on the tentative contract agreement, reached Sept. 17 by school officials and union leaders representing 999 teachers in the Wayne-Westland Education Association.

School officials have predicted that teachers will vote overwhelmingly to ratify the contract.

If predictions of some board members hold true, board members Vicki Welty, Leonard Posey, Francis "Bud" Winter, Richard LeBlanc and Sharon Felan are expected to vote to approve the contract. Board members Fred Warmbier and Laurel Raisanen are expected to oppose it.

Early on, teacher union leaders had indicated that Warmbier and Raisanen had not only opposed a pay raise for teachers but wanted concessions.

Raisanen declined Friday to say how she will vote.

"I'd really rather keep my vote quiet until Monday," she said. Once she casts her vote, Raisanen said she plans to clearly state the reasons for her decision.

"It's more complex than just yes or no," she said.

Warmbier has been quite vocal in his opposition.

"I think we're paying fairly adequate salaries right now," he said. "This is not Grosse Pointe."

Under the proposed contract, teachers who have master's degrees and who are at the top of the salary schedule would earn $52,755 this school year and $55,395 next year.

Recession cited

In opposing the raises, Warmbier cited an economic slump, singling out the impending shutdown of the General Motors Corp. Willow Run plant in Ypsilanti, which employs many local residents. Warmbier said he can't justify the raises because of the sour economy.

"I think we could have played it a little more conservative than we have," he said.

Their top-notch teaching skills propelled three Livonia teachers into the spotlight Monday.

For the rest of this school year, Marilyn Griffith, Lana Heinrich and Wilma Wagner will be known throughout the Livonia school district as "Teachers of the Year."

All three were honored in special ceremonies Monday by their colleagues and by the Livonia Board of Education, which serves the northern section of Westland.

Griffith, a kindergarten teacher at Nankin Mills Elementary on Hubbard north of Ann Arbor Trail, Westland, has taught in the district since 1986. She earned her bachelor of science degree from the University of Omaha in

A Westland man has pleaded guilty to an indecent exposure charge, amid accusations he showed X-rated movies to two 11-year-old girls and masturbated in front of them.

Richard Charles Quimby, 34, averted a trial by pleading guilty Thursday as he appeared before 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos. He had been scheduled for a pretrial hearing Thursday.

Quimby is scheduled for sentencing Thursday. An indecent exposure charge carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $500 fine.

Blind woman robbed at home; police seek suspect's arrest

By DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A 32-year-old blind Westland woman was robbed at her home when a man walked in her front door, pushed her against a television set, snatched her purse and fled.

Westland police have a suspect and were seeking a warrant Friday from the Wayne County prosecutor's office, Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe said.

The woman told police that she and her 10-year-old son were at their home, near Wayne and Ford roads, when she heard the front door open and someone walk in at 8:10 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 19.

The woman repeatedly asked the intruder's identity, but he refused to answer. But the woman told police that her son knew the man, who had performed odd jobs at her home.

After the boy named him, the intruder pushed the blind woman into her television set, grabbed her purse and fled from the house, according to police reports.

A next door neighbor later told police that he saw a man pull his vehicle into the woman's driveway — and then drive away moments later at a high rate of speed.

The woman reported that she was missing her purse, two gold wedding rings valued at $2,000, a $100 tape recorder, a Braille writer worth $250, a J.C. Penney credit card, $150 in cash, and a National Bank of Detroit bank card and savings book.

Stobbe said the county prosecutor's office was expected to issue a warrant for the suspect's arrest on Friday. It wasn't immediately known when the defendant would be arraigned.

Stobbe said the man is expected to be charged with breaking and entering an occupied dwelling and larceny. After his arraignment, the suspect will be scheduled for a preliminary examination in Westland's 18th District Court — a hearing that will determine whether he should face trial on the charges.

If convicted, he could face a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison for breaking and entering, and up to 10 years in prison for larceny from a person.

On dean's list

Vicki Sorensen of Westland was named to the dean's list at Madonna University for the spring/summer term. A senior, Sorensen has a 4.0 grade point average and is a member of Kappa Delta Phi, an international honor society for education majors. She is also president of the Student Michigan Education Association at Madonna.

Boating class

Although the hockey season will soon be here, local residents are offered a boating and seamanship class this fall to prepare for next spring. The Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 12-16 will hold its boating skills and seamanship class, starting Monday, Oct. 5, and continuing for 12 weeks. The course will be held at 7 p.m. Mondays in the Post 247 VFW Hall, 27555 Grantland, Livonia, in the Inkster Road-Schoolcraft area. The course is for beginners as well as experienced seamen who want to brush up on their boating skills. The course will cover boating safety, navigation rules, boat handling, weather forecasting and plotting. While the course is free, there is a fee for books, workbooks and materials. Call Leonard Chapiwski, 533-0579, for information.

TV week

Continental Cablevision, which serves Westland, will take part in the national observance of Cable Programming Week with local events shown on Channel 11. More than 40 hours are programmed each week, including local sports and documentaries, said Nancy Maledosian, local programming manager.

Talk to the mayor

Mayor Robert Thomas will hold his monthly live call-in program on Channel 8 for cable subscribers at 7 p.m. Wednesday. Persons may call him at 427-9003 with questions about the senior resources department. With him will be Sylvia Kozorsky-Wiacek, department director.

Gymnastics classes

Gymnastics classes are offered by the High Pointe Gymnastics Club at Bailey Recreation Center, on Ford east of Newburgh, behind City Hall. Instructor will be Jamal Elzein. Classes are held for preschool, beginners, advanced beginners and pre-col training with fees being $15, $24, $29, and $36, respectively. The classes are held Friday afternoons and early evenings. The club meets Wednesday afternoons. Fees range from $40 to $50. All sessions run six weeks. The first session of classes started last week.

Livonia schools urge defeat of ballot proposals

BY MARIE CHESTNEY
STAFF WRITER

Michigan's schools will be "in shambles" if voters approve two property tax proposals on the Nov. 3 ballot.

That's the view of the Livonia Board of Education, which unanimously took a stand Monday against both Proposal A and C and urged local voters to vote "no."

The Livonia district serves the northern section of Westland.

The board endorsed a third property tax proposal called Olmstead/Kearney. The so-called "OK" proposal is not on the November ballot but could wind up in the Legislature if a statewide petition drive is successful.

"Both A and C would be absolutely disastrous to us," said board president Pat Sari.

Added trustee Richard McKnight: "Nothing would make this state less desirable to live in than if the education system is in shambles."

Assessment cap

Proposal A would cap residential property tax assessments at 5 percent or the rate of inflation, whichever is less.

"Since the property is expected to appreciate well beyond the 5 percent limitation, school districts and especially out-of-formula school districts would be denied a use of those growth dollars exceeding the 5 percent cap," said district administrator Jack Kirksey, who is spearheading the local campaign against Proposals A and C.

Proposal C, called "cut and cap," would cut school property taxes 30 percent over five years, requiring the state to reimburse districts for the lost revenue.

It also would cap assessment increases at 3 percent or the rate of inflation (consumer price index), whichever is less.

"Proposal C has twice the detrimental effect of Proposal A," Kirksey said.

Trustees used such words as "raid," "deception," "travesty" and "pie in the sky" to describe Proposal C.

"Their assumptions of growth can't possibly come true," said McKnight. "Either our programs will be dramatically cut, or we'll have to ask residents for an increase in the tax rate. There is no win in this proposal for anyone."

Why vote no

Kirksey outlined the following reasons residents should vote against Proposal C:

- Livonia schools could not sustain a 30 percent loss in revenue over a five-year period at a time when the district is already having trouble paying its bills.

- There is no guarantee the state will reimburse school districts. In fact, districts believe that the state will find ways to avoid reimbursing districts for money lost by taking funds from other areas, such as reimbursements for funding retirement.

- "Cut and cap" does not solve the main problem of inadequate school financing. "It only addresses the symptoms of the problem, which are an excessive reliance on property tax and the inadequate state support of education," Kirksey said.

- Most seniors living in homes with a state equalized valuation of $60,000 or less will not get much of a tax saving as their homestead property tax credits will be reduced dollar for dollar.

- The state's rosy future growth predictions may not happen. "Michigan would have to see state revenues grow by more than 6 percent in 1993 to pay for the first year of the proposal," Kirksey said.

- "Since we have not recovered from the recession and our future growth is projected to be very modest, it appears that the dollars necessary to fund schools and local government will not materialize."

district administrator

- The state faces a potential deficit of $781 million in 1994 if "cut and cap" passes.

- The federal government will be a main beneficiary of Proposal C as it will receive millions of extra dollars from Michigan residents as federal income tax deductions are reduced.

- The proposal will create a wide discrepancy in assessments. Only when a property is sold would its assessment — and thus its tax bill — be adjusted to refect current market value.

"It would not only create an assessment nightmare for local assessors, but it would create a tremendous number of inequities in the taxes being paid by citizens and homeowners," Kirksey said.

'OK' is fine

The language of the Olmstead-Kearney proposal recently was finalized and petitions will be circulated for signatures throughout the state sometime in October, Kirksey said.

If enough signatures are obtained, it could appear on a ballot sometime next year.

The "OK" proposal corrects many of the flaws contained in Proposals A and C, Kirksey said.

It mandates that education be supported by a formula called "50-50 plus the lottery." This means an equal amount from the state and taxpayers as well as all the money from the lottery with no "backdoor" raiding.

Tax rates in each district would be reduced to a maximum of 30 mills, or $30 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation.

"It represents a property tax cut of $750 million," Kirksey said.

Teacher contract from page 1A

Moreover, he called for more accountability among teachers before rewarding them.

"I don't see where our performance has shown great improvement — if any," he said. "There's no accountability in this contract."

Other board members, however, appear ready to accept the proposed pact.

"In a nutshell, I will vote to approve," LeBlanc said Friday.

Early on, LeBlanc conceded he had some reservations. But he said he's impressed that, in addition to pay raises, teachers have agreed to accept a nine-point educational-improvement plan suggested by Superintendent Larry Thomas.

"This will go a long way toward setting the tone for future negotiations," LeBlanc said.

"I'm going to expect to see a little give and take on both sides. I don't believe in giving money just to give money."

Thomas' improvements include, among other measures, a no-smoking policy on school grounds; an additional work day for teachers; more elementary parent-teacher conferences; giving regular teacher contracts to alternative education teachers; and giving $400 stipends a year to vocational teachers who've completed 4,000 hours of work.

Raises expected

The 3-percent and 5-percent raises for teachers come on top of a 2-percent raise that teachers already received this year. That increase was negotiated in the last contract, approved in February, 1991.

In addition to the raises, teachers with 15 years' experience or more will receive a boost in their annual longevity pay. That pay will jump from $500 to $700 for 15 years' experience, $1,000 to $1,250 for 20 years, and $1,500 to $1,800 for 25 years.

Thus far, the latest contract has failed to stir a controversy similar to one that erupted after the last contract was approved in February, 1991. That contract gave teachers a two-year 11.9-percent raise.

However, those raises came at a time when the school board had considered deep cuts in school programs to offset a budget crunch. The controversy sparked recall attempts against four board members, but the effort was unsuccessful.

1954 and her master's from the University of Michigan in 1981.

Heinrich, Riley Middle School's student activities co-director and seventh grade language arts teacher, began teaching in the district in 1970. She earned her bachelor of science degree from Western Michigan University in 1964 and a master's degree from Wayne State University in 1977.

Wagner, an English teacher at Franklin High, which serves the northeast section of Westland, came to the district in 1968. She earned her bachelor of science degree from Rhode Island College in 1960 and her master's from Eastern Michigan University in 1976.

Griffith has taught school in Connecticut, Texas and Colorado. Because of her own kindergarten teacher in Omaha, she knew as a young girl that she wanted to be a teacher. An outstanding teacher she had in high school just reinforced her goal.

"I wanted to touch the lives of young people with kindness and caring," Griffith said.

She has given special education presentations at Ladywood High's Career Day, been a building representative and member of the LEA's representative assembly, served as a delegate to the National Education Association's Representative Assembly, was a winner of the LEA's Teacher Spotlight Award, and serves as a teacher representative to the Nankin Mills PTA.

Since 1970, Heinrich has taught in all four Livonia middle schools, as well as Franklin and Churchill High, which serves the northwest corner of Westland.

Her teaching experience has included language arts, social studies, science and mathematics at the middle school level as well as English and math at the high school level.

She served on the social studies curriculum alignment committee, social studies textbook adoption committee, the curriculum and instruction action planning team, and has participated in cooperative learning and classroom management projects.

"In short, it really matters not how many committees on which a teacher has served, nor how many books a teacher has authored," Heinrich said. "More important is how we interact with our students each day."

Wagner began teaching in the district in 1968, assigned to Randolph Elementary.

She co-wrote the first PA 25 annual report for Franklin High two years ago, is the National Honor Society co-advisor, worked on curriculum alignment for high school language arts, served on the superintendent's task force for environmental concerns, assisted with Special Olympics competition at Franklin, chaired the National Honor Society's Empty Bowls Hunger project and Franklin Honors Night.

She also assists students in submitting their work for the school's literary magazine.

Bush's whistle-stop tour a real crowd-pleaser

STAFF PHOTOS BY BILL BRESLER

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

President George Bush came to the right town on his whistle-stop tour Saturday.

When the Union Pacific passenger cars pulled to a stop in Plymouth's Old Village, the crowd started chanting: "Four more years," and "We want Bush."

The crowd of more than 12,000, many of whom waited up to three hours in the rain, had been warmed up by the Plymouth Community Chorus and the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps.

Also on hand were Gov. John Engler and State Rep. Robert Geake, both of whom took swipes at U.S. Rep. Bill Ford, D-Taylor, for his spending on first-class airline tickets for trips between his district and Washington.

Geake is running against Ford in the 15th Congressional District, which includes Plymouth. He took a shot at Ford, saying, "After 28 years it's time to clean house."

But while local politicians got in their pitches, the event was all Bush and the people who came to see him.

Whistle stop: In a campaign stop more like the 1940s than the '90s, George and Barbara Bush arrived on a restored passenger train.

Bill and Kathy Cox of Plymouth were the last people in line at 6 p.m. — others came later — to see Bush. The couple braved the rain because they wanted to hear Bush talk about family values.

"The Democrats are for the homosexuals and when they take over, a country starts to decline," Cox said.

For Mike Gottschalk of Plymouth, the three-hour wait in the rain was worth it. "We had the opportunity to see the president."

But while most of the crowd chanted, "We want Bush," when the train arrived shortly after 8 p.m. four tired, wet children were chanting, "We want to go home."

"It's been a long night for them," said Debbie Hissong of Canton, mother of Chad, 9, and Kurt, 7, who along with Melissa Speights, 9, and sister, Jessica, 7, were chanting.

There were other dissidents with more of a political agenda.

"Bush hasn't done anything for us," said Mark Campbell, a laid-off Willow Run worker from Carleton who carried a Bill Clinton sign.

Loren Cross and Jennifer Gawlik, both of Canton, held up T-shirts that said: "Abort the court."

"If Bush gets re-elected he'll appoint another conservative to the Supreme Court and they'll ban abortion," said Gawlik.

However, the crowd was overwhelmingly sign-waving for Bush, and boomed when an announcer said the national media was being let off of the train before Bush.

In his 15-minute speech, Bush hit the draft evasion issue, talked about schools of choice, charged that Clinton will raise taxes and pass new regulations that will hinder small businesses, and attacked Clinton's record as governor of Arkansas.

The cheers came as he said:

"Clinton is tearing down America to convince you that we're in decline."

"We're not. We're the most respected nation in the world."

"We're on a train tour to blow the whistle on Clinton."

And he struck a chord with the crowd.

"Clinton tried to be on both sides of the issue. I liked it when Bush said that," said Marriana Witt of Plymouth.

For Mary Nagy of Livonia, "Family values are the issue."

Shana Vinegar of Huntington Woods didn't like the speech. "People are being duped. He didn't talk about unemployed people or people who have lost their homes."

Schools of choice was the issue for Lynn Najduk of Livonia. "I went to Livonia Churchill and that's why I'm sending my kids to a private school. I want them to learn about God and not about sex education. I like to see what he had to say."

Engler introduction: Gov. John Engler introduces Bush to the crowd in Plymouth's Old Village.

Bush farewell: George Bush heard chants of "Four more years" when he finished his speech.

History, beautification programs receive honors

Westland organizations, volunteers or businesses will be honored by Keep Michigan Beautiful, Inc., next month for 15 programs which boosted the community's history and appearance.

Representatives of the groups will be publicly honored Oct. 15-16 at an annual awards ceremony, scheduled to be held in Grand Rapids.

Keep Michigan Beautiful is a private, non-profit organization which was formed 30 years ago to coordinate state-wide efforts to stop littering and to promote cleanup, outdoor beautification and to encourage public and private beautification and historical preservation programs.

Westland persons, City Councilman Thomas Brown and City Council liaison Joseph Benyo, are KMB board of directors.

Benyo said that the 15 Westland projects, selected from 125 nominations, represented 19 percent of the total awards. This marks the fourth consecutive year that Westland won the most KMB awards of any community.

Among the 15 honorees are Gayle Miller, a Stottlemeyer Elementary School teacher who produced a play last spring on the need to preserve trees, a senior citizens' apartment complex, a Boy Scout troop and Judith Palkoski, who was instrumental in upgrading the Westland Historical Museum's garden.

The most prestigious award, one of four categories, is the Hall of Fame honor, of which one group will be cited. The others, in order of importance, are the Michigan Plaque, to be given to three groups; Distinguished Service Plaque, won by nine businesses, organizations or individuals, and the Award of Merit, to be given to one business.

The winner of the Hall of Fame award is the Friends of the Nankin Mill, which had volunteers involved in many fund-raisers to help improve and expand the mill, built in the mid-19th century. Typical of the benefits sponsored were a wine and cheese reception and an art show. Monies raised from those efforts plus city and county funds were used to restore the building's exterior.

Groups cited

The three winners of the Michigan Plaque are:

- Westland Elderly Housing Corp., which made extensive beautification efforts surrounding Taylor Towers, including the installation of park benches and a fountain aerator at nearby Friendship Lake.

- Westland City Council, which won its fifth consecutive award for its city-wide beautification program of honoring local businesses and residents for improving their properties. The council also presents awards at Christmas time for those who install holiday decorations.

- Friends of the Westland Historical Museum, a volunteer group which sponsors fund-raisers and programs to increase the community's awareness of the need for historical and environmental preservation. Among the group's activities were a tree lighting tour, golf outing benefit and adopt-a-tree.

Groups honored

The nine winners of the Distinguished Service Plaque are:

- Gayle Miller, Stottlemeyer School fifth grade teacher, who produced a play about the environmental importance of trees, performed by her students last spring during the school's Earth Day observance.

- Boy Scout Troop 860, which preserved the historic Ganong Cemetery in the city's southeast corner. The Ganong's are a founding family of then-Nankin Township. The scouts helped improve the cemetery which had deteriorated. There were headstones which were broken, missing or toppled. The scouts restored the headstones and also catalogued the persons buried there with a map and chart.

- Westland Community Relations Department, which printed its "Spirit" newsletter, which was dropped this spring for budget reasons. The newsletter was mailed to all residents and businesses quarterly to promote community pride. The department also was cited for its 1992 community calendar which carried a theme of community history and heritage.

- Westland Cable WIND 8, the local governmental programming channel which carried information of the city's 25th anniversary celebration last year.

- Judith Palkoski, a volunteer who was instrumental in improving and organizing the herb garden at the city's historical museum, 827 N. Wayne Road. She was cited for improving visitors' access through the gardens which have 56 herb plants.

- Westland parks and recreation department, for completing the beautification of the 110-acre Central City Park, including a new 1-mile backpack fitness trail, new pavilions, play equipment, 110 trees, three beach volleyball courts and thousands of decorative flowers.

- Greenwood Villa Senior Towers, an apartment complex for low-income seniors and handicapped persons which expanded its beautification efforts with an open gazebo, screened summer house, walking trails and lighted flower beds.

- Westland Shopping Center, which also expanded its beautification and landscaping efforts and replaced old evergreens and installed trees along entrances and flower boxes throughout the parking areas.

- Willow Creek Apartments, which allowed retirees to plant flower gardens like they once had in their single-family homes. There are also trees planted in memory of Willow Creek residents who died. There are also flower arrangements in front of buildings and the entranceway.

Winning the Award of Merit was the Associated Newspapers which published stories on historical preservation and environmental issues.

Bills criminalize act of stalking

The House Judiciary Committee held a hearing Tuesday on a package of bills to criminalize stalking.

"I'm pleased that after months of negotiation we've been able to reach an agreement on legislation to protect victims of this mental terrorism," said state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, whose district includes Livonia and Redford.

"Although originally frustrated with a delay after the passage of my Senate bill last May, I'm pleased with the bipartisan, bicameral package that has resulted."

The new four-bill package will create a new crime of stalking. The base offense, as contained in House Bill 5472, calls for up to one-year imprisonment, or a $1,000 fine, or both. The court may also order up to five years probation.

Geake's Senate Bill 719 creates the crime of "aggravated stalking." A person is guilty of aggravated stalking when: the stalking behavior involves a threat; is in violation of a restraining order or court injunction; or the perpetrator has a prior stalking conviction.

"Aggravated stalking is a felony punishable by up to five years in prison. No longer will these mental terrorists be able to stalk and threaten their victims without being subject to severe punishment."

Under aggravated stalking, the court may also order a convicted stalker to probation for any term of years the court feels appropriate, but not less than five years.

"We're pleased with the recent cooperation of the House of Representatives on this important package of bills. It's my understanding that the House Committee will report these bills to the full House," said Geake.

"I encourage anyone who is interested in ridding society of these criminals to attend the hearing," said Geake. "Input from citizens is a vital component of any new law. This hearing is an opportunity for citizens to express their views on stalking."

MARTHA LEA DELANEY

Services for Mrs. Delaney, 74, of Garden City were held Sept. 19 from the R. G. and G. R. Harris Funeral Home, Garden City. Pastor Jerry Yarnell of St. Michael Lutheran Church in Canton Township officiated. Interment was in Oakland Hills Cemetery, Novi.

Teacher takes part in banned book event

By M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools took center stage when Borders Book Shop of Novi kicked off Banned Book Week last night.

The featured speaker was Barbara Masters, who until her recent retirement taught English at Plymouth Canton High School.

Borders invited Masters to headline its "Sunday Salon: An Evening of Conversation and Ideas" because "few people can appreciate the freedom to read in as direct a way as she can."

Masters was the center of controversy in 1989 when members of Citizens for Better Education, a local conservative Christian group, objected to her including the weekly newspaper "The Metro Times" as part of the curriculum.

CBE contended that while the paper published articles of instructional value, it also published objectionable items such as ads for illicit sex and sexually explicit articles on events such as Society for the Scientific Study of Sex seminars.

The issue became even more heated after school board member Barbara Graham visited Masters' classroom when Masters was out of the room.

Masters called the episode "absurd and pointless. We had a system already in place for reviewing classroom materials and filing complaints," she said. "I had the support of the school system."

Quimby remained in the city jail on Friday on a $10,000 cash bond, Westland police Sgt. Laura Moore said. His bond was increased from $1,000 on Sept. 17 after he ignored a court order to stay away from his Woodcrest Villa apartment — on Wayne Road between Cowan and Joy — where the alleged incident occurred.

Quimby had been arrested and arraigned on Aug. 21, after a parent of one of the 11-year-olds contacted the Westland Police Department about the alleged incident.

The complaint emerged about two months after Quimby allegedly lured the young girls to his apartment, showed pornographic movies on a videocassette recorder, exposed himself to them and masturbated in front of them, police have said.

Charges against Quimby didn't emerge immediately. The parent who reported the alleged incident didn't learn of it until two months later, Moore has said.

Immediately after his arrest, Quimby had remained free after posting $1,000, or 10 percent of a $10,000 bond.

Area apprentices to showcase skills at free Cobo exhibition

Apprentices from Livonia, Westland, Plymouth and Southfield are among the construction apprentices who will participate in the International Carpentry Apprenticeship Contest and Exhibition Oct. 4-5 in the Cobo Conference/Exhibition Center.

Admission is free and open to the public.

Local apprentices include Jeffrey Lockard, a graduate of Garden City High School who now lives in Livonia, Richard Unverzagg of Plymouth, Dave Neighbor of Westland and Michael D'Agostino of Southfield.

The program is sponsored by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (UBCJA) which trains men and women for careers in the building trades and allows them to earn while they learn.

The program requires apprentices to successfully completed 576 hours of vocational instruction and between 5,200 and 8,000 hours of paid, on-the-job training.

"Apprentices in our program learn how to read blueprints, handle tools and maintain a safe work area," said Dennis M. Scott, chairman of the International Carpentry Apprenticeship Contest Committee. The best apprentices in the United States and Canada will compete for top honors in the Best Apprenticeship of 1992 contest.

Neighbor, of Westland, will represent Michigan in the competition.

During the competition, which last from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. both days, apprentices will turn a stack of material into a finished project. Apprentices compete in one of four categories - carpentry, millwrighting, floorcovering and cabinetmaking. The competition also includes a three-hour written test.

All of the apprentices qualified for the international competition by winning state or provincial competitions.

Each apprentice is given power tools to use in the competition and just enough materials to complete the project. Judging is based on how much of the project is completed, how well it is done and how tools are used.

A $1,500 prize accompanies the award.

At the same time the apprentices will be competing, journeymen and women; along with other apprentices, will staff 25 working exhibits and demonstrate how to build stairs, hang doors, frame a house, erect scaffolding, construct cabinets, install carpet, linoleum and tile, use laser and optical instruments, concrete form work, dock building and safety exhibits. Presentations will be conducted at various times throughout both days.

"The contest and exhibition is an exciting event for anyone interested in the building trades. Our best apprentices showcase the talents and skills they have acquired during their four years in the apprenticeship training program," said Ron Conrad, director/coordinator, Detroit Carpentry Joint Apprenticeship Committee.

In addition, a career booth will be available for students interested in apprenticeship training information.

Proceeds from the sale of exhibit items will benefit Dollars Against Diabetes.

Other cosponsoring organizations include the Associated General Contractors of America, National Association of Home Builders of the United States, Specialized Carriers and Rigging Association and Association of the Wall and Ceiling Industries International.

Schoolcraft to host college night

Schoolcraft College will stage a college night program Tuesday, Oct. 6 with representatives from more than 50 colleges, universities and academies in attendance.

The program is designed for all area high school students and their parents.

Potential college students may find out what sort of programs are offered by various schools, as well as admission requirements and tuition costs.

Representatives from each college, university or academy will present three identical sessions at 6:45, 7:30 and 8:15 p.m.

The schools that will have representatives in the physical education building include: Adrian College, Boston College, Central Michigan University, Detroit College of Business, Eastern Michigan University, GMI Engineering and Management Institute, Hillsdale College, Kalamazoo College, Lake Superior State University, Lawrence Technological University, Madonna University, Northern Michigan University, Oakland University, Saginaw Valley State University, the University of Iowa and West Point Military Academy.

Michigan State University reps will occupy the Waterman Center. The University of Michigan-Dearborn will be in the Forum Building.

The Liberal Arts Building will house (among others) Amherst College, Ferris State University, Grand Valley State University, Harvard University, Ohio State University, Wayne State University and Western Michigan University.

Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads.

Tax imposed on flying from Metro

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The tax on flying just went up, but Wayne County officials say it's for a good cause — to pay for improvements at Metro Airport.

The Federal Aviation Administration gave Wayne County permission last week to force airlines to pay $3 per passenger on flights leaving Metro Airport beginning Dec. 1 and ending in the year 2008.

Northwest Airlines plans to pass that surcharge on to its passengers whose flights originate from Metro.

Wayne County officials estimate the tax will generate $640 million that will be used to help pay for improvements to Metro (including a new midfield terminal) and Willow Run.

The federal government's Passenger Facility Charges program that made this new tax possible was enacted two years ago. It specifies that money raised must be used to preserve or enhance an airport's ca-capacity and safety, or to promote competition, reduce noise and expand passenger facilities. (There is also a 10 percent federal tax on all airline tickets that's supposed to pay for those same things throughout the country.)

Metro is the 43rd U.S. airport to get permission to add the $3 tax on tickets, but Northwest Airlines, which accounts for three of every four planes leaving Metro, is ticked off.

Northwest spokesman Doug Miller said, the airline has no choice but to eat the tax (a $12 million expense) in order to stay competitive, except in the case of passengers originating from the Detroit area, who will pay the tax.

It's like this: If Northwest sells a round-trip ticket from Pittsburgh to Seattle and back, the plane routinely stops in Detroit on the way there and on the way back. Because the plane takes off from Detroit twice, there are two $3 surcharges on each ticket.

But the same flight on several competing airlines doesn't pass through a hub airport with a surcharge. So Northwest either absorbs the surcharge itself or tries to pass it on to passengers, who would likely just find cheaper tickets, Miller said.

"This is competitively damaging to airlines like Northwest," he said. "It causes some pretty severe difficulties. It's really the last thing we need. (But) we've got to swallow it. That's our only option."

Northwest will pass the surcharge on to passengers originating from the Detroit area, though, because flights from Metro are usually non-stop and therefore already cost more than the competition charges, Miller said.

Wayne County deputy executive Mike Duggan said the county is "very pleased" with the surcharge. "We go get money wherever we can find it."

Some of the improvements are already under way. A $128 million access road for the south side of the airport is under construction, but won't be finished until 1996 at least, said Metro spokesman Mike Conway. The road costs so much, he said, because it has to tunnel under two runways.

An anti-noise program designed to "reduce the impact of noise" has also begun, but is not yet approved by the FAA, Conway said. Eventually, officials hope to buy more property, rezone other property to get houses away from the airport, and change the flight patterns of airlines to pacify those who are annoyed by current noise levels.

A $662-million midfield terminal that Northwest has consistently opposed is also supposed to be built, but the FAA hasn't authorized the county to spend the surcharge tax money on that yet.

League invites voters to meet candidates

The League of Women Voters of Livonia will host a candidates night at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 7, in the Livonia Civic Center Library auditorium.

Scheduled to appear are 11th District U.S. House candidates Republican Joe Knollenberg and Democrat Walter Briggs. The 11th District includes Redford and part of Livonia.

POINTS OF VIEW

There is a way to change education environment

Some things never seem to change. Thirty years ago teachers in Detroit and environs were picketing for decent wages and working conditions.

As track coach at Southeastern High during that era, I walked inner-city neighborhoods after school with colleagues and some of my team to turn out a supportive millage vote.

Twenty years ago, after I led a campaign which upgraded Berkley's abysmal athletic programs to exemplary status, my programs and my job as district athletic director were placed on the chopping block, dependent on whether a millage might pass.

Ten years ago, teachers in Plymouth Canton were stopping cars of administrators who tried to pass a picket line, and they also petitioned to keep me in my secondary executive director job endangered by budget cuts.

Two years ago, as assistant superintendent in Rochester, I initiated pay-for-play sports, curtailed other programs, raised class sizes and retired early to save the threatened job of my less senior staff.

This year, local school districts struck again, and the president of the Detroit teachers' union exchanged bitter barbs with the superintendent.

Teachers and administrators must unite to stop this madness, and taxpayers and legislators who care about children must help. Insufficient and inequitable school funding throughout the state is pitting good people against each other to fight over the scraps — suburb versus city versus rural area, teacher versus administrator versus taxpayer — when instead we all should be allies in the common cause of refurbishing Michigan's future for all children.

Getting our society out of its present mess is going to require the fully tapped potential of them all. Of course, this will cost money. Financially strapped administrations cite research which they say substantiates the truism that class sizes don't affect the quality of instruction, but common sense tells us that teachers can individualize instruction much more easily with smaller classes. The class size problem in Michigan's largest district is particularly monstrous due to the dire social conditions there. It's hard to blame Detroit for singling out a few schools for empowerment and choice — euphemisms for a concept which can be more frankly expressed like this: "We don't have anywhere near enough money to upgrade every school, so we're going to try to improve just a few of them and let the rest drift down the drain." Schools of choice aren't the answer. Making all schools into choice schools is the only answer.

A Detroit union coalition advocates leaving schools open for longer hours and remodeling them into centers which would house some health, recreation and other community services. It recommends instituting volunteer tutorial programs, adapting adult education curricula to industrial needs and providing on-site care for children of adult students and school employees.

If Detroit could pull this rabbit out of a hat for all of its schools, they'd be truly empowered.

For years, I've been propounding that plan, and it's applicable to other districts, too. But again, all of us will need to roll up our sleeves and support it. Meanwhile, we need to find a fuller and more equitable way to finance public education than the property tax gimmick. Then good people won't always have to picket and strike and strive to pass paltry millages in desperate efforts to refurbish Michigan's — and America's — tarnished and cloudy future. We will already have ensured that it will shine.

John Telford, a Rochester Hills resident, most recently was assistant superintendent in the Rochester School District. He previously was executive director for secondary education in the Plymouth Canton district.

Empowerment concept carries some limitations

QUESTION: A major issue in the Detroit teachers' strike seems to be the empowerment issue, a concept in which teachers and parents make building level decisions. What's the problem with the concept?

ANSWER: As a former assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction for years, I believe that empowering teachers, parents and building administrators in the decision making process is the way to go. It worked for me.

However, this is not a perfect world and there exist limitations which all parties need to clearly understand or the concept will fade away. Issues such as:

In Detroit, a computerized school supply system appears to require teachers to commit considerably more "clerical time" than their contract calls for.

Experienced teachers and administrators know that empowerment is not new. Many "ancestors" have preceded the "new" empowerment concept. Zero Based budgeting in the '60(s) gave X dollars to school building for principal and staff to decide its use. We have had Site Based Management in the '70(s), Participatory Management (somewhere along the way). For the 'ole timers, we had the Mager's Behavioral Objective system that involved all parties with stated outcomes for all school issues. Don't forget Dr. Glasser who gave us the Quality Circle which some administrations adopted to school management. And Dr. Wendell Hough of Wayne State University has been implementing CIPS, the Collaborative School Improvement Process for 20 years, with positive feedback.

Limitations

Why empowerment management

plans come and go is often because teachers, administrators and parents are not clearly sensitized to the limitations. For instance:

If parents and teachers are made to believe they will be making decisions outside of the realm of their responsibility, they are being deceived. The building principal is the one who will be called on the carpet if an empowerment committee in his/her building is dominated by some off-the wall parent group. And teachers will go back to their room and tend to their first priority — the children.

A teacher/school building empowerment committee will always prioritize its basic needs first. This will precede esoteric ventures into curriculum.

Dictatorial principals will smile and go along with an empowerment plan (at central office meetings) while still managing the building in the same, single-minded mode that has been successful for them. And, frankly, some teachers prefer this management style.

When empowerment hits a building, the 20 percent risk-taking type teachers in the building will eagerly jump in with both feet ready to go. The "I'll watch and see if it fails" teachers (about 70 percent) will join in if the plan becomes successful. That leaves those 10 percent of teachers who hate administrators and know anything from the central office is a communist plot.

The democratic, child and teacher-oriented principal won't even know something new is going on because it is the way he/she has always operated.

Therefore, empowerment plans can delegate some authority in the decision-making process but cannot delegate away the responsibility.

Indeed, the electorate will not only hold the principal and the superintendent responsible but eventually the board of education if "things get wild".

I believe in participatory management. Call it empowerment or whatever.

You see, the more teachers are involved in curriculum decision-making the more they have at stake to make the curriculum successful. The less involved, the less interest in the outcome. But beyond curriculum empowerment, there is a fine line.

Hungary to change

Communist era falls away in Budapest

BY JUDITH INGRAM
NEW YORK TIMES SYNDICATE

Budapest, Hungary, is at its best in the autumn when the end-to-end tourist buses go into hibernation and local residents reclaim their city.

The capital wakes up in a blue mist and basks in the golden light of fall afternoons; sunshine sparkles off the tiles of turn-of-the-century mosaics, and soft shadows hide the cracks and wrinkles of this aging but ever vain capital.

The city is peppered with lookout points. Good spots include the Erzsebet Lookout Tower atop Janos Hill in Buda, which can be reached by the chairlift — about 50 cents — that starts at Zugligeti Road.

Lower in the Buda Hills is the Szechenyi Lookout on Evetke Street near the Szabadeag Hegy stop of the cogwheel railway, which runs up into the hills from Szilagyi Erzsebet Parkway across from the Hotel Budapest.

Bus and cogwheel railway tickets cost about 20 cents. The closest lookout to the center of town is on Gellert Hill at the Liberation Statue.

This fall visitors can glimpse the last of the ideological communist-era statues, which are being removed from the sites they have dominated for up to four decades. Pre-World War II statues are being put back in their places of honor, emphasizing Budapest's nostalgia for the precommunist past.

Many streets now carry two names: the prewar one and the communist-era name, crossed out with a thick red line. Communist crests on the Chain Bridge are draped with gray cloth.

For a short time the two contradictory faces of the city will be on display simultaneously.

Events

The Festival Orchestra has existed since 1983 as a "dissident" ensemble that did not bend to the will of the communist-era arts management. Now the city, dominated by former dissidents, has adopted it as Budapest's official orchestra.

The orchestra, conducted by Ivan Fischer, opened its season Sept. 24 with a free concert featuring Mozart, Glinka, Britten and Brahms in the Great Hall of the Art Nouveau Academy of Music. The season runs through May; tickets cost $2 to $10.

The two-week Budapest Fall Festival, packed with concerts, dance and theater performances, literary readings and art exhibits, opened Sept. 26 in Vorosmarty Square with a free rock concert by a popular group called Sziam.

The festival's emphasis on alternative culture is reflected in the venues, including the Merlin Jazz Club, the grimy Black Hole hard-rock club and the intimate Art Deco Arany Janos Theater.

The festival also includes the Budapest Chamber Opera production of Strauss' "Ariadne auf Naxos," percussion concerts by the Amadinda ensemble, and performances by the Flemish Rosas and Leporello dance companies and the Blindman Brass Quartet.

Event tickets cost $1.30 to $8. Information and tickets for the festival as well as other concerts can be obtained at the Central Ticket Office, 1 Vorosmarty Square; telephone 117-6222.

The opera and ballet season is now open at the ornate Hungarian State opera House, 22 Andrassy Ave., 153-0170, and started Sept. 26 at the modern Erkel Theater, 30 Koztarsasag Square, 133-0540, where opera is performed in Hungarian.

Aside from Hungarian opera classics, the fall repertory includes "La Boheme," "Manon," "I Lombardi," "Tannhauser" and "Albert Herring," as well as the ballets "Anna Karenina" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The Hungarian National Museum, 14-16 Muzeum Boulevard, 138-2122 — open 10 a.m. to 5:45 p.m. daily except Monday — features an exhibit on Elizabeth, wife of the Hapsburg Emperor Franz Joseph and Hungary's best-loved queen. Her clothing, china, furniture, letters and even her horse's shoes are on display through January. Tickets: 80 cents.

A small but lovingly assembled exhibit on Raoul Wallenberg, the Swedish diplomat who saved the lives of thousands of Budapest Jews in 1944-45, is open, to Oct. 31 at the Contemporary History Museum in the Buda Castle Palace, 17 Disz Square, 175-7533.

Crossing the bridge: The Buda side of the Elizabeth Bridge is a great point to view the ancient architecture and park-edged modern highways.

The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. until Nov. 1, then closes at 4 p.m. until March 14; closed Monday. Admission is 40 cents. Through February the museum is also presenting an exhibit of photos and documents on Hungarians in the New World.

Sights

At Aquincum visitors can explore the remains of a second- and third-century Roman garrison town. The ruins and museum are open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. until Oct. 31; closed Monday. Admission is about 40 cents. Aquincum can be reached via the H.E.V. train from Batthyany Square.

The Tomb of Gul Baba on Mecset Street on Rose Hill, a remnant of the 160-year occupation by the Turks in the 16th and 17th centuries, remains a place of pilgrimage for Muslims. It is the burial place of a devout dervish who died in 1541 during a thanksgiving service at the Matyas Church — which had been whitewashed and transformed into a mosque in just three days to celebrate the Turkish victory in the battle for Buda.

The tomb is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. through October, then closes at 4 p.m. until May; closed Monday.

The Castle District, the area most visited by tourists, carries the most visible marks of Austria's 400-year dominion over the city. Note the Gothic arches in inner courtyards, and the outside walls topped with Baroque details.

To get a sense of Budapest's imperial grandeur at the turn of the century visitors should take a tour of the ornate, neo-Gothic Parliament building, all red-velvet upholstery, gold gilding and intricate carvings.

Tours, $6, organized by Budapest Tourist, 5 Roosevelt Square, 117-3555, take place Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., but call to be sure.

On Margaret Island is a 200-acre park where the ruins of a 13th-century cloister can be seen amid tall old trees and flowerbeds. In the northeastern part of the city the City Park (Varosliget) is the site of the fanciful Vajdahunyad Castle, displaying a composite of architectural styles. The castle, along with nearby Heroes Square, was built to celebrate Hungary's millennium in 1896.

Perhaps Budapest's best-kept secret is the Kiscelli Museum, 108 Kiscelli St., Obuda, 188-8560, which offers an eclectic collection in an 18th-century monastery and church.

The collection includes furniture, printing presses and 20th-century paintings and sculpture. There is also a 19th-century pharmacy with interesting-smelling concoctions in their original bottles.

Ships ahoy: Cruise around for discounts

BY EVERETT POTTER
SPECIAL WRITER

All hands on deck! Once again, the cruise industry has gone overboard with discounts. A savvy travel agent or a cruise-only agent will take one look at a cruise price and immediately slice off another 15 percent to 20 percent.

And last year's hefty discounts of 25 percent to 35 percent are back with a vengeance.

"We've seen a 35 percent drop in the cost of the average ticket in the last five years," says Mike Gross-man, president of Cruises of Distinction, a New Jersey-based cruise-only travel agency.

"That's staggering. They can't go much lower because it's cheaper to lay up the ship."

In past years only consumers who booked very early or waited until the last minute could get a major bargain. Now it seems everyone has a chance.

With the economy in recession, the cruise industry has more than 100,000 berths that can only be filled by vigorous year-round discounting.

"Instead of waiting until the last minute, we now see some cruise lines selling their whole year at discount," says Larry Fishkin, president of The Cruise Line, a Miami-based cruise-only travel agency.

Clients are now lured with various options. It could be a second week at sea for a rock-bottom price or a special two-passengers-for-the-price-of-one rate.

It could be a low standby fare offered three weeks before sailing.

These options come and go. But a knowledgeable travel agent should be aware of them.

To attract more clients, some cruise-only agencies will consume part of their own profits by offering rebates — for example, slicing an additional 5 percent off their already-discounted price.

"The cruise lines may say that rebating doesn't occur, but it happens a lot," says Grossman of Cruises of Distinction.

"We sometimes rebate, but the cruise lines won't let us publish our lowest price. So we simply tell our customers to call us because our rates are often lower than our printed ones. It's a silly game and it obscures the real price from the consumer."

Many agencies routinely review all bookings, notifying customers about upgrades or fare drops and, when appropriate, even refunding money.

Because of a lack of manpower, some agencies can't do that. So it's up to the consumer to ask an agent if there are any additional deals.

The agencies are usually happy to oblige because it's in their interest to keep their customers happy.

But aside from offering discounts, how do the cruise companies compete?

"Novelty is a marketing factor in this business," says Fishkin of The Cruise Line. "Newness counts. A 4-year-old ship is considered old. People want to be on the latest vessel. Theme cruises are also popular marketing tools."

"People are looking for extra value," says Jo Kling of Landry & Kling, a cruise-only agency in Coral Gables, Fla.

So the company offers theme cruises for non-smokers, chocolate lovers, devotees of Scottish dancing and other special-interest travelers.

Industry sources say approximately 2 million people, or about half of all Americans who took a cruise last year, will take another one this year.

Some 56 percent of Americans opt to sail in the Caribbean.

But a new hot trend is travel to Alaska for those who want to see the wilderness up close. Next season the companies will offer more than 300 cruises in Alaskan waters.

For further information contact Cruises of Distinction, 460 Bloomfield Ave., Montclair, N.J. 07042; telephone (800) 634-3445.

Or contact The Cruise Line, 4770 Biscayne Blvd., Miami, Fla. 33137; telephone (800) 777-0707.

Or contact Landry & Kling, 1390 S. Dixie Hwy., Suite 1207, Coral Gables, Fla. 33146; telephone (800) 223-2026.

Customers unhappy that judge failed to close bridal shops

BY GREG KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

"I'm not at all satisfied. I thought they would put him out of business."

So said a disgruntled Dennis Pater, one of the many customers who ordered, but never received, wedding gowns from the Boulevard Group, which has three bridal salons in Birmingham and others in Troy and Dearborn.

Company representatives were in Oakland County Circuit Court at a show-cause hearing Wednesday to consider extending a temporary restraining order preventing the stores from taking new orders unless the stores have the dresses in stock.

Judge Richard Kuhn decided to continue the restraining order and said he would appoint an independent person to monitor transactions at the stores.

Boulevard Group attorney Arnold Schaffer told the court the company had filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection the previous day, to protect it from creditors.

That news and the judge's action didn't please Pater.

"Not at all. Chapter 11 allows him to open up somewhere else under a new name," he said. "The system moves too slowly."

For Pater it's now a matter of principle. His son's wedding was Saturday and as of Wednesday the dresses still hadn't arrived. In desperation, the family ordered gowns from a J.C. Penney catalog and got them in time for the wedding.

Pater expressed the anger of numerous other jilted customers.

"If I had to make a thousand appearances to get him (Boulevard Bridal owner Gary Gottschling) in court, I would come down a thousand times."

Pater lost a $500 deposit on the dresses for his daughter-in-law and six bridesmaids. Some other customers lost thousands of dollars.

Deana Murley of Berkley lost a $260 down payment at the Boulevard Bridal Salon on Hunter. And she was just as angry.

"I hope he gets prosecuted. I hope he goes to jail," she said.

So far the case against Gary and Donna Gottschling is a civil matter. But the prosecutor's office said criminal charges could be filed for the 5,000 orders which weren't filled.

Judge Kuhn called the incident a "tragedy." He cited one instance of a bride who called the court saying she had paid for a dress but could not get into the store.

"We can't have that happen again," said Kuhn.

Kuhn allowed the restraining order to stand. He set a second hearing for 2:30 p.m. Oct. 14.

In the interim, he said the company is restrained from selling any display dresses as new. Further, the company was ordered to turn over financial records to the court and is forbidden from altering or destroying any financial records.

Kuhn said he plans to appoint an independent person to monitor transactions. However, he said before that can be done it will have to be determined who will pay for the person's services.

He suggested the recently created

Michigan Bridal Association might be interested in covering the cost.

That organization of 10 bridal salons was formed about four months ago when complaints against The Boulevard Group first arose.

Ed Grace, owner of Ce-Ge's Bridal and Boutique in Farmington Hills, said, "I don't know what's going to happen. Nobody knows."

He said the incident has thrown a shadow over the local bridal shop industry, but his store has been working to help brides get their dresses on time.

"I've had three instant brides. We've gotten dresses overnight," Grace said.

Regardless of the outcome of the case against The Boulevard Group, Grace said the new organization will continue.

"There is some good coming out of this," he said.

Gottschling could not be reached for comment.

TWO PHRASES TO AVOID
The first: "Take your time."
If you assist individuals with arthritis from a car or to and from an appointment do not say: "Take your time."
Usually the arthritic person is moving as fast as he or she is able. If that person could stride with more grace and take a quicker step walking would be done that way. People with arthritis who must walk in a slow and awkward way are embarrassed by their impairment. They are already trying as best they can.
Under the circumstances, you help the most by holding doors open, minimizing barriers in the way, and talking about anything except what calls attention to the person's painful gait.
The second: "You should get out and walk."
Likely the reason people with arthritis remain in their chair is not depression, indifference, or ignorance of the benefits of exercise. Usually, what keeps them down is pain. If the individual could get up and walk then he or she would. Urging exercise only emphasizes the gulf between you and that person, and adds another source of pain.
Instead, offer to assist if at any time that individual wants to attempt to walk. Or, you can help to make the sedentary state as tolerable as possible.
Be careful what you say. Nowadays, loose words may not sink ships but they sap spirit and rekindle rancor.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Szechwan food sizzles with red chili peppers

Forget the chop suey. We're talking potency here. Anyone who has ventured into realm of the food characteristics from the culinary regions of China knows that Szechwan cooking is not for the faint of tongue.

Chinese restaurants are a dime a dozen and can be head on just about every block in most major cities. Szechwan cooking, on the other hand, is a regional specialty that demands its participants to sit up and take notice.

Prepared in local restaurants that can be counted on one hand, the hot, spicy recipes have a tendency to throw the tasteless, bland basic stir-frys that are so much staple of "Westernized" palates out with last night's rice.

After a visit to one of my favorite Szechwan eateries, I decided to do a little research and find out just what it is that makes these unique additions to Chinese cuisine sizzle. And I do mean sizzle.

Szechwan history

Szechwan cuisine comes from a region in China, the name meaning "four streams" and "high on the mountain."

Because of the abundance of water and the area being classified as "wet," the local folks began intensifying their basic Chinese foods with hot and spicy dishes to rid the "wet" from their bodies. And rid you of sweat it does.

Of course, that's not to say that all Szechwan foods are hot and spicy. If you choose to dine at any local Szechwan restaurants, you will notice that the menu includes foods from just about every province of China, with the hot and spicy dishes noticeably marked with an asterisk to denote their spiciness.

In addition, you can order any spicy dish four different ways, from the basic but tasty "spicy but not hot" all the way to the incendiary "full strength" that in my opinion, should be served with a side of bicarb.

Cooking principals

Most specialty restaurants utilize two main cooking principals when preparing their cuisine, the ever-present wok and the steamer.

Next time you're in and the place isn't packed, ask to see the state-of-the-art Chinese kitchen, which incorporates the use of six woks and various steamers.

Don't be surprised to see the chef chopping up what seems to be a hundred pounds of green onions, or if your timing is perfect, you might be able to observe the traditional "blowing up" of the Peking Duck.

This dish, a culinary feast to enjoy as well as behold, is a house specialty and incorporates the blowing up a balloon inside the duck's cavity to "press out" as much of the duck fat as possible, making for a crispier and less fatty product. Yes, the balloon is removed before cooking and serving.

All the sauces used to garnish and flavor the spicy dishes are prepared by Oriental chefs trained mainly in China.

Favorite dishes

One of my favorites is the dramatic spiciness of the Champagne sauce used to flavor crispy shrimps.

Another personal favorite is the General's Chicken with chunks of incendiary hot red peppers floating amid a sea of spicy sauce and chunks of chicken bits.

Looking for something a little out of the ordinary? Most kitchen crews are very adaptable to preparing specialty dishes not normally seen on the menu, but requested by patrons who frequent the establishments.

Vegetarian choices

Vegetarians can easily choose from a wide assortment of flavorful dishes and luscious soups. With MSG still being widely used, many restaurants will cater to a requesting customer by offering a "no MSG" entree.

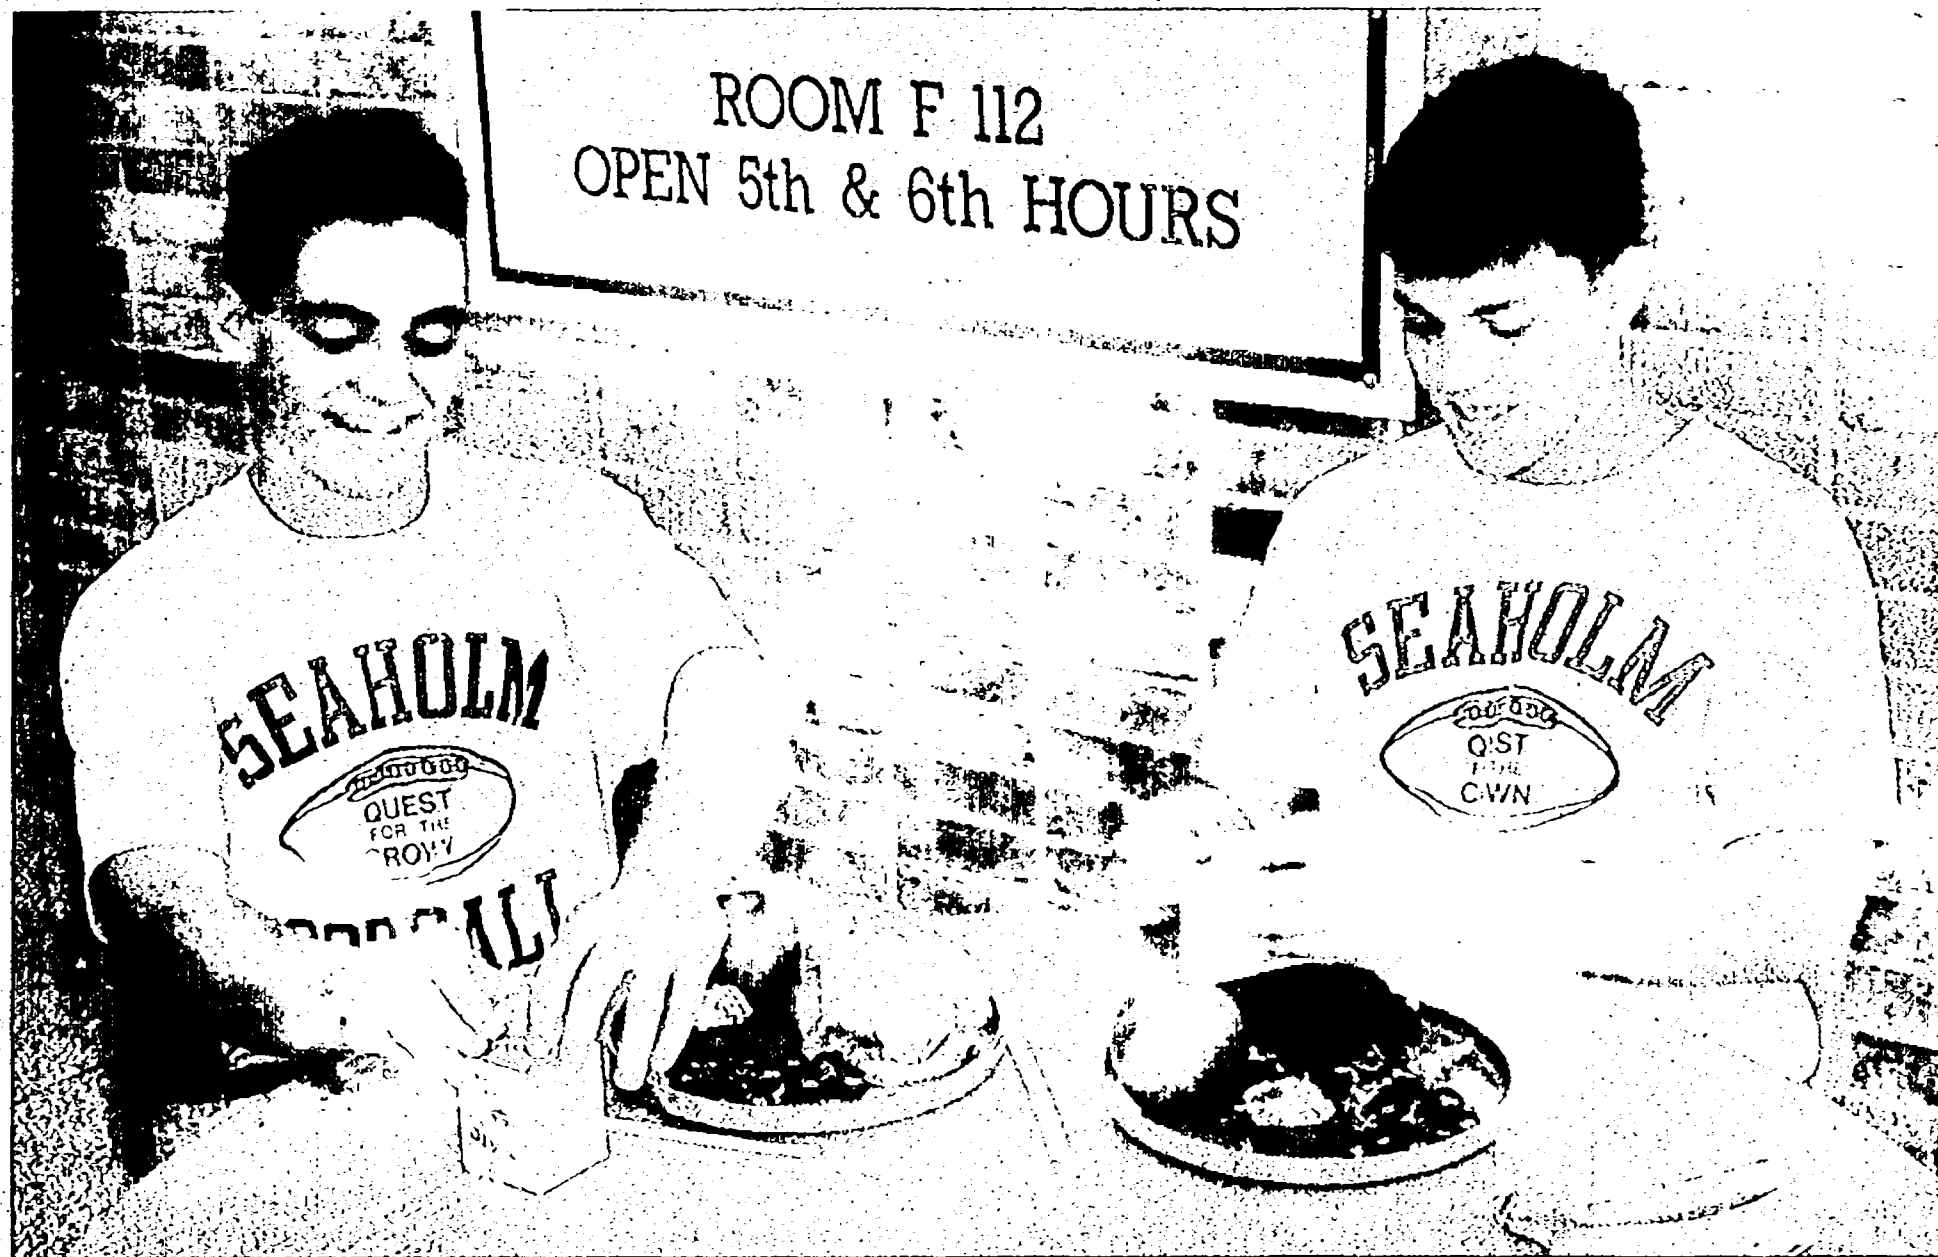

For the home cook interested in preparing great spicy dishes, many supermarkets are expanding their selections of Oriental foods while competing with Oriental grocery stores that stock flaming hot pepper oils, heated-beyond-belief hot garlic chili sauces by the jar and low-sodium and mushroom-flavored soy sauce.

Many area grocers are stocking a great assortment of fresh and canned exotic vegetables like ginger-root, bok choy, (a Chinese cabbage) egg roll wrappers, and daikon, (a Chinese radish.)

A favorite accompaniment frequently enjoyed by the Janes Gang is simply stir-fried broccoli tossed with a tablespoon of hot garlic chili sauce.

You can toss in a few shrimps and serve with rice for a made to order dish that can be made in minutes, using anything from a non-stick skillet to a wok.

See Janes Gang tested-recipes for mushrooms with oyster sauce and Kung Pao Chicken inside.

Healthy kickoff: Matt Warnick and Mark Bouchard enjoy a healthy pre-game lunch at Birmingham Seaholm High School. Both are on the football team.

Don't fumble student athlete diet

By GERRI RINSCHLER
SPECIAL WRITER

Marc Bouchard and Matt Warnick are varsity football players who train intensely year round. Their training includes not just the physical and motivational aspects of football, but also the nutritional aspects according to coach Doug Fraser at Birmingham's Seaholm High School.

During the off season, Fraser spends lots of time talking to his team about eating right, every day.

"Athletes have gotten a lot of confusing advice in the past, and some still do. The steak and eggs, high protein menus for pre-games have been replaced with complex carbohydrate foods such as pasta, vegetables, beans and bagels," he said.

"Many students think that muscles are made of protein, and think they need to eat lots of protein. The body can only use so much protein, the rest is converted to fat."

Student athletes are fed a lot of confusing information about nutrition, but Birmingham Seaholm High School coach Doug Fraser and Sally Van Cise, a registered dietitian and exercise physiologist, help set the record straight.

Foods high in carbohydrates and low in fat are ideal for pre-game meals. Fraser also recommends eating foods that are easily digestible and contain enough calories to prevent hunger during the game. He also suggests that the meal be accompanied by two to three glasses of liquid to provide hydration.

Sally Van Cise, a registered dietitian and exercise physiologist at Beaumont Hospital's Nutritional Medicine Clinic in Birmingham agrees that athletes need to eat well daily — three meals a day, and three healthy snacks.

"Athletes need more calories than non-athletes," she said. The average number of calories a teen-age athlete needs will vary from 2,000 to 4,000 depending on the sport they play, the number of hours they practice, and their personal growth and development.

Van Cise recommends including fresh vegetables, fruits, breads and grains with most meals.

"They should be low in fat and low in added sugar as added sugars can cause fatigue."

She also said drinking eight glasses of water a day is essential for the athlete. Van Cise advises them to not wait until they're feeling thirsty. Water is the best choice when you're thirsty, but if the student prefers something sweet, Van Cise recommends diluting fruit juice or sport drinks with water especially for pre-game practices.

Mix one cup of Kool-Aid or Gatorade with three cups of water, or one cup of fruit juice with six cups of water to avoid stomach cramps.

Nancy Mc Clenaghan of Healthways, a health food shop in Plymouth, said sports drinks such as Recharge, Ultra Fuel and Hydrofuel are very popular.

"Mostly I sell them to body builders as opposed to marathon runners or team athletes," she said.

Mc Clenaghan recommends reading the labels before buying these sport drinks because the ingredients can vary. Some contain natural fruit juices and some have natural flavoring, some contain sea salt and others may have no salt or sodium.

As a dietitian, Van Cise is very aware that teens skip breakfast. When they're on the go or just can't eat in the morning, she suggests packing a bagel or dry cereal in a sealable bag to eat while

School nurse practices good nutrition at home

BETSY BRETHEN

Despite all the evidence that continues to be accumulated about the connection between good nutrition and behavior, mothers today are facing stiff competition from the junk food and fast food industries. However, a recently published book, "Eating for A's" by Alexander Schauss, Barbara and

Arnold Meyer, offers a helpful plan for mothers who want to get their children off to a good start as this school year gets under way.

Featuring recipes and a 12 week nutrition plan, the program specifically aims at improving a child's academic and athletic performance.

This week's Winner Dinner Winner, Cindy Mecssey of Bloomfield Hills, practices what she preaches about good nutrition to the many students she encounters in her role as the Kingswood campus nurse at Cranbrook Schools.

She said she loves having the opportunity to interact in and out of the classroom with students from all over the world. As their "mom away from home," Mecssey is there to comfort them when they are sick and counsel them on a one-to-one or group basis whenever they have medical or diet-related concerns.

A firm believer in the importance of eating a well-balanced meal, Mecssey submitted a menu that is low in fat, high in fiber and easy to make. Featuring recipes for lemon chicken, brown rice royale and zucchini bread. Mecssey accompanies this meal with steamed broccoli and carrots and a salad of cut-up seasonal fruits.

Mecssey and her husband Tom, who teaches sixth grade science at Cranbrook Middle School, and the 1990 recipient of the Metro Detroit Outstanding Science Teacher of the Year award, are the parents of three children. A close family, they love to go camping and involve their children in all aspects of their lives.

LEMON CHICKEN

6 chicken breasts, boneless and skinless
1-2 lemons (or 3-5 Tablespoons lemon concentrate)
1 garlic clove, finely chopped
1 cup bread crumbs
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1-2 tablespoons vegetable or olive oil
3-4 heaping tablespoons fresh parsley, chopped
2 ounces sliced almonds
Lemon peels or paper-thin lemon slices
Salt and pepper to taste

Place eggs and bread crumbs in separate bowls. Dip chicken breasts in egg and then roll in bread crumbs. In a large skillet, add chopped garlic to oil and cook on medium heat, being careful not to burn the garlic. Lightly brown both sides of breaded chicken in skillet. Remove meat to paper towels to drain. Place chicken in a casserole dish or shallow baking pan. Pour lemon juice or lemon concentrate over the chicken. Add 1/4 cup of water to cover the bottom of the dish. Cover with lid or foil and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes to 1 hour.

BROWN RICE ROYALE

1 1/2 cups fresh mushrooms, sliced
1/2 cup finely chopped green onions, including tops
1/4 cup finely chopped celery, including leaves
1-2 tablespoons butter or margarine

1 can chicken broth, 14 1/2 ounces
1 cup brown rice

In a 2 or 3 quart saucepan, saute vegetables in butter or margarine until tender. Add rice and chicken broth and bring to a boil. Cover with a tight-fitting lid and lower heat to simmer. Cook 1 hour or until rice is tender, adding additional broth or water to prevent rice from burning, if necessary. Serves 4 to 6.

ZUCCHINI BREAD

3 eggs
2 cups sugar
1 cup vegetable oil
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup raisins
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup shelled walnuts or pecans (optional) coarsely chopped
3 cups flour, unsifted
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 cups zucchini peeled, grated and drained to remove excess moisture

Beat eggs until foamy and gradually add sugar and oil. Combine and sift dry ingredients and add to egg mixture. Add zucchini, vanilla, raisins and nuts. Pour batter into two buttered and floured loaf pans.

Bake at 350 degrees for 55 to 65 minutes, or until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean. Let stand 10 minutes, remove from pans and cool completely on a rack. Makes two large loaves or six mini loaves.

MUSHROOMS WITH OYSTER SAUCE

- 1 pound fresh mushrooms
- 3 Tablespoons oil
- 2 green onions, minced
- 1 teaspoon minced ginger root

- 1 teaspoon cornstarch, blended with 2 Tablespoons water
  - 2 Tablespoons oyster sauce
  - salt and pepper to taste
  - 1 teaspoon sherry
  - ½ teaspoon sugar
  - 2 teaspoons sesame seed oil
- Slice mushrooms, set aside. Heat oil in wok or skillet and add onions and ginger root. Add mushrooms and stir-fry one minute. Set cornstarch blend aside. Add remaining ingredients except cornstarch and toss for one minute.

Stir in cornstarch. Cook for two minutes, stirring until thickened.

KUNG PAO CHICKEN

- 2 whole chicken breasts, skinned and boned
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 egg white
- 1 Tablespoon cornstarch
- 2 cups oil for frying
- ½ cup skinless roasted peanuts

- 10 whole dried red chili peppers
  - 2 green onions, chopped
  - 2 cloves garlic, minced
- Sauce:
- 1 teaspoon chili paste with garlic
  - 2 Tablespoons soy sauce
  - 1 teaspoon wine vinegar
  - 1 teaspoon sugar
  - ¼ cup chicken stock
  - 1 teaspoon cornstarch
  - 1 teaspoon sesame seed oil

In a small bowl, blend the sauce ingredients. Heat oil in wok to 400 degrees. Deep-fry chicken until cooked throughout. Remove and drain.

Lower heat in wok to 350 degrees. Deep-fry peanuts in a strainer until golden brown, drain.

Remove all but two tablespoons of oil in the wok. Heat to 400 degrees and stir-fry red chili peppers until they are dark red. Lower the heat to 275 degrees, add green onions and garlic. Stir-fry one minute.

Pour in chicken, stir-fry one minute. Add the sauce, stir-fry until heated and glazed. Add peanuts. Toss and serve with rice or noodles.

WHOLESALE APPLE BARS

- ½ cup sugar
- ¾ cup brown sugar
- ¾ cup soft margarine
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 eggs or 4 egg whites
- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- ¾ cup flour
- 1 cup Wheaties cereal, slightly crushed
- ¾ cup old-fashioned rolled oats
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt

- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- ½ teaspoon ground cloves
- 2 large baking apples, peeled, cored and diced

Cream the margarine with the sugars. Beat in vanilla and eggs. In a large bowl, combine dry ingredients and set aside. Add creamed margarine and blend until smooth. Fold in diced apples.

Lightly grease a 9 by 13-inch baking dish with a non-stick cooking oil spray.

Spoon batter into pan and bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for 30 minutes or until cake tester comes out clean. When cool, cut into bars. Makes 24 bars (141 calories each).

SOFT PRETZELS

- 1½ teaspoons yeast
- ¾ cup warm water
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1½ teaspoons sugar
- 2 cups flour
- 1 egg white, beaten

Dissolve yeast, salt and sugar in warm water. Blend in flour and knead until smooth. Divide dough into eight pieces. Roll each piece on a lightly floured board to form an eight-inch long rope. Twist rope into a pretzel shape or letter of the alphabet. Spray a cookie sheet lightly with a non-stick cooking oil spray.

Set pretzels on cookie sheet and brush each with the beaten egg white. Bake in a preheated 425 degree oven for 12-15 minutes. Serve warm with mustard. Makes 8 servings (116 calories each).

Both recipes provided by the Beaumont Nutritional Medicine Clinic in Birmingham.

walking to the bus or later in the morning.

An alternative for those who don't like breakfast foods is to try a healthy fruit and oatmeal bar, homemade egg muffin sandwich made with low fat sliced cheese, a scrambled egg or two cooked egg whites and a homemade muffin or biscuit made with low fat margarine.

For those dinner times when there is no time to eat, a pita sandwich stuffed with cooked chicken or turkey and vegetables or pizza bagels made with tomato sauce, low fat mozzarella cheese, sliced vegetables or cooked ground turkey sausage will suffice.

Avoid trying new foods or recipes the night of the game, said Fraser. It's best to work out a routine meal plan early in the season.

Chicken dish hot stuff

San Antonio Chicken with Picante Black Bean Sauce, a fuss-free main dish with spicy Tex-Mex flavors, has taken top honors — and the $3,000 Grand Prize — in the 1992 Pace Picante Sauce "Pick Up The Pace" Recipe Contest. The contest, an annual round-up of original recipes prepared with Pace Picante Sauce, inspired a wealth of creative entries from spicy food fans nationwide.

Crowd pleasing and quick to fix, the prize-winning main dish simmers boneless, skinless chicken breasts in a boldly seasoned mix of black beans, bell peppers and corn, and takes its garden-fresh flavor and spicy jalapeno heat from mild, medium or hot picante sauce.

A last-minute sprinkling of cilantro completes the recipe, and a simple salad and corn bread or tortillas turns it into a fast fiesta. Charlene Margesson, a computer aide from Brentwood, Calif., is the proud creator of best-of-contest recipe.

Entries in this year's recipe contest revealed that creative cooks are really using the old bean. Canned beans and dried beans, often in combinations of two, three or more, were some of the most frequently incorporated ingredients across all recipe contest categories.

Mexican, Tex-Mex and Italian flavors predominated, especially in pizzas, pasta dishes and chili. In fact, so many creative chili recipes were entered that plans for next year's contest include a separate category just for chili lovers.

SAN ANTONIO CHICKEN WITH PICANTE BLACK BEAN SAUCE

- 6 chicken breast halves, boned and skinned
- 2 teaspoons ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1 Tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1 cup rinsed and drained

Tex-Mex chicken: San Antonio Chicken with Picante Black Bean Sauce simmers boneless, skinless chicken breasts in a mix of black beans, corn, bright bell peppers and picante sauce.

- canned black beans
- 1 can (8 ounces) whole kernel corn, drained
- 2/3 cup Pace Picante Sauce
- 1/2 cup diced red bell pepper
- 2 Tablespoons chopped cilantro

Sprinkle both sides of chicken with 1 teaspoon of the cumin and the garlic salt. Heat oil in 12-inch skillet over medium-high heat. Add chicken; cook 3 minutes. In medium bowl, combine beans, corn, Pace Picante Sauce, red pepper and remaining 1 teaspoon cumin. Turn chicken; spoon bean mixture evenly over chicken.

Reduce heat to medium; cook uncovered 6-7 minutes or until chicken is cooked through. Push bean mixture off chicken into skillet. Transfer chicken to serving platter, using a slotted spoon; keep warm. Cook bean mixture over high heat 2-3 minutes or until thickened, stirring frequently; spoon over chicken. Sprinkle with cilantro and serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Italian restaurants share recipes

The recipes for "A Taste of Italy," on September 21, were accidentally omitted from the paper. Here are recipes from Fonte D'Amore in Livonia and Cafe Cortina in Farmington Hills.

CHICKEN FRADIAVLO

- 4 eight-ounce boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1 teaspoon chopped garlic
- 1 teaspoon crushed red chili pepper
- 1 cup chopped tomatoes
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup white wine
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1 teaspoon dried or fresh basil
- salt and pepper to taste

Saute chicken breast in 1/4 cup of olive oil. Brown, both sides, remove from pan. Add remaining olive oil, garlic, pepper, tomatoes, onion, green pepper, wine and seasonings. Sautee over medium heat for five minutes. Add chicken, sautee for five more minutes. Pour sauce over chicken. Serves 4.

Translated, this dish means Chicken of the Devil because of the chili pepper, it's hot! Recipe from Luciano Del Signore of Fonte D'Amore in Livonia.

RISOTTO WITH ZUCCHINI

- About 2 Tablespoons olive oil for sauteeing
- 1 clove garlic chopped
- 1 teaspoon butter
- 1/4 cup fresh basil

- 1 medium zucchini, finely chopped about two cups
- 1 cup Arborio rice
- 5 cups chicken soup stock salt and pepper to taste

Saute garlic in olive oil, add 1/4 cup fresh basil, butter and zucchini. Sautee 2 minutes. Add Arborio rice and chicken soup stock. Simmer, keep stirring; add salt to taste. Add water if necessary, cook and stir until it thickens.

Rina Tonon of Cafe Cortina in Farmington Hills suggests serving the risotto with breast of chicken grilled with rosemary and sage. She seasons the chicken breast with olive oil, fresh rosemary, sage, salt and pepper and rubs the seasonings into the meat. She suggests marinating the meat in the refrigerator for about an hour prior to grilling.

Prize-winning area chefs offer delicious apple recipes

KEELY WYGONIK

Silvana Caparuscio, manager of Pure 'n' Simple Vegetarian Restaurant in Troy proved once again, that healthy food doesn't have to taste bland at the Hudson's Fall Marketplace Fair held at Oakland and Twelve Oaks Mall Sept. 14-17. At the last fair, Caparuscio won a prize for her banana cream pie.

"I try to make food pure and simple the way nature created it," she said. "That's my life, to show people there's a better way to eat."

Another winning apple recipe, Hudson Valley Grilled Chicken with MacIntosh Relish was prepared by Chef William Collins of the Sheraton Oaks Hotel in Novi. This colorful, festive dish is perfect for Sunday dinners.

Where's your favorite pumpkin patch or elder mill? Call me at 953-2105. I'm working on a story for October 12, and I need your help. Next week I'll have some recipes from area cooks who won ribbons at the Michigan State Fair.

Happy New Year to all of our Jewish readers who will be celebrating Rosh Hashanah this week.

During the celebration, Jews reflect on the past year, making amends for past wrongs, and look forward to the new year. It's a solemn occasion marked by self-appraisal.

It is customary to have something sweet and avoid anything sour at the Rosh Hashanah meal because of the ancient belief that what one ate determined what the year ahead would hold.

If you're not Jewish, join the spirit of the holiday. Don't wait until Jan. 1 to say you're sorry to someone, or to change your life for the better.

Back to food, here are some delicious prize-winning apple recipes.

APPLE-APRICOT FINESSE

- Pie filling
- 6 cups apples, peeled & chopped
  - ¾ cups dried apricots, thinly sliced or snipped
  - 2 Tablespoons raisins
  - 1 teaspoon almond extract
  - 1 cup rice syrup
  - ¼ cup freshly-squeezed orange juice
  - 1 Tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon corn starch
  - ½ teaspoon ground cardamom
  - ½ teaspoon ground coriander
- Topping
- ½ cup almonds
  - ½ cup walnuts (chopped)
  - ¼ cup cashew pieces
  - ¼ cup sunflower seeds

- 2 Tablespoons sesame seeds
  - ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
  - 1 Tablespoon corn oil
  - 2 Tablespoons maple syrup
  - 2 Tablespoons barley malt
- Combine the apricots, orange juice and almond extract. Let stand for 30 minutes. Stirring occasionally, add the apples, raisins, rice syrup and spices. Spoon mixture into an unbaked, whole wheat pie crust (bottom only).
- To prepare topping, combine nuts, seeds and cinnamon. Add corn oil, syrup, and malt. Mix all together and place on top of the pie. Cover with foil to avoid burning.
- Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes. Next, reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for 30 minutes more. Finally, remove the foil and bake 15 minutes longer. Let cool on a rack.
- Submitted by Silvana Caparuscio, manager Pure 'n' Simple

Street SCENE

Mystery maker: Comedian Eddie Jaye has taken his laughs to new heights by engineering murder mystery weekends at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island.

He gets his laughs in mysterious way

BY PATRICK KEATING
SPECIAL WRITER

It could be that one of America's funniest entertainers lives here in Michigan. His name is Eddie Jaye, and since 1976, he has made people laugh with a mixture of comedy and ventriloquism that never resorts to off-color humor.

For two years, he toured with country songsters Alabama as their opening act. He has also opened for David Copperfield, Gladys Knight and the Pips, Lee Greenwood and Randy Travis.

More recently, Jaye put together a show called "The New Vaudeville Revue," a three-man show, featuring himself, comedy juggler Jim Oakley and the comedy magic of Steve Ryder.

Comedy remains his main source of income, but Eddie Jaye is a modern day renaissance man, and comedy alone is not enough to satisfy him. He's been a television director for ad agencies, a freelance reporter and an award winning amateur chef.

"I've never been content just to do one thing," Jaye said. "I have a lot of interests."

Since 1985, the Royal Oak resident has been writing and producing murder mysteries at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island. The mystery is set in some other era, and for four days, guests live in that era.

"Every one is based on historical fact," Jaye said. "All our guests come dressed in that era. If the scene of our murder mystery is 1939, the clothes everyone wears comes from 1939."

Previous "Murder at the Grand" events have been set during the Civil War, the 1880s and the 1920s. The most recent was set in Las Vegas in 1948.

According to Jaye, every aspect of the event, including the entertainment is appropriate to the time period in which the mystery is set. In fact, during a recent Murder Mystery set in 1944, Jaye arranged to fit the wedding of two of the guests into the plot. Since the setting was World War II, and the groom portrayed a colonel in the OSS, Jaye went so far as to get a real Army chaplain to perform the ceremony.

A new twist

Jaye tries to use the Grand Hotel as the Grand Hotel whenever possible. The next Murder Mystery, the "Time Machine Murders," will be held Oct. 15-18. According to Jaye, it is a departure from the usual format.

"This one is different," he said. "We always go back in time, but in this one, the time frame is 1992 and all the other time eras are coming to us."

The premise is that in 1892, Sherlock Holmes is visited by an inventor friend named Professor Edmond Montelth, who has invented the Inter-Dimensional Time Machine. Holmes sets out to prove to all eras, past and future, that he is the world's greatest detective.

Holmes and the professor end up at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island in 1992, "closely followed by an awesome array of criminals all out to get the men who disturbed their lives."

During the weekend, actors portray the suspects, while guests are part of a detective team of 16-20 people. They examine the scene of the crime, gather clues and question suspects in an attempt to ascertain the guilty parties.

And adds Jaye, with some pride, the late Stephen Birnbaum, travel editor for CBS News, once referred to the Murder at the Grand as "the Cadillac of all mystery vacations."

New venture

Not one to rest on his laurels, Jaye has developed a new business venture, which he calls "Artographs." For the past 20 years, he's been acquiring, as gifts for friends, autographs of famous personalities, and framing them along with other related items.

"I'd been collecting autographs and memorabilia for years; it's just something I'm interested in," he said. "I love history . . . and I've discovered over the years, that people have icons, people have . . . heroes."

Obviously, they're pricey — the least expensive one would probably be around $250 — however, he authenticates all autographs before framing them. He uses several sources to verify the legitimacy of the autographs he purchases.

"If you sell a bum autograph, your business is shot; you've lost credibility."

Eddie Jaye's upcoming Murder at the Grand is sponsored by A.T.S. Travel and costs $520 per person (double occupancy) or $799 single. Reservations can be made by calling A.T.S. Travel at 543-7954.

Kitchens cooks — musically

It bothers Julian Swales that some critics have labeled his band's latest effort as being too much of the same old thing. But Swales says they need to give "The Death of Cool" a better listen and they'll see that the Kitchens of Distinction have progressed.

BY LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

In an interview, Julian Swales is quite like the radiant and vibratory guitar soundscapes he creates for Kitchens of Distinction: petulant and gushing.

The native of south Wales raves on in a trans-Atlantic phone call about how the band's next album is going to mark a radical departure. The discourse includes how he plans to shun the space-age effects, his hopes to incorporate samples and other mixed bits into the stew and even how the stark, penetrating guitar style on Neil Young's "Cortez the Killer" off of "Weld" has had a profound effect on him.

Only Swales stops himself, seemingly to obey an imaginary yellow light of caution that has appeared before him.

"I suppose I should be talking about this album," says Swales.

"The Death of Cool," (A&M) the threesome's highly anticipated follow-up to the 1991 college/alternative radio darling "Strange New World," is not something to be overlooked.

The release maintains all the Kitchens of Distinction hallmarks: Emotionally-drenched lyrics sung by singer/songwriter Patrick Fitzgerald buoyed by Swales' boundless bevy of shattering atmospheric guitar forays.

Critics have had their way with "The Death of Cool" though: Some have dismissed it for being too much of the same old thing.

"There's been a progression," says Swales, discussing the subject without prompting. "Some say there hasn't been. Some say there has."

"Those people (who say there hasn't been) haven't listened to it properly. They've only listened to it once or twice and judge it on the weight of that."

Sounding a bit wounded, Swales goes on to point out some of the groundbreaking aspects of "The Death of Cool." For one, he contends there were less guitar effects used on the whole.

Swales also cites the seven-minute plus tracks such as "Mad as Snow," which is largely melancholic but tendered spritely with deliberate acoustic strumming before exploding into a fireball of guitar pyrotechnics.

What many have latched onto are songwriter Patrick Fitzgerald's more introspective lyrics this time out.

Songs such as "On Tooting Broadway Station" and "What Happens Now?" has the singer bitterly wading through an emotional Tiber while "4 Men" is rather implicit in its, er, unsatiated sexual yearnings.

"It's just that Patrick had been going through a lot . . . before the last album came out," Swales says.

"There was much less turmoil when we did ("Strange New World") when we all were really enjoying playing and we were performing songs about the ocean and as such."

Has the fact Patrick has dealt openly — such as in "4 Men" — with his homosexuality changed how the band is perceived?

"My experience is all relationships are the same," Swales says. "I know the song is about a man and I sing along with it on stage, but it could easily be a woman he's singing about. It could all be the same thing."

Swales is more engrossed in how the Kitchens of Distinction's approach will change in the future.

Underneath the "Strange New World's" veneer of plush guitar orchestrations were textures of free jazz. Swales, who's been listening religiously to Miles Davis recently, would like to include more of those elements into the Kitchens' fray.

Also, the band has asked rappers Kriss Kross to perform on their next single. If anything, Swales just sees the need for change.

"You reach a point. On the last few albums, we've following something and you eventually get bored with it," he says. "This is the sort of album where we've nailed it down . . . so it's time to move onto something else."

Kitchens of Distinction will perform with guests, Kingsmaker and Bleach, Friday, Oct. 2, at Industry, 15 S. Saginaw, Pontiac. For information, call 334-1988.

'Mohicans' skips action, realism for overblown romance

JOHN MONAGHAN

Forget James Fenimore Cooper. The new version of his "The Last of the Mohicans" is strictly for fans of mushy historical romance.

Day-Lewis, the English actor so brilliant in "My Left Foot" and "My Beautiful Laundrette," brings to the screen a Hawkeye from the 1990s—the frontiersman as supermodel. He's noble for the right cause (love), resourceful in the face of danger, a crack shot with a primitive musket, and of course, ultra-sensitive.

Only the colorful scenery, with massive waterfalls, steep cliffside paths and thick virgin forests, looks naturally impressive. Everything here is overblown, from the romance between Hawkeye and the Scottish noblewoman.

attacks and battle sequences, comes off Hollywood phony. I suppose we can blame the whole mess on "Dances with Wolves," Kevin Costner's overrated ego trip of a western.

'Mohicans': Daniel Day-Lewis is Hawkeye, frontiersman star of Michael Mann's 'The Last of the Mohicans.'

Murray makes 'Bob' funny

PASS THE POPCORN

By ANNE ROGERS

We've all had the experience of being trapped by someone, who on the shortest acquaintance, will bend your ear with the unending story of their life. You can get trapped on a plane, in a corner at a party or in a restaurant.

trist, tensely played by Richard Dreyfuss. You know what kind of a guy the shrink is very quickly as he gloats over his new book and an upcoming "Good Morning, America" television interview, at his vacation home no less. The only other person who had been interviewed on vacation was Dr. Ruth. You just know the doc's 15 minutes of fame aren't going to be happy ones. It's the doctor's ego and smugness that lead him into his problems with Bob, who he agrees to see after being stroked by a colleague. Dreyfuss is too self-absorbed to question why the other psychiatrist has been driven to give up his practice.

There's a very funny scene when Dreyfuss puts on his game face for the first meeting with Murray who spews forth with his fears about germs, elevators, noise and going outside. When Dreyfuss questions whether the failure of Bob's marriage was probably related more to his phobias than a difference of opinions about Neil Diamond, Bob feels a connection and latches on to the doctor like a lamprey eel, trying to suck the life out of him. Much to Bob's chagrin, his newfound doctor who has given him hope is going on vacation for a month.

The rest of the film is a funny account of Bob's eventually successful efforts to track down his absent psychiatrist and the doctor's increasingly impatient attempts to rid himself of the guy who has invaded his life.

Despite his problems, Bob is very likeable and very much wanting to be liked. Dreyfuss' family, especially his young son well played by Charlie Korsmo, take to Bob who really infuriates the doctor. His orderly universe in which he is the center of attention is shifting.

Toward the end, the doctor's omnipotent calm veneer starts crumbling under the disruptions in his world. There's one scene that reminded me of an old "Honeymooners" episode as Dreyfuss explodes in a nearly wordless tirade as Murray placidly waits for calm to return.

Both Murray and Dreyfuss are very funny, with Murray offering an especially physical performance.

Oz keeps the film moving at a quick pace and keeps a light touch when dealing with some family issues that could have turned maudlin.

"What About Bob?" is available on cassette at area video stores.

SCREEN SCENE

DETROIT FILM THEATRE
Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Call 832-2730 for information. ($5)
"One False Move" (USA — 1992), 7 and 9:30 p.m. Oct. 2-3, 4 and 7 p.m. Oct. 4. This bold blend of "film noir" and western influences finds a trio of cold-blooded killers forced to hit the road after slaughtering a whole family of witnesses in L.A. A pair of case-hardened police detectives track them to Arkansas, where the local sheriff has his own ideas of justice.

HENRY FORD CENTENNIAL LIBRARY
13650 Michigan Ave., Dearborn. Call 943-2330 for information. (Free)
"Hand in Hand" (Britain — 1961), 7 p.m. Sept. 28. Two children of different faiths, a Catholic boy and a Jewish girl, become friends and learn about each other.

MAPLE THEATRE
4135 W. Maple Road, Bloomfield Hills. Call 855-9090 for show times. ($5.75 evening; $2.95 twilight)
"Blade Runner" (USA — 1982). The re-released director's cut of Ridley Scott's influential sci-fi film stars Harrison Ford as a futuristic policeman on the trail of runaway robots. The irritating voice-over narration is gone and the ending has been changed to the bleaker one that Scott intended.

"Bob Roberts" (USA — 1992). Tim Robbins wrote and directed this stinging mock-documentary look at a folk singer vying for a seat in the Senate. The outlandish study of a "rebel conservative" targets political campaigns as insincere and money grubbing.

MICHIGAN THEATRE
603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call 668-8397 for information. ($5; $4 students)
"Manhattan" (USA — 1980). Stunning black-and-white cinematography and music by George Gershwin add to Woody Allen's most romantic look at life and love in New York City. Mariel Hemingway and Diane Keaton play the women in his life, one a high school student, the other a neurotic writer. Always a treat in wide screen.

"Monster in a Box" (USA — 1992), through Sept. 30 (call for show times). In this film version of one of his stage monologues, Spalding Gray relates the laborious process of creating his autobiographical novel, the "monster" of the title. In the same vein as his earlier "Swimming to Cambodia," this time directed by Nick Broomfield.

STATE WAYNE THEATRE
35310 Michigan Ave., Wayne. All films play nightly from Wednesday through Sunday. Call 326-4600 for show times. ($2; $1 students and senior citizens)
"Local Hero" (Britain — 1983).

In this subtle comedy from Scottish director Bill Forsyth, an oil company executive (Peter Riegert) travels to a tiny Scottish town to buy up seaside property for a new oil refinery. His plans are foiled when an old hermit won't sell at any price. Burt Lancaster co-stars.

"The African Queen" (USA — 1951). Humphrey Bogart and Katharine Hepburn team in this classic adventure about a spinster and an earthy boat captain traveling through Africa during World War I. After weathering their own conflicts, they decide to set off after a German freighter. John Huston directed.

WESTLAND SPORTS SCENE

Churchill names coaches

Livonia Churchill is going with youth to fill two varsity coaching vacancies.

Athletic director Don Albertson named former Trenton High goalie Jeff Hatley, 23, as the new hockey coach for the Chargers, succeeding Ron Griffin, who became interim coach late last season after taking over for Rudy Varvari.

Hatley is currently student teaching at Livonia Franklin High and is an assistant, freshman football coach at Churchill. He holds a degree in Earth Science from Western Michigan University.

He served the past three seasons as an assistant at Portage Central High. Hatley played under Trenton's Skip Flouey and is a former AAA league teammate of Westland's Mike Modano, now with the Minnesota North Stars.

"I don't know much about the team," Hatley said. "I'm not locked into any system, I'll adjust to the talent."

Albertson also named three-year assistant Brent Withington, 28, as the school's new wrestling coach. He succeeds Melvin Richendollar, who took a teaching and coaching position this summer in Wichita Falls, Tex.

Withington, a substitute teacher in the Livonia Public Schools, graduated from Quincy High School and Michigan State (degree in Elementary Education). He started his coaching career at Lansing Eastern.

Spartan golfers 7-1

Livonia Stevenson won a pair of golf matches last week to run its overall dual meet record to 7-1 and 6-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

On Thursday, Stevenson bested Plymouth Salem in a match at Whispering Willows, 204-232, as Mark Peterson took medalist honors with a 39.

Other Stevenson scorers included Chris Deren (40), Todd Lensing (41), Mark Magnusson (41) and Ryan Gusick (43).

Josh Edgor topped Salem with a 43.

On Wednesday, Stevenson defeated city rival Churchill at Fox Creek, 210-215 as Peterson and Churchill's Jason Samelko shared medalist honors with 39 each.

Lensing added a 41, while Gusick and Magnusson each shot 42. Doug Gulau added a 46.

Other Churchill scorers included Todd Siedziczek (41), Dave Higham (44), Drew Jurcisin (45) and Dan Higham (46).

Ace golf sweepstakes

David Kruger of Westland and Edward Zeuner of Livonia are both entered in the Drambuie Rusty Nail Hole-In-One Sweepstakes.

Kruger scored an ace on the 195-yard, No. 17 hole on May 19 at Salem Hills.

Zeuner, meanwhile, aced the 119-yard, No. 18 hole at Thunder Bay Golf Course in Hillman.

United wins Marriott

The Livonia Youth Soccer Club United '77, an under-16 girls team, won its division Sept. 20 at the Marriott Classic held at Oakland University.

Amber Berendowsky scored twice, while Angie Snyder, Margaret Wirth and Lenay Truchan each added one goal as United '77 beat the Birmingham Blazers in the championship, 5-2.

United '77 got off to a slow tournament start with a 1-1 tie against the Troy Chargers before beating the Rochester Road Runners (6-0), Ann Arbor Arsenal (12-0) and Kalamazoo TKO (3-0).

Berendowsky scored a total of nine goals in tournament play, while Ali Lord and Truchan added four each.

Defensively, coach Pat McCaul singled out Theresa Cisco, Emily Lawrence, Wirth and Janess Vartanian for their efforts.

United '77 returns to action next month at the Washington, D.C. Area Girls Soccer Tournament.

Koufax baseball tryouts

Tryouts for next year's Westland Federation Sandy Koufax League (13-14 year-olds) during the month of October.

Those interested should contact manager Bill Hardin at 562-4667.

Drag racers qualify

Five area racers have earned enough points in the 1992 Budweiser B.T. Bracket Challenge to represent Miland International Dragway in the International Hot Rod Association finals, Friday through Sunday in Norwalk, Ohio.

Louie Taylor of Westland will compete in the Super Pro Eliminator division with a 1968 Chevrolet Camaro/509.

Entered in the Heavy Eliminator class: Tom Kraft of Wayne, '70 Plymouth Road Runner/440; Dave Herrmann of Redford, '70 Plymouth Road Runner/350; and Mickey Adams of Canton, '67 Camaro/427.

Garden City's Bob Benz is entered in the Street Eliminator class in a '77 Ford ESS Granada/250 (six-cylinder).

Blazers smother Mercy, 65-34

Livonia Ladywood was hitting on all cylinders Thursday, crushing Catholic League Central Division rival Farmington Hills Mercy, 65-34. The Blazers improved their overall record to 8-0 with the victory.

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Coach Ed Kavanaugh was worried that his 7-0 girls basketball team might be a bit rusty after a nine-day layoff.

But Livonia Ladywood looked more like a well-oiled machine, crushing rival Farmington Hills Mercy, 65-34, before nearly 1,100 fans Thursday night in Redford Catholic Central High's gym.

"I was very concerned about it," Kavanaugh said. "But one thing I found out about this team is that they'll rise to the occasion."

"If anything, I think we put on a defensive clinic tonight. It was just good team man-to-man defense. If somebody gets beat off the dribble or pass, there's always someone there to help out."

The Blazers put on an offensive clinic as well.

They hit six of their first eight shots from the floor en route to an 18-4 first quarter advantage.

Ladywood followed that up by making its first eight shots of the second period, posting an eye-opening 43-16 halftime bulge.

"They came after us, they were very aggressive," said Mercy coach Larry Baker, whose team slipped to 4-4 overall. "And they played with terrific confidence."

Senior Mary Jo Kelly paced Lady-wood and all scorers with a game-high 18 points, including four shots that dropped from three-point range.

"She's played AAU ball in the off-season and has worked on her game," said Kavanaugh of the 5-foot-8 senior. "She plays three sports, but it's year-round and she excels at all three. Mary Jo is also an excellent student."

"And if there's such a thing as a quiet leader, she's it. She just leads by example."

Sophomores Melissa Campeau and Tara Overaitis chipped in with 16 and 14 points, respectively. Senior point-guard Tracy Prybylski contributed nine.

Mercy did not have anybody score in double figures, but that was understandable. The Marlins shot only 22.2 percent from the field (11 for 45). They also turned the ball over 24 times.

"I'd like to characterize it as a bad night," Baker said. "But I was not pleased how we read their defense, and we ended up paying for it."

"I expected us to compete and we didn't tonight. It was not even a battle."

So how good is Ladywood?

It's only one Catholic League Central Division game, but the Blazers may have vaulted to the favorite's role, despite the fact that Harper Woods Regina and Birmingham Marian are highly touted. The Blazers have already beaten preseason No. 1-ranked Saginaw, and have scored impressive road wins at Alpena and Flint Northwestern.

Plymouth Canton, which will probably be ranked No. 1 in Class A this week after beating Regina by one, topped Mercy by 17 points two weeks ago.

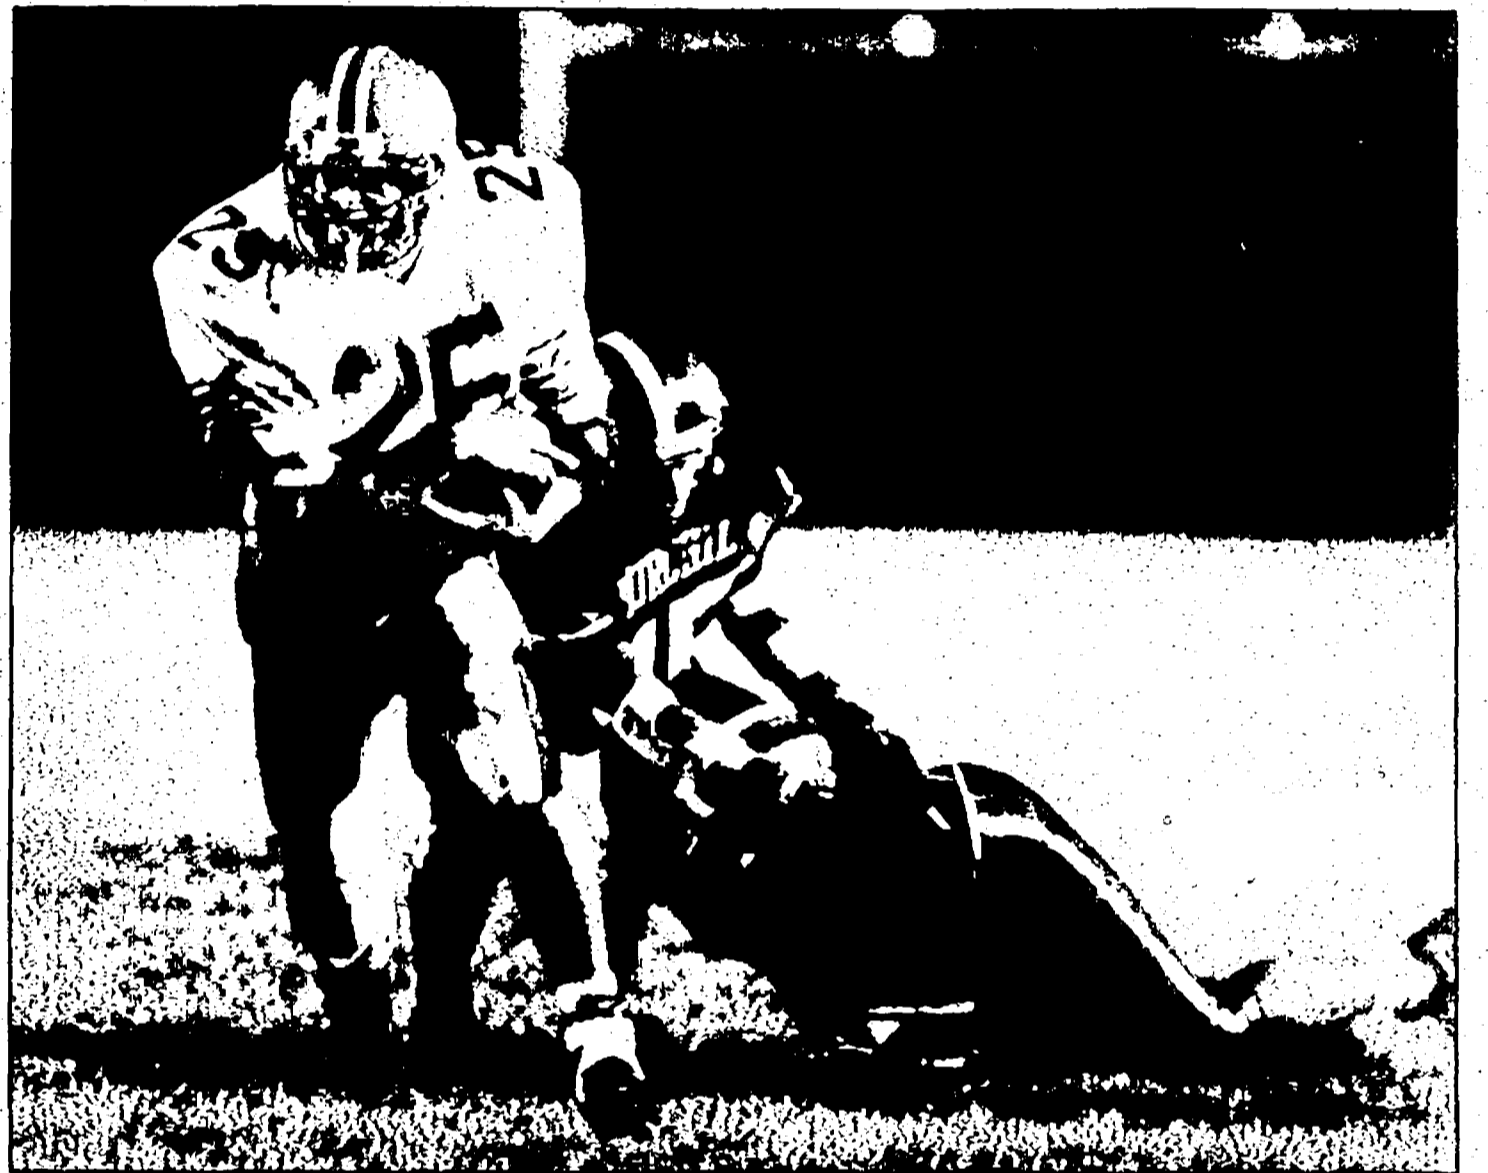

And with 31-point margin of victory Thursday, Ladywood certainly picked up a few votes.

Franklin shuts out Churchill

BY BRAD EMONS

Winless Livonia Churchill put up a fight, but unbeaten Livonia Franklin took care of business Friday with a 21-0 football victory over the host Chargers.

The Patriots, fearing a letdown from the previous week's 3-0 overtime upset victory over Farmington Harrison, had some anxious first-half moments, but took control to gain their fourth straight victory.

Churchill, meanwhile, is starting to show signs of life, trying to rid itself of a losing streak that now stands at 22 dating back to 1990.

"I didn't care about their record, we fought the idea of being complacent and cocky," Franklin coach Armand Vigna said. "We had an enjoyable week of practice and had some fun, but our goal was to play hard and try to improve."

"Churchill played hard and tough, we knew they wouldn't lie down and play dead."

The Chargers were alive in the opening quarter, stopping Franklin on its first offensive possession.

Paul Martus then blocked Franklin's first punt, giving Churchill the ball on the Patriots' 49-yard line.

The Chargers, however, could not take advantage.

"We needed something out of that punt-block, three points or something," Churchill first-year coach Steve Naumcheff said. "If we could get that first score, there's no telling how our kids would react."

On Churchill's next possession, Eric Kelly passed out of punt formation and hit Bill Robinson for 17 yards down to the Franklin 34, but the Patriots' defense dug in, sacking quarterback Ryan Henderson for a 13-yard loss on third down.

"That was a great call, a gutsy call," Vigna said of the fake fourth down play. "If they would have gotten on the board first, it would have really shaken things up."

Franklin finally got untracked offensively in the second quarter with a pair of scores.

Junior halfback Ron Troia burst up the middle for 24 yards to make it 7-0 (after David Little's extra point).

Little, the senior left-handed signal caller, then drilled a 50-yard strike to James Sewruk, all the way down to the Chargers' 2, setting up Eric Holmes' short yard TD run to give Franklin a 14-point cushion with 1:34 until intermission.

Franklin's defense, meanwhile, continued its solid play, limiting Churchill 30 total yards in the opening half and only 48 for the game. (Franklin had 250 total yards including 168 on the ground.)

"We're defense-oriented," Vigna said. "The only problem with our offense right now is that we make too many mistakes."

Churchill made only one first down in the second half and Franklin tacked up another TD on the scoreboard with 9:40 remaining in the game when Little rifled a picture-perfect 24-yard pass to Josh Reynolds in the back of the end zone. (Clemente Herrera's interception set up the TD.)

The score came after the Chargers held on fourth-and-1 at their own 24 on Franklin's previous possession.

"Franklin is a nice club and I don't think you can judge them off their play tonight," Naumcheff said. "Beating a team like Harrison is a high ride. And with a win like that, I'm sure it took a little edge off them. I'm sure they're a bit better than they showed. But they're still big, tough and come at you with a winning attitude."

Naumcheff, however, liked the effort and spirit his team displayed.

"We came out of the chute aggressively, we were playing," he said. "I commend them for playing as well as they did. We were playing football tonight. We played with a lot of intensity on the defense."

Rockets show firepower in 49-0 win vs. Spartans

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

Given the recent history of Livonia Stevenson-Westland John Glenn football rivalry, don't blame the Spartans if they inquire about a schedule change.

Last year, the Rockets beat Stevenson 35-13. In 1989, Glenn scored a school-record 55 points against Stevenson — a mark that was in jeopardy of being surpassed Friday.

The visiting Spartans were no match for Glenn as the Rockets scored on every possession except their last en route to a 49-0 rout.

Glenn, ranked as high as sixth in Class AA, improved to 4-0 overall and 2-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association Lakes Division. Stevenson fell to 0-4 overall and 0-2 in the division.

"We're pleased to be 4-0, but we haven't accomplished anything yet," Glenn coach Chuck Gordon said. "We've had one good month. We have to continue to work as hard as we can."

Even though Stevenson entered the game winless, its three losses were by an average of five points. The Rockets admitted they didn't think the game would be as easy as it was.

"I still think Stevenson is a good team," Gordon said. "Tonight, we just got the momentum going and it took off from there."

"It thought it would be a tougher game," said Rockets quarterback Brian Morrison, who completed five of six passes for 83 yards. "We won the game on the line. Their line was weak and their secondary had some holes. We just picked them apart."

Glenn held a 21-3 advantage in first downs and out-gained the Spartans in total yardage, 447-48. The Rockets converted all five of their third down plays, compared to Stevenson's 1-for-9 (third down success).

The Rockets forced Stevenson to punt after three plays on its first possession. It was the first of six possession the Spartans had three plays and out.

Glenn's first scoring drive was eight plays, spanning 65 yards. The drive was capped by a 15-yard scoring strike from Morrison to Bryan Besco. Senior Doug Hammond's first of seven extra points made it 7-0.

Glenn drove 71 yards in only six plays to make it 14-0. Senior tailback Joe Paddock split two defenders over the left end and scampered 20 yards into the end zone. The drive took only 2:58.

Paddock gained 186 yards on 21 carries. The Rockets rushed for a total of 364 yards.

"I have the best offensive line in the division," Paddock said. "They block so well — it's amazing. The holes they make, you have to find them."

The second quarter began with a 30-yard run by Paddock. Six plays later, he carried the ball into the end zone from two yards out to make it 21-0.

Five plays after a 21-yard punt return by Miller, Morrison followed three blockers into the left corner of the end zone from three yards out to increase Glenn's lead to 28-0.

The Rockets scored one more time before halftime for a 35-0 lead on a 25-yard pass from Morrison to Derek Besco.

Glenn opened the third quarter by marching 52 yards in six plays. Paddock scored his second touchdown of the game on a 5-yard carry.

Huron ambushes CC; Stevenson, Patriots win

Ann Arbor Huron surprised previously unbeaten Redford Catholic Central, 2-0, in a boys soccer non-league game Thursday hosted by Huron.

The Shamrocks, who missed a penalty kick, fell to 6-1-1 overall.

Huron took a 2-0 halftime lead on goals by Ryan Wells and Sid Phillips.

Goalkeeper Mike Kokoszka suffered the loss for the Shamrocks.

"We had our opportunities, they capitalized on mistakes and did a good job," CC coach Phil LaJoy said.

STEVENSON 2, HARRISON 0: A 2-0 halftime lead stood up for Livonia Stevenson in a Western Lakes Activities Association game at Farmington Hills Harrison.

The Spartans are 6-1-3 overall.

Senior midfielder Adam Pichler scored the first goal, assisted by sophomore forward Nick Deren. Senior midfielder Jeff Thomas made the score 2-0 with a goal assisted by sophomore midfielder Dave Green.

Goalkeeper Steve Weller had to make only one save in recording the Spartans' fourth shutout of the year.

SOCCER

FRANKLIN 5, TRENTON 3: Livonia Franklin rallied from a 3-2 second-half deficit Friday to defeat visiting Trenton in a non-league game. Franklin is 9-2-1 overall. Trenton is 5-2-2.

Victor Rodopoulos, who had three goals, scored with 28 minutes remaining to tie the score 3-3. Jason Buelow scored the game winner eight minutes later and Rodopoulos scored an insurance goal later in the half.

Rodopoulos and teammate Todd Freeman had Franklin's goals in the first half to force a 2-2 halftime tie.

The goalkeeping duties were shared by Jeffrey Steinhauer and Jason Emery.

"I think we took them lightly," Franklin coach Frantz Lamarre said. "When we decided we weren't going to lose, we got back to playing soccer. The last 30 minutes we played well."

Ocelots bomb Delta CC

Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team was without standout forward Matt Lividini when it traveled to Delta CC for a Region 12 match. No matter, the Ocelots depth was more than a match for their outmanned foe as they rolled to a 10-0 triumph.

The win makes SC 6-0 overall, 5-0 in the region. The only goal the Ocelots have allowed came in the first match of the season, against Calvin College. A region foe has yet to score against them; the shutout was their fifth straight.

The goal-scoring was spread around, too. Andy Cosenza scored twice in the first half, and Wayne Worosz, Adam Carriere, Nate Stovall and Dominic Vella — who also had three assists — got one goal each to make it 6-0 at halftime.

Brian Hauman led the second-half barrage with two goals. Sean Ryan and Dave Seymour also netted goals.

Shingledecker sparks Spartan girls

Senior guard Lori Shingledecker made four 3-point shots and scored a game-high 20 points Thursday to lead Livonia Stevenson past host Farmington Hills Harrison in girls basketball, 64-49.

The Spartans, who had four players in double figures, are 6-0 overall, 2-0 in the WLAA. Harrison is 3-5 overall, 1-1 in the league.

The Spartans led 12-9 after one quarter and enjoyed a 29-21 halftime lead.

Junior point guard Mo Drabicki contributed 11 points and seven assists. Seniors Karen Groulx and Julie Martin also scored 11 points each. Martin led all rebounders with 13.

"Their shooters shot with a lot of confidence and put on a shooting clinic," Harrison coach Pete Mantyla said. "Seven three's is a lot in any level of basketball. They shot a lot of back breakers."

Drabicki went to the bench with her second foul in the second quarter but the Spartans didn't lose much of their 12-point lead before halftime.

With Drabicki back in the lineup, Stevenson outscored Harrison, 16-11 in the third quarter to take a 45-32 lead. Harrison couldn't get closer than six in the fourth quarter.

"We're spreading the scoring around more," Stevenson coach Wayne Henry said. "I expected us to be one of the best teams in the area but we still have lots of improving to do."

Senior center Heather Hopkins led a balanced Harrison attack with 16 points. Sophomores Erin LaCosse and Krista Snow contributed 14 and 12 points, respectively.

BASKETBALL

Warriors win

Lutheran Westland outscored Harper Woods 18-12 in the second quarter and held on Thursday to beat the visitors, 44-40, in a Metro Conference opener.

The Warriors are 3-3 overall. Harper Woods also is 3-3 overall.

Junior guard Stephanie McGhee scored 11 points to lead the Warriors and sophomore guard Amy Gentz contributed 10 points. Lori Mackay led the rebounders with eight.

Lutheran Westland led 10-9 after one quarter and used its second quarter advantage to take a 28-21 halftime lead. The Warriors led 37-32 after three quarters.

Churchill misses Daly

Livonia Churchill senior guard Chrissy Daly sat out Thursday's game against North Farmington with a broken nose and the Chargers missed her scoring — especially in the first quarter.

North overcame Churchill's slow-down tactics to lead 3-0 after one quarter and ended up whipping the host Chargers 46-26.

The loss dropped Churchill to 3-3 overall, 0-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

North improved to 5-3, 1-1 in the WLAA.

Daly, who broke her nose in Tuesday's loss to Dearborn Edsel Ford, is expected back for Tuesday's game at Dearborn, coach Gary Fulks said.

"We tried to slow it down in the first quarter," Fulks said. "We picked up the pace in the second half but didn't have the horses to catch them, their press hurt us and they got some easy points off it."

North led 23-14 at halftime and outscored Churchill 14-4 in the third quarter for a 37-18 lead.

Junior guard Emily O'Reilly led Churchill with nine points.

Sophomore guard Danielle Laborde led North with 14 points and junior forward Alisha Gordon contributed 11 points. Junior center Carey Perkins, usually North's leading scorer, was held to seven points.

Franklin falters

Livonia Franklin gave Plymouth Salem a scare Thursday night until halftime when the visiting Rocks pulled away for a 58-31 victory.

Franklin, which trailed 24-16 at halftime, remained winless in two WLAA games. The Patriots are 2-4 overall.

Salem is 2-5 overall, 2-0 in the WLAA.

Salem outscored Franklin 14-8 in the third quarter to take a 38-24 lead. The Rocks dominated the fourth quarter by a 20-7 score.

Sophomore forward Mary Bagazinski and junior forward Lisa Craven shared game-high scoring honors for Franklin with nine points each.

Senior center Cyndi Platter led Salem with 16 points.

Rockets defused

Everybody scored for Plymouth Canton Thursday as the Chiefs dominated visiting Westland John Glenn, 63-21.

The Chiefs are 8-0 overall, 2-0 in the WLAA. Glenn fell to 1-6 overall, 0-2 in the WLAA.

Canton led 10-4 after one quarter and held Glenn to two points in the second quarter for a 22-6 halftime lead.

Senior center Stephanie Gray led Canton with 14 points and nine rebounds. Senior Kelly Holmes had 10 points and seniors Amy Westerhold and Lisa Nicastri scored eight each.

John Glenn was led by Jennifer Gorecki's seven points.

Clarenceville drops opener

Livonia Clarenceville trailed 21-8 after one quarter and never recovered in a 57-42 Metro Conference loss Thursday at home.

The Trojans are 2-4 overall, 0-1 in the Metro. Harper Woods Lutheran East is 3-4 overall.

Sophomore center Wendy Roy led Clarenceville with 18 points. Senior guard Bree Lyons added 12 points.

East, which led 30-19 at halftime and 42-28 after three quarters, was led by Jenny Dunbar's 18 points.

Wayne walloped

After getting outscored 26-6 in the third quarter, Wayne Memorial didn't have a chance Thursday to catch host Monroe in a Wolverine A League opening game.

The 64-41 loss dropped Wayne to 3-4 overall. Monroe is 3-3 overall, 1-1 in the Wolverine.

Senior guard Zenobia Davis scored a game-high 20 points for Wayne. Senior Lateffa Moore contributed 12 points.

Monroe, which led 29-21 at halftime, was led by Lisa Kramer's 16 points.

Huron Valley swamped

Westland Huron Valley suffered a 67-36 defeat Friday at Oakland Christian.

True Facts About Invisible Bifocals

Available only in Canada:

Near sighted? Are you constantly taking off your glasses to see up close? Visions of Canada can help you with our educated staff headed by our President, Paul Boyko Jr., Mr. Boyko graduated from Ryerson College in 1978 (Toronto), with his optician's license.

Over the past 8 years, Mr. Boyko has perfected manufacturing the thinnest, clearest invisible bifocal in North America. These lenses have a better than 95% acceptance rate that includes people who have failed with other bifocals. The Rodenstock Progressive R lenses which are 45% thinner than conventional plastic lenses go from distance to reading vision in five power stages. These progressive lenses give a continuous, clear vision without interruption or lines. Other benefits include better night vision due to the anti-glare coating. Also, the swimming and distorted movements experienced by plastic lens wearers are dramatically reduced with the higher quality glass material.

These lenses are so easily adaptable that our customers walk out the door wearing their new glasses.

Come see the difference at Visions of Canada, located just outside of the tunnel exit. Or call us for additional information. (519) 254-8488 or Fax (519) 254-8420.
