THURSDAY, NOV. 18, 1897.
Democratic rotation don't always rotate.
Happy Tandy and Andy Weil also ran.

The caucus has commenced and will continue for two years.
To the victors belong the spoils—true saying, and one that should prevail in politics.
A few Republicans can now repent of their action in supporting the Democratic ticket.
We sympathize with the defeated, as we had a dose ourselves this same month and know how it is.
Caucus nominees have not always been elected; be careful, boys, and keep a strong hold on the line.

The list of caucus nominees comprise some good men, but a majority of them are new ones at the rack. It remains to be seen what the outcome will be.
The Register had another one of its blundering news articles today, indicating that the reporter has again been "mixing drinks" with "someone interested in the contract."
A COACHMAN said no man who was even suspected of voting for the present Republican council need apply; a personal of the list will verify the truthfulness of the assertion.
Tax Democrats are still going to defeat Senator Hannan for re-election. The Senator's case, however, will be treated all right when the Republican caucus is held, and he will get a six year term in Washington as a reward for services to his party rendered.

The caucus has nominated. Now what are you going to do with the sewerage? Look up the statistics, compare the death rate of cities the size of Paducah, that have no sewerage, with the rate our own city; then do as you will. But be careful, for it is said that someone has hold of a hot potato and wants to drop it; be careful of any changes; as you assume all responsibility when the least change is made.

It is not amiss for our morning contemporary to loat of its "enterprising vigilance" if it wants to, but the result of the caucus last night, about which it says: "today presents a complete report of last night's caucus proceedings, although the meeting was strictly private and no one was admitted except the board and mayor-elect," was given it by members of the council-elect, sent to the office for the express purpose of giving the people the entire proceedings. This is what calls "enterprising" however.

Dr. THOMAS W. EVANS, the famous American dentist who died Sunday in Paris, had attended the teeth of nearly all the crowned heads in Europe, except Queen Victoria and the Turkish Sultan. He attended Napoleon III, and aided the Empress Eugenie to escape from Paris after the battle of Sedan. He was a staunch friend of the Union during the civil war and emphasized his patriotism by buying very heavily American securities when they had fallen very low. He also invented the gold filling process. He went to Paris when a young man and became a multi-millionaire.
The setting up of the pie counter too often marks an end of harmony. This is being illustrated in Louisville under the administration of Mayor Weaver. The Louisville Dispatch publishes a big kick because the mayor seems to show a disposition to recognize the old school Democrats. The Dispatch is laboring under the hallucination that "we did it," that it elected Weaver and Shackelford, and feels indignant that the Democracy of Louisville don't recognize the fact also. The new mayor has made the managing editor of the Evening Times his secretary at $1500 and the Dispatch sees a big sight and also catches on to the direction of it would.

A QUESTION IN LAW.
An incident which happened in connection with the trial of Martin Thoro, in Long Island City, the other day, for the murder of William Guldenuppe, has raised a very interesting question regarding the ethical duty, under certain circumstances, of a lawyer who may be the counsel for a murderer.
Thoro was jointly indicted with Mrs. Augusta Nack for the killing and dismemberment of Guldenuppe, whose remains were restored promiscuously about New York City and the waters adjacent thereto. The state elected to try Thoro first, and he was, and still is, represented by Mr. Howe, a somewhat celebrated and decidedly spectacular criminal lawyer of New York City. Mrs. Nack's counsel was, and is, Emanuel Friend, also of New York.

Now, the uneasy conscience of Mrs. Nack, aided perhaps by her fear of conviction if she remained silent, proved too much for her, and she confessed to Lawyer Friend, her attorney, giving him the whole story of the atrocious butchery, he having previously advised her to confess if she were guilty. Lawyer Friend then notified the District Attorney of his client's confession, and Mrs. Nack went upon the stand as a witness against Thoro, and declared that they were jointly guilty of Guldenuppe's murder.
Lawyer Howe thereupon declared that Lawyer Friend's action in permitting Mrs. Nack to confess in court was a betrayal of his duty toward his client, and he (Howe) furthermore declared and thanked God that, in a practice of thirty-five years, he had never permitted a client to confess unless direct evidence existed against him.
The Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune recounts the above facts and then propounds the following question:

"Did Lawyer Friend, knowing his client to be guilty, do right or wrong in allowing her to confess to her crime?"
Lawyer Friend, in allowing his client to confess, recognized the relation he bears both to his client and society. This relationship is a very delicate one and one that seems oftentimes totally to be misunderstood by the lawyers. It is really the promise of the lawyer to see that his client has the benefit of all doubts arising from the evidence and the benefit of a liberal interpretation of the law as possible. It is not his duty to proclaim the innocence of his client and endeavor to have him set free whatever the evidence in the case may be. A lawyer has a duty to perform towards society as well as his client. In general, however, a lawyer must retain his case even if he becomes convinced that his client is guilty. By throwing up the case or by exposing his client he would be acting as final judge, when the law says every man is entitled to a trial by a jury of his peers; furthermore, the confessions of a client are confidential, and must be so considered unless the client wishes them made public. In this case Mrs. Nack released her lawyer from the silence enjoined by the ethics of the profession. His duty then to society at once compelled him to act as he did. We believe that his course will be approved by the members of his profession rather than the customary course of Lawyer Howe as stated by himself.

THE SEWERAGE QUESTION.
The investigation of the sewer system and work will do no harm, and may be of benefit by giving some of the stupid fellow correct ideas. Every one is interested in having the work done properly. The Sew has no greater interest than any other citizen in the matter, but is satisfied that the best system which the people can have has been adopted.
Just exactly the manner in which the work is being done, it has no individual knowledge, but from best, dispassionate information believes it has been done successfully. The progress of the work has been slower than anticipated, and while this is delay only, to the people, if the contractor or can stand it, why the people can do it may be distinctly affirmed that if any committee shall commence tampering with the contract and interfering with its terms, the contractor, who is now evidently losing money on his job, will make his profit in the way of a suit for damages against the city. In the present meddlesome temper of some citizens, who are urging the incoming council to do some radical act, such a case is to be taken to destroy the sewer system nor lay the city liable for damages. The city now has a good sewer with good land, and if the work shall not be done according to contract, there is no requirement that the city shall pay for it. There is no question but that the contractor could pay a handsome premium for some citizens to enjoy the work, or have the council take some steps that would be tinkering with the contract or with the contractor, so that he could have a more leisurely time, and not only avoid his contract but sue the city for damages besides. The unnecessary attack on Mr. Elliott has some a multitude to the fellow who would take his watch from a jeweler, to have it repaired at a blacksmith shop—or take a law case to a doctor's office for attention. Mr. Elliott is a civil engineer—a sanitary engineer—a practical sewer engineer and has now in charge and superintending a sewer system. He is not only scientific, but a man of practical every day experience. Mr. Wilcox is a civil engineer. Both these men are employed by the city to attend to the business and are fully competent and honorable.

It seems that there is or has been a dispute between the contractors and engineers, and our people are asked to take sides against our own competent employees. Those fellows who stand around the corners and talk about sewers, get their information of the failure of the system and the bad work being done from the contractors or their employees. Now who would like to foment some sort of trouble, which the contractor could take advantage of to his own profit? If Mr. Elliott is to be dismissed is there another, who knows the business better, than himself, or is more honorable? All this talk and stir about sewers, is not for the interest of the city. Not that the Sew would say any one has been paid to keep it up, but it does not look reasonable or patriotic. The council will do well enough, to satisfy itself by investigation, but if it undertakes to tinker with the contract or take any action disturbing the relations of the contractor and the city, it is certain to meet with lawsuit and damages. The sewer system and contract has been the subject of too much thought to be lightly handled and no hoop-in action ought to prevail. An earnest, thoughtful consideration will be beneficial, but the rip-roosters should not be listened to.

MISSING PEOPLE.
The Great Mystery Which Surrounds Their Disappearance and What Becomes of Them.
"Scarcely a day passes that we do not read in the newspapers of some man or woman who is reported missing and in the majority of cases these people forsake happy homes without any earthly reason for doing so and their fate often becomes a mystery."
"The cause of these disappearances has excited widespread discussion of late, and some of our best novelists have founded thrilling romances on this strange subject. But no one has yet been able to find an answer to the question, 'What becomes of those missing people?'"
"Perhaps the best explanation of the mystery may be found in the words of a New York physician who is a keen observer. According to his theory these people are sufferers from various disastrous maladies from which they gain no relief. Their surroundings eventually become unbearable to them. In their distressed imaginations they fancy everybody is an enemy although surrounded by friends. Driven to despair they at last forsake their homes and become wanderers on the face of the earth; else—which is very probable—commit suicide."
"Any person who is not in perfect health is liable to meet with this terrible fate. Even those who fancy themselves strong, well and mentally sound may become unhappy, morose and despairing. The seriousness of these facts should cause every man and woman to stop, consider and see if he or she is really well. There are so many dreadful diseases that come upon the system unaware, that show no symptoms but ruin the life even before we know it. The worst of all troubles of this kind arise from uric acid poison, which being in the blood, not only causes rheumatism, neuralgia and gout, but often affects the mind and the vital organs. Now, the cause of uric acid in the system or in the blood is because the kidneys are either too weak or too diseased to throw it out from the system. When the uric acid is not discharged it remains in the blood, poisons the body and often the mind and causes disease and too frequently death."
"Is it not plain and simple then, that in order to avoid moroseness, pain and other worse things, it is necessary to get rid of this uric acid? This can only be done by helping the kidneys, which may have been weakened, to throw it out and that quickly."
"You, reader, who scans these pages may be in precisely this condition and yet not realize it, but if you are awakened and realize the sense of these great truths, you must know that there is but one great and reliable discovery of the present day that can help you in such a case and that is Warren's Safe Cure. All the conditions of this paper could be filled with the grateful statements of men and women, not only in America but all over the world, who have been not alone assisted but absolutely cured by the use of this great modern scientific remedy. It is pure, and pleasant to take, it produces a prompt and agreeable effect, and it furnishes relief whenever used."

When the uric acid is not discharged it remains in the blood, poisons the body and often the mind and causes disease and too frequently death."
"Is it not plain and simple then, that in order to avoid moroseness, pain and other worse things, it is necessary to get rid of this uric acid? This can only be done by helping the kidneys, which may have been weakened, to throw it out and that quickly."
"You, reader, who scans these pages may be in precisely this condition and yet not realize it, but if you are awakened and realize the sense of these great truths, you must know that there is but one great and reliable discovery of the present day that can help you in such a case and that is Warren's Safe Cure. MISSING PEOPLE.
The Great Mystery Which Surrounds Their Disappearance and What Becomes of Them.
"Scarcely a day passes that we do not read in the newspapers of some man or woman who is reported missing and in the majority of cases these people forsake happy homes without any earthly reason for doing so and their fate often becomes a mystery."
"The cause of these disappearances has excited widespread discussion of late, and some of our best novelists have founded thrilling romances on this strange subject. But no one has yet been able to find an answer to the question, 'What becomes of those missing people?'"
"Perhaps the best explanation of the mystery may be found in the words of a New York physician who is a keen observer. According to his theory these people are sufferers from various disastrous maladies from which they gain no relief. Their surroundings eventually become unbearable to them. In their distressed imaginations they fancy everybody is an enemy although surrounded by friends. Driven to despair they at last forsake their homes and become wanderers on the face of the earth; else—which is very probable—commit suicide."
"Any person who is not in perfect health is liable to meet with this terrible fate. Even those who fancy themselves strong, well and mentally sound may become unhappy, morose and despairing. The seriousness of these facts should cause every man and woman to stop, consider and see if he or she is really well. There are so many dreadful diseases that come upon the system unaware, that show no symptoms but ruin the life even before we know it. The worst of all troubles of this kind arise from uric acid poison, which being in the blood, not only causes rheumatism, neuralgia and gout, but often affects the mind and the vital organs. Now, the cause of uric acid in the system or in the blood is because the kidneys are either too weak or too diseased to throw it out from the system. When the uric acid is not discharged it remains in the blood, poisons the body and often the mind and causes disease and too frequently death."

HOG HAS COST $4,000.
Vast Amount of Litigation Over a Porker Worth Only $10.

A Case in Point Which Fairly Illustrates the Utility of Going to Law Over Petty Disputes.

There is a hog in Missouri that has cost one man $4,000. Yet the animal is not worth ten dollars. The porker has been the subject of litigation between Noah Kingsberry and John Zimmer, and will cost the latter, the defendant, not less than $4,000. The celebrated case of Howard county was decided in the Randolph circuit court the other day. The jury awarded a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, Kingsberry, for one dollar damages, which leaves Zimmer, the defendant, to pay the costs amounting to over $1,000. There are also two similar cases growing out of the hog case. One of them has been compromised and the other probably will be. The full amount of the costs in the three cases, including attorney's fees, to be paid by the defendant, will aggregate $4,000.

The hog case is known on the docket as that of Noah Kingsberry versus John Zimmer. The court history of the case would fill a book, and among the lawyers it is regarded as one of the most famous cases ever tried in the state of Missouri. It was a suit for possession of a hog valued at ten dollars. Noah Kingsberry and John Zimmer live on adjoining farms in Franklin township, Howard county, near New Evansville. About a year and a half ago a hog strayed into Zimmer's farm. Kingsberry identified the hog as one of his and sent to Zimmer for it. Zimmer refused to give it up, when Kingsberry began suit for its possession, giving a replant bond. The court ordered the constable to take the hog from Zimmer and restore it to Kingsberry.

claimed that the defendant charged him (Miller) falsely with forging his (Miller's) mother's name to a note for $1,000, which note was given to Zimmer. Miller claiming damages to the amount of $30,000. This has been compromised by Zimmer releasing Miller of the payment of the note and interest and paying Miller's attorneys $250 fees and the court all the costs in the case.
The other standstill suit is that of Edward Kingsberry versus John Zimmer for $10,000 damages. Edward Kingsberry sets out in his petition that the defendant Zimmer called Kingsberry a Har, dog thief, etc., in the presence of other parties, and that his character was damaged to the amount claimed.

Jim outline of some animal. Thinking it a coon, one of the men by the name of Mejer shot at it. No sooner had he fired than the wounded animal, with a screech, sprang from the tree at 30 feet striking him in the breast. With its sharp claws it tore his clothes into shreds and lacerated his flesh. It attempted to reach his throat, when it was attacked by one of the hounds, which drew it to the ground. All the dogs then attacked it and after an exciting struggle in which one of the hounds was killed and two more were crippled the men and remaining dogs succeeded in killing it.
The animal was taken to the camp, but none could tell what it was. The next morning they took it to an old hunter and trapper that lived near by who said it was a Canadian lynx and one of the largest kind. This is the first animal of that species that has been killed in this locality for 30 years, and how it came to be there is a mystery.

CLEANING THE TREASURY.
Work is Done Daily by a Small Army of Charwomen.

There are something like 11 1/2 miles of corridors in the great treasury building at Washington, with hundreds upon hundreds of rooms, large and small. It requires a small army to keep these corridors and rooms clean and in order. Floors must be scrubbed, carpets swept, baseboards and windows cleaned and the debris of a busy day removed. This work is done by women, who receive a compensation of $20 a month. The duties are laborious, back-breaking, joint-cracking and conducive to rheumatism. Yet there is actually as keen and spirited demand for places on the charwomen list by people in that class as there is for clerical positions by people of another class.

It is an interesting sight to watch these scores of charwomen when they report for duty in the afternoon. Just before the close of office hours accommodations are provided for them upon a long line of wooden benches in the basement of the building. They gather half an hour before the required time, and find opportunity thereby for gossip. At least that is supposed to be the reason why they come before their time. Their case is unique in this respect. They are the only employees of the government in Washington who are anxious to get to their offices before the time for going to work. Their labors are finished in two or three hours.
The greater number of these women are past middle life, most of them are fat and the majority have an accent. The little stipend of $20 a month is the principal support of a family in many cases, and when the poor creatures are discharged it means a great deal to them. It is often said that it is harder for an official to discharge a charwomen than to dispense with the services of a $1,200 clerk. And in the case case, while he has to fire in the case of a poverty-stricken woman, who possesses a wealth of tear-beaded cheeks that would move a heart of stone to pity.—N. Y. Press.
