

Charge cards: Grosse Pointe school board leaves home without them

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Taxpayers in Grosse Pointe shouldn't have to worry about the school board purchasing expensive leather handbags or table linens with public funds.

"Only one board member went to a conference this year," said board president Carl Anderson. "And when one of us does go, we're not paying for top-shelf hotels and drinks are not included. We have been very frugal."

The question of school board expenses was raised last week following a report that Detroit school board members used American Express cards to pay for gasoline, car repairs, handbags and theme park tickets.

The law stipulates that school boards must adopt policies determining their pay rates and what the school district will reimburse members for in terms of school-board-related expenses, said Linda Bruin, legal counsel for the Michigan Association of School Boards.

Board members can be paid a maximum of $30 a meeting and are limited to 52 paid meetings a year, Bruin said. For expenses, board members may be reimbursed for actual and necessary expenses incurred while performing official duties.

"The board has to set up its own guidelines in terms of what things are considered official duties," she said. "Travel to an educational conference would be reasonable; a trip for fun and pleasure would not be reasonable."

The Grosse Pointe school board reimburses trustees 29 cents a mile for travel expenses. Board members are paid $30 a meeting. The school district has $6,000 budgeted this year for conferences.

Board policy states that in order for a trustee to receive reimbursement for expenses, a voucher, along with supporting receipts or other evidence of expenses, must be submitted to the district business office.

The policy prohibits reimbursement for any travel unless previously approved by the board and does not pay for a spouse's expenses.

"I've traveled to the Wayne or Macomb intermediate school district offices and I don't charge the district mileage for that or for other meetings we have to go to to keep up with issues," Anderson said. "Board members in Grosse Pointe are not milking the taxpayers."

And they don't take American Express.

WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on can and should live on. Last year more than one-third of all U.S. newspapers was recycled. And that number is growing every day. Recycling is the one way we can all give something back.

'Gap' millage defeat surprises many; no new election scheduled by board

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Did voters fail to understand the two Grosse Pointe school millage proposals they voted on last week? Or did they understand the issues so well they exercised their right to control their property taxes?

The answer depends on who you ask.

Grosse Pointe public school officials asked taxpayers on Feb. 7 to approve two millage renewals: 18 mills on non-homesteads for five years to qualify the school system to receive its $6,500 per-pupil funding from the state; and 8.5 "gap" mills to bring per-pupil spending up to $8,300, the level which the district spent before Michigan voters approved school finance reforms last March.

Grosse Pointe is one of only a few districts in the state permitted to seek extra mills.

The "gap" millage proposal was defeated 5,406-4,813, while the non-homestead proposal passed 5,610-4,536. What this means to taxpayers — if the school system doesn't schedule another election — is that homestead property owners will be taxed 6 mills by the state and non-homestead (business, rental and second homes) taxpayers will pay 6 mills to the state and 18 mills in local school taxes.

"I am disappointed," said superintendent Ed Shine one day after the election. "We shared all the information with the public. From my perspective, the evidence was compelling. I'm always disappointed when people don't see the issues."

The defeat of the "gap" millage means the district will have to shave $15.4 million from next year's budget, Shine said.

Shine had difficulty understanding why so many voters opposed the non-homestead proposal, which would tax businesses, rental properties and second homes.

"People didn't seem to understand the non-homestead proposal," Shine said. "It was a tax on business and commercial property and second homes. It was not a tax on their homestead property. It leads me to believe that the voters are against any kind of tax. They didn't understand that it was important to get the foundation grant."

But Woods resident Philip Gaglio, treasurer of the Taxpayers' Association of Grosse Pointe, an anti-millage group said he thinks the voters did understand the issues.

"We were surprised that people split the vote. But I think people understood the issues. I'd be a lot more generous and assume the voters are intelligent," he said.

Gaglio speculated that a Feb. 5 editorial in the Detroit Free Press opposing the millage requests had an influence on voters.

"Based on the reasoning (of that editorial), our feeling was that the school system had not made a serious attempt to cut costs and then came to the voters with the maximum millage amount," Gaglio said.

Shine agreed that the eleven-hour editorial was damaging.

"People are suspicious of government and school is government and an editorial board of a daily newspaper made statements without talking to me or

Woods to get enhanced 911 service — will now ID origin of phone call

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Saying it was an idea whose time has come, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council unanimously voted last week to purchase and install enhanced 911 equipment, which will allow emergency line operators to know where callers are calling from.

The Woods is the second Pointe to obtain enhanced 911 service. Grosse Pointe Park has had the system since the city opened its new public service building two years ago.

"This is very important because we will know the address of the people who call us," said director of public safety Jack Patterson. "Often, with elderly people who have suffered a medical emergency, giving detailed directions on their location is not possible. We will also be able to crack down on prank phone callers."

Using modern computer equipment Woods employees, as a part of the newly formed Conference of Eastern Wayne, will receive a rundown of where the 911 call is originating, Patterson said. Even if someone calls and hangs up right away, he said dispatchers will know where the call came from.

"We've had problems with this in the past," said Patterson. "It's illegal to make false 911 calls — it ties up an emergency line — but this should not be a problem anymore."

Improvements in the system will also include digital recording. Digital recording, Patterson told the council, is better than the current analog system because its calls are recorded digitally on computer discs, is easier to store and access than calls recorded on tapes with an analog tape recorder.

The council considered three bids, one from Ameritech, one from Motorola and one from Emergi-Tech out of Reynoldsburg, Ohio. The Emergi-Tech bid was the lowest at $49,548.

'We will be able to crack down on prank phone callers,' Jack Patterson

Grosse Pointe Woods director of public safety said Patterson, but he urged the council to choose the $51,095 Ameritech bid because it included a much better service clause.

"Ameritech promised excellent service," Patterson said. "The Emergi-Tech people could not promise us the same level and speed of service, so I believe the Ameritech bid is the one we should accept even though it's not the lowest bid, because it does give us the best value."

Councilmembers Eric Steiner and William Wilson were quick to praise the system. Both are former Woods public safety reserve officers, and have strongly pushed for such a system. Steiner said that when he first ran for the council four years ago, getting an enhanced 911 system was one of his highest priorities.

A special 911 district consisting of the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods, recently created by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, made the new system possible, said Patterson.

Telephone users in the district pay up to 4 percent of their local phone bill to the district, which in turn transfers the money to local municipalities to pay for their enhanced 911 systems. The average cost to a resident with a phone is estimated to be about 50 cents a month, Patterson said.

Installation of the system is expected to begin shortly, and it is hoped that Woods residents will have enhanced 911 service within eight to 12 weeks, said city administrator Peter Thomas.

Residents speak out on failed millage vote at school board meeting

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Community residents crowded the Wicking library at Grosse Pointe South High School on Monday night and delivered a message to the school board: Give us a solid proposal, explain it to us honestly and show us how you'll spend our money and we may approve your next millage request.

After making brief comments on last week's millage election, board members pledged they would not make any decisions on what to do next until they have heard from the community.

"It's time to reflect on the outcome of the election and listen to the voice of the community," said board president Carl Anderson. "The board does not have a scheduled election date for another millage request."

Many residents, with a variety of opinions, and none speaking on behalf of the entire community, expressed their views on the election outcome and the campaigning that preceded it. Some residents said they didn't like some of the campaign literature mailed to their homes.

"You failed to listen to the community," said Farms resident Raoul Palffy. "None of you had an absolutely clear statement; everything was taken out of context. Let's not assume that everybody knows everything." Park resident Anneliese Bajer called the mailed campaign literature "unethical. If a corporation had done this, they would have been sued for false advertising."

Bill Shield, who lives in the Park, said he was offended to find campaign literature stuffed in his son's backpack when he came home from school.

The Gap

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

When the Legislature restructured the way taxpayers funded public education in 1993, the goal was to work toward equity and lower local property taxes.

In March 1994, voters approved a constitutional amendment that raised the sales tax and lowered property taxes. As a result, homeowners saw a reduction in their tax bills this year.

The 1994-95 School Aid Act adopted by the Legislature guarantees that each school district will receive a basic level of funding per pupil provided the district levies 18 mills on non-homestead property. The state additionally levies 6 mills on all property.

School districts that received more than $6,500 per pupil in 1993-94, like Grosse Pointe, are permitted to ask voters to approve a local millage in addition to the 18 mills required.

This is an effort by the Legislature to "hold harmless" those districts that spent above the state foundation allowance per-pupil.

In Grosse Pointe, the "hold harmless" millage was known as the "gap" millage - 8.3 mills levied for the 1994-95 school year and then defeated by voters as an 8.5-mill renewal last week.

How did "hold harmless" or "gap" millage elections fare in other Michigan school districts eligible to seek them?

In 1994, three school districts held "gap" millage elections. Voters in the East Lansing school district approved a request for .7 of a mill for 10 years. In the Republic Michigan district (northwest Upper Peninsula) voters approved 5 mills for 20 years.

Taxpayers in the Warren Woods district, however, defeated a request for 4 mills for three years. Before school finance reform, East Lansing levied 39.6 mills; Republic Michigan levied 33.4 mills; and Warren Woods had a 37.58-mill tax rate.

After some board members suggested that voters didn't understand the millage proposals, Park resident Mickey Montagne Shield said the voters were not confused. The residents of the school district are intelligent, well-educated people who will not vote for a five-year tax without a solid financial plan, she said.

But board secretary Linda Schneider said the election results signify that some voters did not understand the issues.

"Proposal A last March was overwhelmingly supported," she said. "The people voted to support the non-homestead millage, yet last Tuesday, 4,000 voters came out against the non-homestead millage." After the meeting, Montagne Elementary School PTO president Martha Hutting said those who spoke at the meeting are not representative of the whole community. There is a "silent majority" that has a voice and would like to speak at meetings, she said, but are intimidated by the emotionalism that sometimes erupts at meetings.

"There is a silent majority that supports most of the board members and would like to be able to speak, but would then feel attacked by people who are clearly emotional," she said. "They have that right, but they shouldn't attack those with another point of view."

the school board president," Shine said.

"I think the editorial had to have an influence, especially when you wrap it around all the reporting done on the Detroit school board only days earlier."

School board president Carl Anderson, who also was surprised and disappointed by the election results, speculated that the board and the district underestimated the complexity of the issues in terms of explaining them to the voters.

"Given the changes in school finance and terms like 'gap' and 'hold harmless,' and the whole notion of the tie-in with the library and the $2.4 million, perhaps we didn't explain it well enough," Anderson said. "We're going to have to make sure the picture is clearer if we go to the voters again."

Anderson said last week that the board had not yet discussed what to do next.

"I don't see this as being the harbinger of great disaster for the school system, but rather as a reminder from the public that they want control of their taxes," said school board member Sears Taylor, the only trustee to oppose the millage proposals.

Taylor was the lone dissenter last fall when the board voted to put both proposals on the ballot Feb. 7. He was in favor of seeking a lesser amount for no more than three years, he said.

Those who worked to educate the voters about the election and supported the millage campaign, members of the HELP committee (Homeowners for Education and Local Property values), expressed disappointment and defeat following the election.

"Our philosophy throughout the campaign was getting the parents out to the polls and we didn't do that," said Carol Marr, co-chairman of the HELP committee. "Historically we have had a core of 5,000 voters who vote no in our elections. We knew that and with the climate in the country being so mistrusting of government, we knew we had to counter that, too. Whether the parents stayed home and considered that a no vote or didn't worry about the election, we don't know. There are a lot of shock waves in the schools this week. People are saying they cannot believe it didn't pass."

About 10,000 of the 38,000 registered voters in the school district cast a ballot last week, a turnout that was only slightly higher than in past school elections, Shine said. It costs the district $10,000 to run an election, including paying the poll workers and renting voting machines. The school district has to have a tax rate set by Sept. 15.

"I enjoy being a business attorney," said Jarboe. "You get to be your own boss, and I have my own clients. Working in downtown Detroit is very convenient for me since I live in the Park, and my offices are very close to both the city, county and federal court houses."

In addition to his experience working in the court of appeals, Jarboe is a private arbitrator. Arbitrators settle disputes for parties that wish to avoid a lengthy court battle. Both parties agree to abide by the decision, and there is usually no appeal made.

"When it got out that the Park needed a municipal judge, a colleague in my law firm suggested that I put my name forward," Jarboe said. "With my background as an arbitrator and my work for the court of appeals, it seemed like a natural way for me to go."

New Park judge is eager to serve

By Jim Stickford

For Carl Jarboe, his appointment as the Park's municipal court judge gives him the best of both worlds - he gets to enjoy the private practice he has built up, and he has the opportunity to serve the public as a judge.

"I enjoy being an attorney," said Jarboe, a partner in the law firm of Abbott, Nicholson, Quilter, Esshaki & Youngblood. "There are only a few cities that have municipal courts, which are the only courts that permit judges to remain in private practice. If the Park had a district court, I would have never put my name forth as a replacement for Kirsten Frank."

Jarboe grew up in Flint and received his undergraduate education at Michigan State University. He attended Wayne State's law school, where he was an editor of the school's law review.

Jarboe worked for two years in the state court of appeals department after graduation. In his first year, he clerked for the court's pre-hearing division.

About 30 attorneys worked in the division, where they were responsible for looking at all appeal briefs. After reading the briefs, the attorneys would check the lower court's record of the trial, and then make a recommendation on how the case should be decided.

The case would then be assigned to three randomly chosen appeals court judges. After reviewing all the work and hearing from both counsels, the judges, with the help of their private clerks, would hand down their decisions.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Fire guts Woods house

Fire officials are still investigating the cause of a Feb. 9 house fire on Hampton in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The family of four, along with their two pets, got out of the house safely and no firefighters were injured in the 5 a.m. blaze.

The family was awakened by the smell of smoke. Detectors in the house were working but did not sound the alarm until one of the family members opened a door leading to a crawl space, where the fire originated.

Grosse Pointe Shores and Grosse Pointe Farms firefighters assisted the Woods in fighting the fire, which took five hours to extinguish. The house suffered extensive smoke and water damage.

Woods man foils robbers

Police were stopped on the corner of Jackson and Lochmoor Feb. 9 by a 38-year-old Woods resident who said he had outrun two men who were attempting to rob him.

The man said he was approached by two men as he was shutting his garage door. Neither produced a weapon, but one of the men lunged at the resident, who backed away from the men and ran down his driveway, yelling for help.

Police checked the area and found several witnesses who saw two men run from the man's house and get into a maroon car.

Police are continuing their investigation.

Woman robbed in parking lot

A woman walking to her car in the north lot behind St. John Hospital in Grosse Pointe Woods had her briefcase stolen by two men at 11:27 p.m. Feb. 8.

The woman said she passed an occupied car with the motor running and then heard the sound of footsteps coming from behind. When she turned around, one of the two men said, "Give me your bag or I'll hurt you."

The woman threw her bag, containing money, a stethoscope and other work-related materials, at the two men, who got into the car and fled the garage.

A security officer witnessed the incident and followed the suspects vehicle into Detroit in an attempt to get the license plate number and a description of the suspect, but lost them in the area of Outer Drive and Chandler Park Drive.

Teen injured in North lot

A student was thrown from a moving vehicle and suffered minor head injuries on Feb. 9 in an incident in the Grosse Pointe North High School parking lot.

The injured teen was treated and released from St. John Hospital following an incident in which he jumped on the hood of a moving car, fell and hit his head on a curb.

The driver of the car said he was leaving for lunch when the student approached his car, asked for a ride and when the driver declined, the student jumped on the car and grabbed the antenna.

The driver did not stop and when he turned out of the parking lot, the student was thrown from the car. Thinking the student was joking around, the driver left the scene and did not know the student had been taken to the hospital by an ambulance until he was met by police when he returned to school.

The student was checked at the hospital for a concussion and then released. His injuries were listed as minor. The driver will not be charged.

They weren't reading meters

Two men who claimed they were from the water department entered a 92-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms woman's house on Feb. 9, but it does not appear they were there to read a meter.

The woman said two men knocked on the front door of her house on Touraine and then went to the back door, and after ringing the bell several times, pushed open the door. The woman said she has difficulty walking and couldn't make it to either door.

Once inside the house, one of the men detained the woman in her kitchen, talking in a loud voice, while the other looked around the house. After a few minutes, the second man announced that the woman was entitled to a refund and then both fled the house.

Responding police officers checked the house and said it didn't appear anything had been taken.

Community disservice

A 14-year-old Harper Woods boy doing general maintenance work at the Grosse Pointe Park police station as part of a community service sentence allegedly stole a knife, some police equipment and money from a vending machine on Feb. 2.

Officers supervising the boy noticed the thefts immediately and recovered the items. The youth, who is performing community service for violating curfew, could face additional charges in Wayne County Juvenile Court.

Driver hits tree, light pole

A Farmington Hills man lost control of his pickup truck on Feb. 11 as he was driving on Jefferson near Bishop Lane and struck a tree and a light pole.

The driver was treated for injuries at St. John Hospital. The damaged truck spilled gasoline on the roadway, which was cleared away by Park firefighters.

Police detective Lt. David Hiller said a sample of the driver's blood was sent to the Michigan State Police crime lab in Sterling Heights for analysis. The driver's injuries were not life threatening.

Park has a new officer

Daniel Kolar, 22, was sworn in as a Grosse Pointe Park public safety officer this week. He is a graduate of Grand Valley State University, with a bachelor of science degree in criminal justice and has completed basic police academy training. He will attend the Detroit Fire Training Academy in March.

Kids hide from intruder

An 11-year-old City of Grosse Pointe boy and his 12-year-old friend were playing in the basement of his parent's house in the 300 block of Washington on Feb. 12 when they heard footsteps upstairs.

Knowing that nobody else was supposed to be home, the boys became alarmed and locked themselves in a basement room.

Then they heard the footsteps coming down the stairs and when they peered under the door, they saw a pair of dark shoes.

When the intruder went up the stairs, the two boys climbed through a basement window and ran to the garage. They looked out the window and saw the suspected burglar leave the premises and run down the street. The boys ran to a neighbor's house and reported the incident.

When the boy's parents returned, they checked the house and could not find anything missing.

Water bill story all wet, Park officials say

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park city manager Dale Krajniak read an article in last Friday's Detroit News about how suburbs, including Grosse Pointe Park, are soaking residents on their water bills. His only comment was that he doesn't know how The News came up with a figure stating that Park residents pay a 290 percent markup on water provided by the city of Detroit.

"The only thing I can think of is that The Detroit News did not take into account the fact that we send out combined water and sewage bills," Krajniak said. "The bill residents receive covers two parts. One part is for the water they use, and that's measured by meters, and the other part pays for sewage costs. Detroit charges its customers, in this case the Park, a fee for processing our sewage. That's not monitored and the cost is divided equally among residents in the form of a $10-a-month-fee."

But that monthly fee does not cover all sewer processing expenses.

"It's really an apples-and-oranges comparison," said Krajniak. "Different cities have different ways to bill for water and sewage."

The $10-monthly sewer fee does not cover the costs of processing sewage, said Krajniak. That's why the city charges residents $1.74 for 100 cubic feet of water. Part of the $1.74 is used to pay sewage fees.

"We are charged $4.47 by Detroit for 1,000 cubic feet of water," said Krajniak. "We are also charged $5.56 to process 1,000 cubic feet of sewage. The amount of sewage the Park sends Detroit for processing is much greater than the amount of water the city purchases. We have no way of monitoring sewage like we do water consumption. Plus stormwater that enters the storm drain system must be processed before being released. That costs a lot. When we have wet summers, like the past couple of summers, our expenses rise."

One way to ensure money is available to pay for this service is to charge $1.74 per 100 cubic feet of water, Krajniak said. In 1993, the city's sewer and water operations lost $400,000. The city had to dip into a special sewer contingency fund to make up the deficit.

"There are a lot of factors that go into a water bill," said Krajniak. "We have to pay for sewer repairs, system upkeep, staff, but the bottom line is that over the past two years Detroit has been getting 75 cents out of every dollar we've billed residents for water and sewer service."

Woods considers Lakefront Park improvements

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Several civic improvement projects designed to enhance Grosse Pointe Woods' Lakefront Park came a step closer to reality last week when the Woods City Council ordered the city administrator to investigate the logistics and cost of several proposals suggested by various city commissions.

The proposed projects include a boardwalk, a drawbridge across the Milk River at the park and a playscape. These improvements are part of an ongoing effort by the city to upgrade the park.

"We've seen improvements made at other parks in the Pointes, and we feel we owe it to our residents to try to make our park as nice as possible," said Woods mayor Robert Novitke.

Novitke said that approval of the projects is contingent on finding financing. In the past he has said that using money from the sale of the cable system is one way to finance civic projects. But before that can happen the council must set spending priorities for that money, which may not include park improvements.

The council's vote last week means that the proposals will be studied by the city administration. Officials will investigate the cost studies done by the commissions as well as looking into any legal obstacles. The council has the final say on whether the projects are approved and there could be considerable changes in the designs presented at the meeting before approval is granted.

The bridge would be placed where the old bridge was located in the middle of the park, said Woods director of parks and recreation Bill Babcock.

"The old bridge was centrally located, connecting the two sections of the park that is divided by the Milk River canal," said Babcock. "But it was decided many years ago to take that bridge down because when water levels rose, boats were unable to pass under the bridge. This effectively kept about 60 percent of the boats in wells along Milk River trapped behind the bridge."

Moving the bridge from the center of the park to the extreme end away from the lake, enabled the boats to reach the lake, but the two sections of the park were effectively cut off from each other.

"We have families that would rather get into their cars and drive from one part of the park to the other," Babcock said. "On one side of the park we have the pool, and on the other we have the picnic area and the playscape and the shuffleboard courts, so there's a lot of reasons to want to travel from one end of the park to the other. The proposed bridge is designed to make that much easier."

In order to allow boats to pass, it was decided to design a drawbridge. When a boat needs to pass, the bridge would be raised, permitting the boat to go by.

Several councilmembers had comments about the proposed bridge at last week's council meeting. Councilmember Thomas Fahrner expressed strong concerns that the bridge would create boat traffic problems because it would narrow the canal to only 22 feet at the bridge site.

This would permit only one boat at a time to go through. So at busy times, a traffic jam would be created at the bridge's location, said Fahrner.

Roy Rose, of the architectural firm of Anderson, Eckstein and Westrick, said that the width of the bridge was based on a model available from the bridge supplier. The council can amend the width if they want, he said.

The council also ordered further study of a recreation commission recommendation that a boardwalk be built along the lake shoreline at the park. Several councilmembers said that they had seen what the Park did at Patterson Park and thought a boardwalk at Lakefront Park would be a fine idea.

A rough estimate of the cost of building a boardwalk with gazebo at the lake's edge offered by Anderson, Eckstein and Westrick is as follows: construction costs of $108,000; contingency and architectural fees of $27,000; boardwalk lighting $42,000; $48,000 for a 24-foot-diameter gazebo; $18,000 for a 12-foot-diameter gazebo.

The architect's report stated that it would take about two months to build the boardwalk. However, the state Department of Natural Resources and the Army Corps of Engineers must approve the project before construction can begin because the boardwalk affects the lake's shoreline.

Novitke urged the city's parks and recreation department to contact the appropriate agencies as soon as possible.

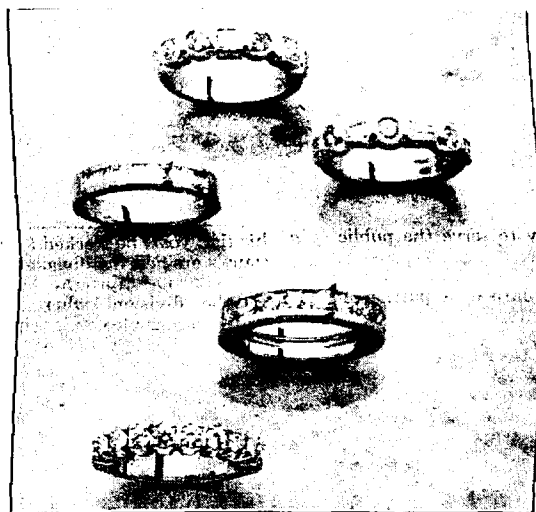

The council also asked that city administrator Peter Thomas study the proposed new playscape. The recreation commission has suggested that a $100,000 playscape be built by the old bath house and parking lot.

A new playscape would utilize the east end of the park and replace old, outdated and unsafe equipment.

Mayor Novitke told the audience attending the meeting that if the council approves all these projects, it is hoped that they will be completed by June. Parks and recreation officials could not promise that they would receive permission from the state and federal agencies that approve boardwalk construction plans in as timely a fashion as the council would like, but said if everything goes right, all the projects could be completed by the Fourth of July.

Sold! Fisher descendent finds niche with Christie's

By John Minnis
Editor

You don't have to be a big-time investor to deal with Christie's, one of the world's oldest and most prestigious auction houses.

So says Grosse Pointe Farms resident Tina Fisher Grow, who became Christie's Michigan regional representative in December.

"People have the impression Christie's is just high-end," she said, "but that's not true."

A glimpse in a Christie's catalogue proves Grow's point. A 19th century tortoise sauce tureen and cover, for example, has a listed value of $400 to $600. Of course, there is no limit on the other end. Last fall, Christie's, which was founded in London in 1766, sold a Leonardo da Vinci Codex Hammer for $30.8 million and Carl Faberge's Russian Imperial Winter Egg for $5.6 million.

As a Christie's representative, Grow, 43, acts as principal liaison between the auction house's specialists and private collectors, trust officers and estate lawyers in Michigan. She will oversee consignments, coordinate specialists' visits with private and professional clients and organize special events to promote Christie's and its services. She will provide advice and information on buying and selling at any of Christie's salesrooms worldwide.

Grow got into the business several years ago as a representative for DuMouchelle's in Detroit, which is owned by fellow Grosse Pointer Lawrence DuMouchelle.

POINTER OF INTEREST

"I did the same thing I'm doing now," she said. "It just kind of fell into place and it evolved. They (DuMouchelle's) really taught me a lot. There's so much to learn and there's so many areas."

As the granddaughter of one of the seven brothers who started Fisher Body, Grow grew up in Grosse Pointe Shores, attended high school at the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Connecticut, and spent a lot of time in Palm Beach, Fla., where she also now represents Christie's.

"I've been exposed to these types of things all my life," she said, referring to the quality collector's pieces handled by people. It's really interesting."

Grow said she's getting a lot of calls from buyers and sellers in the Pointes, Bloomfield and all over the state. Locally, she's found some 19th century works by British maritime painter Montague Dawson, which are extremely popular and are fetching good prices, Grow said. "There are wonderful works of art in Grosse Pointe," she said. "There is some of everything."

Also "very hot" now are collector's wines, she said.

Grow has a background in the humanities. She earned a bachelor's degree in art history and interior design at Mount Vernon College. Last June, she studied art in London.

While she is knowledgeable in her own right, Grow also has the backing of Christie's experts in New York, where all U.S. auctions are held, and around the world.

"There's too many areas in this business," she said, "to be an expert in everything."

Grow points out that because Christie's has 95 offices in 34 countries, sellers have a better chance of getting a good price. "If it doesn't sell in New York, it may in Hong Kong," she said.

Being a dealer in valuable and rare collector's items was not Grow's first occupation. Before raising a family — two teenagers who are attending school out East and a 9-year-old at University Liggett School — Grow was an operating room nurse at St. John Hospital for five years. Once her children got older, she looked for something exciting to do — and she found it.

"I love this," she said. "It's a wonderful job, and you do better when you love what you do."

Grow's husband, Rick, is a Pointer of Interest in his own right. An avid, expert sailor, he has won many Mackinac races out of Port Huron and Chicago.

"He's one of the top sailors in the state," Grow said of her husband. "Sailing is very much a part of our life."

Besides leisure sailing with her husband, Grow likes to play tennis, golf and travel.

But wherever she goes, Christie's is a part of her life, and her husband, a tax attorney with Pepper, Hamilton & Scheetz, welcomes the outside interest.

"He's very supportive of my new career," Grow said. "It's an interesting business because it's not the same all the time."

Grow's local Christie's phone number is 313-885-6615.

Engler unveils $20.2 billion state budget

By Jerry Eisinger
Capital News Bureau

Lansing — After four years of keeping the state budget below inflationary levels, Gov. John Engler's proposed 1995-96 budget provides real spending growth, primarily due to escalating Medicaid and prison costs. The governor also called for several fee increases as part of his $20.2 billion state budget.

That amount, which embraces school aid funds, gas taxes and fees as well as the general fund, represents an increase of 6.3 percent, compared to inflation estimated at 4.1 percent this year, and 3.7 percent in 1996. The general fund portion of the budget — a relatively smaller item as an increasing share of revenue is designated to specific uses — would increase 4.7 percent to $8.5 billion. When federal funds are added to the state spending, the entire budget for 1996 would increase by 3.32 percent to $28.5 billion.

Corrections set for budget battle

Department of Corrections director Ken McGinnis may have his work cut out for him convincing the Legislature that he needs an increase in his operating budget plus additional money to build more prisons.

The battle began with the Joint Capital Outlay Committee refusing to act on his request for $205 million for prison construction, most members saying they needed more time to determine if there were better ways to solve the impending problem of overcrowding. The department has estimated that, with current capacity, it will run out of room by the end of March.

Curbing Medicaid

More aggressive use of managed care to help fix providers' cost in Medicaid programs are proposed by the governor as a way to keep the social services increase to $249 million, an 11.1 percent jump in general funds.

But for the ninth straight year, benefit levels in the general family welfare program will not be increased. Mandatory enrollment in managed care will be expanded to additional Medicaid clients, including supplemental security income recipients, which will put the total to 83 percent of Medicaid.

In other areas, Gov. Engler proposes community mental health boards to manage mental health referral and inpatient services and managed care systems for public health's substance abuse and children's special health care services programs.

Adult education under fire

Schools will receive the largest portion of the state budget, $8.3 billion, and all individual public schools in Michigan will see an increase over last year, but teacher unions fear the adult education changes are a step toward elimination of that program.

The proposed basic grant for the coming fiscal year is $5,166 per student, up from $5,000 in the current year. Districts spending less than the basic grant will see an additional $320 per student to provide equity, said Mark Murray, acting management and budget director, at a presentation of the governor's proposed budget.

However, adult education grants were reduced to $3,500 per student, and the program itself is being opened to bidding from a variety of educational entities. These moves prompted the Michigan Education Association to predict the end of the general education degree (GED) in the state.

Tax relief package

House Republicans, facing their first major test of unity as a majority party, completed a seven-bill tax relief package, leaving it nearly unscathed thanks to a final-hour agreement forged between the conservative caucus and leadership.

The caucus gave way to the greater cause of passing their party's tax relief package when it backed off demands for an increase in the personal exemption that would have doubled Gov. Engler's proposal, and accepted an amendment that holds out the promise of further tax cuts, pending growth in revenues.

Three income tax bills and an intangibles tax bill went through, all on votes overwhelmingly in favor, to complete the package. The House passed legislation on three Single Business Tax bills. House Speaker Paul Hillemonds, R-Holland, says "ground was given on both sides of the caucus."

Racetrack slots

Sen. Doug Carl, R-Mount Clemens, called on attorney general Frank Kelley to examine the "legality of attempts by the horse racing industry" to expand off-tracking betting at racetracks across the state.

The horse racing industry has asked for expanded betting authority, including the use of slot machines at the tracks, in an attempt, they claim, to keep the industry alive in the state.

CODE NO. 11-01
AMENDMENT TO BUILDING CODE
ORDINANCE NO. 331

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE BUILDING CODE, CODE NO. 11-01, ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO ESTABLISH MINIMUM REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE DESIGN, ERECTION, CONSTRUCTION, ENLARGEMENT, ALTERATION, REPAIR, DEMOLITION, REMOVAL, CONVERSION, MAINTENANCE AND USE OF ALL BUILDINGS AND STRUCTURES IN THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE FARMS; TO PROVIDE FOR INSPECTIONS, THE ISSUANCE OF PERMITS AND THE COLLECTION OF FEES, TO PROVIDE PENALTIES FOR THE VIOLATION THEREOF; AND TO REPEAL ORDINANCE NOS. 306 AND 310."

The City of Grosse Pointe Farms Ordains:

Section 1. A new Section 104.8 is hereby added to the Code immediately following Section 104.7 thereof, as follows:

104.8 Civil Liability for Costs and Damages: Any and all costs and damages incurred (i) as a result of enforcement (including without limitation the deployment of equipment and personnel to respond to an emergency situation, the performance of investigations, and preparation for and attendance at administrative or court proceedings) of this Code, the fire prevention code listed in Chapter 35 or any other applicable code or ordinance pertaining to fire prevention or the use, transportation or storage of hazardous materials, or (ii) as a result of any measures undertaken (whether or not on an emergency basis) to protect the safety of persons or property within the City of Grosse Pointe Farms pursuant to this code, the fire prevention code listed in Chapter 35 or any other applicable code or ordinance pertaining to fire prevention or the use, transportation or storage of hazardous materials, or (iii) as a result of any other measures undertaken in response to the presence or introduction of hazardous materials within the City of Grosse Pointe Farms, shall be payable, jointly and severally, by the owners and/or operators of any property, equipment, vehicle or vessel causing or contributing to, in whole or in part, an occurrence or condition (including without limitation any dangerous or hazardous condition or contamination of the environment) resulting in the enforcement action or other measures described in clauses (i), (ii) and (iii) above. The joint and several liability of owners and/or operators as described in the preceding sentence shall include responsibility for any acts or omissions of agents, employees, contractors or subcontractors causing or contributing to, in whole or in part, the occurrences resulting in enforcement or other responsive measures. Costs and damages recoverable under this Section shall include, without limitation, direct and indirect costs (such as wages, salaries, benefits and overtime charges) for personnel involved in any enforcement or other responsive measures; costs for repair or replacement of any equipment damaged or destroyed in connection with such enforcement or other responsive measures; costs associated with claims of personal injury sustained by personnel responding to an occurrence or condition governed by this Code, the fire prevention code listed in Chapter 35 or any other applicable code or ordinance pertaining to fire prevention or the use, transportation or storage of hazardous materials; and any amounts for which the City is held liable to third persons for personal injury or property damage and all costs of defense associated therewith. An owner or operator liable for costs and/or damages under this Section shall, upon demand, reimburse the City in full for all such costs and/or damages (or, with respect to any property owner, to assess such costs and/or damages against the property in accordance with Section 11.9 of the City Charter). Upon failure to satisfy such reimbursement obligation in full within thirty (30) days following such demand, the City shall be permitted at any time thereafter to commence a civil action to recover such costs and/or damages. In connection with any such civil action, the City shall be entitled to recover, as a separate item of damages, the actual amount of attorneys' fees and other litigation expenses in connection with such civil action. The civil liability imposed by this Section shall be in addition to, and not in lieu of, any other responsibility imposed by this Code (or by other applicable code or ordinance) upon an owner and/or operator of any property, equipment, vehicle or vessel, including applicable fines or penalties or the responsibility to abate any hazardous or unsafe conditions.

Section 2. Except as expressly modified by this Ordinance, the provisions of the Building Code, Code No. 11-01, shall remain in full force and effect.

Section 3. If any provision of this Ordinance shall be held invalid, the remainder of this Ordinance shall not be affected thereby.

Section 4. This Ordinance is declared to be necessary for the preservation of public health and safety and is given immediate effect.

Where do we go from here with schools?

With the defeat of the proposed renewal of the 8.5-mill homestead levy, the question for Grosse Pointe school district residents now is where do we go from here.

No definitive answers can be offered yet, but it is clear that the school board faces several alternatives, not all of them pleasant or popular.

Before making any decision, the board is expected to review the messages sent by the opposition that defeated the 8.5-mill homestead renewal levy.

In our view, the defeat of the homestead levy, combined with the victory of the nonhomestead proposal, indicated a high level of sophistication that tends to prove the voters knew exactly what they were doing.

In other words, they objected to the description of the 8.5-mill levy as a renewal because of the $2.4-million shift of funds from the library, now supported by its

So, depending on what its analysis shows, the board might consider a second referendum on the homestead levy that might, however, include two tax alternatives.

One would call for a straight renewal of the same 8.5-mill proposal that went down to defeat.

The other would call for a 7.2-mill homestead levy that would exclude the $2.4 million library fund shift that apparently caused the levy's defeat.

Another school board alternative would be to do nothing, although accepting the defeat of the levy would cost the district an estimated $15.4 million in funds to finance the public school system's operating costs for the 1995-96 school year.

That alternative, however, is unacceptable to those who believe that the schools need the money to protect their quality programs and general excellence in the years ahead.

While it does little good for school supporters to try to point fingers of blame, the Detroit Free Press deserves another rap on the knuckles for urging defeat of the millage in an editorial two days before the election.

That Sunday editorial not only gave levy supporters little time to rebut the newspaper's slanted conclusions, but it also added weight to local criticisms that were not fully in accord with the facts.

The Free Press on Monday, the day before the vote, did publish three letters from Grosse Pointe residents who supported the levy.

But that action failed to give millage supporters a fair shake because the combined Sunday News and Free Press distributes almost twice as many papers on Sundays as the Free Press does on Mondays.

So much for Free Press fairness.

The Grosse Pointe News, on the other hand, made clear its editorial support for both levies two weeks prior to the vote, as it customarily does in order to give critics an opportunity to express their views in letters to the editor a week later.

We still believe the "leeway" plan using the previous $2.4 million library fund for the schools was justifiable, in view of the state cap imposed on local millage. Furthermore, it would protect the district's future revenues.

That plan was written into law in Lansing through the efforts of Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe Farms and John Kelly of Grosse Pointe Woods, then a state senator, although it never was explained as well as it should have been until Bryant did so in the Jan. 26 Grosse Pointe News.

Unfortunately, only the Grosse Pointe Park voters approved the 8.5-mill levy renewal, with the strongest opposition coming from Grosse Pointe Shores.

However, all of us should seek solutions that would protect the future of the excellent Grosse Pointe school system and also heal the community wounds created by the animosities of the Feb. 7 election campaign.

State bridges need repair now

Despite the Lansing hoopla about cutting taxes and giving tax rebates, the state's bridges are in horrible shape.

The Detroit News reported the state supposedly lacks cash to repair 191 unsafe bridges, including 19 in heavily traveled Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

In fact, some Metro Detroit bridges are so rickety that students soon may have to get off their school buses to cross the bridges on foot before scrambling back aboard to complete their journeys, the newspaper said.

That possibility is not a reporter's dream. The News cited Ionia as one community in which for two years students have had to walk across MacArthur Bridge because the span is too feeble to support a loaded school bus.

How would we like to hear on the evening news some day that a state bridge had collapsed under the weight of a school bus, and injured, and perhaps even killed, state school kids?

So far, Gov. John Engler has only suggested that he may ask for an increase in the state's 15-cent gas tax — or for authority to issue bonds to do the job.

If these bridges are in the critical shape that highway officials say they are, wouldn't an investment in the future safety of the state's children as well as the adults traveling the state's highways warrant spending any current surplus for bridge repairs?

GOP in too much of a rush?

In seeking to rush enactment of its controversial Contract with America, the GOP Congress often has been throwing caution to the winds.

For example, the House last week approved a measure permitting use of certain evidence that conflicts with constitutional guidelines, as the Wall Street Journal report shows:

"During a dramatic point in the debate on the bill, Rep. Melvin Watt (D., N.C.) pushed a substitute that used the exact wording of the Fourth Amendment. That put the GOP-controlled House in the ticklish position of rejecting constitutional language, which it ended up doing on a vote of 303-121."

The bill specifically permits the use of evidence obtained without a search warrant, a violation of the Fourth Amendment protection that reads as follows:

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the person or things to be seized."

In passing the measure, the House not only disregarded the Constitution but also ignored the protests of civil libertarians and the American Bar Association

Clinton finally is standing firm

President Clinton finally is taking firm stands on two controversial issues — and in our view it is about time.

On one issue, the president warned he will veto any revision of the 1994 Democratic crime bill that would reduce the 100,000 additional policemen slated to be hired in the nation's cities.

In the second, he has emphasized his continued support for confirmation of Dr. Henry Foster Jr. as his new surgeon general, despite the barrage of criticism from the religious right and many GOP lawmakers.

Unfortunately, the nomination has started a new controversy, with the opposition making a great fuss over the number of abortions Foster has performed.

In considering this matter, both Congress and voters ought to remember that performing abortions is legal in this country and that Foster, whatever the small number of abortions he has performed, has delivered thousands more babies.

While we reject the suggestion that the opposition to Foster reflects the race issue, we think he ought to be judged on his excellent qualifications for the post.

Young's alive & kicking Archer

Detroit's former mayor Coleman Young is still alive and kicking, and the object of most of his complaints is his successor, Dennis Archer.

In an interview with The Detroit News last week, Young called Archer a probable one-term mayor because of his failures to get started on a new Tiger stadium, on improving economic development and on cleaning up police corruption.

The retired mayor was especially critical of Archer for not putting more pressure on Gov. John Engler to get the state to provide the aid Detroit needs.

Instead, Young said, Engler had snubbed Detroit in his State of the State address and failed to back the city's appeals for help in building a new baseball stadium and legalizing casino gambling.

Archer turned away Young's wrathful charges with soft answers while his chief of staff, Fremantle Hendrix, said the mayor "won't be judged on his politics but to what extent he can turn the city around through better service delivery."

As Archer struggles to revive Detroit's economy, it is disappointing that Young is still trying to live in a past in which, despite his claims, his confrontational tactics became a major barrier to reform and recovery.

Thanks a lot, Concerned Citizens

To the Editor:
Thank you, Concerned Citizens of Grosse Pointe, for delivering me, the unsuspecting taxpayer, from the rapacious school administration. Now that the gap millage has been defeated, the funding for our excellent schools is now at a new level of mediocrity, which can only soothe my over-taxed wallet.

The students will now have to get along with the same $6,500 per student that all the other districts in Michigan now receive. Why should we be any different and contribute any more than we have to? The schools need to get along with less, just like everyone else. Everyone knows that the extra money just gets spent on frivolous extras, like support staff, investing in new technology, custodial services, or building maintenance, anyway.

Fortunately for us, the Concerned Citizens will continue their vigilant program of micromanaging the school board, supplying criticism for every budget expenditure and ensuring that the taxpayers get the maximum return out of the school tax dollar. Second-guessing school administrators' decisions is a good way to keep them on their toes, and who can better look after the tax buck than the Concerned Citizens?

As for the next election, I can hardly wait for the next round of venomous telephone calls requesting a "no" vote. After speaking with you, I can understand your position; if my kids were no longer in the system, let them chase someone else for extra funding, my job is done.

However, I do have a bit of distressing news to relate. The failure of the gap millage will not relegate our excellent school system to mediocrity. Our highly professional and dedicated staff will continue to set new standards of excellence for the community, despite funding constraints. The parents remain firmly committed to enhancing the school's efforts by providing support at the local school level. And most importantly, our students will continue the excellent tradition of academic excellence that the Grosse Pointe schools are renowned for.

As for me, the enlightened rhetoric of the Concerned Citizens has roused me to action and I shall join the never-ending struggle for tax reform. My energy, however, will be directed towards reducing the Social Security tax, since after all, if I'm not using it and disapprove of the way the system is run, why support it?

Open letter to school board

To the Editor:
Voters of this community have spoken by rejecting the five-year, 8.5-mill homestead millage proposed by school officials. Please don't respond to this vote using the same old scare tactics — warning us that teachers will be laid off, instructional services will be cut and sports will be eliminated. These tactics won't work with me, nor do I think they will work with the majority of the Grosse Pointe community.

Give the community what we have been waiting for all along. Give us a homestead millage proposal accompanied by 1) a detailed budget for the entire length of the millage request that seriously tackles the problem of waste and excess overhead and immediately provides our children an increased percentage of our tax dollars, 2) agreement — not just discussion — to implement a comprehensive and competitive technology plan that will take all our children into the 21st century, and 3) a detailed accountability

The Stickford Files

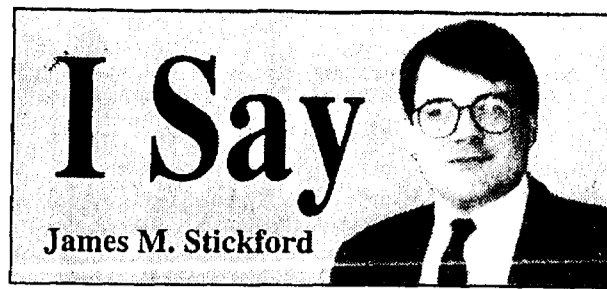

I've been offered a talk show. It's not because I'm brilliant or smart. It's just because everyone in America is going to get a talk show, and they reached the Ss.

The question now becomes what kind of talk show shall I have? Should it be radio, broadcast television or cable television? If it's broadcast, should I go with a network like Leno or Letterman, or should I have a show like Charlie Rose on PBS. Should I have a syndicated show like John Stewart. Should it be daytime or nighttime. I'm leaning toward nighttime. I just don't have the patience to deal with Nazi, transvestite vegetarians who howl at the moon on alternate Thursdays.

I mean what is with these people who appear on Montel, Phil, Sally Jesse, Geraldo, Oprah and Rikki? (It also raises the question of why performers, upon getting a daytime talk show, are suddenly known by their first name, but that's a question for another time.)

Have we reached a point in this country where there is no standard of common decency? I hear a lot of talk about how these shows are healing and informative, but from what I've seen of them, they strike me as the modern equivalent of a circus freak show.

"Hey come and look at these people. Whatever your problems are, at least you're not like them," seems to be the siren call of these shows. Casting more heat than light, I can only believe that the adage that people will do anything to get on television has been proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

Speaking of a reasonable doubt, perhaps I should do an all O.J. show. A lot of people are getting rich off a double-murder, why not me? As a member of the media I'm already used to the sight of people exploiting human misery and catering to prurient interests in the name of the First Amendment.

If I get a nighttime show, I get to be funny. (At least I'm supposed to be funny.) I love Letterman, but when he has a guest that isn't as quick-witted as he is, the show really drags. I know every guest can't be Tom Hanks, but when they aren't, Dave should be able to pick up the slack.

It seems that evening talk shows are now comedy talk shows. I miss the old days, when Carson would have serious and funny guests on the same show, apparently those days are gone.

There's Charlie Rose, but I would like to feel I could ask tough questions and not have to cover an entire person's career when I want to focus on the interesting part.

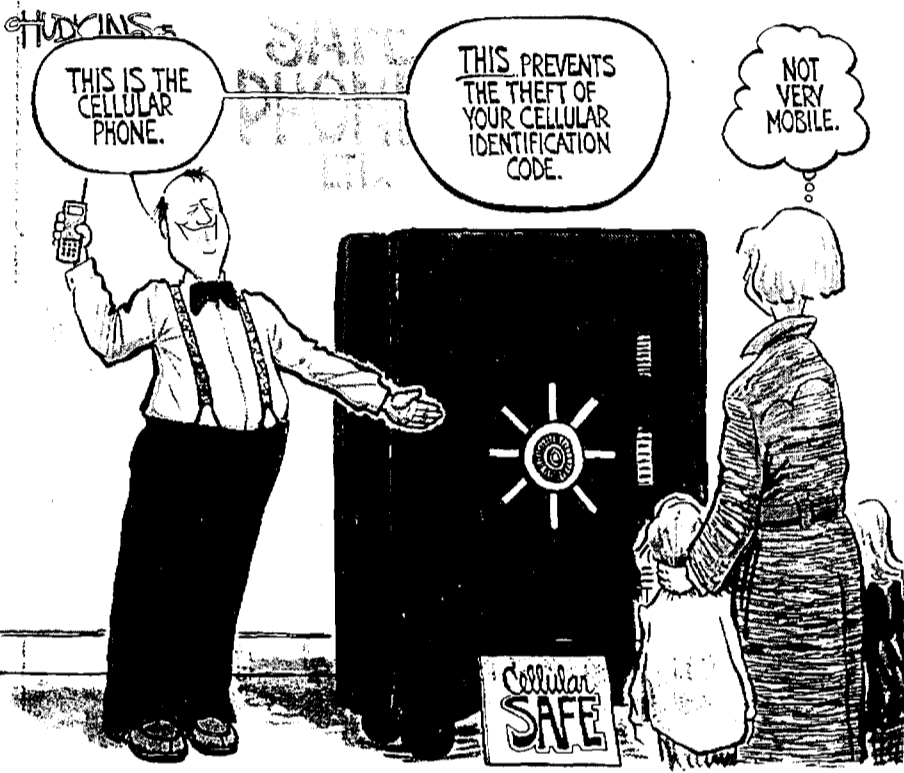

I could be like Tom Snyder, but I don't like to ask and answer my own questions. I could get a radio talk show, but I don't want to have to field calls from cranks. It would feel too much like dealing with people who are a lot like me, but made that final step into territory where every belfry has some bats.

Maybe I could do a Grosse Pointe-style show. Ask only polite and intelligent questions, dress nice and try not to slouch. It's so crazy it could work.

It's heart-warming

Last week's deep freeze couldn't keep the spirit of St. Valentine from warming the Pointes, from the wall that says "I love you" in shaped vines out Lake Shore near the Yacht Club to the big platter of free chocolates left out for customers of J.P.'s Hallmark and Camera Shop in the Village.

I knew Jacobson's sales person Lorraine Hamacher felt it when she took the trouble to creatively gift-wrap the Valentine's Day present of sun tan lotion I bought for my wife, Doc, and tucked a nice little sample bottle of perfume under the big red bow on top.

(Why sun tan lotion? Weather like this calls for positive thinking — or an emergency trip to Captiva Island.)

And that special glow was particularly evident in the hearts of the City's Edward Stamman, 79, and Virginia Ball, seven years his junior, who were married here over the weekend after being fellow students in the Stretch and Stroll Chair Aerobics class written about by this paper's Margie Reins Smith Jan. 19.

"Actually they met in a prior walking class," says Assumption Cultural Center class instructor Nancy Szlachta. "But when Virginia joined chair aerobics, Edward came in a few months later and they got together again."

As Virginia related the story, she finally invited this irresistible guy over to her condo, somewhere in the course of the evening their hands touched — and "it was love at first touch."

The Assumption Center on Marter Road in St. Clair Shores is starting another chair aerobics class, to run from 10:15-11:15 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. It's $30 for nine weeks, and the romance is free.

Seeds of spring

Speaking of free, if you're an official garden club, school or nursing home, Ron Zemans of Ron-Kare Landscaping (they're the folks who take care of a lot of Pointe plantings, including the Park's streetscape) is offering bundles of about 100 packets of either flower or vegetable seeds at no cost to each qualifying group.

"We've been celebrating our 15th year of business, giving customers bags of seeds that say 'Thank you for growing with us,' and we have a lot left over," Ron says.

The bundles are all brand-name (Northrup-King Seed Co.) and a wide range of varieties, and include about a dozen 100-bag bundles of seeds that are easy for kids to grow. "One bundle will go a really long way with kids," cautions Ron.

To start your group's spring planting plans it's first come, first served (no individuals, please). Just call Ron at (810) 749-5722 and he'll arrange to get the seeds out to you.

Safety group targets education

The United States Coast Guard hosted the second meeting of a group dedicated to making boating safer on Lake St. Clair.

The association of 30 members comprises local businesses, special interest groups, law enforcement agencies and Canadian representatives that met on Dec. 1.

Denler had just finished interviewing me for G.P. Cable when I asked her what her funniest TV interview was. She thought for a few moments and then laughed. "It was the snake," she said.

During one segment on odd and assorted animals, this particular reptile developed a liking for her and started wrapping itself around her arm. There she was, the usually-unflappable program director, caught on camera by a critter that probably considered "bunnies" as a good meal.

How big was the snake, I asked.

More signs will be posted to mark existing no wake zones. Marinas and waterfront businesses will distribute boating safety information pamphlets.

Boaters can expect to see increased Coast Guard, Coast Guard Auxiliary and other local agency activities in the area next summer.

The boating safety team plans to meet in early January. The meetings will continue throughout 1995.

Scoping the soaps in steamy Belize

FLOWERS BANK, Belize — This tiniest of states on the map is somnolent in the humid heat of the afternoon. The chickens huddle in the shade of Miss Daisy's flowering bushes. The bat falcons perch motionless in the dead tree across the road. Miss Daisy herself is doing the weekly wash in the shade underneath the house.

The chickens are probably traumatized by their experiences the last two nights. Something — a guash? A kin-kajou? — broke into their coop. Last night, in the middle of the night, Miss Daisy woke me, we grabbed a flashlight and a machete and rushed out to do battle with the chicken thief. But to no avail. Three chicks are dead, and the rest are afraid to roost in the henhouse at night.

I came out on the bus from Belize City, an hour or two and a world away. Flowers Bank is four miles off the road so I get off in the next town to wait for the school bus.

The connections aren't that convenient for the return trip. Riders on the school bus miss the 6:30 a.m. city-bound bus and have to hitchhike. The other choice is to walk out to the road earlier.

Reuben and Miss Daisy and I all have business in the city on Friday. Fortunately, we have something on our side: Reuben owns the school bus. If he can organize the school kids to go early, Miss Daisy and I can make the bus.

Reuben is organizing a week-long walking tour and I'm here to help. We have the airlines arranged, but need confirmation from the American tour operator.

Days later, it turns out that he is in the Amazon. We decide to fax him instead, but we have to go to Belize City to do it.

Reuben has been getting Miss Daisy's big battery recharged. The government runs electrical lines along the main road, leaving places like Flowers Bank without any. She hooks the black-and-white TV to the big battery with a cable and alligator clips — and, incongruously, "Full House" comes on the screen. Later, we settle down to watch her favorite soaps.

"They all tell lies, but I enjoy it," Miss Daisy says with a big laugh. We agree that children shouldn't watch so much television.

Tom Brokaw comes on to tell us that the White House is trying to end the baseball strike. We don't care. We'll wait for the big cricket marathon, coming soon to our villages in the "baboon" sanctuary.

A short walk through the village yields a couple of bat falcons, a roadside hawk (that's its name), a flock of Montezuma's oropendolas, countless great kiskadees, a tropical kingbird, some Aztec parakeets, and several black howler monkeys — who flee in consternation when they see me watching them through binoculars. Coming back: a gray-necked wood rail, a gang of scrub euphonia and two squirrel cuckoos. Eat your hearts out bird watchers.

I drink an ice cold root beer, fresh from Miss Irene's kerosene fridge. She operates a little "cool spot" across the road, selling cold pop.

One day I decide to take the school bus to the sanctuary museum, the heart of this eight-village cooperative that protects howler monkeys. Tourists come and go all day. I meet an Australian traveling without itinerary, looking at birds, staying, as I am, at local homes. An American couple has driven down from Alaska, bicycles and kayaks atop their camper. Some Canadians from St. Catherines chat me up and are surprised I've heard of their hometown.

When I return, Miss Daisy has some fresh-baked coconut tarts ready. From the tree to my stomach in half a day. I am surprised to find I am famished in spite of the heat. I wolf down two tarts and a cup of coffee. This is the life.

Self-doubt can fuel family stress

Juggling the demands of family and work life is one of the leading causes of stress today.

According to IOF Foresters Family stress expert Dr. Richard Earle, parents can be filled with self-doubts that fuel personal and family stress. Earle advises that juggling demands effectively is the key to managing stress.

Whether at home or work, stress heats up when the gap between "I should" and "I really can" grows too big. To help parents cope, a free brochure offering tips on juggling responsibilities effectively is available from the IOF Foresters.

Stress-reducing suggestions include:

1. Lower expectations and abandon the notion of being perfect. Sometimes the dishes can wait, but your family can't.

2. Get the entire family to help run the household from day-to-day. Give up the idea that only you can do a certain job.

3. Develop a support network of friends or family to help out at certain times, especially if you're a single parent.

4. Partners can shift tasks, like shopping or bill paying, to each other for short periods of time whenever one of you needs to focus on something of immediate importance.

Busy parents should learn to budget time wisely, plan regular stress breaks for the whole family, and stop trying to do everything. Cut back and take time to relax.

The IOF Foresters is a not-for-profit Fraternal Benefit Society dedicated to supporting projects that help strengthen family life. For more free tips from the organization on parenting and family stress, call 1 800-922-4-IOF.

plan that measures school officials' performance against the stated goals.

And, please, give us the facts up front. Don't give us confusing facts that mislead us about overall tax ramifications. Education worth it

To the Editor:

Oh boy, I can hear them now: the vocal minority protectors of the taxpayers of Grosse Pointe. Will they say they fought the windmill and won? That they enlightened us all to proper fiscal responsibility and management? That the lone dissenter on the school board is the only one with vision?

Before they crow too much, they need to take a look at the message the voting really sent. History has shown, as I'm told, that every millage brings out about 5,000 no votes. That's about what we saw this time also. But, it is hardly an overwhelming mandate against the renewal.

Rather, it seems the focus should be on the meager 4,800 votes for Proposal 1. Is it voter apathy, or is it parent apathy? Where are the parents in this whole process? Sitting on their hands? How many students do we have in the system, with how many parents? I'd venture to say more than 4,800. Well? Do you agree with the way your child is being educated or not? Yes or no?

I don't like being ruled by the will of the minority. But, if the majority says nothing — even if it's NO — than that's exactly what's happened. Come on parents, vote next time! Let's find out what you really think. Let's put this whole issue behind us. Either quiet the naysayers, or give 'em the reins.

Personally, I think the education my kids are getting is worth every penny I pay! But that's another letter.

Victory for schools and accountability

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, Feb. 7, the voters of the Grosse Pointe public school district showed their usual support for the Grosse Pointe Schools by passing an 18-mill non-homestead property tax proposal by a vote of 5,668 to 4,467 (56 percent to 44 percent). However, the voters also rejected an 8.5-mill homestead property tax proposal by a vote of 5,406 to 4,813 (53 percent to 47 percent).

The Eastside Republican Club had urged a "no" vote on both proposals because of the campaign by the school district administration, conducted largely with taxpayer funds, to promote the homestead millage proposal as a renewal rather than a tax increase. At the same time, they promised to spend the extra $2.4 million per year available due to the spinoff of the public library system into its own district (with its own property tax, capped at 1.7 mills) on installing technology in the schools. The ERC believed the voters could see the inconsistency in these promises: That if there was extra money, the millage proposal had to be a de facto tax increase. The ERC saw this inconsistency as misleading, at best.

The ERC also opposed the proposals because the administration had proposed a term of five years — longer than the terms of school board members — rather than the traditional three year term. The ERC further recommended that any large capital expenditure program, for technology or otherwise, be funded through a bond proposal to place legal safeguards over the use of the funds. Claims that shorter terms or bond financing would cost the taxpayers money are somewhat ridiculous when compared to the cost of the tax increase. By that logic, we might as well do away with elections altogether and place no restrictions whatsoever on the expenditure of taxpayer dollars. Elections and legal protections do cost money, but they are necessary elements of democracy and of financial and electoral accountability.

Voters who felt they could not reject the proposals entirely were urged by the ERC to vote "yes" on the non-homestead millage and "no" on the homestead millage. Such a split vote sends a message to the school district that while they support the schools, voters also demand accountability and honesty. Approximately 9 percent of the voters split their votes in this manner (including myself), and provided most of the margin of victory (or defeat) for each proposal.

Proponents of the millage proposals, like the Clinton White House after the recent congressional elections, will no doubt blame the result on a failure to get their message across. That is a delusion. Proponents of the millage proposal had months to get their message across to the voters, and were supported by the school district's (usually successful) political machine, by taxpayer-funded literature mailed to the voters and distributed to students in the schools, and by the endorsements of two of the three community papers. With less than a month before the election, opponents of the millage proposal were able to mount a successful grassroots campaign using alternative media, and overcame this organized campaign to slip a disguised tax increase past the voters.

The ball is now in the school board's court. They could ignore the voters' message and try the same proposal again, using scare stories about budget and program cuts to frighten the voters into changing their mind, or they could come out with a reasonable alternative millage proposal — say, 6.5 mills for a three year term (instead of 8.5 mills for 5 years) — that would fund all current programs and would sail through without any organized opposition. The board's reaction will be interesting to watch.

Cut what?

To the Editor:

Having moved to Grosse Pointe only three years ago, I was not acquainted with many people. I am using this public forum to express my thanks for having had the opportunity to work with so many fine residents on the HELP committee organized to pass the school millage.

Working on the committee has been an eye opener. I met a group of dedicated, hard-working, civic-spirited, generous people.

Now that the homestead-property renewal tax has been defeated, I challenge the naysayers — the Eastside Republican Club, the Concerned Citizens committee, Sears Taylor and those of you who voted no — to stop complaining and tell us exactly what cuts the school system should make in order to balance a budget in which the allotment per pupil will decrease by at least 25 percent. Tell us, please, what the administration can cut without hurting the educational opportunities of our children. I'm sure that if your paychecks were cut by 25 percent, there would be no decrease in your quality of life!

Should the administration begin saving on heating, lighting, maintenance and repairs, on adjustments to entrances and passageways that will make the schools comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act? Should the administration begin cutting the budget allotted to update technology or to buy the latest textbooks?

Perhaps our children don't really need a clinic to go to when they get ill — putting them out in the hall to wait for their parents would be more cost-effective; maybe they should be deprived of counselors, who after all deal more often with problems the students bring from home than with anything that arises in school.

Or better yet, perhaps we should cut such areas of individual talent as athletics, music, art, foreign languages.

We would still have a pretty good system, and if not, we know that vouchers are coming, and that we'll all have the freedom to send our children to parochial schools, which will mix a good dose of dogma with academics, whether it's our dogma or not.

As for those of you who have the right to vote but chose not to exercise it, in my opinion you should not be listened to seriously on any issue relating to public education or community standards.

Labeled

To the Editor:

I nearly fell off my chair when I read "Public backs Clinton even if media don't." You may be the only newspaper to "catch" Gov. Christie Whitman's error when she called President Clinton's tax raise the biggest in history. This "big lie" has been repeated so often that, apparently, it is believed. Republicans repeat this charge constantly.

It is my understanding that Ronald Reagan's 7.5 percent tax on working Americans to pay for Social Security benefits was the largest.

Gov. Whitman's perception must have been driven by her high income status (millions!). Clinton's tax was levied on the top 2 percent of incomes. This group's tax cuts, in the '80s, contributed to our $4.8 trillion national debt and current budget problems.

That Clinton's "State of the Union" was well received by the people was also hardly mentioned elsewhere. It was criticized as overly long, never mentioning he was interrupted by applause 90 times!

You'll probably be labeled "liberal" for printing the truth. Please continue.

Another

To the Editor:

The election turned out about as I expected, except I believed the "no" vote on 8.5 mills would be greater.

Now, based on long-time Grosse Pointe school board history, you can expect — what else? — another millage election. After the election, I called the school system to find out what these millage elections cost. The answer: $12,000 per election — taxpayer paid, of course.

Voter apathy

To the Editor:

It is indeed frustrating to observe Mr. Taylor changing positions on issues, and chastising others for using tactics in which he engages (Grosse Pointe News "Opinion," Feb. 9). What is even more frustrating is that he and his various proteges repeatedly resort to distortions and half-truths in their criticism of the school district, even after their inaccurate statements are publicly clarified.

Just one such example is their claim that less than half the district budget goes into the classrooms. The rest of that story is that they've chosen to ignore such minor details as heat, light and toilet paper in calculating the cost of running a school, and that they choose to disregard the expenses of state and federally mandated retirement fund contributions and Social Security taxes in figuring the cost of classroom teachers.

Yet more frustrating, and sadder, is the fact that they get away with such distortions — repeatedly.

But the real issue goes beyond Mr. Taylor, to citizen/voter ignorance and apathy. Mr. Taylor did not create the situation in which voters are so ignorant of their school district that they'll believe the most outrageous charges against it. He just took advantage of the situation, or exploited it, depending upon one's point of view. Mr. Taylor did not lull public school parents and local homeowners into a false sense of security about the inevitable passage of the millage authority. He just used the complacency that already existed.

The gap millage did not fail because there were so many "no" votes. The number of no votes was roughly in line with what had been predicted from prior elections. The proposal failed because not enough stakeholders — school parents and property-value-sensitive homeowners — participated in the election.

There seem to be new realities, in politics and in life in general. One of them is the need to stay involved and aware, for there is often some other person or faction standing ready to exploit any situation, to opposite ends.

In the final analysis, the only votes that count are the ones that are cast. Sentiment and tradition just don't cut it anymore.

Ease up on

To the Editor:

Enough of the personal attacks already!

Your caricature of Sears Taylor on the Feb. 9 editorial page is totally off base. What makes you think that Sears Taylor was the sole reason the homestead millage did not pass? The majority of the voters recognized that Sears has been right all along.

Mr. Taylor is the only board member pushing for accountability in our school system. He is the only board member who dares to challenge the status quo. I give him a lot of credit for continuing to do so even through such character assassinations.

Let's agree to attack the issues and facts, not the personality. We elected Sears Taylor to the board to ask the tough questions. And it seems to me he's doing just that.

To the Editor:

With the governor, state board of education president Durant and millage elections focusing attention on education, Pointe residents might well take satisfaction in the availability of many excellent private schools within the community.

To cite just two recently recognized, St. Clare was singled out, nationally, for educational excellence, and, within the past several weeks, a St. Paul teaching staff member was one of just eight to win national recognition for development of exceptionally effective teaching tools and methods.

With the above in mind, might it be helpful to compare public and private school student test scores, and costs per student? In order to involve more parents in decision making, might it not be well to reconsider TV coverage of board meetings, which often, presently, seem to be dominated by cliques?

With respect to the recent budget-reducing buy-out of older and more highly paid teachers and their replacement by less highly paid new staff, there is an implication that: A) the people bought out were being over-paid in relation to their effectiveness, or B) that students taught by the new less well-paid teachers will be short-changed.

Which is the case? Putting in the hours required for a master's degree seems to automatically qualify a teacher for extra compensation, but does the added degree make the teacher more dedicated and effective, more apt to issue and correct more homework at the classroom level? By cutting back a bit on the premium paid for a "master's," might the system be able to afford more "BAs" doing a better job of teaching fewer students per class?

Approves of Maire program

To the Editor:

We want to express our satisfaction with the whole language learning method and the BSM program now in place at Maire Elementary School. We also feel strongly that our child's experience in first grade would be diluted by a compromise with parents who do not accept this program.

We believe that any compromise of this sound approach is professionally and ethically inappropriate. However, if the school system decides that it must compromise, we would insist that children of the more traditional parents be placed in a separate classroom where the outmoded educational techniques would be emphasized.

Since the concerns by certain parents have been raised, we have attended meetings at the school and read some of the literature in this area. It is our impression that most parents favor the program as it is. There is a mass of data supporting the school's approach.

The parents who characterize themselves as concerned have not presented research supporting the traditional approach. A refrain we frequently hear is, "Why can't we combine the old with the new?" It would be a bit like giving a patient an antibiotic but continuing the discredited practice of bloodletting. If the school board accepts one point of view, it must reject the other.

Some parents support the program, but seem nervous about the newness of the programs. These concerns remind us of new moms and dads at the pediatrician's office. Parental anxiety is not a sound basis for establishing educational strategies.

We are concerned parents for two principal reasons. First, it is our understanding that some parents are present in the school weekly or even daily. Some of these parents are opposed to the methods adopted by the school. We are concerned that our child and other children will be subjected to a confusing muddle from constant contact with these parents in the classroom.

It is the board's responsibility to establish oversight of these lay activities. Second, we are concerned that the Grosse Pointe school system has let a decade slip by before instituting this program.

Compromising this carefully implemented curriculum, or sacrificing scapegoats who have executed this difficult and challenging change in curricula with enormous professionalism and dedication would discredit the school board. We have faith that the Grosse Pointe school system is better than that.

Maire story sensational

To the Editor:

Since my teenage years, I have read the Grosse Pointe News with the belief that it served as a voice in providing the citizens of Grosse Pointe with information about our cities. I have grown to respect your work and trust your judgment. This faith of 25 years was destroyed by the sensationalized headline and lack of supporting proof in Shirley McShane's article concerning Maire teaching methods.

During a follow-up conversation with Ms. McShane, she admitted to me that she made no attempt to establish any credibility to the charges in her story. She mentioned that she had received several phone calls concerning some parental unhappiness at Maire, but could never get anyone to "speak on the record." So, when the incident occurred on Feb. 6, she admittedly put the story in to "see what would happen." Some of her final words to me were that she was waiting to see what would happen next.

I offered to go on the record as a Maire parent who is happy with the majority of our curriculum. Yes, Ms. McShane, we do have a cohesive curriculum. Also, our math program is not just children playing on the floor (i.e., doing nothing) instead of doing paperwork (real learning?).

The BSM program is an acclaimed mathematics curriculum that encourages critical thinking and understanding. It is working in teaching math concepts to our students while still teaching them the "math basics." The lack of a textbook, which can become obsolete in a year, is not relevant.

I offered to send Ms. McShane information on the program to provide her with some background, but this suggestion was declined. Several other inaccuracies in the story were pointed out with similar results. It became obvious that the total picture was not the goal as much as a sensational headline with the hopes of stirring up more to come.

I would suggest that the Grosse Pointe News contact Maire school for information on our curriculum. Likewise, I would suggest that they visit other suburban schools to reinforce that we are not doing anything radically different than anywhere else.

Finally, I would urge Grosse Pointe News readers to remember to take everything they read with a grain of salt.

Maire teacher questions story

To the Editor:

I cannot help wondering why staff writer Shirley McShane settled for the opinions of one parent as the basis for her front page article, "Maire Teaching Methods Questioned" (Feb. 9). It has been my observation that, in previous articles, Ms. McShane has been more thorough in her reporting, demonstrating a true sense of integrity in her writing.

Where's the rest of the story? What about the parents who attended those meetings as a demonstration of support for Maire's teaching methods? How can one parent, or even 30, know that a teacher has replaced his/her "traditional teaching philosophy" simply because "whole language" has been incorporated into a curriculum? (Whole Language does not "replace" a curriculum.)

How can you give credence to Mrs. Bartel's statement that Maire "lacks a cohesive curriculum?" On what does she base such judgment? Where is her proof that the Maire curriculum deviates from the Grosse Pointe schools elementary curriculum guidelines? Has she sat down with the teachers of Maire collectively and discussed their grade level curriculums?

This is shallow and disappointing journalism and creates more harm than good. It also provides a great disservice to a hard-working and dedicated teaching staff.

Maire Elementary

some are the best people trying to do the best they can do for your children.

Our staff just doesn't clean your buildings, they maintain them — from the floors they clean and wax, to the walls they paint, from the parents' cars they help to unload to your sons and daughters locker they help with when they are stuck.

Our staff has been reduced over the past few years; our work load has increased. The talk about a 6 percent increase in the past, we never received and even in the last contract we took a freeze without any offer of any type of buy-out.

Our morale is the lowest I have seen, in 27 years. But our staff still keeps going. They go the extra mile and help with back to school nights, assemblies, school dances, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, all the Neighborhood Club and Community Education service activities, the plumbing, boilers, pools, and much more it takes to run a successful day/night operation. And yes, they try to do all this with a smile and a hello.

We don't want much, we just want you to know we care about you, your children, and your investment in your school system. To privatize out any support staff, after years of building a professional team as we now have in place is a bit frightening to me.

Please do one thing and come by and visit any one of your schools. Then go wherever you choose and visit another school district and compare the age of the buildings, the sights and grounds. You do get what you pay for. We are not a group of overpaid janitors. We are a very talented group of support personnel who are proud of what we do for the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Don't privatize custodians

To the Editor:

I am proud to be working for the Grosse Pointe schools for 16 years, 14 of which I have been at Marie Elementary as the head engineer.

I love my job and enjoy working with the boys and Let me outta here!

One imagines that when one is confined to her home for a few days, the time will enable her to catch up with chores, reading, etc. The rules change considerably when one is confined with orders to elevate a leg. It follows that options are limited. Last week, when my eyes began to water from reading and the "Gerald" tapes were not tempting me to watch television, I turned to a stack of catalogs and decided to peruse. Big mistake. A girl can get into a heap of trouble while sitting at home with a piece of plastic.

What I didn't know was what fun it would be processing my purchases. That was before I "met" Peg. For starters, I didn't know another 58-year-old grandmother who feels the need for a diaper bag of her own. You have to cut me some slack here and realize that, in preparing to host a visit from a grandchild, and having purchased the rocking horse, vacuum and various other "necessities," "bribes," rationalizing as I spent. I wanted to have a place that was nearly perfect and with all the equipment on hand. I had convinced myself that the toys and various kid stuff would remain here to be used and enjoyed by present and future grandchildren.

But I digress. Back to Peg. When a certain diaper bag beckoned me to purchase it, I called the 800 number and was greeted by a kind-hearted soul. I inquired as to the different types of bags being offered and explained what my purposes would require. What followed was nearly 20 minutes of conversation as my new friend told me why she had bought the bag she had and how her daughter found it to be an excellent choice. Peg then asked the ages of my grandchildren and informed me that she had 15 of her own and another on the way. She also told me about the death of her first husband and how great her second spouse was. They have nine children between them. Her last daughter had been married eight years before the birth of their first child. She proceeded to tell me all the names of the children and grandchildren as well as what she thought of some of the new names being used by family friends. Monikers such as Sky, November, didn't appeal to her in the least.

"I see on my computer that you are from Michigan — what part?" queried my telephone pal. I told her and then learned that she and her family had traveled to the western part of Michigan to visit an aunt, when Peg was a child. Their Christmas photograph shows a family of 35 when they are all gathered. Genealogy was a hobby for her. No kidding! I ordered my Granny Bag and suggested that I hang up now. Reluctantly, she complied.

In subsequent conversations with mail order operators, I was to exchange dialogue concerning the fit and color of a linen blazer as the woman on the other end of the line told me she wore my size and wondered what the product looked like. I was able to inform her that women of our stature should not wear double-breasted jackets and she agreed. The last operator went out of her way to track down a piece of stainless, examine it for style and weight and made a choice between two patterns that were appealing to me. She said I could return it at no cost. Wow, no wonder stay-at-homes get plugged in to those TV shows that sell everything. It's dangerous inside, especially knowing that we girls don't need E-mail. Our curiosity and instincts bring us together anyway. Someone, take my phone away, please!

girls. The parents at Maire are so nice to work with, and it shows in the children that attend Maire. I am very proud of my building and invite anyone to come, visit and see if you get the same feeling as the children, staff, parents and anyone else who comes into the building gets. It is a fun, warm, and a very clean atmosphere to learn and be in.

It has come to my attention that the school board has been collecting bids to find outside people to come in and clean our schools. I think this would be devastating, not only for the schools, but for the future.

The schools would start to look run down, and the children would feel very uncomfortable seeing strangers in their schools. Everybody that works for the schools has a personal sort of pride in their buildings. If the board starts bringing in outside people, you will start to see the quality of the schools drop drastically, and I don't think that the Grosse Pointe taxpayer would like to see their school system fall apart. Face it; wonderful schools are why people come to this great community, isn't it?

Custodians really care

To the Editor:

I can't believe what I have been reading in the Grosse Pointe papers or what I've seen in some of the fliers that are being distributed around the Grosse Pointe area regarding the over-paid support personnel of the Grosse Pointe school system.

I, like many of my colleagues, have worked for the Grosse Pointe schools better than half of my life. I work for the support staff. My job title is head engineer of Brownell Middle School. I am very proud of the work that takes place by our support staff throughout the system and feel it is my duty to brag about our wonderful staff. I am amazed at all the talent we have to offer.

This support staff wasn't put together overnight. It has taken years to build this talented staff. This staff is from the top to the bottom the best that one could ask for. As a parent I wish that I could have half the confidence in my school system support staff as you should have in yours.

I, as well as many of my colleagues, have spent well over 1,000 hours in classrooms throughout the area improving ourselves to be more knowledgeable in our fields of expertise. Some of our staff members have gone to college, some are still going. Some are the elite in their trades, and

FEATHER YOUR NEST

From the Pages of Nest Egg Magazine

Q Do recent declines in the stock and bond markets indicate that I should sell my mutual fund investments or sit tight?

A It's natural to want to jump off what looks like a sinking ship. But your advisor has a longer-term perspective on the waters and on the course you're charting. He or she knows that with mutual funds there should be carefully thought out reasons before an investor "sells low."

Q How have my mutual fund investments performed this year compared to other funds and other investment products?

A Your financial advisor will supply you with appropriate benchmarks to help you assess your investment returns. He or she can discuss the possible influence of the mutual fund manager and of the financial markets on those returns.

Q Has the nature of my investments changed in such a way that I should reevaluate your investment position?

A Your financial advisor can tell you whether any of your mutual funds have changed their objectives or their fund managers and help you decide whether any such changes warrant reallocating your investments.

Q Do changes in my own circumstances dictate a reevaluation of my mutual fund portfolio?

A You should inform your financial advisor of any significant changes in your life that might affect your investment needs. Have you changed jobs and received a pension plan distribution? Has your company pension plan changed? Has your family grown? Have you decided to retire earlier? Any of these changes could cause you to reallocate your portfolio.

Q Is my current mutual fund asset allocation still appropriate for my investment goals?

A As you get older, even if your goals haven't changed, markets and economies change in ways that may affect the ability of your current investments to meet your goals. Meet with your financial advisor periodically to make sure your asset allocation still conforms to your needs.

Checklist For Mutual Fund Investors

To encourage productive relationships between financial advisors and their clients, the Mutual Fund Forum will distribute a New Year's checklist through its 45 member organizations entitled "Eight Questions to Ask Your Financial Advisor in the New Year." The Mutual Fund Forum is a new nonprofit association dedicated to educating investors about the role of financial advisors in the increasingly complex and crowded mutual fund market. Toward that end, the Forum developed the following checklist:

Q Should I contribute to an IRA? If so, what investments are best?

A All working Americans are entitled to contribute up to $2,000 annually to a tax-deferred Individual Retirement Account (IRA). Money accrues tax-deferred and many workers are also eligible for a full or partial tax deduction. If you have a 401(k) plan at your workplace, however, you may have to choose between fully funding your 401(k) plan and contributing to an IRA. Talk to your financial advisor about your retirement fund options and the most appropriate tax-deferred investments. Your advisor can also discuss the proper balance between your retirement fund investments and the rest of your portfolio. If you're self-employed, you may also want to ask about Keogh or SEP plans.

Q Are there any new investment opportunities I should consider?

A The mutual fund industry is responding to the changing needs of American investors with a variety of new products. Your financial advisor should keep you informed of new opportunities, while also helping you stick to a long-term strategy to meet your goals.

Q Given your outlook for the markets, what are the absolute best-case and worst-case scenarios for my investments?

A One of the most important roles your financial advisor can play is to help you better understand what to expect from your investments, so that you are not caught without a lifeboat in an unexpected storm.

Robert J. Priest, M.D.

A memorial service was held Saturday, Feb. 4, at Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Robert J. Priest, M.D., 77, who died Sunday, Jan. 29, 1995, at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit.

Born in Columbus, Ohio, Dr. Priest was a resident of the City of Grosse Pointe.

He graduated from Ohio State University and the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine in 1947 after a two-year tour of duty as a battalion surgeon with the 399th Infantry, 100th Infantry Division, during World War II. He joined Henry Ford Hospital's staff in 1949.

A longtime gastroenterologist, he was best known for patient care and teaching the profession he loved.

Dr. Priest identified familial polyserositis in a patient in 1950 and treated more than 200 patients with this genetic abdominal disorder that primarily affects Jews, Armenians and Arabs.

He diagnosed the first case of AIDS at Henry Ford Hospital in 1982, found in a patient he had treated for hepatitis B several years earlier.

Dr. Priest headed the division of gastroenterology at Henry Ford Hospital from 1960-76. He was clinical associate professor of internal medicine at the University of Michigan from 1974-90 and was a consultant at Henry Ford Hospital from 1976 until his retirement in 1990.

Dr. Priest served 30 years on the editorial board of The Journal of the American Geriatric Society and was a former chairman of the internal medicine section of the Michigan State Medical Society. He was a past president of the Bockus International Society of Gastroenter-ology, the Michigan Society of Internal Medicine, the Detroit Gastroenterological Society and the Michigan Chapter of the American Medical Writers Association.

Dr. Priest received several awards, including the Vincent Lyon Research Award of the American Gastroenterological Association in 1959 and the National President's Award of the Michigan State Medical Society in 1978. He was named a laureate of the Michigan Chapter of the American College of Physicians in 1986.

In 1983, the Robert J. Priest, M.D., Library in the division of gastroenterology at Henry Ford Hospital was dedicated in his honor.

Dr. Priest advanced the field of gastroenterology through his research and writing, having penned chapters for several volumes of Bockus Gastroenterology.

He was a member of the Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe, the Readers Group and the Civil War Round Table. He enjoyed teaching students to read at the Dominican Literary Center in Detroit.

He is survived by his wife, Helen; two daughters, Margaret Herbst and Barbara Kehbein; a son, William; seven grandchildren; and two sisters, Marjorie McFadden and Florence Hutchins.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church Memorial Garden Fund.

Imports beware! Olds Eighty Eight is not chopped liver

Driving along I-94 at night near Metro Airport, heading home from Ann Arbor in a '95 Oldsmobile Eighty Eight Royale LSS, I thought, "I like this car."

I have always been partial to the Olds Eighty Eight, ever since it burst on the automotive scene shortly before I did with its legendary high-compression Rocket V-8.

Through most of my life, Oldsmobile has been a proper car. You did not have to explain to a neighbor or friend why you had purchased an Oldsmobile.

Oldsmobile had a solid image. For decades it had been in the same general market as Buick, but they were clearly different. Buick was a traditional luxury car, sort of a junior Cadillac. Oldsmobile was also upscale, but younger, more adventurous. It was General Motors' "cutting edge" division.

When General Motors introduced its Hydra-matic drive in the late '30s, the first automatic that really worked, it offered it first on Oldsmobile. Oldsmobile, along with Cadillac, was first to get the revolutionary high-compression Kettering V-8 for '49. When GM moved to front-wheel drive in the '60s, it was Oldsmobile which introduced it in the Toronado.

A decade ago, Oldsmobile was General Motors' second-best-selling division, just behind Chevrolet. In the late 1980s, GM responded to criticism that its cars all looked and drove alike and ordered each division to develop a specific market identity.

Chevrolet grabbed its traditional entry-level role; Pontiac decided it would be the sporty division; Buick stuck with its traditional lower-level luxury image; and Cadillac opted, naturally, for top-of-the-line luxury. Saturn had already targeted the volume imports.

So what was Oldsmobile? Chopped liver? Olds was out in the cold, a marquee without a market. This is probably what led Oldsmobile general manager John Rock to lament last summer that "a day at Oldsmobile is tougher than a day at Buick or Pontiac."

But in introducing the spectacularly successful Aurora sedan, Rock spelled out Oldsmobile's mission: to take on the higher-line imports. The Aurora seems to have the muscle and the price to do just that. And Oldsmobile has freshened and upgraded its Eighty Eight Royale LSS to pose the same kind of a challenge to lower-level premium imports in the under-$30,000 range, a very active market.

The Eighty Eight LSS' styling is very traditional Oldsmobile, not futuristic and "Lexuslike." But the car has much to recommend it to a potential buyer of an upscale sport/luxury sedan.

'95 Oldsmobile Eighty Eight LSS is a credible, less expensive alternative to upscale imports.

Eighty Eight LSS interior is leathery and sensuous, a sharp departure from Oldsmobile's past.

In fact, the Eighty Eight reminds me less of a Buick or Pontiac, with which it shares a GM C-body (Buick LeSabre and Park Avenue, Pontiac Bonneville), but more like a Nissan Maxima or a Mazda 929.

Like these very desirable and trendy Japanese sedans, the Eighty Eight is bereft of chrome trim, except for the optional bright alloy wheels, which are a current fashion hit.

The LSS has a mini-seat icon switch on the door, in the manner of Mercedes-Benz, a detail emerging as de rigueur on smart sedans.

The Eighty Eight LSS' ride and handling are beyond reproach, even in the heady market it has targeted. Its variable-rate power steering is just right and the suspension provides proper road feel and shock control even on Detroit's pock-marked streets.

Our LSS test car was equipped with the 3800 Series II 205-hp (up from 170 last year) V-6 standard on all '95

Guidestar maps path through the Pointes

By Richard A. Wright

Our Oldsmobile Eighty Eight LSS has one of the most amazing new accessories, the Guidestar navigation device. Its display perched near the center of the dash, shrouded in a black velvet bag like a royal falcon.

We de-shrouded it and tried it out in an area we know. Its performance convinced us it would be an invaluable aid in trying to find your way around a strange city or neighborhood.

Under the shroud is a small color LCD computer readout, which invites you to enter a destination, either a street address, a point of interest or an intersection. It will then calculate a route for you based on whether you want the fastest route and whether you want to use freeways.

I punched in the address of the Grosse Pointe News, about three miles from my home, and it calculated a route. The route was pretty much the one I would have taken, since I know the area. Guidestar put a road map on the small screen and outlined the route in purple. A small triangle moved along the route representing the car.

Oldsmobile spokesperson Miriam Carroll explained that a computer with

AMENDMENT TO ZONING ORDINANCE
ORDINANCE NO. 332

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE ZONING ORDINANCE, CODE NO. 12-03.

The City of Grosse Pointe Farms Ordains:

Section 1. Article XIV of the Zoning Ordinance of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms, Code No. 12-03, enacted as Ordinance No. 192 on July 16, 1973, as previously amended, is hereby further amended to include the following Section 1401 to be inserted immediately following Section 1400:

SEC. 1401. CERTAIN SATELLITE ANTENNAS OR RECEIVERS

Notwithstanding Sections 401, 701, 801, 902, 1002 and 1102 of this Ordinance, satellite dish or disc type antennas or receivers not exceeding twenty-four (24) inches in diameter shall be permitted (without the necessity of Council approval) under the following terms and conditions:

1. The antenna or receiver shall be either (a) affixed to the roof or other portion of the main building or an accessory structure such that the antenna or receiver will be screened from view from the public right of way, or (b) located on the ground in rear yards (in compliance with Articles XIII and XV of this Ordinance) with adequate landscaping or fencing to screen the antenna or receiver from view from the public right of way and from first floor levels of nearby residential properties.
2. If affixed to a structure, the color of the antenna or receiver shall, as nearly as possible, match the applicable materials of such structure in order to minimize the visual appearance of the antenna or receiver.
3. The property owner desiring to install the antenna or receiver shall, with respect to the proposed location of such antenna or receiver, obtain the consent of the owner(s) of adjoining property having a direct line of sight to such proposed location. The consent from each such owner of adjoining property shall be in writing and shall be filed with the City, and shall be irrevocable and binding on succeeding owners of such adjoining property with respect to the antenna or receiver for which it is given.
4. Before any antenna or receiver is installed, a written permit therefore shall be obtained from the City upon application in writing. The application shall set forth a description of the antenna or receiver (including its color), its proposed location, a description of related landscaping or fencing (if applicable), and such other information as the officers of the City may reasonably require. A permit shall be issued upon determination by the administrative officers of the City that the proposed antenna or receiver (and its proposed location) complies with the provisions of this Section 1401 and upon receipt of the written consent required under subparagraph 3 above; otherwise the permit shall not be issued. A fee in the amount established by council resolution from time to time shall be paid to the City prior to the issuance of each permit.

The proposed installation of any satellite dish or disc type antenna or receiver exceeding twenty-four (24) inches in diameter, or the proposed installation of any such antenna or receiver on any tower or in any location other than as permitted under subparagraph 1 above shall continue to require Council approval as applicable under Sections 401, 701, 801, 902, 1002, or 1102 of this Ordinance. In addition, an appeal to the Council may be taken from any action of the administrative officers of the City denying a permit for a proposed antenna or receiver not exceeding twenty-four (24) inches in diameter. Appeals must be in writing and must be filed within ten (10) days after the denial of a permit application is mailed or otherwise communicated to the applicant. The applicant must submit, together with the appeal, a site plan describing the proposed antenna or receiver, its proposed location, the proposed method of screening the antenna or receiver and any other pertinent information necessary to evaluate the proposed antenna or receiver and its location. Written notice of the time and place of the appeal hearing shall be sent by the applicant by certified or registered mail to the owners of property adjoining any boundary of the applicant's property. The Council may upon such appeal reverse, modify or affirm the action of the administrative officers and may, in its discretion, impose reasonable conditions upon the proposed installation in the general interest of public safety, welfare and the protection of property values. Any appeal under this Section 1401 shall be in lieu of any appeal or variance proceeding under Article XVII of this Ordinance.

Section 2. Except as expressly modified by the Ordinance, the provisions of the Zoning Ordinance, Code No. 12-03, shall remain in full force and effect.

Section 3. If any provision of this Ordinance shall be held invalid, the remainder of this Ordinance shall not be affected thereby.

Section 4. This Ordinance shall take effect twenty (20) days after its enactment, or upon its publication, whichever is later.

Ford Motor Co.'s Ecostar EV has logged 250,000 miles — so far

Ford Motor Co. announced recently that its Ecostar electric vehicle test fleet has logged more than 250,000 cumulative miles — more than any electric test fleet to date.

Launched one year ago this month, the Ecostar test program has helped Ford learn more about how an electric vehicle performs under real-world conditions. Among other data, Ford has learned:

- Ecostars are providing fleet customers with an average of 100 miles driving range between charges.
- The maximum miles driven on a single charge was 155.
- The minimum miles driven was less than 20 — logged in Detroit during last year's frigid winter.

• In passing situations, customers have reached speeds of more than 70 miles per hour.

"The information we are gathering is from real-world testing, not from a test-track or laboratory," says John Wallace, director of Ford's electric vehicle programs. "We've learned more from this year's customer feedback than from any time in the last four years of the Ecostar program."

However, while investigating the fires, Ford was able to evaluate ways that an internal battery problem could lead to a fire. This led to the creation of new software designed to deactivate the battery if any conditions occur that could lead to the possible onset of a battery fire.

With 250,000 miles driven, the Ecostar test fleet now totals 53 vehicles on the road. They are being driven by 12 fleet customers in the U.S. and Canada, in addition to some Ecostars used by Ford for testing. Through on-board computers, Ford is able to track each vehicle's weekly mileage, including average and longest miles driven between charges.

"The significance of today's milestone is much more than just the number of miles the fleet has driven," says John Wallace, director of Ford's electric vehicle programs. "The important point is the tremendous amount of information we now have and are using to enhance all of our electric vehicle development programs."

Ford's other electric vehicle development activities include: active involvement in the U.S. Advanced Battery Consortium; a recently announced program to investigate selling Ford

"gliders" — incomplete cars or trucks factory built without engines, transmissions, fuel systems and other selected components — to companies that would convert the vehicles to electric power; research and development programs on both electric and hybrid vehicles.

Ford also is continuing its ambitious market research program, to ensure that future electric vehicles will meet the demanding expectations of customers.

"Potential electric vehicle customers have indicated that they want vehicles that will provide the range they need at a price they can afford," said Wallace. "The information and real-world experience we are gaining through the Ecostar will go a long way to improving today's technology in order to meet customer demands in the future."

By the end of 1994, Ford will have built 103 Ecostars, with a total of 81 to be used by 22 participating fleet customers — including 10 new international customers in five countries.

31st annual Ridler Award to be presented at Autorama

General Motors Performance Parts will award $7,500 in cash and a small block Chevy engine to the automobile presented with the coveted Ridler Award at the Dash Electronics Autorama in Detroit, Feb. 17-19, at Cobo Center.

The 31-year-old Ridler Award is considered the most prestigious honor in the country for hot rod and custom vehicles. It is awarded to the best new car shown for the first time ever. The first public showing of the car must be at the Detroit Autorama.

This year the judges for the Ridler will be joined by four past Ridler Award winners who will aid in making the final decision.

This is the second year that GM Performance Parts has sponsored the nationwide series of competitions — that are part of the custom car show circuit held across the U.S. and Canada — called GM Performance Parts Show Car Series. Last year, GM Performance Parts added the high performance engine to the prize package for the Ridler Award, making it the highest paid award of its kind at any car show.

For information or to enter call 810-771-7110, or write to Autorama, P.O. Box 468, St. Clair Shores, Mich. 48080.

a hard drive in the trunk contains a database with maps and street names. A global positioning system antenna in the rear shelf keeps track of location with satellite signals; an internal gyroscope quantifies cornering maneuvers (it can tell when you've turned into your driveway), a road-speed sensor and back-up lamp voltage sensor combine to keep track of vehicle location.

The system, which costs $1,995, was first introduced to cover California. In November, a database for Michigan, Illinois and Indiana was introduced. So a Grosse Pointe driver who wanted to go to the Chicago Auto Show could be guided all the way from his or her home to McCormick Place. By 1996, the whole country will be in databases.

I set out for my destination and soon discovered that the Guidestar speaks, so you can be alerted without taking your eyes off the road. (Those who find talking cars annoying can turn its voice off.) When I approached Kercheval, it told me to "turn left at next intersection." It then guided me to the Hill by map, alerting me by voice as we approached the newspaper office.

I reset the Guidestar for my home and did not follow the route it calculated for me. It looks for main streets, rather than the shortest routes, because traffic is usually faster on a main street. It routed me back on Kercheval, but I decided to take Charlevoix. On the screen, it advised me to return to the route or to push "enter" for a new route.

I pushed "enter" for a new route. It told me to turn right at the next intersection and go to Mack. It was insistent that I take Mack, apparently not happy with the less-traveled and admittedly slower-moving Charlevoix.

The display module, hooded or not, would seem to invite theft, but it can easily be dismantled and stashed away. Also, it is only a small part of the system. A thief would really have to know what he was doing to get all the components.

The price is about that of a small portable computer, but that's basically what it is, with some peripherals most computers never dreamed of. And for that price, you will never be lost again — unless, like me, you ignore its advice.

Eighty Eights. An optional ($1,022) supercharged version which puts out 225-hp is available on the LSS model, but the standard powerplant seemed adequate to do anything legal that you might want to do.

With its smooth four-speed automatic, the standard V-6 gives the 3,583-pound LSS smooth and lively performance. The Series II 3800 features a low-deck block, a balance shaft for smoothness, lightweight pistons and connecting rods, redesigned intake and exhaust passages for better breathing and an improved valve train.

The non-supercharged Eighty Eight mileage is 2 mpg better than the supercharged V-6 on the EPA city/highway cycles, at 19/29 mpg.

A powerful argument in favor of the Olds Eighty Eight LSS is its price. The LSS comes with leather seats, traction control, load leveling, keyless entry, and automatic climate controls for $25,000, including destination charge. Similarly sized and equipped imports generally cost more and have fewer amenities.

Buyers who are image conscious are likely to stick with Lexus or Volvo. If they shop GM at all, they will probably opt for a Cadillac or even an Aurora. The Eighty Eight may suffer from being regarded as "the car your father drove."

But it isn't. If you're looking for something very nice that won't cost as much as your house, take a look at the Olds Eighty Eight LSS. It may be this year's sleeper.

Presenting — the new, improved Kerby school entrance and library

The old Kerby entrance had two side doors not visible from the street and a drab overall appearance.

Construction workers were busy last summer building the new entrance, which creates a focal point on the front of the building and better utilizes space.

The school after its facelift. Plans for the spring include planting new bushes, trees and flowers and adding benches to accent the overall look.

Remember last summer when the front lawn at Kerby Elementary School in Grosse Pointe Farms looked like a construction zone, with scaffolds, trucks and trash bins invading the front lawn?

Well, all that's gone and the finished product was on display Feb. 1 when Kerby held an afternoon and evening open house to show off its newly expanded library and redesigned front entrance.

"Many people have been curious about the changes inside and outside the building," said principal Nancy Salamas, during a presentation to parents and grandparents. "We had two entrances outside and two vestibules that were not sensibly used. So we closed the old entrances, made them conference rooms and constructed a central entrance."

The $135,000 project included constructing a front vestibule facing Kerby Road, closing the two original doorways and converting the old vestibules into conference areas for teachers, parents and students.

In addition, the old library, which was the size of a standard elementary-school classroom, was doubled in size, re-carpeted, wallpapered, and redecorated with new furniture, bookshelves, desks and computer stations.

The project was paid for through the building and site fund over the course of two fiscal years, said Larry Yankauskas, supervisor of buildings and grounds.

Fifth-grader Molly Damm, who was one of a dozen student council members who guided visitors on tours of the school, pointed out the features of the new library that were appealing to the students: a platform area for story hour or special guests, computerized card catalogs and an overall inviting atmosphere.

Fifth-grader Molly Damm admires the expanded and redecorated library.

"It's a nice place to be," Damm said. "It makes people want to be here because it looks so nice."

Damm said she and her classmates also like the new entrance, which leads students into the spacious main hall rather than into the crowded old vestibules off the main hallway.

"It also looks nicer than before," she noted.

South sweeps regional awards

Grosse Pointe South students captured 102 awards, more than any other school in Wayne and Oakland counties, at the annual Southeastern Michigan Regional Scholastic Art Awards competition. The show is held through Sunday, Feb. 19, at the Summit Place Mall in Waterford Township.

The Southeastern Michigan Scholastic Art Regional consists of all school districts in Wayne and Oakland counties. The regional art show organizers accept work from junior and senior high school art programs, jury the works, mount an exhibition and then send the best works to New York for national competition.

Student Benjamin Butler received this year's Hallmark Nomination. His work is now going to New York for further display and jurying. Butler and Melissa Provenzano both were awarded a two-week summer art workshop scholarship at the University of Michigan.

South students who produced art portfolios that will be sent to New York are: Cynda D'Hondt, Kathy Leisen, Molly Sullivan and Lucie Piedra.

South senior Molly Sullivan won the "Ruby Tuesday Best Depiction of Food" award.

Timothy Maun and Jackie Spinney received certificates of merit in the sculpture, junior high division; Katie Gowman and Lucie Piedra won the gold key; Lucie Piedra won two silver keys and Melissa Wise won a certificate of merit in the sculpture, high school division.

Nicole MacDonald and Erica Roosen won the silver key in ceramics, senior high division; Katie Gowman, James Hill, Kate Moloney-Egnatios and Jessica Pluhar, received certificates of merit in ceramics, senior high division.

Sara Dykstra won the silver key and Leonard Salvaggio received the certificate of merit in drawing, junior high division.

Benjamin Butler, Kathy Leisen and Mary Sullivan all won gold keys; Benjamin Butler, Erica Cordier, Colin Darke, Cynda D'Hondt, Kathy Leisen, Nicole MacDonald, Erica Roosen and Molly Sullivan, won silver keys; and Cynda D'Hondt, George Macon, Dave Shock and Amy Wendt received certificates of merit in the drawing, senior high division.

Cynda D'Hondt, Erica Roosen, Sara Dykstra, Molly Sullivan and Melissa Provenzano won gold keys, Cynda D'Hondt, Kathy Leisen, Nicole MacDonald, Stephanie Murg and Molly Sullivan won silver keys; and Benjamin Butler, Kathy Leisen and Molly Sullivan received certificates of merit in the painting, senior high division.

Naomi Ruth and Matthew Weaver won gold keys; Sarah Cius, Aubrey Elich, Jeremy Price, Naomi Ruth, John Topacio, Melissa Van Hoek and Mike Walsh and won silver keys; and Daniel Bruechert, Matthew Farr, Matt Isbell, Lauren Kordas, Naomi Ruth, Melissa Van Hoek, Matthew Weaver and Sara Witherall received certificates of merit for photography, senior division.

Kate Dougherty won a silver key in printmaking, junior high division; and Alexander Keros received a certificate of merit in printmaking, senior high division.

In computer graphics, Andy Dragovic and Matthew Weaver received certificates of merit. Daniel Mitchell, Andrew Papatrifiantayllou, David Shock and John William Sumner won silver keys; and Daniel Mitchell and Matthew Weaver received certificates of merit in communication arts and graphic design, senior high division. Daniel Mitchell also received a certificate of merit for environmental design, senior high division.

Holy day

Cardinal Adam Maida, spiritual leader of the Archdiocese of Detroit, visited St. Clare of Montefalco School in Grosse Pointe Park earlier this month. The school community celebrated his visit with a dinner, a spelling bee, a parade and a volunteers' reception. Cardinal Maida held a special liturgy featuring students, teachers, alumni and distinguished guests. The cardinal then visited some of the classrooms and spoke to students.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Council, meeting as a Board of Appeals under the provisions of Section 5-14-1 of the 1975 City Code will meet in the Council Court Room of the Municipal Building, 20025 Mack Plaza, on February 27, 1995, at 7:30 p.m., to hear the appeal of James and Lori Lombardi, 1048 N. Brys Drive, who are appealing the denial of the Building Inspector to issue a building permit for the construction of an addition to their residence at 1048 N. Brys Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods. The building permit was denied due to a deficiency in the required rear yard setback as set forth in Section 5-4-3 (F) of the Zoning Ordinance of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods. A variance is therefore required. All interested parties are invited to attend.

Jimmy DiStefano

Each week in this column we focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem or short story or essay.

Jimmy DiStefano is a fourth-grader at Ferry Elementary School in Grosse Pointe Woods. He wrote this poem about being cold and wants to share it with our readers.

Jimmy DiStefano

As cold as . . .

- Sitting at the North Pole on an iceberg watching jolly seals play.
- Jumping into the white snow with a blue bathing suit on and getting buried.
- A brown squirrel with a piece of bread in its mouth who cannot climb up the tree to get to his house.
- Falling into blue Lake St. Clair with bare feet.
- Wearing a green bathing suit while shoveling an ice rink.
- Skiing in the Alps and tripping and falling face-first into the snow.
- Inviting happy whales to a picnic in Alaska.
- Eating a red and blue snow cone with an endangered baby harp seal on a glacier.
- A pretty blue bird in its black nest trying to warm its youngsters.
- A fuzzy, cute polar bear who has no fur on his paws wearing paw mitts.

Trade is country's most pressing issue, writes former Grosse Pointe resident

"The winning nations of today export more than they import," said former Grosse Pointe resident D.J. "Jim" Ogden. "Wages have been going down and our debt has been going up since 1975. What we are leaving to our kids is a poor legacy."

Ogden, who lives in McMurray, Pa., outside Pittsburgh, has recently published his first book, "Re-Manufacturing the American Dream." (Vantage Press Inc., 254 pages.)

In it, he specifically targets America's trade deficit as a reason why young people today may not have the same opportunity Ogden had in 1955, when he graduated from Grosse Pointe High School, in pursuing the American dream.

"We had a hell of a football team that year," said Ogden, a defensive tackle on the '54 Class A state championship team.

He attended Michigan State University to play football, "but it didn't work out."

Ogden earned a bachelor's degree in engineering from MSU and later received a master's of business administration from the University of Michigan before embarking on a 30-year career with the Westinghouse Corp.

As Westinghouse began downsizing in the 1980s, Ogden worked as a business consultant and a teacher at Indiana University in Pennsylvania.

In 1990, Ogden began work on his book.

"The ideas for it evolved over my working career," he said. "I feel strongly that America has to do something different."

He finished the book in 1993 and it was published last December.

"Some of the facts might be outdated," Ogden said. "But they are enduring."

"One of the principles of the book is that the current economic policies aren't working, whether they are supply-side or demand-side," he said.

Ogden describes himself politically as a conservative who has mainly voted Republican, "but is disappointed."

The book is apolitical, he said. "I take shots at both sides because neither party has done the job."

"We look at ourselves, but not at the rest of the world. Tinkering with interest rates and federal reserve rates hasn't worked."

He blames the government more than business for America's trade deficit.

"The government allows some businesses to win and some to lose," Ogden said. "Republicans have focused on entrepreneurs and have dissociated themselves from big business. The Democrats haven't done much better. Manufacturing is now the target of other countries. Manufacturing improves the wages in those countries and when their goods are imported into the United States at reduced prices, we have to lower our prices to compete. As a result, we end up downsizing our businesses."

"Our government has done a poor job in managing trade. Actually, our government isn't organized to handle trade. No one looks at total world commerce."

Ogden cited five countries —

Japan, China, Canada, Taiwan and Germany — with whom the United States needs to balance its trade deficit.

"If we are going to fix the system, we must have a bilateral balance of trade with each country," he said. "This will preclude these countries from dumping their products into the U.S. market. A bilateral balance of trade with these five countries will result in the restoration of the American dream."

Ogden does not favor either the GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) or NAFTA (North American Free Trade Agreement) pacts.

"No 'trade' agreement" after World War II has resulted in more exports than imports for the United States," he said. "What makes NAFTA and GATT so different?"

Ogden has sent copies of his book to a number of people, including businessmen, politicians and teachers (although he said it is not a textbook).

Ross Perot, Pat Buchanan and his Pennsylvania Sens. Arlen Specter and Rick Santorum have all received Ogden's book, as well as freshman Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., whom Ogden said would make an excellent candidate for president.

Sales have gone well during the first couple months, he said. Ogden hopes to get feedback from the book's readers.

"I don't know why this isn't understood by more people," Ogden said of the trade issue. "The answers are so clear. The correlations are so strong."

Ogden still maintains ties to his hometown; his mother, brother and sister still live in the Grosse Pointe area.

Tax Tips

Following are examples of common questions people ask the Internal Revenue Service. They are presented as a public service of this publication and the IRS.

Q. I've been reading a lot lately about the IRS reorganization and Tax Systems Modernization (TSM). How will all this affect me?

A. TSM is changing the way the IRS does nearly everything. You will notice a dramatic improvement in response time to your requests.

For instance, before TSM, if you needed a copy of a past year's return, you had to request a form to request the copy, wait for it to arrive, fill it out, send it in, and wait six to eight weeks for your copy, and that's a long time to wait — especially when you need your copy to qualify for a mortgage or a student loan.

Park GI nursed faithful tank across World War II Europe

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

The Army had trouble finding men who could drive a truck, yet alone a tank, during World War II. When he was 12 years old and working at a neighbor's truck farm, Paul Dykstra had no idea his Army training had begun.

Dykstra, who grew up and still lives on the same street in Grosse Pointe Park, was working for a Detroit steel company when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

"We were supplying steel I-beams and columns for homes," he said. "The company bought steel from the Bethlehem Steel Co. When Pearl Harbor happened, the owner received a telegram saying, 'you will get no more steel.'"

Dykstra was laid off Dec. 31, 1941.

"I had trouble finding a job," he said. "Every place said that I was too close to draft age."

He finally found a job as an elevator operator in the General Motors building.

"While there, the boys from Draft Board 57, right down the street on Jefferson, grabbed me on Nov. 7, 1942," Dykstra said.

He was off to Fort Custer and then was quickly sent down to Fort Benning, Ga.

"The chaplain on the train told us we were all new members of the 10th Armored Division," Dykstra said. "I had been in the Army three days. I was in the same outfit I stayed with. I had no basic training or previous experience with the service. I didn't know a first sergeant from a general."

He stayed at Fort Benning through June 1943, then went to Tennessee maneuvers before going back to Georgia, to Camp Gordon.

In September 1944, Dykstra was all set to head overseas from New York. However, the ship wasn't quite as prepared.

"It was about 9 at night and we were going about 15 or 20 minutes when the ship came to a screeching halt," he said. "A kid behind me yelled, 'We've been torpedoed,' but we hadn't. We had run aground in Brooklyn."

A Polish ship had cut across the passenger liner's bow causing the liner to swerve toward the shore.

Four tugboats tried to pull the passenger ship into deeper waters, but the vessel wouldn't budge.

"Then they said they were going to unload us," Dykstra said, "but there wasn't any pier there. They threw a big net down the side of the boat and we went down to a boat below. It took a couple of days to unload everybody."

Dykstra and the other troops climbed aboard a yacht.

"They tried to start the yacht," Dykstra said, "but it wouldn't start. So then they took one of the tugboats and dragged us back to New York harbor and there was a band playing. They thought their troops were coming home."

The troops then hopped aboard another ship, which was being converted into a hospital ship, and they were finally on their way. However, there was some danger along the way.

"It took about six or seven days to catch the convoy we were to be traveling with," he said. "We caught up and then the next morning the whistles started to blow. They began zig-zagging. Right off our flank, a bunch of these things started depth-charging. We found out later that they had sunk a sub. We watched the whole thing."

Dykstra landed at Weymouth, England, but did not disembark. The next day they crossed the channel in LCIs (Landing Craft Infantry) to Cherbourg, France.

"We were the first division after the (D-Day) invasion to land directly in France without disembarking in England," Dykstra said.

Dykstra's outfit, the 10th Armored Division, Company B, 21st Tank Battalion, was loaded into trucks and driven to the countryside.

"We were taken to a big field full of tanks and they said, 'pick one,'" he said. "Everything in the tanks was packed in Cosmoline (a heavy, protective petroleum coating to prevent corrosion). All the tools, machine gun parts, everything was covered. It took two weeks to clean all of the parts."

After cleaning the tanks, they drove them to the North Sea to test the guns in the sand dunes. From there, they started the trip up to the front.

"Paris had been taken just a month before we got there," Dykstra said. "We were diverted to Paris and paraded down the Champs Elysees."

Dykstra was the tank's driver and the crowds along the route made it difficult to maneuver down the street.

"They had a hard time finding tank drivers," Dykstra said. "Most guys would rather be in the turret."

Tanks had five crew members: tank commander, gunner, loader, driver and assistant driver.

When selecting tank drivers, members of his outfit were told to get into some GI trucks. The maintenance crews told the men to start up the truck, put it in gear and go. Most of the men had never been in trucks before. Those who could drive the trucks were put on a special list and then those men were tested in tanks. Dykstra had no problems driving either the truck or tank.

When he was younger, Dykstra knew a man who owned a truck farm in Utica.

"I worked for him when I was 10 years old," Dykstra said. "I was driving trucks since I was 12. That's where I got my driving experience."

On Nov. 1, 1944, Dykstra reached the front line, which was at Metz, France.

"We were assigned to the 3rd Army," he said. "Before we went on the line, George (Patton) gave us a big pep-talk. He stood on the back of his GI truck, all spit and polish, and told us about how we were going to be in Berlin by Christmas, if he had his way."

After taking Metz, Dykstra's unit headed toward the Sigfried Line.

"We lost two or three tanks right away," he said. "They let us come right up to them. They had pillboxes designed like a house. Actually, it was a house built over a pillbox."

On Thanksgiving, Dykstra walked over to talk with infantrymen who were dug in a few hundred yards ahead.

"All of a sudden I heard artillery land in the woods in front of the infantry and out popped two deer," Dykstra said. "Somebody 'standing on' the tank yelled for me to shoot the deer."

Dykstra shot one of the deer and dragged it back to the tank. They had venison for Thanksgiving dinner.

After a while, Dykstra came off the line.

"These tanks need a lot of maintenance," he said. "You can only run them for so long. You have to tighten all of the bolts inside and out. It would take almost a day to do a track, but stuff like that had to be done."

On Dec. 16, his outfit was notified to prepare move out for the Battle of the Bulge, about 90 miles north. When reaching the front, the 10th Armored was split into three groups, A, B and R (reserves). Combat Command B went to Bastogne 24 hours before the 101st Airborne Division arrived.

"Combat Command B kept everything open until the 101st got there," Dykstra said. "We were on the southern flank, close to Luxembourg, then we moved up into the line and supported the 4th Infantry about 15 or 20 miles from Bastogne."

"We got into some trouble.

Grosse Pointe Park's Paul Dykstra was a tank driver in the Battle of the Bulge and other clashes in Europe during World War II.

We lost three tanks and my tank commander got killed and my platoon sergeant was hit. He jumped out and ran into the Germans who were dressed like Americans and they grabbed him."

Dykstra's outfit as a platoon was no longer effective.

"Out of five tanks in the platoon, we lost three and a tank commander," he said. "We only had one tank with a full crew."

The Sherman tanks like the one Dykstra drove were much smaller than their German counterparts. They could fit between the tracks of the Germans' Tiger tanks.

The American tanks were made by different manufacturers, "but everyone considered the best ones had Ford V-8 engines," Dykstra said.

After losing some of the tanks, Dykstra's platoon was put into a holding position.

"It was so cold," he said, "that they took us off the line for 24 hours and put us in a house until we warmed up. Tanks had no heaters."

Tankers would often put food rations on the back of the tanks just to keep infantrymen around. The infantry would utilize tools, such as picks and shovels, from the tanks as well.

On Dec. 26, Dykstra was taken off the line.

"They were going to feed us Christmas dinner," he said. "I went through the chow line. I had just gotten my food when they notified us that the town of Waldbillig was open. There was a cry for Dykstra. I had to leave my food. Only my tank went. We looked for personnel in the town, but we didn't find anyone. By the time we returned, the cooks had packed up and all the food was put away."

Dykstra headed back to Metz on Dec. 26. On New Year's Day 1945, German planes began to strafe the area.

While Dykstra was pulling another tank (which had a dead battery) trying to roll-start it, three German planes came by. The two tanks separated.

"I went down the road, climbed into the turret and started after these guys," Dykstra said. "We shot one and it caught on fire. I saw him fly by again and he was standing on the wing."

The German pilot parachuted from his plane, but was caught.

Two weeks later, Dykstra was sent to Alsace, in the Rhine valley. Because of the heavy volume of snow and because the tank tracks turned to ice, no one could go up-hill. They remained in Alsace another two weeks, staying in houses.

The next duty was to clear the Saar, Moselle Triangle (formed by the Saar Basin and the Moselle and Rhine rivers). As they had been the first Armored division moved to the Battle of the Bulge from the 3rd Army, Dykstra's outfit was the first from the 3rd Army into Germany and the first to capture a major city (Trier).

They then went to the Rhine River with the city of Heidelberg, about 50 miles away, the next objective. They drove 24 hours a day with "artificial moonlight" provided with searchlights from above. Dykstra was awake for 44 straight hours.

"At about midnight, near Kaiserslautern, we caught a Panzerfaust (bazooka)," Dykstra said. "The tank commander said to jump. I was hooked up with radio earplugs. Boy, did I have a pair of poor ears."

After they left the tank, it was hit with flak. Dykstra's tank was in need of repair. After three days it was running again.

Toward the end of March, Dykstra crossed the Rhine into Darmstadt. They continued through Mannheim and then to Heidelberg, which was now an open city.

They then crossed the Neckar River and traveled east to Crailsheim and Heilbronn before turning west toward Stuttgart. Then at Ulm, they crossed the Danube River along with the 7th Army.

"We wound up in Bavaria at Garmisch," Dykstra said. "You couldn't have asked for prettier country to end up in."

Dykstra remained in Europe after the war, having been sent to the 29th Infantry in November 1945.

"The colonel said we'd be home for Christmas," Dykstra said. "Thanksgiving and Christmas came and went. We were still in Bremen."

Finally, after New Year's Day, Dykstra, having accumulated enough points was able to return home on Jan. 26, 1946, and returned to the steel business.

Although he has some fond memories of his war experience, "I wouldn't do it again for $1 million," Dykstra said.

He still attends 10th Armored reunions every year.

"Our Sherman tank had 2,000 miles on it and it was hit four times," Dykstra said. "The American tank was not a muscle machine, but it was very dependable."

Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center will celebrate 30th year at dinner dance on March 3

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

"Assistance" may be a word too wimpy to describe what this group does for the Northeast Guidance Center. "It's a bunch of active, energetic women," said Kerry Smale, president of the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center. "What's the term? Type A personalities? They represent a lot of energy."

During the last 30 years, the Assistance League has raised more than $1.5 million for the center and league members have donated thousands of hours of hands-on service to consumers (formerly known as clients), programs and projects.

The Northeast Guidance Center is a professionally staffed mental health and substance abuse facility serving northeast Detroit, the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. Its offices are at 13340 East Warren in Detroit.

Among the services offered at the center: direct counseling and treatment for children, teenagers, adults and families; and educational services to schools and other agencies.

Assistance league fundraisers are among the most diverse and creative in the metropolitan Detroit area.

"We have to be creative because there is so much competition from good causes in this area. We try new ideas so we don't get stale," Smale said.

In their 30-year history, league members raised funds by holding dinner dances, Hawaiian luaus, road rallies, millionaire's parties — even a murder mystery party.

The Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center will hold its 30th anniversary celebration on Friday, March 3, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. Past presidents of the organization will be honored at the event.

They have planned Christmas boutiques, musical revues, tennis tournaments and golf outings. The league has sponsored celebrity speakers, concerts and movie premieres. It has published a cookbook.

Since 1984, the league has held an annual art festival, Art on the Pointe. The popular community event is a roundup of more than 150 different artists who spread their creations out on the grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House over a two-day weekend in June.

Approximately 10,000 people visit the festival on a good-weather weekend. Smale said the event involves nearly every league member in some way as well as their husbands, children and friends. Art on the Pointe raises about $50,000 for the center each year.

The Assistance League is one of 10 charities that benefits from an annual preview party for the North American International Auto Show at Cobo Center in January. This year's event raised $120,000 for NEGC.

Smale said the assistance league will try yet another new fundraising idea in August — a garage sale. Details, dates and times are still in the planning stages.

The Assistance League was founded in May 1964 by a dozen local women who wanted to support the Northeast Guidance Center. The league begins its 30th year in 1995. The membership roll has grown to about 150 women.

The Assistance League was formed with a threefold purpose, which it still maintains:

- To inform the community about NEGC programs.
- To sponsor fundraising events.
- To provide hands-on assistance to the NEGC as needed.

"I believe strongly in the rewards of volunteerism," Smale said. "This is a worthy cause to which members can give time and energy — as much or as little as they can."

Assistance League members are also involved in several hands-on projects each year, including a Christmas party for NEGC consumers. Members serve a lunch and provide entertainment and gifts for about 300 adults.

"It's a social group, too," Smale said. "Husbands get involved. Most members are highly committed. We all have figured out ways to balance our personal lives — with its involvement in home, church, school and business — as well as ways to contribute significantly to this worthwhile cause."

The Assistance League's 30th anniversary celebration will be a dinner dance on Friday, March 3, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. The evening will include dinner, dancing to the music of Rhoades and a short program honoring past presidents of the league. Tickets are $50 a person. Proceeds will support the Northeast Guidance Center's programs.

Smale described Assistance League members as a group of women ranging from twentysomethings to seventysomethings. It's about a 50-50 mixture of women who work outside the home and women who have chosen stay-at-home mothering, she said. And men are also welcome as members.

Meetings are held four times a year and the public is always welcome, she said. Dues are $25 annually. For more information about membership in the assistance league, call (313) 824-5641.

For information about tickets to the dinner dance, call (313) 881-9703.

Harbold-Aliaga

Julie Lynne Harbold, daughter of Don and Jeanne Harbold of Grosse Pointe Park, married Antonio Abel Aliaga, son of Mrs. Domitila Aliaga of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and the late Eduardo Aliaga, on Dec. 17, 1994, at Boulevard Baptist Church in Anderson, S.C.

The Rev. Johnny McKinney officiated at the 1:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at Anderson College.

The bride wore a long satin gown that featured a sweetheart neckline, a beaded bodice, long sleeves and a full train decorated with lace inserts. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies, roses and orchids.

The maid of honor was Kara Henry of New York City.

Bridesmaids were Kea McKinney of Seattle, Kristen Hart of the City of Grosse Pointe,

Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Abel Aliaga

Lynn Dickson of Anderson, S.C., and the groom's sister, Soledad Sugai of Greenville, S.C.

Attendants wore long forest green taffeta dresses with off-the-shoulder necklines and straight skirts. They carried bouquets of lilies.

Drake of Greenville.

Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Dan Harbold of Grosse Pointe Park; and Paul Nichols, Keith Burge and Noboru Sugai, all of Greenville.

The ringbearers were Bruno and Andre Sugai, both of Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a tea-length forest green suit with a straight skirt and satin collar and cuffs, and a stephanotis corsage.

The organist was Nancy Smith. The trumpeter was Dan Kirsop.

The bride earned a bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University and a master's degree in social work from Wayne State University. She is a social worker.

The groom earned an engineering degree from Clemson University. He is self-employed in the building industry.

The couple traveled to Gatlinburg, Tenn. They live in Greenville.

Blackwell-Guevara

Keri Blackwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blackwell, married Walter Guevara II, son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Guevara of the City of Grosse Pointe, on July 30, 1994, at Sweetest Heart of Mary Catholic Church in Detroit.

The bride graduated from Michigan State University and teaches middle school in Berkeley.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Guevara II

The groom graduated from Michigan State University and is a medical sales representative. He is also a lieutenant in the National Guard.

The couple honeymooned at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island. They live in Birmingham.

Alessi-Ruffner

Margaret Rose Alessi of Washington, D.C., daughter of John Alessi of Newburgh, N.Y., and the late Colette Alessi, married Michael Edmond Ruffner, son of Jim and Trena Ruffner of Grosse Pointe Park, on Oct. 15, 1994, at St. Mary's Church in Marlboro, N.Y.

The Rev. Tom Lutz officiated at the 3 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Powelton Club in Balmville, N.Y.

The bride wore her mother's white lace wedding gown which featured a scooped neckline, a white satin bell-shaped underskirt and a long, full skirt. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Denise Anisky was the matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Katherine O'Hanlon of New Canaan, Conn., and Louise Alessi of Toulouse, France; Jennifer Stahl of New York City; and junior bridesmaid Kristina Piper of Long Island, N.Y.

The flowergirl was Caitlin O'Hanlon of New Canaan.

Attendants wore tea-length evergreen dresses with velvet bodices and taffeta skirts. They carried bouquets of lilies and white roses.

The best man was the groom's brother, Christopher Alan Ruffner of Harper Woods.

Groomsmen were Paul Tacke of Grosse Pointe Park, Jeffrey Blend of Los Angeles, James Richard Morgan of Chicago, and junior usher Daniel O'Hanlon of New Canaan.

The ringbearer was Kevin

O'Hanlon of New Canaan.

The groom's mother wore a street-length red wine velvet dress trimmed with white lace and a white orchid corsage.

The soloist was Lucretia Piper. Scripture readers were Leslie Mustane, Jeannine Lynch and Michail O'Hanlon.

The bride earned bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Albany. She is the Washington representative for the Blue Cross-Blue Shield Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Edmond Ruffner

The groom earned a bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University and a master's degree in public policy from the University of Michigan. He is a program examiner with the Office of Management and Budget.

The couple honeymooned in the Mediterranean and in Napa Valley, Calif. They live in Washington, D.C.

American Lung Association's Cinderella Ball to be Feb. 25

The Women's Committee of the American Lung Association of Michigan will hold its annual Cinderella Ball on Saturday, Feb. 25, at the Ritz-Carlton. America's oldest ongoing charity ball will celebrate its 48th year by honoring Ida Krandle as its Volunteer of the Year; Maryann Mahaffey as its Woman of the Year; and Lloyd E. Reuss as Man of the Year.

The American Lung Association of Michigan's mission is the conquest of lung disease and the promotion of lung health. ALAM operates a variety of community health service programs, educational programs for children and camps for children with asthma. It offers support groups for patients with lung disease, equipment loans, a library and a free speakers' bureau.

The ball's Mardi Gras theme is new this year. Costumes are optional, but prizes will be awarded for the best ones — and the best masks.

Among the Grosse Pointers on Cinderella's court are Arlene Brow, Marilyn Connor, Sybil Jaques, Mado Lie, De Shaheen, Marge Slezak and Kim Williams.

Tickets are $150 and $250. For more information, or to order tickets, call (810) 559-5100.

workshop, will be held at noon Thursday, March 30. Proceeds help fund scholarships and academic enrichment programs for South students.

The afternoon will feature a presentation by Nieman Marcus and Estee Lauder and a luncheon served by ONE23 restaurant. Raffle prizes will include a golf outing at Hidden Valley, a golf bag, a Stark carpet, jewelry and more.

Tickets are $20. For reservations, call Cindy Pangborn at (313) 885-9046. Kathy Weyhing at (313) 885-1251 or Debbie Wolney at (313) 884-5224.

Auction in action:

Plans are under way for Grosse Pointe Academy's annual fundraiser, Action Auction, which will be Saturday, May 13. The preview evening will be Wednesday, May 10.

Proceeds will support the academy's operations, an endowment fund, school improvements and scholarships for families throughout southeastern Michigan.

More than 100 auction volunteers got together recently for an update party at the home of Russell and Nancy Hook.

Among the auction items already lined up: a 1995 Lincoln Continental donated by the Ford Motor Co.; an emerald and diamond ring, a diamond slide necklace and two Grosse Pointe Academy pendant necklaces donated by John and Connie Ahee; a motorcycle party for 60 at the home of the Hooks; and an original oil painting by Grosse Pointe artist Virginia Durbin Thibodeau.

General chairmen of the 1995 benefit are Debbie Alandt and Kathleen and Bill Beyer. Honorary chairs are Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Alandt. Other members of the leader-

Room for an elephant?

By the Rev. Fred Harms
St. Paul Lutheran Church

In the Orient they have an expression, "Don't make friends with an elephant trainer unless you have room in your home for an elephant." Obviously this is an overstatement to make a point. However it is true that there is risk involved if we take seriously the commission to "love one another, even as Christ loves us."

All discipleship that is true has a cost. We are challenged to move beyond the comfortable parameters of our lives. This may mean that we will be inconvenienced at times. It may even mean that we will be asked to go out of our way to help a friend, or even a stranger in a time of need. It may mean going the extra mile to offer resources of time, talents and money, even before having to be asked.

Yes, there is always risk involved. The prophets of the Old Testament risked their lives to bring a message of justice, hope and love for one another. Jesus Christ, living the true humanity of love, compassion, forgiveness and caring, gave up his life in order that humankind might see the light.

We might not be asked to make room for an elephant, but our calling might be to make room for a foster child, to take time to work with troubled youth through a local mentoring program, to offer time staffing a homeless shelter or to serve food at a soup kitchen. For those who have special training, there is the possibility of serving in specific outreach programs through local churches and community organizations, both at home and abroad. And when we cannot physically volunteer services, we can offer encouragement through contributions of money, prayers and words of encouragement.

There are many opportunities to help one another, to work together, to make our community and world a better place. Take time to consider what you are doing and what you can do. Perhaps making room for an elephant isn't such a monumental task after all. You might even enjoy the challenge.

First English Lutheran Church installs new associate pastor

The Rev. Barton L. Beebe will be installed as the new associate pastor of First English Evangelical Lutheran Church on Sunday, Feb. 19, at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services.

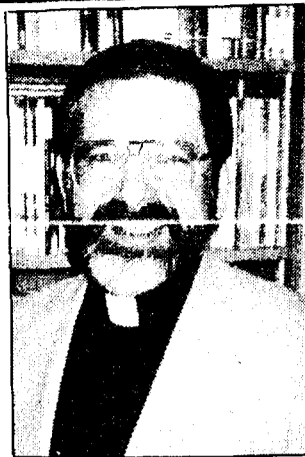

Beebe was educated at Wittenberg University and earned a master of divinity degree from Trinity Lutheran Seminary. After an internship at Zion Lutheran Church in Salt Lake City, he served for more than 15 years at Hope Lutheran Church in Dearborn.

Beebe will play a major role in the youth ministry of First English. "It is often said that youth and children are the church of the future," he said. "I believe that young people are an important part of the church today. But also of great significance is the notion that young people engaged in activities which help them experience their identities as children of God will surely enrich the faith and life of the community as well."

First English Lutheran Church is located at 800 Vernier in Grosse Pointe Woods. Senior pastor is the Rev. Walter A. Schmidt.

The community is invited to the installation and to receptions following each service. Bishop J. Philip Wahl of the Southeast Michigan Synod of the ELCA will be the installing officer and will preach the sermon. For more information, call the church at (313) 884-5040.

Children's Home offers workshop

The Children's Home of Detroit Community Services' Parenting Academy will offer a parenting workshop, "Parent Burnout."

The workshop will be presented by Bernie Beyer, a practicing psychotherapist at Eastwood Clinic in Eastpointe. The workshop will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 22, in the conference room at the Children's Home of Detroit, 900 Cook Road in Grosse Pointe Woods. There is no charge. Guests are welcome. To make a reservation, call (313) 885-3510.

St. Paul Church plans retreat week

The Rev. Jack Conley will conduct a parish retreat/mission from Sunday, Feb. 19, through Thursday, Feb. 23. Activities will include morning mass, evening services at 7:30 p.m., time for counseling and spiritual direction and a celebration of the sacrament of penance. Topics will include "Loneliness: Spirituality for a Restless People," "Prayer: Passion and Desire," "Sin: There's a Nightmare in my Closet," and "Coping: Does Anybody Care?" For more information, call (313) 885-8855.

CSM will offer adoption series

"Let's Celebrate Adoption," a free, eight-week adoption education series, will begin on Tuesday, March 7, at the Macomb Intermediate School District, 44001 Garfield.

The series is for adoptive children (ages 7 to 11) and their parents. Classes run from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and the series is co-sponsored by Catholic Services of Macomb and Macomb Michigan Post Adoption Service System (MPASS).

General themes include belonging, claiming and entitlement, attachment and bonding, separation and loss, and identity. Children and parents will meet in separate groups at the same time to discuss themes but all will end each session together as families.

Space is limited to 10 families. Registration deadline is Tuesday, Feb. 21. For more information, call Diane Dymczyk at (810) 468-2616.

Workshop on divorce offered at G.P. United

The Eastside Divorce Recovery Workshop will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesdays, Feb. 14 - April 4, at Grosse Pointe United Church, 240 Chalfonte in Grosse Pointe Farms. The cost is $40; free child care will be available.

Topics to be discussed in the workshop include self-esteem, anger, depression, letting go of the past, co-dependency, single parenting and personal freedom.

The seminar is open to anyone of any faith who is separated, divorced or recovering from the end of a long-term relationship. To register, call (313) 884-3075.

Lay Theological Academy to offer course on Thomas Merton's writing

A two-session course on the life and writing of Thomas Merton will be presented by Patricia Cooney Hathaway, professor of systematic theology at Sacred Heart Seminary. Classes will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Thursdays, Feb. 16 and 23, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

Merton wrote of his own spiritual journey, giving the secular world a glimpse into his 20th century life as a monk.

Hathaway earned a doctorate in theology and psychological theory from Catholic University of America and a certificate in spiritual counseling from the Shalem Institute. She lives with her husband and two children in Grosse Pointe Park.

The Lay Theological Academy provides ecumenical education for adults in order that they may grow in knowledge, mature in Christian faith and become better equipped for ministry in the world. The academy comprises Christ Church Grosse Pointe, Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian

Actresses make 'Boys' a full meal

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

At the beginning, "Boys on the Side" appears to be a Thelma-and-Louise-type saga of girls on the road.

But it is much more than that — it is a sardonic comedy, a tale of sisterly solidarity and, finally, a wrenching story.

The three main characters are Jane (Whoopi Goldberg), a singer and performer in a second-rate New York City nightclub, prissy Robin (Mary Louise Parker) and Holly (Drew Barrymore), a drug dealer's flaky girlfriend.

When Jane quits her job to try her luck in Los Angeles, she hooks up with Robin, who has advertised for a cross-country driving companion. Along the way they stop to visit Jane's friend, Holly, and that changes their ride from a search for new opportunities to flight from a murder scene.

The girls' trip, which now becomes a flight from justice, comes to a halt in Tucson when Robin collapses and is hospitalized. The diagnosis — AIDS.

The rather melodramatic plot is firmly grounded in the performances of the three lead characters: outspoken Goldberg, precise Parker, and Barrymore, a compulsive flirt and cut-up.

Serious social issues are touched upon; the plight of battered women and their attachment to abusive men.

Parker's Robin becomes a memorable character because she changes. By the time the girls reach Tucson, she has learned to like rock 'n' roll and even joins Jane, who has landed a job in the local gin-joint, onstage. Toward the end, when AIDS has taken its toll, she endures pain without a trace of self-pity.

Barrymore's high-energy Holly, by the very nature of her air-head character, is funny. She never acknowledges the seriousness of her predicament. However, floating through life on a bubble of unconcern serves her well. She even finds an upstanding police officer who wants to marry her.

Along with humor, Goldberg brings immense heart to the story. Tough and blustery when needed, she shows a caring concern for her companions. Her

'Quick:' As entertaining as a gunfight ever gets

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

This is not an endorsement of the mass production of Westerns, but if more movies about the Old West were like "The Quick and the Dead" Hollywood would obviously realize the potential.

Not since "Silverado" (1985) has there been such an entertaining Western.

Entertaining. But it won't sweep next year's Oscars. The movie takes place in Redemption — a town which has got rid of its marshal some years before and has come to be ruled by cool-cucumber and baddest of the bad guys, Gene Hackman.

Hackman comes complete with his own mansion and is always attired in the sharpest of black clothing. He even has his own sadistic storm troopers. What they do throughout the movie is minimal, but their mere presence is menacing.

Into town rides Sharon Stone's character of Ellen looking for a fight. She is bent on revenge with the target of her blood-lust being none other than Hackman. She, and 16 other competitors, enter a quick-draw contest which Ellen sees is her best shot at revenge.

Leonardo DiCaprio is terrific as Hackman's illegitimate son and the cleanest guy in town. He's young, cocky and even manages to bed Ellen. Though as Stone's character points out, the last thing she remembered was him throwing up behind the saloon.

Russell Crowe plays an outlaw-turned-preacher who once rode with Redemption's evil overlord. He is forced into the competition and proves good in Shaw's 'Mrs. Warren' blames society for oldest profession

By Ronald J. Bernas

Poor Vivie Warren. What's a girl to do when she's trying to break into a traditionally male work world, discovers her estranged mother was a prostitute and that she herself is a child of one of her mother's customers, and then discovers the preacher's son to whom she's attracted may be her half brother?

The plot sounds like a sweeps month TV movie-of-the-week ("Beyond the Lies: The Vivie Warren Story") or at the very least a daytime soap opera.

But the very '90s plot of "Mrs. Warren's Profession," which runs at Wayne State University's Hilberry Theatre through April 6, was written nearly 100 years ago by satirist George Bernard Shaw as a protest against the societal conditions which offered many women no other way to make it in the world than by turning to prostitution.

It was so controversial at the time that it was not allowed to be performed for several years after it was first presented.

But one century's controversy is another century's tabloid-TV fare, and Mrs. Warren's chosen profession comes across as anything but shocking.

What is shocking, though, is how current some plot elements are. Hypocrisy, sexism, class snobbery, all of Shaw's favorite topics, are still being debated today. But what's most current is that Mrs. Warren blames everyone but herself for her chosen profession. Circumstances, she says, forced her into a life of crime. If that shifting of blame isn't pertinent to society today, nothing is.

The play takes place in 1894 as Vivie (Lynnae Lehfeldt) prepares for a long visit from her estranged mother Kitty (Marlene May). Vivie is being courted by Frank Gardner (Dwight Tolar), son of a hypocritical local minister (Troy Scarborough) who was Mrs. Warren's frequent customer a long time ago.

Not much happens — ideas are debated, issues discussed, and all pull at poor Vivie who, in the end, must turn away from everyone in order to be true to herself.

The acting is good across the board, especially by May and Lehfeldt as Mrs. Warren and Vivie. But the play is oddly-written, often confusing, and, in the end, unsatisfying.

"Mrs. Warren's Profession" runs in repertory at the Hilberry Theatre at Wayne State University through April 6.

In it, the composer is still striving for the fullness of style he was to achieve only later with the result that the concerto retains much of the restraint of Mozart's classicism, without the expressiveness that Mozart achieved in his greatest works.

Given that character, it is not surprising that this youthful artist gave the concerto a more sensitively understated performance than it usually gets, but did so with an exquisite touch and a display of thorough technical mastery of the style.

Calarco, a senior, was awarded a $300 scholarship for his performance.

First-timers in London: A guide for newlyweds

A friend of mine has asked me to fill him in about London. He and his fiancée are beginning to plan a November honeymoon in England and he knows that I recently returned from a whirlwind couple of days of showing my husband around that grand town for the first time.

So here's what I'd advise the newlyweds, or anyone who is a London rookie, to do: Schedule yourself at least three days, preferably more. Pick a small, personal hostelry. My recommendation would be the Pembroke Court Hotel (34 Pembroke Gardens, London W2 4DX, (800) 709-9882). This is a lovely little inn located in the neighborhood of Notting Hill Gate. This privately owned hotel has personality, particularly a pair of ginger cats, Spencer and Churchill, who greet guests and even escort them to their rooms. We stayed here during this most recent visit and were charmed.

We appreciated being greeted by name when returning from our hectic days of sightseeing. We liked the lovely restaurant, Caps, that served our breakfast and was handy for dinner. And we surely enjoyed the large and individually decorated rooms. Current rates are 130-150 pounds for a double room including breakfast and taxes (currently the pound is worth about $1.60).

As charming as the hotel is its location, Notting Hill Gate. In its March 1994 issue, Travel & Leisure magazine called this neighborhood "one of the liveliest and most prosperous corners of the city" and indeed it is. Fun, too. We enjoyed returning to this area each evening and usually dined here as well — we would just stroll the sidewalks, reading menus, until we found a place we liked. Worth special mention is the antiques market on Portobello Road. This street is all antique shops and every Saturday its sidewalks are lined with booths selling everything imaginable.

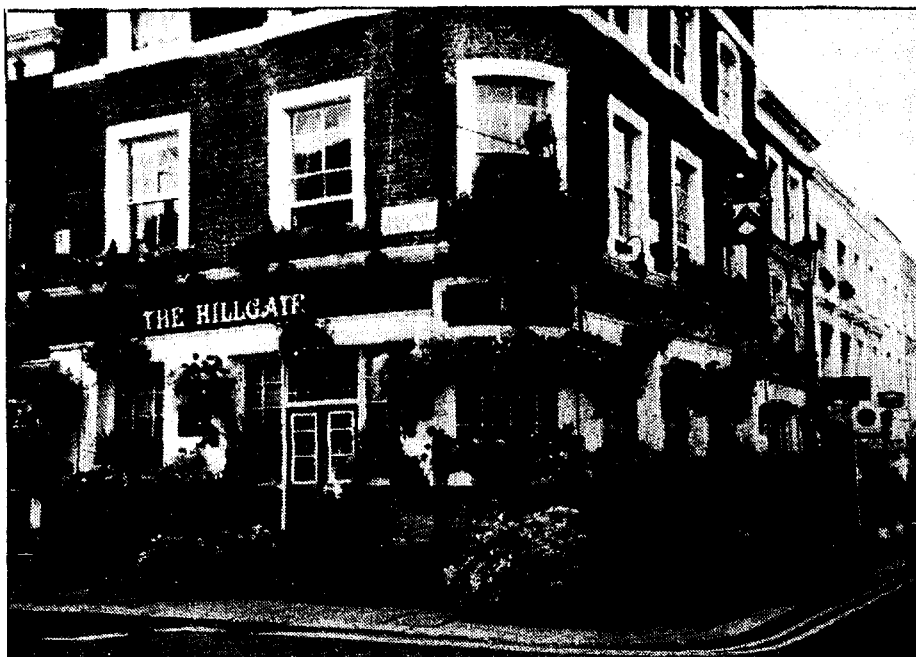

We arrived from the States the usual way, pooped after an overnight flight, and when we showed up at the hotel about 9 a.m. our rooms were not ready. However, we were offered a cup sive Criterion restaurant, a lovely marble hall with mosaic ceilings that was restored in 1992 (phone 071 925 0909).

The next day we began by returning to Piccadilly and at the London Tourist Board kiosk in the tube station we were able to pick up maps and other brochures as well as purchasing tickets for the "Original London Sightseeing Tour." (We were to discover that these of tea and the option of either napping in the parlor or taking a walk. We opted for the walk and were directed out the back door to Portobello Road — "You wouldn't want to miss the antiques market," the desk clerk said. "It's world-famous."

We had no trouble getting there — we just followed everyone else — and I'm certainly glad we did. And not only were the goods interesting, but it was fun to see Londoners at play on their day off.

Here's what else we did during the next two days. It could be a first-timer's primer:

We got into our room around noon, napped for a few hours and then decided to begin our adventure by heading directly to Piccadilly Circus. We were directed to the tube station, just a block away, and were quickly transported to our destination. The London subway system is impressive for its cleanliness and efficiency. We used it for all of our travels, purchasing multi-day passes. We explored the Piccadilly area and ate dinner at the imprestourist board offices are invaluable; they sell postage stamps, tube passes, tour tickets and can direct you anywhere.) We then went outside to Haymarket street and boarded a double-decker bus for the tour.

It was to rain during much of our London visit; however, the skies were clear for our two hours of seeing all of the city's principal sights. The tour costs nine pounds (or 12 pounds if you want on-and-off privileges) and was an excellent orientation. We then began walking, heading toward Buckingham Palace. We saw all the usual sights — including the Horse Guards, the House of Parliament, Lords and Commons and St. Stephen's Tower (home of Big Ben) and lunched at a local pub.

In the middle of this area are the underground Cabinet War Rooms. We had heard about these from a friend who said they were a "Don't miss," and since that friend is my husband's boss, we decided to oblige. The war rooms are where Britain's World War II

Cabinet, led by Prime Minister Winston Churchill, conferred when the city was under attack. An entire staff lived here for many years. We took an audio tour through the underground complex which has been maintained as it was in 1945. It was quite interesting and well done. The admission is 3.9 pounds.

From here we walked through St. James Park to reach the impressive gold gates of Buckingham Palace where we debated taking the tour (beginning a year ago to help pay for the palace renovation after a fire) which is only offered during certain times of the year. We decided we were too tired, but learned that the changing of the guards would be at 11:30 a.m. the next day. We then jumped back on the tube, returned to our adopted neighborhood and dined at Trattoria il Carretto (20 Hillgate, 071-229 5040).

The next morning we headed for that famous landmark of retailing, Harrod department store. It was fun to explore the famous food halls and we particularly enjoyed the fabulous home appliance/kitchen exhibits on the upper floors. Then we headed to the Tower of London. This, of course, is the famous castle/fortress that has been the site of so many acts of power and passion in England's history.

The guides here, known as Beefeaters, wear historic costumes (yes, you've seen them on gin bottles), actually live with their families within the tower walls and give the most informative and humorous tours anywhere (most are retired sergeant majors). My husband almost opted to skip the formal tour and we are certainly glad that we did not. The crown jewels are on display here in a new building. The Tower of London was a highlight of our visit.

We decided it would be interesting to see the city from the water, so we boarded a tour boat at the Tower Pier and traveled on the Thames River back to Westminster Pier. Obviously, we were late getting to Buckingham Palace but relieved to learn that the Changing of the Guard had been canceled that day. I guess it was not meant to be.

Our final stop was Westminster Abbey. This famous church, known for its coronations and royal weddings, is actually — to a degree — a huge mausoleum. Many famous people are buried here. A tour here would have been helpful, I think. It was a bit overwhelming.

That's what we accomplished in two days: All the major sights by foot, bus, and water. Two young newlyweds can do that, too. Or give yourself the time to take it all a bit slower. London is a manageable, friendly city that is easy to get around in.

And before you leave, be sure to contact the British Tourist Authority for maps and brochures: 625 N. Michigan Ave., Suite 1510, Chicago, IL 60611; phone (312) 787-0494.

performance is contained, modulated, dignified without losing any of the edge that makes Goldberg such an interesting character. She sings, too, and surprisingly well.

Speaking of singing, the soundtrack for the film is performed by fine female singers — Toni Childs, Bonnie Raitt, Annie Lennox and Sheryl Crow — and it should be a big seller on compact disks.

Director Herb Ross, who celebrated the company of women in "Steel Magnolias" and "Turning Point," has assembled a trio of stars so sharp, funny and wholehearted that a groundswell of emotion is created.

Viewers will not soon forget the moving final scene showing a wan and frail Robin in a wheelchair as Jane softly sings her favorite song. As the song dies out the camera moves away to show an empty wheelchair and then roams the room, but everyone has gone.

Moreover, the performance was never lacking in assurance and finesse. It was also supported superbly by the orchestra under Semkow's very capable direction.

But the authority was already anticipated as it was amply evident in the opening half of the concert. Beginning with Mendelssohn's "Hebrides Overture," Semkow was in his usual form with a studied and precise conducting style that accurately captured the playful mood of adventure and then the awed musical description of the visit to Fingal's Cave that inspired the music.

It was, as always, a pleasure to watch the economy of motion in gestures used by the maestro to draw from the orchestra a performance that was precise without restraining the spirit of the music.

In the composer's Italian Symphony, which followed, the orchestra produced an exceptional clarity. From the opening notes, the music had a crystalline sparkle that never dimmed throughout and that was perfect for Mendelssohn's bright and lively impressions of Italy. Even with Semkow's obviously careful control of every note, there was no sacrifice of the sprightly character of this joyful symphony. He returns to the podium tomorrow and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon to lead the DSO, and the University Choral Union from Ann Arbor, in Mahler's monumental Symphony No. 2, subtitled "Resurrection." North erases all doubts in MAC Blue meet

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

There might have been some doubt as to whether Grosse Pointe North won the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division dual meet wrestling title, but the Norsemen left no doubt about their superiority in the conference meet.

North, which won its final dual meet on a tie-breaker after wrestling Cousino to a 34-34 deadlock, wound up tied for first place in the MAC Blue with Grosse Pointe South, which also finished 5-1 in the division.

League officials are expected to rule that North gets the team trophy because of its victory over South in a head-to-head meeting.

But there were no technicalities involved last Saturday when the Norsemen ran away from the rest of the field in the division meet at Lake Shore. North finished with 162 points to 122 for runner-up L'Anse Creuse. South was third with 103 1/2 points, followed by Cousino 99, Lake Shore 92, Lakeview 49, Warren Woods-Tower 32 and Warren-Mott 23 1/2.

"I told the kids before the meet, 'Let's not leave any doubts. Let's prove today who's the best team,'" said North coach Art Roberts. "And the kids rose to the occasion. All 10 of the kids we brought to the meet did a great job. Everybody stepped up for this one."

There were a couple of surprises for North.

One was Keith Nosis, who finished third at 106 pounds with a 12-6 victory over South's Geoff Heffner.

"He got pinned in the first period in the dual meet against South," Roberts said.

Another was Phil Nathan, who won a third-place medal at 119 pounds with his pin in 1:48 of South's Brad Schaupter.

Nathan was filling in for Bill Pollard, who was taking a college scholarship test on Saturday.

"That was probably Phil's last match," Roberts said. "He wrestled behind (Dave) Sander-cott for two years, then didn't come out for wrestling last year because he wanted to try some other things. He found out he missed the sport and asked me if he could come back again. I'm real happy for him."

North had five individual champions in the division meet.

Freshman Derek Phillips beat South's Joe Dwaihy 7-3 in the 100-pound title bout. Kevin Brandon held off the Blue Devils' Steve Bunchek 4-2 in the final at 112. Charlie Vasapoli wrestled a strong match in beating Cousino's Shawn Kamon 7-4 at 126.

The Norsemen's other champions won their final matches on pins. Christian Leinninger pinned Warren Woods-Tower's Dan Vargo at 1:09 in the 185-pound finale, while Dan Shefferly pinned Cousino's Nick Bowers at 3:19 of the 215 title bout.

"We tried to impress on the kids that not many people get the chance to be No. 1 in anything and that they had the chance to do it so they shouldn't leave anything in the locker room," Roberts said.

In addition to the thirds taken by Nosis and Nathan, North's Gary Bordato and Ryan Plunkett also won their consolation final bouts. Bordato pinned Warren-Mott's Jason Szymborski in 4:00 at 134 and Ryan Plunkett recorded an 8-2 decision over Lake Shore's Buddy Miller at 151.

Ed Ball reached the consolation finals at 172, but lost his last match 3-1 to Cousino's Marc Bartolini.

"That's the same kid that beat Ed 16-5 in the dual meet two days ago," Roberts said. "He did a nice job today."

Roberts said he didn't expect the Norsemen to turn out as well as they did.

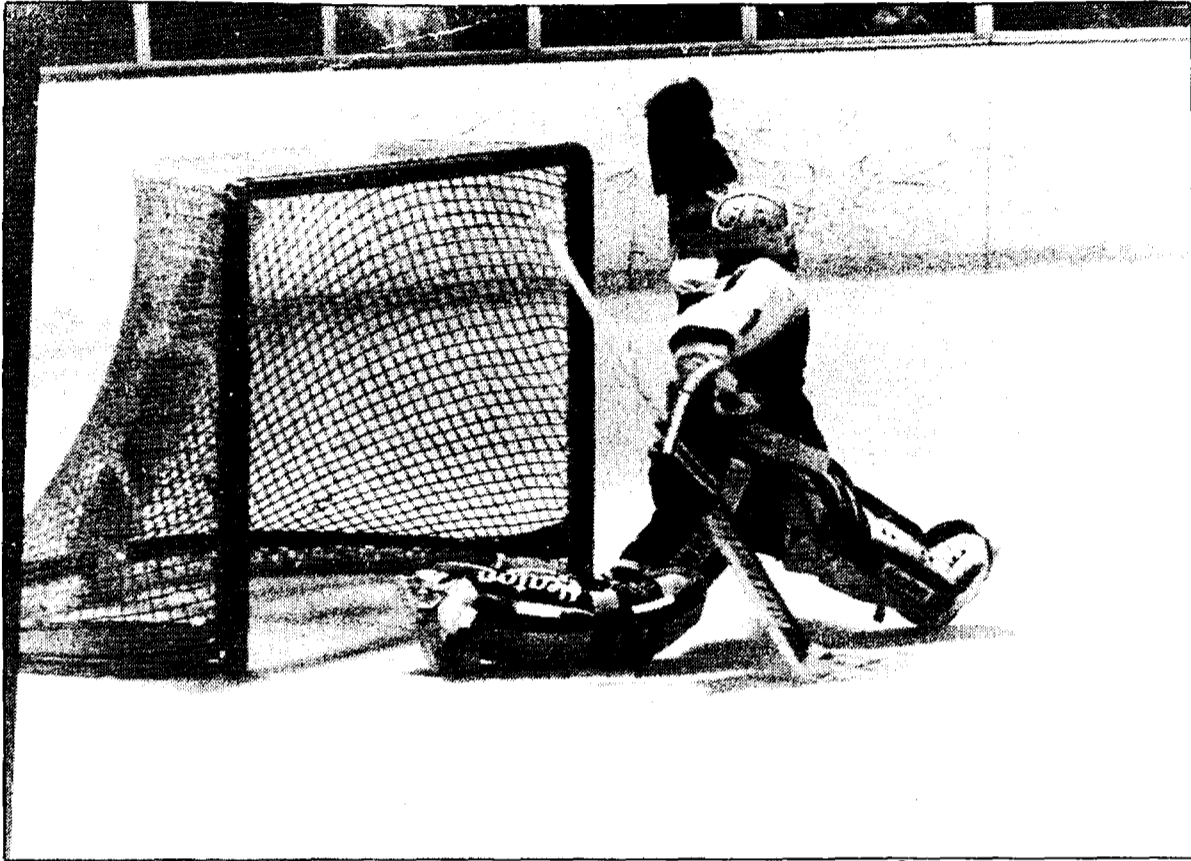

"I thought it was going to be a rebuilding year, but we came up with several freshmen who did a great job," he said. "It's hard to plan on them because they come to us with no experience at all."

South's only champion was Rob Sharrow, who beat Jason Burke of L'Anse Creuse on a technical fall in the title bout at 160 pounds.

"Rob did a nice job," said South coach Larry Carr. "He just dominated his match."

Dwaihy, Bunchek and Zach Meyers were the Blue Devils' runners-up. Meyers lost 7-5 to Lake Shore's Jason Van Tol at 172 pounds when Van Tol got a takedown in the final second of the championship match.

Goalies star in South's win

By John Miskelly

Grosse Pointe South and Grosse Pointe North reside at opposite ends of the Michigan Metro Hockey League standings, but last week's game between the crosstown rivals didn't reflect that disparity.

South, which leads the East Division with a 10-3 record, eked out a 2-1 victory over the Norsemen, who are in last place in the division with a 2-11 mark.

North, which dropped a 5-1 decision to the Blue Devils in their first meeting of the season, started out looking like anything but a last-place team. "They beat us to the puck the first two periods," said South coach Bob Bopp. "I thought they wanted it more."

The first period was scoreless and marked by heavy — but clean — hitting as only one penalty was called.

Goaltending was the story in this game, especially through the first 27 minutes.

"You saw two of the best goalies in the league. No doubt about that," Bopp said.

South junior Todd Dunlap stopped three North breakaways, including two by David Ferguson, in the first period and a half.

North coach Jeff Henchel felt sorry for Ferguson.

"David is very frustrated," Henchel said. "With one of those breakaways it would have changed the game."

While Dunlap was coming up big in the net, North senior Chuck Schervish was doing the same thing at the other end of the ice, frustrating South's shooters.

"Everybody knows Schervish is a great goalie," Bopp said. "We tried to practice ways to score on him. We didn't do it the first two periods. Nobody was going to the net like they should."

South has miracle comeback

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Sometimes it takes a miracle or two to win a league championship.

Grosse Pointe South's basketball team might have used up one of its miracle comebacks last week when the Blue Devils came from a 19-point third-quarter deficit to beat Utica 62-66 for their eighth win without a loss in the Macomb Area Conference White Division.

"We were down by 14 points at halftime and when I talked to the kids I stressed to them that we had plenty of time and there was no need to panic," said South coach George Petrouleas. "We had to start getting some points off our defense, so we kicked up the defensive intensity a couple of notches in the second half."

That resulted in a 15-0 run by the Blue Devils and it took less than four minutes for them to overcome the Chieftains' entire 19-point lead.

"It was really pretty amazing," Petrouleas said. "For that stretch we just did everything right. We scored on every possession and we got stops at the other end. I'll admit it looked pretty bleak for a while, but then we managed to take some of (Utica's) strengths away."

During the run, South got consecutive three-point baskets from Jake Howlett, Todd Drake and Brian Nugent.

That opened things up inside for Charlie Wascher.

"They hadn't been letting him get inside, but when we hit those three shots from the perimeter, they had to come out and then we went to Charlie three straight possessions for baskets," Petrouleas said.

Although South led for most of the fourth quarter, the Blue Devils didn't put the game away until the final minute when Howlett hit four straight free throws and Nugent sank one as Utica was forced to foul every time South had the ball.

Wascher finished with 20 points and 11 rebounds. Howlett scored 18 points and Drake added 10.

Nugent, Matt Agnone and Pat Worrell turned in excellent defensive performances to key the Blue Devils' comeback, while Ben Harwood came off the bench in the first half and provided a "big lift," according to Petrouleas.

Petrouleas felt that a couple of factors led to South's scare against the Chieftains.

"We might have been a little flat after Tuesday's game (a 73-49 victory over Romeo) and now that we've gone through the first half of the league season undefeated, teams are pointing for us," he said.

"After we beat Romeo I told the kids, 'Now you've done it. You forced the issue and everybody's going to be pointing for you.' They all laughed, but it's true. When you're in first place, the other teams play you with more intensity. You can't sneak up on anyone."

The game with Romeo matched the two remaining unbeaten teams in the MAC White, but it was no contest.

"We just dominated the game," Petrouleas said. "We did a nice job defensively, especially on (Dan) Stubleski, who was really a non-factor in the game. We also had a good shooting night, hitting 60 percent. Everything was clicking."

Stubleski had scored 40 points against Warren-Mott a week ago and he had 25 against South, but when it really counted, Nugent had him stifled. He hit a couple of three-pointers in the final minutes of the first half to cut the Blue Devils' lead to 14 points at the intermission, but even then he had only 10 points by halftime.

"Brian did a great job on defense, but we gave him a lot of help, too," Petrouleas said.

Howlett led four double-figure scorers for South with 17 points. Wascher finished with 16 points and 12 rebounds, while Agnone and Worrell added 10 points apiece.

"The chemistry is good on the team and we're playing better all the time," Petrouleas said. "The kids believe in themselves and in what we're trying to do. Now the key is to just keep improving."

South, which is 11-3 overall, plays a rare Thursday game tonight, Feb. 16, when the Blue Devils host Anchor Bay.

Highlights

Here are highlights from recent games in the Neighborhood Club's fifth grade basketball leagues for boys and girls.

Norway/Anchor Lighting 18, Chicken Shack 7

Sean Casselman was the leading scorer for Norway, but Matt DeCoster, Brandon Miles, Matt Middleton, Chris Waigand and Brendon Allar also contributed. Sean Peneffather, Matt Vanderpool and Steve Atsalakis played strong defense. Chicken Shack has been led in scoring by Chris Dubay, John Curry and Haider Samhat, but everyone on the team has at least one point. Michael Castile, Mark Reaser and Billy Raffoul have been the defensive leaders, while Keith Barowicz, Aruna Fonseka and Nick Tocco have also played well.

Cuba 19, Sweden 16

Teamwork and defensive play marked Cuba's victory. Eric Vandervorde and Mike Konwiak each scored six points and Jonathan Boos added five. Team Sweden won its first four games before bowing to Sweden. The squad, which is coached by Dan Jensen and Mark Jahnke, consists of Stuart Blohm, David Connolly, Nick Fischer, David Harris, Tom Jahnke, Danny Jensen, Michael Miller, Paul Padesky and Matt Slater.

Italy 18, Spain 15

Italy jumped out to an early lead with Mark Boynton scoring six points. Stuart Boynton, Andrew Beer and David Saylor added four apiece, while Christian Van Becelaere sparked the offense at point guard. Nick Kircos, Chris Tarjeft and Rich Tarjeft turned in strong defensive games. Italy has two sets of identical twins in the Boyntons and Tarjefts, which can confuse the opposition. Spain came back to cut the lead to two points early in the second half.

Peru 24, USA 22

Andy Lapiush scored 14 points and Jeffrey Caldwell added the other 10 for Peru. Bobby Hanrahan and Jason Grunewald were defensive standouts, James DeCarlo and Darren Mantyla handled the ball well and Lapiush was the top rebounder. Caldwell did some fine passing as Peru came from behind to win on a basket by Lapiush. USA led until the final quarter. Andrew Dewitt led the way with 13 points, while Robert Ruthven had three and Rabby Ajour, Chris Lewis and Shaun Butler added two apiece. Eric Bertelsen, Stephen Beskange, Koebe Mosher and Devin Porter each contributed steals or rebounds in a fine team performance.

GIRLS GRADE 5

Young Furniture 18, Lake Superior State 6

The victory was a special one for Young Furniture, which had only five players. Lauren Ealba led Young Furniture with 14 points and Sarah Pierantoni and Desiree Michaels each made a basket. Veronica Kennedy had her best defensive game. Teresa Titterington played well despite a sprained toe. Lake Superior State played excellent defense throughout the game. LSS trailed 14-0 at halftime, but made a comeback behind the scoring of Liz Laciura and Becky Jenzen, the rebounding of Jenzen, Jill Sneathkamp and Angelina Baratta and the defensive play of Margaret Batlen, Emily Wilson, Jessica Ruble and Erin Kenney.

Wayne State 16, Michigan State 14

Wayne State featured a balanced scoring attack with five players scoring, including Lauren Sullivan, who got the winning basket. Season-long leaders Stephanie Ritok and Katie Carr, along with Puja Venkat and Ashley Kirk also scored. Alexandra Prasher and Ashley Schoenherr played solid defense. Mary Gibson has also played well all year. Judy Turnbull, Cassie Weaver and Meredith Mengel led Michigan State's offense, while Maureen Hoehn and Sarah DeFrance played outstanding defense. Jenna Golden scored the last basket with an offensive rebound.

Nursing Unlimited 38, Ball State 8

Meredith Farmer, Laura Vorgitch, Shannon O'Berski and Lauren Safran led Nursing's offense, while Jillian Karlik and Elizabeth Hartman did a good job of rebounding and playmaking. Tasha O'Berski, Jaime Theophanous and Katie Walton played excellent defense. Ball State made some good plays offensively and defensively.

Grand Valley 43, North Carolina State 13

Jordan Mitchelson led Grand Valley, which got off to a quick start and led by eight points at halftime, with 20 points. Beth Nixon led North Carolina State with eight points, while Libby Klein and Rachel Basse played well in a zone defense. Julie Padilla and Kristen Pavle were also solid performers.

South wins final dual

Grosse Pointe South won three matches on falls and rolled to a 45-21 victory over Lake Shore to finish in a tie for first place in the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division dual meet wrestling standings.

The Blue Devils and Grosse Pointe North each wound up with 5-1 records in dual competition in the MAC Blue. North's loss was to Lake Shore, while South bowed to the Norsemen.

Joe Dwaihy (100 pounds), James Hill (142) and Rob Sharrow (160) won on falls for South, while Zach Meyers won a decision at 172 pounds.

South coach Larry Carr was also pleased with a pair of wrestlers who lost close matches.

"Rob Riethmiller wrestled tough at 185 but lost 4-1 to a pretty good wrestler and Brian Goldstein moved up to 112 because Steve Bunchek was sick and did a nice job in losing 4-0," Carr said.

Eagles keep Knights at .500 mark

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

Some coaches would be happy to have their basketball teams playing at a .500 clip.

University Liggett School's Chuck Wright isn't one of them.

"We should be better than .500," Wright said after his team dropped to 4-5 in the Metro Conference and 7-7 overall with a 79-45 loss at Lutheran East.

"You need three things to win consistently — defense, rebounding and ball-handling — and we haven't always had those."

ULS' 34-point defeat against East, which leads the Metro with an 8-2 record and is 13-3 overall, was a far cry from the 56-54 overtime thriller the Eagles won on Jan. 13.

"Second and third shots killed us all night," Wright said. "We played solid defense, but then couldn't keep East off the offensive boards."

ULS scored the first two points of the game, then turned the ice cold from the field. East held a 15-4 lead and finished the first quarter with a 15-8 advantage.

Freshman forward Wesley Young sparked the Eagles with 10 of his 16 points and five of his 10 rebounds in the first quarter. Several times the 6-foot-5 Young went over the smaller Knights to grab a rebound.

"When (East) took shots they crashed five guys to the boards," Wright said. "We don't have any jumpers like they do."

Khari Mills grabbed eight rebounds and Derrick Nelson collected six to give the Eagles a 38-24 advantage on the boards.

A six-point run at the end of the second quarter sent East to the locker room with a 33-18 lead.

North gymnasts edge Farmington

By Erin Sumners
Special Writer

Grosse Pointe North's gymnastics team added another victory to its record last week with a close victory over Farmington.

The teams were within a point of each other throughout the meet. The Lady Norsemen went ahead during the balance beam competition and held off Farmington during the floor exercise to win 118.30-118.10.

Christine Spada, Teri Varchetti and Robbie Langlois have competed in each event throughout the season. "These girls are the core of Mills wound up with 15 points for East, including a pair of three-point goals.

"He's just a bundle of nerves," said East coach Robert Monroe. "He never runs out of energy. He did a great job on (Joe) Grant."

Grant managed only six points in the first half but finished with 19 for ULS. He also had seven rebounds. Rod Williams had eight points and Calvin Martin came off the bench to score six.

The outcome was just the opposite earlier in the week when ULS overwhelmed Lutheran West 57-46. The Knights were ahead 49-21 after three quarters.

our team," said coach Christina Francis.

Others who played key roles in North's win over Farmington were Rachael Pesta, Aimee Faner and Leigh Spezia on vault; Spezia and Sue Taylor on parallel bars; Colleen Bryzik and Faner on balance beam; and Bryzik, Pesta and Faner in floor exercise.

First-year gymnasts Jennifer Spindler, April Fisher, Katey Kirchner, Amy Kohl and Liz Baldinger have been competing regularly for the Lady Norsemen.

"These first-year gymnasts

"It was a good game to give everybody quality playing time," said Wright, who emptied his bench at the start of the final period.

Every ULS player scored, with Williams leading the way with 12 points, two more than Grant. Frank Tymrak scored nine.

Although he's disappointed with the team's record, Wright isn't discouraged and neither are his players.

"The seniors really want to do better," he said. "We just have to hold teams under 50 points. We've only won one game where we've given up more than 50."

have made improvements and are expected to be a major part of our program next year," Francis said.

North's last dual meet and final home meet is tonight, Feb. 16, against Dearborn Edsel Ford. It will be parents' night and graduating seniors Pesta, Varchetti and Kirchner will be honored.

North has qualified as a team for the state regional competition, while Varchetti, Spada and Langlois have qualified as individuals for the regional at Rochester High School on Saturday, March 4.

Blackhawks 3, Bruins 0

Goals: Justin Brantley 2, Jody Owen (Blackhawks).
Assists: Jebby Boccaccio 3, Bobby Colombo, Boomer Urisko (Blackhawks).
Comments: Boccaccio earned the first playmaker of his career. Andrew Werthmann and Sam Ciaramitaro did an outstanding job of forechecking and backchecking for the Blackhawks, while the defense was led by Phil Sullivan, Jimmy O'Neill and John Coleman. The Bruins got strong offensive pressure from Jamie Caputo, Robbie Porter, Tommy Solomon and Chris Waigand, while the defensive standouts were Aris Karabetos and Tom Tavery. The Bruins' Craig Onderbeke and the Blackhawks' Steve Stock were outstanding on goal with Stock registering his fifth shutout.

Blackhawks 5, Sabres 2

Goals: Bobby Colombo 2, Justin Rock, Andrew Werthmann, Joey Agacinski (Blackhawks); Anthony Ahee, Freddy Moore (Sabres).
Comments: Justin Brantley 3, Colombo, Rock, Boomer Urisko (Blackhawks); Evan Scott, Patrick Mansfield (Sabres).
Comments: Agacinski had his first career goal and Brantley had his first playmaker of the season. John Coleman had an outstanding offensive game for the Blackhawks. Rabeek Ajjour, Ian Milhouse and Joey Youngblood had fine games for the Sabres. Goalies Steve Stock of the Blackhawks and the Sabres' Andrew Sweeney had fine games.

South baseball camp taking signups now

Registration is now being held for the fourth annual Grosse Pointe South Indoor Instructional Baseball Camp. "It's important for players to sign up early because the first three years we had to close registration and turn away some people," said camp director Dan Griesbaum. "We like to limit registration to 50 players a session so we can provide more individual instruction." The camp will be held Saturday, March 25 in the South gymnasiums. The sessions will be from 9 a.m. until noon and 1 to 4 p.m. South's camp is open to players in the fourth through eighth grades only.

The cost is $30 per player and all proceeds go to the South baseball program. "It's an instructional camp where fundamentals of hitting, pitching, catching, infield and outfield play and baserunning are taught," Griesbaum said. "We group the youngsters according to age and ability." Instructors are South's coaches and players. Registration forms are available at all area Little League and Babe Ruth signups and also can be picked up at the main office at South. For more information, contact Griesbaum during the evening at 884-7834.

ULS comeback beats Metro Conference foe

University Liggett School's 15-3, 15-8 volleyball victory against Metro Conference rival Harper Woods Monday night was just what the Lady Knights needed. "We were down 7-0 in the second game and came back to win," said ULS coach Ken Klenk. "That kind of a comeback was just what we needed." Senior Melissa Buhalis led the comeback by serving 13 straight points in the second game. She had six ace serves. Other standouts for ULS were Stacey Corbin with six kills and Laura Haggarty with five. Earlier, ULS dropped a tight Metro Conference match to unbeaten Lutheran North 15-13, 16-14. "We've had a lot of matches like that," Klenk said. "We'll score 13 or 14 points but we haven't had the killer instinct to put a team away until the Harper Woods match. Maybe we're starting to develop it in time for the conference tournament and the districts." Among the Knights' setbacks were three-game losses to Lutheran Northwest and Lutheran Westland and a heartbreaker against Hamtramck when they led 11-5 in the third game and wound up losing it 15-11. ULS hosts Clarenceville today, Feb. 16, at 5:30 p.m.

Babe Ruth signup next week

Babe Ruth baseball player registration for the Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park area will be held at the Neighborhood Club on Feb. 22 and 23 from 7 to 9 p.m. All players who will be ages 13 through 15 on July 31, 1995 are eligible. There will be three divisions of play for the various age groups in addition to a travel team for 13 and 14-year-olds. Returning players should have received registration packages through the mail. Questions should be directed to Mike Getz at 886-5813. The league is also looking for volunteer coaches. Anyone interested should call Chuck Matthews at 886-8737. Anyone interested in becoming umpires for the league can enroll in the Young Umpire program by calling Paul Louisell at 343-0943. Umpires should have a good baseball background, be at least 16 years old and be available from May through June. Umpires are trained as part of the national Babe Ruth program and equipment and pay is provided.

North's Bennett honored by peers

Grosse Pointe North girls basketball coach Gary Bennett was named Region 1 Class A coach of the year by the Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan. Bennett guided the Lady Norsemen to their finest season in history, winning league, district and regional championships while posting a 24-2 record.

Wheeler wins

Freshman Jeff Wheeler won his No. 5 singles and No. 2 doubles matches last weekend for Western Michigan in the Bronco's men's tennis team's 7-0 victory over Calvin College. Wheeler, a Grosse Pointe South grad, beat Calvin's Tim Volkema 6-2, 6-2 in singles and teamed with Tom Carriere to win second doubles 8-3 in pro-set scoring.

Lorni Ealba

Local player on title team

Lorni Ealba of Grosse Pointe Farms is a member of the Michigan Hawks Under-11 girls soccer team which won the recent Midwest Regional Indoor Soccer championship at Wheaton, Ill. The victory qualifies the Livonia-based Hawks for the U-11 Girls National Indoor Soccer Championships in Columbus, Ohio, from April 14-16. Ealba, a fifth grader at University Liggett School, plays striker for the Hawks and scored four goals and collected two assists in the Midwest tournament. She is the daughter of Robert and Royetta Ealba. The Hawks qualified for the Midwest Regional by winning the Metro Detroit Indoor Soccer tournament in Southfield.

101 PRAYERS

THANK You St. Jude, The Sacred Heart and especially The Mother of Perpetual Help for prayers answered. B.M.F.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
 May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Oh, Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
 Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day, your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks, St. Jude for prayer answered. And thank to St. Therese. A.V.M.

101 PRAYERS

PRAYER OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN
 Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart, to succor me in my necessity. (Make your request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3 times). Holy Mary, I place this prayer in your hands, (3 times). Say this prayer for 3 consecutive days and then you must publish. It will be granted to you. J.B.

THANK you St. Jude for prayers answered. H.C.D.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
 May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Oh, Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
 Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day, your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks, St. Jude for prayer answered. And thank to St. Therese. A.V.M.

THANKS St. Jude for Prayers answered. K.S.

THANK you Blessed Virgin St. Jude for consideration and prayers answered. D.I.

THANKS ST. Jude for prayers answered. H.L.K.

THANK you, St. Jude, for prayers answered. S.W.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!
An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

WE WILL BE HAPPY TO PROVIDE ADVICE as well as a LIST OF ECONOMICAL SERVICE SOURCES

Marigolds have played a large part in folklore around the world

A wonderful exhibit of Mexican religious folk art is on display in the Activities Center gallery at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House through Feb. 26. It is amazing how the paintings express the hopes, fears, rejoicing and faith of nineteenth century rural Mexicans.

Flowers play a large part in Mexican culture, especially marigolds, which have religious significance as well as being used in medicines, cookery, embroidery and decoration of altars and homes.

Marigolds are something to consider if you are planning next summer's garden during this frosty month. Just the thought of their sunny golden color conveys a feeling of warmth and sunshine.

Marigolds are also called calendulas, or, in Mexico, tagetes. They have a venerable history. In the fourth century B.C. Theophrastus wrote extensively about the merits of this "golden flower." Theophrastus was born on the island of Lesbos and as a young man became a pupil of Aristotle in Athens.

When Aristotle died he bequeathed his library and school to Theophrastus, who carried on the school so successfully that at one time there were more than 1,000 students. When he died the account of his funeral says that "the whole population of Athens,

The Romans gave us the generic name from the calends, the first day of every Roman month, and the claim was made that these yellow flowers were in bloom on the calends of every month in the year, which would be entirely possible in southern Italy. They were cultivated both as garden ornaments and as medicinal herbs which would "help mightily ye scorpion-bitten."

"Sow marigolds and spinach in April" wrote Sir John Hill in England in 1757. He was referring to his kitchen and herb garden. Marigolds had for centuries been used in soups and salads and are listed as "goldez" in fifteenth century cookbooks. They are major ingredients in possets and other drinks.

An Elizabethan cookbook calls for marigolds to be used as flavoring for a broth in which to "stu sparrows or larks." You "parboyle the larkes before and then boyle them in the broth and lays them upon sops" (sops are now referred to as toast points).

Marigolds were used in many countries as an ingredient in soups, stews, what we would now refer to as casseroles, drinks, pastries and confections from antiquity to modern times. Marigold wine was popular and still is in rural Mexico.

Marigolds play a large part in folklore. In the sixteenth century, marigolds figured greatly in recipes for love potions and in many recipes for magical compounds which were guaranteed to enable the user to see fairies, or to become invisible.

To this day in the Balkan countries peasant girls dig up the earth from the footprints of their sweethearts and use it to pot a marigold plant to guarantee an enduring love.

King Charles I wrote a little poem in which he seems to be primarily feeling sorry for himself. One couplet goes, "The marigold observes the sun/ More than my subjects me have done."

If marigold was a commonplace medical herb to Englishmen and Europeans, it also had a special interest for Americans. It appears on all the early lists of herbs and flowers brought to this country by the first settlers. Marigolds were seen in the Dutch New Netherlands by 1642 and were in Virginia by 1650. In 1672, a book called "New England's Rarities Discover'd" listed marigolds.

Culpepper's "Herbal" praised marigolds as both a culinary and medicinal herb, as well as an ornament for the garden. Gerard's famous "Herbal" has a long section in praise of the marigold's versatility.

Marigolds were used in great quantities in army hospitals during the Civil War. A report published in 1897 by Dr. W.T. Fernie, an Englishman, says "The plant, especially the flowers, was used on a large scale by the American surgeons to treat wounds and injuries sustained during the war, and were warmly commended, quite preventing suppuration and infection. The fresh juice of succus calendula is the best form in which the calendula is obtainable for ready practice."

A more modern use of the marigold was again a wartime one, this time in World War I. In a little book by one Minnie Kamm published in 1938 she says, "The flowers have long been used as hemostatic and as such Miss Gertrude Jekyll gave over a large part of her noted Sussex garden to the cultivation of these flowers during the Great War, sending innumerable bushels of the flowers to first-aid stations in France to be used as dressings for wounded soldiers."

Shakespeare's "winking Mary-bud" is grown all over the world from Africa to Mexico, throughout Europe, and at all seasons in America and is sometimes nicknamed "the sun's bride."

Is home ownership for you?

If you have thought about owning a home, but aren't sure you can afford it, and are confused by all the financing options, this workshop is for you.

"Home Ownership" — a two part series — will be held on Tuesdays, Feb. 28, and March 7. Classes will be held at the VerKuilen Building, 21885 Dunham Road, Clinton Township, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The workshop, co-sponsored by Macomb County MSU Extension and Michigan State University Housing Development Authority, deals with all aspects of purchasing and owning a home. The mysteries of the purchase process — from qualification to closing — will be explained.

The workshop is free but registration is a must. To sign up call Macomb County MSU Extension at (810) 469-6430. For more information, call Norrine Neville at (810) 469-6430.

Preparing a room for painting

The success of any painting project depends largely upon the preparation that precedes it. Begin by patching any holes, cracks, or other blemishes. Prime all patches and bare spots and new plaster or drywall. If a wall or ceiling has brownish water marks, seal these with shellac, alkyd primer, even if you will be using latex paint for the finish coat.

Remove lightweight furniture, pictures, and other items from the room. Move heavy furniture pieces into the center of the room and cover them with a plastic drop cloth. If you will be painting the ceiling, cover each piece individually so you can move them easily to make room for your ladder. Protect floors with canvas drop cloths, not slippery plastic sheeting. Even canvas over plastic is unsafe underfoot.

Scrape and sand

Using a strong worklight, carefully inspect all wall, ceiling, and woodwork surfaces. Hold the light at a low angle to the surface to throw any surface defects into clear view. Chip away loose paint and varnish with a razor blade scraper and sand rough spots and old paint runs with 150-grit sandpaper. Wipe painted woodwork and semigloss walls with a liquid deglosser. The deglosser will dissolve the shiny surface of the old paint and create a new surface that the new paint can adhere to. If the woodwork is covered with varnish that is badly deteriorated, strip it off now. After repainting the walls, refinish the woodwork.

Mask areas not to be painted

Even if you plan to paint the switch and receptacle plates, remove them and paint them separately so they don't stick to the wall. Cover all the exposed switches and receptacles with masking tape, along with anything else on which you don't want to get paint.

Protect woodwork

Use wide masking tape to keep spatters off woodwork. Press the wall edge of the tape down firmly with a putty knife to seal it. For a wide molding or baseboard, use masking tape at the edges. If you will be painting the ceiling but not the walls, or if you want to keep paint off the fireplace, drape lightweight plastic sheeting over the areas to be protected. Hold it in place with masking tape.

Vacuum-clean all edges where masking tape must adhere, so it will not peel loose before the job is done. When everything is masked, finish with a top to bottom cleaning. Dust or vacuum-clean all surfaces that will be painted. Vacuum up all debris so you won't be stirring dust into the air. Finally, scrub the ceiling, walls, and woodwork with household detergent, rinse well, and let them dry before painting.

Painting with a brush

Start with the ceiling and paint a room from the top down. For best results, methodically complete surfaces one at a time, first cutting in around the edges with a brush, then rolling paint onto open areas.

Don't be tempted to save effort by cutting in the edge of the ceiling and the top of the wall in the same operation. By the time you've finished the ceiling, the border at the top of the walls will be dry, and applying wet paint over dry leaves lap marks. For the same reasons, work in small sections, cutting in a few feet out from a corner along each edge of a ceiling, filling in with the roller, then resuming with the brush. The secret to avoiding overlap marks is to always keep a "wet edge."

Load the brush

Dip no more than one-third of the brush's bristles into the paint, lift them free, and without wetting them again gently tap the bristles against the rim of the can. Dipping deeper overloads the brush: wiping the bristles against the rim removes too much paint. The objective is to load the brush to just short of the point where it will drip on the way to the wall or ceiling.

Apply paint

Hold the brush as you would a pencil and gently flow the paint on the surface. If the adjacent surface will be the same color, apply the paint in four or five short strokes that are perpendicular to the edge. Don't worry about brush marks just yet. Instead, concentrate on distributing the paint evenly.

Smooth the strokes

Now work the brush in one long, smooth stroke parallel to the edge. This last stroke smoothes out brush marks and ensures even coverage over the area.

Use the beading technique where two colors meet

If the ceiling and walls will be different colors, spare yourself the bother of masking by cutting in with a technique called "beading." Do this with a two-inch flat sash brush, not a wall brush. Lightly load the brush and draw its broad edge in a line that is about 1/16 of an inch from the edge. Press hard enough to bend the bristles slightly and paint will flow out just up to the edge of the adjacent surface.

If you are using a gloss or a semi-gloss paint, take pains to straighten out these final strokes.

Because wall work goes quickly, you can often cut in all of a wall's top, side, and bottom edges at once, then roll on paint in two- or three-foot square sections. Finish one wall completely before applying any paint to the next one.

Painting ceilings and walls

Cutting in with a brush establishes a border of wet paint that you can work toward. After you have cut in, switch to the roller to paint the adjacent large area. Procedures for painting ceilings and walls differ somewhat. Let's look first at the basic techniques of loading and handling a roller.

Roller basics

Begin by filling the paint tray's reservoir about two-thirds full with paint and dip the roller into it. Lift the roller out and roll it back and forth on the tray's ramp. This evenly distributes paint around the roller's circumference.

THE HELPFUL INSPECTOR
By Michael J. Kalkhoff

The nap should be saturated with paint, but not dripping. You may need to dip and roll a dry roller several times before it fills up. After that, one dip should be enough.

Smooth out the paint

Now go back over the diagonal strokes with parallel back and forth strokes. Apply moderate pressure. Too heavy or too light a hand will cause the roller to skid. Watch for bare or thin spots, and repeat strokes if necessary. Ceilings and walls require somewhat different initial and final strokes.

Painting ceilings

Because a ceiling is usually the largest expanse in a room, you may have to work quickly to maintain the wet edges that are critical for lap free results. This is especially true with latex, which typically dries to the touch in about 45 minutes. While you must use a ladder to cut in the edges with a brush, an extension handle greatly speeds up the major part of ceiling work because you can cover a large area from the floor without repeatedly having to stop, take down the paint tray, move the ladder, and put the tray back up.

Make the first strokes in a W pattern, first pushing the roller away from you, working from the dry ceiling to the wet edge you cut in, then pulling the roller back toward you. Smooth out the paint as explained above. Here you need to take special care with the final strokes, rolling them all in one direction. Because ceilings are viewed from an angle, irregular strokes will be much more noticeable than on the walls.

Painting walls

With walls, make the first stroke upward, toward the wet edge at the ceiling. Then make diagonal strokes down, up, and down again to form a large M. Starting on an upstroke minimizes dripping. Fill in the M's open spaces with crosswise strokes, as explained for the W's in painting ceilings. With flat paint you needn't worry about lap marks or strokes that are not perfectly straight. These will disappear when the paint dries.

Housing affordability improves despite higher rates

The purchasing power of both move-up and first-time home buyers during the fourth quarter of 1994 rose slightly despite increasing mortgage interest rates, according to the recently released National Association of Realtors' Housing Affordability Index.

NAR's composite index, which measures affordability factors for all home buyers, was 131.6 in the fourth quarter of 1994, compared to 128.0 posted in the previous quarter. However, affordability in the fourth-quarter of 1994 fell from the 141.9 recorded during the same period a year ago. When the index measures 100, a family earning the median income has exactly the amount needed to purchase a median-priced home, using conventional financing and a 20 percent down payment.

Since the median is the midpoint, the composite index shows that half the families in the nation had at least 131.6 percent of the income needed to qualify for the purchase of a home with a median price of $107,900. The typical family could afford a home costing $142,000.

NAR's first-time home buyer index, which shows the ability of renters who are prime candidates to qualify for a mortgage on a starter home, also rose in the fourth quarter of 1994 compared to the previous quarter. The first-time buyer index was 85.4 in the fourth quarter, compared to 83.2 posted in the third quarter. The fourth quarter index was down, however, compared to the 92.3 during the same period a year ago. When this index equals 100, the typical first-time buyer can afford the typical starter home under existing financial conditions with a 10 percent down payment. The first-time buyer median income represents the typical income of a renter family with wage earners between the ages of 25 and 44.

The 1994 fourth-quarter, first-time buyer index shows that the qualifying income needed for conventional financing covering 90 percent of a $91,700 starter home was $29,261. Yet the median income of prime first-time buyers was $24,998, a difference of $4,263. Even so, a typical first-time buyer could afford a home costing $78,300.

"The rise in affordability conditions from the third to the fourth quarter in 1994 resulted from a seasonal dip in home prices, but the real picture is told by the drop in affordability experienced from a year ago. With interest rates still expected to climb, there is no guarantee the quarter-to-quarter upward trek will continue into this year," said NAR president Edmund "Gill" Woods Jr.

Woods, from Holyoke, Mass., who led a delegation of Real Estate Agents in a meeting with Federal Reserve Board chairman Alan Greenspan last month to discuss ways of controlling rising interest rates, said the housing market's relative steadiness in recent months despite higher rates was only due to other favorable economic conditions.

"The total sales pace of existing single-family homes in December 1994 was down notably from one year earlier, clearly illustrating that affordability conditions have been hampered by higher rates," Woods said.

NAR executive vice president Almon R. "Bud" Smith noted that the affordability gap between first-time buyers and move-ups has continued to widen, with the 1994 fourth-quarter gap at 35.1 percent, compared to 34.9 percent a year ago.

"Higher mortgage interest rates have just compounded the problems many first-time purchasers face when trying to enter the home ownership circle," Smith said. "The down payment hurdle is a great enough obstacle to first-time buyers. Higher interest rates have just added to this group's frustrations with trying to purchase their first home."

Under current affordability conditions for all buyers during the fourth quarter of 1994, a family earning $20,000 a year would have sufficient income to qualify for a $72,200 home with a $57,800 loan. A family earning $30,000 would qualify for a $108,300 home using a $86,600 loan. For a family earning $40,000, qualifying for a loan of $115,500 would enable them to purchase a $144,400 home. Finally, a family earning $50,000 annually would be able to buy a $180,500 home after qualifying for a $144,400 loan.

The National Association of Realtors, "The Voice for Real Estate," is the nation's largest professional association, representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Catch a breath of spring at the Pontiac Silverdome when District 1 of The Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan Inc. presents Quilting Time, its fourth annual Standard Flower Show.

The District 1 Flower Show and The Michigan Home and Garden Show are combined under the Dome March 2-5 to bring metro Detroit gardeners and flower lovers an early spring break.

The flower show theme Quilting Time honors the wonderfully creative imaginations of millions of quilters and their works, which are a rich part of our heritage.

More than 200 dramatic floral designs, horticulture plants and displays will interpret this year's theme. From intriguing floral arrangements viewed under black light, to sophisticated table-top designs, — some will amaze while others inspire.

Quilters representing The Quilting Guild of Metro Detroit, The Oakland County Quilt Group and The Ann Arbor Guild will be on hand with displays and demonstrations of their craft.

Simplicity and line are two important elements used to create dramatic designs in the Japanese art of flower arranging. In a special exhibit, master-designer Toshi Shimoura demonstrates her artistic mastery of this specialized school of design called ikebana.

As part of its education program, the Southeastern Oakland County Resource Recovery Authority (SOCRRA) master composters will explain the fine points of composting and share information on other ways to reduce yard waste, including use of natural mulches, recycling grass and the magic of gardening with compost.

Michigan has been invaded by exotic species of plants. Learn how the introduction of foreign plants into Michigan's natural habitats is threatening their fragile ecosystems in an educational display entitled Invasive Plants.

Celebrating the diversity of seemingly simple plants, an exhibit entitled Those Amazing Herbs will showcase creative samples of the culinary, ornamental and cosmetic uses of the herbs rosemary and lavender.

Sharing tips on flower arranging, award-winning floral designers Nancy Passfield and Jean Moran demonstrate Spring Flower Arranging for the Home on Friday, March 3, at 1 and 3 p.m. and on Saturday, March 4, at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Also back by popular demand is Pauline Flynn, with her Crafting With Nature demonstrations at 1 and 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, March 5.

The Michigan Home and Garden Show, held in conjunction with the District I Flower Show, includes 16 beautiful gardens jam-packed with lovely spring flowers. Spectacular feature gardens incorporate the latest trends in outdoor settings — a cascading waterfall, water gardens and unique architectural accents. Professional landscape designers will be on hand to advise and answer questions.

Horticulturist Jim Wilson, host of the PBS "Victory Garden," will appear at The Michigan Home and Garden Show on Saturday, March 4, speaking on Container Gardening in the Landscape at 1 p.m. and Landscaping with Herbs at 4 p.m.

Tickets are $6 for adults and $3 for children 6 to 14. Children 5 and under are admitted free. Price includes admission to both The Home and Garden Show and The District I Flower Show. Hours are Thursday, March 2, 3 to 10 p.m.; Friday, March 3, noon to 10 p.m.; Saturday, March 4, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Sunday, March 5, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Discount coupons are available at Elias Bros. Big Boy restaurants and Amoco stations. For further information call (810) 456-1681 during show hours.

Indulge your family in comfort

By W.D. Farmer

Your family will enjoy this country traditional home with its special array of amenities.

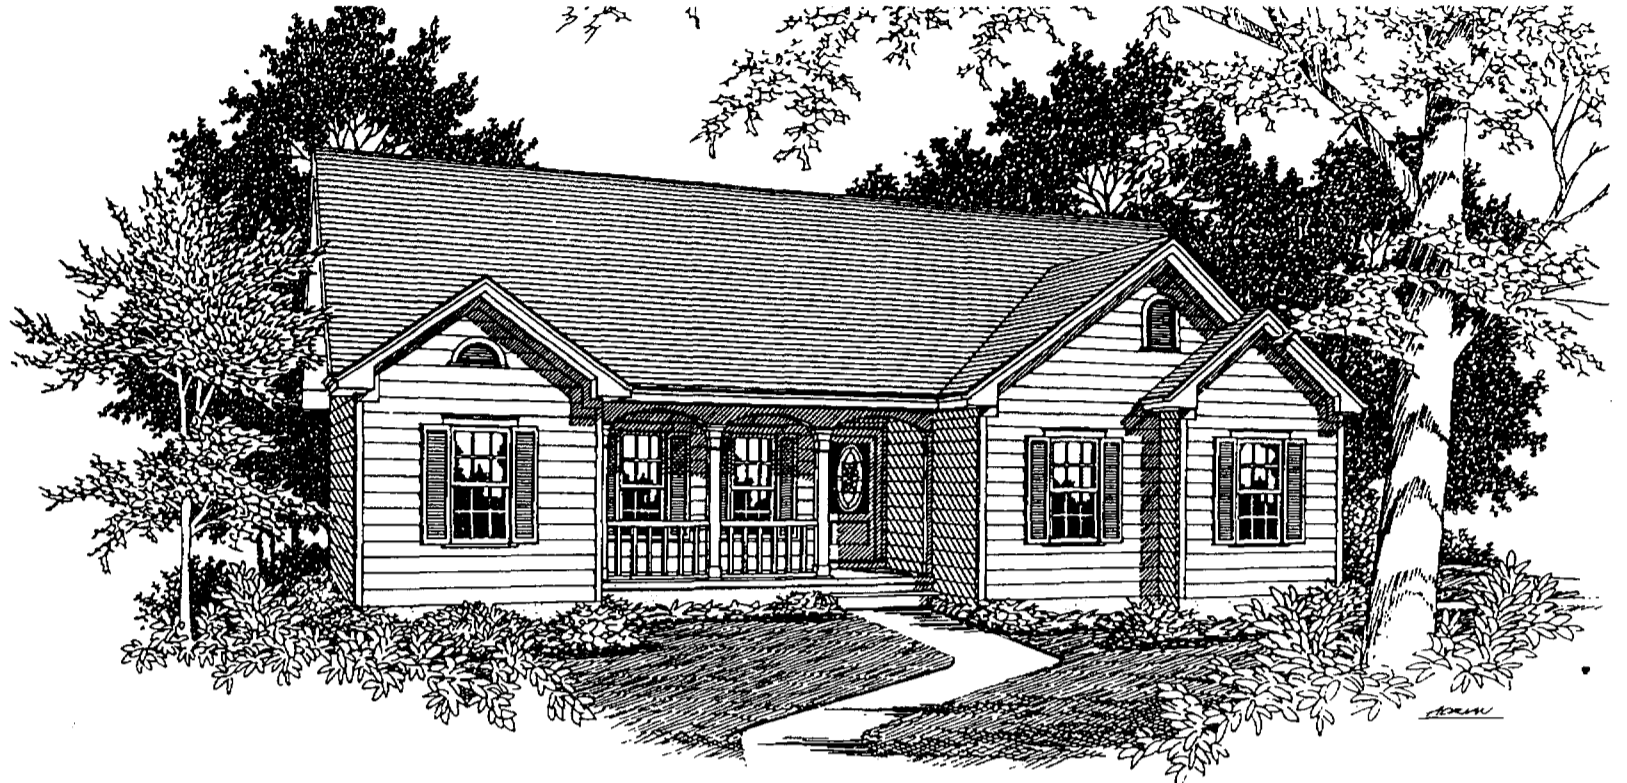

A covered front porch with recessed front door provides entry into this superlative design. There is a formal foyer which will direct guests straight into the family room, which includes a vaulted ceiling and a prefab fireplace. Access to the rear sun deck is from here as well.

Adjacent, and completely open to the family room, is a dining room with boxed columns providing a visual separation of the two areas. A pass-through from the kitchen provides ease in meal serving.

The kitchen and breakfast area is between the dining room and the double garage. Ideal work space and storage is thoughtfully placed. A bay window is provided in the breakfast area.

A laundry area is tucked behind bi-fold doors leading to the garage and directly accessible to the family room or kitchen.

There are three bedrooms and two full baths. The two front bedrooms share a central hall bath, while the master bedroom has a private garden bath with sloped ceiling. The master bedroom includes a tray ceiling and a large walk-in closet.

The exterior features multiple gable roof design. Boxed wood columns and wood balustrades highlight the front porch.

The plan is computer generated and drawn in accordance with FHA and VA requirements. It includes 1,485 square feet of heated space and is furnished with a basement foundation. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency.

For further information on plan No. 484, write W.D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 31145.

Basic instruction in drywall repair offered at St. Clair Shores Community Education

St. Clair Shores Community Education, in cooperation with Michigan Builders Institute, will offer a one-evening class on the techniques of making basic drywall repairs on Thursday, March 2, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Lake Shore High School, Jefferson Avenue at 13 Mile.

Participants will learn correct application, sanding and finishing techniques for modern drywall materials through classroom lecture and a hands-on demonstration using a mock-up. The course will cover hanging new drywall, taping and sanding as well as how to repair plaster walls. The class costs $45 and includes an instruction manual.

Pre-registration is required no later than Tuesday, Feb. 28, by contacting St. Clair Shores Community Education. Those interested should call the school at 810-296-8384 to register during office hours.

The instructor is experienced in all aspects of drywall. He will be able to answer any questions about drywall repair. Michigan Builders Institute teaches builders' education in 70 school districts in Lower Michigan. For a free brochure and more information about all classes, call 810-651-2771.

Michigan housing project starts in 1994 were up 7.1 percent over 1993 and ended higher than any other year in this decade. Business was up $282 million over 1993 making Michigan's residential building nearly a $4 billion industry.

"Many factors came together in 1994 to help bring about such a good year," said Bob Woodard, president of the Michigan Association of Home Builders. "Interest rates remained in the single digits, lumber prices fluctuated but ended up 24 percent below what they were last year, consumers' confidence in the economy strengthened in 1994, and in Michigan, property tax cuts allowed more people into the housing market."

The Michigan Association of Home

Builders comprises more than 10,000 member companies, providing service to over 370,000 people in the home building/construction industry. MAHB also represents 36 local home builder associations throughout the state.

Free White Flowering Dogwood Trees

Ten free white flowering dogwood trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during February.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit foundation's Trees for America campaign.

"The white flowering dogwoods will add year-round beauty to your home and neighborhood," said John Rosenow, the foundation's president. "Dogwoods have showy spring flowers, scarlet autumn foliage, and red berries which attract songbirds all winter."

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between March 1 and May 31 with enclosed planting instructions. The 6- to 12-inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the foundation's bimonthly publication, Arbor Day, and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the foundation and receive the free trees, send a $10 contribution to TEN FREE DOGWOODS, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, Nebraska 68410 by Feb. 28.
