BIG INCREASES ARE PLANNED FOR COAST DEFENSE

Ten Thousand More Officers and Men Needed—Will Increase Ammunition Reserve and Raise Elevation of 12 Inch Guns in Coast Defense

MILITARY ACADEMY ON WEST COAST IS LIKELY

Betterments of Navy Include 50 More Submarines for the Pacific, Several Score Destroyers, and 18,000 More Men to Handle War Vessels

Radical increase in the amount of coast defense ammunition, of which a known shortage exists in Honolulu; more submarines, so that each coast will have 50; a second military academy near the Pacific coast; and an increase of 10,000 officers and men for the coast defense branch of the army are included in the reports presented to President Wilson by Secretaries Daniels and Garrison, regarding a definite program for a larger army and navy, according to the New York World.

Concerning the navy the program is:

1. The construction of at least four super-dreadnoughts and probably two battle cruisers of the British Queen Elizabeth type.

Short of Destroyers.

2. The construction of a large number of destroyers. The navy, on the basis of its present number of big ships, built and building, was 92 destroyers short of the complement determined upon by the General Board of four destroyers to each battleship. The navy now has 40 battleships of all types and only 68 destroyers.

3. The construction of upward of 100 submarines, furnishing a complement of fifty for each coast.

4. The construction in the aeronautical base at Pensacola, Fla., of a plant for the construction of hydroaeroplanes, capable of turning out at least three machines a week, or as fast as officers can be trained to operate them.

5. Increase in enlistment authorizations to bring the enlisted personnel immediately up to full strength for all ships, built and building, which might be utilized in time of war—an increase of about 18,000 men.

6. Enlargement of the capacity of the Naval Academy at Annapolis with a view of overcoming at the earliest possible moment the existing shortage of 900 officers.

Army Needs.

The needs of the army are more numerous and difficult of fulfilment, particularly in so far as personnel is concerned. Under the head of personnel are included:

(1) Increases and changes for the regular or standing army and the militia.

(2) The creation of a nucleus, in officers and men with a knowledge of the rudiments of military practice, of a second line army which could be whipped into shape for field action with a minimum of delay.

(3) Legislation creating a system of military training, as an ultimate result of which the United States in time of peril could summon to the colors a citizen army trained in advance, both as to officers and men, for almost immediate field duty.

Ordnance plans for a theoretical army include:

1. Five rifles for every man expected to be put into action.

2. Twelve machine guns for every

No More Action Will Be Taken in Affair of Luau

Charges of Keeping Uniformed Men From Kapiolani Park Will Be Dropped

After many weeks of waiting, Major-general W. H. Carter, commanding the Hawaiian department, U. S. A., today received an answer from Sheriff Rose to his now famous "luau" letter, in which General Carter asked the sheriff to explain why soldiers of the Hawaiian department were barred from the enclosure at Kapiolani Park last spring, during the luau given by Mayor Lane in honor of the visiting Congressional party.

"No, I don't think it's best to make public the contents of Sheriff Rose's reply," said Major-general Carter this morning. "It would not do the army or the public any good to drag the affair out any further. Sheriff Rose's answer was a very courteous one, telling his side of the occurrence, but I do not intend to give out the letter to the papers. It's an old story by this time, and the best thing is to let it drop."

OIL PLANT SAID TO BE MENACE TO WHOLE DISTRICT

GOVERNOR IS BACKING OFFICIAL IN DEMANDS

One Charge is That Oil is Carried to Nearby Low Areas in Open Ditches

Charging gross carelessness in the handling of gasoline and other highly explosive oils at the yards of the Associated Oil Company of Honolulu, Charles R. Forbes, superintendent of public works, announces that he intends immediately to see what steps can be taken toward compelling that company to follow his suggestions for safeguarding lives and property endangered by aforesaid alleged carelessness.

"I intend to take action at once," says Mr. Forbes, "and I have proposed to the governor steps that he is in accord with to bring the oil company to terms.

"The company writes to me that it will decide what is to be done in the matter, but it is a proposition for the territory to decide upon, and one up to the oil company to follow."

Mr. Forbes first took up the question of the alleged carelessness of the company last October, in a letter in which he made note of the fact that oil was being carried in open ditches and pipes to nearby low areas and that, when the tanks were drained of water, there was a considerable percentage of oil carried off.

This, Mr. Forbes stated in the letter, was a dangerous procedure. He said that his inspection of the premises satisfied him that the public was not properly safeguarded with the plant and conditions which prevailed.

He proposed at this time that the company place a reenforced concrete wall around the entire tank area, or a sump of reenforced concrete with a concrete bottom. He stated that when oil and water are discharged into this sump, other means must be used for removing the same than that of flowing oil and water into adjacent lands "Changes Are Necessary."

"The department of public works has no desire to enforce unnecessary hardship on the oil company, but these changes are absolutely necessary," continued the letter, "and I will be pleased to have you inform me that you will make every possible endeav-

COAST CHINESE PLAN TO FIGHT FOR SEA TRADE

"Six Companies" and Chinese Chamber of Commerce at 'Frisco Back New Line

Spirited competition with the T. K. K. by a Chinese-owned steamer line, which will contest with this and other Japanese lines for the rich trade abandoned by the Pacific Mail's withdrawal, is planned, according to the San Francisco Examiner.

That the Chinese Six Companies and the Chinese Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco are back of the move to wrest control of the transpacific business from Japanese liners, is stated by this paper, which gives as its authorities John L. McNab and Timothy Healy, attorneys for the powerful Chinese concerns.

Options have been secured on several boats in Pacific ports. It is planned to start with four heavy freight and steerage boats and then to build two swift passenger boats capable of taking care of the best tourist travel of the world. The company may be delayed somewhat in getting started because of the great scarcity of bottoms on account of the war.

Several preliminary meetings were held by the San Francisco merchants to discuss this plan as soon as the Pacific Mail was sold. The situation was aggravated by the feeling against the Japanese as a result of the signing of the recent treaties between Japan and China. Chinese merchants have declared a boycott on Japanese.

When the San Francisco Chinese merchants found that they could put their hands on half a million dollars at once for such a purpose and that another million was in sight they called a general meeting a few days ago and definitely decided to incorporate.

Outside of the desire to maintain their natural independence on the seas and to hold their own against Japan, the Chinese merchants, many of whom are far sighted and able men, realize that the golden time is at hand to develop trade between the United States and China.

After the beginning is made in a conservative way, with freight boats, the Chinese expect tod start a big fight to take the best class of passenger traffic away from the Japanese ships.

Chinese Governor Thanks People of Honolulu For Aid to Flood Sufferers

"From the grateful people of the flood stricken districts of Canton," writes Lung-Chai Gow, governor of the province, "I send thanks to the Chinese Merchants' Association, the Chamber of Commerce and all the good people of Honolulu who have helped with money to relieve the suffering that the floods have brought."

Governor Lung Chai Gow's gratitude is expressed in a letter to Chau Chung Wing, manager of a bank in Shanghai, and forwarded at the governor's request to the Chinese of Honolulu. The letter has been received by Chu Gem, chairman of the relief committees of the local Chinese Merchants' Association.

The governor in a brief note tells of the awful horror of the floods that have robbed so many of the poor inhabitants of south China of homes and means of livelihood. "It is perhaps the most terrible in the history of all our losses by high water," he says.

Collections are still going on here among the Chinese of the city, though not so fast as at first. During the past week the merchants' association has collected a total of $305, and is waiting for a few more dollars to come in before cabling another sum for the relief of the sufferers.

Wong Chow, treasurer of the committees, gave out today the subscription list for the week. The largest amount in this time has come in one gift of $250 from the Oahu Sugar Company. The other gifts are as follows: Wong Kit, Honomu, $8; Yow Fat, Wailuku, $1; Chin Yee San, Honolulu, $5, and Chong Hop, Hanapepe, $41.

SAW DESTROYER SINK SUBMARINE NEAR ENGLAND

Herman Hertz, Formerly of Honolulu, Passenger on Lapland Threatened By Sea Wasp

"I have seen a fight between a grampus and a shark," said Herman Herts, formerly well known in Honolulu as a clerk in Benson & Smith's drug store, who passed through the city yesterday, a passenger on the Shinyo Maru, bound for Japan. "It was a grim and exciting battle, with the shark keeping near the surface of the water and trying to get one grip of his jaws on the grampus, but the last thing I saw of the big pair was when the shark reared out of the water the last time, with the grampus clutching him fast beneath his great jaw.

"That was certainly exciting, but it didn't touch the fight between a torpedo boat destroyer and a submarine which I saw when the destruction of the torpedo boat meant the peril of my life and the lives of the hundreds of others who were aboard the same ship.

"I was aboard the Lapland when she started from Liverpool escorted by the destroyer. We had hardly been out to sea two hours when the destroyer which was taking us out through the danger zone came back and reported that a submarine had been sighted eight miles ahead and off the port bow.

"The captain of the boat at once ordered all the passengers on deck and had them equipped with life preservers, awaiting the outcome of the battle. It was a strange sight to see those hundreds of people standing with pale faces, ready to take to the

Auditor's Figures Show Total of $133,000 Expended From January 1 to June 30

That a total of $133,023.99 has been spent on all roads of the city and county of Honolulu for the half year ending June 30 is shown on the books of the auditor's department. Of this sum, $79,002.88 was spent on roads in Honolulu. The total expenditure is considerably greater than for any other period of equal length up to this time.

Under the head of permanent improvements the sum of $30,429.33 has been spent. This summarizes as follows: Survey monuments, $198.63; Punaluu bridge, reconstructed, $1858.71; Emma Square sidewalk, $119.75; Kaneohe two-span bridge, $1762.45; Allen street bitulithic pavement, $22,124.75; additional electric lights, $28; addition police department, $175; reconstruction Wahiawa bridge, $2771.09; Kipapa tunnel relined, $50.50; cross road in Puunui district, $150; road damage at Puuloa, $937.60; Keawe storm drain, $143.25; reconstruction Waimea bridge, $9.60; right of way Kaluanui, $100.

In the bureau of water and sewer departments for permanent outlay, the sum of $16,460.48 was spent; for material and supplies, $65,156.14, and for salaries and payrolls, $32,388.16.

ROUTE MAIL TO ORIENT BY WAY OF NORTHWEST

Scarcity of Steamers Force Sending of Letters to San Francisco Then to Seattle

While waiting for the postoffice department to rearrange its mail schedules from San Francisco and Honolulu to Oriental points, including China, Japan and the Philippines, it is more than likely that the postoffice will ship mail for Yokohama, Shanghai, Manila, Hongkong, Kobe and India from here to San Francisco where it will be transhipped by rail to Seattle, and sent out from that port for the Orient.

Inquiry at the postoffice today developed these facts. Owing to the extreme scarcity of vessels for Oriental mail shipments from San Francisco and this city, due to the Pacific Mail's sudden and complete withdrawal of service, some way has to be found to get around the difficulty. Shipping mail from this city to San Francisco, and out from Seattle, seems the quickest way to get mail to Japan, China and the Philippines.

Mail for Yokohama was taken on the Shinyo Maru last evening. The next T. K. K. liner for Yokohama does not leave until October 8, but according to Castle & Cooke, local agents for the T. K. K., this morning, the cargo boat Seiyo Maru will take Yokohama mail. She is due to arrive here about September 24, which will help to relieve part of the Oriental mail congestion at the Honolulu postoffice.

Mail for Manila, Hongkong, China points and India will be carried out on the U. S. transport Logan, due here next Wednesday morning, September 15, and scheduled to sail probably two days later. She will not carry any mail for Japanese points, however.

Postoffice authorities here said this morning that they are taking up with the San Francisco office the problem of despatching Oriental mail from this

SIDA IS CHARGED WITH TRYING TO MURDER WOMAN

S Sida, a Japanese, was arrested at King and South streets this morning by Officer John Huihui and was taken to the police station, where a charge of attempt to murder was filed against him.

S. Sida was found in a room with Nakagami, a Japanese woman, and the woman was found on the floor with a four-inch cut in her neck. She was taken to the emergency hospital, where she was treated by Dr. Richard Ayer. Dr. Ayer stated this morning that the woman was not in danger, but had the cut been a fraction of an inch longer it would have severed the jugular vein.

Sakamoto, another Japanese, was in the vicinity and heard the cries of the woman. He rushed into the house and saw the woman coming down the stairs with her face and neck covered with blood. He went to her assistance, took her back to her room and found a man there, supposed to be Sida. The police were then notified and Officer Huihui later apprehended the prisoner. The trouble started over some Japanese matter, according to the witness. The case will come up in court on September 13.

DEATH SUMMONS RHODE ISLAND'S 'WAR GOVERNOR'

William Sprague Passes Away After Eventful and Spectacular Career

William Sprague was the last of the Civil War governors. He outlived every member of Lincoln's cabinet, every chief executive of the states, and nearly every member of Congress, of the war period.

He probably was the youngest man in this country ever elected to the governorship of a state. When only 29 years old, in 1860 he was chosen as Rhode Island's chief executive, serving three consecutive terms of one year each. In his third campaign only 65 votes were cast against him in the whole state.

Born at Cranston, R. I., in 1830, he early inherited a large fortune. The Sprague family had been prominent in the political, industrial and social life of the state since the revolution. Young Sprague anticipated the Civil War. For two years prior to the outbreak he maintained two full batteries of artillery at his own expense. When the war came, Rhode Island and Sprague were ready to rush to the front.

The youthful governor, at the head of 3000 well-drilled troops, was one of the first to reach Washington. He marched with his volunteers to the battle of Bull Run and later to the Peninsula.

Governor Sprague was the last survivor of the famous conference of 13 Northern governors at Altoona, Pa., in 1862.

"We had to take a lot of abuse in return for our endorsement of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation," said Governor Sprague recently. "We were hissed in the streets and were denounced as traitors."

At 33 years of age, he entered the U. S. senate and served during the administrations of Lincoln, Johnson and Grant.

He married the beautiful and brilliant Kate Chase, daughter of Lincoln's secretary of the treasury and later chief justice of the United States supreme court. Lincoln, his cabinet, congressmen and foreign ministers attended. It was the most magnificent wedding ever held in the national capital up to that time. It is said to have cost more than $250,000.

The young couple led a brilliant social career in Washington and Rhode Island. Sprague erected a beautiful mansion at Narragansett Pier which cost $1,000,000 complete and was the show palace of the state. The furniture alone, all foreign made, cost $250,000. More than $150,000 worth of art objects filled the four-story frame structure.

The crash came in 1873. When the financial panic swept the country the $16,000,000 business house of the Sprague's which owned large print-cloth factories and numerous other enterprises went into bankruptcy. Law suits stripped the governor of his

KOREAN WORKMAN AT PEARL HARBOR FALLS FROM TANK, IS KILLED

The sheriff's office today received a report to the effect that a man, believed to be a Korean, fell from a scaffolding while working at the drydock at Pearl Harbor yesterday and was killed. The accident occurred shortly after 1 o'clock in the afternoon, the report says.

A report which reached Honolulu last night was that the man was assisting in the hoisting of some steel beams to the top of a tank, and that he was knocked off a scaffolding when the beams were being lowered. This report stated that the man was a Hawaiian, but the sheriff's office has received definite word that he was a Korean. The case is being handled by officials at Ewa, according to the sheriff's office.

BRITISH PRESS COMMENTS ON DIPLOMATIC SENSATION; NEW GERMAN NOTE ABOUT ORDUNA

COMMUNICATION BELIEVED TO BE SUPPLEMENTAL TO ARABIC TURNS OUT QUITE DIFFERENT—FEDERAL PARLIAMENT OF AUSTRALIA PLEDGES FOREVER AGAINST PURCHASE OF GERMAN MADE GOODS—WEST ARENA IS RACKED BY TREMENDOUS BATTLE OF ARTILLERY

[Associated Press Service by Federal Wireless]

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 11.—Wide interest is shown in England over the news from the United States that the recall of Dr. Constantin Dumba, the Austrian ambassador, has been requested.

The press comment on the Dumba incident indicates a belief that the United States has reached the limit of forbearance with the tactics of the diplomatic representatives and agents of the Germanic nations. The British newspapers express the hope that future retribution will be swift and peremptory.

The London Times believes that the president's affirmation that munitions furnish legitimate export trade foreshadows a presidential veto in case Congress should pass a bill placing an embargo on the shipment of munitions from American ports.

Latest German Note Not on Arabic But Deals With Shelling of Orduna

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 11.—The German note delivered yesterday, which was thought to be a communication supplemental to the note upon the sinking of the Arabic, has proved to be a note dealing with the attempt to torpedo the Cunard liner Orduna several weeks ago. The Orduna, which was on its way to the states and which carried 22 Americans, was chased by a German submarine and shelled by its disappearing guns on July 9. According to the story told by those aboard the Orduna, a torpedo fired by the submarine narrowly missed the steamer, which was then pursued by the undersea diver and shelled.

JOHNSON WARNS INCENDIARISTS MUST END FIRES

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless]

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 11—Governor Johnson today gave out a formal statement in which he declared that he will never consider the cases of Ford and Suhr, the two men serving prison terms for complicity in the hop-fields riots of 1913 so long as the present incendiarism threats and injury to property continues. Recent fires in Sonoma county hop-fields are ascribed to the activities of an "arson ring."

DISPUTE OVER PHOTOS HOLDS UP NATURAL HISTORY BOOK ON HAWAII

Prof. W. A. Bryan's Publication Being Changed at Instance of Prof. J. F. C. Rock

There is war on between faculty brothers at the College of Hawaii, and as a result of it William Alanson Bryan, B. Sc., professor of zoology and geology at the college, may not have his "Natural History of Hawaii" off the press and in the hands of the public as soon as was anticipated.

Professor Bryan's adversary in the struggle is Joseph F. C. Rock, professor of botany, collector of the college botanical museum, and author of the book "Indigenous Trees of the Hawaiian Islands." Rock's complaint against Bryan arose from the fact that some nine or ten pictures of trees and Hawaiian scenery have been taken from the "Indigenous Trees of the Hawaiian Islands" and placed in the "Natural History of Hawaii" by the author of the latter.

Prof. Rock knew nothing of the use of his pictures, he avers, until after his return from a summer vacation at the volcano. "I would have known nothing whatever about it, before the book came out," he says, "had I not happened down to the office where it was being printed. Prof. Bryan himself never took the trouble to ask me for the pictures. They are my own, and are copyrighted.

"The day I happened down to the printing office," continues Rock, "I was on different business entirely, and while I stood waiting there I noticed the bindery girls folding up copies of Bryan's book. You may imagine my surprise when, opening up one of the books, I saw it well filled with my own copyrighted pictures."

Bryan's book had been practically completed, all except for the binding. Letters asking for subscriptions to the book and pamphlets explaining it were sent out more than a week ago to people about the city. The book is to be in the hands of the public the last of October.

The title page bears the information that it is illustrated with "117 full page plates from 435 photographs elucidating the ethnology of the native people, the geology and topography of the islands, and figuring more than 1000 of the common or interesting species of plants and animals to be found in the native and introduced fauna and flora of Hawaii."

Gathered During Many Years.

The preface states that "the material used has been patiently gathered from every possible source and carefully selected, sifted and verified in the field and study by the author during many years' residence in the islands as an enthusiastic naturalist, museum curator and college professor."

"As soon as I found out what had been done," says Rock, "I began trying to get in touch with Prof. Bryan, and to learn his idea in the matter. I found out on inquiry that he had also used pictures belonging to W. T. Brigham of the Bishop Museum. When Mr. Brigham found out what had been done he declared he had a notion to sue the printing office where the work was done for printing stolen goods.

"I wrote Bryan that if he insisted upon publishing the book with my pictures I should prosecute him to the fullest extent of the law. The pictures were my own and copyrighted. They were made from plates which I had personally paid for.

"Bryan's first answer to my letter was inclined to be rather brusque, but when he saw that I was in earnest he calmed down and has now agreed to have the book changed, leaving out the pictures he took without permission."

"It is no doubt a hard change to make when the book is this far along," says Professor Rock, "but business is business, and what more could I do, when they were my own copyrighted pictures? Bryan claims that he thought the pictures had been discarded, but evidently he thought wrong."

According to Professor Bryan, the change will not be so great as would seem. It will necessitate only a slight remodeling of the book, as it has been found possible to replace the removed pictures from Mr. Brryan's own collection and from that of Professor Vaughan MacCaughey of the college. Mr. Bryan says that only six pages will have to be reprinted 2000 times, that number of books having already left the press.

Professor Bryan told the Star-Bulletin today that he would take out all of the pictures at Professor Rock's request, together with such printing throughout the book as refers to the pictures.

"Each of the pictures has not been used as a full page cut," says Mr. Bryan; "many of the full-page cuts are made up of three or four or even more pictures arranged together. This means that I will have to change only about five of the full-page cuts.

"At the time when Mr. Rock was absent, perhaps on his tour around the world, I got permission from President Gilmore, then head of the College of Hawaii, to use certain pictures which were at the college. Please make it plain that the photographs in the majority of cases were previously published in the report of the Bureau of Forestry and Agriculture and in the Hawaiian Forester. As Mr. Rock had used them after they had been printed in these reports, I did not suppose that he would raise any objection to my printing them in my book, and especially not after they had been turned over to the college.

"I still insist that there is a question whether they are not the property of the college, as much as they are Rock's, although he got the copyright on them when the book was published.

"At his request I have already taken out the pictures, as my letters show. Mr. Rock has been perfectly conversant with the plan and scope of my Natural History for years. In fact the first chapters on the botany of the group was read to him in my rooms at the Courtland hotel at least five years ago, and the chapters met with his enthusiastic approval at the time, as my preface will show.

First Letter of Series.

Relative to the argument, Professor Bryan has submitted the correspondence which took place between him and Professor Rock. The first information Bryan had on the subject was in a letter dated September 2, which read:

"Prof. William A. Bryan,
"Honolulu, T. H.

"Dear Sir:—I have just learned that you are using in your book called 'A Natural History of Hawaii' certain pictures which were taken by me, and were used by me in the completion of my book, 'The Indigenous Trees of the Hawaiian Islands,' as well as certain other pictures taken by me but not as yet incorporated in book form.

"These photographs were used by you without my knowledge or permission. I beg to advise you that I copyrighted my book, which copyright includes the pictures, etc., therein, and you are further advised that I shall feel obliged to hold you to the strictest accountability for any use made or attempted to be made by you of any photographs taken by me, whether the same have been copyrighted or not.

"May I ask you to notify me on or before Saturday noon, that you are not going to make use of any of the photographs above referred to?

"Very truly yours,
"JOSEPH F. ROCK."

"Mr. Joseph F. Rock,
"Honolulu, Hawaii.

"Dear Mr. Rock:—On my return from Kauai this (Sunday) morning I received your letter of September 2, and was so struck by its unusual tone that I am making an immediate effort to deliver this note with the object of ascertaining more in detail your complaint. At the same time I wish to acquaint you with the authority—entirely verbal it is true—on which I proceeded to use and accredit to you personally, pictures, the negatives of which were secured from what, in your absence from the college, I understood from President Gilmore were miscellaneous discarded plates in the common college collection to be used in any worthy way. I hope by their use no serious inconvenience has been done. I assure you it was not intentional. I can yet make others which will serve my purpose if necessary.

Suggests An Interview.

"I feel that as a colleague, for whom I have long had a professional regard, you will certainly grant me opportunity of presenting this matter more fully in person than would be possible by letter. I wish also to personally assure you that had I not felt that by reason of your intimate associations and your familiarity with the plan of my book, that you had given your tacit, if not explicit, approval as I have already done for specimens and data gathered by me and used by you, I should certainly not have used the pictures.

"Awaiting your early reply in the matter, I am,

"WILLIAM A. BRYAN.

"P. S.—On rereading your letter it seems that in any event the plates can be re-engraved omitting the figures I have accredited to you. I should naturally much prefer not to do this but at the same time I do not wish to use them in view of the circumstances without your specific permission, which I thought had already been secured in effect, and which I trust you will grant in your reply, or if you can establish that the plates are your personal property I might purchase them from you outright."

Failing to receive a reply to the foregoing letter, Professor Bryan wrote again on the following day, September 6:

"Mr. Joseph F. Rock,
"Honolulu, Hawaii.

"Dear Sir: Not having a response to my letter of September 5, which was delivered to you at once by special messenger, and which called for immediate attention by letter or phone and having learned in the meantime of your unwarranted conduct, I take this method of officially notifying you that I have ordered five plates for my book re-engraved, and the pictures that were included on the authority of President Gilmore, but which you claim as yours, omitted, and I shall take pleasure in eliminating favorable mention of your work in the text as far as possible.

"Regretting that you seem unable to appreciate the compliment intended, and that our long-standing friendship must terminate over so trifling a matter, I am,

"Very truly yours,

Before he had recovered from that blow another fell. Mrs. Sprague became involved in a romance and sailed for Jamaica. Senator Roscoe Conkling was driven from the mansion at the point of a shotgun in the hands of Sprague. Divorce soon followed.

Later "Canonchet" was sold over the head of the governor. Frank D. Moulton paid $62,250 for the $1,000,000 estate. When he appeared to take possession he found "Canonchet" in a state of siege. Governor Sprague, armed with his historic shotgun and surrounded by his supporters, stood ready to repulse invasion. The siege lasted for many weeks until the matter was taken into the courts for settlement.

When Moulton died in 1886 his widow returned the mansion to the governor in consideration, it is said, of a mortgage for $62,500. Sprague immediately moved in, bringing his second wife, who was Mrs. Dora Inez (Weed) Calvert of West Virginia. The old place was dear to the aged statesman. Here he had entertained such Americans as President Garfield, Chief Justice Chase, Horace Greeley, Gen. Benjamin Butler and Samuel J. Tilden.

The last blow fell when "Canonchet" was destroyed by fire in 1909. The governor and Mrs. Sprague barely escaped with their lives.

"I was in Washington the other day," said Governor Sprague, in speaking of his eventful life. "The scenes there did not make me wish to be among them. Here in the quiet, after the heat of the day I have found bliss. I bear no grudge against any man, and one of the comforts of my retirement is that I find nothing to condemn mankind for."

OIL PLANT SAID TO BE MENACE TO WHOLE DISTRICT

or to care for this oil in a way that will be satisfactory to this department. I will be glad to confer with you on this matter, but request your immediate action."

No action on the letter was taken by the company, according to Mr. Forbes, and, roused by a later visit to the yards, the superintendent of public works wrote again on August 27 to the Associated Oil Company, through its agent, Arthur A. Davidson.

"During a visit this morning in the vicinity of your plant," he wrote, "I noticed an oil-burning switch engine delivering full drums of gasoline and other highly explosive and inflammable oils to your plant, and I wish to call your attention to the fact that the back fire from the oil-burner of the engine was shooting flames at the time.

"As you cannot fail to realize, there is serious danger of ignition of the crude oil, and with the oil drums loaded on open flat cars directly behind the engine, a slight leak in one of these drums would result in an explosion, the far-reaching effects and damage from which it would be hard to judge."

Says Letter Is Final.

Referring to the alleged negligence of the company in acting upon the suggestions previously made, Superintendent Forbes advises that his letter is final in the matter.

"Provided immediate steps are not taken along the line suggested, I will feel compelled," he says, "to follow the law to the letter and to take steps to enforce action by your company or else toward the revoking of your license to do business in the Territory of Hawaii."

In answer to the letter, the Associated Oil Company wrote Mr. Forbes to the effect that the matter would be taken up with the San Francisco office to see what could be done.

Upon receipt of the last letter, Mr. Forbes then wrote to the company the final decision which he has also handed to the governor.

"I note," he says in this letter, "that you say that you have again taken up the matter with your people in San Francisco. I do not propose to wait any longer in this matter, as I consider the same has been neglected, and I now make a demand upon the Associated Oil Company for immediate action in carrying out my instructions."

"We are contemplating making some changes to our local plant, but the details have not been worked out yet. I do not care to discuss the matter further," said A. E. Davidson, Honolulu agent for the company, when questioned about the dispute this morning.

port, and gave it as their opinion that to ship it to San Francisco, re-route it to Seattle, and send it out from there, would be quicker than to keep it here where a T. K. K. boat, the only line now running to Yokohama, does not arrive for almost a month, as would be the case this month were not the Seiyo Maru pressed into service to help take care of the congestion.

From Seattle there are three lines running to Yokohama, Kobe, Shanghai, and Hongkong, and mail for the Philippines could also easily be transferred from Yokohama to Manila. The three lines running out of Seattle for the Orient are the N. Y. K., O. S. K., and Blue Funnel.

Postoffice officials here stated today that the postoffice department will undoubtedly have its transpacific mail shipping schedules rearranged by October.

TELLS MOTHER HE'S SORRY TO SENTENCE SON

Judge Ashford Sends William Pieper to Prison for Life—Penalty for Wife-Murder

"It is the sentence of the court that you spend the rest of your natural life in Oahu prison."

William Pieper, convicted wife murderer, stood erect in circuit court this morning as Judge Ashford pronounced the foregoing sentence. From a corner of the court room came a low moan. Pieper's aged mother, a little woman in black, sat with her face buried in her handkerchief.

One night several weeks ago Pieper tried to induce his Hawaiian wife, Susie, to leave the house of some friends and return home. It is alleged the woman refused to do this, whereupon Pieper fired two shots at her, one of which took effect. Pieper then shot and wounded himself. The woman died. The man, when he recovered, was indicted by the territorial grand jury on a charge of first degree murder. He pleaded not guilty. Later, Pieper withdrew the plea and entered a plea of guilty of murder in the second degree.

Attorney George Davis spoke for more than half an hour this morning on behalf of the defendant. He stated that Pieper had always been considered by the members of his family as a "mental delinquent." Pieper's father, said Davis, committed suicide about two years ago. He alleged that both Pieper and his wife were drunk on the night of the shooting. Attorney Davis concluded by stating that he thought a sentence of 20 years would be sufficient punishment.

The prosecution denied that either Pieper or his wife were drunk at the time of the murder. City and County Attorney A. M. Brown stated that, according to the police, the shot which killed the woman was fired so close to her that her dress caught fire. The maximum, or life sentence, was recommended.

Judge Ashford stated that, in the opinion of the court, it would be better to send a mental delinquent, convicted of murder, to jail for life than to impose a sentence of 20 years and then run the risk of having the man come out of jail and commit another crime after having had a few drinks.

The life sentence was pronounced. Tears coursed down Pieper's cheeks as he walked back to the bench. As the aged mother walked from the court room she patted her son affectionately on the back.

After being sentenced, and while waiting for the patrol wagon, Pieper conversed for several minutes with his mother and with other relatives who had been in court. Circuit Judge Ashford came down the hall and approached the group. He walked up to the mother.

"So you are the poor old mother of this man," he said. "Well, I'm very, very sorry."

1,000 of infantrymen and cavalrymen in action, an increase of nearly 4 to 1 brought about by the lessons of the present war.

3. Six field guns and howitzers for every 1,000 infantrymen and cavalrymen, an increase of nearly 100 per cent.

4. Increases of nearly 500 per cent, in the amount of ammunition per gun to be stored ready for use.

Second Military Academy.

To increase the commissioned personnel of the regular army, Congress will be urged to double the output of trained officers from West Point and possibly to establish a second military academy near the Pacific coast.

Plans for the improvement of the coast defenses include:

1. Increasing the elevation of 12-inch coast defense guns by five degrees above the horizontal, giving them a range with a slightly lighter projectile of about 20,000 yards, and placing them on equal footing, if not a little better, with the largest naval guns now carried.

2. Emplacement at New York harbor and elsewhere of not more than three 16-inch coast defense guns to make impossible the firing by long range naval guns over our fortifications and into large cities. The United States already has one 16-inch gun for emplacement at Panama.

3. Construction of a fort at the mouth of Chesapeake bay to cover the passage between Cape Henry and Cape Charles, and of fortifications, for which land already has been purchased on Cape Henry.

4. Increase of 10,0000 officers and men for the coast defense branch of the army, to make up for existing shortages.

5. Immediate increase in coast defense ammunition, of which there is on hand and appropriated for in the United States only 73 per cent of the most conservative estimates of what would immediately be required in time of war.

boats, when there was nothing in sight to fear—just the bare, blank swell of the ocean and the destroyer plunging away through the sea. But that was half the terror—that great unknown possibility.

"I'll wager that I never pass through such a 10 minutes in my life again. Every moment we were braced against a slight shock on the side of the boat, and expecting a rending explosion which would rend at least some of us to eternity. I found myself curiously enough looking about in wonder as to who would go up, and I remember picking out a very fat and very frightened brewer, and chuckling to myself as I thought of him sprawling in the air.

Splotch of Oil Appeared.

"By this time the destroyer had covered quite a distance when she suddenly stopped and commenced to swerve. Immediately behind her we could easily see with our glasses where a great splotch of oil had appeared upon the surface of the sea.

"In some way the destroyer must have wounded the submarine. Perhaps she had been shot down with a sinking mine of some sort, or a torpedo, or possibly the submarine had let out a quantity of oil in an endeavor to sink rapidly.

"At any rate the destroyer swerved about and twice plunged through the oil covered area, and then came steaming back to us and reported that the submarine was sunk. What a cheer we gave them! I'll wager that it's still ringing in the ears of that crew.

"That's not the only excitement the war has given me, though. When the war broke out I was in Dutch India. I went into a store and tried to make a sale of goods for my house to the manager. He was a typical northern German.

"'You Englishman,' he thundered at me. 'How dare you enter this store!'

"Of course I wanted to throw my shoe at him and forget to take out my foot, but business is business, as you have to remember when you are in the traveling salesman line, and so I waited until he had puffed a couple of times and then I said: 'My name is Herman Hertz—does that sound English?' And then I proved to him that I was a German Jew. At that, I have some of the blood in me.

"But I regretted this incident with the German because if it made me his friend (I landed him for a big sale), it made me the object of suspicion to everyone else so long as I was in India. For weeks and weeks wherever I went a tall silent footed Hindu tracked me. Strange fellow—I've often wanted to know how he did it. If I went into a hotel, there he was leaning against a pillar. When I got out of a railroad carriage there he stood unconcernedly at the station. He never seemed to see me, and he never pestered me when I was on the move, but I wouldn't be a bit surprised if he were waiting for me on the wharf at Yokohama."

GUARD IS GIVEN PERMISSION TO USE PUNCHBOWL

Maj.-gen. Carter Says Part of Military Reservation There is Available for Rifle Range

Permission was today granted the National Guard of Hawaii, by Maj.-gen. W. H. Carter, commanding the Hawaiian Department, U. S. A., to use a part of the army reservation on Punchbowl hill as a rifle range.

"I have granted the national guard the right to use a part of our land," said Gen. Carter, "as a rifle range and after that is established it may bring other developments, possibly along the line of allowing former members of the national guard, the 'alumni,' one might call them, a chance to brush up on their rifle practise, and to hold reunions and get acquainted."

Although they would make no definite announcement, it is well understood that a businessmen's military training camp, working in conjunction with the national guard, may be established on the hill, through the efforts of M. F. Prosser, Albert F. Judd and E. A. Mott-Smith, well-known and popular Honolulu attorneys who are back of the movement.

"We are waiting to find out what the war department can do for us in the way of furnishing instruction for such a camp," said Attorney Judd this morning, when questioned as to the developments of the plan. "Army officers are looking that up for us, and when we know, we will make a definite announcement of our mature plans along the line of a businessmen's military training camp."

Mr. Judd said that nothing further will probably be done until after the close of the annual army maneuvers this fall. He said the camp would not be a duplicate of the Plattsburg one which has gained so much publicity in the last few months, but he would not go into details, holding that the project is not far enough along yet to warrant making a detailed announcement public.

NATIONAL GUARD NOTES

At a gathering last night in the armory, 20 men signed up for membership in the company of Hawaiians, residents of Honolulu, who wish to form a national guard company. Lieut. George W. Baker, who is organizing the prospective company, was present and addressed the meeting, which was followed by 20 men signing up. It is expected that the company will be mustered in before the close of this month, as the men necessary to bring the company to the requisite strength, 65, have signified their willingness to join.

A hearing on a motion to strike appellee's brief from the files, in the matter of the estate of James O. Lutted, late of Honolulu, will be had in the supreme court Monday morning.

FIELD IS FACING ANOTHER CHARGE OF BOOZE SALES

James F. Field is "in Dutch" again. This time the local federal authorities are on his trail.

James, who is colored, was arrested by the police at Wahiawa not long ago on a charge of selling liquor without a license. To quote License Inspector Fennel, he was running a "blind pig." This is only one chapter of the tale, however.

About a year ago Field was taken into circuit court on a similar charge. He was given a suspended sentence of 13 months. When City and County Attorney A. M. Brown learned of Field's latest arrest by the police he filed a petition and certain affidavits in circuit court, asking that the suspended sentence of a year ago be pronounced.

Circuit Judge Ashford sent Field over the reef for six months.

In the meantime the local federal officials had been busy and yesterday the federal grand jury indicted Mr. Field. The charge against him was selling liquor without a license on a government—or military—reservation.

Field will be arraigned in federal court at 10 o'clock next Wednesday morning.

Light Sidelights on Police Court Scenes

The case of Tuck Chew, charged with larceny of a sack of sugar from Amoy, was sent to circuit court.

S. Joe, a Korean, received a fine of $25 in police court this morning. He pleaded guilty to having chefa tickets in his possession.

Carmella Figeroa and Margada Spier received suspended sentences this morning. Both women were charged with using indecent language.

A. Hanson was given a suspended sentence in police court this morning. Hanson was charged with hitting the booze too hard. The judge let Hanson go on promise that he would leave the city.

C. Antonio, a Filipino living at King and Liliha streets, was arrested last evening by Officer J. N. Moore on a charge of flourishing a knife. His wife, Meleana, made the charge that they were quarreling and her husband was on the point of striking her with a knife when an officer arrived. The case will come up in police court on Monday.

Charles Bell, a soldier, was charged with the larceny of a watch last evening. About 9 o'clock Bell entered a Japanese store and was said to have asked to see some watches. According to the proprietor the soldier took the watch and ran out of the store, but was apprehended shortly afterward. Bell said that the watch had been in his family for a number of years.

Eddie Mitchell was brought to the police station last evening suffering from a deep wound in the back of his head. He was picked up at Iwilei road and King street by a passerby who took him to the station where he was attended by Dr. R. G. Ayer. Mitchell was in conversation with a Hawaiian and a Chinese boy, and when they started a wrangle Mitchell was hit on the head with a meat can thrown by Ah Lee, the Chinese boy.

STONE HOPES FOR DEFINITE OFFER FROM COMMITTEE

Says if Great Northern Comes Here H. P. Wood Should Get Much Credit

On their return Tuesday from visiting the Kilauea crater, Traffic Manager C. E. Stone and Marine Superintendent C. W. Wiley of the Great Northern Pacific Steamship Company will probably be made a definite offer by the Chamber of Commerce committee of 15 concerning what the committee can promise them in the way of a freight guarantee needed before the liner Great Northern can be put on the San Francisco-Honolulu run.

"We hope that by Tuesday, when we return from seeing the volcano, the committee will have something definite to offer us," said Mr. Stone this morning at the Alexander Young hotel.

"I wish the Star-Bulletin would give a great deal of credit to H. P. Wood, the Promotion Committee's representative in San Francisco," added Mr. Stone. "It was through his indefatigible efforts that he induced us to come here and look the field over, and if we are able to put the Great Northern on, he should be awarded a good bit of the praise."

A freight guarantee ranging from 1000 to 1500 tons twice a month is asked by the Great Northern's representatives before the big liner can be secured for this run.

Secretary Raymond C. Brown of the Chamber of Commerce said this morning that a meeting of the committee of 15 appointed to investigate the passenger steamer situation, and to secure more steamers to take the place of the Pacific Mail, has been suggested and if it is held it will be on Tuesday, when Mr. Stone and Mr. Wiley return here.

Yesterday Mr. Wiley investigated coaling and docking facilities in this port, and learned there will be no difficulty in this regard if the freight guarantee is obtained.

In the meantime Mr. Stone has been shown a round of pleasure. This afternoon he leaves with a party including A. P. Taylor of the Promotion Committee for Hilo. Arriving tomorrow morning the party will see the Hamakua section of the Hilo railroad according to special arrangements with the company. Sunday night they will make the trip to Kilauea and stay at the volcano until Monday morning, afterwards boarding the boat for Honolulu. They will make both trips on the Mauna Kea.

QUINN SPEEDING CASE WILL COME UP NEXT MONDAY

There was considerable excitement among police court officials this morning and there was more excitement in the police station, because the Quinn case had failed to come up before Police Judge Monsarrat.

Senator Edward W. Quinn was charged with exceeding the speed limit and the summons was made, but the case failed to appear on the calendar and Senator Quinn did not appear in court. Something was wrong, and everyone was trying to find out who was the "goat."

An article appeared in a morning paper stating that Sheriff Rose had instructed Clerk Nobriga to keep the case off of the calendar, quoting Nobriga on the subject. Nobriga said this morning: "I did not tell anyone that Sheriff Rose had instructed me to keep the Quinn case off the calendar. In fact I did not mention Sheriff Rose's name in connection with the matter."

Officer John Hills made the first complaint against Quinn on Friday evening, September 3. Hills stated that Quinn was exceeding the speed limit at King and Alakea streets. A summons was served on the speeder Saturday morning and the case was due for trial last Monday. Officer Hills appeared in court every morning expecting to be called to testify in the case, but the case never came up. This morning Charles Chillingworth, deputy city attorney, called the case for next Monday morning, stating that he had been in communication with Senator Quinn and found that the latter was busy and could not conveniently come until Monday. Chillingworth also stated that Nobriga and Sheriff Rose were in no way to blame for the error of omission.

Sheriff Rose said this morning: "I most assuredly did not tell anyone to keep the Quinn case off the calendar. Officer Hills came to me and said the case had been disposed of, and later on wanted to get a new summons for Quinn on the charge of speeding. I wish to deny any statements made that I was instrumental in having the case disposed of. The case will come up in court on Monday morning."

Richard Millard, an enlisted man, was sentenced by Federal Judge Clemons today to pay a fine of $25 and costs for having narcotics in his possession. Millard was indicted by the federal grand jury and has been given until Monday to pay the fine and costs. It is alleged that a considerable quantity of cocaine was passed to Millard by a woman who drove past Fort Shafter in an automobile. At the time of the alleged transaction, Millard was working near the road with a squad of military prisoners.

Carl Willing, who was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on a charge of having committed a statutory offense, pleaded not guilty when arraigned today before Federal Judge Clemons. Willing has been released on bond in the sum of $100, his bondsmen being Harry Holt and Lionel Hart. The case will be tried during the October term of court.

"California maintains an embargo upon the alligator pear in order to encourage a similar industry just started there," is the report of the government station on the question of peril to the mainland in the importation of Hawaii avocados. The Promotion Committee will take immediate steps to induce California to lift the embargo.

It took a jury in Circuit Judge Ashford's court just one minute to bring in a verdict of guilty in the case of Ponciano Favalo, a Filipino, who was charged with a statutory offense, his victim having been a 13-year-old Hawaiian girl. It took Judge Ashford less than a minute to sentence Favalo to serve four years at hard labor in Oahu prison. Sentence was pronounced this morning.

FILIPINOS WILL FORM COMPANY OF NATIONAL GUARD

Sgt. George Desha, the only Hilo man to qualify as a member of the National Guard rifle team, arrived this morning and called on Col. Samuel I. Johnson, the adjutant-general, and Capt. Laurence W. Redington, assistant adjutant-general.

"Great enthusiasm over the National Guard exists on Hawaii," said Sgt. Desha. "The Filipinos who have organized a company at Waiakea plantation, are waiting to be mustered in, and there is talk of forming another company near there soon." The Filipino company is to be mustered in by Col. Johnson and Lieut. W. C. Whitener when they make a trip to the Big Island about September 20.

The sergeant will practise with the team tomorrow and hopes to do his part in helping it "bring home the bacon" from Jacksonville.

Nothing is being left undone at Jacksonville by Capt. William C. Harlee of the United States Marine Corps to insure comfortable camp equipment and every convenience for the National Guard of Hawaii's rifle team, to take part in the national rifle competition there in October.

A personal letter was received today at National Guard headquarters from Capt. Harlee, who is assistant executive officer of the national competition. The letter states that while on a recent visit to the state rifle range at Jacksonville he reserved adjacent camp sites for the Marine Corps and Hawaii teams. The captain also states he is arranging for running a mess gear for Hawaii, consisting of stoves, cooking and eating utensils, etc.

This will be of great assistance to the Hawaiian team. Capt. Harlee is an old friend of the National Guard of Hawaii. The marines and the Hawaii team have formerly affiliated at the national matches and their doing so again this year will make the shoot more pleasant.

SATURDAY.....SEPTEMBER 11, 1915.

If a man tries, he may get results in reforming himself; but reforming the world is a big job and requires not only a lifetime but an age.—E. W. Howe.

AMERICA'S POSITION PLAIN.

The grave offense officially attributed to the Austrian ambassador, Dr. Dumba, and likely to involve other diplomats representing the Germanic Allies in the United States, may bring a crisis comparable to that created by the sinking of the Lusitania.

Certainly no foreign diplomat who attempts to instigate disorders in the United States can be tolerated. It matters not that the trade he tries to hamper is a trade in munitions. There is not the slightest question in the minds of fair men who know international law that the United States, in refusing to declare an embargo on the shipment of munitions, holds an unimpeachable position.

Those who attack this position cannot quote authority for their attacks. They have had to fall back on two arguments—first that it is unwise for the United States to stir up hostile sentiment in Germany by allowing the exportation of arms when Germany is unable to get them; secondly, that though perhaps international law formerly recognized the sale and shipment of war supplies as right, the circumstances of this war have changed international law.

Unquestionably the strong, active, deeply-wrought supporters of the Teutonic nations, in their declarations that the munitions trade is wrong, have aided and abetted these diplomats who transgress propriety and encourage plots against American industry.

Yet we doubt if the great body of American citizens of Germanic extraction will endorse or justify the diplomats if it is conclusively shown that these diplomats or their agents have taken part in the alleged plots. Though their sympathies are with the Central Empires, such citizens cannot excuse conspiracy against the adopted land whose peace and honor they have sworn to uphold.

When the first exposures of the so-called activities of German agents were made in the New York World, the Germans under fire made prompt reply. They declared that innocent acts had been misconstrued. The American government is not proceeding on hearsay evidence and if the acts were innocent, the agents will not suffer. There is yet a vast mass of rumor to be separated from fact and it is well to wait for this winnowing of the wheat and the chaff, the true and the false. Press despatches, however, indicate that Dr. Dumba has admitted at least part of the serious charges against him, so that his recall cannot be said to be demanded on newspaper exposes.

This whole subject of international trade in munitions was treated at length by Secretary of State Lansing in his note to the Austrian government on August 12. In that note he not only pointed out the correctness of the American position, but proved conclusively that in the past Germany and Austria have indulged profitably in big war contracts. He quoted facts and figures showing how these Teutonic nations, which now protest against Uncle Sam's munition trade, held an opposite position not many years ago.

His note reminds Austria that during the Boer war both Austria and Germany sold munitions in huge quantities to Great Britain when the republics of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State were cut off from supplies by the British blockade. With a particularity which must be biting to Teuton supporters, he quotes figures as to the explosives and shot. He also reminds Austria that the Teuton nations did a thriving business in munitions during the Balkan wars and the Germans dealt with Russia in the Crimean war and with Turkey in the Turkish-Italian war.

A large part of Mr. Lansing's note dealt with a point which the Star-Bulletin commented upon several months ago—that the position taken by the United States directly helps nations to keep down their armies and stores of war supplies. On this point he says:

"The general adoption by the nations of the world of the theory that neutral Powers ought to prohibit the sale of arms and ammunition to belligerents would compel every nation to have in readiness at all times sufficient munitions of war to meet any emergency which might arise, and to erect and maintain establishments for the manufacture of arms and ammunition sufficient to supply the needs of its military and naval forces throughout the progress of a war. Manifestly, the application of this theory would result in every nation becoming an armed camp, ready to resist aggression and tempted to employ force in asserting its rights rather than appeal to reason and justice for the settlement of international disputes."

He goes on to show that unless international trade in arms is maintained as legal, every nation must store up colossal supplies, because in war-time it could not buy abroad, and that weaker nations would inevitably be at the instant mercy of stronger nations unless they had devoted their whole national life to turning out armament instead of into commodity-producing industry.

Secretary Lansing's note puts clearly and with undeniable authority the position of the United States—a position which is officially violated when foreign diplomats attempt to hamper its munitions industry. In the face of this note Austria, the offense attributed to Dr. Dumba within less than a month of the sending of the note is particularly an offense which only his prompt recall can palliate.

HOW CITIZENS SHOULD BE TRAINED.

After a reasonable interval of time, no young man should be admitted to the privilege of voting until his fitness had been passed upon by a competent committee. He should have some mental and ethical training in the duties and obligations of citizenship, and should accept not merely the established principle of liability to military duty, but also the obligation to be prepared to serve efficiently. The kind of training we have in mind would be valuable from every standpoint. It would not merely fit a boy to be a soldier or a junior officer in a company or regiment of citizens called to arms, but it would fit him to exercise the power and discretion of a policeman or to show the courage and skill of a fireman. It would make him understand the duties of a sanitary inspector. It would not only teach him how trenches are made in time of war, but it would teach him how good roads are constructed and maintained in time of peace. It would allow him to specialize and to learn many necessary modern things regarding inventions and the practical use of machinery. There are a great many boys who cannot learn mathematics, physics and chemistry by way of theory or the use of textbooks. But beginning with the practical machine as a concrete thing in its construction and its use, they can be led to a very earnest study of mathematics, physics, and other branches of science.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for September.

When lawyers disagree, where does the poor layman get off? The attorney-general's office and the city attorney's office contradict each other on the matter of paying the expenses of the charter convention. The legal minds in the city attorney's office declares the city can't legally foot the bill. The attorney-general's office says the city can if it wants to, or words to that effect. Meanwhile the charter convention has no visible means of support—not even for a $10 a day clerk with political trimmings.

Maj.-Gen. Goethals is willing to consider becoming city manager of Portland if the charter is altered so that the city is really managed by the manager. As a man who has directed a gigantic undertaking, he knows the desirability of "one-man rule."

The Chautauqua circuit will be overlooking something if it fails to get Col. Roosevelt, Bryan, Billy Sunday, Jess Willard, Congressman Gardner and Dr. Dumba on the stage at one time.

The U. S. commission on industrial relations has discovered that low wages form one reason for social discontent. This is indeed a novel and thrilling thought.

The district attorney's office in spite of eminently strategic denials and masterly inscrutability is now entirely surrounded by rumors.

Anyone can understand how grieved the Toyo Kisen Kaisha must be at the blow to American shipping.

Bulgaria continues to have the bulge on the situation.

Y. M. C. A. Directors Decide on Method of Raising Necessary Fund of $125 Per Month

Four important facts resulted from the directors' meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Thursday afternoon, with F. C. Atherton, president; R. A. Cooke, Paul Super, general manager; Harold G. Dillingham, Robert Anderson, R. B. Anderson, C. H. Atherton, W. O. Love, Ed Towse, C. B. Ripley and Judge C. F. Clemons present.

The general secretary's report read by Paul Super showed the progress of the past year and pointed out subjects for profitable discussion at the meeting. An interesting feature of his report was the announcement of a membership of 1537. He stated that $1400 was needed to complete payments for the swimming pool, but that the pool would be open for the big meet on the night of Sept. 25. Materials are now on hand for the completion of the bowling alleys, and the work is being rapidly pushed to a conclusion.

Mr. Super announced that all wishing to contest in the swimming meet should fill out application blanks at the Y. M. C. A. as soon as possible.

Ed Towse reported that he had been on an extended trip through the western states and had visited many of the large Y. M. C. A. buildings there. Six establishments alone had a membership of 30,000 and the membership is steadily growing. The buildings are fast becoming too small to meet the demands which are being made upon them, and the enthusiasm of the members grows with the crowded conditions.

Several of the staff, who had been at the Y. M. C. A. training school at Lake Geneva, Wis., told of the work in the courses there and the value which they had received from the instruction at the institution.

Banquet For Directors.

It was decided to give a banquet for the directors and the staff of the Y. M. C. A. on the night of September 23, and the meeting passed on to a discussion of the budget for this fall.

Mr. Super announced that $125 a month would be needed to keep up the pool and the discussion centered around the advisability of raising the membership fee or of charging a small sum for each swim, probably 10 cents or less, and the issuing of a commutation ticket which would entitle the owner to a certain number of swims for $1.

The latter plan was favored and a committee was appointed to decide upon the fee to be paid for admission to the pool. The committee is: G. C. Potter, chairman; H. G. Dillingham, G. H. Tuttle, Robert Anderson, Dr. A. F. Jackson, A. H. Tarleton.

Mr. Super is now preparing a booklet with the purpose of setting forth the advantages of the Y. M. C. A. as a club. The book is illustrated with drawings by Francis G. Cooper, the famous lower case artist, whose work was obtained through the aid of Hal Marchbanks of New York. Cooper has made wierd little colonial figures to run with each department description. The title of the booklet is "Speaking of Clubs—Real Clubs."

The motto of the educational department this fall will be "31 Ways to Success," this being the number of courses which are given by the teachers of the institution. The motto will be placed on all advertising matter.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

—CAL. STONE: This is not my first trip to Honolulu. The city is even more beautiful and more active than when I was here the last time. I am going to see the volcano and visit other points on the Big Island.

—CIRCUIT CLERK DOMINIS: It certainly looks like there is going to be a slump in divorces this month. Last month divorces were filed at the rate of about one a day. They are not coming in quite so fast at the present time.

—ROBERT W. SHINGLE: I see that the secretary of the Promotion Committee says that there is room for improvement on the county road between here and Waialua. He will have a hard time finding any better road anywhere, at that.

SPENDING MUCH CASH ON PUBLIC WORKS NOW

Expenditures to the amount of $1,150,000 are to be made soon by the territory, provided plans for improvements now on hand are carried through, according to figures compiled by the department of public works.

The work has already begun, or will be carried on in the islands with a proportion for each of $680,000 for Oahu, $295,000 for Hawaii, $120,000 for Maui and $55,000 for Kauai. Oahu improvements will include the remodeling of the capitol, the erection of the new territorial penitentiary, the territorial marketing division, together with work on roads and on other buildings.

Wharfs on Oahu, Hawaii and Kauai have called for a big amount of money, as have also the proposed improvements to water works on the island of Maui. Superintendent Forbes says the department has all the work on hand that it can attend to for some time.

AFFONSO CONGRATULATED; BEEN BENEDICT 18 YEARS

Godfrey F. Affonso, who "covers" the local courts and the capitol for the Advertiser, was receiving congratulations all along his "run" today. The reason for all the hilarity was that the well-known newspaper man was married just 18 years ago today.

"What have you named it?" exclaimed one enthusiast, as he grasped the scribe's hand.

Affonso has been with the Advertiser for the last five years.

Five vacancies on the board of governors of the Commercial Club, vacancies made by the retirement of C. G. Bockus, F. O. Boyer, W. T. Schmidt, C. G. Heiser and William Simpson, were filled at the meeting of the board last night when they elected J. K. Clarke, C. R. Frazier, S. M. Lowrey, H. W. Marvin and S. S. Paxson. The membership of the club is now 356.

Personal Mention

MATT McCANN has returned to Honolulu after an absence of eight years in California. He expects to resume engineering work here.

GEORGE RAYMOND, territorial school inspector, left for Maui today on a business trip. He will return to Honolulu at the end of next week.

WILLIAM McCLUSKEY, the newly appointed supervising principal for the public schools of Maui, left for the Valley Island today.

MRS. JOHN GUILD and her daughter Marjorie, who have been spending several weeks in San Francisco, will arrive by the Matsonia on Tuesday morning.

FRANK SULLIVAN, local superintendent of mails, is ill at his home at the Johnson house, Punchbowl street. It is expected that he will be back at work in a few days.

HIGH SHERIFF JARRETT, who has been investigating alleged trouble in prison circles on Hawaii, has gone to Maui. He will return to Honolulu tomorrow morning.

BRITISH CONSUL E. L. S. GORDON will arrive home again from an extended tour October 5, on the Tenyo Maru. He left here for England, by way of Japan, last February, and is returning from the same direction.

MRS. EUGENE M. CAMPBELL and her daughter, Louise, will be homecoming passengers on the steamer Matsonia next Tuesday. They have been spending a number of months visiting with friends on the coast and have seen the exposition thoroughly.

MRS. M. A. GONSALVES will arrive in Honolulu on the Matsonia next Tuesday from San Francisco, where she has been visiting the exposition. She will be accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. C. A. Beall, and the latter's children.

WILLIAM A. McKAY, district magistrate at Wailuku, Maui, is a visitor in Honolulu. He was summoned here to answer charges brought against him in the supreme court by Eugene Murphy, an attorney at Wailuku. Murphy asks that McKay be removed.

REV. MOKUSEN HIOKI, one of the greatest of the Buddhist priests of Japan, who represented Buddhism at the great international conference on religions held at San Francisco in August, will remain in Hawaii for a fortnight at the request of S. Asano, president of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha. Rev. Hioki was a passenger on the Shinyo Maru which arrived yesterday. He will speak at the Asahi theater on Maunakea street tomorrow evening.

FILIPINOS FLOCKING TO BECOME CITIZENS

Since August 5c, local natives of the Philippines numbering 16 have filed in the federal court their declarations of intention to become American citizens. Four new applications were filed today as follows: Barnandine Duna, laborer, born in Santa Maria, Ilocusur, P. I.; Anastacio Gonsales, laborer, born in Ilocos, P. I.; Louis Bell, laborer, born in Libuan, P. I.; and Sebro Nuen, laborer, born in Manila, P. I. It was expected that four more declarations by Filipinos would be filed this afternoon. It is reported that the Filipinos are being given road work by the county, and are therefore unusually anxious to become citizens of America.

Fine Leather Belts

No man should wear a belt that has holes punched in it to engage a metal tongue. A belt of this kind soon looks bad, and the tongue is never comfortable.

The new belts we sell have no tongue and no holes. A patented clasp holds the belt where you want it.

They come in White, Tan, Pearl Gray and Black.

There are separate buckles of Gold or Silver, which can be engraved.

AUSTIN FLAYS POLICIES OF DEMOCRATS AND DECLARES HAWAII CANNOT POSSIBLY EXIST UNDER PROPOSED FREE SUGAR LAW

Tennessee Congressman Who Visited Territory With Party Last May Writes Long Article on Conditions in Islands as He Found Them—Competition With Cuban Planters Impossible, He Declares

"What the United States Owes the Hawaiian Islands" is the title of the second of a series of newspaper articles by Congressman R. W. Austin of Tennessee, now being widely circulated by mainland newspapers. Mr. Austin, who with his wife and daughter came to Hawaii last May with the congressional party and later went on to the Philippines, is writing a series of articles called 'An American Congressman in the Orient."

The main contention made by the fiery Tennessee Democrat, who recently stirred up the Filipinos by declaring that the United States would never give up the Philippine Islands, is that the mainland owes Hawaii a protective tariff on sugar, without which, he declares, prosperity is an impossibility in this territory.

Mr. Austin's article on Hawaii follows:

First Hand Information.

Last week I gave out for publication to the American press my observations on the Philippine Islands, and in this letter will take up the Hawaiian Islands, having spent some time there gathering first-hand information from the citizens, officials, businessmen and commercial organizations. I traveled over the islands inspecting sugar and pineapple factories and plantations, schools, colleges, military camps and fortifications.

This new American territory is composed of a group of eight inhabited islands, covering 6,449 square miles, or 4,109,000 acres, exceeding by 166 square miles the states of Connecticut and Rhode Island and the District of Columbia. The 1910 census gave the two states and the District of Columbia a combined population of 1,988,415, and the Hawaiian Islands, 191,909.

The islands were annexed by the United States as a territory on July 7, 1898, during President McKinley's first term, and after his democratic predecessor, Mr. Cleveland, had refused to accept them and, in fact, exhausted his influence to restore the monarchy. Of the many wise and beneficial pieces of legislation enacted during the administration of the martyred president there were two which stand at the head of the list; the taking over of the Hawaiian Islands, and the substitution of the Dingley protective tariff measure for the Cleveland-Wilson destructive law which had paralyzed and destroyed business prosperity in the United States in the same manner the Wilson-Underwood tariff law has been doing since its enactment.

The inhabitants of the islands cannot be compared with the natives of the Philippine Islands, as the former are more highly civilized, more progressive and thoroughly in sympathy with America. In agricultural, educational and business development the Hawaiian Islands are abreast of any section in the United States and far in the lead of many, and this is especially true of the enterprising American daily papers published in Honolulu. In 1820 the capitol city, Honolulu, had a population of only 3000. In 1866 it had increased to 12,000, with adobe and grass houses. Today it has 60,000, with every modern municipal improvement — gas, electric lights, street railroads, sewers, water works, telephones, telegraphs, cable and wireless systems, efficient police and fire department, parks, modern wholesale and retail stores and beautiful homes —an honest, progressive city government headed by a popular and able mayor, a native Hawaiian, Hon. John C. Lane.

Praises Buildings.

Its public buildings, churches, educational institutions, Y. M. C. A., civil and social organizations, business corporations, public utilities, banks, clubs, hotels, public and private buildings compare favorably with those of any city of double its size in the United States or any other country. One of the leading hotels, the Alexander Young, was recently completed at a cost of $2,000,000, all the material coming from the states, Knoxville, Tennessee, furnishing marble to the value of $150,000. The citizens cannot be excelled in public spirit, in city and territorial team work and in true genuine hospitality.

The representative of the islands in the American Congress is a native of royal descent, member of the last reigning family—the Honorable J. K. Kalanianaole, a modest, earnest, faithful representative of the people, enjoying the good-will and friendship of his colleagues in Congress. The new territorial officials, Governor L. E. Pinkham and Hon. W. W. Thayer, are able, active and industrious officials and, in their work of promoting the interest of the islands, have the enthusiastic cooperation of two real live business organizations, the Ad Club and the Chamber of Commerce of Honolulu.

Delegate Kalanianaole and Mayor Lane are creditable representatives of the native Hawaiians, who, along with all the rest of their race, led by the good Queen Liliuokalani, now 77 years of age, long ago became reconciled to being a part of the great American republic, are contented, happy and rejoice at and appreciate the countless blessings the islands have received since becoming a part of the United States. Unlike the noisy politicians of Manila, they are not clamoring for a restoration of the monarchy, or so-called "independence." They are wise enough to know when they have a good thing and how to appreciate it.

However, it goes without saying that along with the rest of their fellow Americans—Democrats and Republicans—they are at a loss to understand the consistency of the Wilson administration in removing Americans from office in the Philippines and filling the vacancies with Filipinos, while in the Hawaiian Islands the policy is to fill vacancies by going to far-off South Carolina for a Honolulu postmaster, to Mississippi for a collector of the port and to Tennessee for a United States district attorney.

The natives in the Philippines must rule and have the offices, but the natives and other Americans in the Hawaiian Islands must be ignored and officials imported from the states.

Debt Many Times Repaid.

Upon the annexation, the United States government assumed and has since paid the then existing indebtedness incurred by the Republic of Hawaii which succeeded the monarchy, the amount being $3,241,400.

During the past fourteen years the people of the islands have paid into the treasury of the United States the following:

Customs receipts	$19,610,588
Internal Revenue taxes	1,709,738
Total	$21,320,326

The total of postal receipts would add several millions of additional dollars, and thus prove that Uncle Sam made no mistake in unfurling and keeping his flag over the islands. The amount of internal revenue tax collected the first year under the jurisdiction of the United States was $7,450, while last year (1914) it was $246,754, or an increase of $239,304. During this same period, the American business men have disposed of $240,857,122 of goods made in our mills, workshops, etc., to the people of the islands, out of a total importation of $301,369,196. The year prior to annexation, the total imports and exports footed up to $23,704,000, and in 1914 they had risen to $77,144,339.

Last year the amount purchased in the United States was $29,267,699, and $6,282,558 from our foreign competitors. Of the last-named amount, $2,496,000 covers purchases made in Japan, and the value of goods Japan bought last year in the Hawaiian Islands was only $45,369, leaving a trade balance against the islands in favor of Japan of $2,450,788. Japan's sales in the islands in 1900 were $647,395, while 1914 shows an increase of $1,803,390 over her imports fifteen years ago. Practically all of Japan's exports to the islands are made up of cotton goods. Though the United States produces raw cotton and is supposed to have a tariff in the interest of its cotton manufacturers, here is Japan, an importer of raw cotton, with her cheap labor—ten cents to twenty-two cents per day working ten to eleven hours per day—entering an American home market and underselling our cotton manufacturers just as she has succeeded under the present low tariff in disposing of goods in the Philippine Islands amounting in 1914 to $3,633,642, made up almost entirely of cotton goods. With northern and southern cotton mills in America closed down or running on reduced time, and thousands of their employees idle and without work during the past two years under the new tariff law, we see Japan entering two of our insular possessions and selling goods in twenty-four months to the value of more than $12,500,000, and practically all cotton goods, and covering the same period, cotton goods sold in the United States by our foreign competitors reached $105,211,210.

Why Look Elsewhere?

There are members of Congress who voted for the present low duties on imported cotton goods along with many writers in newspapers and magazines, now advising and urging our cotton manufacturers to seek a market in South America and elsewhere. Well, if we could not meet foreign competition at home on our own shores in the sale of cotton goods to the value of $105,211,210 in 1913 and 1914, how can we have any better success thousands of miles away with extra brokerage, transportation and other charges, not to mention longer time in payment of the goods? Why not pass tariff laws under which the amount, $70,000,000, we now send annually abroad for foreign made cotton goods can be spent in America—starting up some of our closed mills and giving employment to thousands of idle men and women?

While on this subject of the tariff and its importance to the cotton industry and writing about the Hawaiian Islands, which have proven so far the most valuable asset the United States have secured in about half a century, it will not be amiss to state that a tariff duty on sugar is absolutely essential to the prosperity and industrial life of the people of these islands. The following embraces the list of leading agricultural products —sugar, pineapples, coffee and rice—sugar and pineapples constituting 91.79 per cent of the crop output, 79.81 per cent sugar and 11.98 per cent canned pineapples. It requires from eighteen to thirty-six months to raise a crop of sugar, and the cost of irrigation and fertilization is essential and exceedingly costly, the last item in 1914 amounting to $3,500,000. As to the cost of sugar and pineapple farm or plantation unskilled labor, it is not only high, but greater than is paid for farm labor in a majority of the states of the American union. The minimum wage is $20.00 per month, average wage $26.00 per month. In addition they are furnished a house, water, fuel and medical attendance, estimated to cost employers $6.00 per laborer. Then there is a bonus paid the laborers, which, for two years and ten months ending October 31, 1914, was 19 per cent of their earning. The bonus earned from November 1, 1914 to April 30, 1915, was 17 per cent. In 1910, Japanese farm workers inaugurated a strike for higher wages.

Farm Laborers Fare Well.

According to a recent report issued by the Japanese department of finance for 1914, farm laborers are paid $6.90 a month, about four times less than they receive for a month's work in the Hawaiian Islands. Under a decree of President Wilson, the Democrats in Congress—his recording machine—ordered sugar on the free list after May 1, 1916—after that date absolutely no legislative protection is to be given that extensive industry in the United States or in Porto Rico, the Hawaiian or the Philippine Islands, where the industry means the very existence of agricultural life, for no other profitable crop can be substituted. There are at present receiving the wages mentioned on sugar plantations in the Hawaiian Islands 44,950 laborers. You can fully understand how essential the constant employment of these people at good wages is to the continued peace, welfare, prosperity and happiness of this American territory with a total population of only 225,000, a territory which, since annexation in 1890, has proven to be our best, most valuable customer in proportion to population we have in all the world. In addition to the annual business of $25,000,000 which they give the merchants and businessmen in the United States, the amount they annually contribute to our national treasury in postal business, custom house duties and internal revenue taxes runs annually into millions. Last year Honolulu expended $100,000 for an armory for the use of a creditable and efficient force constituting a part of our National Guard for service whenever needed by our government.

It is utterly impossible for the Hawaiian sugar planters, with American wages and standard of living, costly fertilization and irrigation, distances from the American market to compete with the sugar planters of Cuba, who have a soil needing neither irrigation nor fertilizers, where the cane matures in a shorter time and planting is not required as often. The cost of Hawaiian production of sugar laid down in the American market in 1914—New York—where Cuban sugar is met and the refineries are located was $53.654 per ton, and the average cost per year for the last five years was $56.918 per ton. In addition to the advantages in the cost of labor, fertility of soil and methods of cultivation, the Cuban planters pay $6.25 per ton less to transport a ton of sugar to New York, where the raw sugar must be purified and refined before being placed on the market. It is just as impossible for the Louisiana sugar planters and beet sugar farmers of our western states to compete with the producers of Cuban sugar without a protection tariff as it is for the Hawaiian sugar planters.

It Means Destruction.

Sugar on the free list means the destruction of this industry, not only in our insular possessions, but in the United States. After May 1, 1916, our country will be the only one without a tax on sugar, and even free trade England levies a tariff or duty on it. The Wilson idea about placing sugar on the free list was to reduce expenses and thereby keep that pledge in the Baltimore platform promising a reduction in the cost of living. The new tariff law reduced the duty on sugar twenty-five per cent on March 1, 1914, and yet sugar is higher today than it was before this twenty-five per cent reduction became effective. After sugar goes on the fee list, May 1, 1916, the American consumer will in a short time discover the price of sugar advanced. After the sugar refiners—large owners of Cuban sugar lands—who for years swindled the United States government out of millions in tariff duties for which they were convicted, paralyze and destroy their competitors, the sugar planters in Louisiana, in our insular possessions and the best sugar producers in the western states, the price of domestic sugar will be advanced and the treasury of the United States will lose an annual sugar tariff income of $50,000,000 at a time when there is a government deficiency somewhere between $65,000,000 and $100,000,000. The consumer not only did not profit by the twenty-five per cent reduction on sugar last year, but the treasury lost during the first month when it was badly needed in customs duties $2,479,358. Should we make the refiners a further present at the expense of a depleted treasury amounting to the magnificent sum of $50,000,000 per annum or make them continue to pay it to the United States to aid in meeting the enormous and ever-increasing expenses of the government of the United States and at the same time protect and encourage the great sugar industry in the Hawaiian Islands and in the United States? Recently the secretary of commerce, Mr. Redfield, had an investigation as to the high cost of living, and the result showed that out of a list of fifteen necessary articles going on our tables, sugar was the only one that did not show an increase in price, but on the contrary a reduction. Congress should lose no time in repealing the free sugar folly, which will not benefit the people but will increase the great riches of the selfish sugar trust at the expense of the treasury of the United States and at the cost of the industrial system of the honest farmers in Louisiana and the western states and the planters in the Hawaiian Islands, who have always contributed their full share in upbuilding and making prosperous a deserving people and furnishing a valuable increasing and ever-reliable market for American made goods.

War Saved Industry.

The European war has saved and kept alive our sugar industry from the first cut of twenty-five per cent in the tariff duty and the anticipation of the total abolition of the duty. Germany stands first and Austria third in the list of sugar-producing countries, and these at present are out of the sugar business. Prior to the war, twelve sugar beet factories on account of the action of Congress closed down, and the Louisiana sugar farmers were seeking if possible the substitution of another less profitable crop. In Honolulu a few days ago I learned of the sale of a large local sugar company and plantation to a party of Japanese. The explanation was, the owners knew after the close of the war in Europe and the removal of all duty—the placing of sugar on the free list on May 1, 1916—means bankruptcy to compete with the Cuban sugar planters. This first sale of a sugar plant is but the forerunner of what will happen to this splendid American industry, unless Congress repeals the free sugar law. If free sugar permanently remains, the industry will in our insular possessions fall into the hands of aliens, our deserving people crowded out and our local or export trade to Porto Rico, the Hawaiian and the Philippine Islands will be done by our foreign competitors.

The American people have certainly been chastened, punished—paid a fearful penalty—for the folly of electing a free trade educated theorist to the presidency, along with a subservient Congress ever ready to do his bidding.

Desiring to close this letter with something pleasant and give the reader a true picture of the Hawaiian Islands made with the pen of our own beloved and never-to-be-forgotten Mark Twain, I quote his just and beautiful tribute:

"No alien land in all the world has any deep, strong charm for me but that one; no other land could so longingly and beseechingly haunt me sleeping and waking, through half a lifetime, as that one has done. Other things leave me, but it abides; other things change, but it remains the same. For me its balmy airs are always blowing, its summer seas flashing in the sun; the pulsing of its surf beat is in my ear; I can see its garlanded crags, its leaping cascades, its plumy palms drowsing by the shore; its remote summits floating like island above the cloud-rack; I can feel the spirit of its woodland solitudes; I can hear the splash of its brooks; in my nostrils still lives the breath of flowers that perished twenty years ago."

PUNAHOU READY FOR OPENING OF HER 75TH YEAR

Punahou will open in all departments next Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Chapel exercises will be held at both schools at that hour.

At the academy William T. Rawlins, president of the Punahou Alumni Association, will speak, calling attention to the fact that this is the year of the 75th anniversary of the founding of the school. The alumni, led by President Rawlins, is enthusiastically planning for an appropriate celebration and for making the year one of the best in the history of the school.

There will be special music, and E. H. Ideler, the new violinist at the school, will play. At the preparatory besides the music, consisting of violin selections by Mr. Ideler, W. W. Chamberlain, one of the new members of the board of trustees, will speak.

After the chapel exercises the day will be devoted to registering, getting the necessary books and supplies and getting the lessons for the regular work for the school year, which will begin on Tuesday morning.

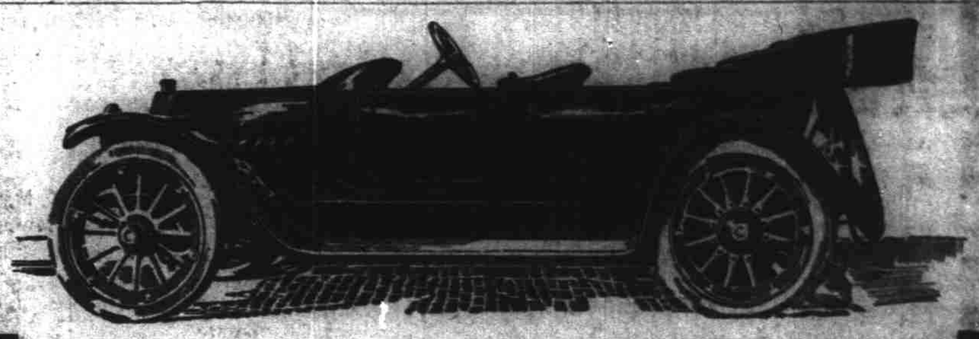
The entrance examinations took place yesterday and today. A large number of candidates applied for admission. These include students both from the coast and from local schools. It is expected that a good many students who have been to the coast for the summer will be late in entering school. Most of these are expected on the Matsonia, which will arrive Tuesday morning.

TEACHERS ON HAWAII MAY NOT WRITE TO SUPERVISORS NOW

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

HILO, Sept. 10.—In the future individual school teachers who are in charge of government educational institutions will not be allowed to pen letters to the board of supervisors asking for this or that improvement, addition or any other thing that may strike their fancy. In the past hundreds of letters have been forwarded to the supervisors asking for all sorts of things, and making all sorts of suggestions. This has resulted in a great waste of time, and, in many instances in all sorts of trouble and added expense to the county which provides the school buildings.

It has been decided that, in future any teacher who has a suggestion or request to make shall address the supervising principal of the district. The supervising principal will then pay the school a visit and, if he thinks something should be done as requested, a communication will be sent by him to the board of supervisors.



Quite Out of the Ordinary--- This Model 43 Oldsmobile

The new model 43 is extraordinarily distinctive. The body shows great originalty. The lines are strikingly low, very much in vogue. Ample concessions have been made to the demand for comfort. Body sides are high, seats deep, cushions soft. As for leg room—there is more than enough.

Everywhere is comfort; everywhere style smartness. Everything about the car compels admiration—solid cast aluminum running boards and toe board, long and buoyant springs, clear live hickory wheels in natural finish; dash of genuine Circassian Walnut.

The car is stripped of all superfluous tire-consuming pounds of weight. Most owners get considerably over the guaranteed mileage on casings, and the car shows a high gasoline mileage.

SAYS SEAMEN'S ACT A DISGRACE TO CONGRESS

Characterizing the Seamen's Bill as "iniquitous," and saying that it made him feel "very much like going to Vancouver, B. C.," Capt. Robert Dollar of the steamship line which bears his name too occasion to roast the bill most unmercifully at a recent luncheon held in the Palace hotel jointly by the Home Industry League, Downtown Association and Transportation Club, according to the San Francisco Chronicle.

That the bill had brought to the Pacific coast one of its greatest calamities, was declared by Capt. Dollar.

This calamity, he said, was the withdrawing of the Pacific Mail from the trade.

"The bill," said he, "is a disgrace to senate and congress, because it has turned the commerce of the Pacific over to the Japanese. I am not saying anything against the Japanese, because I would as soon they had the commerce as any other foreign nation; but it is a sad thing to see it leave our own country. This is an iniquitous bill and I feel very much like going to Vancouver, B. C."

J. H. Harbour, president of the Home Industry League, who presided at the meeting, said:

"We heartily sympathize with the steamship companies that are affected by this bill. If everybody had the same idea about this method of handling our American shipping as the Home Industry League such an iniquitous bill would never have passed."

GEORGIAN COMES TO HONOLULU THIS TRIP

"I have just received good news," said A. M. Nowell of the Sugar Factors this morning, "in the form of a letter to the effect that the American-Hawaiian freighter Georgian, which ran on to a reef near Golden Gate several weeks ago, will make the Honolulu run in spite of rumors to the contrary."

The Georgian was considerably jarred when she ran upon Duxbury reef near the Golden Gate, and it has been thought on account of the accident that she would not make the Honolulu run again for some time.

The Georgian will bring about 500 tons of freight from New York. Mr. Nowell says that she will carry about 8500 tons of sugar in her hold when she sails from here on her homeward voyage September 29. The Georgian leaves San Francisco tomorrow, and is expected to arrive here on September 19 or 20.

"We have also been informed that the Texan, which follows the Georgian, will be due here September 27," says Mr. Nowell, "and when she sails early in October will take along practically all that remains of our crop. Some small amounts may come in afterwards for shipment, but most of what remains will be handled by these boats.

106 SAILINGS IS PLAN OF T. K. K.

When the 12 ships which are to be placed in transpacific service by the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, as announced yesterday to the Star-Bulletin by President S. Asano of the line, are actually running, they will make a total of 106 sailings, or 53 round trips a year, of which 28 will be made by the passenger steamers, and 25 by the freighters.

Of the 12 ships, six will be passenger liners and six cargo boats. The T. K. K.'s present schedule calls for slightly more than five round trips a year. Under the new schedule T. K. K. steamers will call here slightly more than twice a week, one each way. This will be nearly the equivalent of the old Pacific Mail-T. K. K. joint schedule, with the Nile, now in British transport service, included. President Asano called on J. H. Drew, manager of Castle & Cooke's shipping department, while here yesterday.

So far as is known here today by Castle & Cooke, T. K. K. agents; and Hackfeld & Company, Pacific Mail agents, the Persia, purchased by the T. K. K., will not call at Honolulu on her next trip to Yokohama. She will leave San Francisco next Wednesday, as announced yesterday, and will be turned over to the T. K. K. October 1.

HARBOR NOTES

A Danish steamer, the Natal, is due here next week from Antofagasta, to take bunkers from the Inter-Island.

The Matson steamer Hilonian is en route to San Francisco, having sailed direct from Hilo at 5 o'clock yesterday morning.

The Matsonia will bring the next mail from San Francisco. She is due to dock at Pier 15 about 7:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Mail for San Francisco will be taken Tuesday morning by the T. K. K. liner Chiyo Maru, due to arrive here Monday from the Orient.

Radio advices to Castle & Cooke today stated that the Chiyo Maru, of the T. K. K. line, will dock here about 11 o'clock Monday morning, coming from Yokohama and the Orient. She has a total of 382 passengers on board, of whom 107 are steerage. The boat's Honolulu cargo is 1947 tons.

The Japanese freighter Seiyo Maru is due to arrive here about September 24, en route to Yokohama. She is a 14-day boat, and will leave here carrying mail for Yokohama and other Japanese points, as the next T. K. K. boat to carry mail, the Chiyo Maru, will not reach here from San Francisco until October 8.

That the Canadian-Australasian liner Niagara will dock here at Pier 7 from Australia next Thursday afternoon, September 16, and will sail for Vancouver the same night, was stated in a wireless received late yesterday by Theo. H. Davies & Company local agents. The Niagara will thus leave here 12 hours ahead of her schedule, as she was not to have left until next Friday, September 17.

Mariners bound for the Panama Canal from this port are warned to be on the lookout for a derelict, the Peruvian three-masted bark Mercurio, which was sighted, badly waterlogged and with no signs of life aboard, in latitude 18 degrees, 8 minutes north, longitude 112 degrees, 27 minutes west. The wreck was sighted by Capt. Evans of the Indradeo in port September 5, who reported it to Customs Inspector Gilbert McNicoll. Malcolm A. Franklin, collector of customs, has transmitted the report made by Mr. McNicoll to Harbormaster Foster.

WINDJAMMER IS A MONEY MAKER ONCE MORE

Reports received in Honolulu this week from Australia indicate that the war is resulting in a recrudescence on the Pacific of the "windjammer," as sailing vessels are called by men who follow the sea.

The dearth of steamers and high freights are responsible to a large extent for this. At present there are either on the way to Sydney and Melbourne, or about to sail, a fleet of 118 sailing ships ranging from the big 2500 tonner to the shapely American schooner of 500 tons. Of the latter the four-master predominates.

The majority of the sailors engaged are of American registry, most of them coming from Pacific coast lumber ports, and most of them will call at Honolulu. These are receiving freights up to $21.25 per 1000 cubic feet—a state of affairs which it is said in Australian shipping circles is unprecedented.

It is also understood that apart from the marvelous impetus in the lumber-carrying trade numerous large sailing vessels are landing at New York or are destined to load there for Australian ports.

HAWAII'S GAIN IS NINE MILLIONS

Nine million dollars' gain in commerce eastward through Panama canal from the Territory of Hawaii to Atlantic ports, is shown in a statement received here today from the foreign trade department, showing how the Panama canal has increased commerce from the Pacific to Atlantic cities.

For the year ending June 30 last, Hawaii's commerce eastward through the canal was $21,295,065, as against $12,865,498 for the year ending June 30, 1914, before the Panama canal was opened.

The figures are for the years ending June 30, 1914, when the isthmian railroad was used, and June 30, 1915, when the canal was in use. The total gain in commerce is $34,074,209 in 1915:

Following is the statement:

Year ending June 30, to Atlantic from:

	1914	1915
Hawaii	$12,865,498	$21,295,065
Puget Sound	2,286,832	11,578,686
Oregon	293,679	3,098,106
San Francisco	16,677,596	31,145,719
Los Angeles	1,900,409	979,579
Totals	$34,023,006	$68,097,315

Theatrical & Amusements

LAST CHANCE TO SEE 'UNAFRAID'

The last opportunity afforded to Honolulans to witness Rita Jolivet and a splendid supporting company in "The Unafraid" will be tonight at the Liberty theater. This beautiful and clever actress has become a strong favorite with local photo-play fans during her short initial visit.

This dramatic romance is from the pen of Eleanor M. Ingram, and, prior to its picturization, proved a success on the legitimate stage. With the extended action of the picture and the wonderful Montenegran scenery as added attractions it is "going big" in the silent drama.

The "Adventures of Kathlyn," also showing for the last time tonight, are thrillers that border on the melodramatic. They grip and hold the attention from start to finish.

NO SUNDAY NIGHT FILM AT POPULAR

There was a good attendance at the matinee at the Popular theater this afternoon, where "Jack Chanty," the great American photo-drama, featuring Max Figman and Lolita Robertson is holding the boards. This production will be shown again tonight, but there will be no special performance at the Popular Sunday night.

The members of the Knights of Pythias are making great preparations for the presentation of the picture entitled "Damon and Pythias" at the Popular, opening next Tuesday and running until Thursday, inclusive. This engagement will be under the auspices of the local lodges of the Knights of Pythias, the members of which are selling tickets exchangeable at the theater for reserved seats. In view of the fact that the film was secured by the lodgemen at heavy expense, the Pythians have made the scale of prices commensurate with the magnificence of the feature. Already the sale of seats has been large.

JONES GETS INTO TROUBLE GALORE

When George Broadhurst strayed from the paths of heavy drama he gave to the stage and to the films a genuine comedy. During the present week Honolulans are seeing "What Happened to Jones?" and appreciating his comedy efforts.

Last night was amateur night at the Bijou and six local acts, all bidding for thespian fame, braved the good-natured audience which was satiated with "What Happened to Jones?" These amateur performances are bringing out some local talent and acts that promise better things for the youthful artists.

There are still a number of laughs remaining in "What Happened to Jones?" and it will be shown again at the Bijou theater tonight.

Young Actress Out of Danger

Miss Jane O'Roark, the young actress who has been seriously ill at the Queen's hospital, and who is now reported to be entirely out of danger. A monster vaudeville bill has been arranged as a benefit for Miss O'Roark, to be presented at the Bijou theater next Wednesday evening. Tickets are now on sale at numerous places around the city. Many Ad Club members also are handling tickets for the affair.

GREEN UMBRELLA RIDDLE IS SOLVED

Another of the fascinating Alice Joyce series of features comes to the Empire theater today. It is "The Riddle of the Green Umbrella." Alice Joyce will enact the difficult role of Madeline Mack, a girl detective, in this story. She assumes the difficult task of solving the mystery of the death of Professor Helmer. The suspects are Professors Lloyd and Reynolds, both suitors for the hand of Dorothy, the daughter of the murdered man. How she runs the criminal to death, and how Reynolds endeavors to inflict a terrible fate upon the detective, brings the two-part photo-play to a startling climax. With Miss Joyce in the great story are Marguerite Courtot, a 17-year-old actress; Guy Combes, Jere Austin and James R. Ross.

"The Curing of the Cook," a comedy produced by Will F. Smith, is "guaranteed to be a sure cure for the worst attack of blues." It deals with the trials attendant on suburban domestic life.

Arthur V. Johnston and Lottie Briscoe have collaborated in a comedy-drama, "The Belated Honeymoon." The Empire program today will close with the presentation of a fine type of Broncho Billy drama. "Broncho Billy and the Vigilante" will feature G. M. Anderson in the leading role.

PASS FROM WONDER TO WONDER IN ONE HOUR'S TIME ON BIG ISLAND

Flaring in the eastern window of the Promotion Committee's rooms stands an oil painting of "The House of Everlasting Fire" at night, and below it a photograph of Halemaumau in the day time taken by Prof. F. A. Perrett. And between the two stretches a pleasant pastel of Cocoanut island.

"The arrangement," said L. W. de Vis Norton, publicity agent for Hawaii, "indicates better than word could do the range of scenery in the island of Hawaii. Within a radius of one hour's traveling lie every possible modification of the landscape. For the lovers of the grand there is the 'House of Everlasting Fire;' for those who appreciate soft suggestion there are the unsurpassed beaches embraced with coral reefs, and for those who wish the inspiration of the picturesque, there is the crowning glory of Pololu gulch.

"Many people do not know that in the Pololu gulch there is a waterfall wail, "indicates better than words wide fame. The trouble is that people only admire and wish to see that which they have been forewarned is beautiful. They even read the guide books to find the adjectives with which they can talk of Waikiki and the Pali when they return to their homes. But if they see Pololu gulch and Halemaumau, I'll wager that they will forget memorized adjectives when they try to describe the latter."

Flanking the three central pictures in the display, Mr. Norton has arranged views of the lava of Kilauea, a corner in Hilo, Maulua Bay, the beach at Hilo, and other attractive pictures in color. On the whole the display catches the atmosphere of the Big Island admirably.

WANTS TWO NEW BUILDINGS ON CAPITOL SITE

Plans for improvements to the capitol grounds calling for an expenditure of from $125,000 to $150,000 have been made by Charles R. Forbes, superintendent of public works, and will be sent to the territorial legislature when it next meets, accompanied by a request for an appropriation of this amount of money.

The plans provide for concrete buildings, two in number, on the Ewa side of the grounds. One of these will be two stories in height, and will lie just makai of the road which runs in from Richards street. The other, a three-story building, will be erected across the road mauka of the first. The first building will be used as a place for meetings of various territorial boards, the second will house the department of public works.

By the final adjudication of the estate of Miss Ellen Dyer, in the orphan's court at Bridgeton, N. J., today $30,000 is awarded to Helen Campbell of Denver and Elizabeth Westerndorf, of Boston to be used "in the broadest interpretation of metaphysical thought."

Population of the canal zone has decreased 20 per cent. or 7,780 persons within a year.

'QUIBBLE OVER CONVENTION COST MERE DODGING OF ISSUE'—PACHECO

"Time for Reason and Not Legal Nonsense," Says Chairman of Charter Meetings

"It seems to me that our officials are quibbling over technicalities and letting a big principle go by the board," said M. C. Pacheco this morning, referring to the refusal of Governor Pinkham to warrant the appropriation of $1200 from the contingent fund for the expenses of the charter convention.

"Here we have the attorney-general's explaining that the charter has to do with the municipality only, and on the other side the city and county attorney says that the city has no responsibility to meet the expenses which the convention may incur because the calling of the convention was a territorial measure passed by the legislature.

"Manifestly the responsibility must lie somewhere, and it must be on one of the two government bodies, city and county or territorial. Which of these, if either, will assume the debt, I do not know. It looks to me like the old story of 'go see cousin John.'

"According to the technical splitting of hairs both bodies may be able to dodge the responsibility—but after all it is a matter of dodging. Both bodies know that the will of the people demands a new charter, that the citizens of the city and county of Honolulu have selected members to decide upon a new charter, that the public has been thinking over the propositions involved in the rumored changes. Now what will be done? As for the territory, the legislature and the governor might both remember that half the population of the group is on Oahu, and surely when a matter affects the vital interests of one-half of a country's population it is time to make some sacrifice—even of a quibble.

Sum Is Small, After All.

"As far as the county is concerned it looks to me as though it were trying to dodge the responsibility because it thinks that the legislature should support the scheme it has fathered. I don't know which body is right, and I don't care. It is time for us to hear reason and not legal nonsense. I can't help remembering that the amount asked is less than the yearly salary of one subordinate official.

"There might be some excuse," continued Pacheco, "if the will of the people did not so plainly demand this charter. The old charter of 1905 was a skeleton affair. It has been patched up from time to time in order to meet the requirements of the moment, but this revision has never been conducted with the principles of good government firmly in mind. That is what the city wants to do now and it wants to get to work. We're marking time."

Mayor Lane is one of those who favors the appropriation of the money by the city since the territory will not stand the expense. He said: "The people have shown that they want a new charter and since it is a matter which vitally affects the welfare of the city I do not think that public opinion will be adverse if the supervisors should vote the sum required even against the 'yes' or the 'no' of legal opinion. Law has its own way, but humanity often takes another."

Tonight there will be a meeting of the committee of 15 in the makai pavilion of the Young Hotel and the exact procedure of the committee will be decided upon. The meeting is called for 7:30.

Tuesday night the next meeting of the convention will be called for 7:30 in the makai pavilion, and as by that time several charters should be ready for submission, the sessions will doubtless become continuous.

TAKES SMASH AT WINE MESSES OF ARMY OFFICERS

Head of Anti-Saloon League, in Monthly Report, Comments on Wahiawa Cases

Declaring that the root of the evils existing at the socalled Wahiawa "blood town" is in the army and that officers should abolish their "wine messes," Dr. J. W. Wadman, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, has stirred up considerable local discussion by his monthly report, submitted this week to the executive committee of the league, and formally adopted. That part of the report dealing with the recent Wahiawa "blind pig" police court cases follows.

"Your superintendent frequently visits the police and circuit courts in order to gain fresh knowledge of the effects of drink in our midst and also to tender his services in such cases where a little help and sympathy count for a good deal. Lately the 'blood town' case has been in striking evidence at the police court with army officers and civilians, including women and little children, appearing on the front benches. Some few years ago Wahiawa was known to the Honolulu public as a quiet country district with a few prosperous homes and a little pineapple industry, but now conditions are changed. Even if the present gang of blind piggers is jailed the root of the evil will still exist, for not until the inside of the camp is made clean will it be possible to keep the outside free from contagion. One wonders that the officers do not at once take a stand against their own wine-messes and clubs and then with a big stick of authority smash the Volcano House on the railroad property and fill in its disgraceful tunnel."

The resolution expressing regret at the death of Mrs. Lydia B. Coan, daughter of one of the earliest missionaries to the Hawaiian islands, was passed at the meeting of the executive committee, as follows:

"Whereas, death has removed from our midst Mrs. Lydia B. Coan, a staunch and earnest temperance worker, and for many years an official of the Women's Christian Temperance Union as well as a friend and patron of the Anti-Saloon League.

"Be it therefore resolved, that we hereby place on record this expression of our high esteem of her noble Christian character, her earnest labors in behalf of the cause of temperance and her steadfast devotion to a noble cause."

EQUALITY OF RACES IN HAWAII CAUSE OF WONDER TO CUMMINS

Iowa Senator Has Only Praise for Islands He Visited With Congressional Party

In the Hawaiian islands all races meet on a basis of near social equality, education is developed to a high degree and hospitality finds its best expression, according to Senator Cummins, says the Des Moines Register and Leader. The senator gave some impressions he received from his visit in the islands with the congressional investigating party last May.

"The first thing that impresses one is the unique condition socially and politically of the people," Senator Cummins said. "The total population is about 220,000. Of these 75,000 are Japanese, who came there when it was legal for them to do so or have been born on the islands. They are preserving the purity of their blood. They do not intermarry. The young men when they get ready to marry send for their 'picture brides' from Japan. An agency makes the matches by use of pictures. When the contract is made the girls come over to Hawaii, are met at the docks by their intended husbands and are married here according to the American law.

Sees Japanese in Control.

"The Japanese are a prolific people and their numbers are increasing very rapidly without immigration. In 15 or 20 years, if everything goes as now, the Japanese will absolutely control the islands. They are a clean and competent lot of people. They take on education more readily than any people I have ever seen. All of them take advantage of the public schools, of which there are plenty of high standard.

"The schools are mainly patriotic. It seems that love of American institutions and the flag is encouraged particularly. The Japanese people there will remain Japanese. While I believe they will be good American citizens, there will arise the same kind of racial problem that we have here with the negro, for the white people in the islands will not be dominated by the Japanese.

"There are many Chinese. They do intermarry and assimilate very rapidly with the Hawaiians and the Portuguese. The Chinese are much esteemed. They furnish much of the labor and have many of the smaller stores. The prevailing sentiment of Hawaii is that the bar against Chinese immigration ought to be removed so far as it affects the islands at least. Several delegations waited upon me during my stay to urge that this be done.

Natives Decreasing in Numbers.

"The number of Portuguese is large. They make excellent American citizens. There is also a considerable colony of Filipinos, but the Filipinos have not proved valuable as workers, and their immigration has practically ceased.

"The native Hawaiians are rapidly diminishing. They are not strongly addicted to work, but they are splendid entertainers. Most of them are highly educated. Indeed, it is quite remarkable to note how this race has been transformed from savagery to culture in 100 years. There are numbers of Koreans, Jamaicans, Spaniards, Italians and various other peoples.

"Americans are comparatively few. They do the big business of the country. The descendants of the American missionaries are the richest class of the islands and stand the highest socially.

Industry of the Islands.

"There are two main industries—the raising of sugar cane and manufacture of sugar, and the raising of pineapples. Practically all of the tillable land is now devoted to these industries. Much of the country is mountainous and volcanic, and, therefore, untillable. There is no real opportunity to extend agriculture.

"Naturally, the people are opposed to free sugar. The burden of the speeches everywhere we were received was against removal of the tariff on sugar. They showed how it would ruin the industries of the islands until the Democrats in the party were fairly tormented by their arguments.

"Our entertainment in the islands was delightful, I never enjoyed myself more on any trip. The hotels were as good as any in this country and the hospitality of the people was unbounded."

Julia Goldstein, who was indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of having committed a statutory offense, was released for two weeks on her own recognizance by Federal Judge C. F. Clemons today. She will be arraigned at the end of the 14 days.

LAST OF 'OLD GUARD' OF FAMOUS COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS DROPS IN

Into the office of the Promotion Committee yesterday morning stepped a little man in shining white linen with Chinese silver nob buttons down the front of his coat. There was a rush for his hand, as if he were the long lost brother of everyone in the room, and when he left a moment later the air behind him was tingling with an anecdote and the laugh which he threw back over his shoulder as he went out the door.

"There goes the last of the Mohicans!" said Secretary A. P. Taylor. "A dozen years ago he was one of many, but now he's the last of the Old Guard. Formerly there were 15 or 20 commercial travelers moving between the Orient and the coast, and every six or seven months they would drop in at Honolulu and stay for a few weeks. The old town was bright when they were here, for they had come from all corners of the globe and carried the most cosmopolitan and cheery lot of anecdotes that ever kept a supper table in an uproar.

"That man is Chalmers Graham, and he was one of the bunch of good fellows. It's been a year since he was last here and where the others have gone only the winds can say. He used to travel with a Scotchman called Mc Killop, a chap with a brogue as thick as Scotch thistle, and a manner as cheery as his native heather. Poor fellow, he died a couple of years ago, and he was one of the last of the old school.

"I remember two of the old crowd who went together whom we used to call the Irishman and the Jew. I don't know in how many countries they were known by that name, but they were certainly a famous corporation. It used to be said of them that while Keegan was selling stock in an ancient mine to the first cabin passengers, and accompanying his sales with stories which brought the stock up to par value, Rosenthal would be in the hold selling tin watches to the firemen.

"But they have gone with the rest and now Graham is the last of the lot, but I suppose that when the Pacific Mail goes out of business we shall see no more of him. This is probably his last trip."

MUNICIPAL GARAGE DESIGNED TO SAVE CITY MUCH MONEY ON CARS

Relative to his argument for a municipal garage for the city and county of Honolulu, Purchasing Agent E. J. Botts is today compleding the data which he has been securing on the value of such a building, and will have it ready for the supervisors meeting on Monday night.

The table shows that the city spends a little more than $50 a day to keep motor equipment going, and states that in view of this expense the question of a city garage is a live one.

"The question of reducing this expense is also being considered in many cities of the mainland," says the report, "as the motor is so rapidly displacing the horse."

Three or four years ago the mainland cities began to grow excited over the alarming increase in the cost of maintaining their cars, foreseeing that if some change was not made in the existing method of allowing every department to keep and have the repair of its own vehicles, the cost would run beyond all fair bounds. It was then that the municipal garages first came into existence.

Mr. Botts refers to specific instances where the savings from these garages has been found surprisingly large. He cites the city of Oakland which established a garage two years ago and has reduced the cost per mile for each city machine from $0.082 and $0.094 to $0.064.

"Baltimore," says Mr. Botts, "in 1913 appropriated $4500 for a municipal garage, and so popular has it become that it is now the plan to enlarge it. This garage keeps accurate records with a daily report by the chauffeur as to amount of gasoline, oil, trips taken, and so on.

"I feel that the mater is an important one," says Mr. Botts, "and am hoping to see it acted upon favorably."

MAUNA LOA FUND FOR TRAIL GROWS; BEGIN WORK SOON

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

HILO, September 10.—Up to the present time the sum of $1,850 has been promised for the purpose of constructing a trail up the slopes of Mauna Loa and for the erection of two resthouses on the mountain. Superintendent Filler of the Hilo railroad is the authority for the good news, and he says that he will not rest until still more money is donated.

The financial committee which has charge of the collecting of funds feels very sanguine over the proposition and Mr. Filler declares that a very much larger sum of money will be gathered in the near future.

Things have progressed so far now that already plans are being made to make a start on the trail and resthouses. Superintendent C. R. Forbes of the public works department is deeply interested in the scheme, and he has promised to assist in every way possible. He will try and arrange to help out in the construction work and it is possible that an appropriation may be made to carry the good work along.

ROSS OUT FOR HEEN'S JOB.

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

HILO, Sept. 10.—County Attorney W. H. Beers has not decided upon whom to appoint to succeed William H. Heen as deputy county attorney. Several names have occurred to him, but he says that he will not decide anything until about the end of September. Attorney Ross of Hilo seems to be in the running.

SOCIETY

Honolulu Party in Oregon.

A party of prominent people from Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, spent last night in Eugene on a motor trip down the coast. The personnel of the party is as follows: George Herbert, Mrs Herbert, Miss Herbert, C. M. Herbert, S. M. Vetlesen, Norwegian consul at Honolulu, Dr. R. W. Anderson, Mrs Anderson and William Anderson. They are traveling in two cars which were shipped by water to Victoria on the steamship Niagara, on which the party traveled. They toured the island of Vancouver, have been to all the points of interest around Puget Sound and Portland, and are now on their way to California to visit the expositions, intending to make a side trip to Klamath county and Crater lake.

Dr. Herbert said last night that they were through here three years ago on an automobile trip. "I notice many improvements in the roads and in the cities through which we pass," he said. "It is merely a pleasure trip and the pleasure is made more thorough with better roads."

Dr. Herbert said that business conditions on the islands seemed to be improving. There are now 10,000 soldiers there, but he expects that many of them will be withdrawn and transferred to the Mexican border if conditions do not improve down that way.—Eugene (Ore.) Register.

Lieut. and Mrs. Frank Anderson Sloan Entertain.

Lieut. and Mrs. Frank Anderson Sloan entertained delightfully at a supper party on Sunday evening for a number of their friends at Fort Shafter. Lieut. and Mrs. Sloan are genuinely hospitable hosts and a most pleasant evening was enjoyed. The Sloan residence was attractively decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers, and the supper was served buffet style. The guests included Lieut. and Mrs. L. R. Fredendall, Lieut. and Mrs. P. R. Manchester, Lieut. and Mrs. R. G. Calder, Lieut. and Mrs. Douglass T. Greene, Lieut. and Mrs. J. A. McAndrew, Lieut. and Mrs. Crystal, Miss Halloran, Miss Catherine Lenihan, Miss Elizabeth Rosenbaum, Miss Dorothy Harker, Miss Lucy Webb, Lieuts. Polhemus, Halloran, Jones, Charles Lyman and Mr. Fletcher Catron.

Senator and Mrs. Chillingworth Entertain Informally at Dinner.

Senator and Mrs. Charles F. Chillingworth entertained at an informal dinner on Tuesday evening for Mr. H. E. Walcott. An attractive centerpiece of various colored snapdragns adorned the table. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Wescott, Miss Mary Low, Mr. H. Withers and Miss Maggie McIntyre.

Chicago "Maroon" to Return on Honeymoon.

Mr. Fletcher A. Catron of Santa Fe, New Mexico, who was in Honolulu with the baseball team from the University of Chicago, on his return to Chicago will wed and come to the "Rainbow Land" on his honeymoon. The engagement of Miss Carolyn Updyke of Chicago to Mr. Fletcher Catron has been announced in the Windy City.

Mr. Catron graduated from Chicago in 1913 and is finishing his course in the law school this year. He is the son of Senator T. B. Catron of Santa Fe. Mr. Catron has the distinction of having been captain of the baseball team in his senior year, the first championship team since 1898. His fiance is a girl of remarkable beauty and accomplishment and takes a prominent place in society in Chicago.

Popular Army Man on Leave of Absence to Marry.

Lieut. Thomas J. Camp of the 2d Infantry is on leave of absence and will return to Honolulu the latter part of October or the first part of November with his bride, Miss Mattise, the charming niece of Senator W. B. McKinley, who was in Honolulu this year with the congressional party.

Lieut. Clyde R. Abraham, also of the 2d Infantry, stationed at Fort Shafter, will return to Honolulu with a bride in November. His fiancee lives in New Orleans. This will number seven newlyweds in the 2d Infantry.

Miss Gertrude Ripley Entertains For Miss Ynez Gibson.

Miss Ynez Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Gibson of this city, was the motive for a delightful card party and dance on Monday evening. Miss Gibson leaves shortly for the mainland to take a course in dramatics. Miss Ripley's home was artistically decorated with cut flowers and ferns. Her guests included Miss Ynez Gibson, Miss Mildred Chapin, Miss Louise Girvin, Miss Dorothy Winter, Miss Gladys Halstead, Leslie Thompson, Ware Camp, Gustave Ballentyne, Ted Busser, Ernest Podmore and Sam Carter. Attractive little score cards each contained a picture of the guest of honor with the inscription, "Bon Voyage to Ynez."

Dance for Miss Sadie Carey.

Miss Hazel Maxam entertained most delightfully last Saturday evening at a dance given in honor of Miss Sadie Carey, charming daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Carey, who recently returned from the coast, where she has been attending the Notre Dame Academy. The affair was given at her beautiful home on Piikoi street, the interior of which was artistically decorated with masses of carnations and American beauty roses. Delicious refreshments were served by dainty Japanese maids and the young folks danced on the spacious lanai, which was decorated with large American flags, to the latest dance music furnished by a quintet. Among those present were Judge Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Fitzpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Larkey, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Basham, Misses Sadie Carey, Margaret Collins, Della Murphy, Alvina Blom, Julia Hollinger, Pearl Littlejohn, Gladys Auerbach, Adelaide Franca, Catherine Johnson, Sophie Walker, Dr. Farrell, Wm. Petterson, Wm. Warren, G. Bustart, Dr Hoeffer, John Hollinger, H. Burns, C Timpsey, J. Byrn, R. Levick and others.

Complimentary Dance to Honolulu Visitors.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 29.—One of the best attended dances of the summer season was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Abbott, near Angle Lake, one Saturday night recently complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gehring and their son Willie, from Honolulu. August Toellner acted as host on the occasion by courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Abbott and though the dance lasted seven hours the time passed so quickly to the happy, congenial and contented crowd who were present that they could not realize its passage.

On the way to Angle Lake, by auto, David Zentmeyer had the stage set in his orchard for Mrs. Gehring and son Willie, who had never picked a ripe apple out of a tree, to pick some of the handsome "Early Transparents" right from the top limb where they were the most luscious, fragrant and fully developed.

A "country dance" was also one of the things that these people from the "Paradise of the Pacific" had not seen:

They were all there from that typical country section about Sunnydale and Angle Lake. Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kelly, the heads of the Kelly family, and W. W. Wilcox, the head of the Wilcox tribe, were there with kith and kin and the first set was the famous quadrille that will be long remembered as the battle of terpsichorean art between these two neighborly peoples in that neck of the woods. To see Wilcox and Kelly swing their feet, and then the girl they left behind them, the marching through the various mazes of the grand right and left was a sight that made one wonder if it was not "young Bill" and "young Mike" of 40 years ago that came out of their Rip Van Winkle sleep. There were waltzes; there were two-steps and three-steps and music that could only be made on an occasion of this kind when the spirit of good nature permeated the atmosphere with good fellowship.

Dave Abbott played the fiddle, Eddie Wilcox tooted his cornet; Ray Wilcox blowed his alto and Wayne Wilcox played the snare drum and big bass drum. Walter McKeel played the accordion and other instruments. Baker Rambler, from South Park, acted as assistant to the dispensary and handed out the sandwiches and other refreshments. Everybody danced and danced and danced and then danced some more.

The ladies had some dandy cakes there; others had chicken, and still others ingredients that would make a "city feller" green with envy and longing to have been among those present.

Everybody sang "The Wacht am Rhein," "A Long, Long Way to Tipperary" and complimentary to the visitors they joined in "Aloha Oe," the song of the Hawaiians.

Willie Gehring, the 14-year-old boy, presided at the piano and played some of the native music, including some of the hula hula dances. The seductive tone of this music was too much for one of the old Sons of the Soil present, and an imitation of that beautiful and rythmic creation and gyration of the body as acted out by the Honolulu ladies was performed with such pleasing effect that the music and dancers were the recipients of several encores.

While the dance was a typical Puget Sound country dance, the visitors were profuse in their expressions of it resembling a "lulu" in the islands.

Miss Pearl Sutherland Home From Study Trip.

Miss Pearl Sutherland has recently returned from Berkeley, Cal., where she has been studying methods which apply in the teaching of music to children. She will have charge of such work at Punahou this year in the piano department. The personal instruction which she received from Ernest R. Kroeger School of Music in St. Louis was especially valuable and interesting. This prominent musical educator is especially in favor of teaching to children the fundamental elements and the general appreciation of music in class work, which is given in connection with their private instruction at the piano.

Miss Sutherland met many of the best musicians in Berkeley through the accompanying which she did for Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Wright, violinists of unusual merit, who have recently returned from several years of study in Europe.

Miss Mildred Chapin a Hostess of the Week.

Miss Mildred Chapin entertained most delightfully at an informal swimming party at the home of Mrs. Gray at Waikiki last Friday afternoon. The girls swam from 3 until 6 and then were served dainty refreshments under the hau tree pergola. Miss Chapin's guests included Miss Margaret Hawk, Miss Dorothy Hawk, Miss Gertrude Ripley, Miss Dorothy Winter, Miss Dorris Noble, Miss Clemence Gifford, Miss Ynez Gibson, Miss Ruth Stacker, Miss Louise Girvin and Miss Gladys Halstead.

The members of the University of Chicago baseball team left yesterday afternoon in the Shinyo Maru. Members of the team during its short sojourn in the island have been extensively entertained, and there were a number of newly-made friends at the dock to bid them "bon voyage" and good luck in the Land of the Rising Sun.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hughes Entertain Informally.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hughes entertained informally at dinner in the Outrigger Canoe Club on Tuesday evening. After swimming the guests were served a supper under the hau tree pergola. The evening was spent with music. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes' guests included Miss Miriam Stacker, Miss Sybil Carter, Miss Ruth Stacker, Frederick Carter, Paul Des Jardien, David Wiedeman and others.

From Honolulu.

Mrs. Walter H. Scott has been entertaining her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rice of Honolulu at the Scott home in the Uplands, Claremont. Mrs Rice has not been in the best of health and is at present taking a rest cure at Adler's sanitarium across the bay but will visit the Scotts again before returning to Honolulu, and Mrs. Scott will entertain for her later in the season.—Oakland (Cal.) Tribune.

Returned Home.

Mrs. E. C. White and Miss Florence Lee left this morning for Salt Lake. Mrs. White will spend several days in the Utah capital before returning home. Miss Lee will leave for San Francisco, from where she will sail on the 8th for her home in Honolulu.—Pocatello (Idaho) Tribune.

Complimenting Miss Ynez Gibson.

Invitations have been issued by Miss Mildred Chapin, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Chapin of this city, to a card party to be given at her home on Kewalo street on Monday next. Miss Ynez Gibson is the motif for the affair.

Relatives From Honolulu Are Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCandless (Marion Rodolph) recently entertained at their home in Adams point, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. McCandless and Miss Loy McCandless, who returned home this week.

Informal Dinner-Dance at the Outrigger Canoe Club.

Another one of the jolly informal get-together dinner-dances that have been so popular with the younger set this summer took place on Thursday evening at the Hawaiian Outrigger Canoe Club. The dinner-dances are managed on the subscription plan, the girls taking the supper and the boys chipping in for the lights and music. The new dancing pavilion is going to be the favorite place for hops during the winter and it is predicted that there will be hardly an evening that the hall is not used. The electric piano which has recently been installed is a notable improvement, though the Hawaiian quintets still hold a place in the hearts of terpsichoreans.

After a delightful swim in the surf, the guests sat down to a delicious spread, set at long tables beneath the hau tree. At 9 o'clock they commenced dancing in the pavilion. Some among those present were Miss Margaret Hawk, Miss Dorothy Hawk, Miss Clemence Gifford, Miss Louise Girvin, Miss Katie Singlehurst, Miss Mildred Chapin, Miss Ynez Gibson, Miss Gertrude Ripley, Miss Rachel Woods, Miss Ilma Woods, Miss Dorothy Winter, Miss Rhoda Ballentyne, Miss Ruth Stacker, Miss Miriam Stacker, Miss Jessie Baldwin, Miss Elizabeth Campbell, Miss Sybil Carter, Evelyn Breckons, Gustave Ballentyne, Ernest Mott-Smith, Ernest Podmore, John O'Dowd, John Gifford, Gray Zabriskie, Sam Carter, Frederick Carter, Lorrin Thurston, George Bromley, Shirley Bush, LeRoy Bush, David Wiedemann, Paul Des Jardien, Albert Bush, Henry White, Allen Davis and others.

Many Officers in Service to Wed This Fall.

It looks very much as though all of the young and eligible officers in Uncle Sam's army and navy are to be married early in the fall, while there are a number of September weddings scheduled. From Washington, D. C., has come the word of the marriages of several of the popular young officers to belles in society at the capital. Some of them that will be of interest to local service folk were chronicled in a Washington paper:

"Washington society is deeply interested in the wedding of Miss Henrietta Fitch, daughter of the late Naval Constructor Henry T. Fitch, to Lieut. Stephan Clegg Rowan, U. S. A., which will take place at Mrs. Fitch's summer home at Bay Head, N. J. The ceremony will be performed at noon, September 11, in All Saints' church on the seashore, and will be followed by a breakfast. Many of the bride's friends and relatives from Washington and Detroit will go on for the wedding.

"Miss Florence Silsby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Silsby, has returned from a visit to the parents of her fiance, Mr. and Mrs. Bradish John son Smith, of Stamford, Conn. Her marriage to Lieut. George Lamberton Smith, U. S. A., will take place on September 23 at noon in the home of the bride. Only a family party and a very few friends will be present. There will be a small wedding party not yet completed.

"The date for the wedding of Miss Harriet Grendle Conger and Ensign Donald Wheeler Hamilton, U. S. N., will be set for early in October. The bride's family are still in Jamestown, R. I., where she has been all summer. They will return here about the first of September. Her sister, Mrs. Fitch, wife of Lieut. Fitch, U. S. N., came down from Jamestown and spent the week here, leaving yesterday for Old Point to join Lieut. Fitch, who is on the Yankton.

"Down in Mississippi another romance of Washington life will have its culmination in the wedding of Miss Sally Williams and Lieut. Joel William Bunkley, U. S. N., in the home of the bride's parents, Senator and Mrs. John Sharp Williams."

Ensign A. S. Walton a Dinner Host.

Complimenting Ensign E. L. Vanderkloot on Friday evening, Ensign A. S. Walton was host at a delightful dinner party. The occasion was the honor-guest's birthday. Artistically arranged in the center of the table was a pretty combination of sweet peas and forget-me-nots. Covers were laid for Lieut. Paul Bates, Ensign McCord, Mr. George A. Butz, the host and the guest of honor.

Lieut. and Mrs. Kirby Crittenden Entertain.

Lieut. and Mrs. Kirby Crittenden entertained at a prettily appointed dinner party on Thursday evening at the Pleasanton hotel for Lieut.-Comdr. Mark St. C. Ellis and Lieut. and Mrs. Henderson. Vari-colored African daisies were used in an attractive way on the table.

Wedding in Kansas.

A wedding of interest which took place in Wichita, Kansas, late in August was that of Miss Marcia Murdock and Lieut. Harvey Delano, U. S. N. The marriage was a quiet affair and shortly after the ceremony Lieut. and Mrs. Delano left for San Francisco. They sailed from San Francisco September 4 and passed through Honolulu in the Shinyo Maru yesterday, en route to China, where they are to be stationed for three years, as Lieut. Delano has been detailed to the U. S. S. Vermont.

Mrs. Delano is a very beautiful young woman. She is the daughter of former Congressman and Mrs. Victor Murdock and is a favorite in society in her home and in Washington, where she has been a frequent visitor.

Miss Patsie Henry Married in Alaska.

The clever "Patsie" Henry, recognized as one of the most talented members of the Juvenile Bostonians, has surprised her friends in Honolulu with letters telling of her marriage to Mr. Vincent M. Lerner, which took place in Alaska on June 3.

When pretty "Patsie" was in Honolulu last year she told her friends of her engagement to a tall miner in Alaska, but she had hardly more than returned to the Northwest when she broke that engagement and "Mother" Lang felt sure that her clever commedienne would stay out of Cupid's way for a time. But it was quite evident that Mother Lang didn't know Patsie, nor Mr. Lerner, who was also with the Bostonians.

After a performance on a wonderful Alaska night in June, Patsie and Mr. Lerner left the theater unnoticed by "Mother," and the rest of the girls, and when, some time later, they returned to the hotel, it was with the word that they had been married. Their fate was that of all elopers—there was wrath, tears and then forgiveness and Patsie says she is the happiest girl in the world, and if Patsie says so it must be true.

Patsie Henry is a great favorite in Honolulu and has many friends in the younger set here who, when the little actress was here, entertained her frequently.

Mrs. Swanzy and Her Two Daughters Leave for Mainland.

Mrs. Francis M. Swanzy and her two daughters, Miss Nora and Miss Rosamond Swanzy, left in the Wilhelmina last Wednesday for a trip to the mainland. Mrs. Swanzy will make a short visit in the East and after she has taken Miss Rosamond to Radcliffe College she will leave Miss Nora in New York and then return to the islands to again take up her social duties here. She expects to return in November. Miss Nora Swanzy is to spend the winter in New York, taking up the latest dances. She will devote her time to the study both of the esthetic and ballroom dancing.

Mrs. E. B. Loomis Entertains.

Mrs. E. B. Loomis entertained at a prettily appointed tea at her home in Manoa Valley, complimenting Miss Renny Catton, on Thursday afternoon. The house was simply decorated with ferns and cut flowers and the afternoon spent was a most pleasant one. Among Mrs. Loomis' guests were Miss Catton, Mrs. "James Russel, Mrs George Davies, Mrs. William H. Mumer, Mrs. William R. Lymer, Mrs. Howard Ellis, Miss Ruth Richards, Miss Edna Curtis, Miss Laura Atherton, Miss Helen Girvin, Miss Florence Hoffman, Miss Dorothy Guild and others.

Mrs. Howard Spaulding as Example for Honolulu Girls.

"How lovely it would be if some of the Honolulu girls would take a few lessons in dress and setting from Mrs. Howard Spaulding," was a remark heard from the lips of a Honolulu matron the other day. And everyone who heard her acquiesced. "It would be lovely" if the island girls would copy to some extent mrs. Howard Spaulding, the "Chrysanthemum bride" who is spending a part of her honeymoon in Honolulu.

Everywhere they have traveled Spaulding and her husband have been the center of attraction. People at first been curious to see how a wealthy young woman would conduct herself, and then after seeing the bride they have capitulated to her charms. Mrs. Spaulding looks like a young woman who has spent many hours to out-of-door sports. She is more than pretty, for her fresh complexion and deeply flushed cheeks are the very essence of good health.

But to return to her simplicity of dress—the thing that has interested feminine Honolulu. The other day when the young bride went to the Wilhelmina to witness a Hawaiian show she wore a suit of poplene and silk 'ish outing hat of black and white striped silk, faced with white material. She wore no gloves and the only jewels to be seen were her engagement ring and the wedding band. The enthusiasm she and her good-looking young husband showed at the customs of the islanders was a delight to every one who watched them.

The Spauldings will be in Honolulu a few more days, when they will sail for the Orient, continuing their trip around the world. They have seen a good bit of the Island of Oahu, and have expressed themselves as delighted with Hawaii, and like everyone else acknowledge that it is the "Paradise of the Pacific."

Mr. and Mrs. Irving J. Hunt and family returned on the Ventura and have taken a cottage at the Pleasanton.

Dr. G. H. Huddy, a member of the Hawaiian legislature, and his bride arrived here today aboard the steamer Manoa. Their marriage took place two weeks ago. His wife formerly was Mrs. Etta Sullivan.—S. F. Call.

SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spaulding, Jr., who are visiting in Honolulu for a few days. They married July 31 at the summer home of the bride, Harbor Point, Mich. The bride was Miss Catherine Barker, 19 years old and the heiress to $30,000,000. Her parents died six years ago, leaving her as the sole owner of the Haskell-Barker Company of Michigan City, Ind., said to have the best equipped plant for building freight cars in the world. She met Mr. Spaulding six years ago and the couple have been devoted to each other ever since. Mr. Spaulding graduated from Yale a year ago and his wife finished her course in an eastern school a few months since. They have furnished an apartment in Chicago where they will live.

About the Howard Spauldings.

Many accounts have been given of the marriage of Miss Catherine Barker and Howard Spaulding, jr., now in Honolulu, and of the withdrawal of the maid of honor only a short time before the wedding, and yet no one has seemed to know the reason of the young lady's refusing to take part at the ceremony. "Town Talk" of San Francisco has recently answered the query that has been asked by so many people:

"No two people have excited more interest in and around the St. Francis than Catherine Barker Spaulding, the $30,000,000 heiress of Chicago, and her husband, Howard Spaulding. Since their arrival, last week, they have been devoured by hundreds of hungry eyes. It is very satisfactory to many people to see the owner of thirty golden millions in the flesh, and only a little less satisfactory to inspect the lucky man who captured her. The wedding of this young couple was of peculiar interest because there was a row on just before the ceremony, a row which resulted in the withdrawal of the maid of honor from participation in the nuptials. Elizabeth Goodrich, a young lady of considerable social importance in the Windy City, had been chosen by Miss Barker as her maid of honor. Miss Goodrich is a high-spirited young lady, and she took umbrage at some remarks made by the groom-to-be. She expressed her feelings in language at once terse and vivid.

"'You,' she said to Howard Spaulding with fire in her eye, 'you are a thirty-million-dollar "nobody home"!'

"After that there was just one thing to do, and Miss Goodrich did it. She withdrew from the wedding party. The ceremony was performed without the attendance of a maid of honor. As Spaulding told the reporters when he arrived here, 'no self-respecting man would wish for her presence at the wedding in the circumstances.'

"Was Miss Goodrich's remark true? Is Howard Spaulding a 'nobody home?' I take it that a 'nobody home' is one painfully lacking in intelligence, one who is 'not all there,' a boob in fact. Viewing the matter quite dispassionately, I am inclined to think that Miss Goodrich's remark was hasty and ill-considered. Consider young Mr. Spaulding. He is just 21 years old, only two years older than his thirty-million-dollar bride. At the age of 19 he was graduated from Yale, in itself not a conclusive proof of high intelligence, perhaps, but important when considered with other facts. From Yale he went into the Haskell & Barker Car Company of Michigan City, taking a minor job there. Now this company, which builds freight cars, is the concern in which the thirty-million dollar bride's father amassed all those millions. Decidedly, Howard Spaulding was not a 'nobody home' when he picked out this likely concern and went to work for it. And in two years he has advanced to a responsible position. He is now secretary to the general manager. It certainly begins to look as though the maid of honor was unjust to his abilities. But here is the conclusive factor. The romance began four years ago. That is to say, this young couple fell in love when Catherine was 15 years old and Howard 17. Does that indicate a condition of 'nobody homeishness'? I should say not!"

Miss Jane O'Roark Benefit.

Society promises to be on hand in goodly numbers at the benefit performance for Miss Jane O'Roark, which will be given at the Bijou theater next Wednesday evening. As a matter of fact Miss O'Roark came to Honolulu armed with a number of letters of introduction to members of the smart set and but for her untimely illness would have been the motif of a number of affairs.

An elaborate program has been arranged for Wednesday evening, including two of Miss O'Roark's own sketches. Of course Miss O'Roark will not appear in person but Honolulans will be afforded an opportunity of witnessing one of their "home folks" in a pair of difficult roles. Mrs. Lyman H. Bigelow will handle the leading role in "Jealousy" and "The Chance." In each of these offerings Mrs. Bigelow will be supported by Mr. Broderick O'Farrell and Mr. Rupert Drum.

Mrs. Charles R. Crane will present a scene from "A Stubborn Cinderella." Nell R. Slattery will be heard in a solo, as also will Mrs. Charles B. Bye, the latter having chosen "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" as her number. Miss Edith Mellor will be heard in up-to-date songs; Bob Martell, a clever cartoonist, will give an exhibition of lightning work; Bob Cunningham will deliver a monologue and the Kaai Glee Club will entertain. Jack D. Cleary is on the program for a number but refuses to divulge the nature of his work. Music will be furnished by the 2d Infantry, Fort Shafter, orchestra.

It is probable that several other acts will be added to this number between now and Wednesday night. In any event the program will be one long to be remembered by Honolulans.

Encouraging reports are daily received from Miss O'Roark's bedside at Queen's hospital, where this charming young actress has been confined for the past two weeks, having suffered a severe attack of pneumonia which for a time was very serious. Three physicians were called into consultation before she was declared to have passed the danger mark.

From Los Angeles.

From Los Angeles and the summer resorts on the outskirts of the southern metropolis have come brief comments on "Angelenos" who have been in Honolulu this summer or who are planning to come here in the near future. Some of the clippings which will interest Honolulu society folk were taken from the Los Angeles Sunday Times:

Edwin Busser, brother of Mrs. C. H. Phillips, who is visiting his sister, Mrs. W. D. H. King, in Honolulu, will remain a month on the islands. Returning to Los Angeles, Mr. Busser will enter Harvard Military Academy, from which institution he will be graduated next summer. Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Busser have arrived from Mill Valley, and are the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Phillips and family of San Fernando boulevard. Later they will leave for Hermosa Beach, where they have taken the Charles P. Findley cottage for a month.

The Oceanic liner Ventura will leave San Francisco next Tuesday, carrying the following Los Angeles passengers to Honolulu: Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Mohr, Miss Emma Donovan, Miss Hazel Dewing, Mrs. Meril Evans, Miss Mabel Wright, Miss Viola Smith, Miss F. J. Lowry, Miss L. C. Bickford, Miss Rose Janie Jahowitz, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Rand, Edwin Ideler, S. Lowenfeld, Mrs. Schade, Miss E. Morrison, Frank Wheeler, Mrs. Taylor and Miss Barkelew.

Mrs. Carl Williams, daughter of Mrs. Jane Haley of this city, arrived here Wednesday with her two children from Honolulu, where she has made her home for the past year. Mr. Williams, who is employed as an engraver in a Honolulu concern, will remain on the island for the present.

Miss Fern Hawkins of Trinidad, Colo., was the week-end guest of Miss Frances Scott. Miss Hawkins is on her way to Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Spreckels, who sailed to Honolulu with a party of friends on their floating palace, Venetia, are soon to return. They are entertaining aboard Mrs. Fred Freeman, wife of Commander Freeman of the U. S. S. Colorado, and Mrs. Hawson N. Cole, wife of Dr. Cole of the U. S. S. Colorado.

Princess Kawananakoa in Chicago.

CHICAGO.—Her royal highness, the Princess David Kawananakoa, took hot chocolate through a straw.

From her seat in a corner of the Blackstone hotel dining room she surveyed between sips those who trotted like foxes up and down the big apartment.

"Just three minutes, and that is all," she said to the reporter who sought royal audience.

"When those three minutes are up not all the king's horses or all the king's men can make me talk again," went on the princess, and gazed beamingly into the smiling faces of Mrs. Louis Hertle of Virginia, Mrs. Tracy Drake, and Mrs. Ben H. Marshall, who sat at table with her.

"I cannot understand why the public should be interested in my comings and my goings," her highness protested.

"I come to Chicago as the mother of three children whom she has not seen for many months and for whom she has been very homesick indeed. Besides it's a long way across the Pacific from Honolulu to San Francisco. Many things may happen on that voyage—consider."

"I expect to remain in and about Chicago for the next 10 days and until my three children reach Chicago."

And then her serene highness pulled a bit of old stuff: "Chicago is a wonderful city," she opined, and made continuance: "It is so big, so busy, and so marvelously noisy. I've heard more noise this morning in Chicago than I could expect to hear in Honolulu in a decade."

"The three minutes have passed," she announced in a crisp utterance, more Scotch than Hawaiian.

Goes to Lake Geneva Today.

From Mrs. Hertle it was learned that the members of the princess' party had spent the morning in motoring about the city and the afternoon in going through the downtown department stores.

Today the princess, accompanied by Mrs. Hertle and Mrs. Drake, will go to the Drake cottage at Lake Geneva, Wis.—Chicago Tribune.

Invitations to Picnic at Waimea Beach.

"Hot Dog" Waimea Beach, Sunday, 20th, 9:30, von Holt Sisters," has been sent out to a number of the young society people on a dainty card depicting little puppies and frogs. One of the answers to the unique invitation has been received by the von Holt sisters. It is a picture of the Waimea bridge, over which many weird figures are traversing hurriedly toward a place which is labeled "Hot Dog." There are kewpies, ducks, dogs and everything imaginable.

FROM PEGGY TO POLLY.

Dearest Polly:

We have just passed through a warm, uneventful week and hope there will not be any more like it. Of ccurse, for the girls the Chicago University baseball team has made some excitement, but just a tiny ripple at that. There were numbers of them down at the boat to wish the team bon voyage and good luck and whether there was any disastrous effect on any of the fair hearts remains to be seen. There were large men, small men, plump and very tall men on the team. A variety of size and kind to suit any fancy. But enough of baseball.

Weddings? There are to be three additions to the benedicts in the 2d Infantry within the next two months. Lieuts. Halloran, Camp and Abraham are going to be initiated. This will run the list of brides up from four to seven, and of course, the bachelor end of it goes down. Poor girls who have set your caps—you'd better hurry or there won't be any left.

Being in Hawaii and studying old-time customs and all has been very interesting and, my dear, I have found something quite startling. The lei custom, which is so popular here, has been quite spoiled by the "malihinis." That is, by those who are uninitiated or badly advised enough to throw their floral wreaths back to the giver. A real Hawaiian does not throw his leis back. To him it means ill luck and a breach of etiquette. It is pretty, I know, but why spoil the original sentiment of the islander?

Another thing which amuses me is the way in which strangers treat the islanders and their ways. Hawaii is the crossroads of the Pacific and here we meet men and women from all walks of life. Many are in the highest of cultured positions and have studied society and etiquette as they would a book. Yet they come here and treat the islanders as curiosities. At a luau they finger and taste and question and literally turn up their noses at the ways and customs of their hosts and hostesses. I have often wondered what they would think of a Hawaiian for whom they were giving a course dinner if he treated the dishes as the malihini treats the delicacies at a luau?

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spaulding, Jr., are here on their honeymoon, or rather the commencement of their wedding trip, which will probably take them around the world. They are staying at the Pleasanton hotel and enjoying life in the islands. Mrs. Spaulding, charmed with the music of the islands, is already learning to strum the ukulele in accompaniment to the ancient songs. Mrs. Spaulding was Miss Catherine Barker before her marriage and a friend of Miss Edith Harrison, the beautiful daughter of ex-Mayor Carter Harrison of Chicago, who makes her debut early in the season. Mrs. Spaulding, as Miss Barker, and Miss Harrison toured Europe together two winters ago. Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding will remain in Honolulu for two weeks.

Mrs. Charles Bromwell and her pretty daughter, Mildred, are leaving in the Matsonia en route to New York where Mildred will enter a select school. Mrs. Bromwell will then go to Chicago, where she will be present at the debut of Miss Edith Harrison which takes place on November 7. Mrs. Bromwell will be missed greatly as she is one of the most charming leaders in society that Honolulu has ever known.

This summer swimming has reigned queen of outdoor sports for both sexes. At all hours of every day the Outrigger Club has shown signs of life and there have been numbers of people, young and old, basking in the sunshine or playing in the surf. A notable addition in the club is an electric player-piano with a nickel-in-the-slot system. This is open until about 11 o'clock and the members are allowed to dance in the beautiful pavilion which has recently been opened. In consequence, there is hardly an evening that there are not a number of the members dancing in the pavilion to the lively music furnished by the instrument.

The knitted bathing suit struggled and fought for a place and at last has found favor among the bathers. This style of bathing suit has been adopted by the Women's Auxiliary of the Hawaiian Outrigger Canoe Club as the club uniform of swimming costume. The suits are modest and are a good bit more comfortable than the others.

More next time, PEGGY.

FT. SHAFTER SOCIETY

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

FORT SHAFTER, Sept. 10.—Major and Mrs. M. J. Lenihan entertained informally at dinner on Friday evening in honor of Lieut. and Mrs. L. O. Mathews and Capt. Leo Mudd. Lieut. and Mrs. Mathews were among those who sailed on the Sherman for San Francisco.

Several of the families of the officers of the 2nd Infantry are planning to go to Haleiwa for the week-end while the regiment will be in camp there. On Saturday evening there will be a dance on the lanais of the hotel, and on Sunday afternoon the 2nd Infantry band will give a concert. Among those going out from the post are Mrs. M. J. Lenihan, Mrs. James E. Bell, Mrs. Douglass T. Greene, Mrs. F. A. Sloan, and Mrs. C. H. Lincoln. On Monday Mrs. Lenihan, Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Greene expect to motor over to Castner for a few days, returning Tuesday morning to Fort Shafter.

Fort Shafter has been very quiet socially and almost deserted this week. In both the main garrison and cantonment there are many dark houses, for when the transport sailed away last Saturday it took many of the families stationed here, and now that the regiment is in the field this week leaving the barracks empty, the long black buildings make it seem more than deserted. Tuesday is looked forward to with double pleasure, the return of the regiment and the arrival of the transport from San Francisco bringing many new people to the Second.

Lieut. and Mrs. F. A. Sloan entertained informally at supper last evening at their quarters in the cantonment. Their guests were Lieut. and Mrs. Greene, Lieut. and Mrs. McAndrews, Lieut. and Mrs. P. R. Manchester, Lieut. and Mrs. T. H. Crystal, Lieut. and Mrs. Calder, Lieut. and Mrs. Barker, the Misses Lenihan, Rosenbaum, Harker, Lieuts. Lyman, Polhemus, A. K. B. Lyman, Jones, Abraham, Miss Webb, and Lieut. and Mrs. Fredendall.

Due to the fact that the troops are in the field this week the Aerodome will be closed. This is quite a disappointment to those left behind, as it has always been a very popular place of amusement. There will be no Sunday services held at the post this week, due to the fact that Chaplain Scott is with the regiment, but Mrs. Pearson has very kindly offered to hold Sunday School at the usual time for the little "tots" of the post.

The Monday evening card club met at the officers' club and five tables of bridge were played. Mrs. Lenihan received. The prize was won by Mrs. J. E. Bell who had the highest score. Among those playing cards were: Capt. and Mrs. Cochran, Capt. and Mrs. Harker, Capt. and Mrs. Parker, Lieut. and Mrs. Sullivan, Lieut. and Mrs. Richardson, Capt. and Mrs. Lincoln, Major and Mrs. Dashiells, Capt. and Mrs. Bell, Mesdames Malone, Pearson and Lenihan.

Capt. and Mrs. Joseph B. Douglas, recent arrivals at the post, have just received notification that the captain has been relieved from his detail in the Signal Corps. This is probably due to his impending promotion to the rank of major, as they arrived on the last transport, and will probably return on the next to San Francisco. Capt. and Mrs. Douglas moved into the quarters formerly occupied by Capt. and Mrs. McCleave.

The transport hop on the roof garden at the Young Hotel was unusually well attended. Many of the service people as well as the passengers on the Sherman attended. Those noticed from Shafter were Mrs. M. J. Lenihan, Miss Lenihan, Lieut. and Mrs. D. J. Greene, Lieut. and Mrs. L. O. Mathews, Lieut. and Mrs. J. B. Richardson, Lieut. and Mrs. R. E. Calder, Miss Richardson and Lieut. Lyman.

Mrs. Martin, wife of Capt. Martin, 15th Cavalry, is the house-guest of Capt. and Mrs. J. E. Bell. Mrs. Martin was a passenger on the Ventura from San Francisco, and will remain in Honolulu until the arrival of the U. S. transport Logan next Wednesday, when she will sail for the Philippines to join Capt. Martin, whose tour of foreign service will not be completed until next June.

Miss Gertrude Malone, the attractive daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Paul B. Malone, was a passenger on the Sherman for San Francisco, and will be met there by Capt. Malone, who is in charge of the citizens' camp at the Presidio. After several days at the fair and a brief visit in New York, Miss Malone will return to Bryn Mawr College to resume her studies as a junior.

Mrs. E. H. Cook, wife of Captain Cook, has moved to Honolulu for a month, leasing the house formerly occupied by Capt. and Mrs. Freeman. Mrs. Cook's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gamble, are now living in the city and this will give Mrs. Cook an opportunity to spend much time with them. Capt. Cook is in the field with the regiment.

The regiment left early Wednesday morning under command of Lieut.-col. B. W. Atkinson, and will march around the island, resting at Haleiwa Saturday and Sunday, and many families are planning to spend the week-end out there.

Capt. and Mrs. Jordan of Schofield Barracks entertained informally at luncheon at the Country Club last Monday in honor of Lieut. and Mrs. J. H. Sullivan.

Lieut. and Mrs. Douglass T. Greene entertained informally at dinner on Tuesday evening at their quarters in the cantonment. Covers were laid for six.

Lieut. and Mrs. Carl Hardigg entertained informally at dinner last Saturday evening at their quarters in the cantonment, covers being laid for six.

Miss Catherine Lenihan has been the house-guest of Miss Ann Carpenter at Schofield Barracks for the past few days.

Mrs. John H. Sullivan is the guest of Mrs. William Cochran in the main garrison while the troops are in the field.

Miss Ann Haloran, who has been visiting at Fort Ruger for the past few days, has returned to Shafter.

Lieut. and Mrs. Kimball entertained informally at luncheon last Sunday for Lieut. and Mrs. John H. Sullivan.

SCHOFIELD SOCIETY

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Joseph Daly was a dinner hostess on Wednesday evening, entertaining for 12 in honor of Lieut. Daly's birthday. The occasion was a very merry one, the guests uniting in toasting the health and happiness of the guest of honor, and enjoying the many "surprises" which were brought in at the end of each course in the shape of comical toys, accompanied by apt verses of original and laughable nature. The large round table at which the party was seated was lovely in its decorations of American beauty roses and sparkling crystal candleshades. Covers were laid for Maj. William S. Guignard, Mrs. Henry Lantry, Capt. and Mrs. Pelham Glassford, Lieut. and Mrs. William McCleave, the Misses Carrie and Esther McMahon, Capt. Charles Ferris, Lieut. Charles Hufferkamp and Lieut. and Mrs. Daly. After dinner the hop in the Mounted Service Club was attended.

This has been a quiet week socially, so many of the garrison's popular members leaving for the states, it seems as though there has been nothing but seeing them off. Mrs. Louie Beard and Mrs. Ivens Jones left on the Sonoma on Thursday for protracted visits at their homes, Mrs. Beard planning to spend a number of months in New York City, and Mrs. Jones going to St. Paul, Minn. Capt. and Mrs. George Apple of the 1st Field Artillery left on the Supply on Thursday, as did also Lieut. and Mrs. Joseph Topham and Lieut. and Mrs. Jesse Ladd of the 1st Infantry, also Lieut. and Mrs. Manton Mitchell. All of these officers, having completed their foreign service, go to home stations.

Mrs. Franklin Rice entertained at dinner on Thursday for Mrs. Page, wife of the manager of the Chicago University baseball team. Invited to meet her were Mesdames Harry Knight, John True and Miss Welcome Ayer. On the same evening the team was entertained at the 1st Infantry Club, an enjoyable smoker being given in their honor by the officers of that regiment.

On Saturday (this evening) Lieut. and Mrs. Joseph Daly were to entertain at dinner at Haleiwa before the hop given there in honor of the 2d Infantry officers and ladies. Those invited to this dinner were Gen. and Mrs. John Wisser, Col. and Mrs. George Bailey, Col. John McMahon, Maj. Ralph Harrison, Mrs. Henry Lantry and Lieut. and Mrs. Daly.

On Monday evening a congenial party motored down to Haleiwa in time for a swim and later enjoyed a delicious supper on the beach. In the party were Capt. and Mrs. George Apple, Capt. and Mrs. Campbell King and Lieut. and Mrs. Irving Phillipson.

On Sunday last, Lieut. and Mrs. Robert Harbold gave a greatly enjoyed supper, entertaining for Capt. and Mrs. Americus Mitchell, Maj. William Guignard and Lieut. Kenny Palmer.

On account of necessary repairs to the clubhouse the bi-monthly hop in the 25th Infantry post has been postponed until next Friday.

Society Personals

Miss Sallie Trask, teacher of Waiahole school, will leave for her post tomorrow. She has been spending her vacation in town.

Mrs. Sallie Douglas of Honolulu, Hawaiian islands, is in the city, having been called here by the illness of her mother, Mrs. S. A. Hume.—Las Vegas (N. M.) Optic.

Miss Myrtle Muir entertained last Saturday with an informal afternoon for the pleasure of Miss Margaret McLellan of Honolulu, who left this week for the South after a month's visit with Portland friends.—Portland (Or.) Telegram.

An automobile party arriving at Tahoe Tavern last Sunday was formed by Mrs. Chas. R. Page of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. R. Page, Mr. Stanley H. Page, all of San Francisco, and Hon. E. A. Bradford of Wilmington, Delaware.

Mrs. C. W. Ashford was among the departing passengers in the Sonoma on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Ashford expects to visit the exposition and to meet her daughter, Miss Marguerite Ashford, who will arrive in San Francisco from the East. Miss Ashford is studying law in the East. She is a remarkably bright girl and one of the few women to take up the legal profession. Whether the popular young lady will return to the islands with her mother is not yet ascertained.

SON OF PROMINENT CHINESE MISSIONARY GOING TO SEE FATHER

Among the passengers leaving late yesterday on the Shinyo Maru for the Orient were Mr. and Mrs. Newell Martin. The former is the son of Dr. Martin, identified for many years with the missionary history of China.

Mr. Martin is returning to his birthplace in Canton, where his father, Dr. Martin, who is 88 years old, is now living. Newell Martin is a graduate of Yale, class of 1875, and has practised law in New York for 40 years. This is his first vacation, and he said before leaving he is enjoying it greatly.

THROUGH THE GREAT NORTHWEST WITH W. R. FARRINGTON; COMMENTS EN ROUTE

Portland and the Live Towns Along the Railroad Lines—Many Points of Contact With Honolulu — Meeting George McK. McClellan—Support for President's Policy is Often Found —North Dakota's "Front Door" Well Kept and Attractive

August 17, 1915.

Skirting along the Columbia river, 2:05 p. m.

For the nth time I have said to myself and fellow passengers, "This is a great country." At every turn the immensity of the empire, of each individual empire, is brought home to me, and I cannot help saying something about it. There seems wealth of opportunity on every hand, and this is not the first time I have crossed the continent, though it is the first time I have been in the great Northwest. We have just stopped at the town of Roosevelt. It is hot in the car—if it is the same outside perhaps that's why it is Roosevelt.

We started out from Portland shortly before 10 this forenoon and for three hours rode along the north (Roosevelt is quite a town of about 10 buildings and the newest one looks like a schoolhouse) shore of the Columbia, viewing just as beautiful and grand a country as one could imagine. I think I know why so many Maine and New England people stopped here in their wanderings and said, "This is the place." It has a great river, hill and mountains, level plains, fir and pine trees, on a larger scale to be sure, but arranged in an order to make the New Englander think of home. And on top of this reminder is the further pleasant reminder of a bracing but not harsh climate.

Land of Opportunity.

One is bound to feel that this is a land of opportunity. He can see it from the train as far along the river—I think the direction is east—as The Dalles. Then, from the train, at this season, it looks different. A man on the train tells me we are going through a great wheat country where all the farmers ride in autos, and only two of a hundred are Fords. But it does not show from the car. What one sees along here is a mighty river, still mighty though we are traveling steadily toward its source.

While riding through this waste, it gives an opportunity to review the many pleasant places we have passed. My father used to say that the Lord sent us sickness from time to time so that we could have a chance to think things over. Perhaps that's why the waste places are thrown in on the map. I have just shed my coat and vest and rolled up my sleeves. A Palm Beach suit would be in order, but I imagine the weather will be considerably cooler this evening.

I was quite unprepared for Portland. It is a fine city, but it had more the appearance of a ranching or farming town than I had anticipated. Just stopped at McCredie—which sounds Scotch. My first impression of Portland was of a much smaller city than I had anticipated. I seemed at home immediately and had no trouble finding my way around. The people are all right, and the town lacks the well dressed—some people call it overdressed—women and men of San Francisco. The city streets are not as clean as San Francisco, though morally I understand it is miles ahead of the Paris of the West.

"Seme City."

In the afternoon we went to the top of Council Crest and there took a look over the city. There we learned that it is no small city and has plenty of residence area to supply the population of the business section of the city.

Just passed Alderdale. Alongside the track is a field of alfalfa, across which is stretched a series of sprinklers for irrigation. Quite an idea. Is not too expensive to divert a portion of the great Columbia flowing majestically along between dry, very dry shores. They tell me there are great wheat and fruit areas back of the bluffs.

Furthermore, this is the middle of summer and has a right to be dry.

To get back to Portland: I had no difficulty in finding my way. Just naturally fell into the splendid Oregon Journal building and there found Mr. A. L. Fish, business manager of the Journal, who visited Honolulu with the Great Northern party. He greeted us very cordially and engaged us for lunch at the Commercial Club, where the club was addressed during lunch by Ex-Senator Burton of Ohio and also by Mr. Hardy, formerly of Toledo, Ohio, the new "manager" of the Portland Chamber of Commerce. Catch that word "manager"? All same city manager, I suppose. The Portland business bodies are consolidated, united and fused since last May. The chamber has brought in the little fellow. Now all, under the direction of a manager, are supposed to pull together, and I have no doubt they will.

Honolulu Has the Right Idea.

Incidentally, I think we Honoluluans fell on to a real idea when we picked up that Ad Club all-together "aye." I thought of it at luncheons I attended in San Francisco and again in Portland. How much heartier it is for the whole crowd to let out a full lunged, leather lunged if you will, "AYE," than to the presiding officer to all by himself try to feebly express the gratitude and interest of the luncheers.

More alfalfa and corn by the dry river side. This land is like Hawaii's. You get water on it and it will grow things like all get-out.

Ex-Senator Burton gave a splendid talk. Not a lot of platitudes but some straight horse American sense, that makes you glad you're an American and more willing to take up the hard work of being a good one. The truest thing he said was that the general moral atmosphere of the people is what controls legislation and makes a nation weak or great. Therefore, he does not regret the great agitation that sweeps over the country at times and rouse people from their lethargy of allowing the other fellow to do the work. He closed with an appeal to the businessmen of Portland—as he appeals to audiences wherever he speaks—to take an ever increasing activity in the work involved in and upheld by "the despised word politics." Only by this means can we keep the country more nearly what it should be.

I am sorry that the Portland papers did not give more space to the speech. It was good stuff. But I believe I got 90 per cent more attention from the Portland papers than I would from San Francisco. I do believe the newspapers of San Francisco are the yellowest and carry the least amount of vital news of any papers in the country that I have seen. In size they are metropolitan; in contents they are provincial and shallow. They do not attempt to cater to the person who makes a large variety of local and foreign news in place of a great quantity of one-brand mush. Portland has good papers.

A Former Honolulan.

Imagine my surprise at meeting George McK. McClellan at the lunch. He is accompanying Mr. Gurion-dow, the purser as a traveling companion, secretary and guest. He looks well and talks happy. Still speaks of Honolulu as home, though he has a thought of returning there. Enjoy his practise in Seattle, but doesn't expect to make money till the blight of hard times is removed from the Northwest. I get that complaint of hard times all along the line here. All due to the slump in the lumber industry. High price grain has not made a bit of difference. Fruit is also somewhat "on the blink." Hawaii is still the luckiest place on earth; its only gamble is when the luck will change.

The new manager of the Portland Chamber of Commerce and the Ex Senator spoke to quite a wad of county seats. If they had seats for 200 they had 100 there. So there are others with a problem of "getting the fellows out." The manager said he would act, not talk, and asked all hands to pull together, even the competitors.

I had a splendid trip through the new plant of the Journal, with its 70,000 an hour press and general equipment in keeping.

Wilson Is Supported.

In the smoking room last evening I headed the conversation to politics just to see how they felt about it in this region. Of course Montana is Democratic, but even among those outside the state I heard no wild opposition to President Wilson. In Portland those I talked with expect Wilson to go on account of the tariff on our lumber which has upset the state's prosperity. But these average men, as they appeared to be in the smoking room, seemed to think the hard times were matters of adjustment. The talk ran naturally to prohibition, and whether they are for it or against it, the unanimous opinion seems to be that prohibition is sure to come. Even here in Montana they expect prohibition to come. Everywhere and from all sorts of people you hear the remark: "The whole country will be prohibition in 10 years."

I learned also that you can make vinegar from beer. The German farming population of Washington was strong for prohibition in the last election. The "Amalgamated" machine has a finger in every pie in Montana from the least to the greatest; if you incur the enmity of Amalgamated you should leave Montana to make a living. One story was of a civil engineer who made $25,000 by being on the other side from Amalgamated, and he has been 10 years without a job—met the unseen government everywhere.

The Mexican Policy.

So far as I have picked up in conversation with the average Americans who are the bulk of today's travelers they seem satisfied that the president is trying hard to do the right thing. A man from Arizona said he was at first opposed to the president's Mexican policy, but now believed in it. He thinks, "We shall have to go in there sooner or later." He thinks the president was right in opposing Huerta. "If they would only turn it over to Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, we'd settle the whole thing. Incidentally we would also take a bit of land that the Mexicans don't know how to take care of." He referred to the state of Sonora, I think he called it, which is one of the greatest lands of opportunity on earth—in his opinion. He reminded me that President Taft first told Americans in Mexico to get out or take their chances; the United States would not shoulder arms for their protection.

This North Dakota land we are now riding through is very prosperous. The farm houses and farm yards look picked up and clean. There is the prairie sameness to the whole section so one can take their time to write a few lines without losing anything vital. The farm houses in North Dakota are few and far between, but the grain fields and corn fields and alfalfa fields are everywhere.

North Dakota Well-Kept.

It just occurs to me: I wonder whether my friend Dr. Wadman would say, the reason why North Dakota front doors are better kept than Montana front door is that North Dakota is "dry" and Montana is "wet"? I wonder if that is the reason why the places around Medford and Ashland, Oregon, look more prosperous and picked up than those closer to Portland. Are Ashland and Medford "dry" territory? At the Ashland station is a booth where you buy the finest sweet cider you ever laid tongue to. The sweet cider booth seems to be one of the institutions of the town; cider has been sold there for 20 years one may said; the original owner died the other day and his son runs it. The cider is fresh and good. The man who showed me the way to the cider booth is Scully, a brother of—"not Jack Scully," he said—of Mr. Scully of the custom house, who formerly drove the hurry-up wagon. This brother knew of the fine horse that was actually driven to death by the kid driver who took the team after Scully. The brother dabbles in the cattle commission business, and was coming north to buy a car-load of sheep on which he hoped to make a tidy shipping to San Francisco.

Just passed Valley City, which seems a railroad center. Our new friend Carpenter left the train here for the north. He is coming to Honolulu when times are a little better. The people around here look to be straight American born. I note the small percentage of any foreign looking element at the depots. Workmen along the tracks on the railroad, laborers, appear to be Italians.

My Montana merchant friend says the foreign element of his state is not very large. The farmers and people who make up the population are from the Middle West, many from Missouri.

The Ubiquitous Ukulele.

On the same train that Scully's brother was on were two young ladies with a ukulele, on which Joe gave them a lesson. Their Hawaiian music consisted of "Aloha" and "On the Beach at Waikiki."

The fame of Hawaii is being spread abroad by the ukulele. This one and playing served to discover a lady passenger who had been out to Waikiki swimming with Judge Monsarrat. Also she knew that "awful nice man, Mr. Beckus." She wouldn't divulge her identity. She could pronounce Kapapala correctly, and talked as if she had been at the ranch.

FINE PICTURES ARE BOAST OF OAHU COLLEGE

Oahu college can boast of one of the finest picture galleries in the Hawaiian islands, thanks to generous gifts by the Cooke family. The gallery is situated at the rear of Cooke library and is strictly fireproof. This year a new glass roof has been erected and the gallery renovated throughout at a cost of several thousand dollars. New mahogany benches have been added and rare Persian rugs spread on the floor.

The present collection which has been loaned indefinitely by the Cookes contains the following gems:

Still Life, by T. S. or S. T. (monogram), 1690; Puck, by Sir Joshua Reynolds; St. Luke Painting the Virgin, by Murillo; Head of an Old Man, by Rembrandt; Exterior of an Inn, by Molinau; Holy Family, by Luini Bernadini; Girl with a Vase, by Tuuimi; Marriage of St. Catherine, by T. Carracci; Lord's Supper, by Lombard; Old Spanish Half Figure of Our Savior; Christ Blessing the Children, by L. Cranach, 1540; Old Spanish half Figure of the Virgin; Pan, Apollo and Midas (forest scene), by Jordeaus; Still Life, by T. S. or S. T. (monogram), 1690; Kitchen Scene, by Furiere; Burgomeister's Family, by Gonsales Coques (canvas 46 in. by 36 in.); Landscape, by Gainsborough. The last three paintings are now on exhibition at the San Francisco Exposition.

Besides the above fine collection the Cookes have loaned a number of new paintings this year to Oahu college. Amongst the new paintings are: Lullaby, by Isreals; Koa Forest, by Hitchcock; Sheepfold, by Van Leemputten; Harvesters, by Langee; Landscape, by Troullebert; Mediterranean Fishermen, by Walden; Man with a Lantern, by Cachaud; Springtime, by Keith; Sunset, by Keith; Flock of Sheep in a Landscape, by Jacque; Berry Picker, by Wunsch; Beach at Dawn, by Walden.

All the above fine paintings, including the new acquisitions, are now on exhibition at Cooke art gallery every day from 8 until 4 o'clock, except Saturday and Sunday.

A Tribute to Crisco

A remarkable tribute to the quality of Crisco was received from the chef of one of the foremost hotels in the United States.

For some time he had been buying Crisco in moderate quantities. When without warning his orders were more than doubled a Crisco representative called to see what had happened. It was found that while formerly the chef had been using Crisco only for pastry and other bakery foods and had done his frying with the fat obtained from his meats, he had decided after experimenting with Crisco to sell the meat fats and use Crisco exclusively. He is now using for frying as well as for shortening because he knows that Crisco fried foods are better and that the guests of his hotel cannot complain of these foods being indigestible. He does this in spite of the fact that he pays for Crisco three times as much as he gets for his meat scraps. Scientific cooks the country over are using Crisco because they understand it. They judge a food product by what it will accomplish. And they have found that Crisco accomplishes wonderful results in cooking.

CRISCO For Frying—For Shortening For Cake Making

Housewives can profit by their experience. If Crisco is the choice of chefs, Domestic Scientists and hospital dieticians, it is very likely to please everyone.

Y. M. C. A. Will Show Pictures of American Conditions as Part of Educational Work

The local Japanese Y. M. C. A. will begin the work of the new fiscal year next week. An attractive schedule of educational, social and religious work has been outlined by the secretaries and this week is being brought before the various committees of the association for their consideration.

The program of the educational department, which is under the direction of Paul Steel, the new educational secretary, will include courses in English and commercial subjects such as commercial arithmetic, bookkeeping and typewriting. The English work will be divided into two sections. One section will be for young men who were born in Japan and who know little or no English. This work will be carried on under the direction of Dr. U. Kawaguchi, one of the new secretaries, who speaks both languages very fluently. The other section will be for Hawaiian-born young men or those who understand English, but desire to become more proficient in conversation and writing.

As a part of the educational work frequent use will be made of the motion picture machine which has been purchased by the citizenship committee of the association. Pictures of conditions in America will be shown with the idea of helping the young men to better appreciate American citizenship.

Religious Work.

The religious work, which will be directed by Dr. U. Kawaguchi, will consist of Bible classes held at different times during the week. Probably more classes will be held Sunday morning than at any other time. The Japanese Ministers Association at a meeting this week voted to ask the association to continue the plan of Sunday morning classes, begun last year. A meeting will be held each Sunday afternoon for the English-speaking young men. The first meeting will be held tomorrow in the form of a reception for several of the young people who have just returned to the city.

Noon meetings will be held at several places throughout the city. At the meetings it will not be the aim of Dr. Kawaguchi so much to have religious talks given as to make them an opportunity of helping all the people in as many practical ways as possible. When asked about his plans Dr. Kawaguchi replied:

"I do not believe so much in continually preaching to people about Christianity as in doing many things for them in the Christian spirit. If we help them in practical ways they will then believe any talking we may do."

The association also will endeavor to help the Bible classes in the different Japanese churches by holding Bible study institutes several times during the year. A class for the training of the teachers in the various Sunday schools will be organized later.

Social Activities.

The social plans include monthly socials for the Hawaiian-born Japanese young men with their girl friends invited frequently. A monthly social will also be held for the members of the high school and Bible classes. Probably a noon lunch will be organized for the discussion of current topics of interest to the businessmen of the Japanese community.

The other work of the association will be carried on as last year, but all of it will be enlarged. The two efficient secretaries, E. M. Matsuzawa and J. Suzuki, will carry on the general activities of the association such as membership, financial and information work and the departmental work will be turned over to Mr. Steel and Dr. Kawaguchi.

Lloyd R. Killam of the central association will give part of his time this year to helping direct the work and will work closely with the English-speaking section of the association.

SUCCESSOR TO REV. E. E. BRACE WILL BE APPOINTED SHORTLY

Some time during the present month it is expected that Bishop Hughes of California will appoint a minister to succeed Rev. Edwin E. Brace as pastor of the local Methodist church. Mr Brace and his family left for the mainland about three weeks ago. It is understood that the local climate did not agree with Mr. Brace's health. Until the arrival of the new minister several well known local speakers will fill the Methodist pulpit each Sunday.

TO CONCLUDE SERIES.

At the mid-week service of Central Union church next Wednesday evening, Rev. A. A. Ebersole will conclude the studies on the "Establishment of the Christian Church," a series of lessons which has aroused much interest.

SACRED HEARTS CHURCH FINALLY GETS ORNAMENTAL WINDOWS

Contain Fitting Memorials Erected by Generous Members of Congregation

The church of the Sacred Hearts, Punahou, which is Honolulu's newest religious edifice. Although the structure was completed several months ago, a feature which was lacking was a series of stained glass windows, which had been ordered from France. These have arrived and have been installed, and are considered the finest of their kind in Honolulu.

After a long wait of 14 months the church of the Sacred Hearts in Punahou has at last installed all of its stained-glass windows, which completes the structure. Rev. Father Stephen J. Alencastre, pastor of the church, on watching the last window being put in, breathed a sigh of relief, as also did the patrons of the mission.

The windows are oil painted, highly colored, and are considered the most beautiful in the city. At the end of 1914 money was sent to France for a set of windows, but they failed to reach Honolulu. Another set was sent for, this one being insured. The set reached here a short time ago. The windows were made in one of the best glass painting firms in Paris, France. All of the paintings represent something sacred. They number about 18, three of which are large windows 12 feet in height and eight feet in width. The others are about four feet in height and three feet in width. There are also a number of smaller windows.

All of the windows were donated by the patrons of the church, two of the three large windows being given by Anna E. Mendonca in memory of the Rt. Rev. Hermann Koeckuisa, and the Rt. Rev. Libert Hubert Boeynoems. The other large window was given to the church by the Dreier family in memory of the late August Dreier.

The remaining windows were donated by the following persons:

Mrs. Robertson, in memory of her grandmother, Mrs. Malia Lainaholo; the ladies of the Sacred Heart Society; J. A. Black, in memory of Margaret E. Skelly; Mrs. C. A. Peacock, in memory of Elizabeth Brokfield; Mrs. Charles Lucas, in memory of her son; Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose J. Wirtz and Mrs. C. W. Zeigler, in memory of their mother. A window of similar size also was donated by a society of six persons.

NEWCOMERS TO BE GUESTS AT 4 O'CLOCK TEA

The first event on the social program of Central Union church for the fall will be the 4 o'clock tea given by the Women's Society to the women who are newcomers in Honolulu.

This informal gathering in the parish house has come to be recognized as a very pleasant way of meeting the new teachers and other strangers in Honolulu at the very beginning of the autumn season and it is hoped that any recent arrivals will not wait for a formal invitation but will regard this announcement as a personal summons. On Thursday afternoon, September 16, the ladies of the society and their friends will meet at the parish house to welcome all ladies who have lately come to the city. It is expected that a large number, both malihinis and kamaainas, will be present.

MINISTER PETERS RESUMES WORK AT LOCAL CHURCH

The sermon for Sunday morning by Minister D. C. Peters of the Christian Church will be "The Laboratory Method in Religion." Christianity has made a big promise to the world, and this sermon is intended to tell how to make that promise come true. The evening sermon will be evangelistic and will be given for the man who would like to be up to the standard of his best ideal, but feels that the church has little to offer him and that he is unable to reach his standard alone.

The full line of work of the church is now resumed and the public is invited to attend the services. The minister can be found in his office at the church from 8 o'clock in the morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon every day except Saturday and Sunday, where he will be glad to see people upon any question touching their lives if they care to talk with him about such matters.

On Thursdays Mr. Peters will be at the Y. M. C. A. from 12 until 1 o'clock. He can be found by calling the Y. M. C. A. office.

World's Strides In Temperance

Fire-Water Doomed.

Fire-water will soon become only a memory to the Indians, according to officials of the Indian department of the United States government. They say that with a continuation of the present campaign against the sale of liquor to the Indians the evil will be practically eradicated within a few years.

U. S. Pharmacopoeia.

The United States Pharmacopoeia, the book of books as far as the druggist and chemist are concerned, will not place whisky and brandy in the list of drugs.

Labor Against Booze.

John B. Lennen, treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, has recently stated:

"Who can deny that the liquor traffic is driving men and women to work in factories, workshops and wash tubs who ought not to be there, and boys and girls into industrial life who should be in school or on the playground? The liquor traffic tends to decrease wages, never to increase them. The use of alcohol makes men less skilful and drives them to lower scales of employment and reward."

South America.

The campaign against intemperance in South America is being well planned, with Peru unmistakably in the lead. Although the victory is sure, there are great obstacles to overcome, for the people of South America are a mixture of Latin and Indian blood, and in the matter of drinking, at least, Indian tendencies predominate. The Indian blood craves drink and is not satisfied to take it moderately. In Peru, however, the leading newspapers are allied with the temperance forces and there is a distinct gain in public sentiment noticeable. Peru also has compulsory temperance teaching in its schools, and no effort is being spared to train the children. With the kovernment, the schools and the newspapers united in a temperance crusade results are bound to come.

Governor of Kansas.

Governor Capper, on his return to Topeka from visiting the Golden State and the exposition, when interviewed, stated:

"I am of the opinion that prohibition will carry at the next election in California. If it wins its success will be due largely to the aggressive efforts of the former Kansans now living in California. As near as I could learn there are now over 40,000 ex-Kansans residing in the state. Almost without exception they are enthusiastic supporters of the campaign to put the saloon out of business.

"I talked with five other governors and with many senators, congressmen and other prominent visitors from all over the United States who are visiting the Pacific slope. Invariably they reported that the movement for national prohibition was growing rapidly all over the country. I am convinced that in less than 10 years there will not be a legalized saloon anywhere in the United States."

The Plattsburg Camp.

The country from one end to the other is reading about the big volunteer military camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., attended by 1500 business and professional men, among whom are Mayor Mitchell of New York City; Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Robert Bacon and others of great prominence. Chief among the instructions given the men was an admonition to the effect that liquor would not be permitted on the grounds, nor would the men be permitted to drink when away from the confines of the camp as long as they were a part of the training force. The penalty named was instant dismissal.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE IS MAKING PLANS FOR BIG AUTUMN CAMPAIGN

The monthly session of the Anti-Saloon League last Thursday was well attended. The superintendent, treasurer and secretary reported on the month's operations. Several letters from headquarters were read and plans were carefully considered for the autumn campaign. The educational work in the public schools will be vigorously pushed, it was announced. The superintendent will leave for a tour of the Big Island in the near future. The treasurer reported the names of several new subscribers to the funds of the league.

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO WORK OF LATE MRS. LYDIA COAN

Concerning the recent death of Mrs. Lydia Bingham Coan, daughter of one of the earliest missionaries to the Hawaiian islands the Anti-Saloon League reports as follows:

"The league regrets the loss by death of Mrs. Coan, who was always a staunch supporter of the work of temperance reform in these islands and for many years was one of the principal officers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, over which Mrs. J. M. Whitney has presided since its organiaztion in 1884. The executive committee of the league has placed upon record a suitable resolution expressing its sincere appreciation of Mrs. Coan's worth and work in this regard."

QUARTET SINGS IN MORNING AT CENTRAL UNION

Additional voices have been added to the choir of Central Union church. For the time being the department of church music will consist of a quartet choir under the direction of Miss Edith C. Gatfield, who will also act as organist. Tomorrow morning the personnel of the quartet will be as follows:

Mrs. C. L. Hall, soprano; Mrs. G. K. Tackabury, contralto; T. L. Bolton, tenor, and L. G. French, bass.

The following program will be rendered:

EARLY NOTICES FOR CHURCHES REQUESTED

Owing to the growing number of churches and religious institutions which desire to be represented on the special page devoted to churches each Saturday, and the consequent larger amount of preparation necessary, the Star-Bulletin finds it necessary to request that notices be sent earlier in the week. It has been customary to receive notices up to Friday evening, but it is now desired to have all such matter in on Thursday evening. Pastors and other church officers who cannot at times give their Sunday programs thus far in advance are requested to send in a note with information as to when their programs will be ready. Address all communications, "Church Page News, Star-Bulletin." Cooperation will secure the best results and insure the accurate publication of church news and notes.

REV. DAVID C. PETERS TELLS OF IMPRESSIONS HE GATHERED ON LONG MAINLAND TRIP THIS SUMMER

Pastor of Christian Church Believes Nation-Wide Reaction is Giving Men and Women Wholesome and Sobering Experience—Finds Less Industrial Controversy and More Co-operation—Country is Prospering and President Wilson's Handling of Foreign Affairs Has Won Him Strong Support—Anti-Saloon League Convention and Its Significance

[On his return from an extended mainland trip, Rev. David C. Peters, pastor of the Christian church, was asked by the Star-Bulletin for some of his impressions. They are given in the following article.]

What are my impressions of conditions in the States this year? They are rather complex, but a few stand out vividly.

In the first place, it may be well to say that my impressions are based upon extensive travel through the length of the continent. I left home in June and went east through the southern states, stopping at various points, up the Atlantic seaboard, through New England, the maritime provinces of Canada, and back through the middle states and along the Pacific coast.

I made an honest effort to acquaint myself with conditions and with this end in view I engaged in conversation with men in all walks in life, and this was done with great frequency. I did not allow an opportunity to slip—on the trains, on steamships, on street cars, in hotel lobbies, business houses, on the street and in public squares. I came into contact with men of all walks of life.

Industrial Conditions Good.

I think the first impression made upon my mind was that the industrial and financial condition was not in as much stress as I had supposed. It is true that along the Pacific coast there are a vast number of unemployed men, but throughout the Middle West and western states it seems utterly impossible to secure laborers enough to take care of the crops and on the Atlantic coast and especially in New England any man who could do anything worth while did not need to be idle. Of course, war orders to manufacturing concerns in the eastern states and in New England have brought about this condition there.

I was not a little surprised to notice the amount of reserve money in the banks, judging from their statements, and I was especially interested in noticing the wide range of individual deposits in the savings banks, especially through the central states.

South Dejected.

The South is dejected. The cotton crops seem to have been badly injured by excessive rains, and as everyone knows, market conditions have been very unfavorable, so the South is discouraged.

I was a little surprised when I saw the sugar cane fields of Louisiana. I had heard a great deal of the sugar plantations of the South, and I was prepared to see such plantations and such mills as we have in Hawaii, but the South has a long, long way to travel before she can make such an appearance as the cane industry in Hawaii makes.

We in Hawaii and the people on the western coast have been so indifferent to the present European trouble—I presume because we have been so little affected by it—that I was poorly prepared for the state of excitement which I found in the East and in the provinces of Canada. Of course, it is natural that Canada should be very much excited about it, because Canadian homes are being robbed of their finest young men.

Strong Support for Mr. Wilson.

The second thing that impressed me was the almost universal approval, apparently, given to President Wilson in his attitude toward the present European struggle. I doubt if ever a president of the United States faced a more serious crisis, unless perhaps it was Lincoln, than that faced by President Wilson, and it seems to me he has proved himself a remarkable statesman to be able to steer the nation through such troublous times.

But the most significant impression is the impression of the sobering of the American people. In spite of his statesmanship, I doubt very seriously if President Wilson could have prevented the American nation from becoming involved in the European struggle if he had been compelled to contend with an American spirit such as was dominant a year previous to the outbreak of the war.

It was only fourteen months ago that I made a similar extensive journey through the States and returned to Hawaii at that time impressed with the wantonness and recklessness and extravagance of the dominant American life. It seemed that men were obsessed at that time with the passion for money getting and pleasure seeking. A wave of animal emotionalism had apparently engulfed the whole American nation. It was manifested in all walks of life. It was noticeable on that former visit that the churches were being attended by small numbers of people and that most of the pulpit utterances of that time lacked that note of deep spiritual concern which always characterizes a pulpit of power.

Nation-wide Reaction.

This year there seems to be a nation-wide reaction taking place. First I noticed it in places of pleasure. There seemed to be a different type of pleasure features and that type is much healthier than that which I saw a year ago.

I noticed it in the church attendance. On a Sunday morning in July, I attended the Broadway Presbyterian church in New York city and was not a little surprised to find that great edifice occupied, even to the last foot of standing space, by an audience, a notable portion of which was composed of the business men, apparently, of the nation's metropolis, and they had come there to hear Hugh Black, who is known the world over for his spiritual intuition, and called by many a mystic. He did not talk about the European war, nor did he deal with any of a large number of popular interests confronting the American people, but he talked upon "The Reality of Spiritual Things," and that great audience listened with breathless attention. I purposely lingered to listen to the comments which were made, as they retired from the service in small groups and was greatly impressed with what I heard, for men were expressing pleasure in the fact that they could listen to a man who fed their spiritual nature.

The Anti-Saloon League Convention.

I went from Honolulu especially to attend the national convention of the Anti-Saloon League at Atlantic City. That was probably the most notable gathering of reform workers in the history of the United States. Certainly there were never so many men of national reputation together upon one platform at one time. They were statesmen and business men who are molding the thought and business program of the nation.

Ten years ago it was my privilege to be very intimately connected with the Anti-Saloon movement in the state of Colorado and to be rather familiar with the nation-wide movement of that period. The commonest argument to be heard on an Anti-Saloon platform at that time was that if the business man was to be interested in this great reform question, he must not be approached from the moral standpoint, but from that of business policy—that it was necessary to prove to the business man by uncontrovertible statistics gathered from those communities which had tried Prohibition, that business was better without the saloon than it was with it.

Naturally, I expected that note to be prominent in this great convention. Imagine my surprise as I listened to the addresses at Atlantic City—senators, members of the house of representatives, governors of states, molders of public opinion in private walks of life, business men whose connections are with the greatest industrial and financial concerns of the nation, again and again stated that their interest in the Anti-Saloon campaign that is being waged for a saloonless nation was one that was based upon its moral element regardless of its effect upon business.

There was no question in the mind of anyone that it was good for business and for the national life to eliminate the saloon, but business men have come to the point where they have courage enough to say: "We stand for a saloonless nation even if we have to pay for it with a decrease in our business." That indicates a tremendous reaction in American life and one that speaks much for the future.

Less Industrial Controversy.

I was also impressed with the changing attitude of men in industrial controversies. It seems to me there is a good deal less of the "I-don't-care-for-the-other-fellow" spirit than there was a few years ago. I drove in an automobile over a considerable length of the great State Highway in Colorado, which was built by money given by the Rockefellers to furnish employment for the strikers who had gone out in the Rockefeller mines pending the time of the settlement of that controversy, in order to prevent these men suffering dire want that would result from long unemployment.

I was also impressed with the movement made on the part of the Hecla and Calumet copper mines to divide with their employes, between whom and themselves only last year there was such a bitter struggle, the increased profits enjoyed by those companies as a result of the war prices.

These are only a few instances, but they illustrate what I believe to be the changing spirit of American life. Everywhere I felt a new atmosphere. People seemed more serious, they were soberer, and I think calmer than they were a year ago, and the impression was so distinct I am quite sure there must be something to it.

Rural Life Improving.

These are the major impressions. Among the minor impressions was that of the improving rural life. I grew up on the farm and have had a good deal of contact with rural life in all the years since. The austerity of country life in the time of my boyhood and even in latter years is very vivid among my memories. I knew full well that a great change had taken place, but I think I was not quite prepared for the change that had actually taken place. The prevalence of modern conveniences—the telephone electric light, daily mail delivery, modern sanitary conveniences, labor saving devices of every description, and consequently of course, a new social life has taken possession of rural sections. I do not wonder that there is a "back-to-the-soil" movement which is considerable, for the time has already come in which a man can live in the country with all the conveniences and with few of the discomforts of city life.

The Great Expositions.

It was my privilege to visit both the San Diego and San Francisco expositions. That at the southern city is small in comparison with that marvelous Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, but for beauty of architecture and landscape gardening, I have never seen anything to compare with the California-Pacific exposition at San Diego.

The larger world enterprise at the City of the Golden Gate is indescribable. The more I saw of it the more I marveled. It appealed to me not only as a great privilege, but as an actual duty, if it be possible, for every American citizen to see that exposition. Such a revelation of the world's progress, not only in industrial but in social life, I am sure has never before been presented to the world. It had a message for me—I came away from it encouraged, with such confidence in the on-going and up-going of humanity as I never have before possessed.

Mike Gibbons Will Be Favorite Over Packey

Great Middleweights Clash Tonight at Brighton in Fastest Bout in Years—McFarland's Retirement From Ring Will Make Gibbons Favorite—St. Paul Boy's Victory Over Clabby Wins Him Many Friends Who Believe He Will Win From Packey

For the first time since he stepped on the pugilistic pedestal, "Packey" McFarland will enter the ring with the odds quoted against him. He enters the ring this evening against Michael Gibbons of St. Paul and when the bell rings Gibbons will be the favorite, and the fans who gather at Brighton Beach will wonder if Packey can come back. There are those who will say that Packey doesn't need to come back. They maintain that the Stockyards wonder is there now, and that he will give the St. Paul middleweight a thorough whipping. Perhaps so.

It is true that Packey has not gone back to the extent that Jeffries did or Battling Nelson, but it is hard to get away from the fact that he hasn't been fighting top-notchers in over two years, and any fighter will lose his judgment of distance in that time, and his condition isn't apt to be the best. Of course, a short bout will not take the stamina of that required in a long battle, but it will take speed to win from Gibbons, and plenty of it.

Will Be Hero.

If Packey McFarland does what he says he will do he will be the greatest hero of the ring. If he wins from Gibbons he will establish a miracle in the fighting ring, and will do something that no man has ever done before in the ring—that is, come back after being out of the squared circle for two years. Sentiment will not have a thing to do with this battle. It didn't at Reno and it surely will not at Brighton. Every fight fan in the world will take off his hat to Packey as one of the greatest fighters of the age, and a popular representative of ristocuffs. They will say he was great but is he as good now? A great quantity of water has run down to the sea since Packey staged his last bout, and many moons have passed since the Stockyards wonder has had real competition. Packey has grown rich and fat, and this will be a bad combination to send against the greatest mitt artist in the ring today.

Gibbons Was Busy.

During the two years that Packey has been wining and dining, Gibbons has been pecking away at the best in the business. He has not been sparring or shadow boxing but mixing with many of the best ring artists in the world. For six long years Mike has been working his way to the top of the ladder. It is his ambition to retire with the title. He defeated Clabby and there remained McFarland. Mike will go into this battle ready. It will be the climax of his career. He says he will win. Perhaps he's right.

Packey will take up his labors once more and will endeavor to start where he left off. He used to box at 147. Now he will go into the ring much heavier, and not any stronger, and perhaps not so strong. Gibbons will train down from a middleweight and retain his strength. Packey fought last as a lightweight and his fat will be the additional poundage. Jim Corbett was out of the game when he fought Fitz. Ad Wolgast and Hat Nelson and many others are only incidents that prove that the man who wins must keep going.

It is true that Packey McFarland has lived an exemplary life. He is known as a man who is never out of condition, but there are other incidents where men have lived well and lost because they have not kept to the training that a fast mitt artist requires. His work at the training camp is said to be wonderful, and the same men said the same thing at Reno and Carson City. If Packey wins tonight he will go down in ring history with a great record, and poets may rave about him. In a short battle he might be able to hold the speedy Gibbons but it looks like the St. Paul boy for the winner. Both boxers declare they will win. They always do. Promoter Marshall has settled it all. He got them together. Now for the gong.

May the best man win!

BASEBALL AND POLO FEATURES AT SCHOFIELD

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Sept. 11.—The baseball attraction for tomorrow at the post baseball park will be a double-header. In the first game the 1st Field Artillery will play the St. Louis team of the Oahu League. The second game will be between the 1st Infantry and All-Chinese. In prior games this season St. Louis was defeated by the 1st Infantry 6 to 2, and defeated the 4th Cavalry 9 to 2. The Chinese were shut out by the 4th Cavalry in their first game 8 to 0, and succumbed to the 25th Infantry 7 to 3.

A polo game between the cavalry and field artillery was scheduled for this afternoon at 3 p. m., with a tea for the players and spectators after the game under the shade of some tent flies on the polo grounds. The teams were to line up as follows:

Another attraction for this afternoon is a post league game between the field artillery and the 25th Infantry.

FROM OAR TO BIG GUN.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Vivian Nickalls, who resigned as rowing coach of the University of Pennsylvania to return and fight for England, has, according to advices received here from London, received a probationary appointment as second lieutenant in the Royal Field Artillery.

MOSQUITO DOWNS FULLBACK.

That the ordinary mosquito is not awed by even a husky football player in training is proved by a recent attack on the fullback of the Muhlenburg College team in the training camp. As the result of a bite on the forearm blood poisoning developed and for a time amputation of the arm was thought to be the only means of saving the player's life. The poison finally yielded to treatment and Muhlenburg will be able to play her regular fullback before the season is far advanced.

CHINESE TEAM STILL WINNING ON ROAD TRIP

Two reports were received yesterday from the Chinese Travelers. They are still winning games when the last correspondence was made, and two victories over Pittsfield, Mass., and Trenton, N. J., teams are announced. In the Pittsfield game the Chinese won by a score of 5 to 3. Kau and Mark were the battery for the locals. The Travelers showed their usual speed by stealing six bases to their opponents' one. Lai Tin, Ayau, Yap and Lee were the heavy hitters for the locals. The Pittsfield papers praised the work of the locals in every department of the game.

In the Trenton game C. Chin held the Trenton team to five hits, but errors by the locals made the total of scores five for their opponents. The Chinese annexed seven runs on nine hits. J. Chin, Lai Tin and Mark were the heavy hitters for the Chinese organization.

The Chinese team may make the trip to Cuba, according to reports in the eastern press. Their string of victories on the mainland should make them a good drawing card in Cuba, where they will meet teams of championship calibre.

FRIEND OF KING DIES.

SHEFFIELD, England.—Henry Steel, head of the great English steel firm of Steel, Peech & Tozer, who has just died at his home here, was perhaps best known outside trade circles as the man who laid King Edward, then Prince of Wales, $5000 to a carrot against a horse at the Epsom races. The prince lost and paid with a carrot formed of coral mounted in gold.

Mr. Steel and his partner, Mr. Peech formed the greatest firm of bookmakers on the English turf 50 years ago. The fortune which they made on the racetrack enabled them to enter the iron and steel industry as pioneers in 1875. Mr. Steel died at the age of 83.

COURTNEY IMPROVING.

Late reports from Cornell University state that there is no further doubt regarding the complete recovery of Rowing Coach Courtney, who suffered a fracture of the skull previous to the intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie late in June. Courtney has made steady improvement during the last two months and is expected to be able to supervise the fall crew work at Ithaca, although it is likely that he will leave much of the details to John Hoyle. Unless there is some unforseen setback during the next few months Courtney will be in full charge of the rowing destinies of Cornell when the crews take the water early next spring.

RABBIT BEAT THIELMAN.

Though he was the first man up, two runners crossed the home plate one day recently when Jack Thielman, formerly a player in both the National and American leagues and also in the American association and now a mainstay of the St. Cloud team, lined out a long hit to center field in the game with Long Prairie at St. Cloud, Minn.

The ball that was driven clear to the fence hit a rabbit that was browsing in the long grass. Startled, the hare started for the diamond, touched second base, sped along the bush line a few jumps ahead of Thielman, rounded third base on account of the fans on the side line and dashed across the home plate, with the Seattle player hard on his heels.

"If we'd had another base to go," said Thielman, "I would have had to tell the rabbit to get out of the way and let some one run that could run."

UMP FAVORS BETTER STANDS FOR ROOTERS

A novel suggestion, offered with the idea of increasing the interest in baseball, is advanced by a well known umpire who has studied the national sport in all its angles. He proposes to move the bleachers nearer to the diamond and double the seating capacity of a majority of these stands in the big league parks. According to this authority the secret of baseball popularity lies in the enthusiasm of the bleacherite. He says:

"Modern baseball has crowded the bleacher fan to the far corners of the lot. He is so far removed from the play that he has lost his intimate acquaintance with the player and the game has suffered as a result. In the old days he was the life of the game. He was within speaking distance of both the infield and outfield players and never failed to speak out his opinion of plays both good and bad. His comments kept the players to their best efforts and they never shirked in their work for they knew that the bleacherite would not spare their feelings if he thought that they were not trying their hardest. The bleacher fan carried his enthusiasm with him 24 hours a day and was a constant booster for the game and a spur for the player. Baseball needs more fans of this type, but little boxes a quarter of a mile from the diamond are not going to develop this much-needed class of rooter."

Six officers and salesmen of the United States Cashier company, charged with conspiring to use the mails fraudulently in the sale of stocks, were found guilty by a jury in the United States district court at Portland, Ore. The jury had been out 21 hours.

"Utility John"

John Hummel, the utility man of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Hummel is known throughout the National League as one of the most versatile players in the game. Time and again he has filled in at Ebbetts field and on the road, and has always made good. He has filled Daubert's, Cutshaw's and Stengel's shoes at times, and is an aggressive player at all times. Wilbert Robinson states that he does not worry much when one of his players takes a rest as the great utility man is a good hitter and fielder. It would not be surprising to see the sub out in right field if Brooklyn ever gets into the world's series.

MEIJIS PLAY TODAY.

The attraction at Athletic Park this afternoon will be the game between the Meijis and the Portuguese. There is much rivalry between the two aggregations, and the fans who journey to the ball yard should see one of the best games of the Meiji series, as they are making every effort to win the balance of their games before they leave for Hawaii. With the Chicago and Japanese teams en tour the crowds will now turn their attention to the Meiji series. Sunday afternoon the newly organized Filipino team which won its first game against the Meijis, will play the Hawaiis in the opener, and Meiji will meet the Chinese in the final game of the day.

Following a strike in the Rock Island shops at Horton, Kan., the shops will be closed until further notice. About 500 men are thrown out of employment.

GOLF
Analyzed and Simplified

By JOHN ALBERT SCOTT

No. 2—The Grip, Right Hand.

It is here we will find the real reason for this form of gripping—in fact the key to this grip—and will see why the great players use it. Vardon, in his latest book on golf, says that the principle strength in holding the club should be in the first two fingers and the thumb. To grip with these three consciously and relax with the other two, is almost impossible, if the ordinary grip is used. Vardon also says it is to bring them into a close confederation, a happy union, etc., and of course it does, but there is a more understandable reason, one that is purely muscular.

The Overlapping Grip Exemplified by Vardon.

Look carefully at the photograph of the right hand, and then without a club, close the hand in the manner shown, letting the ends of all the fingers touch the palm. Now raise the little finger until it is at right angles with the palm of the hand. The third finger will rise with it and will have practically no power left in it—with the little finger held up, the third finger cannot be placed against the palm with any degree of strength.

Even with the little finger resting on the forefinger of the left hand, it will be found there is very little power in it or the third finger. The third finger will be further taken out of action by the position of the thumb of the left hand, which comes in such a position as to effectually prevent the end of the third finger coming into contact with the shaft. Without the end joints of the fingers being able to close firmly on whatever we try to grip, very little power is exerted.

These are very simple things to prove or disprove—try them.

The little finger of the right hand rests on the forefinger of the left hand, slightly toward the thumb, rather than toward the other side of the finger. The general and wrong way of using the overlapping grip, is to place the little finger between the forefinger and the second finger of the left hand. Besides being wrong, as compared with the methods of the great golfers, this position twists the right hand out of position and permits too much pressure being exerted by the little finger, which must be avoided.

The right hand, due to constant use of it in every-day avocations, is naturally inclined to overpower the left, and this is why the average professional is always telling his pupils to "use more left."

By gripping in the manner illustrated and described, the hands will properly apportion the work of themselves and you may proceed to swing without thought of gripping tightly with one set of fingers and relaxing with others. The right hand can be used to its full power as adjusted, in fact must be, which is what it will do instinctively, no matter how much you try to prevent it.

As in gripping, so in every part of the golf stroke, the great players so adjust themselves as to go on with the work in hand without consciously having to combat a natural inclination, as I will show in this series of articles.

RUDOLPH LEADS CHICAGO TEAM IN BASE HITS

Rudolph, the fast little second baseman of the Chicago University baseball team, was the leading Maroon in the hitting line during the local series. Rudolph batted for a .391 average, which is just about the mark that Ty Cobb has annexed this year. Rudolph fell down hard against "Illondy" Williams, but hit well in the other games. Kixmiller, who played a star game at the bat and in the field, was next on the list with a percentage of .333. McConnell carries off the booby prize with one hit in 19 times at bat. Following are the batting averages of the Maroons in their local games:

LEAGUE LEADERS GAIN ON RIVALS IN PENNANT RACE

Philadelphia gained on the leaders yesterday when Pittsburg defeated Boston and Brooklyn did not play. The race is still a good one, and an upset may be due at any time. Brooklyn should give the Quakers trouble when they meet, and the schedule of the Superbas looks to be the best of any of the teams.

In the American League the Boston Red Sox again defeated the lowly Athletics, but the Tigers are still in the race, and before the season is over Hughey Jennings may have something to say. The fans will hardly forget that the Detroit bunch are known for their play at the finish. Chicago will play Boston for four games today, and Detroit will be at New York. The White Sox have played good ball this year against their red-hosed brethren, and should take at least two out of the four from the Beaneaters.

COMISKEY MAY LAND M'INNIS

CHICAGO, Ill.—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, and "Connie" Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, held a secret conference in Chicago on Friday which lasted several hours. After it was over they admitted that matters pertaining to certain changes in the makeups of the two clubs over which they preside were discussed, but denied positively that anything concerning the future of J. Franklin Baker was discussed.

From an inside source, however, it was learned that the player under discussion was John ("Stuffy") McInnis, who a few days ago left the Philadelphia team without telling any one where he was going and is reported to have returned to his home in Gloucester, Mass.

It is believed that Mack is scheming to sell McInnis to the White Sox, and that, if he joins the team, Jacques Fournier will be sent to cover third base and Russel Blackburne, who has been the weak spot in the infield all season, will be benched. With an infield consisting of McInnis, "Eddie" Collins, "Buck" Weaver and Fournier, the pale hose outfit would have a stone wall defense which would compare favorably with the famous Mack $100,000 infield, which was made up of McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker.

"Stuffy," who is one of the best first sackers the game has seen, has been dissatisfied because of his connection with a tail end team all season, and on many occasions he has openly expressed regret that Mack did not sell him to some other club. Therefore, it was no surprise when he suddenly left the outfit, and it is believed that he would jump at the chance to join the White Sox, on which are two of his old-time "pals," Collins and "Eddie" Murphy.

Football Stars Will Begin Practise Soon

Mills, Punahou, Kamehameha and McKinley Will Again Be Represented By Strong Teams—College of Hawaii May Have Contests With Other Schools—Punahou Loses Many Stars of Last Year's Winning Team—Mills Has Stronger Lineup

When the players of the different schools don the moleskins this month, they will begin what appears to be the most successful year in the history of the gridiron sport. Punahou, last year's champions, Mills, McKinley and Kamehameha have good football material in sight and the race this year for honors should show the football adherents of this city the most even fight in the history of the game.

Mills School should figure as a strong team this year, as it has at the present improved more than any other squad in the city. The lads will be in position to profit greatly from their experience of last year, and will have in Will Birney, a former Whitman star, a valuable coach. Birney received his training under Archie Hahn at Walla Walla and was one of the stars of the northwest. The team was light last year but showed to advantage considering the fact that it was their first year in football competition.

Punahou Loses Stars.

Punahou has lost some good material, but will always be found in the running for premier honors. Graduation and retirement struck blows to Punahou as the champions have lost Capt. Austin, Magoon, Brown and Quintal in addition to other players. The loss of Quintal will be the hardest blow as this star alone scored half of Punahou's points, and his long kicks netted two-thirds of the total distance gained for the season. Several strong men from last year's scrubs will be out, and Captain-elect Naphaa hopes to produces another winner despite the loss of the many stars. F. E. Midkiff will again act as coach with Sager, a Syracuse man as assistant. This is a strong coaching staff.

Kamehameha will have very promising material with which to build a successful team. Emo, Shipman, Cockett and Hipa will not be in the lineup this season, but the second team will be called on to furnish material to take their places. Inasmuch as the Kamehameha second team was the best in the league last year the team will have plenty of weight. Coach Borden is not worrying over losing games this year.

College May Play.

The situation at McKinley this year will be about the same as last. They will lose Capt. Brasch and Wong, but will be greatly strengthened by the addition of the Carter boys who did not play last year. It is thought that the College of Hawaii will place a team in the field this year, and should the stars of the high schools turn out for the team they would stand a chance of figuring with the other schools for the championship. The training season and practise has not yet started but the men will be in uniform soon ready for the grueling season that is sure to come this fall. The sentiment of the public appears to be that no one team has a mortgage on the championship this year and predict hard battles before the curtain is rung down on the gridiron sport this fall.

Over the Net

In McLoughlin's new book on tennis, entitled "Tennis as I Play It," on page 331 he has the following to say of Honolulu (after Fiji):

"One other stop in the mid-Pacific was Honolulu. Here also there is keen interest in tennis. The courts for the most part are of either dirt or asphalt. It is a surprising thing that there are practically no turf courts there. We found it difficult to stay out of the water long enough to play tennis, as the surf bathing is marvelous. Most of the players are American college men who learned their game on the mainland, and have since gone into business on the islands, and some play a very good game. A finer set of good fellows and sportsmen cannot possibly be found. They are all of championship calliber in this respect if not in their tennis."

New Zealand tennis players have organized a movement to erect a memorial to the late Captain Anthony F. Wilding, the international player who was killed while serving with the British army at the Dardanelles. A memorial will be erected at his birthplace in Christchurch, and a further fund will be obtained for perpetual Wilding trophies for the singles championships of New Zealand.

Tennis racquet makers and repairers report unprecedented business for the season to date. Several of the most expert racquet stringers of the East state that never in the history of tennis has the demand in their line been so heavy. The increase of tournament play and the number of new courts established are given as reasons for the banner tennis business.

Devotees of tennis the world over will regret to hear that George Lambert, who held the world's professional lawn tennis championship for 14 years, is dead. Lambert was 73 years of age. Lambert lost the championship in 1885 to Tom Pettit of Boston.

The big black boxer announced that he has given up the ring for good and will henceforth seek his limelight on the stage. He appears in a leading part of a musical comedy entitled "Seconds Out," now running at a big suburban music hall.

SEASON CLOSES IN MINORS FOR PRESENT YEAR

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Baseball players in a number of the minor leagues have donned their uniforms for the last time this season. Including those leagues which have already closed their 1915 pennant contests, more than 50 per cent of the associations embraced in organized baseball have made their last appearance on the diamond with the double-headers of Monday.

Among those which have closed the season are the following leagues: Western, Texas, New York, New England, South Michigan, Central Association, Virginia, Atlantic, Colonial, Ohio and California State. The closing days of August saw the final games in the Western Association, South Atlantic, Central, Georgia State, Buckeye, Middle Texas, Georgia-Alabama, Blue Ridge and Nebraska leagues.

Before the end of the month the American Association, Southern, Three I, North Carolina, Northwestern, Bi-State and Canadian leagues will have completed their schedules and left the field clear for the National, American, Federal and Pacific Coast leagues and the climax of the baseball year—the world's series.

INDIAN BALL PLAYERS ARE SLOWLY DRIFTING OUT OF NATIONAL GAME

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The Indians seem to be disappearing from baseball. Chief Bender, Chief Meyers, Chief Johnson, Jim Thorpe and Jim Bluejacket seem to be the sole remaining members of the race that once cut a wide swath in the pastime. And Bender and Meyers are due to pass soon beyond the big league horizon.

Justin Clarke, Balenti, Jude, LeRoy, Bruce and a flock of others who came from the wind-swept plains of the West to grace the big league diamonds have gone—and none come to take their place.

A few years ago an Indian on a ball team was figured as a big drawing card. But they draw no more and the big league scouts seem to be giving them the go-by.

DOG'S BODY EMBALMED, BURIED IN FAMILY PLAT

BAKERSFIELD, Cal. — Mourning the death of his pet bulldog, "Bean," Jay Ransch, the jockey, who has worn the colors of many famous racing stables on the eastern tracks and in England and France, had the animal embalmed by a San Francisco undertaker and placed in a specially constructed casket, and, accompanied by his wife, brought the remains to this city, where he interred them in the Ransch burial plat.

Ransch and his wife returned to San Francisco, the journey to this city being made especially to bring the dog here. Ransch was raised in this county and obtained his early training by riding the Kerr horses on the local tracks.

SAYS DEFENSES ARE NOT ENOUGH FOR OUR NEEDS

"Traitors and Fools" Place U. S. In Danger, Declares Dr. W. T. Hornaday

Dr. William Temple Hornaday, the eminent author, zoologist and director of the New York Zoological Park, has recently been elected vice-president of the Army League of the United States. Few prominent men are as thoroughly aroused by the needs of our national defense as Doctor Hornaday. He has just started on a lecture tour, during which he intends to devote much of his time to the discussion of the national defense problem.

"These are anxious times," said Doctor Hornaday. "The American nation is beset by international perplexities and also causes for great anxiety. With no disparagement whatever to our existing army and navy, we must admit that as a whole the defense of the coasts of the United States and our overseas possessions is alarmingly inadequate. Let us not be blind to this ugly fact. It is the fault of the American people as a whole. Outside the ranks of the army and navy and their immediate allies, we, the people, have for years been sound asleep!

"Now that grave conditions have been sprung upon us, we must bestir ourselves and make quick and vigorous efforts to place our nation in a defensive state of defense. There are in the country of ours as many traitors, as many fools, that the loyal people of America have upon their shoulders an extra burden of responsibility. I refer particularly to those who are opposing the increase of our national defense.

"The time has come for every American who believes that national and individual honor is something worth fighting for, and who believes in being fully prepared to resist aggression and injury from whatever source it may come, to stand up and be counted. Let us awake now, and get now!

"There is some mighty serious work to be done in backing up the president and the loyal members of Congress. There is work to be done in smothering the pernicious and disloyal influences that during the last six months have been springing up thickly, like foul weeds, along the pathway of this nation. I am for peace; but it must be peace with untarnished honor!"

Schofield Notes

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Sept. 11.—2d Lieut. L. A. Beard, 1st Field Artillery, and Veterinarian A. L. Mason, 4th Cavalry, have gone to Hawaii to inspect purchase horses for the government. On the board are also Lieut.-col. B. Frank Cheatham, department quartermaster, and 1st Lieut. R. H. Kimball, 4th Cavalry, aide to Gen. Carter. The board left on the S. S. Mauna Kea last Wednesday and expect to return on Tuesday. The board was to proceed to Kawaihae, thence to Parker's Ranch at Waimea by motor, thence on horseback about 16 miles to Kukaiau Ranch, then to Hilo to embark for Honolulu. It is expected that 100 horses will be purchased if that many pass the rigid inspection required, 38 for the cavalry, 34 for the field artillery and 12 riding horses for the infantry regiments. The Hawaiian horses purchased last year have proved just as satisfactory for army use, if not more so, than those shipped from the mainland.

The arrival of 19 officers for assignment to the 1st Infantry on the transport Logan due about September 15, is going to cause some doubling up in the 1st Infantry quarters at Castner until the departure for the mainland of the November transport, when quite a number of officers are due to leave. There are now only eight vacant quarters in the 1st Infantry post.

The funeral of Pvt. Paul Schutte, Troop B, 4th Cavalry, who died at the post hospital on Monday, took place at the post chapel on Tuesday afternoon. The remains will be shipped on the next transport to his home at Sheboygan, Wis. Schutte had been in the service only a little over 11 months.

The lack of water in the upper cantonments has been keenly felt during the last few days. The supply is very low and the strictest economy has been required in its use. Castner has not felt the drought, as the supply to that part of the post comes from the Koolau range.

WHAT NATIONAL GUARD MEANS IN TIMES OF PEACE

Value of Training and Experience Given as Viewed By Active Member Who Knows

By M. P. MORGAN,
Q.-M. Sgt. Co. D, 1st Inf., N. G. H.

What relation to the defense of the country has the National Guard as compared with the regular army? Why should the civilian join the militia, and what does he get out of it in time of peace?

These are questions that are often put to members of the National Guard in Honolulu and it is very probable that were the aims and methods of attaining the desired results more thoroughly understood by the civilian the National Guard at all times would be recruited to full strength. No doubt there is in Honolulu many a man of military age who would enjoy an enlistment in the local militia if he knew what to expect from it.

Organization and Equipment.

The National Guard of Hawaii, like that of the various states of the mainland, is organized along the same lines as a regiment of infantry in the regular army. Its officers and non-commissioned officers are of the same relative rank as those of the regular service, and are required to pass an examination before being appointed.

The Hawaii militia is composed of one full regiment of 12 companies of infantry, one hospital detachment and a band of about 30 pieces. Of this one company is located on Maui and one company on Hawaii. There has recently been recruited six new companies on Hawaii which will soon be sworn in and steps are now being taken to organize several troops of cavalry on the various islands of the territory, including Oahu. Also, there will soon be mustered into the service in Honolulu an engineer company and a machine gun company.

Equipment Up-to-Date.

The equipment of the National Guard no longer consists of the cast-off uniforms, rifles, etc., of the regular army, as prevailed prior to the Spanish-American war. Since the reorganization of the guard some years ago the United States government fully and completely equips each company with a new outfit of uniforms, blankets, rifles and the various paraphernalia identical to that furnished in the regular service.

No doubt it will be interesting to the layman to know just what constitutes the full equipment of a soldier in the national Guard of Hawaii. As furnished here for tropical service it is is follows: One pair marching shoes, pair canvas leggings, khaki trousers and blouse, campaign hat with hat cord, olive-drab woolen shirt, service web cartridge belt with first aid pack, bayonet and scabbard, canteen, haversack containing folding mess kit, knife, fork and spoon, large tin cup and bags for sugar and coffee. He is also given a shelter-half, with poles and pins, which, when buttoned with the one carried by his "bunkie" forms what is commonly called a "pup" tent. When in the field or marching he rolls inside this shelter-half a woolen blanket, oiled poncho, mosquito net, extra socks and underwear. This outfit, with his rifle, completes one soldier's personal equipment, and is always immediately issued to every recruit. In each company room at the local armory every man is assigned a locker in which he keeps his own outfit as long as he is in the service.

Drills and Maneuver Camps.

Drills are held at the local armory, on Hotel street, opposite the Capitol building, each company being assigned a certain night in the week, and consists of about one and one-half hour's work. The drills are varied by practise in close and extended order, bayonet exercises and manual of arms.

Frequently the various companies organize weekend trips, marching out on a Saturday evening to some nearby point where the men are given the experience of tent pitching, camping and hiking in full field equipment. On these weekend encampments opportunity is given to work out tactical problems, map drawing and camp sanitation. These trips are always looked forward to with keen pleasure by the militiaman as it gives him a chance to work out in practise the theoretical knowledge gained at the weekly drills.

Every two years the entire command of the Hawaii National Guard goes into camp for a period of 10 days for maneuvers in conjunction with troops of the regular army. Here wartime conditions and discipline is maintained as nearly as possible, and various tactical field problems of offense and defense are worked out with numerous sham battles between the "defenders" and "invaders."

At these encampments the troops are well fed with plenty of wholesome food, and receive the same rate of pay from the federal government as is given the soldier in the regular army, varying acording to rank. In addition to the federal pay the territory allows him sufficient to make his total pay $2 per day while in the government service.

Plenty of Rifle Practise.

For one who enjoys rifle practise or who has a desire to learn to use a modern highpower rifle there is no club that gives a better opportunity than the National Guard. The United States government furnishes the National Guard each year free of charge with a large amount of ammunition for the service rifle and also for the sub-caliber (22 caliber) rifle for indoor gallery practise. The recruit who has never handled the army rifle is first given instruction on the indoor range with a regulation army rifle having a 22 caliber bore instead of 30 caliber as with the service rifle. A competent instructor, usually a non-commissioned officer who is a good shot, is detailed to give individual instruction in sight setting, loading and firing. After a course on the indoor range the rifle student is sent to the regular service outdoor range, where his instruction is continued throughout the practise season, at the end of which time he should be a fairly good shot.

After the practise season the record season begins and the soldier is given an opportunity to earn the much sought government medals for the different classifications, consisting of marksman, sharpshooter and expert rifleman, the last named being the highest available.

Length of Enlistment.

Contrary to general opinion the length of enlistment in the National Guard has not been changed to correspond to that of the regular army—four years with three additional years in the reserves. The National Guard enlistment is for three years. However, should one permanently remove from the territory or become so situated on account of business or other conditions that it is impossible for him to attend to his military duties, he is entitled to an honorable discharge before his period of enlistment has expired, providing his service has been honest and faithful.

That the military work of the National Guardsman becomes alluring is proved by the fact that in every company there are to be found men who have put in many years in the guard and continue to "reenlist" as soon as their time is up.

Physical Training of Value.

The training a young man receives in a military organization is of inestimable value to him in a physical way. It teaches him to walk right, breathe deep, hold his shoulders and head up, and in general gives him a grace of carriage hard to obtain in any other way. This is often noted after about a year's drilling—even of only one night a week. The knowledge one gains of personal hygiene, care of the feet and first aid to the injured, all of which is included in a soldier's schooling, is something everyone should know.

According to the announcement of Col. Samuel I. Johnson, the adjutant-general, he plans to fully equip the gymnasium room in the Honolulu armory and to establish a library in the reading room; also to install billiard tables and bowling alleys for the social entertainment of local militiamen, all of which will be for the free use of members of the guard.

This will do much to give an additional incentive to service in the National Guard. Applications for enlistment may be made to an officer of any of the local companies on their drill night at the armory.

INCREASED RANGE FOR GUNS AT COAST DEFENSES IS FIRST PLAN

As Old 12 and 14 Inch Rifles Wear Out 16 Inch Guns Will Be Substituted; Need Men

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 30. — Increased range for big guns on land and sea is now receiving the earnest attention of army and navy officials. It is desired to obtain the throwing of shells to such a distance as well prevent successful bombardment of coast cities by a hostile fleet.

The coast artillery was given first consideration. In all cases when possible 16-inch rifles will be substituted for the present 12-inch and 14-inch guns. This change will not be effected at once but by degrees. It is sought to secure a 20-mile range for the protection of the seacoast fortifications.

Especial interest is being taken in the adequate protection of the Panama canal. The coast artillery forces on duty there will be increased to its full strength of 28 companies comprising about 2000 men. Heretofore it has been the policy to maintain the big gun crews at about half strength in time of peace. This plan will be abandoned on the Canal Zone.

At present the fortifications of the great waterway are rapidly approaching completion. The original plan of the officials here was to man them with 14 companies, under the theory that it was improbable that the defenses at both ends of the waterway would be attacked simultaneously, and the canal and railroad made rapid shifting of the forces to the danger point possible.

Under the general readjustment plans of the army, however, full garrisons for the canal defenses have been determined upon, and it is considered certain that a big increase in the Coast Artillery Corps will be asked for when Congress reassembles, as the doubling of the canal force will materially reduce the forces in territorial United States.

Plans are now before the army fortifications board for the equipment of new fortifications of the first-class with 16-inch rifles, having a range of about 20 miles. It is not proposed to substitute these gigantic weapons for the present 12 and 14-inch batteries at once, but in all works when the smaller guns are worn out and discarded, the 16-inch rifles will be installed.

Changes in gun carriages, magazines and other equipment for handling the bigger guns would make the cost of substituting them for the present weapons almost prohibitive.

RIFLEMEN WILL HAVE PART IN DEFENSE PLAN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 11.—Announcement was made today that the Navy League will participate in the great Conference on National Defense, which will be held in Washington October 4 to 7, under auspices of the National Defense League, immediately following the Grand Army of the Republic Encampment.

Tuesday, October 5, has been set aside on the conference program as Navy Day, and on this date the Navy League will have complete charge of the program.

The National Rifle Association of America has announced that its members also will participate in the conference on national defense. Secretary Albert S. Jones of the association has sent invitations to all members of his organization to attend the conference, where civilian training in the use of the military rifle will be one of the most important matters considered. Assistant Secretary of War Breckenridge, who is head of the Government Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practise, will represent the National Rifle Association at the conference if his duties at the War Department permit, and there will be other speakers on rifle practise.

NATIONAL GUARD NOTES

Col. Samuel I. Johnson, the adjutant general, announces that his presence at the armory to supervise drills and maneuvers will continue indefinitely. It is the intention of Col. Johnson to spend all of his evenings at the armory on drill nights, and not merely to drop in now and again for a casual inspection.

Backing Col. Samuel I. Johnson, the adjutant-general, in his work of building up the National Guard of Hawaii, the Honolulu Gas Company, Ltd., is extending to its employes every encouragement to join the organization. Notices have been posted by the company, informing its employes that it is greatly to the interest of Honolulu to maintain the National Guard at its full strength and to have the attendance as regular as possible. The notices state that arrangements have been made by which gas company employes will be relieved from duty when their work requires it.

Hawaii leads 10 states in the showing made by its National Guard in the last year, according to a table apportionment which is based on the showing made in the previous year. The table shows that there are 10 states whose National Guard records in the last year were not equal to those made by the organization in the Territory of Hawaii. The amount apportioned to the National Guard of Hawaii for 1916 is $14,722.49. This amount is higher than the apportionments made the states of Arizona, Delaware, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Utah, Vermont and Wyoming.

JAPANESE 'BOYS' NOT WANTED ON U. S. NAVY CRAFT

NORFOLK, Va.—There are no Japanese on any of the ships of the Atlantic fleet, now engaged in target practise off the Virginia capes. Naval officers say there are no Japanese in the navy at present.

Their elimination has been brought about since it was discovered that many of the little brown men who shipped as stewards and mess attendants for officers, were really training to command ships of the Mikado's navy.

Naval officers also say they had observed that during the target practise of American ships the Japanese remained on deck or as near the guns as possible, apparently endeavoring to learn all they could about American methods of gunnery. Filipinos are taking the place of Japanese in the American navy.

One 16-inch rifle, built several years ago, has been ordered installed in the Canal Zone defenses. It is understood, however, that a newer type of gun has been developed by army engineers with increased range and striking power.

Change in Warship Batteries.

Main batteries of American battleships hereafter will be given an elevation of 30 degrees, practically doubling the present angle of fire, according to a decision reached by Navy Department experts, it is said, after close study of the naval engagements of the European war.

The change will materially increase the range of the navy's 14-inch guns, and enable them to hurl shells at objects far beyond the horizon or over hills of considerable size in bombarding land fortifications.

A new problem has been presented as a result of the high-angle fire, and navy experts are studying methods of increasing deck armor against the plunging fire of shells hurled from a great distance. They are faced, however, by the necessity of either reducing the weight of armor on the sides or increasing the size of the ship to carry the additional weight. Battleships of the California class will have a beam of nearly 100 feet, the maximum that the Panama canal can accommodate, and it is thought that the two new ships authorized by the last Congress will be considerably over 600 feet in length, to provide the additional tonnage necessary.

It was reported in Chicago that large orders for canned meats and fish have been obtained from the Russian government by the Booth Fisheries Co.

At a special meeting of the Goldfield Merger Mines Company the capital stock was increased from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000.

September 9, 1915.

1. The journeys performed by Lieut.-col. John E. McMahon, 1st Field Artillery, in attending sessions of the Oahu Defense Board, as consulting member, from Schofield Barracks to Honolulu, T. H., and return, July 17 and August 30, 1915, are confirmed.

2. Pvt. George L. Riley, Company B, 25th Infantry, Schofield Barracks, T. H., will be discharged from the army by the commanding general of that post, by purchase.

1. Pvt. Doctor F. Bryan, Company E, 2d Infantry, Fort Shafter, T. H., will be discharged from the army by the commanding officer of that post, by purchase.

2. First-class Sgt. Clarence Sawyer and First-class Pvt. Llewellyn Sullivan, Signal Corps, upon their arrival at Honolulu, T. H., on or about Sept. 14, 1915, will proceed to Fort Shafter, T. H., reporting on arrival to the commanding officer, Telephone and Telegraph Platoon, Company M, Signal Corps, for duty.

3. Pvt. Allan A. Gordon, 143d Company, Coast Artillery Corps, Fort Kamehameha, T. H., is transferred to the Quartermaster Corps, and will proceed to Honolulu, T. H.

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

HILO, September 10.—Col. Cheatham, accompanied by Lieut. Beard and several other army officers, arrived at Kawaihae on Wednesday evening on the Mauna Kea for the purpose of purchasing horses for army remounts. The party is on one of its regular trips and after selecting the needed horses will come to Hilo for a trip.

The army officials are purchasing a large number of horses from the Hawaii ranches, and drafts of the remounts are forwarded from time to time to Oahu, where they are used in the mounted branches of the service.

We cannot under our existing unpreparedness obtain and retain our own national rights if seriously opposed therein.—Henry B. Joy.

U. S. RELATIONS WITH TEUTONIC NATIONS NEARING OPEN RUPTURE

Germany's Note on Arabic Incident Considered Entirely Unsatisfactory

U. S. ANSWER MAY BE PRACTICALLY ULTIMATUM

Little Hope Felt at Capital That Crisis Can Be Amicably Bridged

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless] The relations between the United States and Germany and Austro-Hungary are nearer the breaking point today than at any time in the history of the war. Only a trifle more friction is required to induce the administration to hand the German and Austrian ambassadors their passports and break off diplomatic relations.

The complete exposure made of the efforts of Ambassador Dumba to cripple the carrying on of the legitimate trade of the United States, following on the heels of accusations made of a German conspiracy with the same object, centering in the German embassy, partly precipitated the crisis.

Note Unsatisfactory.

Completing it and bringing the administration to a realization of real Teuton intention is the official German note regarding the torpedoing of the Arabic, in which two American citizens were killed. The formal note is regarded as wholly unsatisfactory and is especially disappointing in that it is almost exactly contrary to the informal representations made to the state department by Count von Bernstorff.

The representations of von Bernstorff were to the effect that Germany would be found prepared to offer the United States full satisfaction in the event that it be found that the Arabic had been sunk by a German submarine. The formal note acknowledges that a German submarine attacked the passenger liner without any warning, but that the circumstances of the affairs, with the German commander acting under the belief that he was the object of an attack, relieves the German government of any obligation to indemnify anyone for the death of the two Americans.

There is open talk in official circles of the advisability of an immediate breaking off of diplomatic relations with both Germany and Austria and it is known that some high in the confidence of the administration are urging that this be done.

It is unofficially stated that Germany is expected to send a supplementary note, taking a radically different stand from that assumed in the note delivered on Thursday, and this expectation is the only basis existing for any further optimism over the outlook.

Unless such a second note is received, says the same unofficial authority, the reply of the United States will be made within a week, in which the American position will be stated so briefly and in such unmistakeable language that Germany, if she so chooses, may regard it as an ultimatum.

Officials here are almost without hope of a satisfactory outcome of the American-German situation. The status of Germany's submarine warfare is believed to have reverted to exactly what it was when the liner Lusitania was attacked and sunk.

CHICAGO AUSTRIANS CONDEMN ACTIVITIES OF ENVOY OF EMPEROR

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 11.—A telegram sent to President Wilson last night, signed by the representatives of the 12,000 Austro-Hungarians in Chicago, declares that more than one-half the population of Austria and Hungary condemn the actions of Ambassador Dumba, which is characterized as "a violation of every recognized diplomatic propriety."

TAFT CALLS DUMBA RECALL ONLY COURSE

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 11.—Former President Taft, in a statement last night regarding the disclosures of the activities of Ambassador Dumba and the request from President Wilson to the Austrian government for the immediate recall of the envoy, indorsed the attitude of the Washington administration throughout.

"In my judgment, President Wilson and his advisers have pursued the only course open to them in the case of Ambassador Dumba," he said.

Prof. Vaughan MacCaughey of the College of Hawaii has returned from his fourth important lecture tour in the states, tours which have resulted in a remarkably large amount of valuable publicity for Hawaii as well as valuable experience for the well known educator.

A total mileage of 11,000 miles was covered by Professor MacCaughey during the summer. He lectured in the southern and eastern states, from Oklahoma to New York. He then gave six weeks of biological teaching at Chautauqua Institution summer schools at Chautauqua Lake, N. Y. Here also he gave a series of illustrated lectures upon Hawaii, with special reference to natural history and educational development. His summer's activities included lectures at universities, colleges and state normal schools, including 10 lectures before the University of Pittsburg, four lectures before the University of Illinois, and one at the University of Oklahoma. He participated in several educational conferences in the East at New York, Washington, Pittsburg and elsewhere. A part of his busy summer's work was to make studies of recent educational developments in the East, particularly in the teaching of the biological sciences and the development of university and college extension work.

He already has numerous return engagements for the summer of 1916, covering the East and Middle West.

During his several lecture tours he has established popularity in many states of the union, and his talks upon Hawaiian subjects have brought home to many people facts about the islands in a popular and yet scientifically accurate manner.

As an instance of the broad field of Prof. MacCaughey's activities, the following biographical matter may be cited:

Prof. Vaughan MacCaughey.

Student at Cornell University 1904-1908. Participated in the rural extension work of the College of Agriculture, 1905-08. Assisted in the Department of Entomology, 1905-08. New York State Institute Work, 1906-08, lecturing throughout the state. B. S. A. 1908.

Instructor in nature study and field biology, the School of Pedagogy, Chautauqua Institution Summer Schools Chautauqua, N. Y., summers 1906 and 1907; Natural History courses, 1914-15.

Head of the Department of Biology, Territorial Normal and Training School, Honolulu, Hawaii, 1908-09. Vice-principal, 1909. Scientific explorations of the islands of Oahu, Hawaii, Maui and Kauai, 1908-15.

Professor of botany, College of Hawaii, 1910-15. In charge of extension work, 1911-15. Joint editor of the Hawaii Educational Review, 1913-15. Biological survey of Oahu, 1914-15.

Visiting professor, University of California summer session, 1911, giving courses in school agriculture and in rural education.

Visiting professor at the summer school in agriculture, Cornell University, 1912, giving courses in agricultural education, high school agriculture and school gardening.

Principal of Mills School, Mid-Pacific Institute, Honolulu, summer of 1913.

Third mainland teaching and lecture trip, summer 1914. Natural history courses, Chautauqua Institution, summer schools. Short courses at State Normal Schools, Silver City, N. M., and Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Fourth lecture tour, summer of 1915, 10 weeks.

Fellow, American Association Advancement of Science; member, National Education Association; sometime—president, Agassiz Club of Cornell University; member, Hawaiian Historical Society; member, University Club of Honolulu; chairman, Religious Education committee, Central Union church; member, standing committee, Central Union church; superintendent, Central Union Bible School.

Brother Dutton Mourns Loss Of Friend, Dr. N. B. Emerson

Baldwin Home,

Editor Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

Sir:—Because of my personal interest in the late Dr. N. B. Emerson—and because of his many acts of kindness towards me I wished to thank you for your fine tribute to his memory. It seems a much belated expression—this—and so it is, according to above date, but I'm writing this—making it shorter, from a letter begun July 22 last. Matters urgent have kept me busy all this time, especially as I've promised to take more sleep—to take my full four hours as of long habit up to past 15 years in which I've been cutting out part of it. Am taking four again—save the two per week—before outgoing mails. This night being one of the two.

The envelopes are an object lesson—look as if they had been to Mexico and back—from fumbling over the unanswered letters—fully 250—in the boxes and bundles. Letters of 1915-14-13 and 12—maybe a few older—and all from very dear friends—of all the years back to boyhood in the 1850s and 60s—61—just 18 years—ready for tor the civil war. And now I'm making the letter longer rather than shorter. Not knowing you—may suspect it's all of no interest to you. Old chaps live in the past.

Here is a scrap though such as may interest you. The publisher sends that daily paper from my boyhood town. (Born in Vermont, 4 years of age when family came to Wisconsin) these ever so many years because I was folder in the first printing office there. The Jamesville Free Press, the grandfather of this gazette.

The Rugers mentioned were in 13th Wisconsin infantry veteran volunteers—same as self—and are brothers of Maj.-gen. Thos. H. Ruger—dedicated after whom the Diamond Head fort is named.

Coming back to Dr. Emerson, it has been a pleasure to give data of him long ago to the Wisconsin State Historical Society, of which I have been corresponding member from about 10 years of age. In fact we were boys together when its foundations were being laid by that peerless librarian, Lyman C. Draper, and it now stands in the front rank of all. In Mississippi valley records it has no equal.

And now you will call me equal to any bore you ever heard of.

So good night and may do better some other time.

JOSEPH DUTTON.

The clipping to which Brother Dutton refers is from the Janesville, Wis., Daily Gazette. It says:

In the following letter received from "Father" Joseph Dutton, the writer tells of the sad news conveyed to him of the death of the late Captain Norcross. Other interesting stories of various incidents are told. The letter is as follows:

Kalawao, Molokai, Hawaii,
July 26, 1915.

Running over the letters and memoranda in your package, it is evident I'm not doing a full part. In fact this seems true, not only as to Janesville, but as to the full range of correspondence. Have for some time noted this, likewise as to the character and solid worth of all those who write me. If this is highly gratifying as to the men it is particularly so as to the women, of those about my own age, also of their daughters and granddaughters. In this time of wonderfully comic dressing, as seen in the fashion plates, styles gone mad, as one may say, comparison is easy. It has been highly gratifying for me to note in the numerous photographs sent, that, without exception, all are decently, nicely and sensibly dressed.

This topic seems almost frivolous, considering the motive that prompted me in writing you. I did, however, wish to say, at the beginning, that I'm ashamed to appear so greatly in debt to these splendidly faithful correspondents. In many cases, I find from four to ten lovely, highly edifying letters written since any has come from me. These letters are wholesome and in every way good. It is fair for me to say that I appreciate them very highly, as I ought. If, in the past ten or fifteen years (perhaps twelve-five years would be more accurate), I have often failed to repay becomingly, it has never been so through my own wish or desire. And I'm willing to be ashamed, when not able, through circumstances to do my own part better, in order to have the powerful aid that interested noble and honest friendship brings. And I'm wishing ever so much to thank, from my heart, every one of these generous, highly valued correspondents.

In beginning this letter the greater part of above expression was not thought of. It has come forth of its own motion.

Shall add here that I hope to do better as a correspondent, may it please God, and to write some, if not all, of the things asked for by good friends in the past twenty years.

Now about something the Gazette has printed about Captain Pliny Norcross. The news of accident and death came to me as a severe shock. Besides our service together with the 13th regiment, I was at Milton when he was there—before the war, of course and part of the time we were room mates. Since the war, he had been faithful and interesting as a correspondent, while I have been so only in part. Trying to "make good," I mailed him quite a bunch of typing, etc., on 20th inst., not knowing of his death nine days before. This package was addressed to Orlando.

On lines in my mailing book, adjoining the entry of Captain Norcross, I see now entries of small packages to Captain Edward and Captain Wm. Ruger. This reminds me of a souvenir I gave to Captain Norcross after the war, an autograph book with names gathered before the war of well known people of southern Wisconsin. I remember one thing, pasted in or sewed in, a parchment given me by Mr. Norman Wiard. (Norman I think) superintendent of the Novelty works. Can remember just where I was standing in the James Sutherland book store, where I was clerk, when Mr. Norman Wiard came in and gave it to me for the book, saying it was the bottom part of a patent issued to his father. It bore the signatures of John Quincy Adams, president; Henry Clay, secretary of state, and Wm. Wirt, attorney general, as I recall the names now.

The book itself, I made in the Sutherland bindery, on second floor over the book store. I worked in the bindery a good part of the time in the first year. Then in wall paper room back of the bindery, and in the store below. About half of this time in store and half at Milton academy. Before employment by Mr. Sutherland was about a year in the old Free Press office, close by the river, on the west side. Folder the Free Press. Before that had been to school at the "Old academy," west side, beyond our first Wisconsin home, where the "Grand" hotel is now. Also my mother, a former teacher in Vermont, instructed me nearly all the time.

But the autograph book. You could not buy one so solid. I made it up of heavy material. The only help was by G. Knox, the book binder, proper. He did the tool work in finishing. Captain Pliny's widow, I presume, will keep the little book. I do not claim any control. Would merely suggest that whenever it would naturally pass out of her hands—or any time if she likes the idea, that it go to the Historical Society. Think I once suggested this to Captain Norcross, am not sure. Also I beg the widow that she allow me a small place in her mourning for the passage of this noble character, one for whom I always had a very high respect. May he rest in peace.

I have several letters begun for Janesville friends. When I go through Pliny's unanswered letters, six I see now, it may seem fitting for some or all to go on to the widow. I have two photographs of the Orlando home. One shows the family. I shall write Mrs. Sperry at Orlando about the fatal accident. In her latest letter she told me of having received from Captain Norcross twenty dollars towards one of her recent charities.

And now I wonder if Mrs. Norcross knows of the death of Mrs. Gray at Nashville, since she and Bishop Gray came back to their old home place from Orlando.

JOSEPH DUTTON.

Jose M. Cardosa de Oliveria, Brazilian minister to Mexico, received a warm reception upon his arrival at New Orleans on the gunboat Sacramento. He will go to Washington.

DANIELS SIGNS ORDER FOR U. S. DREADNOUGHTS

Secretary Approves Designs for Powerful Fighters for the United States Navy

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless] WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 11.—Secretary Daniels yesterday signed the plans for the two largest and most powerful warships ever designed for the United States navy. These ships are part of the new naval program of the administration. While the naval program is no secret, details of the craft never have been announced before.

Each vessel will have four main batteries of 14-inch guns, but what is regarded by many experts as the strongest feature are the torpedo safeguards with which they will be equipped. Anti-aircraft guns are included in the plans also, and each vessel will have four torpedo tubes.

Displacement of each ship will be 32,000 tons. They will be 623 feet long and 97 3-4 feet in width.

The cost of each ship, exclusive of armor and armament, will be $7,800,000. Bids will be opened in Washington on November 17.

IN WAR ARENA

AUSTRIANS CONCENTRATE FOR NEW OFFENSIVE

PETROGRAD, Russia, September 11.—Heavy Austrian forces are being concentrated on the Hungarian-Rumanian border, which officials here take to mean the attempt to carry out plans for a general Austrian offensive against the Russian positions in Bessarabia and the Middle Dneister regions.

One of the questions before the new or reorganized war office will be improvement of the artillery division. Inferiority of the Russian artillery is declared to have prevented the Russians from following up their victories in the Tarnopol and Sereth river districts, where thousands of prisoners were taken in the last seven days.

CUNARDER SUNK BY SUBMARINE OFF SPAIN

PARIS, France, September 11.—The small Cunard steamer Alexandra was torpedoed and sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean on Thursday night, whether by a German or an Austrian underwater fighter is not known. The attack was made off the Cape of Paloh, on the coast of Spain.

News of the presence of the submarine in Spanish waters was brought to Mazzaron, Spain, last night by twenty-eight survivors of the Alexandra crew, who made the port in one of the Alexandra's small boats. The fate of the other members of the crew is unknown.

The Alexandra was of 2484 tons and was bound for her home port on the Tyne from Barcelona.

JAPANESE SEARCH P. M. LINER FOR GERMANS

YOKOHAMA, Japan, September 12.—The Pacific Mail steamer China arrived from Manila via Hongkong yesterday. There is a suspicion that several German naval officers are in the ship under fictitious names and the Japanese authorities are searching the ship and examining the passengers rigorously. The China is behind her schedule. She will sail for Honolulu tomorrow.

SERBIA AND BULGARIA ARE DEADLOCKED

LONDON, Eng., September 11.—According to the best obtainable information from the Balkan capitals, the negotiations between Serbia and Bulgaria have reached a deadlock. The Serbian capital reports that it has offered the maximum in fulfilment of the Bulgarian desires for Macedonian territory, while Bulgaria is insistent that its desires be met in their entirety.

CARRANZA SCOUTS PEACE PROPOSAL AND DEMANDS RECOGNITION BY U. S.

NO SURPRISE FELT OVER FIRST CHIEF'S ANSWER

Joint Intervention Looms Up As Only Solution for the Mexican Situation

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, September 11.—General Carranza has answered the ultimatum of the Pan-American diplomatists. His answer is a refusal to acquiesce in their plan for the pacification of Mexico.

Instead of complying with the suggestion that the rival Mexican leaders hold a conference and settle on a compromise man for President, General Carranza proposes that the Pan-American diplomatists meet him on the border and discuss the situation solely from an international standpoint.

General Carranza in his reply demands that he be recognized by the United States and the other Pan-American nations as the only leader in Mexico able to pacify by force all the discordant elements.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 11.—The reply of General Carranza was not received with surprise here, as it has been hinted frequently that he would demand recognition.

In the last fortnight hope that Carranza would acquiesce in the Pan-American demands has gone glimmering through his continued attitude of belligerency.

What step the Pan-American conferees will take, no one here will venture to say. It is believed, however, that they will get together and discuss the "first chief's" answer, and that they may then recommend joint action for the relief of Mexico, which many mean armed intervention.

Joint action is the covert threat contained in the ultimatum sent to the Mexican leaders, and represents the new policy adopted by the president after "watchful waiting" for two years failed to bring any amelioration of the Mexican strife.

The reply of General Carranza is considered here as the last diplomatic effort, that may be made to pacify Mexico, and puts the question of stern action squarely before the Pan-American body.

FOUNTAIN PENS ONE DOLLAR TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

For just one week, ending the 18th, Arleigh's will sell one of its $1.50 "Maikai" fountain pens (self-filling, screw cap) to any school child for just $1. This is a bargain which is strictly for school children; grown folks pay the regular price.—Adv.

DYNAMITERS AGAIN TO BE TRIED FOR LOS ANGELES CRIME

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless] LOS ANGELES, Cal., September 11.—The third trial to grow out of the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building will begin on October 4, when Schmidt, the alleged accomplice of the McNamara brothers, is placed on trial here.

The trial of Morris Caplan, the other and last of the alleged dynamiters will be held as soon as Schmidt's trial is over, an agreement to this effect having been reached here yesterday by District Attorney Woolwine and Former Judge Fairall, chief of counsel for the defendants.

James W. Noel, who was an assistant district attorney at Indianapolis when the second dynamite trial was held, and who helped prosecute the case against the accused labor union officials there, will be the special prosecutor in the trial of Schmidt and Caplan.

HOW YOU MAY THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunates, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Optona; fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water and drop in one Optona tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind, or nearly so, or who wear glasses would never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late. Do not become one of those victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given.—adv.

JAPAN FIGHTING UNITS WILL PASS IN REVIEW

(Special to Hawaii Shinpo.)

TOKIO, Japan, Sept. 12.—The grand army review will be held in Tokio from December 2 to 5. Three divisions will be in the line. The grand naval review will be held in Tokio harbor at the same time.

Up to July 28, the date covered by the latest available figures, British exports of silver bullion amounted to only £3,865,000 against £4,393,500 in 1914.

The Exploits of Elaine

By ARTHUR B. REEVE

The Well-Known Novelist and the Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

Presented in Collaboration With the Pathe Players and the Eclectic Film Company

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a series of murders and other crimes. The principal clue to the criminal is the warning letter which is sent the victims, signed with a "clutching hand." The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Dodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to try to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend, Jameson, a newspaper man. After many fruitless attempts to put Elaine and Craig Kennedy out of the way the Clutching Hand is at last found to be none other than Perry Bennett, Elaine's lawyer and the man she is engaged to marry. Bennett flees to the den of one of his Chinese criminals. The Chinaman forces from Bennett the secret of the whereabouts of $7,000,000. Then he gives the lawyer a potion which will suspend animation for months. Kennedy reaches Bennett's side just after he has lost consciousness.

NINETEENTH EPISODE

THE SAVING CIRCLES.

In an opium den down in a cellar in the heart of Chinatown, Long Sin lay in a bunk, contemplating what form of revenge he might suggest to his master, Wu Fang.

About him were many Chinese and even white men, all dreaming of the great things they would do, dreams which were dissipated into ashes, even as the drug in the pipes which gave them their shadowy forms.

Hop Ling moved forward and accosted the newcomer. "Why does the white man visit us?" he asked suavely, though coldly.

"I am Jack Sprague, the aviator," replied the visitor, still looking about. "I broke the stuff for my nerves. Come across with a pipe, boss."

Hop considered a moment, then at a nod from Long Sin, whose opinion he valued highly, led Sprague over to an empty bunk near by.

Long Sin continued to eye the stranger critically. Finally as Sprague settled himself, the Chinaman pulled himself out of his bunk and moved over to the airman.

"How are you?" greeted Long Sin, in English.

Sprague nodded. "You said it," he replied in laconic slang.

Long Sin squatted down and they talked and smoked. Half an hour later, both Sprague, his nerve restored and his cupidity aroused by the promises of Long Sin, accompanied his new friend out of the hop joint.

They passed through the narrow streets of the Chinese quarter and finally entered what looked like a squalid tenement. There Long Sin nodded and whispered to a servant, and a moment later they were admitted to an anteroom of Wu Fang, the serpent.

"Master," bowed Long Sin as Wu received him, "I have here a man whom we may use."

Wu nodded graciously to Sprague, while his slave bent down and whispered in his ear in deep gutturals, moving his hands in expressive circles through the air. Wu's brow clouded, but at last he seemed to catch the idea.

"You mean, then, that he flies?" he asked.

Long Sin nodded. "Not only does he fly, master," he said, "but from his aeroplane he can drop anything and hit a mark."

* * * * * * * *

Somewhat earlier in the day Lieutenant Waters of the army, who had already interested Kennedy in a new explosive of his own invention, trodite, had invited Craig to visit the fort on Staten Island at which he was stationed, and Craig had taken Elaine down on a visit.

They saw about everything there was to be seen, but the thing that interested Kennedy most was, of course, the explosive and the handling of it. In a storeroom of the fort Elaine picked up from a table a peculiar pointed instrument with a weighted head.

They stood for a moment chatting, then passed on until at last they came again to the entrance to the grounds of the fort where a sentry, pacing back and forth, saluted.

"Thank you so much," said Elaine as she gave Lieutenant Waters her hand.

"Yes, indeed," agreed Craig, "we have had a most interesting visit. By the way, Lieutenant, come to my laboratory tomorrow morning. I would like to show you one or two very novel effects that I have been able to get from your invention."

"I shall be delighted," returned Lieutenant Waters, as they parted.

Just below the gate, on the slope, was a pile of pipe. None of the party noticed, but in one of the pipes, lying flat on his stomach, was a short, undersized Chinaman, one of the emissaries of Wu Fang, Sing Lee by name. With a keen air he was listening to all that Kennedy said.

No sooner had Craig and Elaine disappeared than Sing Lee, watching his chance while the sentry's back was turned, crept out of his hiding place and darted behind another shelter farther along.

He kept it up until at last he was out of sight of the sentry, shadowing Elaine and Craig.

* * * * * * * *

I was busy pounding out a story for the Star when Craig, having left Elaine at the Dodge house after their visit to the fort, returned to the laboratory.

"Hard at it, I see, Walter," he greeted as he entered, ruffling up my hair playfully.

I rose and lighted a cigarette. As I struck the match I happened to glance out of the open window. There in the sunlight I could see what looked like the reflection of a mirror across the street in an empty loft.

"Look out of the window, Craig!" I cried excitedly, moving closer to him and taking his arm. "I believe someone is watching us from that empty loft across the street."

"Wait a minute," he cautioned, now thoroughly alive to the situation. "Stoop down. We'd better not be seen looking over."

As we dodged out of the line of vision Kennedy seized the periscope which he had used often before and put its jointed sections together.

Craig raised the periscope slowly and gazed through it. There, sure enough, as I had guessed, in the loft of the old warehouse down the street could be seen the reflection of the lenses of a pair of glasses in the sunlight. In surprise we crept back and stood up.

The fact was that no sooner had Craig entered the laboratory than the same spying Sing Lee who had followed his every movement at the fort, came cautiously down the street. He stopped before the laboratory, paused a moment, then went on.

A moment later the young Chinaman had entered the empty loft diagonally across the street from us. Locking the door carefully, he went to the window and cautiously peered out.

Then he went to a cupboard near by and opened it. From a shelf he took a pair of opera glasses and returned to the window, leveling them at our laboratory and searching intently.

Lee jumped to the door and flung it open. Wu Fang, followed by Long Sin and Sprague, entered.

"Where is Kennedy—is he there?" demanded Wu.

At the fort on Staten Isand with the white girl and a man, Lieutenant Waters. They are coming to the workshop across the street tomorrow morning to see some western magic with a thing named trodite that explodes."

"I have a plan," he remarked subtly, gathering them all about him and assigning separate parts to each as he outlined it.

* * * * * * * *

That night at the fort all was quiet. In the railroad yards near by stood a freight train on a siding where it had been drilled late, loaded with a fresh consignment of the new explosive, trodite, from the mills.

A sentry was pacing up and down the cinders beside the train when a very pretty girl made her way along the tracks.

"Can you tell me the way to the trolley?" she asked.

It was a perfectly simple question. But there was no mistaking the look she gave him. It was Flirty Florrie. She did not want the trolley. She wanted to flirt, and she used her eyes effectively.

"Two blocks to the left, madam," the sentry returned, setting his face sternly, for he had a sweetheart quite the equal of Flirty.

He hesitated not knowing just what to do, then taking discretion to be the better part of valor, shouldered his musket and resumed his measured tread back and forth, while Flirty, with a grimace at him, disappeared toward the trolley.

But while Flirty had engaged his attention Sing Lee had come out of a hiding place near the yards and had managed to sneak back of the shadow of the cars.

Between two of the cars sat a detective of the secret service smoking and hating his job. The Chinaman had passed the first line of defense. He now managed to sneak up behind the second. He raised a Chinese club and brought it down on the head of the unsuspecting detective, knocking him out.

The sentry paced by on the other side of the train. Quickly, after he had passed, the Chinaman went through the detective's pockets until finally he found a bunch of keys. He detached one from the ring, still keeping in the shadow as the sentry paced up and down, looked stealthily about until he saw a chance, then unlocked the door of the car and entered, closing it safely.

A few minutes later, laden with as much of the trodite as he could well carry and a bundle of heavy aero arrows he stole away as silently as he had come.

* * * * * * * *

It was well after midnight when Kennedy and I were preparing to leave the laboratory. I was just about to switch off the lights when Kennedy raised his hand to stop me.

The far-away look on his face told me that he had heard a peculiar noise. He looked quickly at the ceiling.

I did. There was a noise above us on the roof, apparently as though someone had slid off.

Craig switched out the light himself and went quickly over to the table where he had left the periscope. Carefully putting it together again, he tiptoed over to the window, put the periscope out and slowly raised it to the roof.

We gazed through the eyepiece. A large white circle had been painted on our roof.

"What does it mean?" I queried.

Kennedy was in a brown study. Suddenly he clapped his hands.

"I think I have it," he exclaimed. "Walter, take this turpentine. Go up and scrub the circle out. If you need more, get it. Only remove every trace of the circle."

While I was scrubbing away for dear life at the fresh paint on our roof Kennedy secured a large can of white paint and a brush and stealthily made his way to the rear of the old warehouse across the street.

Kennedy found a shed from which it was easy to get to the roof. There he set to work, too, immediately, painting a large circle on the warehouse exactly like that on our own roof which I was erasing.

We went home, and I, at least, thought little more about the matter.

Quite early the next morning, however, we got around to the laboratory again to prepare for the visit of Lieutenant Waters in response to Kennedy's cordial invitation to witness the experiments with trodite.

Our speaking tube sounded finally, and I answered it. It was Elaine, Aunt Josephine and Lieutenant Waters, who had all arrived at the same time.

"Most peculiar thing, Kennedy," remarked the lieutenant after the greetings were over. "We had a robbery at the fort last night—or rather, not exactly at the fort, for that would be impossible, but from a freight car in the yards."

"What did they get?" asked Craig.

"Hm," considered Kennedy, gazing involuntarily at the ceiling and thinking doubtless of the white circle that had been on the roof.

"Listen!" cautioned Craig.

Outside we could hear a buzz, as though a gigantic cicada were predicting warm weather. It was a peculiar sound, and Kennedy seemed to recognize it instantly. He sprang to the window and strained his eyes up at the sky.

"Look!" he exclaimed, pointing.

We crowded about the window. There was an aeroplane passing over the city.

We riveted our eyes on it. It was an anxious moment.

Already had we known it, Sing Lee had quietly let himself into the loft, taken the glasses from the cupboard and leveled them at us in the laboratory.

Meanwhile, Sprague, of whom we learned later, had started his aeroplane flying from his hangar in the suburbs, and was now speeding over the city. As he passed he peered down, looking eagerly for the target—the white circle.

Straight to its mark it went.

The old warehouse across from us rocked with the detonation. It seemed as if the whole top of it were blown to pieces.

The bomb that had been meant to destroy the laboratory had, by the quick change of the white circle, destroyed the hangout and the emissary of the Serpent!

* * * * * * * *

Half an hour later, Long Sin was nervously reporting to Wu Fang in the secret den in Chinatown.

"That white devil, Kennedy, has defeated us again, master," he said deprecatingly.

"Yes, master. He saw the circle—wiped it out—and painted a new one on the warehouse. The bomb fell on that—and Sing was killed."

Far uptown, on the East side, Sprague led Wu and Long Sin to a little machine shop kept by a foreigner, Anton Schmidt.

"What can I do for you, gentlemen?" asked Schmidt.

Schmidt proudly led them to a corner. In an aluminum case was a peculiar little fly wheel set on gimbals so that it could rotate in any plane.

"Press down on it," suggested Schmidt.

Wu did so. The uncanny little wheel seemed actually to resent being forced to move out of the plane in which it had been started rotating.

"You know," explained Schmidt to Wu, "that when the gyroscope is started rotating in one plane, it tends always to keep in that plane."

"With that steadying my airship," put in Sprague, "there will be no chance for a mistake the next time. We can aim perfectly."

* * * * * * * *

After the explosion in the warehouse, Kennedy, thoroughly alarmed for the safety of Elaine, had ordered me to accompany her on another visit to her cousin, Mary Brown, at their estate, Rockledge, near Lakewood, while he stayed in the city to help Lieutenant Waters trace down the robbery at the fort, if possible.

Elaine was easily reconciled to the banishment now that the weather was fine, and decided to do a little sketching in the country. She had loaded me down with the pleasant burden of her painting kit—sketch box, folding easel, camp chair and a large and gaudy sun umbrella. Jennings followed us to the car with the luggage.

As we entered the car we were all too happy at the idea of a holiday to notice that down the street was another young Chinaman of the same tong as Sing Lee.

We had all seated ourselves and Jennings had gone back into the house when Sam skulked around back of the car and, serpentlike, as was his master, Wu, wriggled over, crouching down in the rear of the top, which was down and overhung the back of the car.

"Go over the Forty-second street ferry, Francois," directed Elaine to the chauffeur. "Then we'll tell you just how to strike the best roads to Lakewood."

Rockledge was a handsome estate, and the house was one of the show places of Lakewood. Accordingly, Elaine lost no time in taking advantage of the recreation in the country which she had promised herself.

I had scarcely set down the art paraphernalia when she announced that she was going to use it right away. For several minutes I stood on the veranda overlooking the bright green terraces, holding the sketching kit and the umbrella and admiring the view.

"Some parasol," I bantered, opening the gay green and white striped shade. I shouldered it and paraded off with it, while Elaine followed, laughing.

"Here," she cried at last, "I'm going to do a landscape. Isn't that bit of hill beautiful? I want you over there—like that."

* * * * * * * *

"Master!" interrupted a low voice, deferentially.

It was Sam, who had hurried to the hangar after watching Elaine and the rest of us ride off.

"Well?" demanded Wu.

Though they did not know it, Kennedy had not been idle. With the aid of an agency of private detectives, which he had often employed for routine jobs, as well as the police and some secret service men, he had located and set a watch, with his characteristic thoroughness, on every aeroplane hangar in and about New York.

Even as the three plotters moved over to the aeroplane one of Craig's detectives lay hidden directly under the runway.

Out on the aviation field, in front of the hangar, Sprague had dragged the aeroplane down the runway, and there he stopped to explain to Wu and Long Sin the workings of the gyroscope stabilizer.

"I'll make the flight to Lakewood easily," he remarked, then tapping the bundle of arrows confidently, added, "and it won't be long before Elaine and that fellow Jameson are settled, you bet."

"I shall go with you," he said at length laconically to the aviator.

"Very well," Sprague agreed. "Two of us will make it twice as certain."

He climbed into the machine, and Wu followed.

Kennedy's detective, from his hiding place, had not missed a motion. As the aeroplane disappeared he crawled out and quickly made his way down the road.

Meanwhile, high over the country, Sprague and Wu were flying, easily picking out the general direction of Lakewood.

People at Lakewood may still recall the aeroplane that circled again and again over the town and the beautiful estates. Sprague finally located Wellington Brown's, but Elaine was not there, and there was no use wasting the precious arrows on anyone else. Wu peered about eagerly through a field glass.

"There they are—over on that hillside," he muttered with a low, guttural exclamation.

* * * * * * * *

Kennedy had hastened out to the fort even before our departure, and there he had met Lieutenant Waters.

As they were examining the freight car, an orderly came running to them. "Is there a Professor Kennedy here?" he asked.

"Yes," spoke up Craig. "I am Mr. Kennedy."

"I've located our man," shouted his detective over the wire, "an aviator named Sprague—a crook and a dope fiend. Somehow they have found out that Miss Dodge has gone to Lakewood with Mr. Jameson. Sprague has just gone in the aeroplane, carrying a bundle of aero arrows, with that Chinaman, Wu Fang."

"The deuce!" muttered back Craig. "Well, you get the local police in force and surround the hangar. Arrest them if they return. I must get to Lakewood myself."

He hung up the receiver and was about to dash out, when another idea occurred to him.

"Lakewood, 626," he almost shouted at long distance. "Hello—oh, is that Mr. Brown? Is Elaine there? This is Kennedy. Gone sketching with Jameson? Well, for heaven's sake, find Jameson at once and tell him to keep Elaine under cover until I get there. Good-by! Waters!" he called, as he hung up the receiver. "Have you got a car here—a fast one?"

"Yes, I'll get you one—in a minute," returned the lieutenant, hurrying out, followed nervously by Kennedy.

Standing by the fort entrance was an automobile in which Waters had mounted an aeroplane gun for scouting about the country after aero spies. He leaped into the car and Craig followed.

* * * * * * * *

Down at Lakewood, Mr. Brown whose placid life was not accustomed to the high pressure under which we had been living, repeated the message to Mary.

"I'm not quite sure what he is talking about," he said doubtfully, still looking at the telephone and rubbing his head. "Where do you think Elaine and Mr. Jameson are?"

"I don't know, but they started that way," pointed out Mary anxiously. "Father, we must find them. Mr. Kennedy would never have telephoned if it hadn't been important."

Elaine had been sketching only a few minutes when we heard a shout behind us. There was Mr. Brown, hatless, his hair flying, running toward us, waving his arms wildly.

"Mr. Kennedy has just called up," he panted breathlessly, "and asked me to tell you, Mr. Jameson, to get Elaine under cover and keep her there till he comes."

The nearest shelter I could see was a bridge over a small creek, and I made for it as rapidly as I could.

We were not a moment too soon. There was the aeroplane with two men in it.

"Hurry—hurry," Wu was urging Sprague as he saw us moving across the hillside. "Fly lower—so I can drop these arrows better."

But we had been warned in time. "Make the turn and get away behind those trees," Wu shouted angrily above the deafening noise of the propeller. "Perhaps if they don't see us they'll come out again."

Apparently to him we had gone back, and Elaine was under the umbrella while I was speaking to her and leaving her there, although the umbrella hid her from him.

"Turn back now," cried Wu.

In a huge, wide circle, like a hawk, Sprague turned while Wu eagerly got the heavy, round package of arrows ready to release. Meanwhile, I managed to get behing a big tree, where I could see, but could not be seen.

The umbrella was smashed, but under it, transfixed by the arrows, was a scarecrow which I had arranged.

* * * * * * * *

"Stop," he cried, "there's an aeroplane about. Hear it?"

One shot had indeed penetrated the vacuum case of the gyroscope and stopped the little flywheel inside. Instead of being an aid to safety, now the stabilizer was a positive menace.

Suddenly, to the surprise of Elaine, Mr. Brown and myself, who had no idea Kennedy was so close, we saw the aeroplane swoop down.

"Something wrong with it," I cried excitedly. "Come!"

Sprague, enmeshed in the debris, did not move. But Wu, though terribly shaken, had fallen on him, and with a superhuman exort, he pulled himself together and managed painfully to crawl up the bank into the hiding rocks and underbrush, before any of us arrived in either direction.

Just then I arrived, with Elaine close beside me.

"Yes, but a lot more uncomfortable," he returned, drawing her arm into his in sight of us all.

'YUAN SHIH-KAI WILL MURDER WITHOUT REMORSE THOSE WHO TRY TO KEEP HIM FROM THRONE'

Col.-Gen. D. J. Wudan of Honolulu Declares President of China Will Even Endanger Country to Further Purposes

"WITHOUT SCRUPLES OR LOVE FOR HIS PEOPLE"

"Yuan Shih-Kai, president of China, is a man absolutely without scruples, sincerity, trust, or love for his people. He is willing to endanger the country for selfish purposes, and even to murder those who are in his way, without remorse or pity. Such a man is altogether unfit to guide the Chinese ship of state."

The foregoing is a statement by Col.-gen. D. J. Wudan, Chinese revolutionist and worker for liberty, who caused a considerable amount of interest a few weeks ago when he was balked in his attempt to go to the American mainland by Consul Woohuan of the local Chinese consulate.

Col. Wudan takes exception to a statement which is made by certain persons, and said to be upheld by Dr Frank J. Goodnow, the eminent American now employed drafting a new constitution for China, to the effect that the Chinese are not yet ready for a republican form of government. Wudan says it is not fair to judge a people by the actions of one man who is acting as their ruler.

"Foreigners," he says, "especially those who act as advisers of Yuan Shih-Kai, have repeatedly rumored that a republican form of government is not fit for the Chinese. The foreigners utter this as a sentimental statement, while those serving under Yuan Shih-Kai as advisers necessarily make the statement as an execution of their assigned duties.

"One may strongly advocate," says Wudan, "against the establishment of a republican form of government in China, in view of the inefficiency of the present one, the lack of betterment in the condition of the people, the want of improvement in educational and military establishments, the corruptness of the provincial governments and the indifference of the government to prevent natural calamity.

No Shadow of Republic.

"Are all of these, however, the fruits of the democratic government? That they are not, everyone who possesses reason, discernment, and foresight will admit. Since the presidency of Yuan Shih-Kai, the government has gradually undergone many changes until at present there is hardly a shadow left of the Chinese republic.

"The Chinese," continues Wudan, "have now no freedom of speech and no liberty of the press or of public meeting, and the existence of these three conditions is essential in every democratic country.

"Despotic Rule" Now.

"The suppression of newspapers which merely hint at the rights of civilians, the employment of superfluous numbers of detectives to arrest zealous speakers, the extension of police force to scrutinize the movements of the people—these and other acts would not be found unless despotic rule had been made the daily activity of the present government.

"If these are not evidences of absolute monarchism, neither are they," says the reform agitator, "indications of a democratic government. To say, therefore, that a republican government is unfit for the Chinese in view of the fruits of the present administration, is to make a statement entirely ungrounded."

Col. Wudan feels that Dr. Goodnow might well suffer remorse of conscience in making this "foul statement." He says that it is to inflict a wrong upon a race of nearly four hundred people who are ever longing to relieve themselves from oppression.

"In what way," asks the colonel, "are the Chinese unfit for a republican rule?" Dr Goodnow may say that they are both morally and intellectually incompetent. But is the statement true?

"Dr Goodnow may as well say," continues Wudan, "that the early colonists in America should not have revolted against England, or that they should not have established a new government and formulated better laws."

Col. Wudan cites the backwardness of the colonists to prove his argument, and notes that they were lacking in belief in many of the religious ideas that existed at the time, that there were kidnappers, pirates, and others as bad, among them.

"Fit as any Race on Earth."

"Yet no one can deny," he says, "not even Dr Goodnow, that the colonists gave to Americans their republican government. Why then are not the Chinese just as fit for such rule as any race on earth?

"The Chinese of today are no less zealous than the early Americans in their fight for political and personal liberty, as seen in the overthrowing of the Manchu dynasty and the outbreak of the second revolution (in 1913.

"They have shown their desire for a democratic rule, and have shed their blood for it. Yuan Shih-Kai has not the right to deny them this. If he does, he shall see in the near future that his efforts are of no avail."

Wudan grows bitter in his denouncement of Yuan Shih-Kai. "From the moment he became president," he says, "he aspired to be emperor. Shortly afterward, disregarding the constitution, he began borrowing money without the consent of the law making body, and murdering the founders of the republic, among whom was Sung Kio Jen, the most famous statesman of China.

"The Chinese are being oppressed by a nominal president who possesses the power of an absolute monarch; they are being heavily taxed on every necessary commodity of life, and they have no political or cival rights whatever."

Wudan says that the president's ambition to become emperor is quite apparent from his dissolving the parliament, reestablishing titles of nobility, reinstating former imperial customs, and concluding secret treaties with other countries.

He says that even if he succeeds in his purpose, the Chinese will not tolerate him as an emperor. The officials, he says, are just as corrupt, the police as powerless, the government troops as undisciplined and the robbers and pirates as bloodthirsty as they were during the Manchu rule.

Says People Will Rise.

"Is it better," asks Wudan, "to place China under such a head, rather than to let her people rule? If China has come to this condition now, what will she be when he assumes the offensive name of emperor and the people rise against him?"

Wudan laughs at the idea of giving full dictatorial power to Yuan Shih-Kai as president, on the ground that he may then manage the country to the best of his ability.

"Yuan Shih-Kai has all the power that the state can bestow now," he says, "and this he has misused. Suppose that he really intends to work for the welfare of the people in this way, is it safe to think he would be able to carry out his intention when he has so far failed so completely?"

Wudan cites further the president's incompetency in the recent negotiations with Japan. He says it may be a triumph so far as Yuan Shih-Kai's own personal interests are concerned, but it has caused him to be looked upon with disgust by the entire nation. He has shown no patriotism in his past dealings, declares Wudan, and will very likely consent to become a vassal of Japan.

"It is expedient now, therefore, says the revolutionist, that the government should be put into the hands of the people. Even if the majority of the Chinese are uneducated, there is a safe minority that can take the reins and rule justly. These people have modern ways of thinking, and it does not require an entire nation to govern."

Col. Wudan believes that a democratic form of government is the only sort fit for China. He says that with the disappearance of the monarchial form the characteristic sluggishness, selfishness and haughtiness of Chinese will disappear.

FAXON BISHOP CERTAIN SUGAR DUTY WILL STAY

The National Administration will not allow the duty to be taken off sugar in 1916 in the opinion of E. Faxon Bishop, according to the San Francisco Chronicle of September 1.

"According to Bishop and others conversant with the sugar situation in the islands, free sugar would mean the shutting down of many of the plantations in the islands," says the Chronicle.

"I base the statement that there will be no free sugar on the fact that there is now a deficit in the national revenues and that a larger one stares the administration in the face next year," says Bishop. "Sugar brings in a revenue of $50,000,000 a year in duties and that is no small sum in such an emergency."

WHAT THIN FOLKS SHOULD DO TO GAIN WEIGHT.

Physician's Advice for Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women.

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried advertised flesh-makers, food-fats, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to life-long skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strength-giving, fat-producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this peerless preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians, and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A month's systematic use of Sargol should produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that thin people need are provided.

While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and vitalizer, it should not be used by nervous people unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh.

Sugar not only exists in the cane, beet root and maple, but also in the sap of about 190 other plants and trees.

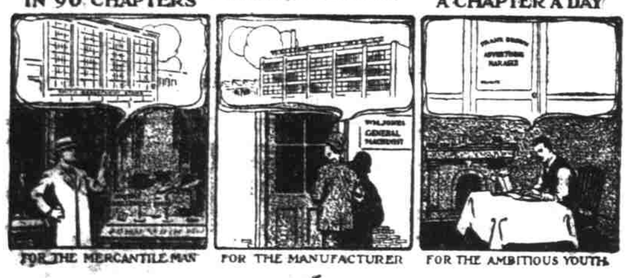
Home Course in Advertising

To be Conducted in this Paper by Alex. F. Osborn, Instructor in Advertising, Buffalo Y.M.C.A. High School
IN 90 CHAPTERS — A CHAPTER A DAY



FOR THE MERCANTILE MAN — FOR THE MANUFACTURER — FOR THE AMBITIOUS YOUTH

PURPOSES OF THE COURSE:—(1) To increase returns for the retailer who now advertises. (2) To show the non-advertising retailer how he can lower his prices, yet increase his profits. (3) To suggest to the jobber and manufacturer a cautious method to create demand and increase good-will. (4) To prepare the person with latent advertising ability for a place in this new "profession."

This course, when delivered personally to a class of students, costs $15. It is equivalent to a correspondence course which costs $95. The entire 90 lessons will be given exclusively with this newspaper free of charge.

CHAPTER LXXXIII.

NEWSPAPER TIMELINESS AND CHECK-UP-ABILITY.

Another phase to the question of position of an ad in a newspaper has to do with the character of the ordinary matter alongside which it is to be placed. A millinery announcement, for instance, would be most effective if on a society page. A haberdashery sale could best be advertised on the sporting page.

This kind of position also has to do with the question of timeliness. In the newspaper, it is possible not only to place your ad where the character of contiguous matter will help aid your message, but also you can make what you have to say correspond to a day with things that are happening.

In the newspaper, the advertising writer can fit his ad to the occasion. He can clothe the ad that appears the day before the Fourth of July in Independence Day clothes and by the fact that it has the atmosphere of the Fourth of July it is liked better and is more effective.

Another big advantage of the newspaper as a national medium is the fact that you can tell what the results are. The same virtue of the localization of your advertisement also makes it possible to find out whether or not what you are spending in a certain town is justified. Suppose you were using a thousand inches a year in a certain paper as your advertising appropriation for that city. That would mean that you would be spending $2000 there. You could tell from your books how much business you were getting out of that city. If it were not enough to justify the $2000 expenditure, you would know that your advertising there was not (for the time being) successful. This might be on account of your choice of medium. It might be on account of your use of copy. It might be because you had the wrong local representation. Perhaps your advertising had not run long enough. It might be due to any one of a number of reasons.

If you were using general publications, and the proportion of your advertising expense for that city was $2000, then you could not tell whether or not that certain portion of your advertising was profitable. Sometimes, the same advertising in one locality will yield good profit and in another locality will incur a loss. And so, the ability to check up each city in this way is about the biggest feature that the unit plan of advertising offers the men who seek a national market.
