SUGGESTIONS AS TO AMENDMENTS TO THE LAWS RELATING TO BANKING BY WHICH THE SYSTEM MAY BE IMPROVED AND THE SECURITY OF THE HOLDERS OF ITS NOTES AND OTHER CREDITORS MAY BE INCREASED.

I have the honor to renew the recommendations made in the Report of 1887 and to ask for their attention at this session. After carefully considering all the suggestions that have been made from time to time toward providing an adequate and acceptable basis for national-bank circulation to take the place of the bonds now become too scarce and too dear for the purpose, I feel it my duty to submit for the consideration of Congress the following view of the whole subject of national-bank circulation:

Continued contraction in the volume of circulation has been the most prominent feature in the history of the national banks during the last ten years.

The statements in this report, under the proper head, exhibit the persistency of the influences heretofore operative to reduce the volume of national-bank circulation; they also indicate the advent of new influences which are accelerating this reduction, not only by curtailing the circulation of banks already in existence, but by repressing the normal increase of circulation incident to the formation of new banks.

Year by year the Comptroller's reports have called attention to the rising scale of reduction of circulation among existing banks and to the declining ratio in which new banks take out circulation in excess of the amount issued upon the minimum requirement of bond deposits; during the past year there has been practically no such excess, and the effect of the bond situation has extended beyond circulation. It is now checking the formation of new banks, which is like arresting a stream at its source.

During the past year only $2,375,550 was added to circulation by the new banks and banks increasing capital, while during the previous year $4,592,000 was added in the same way.

Besides the falling off in the formation of new banks this year, as compared with the two years preceding it, and with the average of the five years from 1883 to 1887, inclusive, 127 national banks have during the past twelve months reduced their bond holdings to the minimum, and this alone caused the withdrawal of bonds to the amount of $14,014,400, reducing circulation by $12,600,000.

On October 31, there were only 1,180 banks that held bonds in excess of the minimum. The amount of bonds so held was $77,255,863, and the circulation secured by these bonds amounted to $69,953,277. At the present rate of reduction the excess may disappear in two years, and is sure to do so when the 4½ per cent. bonds mature in October, 1891.

On page 60 is a table showing the net decrease of circulation during each of the last five years. The exceptionally large decrease during 1885 and 1886 is attributable to the redemption of the 3 per cent. bonds.

The limit of $3,000,000 a month imposed by section 9, act July 12, 1882, upon reduction of national-bank circulation does not apply to such reduction when it is a result of the payment of matured bonds; hence banks holding the 3 per cent. bonds in excess of the minimum requirement generally surrendered the circulation secured by those bonds as fast as these were called for payment, a conclusive proof that circulation was no longer profitable.

During the recent purchases of bonds by the Treasury the restriction of the above section has repeatedly operated to retard and in some cases to prevent sales of bonds held by the Treasurer as security for national-bank circulation; hence the reduction of circulation has not been as large this year as it would have been had there been no hindrance in the law.

The limit of $3,000,000 a month which restricts the voluntary reduction of circulation to $36,000,000 a year does not apply to the circulation of banks that fail or of those that go into voluntary liquidation, hence whatever addition to circulation may result from the formation of new banks, and from the smaller banks increasing their capital, is liable to be offset by the retirement of notes of failed and liquidating banks, so that the net decrease may amount to fully $36,000,000 in a year, and may even exceed that amount if the forces now repressing the growth of the system should reach an intensity sufficient to drive banks out of it.

Whether there is or is not at present any danger of the national-bank system being actually forced into a decline in consequence of the growing scarcity and high prices of United States bonds, there is enough warning in the facts of its recent history and present condition to demand prompt and effectual relief.

Our national banks are too valuable, too deeply rooted in the confidence of the public, too intimately interlaced with the industrial interests and employments of our people, to be left to the risks of neglect or even of inattention.

Apart from whatever danger to the system there may be in neglecting at an early day to provide adequate relief against the influences now operating adversely to its growth, the national-bank circulation taken by itself, merits earnest consideration and will be found well worthy of preservation.

For many years after the inception of the national-bank system the circulation was its most important feature; important to the banks, still more important to the public; for, besides performing a service of incalculable value in the promotion of internal trade through the regulation of domestic exchanges, it constituted up to 1879 an important check upon the gold premium, and thus assisted in the preservation and extension of our valuable foreign commerce on a secure basis.

Resumption would hardly have been attempted in 1879 unless the composition of the currency had been such as to engage the banks to co-operate in the movement, and without such co-operation resumption could not have been accomplished. On November 1, 1878, the outstanding legal tenders were estimated at $346,681,016; fractional currency at $16,000,000; the national-bank circulation outstanding against bonds was $319,652,121, and against lawful money deposited in the Treasury, about $2,500,000 more, making in all $685,000,000 of paper against which the Treasury held only $126,000,000 in gold coin and bullion and the banks less than $31,000,000.

Grave apprehensions were entertained as to the prudence of undertaking resumption with only $157,000,000 of gold to meet possible demands amounting to $685,000,000. There was a vast amount of discussion through the medium of the press and in Congress, while the records of Congressional inquiry on this subject, as late as December, 1878, make quite a volume and show with what misgivings the project was regarded.

The real strength of the situation, however, consisted in the fact that the national banks were holding in legal-tender notes and certificates $97,000,000, which, with the $15,000,000 in the 5 per cent. redemption fund, represented $112,000,000 of demands upon the Treasury that would not be presented for redemption, and thus the Government was set free to use its $126,000,000 of coin in preserving the convertibility of only $234,000,000 legal tenders, scattered all over the country.

The banks had the physical power, of course, to demand coin for their $112,000,000 on January 1, 1879, but to have exercised that power would have been to ruin themselves, because a run upon the Treasury would have induced a run upon the banks, and they owed the public $319,000,000 on their circulating notes and $620,000,000 in deposits, while their entire holdings of lawful money on October 1, 1878, were only $143,000,000, consisting of—specie, $30,686,866, legal-tender notes, $64,428,600, United States certificates of deposit, $32,690,000, five per cent. redemption fund, $15,205,541.

It is evident, therefore, that the resumption of specie payments by the Treasury on January 1, 1879, was made possible only by the relations which the law established between the national banks and the Government, because it was the coercion of the law in respect to reserve that accumulated in the banks so large a percentage of the legal-tender notes and thus brought them into hands where the highest conception of public obligation, as well as the most intelligent appreciation of self-interest, came into play to assist in the success of the Treasury policy.

The national banks, therefore, which had at the supreme crisis of 1863 saved the finances of the Government, rendered in 1879, a service only second in importance to that, in enabling the reunited industrial interests of the country to regain the firm footing of definite and stable values.

As soon as resumption was effected, however, the national-bank circulation came under the influences which have since been steadily reducing its volume. The maximum of circulation had been reached in December, 1873, when 1,976 banks, with an aggregate capital of $490,000,000, had outstanding $341,000,000 in circulating notes. The long depression following the panic of 1873 arrested the growth of the system so that in June, 1877, 2,078 banks had an aggregate capital of $477,000,000 and $299,000,000 circulation.

During three and a half years, therefore, the number of banks increased only 102, while there was a shrinkage in capital of $13,000,000, and in circulation of $42,000,000.

At that point of time the refunding operations of the Treasury and the preparations for resumption began to exercise upon the banks influences tending to reduce their number and capital, but even then their circulation increased slightly. In April, 1879, there were only 2,048 banks in existence, 30 less than in June, 1877, and in October, 1879, there were 2,052 banks, which had barely $454,500,000 capital, a falling off of $22,500,000 in two years and four months, while the total circulation had risen to $322,000,000 from $299,000,000, thus making up for the reduction of capital.

After this date new influences arose, the banks began to increase in number and to enlarge their capital, while the rapid increase of deposits, due undoubtedly to the confidence inspired by the success of resumption, enabled them to expand their accommodations to the public.

Individual deposits in national banks amounted in October, 1865, to $500,000,000, but in April, 1879, they were less than $600,000,000, although the banks had increased in number from 1,513 to 2,048; their capital, surplus, and undivided profits had gone up from $464,000,000 to $610,000,000, and their circulation had grown from $171,000,000 to $304,000,000.

During the thirteen and a half years between these dates the average amount of individual deposits, as shown by all the reports of condition, was a trifle under $600,000,000, while the maximum was only $683,000,000, but immediately after resumption was recognized as a fact established, deposits began to increase; in December, 1880, the aggregate exceeded $1,000,000,000; it rose in 1881 above $1,100,000,000, and has steadily increased since; the average of 1888 is $1,301,088,048, and the highest point was reached on October 4, 1888, when the amount was $1,350,320,861.

Year by year, with increasing capital and deposits, loans and discounts expanded. In December, 1873, they were less than $857,000,000, and in April, 1879, they were only $835,000,000, but in 1888 they have averaged $1,617,636,312, and have been as high as $1,674,886,285.

According to all natural laws the circulation of these banks should have kept pace with augmenting resources and with increasing deposits and expanding business, but it has not been so.

Since December, 1879, the national banks have increased in number from 2,052 to 3,151, which is over 53 per cent. Their capital, surplus, and undivided profits were then $617,501,367.68; they are now (October 4, 1888), $855,576,646.95, an increase of 38.55 per cent. Loans and discounts have gone up from $933,000,000 to $1,674,886,285.29, an increase of 79½ per cent.; but the circulation has declined from $322,000,000 to $151,702,809, a decrease of nearly 53 per cent.

If we deduct from circulation at each of these periods the amount represented by the obligatory deposits of bonds, the remainders will represent the circulation voluntarily maintained. In December, 1879, this voluntary circulation was $233,179,965; on October 31, 1888, it was only $68,956,627, a reduction of 70½ per cent.

The constant shrinkage of national-bank circulation is attributable largely to the growing scarcity and rising price of United States bonds, but there is also another influence at work of which the importance is not generally recognized, namely, the displacement of national-bank notes by other forms of money.

At the end of 1878 the paper money of the country amounted, as has been stated, to $685,000,000, which supplied all the needs of Treasury disbursements and of currency circulation, except those arising out of transactions in foreign exchange, the payment of gold interest, and the collection of duties on imports.

These latter needs were supplied by a stock of coin and of coin certificates held in the principal Eastern sea-ports, estimated at $35,000,000, which, with $40,000,000 coin said to have been in circulation in Texas and on the Pacific slope, and the $685,000,000 of paper, made the total circulation at the end of 1878 about $760,000,000. The Treasury held in United States and national-bank notes $82,600,000, against which there were outstanding certificates of deposit to the amount of $39,000,000, leaving the balance, viz, $43,000,000, to be deducted from the total of $760,000,000 in order to ascertain the amount of currency actually employed. Upon this computation it would appear that the effective circulation just before resumption was less than $720,000,000.

The resumption of specie payments went into effect on January 1, 1879, and as soon as the public became satisfied that it was permanent, the heretofore hoarded specie began to enter into general circulation. The effect, of course, was an expansion of the currency; not suddenly, because the habit of hoarding is never suddenly discontinued, but gradually, as confidence in the situation made its way among the people.

The amount thus added to the circulating medium has been estimated at $140,000,000, which includes subsidiary and minor silver coin, $70,000,000.

Another influence under which the volume of the circulating medium has constantly been expanded is that of the silver-dollar coinage law of 1878. Under that law the number of standard silver dollars coined up to October 31, 1888, is $309,780,790, and every month hereafter, as long as the law exists, at least $2,000,000 more must be coined and sent to the Treasury to be put into circulation.

The standard silver dollars, as coins, have never entered into circulation in numbers at all proportioned to the number coined, nor did the silver certificates issued under the act of February 28, 1878, fare any better, but the silver certificates authorized by the act of August 4, 1886, have been very largely absorbed by the public, not apparently because any attention is paid to the basis of their issue, but because they constitute the only supply of notes of small denominations.

As a result of all the influences that have come into play since 1879, the total volume of money in the United States has so increased that it is now estimated to amount to $1,700,000,000, against less than $1,040,000,000 on January 1, 1879, an increase of $660,000,000 in total volume, while the national-bank circulation in the same time has decreased by nearly $83,500,000.

The fact that for a long time past large sums have been accumulated in the Treasury without disturbance to business affords very strong grounds for believing that the volume of currency is excessive, and this inference is strengthened by two facts of recent occurrence—first, the fact that when the Treasury accumulations rose, as they did, during September, 1887, from $259,546,540 to $275,307,883.25, the effect upon business was immediate and serious, and, secondly, the fact that the transfer from the Treasury to depository banks of about $40,000,000 between October, 1887, and January, 1888, relieved the stringency, although a large part of this sum was offset by excessive revenues during that period, and although also the Treasury still contained a great deal of idle money.

While this is being written another fact of still greater significance is added to those already cited, namely, the export of gold. To any one who considers the component elements of our currency it must be obvious that gold is the only one that can be both increased and diminished in volume in response to the changing volume of the need or more properly of the use, for currency; and its export, except when assignable to other causes, is a sure indication that the total volume of currency is for the moment in excess of the amount that can be profitably employed.

The silver element is by statute constantly augmenting in volume, but the export of our silver coins is prevented because they have, in the United States, a value as compared with the same weight and fineness of silver uncoined as 100 is to 73, while everywhere else they have only their bullion value. For a like reason silver coins are not used in the arts as gold coins are; because to workers in silver, bars are far cheaper than dollars. Hence the silver coinage is an element constantly increasing in volume.

The legal tenders are fixed by statute at $346,681,016, so that their volume is subject to neither increase nor decrease.

The national-bank notes are theoretically subject to increase and decrease of volume, but apart from the influences which have for a long time produced a steady decrease, the law itself interposes an obstacle to flexibility. Section 9, act July 12, 1882, limits the voluntary decrease of national-bank circulation to $3,000,000 a month and forbids any increase of circulation to be issued to a bank within six months after it has made a deposit of lawful money for the purpose of reducing circulation.

The gold element of the currency is alone and peculiar in this, that its volume and distribution are determined not by statute, but by the natural laws of finance.

During the years subsequent to 1878, when business, restored to the solid basis of gold values, was constantly expanding and therefore constantly needing increased supplies of circulating medium, we not only retained for home use our large annual production of gold, but whatever additional amounts our business required flowed into the country from foreign nations, and that in spite of some very distinct efforts on their part to prevent it.

On the other hand, when from time to time there occurred a subsidence in the tide of national prosperity or a depression in any of our greater industries, so that for the moment the amount of money in circulation exceeded the use for it, gold exports relieved the situation.

Of late years, however, the gold movement across the Atlantic has become much more sluggish because something has been found to take its place, and, to some extent at least, to serve the purpose of regulating exchanges and transferring capital. Certain securities on the New York stock-list have come to be largely and constantly dealt in at the European monetary centers, and as, by means of cable communication and through the close competition of dealers, their values are generally nearly at a level in all markets, they supply a cheaper medium of settlement than gold and a more convenient basis for exchange operations.

This "arbitrage" business, as it is called, has already exercised an important influence upon the preservation and distribution of our stock of gold, and has probably contributed to crowding national-bank notes out of circulation by impelling the export of gold at times and under conditions which would at former periods have produced an outflow. To explain: Before this new business came in the dealers in foreign exchange, being dependent wholly upon gold to settle their balances, or to serve as a basis for drafts or credit whenever the supply of commercial bills proved insufficient, were compelled to carry a stock of coin or bullion, and this constituted a fund apart from the general monetary stock of the country; its transfer back or forth across the Atlantic followed the fluctuations in foreign-exchange premium, and only when it became exhausted, or threatened to become exhausted, was there any drain upon the general stock of gold currency. The publicity attending gold shipments enabled the whole business world to perceive the drift of the metal one way or the other, and bankers and merchants alike could prepare in advance for the moment when the stock of current coin should be drawn upon to supply the foreign demand.

It is not so with the securities in question; they have become the stock in trade of dealers in foreign exchange; they are shipped back and forth according as exchange quotations fluctuate; indeed, in many cases they are not even shipped; the ownership of them is transferred by a cablegram, and this transfer supplies a basis for bills or credits. Whether they are shipped or otherwise dealt with, however, the transactions in these securities, or in respect to them, are completely cloaked from public observation, and, therefore, neither bankers nor merchants can now obtain any warning of the approach of a state of foreign exchanges which may necessitate the export of gold, nor can they by any means perceive, nor by the exercise of any sagacity securely estimate, the extent to which such shipments may be made or the length of time they may continue.

The old computations as to what was called "the balance of trade" supplied some sort of basis for an estimate of probable gold movements, but now the utility of such computations has been destroyed because the values transferred through the medium of securities are very great and are utterly beyond determination.

Another feature of the present foreign exchange business should not be overlooked in tracing the relations between that business and our monetary system, namely, the existence of banking houses with partners or agents on both sides of the Atlantic, and employing a great money capital.

Formerly capital was seldom transferred from one country to another for long periods of time without either a change in its ownership or a change of domicile on the part of its owner, whereas now there are masses of capital that really belong to no particular country, but are always "on the road" in the form of bills of exchange. This capital, supplemented by the almost unlimited credit of the bankers who direct its employment, substantially controls the course of international exchanges, but its movements are as noiseless as those of the electric current by which they are guided, and as secret as the cipher language in which alone they are recorded.

It is impossible that there should be no danger in all this to a monetary system like ours. While the arbitrage business has set free some gold for other employment, it creates by that very effect a danger of considerable importance, namely, the danger of a general disturbance of industry whenever the balances to be settled or the movements of capital exceed the available supply of securities, and resort must again be had to gold shipments, producing not only a contraction of the currency, which, under existing circumstances, is no great matter, but also, what is far more disturbing, causing a visible depletion of reserves at the main center of our entire monetary system.

It must be remembered that gold has only been relegated to the second place in our foreign exchange dealings; it is not banished nor disqualified. It has not, like silver, become functus officio in international trade; it is still the measurer of commercial values, still the only medium of liquidation that is equally effective everywhere, and the danger now is that, instead of moving in small amounts promptly in sensitive response, as formerly, to fluctuations in exchange, it may some day slide away from us in masses under some sudden escape of influences heretofore concealed from observation, and also perhaps held in check, by the arbitrage system. If we are really exposed to such a danger, we can not begin too soon to prepare for it, and prudence counsels that the first step should be to protect the Treasury against any possible embarrassment.

The $346,000,000 of greenbacks are the weak point in our currency system. The gold coins and certificates stand first, the national-bank notes next, the silver coins and certificates third, and the greenbacks last in the order of assured value, and it would be a great benefit to the whole mass of the currency if this, its frailest element, could be eliminated from it.

The present state of things seems favorable to the substitution of national-bank notes for greenbacks, and to that end I venture to submit for the consideration of Congress the following measures:

1. Funding in bonds the greenback debt of $346,681,016, or so much of it as may be presented at the Treasury within a limited period of time, say three years.

2. The bonds to be issued only to national banks presenting greenbacks for that purpose; to bear a low rate of interest, not exceeding 2½ per cent., and to mature only upon the failure of the bank or upon its dissolution, whether voluntary or upon expiration of its corporate existence.

3. The bonds so issued to be available only as a deposit to secure national-bank circulation and to entitle the banks depositing them to receive circulating notes to the amount of their face.

4. Existing banks to be required, for a time at least, to retain on deposit the bonds they now have to the minimum amount required by existing laws and to use the new bonds only for procuring additional circulation, or in substitution for whatever bonds they may now have on deposit in excess of the minimum, but the new bonds to be available for all purposes by banks organized after the passage of the act.

5. The National-Bank Redemption Agency at Washington to be transferred to New York, and a sub agency to be established at each central reserve city, the notes of all banks wherever situated to be redeemed at whichever agency they may be presented.

In support of these measures it may be said—

1st. That they provide for the retirement of the greenback circulation without even a temporary contraction of the currency, because arrangements can and should be made to issue the national-bank notes immediately upon the presentation of the greenbacks for the purpose of being funded.

2d. That upon the retirement of these obligations the $100,000,000 of gold held in the Treasury as a special fund for their redemption will become an available asset and may be paid out, adding just that much to the active circulation.

3d. With the greenbacks taken out of the category of demand obligations of the Government, the Treasury will be in a better position than now to maintain the silver coinage at par with gold; and, on the other hand, specie and specie certificates will be held much more largely by the banks than they are now, and this will tend to relieve the strain upon the Treasury.

4th. As the greenbacks will not be extinguished, but held in a state of suspended monetary vitality until the failure or liquidation of a bank requires their use in the redemption of its notes, they will constitute a reserve fund lying in the Treasury ready for use, at any moment of emergency, in the redemption of any portion of the national-bank currency that may become discredited.

5th. Assuming that $300,000,000 of greenbacks will be eventually funded in this way; assuming that the bonds bear interest at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, and assuming that the present tax on circulation is maintained at the rate of one-half per cent. every six months, the annual charge to the Government will be about $4,500,000, and against this it gets the use of $100,000,000 for paying off that much bonded debt bearing 4½ per cent. per annum interest, and escapes the expense of redeeming and renewing the legal-tender notes.

6th. Even if the entire $4,500,000 per annum should be added to the permanent expenses of the Government it would be but a small price to pay for the service which the banks will render both to the Government and to the public through the instrumentality of such a circulation as theirs will then be.

7th. The moderate profit of 1½ per cent. per annum will be materially reduced by the expenses of redemption and supervision, including loss of interest on the redemption fund, so that the banks will not realize quite as much as the Government pays, but still it will probably constitute a sufficient incentive to banks to fund all the greenbacks they can, and when the whole issue is funded whatever amounts are from time to time paid out in redemption of the notes of failed banks will probably be collected and presented afresh in order that circulation may be obtained for them.

8th. The public will be benefited by having a bank-note circulation amply secured and of which every note is redeemable in coin or in a certificate representing coin actually on deposit in the Treasury, and redeemable, too, not only at the bank which issued it, but at any central reserve city; a circulation large enough in volume to admit of easy and prompt adjustment to the varying needs of different localities, its flexibility secured by the constant pressure of the Government tax on the one side and the constant inducement of the bond interest on the other, while the numerous points of issue and their wide distribution over the country afford ample protection against combinations or other devices for artificially expanding and contracting the circulation.

9th. With such a resource at hand we may view with indifference the transfer abroad of a large part of our burdensome and unprofitable stock of gold, where it will be more useful to us in expanding the markets for our exports of agricultural products than it can be here locked in the Treasury.

10th. The national-bank system will be restored to healthy activity and stimulated to fresh growth especially in those parts of the country where such banks are most needed and are now found in least numbers.

LAWS REGULATING INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

Occasion was taken last year to call attention to the divergent, and even contradictory, character of the laws prevailing and of the decisions which have been rendered, in different States in respect to substantially the same points of general commercial practice. A more extended observation of interstate commercial relations, particularly in connection with so much of the business of the national banks as consists of operations in exchange arising out of transactions between citizens of different States, confirms the views intimated in the Report of 1887 as to the importance of national legislation for removing the confusion and friction caused by the differences of local laws and judicial construction.

The establishment and extension of the national banking system and the regulation by Congress of interstate transportation constitute successive steps in the direction of that regulation of trade between the States which the Constitution authorizes if it does not enjoin upon Congress.

The next step to these, in logical sequence, would appear to be the enactment of a commercial code applicable to transactions between citizens of different States, and as such a code would naturally tend to the extension of the benefits now derived by the public from the national banking system, it seems proper to include this subject among those which the Comptroller of the Currency is privileged to bring to the attention of Congress.

The proposition to establish an interstate commercial code rests, of course, upon the assumption that constitutional authority to do so is included in the power to regulate commerce between the States.

Without venturing to discuss the constitutional question, it may be said in support of the assumption, that the complete regulation of commerce would seem necessarily to involve the enactment, or at least the sanction, of some body of laws defining the obligations and securing the rights of persons engaged in such commerce. The identity in origin of our State systems of law and jurisprudence, and the similarity of the local conditions affecting their development, preserved among them for a long time sufficient uniformity to make them practically a common law, but of late years there has arisen more and more divergence, especially in court decisions, and now the commercial dealings between citizens of different States have become materially embarrassed by the variety and even the contrariety of law and practice prevailing in different parts of the Union with respect to negotiable instruments, partnership accounts, and contracts.

While the banks seem to have the chief interest in this matter, because the laws and decisions in question affect directly that in which they deal, yet this interest is representative only, because behind each check, draft, bill of lading, or promissory note held by a bank there is dependent upon the paper a commercial transaction in which the bank has no part and from which it can derive no profit.

The purchase and sale of merchandise is only the initial point of a commercial transaction; to render it complete the goods must be delivered by the seller and they must also be paid for by the buyer.

From the initial bargain to the final settlement each step is taken only upon the assurance that all the others will follow in due succession; hence an obstruction at any point, either to the delivery of commodities or to payment for them, arrests the whole current of dealings running toward consummation at that point, producing stagnation at the sources of its supply and the paralysis of every organ through which the demand should be transmitted.

Practical experience of the importance of preventing obstruction in the channels of transportation, produced and sustains the law regulating interstate commerce by railroad and river, and now the public is beginning to realize the importance also of preventing obstruction in the channels through which instruments of exchange must pass pari passu with the parallel passage of the goods they represent.

The free movement of interstate exchanges is as essential to the marketing of crops and to the distribution of industrial products as are railroads and steamboats. The latter never move a ton of anything until the exchange drawn against it is negotiated, and assurance is thus secured that the article shipped will be paid for. Producers have suffered a loss of markets from financial disorder much more frequently than from transportation derangement; hence, in facilitating financial transactions and relations between citizens of different States, Congress will promote the great industrial interests of the country quite as effectually as by facilitating the physical transportation of the products of those industries.

Without attempting to cite specific instances or to designate the States concerned, it is sufficient to say that in respect to commercial paper the conflict of law in different States extends to every branch of the subject; and it is not confined to cases of rare occurrence, or to those in which the circumstances are unusual or peculiar, but exists in respect to many matters which are elementary and fundamental, as, for example, the legal force of such instruments as bills of lading, promissory notes, bills of exchange, etc., the obligations of the parties thereto, the steps necessary to charge the different parties with liability, and the extent to which the instruments constitute a charge or lien upon the property in respect to which they are made. In many instances the force of the instruments has to be determined by the laws of a State in which the statutes or the leading decisions differ from those prevailing at the place of negotiation; and as bank officers can not be familiar with the laws of every State and Territory, and also with all the decisions throughout the country, they must often be thrown into perplexity about what might be a very simple business, except for this conflict of laws. In all such cases increased expense affords the only practicable solution, and such increase falls upon the producer in the form of premium or discount.

The laws of the various States differ most widely in respect to bills of lading. In some States a bill of lading is by statute a negotiable instrument, while in other States it retains its common-law characteristics. Even the statutes making it negotiable are much broader in some States than in others. For example, the statutes of Pennsylvania and Missouri prescribe simply the manner of negotiation, i. e., by indorsement and delivery; but do not define the effect of such negotiation, nor place such instruments on the footing of instruments which are the representatives of money, so as to charge them with all the consequences which usually attend or follow the negotiation of bills and notes (Shaw v. Railroad Company 101, U. S., 557); whereas, on the other hand, the Maryland statute expressly declares them to be negotiable instruments in the same sense as bills of exchange and promissory notes (Tiedman v. Knox, 53 Md., 612).

Again, the laws vary in the different States as to the liability of the carrier for the representations made in the instrument. In New York, for instance, it is the rule that the carrier is bound by the representations of its agent that the goods were received, and though, in fact there were no goods received, it is estopped to set up such defense (Armour v. Mich. Cent. R.R. Co., 65 N. Y., 111); but in the Supreme Court of the United States, and in other jurisdictions, the English rule prevails, that the carrier is not liable if its agent issued the bill of lading without any actual receipt of the goods (Vinton v. Pollard, 105 U. S., 7). By the laws of some States, therefore, the banker need not look beyond the bill of lading, whereas by the laws of other States he must make further inquiries, if he would be sure of the security. To ascertain, then, how far he may rely upon the bill of lading, he must refer to the laws of the State by which the instrument is governed, which will often be a State different from his own. Nor can he always determine with certainty what laws apply to it; for it is frequently a very nice and difficult question to decide whether these are the laws prevailing at the place of shipment or those obtaining at the place of delivery.

As to the rules which may govern a draft, or bill of exchange, the conflict is equally great. In the first place, provisions which, by the laws of some States, may be properly inserted, would, by the laws of other States, destroy the negotiable qualities of the instrument, as might likewise the omission of certain provisions; and while the instrument might be negotiable according to the laws of the State where drawn, it might not be such according to the laws of the State in which it is made payable. Again, the rules as to the time of payment are different in the different States, and the banker (with whom it is often important to know the precise time he may expect payment of his bills receivable) may frequently be at a loss to know with respect to an important collection, whether it is payable immediately or is entitled to days of grace. Still again, the contracts of the indorsers may, by some decisions, be governed by laws different from those by which the contract of the drawer is determined. Numerous other questions of this kind will suggest themselves as likely to arise in respect both to the bill of lading and the draft; but it is needless to multiply illustrations.

It has been suggested that uniformity of laws on this subject might be secured by appropriate legislation by the various States. But such uniformity has as yet been unattainable in respect to other matters for which it has been desired. The subject of a uniform system of legal procedure has been agitated for many years, and some very strong efforts have been made in that direction, but as yet little has been accomplished. But were it possible to procure similar legislation by any considerable number of States, or even by all, we should be merely back again where we were under the common law, and as the different provisions of the statutory law would have to be construed by the various State courts, it is not unlikely that these courts would often reach dissimilar conclusions as to the meaning and force of the same provision in the different statutes, just as they have diverged in their application of identical common-law principles. We have an additional illustration of this tendency in the diversity of exposition given to the same or similar provisions in the various codes of procedure, and in the dissimilitude of the decisions in the different States as to the extent to which these provisions change or modify the old rules of pleading and practice. It is true that a system of commercial law adopted by Congress would likewise be subject to judicial construction, but being a statute of the United States, the duty of construing it would properly belong to the Federal courts, and the rules of interpreting it prescribed by the United States Supreme Court would be binding upon every other court; so that, in the main, and certainly in process of time, it would receive the same construction in all courts and in all parts of the country.

The objection to putting general rules of law into the form of statutes would have no application to a code of the kind proposed, for the purpose is not to change the form of expressing the law, by substituting statutory rules for judicial precedents, but to render certain and uniform those rules of commercial law which are now uncertain or different in different localities, a purpose which can not be accomplished by any number of judicial determinations, since the decisions in one State are not binding as precedents in any other States, nor are the Federal courts bound by the adjudications of State courts, or the State courts by Federal decisions.

FOURTH.

STATE, SAVINGS, AND PRIVATE BANKS, AND LOAN AND TRUST COMPANIES.

In order to comply with the fourth requirement of section 333 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, the Comptroller has obtained, through the courtesy of the authorities of twenty-four States which exact returns of this nature, all the information received by them. This information, transmitted sometimes in detail and sometimes compiled by the State officers, embraces the affairs of 2,008 incorporated institutions and 212 private banking concerns, making 2,220 in all.

The returns of the 2,008 corporations obtained from the State authorities comprise statements of condition of 1,209 banks operated under State charters, aggregate capital, $136,288,327, surplus and undivided profits, $51,575,928, deposits, $387,017,523, of 56 loan and trust companies, capital, $26,913,200, surplus and undivided profits, $23,411,982, deposits, $268,739,626; and of 743 savings banks, of which 598 report no capital, and 145 report capital aggregating $13,122,434. The aggregate surplus and undivided profits of the 743 savings banks is $123,352,662, and their aggregate deposits amount to $1,248,072,843. Two hundred and twelve private banks report capital to the amount of $6,712,636, surplus and undivided profits of $2,212,158, and deposits of $20,353,852.

Even among the States which exact returns from banks there are but few that provide adequately for the scrutiny and compilation of the returns by any State officer, and of course no such provision exists where returns are not required. Without some such provision, however, there can be no certainty that there are not errors and omissions in the reports. In one State, in response to the request for a summary of reports of banks reporting, the chief of the department in charge of the returns wrote: "We have no printed report of the condition of banking institutions in this State. We can have an abstract if you wish it. It will cost you $25, as we will have to get some outside party to come in and make it." In reply that officer was advised that "while Congress requires the Comptroller to get that information (that is, all available information relative to the condition of banks other than national), no appropriation has ever been made to meet any expense attending it, nor are there funds available for defraying the cost of summarizing the reports filed in your office. In a number of States the condition is the same as exists in yours, but without an exception the reports have been intrusted to this office, a copy of the abstract being returned with the reports." The communication concluded with the request that the reports be forwarded at the expense of this office, and with the offer to return, with the papers, a copy of the abstract. Neither the papers nor a reply was received. In another State, banks report only such items as are required to enable the tax department to make the assessment.

In order to obviate error, and as far as possible to obtain complete information, the names and addresses of over 5,700 banks and bankers were secured, and to each was mailed a circular letter, inclosing a blank form, requesting a report of condition of date, June 30, 1888. The request was complied with by over 2,000 banking associations and bankers. Later in the season about one-third of the banks so responding were found to be included in those reported officially by State officers, so that the number, from which returns are classified as unofficial, is 1,307, namely, private banks 991, and incorporated institutions 316.

These 1,307 concerns are in States and Territories in which reports are not required to be made to local authorities, and they consist of 194 State banks having an aggregate capital of $18,643,541, surplus and undivided profits of $5,309,160, and deposits of $23,030,319; 64 loan and trust companies, with capital of $26,330,310, surplus and undivided profits of $12,539,705, and deposits of $49,138,488; 58 savings banks, of which 28 report capital amounting to $3,227,887. The aggregate surplus and undivided profits of the 58 savings banks is $9,343,620, and their aggregate deposits amount to $116,123,707. Nine hundred and ninety-one private banks report capital to the amount of $34,129,438, surplus and undivided profits of $12,665,828, and deposits of $74,524,990.

A comparison of these returns with those of last year will show an increase of 418 institutions reporting officially, a decrease of 47 reporting unofficially, a net increase of 371.

The returns indicate an increase in number of institutions of about 10 per cent., and of assets of about 9 per cent. Banks to the number of 341 have organized since the last report, the capital of which slightly exceeds $16,000,000.

As much interest attaches to the operations of the savings banks of the country, a special effort has been made to collect and tabulate all obtainable information relative thereto. The abstract shows returns, official and unofficial, from mutual and stock savings banks, separated and aggregated, and the average amount due each depositor in each class by States, the average of all by classes, and the average of all banks combined.

In 1887 reports were received from 684 savings banks, of which 600 were mutual institutions; this year 801 reported, of which 628 are mutual. Of the latter number all but 22 are located in the New England States and in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland; in all of which, except the three latter States, statistics are at hand giving the average dividends paid; in one the rate is $2\frac{3}{4}$ per cent., in three over $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. and less than 4 per cent., and in three over 4 per cent. and less than $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

It would be interesting to compare the earnings of the mutual savings banks with those of savings banks having capital stock, but it has been impossible to ascertain the earnings of the latter, owing to the fact that none but the California institutions report dividends and interest allowed depositors.

In California 23 such banks reported to the commissioners on January 1, 1888, of which 18 paid dividends on capital stock of from 4 to 13 per cent., making an average of 7.2 per cent., nearly; 21, namely, the 18 above mentioned and three others (two of the three having a reserve fund but no capital) paid interest to depositors to the aggregate amount of \$2,551,043.31, the rate varying from 3 to 6 per cent., while two report the payment of neither dividends nor interest. As eleven of the 21 banks pay interest at two or more rates, the amounts on which each rate is paid not being given, it is impossible to show the average, though it appears to be about $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. This would indicate that so far as the returns to depositors are concerned, the public benefit of the two classes of savings banks—the stock and the purely mutual—is nearly identical.

All stock savings banks in California are stated by the California bank commissioners, in their report for 1888, to be "business enterprises of private individuals with incidental benefit to the public, in nowise differing in this regard from commercial banks."

Such institutions are regarded on the Pacific coast as an improvement on the purely mutual system. The funds of the stockholders are a guaranty for the safety of those of the depositors, the stockholders being liable for all obligations of the institution to an amount equal to the value of their stock. In addition, the directors or trustees are jointly and severally liable to the creditors and stockholders for all moneys embezzled or misappropriated by the officers.

With a view of throwing some light upon the distribution of the circulating medium of the country, every effort was made to obtain from State banks, Private banks, and Savings institutions the details of their cash holdings. The result will be found on page 24.

In the appendix tables will be found showing by States and Territories the condition of these banks as obtained from official sources and from banks direct (classified as unofficial returns); aggregate resources and liabilities of each class and from both sources; comparative statements of condition of State banks, 1872-'88; loan and trust companies, 1883-'84 to 1887-'88; savings banks, 1883-'84 to 1887-'88; growth of savings banks as shown by deposits, by States, 1830, 1840, and 1850 to 1888; and deposits in savings banks, number of depositors, and average amount due each, by States, in 1886-'87 and 1887-'88.

ORGANIZATION AND EXPENSES OF THE BUREAU OF THE CURRENCY.

It is unnecessary to reiterate what was said in the last Annual Report upon this subject, and what will be found on one point or another in every Report of the Comptroller of the Currency since 1876, as to the inadequacy of the clerical force or means at the disposal of the Comptroller.

I respectfully repeat, however, the specific recommendations submitted last year, as, "in order that the present work of the Bureau may be properly performed, the following changes are essential:

"1. The Deputy Comptroller should have a salary of $3,500. No less sum can be depended upon to secure or to permanently retain any one entirely qualified for the position.

"2. There should be provided for the Bureau a responsible legal adviser, with such clerks and books as may be necessary to the proper examination of the questions that are daily presented in almost every branch of commercial law.

"3. There should be added to the four divisions now existing a division of archives and statistics.

"Provision should be made by appropriation for an annual conference in Washington of all examiners of national banks, for the employment of supervising examiners, as recommended elsewhere, for such traveling expenses as may be incurred by the Comptroller or Deputy Comptroller in visiting different sections of the country in connection with the banks and banking interests there, and for the accumulation of a library of standard books of reference on subjects relating to banking and financial legislation and administration."

INFORMATION.

Section 333 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in prescribing the scope of the annual report to be made by the Comptroller of the Currency, imposes upon that officer the further duty of submitting to Congress such other information in relation to the banks as in his judgment may be useful. The following information is accordingly submitted.

THE ORGANIZATION OF NATIONAL BANKS.

During the year under review there has been no change in the laws governing the organization of national banking associations, nor in those which provide for the conversion into such an association of any banking corporation having a State or Territorial charter; hence what was said on this subject in the last Report still applies.

The four following tables give for each State and Territory the number, aggregate capital, bonds, and circulation of national banks existing October 31, 1887, and of banks organized during the year ending October 31, 1888, and show the net increase or decrease in capital, bonds, and circulation for each class of banks during the past year, including failed and liquidating banks.

It will be observed that in the first table the figures showing circulation do not bear in all cases to the figures showing the amount of bonds the relative proportion to be expected from the provision of law which is intended to keep the circulation at 90 per cent. of the par value of bonds. Where discrepancies exist they are attributable to two causes: (1) The occasional surrender of circulation prior to the actual withdrawal of the bonds. (2) The redemption of the notes of failed banks for which deposits have been made with the Treasurer out of collections by receivers in cases where the state of the trust allowed of the retention of bonds for the sake of the interest accruing upon them which would otherwise have been lost if the redemption fund had been provided for by their sale.

Banks newly organized are required to pay in the subscribed capital as follows: At date of authority to commence business, 50 per cent., each month thereafter 10 per cent.; bonds may be deposited in proportion to capital paid in; circulation is issued only upon bonds actually deposited.

With a net increase during the year of 90 in the number of banks, and of $13,726,300 in national-bank capital, there has been a net decrease in circulation of $16,545,740.

By reference to the table on page 61, showing the details of bond deposits by banks organized within the year, it will be seen that these banks deposited only the minimum required by law, and the same is true of banks increasing their capital.

The table on page 28, exhibiting the elements of increase and decrease during the year, shows that of the $3,720,695 added to national-bank circulation since November 1, 1887, $2,375,550 has been issued upon bonds deposited, not for the sake of circulation, but to secure the other advantages afforded by the national-bank system; while on the other hand, with the exception of $1,041,165 in notes of failed and liquidating banks, the whole reduction in national-bank currency represents the voluntary surrender of circulation by banks which have heretofore held bonds in excess of the minimum requirement.

The circulation surrendered by such banks is $19,225,370, which is about 20 per cent. of the circulation outstanding a year ago on the bonds representing the excess above the minimum required by law and which may be called the voluntary circulation.

Two new influences have come into play during the past thirteen months, accelerating the retirement of national-bank circulation, viz, (1) the transfer to national-bank depositories of a part of the redundant revenues of the Government, and (2) the large purchases of bonds by the Treasury Department.

NATIONAL BANK DEPOSITARIES.

In October, 1887, with a view to averting a threatened monetary stringency arising from the abnormal accumulation of cash in the Treasury, the Secretary resolved to increase the amounts in national bank depositories under section 5153, Revised Statutes. The depositories have always been required to give United States bonds as security for the public moneys intrusted to them, but owing to the high price, of the bonds and the requirement of section 5191, Revised Statutes as to the reserve to be held against all deposits, the banks were unwilling to receive additional amounts at the old rate of 90 per cent. on $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. bonds and par on the 4 per cent., so that it was determined that banks depositing \$1,000,000 in $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. bonds might carry not exceeding \$1,000,000 of public moneys, and those depositing \$1,000,000 in 4 per cent. bonds might carry \$1,100,000. Subsequently banks were allowed to deposit less than \$1,000,000 in bonds and to carry balances in the above proportions. Since the bonds of both classes held as security for circulation entitled the banks to only 90 per cent. of their face in circulating notes, against which beside they had to keep up a redemption fund of 5 per cent., the opportunity of obtaining Government deposits on the above terms operated as an inducement to the surrender of voluntary circulation, in order that the bonds thereby released might be transferred to the Secretary to be held as security for public moneys.

The precise extent to which this influence was effective in reducing circulation can not be shown because the transfers were not always made directly. In some cases banks intending to withdraw $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. bonds and to surrender the circulation outstanding against them, deposited lawful money to effect the withdrawal and afterward sent on 4 per cent.

bonds as security for the public moneys, and in other cases the deposit of 4 per cent. bonds was made first and the withdrawal of 4½ percents effected afterward, but in both cases it was the terms on which Government funds could be obtained that operated to reduce national-bank circulation.

The subjoined table, showing the transfers directly made from circulation account to public moneys account in each month for the past two years, exhibits in a striking manner the effect of this influence.

The total transfers during eleven months ending September 30, 1887, amounted to $1,782,500, an average of $171,127 per month, while during the next four months the transfers amounted to $3,016,000, an average of over $2,000,000 a month, which four months embrace the period in which the Government funds in national-bank depositaries were being increased, for no new depositaries were designated and no increase of deposits was made after January. During the nine months since January last the transfers amount to only $1,275,000, of which a million dollars represents merely an exchange or cross transfer between the two accounts, and should not, therefore, be considered at all in this connection.

The effect upon circulation is shown by the fourth column of the table, i. e., during the first eleven months of the period the amount of bonds withdrawn from circulation account without being replaced was $1,462,500; during the next four months this amount was $6,231,000, while during the remaining nine months it was only $275,000, viz: $75,000 in February and $200,000 in August, 1888.

BOND PURCHASES BY THE TREASURY.

As has been shown, there was almost a cessation in bond withdrawals from security for circulation as soon as the designation of new depositaries was discontinued.

On April 17 a circular was issued inviting proposals for the sale of bonds to the Government, which resulted in purchases as follows:

Month.	4 per cent. bonds.	4½ per cent. bonds.	Total.
April.....	$1,075,000	$2,490,000	$3,565,000

The subjoined table shows the bond withdrawals from circulation account during the year ending October 31, 1888, divided into two periods of six months each, namely, from November 1, 1887, to April 30, 1888, and from the latter date to October 31, 1888.

STATEMENT SHOWING TOTAL WITHDRAWAL OF BONDS HELD AS SECURITY FOR NATIONAL-BANK CIRCULATION BETWEEN OCTOBER 31, 1887, AND OCTOBER 31, 1888, IN PERIODS OF SIX MONTHS EACH, AND THE REDUCTION OF CIRCULATION CONSEQUENT THEREON.

Total.....	22,142,872	19,928,585

During the first period the withdrawals amounted to $8,672,500, from which should be deducted the withdrawals for transfer directly to public moneys security account, as shown in a previous table, viz, $5,731,000, which leaves a balance of $2,941,500 withdrawn otherwise.

During the second period the total withdrawals were $13,470,372, and of this amount, the bonds withdrawn for delivery directly to the Secretary for purchase amounted to $5,066,950, as is shown by the following statement:

NOTE.—Total of bonds withdrawn, $5,542,950; total of bonds deposited in substitution, $476,000; net withdrawal of bonds, $5,066,950; which is made up of reductions in bonds deposited as follows: 4 percents, $3,671,150; 4½ percents, $1,445,800, and an increase of 6 per cent. bonds of $50,000.

It is not as easy to trace bonds withdrawn for sale as to follow those transferred from one account to another in the Treasury, hence the records of this office do not show the displacement of circulation by bond-purchases quite as fully as they show the displacement by Government deposits, but there can be little doubt that the absorption of so large an amount of bonds in so short a time must have produced a strong influence tending to the reduction of the voluntary circulation of banks, and in the absence of any other known influence of the same tendency this must be considered as accounting for the pressure to withdraw bonds which has for three months in succession carried the deposits of lawful money up to the limit of $3,000,000 imposed by section 9, act July 12, 1882.

In some cases banks have withdrawn their bonds and sold them on the general market, but in time these bonds, or others which they replaced, have come into the Treasury purchases.

The influence of high prices for bonds in reducing voluntary circulation is more a matter of inference than of demonstration, but the following table of prices of bonds during the year will be of interest in this connection:

The quotations given in the above table are not higher than some quotations in previous years, but as the bonds approach maturity their investment-value declines, and this is to be considered in comparing present prices with those prevailing at past periods of time.

The following table will serve to illustrate this:

INCREASE AND REDUCTION OF CAPITAL BY NATIONAL BANKS.

The laws relating to changes in the capital stock of national banks have undergone several modifications, and still need amendment in important particulars as pointed out in Annual Report for 1887. The changes recommended are embodied in the draught of a national-bank code submitted with that report. The latest enactment on the subject is the act of May 1, 1886, and the tables which follow are designed to show the changes which have occurred since that date.

CONVERTED AND ORIGINAL BANKS.

National banks are of two classes, viz, institutions already organized under State laws, converted to national banks under section 5154, Revised Statutes of the United States, and national banking associations primarily organized as such under various acts of Congress.

The following tables show the history of these two classes:

NOTE.—The difference in the amount of capital stock, as shown by this table and by the reports of condition on October 4, is accounted for by the fact that twenty-two banks were organized during the three months just preceding that date, and other banks increased their capital stock.

DISSOLUTION.

The total number of national banks organized since February 25, 1863, is 3,937, of which there are now in operation, as shown elsewhere, 3,151; passed out of the system 786, accounted for thus:

Passed into voluntary liquidation to wind up their affairs.....	512
Less number afterward placed in hands of receivers	9
	503
Passed into liquidation for purpose of reorganization.....	79
Passed into liquidation upon expiration of corporate existence.....	*77
Placed in hands of receivers	128
	787
Less restored to solvency and resumed business.....	1
	786
Total passed out of system.....	786

* Thirty-eight of these have been reorganized.

The corporate existence of ten national banks expired during the year ending October 31, 1888; of these, seven obtained an extension in accordance with the provisions of the act of July 12, 1882, two suffered dissolution, and one failed.

FAILED BANKS.

Eight national banks, with an aggregate capital of $1,900,000, failed and were placed in the hands of receivers during the year, as is shown in the following tabulated statement, to which is appended an account of the chief cause of failure in each case. In one case the creditors have been paid in full, principal and interest; in two others they have received 80 per cent., and in the remaining cases 40, 25, and 20 per cent., respectively, on account of the claims proved:

The Fifth National Bank of Saint Louis, Mo., closed its doors November 7, 1887, and on November 9 its cashier was arrested on a warrant charging fraud and falsification of entries, and placed under bond. The case has not yet been reached in the courts, and the cashier is still at large.

The failure may be traced to the fact that the bank, originally a savings institution, was carrying, when it became a national bank, a considerable amount of doubtful and worthless paper, which was allowed to remain among the assets. Then the officers and some of the directors of the new organization were interested in various businesses carried on with the funds of the bank, and dependent wholly upon that support. The general administration was weak and in some respects vicious. Overdrafts were permitted in large amounts, and bad accounts were disguised by passing fictitious drafts through the bank. The statutes were violated with respect to overloans, false entries were made upon the books to deceive the national-bank examiner and the Comptroller, and these were concealed by the use of notes in several names for money borrowed by one and the same party.

The directors claimed to be unaware of these transactions, and sought to excuse themselves by saying that the bank was managed wholly by the president and cashier to whom alone the facts were known, and on whose statement the directors relied.

In December, 1886, at a meeting of the shareholders it had been resolved to increase the capital stock from $300,000 to $500,000, and subsequent publication was made in the Saint Louis newspapers that the stock of the bank was $500,000.

After the failure it transpired that the payment on account of the new shares amounted to only a little over $126,000, and the subscribers to the increased capital now insist upon being treated as depositors to the extent of the amount paid in on the subscriptions. The receiver claims that these subscriptions are binding, and the question is now pending in the courts.

As preliminary to an action against the directors of the bank to establish their individual liability under the provisions of section 5239, Revised Statutes, proceedings were taken by the Comptroller for the forfeiture of all the rights, privileges, and franchises of the association, and in April last the United States circuit court adjudged the forfeiture.

A dividend of 50 per cent. was paid to the creditors about three months after date of failure, and, as will be seen elsewhere, 30 per cent. more has been paid since, making 80 per cent. within the first twelve months of the receivership.

The First National Bank of Auburn, N. Y., closed its doors on the morning of January 23, the cashier and one of the book-keepers having previously absconded to Canada, taking with them a considerable amount of money belonging to the bank. The association was found to be hopelessly insolvent; past-due paper in large amounts had been accumulating for some years, and leaves which had been cut out of the ledgers and hidden, showed when discovered, that overdrafts had been carried to an amount greatly exceeding the capital stock of the bank. The records had been negligently kept, and in many cases entries were altered and false entries were made, so that the ascertainment of the condition of the association has been slow and difficult, while transactions to considerable amounts are still involved in obscurity. In one case, however, funds of the bank have been traced into a local "bucket shop." The bank was sustaining outside business firms with large loans and overdrafts, having little or no security.

The case of this bank furnishes still another instance of an officer enjoying unlimited confidence, mismanaging its affairs, squandering its resources, and finally stealing its cash under the eyes of directors and stockholders. It also adds another to the numerous illustrations of the temptation to dishonesty which is the direct effect of the facility of escape to Canada and the immunity from extradition enjoyed by such fugitives.

A dividend of 25 per cent. has been paid during the year, but there seems little doubt that the loss to depositors will be heavy.

The Metropolitan National Bank of Cincinnati was reported by the national-bank examiner, in January, as being in a perilously weak condition. The officers and directors were large borrowers, and the management of the bank was found to be inefficient and unbusinesslike. Irregular means had been resorted to in order to cover up large loans, and evidences of the publication of false reports and of violations of the provisions of section 5209 of the Revised Statutes were discovered.

The examination showed, however, that the assets were undoubtedly sufficient to pay creditors in full, and the examiner united with the directors in an effort to tide over the exigency. Considerable collections were made from the directors and large stockholders who were debtors to the bank, and from those who were unable to pay, the examiner succeeded in obtaining available securities to a considerable amount. The directors on their part fortified their cash resources by obtaining loans from other banks, and for a time there seemed to be a fair prospect that the bank could be saved from suspension. It proved impracticable, however, to make headway against the growing distrust among depositors, and the board of directors resolved, on February 6, to close the doors. A receiver was appointed, and the president and vice-president are now under indictment.

Every effort was made by the receiver to expedite the liquidation, and there was no litigation of any consequence, so that within six weeks from the date of failure the creditors were paid in full, principal and interest, and assets to the nominal value of upward of $1,300,000 were turned over to the agent of the stockholders in accordance with the provisions of the act approved June 30, 1876.

The Commercial National Bank of Dubuque, Iowa, failed March 20. The bank was wrecked by the diversion of funds to sustain outside business interests of the president and those of his immediate family connections. An amount not less than four times the capital stock of the bank was borrowed by members of the family and persons connected with them in support of enterprises which depended upon the bank for their existence, and the immediate cause of failure was the inability of these borrowers to liquidate their indebtedness.

The violation of the statute, which the excessive and illegal loans involved, was concealed by making use of the names of irresponsible persons, and the security upon which the directors affected to rely has proved to be insufficient or worthless.

Dividends amounting to 40 per cent. have been paid, and an assessment to the full extent authorized by law has been levied upon the stockholders.

The State National Bank of Raleigh, N. C., closed its doors March 27, the president and cashier having absconded to Canada, taking with them about $25,000. An examination disclosed the fact that the bank had been completely wrecked, and that preparations for defalcation had been in progress for a long time.

The rogues in this instance had resorted even to forgery, and thereby became amenable to extradition. So swift was the pursuit and arrest that most of the stolen money was found still concealed in the clothing of the prisoners and in the original packages.

The offense being one against the State statutes, subsequent proceedings are beyond the official cognizance of the Comptroller of the Currency.

The history of this association is instructive.

A private banker in Raleigh organized the bank, took shares for the assets he turned over to it, and upon the credit thus created he obtained deposits enough to carry on business. His assets, taken as capital, were really worth very little, if anything. His management of the bank was no better than that of his private business. He went on making bad debts and unprofitable investments, and when he died, in 1883, his successors continued to do likewise. His estate and family owned most of the stock, and were also debtors to nearly the par value of their shares. His wife assumed the presidency of the bank, and her brother, the cashier, succeeded to the actual management. Always weak he rapidly became dishonest, and finally ended his career by entering into collusion with the new president, a son-in-law of the deceased founder of the bank, to seize all the plunder they could and decamp.

A dividend of 20 per cent. was declared and distributed June 8.

The Second National Bank of Xenia, Ohio, closed its doors May 2, having been reduced to insolvency by the negligence of the directors and the incompetency of its officers. The cashier was utterly unfit for his position, and nobody else looked after matters. Bad debts and large overdrafts were allowed to accumulate, and the bank's funds were locked up in all sorts of investments that should never have been even entertained.

The directors, active business men, supposed to be in good financial condition, were large borrowers, and allowed their over-due obligations to lie unpaid.

The receiver has collected about $190,000 from the assets, and the directors have contributed $42,000 more in order to facilitate a speedy liquidation. There has been but little litigation attending the administration of this trust.

Dividends amounting to 80 per cent. have been paid since the failure.

The Madison National Bank of Madison, Dak., was organized in December, 1886, having been converted from a State bank. The officers, directors, and stockholders were composed of the president, cashier, their wives, and one other person, the first two holding 470 of the 500 shares into which the capital stock was divided. From the first the management of the bank was so conducted as to call for repeated notices from the Comptroller to the directors to correct irregularities, such as shortage in reserve, dealings with a mortgage and investment company, of which the president and cashier were trustees, excessive loans, overdue paper, etc. Plausible explanations were made by the directors, who alleged inexperience in national-bank methods and misunderstanding of the law. They professed both the intention and the desire to do right, and repeatedly made statements which appeared to show amendment of administration. In May last, however, transactions were discovered which were not only in violation of the national-bank law, but which also involved criminal misconduct of the officers.

The case was so obviously one of premeditated plunder that the examiner was directed to act in concert with the district attorney; and accordingly on a day agreed upon these officers met at Madison, the examiner took charge of the bank, and the president and cashier were arrested.

A receiver was duly appointed, and every effort has been made by attachment and otherwise to save something for the creditors, but these efforts have not received the local support necessary to their success. The accused officers readily obtained bail, and seem to have access to sufficient means to thwart and embarrass the receiver.

After the alleged capital of the bank had been withdrawn in loans to the officers, and its deposits had been absorbed by these officers through the transfer of worthless paper, they set about selling their stock, offering it generally at distant points, and succeeded in making considerable sales, mostly in New England.

The Lowell National Bank of Lowell, Mich., failed September 11, principally on account of the bad management of its president, who seemed to have been uncontrolled by the directors.

Among the nominal assets the receiver has found a large amount of worthless paper, most of it connected with a manufacturing company which was obviously insolvent during the whole time that it was absorbing the resources of the bank. The methods resorted to by the officers of this company with the connivance of the bank were simply scandalous.

Besides the losses incurred in this way the bank's valid resources had become gradually locked up in unproductive real estate and in other inconvertible investments.

As stated in the last Report indictments were found against several persons connected with the Fidelity National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, and suits were brought against the directors implicated in violations of law. These suits have not yet been decided.

Upon trial, the vice-president and assistant cashier were found guilty, and sentenced to serve a term in the penitentiary, the former for ten years. The cashier died before the trials came up.

A table, appendix, p. 172, has been prepared with great care and minute particularity, showing under appropriate heads all collections made from the assets of each of the 128 national banks which have become insolvent, how and for what purpose disbursements were made, and accounting for all moneys and every asset of whatever description which passed through the hands of the receiver or the Comptroller. The labor involved in the preparation of this table has been very great, but as the accounts of receivers are now kept upon the principle applied in the table, and their quarterly reports conform to the same arrangement, there will be no difficulty hereafter in carrying forward the results from year to year.

* Exclusive of banks in voluntary liquidation.

Out of 3,937 national banks organized since February, 1863, only 128, or about $\frac{3}{4}$ per cent., have been placed in the hands of receivers; this includes 9 which had been previously placed in liquidation by their stockholders, but upon their failing to pay their depositors the Comptroller appointed receivers to wind up their affairs. Out of the above total of 128 failed banks, 45 have paid their creditors in full, while 33 have besides paid interest, 27 in full and 6 in part. The affairs of 90 banks of the 128 have been finally closed, leaving 38 in process of settlement, of which, as has been seen, 8 are virtually closed, with the exception of pending litigation, leaving 30 receiverships only in active operation.

The total amount so far paid to creditors of insolvent national banks has been $33,027,451 upon proved claims amounting to $51,924,977. The amount paid during the year has been $3,523,955.82, besides $68,510 paid for dividends declared prior to November 1, 1887, on claims proved since that date. Assessments amounting to $12,553,350 have been made upon stockholders of insolvent national banks under section 5151 of the Revised Statutes of the United States. From this source the gross collections amount to $5,346,171, of which there has been received during the past year $308,591. Suits are pending in some cases.

Each year's experience confirms the opinion that it would be wise to so amend the laws as to allow banks to commute the liability of their shareholders into a special reserve fund, as recommended in the Reports of 1886 and 1887.

Upon a general view of the data relating to insolvent national banks, it appears that while the number of failed banks is about 3½ per cent. of the total number of banks organized, the percentages of their capital and other liabilities, taken at time of failure, are less.

To make the comparison complete, however, there should be added to the capital, surplus, and undivided profits, as given for the year 1888, viz, $883,964,263, the capital, surplus, and undivided profits of all banks that have gone into voluntary liquidation, and of all that have been wound up at the end of their corporate existence, because in these cases shareholders have recovered all they put in and kept in. The amount is $125,894,506, and with the aggregate in the table makes $1,009,858,769, for which the system has been accountable to its proprietors. Against this vast sum should then be set the capital, surplus, and undivided profits of failed banks, viz, $28,387,616, increased by amounts collected by assessment from shareholders, $5,346,171, diminished by the amount, as nearly as can be ascertained, repaid to shareholders out of assets, viz, $3,535,545. The net loss will then be seen to be only $30,198,242, which is not quite 3 per cent. of total investments. Against this loss a superabundant offset is afforded by the dividends paid out of profits amounting in many cases to very large percentages.

Again, from the total "other liabilities" of failed banks, viz, $63,945,321, should be deducted, amount of circulation $15,432,360, and total dividends paid to creditors $33,027,451, aggregate $48,459,811, net loss $15,485,510, which is 0.83 per cent. upon the $1,872,417,724 of such liabilities resting upon the system at large.

The affairs of five failed banks have been closed during the past year, and final dividends have been paid to their creditors. These banks, with the total dividends paid in each case, are given below:

*And interest.

During the past year the following trusts have passed into this category, viz, the First National Bank of Albion, N. Y., and the Hot Springs National Bank of Hot Springs, Ark.

By reference to the Report of 1887 it will be seen that the National Bank of the State of Missouri, Saint Louis, has disappeared from the inactive receiverships. At the date of that report the receivership had not terminated because of the failure of the agent elected by the shareholders in June, 1887, to qualify by giving the bond required by law. During the present year the receivership was closed, and cash assets were turned over to the agent amounting to $26,720, and nominal assets amounting to $36,957. Among the nominal assets was real property which has enormously increased in value, and it is not unlikely that enough may be realized by the agent to reimburse the shareholders for the amount paid under assessment upon stock.

The First National Bank of Albion, N. Y., which was wrecked by its president, who squandered the funds of the bank in speculation, has been placed on the inactive list. The assets of the bank were almost entirely worthless, and a sufficient sum has not been realized to pay a dividend.

An assessment of 100 per cent. was levied upon the stock, nearly all of which was owned by an estate, and a judgment obtained by the receiver, but the demand of the trust was met by counter claims of the estate, which have not yet been judicially determined.

The receiver brought suit against the brokers through whom the president carried on his speculations, and, as will be seen by reference to page 89, obtained judgment for a considerable sum, but the defendants have appealed.

CIRCULATING NOTES.

Under present laws the minimum deposit of bonds required to be made by the 3,140 national banks in operation in the United States on October 4, 1888, amounts to $91,988,805.

A table in the appendix, p. 149, shows by States and geographical divisions the national banks in operation on October 4, 1888, separated into two classes, namely, banks of which the capital does not exceed $150,000 and banks of which the capital exceeds $150,000. The first class contains 2,229 banks, with an aggregate capital of $185,551,921 ; the second, 911 banks, with an aggregate capital of $407,069,735. The minimum of bonds required to be kept on deposit by the entire body of banks in the first class is $46,387,980; the minimum for the 911 banks of the second class is $45,550,000. If all banks held only the minimum of bonds, the total national-bank circulation could not exceed $82,744,025, while the possible maximum of circulation, namely, 90 per cent. of the aggregate of the national-bank capital, would be $533,359,491.

The actual circulation on October 4, 1888, was $151,700,809, which is exclusive of $88,521,813 still outstanding, but which, having been surrendered by the banks that issued it, is no longer represented by bonds, but by that amount of lawful money deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to redeem the notes as they are presented.

The $151,700,809 of circulation for which the banks are responsible consists of $68,410,823 secured by the bonds deposited by the 2,229 banks having $150,000 capital and less, and $83,289,986, secured by the bonds belonging to the 911 banks of which the capital exceeds $150,000. The first class of banks have, therefore, $26,661,641 more than their minimum, and $98,585,906 less than their possible maximum circulation, while the larger banks have $42,294,986 more than their minimum and $283,072,776 less than their maximum.

The following table shows the number of banks organized from July 1, 1882, to July 1, 1888, their capital stock, amount of bonds deposited, and the circulation issued thereon:

Year.	No.	Capital.	Minimum bonds required.	Bonds actually deposited.	Per cent. of excess.	Circulation issued.
July 1, 1882, to July 1, 1883.....	251	$26,552,300	$5,155,500	$7,116,400	28	$6,404,760

July 1, 1885, to July 1, 1886.....	163	17,553,000	3,404,500	3,715,500	8	3,343,950
July 1, 1886, to July 1, 1887.....	217	31,414,000	4,986,000	5,051,300	1	4,546,170
July 1, 1887, to July 1, 1888.....	164	16,734,000	3,308,500	3,324,750	0.5	2,992,275

From the foregoing table it appears that 1,155 banks have been organized between the dates given, with a capital of $127,432,300; that they have received circulation to the amount of $24,495,165 on bonds deposited to the amount of $27,216,850, and that the minimum deposit of bonds required by law for these banks is $23,931,750.

The actual deposit of bonds during the whole period exceeds the minimum by about 12 per cent. only, and taken year by year the percentage of excess has decreased from 28 per cent. in 1882-'83 to one-half of 1 per cent. in 1887-'88.

Of the 164 national banks organized during the past fiscal year, 93 have a capital of $50,000 each, amounting to $4,650,000; 55 have a capital of over $50,000 and not exceeding $150,000, amounting to $5,384,000; and 16 have a capital of $6,700,000. The 16 largest banks deposited the exact amount of bonds required by law, with one exception, and out of 148 banks, of which the capital does not exceed $150,000, only 4 have deposited bonds in excess of the requirement.

Tables will be found in the appendix, p. 147, etc., showing for the national banks in each State, Territory, and reserve city the minimum amount of bonds required by law, the bonds actually held, and the circulation thereon outstanding October 4, 1888; also all other information deemed useful as to circulation.

INTEREST-BEARING FUNDED DEBT OF THE UNITED STATES, AND THE AMOUNT HELD BY NATIONAL BANKS.

The connection between the banks and the distribution of the funded debt of the United States renders the following statement appropriate:

The public debt at its maximum, on August 31, 1865, amounted to $2,844,649,626, of which obligations not bearing interest amounted to $461,616,311, leaving interest-bearing debt $2,383,033,315. On October 31, 1888, the interest-bearing debt amounted to $958,123,282.

The following table shows the class of bonds, authorizing act, date of maturity, rate of interest, and intermediate changes:

The Navy pension fund, amounting to $14,000,000 in 3 percents, the interest upon which is applied to the payment of naval pensions exclusively, and $129,620 of refunding certificates are not included in the table.

During the year ending October 31, 1888, $50,412,650 of 4 percents and $33,242,600 of 4½ percents were purchased for sinking-fund purposes, making a total of $83,655,250. Of this amount $4,077,150 of 4 percents and $1,465,800 of 4½ percents were withdrawn by the national banks from deposit to secure circulation, making total withdrawals from this cause $5,542,950, while the replacement by deposits of 4 percents amounted to only $406,000.

Changes in the debt have induced corresponding changes in the bonds held by the national banks. In January, 1866, 1,532 banks, with capital, surplus, and undivided profits of $475,330,204, held $440,380,350 of United States bonds. On October 4, 1888, 3,140 banks, with capital, surplus, and undivided profits of $855,576,646, held only $232,582,250 of bonds. The total bank circulation on January 1, 1866, was $213,239,530, and on October 4, 1888, that which was secured by bonds was $151,702,809.

The amount and classes of United States bonds owned by the banks, including those pledged as security for circulation and for public deposits, on June 30 in each year since 1865 are exhibited in the following table:

SECURITY FOR CIRCULATING NOTES.

The foregoing tables show how the banks have shifted their investments from one class of bonds to another, and the following table exhibits especially the steady decrease in the amount of bonds held for circulation.

It is worthy of note in this connection that the recent increase in bonds held otherwise than as security for circulation is directly attributable to the requirement of these as security for deposits of public money. It is matter of general knowledge that a considerable percentage of bonds deposited as security for public moneys are not owned by the banks making the deposit, but that they have been borrowed for the purpose.

The following table extended from the last Report shows the diminishing scale on which banks organized during each of the past six years have availed themselves of the privilege of issuing circulation upon bonds in excess of the minimum which the law obliges them to keep on hand.

For the sake of conciseness in the table the circulation is omitted, but as every bank has received circulation to the amount of 90 per cent. of the bonds deposited, the proportions of the table reflect faithfully the features of the circulation.

Notes of gold banks are not included in this table.

Distinct accounts are kept for the incomplete currency issued to banks in replacement of notes redeemed and destroyed under the provisions of the act of June 20, 1874, to banks taking out new circulation upon an extension of their corporate existence under the act of July 12, 1882, and to old and new banks increasing the volume of their circulation by adding to the amount of bonds deposited.

REDEMPTION.

The provisions of law relating to the redemption of the circulating notes of national banks were fully described in the Report of 1887, and need not be here repeated. Two principles have been adhered to in all legislation on this subject.

These are, first, that every bank must redeem on demand at its place of business any of its circulating notes presented there for redemption during business hours; and, second, that the medium of redemption must be "lawful money of the United States."

The act of June 3, 1864, established redemption cities, but the act of June 20, 1874, establishing the National-Bank Redemption Agency of the Treasury at Washington, repealed all requirements as to redemption agents elsewhere, and obliged every bank to keep up a redemption fund in the hands of the Treasurer of the United States equal to 5 per cent. of its outstanding circulation.

The following table, compiled from the Treasurer's reports, shows the practical working of the law as to the 5 per cent. redemption fund:

REDEMPTION OF CIRCULATION OF BANKS IN THE HANDS OF RECEIVERS, OF THOSE IN VOLUNTARY LIQUIDATION, AND OF THOSE REDUCING CIRCULATION UNDER THE ACT OF JUNE 20, 1874.

The redemption of circulating notes of failed banks at the United States Treasury was provided for originally as it is now, by giving the Comptroller power to cancel or to sell the bonds of the banks, and in case of deficiency in the proceeds to make it good out of the assets of the corporation; but before the act of 1874 went into effect the notes of such banks were called in by public advertisement, whereas now they are left in circulation until they are brought by the ordinary currents of redemption into the office of the Treasurer or of one of the assistant treasurers, or into the hands of a designated depository of public moneys, or one of the national-bank depositaries.

Section 8 of the act of June 20, 1874, requires the Treasurer, assistant treasurers, designated depositaries, and national-bank depositaries to assort and return to the Treasurer for redemption the notes of such national banks as have failed, or have gone into voluntary liquidation, and of all such as shall thereafter fail or go into such liquidation.

The following table, compiled from the records of the Bureau of the Currency, shows the course of redemption of the notes of failed banks. Total circulation of all failed banks, $15,432,360; amount redeemed, $13,911,335; balance outstanding or lost, $1,521,025.

Before the act of June 20, 1874, banks reducing their circulation could withdraw their bonds from the Treasury only upon surrendering there, for cancellation, an amount of their circulating notes proportioned to the amount of bonds to be withdrawn, and up to July 14, 1870, banks for one year after going into voluntary liquidation had to resort to the same means in order to withdraw their bonds; but after the expiration of the year such banks might deposit lawful money for the difference between the whole amount of circulation issued to them and the amount surrendered, and thereupon get back the rest of their bonds. The amount of such deposits and the time at which they should be made were left to the choice of the bank. The act of July 14, 1870, made the deposit of lawful money obligatory upon liquidating banks, and the act of June 20, 1874, fixed six months after notice of liquidation as the limit of time allowed for making such deposits.

The act of June 20, 1874, provided also that any national banking association might withdraw its circulating notes upon the deposit of lawful money with the Treasurer of the United States in sums of not less than $9,000. Under this act, and on account of liquidating and insolvent banks, and under section 6 of the act of July 12, 1882, which provides for a deposit of lawful money to retire the old circulation of national banks whose corporate existence has been extended, $409,664,244 of lawful money has been deposited with the Treasurer. This includes $2,663,720 for redemption of the notes of national gold banks and $96,958,887 for the redemption of national-bank notes under section 6 of the act of July 12, 1882.

During the year ending October 31, 1888, lawful money to the amount of $37,781,464 was deposited with the Treasurer to retire circulation, of which $2,107,978 was deposited by banks in liquidation, $14,520,956 by banks reducing circulation under the act of June 20, 1874, and $21,152,530 by banks retiring old circulation under the act of July 12, 1882. The amount previously deposited under the acts of June 20, 1874, and July 12, 1882, was $320,681,226, by banks in liquidation, $65,446,364, making a total of $423,909,054. Deducting from the total the amount of circulating notes redeemed and destroyed without re-issue, which was $336,890,145, there remained in the hands of the Treasurer on October 31, 1888, $87,018,909 of lawful money for the redemption and retirement of national-bank circulation, including $188,987 for the redemption of the circulating notes of national gold banks.

Prior to June 20, 1874, there were redeemed and destroyed $10,431,135, and since that date $326,459,009 of bank notes have been redeemed, destroyed, and retired. This latter amount includes $2,474,733 of the notes of national gold banks, and $50,226,314 of the notes of national banks whose corporate existence has been extended under the act of July 12, 1882.

There are at present no national gold banks in existence. Of those which have been organized, three went into voluntary liquidation and the others became currency banks, under the provisions of the act approved February 14, 1880.

Under all the laws now in operation the Treasurer has received for redemption up to November 1, 1888, national-bank notes aggregating in amount $1,899,039,275.

During the past year the receipts at the Treasury amounted to $103,945,471, of which amount $46,849,990, or 45 per cent., was received from the banks in the city of New York, and $14,327,098, or 14 per cent., from banks in the city of Boston. The amount received from Philadelphia was $6,259,673; from Chicago, $5,694,050; from Cincinnati, $2,337,754; from Saint Louis, $2,501,100; from Baltimore, $3,086,055; from New Orleans, $1,444,067; from Providence, $902,677, and from Pittsburgh, $666,786.

SUPERVISION.

Supervision over the national banks is maintained through a corps of examiners, but it embraces also the scrutiny of the five reports of condition required of every bank each year, and of the reports of earnings and dividends which are made twice a year by all banks, and oftener by those by which dividends are oftener declared.

The Comptroller may call upon any bank, at his discretion, for such special reports as he thinks proper, and an extensive correspondence is kept up with officers and directors in regard to matters contained in the examiners' reports and in the various reports received directly from the banks.

Since directors are responsible in their individual capacity for all violations of law which they knowingly commit or permit (sec. 5239 R. S.), the rule has been adopted of addressing to the board of directors of each bank such correspondence with it as relates to violations of law, and when the matter is serious a separate note is sent to each director informing him of the letter addressed to the board.

Letters relating to the internal administration of the bank are addressed to its president, all others to the cashier.

From a review of the correspondence, as thus classified, it appears that the matters requiring most frequent attention are as follows:

VIOLATIONS OF LAW.

1. EXCESSIVE LOANS.

Section 5200, Revised Statutes, forbids loans to any person, firm, company, or corporation exceeding 10 per cent. upon the capital of the bank.

This restriction is too general in its terms, and is necessarily exceeded by banks in large cities, where the magnitude of deposits and of transactions make conformity with the law impracticable. On the other hand, it is a most salutary restraint upon banks in small communities, preventing the accommodation they afford from being monopolized by a few favored individuals, usually the directors and their friends or relations.

The enforcement of the law in these latter cases is, however, seriously impeded by the notorious disregard of it in the former, and I therefore earnestly repeat the recommendation made last year for new legislation on this subject.

2. LOANS UPON THE SECURITY OF REAL ESTATE.

Section 5137, Revised Statutes, prohibits national banks from holding real estate by title or under mortgage, except in certain specified cases, and the courts have construed this as forbidding, also, loans upon the security of real estate.

The language of the statute is not explicit, and it has been variously construed by different courts, nor has the restriction that popular support which is almost necessary to the official enforcement of any law. On the contrary, there is a widespread feeling that the national bank law discriminates against real estate unjustly, and in agricultural communities this feeling is so strong that in many cases it is resentful, and is made the ground of popular opposition to the whole national-bank system. Even among experienced and conservative bankers in certain sections there appears to be a feeling that the restraint in this respect is unreasonable.

Among the amendments to the national-bank law which were submitted with my last Annual Report will be found certain modifications of the provisions bearing upon real-estate security, and I respectfully repeat the recommendation for their speedy enactment.

3. INVESTMENTS IN BONDS, STOCKS, AND OTHER SECURITIES.

The Supreme Court (First National Bank v. National Exchange Bank, 92 U. S., 122) has pronounced the dictum that a national banking association can not deal in stocks. Two State courts (Pennsylvania and Maryland) have decided that such associations are not authorized to act as brokers or agents in the purchase and sale of such securities.

Like other restrictions upon the national banks, this one, which in the main is wholesome and in most cases necessary, in view of the public uses to which the capital and resources of national banks are dedicated, has been found in some peculiar cases to be inconvenient. In some sections, especially in New England, the number of banks and the amount of floating capital are in excess of the business needs of the locality. The more active and enterprising among these banks secure the commercial paper, and the others have either to lend out their money at distant points, or invest it in securities. The latter is undoubtedly the safer, and therefore the better course, and the officers and directors who resort to it are naturally disposed to dispute any interpretation of the law which is adverse to such investments.

The more I learn about the banking business of the country, however; and in this position the opportunities for learning are incessant and excellent, the more satisfied I am that banks of deposit should never invest in anything but bills of exchange or short-date commercial paper. If capitalists desire to combine for the purpose of holding securities, or dealing in stocks and bonds, they have abundant facilities for doing so outside of the national-bank system. There can be no question of the right of all citizens to invest their own means as they please, but the national banks, under the operation of the laws made for their government, have become the principal depositaries of the floating capital of the country, hence the managers of these banks are bound by duty to their depositors to regard strictly the limitations upon investments imposed by the law, and this obligation becomes strengthened when, as in this case, the law is in harmony with sound banking principles.

Those who are charged with the enforcement of the national-banking law can not be too persistent in keeping the system as clear as possible of every variety of what may be called incrustations of capital.

4. DEFICIENT RESERVE.

There has been a marked improvement all over the country during the last few years in the observance of the law as to reserves and in the conscientiousness and accuracy with which reports are made.

The modifications suggested in the law would be very acceptable to the banks, and would tend to the improvement of the system.

5. EXCESSIVE AND UNLAWFUL DIVIDENDS.

The provisions of law relating to dividends are substantially as follows:

1. The authority to declare dividends and to pay them is vested in the board of directors.

2. A dividend may be declared only when the net profits actually realized and on hand equal or exceed the total amount to be paid to stockholders.

3. Net profits are to be ascertained by deducting from gross earnings and profits: first, all expenses and losses incurred up to the date on which the books are closed; and second, all bad debts, which are thus defined:

All debts due to any associations, on which interest is past due and unpaid for a period of six months, unless the same are well secured, and in process of collection, shall be considered bad debts within the meaning of this section.

4. Until the surplus fund amounts to twenty per cent. of the capital, ten per cent. of net profits must be added to that fund every time a dividend is declared, so that in such cases the fund available for dividend is only ninety per cent. of net profits.

6. IMPROPER REDUCTION OF SURPLUS.

In many cases banks have passed to surplus account more than 10 per cent. of net profits, and subsequently before the surplus was full some of these have claimed that such excess might be withdrawn in dividends. Such a claim does not appear to be consistent either with the language of the law or with its manifest purpose. In construing the language of the law, it is to be observed that the act of 1863 required and that of 1864 authorized dividends every six months out of individual net profits actually on hand, while the latter act prescribed that every six months each bank should make to the Comptroller a report of its profits, expenses, and losses, whether or not any dividend should be then declared. The provision for a tithe to the surplus was from the first implicated with the regulations as to dividends and the charging off of losses, expenses, and bad debts, hence it seems clear that according to the sum already carried to surplus is no longer a part of the undivided profits. The surplus account is by the statute co-ordinated with shareholders as a beneficiary in the dividend fund, and if an amount in excess of the obligatory tithe is once added to the surplus, that amount ceases to be a part of the undivided profits out of which alone dividends may be declared.

As long as the surplus is below 20 per cent. of capital, it can not be reduced except by losses in excess of undivided profits.

The intention of the law in providing for a surplus fund seems to be to afford to shareholders a protection against assessments. Such protection is valuable to all shareholders who are not capitalists, and who, therefore, presumably are not prepared to respond to assessments upon their shares, but it is of vital importance to small investors and to the beneficiaries of trust and estate funds invested in national bank stock.

The surplus fund stands between such shareholders and their wealthy partners as a safe guard against the process commonly known as "freezing out." Without this protection improvident or designing directors would be constantly exposing their shareholders to assessments, and on every such occasion the weak and helpless would be sacrificed, while their stock would pass into the hands of the designing or the grasping.

REPORTS.

During the past year 15,505 reports of condition, about 6,137 reports of dividends and earnings, and 3,166 reports from examiners have been received at the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, and fully 17,000 letters and circulars have been sent out in connection with them. The reports received are all carefully examined, compared with one another, and abstracts are made from them.

From these various reports, after examination and verification, the subjoined tables have been compiled, and other tables compiled from the same sources will be found in the Appendix, pp. 180 to 215, showing the condition of the reserve of national banks, their loans and discounts, abstract of reports of dividends and earnings, ratios to capital and to capital and surplus, and other valuable information as to the condition of the national banks on the date of the last report.

A large table on folded sheet, appended hereto, exhibits for October, 1888, in aggregate, every detail embraced in the tabulated reports required of the banks. Similar tables are made up for the information of the Comptroller from the reports gathered from all banks five times each year. The amounts are given separately for each State, reserve city, and Territory.

DIAGRAM.

With the Report of 1886 a diagram was submitted grouping graphically the main features of the national banking system, and showing by continuous lines the variations occurring between January 1, 1866, and October 7, 1886. It has not been considered necessary to reproduce this diagram, because any one interested in the subject can extend the lines by means of the figures contained in the summary of the condition of the banks, given on page 2 of this Report.

The following table groups in a compendious form the most important facts shown in the diagram, extended to October 4, 1888. The exact figures in each case are given in the table; in the diagram they had to be abridged into round millions.

An examination of this table shows that the aggregate capital, surplus, undivided profits, circulation, and deposits have increased from $1,208,781,908 in January, 1866, to $2,357,600,316 in October, 1888, which is less than double, while the loans and discounts have gone up from $500,650,109 to $1,674,886,285, which is more than treble, showing how much more widely the banks are now identified with the general business of the country than they were twenty-three years ago.

The investments in bonds have taken an opposite course. Amount, ing to $440,380,350 in 1866, increasing to $712,437,900 in April, 1879-they amounted on October 4 last to $232,582,250. Of this amount $60,458,450 were held by the banks for public deposits and other purposes than circulation.

The specie, which at the beginning of the period was but $16,909,363, had got down in October, 1875, to $8,050,330, is now $178,097,816, and on June 30, 1888, was $181,292,276, the highest point yet reached. In October, 1887, the specie amounted to $165,085,454.

It is interesting to see how these changes appear when reduced to percentages.

The capital, surplus, undivided profits, circulation, and deposits constitute together the fund upon which a bank does its business.

Loans and discounts, United States bonds, specie, etc., are different forms in which this fund is invested. Taking the fund at $1,208,781,908 in 1866, at $2,240,587,843 in 1887, and at $2,357,600,316 in 1888, these investments represent the following proportions of those amounts, viz :

	1866.	1887.	1888.
	Per ct.	Per ct.	Per ct.
Loans and discounts	41.32	70.52	71.04
United States bonds	36.36	9.98	9.87
Specie.....	1.57	7.37	11.90
Total.....	79.25	87.87	92.81

Another striking fact is that in 1866 the circulation was $213,239,530, and on October 4, 1888, it is only $151,702,809. At the former period, therefore, the circulation was nearly 45 per cent. of the capital, surplus, and undivided profits, while now it is only about 18 per cent.

In the above tables the specie held represents the aggregate of the gold and silver coin and Treasurer's certificates and clearing-house gold certificates. In the appendix, page 198, will be found a table giving the amount of each kind of coin and certificate held by the banks in each one of the States and reserve cities in October, 1887, and October, 1888, conveniently arranged for purposes of comparison.

TRANSACTIONS OF THE NEW YORK CLEARING-HOUSE.

The New York Clearing-House Association is composed of 64 members, of which 44 are national banks, 19 are State banks, and the other member is the assistant treasurer of the United States at New York. Two national banks and 23 State banks in the city do not belong to the association, but clear through associate members. Mr. W. A. Camp, the manager of the Clearing-House, has kindly supplied the data for the following tables, showing the transactions during the year ending October 1, 1888:

* When the Government ceased issuing gold certificates December 1, 1878, the New York banks agreed to have a common depository for their gold coin. The Bank of America performed this function. None of its certificates are now outstanding, the last having been canceled in July of the present year.

Following is a comparative statement of transactions of the New York Clearing-House for thirty-five years, showing for each year the number of banks, aggregate capital, clearings, and balances, average of the daily clearings and balances, and the percentage of balances and clearings:

DUTIES, ASSESSMENTS, AND REDEMPTION CHARGES.

National banks are subjected to a semi-annual duty of one-half of 1 per cent. upon the average amount of their notes in circulation during the preceding six months. They are also required by the act of June 20, 1874, to pay the cost of the redemption of their notes at the office of the Treasurer of the United States at Washington and the cost of the plates from which their notes are printed. Banks extending their corporate existence have to pay for new plates. Previously to the act of June 20, 1874, the expense of the plates had been paid out of the tax on the banks, which at that time attached to capital and deposits as well as to circulation.

The banks are further required to pay the fees of the examiners employed to ascertain their condition, under section 5240, Revised Statutes of the United States.

The taxes and assessments collected during the past year are as follows:

Semi-annual duty on circulation	$1,616,127.53
Cost of redemption of notes by United States Treasurer	141,141.48
Assessment for cost of plates, new banks	14,100.00

LEGAL DECISIONS.

CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTES RELATING TO NATIONAL BANKS.

The "Digest of National-Bank Cases" presented in the Report of 1887 is reproduced in the appendix, page 101, enlarged by the incorporation of decisions announced during the last twelve months. The most important of these new decisions are as follows:

(1) An opinion rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States, February 20, 1888, in what is commonly called "The Pacific National-Bank Cases," holding that attachment of assets of national banks, whether insolvent or not, is invalid and that United States statute takes away the power of the courts to issue injunctions against national banks.

The opinion is as follows:

All of these cases involve the same general question, and they may properly be considered and decided together. From the records it appears that the Pacific National Bank of Boston was an association for carrying on the business of banking, organized under the national-bank act. On the 20th of November, 1881, it became embarrassed, and was placed in charge of a bank examiner, in whose control it remained until March 18, 1882, when its doors were opened for business with the consent of the Comptroller of the Currency.

By statute, in Massachusetts, civil actions are begun by original writ, which "may be framed either to attach the goods or estate of the defendant, and, for want thereof, to take his body; or it may be by original summons, with or without an order to attach the goods or estate." (Pub. Stat. of Mass., 1882, chap. 161, secs. 13, 14.) "All real and personal estate liable to be taken on execution * * * may be attached upon the original writ in any action in which debt or damages are recoverable, and may be held as security to satisfy such judgment as the plaintiff may recover." (Sec. 38.) "A person or corporation whose goods or estate are attached on mesne process in a civil action may, at any time before final judgment, dissolve such attachment by giving bond with sufficient sureties, * * * with condition to pay to the plaintiff the amount, if any, that he may recover within thirty days after the final judgment in such action." (Sec. 122.)

At the time the bank resumed business it was indebted to George Mixter in the sum of $15,000; to Henry M. Whitney also in the sum of $15,000; to Daniel L. Demmon in the sum of $25,000; and to Calvin B. Prescott in the sum of $5,000.

On the 24th of March, 1881, Mixter and Prescott each began a suit against the bank in the circuit court of the United States for the district of Massachusetts, by writ directing an attachment, to recover the amounts due them respectively. Demmon also began a suit in the same court and in the same way on the 28th of March, to recover the amount due him, and Whitney another on the 23th of April, upon the claim in his favor. At the time these suits were begun the bank had money on deposit to its credit in the Maverick National Bank and in the Howard National Bank, and the necessary steps were taken to subject these deposits to the attachments which were issued in the several suits.

The bank arranged with Lewis Coleman and John Shepard to become its sureties upon bonds to dissolve attachments in any actions that might be brought against it, and placed in their hands a certificate of deposit in the Maverick National Bank for $100,000, to be held as their protection against all liabilities which should be thus incurred. This certificate was afterwards exchanged for $121,000 of the bonds of the Nantasket Company, $20,000 of the bonds of the Toledo, Delphos and Burlington Railroad Company, and $15,000 of the bonds of the Lebanon Springs Railroad Company.

Immediately after each of the attachments in the above actions had been made, the bank executed a bond to the plaintiff in a penal sum suited to the amount of the claim, with Coleman and Shepard as its sureties, reciting the attachment, and that the bank "desires to dissolve said attachment according to law," and conditioned to be void "if the Pacific National Bank of Boston shall, within thirty days after the final judgment in the aforesaid action, pay to the plaintiff therein named the amount, if any, which he shall recover in such action." Upon the execution of the bond in each case, the attachment was dissolved.

After this the bank closed its doors a second time, and on the 22d of May, 1882, a receiver was appointed by the Comptroller of the Currency in accordance with the provisions of section 5234 of the Revised Statutes, and at once took possession of its assets and proceeded to wind up its affairs.

When the receiver was appointed he found the several suits which had been commenced still pending. In the cases of Mixter, Whitney, and Demmon he appeared, answered for the bank, filed motions to discharge the attachments, and motions to dismiss the suits. His motions were all overruled, and, his defenses not being sustained, judgments were rendered against the bank in each of the cases for the amounts found to be due the several plaintiffs, respectively. For the review of the action of the court in these cases the writs of error which are now under consideration were brought.

The suit of Prescott still remains undisposed of in the circuit court.

Failing in his motions and in his defenses at law, the receiver filed a bill in equity in the circuit court against the several attaching creditors and the sureties on the bonds given to dissolve the attachments, the object of which was to reduce to his possession the securities which were held by the sureties for their protection against liability, and to restrain the several attaching creditors from enforcing the attachment bonds on the ground, among others, "that the attachments made in said actions were unauthorized, illegal, and void." This bill was dismissed by the circuit court (22 Fed. Rep., 694), and from that decree the appeal, which is now one of the subjects of consideration, was taken.

In the view we take of the case, the most important question to be considered is whether an attachment can issue against a national bank before judgment in a suit begun in the circuit court of the United States. Section 5242 of the Revised Statutes of the United States contains this provision: "No attachment, injunction, or execution shall be issued against such association or its property before final judgment in any suit, action, or proceeding, in any State, county, or municipal court." The original national-bank act contained nothing of this kind, but the prohibition first appeared in the act of March 3, 1873 (chap. 269, sec. 2, 17 Stat., 603), as a new proviso added to section 57 of the act of June 3, 1864 (chap. 106, Sec. 2, 13 Stat., 116). That section was originally as follows:

"That suits, actions, and proceedings against any association under this act may be had in any circuit, district, or Territorial court of the United States held within the district in which such association may be established, or in any State, county, or municipal court in the county or city in which said association is located, having jurisdiction in similar cases: Provided, however, That all proceedings to enjoin the Comptroller under this act shall be had in a circuit, district, or territorial court of the United States, held in the district in which the association is located."

The amending act was as follows:

"That section fifty-seven * * * be amended by adding thereto the following: And provided further, That no attachment, injunction, or execution shall be issued against such association, or its property, before final judgment in any such suit, action, or proceeding in any State, county, or municipal court."

Section 52 of the original national-bank act was as follows:

"That all transfers of the notes, bonds, bills of exchange, and other evidences of debt owing to any association, or of any deposits to its credit; all assignments of mortgages, sureties on real estate, or of judgments or decrees in its favor; all deposits of money, bullion, or other valuable thing for its use, or for the use of any of its shareholders or creditors; and all payments of money to either, made after the commission of an act of insolvency, or in contemplation thereof, with a view to prevent the application of its assets in the manner prescribed by this act, or with a view to the preference of one creditor to another, except the payment of its circulating notes, shall be null and void." (13 Stat., 115.)

This was evidently intended to preserve to the United States that "first and paramount lien upon all the assets of such association" which was given by section 47 as security for the repayment of any amount expended by them to redeem the circulating notes, over and above the proceeds of the bonds pledged for that purpose, and to place all the other creditors on that equality in the distribution of the assets of an insolvent bank which was clearly provided for in section 50, where the Comptroller of the Currency is required to make ratable dividends of the proceeds of the assets of the association realized by the receiver "on all such claims as may have been proved to his satisfaction, or adjudicated in a court of competent jurisdiction." (National Bank vs. Colby, 21 Wall., 609, 613.)

In the revision of the statutes, section 52 of the original act, and the amendment of section 57 adopted in 1873, relating to attachments and injunctions in State courts, were re-enacted as section 5242, the amendment of section 57 being put in the revision at the end of what had been the original section 52. As the Revised Statutes were first adopted, the proviso of section 57, which related specially to proceedings to enjoin the Comptroller, was re-enacted as section 736, but all the rest of the original section was left out. That omission was, however, supplied by the act of February 18, 1875 (chap. 80, 18 Stat., 316, 320), which re-enacted it as part of section 5198, putting it at the end of that section as it originally stood in the revision.

The fact that the amendment of 1873 in relation to attachments and injunctions in State courts was made a part of section 5242 shows the opinion of the revisers and of Congress that it was germane to the other provision incorporated in that section, and was intended as an aid to the enforcement of the principle of equality among the creditors of an insolvent bank. But, however that may be, it is clear to our minds that, as it stood originally as part of section 52 after 1873, and as it stands now in the Revised Statutes, it operates as a prohibition upon all attachments against national banks under the authority of the State courts. That was evidently its purpose when first enacted, for then it was part of a section which, while providing for suits in the courts of the United States or of the State, as the plaintiff might elect, declared in express terms that if the suit was begun in a State court no attachment should issue until after judgment. The form of its re-enactment in the Revised Statutes does not change its meaning in this particular. It stands now, as it did originally, as the paramount law of the land that attachments shall not issue from State courts against national banks, and writes into all State attachment laws an exception in favor of national banks. Since the act of 1873 all the attachment laws of the State must be read as if they contained a provision in express terms that they were not to apply to suits against a national bank.

The prohibition does not in express terms refer to attachments in suits begun in the circuit courts of the United States, but as by section 915 of the Revised Statutes those courts are not authorized to issue attachments in common-law causes against the property of a defendant, except as "provided by the laws of the State in which such court is held for the courts thereof," it follows that, as by the amendatory act of 1873, now part of section 5242 of the Revised Statutes, all power of issuing attachments against national banks before judgment has been eliminated from State statutes, there can not be any laws of the State providing for such a remedy on which the circuit courts may act. The law in this respect stands precisely as it would if there were no State law providing for such a remedy in any case. It was suggested in argument that the prohibition extended only to the use of the remedy by State courts, and that the remedy itself still remained to be resorted to in the courts of the United States. But we do not so understand the law. In our opinion the effect of the act of Congress is to deny the State remedy altogether so far as suits against national banks are concerned, and in this way it operates as well on the courts of the United States as on those of the States. Although the provision was evidently made to secure equality among the general creditors in the division of the proceeds of the property of an insolvent bank, its operation is by no means confined to cases of actual or contemplated insolvency. The remedy is taken away altogether and can not be used under any circumstances.

It was further said that if the power of issuing attachments has been taken away from the State courts, so also is the power of issuing injunctions. That is true. While the law as it stood previous to the act of July 12, 1882 (chap. 290, sec. 4, 22 Stat., 163), gave the proper State and Federal courts concurrent jurisdiction in all ordinary suits against national banks, it was careful to provide that the jurisdiction of the Federal courts should be exclusive when relief by attachment or injunction before judgment was sought. Until the act of 1882 the Federal courts had ample authority to grant injunctions in proper cases, and all a person need do to invoke that authority was to bring his suit in one of those courts. Whether since the act of 1882 this remains so is a question for the consideration of Congress. Some amendment to existing legislation may be necessary, but this does not shed any light on the interpretation of the old law. The difficulty arises from the change that has been made, not from the law as it stood originally.

We are, therefore, of opinion that the attachments in all the suits were illegal and void, because issued without any authority of law. But it is insisted that notwithstanding this the bonds are valid and may be enforced.

It is undoubtedly true that the sureties on a bond of this kind are estopped from setting up, as a defense to an action for a breach of its condition, any irregularities in the form of proceeding to obtain an attachment authorized by law which would warrant its discharge upon a proper application made therefor. As the purpose of the bond is to dissolve an attachment, its due execution implies a waiver both by the defendant and his sureties of all mere irregularities. So, too, it is no defense that the property attached did not belong to the defendant, or that it was exempt, or that the defendant has become bankrupt or is dead. In all such cases, where there was lawful authority for the attachment, the simple question is, whether the condition of the bond has been broken; that is to say, whether there has been a judgment in the action against the defendant for the payment of money which he has neglected for thirty days afterwards to make.

In the present case, however, the question is whether the bond creates a liability when the attachment on which it is predicated was actually prohibited by law. In other words, whether an illegal and therefore a void attachment is sufficient to lay the foundation for a valid bond to secure its formal dissolution. The bond is a substitute for the attachment, although not affected by all the contingencies which might have discharged the attachment itself. (Carpenter vs. Turrell, 100 Mass., 450, 452; Tapley vs. Goodsell, 122 Mass., 176, 182.) Such being the case, it necessarily follows that if there was no authority in law for the attachment, there could be none for taking the bond. If the attachment itself is illegal and therefore void, so also must be the bond which takes its place. Objections can be made to an attachment issued on proper legal authority, which can not be used as a defense to a bond taken under the statute for its dissolution; but if there can be no lawful attachment, there can be no valid bond for its dissolution. The case is to be considered as though there was no law whatever for the seizure of property by attachment before judgment in any case. As the taking of the property under such circumstances would be unlawful, so also would be the act of the magistrate in accepting the bond.

Neither is the bond binding as a common-law bond. If the attachment had been valid, and the bond taken had not been in all respects such as the statute had required, it could nevertheless have been enforced as a common-law bond, because it was executed for a good consideration, and the object for which it was given had been accomplished. But here the difficulty is that there was no lawful attachment, and therefore no lawful authority for taking any bond whatever. The bond is consequently neither good under the statute nor at common law, because there is no sufficient foundation to support it.

Objection is made to the relief which is sought in equity, because if the attachment bonds are void there is an adequate remedy at law in the suits that may be brought for their enforcement. If the suit in equity had been brought by the sureties to get rid of their obligation, this objection might be good; but such is not its character. The sureties have in their hands assets of the bank which the receiver seeks to reduce to his possession, and which they claim the right to hold until they have been fully indemnified against or discharged from liability on the bonds. The receiver says there is no liability, because the bonds are invalid; and to have that question settled once for all he has brought the persons interested, creditors as well as sureties, before the court in order that it may be conclusively adjudicated between them. Such a suit is clearly cognizable in equity. The sureties are in a sense stake-holders.

They do not claim the securities unless they are liable on the bonds, and the suit, although not brought by them, is in the nature of an interpleader to save them "from the vexation of two proceedings on a matter which may be settled in a single suit." The decree will bind all alike, and if the sureties are held not to be liable it will conclude the creditors from all further proceedings against them on the bonds, and leave them free to surrender the securities to the receiver. This will not affect the judgments that the creditors have recovered any further than to limit their operation, so far as the receiver and the sureties on the attachment bonds are concerned, to the adjudication of the debts as claims entitled to dividends from the proceeds of the assets of the bank. To that extent, certainly, the court had jurisdiction in each of the suits after the insolvency; but as the attachments were void the judgments are inoperative as a basis of recovery upon the bonds.

The judgment in each of the suits at law is affirmed, but the decree in the suit in equity is reversed, and the cause remanded with instructions to enter a decree setting aside and annulling the bonds which were given to dissolve the attachments, and enjoining each and all of the creditors, and those claiming under them, from proceeding in any manner to enforce the same against the sureties, and directing the sureties to surrender to the receiver the securities they hold for their indemnity.

(2) An opinion rendered by the United States circuit court, southern district of New York, in an action of trover to recover moneys of a national bank (afterward insolvent) alleged to have been wrongfully appropriated by certain brokers and used in stock speculations.

The opinion is as follows :

This action is in substance one of trover to recover moneys of the First National Bank of Albion, alleged to have been wrongfully appropriated by the defendants during the years 1880 and 1881. The case was tried with a jury, and the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff for $103,000 principal, with $44,759 interest. The case is now here upon a motion by the defendants for a new trial.

It appeared by the evidence that in 1880 one Warner was the cashier of the Albion bank, and for some time had been intrusted with the almost exclusive management of its affairs. In November, 1881, he became its president. In August, 1884, the bank failed, Warner absconded, and the plaintiff, who was appointed its receiver, took possession of the assets. An examination of its affairs showed that Warner had misappropriated moneys and securities of the bank to the amount of over $300,000 and was otherwise indebted to the bank in a considerable sum. It was further shown that Warner had been carrying on stock speculations through the agency of the defendants, who were stock brokers and bankers of New York city; that he opened a customer's account with them May 11, 1880, and continued to buy and sell stocks and securities upon margins through them, and to deposit with and draw upon them as bankers, during that year and the next; and that from time to time the defendants received large sums of money from him by checks of the Albion bank, payable to their order, drawn by Warner, as cashier, upon the Third National Bank of New York city. The defendants collected these checks, and placed the proceeds to Warner's credit in his account with them.

It was also proved that for many years the Albion bank had kept a banking account with the Third National Bank of New York, and had been accustomed to draw upon it at sight, and send it collections and remittances; that after Warner became the cashier of the Albion bank he took personal charge of the correspondence between that bank and the New York bank, and intercepted the letters of advice and monthly statements sent by the New York bank to the Albion bank, and adopted other methods to conceal from the other persons associated with him in conducting the Albion bank the true state of the account between the two banks; that from time to time he deposited with the New York bank, in the name of the Albion bank, funds in his possession, and from time to time drew checks and drafts in the name of the Albion bank, as cashier, upon the New York bank, for his own transactions and speculations; and that the checks and drafts thus drawn by Warner for his own use were not credited to the New York bank on the books of the Albion bank, nor were the deposits made in the name of the Albion bank by Warner personally charged to the New York bank on the books of the Albion bank, although they were credited to the Albion bank by the New York bank; and neither the checks nor drafts, nor the credit items appeared in any way upon the books of the Albion bank.

The evidence was sufficient to justify the jury in finding that Warner used the account of the Albion bank with the New York bank as the means of appropriating, without the knowledge of the directors or other officers of the Albion bank, and clandestinely, the funds and credit of that bank for his own benefit. It appeared by the books of the two banks that the checks and drafts upon the New York bank and charged to the Albion bank, but not credited by the Albion bank to the New York bank, during the period of Warner's defalcations amounted to $267,000, and the deposits credited by the New York bank to the Albion bank, but not charged by the Albion bank to the New York bank, during the same period amounted to $281,000.

The checks received by the defendants between May 11, 1880, and August 26, 1881, and including those dates, aggregated the amount of $103,000. During the same period they received from Warner from other sources $107,703. The defendants bought and sold stock for Warner on a margin of 10 per cent., and many of the checks in question were received by them pursuant to their request to remit for margins. The first and last checks were for $10,000 each; one was for $15,000. In January, 1881, they received checks for margins aggregating the sum of $50,000. Testimony was given for the plaintiff tending to show that Warner was rated, where he resided, as worth from $15,000 to $20,000; and testimony was given for the defendants tending to show that they supposed that other persons were interested with Warner in his stock transactions, and did not suspect that he was using the funds of the bank illegitimately. It also appeared that from time to time Warner drew on the defendants, and that during the period covered by the checks in controversy they paid on his drafts, into the Third National Bank, to the credit of the Albion bank, at various times, sums aggregating $89,202, and that this amount was credited to the Albion bank on the books of the New York bank, and $25,850 thereof was charged on the books of the Albion bank to the New York bank, but the rest did not appear in the books of the Albion bank.

Upon the trial, the court excluded the testimony offered by the defendants to show that it was customary with bankers and brokers of New York City to receive cashiers' checks and drafts drawn in favor of their own banks upon New York banks as cash, upon transactions with the cashier individually. At the close of the testimony, the defendants requested the court to instruct the jury to find a verdict for the defendants. Defendants also requested the court to instruct the jury that the defendants were not liable for any sum in excess of the difference between the sums received by them from Warner upon the checks of the Albion bank and the sums paid by them on Warner's drafts to the New York bank to the credit of the Albion bank. The court refused such instructions. The court instructed the jury, in substance, that it was incumbent upon the plaintiff to establish that the moneys represented by the checks received by the defendants were moneys of the bank which had been misappropriated by Warner; and that, when the defendants received the checks, they took them with guilty knowledge that Warner in using them was misappropriating the funds of the bank; and that, unless they found both these propositions established by the evidence, their verdict should be for the defendants. They were further instructed that they might find upon the evidence that Warner was permitted by the directors of the bank to draw such checks for his own use, or to use the money of the bank for his own purposes, or they might find that the directors of the bank were in collusion with Warner and cognizant of his transactions; that if they found that those who represented the stockholders of the bank as its directors or managers permitted Warner to draw such checks or use the moneys of the bank for his own purposes, not as co-conspirators or collusively, but trusting in his integrity or believing that the bank would not be injured, or through loose management on their part, the plaintiff could not recover; but if they did this collusively their consent could not shelter the defendants, because they had no power by virtue of their position to consent to a fraud upon the stockholders. The jury were further instructed that upon the issue whether the defendants received the checks with guilty knowledge, the question was not whether they were negligent in receiving them or in allowing Warner to deal with them as they did, but the question was whether they were guilty of bad faith; that defendants were bound to know that a cashier has no authority as such to loan the money of the bank or use its checks for his personal use; that the jury were to infer that the defendants knew this when they received the checks, and therefore the question was whether the defendants believed that by some special arrangement or confidence Warner was permitted by those who were associated with him in the management of the bank to use its checks and moneys as he did; and if the jury found that the defendants so believed, the defendants were not guilty of mala fides. The defendants insist upon this motion that the court erred in excluding the testimony of custom, in refusing to instruct the jury as requested, in the instructions given to the jury, and urge other grounds for a new trial.

In some aspects this is a hard case for the defendants. If the verdict stands, they are made responsible to pay over a very large sum of money which came to their hands to be invested and handled for another person in consideration of a small commission to be received by them, and which they have paid back to the person from whom they received it; and there is no reason to suppose that they had any active or defined purpose when they received the money, or at any time, of assisting the person from whom they received it to defraud others, or to injure others in any way. It is altogether likely that they could have shown, if they had been permitted to do so, by the testimony of any number of respectable bankers and brokers, that it is every-day practice in Wall street, for those in their line of business to buy and sell stocks for bank presidents and cashiers who are speculating there, and to accept drafts and negotiable paper of the corporations of these officers, made by them officially, in payment of the margins or purchase-money, and that such transactions are so frequent and common in Wall street that they do not attract special notice, and do not usually excite a passing suspicion that they are irregular or improper.

But no usage, however common and well recognized, can be invoked to justify a banker, or any one else, in taking money or negotiable paper in payment of an agent's debt, known to belong to his principal, or known to belong to a trust-estate, to satisfy the trustee's personal debt, or to shield the banker from accountability who wilfully closes his eyes and stops his ears to facts and circumstances which import notice that the agent or trustee is misappropriating the money or property intrusted to him. Therefore, if there is any significance in the fact that a bank president or cashier offers negotiable paper of his corporation, made by him in his official character, in payment of his personal debt, or to raise money for his personal use, it matters not that bankers generally do not appreciate it. If they regard the transaction as equivalent to one in which the individual comes with money in hand, they ignore its real character, because in that case he comes with what purports to be his own, having the possession which implies title and ownership, and the right to use it as he sees fit. When he comes with the money-obligation of a corporation, which is the contract of a corporation only because he has made it, and which is not its contract if he has made it without authority, the transaction is a very different one. Every person who takes such an obligation must ascertain at his peril that the agent who has made it was authorized to do so; and the moment that it appears that the contract has been made for the agent's own use and benefit, that moment his authority is impugned and impeached.

No principle of the law of agency is better settled than that no person can act as the agent for another in making a contract for himself. Therefore it is that a bank president or cashier has no implied authority to bind his corporation to negotiable paper made for his own use; and if it appears upon the face of the paper that it is payable to the individual who has made it in an official capacity, the obligation is nugatory, and no purchaser can enforce it.

Upon this principle it was held in Claffin v. The Farmers and Citizens' Bank (25 N. Y., 293) that a general authority to the president of a bank to certify checks drawn upon it does not extend to checks drawn by himself; and if the face of the check shows the president's attempt to use his official character for his private benefit, every one to whom it comes is put upon inquiry, and if the certificate is false no one can recover against the bank as a bona fide holder. So, too, it was held in West Saint Louis Savings Bank v. Shawnee County Bank (95 U. S., 557), where a bank cashier made his individual note payable to the order of his bank, and indorsed it officially, that a purchaser of the note was charged with notice that the indorsement was not within the implied authority of the cashier, and must prove actual authority in order to recover of the bank as indorser.

It can make no difference whether the agent or officer appears to be the party to whom the paper is payable upon the face of the instrument, or whether it appears by extrinsic facts that he is the real party for whose benefit it was made; consequently, whenever he offers the instrument under circumstances which show that he has made it officially for his private use, the party dealing with him must take notice of his want of authority, and can not treat it as the obligation of the principal, unless he can prove the existence of some special and extraordinary authority on the part of the agent. For these reasons the testimony offered by the defendants to show that cashiers' checks, when used in the private transactions of bank cashiers, are by usage regarded as cash, was properly excluded. If the tendency of the testimony was to establish a usage to the effect that such payments are regarded by bankers as ordinary payments of cash made by individuals for their own account, the usage would contravene well-settled legal principles. In any other aspect the testimony was immaterial.

The views thus expressed are pertinent in considering whether the instructions given to the jury were correct respecting the title acquired by the defendants to the checks and moneys the checks represented. If the instructions did not accurately present to the jury the legal principles by which, upon the evidence, the rights of the parties were to be determined, they certainly did no injustice to the defendants. The case was put to the jury upon the theory that the defendants, in taking the checks, occupied the position of purchasers of commercial paper, and as though their liability was to be tested by the rule applicable to actions for the wrongful conversion of such paper. If they acquired title to the checks as against the bank, of course they acquired title to the proceeds, and, if they were bona fide purchasers, their title was perfect; otherwise they became liable for the proceeds as for a conversion. (Comstock v. Hier, 73 N. Y., 269). The defendants were given the full benefit of the distinction between negligence and mala fides in the purchase of negotiable paper, and the jury were instructed that mere suspicion on the part of the defendants was not sufficient to charge them with notice that Warner was using the checks without authority. The doctrine of Goodman v. Simonds (20 How., 343) was adopted as applicable to the facts.

The facts in evidence certainly justified the submission of the question to the jury whether the defendants did not have notice that Warner was availing himself of fiduciary powers to use the funds of the corporation for unauthorized purposes. As the checks were made payable to the order of the defendants for Warner's individual use, in legal effect they were made payable to Warner's own order. The defendants knew that he was not acting within the scope of any ordinary agency when he made checks officially for use in his private transactions. The authority of a cashier to represent the bank does not extend to a contract involving the payment of money not loaned by the bank in the ordinary way. (United States Bank v. Dunn, 6 Pet., 51; United States v. City Bank of Columbus, 21 How., 356; Merchants' Bank v. State Bank, 10 Wall., 604.) As the executive officer of the bank, he transacts its business under the orders and supervision of the board of directors. Authority to use its credit, or transfer its funds for his private use, can not be implied from the fact that his official position puts it within his power to act dishonestly in this behalf.

Although the defendants were bound to know when they took the checks that the paper could not be treated as the paper of the bank unless the managers of the bank had loaned him the money represented by it, there was evidence which, unexplained, tended to show that such a loan had been in fact made. The evidence consisted in the circumstances that the checks were drawn upon the regular correspondent of the bank, were drawn frequently, were for large amounts, and the transactions extended over a considerable period of time. These circumstances indicated the improbability that the cashier was acting clandestinely or criminally, and suggested that he was acting with the acquiescence of the directors or that the directors were grossly inattentive to their duties. If the circumstances were sufficiently notorious and peremptory to preclude any other theory than that the directors were aware of what was being done, and were not such as to imply that the directors were willfully ignoring their duties, and acting collusively with Warner, they would afford sufficient evidence of Warner's authority to use the funds of the bank as he did, and would have justified the defendants in relying upon the ostensible authority evinced by the acquiescence and recognition of the directors. As was said by the court in Martin v. Webb (110 U. S., 14., 3 Sup. Ct. Rep., 428):

"It is clear that a banking corporation may be represented by its cashier—at least where its charter does not otherwise provide—in transactions outside of his ordinary duties without his authority to do so being in writing, or appearing upon the record of the proceedings of the directors. His authority may be by parol and collected from circumstances. It may be inferred from the general manner in which, for a period sufficiently long to establish a settled course of business, he has been allowed without interference to conduct the affairs of the bank. It may be implied from the conduct or acquiescence of the corporation, as represented by the board of directors. When, during a series of years, or in numerous business transactions, he has been permitted, without objection, and in his official capacity, to pursue a particular course of conduct, it may be presumed, as between the bank and those who in good faith deal with it upon the basis of his authority to represent the corporation, that he has acted in conformity with instructions received from those who have the right to control its operations. Directors can not, in justice to those who deal with the bank, shut their eyes to what is going on around them. It is their duty to use ordinary diligence in ascertaining the condition of its business, and to exercise reasonable control and supervision of its officers. * * * That which they ought by proper diligence to have known as to the general course of business in the bank, they may be presumed to have known in any contest between the corporation and those who are justified by circumstances in dealing with its officers upon the basis of that course of business."

The defendants could rightfully assume that the directors of the Albion bank did use reasonable diligence in acquainting themselves with the state of its account with its principal agent, the New York bank, and did exercise proper control and supervision generally in the management of its affairs; and the fact that Warner was nevertheless able to use the funds of the bank in such large amounts, for so long a period of time, and through the medium of the regular correspondent of the bank, was inexplicable, except upon the theory of the acquiescence of the directors, or of their guilty complicity with him, or of the existence of an extraordinary laxity on their part in the conduct of the affairs of the bank. The defendants, however, chose to rely upon appearances, instead of seeking authentic information. They were not certain, and could not be from the nature of the case, whether, notwithstanding appearances, the directors were not being deceived by Warner, and were not in fact ignorant that he had ever made any of the checks in question. It was incumbent upon the defendants to show that the directors knew and acquiesced in what was being done by Warner, before they could rely upon his official signature. The evidence raised a presumption of such knowledge and acquiescence on the part of the directors, but did not show it conclusively; it presented a question of fact for the consideration of the jury; and the jury found, as the evidence fully warranted them in doing, that the directors were ignorant of Warner's acts.

As is stated in Wharton on Agency (sec. 139): "The pretension by an agent to extraordinary or peculiar powers is by itself sufficient to arouse suspicion." When the transaction is such as should arouse suspicion of the agent's authority to represent his principal, it is the duty of those who deal with him in a representative character to apply to his principal for information. The defendants did not choose to take the safer course; they preferred to rely upon the evidence of Warner's authority evinced by the facts and circumstances which tended to show that the directors must have known of and consented to his use of the funds of the bank. The jury found not only that the directors did not know this, but also found that the defendants did not believe, when they took the checks, that Warner was authorized to make them by his co managers of the bank. The doctrine that a purchaser of negotiable paper acquires a good title if he acquires it for value, and honestly, notwithstanding he may have been grossly negligent in failing to make proper inquiries, has no application to a case like the present. A purchaser of commercial paper, made by an agent, can not acquire any title to it as against the principal, unless he is able to show that it is the paper of the principal, made by the agent, by due authorization. When he has information that the agent who has made the paper has made it in the name of the principal, for his own use, he must be prepared to show that special authority in that behalf has been delegated by the principal, and can not rely upon the implied authority of the agent to make such paper in the ordinary business of the principal. In accordance with these views, the defendants were not entitled to the instruction that they were only liable if the jury found they took the checks with guilty knowledge that Warner had no authority to use them; and it would have been proper to instruct the jury that the plaintiff was entitled to a verdict if they found that Warner had no authority, actual or ostensible, to use them.

It is insisted for the defendants that, inasmuch as the checks were paid by the New York bank out of funds in part contributed by Warner himself, the Albion bank was not a loser of the face amount of the checks and the plaintiff ought not to recover beyond the extent that the checks were paid out of the moneys of the Albion bank. The evidence did not indicate that the New York bank had any notice that the checks were not put out by Warner in the course of the ordinary business of the bank; consequently, when they were presented to and collected of the New York bank, the latter became a bona fide holder for value, and the Albion bank became liable to it for the face amount of the checks. Several of the adjudications which decide that the maker of commercial paper can maintain an action for conversion against the person who, with notice that it has been put fraudulently into circulation, negotiates it to a bona fide holder for value, also decide that he can recover the amount of the paper without averring or proving that he has paid it to the holder, and that it is enough, prima facie that he has become liable to pay it, to entitle him to recover the face amount (Decker v. Mathews, 12 N. Y., 313; Evans v. Kymer, 1 Barn. & Adol. 523; Payne v. Pritchard, 2 Car. & P., 558). It has been held that the defendant may prove the insolvency of the maker, and thereby lessen the damages; but, in the absence of evidence of any want of ability of the maker to pay, the presumption is that he is able to pay the paper, and will be obliged to do so (Potter v. Merchants' Bank, 23 N. Y., 641). It is enough for him to show that he has incurred a liability to pay the amount by the wrongful act of the defendant; but, if the facts are such that this liability will not result in actual loss, he will only be entitled to recover nominal damages. The law presumes that loss will follow liability; consequently, it is for the defendant to overcome the presumption by evidence which will take the case out of the ordinary category.

A check is not only a bill of exchange upon which an action can be maintained against the drawer by the drawee who has paid it, but is a bill which is presumed to be drawn on actual funds, and appropriates the funds to the drawee upon payment. Undoubtedly, in an action for the wrongful conversion of such paper, if the defendant proves that payment of the check was refused by the drawee, that it has never reached the hands of a bona fide holder, and that he is ready to surrender it to the maker upon the trial, these facts would go in mitigation of damages, and the recovery of the plaintiff would be limited to his actual loss. If, in the present case, the action was merely for the conversion of the checks, the plaintiff would be entitled to recover their face upon proof that they were paid by the New York bank, without more; but the action is for the money of the Albion bank, obtained upon its checks "paid by the New York bank out of and from the moneys and accounts of the Albion bank." If the evidence established that the checks were not paid by the New York bank out of the moneys or funds of the Albion bank, but were paid out of moneys provided for that purpose by Warner the jury should have been instructed that their verdict could be only for nominal damages. But the payment of the checks by the New York bank was none the less a payment by the Albion bank, or a payment out of its funds, because the latter was put in funds without the knowledge of its officers, and its correspondent paid the checks without their knowledge. If Warner had made deposits in his own name with the New York bank, and that bank, pursuant to his instructions, had charged the checks, when it paid them, against his account, the defendants might well insist that the checks were not paid by the Albion bank, or out of its funds. Under such circumstances, the plaintiff would certainly be required to prove that the deposits made by Warner were funds of the Albion bank. But when Warner caused deposits to be made with the New York bank in the name of the Albion bank, the title to the fund created by the deposits vested in the latter as against Warner. When the New York bank credited the Albion bank with these deposits it assumed the relation of a debtor, not to Warner, but to the Albion bank for the amount; and when it paid checks drawn against the fund and charged them to the Albion bank, it paid them out of the funds of the Albion bank as between itself and the Albion bank and as between the latter and Warner. It may be that third persons, whose moneys were misappropriated by Warner and deposited with the New York bank to the credit of the Albion bank, can reclaim the amount of the Albion bank; but Warner himself could not, because he relinquished his title by his own act. Whether the deposits made by him are to be regarded as the property of the Albion bank because made by a fiduciary who has willfully commingled his own funds with the trust funds in such a manner that the line of distinction between them can not be traced, or as voluntary payments which he can not reclaim because they were voluntary, need not be considered. He doubtless made them to conceal his use of the funds of the bank, knowing that he could not overdraw the account of his bank with the New York bank without risk of detection.

The defendants have no interest in the question whether the Albion bank paid the checks out of the moneys for which it is accountable to third persons, or even out of the money for which it may be accountable to Warner. It suffices that the checks were paid out of funds to which it had the legal title. Nor is it material that the defendants paid to Warner various sums of money which were ultimately received by the Bank of Albion. It was open to the defendants to show upon the trial that the Albion bank did not eventually sustain any loss by Warner's misappropriations of its checks or moneys, and thus reduce the plaintiff's recovery to nominal damages. This they did not attempt otherwise than by showing that Warner deposited various sums of money to the credit of the Albion bank, which were not charged by that bank to the New York bank. The presumption is as cogent that these deposits secretly made by Warner represented the moneys which he knew belonged to the Albion bank as that they were his own money. The case for the plaintiff was complete when it appeared that the checks which were wrongfully received and collected by the defendants had been paid by the New York bank out of funds standing to the credit of the Albion bank. He was then entitled to recover the full amount. It was unnecessary for him to assume the affirmative, and show that the deposits made by Warner in the New York bank were not the funds of Warner, but consisted of misapplied funds of the bank, or the proceeds of securities belonging to it, or for which it was responsible to others; but it was for the defendants to prove that, notwithstanding their wrongful participation with Warner in misappropriating the funds of the bank, the bank did not suffer loss. If they had shown that all his misappropriations had been made good by the return of what he had misapplied, it is not entirely clear that they would have been liable only for nominal damages. (Hanmer v. Wilsey, 17 Wend., 91; Otis v. Jones, 21 Wend., 394; The People v. Bank of North America, 75 N. Y., 547.) These cases hold that the defendant in an action for conversion of property can only claim a mitigation of damages because of a return of the property, where the owner has accepted its return, or has resumed dominion over it as owner; and that it is not enough that the property, without his consent, has been applied to the satisfaction of his debts. It is not necessary to consider whether this doctrine should be applied to a case for the conversion of money which has been returned to the owner, and used by him without knowledge of the conversion or restitution. Here all the money returned by Warner was insufficient to replace his defalcations by an amount much larger than the sum sought to be recovered of the defendants, and the bank had no knowledge that he had returned anything to replace what he had misapplied until he had again misappropriated it. It is not unjust or unreasonable to compel the defendants to restore such of the funds of the bank as they received when they are unable to prove that the bank was not directly or ultimately a loser in consequence of their acts. It may be that Warner would have misappropriated the money of the bank in other ways, if they had refused to receive the checks, but certainly one temptation would not have been in his path if he had found that he could not use the paper of the bank for his speculations with the same facility as though it were his own money.

Several points discussed upon the motion for a new trial, among them the point that the jury should have been instructed not to include interest in their verdict accruing before the commencement of the suit, do not seem to merit consideration. The views expressed cover all the controlling questions in the case, and lead to a denial of the motion.

(3) An opinion rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States November 12, 1888, with respect to the liability of a married woman holding stock of an insolvent national bank to an assessment upon such stock levied by the Comptroller of the Currency where the assets of the bank were not sufficient to pay creditors in full.

On the 4th of February, 1885, Martin L. Bundy, receiver of the Hot Springs National Bank, of Hot Springs, in the State of Arkansas, filed his bill of complaint in the circuit court of the United States for the district of Kentucky against William M. Cocke and Amanda M. Cocke, his wife, and James Flanagan and Sne Flanagan, his wife, all of the defendants being alleged in the bill to be citizens of Kentucky.

The bill alleges that, on the 1st of March, 1884, the bank was a corporation created and organized under the national banking statutes, with a capital stock of $50,000, divided into 500 shares of $100 each at their par value; that it had its office of discount and deposit in the city of Hot Springs, in the State of Arkansas; that it suspended the business of banking on the 27th of May, 1884; that the plaintiff was duly appointed receiver of the bank on the 2d of June, 1884; and that, on the 25th of July, 1884, the Comptroller of the Currency determined that it was necessary to enforce the individual liability of the shareholders in the bank, to the amount of 50 per centum of the par value of its capital stock, "and did make an order and requisition on the stockholders and each and every one of them, equally and ratably, as the shares were held and owned by them respectively at the time said bank suspended and ceased to do business," and directed the plaintiff "as such receiver" to take the necessary legal proceedings to enforce such assessment against the shareholders in said bank, and each and every one of them.

The bill then contains the following allegation:

"And your orator would further state that, on the 27th day of May, A. D. 1884, when said bank suspended and ceased to do business, Amanda M. Cocke, wife of William M. Cocke (both of whom are made defendants hereto), was the owner of one hundred shares of the capital stock thereof, of the par value of ten thousand dollars, and the same still stands in her name on the books of the said association, on which the equal and ratable assessment and requisition made by the Comptroller as aforesaid is five thousand dollars, with interest thereon from the said 25th day of July, 1884; that said defendant Amanda is possessed of property in her own right amply sufficient to pay said assessment, but utterly refuses to do so."

Then follows a like allegation as to Mrs. Flanagan, as the owner of twelve shares of the stock.

The prayer of the bill is, that an account be taken of the shares of stock held by each of the married women defendants, respectively, at the date of such suspension and the assessment and requisition made by the Comptroller of the Currency thereon, and that a decree be made for the payment thereof out of the separate property held by the married women defendants in their own right, as each may be found indebted, with interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Cocke filed a demurrer to the bill for want of equity and also for multifariousness. The plaintiff then amended the bill by striking out the names of Flanagan and his wife as defendants; and in July, 1885, he filed a bill of revivor, based on the fact of the death of Mrs. Cocke in March, 1885.

The bill of revivor alleges that, when Mrs. Cocke died, she was a citizen of Kentucky, and was domiciled and resident therein; that she left a will whereby her husband was appointed her sole executor and her sole residuary legatee and devisee; that the will had been duly proved and recorded in the proper court in Kentucky; and that Mr. Cocke had accepted the terms of the will and taken upon himself the office of such executor. The bill prays for the revival of the suit against Mr. Cocke as devisee and legatee of his wife and as sole executor of her will, and for relief against him out of all assets received or held by him as devisee or legatee of his wife, or as executor of her will.

Mr. Cocke appeared and filed a demurrer to the bill of revivor, for want of equity. The cause was heard on the demurrer to the bill and the demurrer to the bill of revivor. The court sustained both of the demurrers, giving to the plaintiff time to amend his bill, and, he declining to do so, a decree was entered dismissing it. From that decree the plaintiff has appealed.

From the opinion of the court, accompanying the record, the ground of the dismissal appears to have been, that the bill was defective in not alleging that, at the time Mrs. Cocke became a stockholder, she had the capacity to become a stockholder.

But we think the bill is not open to this objection. It alleges that, at the time the bank suspended, Mrs. Cocks "was the owner" of the 100 shares. This is an allegation that she was then the lawful owner of those shares, and had lawfully become such owner, with the capacity to become such owner at the time she became such owner. It is consistent with this allegation, that she may have owned the shares before she married Mr. Cocks, or that, when she became such owner, if she was then the wife of Mr. Cocks, she had the right to become such owner by virtue of the laws of the State of Arkansas, where the bank was located, in connection with the provisions of the statutes of the United States in regard to national banks.

Section 4194 of the Digest of the Statutes of Arkansas, published in 1874 (chap. 93, p. 756), provides as follows:

"Sec. 4194. A married woman may bargain, sell, assign, and transfer her separate personal property, and carry on any trade or business, and perform any labor or services on her sole and separate account; and the earnings of any married woman from her trade, business, labor, or services shall be her sole and separate property, and may be used or invested by her in her own name; and she may alone sue or be sued in the courts of this State on account of the said property, business, or services."

Under this provision, if it was in force at the time of the transaction, it would seem that Mrs. Cocks, when a married woman, might lawfully have either subscribed for or taken an assignment of the shares, they being shares of a national bank in Arkansas, and the transaction being, therefore, governed by the statutes of Arkansas, unless, under special circumstances, a different rule ought to govern. (Milliken v. Pratt, 125 Mass., 374.)

As the bill alleges that Mrs. Cocks is possessed of property in her own right amply sufficient to pay the assessment, and as the prayer of the bill is for a decree for the payment of the amount of the assessment out of the separate property held by her in her own right, and as the bill of revivor prays for relief against Mr. Cocks out of the assets received by him as the legatee or devisee of his wife, or as executor of her will, the case is clearly one of equitable cognizance, because it does not appear that she could be sued at law, to reach her separate property. (3 Pomeroy's Eq. Juris., § 1099.)

The original bill and bill of revivor are sufficient on their faces to call upon Mr. Cocks to answer them, and, when all the facts bearing upon the case are fully developed the rights of the parties can be properly adjudicated. For that reason we refrain from considering any of the other questions discussed at the bar.

The decree of the circuit court is reversed, and the case is remanded to that court, with a direction to overrule the demurrer to the original bill and the demurrer to the bill of revivor, and to take such further proceedings as may be proper and not inconsistent with this opinion.

CONCLUSION.

In presenting this report I gladly take occasion to bear testimony to the excellent spirit prevailing among the officers and directors of national banks all over the country, and to the intelligence and conscientiousness which they habitually display in the conduct of business.

Although the requirements of the national-bank laws are often rendered onerous by local conditions, and many of its restraints are not only irksome but sometimes in particular cases seem to be unreasonable, there exists everywhere as a rule a spirit of sincere and ready acquiescence. In the comparatively few cases where this spirit is wanting the power of the Comptroller to enforce compliance with law has been found to be ample, and its exercise has but in one case had to transcend the limits of a courteous but firm admonition. In that case the bank was closed and placed in the hands of a receiver, the president and cashier were arrested and indicted, and the property of the directors was attached.

For several years past, under the influence of the act of July 12, 1882, the national-bank system has been growing vigorously, and its benefits have been thus brought within reach of a constantly increasing number of people, and have been extended into communities where they were not previously enjoyed.

At present this healthy and desirable growth is checked and is in danger of being arrested by the scarcity and dearness of bonds. In the proper place in this report I have called especial attention to the value and capabilities of the bank-note feature of the system and have ventured to submit a plan for its preservation and extension into full utility. The subject is one of national importance, and yet it is also of definite pecuniary interest to each and every industrial worker in the country, however obscure his employment may seem or however secluded his location.

The functions performed by banks are essential to the free and full play of industrial activities, whether these are agricultural, mechanical, or professional. The products of all industries must be marketed in order that the workers may enjoy the fruits of their toil or the rewards of their skill, and without banks the marketing of the vast masses of the products of American industry would be simply impossible.

The banks as a body establish and maintain, ready for use at all times and to any extent required, a line of communication between the world's consumers and the remotest farmer on the Western plains or among the Southern forests. Break this line of communication and the abundance of the farm becomes a rotting incubus. Interrupt it, burden it with tolls or taxes, and the farmer loses in the price of his products or pays in the cost of what he buys more than the toll-gatherer or the tax-collector receives.

A great prejudice has been excited in agricultural sections against the national banks, because they are forbidden to lend money on real-estate securities. Never was there any prejudice more unreasonable and more harmful to those who entertain it than this prejudice.

In the first place, if national banks absorbed all the capital of the country or directed its employment and investment, not only their interests, but even their very existence would necessitate the setting aside of a large part of that capital for investment exclusively in real estate or in real-estate securities, because such investments are essential to the progress of every community.

But the national banks do not by any means occupy that position. Private capitalists, corporations, such as savings banks, insurance companies, loan and trust companies, farm and mortgage investment companies, abound; they possess and control more capital than the national banks, and for all these there can be no investment safer, more attractive, and more appropriate than real estate or its representative instruments.

The national banks, on the other hand, constitute a body of bankers exclusively devoted to the collection, the safe-keeping, and the employment in temporary loans of the floating capital of the country. If in any community the national-bank capital and deposits exceed what can be safely and profitably employed there in that way, the floating capital of that community is excessive and a part of it may with advantage be converted into fixed forms, but it should first be withdrawn from the national banks. These institutions are too expensive to be used as mere agencies for keeping bonds and stocks, and collecting interest quarterly or half yearly. Such misuse of a national bank is bad economy; it is as if a farmer should buy wagons and carriages for storing his crop instead of building a barn.

Again, to entertain a prejudice against national banks and to oppose the improvement and healthy extension of the system is unwise because we must have banks, and these are the best that have ever existed in this country or in any other. It is especially unwise on the part of farmers to entertain such prejudice because they are more dependent upon other people's floating capital than any other industrial class.

Miners, manufacturers, transportation companies, and other large employers keep a part of their capital in money, and depend upon the banks for only a moderate proportion of the cash funds needed to liquidate their transactions, but farmers can not afford to keep any amount of money idle while their crops are growing or their cattle are taking on flesh or their sheep and hogs are multiplying. It is more profitable for them to use all their own money in enlarging the scale of their operations; and, therefore, when their crops come to be harvested or their stock is ready to be driven to market, it is of supreme importance to them to be able to get the ready money for the purpose, either directly or through the medium of dealers in their products. Whether obtained directly or through merchants or drovers, the money essential to the marketing of the farm produce is supplied by the banks, and could not be supplied by them at that moment of supreme need if it had previously been lent to the farmers upon the security of their lands.

The banks that serve the farmers best are those that move their crops with least delay. A bank in an agricultural section that gets its funds tied up in long loans to farmers mistakes its office and vocation, and is as great an obstruction to local prosperity as a railroad would be that should hire all its freight cars out during the dull season for an employment that keeps them out of its reach and control beyond the season during which the community depends upon it to take away the produce of its year's labor, and to bring back the commodities essential to the winter's comfort and maintenance.

Very respectfully,

W. L. TRENHOLM.
Comptroller of the Currency.

Hon. JOHN G. CARLISLE,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

I. CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.

1. POWERS OF CONGRESS:

- (a) Congress has the constitutional power to incorporate banks. (McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat., 316; Osborn v. Bank of the United States, 9 Wheat., 738.)
- (b) Congress has power to clothe national banking associations, as to their contracts and dealings with the world, with any special immunities and privileges exempting them, in their trade and intercourse with others, from the laws and remedies applicable in like cases to other citizens. (The Chesapeake Bank v. The First National Bank of Baltimore, 40 Md., 269.)
- (c) Thus, the provision of the banking law that no attachment, injunction, or execution shall issue against a national banking association before final judgment in any suit, action, or proceeding in a State court is constitutional. (Ibid.)
- (d) The tax imposed on State or national banks paying out the notes of individuals or State banks used for circulation is constitutional. (Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall., 533.)
- (e) So is the tax imposed on them for paying out the circulating notes of municipal corporations. (Merchants' National Bank of Little Rock v. United States, 101 U. S., 1.)
- (f) Such a tax is not a direct tax within the meaning of the clause of the Constitution, which declares that "direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States, according to their respective numbers." (Veazie Bank v. Fenno, and Merchants' National Bank of Little Rock v. United States, supra.)
- (g) Congress having, in the exercise of undisputed constitutional powers, undertaken to provide a currency for the whole country, may secure the benefit of it to the people by appropriate legislation. (Veazie Bank v. Fenno, supra.)
- (h) Congress has the power to divest the United States courts of their jurisdiction of suits by or against national banking associations. (National Bank of Jefferson v. Fare et al., U. S. C. C. (E. D. Texas), 25 Fed. Rep., 209.)

2. POWERS OF THE STATES:

- (a) National banking associations, being instruments designed to aid the Government in the administration of a branch of the public service, can not be controlled by the States, except in so far as Congress may see proper to permit. (Farmers and Mechanics' Bank v. Dearing, 91 U. S., 29.)
- (b) No authority from the State is necessary to enable a State bank to convert itself into a national banking association. (Casey v. Galli, 94 U. S., 673.)
- (c) National banking associations located outside of a State are subject to its restraining acts prohibiting all corporations, not authorized by the law of the State, from keeping therein offices for the purpose of discount and deposit. (National Bank of Fairhaven v. The Phoenix Warehousing Company, 6 Hun, 71.)
- (d) It is competent for a State by penal enactments to protect its citizens in their dealings with national banking associations located within the State. (State v. Fuller, 34 Conn., 280; see also Taxation and Jurisdiction.)

II. POWERS AND LIABILITIES.

1. IMPLIED POWERS:

To the enumerated powers of national banking associations are to be superadded all the powers incidental to the business of banking. (Pattison v. Syracuse National Bank, 80 N. Y., 82.)

2. AS TO COLLATERAL SECURITIES:

- (a) A national banking association may take stock of a corporation as collateral security for a loan. (Shoemaker v. The National Mechanics' Bank, 2 Abb. U. S., 416; Canfield v. The State National Bank of Minneapolis, U. S. C. C. (Dist. Minn.), 1 Northwestern Reporter, 173.)
- (b) And it may take for such purpose the stock of another national banking association. (National Bank v. Case, 99 U. S., 628.)

NOTE.—But this point was not necessary to the decision of the case.

2. AS TO COLLATERAL SECURITIES—Continued.

- (c) A national banking association may take a pledge of personal chattels as security for a loan. (Pittsburgh Locomotive and Car Works v. State National Bank of Keokuk, U. S. C. C. (Eighth Circuit, 1875), 2 Cent. L. J., 692.)
- (d) A national banking association may take as security for a loan the indorsement of a married woman, charging her separate estate. Such security is to be treated as personal security, within the meaning of the banking law, and not as a mortgage. (Third National Bank v. Blake, 73 N. Y., 260.)
- (e) A national banking association may take as collateral security for a loan a warehouse receipt for merchandise. (Cleveland, Brown & Co. v. Shoeman, 40 Ohio St., 176.)
- (f) A national banking association may take as security for a loan the stock of a corporation whose entire capital is vested in real estate. Such a loan does not amount to a lending upon mortgage. (Baldwin v. Canfield, 26 Minn., 43.)
- (g) An agreement by a national banking association to the effect that, in case a note discounted by it shall not be paid, a mortgage given by the maker to his indorser shall inure to the benefit of the association, is not inhibited by the national banking law. (First National Bank v. Haire, 36 Iowa, 443; see also National Bank v. Matthews, 98 U. S., 621.)
- (h) A national banking association having taken a mortgage on real estate to secure a debt previously contracted may, in order to protect itself, pay off a prior lien on the said real estate; and the lien which it thus acquires it may enforce. (Ornn v. Merchants' National Bank, 16 Kans., 341; Holmes v. Boyd, 90 Ind., 332.)
- (i) Where a national banking association has taken collaterals to secure a loan, and, after the loan has been repaid, holds them to secure future advances, it is not a gratuitous bailee; and it is responsible for the loss of such collaterals occasioned by its lack of ordinary care and diligence, though at the time the bailor was not indebted to it. (Third National Bank of Baltimore v. Boyd, 44 Md., 47.)

3. SPECIAL DEPOSITS:

- (a) A national banking association may receive special deposits. The provision in section 5223, Revised Statutes, authorizing an association "to deliver special deposits" implies that it may receive them as a part of its legitimate business; and this implication is as effectual as an express declaration to the same effect would have been. (National Bank v. Graham, 100 U. S., 699.)
- (b) National banking associations have power to receive special deposits either gratuitously or otherwise. (Pattison v. Syracuse National Bank, 80 N. Y., 82.)
- (c) But the executive officers of an association can not bind it as a gratuitous bailee, unless they have a special authority from the board of directors so to do, or there exists a general custom or usage to that effect. (First National Bank of Lyons v. Ocean National Bank, 60 N. Y., 278.)

4. GOVERNMENT SECURITIES:

- (a) National banking associations can engage in the business of dealing in and exchanging Government securities. (Van Leuven v. First National Bank, 54 N. Y., 671; Yerkes v. National Bank of Port Jervis, 69 N. Y., 383; Leach v. Hale, 31 Iowa, 69.)
- (b) And where an association receives United States bonds of one class for the purpose of having them converted into bonds of another class, it is not a mere mandatary, but is responsible for the failure to deliver the bonds on demand. (Leach v. Hale, supra.)

5. CERTIFIED CHECK:

A national banking association may "certify" a check. A "certified" check is not within the meaning of section 5183, Revised Statutes, which prohibits the issuing of post-notes or any notes to circulate as money other than such as are authorized by the national banking law. (Merchants' National Bank v. State National Bank, 10 Wall., 604.)

6. PURCHASING CHECK:

A national bank may buy a check drawn upon another bank; and whether the check is payable to order or to bearer is immaterial. (First National Bank of Rochester v. Harris, 108 Mass., 514.)

7. STOCKS:

- (a) A national banking association, in the compromise of a claim growing out of its legitimate business, may take railroad stock. (First National Bank of Charlotte v. National Exchange Bank of Baltimore, 92 U. S., 122.)

7. STOCKS—Continued.

- (b) And when necessary to do so, it may pay the difference between the value of the stock and the amount of the claim. (Ibid.)
- (c) A national banking association may take and hold the coupons of municipal bonds, and may maintain actions thereon. (First National Bank of North Bennington v. Town of Bennington, U. S. C. C. (Dist. Vt.), Browne's N. B. Cas., 437; see also Lyons v. Lyons National Bank, 19 Blatch., 279.)

8. DEPOSITS TO SECURE PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT:

A national banking association may receive a deposit to be held by it as security for the faithful performance of a contract between the depositor and another. (Bushnell v. The Chautauqua County National Bank, 10 Hun, 378.)

NOTE.—But the court put the decision upon the further ground that even were the contract ultra vires, the association, having received the deposit, was estopped from setting up its want of power.

9. LOANS IN EXCESS OF ONE-TENTH CAPITAL:

- (a) Sec. 5200, Revised Statutes, which provides that the total liabilities to any association of any person, etc., shall not exceed one-tenth part of the capital stock paid in, was intended only for the guidance of the association, and, though its franchises may be liable to forfeiture for violation of the law, the association may recover of the borrower the full amount of the loan. (Gold Mining Company v. Rocky Mountain National Bank, 96 U. S., 640; O'Hare v. Second National Bank of Titusville, 77 Penn. St., 96; Shoemaker v. The National Mechanics' Bank, 2 Abb. U. S., 416; Stewart v. National Union Bank of Maryland, 2 Abb. U. S., 424.)
- (b) A note is not illegal because at the time it was discounted by the association the maker was indebted to the association in a sum equal to more than one-tenth part of its capital. (O'Hare v. Second National Bank of Titusville, supra.)
- (c) And a court of equity will not enjoin an association, at the instance of the borrower, from transferring to innocent third persons notes and securities, on the ground that the notes represent part of a loan made in excess of 10 per cent. of the capital of the association. (Elder v. First National Bank of Ottawa, 12 Kans., 238.)
- (d) Where a State bank makes a loan to one person of an amount in excess of one-tenth part of its capital, and is afterward converted into a national bank, it may, after conversion, extend the time for payment of such loan without violating section 5200, Revised Statutes. (Allen v. The First National Bank of Xenia, 23 Ohio St., 97.)

10. REAL ESTATE:

- (a) Where a national banking association acquires real estate which it is not authorized to take, the conveyance to it is not void, but only voidable. And the title of the association to such real estate is good until assailed in a direct proceeding by the Government. (Reynolds v. Crawfordville Bank, 112 U. S., 405; see also National Bank v. Matthews, 93 U. S., 621; National Bank v. Whitney, 103 U. S., 99; Swope v. Leffingwell, 105 U. S., 3; Fortier v. New Orleans Bank, 112 U. S., 439.)
- (b) The amount of real estate which a national banking association may purchase to secure a pre-existing debt is not limited to the exact amount of the debt, but as much may be purchased as is necessary to secure the debt due, so long as the security of such debt is the real object of the purchase. (Upton v. National Bank of South Reading, 120 Mass., 153.)
- (c) Where the purpose is to secure a debt previously contracted, a national banking association may take a conveyance of real estate worth more than the debt, and pay the difference between the debt and the value of the property. (Libby v. Union National Bank, 99 Ill., 622.)
- (d) Where a national banking association sells real estate it may take a mortgage thereon to secure the payment of the purchase-money. (New Orleans National Bank v. Raymond, 29 La. Ann., 355.)

11. CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT:

National banking associations may issue certificates of deposit. Such certificates are not post-notes within the prohibition of section 5183, Revised Statutes. (Hunt v. Appellant, Supreme Court of Mass., May 7, 1886; Riddle v. First National Bank, U. S. C. C. (W. D. Penn.), 27 Fed. Rep., 503.)

12. LIEN ON DIVIDENDS:

An association has an equitable lien upon dividends declared for any just debt due to it from the shareholders. (Hager v. Union National Bank, 63 Me., 509.)

13. CONTRACTS AND OBLIGATIONS OF OLD CORPORATION:

- (a) Where a State bank has been converted into a national banking association it may enforce all contracts made with it while a State corporation. (City National Bank v. Phelps, 97 N. Y., 44.)
- (b) And it is liable, after the conversion, for all the obligations of the old institution. (Coffe v. The National Bank of Missouri, 46 Mo., 140; Kelsey v. The National Bank of Crawford, 69 Penn. St., 426.)
- (c) A national banking association organized as the successor of a State bank may take and hold the assets of the bank whose place it takes, though there was not in form a conversion from a State to a national corporation, but the organization of a new corporation. (Bank v. McIntire, 40 Ohio St., 528.)
- (d) And such association will be liable to the depositors of the former bank. (Eans v. Exchange Bank, 79 Mo., 182.)

14. PLACE OF BUSINESS:

- (a) The provision requiring "the usual business" of the association to be transacted "at an office or banking-house in the place specified in its organization certificate" must be construed reasonably; and a part of the legitimate business of the association which can not be transacted at the banking-house may be done elsewhere. (Merchants' Bank v. State Bank, 10 Wall., 604.)
- (b) Although the general business of a national banking association is to be transacted at its place of business, yet, if the association is fully advised of the facts, and does not object, and there is no fraud, its officers, when acting within the general scope of their authority, may bind it by acts done at another place. (Burton v. Burley, 9 Biss., 253.)

15. CIRCULATING NOTES:

The circulating notes of a national banking association are valid, though they do not bear the imprint of the seal of the Treasury. Such imprint was intended to be simply evidence of the contract, and forms no part of the contract itself. (United States v. Bennett, 17 Blatch., 357.)

16. BUSINESS OF LIQUIDATING ASSOCIATION:

After an association goes into liquidation there is no authority on the part of its officers to transact any business in its name so as to bind its shareholders, except that which is implied in the duty of liquidation, unless such authority has been expressly conferred by the shareholders. (Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S., 27.)

III. ULTRA VIRES.

1. DEALING IN STOCKS:

- (a) A national banking association is not authorized to act as a broker or agent in the purchase of bonds and stocks. (First National Bank of Allentown v. Hoch, 89 Penn. St., 324; Weekler v. The First National Bank of Hagerstown, 42 Md., 581.)
- (b) A national banking association can not deal in stocks. The prohibition is to be implied from the failure to grant the power. (First National Bank v. National Exchange Bank, 92 U. S., 122.)

NOTE.—But see as to its power to deal in Government securities, Powers, 4.

2. PURCHASING NEGOTIABLE PAPER:

A national banking association can not purchase negotiable paper. (Lazear v. National Union Bank of Baltimore, 52 Md., 78; First National Bank of Rochester v. Pierson, 24 Minn., 140; see also Farmers and Mechanics' Bank v. Baldwin, 23 Minn., 198. But see Smith v. The Exchange Bank of Pittsburgh, 26 Ohio St., 141.)

3. LENDING CREDIT:

- (a) A national banking association can not lend its credit. (Johnston v. Charlottesville National Bank, 3 Hughes, 657; Seligman v. Charlottesville National Bank, 3 Hughes, 647.)
- (b) A national banking association can not guaranty the paper of a customer for his accommodation. (Seligman v. Charlottesville National Bank, supra.)
- (c) The accommodation paper of a national banking association is void in the hands of one who takes it with knowledge of its character. (Johnston v. Charlottesville National Bank, supra.)

4. MORTGAGES ON REAL ESTATE:

- (a) National banking associations are by implication prohibited from taking mortgages on real estate as security for contemporaneous loans. (National) Bank v. Matthews, 98 U. S., 621; Fowler v. Scully, 72 Penn. St., 456; Kansas Valley National Bank v. Rowell, 2 Dill., 371; Commonwealth Bank v. Clark, 4 Mo., 59; Crocker v. Whitney, 71 N. Y., 161; Fridley v. Bowen, 87 Ill., 151.)

4. MORTGAGES ON REAL ESTATE—Continued.

- (b) But where such security has been taken, no one but the Government can be heard to complain that the association has exceeded its powers. (National Bank v. Matthews, supra; National Bank v. Whitney, 103 U. S., 99; Swope v. Leffingwell, 105 U. S., 3; Reynolds v. National Bank, 112 U. S., 405; Fortier v. National Bank, 112, U. S., 439.)

NOTE.—These decisions overrule, on this point, Kansas Valley National Bank v. Rowell, 2 Dill., 371; Crocker v. Whitney, supra; Fowler v. Scully, supra; Matthews v. Skinker, 62 Mo., 329; Woods v. People's National Bank of Pittsburgh, 83 Penn. St., 57; Fridley v. Bowen, supra.

5. WHEN ASSOCIATION CAN NOT SET UP WANT OF POWER :

Where a national banking association has entered into a contract which it was not authorized to make, a party who has enjoyed the benefit of such contract can not question its validity. (Casey v. La Societé de Crédit Mobilier, 2 Woods, 77; German National Bank v. Meadowcroft, 95 Ill., 124.)

IV. STOCK.

1. PURCHASING ITS OWN STOCK :

Where a national banking association purchases shares of its own stock, and divides them among its directors, to whom the shares are transferred upon the stock books, the transaction is void, and no title passes. (Meyers v. Valley National Bank, U. S. D. C. (E. Dist. Mo.), 13 National Bankruptcy Register, 34.)

2. LIENS ON STOCK :

(a) A national banking association can not acquire a lien on the stock of a shareholder. And a by-law prohibiting a transfer until all liabilities of the shareholder to the association are discharged, or a provision to that effect in the certificates of stock, is void. (Bullard v. National Bank, 18 Wall., 589; Bank v. Lanier, 11 Wall., 369; Conklin v. The Second National Bank, 45 N. Y., 655.)

(b) A national banking association can not take a pledge of its stock to secure a deposit made by it with another bank. Such a transaction amounts to a lending upon the security of its own shares. (Bank v. Lanier, supra.)

(c) Though a bank is prohibited from lending money upon the security of its own shares, yet if the shares have been sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of the debt, the courts will not aid the shareholder to recover the value of the shares. He can dispute the validity of the transaction only while the contract is executory, and the security still subsists in the possession of the bank. (National Bank of Xenia v. Stewart, 107 U. S., 676.)

3. MAY BE ATTACHED :

The stock of a shareholder indebted to it may be attached by the association and sold on execution. (Hagar v. Union National Bank, 63 Me., 509.)

4. CAPITAL SET FREE BELONGS TO SHAREHOLDERS :

When a national banking association reduces its capital stock the amount of capital thus released belongs to the shareholders pro rata, and must be returned to them; and it can not be retained by the association for a surplus. (Seeley v. New York National Exchange Bank, 8 Daly, 400; s. c., 4 Abb. N. C., 61; affirmed, 78 N. Y., 608.)

5. CONTRACTS TO GIVE SHARES FOR BUSINESS :

Where an association has made or ratified a contract to give a person a certain number of the shares of its stock, upon condition that he will continue to do his business with it, and derives the benefit from this contract, the other party may recover of the association the value of the shares. (Rich v. State National Bank of Lincoln, 7 Nebr., 231.)

6. TRANSFER OF STOCK :

(a) The transfer of shares in national banking associations is not governed by different rules from those which are ordinarily applied to the transfer of shares in other corporate bodies. (Johnson v. Lafin, 103 U. S., 800.)

(b) The entry of the transaction in the books of the association is required, not for the translation of the title, but for the protection of the parties, and others dealing with the association, and to enable it to know who are its stockholders. (Ibid.)

6. TRANSFER OF STOCK—Continued.

- (c) A shareholder in a national bank, while it is a going concern, has the absolute right, in the absence of fraud, to make a bona fide and actual sale and transfer of his shares, at any time, to any person capable in law of purchasing and holding the same, and of assuming the transferrer's liabilities in respect thereto; and this right is not, in such cases, subject to the control of the directors or other stockholders. (Johnson v. Laflin, 5 Dill., 65.)
- (d) Under the pretense of prescribing the manner thereof, an association can not clog the transfer with useless restrictions. (Johnson v. Laflin, supra.)
- (e) When a shareholder, acting in good faith, delivers his certificates of stock, with a blank power of attorney for making the transfer, and receives the purchase-money, the sale is complete and the title passes. (Ibid.)
- (f) Where a cashier, who is intrusted by the directors with the duty of transferring the stock of the association, refuses, for insufficient reasons, to transfer shares, and the association subsequently becomes insolvent, the owner of the shares may maintain an action against the receiver for the injury sustained. (Case v. Citizens' Bank, 100 U. S., 446.)
- (g) Where a shareholder who has sold his stock has delivered to the bank the certificates of stock and a power of attorney with the request that the transfer be made upon the books of the bank, and has had no reason to suppose that such transfer was not made, he will not, should the bank afterward become insolvent, be held liable as a shareholder, although he still appears as such on the books of the bank. (Whitney v. Butler, 118 U. S., 655.)
- (h) But where the president of the bank is himself the purchaser of the stock then the delivery of the certificates and power of attorney to him with the request to make the transfer upon the books of the bank would not be sufficient to discharge the seller from liability as a stockholder. (Richmond v. Irons 121 U. S., 27.)

7. SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INCREASE OF CAPITAL STOCK :

- (a) Where one subscribes for shares in the increase of the capital of a national banking association in a certain amount, such subscription and payment are upon the implied condition that the increase shall be in the exact amount so fixed; and if such amount is changed, the subscriber may avoid the subscription and recover the amount paid in. (Eaton v. Pacific Bank, 144 Mass., 260.)
- (b) And the certificate of the Comptroller of the Currency that the amount of the increase in another sum has been paid in, which amount includes what was paid by the dissenting subscriber, will not be conclusive upon such subscriber. (Ibid.)
- (c) But if such subscriber has assented to or ratified the change he will be held a shareholder. (Delano v. Butler, 118 U. S., 634.)

8. SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT TO SELL :

A specific performance of a contract to sell the stock of a national banking association will not be enforced in favor of a purchaser who places his claim for equitable relief upon the ground that he desires to obtain control of the association. Such an object is contrary to public policy. (Foll's Appeal, 81 Penn. St., 434.)

V. SHAREHOLDERS.

1. ESTOPPED TO DENY INCORPORATION :

A shareholder who has held himself out to the world as such is estopped to deny that the association was legally incorporated. (Casey v. Galli, 94 U. S., 673; Wheelock v. Kost, 77 Ill., 296.)

2. INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY :

- (a) The question whether there is a deficiency of assets, and when it is necessary to enforce the individual liability of shareholders, is for the Comptroller to determine; and his decision in this matter is final and conclusive. (Kennedy v. Gibson, 8 Wall., 498; National Bank v. Case, 99 U. S., 628; Casey v. Galli, 94 U. S., 673.)
- (b) The amount contributed by each shareholder should bear the same proportion to the whole amount of the deficit as his own stock bears to the whole amount of the capital stock at its par value. And the solvent shareholders can not be made to contribute more than their proportion to make good the deficiency caused by the insolvency of other shareholders. (United States v. Knorr, 102 U. S., 422.)

2. INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY—Continued.

- (c) A shareholder who disposes of his stock will continue to be liable thereon until the transfer is noted on the books of the association. (Bowdell v. Farmers and Merchants' National Bank of Baltimore, U. S. C. C. (D. Md., 1877), Browne's N. B. Cas., 147.)
- (d) The individual liability of a shareholder adheres to his estate after his death until his place as a member of the association is taken by some new shareholder. (Davis v. Weed, U. S. D. C. (Dist. Conn.), reported 44 Conn., 569.)
- (e) The receiver has a valid claim against the estate generally of a deceased shareholder who died prior to the insolvency of the bank, but whose stock has not been transferred. (Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S., 27; Davis v. Weed, supra.)
- (f) And the fact that the title to the stock of a deceased shareholder vests in his administrator does not relieve the estate from the burden of an assessment. (Davis v. Weed, supra.)
- (g) Nor will the fact that the administration is complete, and all the assets have been distributed, defeat an action brought to recover the assessment. (Ibid. But see Witters v. Sowles.)
- (h) One who appears on the books of the association as the owner of shares of its stock is individually liable, though he hold the stock merely as collateral security. (National Bank v. Case, 99 U. S., 623; Moore v. Jones, 3 Woods, 53; Bowdell v. Farmers and Merchants' National Bank of Baltimore, supra; Hale v. Walker, 31 Iowa, 344; Wheelock v. Kost, supra.)
- (i) But where a pledgee, for the express purpose of avoiding a personal liability, and before the association becomes insolvent, or is in danger of insolvency, transfers the stock to an irresponsible person, he, the pledgee, will not be liable to contribute as a shareholder. (Anderson v. Warehouse Company, 111 U. S., 479.)
- (j) And where stock has been transferred as collateral security for a loan, with the understanding that in case of default in the payment of the loan the shares shall be sold, the transferee, upon default made, and before the bank closes its doors, may sell the stock for a nominal consideration, though his purpose be to avoid a personal liability; and such a transaction can not be set aside as a fraud upon the creditors of the association. (Magruder v. Colston, 44 Md., 349.)

NOTE.—The court put the decision upon the ground that the sale was in pursuance of a stipulation which formed a part of the contract between the original owner and his transferee. See also Holyoke Bank v. Burnham, 11 Cush., 187, upon the authority of which the Maryland case was decided.

- (k) If the trusteeship of one who holds stock in trust does not appear upon the books of the association he will be individually liable. (Davis v. Essex Baptist Society, U. S. D. C. (Dist. Conn.), reported 44 Conn., 582.)
- (l) A transfer of shares for the purpose of avoiding liability, though made "out and out," is void. (National Bank v. Case, supra; Bowden v. Santos, 1 Hughes, 158.)
- (m) And where a shareholder, who has knowledge of the insolvent condition of the bank, transfers his shares, without consideration, to a person unable to respond to the assessment, the transfer may be set aside and the individual liability of the transferer enforced. (Bowden v. Johnson, 107 U. S., 251.)
- (n) The real owner of the stock is liable as a stockholder, though when he purchased the stock he had it transferred upon the books to another. (Davis v. Stevens, 17 Blatch., 259.)

NOTE.—The case of the owner of stock is thus different from that of a pledgee. (See Anderson v. Warehouse Company, supra.)

- (o) Where shareholders have assessed themselves to the amount of the par value of the stock for the purpose of restoring impaired capital, the contributions made in pursuance of such assessment, though all used in paying the debts of the association, will not so operate as to discharge the shareholders from their individual liability. (Delano v. Butler, 118 U. S., 634.)
- (p) The individual liability of the shareholders of an insolvent association may be enforced for the purpose of paying all of its liabilities, and not merely for the purpose of paying its "debts," technically so called. (Stanton v. Wilkeson, 8 Ben., 357.)
- (q) The individual liability of the stockholders must be restricted in its meaning to such contracts, debts, and engagements of the association as have been duly contracted in the ordinary course of its business. And, therefore, creditors of an association who make settlements after the association is put into liquidation and receive from the president payment of their claims in paper of the association, or the individual notes of the president himself, indorsed or guaranteed in the name of the association, are not to be considered as creditors of the association entitled to subject the stockholders to individual liability; for these are new contracts. (Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S., 27.)

- (r) The individual liability of the stockholders is enforceable only in behalf of all the creditors, and any security given by a stockholder for his liability in this respect should likewise be for the benefit of all the creditors. Accordingly, a mortgage of all the individual property of a stockholder, made after the bank has closed its doors, for the purpose of securing a single depositor, is void as against a judgment obtained against such stockholder in an action by the receiver to recover the amount of his individual liability. (Gatch v. Fitch, 34 Fed. Rep., 566.)
- (s) Where a married woman is by the State law capable of holding stock in a national bank in her own right, she is liable to an assessment upon her shares, though the law of the State does not authorize married women to bind themselves by contracts for the payment of money. The law annexes her obligations by its own force; no act or capacity to act on her part is required. (Witters v. Soules, 35 Fed. Rep., 640; S. C. 32 Fed. Rep., 767.)
- (t) While it is undoubtedly the rule as regards stockholders that one put upon the books as a stockholder without his consent can not be held for any liability in respect to such stock, yet where the person to whom the stock is transferred is a director of the bank, and is concerned in the management of its affairs, he must be presumed to have knowledge of the fact that the stock stood in his name, and, if he has not repudiated the transfer to himself, is liable as the holder of such stock. (Brown v. Finn, 34 Fed. Rep., 124.)
- (u) In such case the mere return of the dividends paid upon the stock to the person by whom the transfer was made will not be a sufficient repudiation thereof. (Ibid.)

3. WHEN LIABILITY DISQUALIFIES FROM VOTING:

The provision of section 5144, Revised Statutes, which disqualifies shareholders "whose liability is past due and unpaid," from voting at meetings of shareholders, applies only to liability for unpaid subscriptions for stock. (United States, ex rel. v. Barry, 36 Fed. Rep., 246.)

VI. OFFICERS.

1. TENURE OF OFFICE:

- (a) The officers of a national banking association can hold their positions only by the tenure specified in section 5136, Revised Statutes, viz, the pleasure of the board of directors. (Harrington v. First National Bank of Chittenango, S. C. N. Y., 1873; Thomp. N. B. Cas., 761; see also Taylor v. Hutton, 43 Barb., 195.)
- (b) Directors of national banking associations may remove the president, both under the law of Congress and the articles of association, where the latter so provide. The power exists though the association has adopted no by-laws. (Taylor v. Hutton, supra.)

2. BONDS OF OFFICERS:

- (a) It is not necessary that national banking associations shall signify their approval of the official bonds of their officers by memoranda entered upon the journals or minutes of the directors. The acceptance is to be presumed from the retention of the bond, and from the fact that the officer is permitted to enter upon or continue in the discharge of his duties. (Grover v. The Lebanon National Bank, 10 Bush, 23.)
- (b) Where the sureties of an officer can reasonably be presumed to have been deceived by the statement of the condition of the bank published just prior to the execution of the bond, and to have been led to think that there was no deficit, whereas there had been a misapplication of a large part of the funds by the officer whose bondsmen they became, which fact would have been ascertained had the directors exercised ordinary diligence, the sureties are discharged from their liability. (Grover v. The Lebanon National Bank, supra.)

3 DIRECTORS MUST ACT AS A BOARD:

The election of an individual as a director does not constitute him an agent of the corporation with authority to act separately and independently of his fellow members. It is the board duly convened and acting as a unit that is made the representative of the association. The assent or determination of the members of the board acting separately and individually is not the assent of the corporation. The law proceeds upon the theory that the directors shall meet and counsel with each other, and that any determination affecting the association shall be arrived at and expressed only after a consultation at a meeting of the board, attended by at least a majority of its members. (National Bank v. Drake, 35 Kans., 564.)

4. BORROWING MONEY OF ASSOCIATION:

An officer may, in the ordinary course of business, borrow money of the association. (Blair v. First National Bank of Mansfield, U. S. C. C. (N. D. Ohio, 1877, 10 Chicago Legal News, 84.)

5. LIABILITY FOR VIOLATIONS OF LAW:

- (a) All directors who participate in and assent to a loan in excess of one-tenth of the capital of the bank, in violation of section 5200, Revised Statutes, will be liable to the bank for all damages sustained by it in consequence of such loan. (Witters v. Sowles, U. S. C. C. (District of Vermont), 31 Fed. Rep., 1.)
- (b) If a cashier, without authority from the directors so to do, makes a loan in excess of one-tenth of the capital of the association, he will be liable, in case of loss, for the amount of the excess. (Second National Bank of Oswego v. Burt, XIV. New York Weekly Digest, 290. Reversed in Court of Appeals on ground that transaction was discount of bill of exchange drawn against actually existing values, 93 N. Y., 233.)
- (c) The directors of a national bank will not be held liable for loss occasioned to the bank through the frauds of a co-director in which they had no part, and which were perpetrated without their connivance or knowledge. It is not sufficient to charge them with liability that the frauds might have been prevented by the exercise on their part of a proper degree of supervision over the affairs of the bank. (Movius v. Lee, U. S. C. C. (N. D. New York), 30 Fed. Rep., 298.)

6. DIRECTORS OF CONVERTED BANKS:

- (a) When a State bank is converted into a national banking association all of the directors at the time will continue to be the directors of the association until others are appointed or elected, though some of them may not have joined in the execution of the articles of association and organization certificate. (Lockwood v. The American National Bank, 9 E. I., 308.)
- (b) And, semble, that the directors of a bank at the time of its conversion into a national banking association are not required to take the oath of directors. (Ibid.)
- (c) But even were the oath required, a majority of all who were directors at the time of the conversion, and not merely a majority of those who take the oath, are necessary to constitute a quorum. (Ibid.)

7. RETIREMENT OF DIRECTORS:

- (a) The law providing no particular mode by which a director is to resign from the board, an oral resignation would be as good as any. (Movius v. Lee, 30 Fed. Rep., 298.)
- (b) The president being the head of the board, a resignation to him is a resignation to the board. (Ibid.)
- (c) A director is not prohibited from resigning during the year. The apparent purpose of the provision in regard to the term of office is to make it conform to the time of the new election, and not to absolutely require every director to serve the full term. (Ibid.)

VII. INTEREST.

1 WHAT INTEREST ASSOCIATIONS MAY TAKE:

- (a) The provision in section 30 of the act of 1864 "that where, by the law of any State, a different rate is limited for banks of issue organized under State laws, the rate so limited shall be allowed for associations organized in any such State under the act," is enabling, and not restrictive; and, therefore, a national banking association in any State may stipulate for as high a rate of interest as by the laws of such State a natural person may, although State banks of issue are restricted to a less rate. (Tiffany v. National Bank of the State of Missouri, 18 Wall., 409.)

1. WHAT INTEREST ASSOCIATIONS MAY TAKE—Continued.

- (b) But it is not to be inferred from Tiffany v. National Bank of Missouri that whatever by the laws of the State is lawful for natural persons in acquiring title to negotiable paper by discount is lawful for national banks. (National Bank v. Johnson, 104 U. S., 271.)
- (c) The interest which a national banking association may charge is limited to the rate allowed to the banks of the State generally; and the fact that a few of the State banks are specially authorized to take a higher rate is not a warrant for a national banking association to do so. (Duncan v. First National Bank of Mount Pleasant, U. S. D. C. (W. D. Penn., 1878), 11 Bank. Mag., 787; Gruber v. First National Bank, 87 Penn. St., 468.)
- (d) Where the State law does not limit the rate of interest which may be charged on loans to corporations, a national banking association located in that State can not charge more than 7 per cent. interest on such loans: (In re Wild, 11 Blatch., 243.)
- (e) Where by the statutes of the State parties are authorized to contract for any rate of interest, national banking associations in that State may likewise contract for any rate, and are not limited to 7 per cent. (Hinds v. Marmelejo, 60 Cal., 229; National Bank v. Bruhn, 64 Tex., 571.)

2. ON CLAIMS AGAINST INSOLVENT AND LIQUIDATING ASSOCIATIONS:

- (a) A depositor in a national banking association which has become insolvent is entitled to interest on his deposit. (National Bank of Commonwealth v. Mechanics' National Bank, 94 U. S., 437.)
- (b) He is entitled to interest from the date of the suspension of payments; and no demand upon the association is necessary. (Chemical National Bank v. Bailey, 12 Blatch., 480.)
- (c) Claims, when proved to the satisfaction of the Comptroller, are upon the same footing as if put in judgment, and therefore bear interest; and the fact that, under certain circumstances, there might be thus a compounding of interest will not defeat the right to interest. (National Bank of Commonwealth v. Mechanics' National Bank, supra.)
- (d) But where a creditor has obtained judgment against an insolvent national banking association for the full amount of his claim and interest, he is not entitled to interest upon the face of the judgment, but only upon the amount of the claim at the time of the failure. (White v. Knox, 111 U. S., 784.)
- (e) The creditors of an insolvent national banking association in the hands of a receiver are entitled to interest on their claims during the period of administration. (Chemical National Bank v. Bailey, supra.)
- (f) The assessments made by the Comptroller upon the shareholders of an insolvent association bear interest from the date of the order. (Casey v. Galli, 94 U. S., 673.)
- (g) In the case of book accounts in favor of depositors, interest begins to run against an association in liquidation from the date of the suspension of business. (Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S., 27.)

3. USURY:

- (a) The usury laws of the States do not apply to national banking associations. (Farmers and Mechanics' Bank v. Dearing, 91 U. S., 29; Central National Bank v. Pratt, 115 Mass., 539; First National Bank v. Gorlinghouse, 22 Ohio St., 492; Davis v. Randall, 115 Mass., 547; Hintermister v. First National Bank, 64 N. Y., 212.)
- (b) And the remedies provided by the State for the taking of usury can not be resorted to. (Farmers and Mechanics' Bank v. Dearing, supra; Wiley v. Starbuck, 44 Ind., 298.)
- (c) The taking of illegal interest by a national banking association does not render the contract void. (Farmers and Mechanics' Bank v. Dearing, supra.)
- (d) It does not invalidate an indorsement or a guaranty of the notes upon which the usurious interest was paid. (Oates v. First National Bank of Montgomery, 100 U. S., 239; Lazear v. National Union Bank of Baltimore, 52 Md., 78.)
- (e) But usury destroys the interest-bearing power of the obligation; and there will be no point of time from which it can bear interest. (Lucas v. Government National Bank, 78 Penn., 51, 228.)
- (f) The usury works a forfeiture of the entire interest accruing after maturity and before judgment, as well as that which accrues before maturity. (Shunk v. The First National Bank of Galion, 22 Ohio St., 508.)

3. USURY—Continued.

- (g) The discounting of business paper by a national banking association at a higher than the legal rate is usurious, though the law of the State fixes no limit to the rate which natural persons may take for the discount or purchase of such paper. (Johnson v. National Bank of Gloversville, 74 N. Y., 329; affirmed in National Bank v. Johnson, 104 U. S., 271.)
- (h) By charging more than legal interest on overdrafts, a national banking association loses the right to recover any interest at all. (Third National Bank of Philadelphia v. Miller, 90 Penn. St., 241.)
- (i) The liabilities of antecedent parties to a note or bill will not be affected by the usurious character of the transaction between the payee and the association; and the association may recover the full amount of the note or bill from the maker or acceptor. (Smith v. The Exchange Bank of Pittsburgh, 26 Ohio St., 141.)
- (j) Usurious interest which has been paid to a national banking association can not be applied by way of payment or set-off in any action by the association to recover the amount of the loan. (Barnet v. Muncie National Bank, 98 U. S., 855.)
- (k) Nor can the penalty for taking the usurious interest be recovered by way of counter-claim in such action, but a separate action must be brought therefor. (Ibid.)

NOTE.—This case overrules portions of the decisions in Lucas v. Government National Bank, supra; Overholt v. National Bank, 82 Penn. St., 490; Cake v. The First National Bank of Lebanon, 83 Penn. St., 303.

- (l) A director is not by reason of his position estopped from setting up the defense of usury in an action brought against him by the association. (Bank of Cadiz v. Slemmons, 34 Ohio St., 142.)
- (m) Where a national banking association has discounted notes for another bank at a usurious rate of interest, the fact that the other bank has charged illegal interest on those notes to its customers will not affect its right to set up the defense of usury in an action by the association. (Third National Bank of Philadelphia v. Miller, supra.)
- (n) The amount which may be recovered from the association as a penalty is twice the amount of interest paid, and not simply twice the amount in excess of the legal rate. (Crocker v. First National Bank of Chetopa, U. S. C. C. (Eighth Circuit), 3 Am. L. T. [N. S.], 350; Overholt v. National Bank of Mount Pleasant, 82 Penn. St., 490; see also Barnet v. Muncie National Bank, supra.)

VIII. INSOLVENCY.

1. NOT SUBJECT TO BANKRUPT ACT:

National banking associations were not subject to the bankrupt act while that act was in force. (In re Manufacturers' National Bank, 5 Biss., 499.)

2. WHAT CONSTITUTES INSOLVENCY:

The term "insolvency," as used in section 5242, Revised Statutes, forbidding transfer of the assets of national banking associations after, or in contemplation of, such insolvency, has the same meaning as it had when applied to traders in the bankrupt act; that is, it does not mean an absolute inability of a debtor to pay his debt at some future time, upon a settlement and winding up of his affairs, but a present inability to pay in the ordinary course of business. (Case v. Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, 2 Woods, 23; Market Bank v. Pacific National Bank, 30 Hun, 50.)

3. ASSETS A TRUST FUND:

Upon the appointment of a receiver all the assets of the association become in his hands a trust fund which the statute of limitations does not touch or affect. (Riddle v. First National Bank, U. S. C. C. (W. D. Penn.), 27 Fed. Rep., 503.)

NOTE.—But this point was not necessary to the decision of the case, for suits against insolvent corporations are by a law of Pennsylvania expressly excluded from the operation of the statute.

4. UNITED STATES HAS NO PRIORITY:

- (a) Section 3466, which gives the United States a priority for all claims it has against insolvent debtors, does not apply to the case of an insolvent national banking association. (Cook County National Bank v. United States, 107 U. S., 445.)
- (b) And as against the proceeds of the bonds deposited to secure circulation the United States can set off no claim, except for money advanced to redeem the notes. (Ibid.)

4. UNITED STATES HAS NO PRIORITY—Continued.

- (c) And upon the failure of an association its five per cent. redemption fund can not be retained by the Treasurer to pay taxes due to the United States, but the fund passes to the Comptroller as an asset of the association. (Jackson v. United States, 20 Ct. Cls., 298.)

5. CLAIMS FOR TORTS:

Claims arising out of the non-feasance or malfeasance of the association should be paid ratably with the debts, technically so called. (Turner v. The First National Bank of Keokuk et al., 26 Iowa, 562.)

6. PREFERENCES:

- (a) A preference, to be within the meaning of section 5242, Revised Statutes, must be given to an existing creditor to secure a pre-existing debt. A transfer by an insolvent bank to secure a contemporaneous loan is not a violation of the law. (Casey v. La Société de Crédit Mobilier, 2 Woods, 77.)
- (b) The insolvency need be in the contemplation of the bank only. It need not be known to the person to whom the transfer is made. (Case v. Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, supra.)
- (c) After the directors of an insolvent association have voted to close its doors, any transfer of assets whereby a creditor secures a preference must be presumed to be made with an intent to prefer. (National Security Bank v. Price, 22 Fed. Rep., 697.)
- (d) Where the officers of an association which is in danger of insolvency, for the purpose and in the expectation of preventing a failure, make a pledge of securities to a depositor to induce him not to withdraw his deposit, such a pledge is not a preference within the meaning of section 5242, Revised Statutes, and will not be set aside when the association afterward is declared insolvent. (Roberts v. Hill, 23 Fed. Rep., 311.)
- (e) Where an insolvent association receives a deposit a short time before closing its doors, its officers knowing of the insolvency at the time, the receipt of such deposit is a fraud upon the depositor, and no title passes to the association; and, therefore, the depositor may reclaim the whole amount of the deposit; and as he claims under his original title, and not under a transfer from the association, such reclamation does not amount to a preference. (Cragie et al. v. Hadley, 99 N. Y., 131.)
- (f) But a creditor will not have a lien upon the funds of the association because checks given in settlement of balances were fraudulent, and were given at a time when the bank was hopelessly insolvent, and its officers were contemplating flight. (Citizens' National Bank v. Dowd, 35 Fed. Rep., 340.)

7. BASIS FOR ESTIMATION OF DIVIDENDS:

In estimating the dividends to be paid out of the assets of an insolvent association, the value of the claims at the time when the insolvency is declared is to be taken as the basis of distribution. (White v. Knox, 111 U. S., 784.)

8. SET-OFF:

- (a) A person liable upon a note to an insolvent national bank may set off against his indebtedness the amount of his deposit with the bank. (Platt v. Bentley, Thom. N. B. Cas., 758.)
- (b) But a debtor can not set off the amount of a deposit assigned to him after the act of insolvency committed. (The Venango National Bank v. Taylor, 56 Penn. St., 14.)
- (c) Where a note has not matured when the bank which has discounted it becomes insolvent, the maker, in an action against him by the receiver, can not set off the amount of his deposit with the bank at the time of the insolvency. (Armstrong v. Scott, 36 Fed. Rep., 63.)

9. CLAIM FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT OF LEASE:

Where a national bank has leased a banking house for a long term of years, and subsequently becomes insolvent, but during the time it continued business had not defaulted in paying the rent, the lessor has no claim against the receiver by reason of the insolvency or dissolution of the corporation or the forfeiture of its franchises, or by the refusal of the receiver to take under the contract, and pay the rent. (Fidelity Safe Deposit and Trust Co. v. Armstrong, 35 Fed. Rep., 567.)

IX. RECEIVERS.

1. OFFICER OF THE UNITED STATES :

A receiver, when appointed by the Comptroller, with the concurrence of the Secretary, is an officer of the United States. (Stanton v. Wilkeson, 8 Ben., 357.)

2. WHOM HE REPRESENTS :

He represents the bank, its stockholders, and its creditors; but he does not in any sense represent the Government. (Case v. Terrell, 11 Wall., 199.)

3. HOW FAR SUBJECT TO COMPTROLLER'S ORDERS :

- (a) The clause of section 50, act of 1864, which prescribes that the receiver shall be "under the direction of the Comptroller," means only that he shall be subject to the Comptroller's direction, not that he shall not act without orders. He may bring suit to collect assets without having been instructed to do so by the Comptroller. (Bank v. Kennedy, 17 Wall.)
- (b) The receiver of a national bank is the instrument of the Comptroller, and may be removed by him. (Kennedy v. Gibson, 8 Wall., 505.)

4. POWER OF COURTS TO APPOINT :

- (a) The power of the Comptroller to appoint a receiver is not exclusive; it does not oust the courts of equity of their authority in the matter; and therefore, a court of competent jurisdiction may place the bank in the hands of a receiver in cases where, according to the rules of equity, it may pursue such a course with regard to insolvent corporations generally. (Irons v. Manufacturers' National Bank, 6 Biss., 301; Wright v. Merchants' National Bank, 1 Flippin, 561.)
- (b) Where a bank has gone into voluntary liquidation, and the Comptroller has no power to appoint a receiver, a proper court, in a case where such action is necessary to protect the interests of a creditor, will appoint a receiver for it. (Irons v. Manufacturers' National Bank, supra.)

5. DEBTORS OF ASSOCIATION CAN NOT QUESTION LEGALITY OF APPOINTMENT :

The legality of the appointment of the receiver can not be questioned by the debtors of the bank when sued by him. The bank may move to have the appointment set aside, but the debtors can not. (Cadle v. Baker, 20 Wall., 650; see also Platt v. Beebe, 57 N. Y., 339.)

6. RECEIVER'S DECISION NOT FINAL :

The decision of a receiver rejecting a claim is not final. The claimant still has the right to sue. (Bank of Bethel v. Pahquioque Bank, 14 Wall., 383.)

7. SALE BY :

- (a) The receiver can not sell the real or personal property of the bank without an order from a court of competent jurisdiction. (Ellis v. Little, 27 Kans., 707.)
- (b) Nor can he sell upon terms in conflict with the order. (Ibid.)
- (c) And under an order permitting him to sell the property of the bank he can not exchange, trade, or barter it for other property. (Ibid.)
- (d) A sale made by a receiver under order of a court is to all intents and purposes a judicial sale. (In re Third National Bank, 9 Biss., 535.)

8. CONTRACTS OF :

- (a) As the power of a receiver of a national bank appointed by the Comptroller is limited, a person dealing with him in his official capacity is bound as a matter of law to have knowledge of his authority to act, and if contracts and agreements are entered into with the receiver in excess of his authority as conferred by law, the parties contract at their own peril, and the estate of the bank can not be charged for the default or inability of a receiver acting outside of his functions as receiver and beyond the duties which it involves. (Ellis v. Little, 27 Kans., 707.)
- (b) The receiver can not charge the estate of the bank by any executory contract, unless authorized so to do by the provisions of the national banking law, and the order of a court of competent jurisdiction obtained upon the terms of said law. (Ibid.)

9. EXPENSES OF RECEIVERSHIP FOR ASSOCIATIONS WHICH HAVE GONE INTO LIQUIDATION :

Where, after an association bank has gone into liquidation, a receiver is appointed at the instance of the creditors, the expenses of such receivership must be paid by the creditors. The shareholders can not be made individually liable for such expenses. (Richmond v. Irons.)

X. TAXATION.

1. WHAT MAY BE TAXED :

- (a) A State can not tax the capital stock of a national bank, as such. The tax must be assessed upon the shares of the different stockholders. (Collins v. Chicago, 4 Diss., 472.)
- (b) The entire interests of the shareholders may be taxed without any deduction for that portion of the capital which is invested in United States securities. (Van Allen v. The Assessors, 3 Wall., 573.)
- (c) New shares issued by a national banking association can not be taxed until the increase of capital has been approved by the Comptroller of the Currency. (Charleston v. People's National Bank, 5 S. C., 103.)
- (d) The manifest intention of the law is to permit the State in which a national bank is located to tax, subject to the limitations proscribed, all the shares of its capital stock without regard to their ownership; and, therefore, a national bank may be taxed upon the shares which it holds in another national bank. (Bank of Redemption v. Boston, 126 U. S., 60.)
- (e) The undivided surplus of a national banking association, unless invested in Federal securities, may be lawfully taxed by the State. (North Ward National Bank of Newark v. City of Newark, 10 Vroom, 380; First National Bank v. Peterborough, 56 N. H., 38.)
- (f) But, of course, if the surplus is taken into consideration in estimating the taxable value of the shares, it is not to be taxed separately. (North Ward National Bank v. City of Newark, supra.)

NOTE.—But it has been held in Maryland that the stock of an association represents its whole property, and where a tax is assessed upon the shares a separate tax upon the real or personal estate amounts to double taxation; and, therefore, where the organic laws of the State prohibit double taxation, such a tax upon the property of an association is void. (County Commissioners v. Farmers and Mechanics' National Bank, 48 Md., 117; see also National State Bank v. Young, 25 Iowa, 311, wherein it was held that the States could tax only the shares eo nomine and the real estate.)

- (g) The surplus fund of a national banking association is not excluded in the valuation of its shares for taxation. (Strafford National Bank v. Dover, 59 N. H., 316.)
- (h) Where shares of stock are assessed at their actual cash value without any deduction for the real estate owned by the association the real estate should not be taxed eo nomine. (Commissioners of Rice County v. Citizens' National Bank of Faribault, 23 Minn., 280.)
- (i) The States can not tax the circulating notes of national banking associations. (Horne v. Greene, 52 Miss., 452; Contra Board of Commissioners v. Elston, 32 Ind., 27; see also Ruffin v. Board of Commissioners, 69 N. C., 498; Lily v. The Commissioners, 69 N. C., 300.)

2. RATE :

- (a) Where the State banks are taxed upon their capital, no tax can be imposed upon the shares of national banking associations; for as the capital of the State banks may consist of the bonds of the United States, which are exempt from State taxation, a tax on capital is not equivalent to a tax on shares. (Van Allen v. The Assessors, 3 Wall., 573; Bradley v. The People, 4 Wall., 459.)
- (b) But though the tax upon the State banks is not eo nomine a tax on shares, yet if it is equivalent to such a tax the shares in the national banking associations located in that State may be taxed. (Frazer v. Seibern, 16 Ohio St., 614; Van Slyke v. State, 23 Wis., 656; Boynoll v. State, 25 Wis., 112.)
- (c) When by local legislation different rates are prescribed for different classes of moneyed capital, the rate imposed upon shares of national banks should approximate as closely as may be to the rate imposed upon other moneyed capital of the same or similar class, viz, shares of State banks. (City National Bank v. Paducah, U. S. C. C. (Sixth Circuit, 1877), 5 Cent. L. J., 347.)
- (d) Congress meant no more than to require of the States as a condition to the exercise of the power to tax the shares in national banks, that they should, as far as they had the capacity, tax in like manner the shares of banks of issue of their own creation. (Lionberger v. Rouse, 9 Wall., 468.)
- (e) Therefore, where a State has previously contracted with the banks which it has chartered that they shall not be taxed above a certain rate, a tax upon national-bank shares at a greater rate is not invalid, if this rate is not greater than that assessed upon all the moneyed capital within the State, except that of the State banks. (Ibid.)

2. RATE—Continued.

- (f) Any system of assessment of taxes which exacts from the owner of the shares of a national banking association a larger sum in proportion to the actual value of those shares than it does from other moneyed capital, valued in like manner, taxes the shares at a greater rate, notwithstanding that the percentage of tax on the valuation is the same as that applied to other moneyed capital. (Pelton v. Commercial National Bank, 101 U. S., 143.)

3. VALUATION:

- (a) In estimating the value of the shares for the purpose of taxation reference may be had to all the property and values of the bank. (Saint Louis National Bank v. Papin, U. S. C. C. (Eighth Circuit), 3 Cent. L. J., 669.)
- (b) If no excessive valuation is complained of, and a correct result is arrived at, equity will not restrain the collection of a tax because the method of computation was erroneous. (Ibid.)
- (c) The shares may be valued for taxation at an amount exceeding their face value, if this amount is not at a greater rate than the valuation set upon other moneyed capital in the State. (Hepburn v. School Directors, 23 Wall., 480.)
- (d) Under the statute of New York, shares in national banking associations should be taxed at their real or market value. (People v. The Commissioners of Taxes and Assessments, 94 U. S., 415.)
- (e) Where shares in national banking associations are purposely valued proportionally higher than the other moneyed capital in the State, the assessment is void. (Pelton v. National Bank, 101 U. S., 143.)
- (f) And the collection of what is in excess of the rate imposed on the other moneyed capital may be enjoined. (Ibid.)
- (g) It is not required that the States should abandon systems of taxation of their own banks, or of money in the hands of their other corporations, which they may think the most wise and efficient modes of taxing their own corporate organizations, in order to make that taxation conform to the system of taxing the national banks upon the shares of their stock in the hands of the shareholders; all that is necessary is, that the system of State taxation of its own citizens, of its own banks, and of its own corporations shall not work a discrimination unfavorable to the holders of the shares of the national banks. (Davenport Bank v. Davenport, 123 U. S., 83.)

4. EXEMPTIONS:

- (a) The intention of Congress was that the rate of taxation of the shares should be the same as, or not greater than, the tax upon the moneyed capital of the individual citizen which is subject and liable to taxation. (People v. The Commissioners, 4 Wall., 244.)
- (b) Therefore, it is not a ground of objection to the validity of a tax on shares that, while deductions for United States bonds are made from the personal estates of individuals and the capital of State corporations, no deductions are made on account of the capital of national banking associations invested in such bonds. (Ibid.)
- (c) The fact that by the statutes creating them, which statutes were passed prior to the national banking law, State banks are entirely exempt from taxation, will not render a tax upon the shares of national banking associations void. (City of Richmond v. Scott, 48 Ind., 568.)
- (d) And a State tax upon shares in national banking associations is not rendered invalid by an exemption of the shares of other corporations the capital of which consists of property required to be listed for taxation, as such. (McIver v. Robinson, 53 Ala., 456.)
- (e) Merely a partial exemption of other moneyed capital will not invalidate a tax upon shares in national banking associations. (Hepburn v. School Directors, 23 Wall., 480.)
- (f) But though Congress did not contemplate that there should be an absolute equality (which in the nature of things is impossible), yet it did intend that there should be a substantial equality; and, therefore, if the exemptions in favor of other moneyed capital are so palpable as to show that there is a serious discrimination against capital invested in the shares of national banking associations, the tax will be declared unlawful. (Boyer v. Boyer, 113 U. S., 690.)
- (g) A State law which does not permit a deduction to be made from the assessed value of bank shares for all debts due by the holder thereof, while authorizing such a deduction to be made from the assessed value of moneyed capital otherwise invested, is void. (People ex rel. Williams v. Weaver, 100 U. S., 539, reversing S. C., 67 N. Y., 516, and overruling People v. Dolan, 36 N. Y., 59.)

- (h) The main purpose of Congress in fixing limits to State taxation on investments in the shares of national banks, was to render it impossible for the State, in levying such a tax, to create and foster an unequal and unfriendly competition, by favoring institutions or individuals carrying on similar business and operations and investments of a like character; and the language of the law is to be read in the light of this policy. And, therefore, the exemption of shares of stock in corporations, the business of which does not come into competition with that of the national banks (e. g., railroad companies, mining companies, manufacturing companies, and insurance companies) does not invalidate a tax upon national-bank shares. Capital thus employed is not "moneyed capital" within the meaning of the act of Congress. (Mercantile Bank v. New York, 121 U. S., 138.)
- (i) Bonds issued by a State, or under its authority by its public municipal bodies, although they undoubtedly represent moneyed capital, yet as from their nature they are not ordinarily the subject of taxation, are not within the reason of the rule established by Congress for the taxation of national-bank shares, and the fact that the State exempts them from taxation does not deprive it of the right to tax shares of stock of national banks in the State. (Ibid.)
- (j) Although deposits in savings banks constitute moneyed capital in the hands of individuals within the terms of any definition which can be given of that phrase, yet they are not within the meaning of the act of Congress in such a sense as to require that, if they are exempted from taxation, shares of stock in national banks must thereby also be exempted from taxation; for it can not be supposed that savings banks come into any possible competition with national banks. (Ibid.)

5. COLLECTION OF TAX FROM THE ASSOCIATION:

- (a) A State tax upon shares is valid, though the tax is collected from the bank. (National Bank v. Commonwealth, 9 Wall., 353.)
- (b) And the State may require the banks to pay a tax rightfully laid upon the shares. (Ibid.)
- (c) And where the tax on shares is payable by the association the collection of the tax may be enforced by distraint of its property. (First National Bank v. Douglas County, 3 Dill., 330.)
- (d) But where the tax laws of the State make the bank the mere agent for paying the tax on shares, and direct it to retain so much of the dividends as will answer that purpose, other agents being required to pay taxes for their principals only when they have under their control the property, money, or credit of such principals, the bank can not be made liable unless it has the control of the property, etc., of its shareholders, or has dividends in its possession, or has failed to retain them. (Hershire v. The First National Bank, 35 Iowa, 272.)

6. LICENSE TAX:

- (a) National banking associations can not be subjected to a license or privilege tax. (Mayor v. First National Bank of Macon, 59 Ga., 648; City of Carthage v. First National Bank of Carthage, 71 Mo., 508; National Bank of Chattanooga v. Mayor, 8 Heiskell, 814.)
- (b) A State law prohibiting the establishment of banking companies in the State without authority of the legislature was not intended to apply to banking corporations created by authority of Congress, since such corporations may be legally established in the State without the consent of the legislature. (Stetson v. City of Bangor, 56 Me., 274.)

7. POWERS OF TAXING OFFICERS:

- (a) Municipal officers can not assess a tax upon the shares of national banking associations until authorized to do so by some law of the State. (Stetson v. City of Bangor, 56 Me., 274.)
- (b) The officers of a national banking association can not be compelled to exhibit to the taxing officers of a State the books of the association showing the deposits of its customers. (First National Bank of Youngstown v. Hughes, U. S. C. C. (N. D. Ohio, 1878), Browne's N. B. Cas., 176.)
- (c) A national banking association is not exempt from examination by internal-revenue officers when it has in its possession any articles subject to an internal-revenue tax. Such an examination is not the exercise of a visitatorial power, and, therefore, is not prohibited by the provision of section 5241, Revised Statutes, that the national banks shall not be subject to any visitatorial powers except those authorized by the national-bank act or vested in the courts of justice. (United States v. Rhawn, U. S. D. C. (E. D. Penn.), Thomp. N. B. Cas., 358.)

7. POWERS OF TAXING OFFICERS—Continued.

- (d) Where by the tax laws of a State a perpetual lien for taxes attaches to property only by virtue of a levy thereon, and such levy is not made prior to the insolvency of the bank, the taxing officers of the State will be restrained, at the instance of the receiver, from levying upon the property of an insolvent national bank, and selling it, for the purpose of collecting a tax. (Woodward v. Ellsworth, 4 Colo., 580.)
- (e) A State may require the cashiers of national banking associations located within its territory to transmit lists of the shareholders to the taxing officers of the various towns in which the shareholders reside. (Waite v. Dowley, 94 U. S., 527.)

8. ENFORCEMENT OF TAXES:

A tax duly assessed upon shares may be enforced in accordance with the general laws of the State on that subject. (Weld v. City of Bangor, 59 Me., 416.)

9. LOCATION OF ASSOCIATION FOR TAXING PURPOSES:

An association which opens an office for the purpose of receiving deposits in another place than that in which it was organized does not become "located" in that place for purposes of taxation. (National State Bank of Camden v. Pierce, U. S. C. C. (E. D. Penn.), 18 Alb. L. J., 16.)

XI. JURISDICTION.

NOTE.—The jurisdiction of the Federal courts in national-bank cases was very materially changed by the proviso to the fourth section of the act of July 12, 1882. The proviso is as follows:

"Provided, however, That the jurisdiction for suits hereafter brought by or against any association established under any law providing for national banking associations, except suits between them and the United States, or its officers and agents, shall be the same as, and not other than, the jurisdiction for suits by or against banks not organized under any law of the United States which do or might do banking business where such national banking associations may be doing business when such suits may be begun. And all laws and parts of laws of the United States inconsistent with this proviso be, and the same are hereby, repealed."

The jurisdiction of the United States circuit courts in suits by or against national banks is thus defined by section 4, act March 3, 1837:

"Sec. 4. That all national banking associations established under the laws of the United States shall, for the purposes of all actions by or against them, real, personal, or mixed, and all suits in equity, be deemed citizens of the States in which they are respectively located; and in such cases the circuit and district courts shall not have jurisdiction other than such as they would have in cases between individual citizens of the same State."

"The provisions of this section shall not be held to affect the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States in cases commenced by the United States or by direction of any officer thereof, or cases for winding up the affairs of any such bank."

1. JURISDICTION OF FEDERAL COURTS PRIOR TO THE ACT OF JULY 12, 1882:

- (a) National banking associations may sue in the Federal courts. The word "by" was omitted from section 57 of the act of 1864 by mistake. (Kennedy v. Gibson, 8 Wall., 505.)
- (b) A national banking association may sue and be sued in the circuit court for the district in which the association is located, irrespective of the amount in controversy and the citizenship of the parties. (County of Wilson v. National Bank, 103 U. S., 770; Mitchell v. Walker, U. S. C. C. (W. D. Penn., 1879), Brown's N. B. Cas., 180; Commercial Bank of Cleveland v. Simmons, U. S. C. C. (W. D. Ohio), 10 Alb. L. J., 155.)
- (c) But where the amount in controversy does not exceed five hundred dollars, the association can not sue in a Federal court outside of the district in which it is established. (Saint Louis National Bank v. Brinkman, U. S. C. C. (D. Kans.), 1 Fed. Rep., 45.)
- (d) A national banking association located in one State may bring an action in the circuit court of the United States sitting within another State against a citizen of that State. (Manufacturers' National Bank v. Baack, 8 Blatch., 147.)

1. JURISDICTION OF FEDERAL COURTS PRIOR TO THE ACT OF JULY 12, 1882—Continued.

- (e) When a national bank is sued in a Federal court the suit must be brought in the district in which the bank is located. And service upon an officer of the bank in another district will not give the court of that district jurisdiction of the cause. (Maine v. Second National Bank of Chicago, 8 Biss., 26.)
- (f) A United States district court has jurisdiction of a suit in equity by or against a national banking association located within the district. (First National Bank of Pittsburgh v. Pittsburgh and Castle Shannon Railroad Company, 1 Fed. Rep., 190.)
- (g) A circuit court has no jurisdiction of a suit by a private person to compel the Comptroller of the Currency and the Treasurer of the United States to disclose what disposition has been made of the United States bonds deposited with the Treasurer by a national banking association, and for a decree directing those officers as to their duty regarding such bonds. (Van Antwerp v. Hulburd, 7 Blatch., 425; Van Antwerp v. Hulburd, 8 Blatch., 282.)
- (h) Section 380 Revised Statutes, which provides that "all suits and proceedings arising out of the provisions of law governing national banking associations, in which the United States or any of its officers or agents shall be parties, shall be conducted by the district attorneys of the several districts under the direction and supervision of the Solicitor of the Treasury," does not enlarge the jurisdiction of the circuit court, and can not be held to confer jurisdiction in such suits or proceedings upon a court not having, independently of this section, authority to entertain them. (Van Antwerp v. Hulburd, 7 Blatch., 426 supra.)
- (i) National banking associations, being corporations organized under the laws of the United States, are entitled as such to remove into the circuit courts of the United States suits brought against them in the State courts. (Cruikshank v. Fourth National Bank, 21 Blatch., 322; see also Removal Cases, 115 U. S., 1.)
- (j) A United States district court has jurisdiction to authorize a receiver to compromise a debt. (Matter of Platt, 1 Ben., 534.)
- (k) An action at common law to recover a debt due to the bank may be instituted by a receiver in a United States district court, he being an officer of the United States within the meaning of section 563, Revised Statutes. (Platt v. Beach, 2 Ben., 303; Stanton v. Wilkeson, 8 Ben., 357.)
- (l) The power of a national banking association to take a mortgage upon real estate is a question which the party raising it should be permitted to litigate in a Federal court; and he should not be sent into the State courts to try this question on the distribution of surplus moneys in a foreclosure suit, or in a suit brought by the party holding the alleged invalid mortgage. (In re Duryea, U. S. D. C. (S. D. N. Y.), 17 National Bankruptcy Register, 495.)

2. JURISDICTION OF FEDERAL COURTS SUBSEQUENT TO ACT OF JULY 12, 1882:

- (a) The tenth subdivision of section 629, Revised Statutes, which confers upon the circuit court of the United States jurisdiction of all suits by or against any national banking association established in the district for which the court is held, has been repealed by the proviso to section 4 of the act of July 12, 1882. (National Bank of Jefferson v. Fare et al., U. S. C. C. (E. D. Tex.), 25 Fed. Rep., 200.)
- (b) The object of this proviso was to deprive the United States courts of jurisdiction of suits by or against national banking associations in all cases where banks organized under State laws could not likewise sue or be sued in such courts. (National Bank of Jefferson v. Fare et al., supra.)
- (c) But the proviso does not affect the right of the receiver of an insolvent association to sue in a Federal court. (Hendee v. Connecticut and P. R. R. Co., 26 Fed. Rep., 677.)
- (d) Nor would the act of July 12, 1882, take from the circuit court jurisdiction of a suit brought against a director for negligent performance of his duties; for as such suit rests upon the requirements of the United States laws, and by-laws made pursuant thereto, it is a case arising under the laws of the United States. (Witters v. Foster, U. S. C. C. (D. Vt.), 28 Fed. Rep., 737.)

3. JURISDICTION OF STATE COURTS:

- (a) State courts have jurisdiction of suits by and against national banking associations. (Bank of Bethel v. Pahquioque Bank, 14 Wall., 383; see also Ordway v. Central National Bank, 47 Md., 217, and Claffin v. Houseman, 93 U. S., 130.)

3. JURISDICTION OF STATE COURTS—Continued.

- (b) Where a national banking association is sued in a State court the suit must be brought in the city or county in which the bank is located. (Cadle v. Tracey, 11 Blatch., 101; Crocker v. Maine National Bank, 101 Mass., 240.)

NOTE.—But the New York court of appeals has held that the provision of the national banking law as to the jurisdiction of State courts is permissive only, and not mandatory, and that a State court, in a proper case, may entertain a proceeding against a national bank located in another State. (Cooke v. The State National Bank of Boston, 52 N. Y., 96; Robinson v. National Bank of New Berne, 81 N. Y., 385; see also Adams v. Daunis, 29 La. Ann., 315.) And in Talmage v. Third National Bank, 27 Hun, 61, the supreme court of New York said: "The words of restriction to the place where said 'association is situated' apply to the county and municipal courts and not to the State courts. In the State courts of general jurisdiction a national banking association can be sued whenever an individual can be for the same cause." In Cooke v. The State National Bank, Chief Judge Church questioned the constitutional right of Congress to deprive the State courts of jurisdiction in such cases.

- (c) A State court can entertain an action brought to recover of a national banking association the penalty for taking usury. (Ordway v. The Central National Bank, 47 Md., 217; Hatev. McPay, 31 Ohio St., 231; Bletz v. Columbia National Bank, 87 Penn. St., 87.)
- (d) The State courts have jurisdiction of an action brought by a shareholder on behalf of himself and other shareholders to recover of the directors of an insolvent association damages for injuries resulting from their negligence and misconduct. (Brinckerhoff v. Bostwick, 88 N. Y., 52.)
- (e) A State court has no power to make an order directing the receiver of a national bank, who has been appointed by the Comptroller of the Currency, to pay a judgment obtained against the bank before the receiver was appointed. (Ocean National Bank v. Carll, 7 Hun, 237.)
- (f) State courts have no jurisdiction of the case of an embezzlement of the funds of the association by one of its officers. (Commonwealth v. Felton, 101 Mass., 204; Commonwealth, ex rel. Torrey v. Ketner, 92 Penn. St., 372.)
- (g) The defense of usury may be set up in action brought in a State court. (National Bank of Winterset v. Eyre, 52 Iowa, 114.)

4. UNITED STATES CAN NOT BE SUBJECTED TO JURISDICTION OF COURT:

Neither the Comptroller nor the receiver by putting in an appearance to a suit can subject the United States to the jurisdiction of a court. (Case v. Terrell, 11 Wall., 199.)

5. CITIZENSHIP:

A national banking association is for jurisdictional purposes a citizen of the State in which it is located. (Davis v. Cook, 9 Nev., 134.)

XII. SUITS.

1. BY AND AGAINST ASSOCIATIONS:

- (a) Suit may be brought against a national banking association though it is in the hands of a receiver. (Bank of Bethel v. Pakquoque Bank, 14 Wall., 383; Security National Bank v. National Bank of the Commonwealth, 2 Hun, 287; Green v. The Wallkill National Bank, 7 Hun, 63.)
- (b) Where the tax on shares is collected from the association it may bring a suit to enjoin the collection of an illegal tax. (Cummings v. National Bank, 101 U. S., 153; Pelton v. Commercial National Bank, 101 U. S., 143; Boyer v. Boyer, 113 U. S., 143.)
- (c) A State law authorizing national banking associations which have been converted from State banks to use the name of the original corporation for the purpose of prosecuting and defending suits is not in conflict with the national banking law, and therefore proceedings based upon a judgment obtained before the conversion may be instituted by such association in its former corporate name. (Thomas v. Farmers' Bank of Maryland, 46 Md., 43.)
- (d) A national banking association is a foreign corporation within the meaning of a State statute requiring corporations created by the laws of any other State or country to give security for costs before prosecuting a suit in the courts of the State. (National Park Bank v. Gunst, 1 Abb. N. C., 292.)
- (e) As a national banking association can acquire no title to negotiable paper purchased by it, it can maintain no action thereon in a State where the person suing must be owner of the paper. (First National Bank of Rochester v. Pierson, 24 Minn., 140.)

1. BY AND AGAINST ASSOCIATIONS—Continued.

- (f) But in a State where the holder may sue without respect to the ownership an association may bring suit upon paper so acquired. (National Pemberton Bank v. Porter, 125 Mass., 333; Atlas National Bank v. Savery, 127 Mass., 75.)
- (g) Suits brought by a receiver can not be settled or compounded upon an order of the Comptroller; this can be done only with the authority of the court. (Case v. Small, 2 Woods, 78.)

2. BY SHAREHOLDERS :

- (a) A shareholder of a national banking association can not maintain an action against the directors to recover damages sustained for neglect and mismanagement of the affairs of the association, whereby it became insolvent and its stock was rendered worthless. Such an action can be brought only by the corporation itself. (Conway v. Halsey, 15 Vroom, 462.)
- (b) But where the receiver refuses to bring an action against negligent directors to recover the amount which the shareholders have been compelled to contribute to pay the debts of the association, an action against such directors may be brought by a shareholder on behalf of himself and the other shareholders. (Nelson v. Burrows, 9 Abb. N. C., 280.)
- (c) And when the receiver is a director, and one of the parties charged with misconduct and against whom a remedy is sought, the action may be brought by a shareholder on behalf of himself and the other shareholders. (Brinckhoff v. Bostwick, 88 N. Y., 52.)

3. BY RECEIVERS :

- (a) A receiver may sue either in his own name or the name of the bank. (National Bank v. Kennedy, 17 Wall., 19.)
- (b) Suits and proceedings under the act in which the United States or their officers or agents are parties, whether commenced before or after the appointment of a receiver, are to be conducted by the district attorney under the direction of the Solicitor of the Treasury. (Bank of Bethel v. Pakquoque Bank, 14 Wall., 323.)
- (c) But section 380, Revised Statutes, is directory merely, and the employment of private counsel by the receiver can not be made a ground of defense to a suit brought by him. (Ibid.)
- (d) Receivers may sue in the courts of the United States by virtue of the act, without reference to the locality of their personal citizenship.
- (e) The provisions of the codes that every action must be brought in the name of the real party in interest, except in the case of the trustee of an express trust, or of a person authorized by statute to sue, does not apply to the receiver of a national banking association suing in a Federal court held in a State which has adopted the code procedure; for the right of the receiver to sue is derived from the national banking law. (Stanton v. Wilkeson, 8 Ben., 357.)
- (f) Under section 1001 of the Revised Statutes no bond for the prosecution of the suit, or to answer in damages or costs, is required on writs of error or appeals issuing from or brought to the Supreme Court of the United States by direction of the Comptroller of the Currency in suits by or against insolvent national banking associations, or the receivers thereof. (Pacific National Bank v. Mixer, 114 U. S., 463.)

4. BY CREDITORS OF INSOLVENT ASSOCIATION :

The creditors of an insolvent association must seek their remedy through the Comptroller, in the mode prescribed by the statute; they can not proceed directly in their own names against the stockholders or debtors of the bank. (Kennedy v. Gibson, 8 Wall., 498.)

5. FOR USURY :

- (a) The penalty for all illegal interest paid to a national banking association within two years prior to the commencement of proceedings may be recovered in a single action, whether the amount was in one payment or in several. (Hintermister v. First National Bank, 64 N. Y., 212.)
- (b) Where a bankrupt has paid usurious interest, his assignee may bring an action against the association to recover the penalty. (Wright v. First National Bank of Greensburgh, U. S. C. C. (Dist. Ind., 1878); Crocker v. First National Bank of Chetopa, U. S. C. C. (Eighth Circuit, 1876); 3 Am. L. T., N. S., 350.)
- (c) The party who paid the usurious interest is the only party to the note who is entitled to sue for the penalty. (Lazear v. National Union Bank of Maryland, 52 Md., 78.)

6. TO ENFORCE LIABILITY OF SHAREHOLDERS:

- (a) When the full personal liability of shareholders is to be enforced the action must be at law. (Kennedy v. Gibson, 8 Wall., 505; Casey v. Galli, 94 U. S., 673.)
- (b) And it may be at law though the assessment is not for the full value of the shares; for, since the sum each shareholder must contribute is a certain, exact sum, there is no necessity for invoking the aid of a court of equity. (Bailey v. Sawyer, 4 Dill., 463.)
- (c) But the suit may be in equity. (Kennedy v. Gibson, supra.)

7. EXECUTION:

A judgment against a national bank in the hands of a receiver only establishes the validity of the claim; the plaintiff can have no execution on such judgment, but must wait pro-rata distribution. (Bank of Bethel v. Pahquioque Bank, 14 Wall., 383.)

8. ATTACHMENTS:

- (a) When a creditor attaches the property of an insolvent bank he can not hold such property against the claim of a receiver appointed after the attachment suit was commenced. Such creditor must share pro rata with all others. (First National Bank of Selma v. Colby, 21 Wall., 609; Harvey v. Allen, 16 Blatch., 29.)
- (b) No State court can issue an attachment against the funds of a national bank. Although the provision forbidding attachments was evidently made to secure equality among the general creditors in the division of the proceeds of the property of an insolvent bank, its operation is by no means confined to cases of actual or contemplated insolvency; but the remedy is taken away altogether and can not be used under any circumstances. The effect of the provision in section 5242, Revised Statutes, is to write into all State attachment laws an exception in favor of national banks, and all such laws must be read as if they contained an exception in favor of national banks. (Pacific National Bank v. Mixer, 124 U. S., 721.)

NOTE.—This case overrules the decision of the New York Court of Appeals in Robinson v. National Bank of New Berne (81 N. Y., 385), where it was held that the national banking law does not prohibit attachments against the property of national banks, except in cases where an act of insolvency has been committed or is contemplated. See also National Shoe and Leather Bank v. Mechanics' National Bank, 89 N. Y., 467; Raynor v. Pacific National Bank, 93 N. Y., 371; Southwick v. First National Bank of Memphis, 7 Hun, 96.

- (c) Nor can an attachment be issued by a circuit court of the United States; for as by the law of Congress all power of issuing attachments against national banks before judgment has been eliminated from State statutes, there can be no laws of the State providing for such a remedy on which the circuit court can act. (Ibid.)

9. ABATEMENT:

An action brought by the creditor of a national bank is abated by a decree of a district or circuit court dissolving the corporation and forfeiting its franchises. (First National Bank of Selma v. Colby, 21 Wall., 609.)

10. ESTOPPEL:

- (a) A shareholder against whom suit is brought to recover the assessment made upon him by the Comptroller will not be permitted to deny the existence of the association, or that it was legally incorporated. (Casey v. Galli, 94 U. S., 673.)
- (b) Where one sued by a national bank is accustomed to deal with it, as such, and does so deal with it in respect to the matter in suit, he is estopped from denying its incorporation. (National Bank of Fairhaven v. The Phoenix Warehousing Company, 6 Hun, 71.)

11. SUITS AGAINST LIQUIDATING ASSOCIATIONS:

A national bank which has gone into voluntary liquidation will continue to exist as a body corporate for the purpose of suing and being sued until its affairs are completely settled. (National Bank v. Insurance Company, 104 U. S., 54; Ordway v. Central National Bank, 47 Id., 217.)

12. TRANSITORY AND LOCAL SUITS:

The provision of the banking law (section 5198 Revised Statutes) which requires that actions brought against national banking associations in State courts shall be brought in the county or city in which the association is located, applies only to transitory actions; it was not intended to apply to actions local in their character. (Casey v. Adams, 102 U. S., 66.)

13. SURVIVAL OF SUITS:

Whether a suit against a director for negligent performance of his duties, as required by the statutes of the United States and the by-laws of the association, will survive against the executor or administrator depends upon State laws. (Witters v. Foster, U. S. C. C. (Dist. Vt.), 25 Fed. Rep., 737.)

XIII. EVIDENCE.

1. CERTIFICATES OF COMPTROLLER:

- (a) The certificate of the Comptroller of the Currency that an association has complied with all the provisions required to be complied with before commencing the business of banking is admissible in evidence upon a plea of nulla tiel corporation; and such certificate, together with proof that the association has been acting as a national banking association for a long time, is amply sufficient evidence to establish, at least, prima facie, the existence of the corporation. (Mix v. The National Bank of Bloomington, 91 Ill., 20; see also Merchants' National Bank of Bangor v. Glendon, 120 Mass., 97.)
- (b) The certificate of the Comptroller that the association has complied with all the provisions of law touching the organization of associations removes any objection which might otherwise have been made to the evidence upon which he acted. (Casey v. Galli, 94 U. S., 673; Thatcher v. West River National Bank, 10 Mich., 196.)
- (c) And in a suit against the association or its shareholders such certificate of the Comptroller is conclusive as to the completeness of the organization. (Casey v. Galli, supra.)
- (d) A letter from the Comptroller directing the receiver to institute suit, if not objected to at the time, is sufficient evidence that the Comptroller has decided that the enforcement of the individual liability of the shareholders is necessary. (Bowden v. Johnson, 107 U. S., 251.)

2. EVIDENCE OF INSOLVENCY:

- (a) It is not necessary that the facts upon which the Comptroller basés his action in appointing a receiver should be established by what is competent legal evidence; but he is left to be satisfied as best he can be, under the peculiar circumstances of each case, of the facts and the necessity for the exercise of his authority. (Platt v. Beebe, 57 N. Y., 330.)
- (b) A return of nulla bona upon an execution issued against the property of a national bank is proof of its insolvency. (Wheclock v. Kost, 77 Ill., 296.)

3. NECESSITY FOR ASSESSMENT BY COMPTROLLER:

It is not essential, in an action to enforce the individual liability of the shareholders of an insolvent national banking association, to aver and prove that the assessment was necessary; for the decision of the Comptroller on this point is conclusive. (Strong v. Southworth, 8 Ben., 331; Kennedy v. Gibson, 8 Wall., 505; Casey v. Galli, 94 U. S., 673.)

XIV. CRIMES.

1. UNDER UNITED STATES LAWS:

- (a) The willful misapplication of the moneys and funds of a national banking association, made an offense by section 5209, Revised Statutes, must be for the use or benefit of the party charged or of some person or company other than the association. (United States v. Britton, 107 U. S., 655.)
- (b) The exercise of official discretion in good faith, without fraud, for the advantage or the supposed advantage of the association is not punishable; but if official action be taken in bad faith, for personal advantage and with fraudulent intent, it is punishable. (United States v. Fish, 24 Fed. Rep., 585.)
- (c) It is not necessary that the officer should personally misapply the funds of the association. He will be guilty as a principal offender though he merely procures or causes the misapplication. (Ibid.)
- (d) A loan in bad faith, with intent to defraud the association, is a willful misapplication within the meaning of the statute. (Ibid.)
- (e) It is no defense to a charge of embezzlement, abstraction, or misapplication of the funds of a national banking association that the funds were used with the knowledge and consent of the president and some of the directors. The intent to defraud is to be conclusively presumed from the commission of the offense. (United States v. Taintor, 11 Blatch., 374.)

1. UNDER UNITED STATES LAWS—Continued.

- (f) Where the president charged as a trustee with the administration of the funds of the bank in his hands, converts them to his own use without authority for so doing, he embezzles and abstracts them within the meaning of section 5209, Revised Statutes. (In the matter of Van Campen, 2 Ben., 419.)
- (g) If, with intent to defraud the association, an officer allows a firm in which he is a member to overdraw its account, he will be guilty of misapplying the funds of the association. (Ibid.)
- (h) As the national banking law makes the embezzlement, abstraction, or willful misapplication of the funds of a national banking association merely a misdemeanor, a person who procures such an offense to be committed can not be punished under a State statute which provides that a person who procures a felony to be committed may be indicted and convicted of a substantive felony. (Commonwealth v. Felton, 101 Mass., 204.)
- (i) An indictment charging defendants with aiding and abetting a director in a willful misapplication of the money of an association must state facts to show that there has been such misapplication committed by the director. (United States v. Warner, U. S. C. C. (S. D. N. Y.), Feb. 13, 1886, 26 Fed. Rep., 616.)
- (j) Allowing the withdrawal of the deposit of one indebted to the association can not be charged as a misapplication of the money of the association. (United States v. Britton, 103 U. S., 193.)
- (k) It is not a willful misapplication of the moneys of the association within the meaning of section 5209, Revised Statutes, for a president who is insolvent to procure the discounting by the association of his note not well secured. (Ibid.)
- (l) To constitute the offense of a willful misapplication of the moneys, funds, or credits of the association within section 5209, Revised Statutes, it is not necessary that the person charged with the offense should have been previously in the actual possession of such moneys, funds, and credits under or by virtue of any trust, duty, or employment committed to him. Nor is it necessary to the commission of this offense that the officer making the willful misapplication should derive any personal benefit therefrom. When the funds or assets of the bank are unlawfully taken from its possession, and afterward willfully misapplied by converting them to the use of any person other than the bank, with intent to injure and defraud, the offense as described in the statute is committed. (United States v. Harper, 33 Fed. Rep., 471.)
- (m) This criminal act may be done directly and personally, or it may be done indirectly through the agency of another. If the officer charged with it has such control, direction, and power of management by virtue of his relation to the bank as to direct an application of its funds in such manner and under such circumstances as to constitute the offense of willful misapplication, and actually makes such direction, or causes such misapplication to be made, he is equally as guilty as if it was done by his own hands. (Ibid.)
- (n) Any entry on the books of the bank which is intentionally made to represent what is not true or what does not exist, with intent either to deceive its officers, or defraud the association, is a false entry within the meaning of the statute. (United States v. Harper, 33 Fed. Rep., 471.)
- (o) It may be made personally or by direction.
- (p) The erasure of figures already written in the books of a national bank, and the substitution of other figures which falsify the state of the account, constitute a "false entry" within the meaning of section 5209, Revised Statutes, by which it is declared to be a misdemeanor to make "any false entry in any book, report, or statement of the association with intent to injure or defraud," etc. (United States v. Crecelius, 34 Fed. Rep., 30.)
- (q) Where false entries are made by a clerk at the direction of the president, the latter is a principal. (In the matter of Van Campen, supra; United States v. Fish, supra.)
- (r) Prior to the act of February 26, 1881, a notary public holding his commission under a State had no authority to administer the oath required by section 5211, Revised Statutes; and, therefore, a cashier who made oath before such notary to a false statement of the condition of his association was not guilty of perjury. (United States v. Curtis, 107 U. S., 671.)
- (s) To constitute the offense of willful abstraction by an officer, defined by the statute, it is necessary that the money or funds of the association should be withdrawn by the officer or by his direction; that such taking or withdrawing should be without the knowledge or consent of the bank, or of its board of directors, that the money or funds so taken or withdrawn should be converted to the officer's own use, or for the benefit and advantage of some person other than the association, and that this should be done with intent to injure and defraud the association. (United States v. Harper, 33 Fed. Rep., 471.)

2. UNDER STATE LAWS:

- (a) An officer of a national banking association can not be punished under State laws for embezzling the funds of the association. (Commonwealth ex rel. Torrey v. Ketner, 92 Penn. St., 372; Commonwealth v. Felton, 101 Mass., 204.)
- (b) But where the offense committed by an officer is properly a larceny of the funds, and not an embezzement, he may be indicted under a State law. (Commonwealth v. Barry, 116 Mass., 1.)
- (c) And an officer may be punished under State laws for making false entries in the books of the association with intent to defraud it. (Luberg v. Commonwealth, 94 Penn. St., 85.)
- (d) The officers of a national banking association may be prosecuted under State statutes for fraudulent conversion of the property of individuals deposited with, and in the custody of, the association. (Commonwealth v. Tenney, 97 Mass., 50; State v. Fuller, 34 Conn., 280.)

3. TERM "UNITED STATES CURRENCY" IN PENAL STATUTE:

The circulating notes of national banking associations are included in the phrase "United States currency" when used in a penal statute. (State v. Gasting, 23 La. Ann., 1609.)

A DIGEST OF RECENT DECISIONS IN BANKING LAW.

BANKS AND BANKING.

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISION:

The term "banking powers," as used in the constitution of the State of Ohio, has a restricted meaning, and relates only to the powers of making and issuing paper money, or, at most, to powers exercised by associations organized to deal in money, including the making and issuing of bills and notes intended to circulate as money. (Dearborn v. Bank, 42 Ohio State, 617.)

POWER OF SAVINGS BANK TO BORROW MONEY:

A savings bank having the usual powers of such an institution may borrow money in the course of its legitimate business, and may make and indorse negotiable paper for the money so borrowed. (Fifth Ward Savings Bank v. First National Bank, 43 N. J. Law, 513.)

WRONGFUL PAYMENT TO AGENT:

S. drew his check for $5,000 on the People's Bank of New York, payable to the order of the United States Trust Company, and delivered it to C. with verbal instructions to deposit it to his (S.'s) credit with the trust company. C. delivered the check to the trust company, but, instead of doing as directed, requested and received from the company a certificate of deposit payable to himself as trustee of S., and shortly thereafter drew the money and converted it to his own use. Held, that the trust company was not authorized in paying the money to C., and was liable to the executors of S. for the amount. The use of the company's name as payee of the check indicated the drawer's intention to lodge the moneys in its custody and place them under its control, and nothing further than this was inferable from the language of the check. (Sims v. United States Trust Company, 103 N. Y., 472.)

NOTE.—Upon the trial, evidence of a custom to make such payments was submitted to the jury; but the evidence was conflicting, and the jury found against the existence of the custom. (Id.)

EVIDENCE OF CUSTOM TO BORROW MONEY:

In order to show that the borrowing of money was within the scope of the ordinary and customary business of a firm doing a banking business, evidence that such is the custom of the banks in the same place is admissible. (Crain et al. v. National Bank, 114 Ill., 516.)

PAYMENTS THROUGH CLEARING-HOUSE:

- (a) Where, by the rules of a clearing-house, checks not good are to be returned by the banks receiving them to the banks from which they are received as soon as the fact that they are not good is discovered, and in no case to be retained after a certain hour, yet when by mistake as to a matter of fact a bank has delayed to return a check until after the hour so fixed, it may demand repayment of the other bank, if in the interval between the time fixed by the rule and the time of the actual return the latter bank has not changed its position, as, for instance, by paying over the amount of the check to the person who had deposited it for collection. (Merchants' Bank v. Bank of Commonwealth, 139 Mass., 213.)
- (b) But in such case the recovery could be only the difference between the sum which the depositor has to his credit and the amount of the check; notwithstanding that, by the course of dealing between banks in the clearing-house association, the ordinary custom is to return the check as not good when there is not money enough to pay it in full; for the clearing-house rules not having been complied with by the return of the check within the time fixed, these rules can not control in determining how much shall be returned after payment of it has been made. (Merchants' Bank v. Bank of Commonwealth, 139 Mass., 513.)

NOTE.—Under a similar rule of the Chicago Clearing-House it has been held by the United States circuit court for the northern district of Illinois that no such mistake could be corrected after the time allowed by the rule. Blodgett, J., said: "If parties competent to contract within what time they may correct mistakes in their dealings with each other have so contracted, it seems to me the courts have no right to override or disregard such an agreement. If a mistake which is discovered within an hour or within ten minutes after the expiration of the time limited by the agreement for its correction may be corrected, I can see no reason why it can not be corrected a week afterward, or whenever it is discovered." (Preston v. Bank, 23 Fed. Rep., 179.)

- (c) Where a check received through the clearing-house by the bank on which it was drawn was placed upon the file and entered in the journal, but subsequently, and before 1 o'clock of the same day (the time within which checks not good are by the rules of the clearing required to be returned), was sent back to the bank from which it was received: Held, that the filing and entry in the journal did not operate as a payment or acceptance of the check so as to deprive the bank of the right to return it. (German National-Bank v. Farmers' Deposit National Bank, 118 Penn. St., 294.)

PASS-BOOK:

- (a) The duty of a depositor in respect to examining his pass-book and reporting any mistake to the bank is such as that which prudent men usually bestow on the examination of such accounts. (Leather Manufacturers' Bank v. Morgan, 117 U. S., 96.)
- (b) And by neglecting to make an examination of his pass-book within a reasonable time, a depositor may estop himself from afterward questioning its correctness. (Ibid.)

DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF BANKS MAKING COLLECTIONS:

- (a) Where a certified check is left with a bank for collection the collecting bank does not discharge its duty by forwarding that check to the bank on which it is drawn; and if it does so forward the check, and loss results, it will be liable for such loss. (Drovers' National Bank v. Provision Co., 117 Ill., 100.)
- (b) Nor would it in any case be a sufficient discharge of the duty of the collecting bank to forward the check to the bank on which it is drawn. (Merchants' National Bank v. Goodman, 109 Penn. St., 422.)

NOTE.—In Indig v. National City Bank, 80 N. Y., 100, it was said that when there are no indorsers to charge, sending the check through the mail to the bank on which it is drawn is a good presentment. (See also Heywood v. Pickering, L. R., 93 B., 428.)

- (c) Where paper is received by a bank in the ordinary course of business for collection, such bank will be responsible for the neglect or misconduct of any sub-agent employed by it in the business of making the collection. (Simpson v. Walby, Supreme Ct. Mich., 1886, 30 N. W. Rep., 193.)

NOTE.—The same rule has recently been adopted by the Territorial court of Montana. (Power v. First National Bank, 6 Mont., 251.)

This is now the rule in the Supreme Court of the United States (Exchange National Bank v. Third National Bank, 112 U. S., 276); in England (Mackery v. Ramsay, 9 Cl. and Fin., 818); in New York (Ayrault v. Pacific Bank, 47 N. Y., 570); in New Jersey (Titus v. Mechanics' Bank, 35 N. J. Law, 588); in Pennsylvania (Wingate v. Mechanics' Bank, 10 Penn. St., 104); in Ohio (Reeves v. State Bank, 8 Ohio St., 465); in Indiana (Tyson v. State Bank, 6 Blackf., 225); in Michigan (Simpson v. Walby, supra), and in Montana.

In other jurisdictions the rule prevails that the bank is only bound to transmit the paper to a suitable agent at the place of payment for that purpose, and when a suitable sub-agent is thus employed, in good faith, the collecting bank is not liable for his neglect or default. This is the rule in Massachusetts (Tabens v. Mercantile Bank, 23 Pick., 330; Dorchester Bank v. New England Bank, 1 Cush., 177); in Maryland (Jackson v. Union Bank, 6 Har. and Johns., 146); in Connecticut (Lawrence v. Stonington Bank, 6 Conn., 521; East Haddam Bank v. Scovil, 12 Conn., 303); in Missouri (Daly v. Butchers and Drovers' Bank, 56 Mo., 94); in Illinois (Etna Insurance Co. v. Alton City Bank, 25 Ill., 243); in Tennessee (Bank of Louisville v. First National Bank, 8 Baxter, 101); in Iowa (Guelich v. National State Bank, 56 Iowa, 434); in Wisconsin (Stacy v. Dane County Bank, 12 Wis., 629; Vilas v. Bryants, Wis., 702).

BANKERS' LIEN AND RIGHT OF SET-OFF:

- (a) Where a customer deposited with his bankers a policy of life insurance to secure any indebtedness of his to them then due, or which should thereafter become due, not exceeding at any one time the sum of £4,000: Held, that the bankers had no lien for any indebtedness of the customer in excess of £4,000; for as the express terms of the deposit limited the security to that amount, it would be inconsistent with those terms that the bank should hold the policy for something more. (Earl of Strathmore v. Vane, L. R., 33 Ch. Div., 586.)
- (b) Where agents deposit money in bank for the benefit of their principals, and the purpose of the deposit is known to the bank, the deposit is impressed with a trust, and the bank can not charge against it any indebtedness of the agents, even with their consent. (Baker et al. v. New York National Bank, 100 N. Y., 31.)
- (c) The general rule is that a bank has the right to set off as against a deposit only where the person who is both depositor and debtor stands in both these characters alike, in precisely the same relation, and on precisely the same footing toward the bank, and hence an individual deposit can not be set off against a partnership debt. (International Bank v. Jones, 119 Ill., 407.)
- (d) And notwithstanding that it is the duty of a partner to pay the firm's debt to the bank, still, inasmuch as the bank could not set off the firm debt against his deposit, he could lawfully appropriate such deposit to the payment of a bona fide creditor of his own. (Id.)

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS:

- (a) Where notes deposited with a bank as collateral security for a line of discounts are paid, it is the duty of the bank to carry the proceeds to the credit of the borrower's account, when he will occupy the position of depositor; and then, as to any part of such proceeds, the rule will apply, that when a deposit is made in bank the statute of limitations does not begin to run until demand is made. (Humphrey v. National Bank of Clearfield, 113 Penn. St., 417.)
- (b) Whenever demand is made by presentation of a genuine check in the hands of a person entitled to receive its amount, for a portion of the amount on deposit, and payment is refused, a cause of action immediately arises in favor of the drawer; and as to the amount specified in the check the statute of limitations begins to run from that time. (Viets v. Union National Bank of Troy, 101 N. Y., 564.)
- (c) Although it is a general rule that a bank in accepting and paying a check drawn by a customer is generally held to know the signature, and if a forged check is paid by it will not be heard to assert a mistake as to the signature, yet where one in whose favor a forged check is drawn takes it under suspicious circumstances, and gives it credit by indorsing his own name thereon, and collects the money on it, the bank may recover the amount from him. (Rowant v. San Antonio National Bank, 63 Tex., 610.)
- (d) The statute of limitations begins to run against a banker's certificate of deposit drawn "payable on the return of this certificate properly indorsed" (which is the same thing as payable on demand) from the date of the same, and no special demand is necessary to put the statute in motion. (Curran v. Witter, 68 Wis., 16.)

NOTE.—The same is held in Michigan (Tripp v. Curtenius, 36 Mich., 496) and in California (Brumagin v. Tallaut, 29 Cal., 503). In other States it is held that such a certificate is not due until presented for payment, and hence that the statute of limitations does not commence to run against it until such presentation. This is the rule in New York (Payne v. Gardiner, 29 N. Y., 146; Munger v. Albany City National Bank, 85 N. Y., 589); in Maryland (Fel's Point Savings Inst. v. Weedon, 18 Md., 320), and in Vermont (Bellows Falls Bank v. Rutland Co. Bank, 40 Vt., 377).

BANK OFFICERS.

POWERS OF OFFICERS:

- (a) The treasurer of a savings bank is an officer of much more limited powers than the cashier of a commercial bank. His duties more nearly resemble those of the paying and receiving tellers of banks. He can not, simply in virtue of his office as treasurer, create obligations which will be binding upon the bank, as by indorsement of notes, or transfer to a purchaser a promissory note belonging to the bank. (Fifth Ward Savings Bank v. First National Bank, 48 N. J. Law, 513.)

- (b) A cashier of a bank may, without authority from the board of directors, employ an attorney to collect outstanding debts due the bank; and this though the bank has regularly retained counsel. His authority in this respect is incidental to his duty to collect. (Root v. Olcott, 49 Hun, 536.)
- (c) Knowledge acquired by the cashier of a bank in his capacity as an officer of another corporation can not be imputed to the bank, unless he communicated that knowledge to some one or more of the other officers of the bank. (Wilson v. Second National Bank of Pittsburgh, 7 Att. Rep., 145.)
- (d) Where a president of a bank takes other promissory notes in settlement for notes over-due, he is not performing the duties of the directors respecting discounts, but is a mere agent, and whatever he does within the apparent scope of his authority to obtain the new security is binding upon the bank when it accepts and holds the security. (Cake v. Pottsville Bank, 116 Penn. St., 264.)
- (e) Evidence is not admissible to show a custom of bankers and brokers to receive cashiers' checks and drafts drawn in favor of their own banks upon New York banks as cash upon transactions with the cashier individually, for no usage, however common and well recognized, can be invoked to justify a banker in taking money or negotiable paper known to belong to the principal in payment of the agent's debt. (Anderson v. Kissam, 35 Fed. Rep., 699.)
- (f) Whenever an officer of a bank offers paper of the bank under circumstances which show that he has made it officially for his private use, the party dealing with him must take notice of his want of authority, and can not treat it as the obligation of the bank unless he can prove the existence of some special and extraordinary authority on the part of such officer. (Anderson v. Kissam, supra.)

CASHIER'S BOND:

- (a) The sureties on a cashier's bond will not be discharged by an increase of the capital stock of the bank when this increase is made under the authority of a provision of the law under which the bank is organized. The bond must be understood and read in the light of the law existing at the time it was made; and the parties must have contemplated that the bank would enlarge its business by all lawful ways and means, not going beyond a banking business. (Lionberger v. Krieger, 88 Mo., 160.)
- (b) The cashier's bond will not be invalidated by the fact that he is not a director, though the law under which the bank is organized provides that the cashier shall be chosen from among the directors. (Id.)

LIABILITY OF DIRECTOR:

- (a) Where a director and member of the finance committee of a savings bank, acting with the president, invests the funds of the institution contrary to the provisions of the law by which it is governed, he is liable for the loss on such investment. (Williams v. McDonald, 42 N. J. Eq., 392.)
- (b) And in such case it is not essential, in order to charge him with liability for the loss, to show that he acted fraudulently, or that he derived any benefit from the loan; it is sufficient that there was a culpable lack of prudence, or failure to exercise with ordinary care his functions as quasi trustee of the funds of the bank, by reason of which loss was sustained. (Id.)
- (c) Directors of a bank are trustees for depositors as well as stockholders. They are bound to the observance of ordinary care and diligence, and are hence liable for injuries resulting to depositors from a failure to exercise such care and diligence. (Delano v. Case, 121 Ill., 247; S. C., 17 Bradw., 531.)
- (d) A depositor can maintain an action at law against the directors for loss resulting to him by reason of the neglect of the directors to use due care and diligence. (Ibid.)

BUSINESS PAPER.

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS:

- (a) It is not unconstitutional for a State to enact a law making the liabilities of signers of commercial paper made and payable within its limits entirely different from the laws of other States respecting such liabilities, and by statute change absolutely the operation of the law merchant, so far as it affects contracts made and to be performed within that State. (Shoe and Leather National Bank v. Wood, 142 Mass., 563.)

- (b) A provision in a State law requiring that the words "given for a patent right" shall be inserted in every promissory note executed in consideration of the sale and transfer of a patent right is constitutional. (New v. Walker, 108 Ind., 365.)
- (c) This provision is in the nature of a police regulation. But independent of this consideration it is valid, because it simply proscribes what shall be written in a promissory note given for a particular class of property. (Id.)

BILLS DRAWN IN ANOTHER COUNTRY :

Where bills of exchange were drawn in France by a domiciled Frenchman, in the French language, but according to the English form, on an English company, by which they were duly accepted: Held, that the bills were to be regarded as English bills, at least so far as the acceptor was concerned, and that their negotiability could not be attacked by the company on the ground that the indorsement of the drawer was not a good indorsement according to the French law. (In re Marseilles Extension Railway and Land Company, L. R. 30 Ch. Div., 598.)

NOTES GIVEN FOR PATENT RIGHTS :

- (a) Where a State statute requires that notes for which the consideration is the assignment of a patent right shall contain the words "given for a patent right," notes issued in violation of such provision will be unenforceable as between the parties, and when in the hands of a purchaser with notice of the nature of the consideration. (New v. Walker, 108 Ind., 365.)
- (b) But they will not be void in the hands of an innocent purchaser unless the statute, either expressly or by necessary implication, declares them to be void. But this the Indiana statute (section 6055 R. S.) does not do. (Id.)

NOTE.—Similar statutes in Pennsylvania and Ohio have received the same construction. (Haskell v. Jones, 86 Penn. St., 173; Tod v. Wick, 36 Ohio St., 370.)

INCOMPLETE INSTRUMENT :

Where one signs and delivers a note in blank to be used as security, the law implies that he means to become liable upon a completed and perfected note, and so far as the same is, at the time of his signature, an incomplete and imperfect instrument, he is held to have authorized the filling of such blank by the agent intrusted with the note for use; but nothing more than this is implied. And, therefore, if a matter of special agreement (e. g., a provision for a special rate of interest) is crowded into it, there being no blank space left for such insertion, the alteration is material, and discharges the indorser. (Weyerhauser v. Dun, 100 N. Y., 150.)

SUNDAY CONTRACT :

Where a note is signed on Sunday, but not delivered until Monday, it is not open to the objection that it is a Sunday contract; for a promissory note becomes a contract from the time of its delivery. (Bell v. Mohr, 69 Iowa, 403.)

NOTE PAYABLE ON DEMAND :

Although the principle laid down in the case of Merritt v. Todd (23 N. Y., 28), has been criticised in later cases, it has been acquiesced in too long as the law of New York to be open to question or dispute. That principle is that a promissory note payable on demand, with interest, is a continuing security; so that the holder may make demand when he pleases, and is not chargeable with neglect if he does not make it within any particular time, and an indorser on such note remains liable until an actual demand. (Parker et al. v. Stroud, 98 N. Y., 379.)

A note payable "on call" is the same as payable "on demand." (Mobile Savings Bank v. McDonnell, 80 Ala., 83.)

PROMISE TO PAY FORGED NOTE :

An oral promise to pay a note by one whose signature has been forged to the note is nothing more than an oral promise to pay the debt of another, and is ineffectual to bind the promissor. (Smith v. Tramel, 68 Iowa, 488.)

AUTHORITY AND LIABILITY OF AGENT :

- (a) Where a bill drawn upon him by his principal is accepted by an agent by signing his own name thereto, with the addition of words describing himself as agent and giving the name of his principal, he will be individually liable upon such acceptance; and he will not be allowed to show that the acceptance was intended to charge only his principal. (Robinson v. Kana-wha Valley Bank, 44 Ohio, 441.)

- (b) Where a note ran "we promise to pay," and was signed "Pioncer Mining Company, John E. Mason, sup't," parol evidence was held admissible, in a suit by the payee, to show that the note was given as that of the company, and not as the note of the company and Mason. (Bean v. Pioneer Mining Co., 66 Cal., 451.)
- (c) Where a bill of exchange, drawn on a firm, was accepted by one of the partners by signing the name of the firm and adding his own underneath: Held, that the acceptance was that of the firm, and that the individual partner was not separately liable. (Edwards v. Barned, L. R., 32, Ch. Div., 447.)
- (d) In the case of a non-trading partnership, in order to subject the firm to liability upon a bill or note executed by one partner in its name, a course of conduct, or usage, or other facts sufficient to warrant the conclusion that the acting partner had been invested by his copartners with the requisite authority must appear, or that the firm has ratified the act by receiving the benefit of it. (Pearse v. Cole, 53 Conn., 53.)
- (e) Where a note was made payable to "the order of T. W. Woollen, Attorney-General:" Held, that the words "Attorney-General" were merely descriptive of the individual, and that as the persons in giving the note had executed a commercial instrument, fair on its face and complete in all its parts, they could not, as against a bona fide holder, set up the defense that the payee had no right to transfer it. (Walke v. Kuhne, 109 Ind., 313.)
- (f) A note was drawn in the following form:

$1061.24.

DETROIT, MICHIGAN, August 4, 1880.

Four (4) months after date we promise to pay to the order of Geo. Moebs, Sec. & Treas., ten hundred sixty-one and $\frac{24}{100}$ dollars, at Merchants and Manufacturers' National Bank, value received.

PENINSULAR CIGAR CO.
GEO. MOEBS, SEC. & TREAS.

Indorsed: Geo. Moebs, Sec. & Treas.

Held, that the indorsement purported to be that of the Peninsular Cigar Company; that it was not ambiguous, and that, therefore, evidence was not admissible to show that it was the intention of the indorser to bind himself personally by the indorsement. (Falk v. Moebs, 127, U. S., 597.)

CONSIDERATION:

- (a) One dollar is a mere nominal consideration, and therefore not sufficient to constitute the holder of a note a purchaser for value. (Proctor v. Cole, 104 Ind., 373.)
- (b) An agreement to pay one-half the proceeds that may be realized upon a note is a venture approaching very near a wagering contract; at all events, it is not such an agreement as will create a right against prior equities. (Id.)
- (c) It is the law of New York that one who takes commercial paper upon a pre-existing debt, without parting with any right or property of value, is not a bona fide holder for value who will be protected against the equities of third persons. (Webster & Co. v. Howe Machine Co., 54 Conn., 394.)

NOTE.—See for this the following New York cases: Coddington v. Bay, 20 Johns., 637; Stalker v. McDonald, 6 Hill, 93; McBride v. Farmers' Bank of Salem, 26 N. Y., 450; Comstock v. Hier, 73 N. Y., 269. For the contrary rule see Swift v. Tyson, 16 Peters 1; Railroad Company v. National Bank, 102 U. S., 14.

- (d) An existing debt is a sufficient consideration to constitute a pledgee of a negotiable instrument a holder for value. (Spencer v. Sloan, 108 Ind., 183.)
- (e) The pledgee of negotiable securities received by him as collateral security for an antecedent debt is not a holder for value, and is not protected from antecedent equities. (Appeal of the Leggett Spring and Axle Co., 111 Penn. St., 291.)

NOTE.—The rule in the Supreme Court of the United States is in accordance with that in the Indiana case. (Railroad Company v. National Bank, 102 U. S., 14.)

- (f) If the compounding of a felony affected the consideration of a note in any way, or such purpose entered into the consideration, or such motive actuated the maker in any respect, the contract is illegal. And, therefore, where H. and his wife had given their note to R., the employer of their son, to prevent R. from criminally prosecuting the son for theft, they could not recover from R. the amount which they had been compelled to pay to a bona fide purchaser of the note; and in such case the makers of the note could not set up that it was obtained from them by duress and undue influence; for such a right does not exist when the contract is tainted with a corrupt consideration. (Haynes v. Rudd, 102 N. Y., 372.)

- (g) If one becomes a bona fide holder for value of a bill before its acceptance, it is not essential to his right to enforce it against a subsequent acceptor that an additional consideration should proceed from him to the drawee. The holder does not trust wholly to the credit of the drawer. He believes and expects that the drawee will accept, and upon such belief and expectation he acts. (Heuterematt v. Morris, 101 N. Y., 63; Credit Company v. Howe Machine Co., 54 Conn., 357.)
- (h) The promise of a husband who has borrowed money of his wife to pay it to her children is a consideration sufficient to constitute one of those children a bona fide holder of a note assigned to him by the husband. (Proctor v. Cole, 104 Ind., 373.)
- (i) Where the instrument to secure which negotiable securities are deposited as a pledge turns out to be a forgery, this circumstance will not defeat the title of the pledge to the securities; for these having in themselves a negotiable character, the pledgee does not need to make any other title to them than such as springs from a delivery for value. (Fifth Ward Savings Bank v. First National Bank.)
- (j) Where a bank has discounted for the drawer drafts to which forged bills of lading are attached, the acceptors can not afterward defeat the claim of the bank on the ground that they accepted the drafts in the belief that the bills of lading were genuine. (Goetz v. Bank of Kansas City, 119 U. S., 551.)
- (k) After discounting the drafts the bank stands toward the acceptors in the position of an original lender, and can not be affected in its claim by the want of a consideration from the drawer for the acceptance or by the failure of such consideration. (Id.)
- (l) To enable one of the makers of a joint note to set up the defense that as to him there was no consideration for it, he is not necessarily obliged to show that it was without consideration as to all the makers; for, though presumably all makers executed it at the same time, and upon ample consideration as to each and all, it is possible that one might have signed the note without any consideration for his contract running to him or to any one else. (Moyer v. Round, 102 Ind., 301.)

PRESENTMENT AND NOTICE:

- (a) As to every bill not payable on demand, the day on which payment is to be made to prevent dishonor is to be determined by adding three days of grace, where the bill itself does not otherwise provide, to the time of payment as fixed in the bill. Thus, where the acceptor had stated in his acceptance "Due 21st May," it was held that the bill was not due until three days after the 21st of May. The time named in the acceptance after the word "due" was to be regarded as the time of payment to which days of grace were to be added, and not as a date which included days of grace. (Bell v. First National Bank of Chicago, 115 U. S., 373.)
- (b) A draft drawn upon a bank, and purporting to be drawn upon funds deposited, and payable on demand, is to be regarded as a banker's check. And where such a draft is payable at a different place from that in which it is negotiated, the holder should, as a general rule, forward it for presentment on the day on which it is received, or on the next succeeding day; and although this general rule may be varied by the particular circumstances of the case, the presentment must be made, in every instance, with all the dispatch and diligence consistent with the transaction of other commercial matters. Therefore, where the holders retained a draft for several days in their possession, for no other reason than that they chose to send it through a local bank with which they did business, and it did not suit their convenience to deposit it at an earlier date: Held, that they could not recover against the indorsers. (Northwestern Coal Company v. Bowman & Co., 69 Iowa, 150.)
- (c) And in such case it makes no difference as between the indorsee and his indorser that the drawer had no funds on deposit with the bank at the time the draft was drawn. (Id.)

- (d) Where notice of the dishonor of a draft was sent by the notary to the indorsers at Boone, Iowa, when their post-office address was Odebolt, in a different county: Held, that this was not a sufficient notice to fix their liability. (The Northwestern Coal Company v. Bowman & Co., 69 Iowa, 150.)
- (e) Where there was written upon a note "I hereby acknowledge the receipt of notice of protest on the within note," and this was signed by all the indorsers: Held, that the word "protest" included all acts necessary to hold indorsers, and the legal effect of the acknowledgment was to release the holder from any obligation to make demand or give notice. (City Savings Bank v. Hopson, 53 Conn., 453.)

BONA FIDE HOLDER:

- (a) Mere notice of facts such as would have put a prudent person upon inquiry is not sufficient to impeach the title of the holder of negotiable paper taken for value before maturity, and his right to recover can be defeated only by proof of such circumstances as show that he took the paper with knowledge of some infirmity in it, or with such suspicion with regard to its validity as that his conduct in taking it was fraudulent. (National Bank of the Republic v. Young 41 N. J. Eq., 531; Fifth Ward Savings Bank v. First National Bank, 48 N. J. Law, 513; Credit Co. v. Howe Machine Co., 54 Conn., 357; Morton & Bliss v. N. O. and Selma Railway Co., 79 Ala., 590; Mayes v. Robinson, 93 Mo. 114.)
- (b) Therefore, where the vice-president of a bank, who had negotiated a loan upon the paper of a corporation was advised by one of the officers of the corporation that it had outstanding a large amount of accommodation paper: Held, that this was not sufficient to defeat the claim of the bank as a bona fide holder of paper of the corporation discounted after such notice to the vice-president. (National Bank of the Republic v. Young, supra.)
- (c) But in cases of this kind the burden of proof is on the holder to show that he took the instrument before maturity bona fide and for value. The mere possession of it, when it has been obtained or issued under such circumstances, is not enough. (Id.)
- (d) But when he has shown that he became the holder of it before maturity and for value, in the due course of business, he has established all the facts that are necessary to fulfill the burden of proof laid upon him, and from these facts the law will imply that he is a bona fide holder, unless there should be circumstances from which bad faith may be inferred. (Id.)
- (e) The bad faith in the taker of negotiable paper which will defeat a recovery by him must be something more than a failure to inquire into the consideration upon which it is made or accepted, because of rumors of general reputation as to the bad character of the maker or drawer. (Goetz v. Bank of Kansas City, 119 U. S., 551.)
- (f) The failure to pay interest on coupon bonds as it becomes due does not dishonor them before maturity so as to subject them to antecedent equities in the hands of otherwise innocent purchasers for value. (Morton & Bliss v. N. O. and Selma Railway Co., 79 Ala., 590.)
- (g) Where a negotiable bond or other negotiable instrument is taken in such a way that the purchaser is not affected by antecedent equities, a mortgage given to secure payment is likewise protected against such latent defenses. (Spence v. Mobile and Montgomery Railway Co., 79 Ala., 576.)
- NOTE.—The contrary is held in Ohio and Illinois. (See Bailey v. Smith, 14 Ohio St., 396; Kleeman v. Frisbie, 63 Ill., 462.)
- (h) Where the condition of a bond is that the principal shall become due and payable upon the failure to pay any of the coupons as they become due, after demand made, the fact that the bonds have so become due and payable, as it rests upon an extrinsic matter, foreign to the face of the paper, and which does not dishonor it upon its face, does not of itself operate to charge the purchaser with knowledge that the bonds have been dishonored. The law does not in such case charge him with knowledge of the fact, unless he either knows it, or exhibits bad faith by intentionally avoiding a knowledge of it. And mere neglect to inquire whether there has been a demand made is not evidence conclusive of a fraudulent intent. (Morton & Bliss v. N. O. and Selma Railway Co., 79 Ala., 590.)
- (i) Where a State repeals the law under which it had become the indorser of the bonds of a corporation, and by which provision was made for the payment of the bonds in the event of a default of payment by the corporation as maker, such action—whether or not it was an open repudiation by the State of its liability as indorser of the bonds, such as to dishonor them ipso facto—was at least sufficient to put the purchaser on inquiry, and charge him with notice of the fact that there was something wrong about the bonds, especially when taken in connection with another fact—that, at the time of such repeal, several years of overdue coupons remained unpaid, and were attached to the bonds. (Morton & Bliss v. New Orleans and Selma Railway Company, supra.)

- (j) By the law of Kentucky, promissory notes in the hands of an indorsee are subject to any defense, discount, or offset that the maker had or might have had against the payee before notice of the assignment. (Shoc and Leather National Bank v. Wood, 142 Mass., 536. See Gen. Sts. of Kentucky c. 22, secs. 6, 22.)
- (k) A note transferred as collateral security for an existing debt, and upon no new consideration, is open to all defenses which could have been made against the payee. (Haden v. Lehman, 83 Ala., 243.)
- (l) As the rights of the parties are to be determined by the relation they sustain to the contract to be performed, and not by the nature of the security given for its performance, one who is a bona fide holder of a note for value before maturity (under the rule that gross negligence in taking negotiable instruments is not sufficient to let in the defenses of prior parties) is in equal measure the bona fide holder of a deed of trust given to secure such note, and in determining the question as to such deed of trust, the rules governing the transfer of commercial paper should obtain, and not the rules applicable in the case of a purchase of real estate. (Mayes v. Robinson, 93 Mo., 114.)

CHECKS:

- (a) A check in the usual form, not accepted or certified by its cashier to be good, does not constitute a transfer of any money to the credit of the holder; it is simply an order which may be countermanded, and payment forbidden by the drawer at any time before it is actually cashed. It creates no lien on the money which the holder can enforce against the bank. It does not of itself operate as an equitable assignment. (Florence Mining Company v. Brown, 124 U. S., 335.)
- (b) Where, by the law of a State the drawing of a check by a depositor amounts to an assignment of his deposit pro tanto, that result will follow where the check is upon a bank in that State, though the check is drawn in another State in which this peculiar rule as to the effect of drawing a check does not prevail. (Bank of America v. Indiana Banking Company, 114 Ill., 483.)
- (c) A check becomes no valid claim upon the funds against which it is drawn until the bank is notified of its existence. (Laclede Bank v. Schuler, 120 U. S., 511.)
- (d) And however the doctrine that a check is an appropriation of the amount for which it is drawn of the funds of the drawer in the possession of the bank may operate to secure an equitable interest in the funds after notice given to the bank (a question which the court expressly stated it did not undertake to decide), yet the bank, so far as concerns itself and its duties and obligations in regard to the fund, remains unaffected by the execution of the check until notice has been given to it, or demand of payment made upon it. (Id.)
- (e) Although the practice of drawing instruments in sets for the payment of money is generally confined to foreign bills of exchange, yet there is nothing in the purpose or effect of that practice which would render it inapplicable under all circumstances to checks. And, therefore, the character of an instrument as a check is not destroyed by the fact that it contains the words "original" and "second unpaid." These words do not make the instrument payable conditionally. (Merchants' National Bank v. Betzinger, 188 Ill., 484.)
- (f) Whenever demand is made by presentation of a genuine check in the hands of a person entitled to receive its amount, for a portion of the amount on deposit, and payment is refused, a cause of action immediately arises in favor of the drawer; and as to the amount specified in the check the statute of limitations begins to run from that time. (Viets v. Union National Bank of Troy, 101 N. Y., 564.)
- (g) Where, by the law of a State the drawing of a check by the depositor operates as the assignment of the deposit pro tanto, a bank in such State upon which process of garnishment has been served should be allowed credit for the amount paid upon checks of the depositor drawn before such service though not presented for payment until after such service. (Bank of America v. Indiana Banking Co., 114 Ill., 483.)
- (h) But for no credit for checks paid after service, and which do not appear to have been drawn before. (Id.)

CHECKS—Continued:

- (i) A fraudulent change in the date of a check, whereby the time for its payment is accelerated, is an alteration which vitiates the instrument. (Crawford v. West Side Bank, 100 N. Y., 50.)
- (j) If a bank pay a check so altered, it can not charge the amount against the account of the drawer. (Id.)
- (k) And holding the check until its true date will not entitle the bank to charge it to the drawer, for the possibility that the check could ever become a legal liability in the hands of any person was destroyed by the fraudulent alteration. (Id.)
- (l) An indorsee of a bank check, taking it six months after date, for a valuable consideration and without notice, the funds against which it was drawn still remaining with the bank, is protected against any right of set-off, existing between the maker and the payee. (Bull v. Bank of Kasson, 123 U. S., 105.)
- (m) Where a bank certifies for the drawer a check made payable to the drawer's own order, it incurs no liability to any subsequent holder until the check is indorsed by the drawer. (Lynch v. First National Bank of Jersey City, 107 N. Y., 179.)

NOTE.—It was held by the same court in Freund v. Importers and Traders' Bank (76 N. Y., 352) that a certification by the bank of a check in the hands of a holder who had purchased it for value from the payee, but which had not been indorsed by him, rendered the bank liable to such holder for the amount thereof. Distinguishing these two cases the court pointed out that in the earlier case the bank by certifying the check took, as it had the right to do, the risk of the title which the holder claimed to have acquired from the payee, and entered into a contract with the holder by which it accepted the check, and promised to pay it to him, notwithstanding it lacked the indorsement provided for, while in the case under consideration the certification was made at the request of the drawer and was subject to the condition imposed by him, plainly written in the check, that it should not thereafter be payable except by his indorsement.

- (n) In the absence of an agreement to the contrary, a check or promissory note of either the debtor or a third person, received for a debt, is merely conditional payment, that is, satisfaction of the debt, if and when paid; but the acceptance of such check or note implies an undertaking of due diligence in presenting it for payment, etc., and if the party from whom it is received sustains loss by want of such diligence it will be held to operate as actual payment. (Kilpatrick v. B. & L. Ass., 119 Penn. St., 30.)

CERTIFICATE OF DEPOSIT:

A certificate of deposit in the ordinary form of such instruments is in substance and legal effect, a negotiable promissory note. (Curran v. Witter, 68 Wis., 16.)

PAPER OF CORPORATIONS:

- (a) A corporation engaged in business has implied power to make negotiable paper for use within the scope of its business, but it has no power, express or implied, to become a party to bills or notes for the accommodation of others, and such paper is valid and enforceable only in the hands of a holder taking the same before maturity bona fide and without notice. (National Bank of Republic v. Young, 41 N. J. Eq., 531.)
- (b) The general doctrine of the law is that where a corporation has powers under any circumstances to issue negotiable paper, a bona fide holder has a right to presume that the paper was issued under the circumstances which give the requisite authority, and such paper is no more liable to be impeached for any infirmity in the hands of such a holder than any other commercial paper. And this doctrine is applied to commercial paper made by a corporation for the accommodation of a third person when in the hands of a bona fide holder who has discounted it before maturity on the faith of its being business paper. (Id.)
- (c) As corporations may accept drafts for some purposes, and as the purpose for which a draft is drawn does not ordinarily appear on its face, the question as to all parties with notice is, Was it drawn for a legitimate purpose? As to all others the implied inquiry is, Is the holder a bona fide holder for value? (Credit Company v. Howe Machine Co., 54 Conn., 357.)
- (d) Although it is a correct proposition that persons dealing in the commercial paper of a corporation are bound to take notice of the limits of the corporate power in this respect, yet a distinction is to be observed between the terms of the power and the circumstances under which it is exercised. Parties

- must take notice of the former, but they are not required to have knowledge of the latter. And, therefore, a purchaser of such paper, when the same has been accepted by the proper officer of the corporation, is not bound to inquire whether it was issued in the legitimate exercise of the officer's power to so bind the corporation, for this he has the right to presume. (Credit Company v. Howe Machine Co., 54 Conn., 357.)
- (e) The fact that bonds of a private corporation were sold in violation of a restriction in the charter as to the price can not be set up to defeat the claim of a bona fide holder of such bonds. (Ellsworth v. St. L., A. & T. R. R. Co., 98 N. Y., 553.)
- (f) When a corporation gives its promissory note in pursuance of a contract, which is afterward performed on his part by the payee, the corporation can not, in a suit upon the note, set up that the contract was ultra vires. (Main v. Casserly, 67 Cal., 127.)

PROVISIONS WHICH DESTROY NEGOTIABILITY:

- (a) Where a note was made payable twelve months after date, but contained a further provision "that the payee or his assigns may extend the time of payment thereof from time to time indefinitely, as he or they may see fit": Held, that the latter provision, as it made the time of payment uncertain and indefinite, destroyed the negotiable character of the instrument. (Gidden v. Henry, 104 Ind., 278.)
- (b) Where a note contained the following stipulation: "This note is given in consideration of, and is subject to one certain contract existing between S. B. J. Bryant and Jacob Haas, of even date with this": Held, that this provision destroyed the negotiable character of the instrument, and that the assignee took it subject to all existing equities. (McComas v. Haas, 107 Ind., 512.)
- (c) A note containing a power of attorney, which, in effect, authorizes a confession of judgment at any time after date is not negotiable. (Richards v. Barlow, 140 Mass., 218.)
- (d) A provision in a note for the payment of an attorney's fee in case suit should be brought thereon destroys the negotiability of the instrument. (Chase v. Whitmore, 68 Cal., 545.)
- (e) But an agreement inserted in a note to pay "all costs of collection, including 10 per cent. attorney's fees," does not render the note non-negotiable. This stipulation does not make the amount which the maker is to pay uncertain, for the promise to pay a fee of 10 per cent. excludes the possibility that the makers could be compelled to pay a fee more or less than that amount, and as to the costs, as they must necessarily fall upon the losing party, the stipulation as to them is to be regarded as mere surplusage. (Schlesinger v. Arline (U. S. C. C., S. D. Georgia), 31 Fed. Rep., 648.)

NOTE.—As to whether a provision for the payment of an attorney's fee will render a note non-negotiable, the authorities are conflicting. That it will have this effect has been decided in Pennsylvania (Woods v. North, 84 Penn. St., 407; Missouri (First National Bank v. Gay, 63 Mo., 38); Minnesota (Jones v. Radatz, 27 Minn., 240); Wisconsin (First National Bank v. Larsen, 60 Wis., 206); North Carolina (First National Bank v. Bynum, 84 N. C., 24); and in the United States circuit court for the district of Minnesota, 14 Fed. Rep., 705. The contrary rule prevails in Indiana (Stoneman v. Pyle, 35 Ind., 103; Wyant v. Pattorf, 37 Ind., 512); Iowa (32 Iowa, 184); Kansas (Seaton v. Scoville, 18 Kans., 433); Louisiana (Dietrich v. Baylie, 23 La. Ann., 767); Nebraska (Heard v. Dubuque Bank, 8 Nebr., 10).

In neither class of cases is any distinction taken between provisions for a fee at a fixed percentage and a provision to pay a "reasonable attorney's fee" or simply "an attorney's fee." The courts which sustain the negotiability of notes containing such provisions, rest their decisions in the main upon the ground that so long as the amount payable is certain up to the time of maturity and dishonor, it is not essential that after that time, when the instrument has for other reasons become non-negotiable the certainty as to the amount should continue (see Stoneman v. Pyle, supra, and Wyant v. Pattorf, supra). The courts which hold that such provisions destroy the certainty essential to commercial instruments follow the reasoning of Sharswood, J., in Woods v. North, supra. In that case the stipulation was to pay "five per cent. collection fee if not paid when due." In the course of his opinion Judge Sharswood said: "It is a mistake to suppose that if this note was unpaid at maturity the five per cent. would be payable to the holder by the parties. It must go into the hands of an attorney for collection. It is not a sum necessarily payable. The phrase 'collection fee' necessarily implies this. Not only so, but this amount of percentage can not be arbitrarily determined by the parties. It must be only what would be a reasonable compensation to an attorney for collection. This, in reason and usage of the legal profession, depends upon the amount of the note. * * * How then can this note be said to be certain as to its amount, or an amount unaffected by any contingency? Interest and cost of protest, after non-payment at maturity, are necessary legal incidents of the contract, and the insertion of them in the body of the note would not affect its negotiability. But a collateral agreement, as here, depending, too, as it does, upon its reasonableness, to be determined by the verdict of a jury, is entirely different. * * * If this collateral agreement may be introduced with impunity, what may not be?"

- (f) The negotiability of an instrument will not be destroyed by the use of the term "in current funds;" for since the issue of legal-tender notes, the meaning of such term is that payment is to be made in whatever is receivable and current by law as money, whether in the form of notes or coin. (Bull v. Bank of Kasson, 123 U. S., 105.)

DEFENSES:

- (a) In a suit upon a promissory note evidence is not admissible to show that the note was given upon an understanding between the parties that it should not be of any force. (Davy v. Kelly, 66 Wis., 452.)
- (b) The drawer of a bill of exchange will not be permitted to show that at the time the instrument was drawn there was verbal agreement that he should not be held liable thereon as drawer. (Cummings v. Kent, 44 Ohio St., 92.)
- (c) Although it is the rule in Iowa that when there is a blank indorsement of a promissory note, a different contract from that which in such case is implied by law may be established by parol evidence, yet this rule will not be extended further so as to allow it to be shown by parol that no contract of any description was entered into or intended by such indorsement. (Geneser v. Wissner, 69 Iowa, 119.)
- (d) Where the payee of a promissory note is sued as indorser thereon, he may show by parol evidence that when he wrote his name on the note the note had already been paid, and that he put his name thereto at the request of the holder merely as evidence of the payment. (Spencer v. Sloan, 108 Ind., 183.)
- (e) Where a promissory note has been given in part payment of a house, the maker of the note may, as against the purchaser of the note with notice of the facts, set up as a defense to it the damages sustained by him by reason of the false and fraudulent representations of the vendor as to the condition of one of the walls. (Applegarth v. Robertson, 65 Md., 493.)
- (f) The rule early established in Pennsylvania, that an indorser of a negotiable instrument is not a competent witness to invalidate it, is still adhered to in that State. It has not been changed by legislation. (John's Adm'r v. Pardee, 109 Penn. St., 545.)

INDICIA OF OWNERSHIP:

- (a) Where by the laws of the State a married woman can not transfer, without the written or oral assent of her husband, shares of stock held by her in a corporation, and she delivers to her husband the certificates of stock and a power of attorney in blank, and such stock is pledged by the husband, but the power of attorney is not accompanied by written evidence of the assent of the husband, a transferee from the pledgee is put upon inquiry, and his title to the stock can be no better than that which by the assent of the husband the pledgee had; for in such case, all the indicia of ownership are not conferred upon the pledgee. (Leiper's Appeal, 109 Penn., 377.)
- (b) If the true owner of a negotiable note overdue, or a non-negotiable note, clothes another with the usual evidences of ownership, or with the full power of disposition, and third persons are led into dealing with such apparent owner, they will be protected in their dealings. This is upon the principle that where one of two innocent parties must suffer for the wrongful act of another, the loss must fall upon him who put the wrong-doer in the position to do the wrongful act. (Nenhoff v. O'Reilly, 93 Mo., 164.)

AMOUNT WHICH PLEDGEE MAY RECOVER:

Where negotiable instruments have been transferred as collateral security by one who is not a bona fide holder for value, the pledgee, if he has taken the instruments in good faith for value before maturity, will still be allowed to prove against the maker of the instruments for the full amount thereof; but the amount of his recovery can not exceed the debt for the security of which the instruments were pledged, and interest. (Morton & Bliss v. New Orleans and Selma Railway Company, 79 Ala., 590.)
