There Goes That Foot Again

An area couple and their guests were engrossed in an absorbing conversation one recent evening—about the only thing these cold wintery nights are good for—when the doorbell rang and a neighbor entered, visibly upset. Known for her colorful and witty conversation, the neighbor explained that she had hit one of the guests' cars with her own vehicle—injection appropriate adjectives throughout her talk. After the damage had been surveyed, the neighbor returned to the house and was introduced to the guests. The group included the type of person one generally uses rather guarded language around—a respected area pastor.

City's Plea: Help Us Conserve Electricity to Avoid Emergency

BY NORVIN HANSEN

Turn off those extra lights and appliances or the city might be forced to do it for you.

That's the suggestion of power officials in Wayne. Reason: a shortage of fuel to run the city light plant.

"The fuel shortage is right here at home," says Norbert Brugger, light plant superintendent, "and if the people would cooperate it would sure help out."

The plea for conserving electricity is going out from local power officials because the city during January if consumption continues as at present.

And in February the city could run short for 16 days.

In March the city will be allotted about 30,000 gallons of diesel fuel, and diesel fuel will have to be obtained elsewhere if natural gas is not available by then. That amount would last only for about five days at the present rate of consumption.

If all boils down to an approaching emergency in Wayne during the "cold weather" months and the city is not able to purchase additional diesel fuel was told earlier this week that its supplier of diesel fuel which is used to run the generators at the light plant—has been forced to cut down by 25 per cent the amount of fuel it will be able to supply Wayne this year.

Rather than getting the contracted 480,000 gallons of diesel fuel this year the city will receive only 360,000 gallons.

That means that the city could run short of fuel for eight days or obtain natural gas to fire the generators.

The city has been shut off natural gas since early last November except for some short periods, and it doesn't look very hopeful for natural gas to be available very soon because of the heavy demands by residential users, says Keith Mosley, manager of Peoples Natural Gas in Wayne.

"Right now we don't have any natural gas to sell to the city, and we can't tell how long it will be before there is gas available to run the generators," he said.

The city is currently using about 6,000 gallons of diesel fuel daily, according to Brugger, and if that continues the 151,700 gallons allotted during January will be used up eight days before the month is over.

The 101,400 gallon allotment for February would be used up in about 18 days, he added.

Hey! We're Listening, So Fill Out That Form

Wait! Don't throw away that envelope which fell out of the newspaper today.

We want you to open it up, fill out the form and mail it back to us as soon as possible.

The form, which is going out to about 7,000 readers today, is the first reader opinion survey ever conducted by the news paper.

It offers readers a chance to say what they enjoy the most and the least about the news paper. It also offers a chance for readers to give suggestions about how the newspaper can do a better job covering local and area events.

The questionnaire, which takes only a few minutes to fill out, asks readers to tell how often they read such regular features as "Sportsbeat," letters to the editor, church news, "A Closer Look" and the county agent's column.

"If the readers will take a few minutes of their time to fill out the form and mail it back, the newspaper will be able to take a good look at itself and see if it is doing the job they want done," said Norvin Hansen, editor.

"We're not asking that the forms be signed, so the questionnaire offers readers an excellent way to tell us exactly what they think of the newspaper," he added.

It Comes With the Territory

THE WINTER'S longest cold spell is having its usual effects—cars won't start, furnaces keep running, people dread stepping outside. And it just keeps on freezing water tanks on area farms. Like this one on the Don Indian place six miles north of Wayne. The sun reflects off some open water, creating seven-sided figures in the top of the picture.

WHS Grapplers top Neligh, 38-26

The Wayne High grapplers, without any decisions, won their second dual in five matches Monday night on six pins and a draw.

The Blue Devils, behind the leadership of Jim Neiman, with his 14 wins against two losses, beat Neligh, 38-26.

Freshman Randy Surber tied the dual at six all with a pin over the Warriors' Dirk Armstrong. The 105-pounder took his man in 2:52 of the second period.

Barry Rubeck, in the 126-pound division pinned his man, Terry Hess, in 1:49 of the first period before Neiman put down John Schrader (132) in the night's fastest time, 1:47.

"Jim is an outstanding wrestler," said coach Don Koenig.

"He's only been defeated twice—both times by the same man." Wahoo's John Trunta, currently undefeated at 16-0, handed the Wayne senior his only losses.

Arnold Siefken pushed Wayne's lead to 24-18 midway through the dual when he beat Dana Anderson in the 145-pound class. Siefken pinned his man in 1:45 of the second period.

"I think the real turning point in the match came when Barry Rubeck won his dual," the coach commented. At that point in Wayne still trailed 12-15.

After Brad Pflueger and Neigh's Paul Fullerton drew in the 155 class, pins by Gordon Cook (167) and Don Nelson gave the Blue Devils the win, 38-26.

"On the whole," Koenig pointed out, "our team did a good job. They showed a lot of hustle and this is what I am looking for."

In the reserve game, the Blue Devils beat the Warriors, 44-11, with the aid of five forfeits.

Les Thompson (105), Jon Thavon (112), Terry Nelson (145), Mike Dunklau (165) and Jeff Lamp (Hwt.), each won by forfeit.

Roger Meyer (132) and Doug Straight (167) were the only reserve wrestlers to get a pin.

Allen, Ponca Battle Highlights BB Action

By BOB BARTLETT

Allen coach Robert Moore might be thankful that his team got a two-week layoff to prepare for Friday night's contest.

Why is this one so important? The Eagles will be hosting Ponca, leader of the Lewis and Clark Conference.

Allen, runner-up in the Wakefield basketball invitational two weeks ago, holds a 3-2 record. The Eagles have a 2-0 mark in the Lewis standings, tying Ponca for the No. 1 spot.

On the other hand, Ponca has a 6-2 record—both losses coming in the Coleridge invitational.

The Indians possess strong scoring power from center Don Mohr. Craig Jones and Joe McManis. Both Mohr and Jones are hitting above the 50 per cent mark in their field goal shooting while McManis is hitting the rim at a 42.9 clip.

As of the Dec. 19 stats released by Lewis and Clark Conference secretary Jim Winch, Mohr was second in the league for scoring with a 21.2 average; Jones had an 11.8 average.

As a team Ponca ranked No. 1 defensively, allowing the opponent only 43.4 points a game.

For the Eagles, Charlie Peters and Scott Von Minden ranked as the top field goal leaders. Peters ripped the nets for a 44.4 per cent average while Von Minden kept pace at 42.9.

In the individual scoring department, transfer Stan Perry joins the two Eagle players for the league's scoring honors.

Perry led the trio with a 13.3 average. Peters followed with an 11.8 mark and Von Minden rounded out the list at 10.5.

Defensively, Allen ranked sixth out of the 11 school conference. The team was giving up an average of 55.5 points a game by mid-December.

Maybe statistics really don't mean anything when both teams settle down and meet each other on the courts. This Friday a host of area viewers will get the chance to find out when the Eagles tangle with the Indians.

From this vantage point, the selection goes to Ponca, even though Moore's club has improved.

THE PINS were flying Tuesday night during the second night for area bowling teams in the city bowling tournament in Wayne. Strikes were going left and right, especially for owner Val Kienast, who rolled a 256 in the first game of the evening. On the right, Rich Wurdinger eyes his next shot while his teammate Wayne Tietgen, left of Wayne's Body Shop, stands mute when his ball fails to make the pocket and leaves a difficult 1-3-7-10 spare.

Athlete of the Week

Kirk Gardner
Wakefield High School

When a coach labels one of his wrestlers as "the finest young man I've coached in 12 years," it stands to reason that person has a lot going for him both on and off the mats.

Wakefield's Kirk Gardner is that young man, coach Lyle Trullinger said, who possesses team leadership and the ability "to get the job done."

During the Winside invitational wrestling meet last Saturday, Gardner won his weight division by pinning three men. He also earned the award for the most pins in the least amount of time.

As a result, Kirk was named The Herald's "Athlete of the Week."

"Last year," said Trullinger, "Kirk won the state championship in the 155-pound class, and it looks like he might make it in the 167-division this year."

Gardner, Wakefield's first state wrestling champ, presently holds a 13-0 record with 13 more matches to go before districts roll around Feb. 9-10.

"One thing about Kirk, he gets the team up and going during the practice sessions," Trullinger pointed out. The only problem, he stressed, is that there isn't anyone he can wrestle in practice. "So I have to wrestle him," Trullinger remarked.

The head coach said he can still beat Gardner, but "I'm getting kind of old for that."

Head football coach Joe Coble noted that Gardner, who won a position on the West Husker all-conference football team for the past four years, has a nose for football.

He's not only strong but understands the game very well, he said.

"Kirk is always in fine physical shape. He can take off the pounds when he wants to or put it on just as quickly," Coble explained.

Gardner, who started wrestling when he was a freshman, has the will to keep on learning about any sport when he puts his mind to it. According to Trullinger, Kirk has attended Leigh College (Pennsylvania) and Iowa State University wrestling classes to learn more about the sport.

Gardner, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gardner of Wakefield, also is the president of the W Club.

Winside's Team Effort Collects 124 Points To Win Invitational

Wrestling is said to be an individual effort, with one man pitted against another.

But Saturday the Winside team proved that theory wrong, coming up with a team effort to win its own invitational tournament.

Out of 10 teams, the Wildcats placed first with 124 points to outdistance their nearest rival, Plainview, by 44 1/2 points. The Pirates, last years winner,

Winside	124
Plainview	79 1/2
Randolph	70
Neligh	56
Wakefield	44 1/2
Newman Grove	26
Harrington	24
Stanton	24
Battle Creek	10
Niobrara	3

took second, but not without a battle from the Randolph grapplers, who took third—only 9 1/2 points behind Plainview.

"I know wrestling is an individual sport," said Winside head coach Doug Barclay, "but our men won the tournament as a team—everyone scored points."

Out of 12 Winside grapplers, 11 made it to the consolation or championship finals.

Brothers Keith and Steve Sueli, helped to pace their team with decisions over Plainview's Marcus Hannemann, and Walt Jensen of Stanton.

Keith, in the 98 pound class, took a 7-6 decision after being tied 6-6 at the end of regulation time. The referee awarded Sueli the extra point after a quick check showed he had more riding time than Hannemann. Steve (138) claimed a big victory when he won a 9-5 decision over Jensen, who was third ranked in the state last year.

Other victories for the Winside matmen came when 119-pounder Dave Jaeger defeated Neligh's Bilney, 3-2. Dean Krueger had a 12-5 decision over Randolph's Kim Kuhl for the 145-pound division win while teammate Ed Lienemann, only Wildcat to claim a pin in the championship rounds, beat Dan Schulz of Battle Creek in 2:55.

Coach Barclay had high praise for one of his men who finished in second place. Sophomore Doug Lage (132) did an "outstanding job" although he lost to Pirate Dale Bonge. "Last year Dale was third in Class C and eighth in the nation in free style," Barclay pointed out. "Losing by a 7-4 decision is no disgrace."

Winside's Monte Pfeiffer lost his bid for a win in the 105 pound class to Roger Hannemann of Plainview, 12-6, and Greg Lage finished second to Plainview's Barry Weber in the 126 pound class, 4-1.

Wakefield's Kirk Gardner and Steve Sorenson were the only other area grapplers to finish in a first place showing. Gardner, in the 167-pound class, pinned Winside's Brian Hoffman in 48 seconds of the first period, capping a brilliant display of talent during the day long affair.

Sorenson handed Randolph's Kim Kuhl a 2-1 defeat to win the 155-pound title. In the consolation rounds, the Trojans had three men take third place. They were Dave Kuester, Kenny Dolph and Dave Rouse.

Rouse (112) won a 5-0 decision over Winside's Doug Anderson and Kuester (98) pinned Raul Grubbeles of Randolph in 50 seconds.

The toughest consolation match for the Trojans came when Dolph won a 12-0 overtime decision against Lester Loberg (105) of Randolph. At the end of regulation time, the score was 0-0.

The results: 98—Keith Sueli (W) decisioned Marcus Hannemann (P), 7-6. 105—Roger Hannemann (P) decisioned Monte Pfeiffer (W), 12-6.

112—Randy Grubbeles (R) decisioned Bruce Bauer (N), 3-2. 119—Dave Jaeger (W) decisioned B. Bilney (N), 6-3.

126—Barry Weber (P) decisioned Greg Lage (W), 4-1. 132—Dale Bonge (P) decisioned Doug Lage (W), 7-4.

138—Steve Sueli (W) decisioned Walt Jensen (S), 9-5. 145—Steve Sorenson (Wake) decisioned Kim Kuhl (R), 2-1.

155—Dean Krueger (W) decisioned Kevin Kuhl (R), 12-5. 167—Kirk Gardner (W) 6-0 pinned Brian Hoffman (W), 48.

185—Ed Lienemann (W) pinned Dan Schulz (BC), 2:55. HWT—Larry Pembrock (H) pinned Carl Henry (N), 39.

Swimmers Split Duals

Mankato State swimmers came and conquered Wayne State Friday night. It was as Wildcat Coach Roger Bentley predicted.

"We never have beaten Mankato, but we like to swim against them," he said. Wayne swimmer Bill Walters added the comment, "We always swim some of our best times with Mankato."

A good example of that: Wayne's Bob Floerschinger, a freshman who did his high school swimming at Omaha Burke, broke the Wayne 200-yard butterfly record again, but finished second. His 2:14.7 time trailed the new pool record of 2:13.5 by Mankato's Kevin Polansky.

Mankato won seven of 13 events and got enough other places for a 60-43 win.

The Wildcats were double winners. Dan Kearney of Norfolk in the 200 individual medley and the 200 breaststroke; Doug Krecklow, the 50 and 100 free style.

Back on Dec. 15, Wayne defeated Northwest Missouri State, 58-54, in a see-saw dual at Maryville.

Cat Wrestlers Push Dual Mark to 6-0

The Winside wrestling team won their sixth dual meet without a loss Tuesday night by defeating Harrington High, 48-18.

Led by varsity and reserve wrestlers, Coach Doug Barclay's matmen opened in convincing fashion with three pins. They never trailed in the contest.

"I was real pleased with the showing of our younger wrestlers," Barclay pointed out. "Three of them never wrestled in varsity before and did a good job."

Burt Schwedhelm (119) helped the Wildcats with a decision over Harrington's Wohlman, 8-4, while teammate Jerry Aileman (145) won a 9-2 decision.

Winside's Dave Mann was pinned by 132-pounder Stan Jones. Ed Lienemann, the only undefeated Cat wrestler, won his 14th match on a forfeit in the 185 pound class.

Monday night Winside will travel to Randolph for the squad's seventh dual and return home Tuesday when the reserves will go against the Wynot varsity.

Results: Winside 48, Harrington 18. 98 Keith Sueli (W) pinned Bob Lauer, 5-47.

105 Monte Pfeiffer (W) pinned Rick Pearson, 1-54. 112 Doug Anderson (W) pinned Monte Pearson, 43.

119 Burt Schwedhelm (W) decisioned D. Wohlman, 8-4. 126 Doug Hasbrock (H) pinned Greg Lage, 2-49.

132 Stan Jones (H) pinned Dave Mann, 3-07.

138 Woody King (W) pinned Gary Wohlman, 1-47. 145 Jerry Aileman (W) decisioned Bill Olson, 9-2.

155 Dwight Lienemann (W) pinned Bill Bruening, 3-42. 167 Dan Bowers (W) pinned Brad Rhode, 1-55.

185 Ed Lienemann won by forfeit. Hwt. Larry Pembrock (H) pinned Mike Anderson, 1-17. Reserves: 119 Kurl Brudigan (W) pinned Bill Johnson, 1-50.

Wayne State Girls Dump Kearney

A full schedule awaits the Wayne State women's basketball team this week.

Thursday the squad travels to Seward to meet Concordia at 8 LeMars, Ia., is the next stop for the girls when they enter the Westmar Tournament Saturday. Then, on Sunday, the coeds will be at home to South Dakota State of Brookings, S.D. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Following the junior varsity tilt between the Wayne JV and the Midland team from Fremont.

In their first contest, Dec. 16, the girls dumped Kearney, 60-44. Trailing 17-11 after the first quarter, the coeds came back to lead at the half, 28-25. Outscoring Kearney 18-10 in the third period, the Wayne States held the lead and went on to win.

Claudia Paulson led all scoring with 27 points.

Cat Surge Beats Kearney, 93-91; Nip Doane for Eighth Big Win

By Ed Wiberding
Wayne State Writer

Wayne State's basketball team notched a satisfying victory Saturday night, defeating Kearney State, 93-91, before a near capacity crowd in Rice Gymnasium.

The victory evened Wayne's state college conference record at 1-1 and gave Kearney a losing debut in league play.

The Antelopes led by 34-44 after the first half and came out strong in the beginning of the second half. The Wildcats, slipping to a 15-point deficit, looked as if they were out of the ball game. Not so. They regrouped and coupled a shift in defensive tactics with a strong offensive counterattack. The change in defense put the brakes on three of Kearney's big scorers.

Atchae Shot Wins II Six seven second Dennis Sueli kept, sparking the Wayne comeback, getting 24 of his game high 26 points in the second half. Siefkes was not to be stopped in the middle. He simply overpowered Kearney defense with a good hook, close jumpers, and layups.

Another factor in the victory was 6-4 junior Ron Jones, who hit his season high, 21 points. His consistent, smooth play and accurate long jumper put Wayne ahead, 85-83, after a long uphill climb. The victory was not clinched, though, until guard Jim Merchel scored the winning two points on a shot from the center with five seconds left.

Harvey Grabs Record 19 John Harvey also proved a powerhouse on the boards with 49 grabs—a Wayne high this season and 15 points.

Top scorers for Kearney were all around athlete Tom Kropp with 25 and Mark Christensen with 21.

In the preliminary, Kearney's junior varsity fared better with a 70-65 win over Wayne, after coming back from a big half time deficit.

Spectators caught an unusual if good halftime show to go along with the exciting game. Wayne State's Wildcat pep band performed their dancing routine to the delight of the crowd, especially the men.

Not Since 1957 A sidelight fact on Wayne Kearney cage history: Kearney has not beaten Wayne here since 1957, before Rice Gym was built. On the other hand, Wayne has shot down the Antelopes on their home court several times in that span of years.

Coming into the game, defending conference champion Kearney had a 6-4 record, a scoring average of 96. However, the Antelopes had given up an average of 92 a game, and this time they gave up one more than that.

Drops Doane Wayne State basketball moved up a notch on the win side Monday, to 8-3, but the Wildcats had a scare before subbing Doane, 76-75, at Crete.

They overcame a 22 lead at halftime, only to see the Tigers claw up gradually on scoring bursts and superior rebounding. Wayne's winning margin came at the free throw line as the roughhouse game gave the Wildcats opportunity to cash 17 shots into 14 points the second half, 18 of 24 for the game. Doane hit five of six, but outscored Wayne from the field 35 goals to 29. Both teams shot 48 per cent from the field.

Big Denny Siefkes posted another strong night at the nets with 23 points, high for the game, while Jon Harvey scored his college career high at 20. Doane got its top production from Mario Pearl with 22 and Herb Cousins, 20.

It was Wayne's second triple win over Doane.

Tax Deadline For Some Is January 15
January 15 is the deadline for paying the final quarterly installment of 1972 estimated federal income tax, reminds the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS advised taxpayers whose total estimated and self employment tax for 1972 will exceed their income tax with holding by $100 or more to file a declaration of estimated tax on Form 1040 ES.

Complete instructions on how to file an estimated tax return can be found on Form 1040 ES, the IRS said.

Taxpayers who had substantial changes in their 1972 income or exemptions after Sept. 1, 1972 may be required to file an amended declaration of estimated tax on Jan. 15.

Payment of the final quarterly installment or the filing of an amended declaration, otherwise due on Jan. 15, is not required if the taxpayer files his 1972 income tax return and pays all tax due by Jan. 31.

HEARING the other side. The Rev. Dennis Carroll of Niobrara and Mrs. Harold George of Dixon, left, listen to youths on a panel talk about the "people problems" during the annual meeting of the Northeast Nebraska Family & Community Affairs Council at Laurel Monday.

Youths Tell Parents to 'Really Care'

"It's neat, talking to older people. You know, they've got viewpoints, too."

That's one of the comments from the panel of young people who were featured during Monday's 11th annual meeting of the Northeast Nebraska Family and Community Affairs Council, Inc. The all-day meeting, held at Laurel, attracted 150 persons—just over half of them teenagers.

Comments from the high school students on the panel indicated there is not as large a gap between them and their parents as many people think. If parents will just sit down and talk to their teenage sons and daughters, the panel members said, they can work out many of their problems.

But it is important for parents to show that they really care about the problems and temptations facing today's teenagers, the panel members said. If the parents don't care, no amount of talking will do any good, they agreed.

Subject of the meeting was drugs, alcohol and health—the "people problems."

The panel of teenagers, who have attended alcohol and drug workshops, was intended to give adults attending the meeting a look at what it's like to be a teenager today.

Members of the panel were Galen Miller and Cindy Beeks, Wayne; Robert Gadeken, Patti Burck and June Pearson, Laurel; Marilyn Ecker, Dixon; and Kevin Zmolek, Diane Bowen and Janice Christensen, Hartington.

Also speaking during the meeting was Sgt. Curtis Cochran of the Nebraska State Patrol. Mrs. Jane Ford of the Norfolk Regional Center and Mrs. Pam Specht of the State Mental Health Education Office.

Sgt. Cochran, involved in the State Patrol's safety education and training program, told the group that their message to "watch out for No. 1" because by doing so they will be helping other people.

If you make sure you are doing what's good for yourself and those close to you, whether it's on the highway or in every day activities, you are going to be much better off, he said.

Mrs. Specht spoke in place of Dr. Jack Anderson, director of the State Department of Public Institutions in Lincoln, who was called to a legislative meeting.

Coordinator of the State Mental Health Education Office, she reviewed Dr. Anderson's plan for future medical health services for the state. Dr. Anderson suggests that Nebraska request more federal funds for developing mental health services. He also says that the state should decrease the number of patients in state mental health institutions, putting more of them into out-patient care.

Elected during the meeting were three new board members: Rev. Ron Nelson of Emerson on Dixon County, Mrs. Elizabeth Crossley of Verdigre for Knox County and Glen Stewart of Pender for Thurston County.

There were no nominations for board members from the other three counties in the council, Wayne, Cedar and Dakota. Those board members will be elected at the council's February meeting. That meeting is scheduled for Feb. 12 at the Northeast Station near Concord.

Conducting the business meeting was Kenneth Green of Allen, council president.

Also taking part in the all-day council meeting was Neal Boeshart of Laurel, newly named director of the Community Alcohol Resources Development Program at Norfolk.

Boeshart was formerly counselor-coordinator for the alcohol work being done at a five-county northeast Nebraska area. His new job is with a program covering 22 counties.

Guide's Aim: Help Towns Get Industry

A comprehensive guide designed to answer a host of questions communities have about industrial development will be introduced at a series of six meetings across the state in January and February.

The meeting closest to Wayne will be at the Villa Inn at Norfolk on Feb. 1.

The booklet, titled "Building the Foundations of Industrial Development," contains more than 150 pages of information aimed at helping Nebraska communities build their industrial development program.

The guide identifies a series of steps and tasks which need to be accomplished if a community wants to become more competitive in the search for industrial development.

The guide is divided into four parts representing different phases in the industrial development process. Those steps are deciding whether to undertake industrial development, preparing for attracting additional industry, working with industrial prospects, and helping the new industry get started.

Copies of the handbook will be available at the Norfolk meeting.

IRS Reminds Employers To File '90'

The Internal Revenue Service reminds employers that beginning in 1973, almost every employer will be subject to the federal unemployment tax and must file a Form 940. The tax will apply to every employer who during either 1971 or 1972 paid wages of $1,500 or more in any calendar quarter or who had one or more employees at any time in each of 20 calendar weeks. This changes the past requirement of four or more employees and no set wage minimum.

The term employee does not apply to domestic service in private homes, agricultural labor or to children under 21 employed by their parents, the IRS says.

Persons with questions should consult the IRS Publication 15, the "Employer's Tax Guide," or call the local Internal Revenue Service office.

Ice is being used experimentally to save fruit orchards in Springfield, Ore., from frost damage. National Geographic reports, "Spraying hot waste water from a nearby pulp plant on the trees sheathes buds in 'warm ice' that keeps them insulated at about 30 degrees when the temperature drops much lower."

Relax, Wayne Residents, No Fuel Shortage Foreseen

Wayne residents can relax and enjoy this winter. There is no fuel shortage foreseen for this area.

According to Keith Mosley of People's Natural Gas, "Our domestic and main street customers are in real good shape." Mosley pointed out that he "is not aware if there is any shortage for the city. At least there is no information from the home office."

Presently, the interruptible customers are on oil. Mosley explained, "because of the near-zero temperatures. And they will be cut off until the temperatures start rising and I have enough excess gas to sell."

Included in the six are the city auditorium, Wayne Greenhouse, Wayne Carroll school district, Wayne Rendering Works, the college and the city power plant. Both the college and power plant were placed on oil about Dec. 1, Mosley explained.

Bill Workman of Energy Systems, which supplies the college with its heat, said his oil supplier will have enough oil on hand for the winter.

"We're currently using a No. 2 grade fuel which isn't as critical as a No. 1 type used in stoves." As a result, he noted, the college isn't in any trouble now.

Cutdown When the City of Wayne was placed on oil, city clerk Dan

Sherry pointed out that the electricity rate might increase due to the rise in the use of oil. So far during the month of December, the city has burned oil for 487 hours out of its normal 600 hours of operation. "We've used oil for about two-thirds of the month at a rate of 4,000 gallons a day," Sherry said.

"If this cold weather continues and the city is not able to get any gas, the rates could go up very soon, he noted.

Monday, Sherry went on, the city received a letter from its oil supplier telling the city that it has been cut to 75 per cent of its total amount last year.

"All this boils down to is a possible rate increase," he said.

Conserve Both Mosley and Sherry said that Wayne residents and businesses can help by conserving heat and electricity.

"I wouldn't go so far as Governor Eason and tell everyone to turn down their thermostats by a couple of degrees," Mosley mentioned. "But it would be helpful if the residents would cover any cracks in the doorways or windows."

Mosley explained that two important factors can help a person to conserve on heat—cleaning furnace filters and uncovering cold air ducts.

"If the registers are open, then the cold air can return to the furnace and reduce the amount of fuel needed to keep the house warm," he said.

In addition, sealing the windows—and making sure the storm windows are put on—can prevent the heat from seeping out. "It is also advisable to use weather stripping to plug the doorways and windows to plug all the cracks," Mosley continued.

Sherry advised that city residents shut off their lights when not in use and "to conserve as much as possible."

Omahan back in the saddle as state's legislators start '73 session

LINCOLN — An Omahan was placed in the leadership saddle of the Legislature this year — after a decade of outstate speakers.

The 1973 session, chosen Sen. Richard F. Proud, a 50-year-old insurance company attorney from Omaha, to succeed Sen. W. H. Hasebrock of West Point as the top legislative officer.

It was 10 years ago that an Omahan last served as speaker — Sen. William Merton in 1963 — and a decade before that when Omaha Sen. Charles Trydick held the reins.

Proud had to defeat a Lincoln challenger, Sen. Harold D. Simpson, to earn the post. Simpson based his campaign on the fact that it was in 1945 that a lawmaker from the Capital City last served as speaker. That was Sen. C. Petrus Peterson.

Proud's victory wasn't a surprise. Neither was the selection of Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff as chairman of the Executive Board of the Legislative Council. Carpenter was unopposed in his quest for his first formal leadership post in a legislative career spanning 16 years.

"You may be sorry you voted for me," Carpenter said, promising strong leadership which he didn't waste any time demonstrating.

At his first meeting of the board, Carpenter's proposal for additional research staff was approved. He said it would cost "a helluva lot of money," but he and the other board members complained that they were getting a runaround from administrators and wanted to have the manpower to get information themselves.

Carpenter also jotted university and other officials who thought the plans were all set for the construction of a new NU field house on the state fairgrounds.

The Scottsbluff senator said the project should go ahead, but might have to be postponed until a state office building is constructed. In any case, Carpenter said, the $12 million spending ceiling on the field house wouldn't finance construction of the type of building he has in mind.

He said it would cost about $18 million to build the combination convention center-athletic arena — capable of housing trade shows, the "equivalent of those they hold in Chicago" — he said is necessary.

Carpenter suggested the $14 million the state has received in federal revenue sharing money should be used to finance a state office building. Such a building originally was to be financed from increased cigarette taxes, the source to be used for the field house.

The office building was eliminated from the smokers' tax revenues by the 1972 Legislature, which said half of the income should be used for the field house and the other half should go into a general construction fund to be spent however the lawmakers decide.

There weren't any early indications the Carpenter suggestion would derail the field house project.

Bills Galore Introduced

The bill introduction pace was swift, right from the start of the new session. There were 20 bills offered the first day.

Among the measures to be considered this year are proposals which would:

- Rewrite the state's criminal code, streamlining and simplifying.
- Create the post of district attorney to replace the present county attorney. The new officials would serve areas equivalent to the present judicial districts.
- Put a two per cent tax on hotel and motel lodging, with revenues going to support local recreation projects, state parks and tourism promotion.
- Make it discretionary — instead of mandatory — for the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds to sell school trust lands.
- Put all executive agencies under a single department with a single budget, allowing the governor to shift funds as he wishes.
- Create an advisory committee of county officials to work with the State Tax Commissioner on valuation questions.
- Allow year-around operation of the public schools if the State, Education Commissioner and the local district voters approve.
- Lower the daytime speed limits on all state highways, except the Interstate, to 60 miles per hour. The daylight limit now is 65.
- Require a nickel deposit on all pop and beer containers.
- Change the state constitution to have legislators elected by party label. The Legislature has been non-partisan since it became a unicameral body.

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786

Readers, speak now or forever.

Readers, here's your chance to tell us exactly what you think of the quality of our newspaper.

The spot survey being conducted this week offers our customers to tell us what is right or what is wrong with our newspaper. If you are one of those being surveyed, please fill out the form, slip it into the self-addressed, stamped envelope and drop it into the mail box.

That's all there is to it, and it shouldn't take over five or ten minutes of your time.

If you're not being surveyed — but want to add your comments — just give us a call or stop by The Herald office and we will give you a form to fill out and mail back to us.

The reason for the survey is quite simple. We want to improve the product we sell — our newspaper — so that you — our customers — will be as pleased with it as possible.

That's easier said than done, however. How do we go about improving it? Do we quit covering certain events with news and stories? Do we run more — or fewer — pictures? Do we start having more items about the activities of your city? Do we run more humorous articles? Do we give more space to locally contributed articles on the editorial page? Do we use more pictures in our advertisements?

Those are just some of the things which will be covered in the survey. Hopefully, the answers you give us on the forms being sent out this week will help us make The Herald even more welcome in your home.

A worthwhile course

A lot of families and individuals should benefit from the course being planned which would teach how to care for elderly persons both in the home and in institutions.

The last course held in Wayne to teach this care was quite successful, with both adults and young people signing up for it.

With our elderly population growing each year in Nebraska, a course such as this is very worthwhile. It can be helpful to a family or young adult who has to help care for an older person in the home as well as to a person considering working in a nursing home as a profession.

The course is being planned by a registered nurse from Winside, Mrs. Connie Bargstadt. Anybody wishing more information about the course should get in touch with her.

Starting to pay off

The hard work and long hours put in by hundreds of volunteers working to get a new area medical center built in Wayne should start showing some results this spring.

Those workers last week were told that the federal government has finally approved a $384,300 grant to help with construction of the 26-bed hospital just east of Wayne State College.

Although that approval has not been hampering actual start of construction on the facility, things should start moving faster now that it has been given. Next step is to get final drawings from the architect so that bids can be asked for and then awarded. After that, about the only thing which would hold up actual construction would be extended cold weather.

If all goes well, bids should be awarded late this spring, with actual construction to start shortly after that. Somewhere around a year and a half after ground breaking the facility should be completed and open for business.

When it opens it will be a dream fulfilled for those hundreds of workers who spent many nights and weekends trying to raise funds to help build the area medical center. It's something the community and area has needed for a long time. It's something those workers should be very proud of when it is finally completed.

Wayne
Dear Editor:
Thanks to you and commissioner Floyd Burt for the very enlightening article, "Who Should Control Public Education." Am hoping that everybody in our school district will study this article carefully, especially our members of the school board in whom we have entrusted this great responsibility.

Concerned Citizen
(Editor's Note: The article referred to appeared in the November issue of a national farm publication and was reprinted on the editorial page of the January 4th issue of The Herald. It asked whether the layman or the professional educator should control public education. It was contributed by commissioner Burt.)

Dear Editor:
I would like to thank everyone responsible for the $10 check I received from SWAY, Inc. It was sincerely appreciated.

Dear Editor:
I received the $10 gift from SWAY, Inc. I was very happy before Christmas. I

30 Years Ago

January 21, 1943: Word was received Monday, that Cpl. Lester Gottsch is alive and is a prisoner of the Japanese. Mrs. S. A. Lutgen has accepted the position of Wayne County recruiting chairman for WAAC. The thermometer dropped sixty degrees Saturday night from 45 above to 15 and 20 below. W. C. Helkes of Ober, formerly of Wayne, suffered a skull fracture Thursday when he slipped and fell in a potato cave at the home of his son, Earl, near Ober. The number of cattle on feed for slaughter in the United States Jan. 1 was the largest on record. No school was in Carroll Monday because of the intense cold. Mrs. H. L. Harmer by the young demonstrators in Sweden against too much drinking and credit buying during Christmas is commendable.

But, if you had used the first line of that article, "Who says demonstrators are all bad?" or something similar as the title, it would have been more appropriate and kinder to the Swedes.

A Swede Subscriber
(Editor's Note: The lady has a point, and our apologies to our Swedish subscribers. It was just that the headline used on the story fit best and was thought would get the best readership of the humorous item. It apparently did just that.)

Okinawa
Dear Editor:
I would like to take the opportunity to thank the fine people of Wayne County for their gift to me and my family through SWAY, Inc. It was certainly appreciated. I would like to wish everyone a happy, healthy, and prosperous New Year.

Congratulations are in order regarding the new hospital planned at Wayne. I am sure that the usual problems always associated with a project of this size can be swiftly overcome and the actual building rapidly finished. This will certainly insure the future of Wayne as the outstanding community of Northeast Nebraska. I am certain that you will have no trouble attracting new physicians to the Wayne area when the hospital is completed.

Once again thanks to SWAY for our $10 gift and to all the people who are benefactors.

Kenneth Olds Jr., M.D.
Wayne

Dear Editor:
There are many times that I disagree with your personal opinion of city affairs because the facts are not reported correctly or you do not get all of the facts before the article is written. Such is the case in the recent editorial entitled "A Councilman's Responsibility."

I have found that in approximately 95 per cent of the issues to come before the council, no one is concerned about the issue other than the people directly involved. Therefore, a councilman must base his vote entirely on facts presented, personal feelings and what he alone feels is good for the community.

I agree that the issue of a beer license for Wayne Food Center was a controversial issue, but this was not the first time argued for this issue. I asked to be excused from voting on the issue mainly because of a phone call to me from one of the opponents. I was refused the right to be excused from voting on the issue, so I abstained because my vote would have been biased.

However, I did vote against the resolution to be forwarded to the State Liquor Commission to recommend denial of the license. I understand that we must send a recommendation to the state either for or against the license. However, I wonder what would happen if the state we sent a tied vote? I also wonder what the decision would be if a vote of the people were taken?

As a councilman, I am entitled to my opinion on an issue, and as an editor you are entitled to yours. I only ask that if you are writing about an issue that you consider a tied vote. I also wonder what you think is important.

Vernon Russell,
Councilman, First Ward

Dear Editor:
I would like to take this time to thank everyone connected with SWAY, Inc., for the $10 gift. It was greatly appreciated. I'm sure every serviceman feels this is a wonderful thing this organization is doing for them.

suffered a deep gash on an arm last week when a can opener slipped as she was opening a thin can. About two million of the 887 million cases of canned fruits and juices from the 1942-43 pack will be required for lend lease. Jimmie, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Hughes, fell Monday and cut his head on a rocker. The wound required stitches. Wayne County land owners will vote Saturday, Jan. 23, on the proposal to enlarge the soil conservation to include all land in the county outside the towns. City election will be on April 6.

He is presently administrator for the Lundberg Memorial Hospital in Creighton. A Wayne County maintenance building at Winside was destroyed by fire about 2 p.m. Thursday. Firemen's efforts were in vain as the building contained some 800 gallons of oil and grease. Emil Hank said he thought either heat or sparks from a coal burning stove near the west wall ignited gas from a crawler tractor that was being overhauled. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Milligan, Laurel, are the parents of a 5 pound 6 3/4 ounce daughter, who was the first baby born at the Wayne Hospital in 1963. Tax Forms Are Now Available Tax forms for use in filing federal income tax returns are now available at Internal Revenue Service offices, post offices and most banks.

Richard Vinal, district director for the IRS, said those who filed federal income tax returns last year have been mailed 1972 tax forms based on what was filed.

Included in this year's instruction packet is a convenient, free postage order blank for those needing additional forms and information booklets, or for those unable to pick up materials direct.

By mailing this order blank before March 15, taxpayers will receive forms or information requested by return mail.

The newly revised instructions for this year's tax forms are designed so most individuals can complete their own tax forms with a minimum of difficulty, he said.

Read instructions carefully and be sure to use proper forms to avoid delay in receiving possible refunds, he added.

FARM PAGE

The Agent's Angle

by Harold Ingalls

with USDA and one of the nation's top nutritionists, says that food labeled as "organic" is not likely to contain more vitamins or other benefits than similar food not considered to be "organic."

A survey by the USDA has made one point about organic food. A market basket of 29 standard foods bought in a supermarket cost $11. A similar basket of 29 organic-labeled foods cost $20.30 in the supermarket's organic section, $21.90 in a health food store and $17.80 in a natural food store.

With all the furor about truth in advertising where are the cries of protest from consumer interest groups?

When city people shop at the supermarket or sit down to a good meal, it is easy for them to take their food for granted, and to forget the men and women whose hard work and sacrifice produced it. But when you realize that the farmer's work week runs almost double what most Americans are used to — when you realize that high risks and heavy production costs keep his profit margins paper thin — when you realize that he must often go deep into debt to maintain the $100,000 worth of capital assets required for family farming — then it is clear that the farm people deserve a better reward than an average income today is only 80 per cent of the average for non-farm people. — President Richard Nixon in radio broadcast, October, 1972.

At the recent National Safety Congress a mixture containing silicone was used to fashion an extremely effective noise filter, tailored to the individual in just 15 minutes. It cuts out extraneous noise but allows you to hear voices. This device was demonstrated by the General Electric Company, Health and Safety Products, Schenectady, N. Y.

All of us are for health and safety, but I think you can have health and safety without some of these ridiculous requirements which are coming down. I understand the regulations on the Occupational Safety and Health Act have grown to about 50 feet high right now. It always seems to happen when the T's aren't doled and the T's not crossed in the regulations. It's the result of bureaucratic regulations that have been handed down — and many times you have men writing them who have had little practical experience in the field. Hopefully, the Congress will be looking at these regulations and try to offer guidance through legislation and restore some reason. — Congressman Wilmer Mizell (R., N.C.).

Exhibits Set Record for Coming Show

A record 85 exhibit booths and an educational program on irrigation will highlight the 6th annual Northeast Central Nebraska Farm Exposition scheduled for Columbus next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Latest in farm equipment services, irrigation equipment, fertilizers, chemicals, storage and other farm and ranch items will be displayed.

The educational portion on irrigation begins Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. with University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension irrigationist Paul Fischbach speaking on obtaining maximum yield with minimum water. Several other irrigation specialists will speak during the two-day exposition.

The show will be held at the Platte County Agricultural Park in Columbus.

Miracle of Farming Is 2-Day Event's Theme

"Miracle on the Land," a new audio-visual presentation about the vital role of agriculture in the nation's economy and ecology, will carry its message to certified seed growers attending the Nebraska Crop Improvement Days.

Participants will gather at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus Jan. 22-23.

The show, sponsored and produced by Stauffer Chemical Co., tells the story of farming in America from the days of the first settlers to the present. The multi-screen presentation utilizes a battery of synchronized and tape-programmed projectors, hundreds of color slides and an original musical score for the 20 minute production.

Dean Lancaster, manager of the two-day event, explained the basic message of agriculture's importance to our national economy is one that many people — particularly in urban areas — seem to have forgotten. Many of them seem to take for granted the miracle of farming that has helped build America.

"Miracle on the Land" reminds viewers that the United States' ability to produce food for millions of city dwellers has allowed them the time to become doctors, scientists and businessmen.

Activities have been geared for seedsmen, seed producers, processors and seed users, or anyone interested in seed or crop production should find the meetings educational, interesting and helpful, said Lancaster.

Throughout the event, principal crop breeders will present various and research reports about their particular areas. Subjects include small grains, corn, sorghum, soybeans, grasses and alfalfa.

A symposium on "Seed Certification in a Changing Industry" will highlight the final day of the event. Five panel members will present information and open the floor for discussion on changing procedures and policies on general certification practices.

The annual banquet is scheduled for the first night of the two-day session, at which time the Premier Seed growers of the year will be announced.

Liquid Supplement Can Cut Dairy Feed Costs

With feed prices the highest they've been in years, liquid supplements, properly used, provide a reasonable way to hold down protein costs in the dairy ration.

This advice comes from Phil Cole, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension dairyman, who notes that liquid supplements are best used in dairy rations when mixed with corn silage.

Liquid supplements were originally intended to be self fed, he remarked, but "self feeding often is wasteful, and hasn't turned out to be the most effective method."

A better balance of the total ration at all stages of lactation can be achieved by adding protein supplements to the silage. Liquid supplements are an economical source of non protein nitrogen because they can be formulated with high levels of urea, the dairy specialist explained.

He cautioned that the supplement needs to be thoroughly mixed into the silage, using a mixer wagon. Liquid supplements around the 50 per cent protein level are generally recommended, Cole said.

They usually are no more costly than a 32 per cent protein supplement, and less is required.

Cole suggested these precautions be taken:

Because liquid supplements contain urea, do not add urea to the grain mix at the same time. "Doubling up" on the urea intake would not be safe.

Do not add liquid supplements to legume silage. Legume silage already has sufficient protein, but is low in energy and makes it unsuitable for use with urea.

Urea needs to be fed along with an ample supply of a high energy feed, Cole concluded.

Rural Ramblings Improvising Is A Way Of Life for the Farmer

There are numerous times when one must learn to improvise. In other words, if you don't have what is needed you make do with whatever is available. Few people learn to improvise better than rural people.

First, there is the inconvenience of getting home. Rural roads are often considerably less inviting than paved highways. If they are fortunate enough to live near a gravelled, regularly graded road, they may have a long, ungravelled, never-graded road or lane facing them.

But they improvise. Some times they use cobs on their lane to make it drier and more passable during wet spells and winter weather. When these roads become impassable for the made for pavement cars, rural people resort to pick-ups for transportation. They have also been known to use farm tractors for transporting children to school and the Mrs. to town for groceries.

Lack of an abundant amount of farm buildings and building space is another major inconvenience for farmers.

If there isn't enough space in the machine shed, the alleyway of the corn crib is used or the machinery is moved into the grove for protection from sun and snow.

If there isn't enough farrowing crates, a pen is built in the corner of the hog house or any other unused space. Sometimes a few pens have to be temporarily erected in the calf stalls.

With a little clean straw in a sturdy pen, Mamma pig won't really care if it is in the farrowing house or the barn. She probably prefers the barn because it provides a possible escape whenever she gets that "closed in" feeling.

Whenever there isn't enough commercial protein for another batch of ground feed, a little more corn or oats are added. And if there isn't enough shelled corn for the hogs, a few ears are tossed over the fence.

If you don't have the correct size tractor to pull a wagon or the correct size needed for the cutter, you use the one you have. Maybe it goes a little faster on the wagon than necessary or a little slower on the cutter, but you get the job done.

Of course, these are the major improvisations made by rural people. There are numerous ones.

Such as no new barbed wire to fix the pasture fence. So a short strip of weather, rusty barbed wire is used to splice the break in the fence.

Then, there is that old standby, but so sure, if in, and, often is used, for center keys, door latches, lost bolts, hose clamps, light stabilizers and, sometimes, baling hay.

Making do with what is available doesn't stop with just the outdoor part of farming. The Mrs. also has her own methods.

If she doesn't have any sour milk for her special recipe, she adds a little vinegar to some sweet milk. If she can't get to town for some store bread, she bakes some.

If the Mrs. doesn't have a basement with a new furnace, she most likely has an oil burner and keeps the living room door shut during winter months.

Everyone keeps just as cozy during zero weather as if they had a new electric heating system.

If Susie loses some of the buttons from her coat, the Mrs. usually replaces all of the buttons so they will match. That way Susie gets another winter's wear out of her coat.

The Mrs. has also been known to replace butter with margarine—a sneaky trick which you usually detect almost instantly.

All of these inconveniences, almost every one you can think of is caused by one big inconvenience—no money. One doesn't always mind being without money or does it cause any loss respect, but it often causes many frustrating inconveniences.

The roads could become paved and the lanes could be heavily gravelled if there were enough money.

More farm buildings could be built and a sufficient amount of farrowing crates could be purchased—if there were enough money.

You could have a tractor for every farm need and enough new barbed wire to fence the entire farm—if there were enough money.

The Mrs. could have a new house with a new heating system and all the convenient appliances and Susie could just throw her coat away when she lost a few buttons—if there were enough money.

But, gosh, if we had a surplus of money after we had purchased everything we wanted, wonder what we would want then? Doubt if the Lord would let us use it for a down payment up there.

benefits granted under the Jan. 1 increase, he said.
"These benefits have been made possible without any additional cost to the State," Steinmiller concluded.

State Workers Getting More In Retirement
Kenneth Steinmiller, director of the Nebraska Public Employees Retirement System, has announced that retirement benefits for state employees will be increased on the average of about 14 per cent effective the first of this year.
"This increase will apply to an employee retiring at normal retirement age 65," Steinmiller said. "Increases will vary slightly depending upon age, sex and retirement option selected by a retiring employee," he added.
In addition, benefits of employees who retired prior to Jan. 1 will be increased beginning with the January checks. These increases will be in the form of declared dividends and will provide the same dollar retirement benefit as those retiring after Jan. 1.
"These benefits have been made possible without any additional cost to the State," Steinmiller concluded.

 Carroll residents relax after a noon meal at Marlene's Cafe.
 Mechanic Vernie Hurlbert, a Carroll resident for 48 years, describes himself as "one of the last old timers."
 Carroll's business district stretches only two and a half blocks.
 Barber "Shorty" Halleen trims "a little off the top" for Earl Davis.
 Morris Sandahl started his welding business in Carroll two years ago.
 Cats often sun themselves on Carroll's Main Street.

Jane Owens, a 1971 graduate of Wayne High School, did this picture feature on Carroll as part of a journalism course at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.
 Purpose of the feature was to show "what living in a small town is really like."
 Daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Orvid Owens, Jane is a sophomore at UN-L, majoring in journalism and political science. She is a staff writer on the school's newspaper, Daily Nebraskan. She worked one summer as a feature writer at The Herald.

Carroll -- About All It Lacks Is A Dry Goods Store

A slice of banana cream pie costs 25 cents at Marlene's Cafe. Included in that price is a chance to visit with friends and hear the latest village news.
 Although its business district stretches only two and a half blocks, Carroll offers residents a variety of goods and services.
 Carroll (population 240) has a cafe, a one-chair barber shop, a grocery store with one check-out lane, a two-pump filling station and, of course, a village tavern.
 Some residents claim the only business Carroll lacks is a dry goods store.
 Why do residents shop in Carroll when a larger shopping area is only 15 minutes away?
 "People come to town as much to socialize as to buy the things they need," Leonard "Shorty"

Halleen, a barber and resident of Carroll for 41 years, said.
 The barber's chair is a good place to talk about last night's church social. Mothers stand by their grocery carts and discuss Sally's case of measles.
 "Small towns give you a closeness, a sense of community. That's something you won't find in larger cities," Halleen noted.
 Cats sun themselves in the middle of Carroll's main street—City trash cans are painted with red daisies. Those are some other things usually not found in larger cities.
 Carroll's business district is growing, according to welder Morris Sandahl.
 "When I started my welding business two years ago, Carroll was hardly in existence," he noted.

Today, Carroll has several new businesses including a laundromat, print shop, gas station and body shop, Sandahl said.
 However, not every businessman shares Sandahl's optimism.
 "The small town of Carroll is going downhill fast," mechanic Vernie Hurlbert claimed.
 "Farmers are all quitting and moving to larger towns. I can remember when four or five families lived on a section of land. Now it takes four or five sections for one family," he said.
 Hurlbert, who has lived in Carroll 48 years and describes himself as "one of the last old timers," said: "If we lose the farmers, Carroll isn't going to have much left. I'd say agriculture is almost 100 per cent of the economic force in this town."

NORTHEAST EXTENSION

by Joycelyn Smith

Stop and Think!
As the snow begins to fall and the wind begins to whistle, a blizzard is likely. If you lose your head in a snowstorm, you may also lose your life.
The most important thing to do when caught in an unexpected blizzard is to stop and think. Consider what materials you have that will provide protection.
Wet and drifting snow can cause suffocation if you run the car too long or too often when it is not moving. When snow drifts around the underside of the car, carbon monoxide fumes seep through the floorboard instead of escaping to the open Run the car only occasionally.
Equip your car today with a few essential items for winter travel. You might assemble these in an inexpensive home made blizzard kit.

—An extra blanket could provide added warmth if you wrap yourself in it. It could also be used in emergency first aid situations.
—Newspapers will also hold body heat. Wrapped around a person, they will trap heat radiated from the body.
—A raincoat can be used to keep warm, too. It may be of thin material, but it is a good reflector of heat.
—It is very important to have a supply of matches and candles to provide extra heat and light if needed.
—A candle heat stove may provide warmth, too. It is made by placing a candle in the bottom of a can and using the heat from the burning candle as a source of warmth.

—Be sure to have dry clothing along for extra protection and to change into if your clothing gets wet.
—Other items to include would be caps, gloves, thermal underwear and an extra coat.
—A car radio or transistor will keep you informed of any changing weather conditions and what's happening around you.
—Candy bars and other dry foods will provide food and energy if you are stalled for a long time. They will keep easily in the car for long periods of time.
Keep your blizzard kit items assembled in an inexpensive kit inside your car. An old knapsack or gunny sack would work. This would be an excellent way of using your out-of-season picnic basket. It would be an easy way of storing it for the winter, and it will keep the items from cluttering up your car.

—Keep your gas tank full during winter months. If you get caught in a blizzard you will need to run the car occasionally for heat and to make sure it starts.

Vegetables steal the w

by Sandra Bloom, Farm & Home
Food Consultant

Hospitality is a part of the winter season. The season is doubly special because we share our fellowship and good times with family and friends. One of the friendliest gestures is a table laden with good things from your kitchen.

With imaginative seasonings and care in selection, you can transform vegetables from mundane to marvelous. Give your vegetables a glamorous new image. Serve them in a new fashion and allow them to steal the show.

Vegetables Della Robbia

- 1 (10½ oz.) can cut asparagus spears, drained
- 1 (12 oz.) can shoe peg white corn, drained
- 1 (12 oz.) can whole kernel corn, drained
- 1 (17 oz.) can early peas with pearl onions, drained
- 2 (2½ oz.) jars whole mushrooms, drained
- ¼ cup drained mushroom liquid
- Pimiento

Arrange vegetables in a decorative pattern in an 8-cup chafing dish pan or casserole. Garnish with pimiento cut-outs, if desired. Pour drained mushroom liquid over vegetables. Cover and heat through on range or over chafing dish heating unit. Keep warm. Serve with whipped spread.

Velvety Chive Spread

- ¼ cup margarine, softened
- 1 (3 oz.) pkg. cream cheese with chives, softened
- Paprika

Whip margarine with cream cheese until fluffy. Turn into small bowl; sprinkle with paprika. Serve at room temperature.

Golden Acorn Scuffle

- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅓ teaspoon allspice
- 1 cup milk
- 2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese
- 3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
- 2 cups cooked acorn squash
- ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 3 egg whites

In a medium-size saucepan melt margarine; blend in flour, salt and allspice. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat and stir in Cheddar cheese, egg yolks, squash and lemon rind until well blended. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry, then fold the cheese-squash mixture into them. Turn into casserole, place in pan of hot water and bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hours. Serve immediately.

Hot Vegetable Salad

- 1 tablespoon margarine
- 1 cup California walnuts
- ¼ teaspoon dried dill, rosemary or oregano
- 2 cups hot cooked carrots
- 2 cups hot cooked wax or green beans
- 2 cups hot cooked cauliflowerettes
- Small crisp lettuce leaves
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- Heated bottled French or Italian dressing

Melt margarine in skillet. Add walnuts; sprinkle with herbs. Stir over moderate heat until walnuts are lightly toasted, about 5 minutes. Arrange hot cooked vegetables and herbed walnuts on crisp lettuce on serving platter. Sprinkle with seasoned salt. Serve with heated salad dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Cinnamon Glazed Carrots

- 2 bunches (about 2 lbs.) carrots
- ½ cup water
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- ½ cup chopped, toasted California walnuts

Trim, pare and cut carrots into 3-inch strips, about 5 cups. Turn into large skillet; add water, margarine and salt. Cover tightly and cook just until tender-crisp. Watch closely; if necessary, add a little more water to keep from sticking. When carrots are tender, liquid should be almost gone. Gently stir in cinnamon, honey and lemon juice; simmer a few minutes. Add walnuts and heat a minute longer. Makes 6-8 servings.

Corn Pudding

6 tablespoons margarine
1 medium onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
6 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1½ teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1 (4 oz.) can sliced mushrooms, drained
2 pimientos, chopped (1/3 cup)
1½ lb. sharp Cheddar cheese, shredded
1 pkg. frozen corn, thawed
1 egg, beaten
Paprika
1 lb. bacon, sliced and cooked

Melt margarine in saucepan; saute onion and green pepper until transparent. Stir flour into sauteed vegetables until well mixed. Add milk slowly, stirring to blend in smoothly. Add salt, pepper, and Worcestershire sauce and cook, stirring constantly until thick. Add mushrooms and pimiento. Blend in cheese and corn. Remove from heat. Mix in egg. Pour into greased baking dish. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 minutes. Garnish with cooked bacon curls. (Optional)

Olive Stuffed Tomatoes

4 large firm tomatoes
1/2 cup canned pitted ripe olives
1/4 cup margarine
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1/8 teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon water
1/2 cup diced cooked ham or chopped hard cooked eggs
1½ cups soft dry bread crumbs
1/2 teaspoon salt
Cheese Sauce

Scoop out centers of tomatoes leaving 1/2-inch wall around side; drain. Dice tomato centers. Cut ripe olives into chunks. Melt margarine and add onion, celery, curry powder and water. Cook over moderate heat until vegetables are soft but not browned. Stir in diced tomato, ripe olives, ham, bread crumbs, and salt. Fill tomatoes with ripe olive stuffing; arrange in shallow baking pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 25-30 minutes or until tomatoes are tender. Carefully remove from pan and serve with warm Cheese Sauce. Makes 4 servings. If preferred, halve tomatoes, scoop out insides, add filling to make 8 servings.

CHEESE SAUCE

Combine 1 (19½ oz.) can condensed cream of mushroom soup, 2/3 cup grated American cheese, 1/3 cup half and half and 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard; heat slowly, stirring occasionally.

stock car racing

by Bill Thomas

The Joe Granatellis, the A. J. Foyts, the Mario Andrettis, the Jim Clarks are missing from this race. It is strictly an amateur effort, but the novelty of racing on ice is, some feel, even more demanding, more dramatic and challenging in many ways than the Indianapolis 500.

The scene is any of a dozen meets held annually in the Midwest that leaves drivers and spectators tense with excitement. And yet there are some that feel the concept leaves something to be desired. Too many factors are beyond the driver's control, indeed beyond the capability of driver and automobile. And you'll see more than one expensive sports car crash into the snowbanks, careen out of control. And there's the unmistakable sickening sound of crushed fenders, of buckled hoods and caved-in doors.

Seldom are there injuries in this spectacle of speed, mainly because the snowbanks allow enough cushioning effect to protect the driver, but not to avoid damage to the vehicle. No chains are allowed at most of these races — in fact, studded tires are often frowned upon and run in classes by themselves. The real challenge lies in the use of conventional sports and stock models with conventional tires totally unconditioned for winter driving.

One driver at a Michigan race who had raced the dry tracks in warm weather was somewhat indignant. "It's just a big mess," he said. "Nobody who has put a lot of time into his car, jazzing it up or rebuilding it, is going to run it on the ice." That was just after he'd cracked up his $5,000 Corvette in a snowbank.

One of the largest such races is held at Lake City, Mich., each January with others scheduled at Muskegon, Holland and Big Crooked Lake. The Furrin Group Sports Car Club at Grand Rapids is the sponsoring club of most of the meets in Michigan. A few other meets are held in Wisconsin and Minnesota, as well as upper New York State. The majority of the races are run on the ice, although some are run on packed snowy roads.

Most of the courses are laid out roughly over a two-mile oval stretch, although some are twisted into a figure 8 just to provide an additional bit of challenge. On some turns, the slope is away from the inside, rather than banked toward it, thus forcing the driver to slow to a near crawl to successfully negotiate it.

Although the majority of the races are timed events, with only one car on the track, others feature wheel-to-wheel combat raging down the strip. The Lake City event features both, and in addition, a Powder Puff Derby for the gals.

It's indeed a novelty — this sports car racing on ice — and probably will remain so for many a year, but there are those who dare to break records against the clock, who risk the additional hazards which are an integral part of this relatively new sport in the snowbelt states.

It's the kind of race they run by the seat of their pants, and the drivers put their cars through the paces the same way, skidding them around 90-degree turns, hopefully without landing in a snowbank off the side. A lot of the little foreign makes enter the race annually and for years they've placed in the first three spots. It was a different story when the 1969 meet came off.

Many of the races are typical of the old Midwest Sports Car Races held at Grayling, Mich., a one-lap race, but at least one and usually two trial runs were allowed all drivers on Sunday morning before the afternoon competition. The drivers were given all day Saturday to practice on the track, too, but the hours of additional practice were usually direly needed.

The Midwest Sports Car Race is traditionally held on the frozen surface of Lake Margrethe, a sprawling body of water some three miles from the town of Grayling. The first one was held there in 1968, and the following year it had to be moved to an adjacent makeshift track on the Camp Grayling Military Reservation. An unseasonable thaw in late January had made the ice on Lake Margrethe unsafe for racing.

Consequently snowplows were moved in, a figure 8 track laid out and the snow was plowed and packed. Water was added to make it even more slippery, paralleling as much as possible the conditions of racing on ice. It was hoped this would provide as tough a course — as much a challenge — as the one on the lake. It didn't. But it still was chock full of thrills.

By the time the all-day practice session was finished on Saturday afternoon (incidentally, spectators may enjoy the practice sessions almost as much as the race itself), the ground was beginning to show through at some places near the corners where drivers were hugging the same course. And by the time the first race contestants had burned down the raceway on Sunday afternoon, the mud was beginning to splash.

Nonetheless, the contestants considered it a fit challenge and so did the spectators, who numbered a couple of thousand at one point during the afternoon. The skies were sunny and the temperatures climbing. But the snow didn't seem to melt except in protected places and that was mostly on the track. Spectators mostly stood along the race course, their protection against skidding cars being snowbanks piled shoulder high. Some climbed the snowbanks for a better view. And some sat on the rows of bleachers provided alongside the track near the start and finish line.

The excitement of this race was not at the finish line, however. Instead it was at the turns and this is where most of the younger spectators—the thrill-seekers sought to be.

It was a greater thrill for the drivers, but some tense moments arose on many occasions. It was a race against the clock most of the day and then, in the last heat, the volunteers were allowed to race against one another. But it was also a race for judgment. Anyone not accustomed to driving in the snow, perhaps spending most of his life doing so, need not attempt to win any heat here.

"You just can't judge it right here," one driver said. "If you wait 10 seconds too late to apply your brakes, you've just lost control and you may not only lose the race, but your automobile. Just 10 seconds or even five can mean that much difference . . . and you have to be more expert at judging those little things here, the little seemingly insignificant details, than you would be on another course under other conditions."

"It takes nerves of steel," said another driver, who had built his stock car from the ground up using parts of other automobiles. "You have to love to race, but more than that, it helps if you have a few nuts in your head to enter one on the ice," he chuckled.

By 11 a.m., the crowd had arrived. Parking areas are provided nearby and paths cleared of snow to the bleachers, which seat only a few hundred people. Others stand. And, of course, few stay for the entire race. People are coming and going constantly. Some bring heaters and blankets and their lunches. Particularly the families with small children. Portable refreshment stands, some of them inside small heated trailers, serve refreshments including barrels of coffee and hot chocolate. Hot sandwiches are available, too.

The larger percentage of the spectators are from around the state of Michigan, but a few drive from Chicago or Toledo or northern Indiana. More and more, the race is becoming a popular event . . . and it's free of admission.

The events draw from 30 to 50 contestants, most of them from Michigan but a few entries from other nearby states and from Canada. It's surprising so much interest is generated, for few money prizes are awarded, sometimes only trophies. But apparently, this is enough.

The starts are under a flagman's signal and once the driver has gotten his car into position on the straightaway, he has little trouble keeping it pointed in the same direction while he amasses speed. Some cars hit speeds of 85 miles per hour, thought to be the top one of the day. But it's not the speeds on the straightaways that necessarily count here. It's how fast you can make the turns and with a figure 8 track, there are plenty of them, some of them nearly 90 degrees.

By swinging wide, braking in staccato fashion and never applying much pressure, then cutting short across the most critical part of the curve, then swinging wide again after passing it, most drivers soon had the knack of it. Those that didn't usually ended up in a snowbank. And some of those that did occasionally misjudged or had their vehicles thrown off balance just enough to send the car into a careening skid culminating usually in a deep thud into the snowbank.

The biggest trick to controlling a car on the ice, of course, lies in two factors — braking and steering the car in the direction of the skid once you get into one. Braking must be done in a series of fast jabs and releases on the brake pedal. Don't ever apply lengthy pressure or hard pressure. If you do, then it's just enough to throw the vehicle out of control in many instances.

Some drivers in this sport like to place their cars in limited and controlled skids on the corners to enable them to get around better. But they are expert drivers in the snow, too, and know exactly what to do to get them straightened out again and on their way without crashing. Besides the thrills of speed and the occasional moments of excitement during a crash, (seldom does any driver even sustain more than a light bruise or perhaps a small scratch during these races), spectators actually are witnessing an excellent display of winter driving. And possibly they may learn something from it which will help in handling their own automobiles in on-the-road conditions.

It is indeed a race of suspense, of drama, of bone-chilling excitement even though all but one of the heats are against the clock instead of against one another in neck-to-neck competition. Perhaps the greatest moments of truth are experienced beyond the sight of the spectators (this is particularly true when the race course had to be moved to the reservation rather than the lake) but they are felt by virtually everyone.

If your hand were designed to brush teeth, it might look like this.

We're not saying you can't do a good job with a hand-powered toothbrush. You can. And according to the experts, there's more than one way to brush.

Here's one way: starting at your gums, brush down on your upper teeth up on your lower teeth, on the front, back and chewing surfaces, brushing each area at least ten times, making sure to take at least several minutes.

Of course, this isn't the only good choice you've got.

Here's another. And this one was specifically, scientifically engineered to brush teeth correctly.

Broxodent 120 Strokes-per-second.

That's how fast the precision brush head of Broxodent moves. And that's fast. It adds up to 7200 cleaning-polishing strokes a minute. (And that's awfully nice when you're waiting for a morning train or an evening appointment.)

Since Broxodent runs on regular house current, the brush-head gets constant, steady power. There are no batteries to recharge or replace. And of course Broxodent carries the Underwriters' Laboratory Seal.

Clean teeth, fresh breath, a healthy mouth.

Clinical studies have shown the value of Broxodent in removing harmful food deposits (or plaque), whitening and promoting healthy gums.

And if you noticed in the picture that the brush head of Broxodent looks small that's because it was designed small. Small to reach hard-to-get-at places, like the backs of your teeth. The thin bristles help get decay-causing particles from between teeth, too. So you end up with clean, bright teeth.

Predictably enough, you also end up with clean, fresh breath.

An answer to the "getting-your-kids-to-brush" problem.

You know what a chore it is getting kids to brush. But watching a kid brush with Broxodent is something else.

Kids like snapping their own color-coded brush onto the Broxodent. They like the "tingly" feel of Broxodent.

Luckily, this also applies to kids of thirty-five.

Ask your dentist.

By all means, ask your dentist what he thinks of Broxodent. He's the man who knows. And more dentists surveyed recommended Broxodent than all other electric toothbrushes available.

Putting one up might be the smartest thing your hand ever did for you.

THE BROXODENT POWERED TOOTHBRUSH IS APPROVED BY AN OFFICE OF THE CLEAN WATER SERVICE AS PART OF A FIVE YEAR PLAN FOR LOCAL HYGIENE TO SUPPLY THE BUREAU OF DENTAL MATERIALS AND DEVICES. AMERICAN DENTAL ASSOCIATION.

Ask the Lindsay Lady

Q. Is it true what they say about soft water—that it saves several weeks of housecleaning time a year?

A. Yes, it's a fact, researched and proved by Ohio State University. With soft water, homemakers were able to cut the average time of each housecleaning by one hour and 39 minutes. This gave them a saving of over 10 eight hour work days per year!

Q. I have a Lindsay Imperial water softener. It has a number of extra controls that are quite important to me. Why not tell your readers, Lindsay Lady?

A. These extra controls are quite simple: they help make your life softer and save money, too. For example, the "Salt Saver" eliminates over-salting during regeneration and saves you money. Once you have set it properly, don't touch it again. Another control, "Extra Softening Cycle" gives immediate regeneration to solve unexpected water needs, like a house full of guests. And, a "By-Pass Valve" control actually disconnects the softener. This can save expensive plumbing and be very useful when you water the lawn or wash the car from an outside faucet.

Q. I know I have hard water, but how hard is it really?

A. The only way you'll know for sure is to have it tested.

The Lindsay Division offers a direct-by-mail hard water test for only a dollar. Just send me your home address and a dollar. I'll send you a plastic bottle with a mailing box and simple instructions. Fill it and return to me and I'll give you a written report from our laboratory.

Q. What does the Lindsay Imperial softener look like?

A. Here it is. Sleek and handsome. It measures 45" high, 14" wide and 24" deep. A hard working beauty.

Other questions? Ask the Lindsay Lady. You'll find her at your nearby Lindsay dealer. See the Yellow Pages.

Indiana Physician Does...

Model railroad

by Alan Lowell

Even when he was a small lad growing up in southern Ohio, Gordon Fessler exhibited an unusual interest in railroading and trains. No railroad ran near his home, but in the distance during the stillness of the evenings, he could hear the chugging of the giant freights on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad across the Ohio River in Kentucky, a sound he shall never forget.

It's some wonder he didn't become a professional railroader, but fate led him to a career in medicine and years later, when he was established as a country doctor in a little Ohio River town in southern Indiana, he answered his childhood desires and built himself a railroad... one he couldn't ride upon, but one which he thoroughly enjoyed.

Today, the upstairs floor of the Dr. Fessler home in Rising Sun, Ind., holds what may very well be the world's most extensive exhibit of model railroading. If not the largest, it certainly must be unparalleled in detail. The scale is intricate — 1/4 inch to each foot — carried throughout the working exhibit. Any artist, any model railroader, any working railroader, would appreciate the display, the workmanship, the delicate detail. Many have come to see Fessler's railroad over the years and have gone away shaking their heads in disbelief.

The upstairs floor of the Fessler home measures 55 x 22 feet. From the moment you enter the doorway leading up the stairs, from the time you pass under the marquee labeling this "The Miami Road," you are in another world of another dimension.

Not only does this floor house physically the yards of track and hundreds of model railway cars and engines, but it is literally a miniature scale lesson in geography. From the rolling hills of Indiana, the topography transcends the Rocky Mountains, the Grand Tetons, the Great Plains, the provincial South. The miniature trains chug their way through an eternity of hills, over deep gaping canyons, over mountains and cascading streams, across burning deserts and into the bustling business and industrial centers of the United States.

The hours Dr. Fessler has spent in the workshop at the rear of his home creating this elaborate display are somewhat phenomenal. During some months, during some years, time spent here may have closely compared with that engaged in practicing medicine. It isn't true now, of course. Not that the challenge has been answered and interest is lost, but his patients are either more demanding or his workload has increased to the point he gets to spend less and less time with his hobby.

And that's what he's considered it from the outset — strictly a hobby. He's a firm believer that every man needs one, maybe more.

"A hobby is one of the keys to good health," he said. "Everyone should have something he's interested in that varies from his profession, something to which he can turn to ease the tensions that build up in everyday life, in the business world, in the professional world. And for me, this is it."

"A lot of people here in town like to play golf... but I couldn't play golf because when the game was done, I had nothing to show for my time. So I built this railroad," he added.

He sometimes rationalizes the situation by laying blame. "Momma really got me started on this thing," he said, referring to his wife. And his son, Steve, who was graduated from the Indiana University School of Medicine in Indianapolis in 1969, figured in it, too.

When the boy was merely a lad, his father decided perhaps an interest in trains would keep him occupied through the growing-up years, would give him an opportunity that he himself had not had when he was a child. That's what Dr. Fessler says, but inwardly, Mrs. Fessler adds she believes it was for the doctor's interest in the trains himself as much as for his son that the railroad became a reality.

ing on a grand scale

Time proved her right, for the interest was lasting, and long after the boy had gone away to college and to medical school, the doctor continued fervently to build trains, to spend hours at his hobby. The leisure hours not spent working on the railroad were spent traveling on them — literally. There's hardly a railroad in the country that Dr. and Mrs. Fessler have not traveled, including the little spur lines that have become strictly tourist attractions, lines like the Skunk in California, the Cass in West Virginia, the old Tweetsie in North Carolina.

Like many avid railroad fans, he is sickened by the slow demise of the passenger train. And he is a firm believer his grandchildren and those of future generations will only read about trains on which people rode.

"I'm convinced that in another 10 years or so, with the exception of perhaps the western roads, the passenger train will be nearly a thing of the past. It virtually is today. A recent example was the Hummingbird (the Louisville & Nashville Railroad's crack passenger train from Cincinnati to New Orleans) whose end came during flight. They stopped the train somewhere down south when the ruling was handed down by the courts and the passengers given a choice of taking either a bus or a plane on the remainder of their trip. Most of them chose a bus. It was a sad thing . . ."

"Fortunately, there are still a few trains around that are fit to ride and we travel those as frequently as we can," he said. Among those he mentioned were the Pan American on the L&N, the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railway trains, the Santa Fe Chief, the Burlington Zephyr.

The 50-year-old general practitioner is an active member of a number of railway organizations. His credentials in railroad circles are almost as impressive as those in the medical field, some of them being the Canadian Railroad Historical Society, the Kentucky Railway Historical Society, the Cincinnati Railroad Club, the Central Electric Railfans Association. In 1966, he was national convention chairman of the National Model Railroad Association.

But Dr. Fessler's real credentials in model railroading are not in the annals of any association or organization, but in the white rambling brick home in Rising Sun, Ind., the replicas of the trains of the ages that whiz along the 2400 feet of track, marching across the pages of railroad history and geography before your very eyes.

The cars are heavy, the trains long, the background tremendous and any visitor within seconds after entering knows this is not an ordinary model project — these are artistic works that required long hours of tedious work and a great deal of talent.

"I can relieve the pressures that build up in the office up here," he explained. "I find it a most fascinating and enjoyable hobby . . . time means nothing here . . . it is as if there were no clock, no sunrise or sunset, nothing by which to mark the hours . . ."

If Dr. Fessler, who has practiced medicine in Rising Sun and Ohio and Dearborn counties in Indiana for more than 25 years, counted the hours he has spent with model railroading since 1955 or '56, he probably would be astounded . . . but he doesn't count them.

And although some of his trains are built from kits, by far the majority are started from scratch — a sheet of bronze, some pieces of lead, some copper wiring, paint, tiny screws, steel and much labor on the lathe. Even the steam pipe fittings are the same on the, miniature engines as they were on the oldtimers that chugged across America 30 years ago. Thus when the product is finished, it's not just another model train. Instead it is the nearest thing possible to reality, merely on a small scale.

For instance, lamps on the tables in the dining car of a Norfolk & Western crack passenger train burn as passengers dine. There's carpeting on the floors, flowers on the tables. But you can't eat the steak being served on the plates.

"You may not be able to eat some of the steak on the plates being served on some trains today, either," the doctor quipped.

So each train in Fessler's collection (and there are now more than 200 engines alone) represents an actual train in service at one time on such lines as the Baltimore & Ohio, Norfolk and Western, Union Pacific, the Miami Road

(which is now defunct, but which at one time ran up the Miami River Valley out of Cincinnati), the New York Central, the Santa Fe and a dozen other lines.

There's more to come. He's talking now of building other trains representing other roads and he's working on a huge passenger terminal with sheds and a complicated track system. If time permits, someday it will become a part of the display, which may have to be moved to larger quarters.

It might seem that the doctor has neglected the practice of medicine; indeed he has not. In fact, there are times when he's not able to pursue his hobby at all for weeks, indeed months. Once when another doctor in town died unexpectedly, Dr. Fessler's workload became so heavy he wasn't able to set foot upstairs for six months.

"That's a long time to stay away from something you love so much," he admitted, "but when duty calls, you have to answer. And much as I love railroading, the practice of medicine still occupies a front row seat in my life."

He's remained an active member of the American Medical Association, the Indiana State Medical Association, the Dearborn-Ohio County Medical Society, the Dearborn County hospital staff and the Indiana State Health Officers Association. And somehow during his busy career, he found time to become president of the local school board.

"I have found that doers in our society are dedicated people," he said, "dedicated to a variety of things."

And no matter what your role in life, he feels you can and should in some way contribute something not only to contemporary mankind, but to posterity.
