1 Introduction

Also known as civil registration records, British Columbia vital event registrations are official government records of births, marriages and deaths, which, for the most part, occurred in the province. Of great interest to genealogists, these records also contain valuable information for research in social history, sociology and demography.

From 1996 to 2009 certain date ranges of birth, marriage, and death registrations were made available on microfilm. Releases from 2010 to date for deaths and marriages are in digital format<sup>1</sup> as well as the majority of the registrations on microfilm. The digital images are linked to the index entries in the Genealogy Search database which is also updated annually.

This guide will provide some historical background and explain what these records are, what they do and do not cover, how to use the indexes to locate specific references or information, and how to access the records themselves.

2 History

The official registration of births, marriages and deaths in BC was first entrusted to the Registrar-General of Titles by the Births, Deaths and Marriages Act of 1872 (SBC 1872, c.26) enacted a year after BC became a province of Canada. Responsibility for reporting events fell primarily on family, clergy and other individuals. District Registrars – often Government Agents<sup>2</sup> – to whom events were to be reported were generally responsible for large areas of the province. Given the size of the province, the scattered and itinerant population, the remoteness of many settlements and habitations, and the transportation and communication challenges, it is not surprising that a certain number of events were never reported. The first Vital Statistics annual report described the difficulties.

There are many obstacles in the way of obtaining complete Returns, chiefly arising from the great distance from Registry Offices at which a large portion of the population reside; the want of cheap and speedy means of communication; the migratory habits of the people of the Mining Districts; and the difficulty of disseminating requirements of the Vital Statistics Act over a Territory so vast and sparsely settled.<sup>3</sup>

Just as the office of the Registrar-General changed and expanded over time, so did the legislation. Certain categories of the population were excluded, then included. The forms were modified and the amount of information collected increased.

Access to the records and the information contained within them was originally open to anyone. The first restrictions were introduced in the Vital Statistics Act of 1962.<sup>4</sup> In 1992, the protection of privacy provisions in the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act (FOIPPA),<sup>5</sup> placed a number of restrictions on access to personal information in all government records.

<sup>2</sup> In 1962 Government Agents were specifically designated as District Registrars (SBC 1962, c.66, ss.24-28). For a discussion of the roles and history of Government Agents in BC see Dennis Munroe Anholt, "Friends of the government: an administrative history of the British Columbia government agents". <sup>5</sup> SBC 1992, c.61.

Consistent with these provisions, which include an allowance for the disclosure of personal information, under certain circumstances, for historical or archival purposes, the Ministry of Health was given the authority to release historical vital events registrations for genealogical purposes.<sup>6</sup> Until 2004, this meant that birth registrations were available 100 years after a birth, marriage registrations 75 years after a marriage, and 20 years after a death.<sup>7</sup> In 2004 the Vital Statistics Act was amended and the holdback period on births was extended to 120 years.<sup>8</sup>

In 1993 the BC Ministry of Health Division of Vital Statistics,<sup>9</sup> the BC Archives and Records Service<sup>10</sup> and the Genealogical Society of Utah (GSU)<sup>11</sup> entered into partnership agreements to microfilm the province's historical birth, marriage and death registration records.<sup>12</sup> In an agreement between the Vital Statistics Division and the Archives, an enhanced copy of the Division's index database, with microfilm reel numbers, was created, loaded on to the Archives web site and launched 13 January 1997, with marriage and death records. The microfilm, with holdbacks of 100, 75 and 20 years respectively, for births, marriages and deaths was made available for public access and a set deposited at the BC Archives, with annual additions.<sup>13</sup>

Release of registrations on microfilm ceased in 2010 and was replaced in September 2012 with digital images of registrations attached to the index data in a new Genealogy Search database.

3 Exclusions

The Births, Marriages and Deaths Act of 1872 (SBC 1872, c.26, s.22), specifically excluded Chinese and Indians from registration although this exclusion was not always observed.<sup>14</sup> In 1877 (RSBC 1877, c. 33, s. 22) the exclusionary section<sup>15</sup> was removed and in 1897 (RSBC 1897, c.33, s.3) the Act was made explicitly applicable to "all races and nationalities, including all Indians and persons of Indian blood, Chinese and Japanese". Two years later, however, an amendment (SBC 1899, c.8, s.3) made the Act applicable to "all races and nationalities except persons who are Indians within the meaning of the Act of the Dominion Parliament respecting Indians."<sup>15</sup> In 1916, although the exception clause was retained, the legislation was amended to allow Indigenous registrations (SBC 1916, c.73, s.3.2) stating that "For the purpose of compiling statistics of births, deaths and marriages of such Indians [i.e. defined as such by federal legislation] the Registrar may accept returns ... by the respective Indian Agents in the Province." Special forms were to be used and the returns were to be "kept separate and apart from the other returns". In 1943 the exception was removed<sup>16</sup> and the registration of Indigenous births, marriages and deaths was thereby made mandatory, but special registration forms and the separate filing of returns were retained as was the use of Indian Agents as ex officio District Registrars. Not until 1957 was the use of separate forms and returns eliminated (SBC 1957, c.66, s.2).

Registration of hitherto excluded Indigenous births, marriages and deaths commenced in 1917 under the amended act with Indian Agents submitting returns monthly. From 1917 to 1956 Indian registrations were recorded in separate volumes with a separate numbering system.

Although not specified in the legislation, also excluded from death registrations are those persons for whom a body was never found or identified, e.g. in the case of drowning.

4 Delayed Registrations

Births, marriages and deaths were sometimes registered well after the event. This has been especially true in the case of births.

Initially, births could be registered up to a year after the event (SBC 1872, c. 26, s. 7), but in 1890 provision was made for “the registration of any birth, death, or marriage which took place in the Province of British Columbia previous to the year 1872”.<sup>17</sup> A search of the indexes yields 181 births between 1854 and 1871, one marriage (in 1871), and no deaths before 1872. In 1893 the act was amended to allow District Registrars “to register any birth, marriage, or death, at any time heretofore or hereafter occurring within the limits of his district”.<sup>18</sup>

The index only provides the date of an event, rather than the actual registration date. The late, or delayed, registration, however, will have been filed in the volume for the year in which the registration occurred, or, in some cases, maintained as a separate series. If the event date falls within the publicly available records range but the actual registration date does not, a copy of the registration record must be requested directly from the BC Vital Statistics Agency.

5 Coverage, Organization and Content of Records

Currently the BC Vital Statistics Agency only registers vital events that occur within the province but there have been some exceptions. For example, when a BC resident died out-of-province and the body was returned to BC for interment in some cases a BC death registration form was filled out (in addition to the death registration in the jurisdiction where the death actually occurred). These out-of-province registrations appear in the index and on the microfilm. In 1938 births and deaths aboard ships on the “high seas” whose next port of call after the event was British Columbia could be registered in BC.<sup>19</sup> Airplanes were added in 1985.<sup>20</sup> Included as well are almost 3500 deaths of British Columbians overseas during World War II (see below).

With the exception of some delayed birth registrations dating back to 1854, the registration records start in 1872. There is a 20-year holdback for deaths, a 75-year holdback for marriages

<sup>19</sup> SBC 1938, c.64, s.3. The position of Marine Registrar of Births and Deaths was created to handle these registrations.

<sup>20</sup> SBC 1985, c.86, s.12. The current provision is “If the birth or death of a person occurs on an aircraft or ship whose first stop after the birth or death is in British Columbia, the chief executive officer [registrar-general since 2014] may register the birth or death.” RSBC 1996, c.479, s.24.

and – since 2004 – a 120-year holdback for births, which means annual accruals for deaths and marriages but not for births until 2025.

The degree of completeness varies, depending on the time period and the location of the event: the earlier the date and the more remote the location, the greater the likelihood the event was never registered. In some instances, the government agent, acting as District Registrar, may not have sent in the forms. Early records may also have been destroyed by fire or flood before they could be sent in. And, of course, there were deliberate exclusions. Still, there are cases where more recent deaths which did not occur in a remote location were not registered – or at least no record appears to exist.

Records are usually in registration number order on the microfilm reels (within volumes and/or years); from 1872 to 1931 records are also arranged by name of geographical region or registration district, and then alphabetically within the region or district. Beginning in 1932, records are no longer arranged alphabetically by surname and by 1935 the arrangement by place name had also been abandoned.

The information recorded on registration documents has varied over the years. See below for more details.

5.1 Birth registrations (GR-2965)

Birth registrations consist of completed statements regarding births in British Columbia submitted to District Registrars and registered by the Registrar or Director of Vital Statistics. Stillbirths may have been registered as a birth or death or both.

The statements contain: date of birth, place of birth, sex of child, name of child, name and surname of father<sup>21</sup>, name and maiden name of mother, residence and rank or profession of father, name of person who delivered the child (accoucheur), reason father did not report the birth if the report was made by another person, date of registration, registration number. If the child was originally registered without a name, or if the name was changed, the registration form is accompanied by a certificate, submitted by the person who baptized the infant and signed by the parents or guardian, or by some other document verifying the name. Registrations collected on the special forms for Indigenous births between 1917 and 1956 (including delayed registrations) may include additional information such as tribal affiliation.

In the early years, birth registrations were gathered and bound in volumes by geographic location for one or more birth registration years. The registrations within each volume were sorted alphabetically by surname, sometimes grouped by smaller localities within the geographic location. Volumes were numbered sequentially and later sequential registration numbers were assigned to each registration within a volume.

For large municipalities, birth registrations were bound in volumes by registration year. Often, there were multiple volumes for each year, organized using a combination of date and alphabetization by surname.

<sup>21</sup> From the initial legislation in 1872, the father of a child deemed “illegitimate” or not married to the child’s mother could only be entered “at the joint request of the mother and the person acknowledging himself to be the father” (SBC 1872, no.26, s.6). In 1985 the term illegitimate was replaced by “a child born outside of marriage” (SBC 1985 c.68.. Not long after reference to parents being married or not was dropped altogether.

In these years, it was not unusual for births to be registered some time, even many years, after the event. These “delayed” registrations were either recorded in the same volume as births of that year, or kept in separate “delayed” registration series. The registration of stillbirths also varied over these years, being entered as a birth or a death, or sometimes both.<sup>22</sup> From 1932 to 1986, delayed registrations of non-Indigenous births were maintained in a separate sub-series. They were bound in volumes numbered 700 and 900 to 914.

Due to the complex way that birth registrations were gathered and bound historically and the way that delayed registrations have been processed, they were sorted for microfilming in order of birth year instead of registration year in order to enable the annual release of birth registrations.<sup>23</sup> The pre-1919 births were sorted by year of birth, and by volume number and registration number within each birth year. As a result, when viewed in microfilmed sequence, there appear to be gaps in volume and registration numbers within each year. The “missing” volumes and registration numbers are for births that occurred in years earlier than the registration year.

Regular birth registrations have been filmed sequentially in order of year, and volume number and registration number within the year. Those from 1854 to 1897 were filmed together as a group for release in 1998. Subsequent registrations were filmed to allow for annual releases starting in 1999. Because of the 2004 extension in the holdback period from 100 to 120 years,<sup>24</sup> annual releases ceased with the 1903 birth registrations. The 1904 registrations will be released in 2025.

Delayed registrations have been filmed sequentially in order of year, and volume number and registration number within the year. Those from 1869 to 1897 were filmed together as a group for release in 1998. Events from 1898 onward were filmed at the end of the general birth registrations for those years so as to allow for annual release in 1999 and beyond. There is also a separate set of “photocopied delayed” reels for 1900 to 1903.

The collection of “Indian birth registrations” which appear on a separate set of microfilm reels<sup>25</sup> are all delayed registrations received after 1916 and all have been assigned volume number 995.<sup>26</sup> The earliest birth dates back to 1868.<sup>27</sup> Some Indigenous birth registrations, despite the

<sup>22</sup> The first reference to stillbirths in Vital Statistics legislation appeared in 1936 (SBC 1936 (2nd Sess.), c.59), including them as both births and deaths. A definition followed in 1945 (SBC 1945, c.76).

<sup>23</sup> Without this time-consuming process, most of the birth registrations would not have been publicly releasable until 2015 or later.

<sup>25</sup> Reels B13802-B13803, B13868-B13872, 1868-1903. Indian registrations dated 1904 to 1916 will also be delayed registrations once they are released on microfilm. See Table 4.

<sup>26</sup> Between 1917 and 1956, Indigenous birth registrations were maintained in a separate sub-series. They were bound in volumes, initially sequentially-numbered, starting with Volume 1. The registrations were also sequentially numbered. In 1935, although the sequential volume numbering continued, record numbers started at 1 each year. Commencing in 1946, the volumes were assigned a single volume number - 95 - with record numbers starting at 1 each year. During the same time period, delayed registrations of Indigenous births were bound in a separate set of volumes numbered 795 and 995-998. A special form was used, which included additional information such as tribal affiliation. This form was altered in 1943 and discarded in 1956 when Indigenous registrations were no longer separated from other vital event registrations and the general form was used.

<sup>27</sup> There are 338 in total from 1868 to 1903. As most of these registrations are on forms introduced in 1943, it would appear that they were collected, for the most part, in 1943 and later.

statutory prohibition, are also to be found among the regular registrations prior to 1917. Nonetheless, not until 1917 can there be any expectation of a more comprehensive coverage of Indigenous births.

5.2 Marriage registrations (GR-2962)

Marriage registrations, beginning in 1872, consist of completed statements regarding marriages submitted to District Registrars, and registered by the Registrar or Director of Vital Statistics. The series includes: regular marriage registrations; delayed registrations of marriage (maintained as a separate series from 1933 to 1977); registrations of Indigenous marriages, (maintained as a separate series from 1917 to 1956);<sup>28</sup> and registrations of Doukhobor marriages (maintained as a separate series from 1959 to 1982).<sup>29</sup>

The registrations contain some or all of the following: names of bride and groom; ages; marital status at time of marriage (bachelor, spinster, widow or widower); profession; residence; place of birth; names of parents; profession of father; religious denomination of bride and groom; whether the marriage took place by banns or with a marriage licence; place and date of marriage; church or rite by which the couple was married; names and residences of witnesses; and name of person performing the wedding.

From 1872 to 1928, the official registration record numbers,<sup>30</sup> although organized into sequentially-numbered volumes (1-334), consist of a single sequential run of numbers from 1 to 99,814. From 1928 to 1945 the numerical sequence of volumes continued (335-563), but from 1928 to 1934 (volumes 335-544) the record numbers ran in a continuous sequence from 1 to 29,266, while from 1935 to 1945 (volumes 545-563), the record numbers start at 1 at the beginning of each year. In 1946 the volume numbering itself changed and the year became an essential component of the registration number. Each year was divided into volumes, starting with Volume 1, each volume consisting of a block of 999 registrations. The numbers run from 1001 to 1999 in Volume 1, continue in Volume 2 with 2000 to 2999 and so on.<sup>31</sup> Many volumes are separated into A and B sections. The A sections contains numbers 1-500, the B section numbers 501-999.

Registration records are always arranged in order of record number.<sup>32</sup> Delayed registrations appear in the volumes for the year in which they were filed.

“Indian marriage registrations” were recorded in separate volumes with a separate numbering system from 1917 to 1956. The registration numbers are in a single continuous sequence to 1934 (1-2286) filed in volumes 1-18. From 1935 to 1945, the sequential volume numbering continues but the record numbers start at 1 each year. In 1946 the sequential volume

<sup>29</sup> Only those marriages older than 75 years are, of course, available for general public access.

<sup>31</sup> Registration numbers 000001 to 000999 do not exist (as there is no Volume 0) and neither do registrations ending in 000 after 1945 (e.g. 001000, 002000). This will have changed in 1987 if the organization and numbering of marriage registrations was changed in the same manner as death registrations. See Section 5.3 for more information about registration numbers after 1945.

<sup>32</sup> See Fig. 1 and note 39, for potential problems with locating pre-1935 registrations using the online index registration number.

numbering for registrations was abandoned.<sup>33</sup> On the reel for 1922 are Volumes 26 and 26A containing marriages prior to 1922 which were registered in 1942.<sup>34</sup> The place name in the online and fiche indexes may be incorrect; sometimes the birthplace was misread as the location of the marriage by the indexers.

Some volumes of marriage registrations, post 1921, were water-damaged. As a result, some individual records have problems varying in seriousness from minor to major. Problems include: wrinkled pages, water-stained pages, smeared ink, bleeding through of ink, faded ink, and most seriously, obliterated information. In cases where information has been lost, or is very difficult to read, photocopies produced from earlier microfilm of these records have been filmed. The earlier microfilm, and hence the photocopies from it, are of varying quality. Every attempt has been made to produce the best possible copies and images of the damaged records.

5.3 Death registrations (GR-2951)

Death registrations, beginning in 1872, consist of completed statements and related documents regarding deaths which have been submitted to District Registrars and then registered by the Registrar or Director of Vital Statistics in Victoria. Stillbirths may have been registered as a birth or death or both.

The statements contain: the registration district name and/or number; the registration number; the name of the deceased; gender; date of death; age; profession (if known); date of birth; cause of death; name of physician; name and residence of informant; religious affiliation; and date of registration. Statements sometimes include the decedent's marital status, spouse and names and birth places of the decedent's parents.

Each death registration should include a supporting record called "Medical Certificate of Death" which states the cause of death as determined by a physician or coroner. These records are created by physicians or coroners, submitted to District Registrars and registered by the Registrar or Director of Vital Statistics. The certificates contain personal particulars of deceased persons, statements concerning the time and cause of death, and the name and residence of the certifying physician or coroner. However, this document was not included on a regular basis until 1896, and not with every registration until 1912. From 1872 until 1911 the death registrations and medical certificates of death are on separate forms. From 1912 to 1987 the two statements are included on one form and both parts are always completed. Since 1988, the medical certificate of death appears once again on a separate form.

Some death registrations also include documents received under the Coroner's Act. This Act requires coroners to submit to the BCVSA particulars of the cause and time of death as determined by a coroner's inquest. These documents include "Certificate of Cause of Death as Determined by Coroner's Inquest" and "Warrant to Bury after a View".

99,644.<sup>36</sup> From 1925 to 1945, the numerical sequence of volumes continued (346-671), but from 1925 to 1934 (volumes 346-495) the record numbers start again at 1 and run to 56,974, while from 1935 to 1945 the registration numbers start at 1 at the beginning of each year. In 1946 the volume numbering itself was changed. Each year the registrations start with Volume 1 (001) and record number 1 (001). The volume number is combined with the volume specific record number (which never exceeds 3 digits) to create the registration number for a given year. Thus, commencing with 1946 registrations, the official registration number and the “finding number” are the same and the year becomes an integral part of the registration number. Except for 1946, the registration numbers run from 1001 to 9999 (001001-001999) in Volume 1 of any given year, continue in Volume 2 with 2001 to 2999 (002001-002999) in Volume 2 and so on.<sup>37</sup> Many volumes are separated into A and B sections. The A section covers registration numbers 1 to 500 and the B section covers numbers 501-999.<sup>38</sup> In 1946 there were only 500 registrations per volume, i.e. numbers ending in 501-999 did not exist.

In 1986, there was another change in the numbering system. The volume number, if it existed, no longer formed part of the registration number which became once more a simple sequential number, starting at 000001 each year. The number stamped on each record reflects this change; only the 6-digit (including leading zeros) sequential number appears. See below.

Delayed registrations generally were added to the volume(s) for the year in which they were registered but some delayed registrations from 1872 to 1945 have been assigned volume number 900A and have been microfilmed on a separate microfilm reel (B13358).

<sup>36</sup> Until 1919 volumes often covered a span of years due to the way the records were collected and organized. See Table 11 and Appendix 3.

<sup>38</sup> In some earlier volumes, division into A and B volumes also occurred. See Appendix 10.3.3.

<sup>39</sup> The last number in volume 8 is 3384, translated as 008384 in the index number. The next registration, 3385 is in volume 9 (i.e. 009385). Registration 2999 is, of course, located immediately preceding registration 8000. However, based on the assumption that a number ending in 999 will be at the end of volume 8, a researcher will search there. The last number in volume 8 is 3384, i.e. 008384. The next document is 3385 in volume 9, i.e. 009385. This can lead to some confusion. Similar situations occur on several pre-1935 microfilm reels because of the way the index numbers have been retroactively constructed.

From 1917 to 1956 Indigenous death registrations were organized into a separate series of volumes.<sup>40</sup> From 1917 until 1934 (vols. 1-18) there is a single numerical sequence (1-8685). Between 1935 and 1946 (vols. 19-29), each volume starts with record number 1. For 1917 to 1945, the “finding numbers” consist of the sequential volume number and the last three digits of the record number, as is the case with the main series of death registrations. Commencing in 1946, the sequential volume numbering was dropped. Volume number 95 was assigned to each year, with record numbers starting at 1 at the beginning of each year. As multiple years appear on each microfilm reel, the same “finding number” (e.g. 095001) can occur in several places on a reel. The year, therefore, is a critical element in locating the correct record.<sup>41</sup>

5.3.1 World War II death registrations (GR-3132)

Since 2001, death registrations for BC World War II casualties (1940-1945) have been available at the BC Archives on four reels of microfilm, separate from the provincial death registrations. The index created for these records has been merged with the main death registrations index. The records consist of completed statements documenting the deaths of members of the armed forces who died while on active duty and who were residents of BC. During the war the armed forces completed forms supplied by the province to register the deaths. The statements contain personal particulars and the date, place, and cause of death. The forms also contain medical certificates of death, although not always completed by a physician. The Division of Vital Statistics received and maintained these records but did not merge them with the provincial death registrations and did not originally include them in the index. The index data were added to the online Genealogy Search database and digital images added.

6 Indexes

Access to specific registrations can be gained by means of indexes available on microfilm, microfiche and online on the BC Archives Genealogy Search Database. The date range varies for marriages and deaths; the online index, which is updated annually as new registrations are released, is the most up-to-date.<sup>42</sup> The indexes on microfilm and microfiche have not been updated for several years.

Sometimes the information in an index entry is sufficient for a researcher's purposes and sometimes results from an online index search can be an end in itself, e.g. to obtain a list of names of people who died in a particular community during a specified period of time to help decipher names on headstones in the local cemetery. Note, however, that the information in the indexes is provided for the purposes of locating the registrations and should not be taken as authoritative. The final authority for all registration information is the registration document.

Occasionally there are two or more entries for the same registration in the indexes. This can occur for a variety of reasons, primarily variant spellings, index loading problems, and amended registrations. In the case of the first two, the index entry will have the same registration number, in the case of the third, there will be two numbers, one for the original registration and one for the amended one.

In a number of instances, there will be index entries for registrations which fall within the time limitations but which are not available on the microfilm reels released for public access. These are often delayed registrations. On the microfiche and online indexes, they are generally designated as “NOT FILMED” or lack a reel number. A few, however, falling at the end of the latest release year, have a microfilm reel number but, because that reel contains registrations from the following year, it has not yet been released. Copies of these and the “NOT FILMED” registrations can be obtained from the BC Vital Statistics Agency, usually at no charge.<sup>43</sup>

6.1 Indexes on microfilm

In the 1960s, using an early computerized system, the Registrar’s Office in Victoria compiled provincial birth, marriage and death indexes using indexes created in the regional offices.<sup>44</sup> The computer-produced indexes were printed out and the pages bound into volumes. Those for marriages and deaths were microfilmed and made available for public access. The reels are found in the drawers with their respective registrations.

The marriage registrations index (GR-2985) on microfilm consists of two separate alphabetical listings, broken up by date groupings, of all persons married and registered within the Province of British Columbia, from the beginning of 1872 to the end of 1943. One listing is sorted by the surnames of the grooms, the other by the surnames of the brides.

Each index entry contains, from left to right: the last four digits of the registration record number; name of the groom or bride (surname followed by given names); name of the spouse (bride or groom); place of the marriage; date of the marriage (month/day/year, e.g., 05/21/1885); volume number in which the registration is found; and the full record number.

To find an individual registration using this index, first look up a person's name in the bride or groom index (by surname). These are alphabetical within date groupings (see Appendix 10.4.1). When the right name and marriage has been found, make note of the volume number, the date of the marriage, and the record number. Then, using Appendix 10.4.1, look for the volume number and make sure that the record number and marriage date fall within the ranges shown in the entry. If they match, make note of the microfilm reel number.

The death registrations index (GR-2986) on microfilm consists of volumes containing alphabetical listings arranged by surname, of deaths registered in British Columbia, from 1872-1984. The first volume covers 1872-1899, the second 1900 to 1909. The third and fourth volumes cover 1910 to 1919. From 1920 to 1929 the volumes are arranged in five-year groupings (volumes 5-6) and from 1930 to 1969 in five-year groupings with the alphabetical sequences split into two volumes (volumes 7-22).<sup>45</sup> From 1970 to 1984 annual index volumes were created (volumes 23-37); those for 1980, 1981 and 1983 were not available at the time of microfilming (volumes 33, 34, 36). However, the registrations for these years are found in the index on microfiche (see Section 6.2) and on the BC Archives Genealogy Search database.

Although the entries are mostly in single alphabetical sequences within a given time period there are some exceptions. Delayed registrations sometimes appear at the end of the main

<sup>44</sup> An index to divorce decrees, collected by the Vital Statistics Branch from provincial Supreme Court registries since 1935, was also created. See Section 9.3.

<sup>45</sup> See the finding aid for GR-2986 or Appendix 10.4.2 for a more detailed listing.

alphabetical sequences. In Volume 8 there is a separate alphabetical list of still births for 1930 to 1932 at the end of the volume and in Volume 11 Indian deaths for 1943 are found in a separate alphabetical list at the beginning of the volume.

Each entry in index volumes from 1872 to 1976 consists of, from left to right: name of the deceased (surname followed by given names), gender, place of death, date of registration (month/day/year), date of death (month/day/year), volume number in which the registration is found, record (or registration) number, and age at death (this column does not have a title at the top of the page). Beginning in 1977 the index entries consist of, from left to right: name of the deceased (surname followed by given names), gender, birth place (using a numerical code) and date of birth, age at death, place of death, date of death and registration number.

The numbers in the (untitled) age at death column are one, two or three digits. One and two digit numbers stand for age in years in most volumes. However, in some volumes the age in years is preceded by the digit 2. Three-digit numbers 300 and above are codes for ages of less than one year. Numbers starting with 3 indicate the age in months, with 4 the age in weeks, with 5 the age in days, with 6 the age in hours, and with 7 the age in minutes.

In the volumes for 1977 to 1984 the index entries include place of birth, using a numerical code, and the date of birth. A list of codes with place names is found at the beginning of each microfilm reel and in Appendix 7.1.

Also found at the beginning of each microfilm reel, following the geographic codes, is a list of the death registrations index volumes and the years which each volume covers. The deaths index volume list is followed by a death registrations volume list that provides the microfilm reel number on which each volume of death registrations is filmed. This list shows, from left to right: volume number; volume description ("death registrations" plus the range of registration or record numbers); date range ("start date/end date" formatted as year/month/day); and BC Archives and GSU microfilm reel numbers.

To find an individual registration using the index on microfilm, first look up a person's name in the alphabetical index, within the relevant date grouping (see Table 7). When the right name has been found, make note of the volume number, the date of the death, and the record number. Then return to the death registrations volume list at the beginning of the microfilm reel. Look first for the volume number, then make sure that the record number (called registration number on the volume list) and death date fall within the ranges shown in the entry for that volume. If they match, make note of the microfilm reel number to the right of the date range. The B reel numbers are used at the BC Archives and some library repositories. Instructions for locating the actual registration can be found in Section 7 below. A death registrations volume list with B reel numbers can also be found in Section 10.3.3.

6.2 Indexes on microfiche

These indexes are computer output microfiche from the electronic indexes that appear on the BC Archives website. They have not been updated since 2004.

The births index (GR-3103) consists of one complete alphabetical listing by surname of births registered within British Columbia. It covers registered births from 1854<sup>46</sup> to 1903. Each entry contains: name of the person; registration number (year-province code-finding number, e.g.,

<sup>46</sup> Those prior to 1872 were after-the-fact, or delayed, registrations. See Section 4.

1879-09-006017); event date (year/month/day); gender; event place; microfilm reel number assigned by the BC Archives (the B number) and Genealogical Society of Utah (GSU) assigned number.

The marriages index (GR-3033) consists of two complete alphabetical listings (one by surname of brides, and the other by surname of grooms) of marriages registered within British Columbia. It covers registered marriages from 1872-1929. Each entry contains: name of the bride or groom; registration number (year-province code-finding number, e.g., 1921-09-006017); event date (year/month/day); name of spouse; event place; and BC Archives and GSU microfilm reel numbers.

The deaths index (GR-3034) consists of one complete alphabetical listing, by surname, of deaths registered within British Columbia. It covers registered deaths from 1872 to 1983. Each entry contains: name of the deceased; registration number (year-province code-finding number, e.g., 1949-09-006017); event date (year/month/day); gender; event place; age at death; and BC Archives and GSU microfilm reel numbers.

With respect to age at death, age “0” means that a child died before his or her first birthday, and includes stillbirths. The code “UNK” indicates that age at death was not known by the individual registering the death or was not recorded.

To find an individual registration, first look up a person’s name in the alphabetical listing. When you have found the right name and event, make note of the registration number, the event date, and the BCA microfilm reel number. Instructions for locating the actual registration can be found in Section 7 below.

6.3 Online index

The BC Archives Genealogy Search database offers an online index to births, marriages and deaths. It is not only the most up-to-date index, but also offers multiple search fields or access points, which can be used by themselves or in combination with each other. It also offers the option of searching more than one index at a time and of compiling information on groups or categories of people.

In addition to births, marriages and deaths, there are two other indexes, one for Colonial Marriages and one for Baptisms. These are not official vital events registrations and are dealt with in Section 9.

7 Locating Registrations

Note that whether the birth, marriage and death index entries are found online or on the microfiche or microfilm indexes, it is important to remember that these entries, although they provide a certain amount of information about a person and event, they are not the registrations themselves. If information beyond what is shown is needed then the actual registration records must be consulted.

7.1 Step one: Interpreting the index entry

The two critical pieces of information needed to locate a registration are the “Registration number” and the “Microfilm number”.

The registration number is divided into three segments separated by dashes: 4 digits for the year, 2 digits for the province code (always 09) and a 6-digit “finding number” representing the volume in which the registration was filed and the individual registration number within the volume. The first 3 digits refer to the volume and the remaining 3 digits are the last 3 digits of the original record registration number. From 1945 to date, the registration number as it appears in the online index entries and the number recorded on the official registration document is the same. Prior to 1945, however, a different numbering system was used, which did not incorporate the volume number.<sup>47</sup> For finding purposes, in searching these records only the last 3 digits are matched once the correct volume number section is located. The volume number is printed on the “header” or “footer” above or below each registration document. The registration number is usually to be found in the top right-hand corner of the document.

There are usually two microfilm reel numbers for each index entry. The B number is used at the BC Archives, the GSU number by FamilySearch.

7.2 Step two: Finding the microfilm reel

Registration records are available on self-serve microfilm in the Reference Room at the BC Archives. The microfilm reels for births, marriages and deaths are stored in a separate cabinet in three sequences.<sup>48</sup> Machines are available in the Reference Room for viewing the microfilm and printing or downloading PDF copies.

7.3 Step three: Finding the registration

Note that some registrations have been filmed out of order, and some appear at the beginning or end of a reel if they are delayed registrations.<sup>49</sup>

7.3.1 Marriage and death registrations

This following applies to all marriages to and to all deaths, with the exception of Indigenous deaths from 1946-1956 assigned volume number 95 (e.g. 1950-09-095546) and all death registrations after 1985.

Take the 6-digit part of the index registration number<sup>50</sup> and split into two 3-digit numbers. Using the first 3 digits as the volume number, advance the reel to the correct volume. Each microfilm frame or image has this information in a “header” or “footer”. Then use the second 3 digits to find the document which has these digits as the last three digits of a handwritten or stamped number most often located in the top right-hand corner.<sup>51</sup>

7.3.2 Births and Indigenous death registrations (collected 1946-1956)

All birth registrations are arranged in a numerical sequence by year. To locate a birth registration, advance the microfilm reel specified in the index entry to the correct year as

<sup>47</sup> See Section 5.2 and Section 5.3 for more information on the pre-1945 marriage and death registration numbering systems.

<sup>48</sup> Each sequence, in addition to the B numbers has a sequence number, starting with 1, which is used to re-file the reels more easily.

indicated by a large round target as the beginning of each year and indicated in the “header” or “footer” found on each frame. Once in the correct year, advance to the volume number as derived from the first three digits of the 6-digit “finding number”.<sup>52</sup> The volume number is also displayed in the “header” or “footer” of each frame. Finally, use the second 3 digits of the “finding number” to locate the specific registration. Match the last 3 digits only. The registrations on the Indigenous births microfilm reels have, as delayed registrations collected after 1917, all been assigned volume 995 so after going to the correct year, it is unnecessary to locate a volume number.

Indigenous death registrations which were collected between 1946 and 1956, and assigned volume number 95 (reels B13359 to B13363 and B13374 to B13377), are located in the same manner as Indigenous birth registrations. i.e. advance to the year and then the registration number.

8 Non-official Registrations

Over the years, the Vital Statistics office would accept documents from such bodies as churches which attested to births, marriages and deaths and for which it lacked official records. Church registers of baptisms, marriages and burials were also borrowed and microfilmed. The originals were returned and the microfilm copies maintained as a separate collection.

9 Related records

Although not created by the Vital Statistics office, the following records are related to the birth, marriage, and death records discussed above. Indexes for baptismal and colonial marriage records are found as part of the Genealogy Search database and are based on information supplied by clergy. In the case of the baptismal index there are no records at the BC Archives, only the information contained within the index entries. Divorce decrees were collected from the courts by the Division of Vital Statistics from 1935 to the mid-1980s and indexes were created. Both are only available on microfilm at the BC Archives.

9.1 Baptisms 1836-1901

Commencing in from 1948, churches in BC were required to submit their baptismal registers to the Vital Statistics Division so that the registers could be microfilmed. The microfilmed registers cover the period from 1836 to ca. 1980. The Division subsequently created an alphabetical index to the microfilmed registers. A database of baptisms of individuals born prior to 1901<sup>53</sup> was created from the index volumes with supplementary information from the microfilmed registers added to the entries. There is no access to the microfilm; those interested in viewing original entries are referred to the appropriate church as identified on the full index entry.

The Baptism registers only indicate the surname of the person being baptized. Surnames of the parents are presumed to be the same. If given names or surnames were not recorded in the register, the word "Unknown" was substituted for the empty field. Aboriginal names are searchable under both the surname and given names search points. Note that name spellings may vary, particularly in the case of the earliest entries. Included in the index entries are location, name and denomination of church, and sometimes additional information such as birth date, occupation of father and, for Indigenous baptisms, tribal affiliation.

9.2 Colonial marriages (GR-3044)

Pre-confederation marriage records consist of records of marriages occurring in what would become the province of British Columbia from 1859 to 1871.<sup>54</sup> The records are bound into eight volumes, available on one microfilm reel, B09707, with the exception of the first volume (A1) which was missing at the time of microfilming.<sup>55</sup> The originals are also held by the BC Archives. The volumes contain certified copies of marriage certificates, or returns of marriages, submitted by clergy of various, but not all, denominations. The major absence is that of the Church of England (Anglican Church). These records can be found in MS-0520.<sup>56</sup>

Volumes A1-A5 consist of certified copies of marriage certificates submitted by the clergy of missions on the British Columbia mainland, 1859-1872. The volumes are arranged alphabetically by the surname of the groom. Each marriage record contains a record number, information about the bride and groom including: the name; age; condition (marital status); rank or profession; residence, place of birth; father's name; and profession of father. Also included are: the date of the marriage; place of marriage; names of witnesses; the name of the officiating clergyman; and the church denomination.

Volume A6 consists of returns of marriages solemnized on Vancouver Island by Methodist and Presbyterian ministers, 1859-1865, and submitted to the Colonial Secretary (Vancouver Island). The volume is arranged chronologically. Each marriage record contains the names of the bride and groom; their ages; residences; places of birth; names of parents; names of witnesses; date of marriage; place of marriage; name of officiating clergyman; and church denomination.

Volume A7 is arranged alphabetically by the grooms' surnames, and volumes X7 and X8 are arranged first by year and then alphabetically. Each marriage record contains information about the bride and groom including: name; age; condition (marital status); and rank or profession. Also included are: residences; date of marriage; place of marriage; names of witnesses; name of clergy; and church denomination. Volume A7 consists of typed certified true extracts from marriage registers maintained by churches and missions (both mainland British Columbia and Vancouver Island) created circa 1933. Its contents duplicate some of the records in volumes A1 to A6.

An index was created by volunteers shortly before the filming of the records, with the exception of Volume A1. The records in volumes A1 to A6 are hand written and often difficult to read. While every effort was made to ensure accuracy of transcription, the final authority for spelling of names is the individual registration, not the index. Aboriginal names may prove especially difficult as, in addition to difficulties arising from the transcription of handwritten records, the names are spelled according to how the persons completing the marriage certificates thought they sounded, with the addition of diacritical marks.

The index is found at the beginning of reel B09707. It consists of two separate alphabetical sorts, one by the surnames of individuals, and the second by the place of marriage. For each marriage the index contains the surnames and given names of individuals; the record and volume number of the marriage; the date of the marriage (format is year/month/ day); the marriage place (name of community and/or church); and the district. To find an individual marriage record, locate the name and volume number. Then advance the reel to the correct volume and the record within the volume.

<sup>54</sup> The united colony of British Columbia, formed in 1866 from the mainland colony of British Columbia and the colony of Vancouver Island, became a province of Canada in July 1871.

An online index is also found on the Genealogy Search database but also does not include Volume A1.

An index is also available online, as part of the Genealogy Indexes. Each index entry contains the surnames and given names of the bride and groom, the place name and often the name of the church, the date of the marriage (yyyy/mm/dd), the registration number consisting of the volume and item number, and the BC Archives reel number (B09707) and the GSU reel number (2073299). In some cases, there is more than one entry for the same marriage, with volume A7 referenced as well as one of the other volumes.

9.3 Divorces (GR-3254 and GR-3255)

From April 1935 to 1985 BC court registries were required to send certified copies of final divorce decrees to the Division of Vital Statistics.<sup>57</sup> Not only were notations added to the marriage registration records of those who had been married in the province, the Division also issued divorce certificates during this time. The court-certified copies were arranged in volumes in a similar fashion to vital event registrations and were eventually microfilmed. The microfilm reels were transferred to the BC Archives in 2004 (GR-3255).

Starting in the 1960s, the Division created computer-generated indexes which were also transferred to the BC Archives in 2004 and microfilmed (GR-3254). The indexes are arranged alphabetically by groom surname and given name(s). They are not available online.

Entries for decrees issued from 1901 to 1935 were obtained from a card index maintained by the Inspector of Legal Offices prior to April 1935 of all actions commenced in BC in divorce and matrimonial proceedings. Entries derived from the card index were assigned volume number 999. They provide the name of the groom and bride and the place and date of the divorce. To locate divorce decrees or records with a 999 volume number, it is necessary to refer to the records of the court registry specified in the index entry.

Entries from April 1935 to December 1983 are derived from the divorce decrees sent to the Division. They provide, in addition to the name of the groom and the bride and the place and date of the divorce, the Vital Statistics volume number and assigned record number which are used to locate the copy of the actual order on the divorce order reels. See the BC Archives Research Guide to Divorce Records for more information.

The information contained within a divorce decree may vary depending on time and court registry but broadly speaking those granted prior to the 1968 Canada Divorce Act will include the date and place of marriage, grounds for the divorce, and custody and support arrangements. For divorces granted under the Canada Divorce Act from 1968 to 1985 this information is contained in the decree nisi, not in the final decree absolute which was the document collected by Vital Statistics. The decree absolute does, however, provide the date of the decree nisi. This date can then be used to help locate the decree nisi in the court records.

9.4 Other

Colonial or pre-confederation records of births, marriages and deaths are often to be found in church records as well as in the records of the Colonial Secretary for Vancouver Island and for British Columbia. Church records are also a source for the post-colonial period. Some of these records can be found at the BC Archives, although they are often copies of the originals which are located in various church and diocese archives. More frequently, these archives are the only repositories. Information about births, marriages and deaths may be recorded in newspapers. Sometimes deaths which do not appear in the Vital Events index are to be found in the coroner's records. Wills and probate files may also provide information about deaths. Divorce orders can be a source of information about place and date of marriages. For other sources see the BC Archives Genealogy Research Guide.

B13872 <sup>3</sup>	1903	995A-998B	28 registrations

<sup>1</sup> See Section 5.1. Collected as a separate series between 1917 and 1956. Registrations prior to 1917 are all delayed registrations; those included here were mostly collected circa 1945 to 1957. Date range reflects pre-2004 releases. Subsequent releases are restricted to birth registrations older than 120 years and will not reach 1903 until 2024.

<sup>2</sup> The label on the microfilm reels also shows 795 and 001-002 as volume numbers. These are for post-1903 volumes which have not been released. Volume 1 is assigned to 1917 and Volume 2 to 1918.

<sup>3</sup> As registrations are now only being released as digital images, B13872 is the last microfilm reel release of birth registrations.

<sup>2</sup> Years shown are the years of registration, not necessarily the year of the marriage. Each volume includes a certain number of registrations from previous years, going as far back as 1915. For purposes of finding the registration the year can be ignored.

<sup>3</sup> Shown in the index as year plus 09 plus the finding number (three-digit volume number plus last three digits of the official registration number), e.g. 1921-09-006650. In the case of a four-digit number, the first digit is dropped. This becomes a potential problem for finding registrations on reels B13888 and B13892. See notes 3 and 4.

<sup>4</sup> Volume 6 covers registrations in 1922. Volumes 26 and 26A have registrations for marriages from 1871-1922 which were registered/filed in 1942. Note that numbers 1 to 206 do not appear on the reel. Because the six-digit part of the index registration number does not distinguish between the two volumes, the numbers for registrations 207 to 498 in Vol. 26 and 1207 to 1468 in Vol. 26A will have the same six-digit number, e.g. 026253 for an 1873 marriage (registration number 000253) and a 1906 marriage

(registration number 1253). Volume 26 is comprised mostly of registrations from Kamloops and district and Volume 26A of registrations from the Fort St. James district and northern BC so the place of marriage may provide a clue. If not, both volumes may need to be checked to locate the correct registration.

<sup>5</sup> Because only the last three digits of the official registration number appear in the index entry, registrations numbered 001000-001113 will be shown as 1926-09-010000 to 1926-09-010113 (1926, volume 10, last three digits of registration number). They appear on the microfilm reel in the proper sequential order according to the original four-digit registration number but not according to the three-part index registration number (i.e. 1926-09-010000 will follow 1926-09-010999, as marriage registration number 1000 immediately follows 999). A similar situation will occur with reel B13899.

<sup>6</sup> The registrations in volumes 26 and 26A for marriages prior to 1923 have been released as part of reel B13888.

<sup>8</sup> Registrations 022001 to 022500 are shown in the index as being on reel B16578 but 022001 to 022496 are on reel B16577 (splicing lines would seem to indicate that they were probably removed from B16578 and spliced onto the end of B16577). However, 022497 to 022500 are on neither reel and should probably be considered as "Not filmed".

<sup>9</sup> Note the change in registration and volume numbering. Starting in 1986, the first three digits no longer refer to a volume.

<sup>2</sup> From 1917 to 1945, volumes are numbered sequentially, one per year. From 1917 to 1934 registration numbers are in a single sequential order, broken up into volumes by year of registration. From 1935 to 1945, volume numbering starts at 1 each year. Registrations from 1946 to 1956 are all assigned the same volume number: 95. For each year this volume is split into 95A which contains registrations numbered 1-500 for that year, and 95B which has registrations numbered 501-999, if there are that many. Delayed registrations filed separately from the other registrations are assigned volume number 995. To locate registrations filed in volumes 1-29, the volume numbers can be used. To locate registrations from 1946 to 1956 assigned to volume 95, the year must be used in conjunction with the registration number.

<sup>2</sup> A database search for this reel number yields records 020501 to 020951. Records 020946 to 020951 are not on the reel, nor are the digital images on the database, although the index entries are. They can therefore be considered as NOT FILMED until images are attached to the entries.

<sup>4</sup> Index entries show as being on reel B16578 but 022001 to 22496 have been spliced on to the end of reel B16577. Index entries for registrations 022497 to 022500 are on the database but without digital images attached and can therefore be considered as NOT FILMED until images are added.

<sup>7</sup> Starting in 1987, volume numbers are no longer assigned and the first 3 digits do not refer to a volume.

<sup>8</sup> Reel numbers for 1987 and 1988 were not assigned in sequential order.
