Established in Bali in 1975, John Hardy is dedicated to the creation of ultimate beauty through artisan handcrafted jewelry. Our master artisans honor original craft through the perfection of modern design, creating timeless one-of-a-kind pieces that are brilliantly alive. Each of John Hardy's distinctive collections conveys evocative symbolism and honors the transmission of creative energy from the artist to the wearer. Since inception, the company has been deeply rooted in the essential values of community, artisanship and sustainability.

MEASUREMENT & SIZING

As all John Hardy products are handmade, the measurements may differ slightly from one item to another.

Each body style is sized according to its unique design features. For example, a wide bracelet sits higher on the wrist than a narrow one, some items are designed to fit more tightly while others will have a more loose fit.

MEASURING BRACELETS AND CUFFS

Measure the circumference of the wrist at the area above the wrist bone.

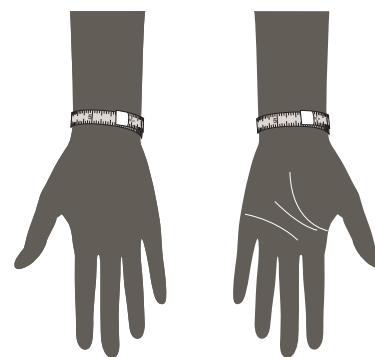

Compare the measurement to the chart and choose the bracelet size that corresponds to the measurement. Choose the larger size should your measurement fall between two sizes.

FOR WOMEN:

Size	Wrist Measurement Inches	Wrist Measurement Centimeters
2X - Small	4.5 - 5.0	11.4 - 12.7
Extra Small	5.0 - 5.5	12.7 - 14.0
Small	5.5 - 6.0	14.0 - 15.2
Medium	6.0 - 6.5	15.2 - 16.5
Large	6.5 - 7.0	16.5 - 17.8
Extra Large	7.0 - 7.5	17.8 - 19.0

FOR MEN:

Size	Wrist Measurement Inches	Wrist Measurement Centimeters
2X - Small	5.25 - 5.75	13.3 - 14.6
Extra Small	5.75 - 6.25	14.6 - 15.9
Small	6.25 - 6.75	15.9 - 17.1
Medium	6.75 - 7.25	17.1 - 18.4
Large	7.25 - 7.75	18.4 - 19.7
Extra Large	7.75 - 8.25	19.7 - 21.0

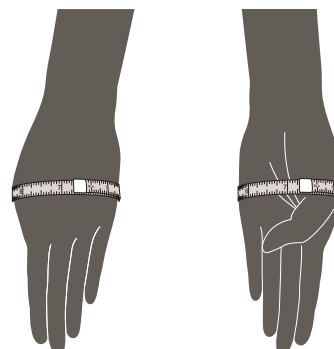

MEASURING BANGLES

Bangle size is determined by the size of your hand and NOT your wrist.

To determine your bangle size, simply tuck your thumb into the palm of your hand (as if about to put on a bangle) and using a measuring tape, measure your hand all the way around the set of knuckles closest to your wrist, from knuckle to knuckle. Compare that measurement to the chart.

Size	Wrist Measurement Inches	Wrist Measurement Centimeters
Extra Small	6.75	17.0
Small	7.25	18.4
Medium	7.75	19.7
Large	8.00	20.3
Extra Large	8.75	22.2

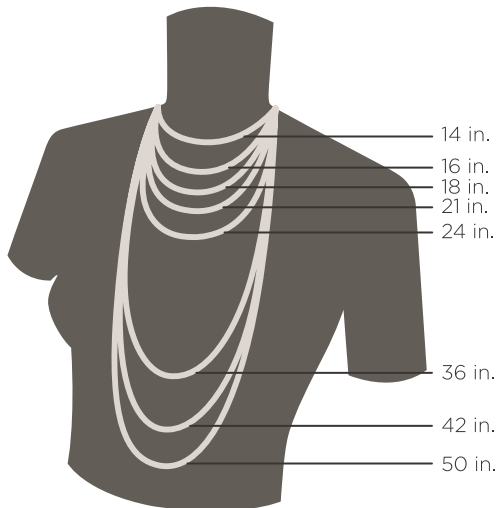

DIFFERENT TYPES OF NECKLACES

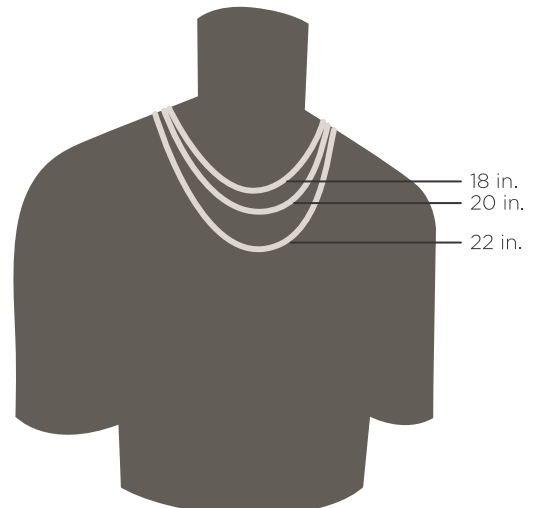

- Chain necklace: John Hardy's signature chains are handwoven and are usually worn with a pendant.
- Sautoir necklace: long necklaces, often worn in multiple layers.
- Station necklace: necklace with decorative stations along the length.
- Link necklace: link-on-link necklaces are usually worn with a pendant.
- Coil necklace: flexible coil mechanism made from titanium inner core, sits comfortably on the collarbone.
- Leather cord necklace: made of leather cord or woven leather cord, usually worn with pendants. Requires some wearing before it is seasoned to sit naturally on the collar bone.

HOW GEMSTONES ARE MEASURED

Gems have been measured in carat weight since antiquity. The word comes from kuara, the seed of the African Coral Tree. Since 1907, the standard weight of a carat has been accepted as 0.2 gram.

A gem is usually weighed to two decimal places (for example, 1.27 carats, 1.20 carats). The carat weight of gems should not be confused with the term karat used to measure the purity of gold. Pure gold is 24K, which is too soft for jewelry. High quality jewelry is usually 18K.

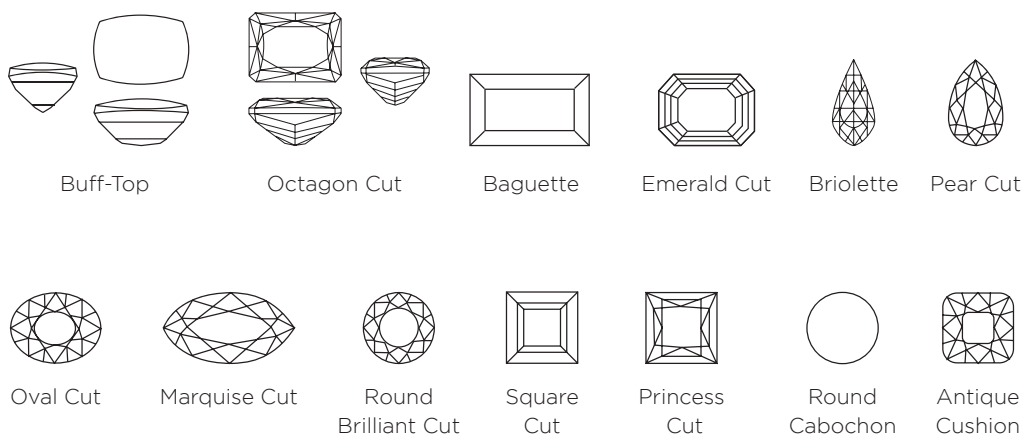

HOW GEMSTONES ARE CUT

Gemstones are either faceted (cut with geometrically shaped, flat and polished surfaces) or cabochons, which are domed and polished. Usually translucent stones are faceted and opaque stones are cut as cabochons.

PAVÉ SETTING

When small gemstones of a similar size are set very close together, this is called pavé, because of its paved effect. In the John Hardy collections, a pavé of different colors and sizes of gemstones is called LAVA.

COMMON GEMSTONE CUTS

AGATE

Prized by ancient Greeks and Egyptians for its medicinal uses, the distinctive appearance of Agate made it a favorite of the gemstone trade around the world. In fact, Agates contributed to the rise of the stonecutting and polishing industry in central Europe during the Renaissance

- Agate is a variety of banded Chalcedony, in the Quartz family, and can be found in many rocks, though it is typically associated with volcanic activity
- It comes in bright hues of nearly every color, and is characterized by concentric bands within the stone
- Most common sources for John Hardy: USA, Brazil, China, India, Mexico, Madagascar, Uruguay

AMETHYST

A symbol of royalty, intellect, and wit, Amethyst blends shades of violet and red for an unforgettable hue. Throughout history, it has acquired meanings both spiritual and earthly, and perplexed scientists with an unlikely composition that creates waves of intensity within the stone.

- A variety of Quartz, Amethysts range from light pinkish violet to deep purple
- The name comes from the Greek and means “against drunkenness”
- Historically, amethyst was one of the five cardinal gemstones (with Diamond, Emerald, Ruby and Blue Sapphire)
- Purple is traditionally the color of royalty, and fine Amethysts feature prominently in England’s crown jewels
- An Amethyst of pale lilac hue that is typically from Brazil is known as “Rose de France”
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Brazil, Nigeria, Zambia

APACHE GOLD

Apache Gold is a combination of Steatite and Golden Pyrite.

- Stones exhibit a variety of patterning, with metallic patches and flecks
- Apache Gold is said to align the body with the earth's magnetic fields
- Most common source for John Hardy: USA

AQUAMARINE

Cool, serene and beautiful to wear, Aquamarine is a reminder of calm seas, and has been said to guarantee a safe voyage. Reflecting both ocean and sky, its lucid blue brings good feelings to the wearer, especially when bathed in sunlight.

- A hard and durable green-blue gemstone of the Beryl family, hues range from pale sky blue to dark blue and blue-green
- Its name means "water of the sea"
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Brazil, Kenya, Madagascar, Mozambique, Russia, Tanzania, Uruguay, USA, Zambia

BOULDER OPAL

Opal is the world's most popular phenomenal gem. Many cultures have credited opal with supernatural origins and powers. It has been referred to as the gem of hope, purity and truth. Boulder opal is translucent to opaque with a play of color against a light to dark background. Host rock fragments, or matrix are part of the finished gem making this a unique and beautiful addition to a jewelry wardrobe.

- Most common source for John Hardy: Australia

BRONZITE

This mineral has a bronze-like sub-metallic luster.

- Thought to be protective and grounding, Bronzite is used to restore harmony and self-confidence
- It is also said to strengthen non-judgmental discernment, and be beneficial for masculine energy
- Most common sources for John Hardy: USA

CALCITE (SILVER CALCITE)

Calcite is most often a colorless crystal, but can occur in many tints. John Hardy uses a variety known as Silver Calcite where there is a silver colored metal that runs through the stone filling the natural crevices found in the calcite. This combination of stone and metal creates a unique and beautiful contrasting look. The stone is said to amplify learning abilities and intuition, and is sometimes given to students.

- The word "Calcite" comes from the Latin calx, meaning "lime." It is commonly found in limestone and marble
- Most common source for John Hardy: Canada

CARNELIAN

In the ancient world, from the Middle East to Tibet, Carnelian was hailed for its healing and spiritual qualities. In ancient Egypt, it was considered one of the three most precious stones, along with Turquoise and Lapis Lazuli.

- A translucent to opaque light orange to deep reddish-brown cryptocrystalline quartz of the Chalcedony family
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Brazil, India, Madagascar, Sri Lanka, Uruguay

CHALCEDONY

Gentle and radiant, chalcedony is known as "the Speaker's Stone," one that encourages reflection and measured words. Considered nurturing, it promotes good will. (Khalkedon) on the Bosphorus Sea near Istanbul.

- A class of gemstones that includes Agate, Carnelian, Chrysoprase and Onyx, chalcedony occurs in a variety of colors: white to grey, grayish-blue, and a shade of brown ranging from pale to nearly black.
- Its name comes from the city of its discovery, Chalcedon (Khalkedon) on the Bosphorus Sea near Istanbul.
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Brazil, India

CITRINE

Sometimes called "The Merchant's Stone," Citrine is said to promote prosperity — and help maintain wealth.

- A natural lemon yellow variety of the Quartz family
- Sometimes referred to as Topaz Quartz, but should not be confused with Topaz
- A Mandarin Citrine is rich bright orange, a Madeira Citrine from bright pumpkin orange to dark red-orange, and a Honey Citrine has rich brown tones
- Most common source for John Hardy: Brazil

DIAMOND

Diamond draws its name from the Greek word adamas, meaning invincible. The singular product of natural forces at work, diamonds are hailed as the hardest substance on earth. They stand for clarity, and are said to dispel harmful toxins and grow in power when combined with other stones.

- John Hardy complies with the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme, and warrants that our diamonds have been purchased from legitimate sources not involved in the funding of conflict, and in conformance with United Nations resolutions. For more information, please refer to the Kimberley Process section of this book.
- John Hardy only uses natural diamonds. None of our pieces contain laboratory created diamonds, or any that are otherwise man-made.
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Australia, India, Botswana, South Africa

EMERALD

Intense and radiant, Emeralds represent rebirth and foresight. Prized for centuries, these stones overflowed the treasure chests of ancient Egypt and pre-Colombian empires. Their lively green has become the symbol of the new growth that reappears every spring.

- A variety of Beryl, Emeralds span a full range of greens, with secondary hues of yellow and blue
- Emerald inclusions are often described as looking mossy or garden-like. They're sometimes called jardin, which is French for garden
- Because most emeralds are highly included, they are often treated to enhance their visual appeal. There are different types of treatments include oiling to enhance the beauty of the stone, a common practice in the jewelry industry.
- The color of the John Hardy Brazilian Emerald is a beautiful green with strong green saturation, which creates the opaqueness. Emeralds are not typically available in our larger 20x15 size, and by using the opaque, saturated stones, John Hardy is able to deliver a rare, beautiful and well-priced stone to the market
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Brazil, Colombia, Zambia, Africa, Columbia

GARNET

Derived from the word granatum, meaning seed, Garnet resembles a pomegranate seed and symbolizes lasting friendship, rooted in trust. While the deep, reddish shade is the most widely known and admired, garnets appear in an array of colors praised for their hardness and wearability.

- A group of stones with similar chemical structure in a wide range of colors: green, yellow, fiery orange, pink, red, green, brown and, most commonly, a rich brownish red
- Spessartite, bright orange when pure, is also known as Mandarin Garnet; Hessonite is orange brown; Rhodolite is rose red or pale pink violet
- Most common sources for John Hardy: India, Mozambique, Tanzania

HEMATITE

Also known as Alaskan Black Diamond, this mineral occurs in black iron ore and takes a brilliant polish. It is known for its grounding and stabilizing properties, and to aid mental organization.

- Its varietal name is Specularite, from the Latin word for mirror
- In ancient Babylonia, Hematite was used for making seals
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Australia, Brazil, Canada, England, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, Mexico, Madagascar, UK, USA

HESSONITE

(See Garnet)

IOLITE

A pale blue, lilac, lavender or violet gemstone from the Greek word ios, for “violet.” It is also called the ‘Water Sapphire.’ It is distinguished by its extreme pleochroism, meaning that it reflects different colors depending on the angle from which the stone is viewed.

- Iolites vary in color from sapphire blue to blue violet to yellowish gray to light blue as the light angle changes
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Australia, Brazil, Canada, India, Madagascar, Namibia, Sri Lanka, Tanzania, USA

JADE

Hard and typically green, Jade is the name given to two stones, Nephrite and Jadeite, which are similarly tough but differ in appearance. Jadeite will be more translucent, while Nephrite is more opaque. Indigenous cultures around the world consider jade a symbol of healing and protection.

- Because it can be sharpened and polished, jade has been used in tools and weaponry for millennia
- Jade carvings appear in many societies, and it was especially prized by the Chinese emperors
- John Hardy uses Nephrite Jade, and the stones can be highly individual in appearance, which reflects the drama of the brand
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Canada, Russia, Brazil

JASPER

Jasper is an earthy, speckled stone that can evoke golden sunshine, fields of poppies or even the deep green jungles of Bali. It is known for its nurturing qualities, and has been worn by religious figures and royalty throughout history.

- Dense and opaque, Jasper is an aggregate of Quartz, Chalcedony and other minerals
- The name, which stems from French, means “spotted or speckled stone”
- It is usually red, yellow or earth-toned, but rarely blue
- Red Jasper & Dragon Blood Jasper gets their tones from iron inclusions
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Brazil, USA, India, Madagascar, Uruguay, Mexico, Canada

LABRADORITE

Named for Labrador, Canada, where it is commonly found, Labradorite is known for its “labradorescence,” which is a specific and eye-catching type of iridescence. In Inuit lore, it is fire that fell from the Aurora Borealis and froze on the way to earth.

- Labradorite is a feldspar that is typically gray-green, dark gray, black or grayish white, but its signature iridescence gives it fleeting flashes of peacock blue, green, red and even gold
- Most common source for John Hardy: Madagascar

LAPIS LAZULI

An opaque, deep blue gemstone with inclusions of golden pyrites that shimmer like stars in a brilliant night sky. It is one of the earliest stones to be worked as a jewel. The name of the stone means “stone of azure,” the Latin word for “stone” being lapis and “azure” deriving from the Persian word Lazward, the name of the place where the stone was once mined.

- Prized for its celestial blue hue, lapis embodies the night sky and is the universal symbol of wisdom and truth
- Prized in ancient Egypt, Lapis Lazuli decorated the golden sarcophagus of King Tut, as well as other Egyptian pharaohs
- During the Renaissance, Lapis Lazuli imported to Europe was ground into ultramarine, a blue pigment used by master painters
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Afghanistan, Angola, Canada, Chile, India, Pakistan, Russia, Siberia, USA

MALACHITE

Opaque and powerful, Malachite's beautiful, rich green can enchant the wearer. It conjures the natural beauty of trees and plants. Lighter green "eye" shapes on the surface of certain stones are said to lend them visionary powers. A mesmerizing stone of transformation, malachite is cherished by healers and represents the innate beauty of nature. This protective stone absorbs negative energy while harmonizing the mind, body, and spirit.

- This crystal includes copper, which gives it a distinct green appearance
- Because of its hue, it was named after the mallow plant
- Malachite was used as a mineral pigment in green paints from antiquity through the Renaissance
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Zambia, Namibia, Mexico, USA, Africa

MOONSTONE

The unique interior structure of moonstone creates a play of light within the crystal — a glow like the full moon. Thought to increase spiritual awareness, the shimmering stone has been said to bring the wearer pleasant visions at night, and is also thought to safeguard love and increase fertility.

- Moonstone forms naturally when two types of feldspar species form into alternating layers. When light falls between these layers, it scatters in a way that looks as if it is emanating from the stone
- The stones come in many colors — we use rainbow, white, peach and gray
- White Moonstone signifies strength and new beginnings
- Most common sources for John Hardy: India, Sri Lanka, Australia, Mexico, Africa

MORGANITE

Morganite is also known as "Pink Beryl" or "Rose Beryl," and is sometimes called "Pink Emerald." It was discovered on an island near Madagascar in 1910, and named after the financier J.P. Morgan.

- Perhaps because of its rosy appearance, it is said to attract and maintain love
- Most common source for John Hardy: Africa, Mozambique, Madagascar

OBSIDIAN

This volcanic glass is formed when lava that erupts from a volcano cools rapidly. Shiny and opaque, it is deep black.

- Obsidian is rock-like, but is actually a glass
- It is named after Obsius, a Roman explorer, who is said to have discovered it on the coast of Ethiopia
- Obsidian can be prefixed with the word 'sheen' which means that streaks of other colors can be seen in the glass
- Golden sheen obsidian is best known for its ability to balance energy and encourage insight
- In some stones, the inclusion of small, white, radially clustered crystals of cristobalite in the black glass produces a blotchy or snowflake pattern (snowflake obsidian)
- Available in the following colors: Silver Sheen, Golden Sheen, Rainbow, Snowflake, Mahogany
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Mexico, USA, China

ONYX

Like Agate, Onyx is another variety of layered Chalcedony known for the bands that can be seen within the stone. But where Agate has curved, undulating bands, Onyx's bands are parallel.

- Onyx occurs in reds and yellows, but the name is typically associated with black Onyx, though it is not as common
- Onyx is typically cut into cabochon, or made into beads. In ancient Egypt, it was used to make bowls and other serving pieces
- Onyx is said to fortify self confidence
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Brazil, USA, India, Madagascar, Uruguay

OPAL

Opal's internal structure bends or diffracts light, and the stone can take on many different colors depending on where it was formed. In fact, the interplay of internal colors is what makes the stone so sought after.

- The name comes from the Sanskrit upala, meaning "precious stone." It also evolved from the Greek opallios, which means "to see a change of color"
- Most common source for John Hardy: Ethiopia, Australia

PEARL

Pearls have been prized since ancient Chinese, Egyptian and Persian cultures used them in jewelry and decorative arts. They symbolize wisdom and experience, and are known to have calming properties.

- Pearls grow within aquatic animals such as mussels and oysters, and can occur in the wild or be cultured, meaning farmed. Culturing allows the farmers to ensure the health of the organisms, and the quality of the pearl
- There are many different types of pearls, such as South Sea, Tahitian, Akoya and Freshwater
- In some pieces we use spherical pearls, and in others we look for natural, organic shapes
- We select pearls with high luster, which makes them intriguing and flattering to a broad range of skin tones
- Most common sources for John Hardy: China, Tahiti, Australia, Polynesia, Japan

PERIDOT

A fresh green stone whose hue ranges from lemony green to dark, lime green. Many "emeralds" in royal treasuries are in fact Peridots. The stone is associated with compassion, and is thought to aid in healing and renewal. Some say that it can help locate lost objects.

- A variety of the mineral olivine, formed during volcanic eruptions
- The name is thought to come from the Arabic faridat, meaning "gem"
- Most common sources for John Hardy: China, USA

PIETERSITE

Pietersite is a variety of quartz known for its stormy appearance, with flashes of golden light and moody clouds. It is said to stand for protection, especially against extreme weather.

- Pietersite was discovered in 1962 in Namibia
- It is said to "make all things new," banishing negative energy and emotional turmoil
- It is an important stone in John Hardy men's collections
- Most common source for John Hardy: Namibia

PRASIOLITE

A green Quartz also known as Vermarine, Prasiolite is rare in nature but can be produced by heat treating Amethyst. Some Amethysts turn yellow or orange when heated, which makes them Citrine, but others turn green.

- When it occurs in nature, Prasiolite tends to be light and translucent, but darker shades can be manufactured
- Because of its color, Prasiolite is said to create a link to nature for the wearer
- Most common source for John Hardy: Brazil

PYRITE

Pyrite, also known as fool's gold, has a metallic luster with pale brass-yellow hues that give it a superficial resemblance to gold. The name pyrite is derived from the Greek pyrites, "of fire" or "in fire." Pyrite is usually found in quartz veins, sedimentary rock, and metamorphic rock, as well as in coal beds and as a replacement mineral in fossils.

- Most common source for John Hardy: Peru, Mexico and North America

QUARTZ

Quartz is the second most abundant mineral in Earth's continental crust, behind feldspar. The word "quartz" is derived from the German word "Quarz". The Ancient Greeks referred to quartz as krystallos meaning "icy cold" as some philosophers believed the mineral to be a form of supercoiled ice. Today, the term rock crystal is sometimes used as an alternative name for the purest form of quartz.

There are many different colors of quartz that the industry has aptly named. Most notably quartz varieties are Rock Crystal, Smokey, Black, Rose, Milky, Champagne, Bi Color, Whiskey, Cognac Rutilated and Lemon. Please note that Citrine, Prasiolite and Amethyst belong to the Quartz family as well.

- Most common source for John Hardy: Brazil, Africa and North America

ROSE DE FRANCE

(See Amethyst)

RHODOLITE

(See Garnet)

RHODONITE

When Rhodonite was discovered in the Ural Mountains of Russia, locals noticed eagles often carried small pieces of the stone to their nests. The beautiful, rose-colored mineral became known as "The Eagle Stone," and was traditionally tucked into babies' cradles for positive energy.

- Iron and magnesium are sometimes found around the crystals, giving the stone contrasting veins of black and pink
- The name comes from the Greek rhodon, meaning "rose"
- Most common source for John Hardy: Brazil

RUBY

A rare gemstone of the Corundum family distinguished by its fiery crimson color and otherwise identical to the Sapphire, its name comes from the Latin word for "red." In Sanskrit it is called ratnaraj, meaning "king of gemstones."

- A fiery gem beloved for its qualities of protection and passion, Indian ruby is said to draw its gifts from the sun. The stone's color suggests a flame that will never burn out, enabling the wearer to draw strength from its majestic energy
- Ruby can command the highest prices of any colored gemstone. The percarat prices of fine-quality rubies have been rising consistently, many times breaking auction records
- Typical ruby clarity characteristics include thin mineral inclusions called needles, which might be intersecting, called silk, or woven tightly together. Ruby can also contain needles composed of other minerals, small crystals, zones of color variation, or inclusions that resemble fingerprints. These identify the stone as Ruby, help identify the place of origin, and are not considered flaws
- Using opaque, color-saturated stones, John Hardy is able to deliver, a rare, beautiful and well-priced stone to the market
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Afghanistan, Kenya, Madagascar, Sri Lanka, Tanzania, Thailand, Vietnam, India

RUBELLITE

(See Tourmaline)

SAPPHIRE

Sapphire is the term for all gem-quality Corundum that is not red (Red Sapphires are Rubies). It is the second hardest crystal on earth after Diamond, and has been highly prized as a gemstone for more than 2,000 years. Over the ages, it has been said to have the power to root out treachery and protect its wearer from poison.

- Although Sapphires are generally thought of as blue, they are also found in yellow, orange, pink, purple and green, as well as in black and white
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Australia, Cambodia, China, India, Kenya, Madagascar, Nigeria, Sri Lanka, Tanzania, Thailand, Vietnam

BLACK/WHITE SAPPHIRE

The striking look of Black Sapphire is a perfect contrast to a sterling silver setting.

- In the Hindu culture of Bali, the color black is associated with the god Vishnu, deity of springs and protection
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Australia, Vietnam, China

BLUE SAPPHIRE

The best Blue Sapphires, with a deep, intense hue, are rare and costly.

- Most common source for John Hardy: Nigeria, Sri Lanka, Thailand, Vietnam

RED SAPPHIRE / RUBY

A rare gemstone of the Corundum family distinguished by its fiery crimson color and otherwise identical to the Sapphire. Its name comes from the Latin word for 'red.' In Sanskrit it is called 'ratnaraj,' meaning 'king of gemstones.'

Inclusions, caused by events in their formation millions of years ago, are characteristic of true Rubies and not considered flaws.

- Ruby is the birthstone for July and is associated with the 15th and 40th wedding anniversaries and the astrological sign Capricorn.
- Most common source for John Hardy: Afghanistan, Kenya, Madagascar, Sri Lanka, Tanzania, Thailand, Vietnam

GOLDSHEEN SAPPHIRE

These unexpected, intriguing Sapphires are gold in hue, with a magical play of light under the surface.

- Most common sources for John Hardy: Liberia, Kenya, Africa

PINK SHEEN SAPPHIRE

A soft and delicate pink gemstone that shimmers with the light. Pink Sheen Sapphire is an ideal stone of emotional and psychic protection. It is exceptional for calming and focusing the mind, allowing the release of mental tension and unwanted thoughts.

- Most common source for John Hardy: Africa

SILVER SHEEN SAPPHIRE

A light silvery grey gemstone that shimmers with the light. The magnificent and holy Sapphire, in all its celestial hues, is a stone of wisdom and royalty, of prophecy and Divine favor. It is forever associated with sacred things and considered the gem of gems, a jewel steeped in the history and lore of nearly every religion.

- Most common source for John Hardy: Africa

SODALITE

With its rich, royal blue, Sodalite is popular as an ornamental gemstone since deposits of the material were found in Canada at the end of the 1800s. It is sometimes compared to Lapis Lazuli.

- The stone is said to mend breakdowns of communication, and stand for truth
- Most common source for John Hardy: Canada

SPESSARTITE

(See Garnet)

SPINEL

A rare natural gemstone treasured for its range of hues including from pale pink to purple, orange to a variety of reds, and the very rare deep blue. Spinel has excellent hardness and high clarity, and is called the "collector's stone."

- The name may derive from the Greek word for "spark" or the Latin for "thorn"
- Some famous Rubies, such as the "Black Prince's Ruby" (worn into battle by Henry V) and the "Timur Ruby" in the British Crown jewels, are actually Spinel
- Fine Spinel are now rarer than Rubies
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Thailand, Cambodia, Sri Lanka, Brazil, Madagascar

TANZANITE

This blue-violet gemstone was discovered in Tanzania in the 1960s, and is known for transmutation. It can shift from lilac-blue to deep sapphire or blue-tinged violet.

- To this day, it only occurs in the Merelani Hills in Tanzania, East Africa
- The stone is said to aid in career changes
- Most common source for John Hardy: Tanzania

TIGER'S EYE

A golden brown form of Quartz, distinguished by its chatoyance — an optical effect arising from its fibrous structure, which makes it resemble the eye of a cat.

- It is also known as Chatoyant Quartz
- Tiger's Eye sometimes occurs with yellow and golden brown stripes. We also use red Tiger's eye, which occurs naturally when a golden-brown Tiger's Eye is exposed to an event such as fire or a lightning strike
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Africa, Brazil, China, Namibia

TOPAZ

Its name may come from the Sanskrit for "fire," and the ancient Egyptians said that the golden glow of Topaz came from the mighty sun god, Ra. In ancient Greece, Topaz was thought to make the wearer invisible in an emergency. In 15th century Europe, Topaz was used to detect poisons, calm anger, and break spells.

- A gemstone with excellent hardness, Topaz occurs in blue, green, yellow, orange, red, pink and purple, as well as white (colorless)
- Naturally occurring Blue Topaz is very rare and very pale. Most Blue Topaz is achieved by exposing the colorless stone to electrons or neutrons (irradiation)
- Blue Topaz comes in 3 main colors: Sky Blue which is the lightest, Swiss Blue which is a stronger blue color and London Blue which is the darkest
- Some John Hardy pieces use Rutilated Topaz, which contains rutiles — needle-like inclusions that give the stone depth and interest
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Brazil, Mozambique, Nigeria, Sri Lanka

TOURMALINE

Tourmaline occurs in over 100 different hues, including bi-color crystals that show a shift from one color to another. The name comes from the Sinhalese term for "multi-colored."

- Pink Tourmaline occurs in a range of vibrant hues. Green Tourmaline, also known as Verdite, has a rich emerald hue. Tourmalines from Malawi are a vivid yellow and are called Canary Tourmalines. Red Tourmaline, very rare and often mistaken for the Ruby, is also called Rubellite, a stone so beloved by the last Dowager Empress of China that she once bought a full ton and was laid to rest on a pillow of Rubellite
- Topaz is typically pink and green — in a Watermelon Tourmaline, the pink is surrounded by green
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Afghanistan, Brazil, Kenya, Madagascar, Mozambique, Nigeria, Sri Lanka, Tanzania, USA, Zambia

TSAVORITE

Tsavorite is a bright green variety of Garnet, discovered in East Africa in the late 1960s and named for Tsavo National Park in Kenya.

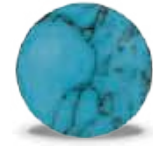

- The color ranges from a spring-like light green to an intense blue-green and a deep forest green
- Tsavorite has a high refractive index and is famous for its brilliance. Its sparkle can be seen even through clothing
- Tsavorite is 200 times rarer than Emeralds and mostly found in relatively small sizes
- Most common sources for John Hardy: Kenya, Tanzania

TURQUOISE

An opaque, blue-to-green mineral, Turquoise gems appear naturally in a variety of shades of blues and greens, often with a brown or black matrix. It has been prized as a gem and ornamental stone for thousands of years and around the world owing to its unique hue. It is believed to be the first gemstone used in jewelry, noted as being worn on bracelets by the Egyptian Queen Zur as early as 7500 BC.

- The pre-Columbian Aztecs, Incas and Mayas used Turquoise in ceremonial weaponry and ornamentation and it was cherished by the Native Americans of the Southwest United States as well
- In Persia, present day Iran, it was used to decorate the inside and outside of buildings. This style of using the precious stone was taken to India where it was used in the decoration of the Taj Mahal
- Its name is from the Old French for 'Turkish,' the first turquoise stones having been traded from Persia to Europe through Turkey
- Most common source for John Hardy: USA, Mexico, China

VOLCANIC LAVA STONE

This carbon-based material is commonly found in areas with volcanic activity, like Bali. It reflects our ties to our environment, is hard-wearing and requires no special care.

- Most common sources for John Hardy: USA, Indonesia, Italy

OTHER MATERIALS

ENAMEL

Enamel is an opaque glassy substance that can be hand applied in a hard coating to our pieces, adding decoration. It is typically made of powdered glass heated at high temperatures until it becomes a liquid. Once applied, it cools and hardens.

- For flawless results, enamels are often applied in several thin layers, which can create various decorative effects when layers are pierced or scraped away by the artisan.
- The layers are fused through "firing" — heating at high temperatures, and final, sealing layer of transparent enamel can be applied.

HORN

Animal horn can be carved, shaped and used as an accent or structural element in a piece. Typically made from water buffalo horn, the making of jewelry from horn goes back for generations in Southeast Asia.

- Our horn comes from domesticated water buffalo in Kenya
- Most common source for John Hardy: Multiple countries

KOKKA SEEDS

Kokka seeds come from Piassava Palm tree (Attalea Funifera) from Brazil. These 100% natural kokka seeds vary in bead shapes making each slightly different from its counterpart creating a unique bead every time.

- Most common source for John Hardy: Brazil

LEATHER

Soft and durable, leather conforms to the wearer over time, which contributes to the comfort and individuality of John Hardy pieces. We source hypoallergenic leathers, and use them in novel ways, such as cutting them into the elements of a larger piece.

- Leather adds a more casual look to certain pieces, as well as color variety
- In some John Hardy pieces, we use stingray skin. Our stingray is sustainably farmed in Thailand
- Most common source for John Hardy: Multiple countries

MOTHER OF PEARL

A smooth shining iridescent substance forming the inner layer of the shell of some mollusks, especially oysters and abalones. The body color is usually white but it can also be various shades of gray, black and yellow. Mother of Pearls rich luster and frequent display of orient come close to duplicating the appearance of pearl but only on one side of the material.

- Most common source for John Hardy: Australia, Tahiti, Japan and China

WOOD

The broad range of woods available allow us to select materials that complement an artisan's inspiration, and offer something unexpected to the wearer. John Hardy collections feature woods such as Rosewood and Palmwood. In Spring 2017, we will add Ebony.

- Indigenous to Bali, Palmwood is so dense that it will sink when placed in water
- Named after the flower, Rosewood smells like roses when it is first harvested. It has a beautiful blush color that changes over time
- Blending different woods with silver and gold metalwork adds depth and interest to John Hardy designs
- Wood speaks to the connection of our process to the land, as well as our connection to Balinese traditional art, and contributes to lightness and wearability
- Wearing wooden jewelry or ornaments has meanings throughout history, such as in Druid and Celtic myth. Different woods symbolize themes such as growth, beginnings and peace
- Most common source for John Hardy: Ebony – Africa, Snakewood – Brazil, Rosewood – Indonesia, India, Palmwood – Indonesia, India

NOTES ON CLEANING THE JEWELRY

Most gold and silver jewelry can be cleaned with a liquid detergent solution. For silver jewelry, it is best to use a mild cleaner without bleaching agents, abrasives or ammonia. Soak the items in a warm solution of water and detergent, then rinse (IMPORTANT: do not use detergent on pearls). A gentle brushing with a soft toothbrush can loosen dirt. Do not soak sterling silver for too long, as this can change oxidized finishes.

SPECIAL CARE FOR CERTAIN JOHN HARDY PIECES

John Hardy designs push the boundaries of imagination and craftsmanship. Jewelry of extreme delicacy requires special gentleness when handled.

- Cuffs without opening mechanisms: avoid squeezing or using undue force when putting them on and taking them off. This will spoil the shape and can damage the piece.
- Chains: do not bend them beyond their natural drape as this can damage the piece.
- Hinges and clasps: use “pinch” clasps properly — pinch, do not pull with undue force. Do not bend hinges.
- Leather: clean only with leather care products. Do not wash.
- Electroform Gold: only polish by hand as machine polishing can damage the product.

JOHN HARDY REPAIR SERVICES

Our professional jewelers will clean, polish and restore customers’ jewelry to look like new.

WARRANTY POLICY

The John Hardy warranty policy covers basic repairs and manufacturing defects for one year. A sales receipt must be provided from a John Hardy authorized retailer for this warranty to be valid.

Repairs covered under warranty are as follows:

- Broken clasp / hinge
- Missing gold dots
- Missing pavé stones
- Broken post
- Broken bale
- Broken weave / chain

RESIZING

Resizing is not covered under warranty.

- Rings can only be sized up or down by two finger size, provided they have a sizing bar. However, some rings can only be sized by half a size due to the design. Please contact our Customer Service representatives to see if your particular ring can be altered before sending it to us.
- Electroform gold rings cannot be resized.
- A single earring or stone piece that requires a match must be sent to us as a repair.

HOW TO SEND IN A REPAIR

To send in your John Hardy jewelry for service, please email repair@johnhardy.com and include the following information:

- Full name
- Email
- Contact number
- Store #:
- Store Name:
- Internal Job #:
- Shipping address
- Detailed description of the repair
- Receipt (if purchased within a year for warranty coverage)
- Style number (if available) or take a clear picture of the item so that we can identify the style number

Once you forward the above information to our repair service team, we will send you a packing slip and service order number to track your repair. Please be sure to print out the packing slip and include it with your jewelry. If you purchased your jewelry less than a year ago, please include a copy of your receipt. We recommend insuring the package with FedEx or UPS and keeping the tracking number for your records. Please pack repair item(s) securely to prevent damage during transit. We do not return original packaging, so please do not send any repair item with packaging materials such as jewelry boxes or pouches that require to be returned.
