Dealer uncovers Countess of Carnarvon in Portugal

Found covered in grime in a Portuguese auction house, a three-quarter-length portrait of a dark-haired lady by Dutch artist Willem Wissing (1655-1709) has been restored to its former glory by a Belgian dealership and the identity of its sitter revealed as a British aristocrat.

The portrait, 4ft x 3ft 4in (1.23 x 1m), depicts the sitter dressed in a green cloak, seated against a dark curtain with a landscape and country house in the background. It went under the hammer in September 2020 at Cabral Moncada Leilões in Lisbon, where it was catalogued as 'probably' Wissing and the sitter said to be Mary of Modena, Queen Consort of England.

Bumper sales totals reveal Dreweatts now takes top spot

Auction figures show a shake-up of the status quo

by Roland Arkell

In a 12-month period when the traditional auction market was transformed by digitalisation, many of the leading regional fine art auction houses enjoyed record sales.

The reasons for a remarkable upturn in fortunes were three-fold: the mini art market boom that led to price increases during the pandemic; the positive input of a new generation of buyers turned on by the internet and the focus of the major London houses on the highest-value lots which has led to more consignments going to regional firms.

DREWEATTS

The leading UK auction firm in the calendar year of 2021 was Dreweatts.

Total hammer sales (without premium) at the Donnington Priory were £27.71m, a record for any regional saleroom. Equivalent sales for the firm, owned by art consultancy and valuation specialist Gurr Johns since a £1.25m deal in 2017, had been £14.6m in 2020.

Managing director Jonathan Pratt says the most important factors behind Dreweatts'

TEFAF to clash with Masterpiece

The June calendar for art and antiques fairs is filling up as TEFAF revealed new dates.

TEFAF Maastricht has announced its postponed March event will take place at the end of June, overlapping Masterpiece London.

The European Fine Art Foundation (TEFAF) said the 35th anniversary edition of the Maastricht fair will take place from Saturday to Thursday, June 25-30, at the MECC in Maastricht.

Art dealer launches auctions to be staged in Chelsea

by Laura Chesters

Fine art dealer Daniel Hunt has launched an auction business opposite his former dealership in Sloane Street.

Hunt, who has been a dealer for 35 years, had operated from 58 and 60 Lower Sloane Street.

However, following a redevelopment of the building by the landlord, he has relocated opposite to 69 Lower Sloane Street which he has leased and redeveloped to house the auction business, named Sloane Street Auctions.

The first sale is planned for February 24 offering fine art and antiques including French 18th century furniture, English 18th century silver, Old Master pictures, objet d'art and antiquities.

The items are from a number of consignors including US collectors and private properties in Knightsbridge and Chelsea, as well as items from the Condylis collection (the collection of a Greek shipping family).

This is followed by another fine art and antiques sale on April 12, a photography sale on May 17 and Contemporary and Modern art on July 1.

Sloane Street Auctions comprises a team of six full-time staff and "dozens of consultants".

The auctions will be held at Wren House at the Royal Hospital Chelsea with viewings at 69 Lower Sloane Street.

The live auction will also be streamed online via selling platforms including thesaleroom.com (owned by ATG's parent company).

Wissing portrait sitter now identified and, convinced it was something special, managed to acquire it with a bid of €17,000 (£15,000) over a high estimate of €9000.

Then began the long process of discovering who it depicts.

First, during a 10-month restoration process, which stretched to over a year with transportation time, a dirty layer of varnish was removed, revealing Wissing's brushwork and, crucially, his previously partly obscured signature to the lower right.

Research opportunity

Next came the wait for libraries to reopen as coronavirus restrictions loosened.

Research by art historian Adam Busiakiewicz – concluded in December last year – identified the sitter as Lady Mary Bertie (1655-1709), Countess of Carnarvon, second wife of Charles Dormer, 2nd Earl of Carnarvon. It is likely the portrait was produced around the time of their marriage.

Dormer had been a patron of court painter Sir Peter Lely, whom Wissing studied under after moving to England in 1676. After his master's death, Wissing emerged as his most important student, making him a natural choice for Dormer when commissioning an image of his new wife.

At least two other versions of the portrait have appeared on the open market. One, a studio repetition of the painting catalogued as 'Circle of Wissing' and incorrectly identified, sold at Sotheby's London in 1997. Another, a simplified derivation inscribed with the sitter's name and title, was sold at Bonhams in 2011.

Akkermans said: "Despite its very yellowed varnish layer, from the very first glance the painting felt mesmerising. My first thought when I saw it in the catalogue was 'what a beauty' and my second 'I'll never be able to acquire that'. But I still signed up for a telephone line and in the end was able to secure the painting."

She adds: "Only after the cleaning it was possible to read the painting again and to see both the signature as well as Wissing's beautiful brushwork."

It is now offered for €35,000.

TEFAF Maastricht date will overlap Masterpiece

An invitation-only preview will take place on June 24 and the morning of June 25.

Masterpiece London is scheduled for June 30-July 6 in the UK with a preview day on June 29.

TEFAF Maastricht was postponed last month from a planned March 12-20 staging because of ongoing concern about the coronavirus pandemic. The new dates were agreed by TEFAF's Board of Trustees and its Executive Committee, which comprises 13 dealers and seven non-dealers.

Complex situation

TEFAF chairman Hidde van Seggelen said: "This was a complex situation which required the input and flexibility of many different individuals and organisations to enable us to reschedule TEFAF Maastricht."

"We are proud to join several other leading art fairs in June for a key moment in the art world calendar this year."

The new TEFAF dates follow contemporary art fair Art Basel in Switzerland on June 16-19.

Masterpiece London chief executive Lucie Kitchener confirmed the date for the event, which is owned by Swiss events firm MCH Group (which also owns Art Basel among other fairs).

She said: "We have had very strong applications from both returning exhibitors and new galleries, eager to participate in Masterpiece at such an important time in London."

"We are finalising our selection process which has been largely unaffected by TEFAF's change of dates and will share our exhibitor list in due course."

Earlier this month The Winter Show in New York was postponed and is hoping for a new date in March or April.

Arundel Lion ready to roar again in a new home

The so-called Arundel Lions were once a well-known landmark in Sheffield.

The pair of large 19th century sandstone beasts carved standing with right paw raised on rocky bases were sited on the gateway to the Johnson Matthey factory, supplier of raw materials to local jewellers, silversmiths and the cutlery trade. After the factory closed in the 1980s, the Arundel Gate site was cleared to make way for Sheffield Hallam University buildings but the lions were saved. One of them, now raised on a later plinth measuring 7ft 6in (2.3m) across, had been in a Sheffield garden for many years. Bamfords in Derby was contacted to auction the piece last year and did so on January 13-17 having photographed it in situ. The catalogue pointed out that the buyer would require a lorry crane to remove it from its current location.

As a fabulous example of Victorian garden statuary it sailed above its £4000-6000 estimate to bring £20,000 (plus 24.75% buyer's premium).

pandemic-era success was good financial control, a healthy pipeline of consignments, a good business development team and a willingness to adapt to new technology.

“When we got into April 2020 with the uncertainty of the pandemic we understood the financial challenges but we had a steady stream of consignments, were able to move to online auctions immediately and had premises where staff could work in small teams safely. We worked throughout the pandemic without a single case of Covid.”

The £3.3m ‘on the premises’ sale at Aynhoe Park in Oxfordshire in January and the £1.2m sale of the Sitwell collection at Weston Hall in mid-November book-ended a successful year. Both were assisted by video and online technology that Dreweatts will continue to use.

Pratt adds: “The virtual tours were prompted by lockdowns but they proved a way for international clients in particular to understand the items in room settings. The viewer can see the colour, the scale and envisage it in their home.”

FORUM AUCTIONS

Gurr Johns’ influence on the market is set to grow in 2022 with the acquisition of books and works and paper specialists Forum Auctions in an all-shares deal in December. Forum founder Stephan Ludwig became co-chief executive of the Gurr Johns group.

Forum’s sales performances across the past two years have demonstrated its expertise in ecommerce: total hammer sales in 2020 were £15m (plus £1.4m private treaty sales) and £17m (plus £1.8m) in 2021. In particular, Forum enjoyed great success in the market for Banksy prints: a copy of ‘Britain’s favourite work of art’ Girl With Balloon sold for £200,000 in March. It was one of five examples from the edition of 600 sold in 2021 and one of 19 sold by Forum over the past five years.

LYON & TURNBULL

Lyon & Turnbull’s hammer total for 2021 was just over £21m – by some distance the best aggregate the company has recorded in its long history. This figure does not include the Declaration of Independence that was found in Scotland and sold in partnership with Freeman’s in Philadelphia for $3.7m (£2.85m) or any private treaty sales.

Managing director Gavin Strang is quick to praise the success of sales in both London and in the Edinburgh headquarters: 2021 was a breakthrough year for the dual location model. “We held 42 sales in total in 2021. A growing number of our top sales and staff are based in London and I like to think we are now seen as UK auctioneers rather than solely identified with Edinburgh.”

Sales in London included the Wilhelmina Barns-Graham collection (including a record £380,000 Hepworth drawing) – one of over 30 named collections L&T presented to the market last year.

However, two lots became the most expensive ever sold in Scotland: the £1.2m bid for a gothic ivory table casket, c.1330, in May and £1.04m for a Nicola da Urbino maiolica dish from Lowood House in October. That these were for old-school European antiques was unexpected.

“Our seven-figure lots were very much in the traditional collecting categories and represented true ‘discoveries’ by our specialists,” adds Strang.

‘Windfall’ lots were accompanied by an uplift in demand across many collecting disciplines (with Georgian and Victorian furniture and ceramics the exceptions).

“We have been experiencing an art market boom during the pandemic. With livestreaming, the audience has expanded

“We have been experiencing an art market boom during the pandemic. With livestreaming, the audience has expanded massively. Online bidding has been seen as more accessible by a new generation who may have never considered entering a physical auction house before”

Gavin Strang, Lyon & Turnbull

“Next to Covid, the biggest impact in the last year was Brexit. It has meant greater demand for shipping, VAT refunds, proofs of export and other paperwork which is process heavy and requires a higher level of expertise”

Jonathan Pratt, Dreweatts

“Auctioneers who had expanded digital offerings prior to the pandemic found it a relatively simple step to switch to online-only sales and established buyers were quick to make the switch too”

Jane Tennant, Tennants director

Highlights from 2021.

1. A French gothic ivory table casket, c.1330, sold for £1.2m at Lyon & Turnbull in May.

2. Set of four porcelain plaques (one shown) painted with figures from Chinese history and mythology by Friends of Zhushan artist Wang Qi sold at Woolley & Wallis in Salisbury in July for £500,000.

3. Bluebeard's Last Wife, a 1921 stained-glass panel by Harry Clarke (1889-1931) housed in a mahogany and walnut inlaid cabinet by James Hicks of Dublin sold for €165,000 at Adam's sale of Important Irish Art in March. The panel had last sold at Adam's for €50,000 in 2011.

4. A 16th century maiolica dish decorated with a scene from the Biblical story of Samson and Delilah by Nicola da Urbino sold for £1.04m at Lyon & Turnbull in October. It came from Lowood House, home of the Hamilton family since 1947.

massively. I think that online bidding has been seen as more accessible by a new generation who may have never considered entering a physical auction house before."

WOOLLEY & WALLIS

Woolley & Wallis has been the leading UK regional firm for much of the past 20 years. In 2021 the Salisbury firm conducted sales totalling £20.5m (compared with £14.4m in 2020).

It was the firm's third-highest total in its history next to the highwater mark of £23.4m in 2010 (when a consignment of imperial jades from Crichel House made £9m) and 2017 (when a significant percentage of sales of £22.9m were provided by the private sale of a Benin bronze head of an oba).

The numbers are all the more notable as Woolley & Wallis chose a singular approach to the covid crisis, furloughing staff and closing for several months in both 2020 and 2021. Last year the firm was shuttered until Easter: the first sales of the year held in late April. "When we did come back we hit the ground running," says chairman John Axford. "In the following months we held more sales in a shorter time frame than we have ever done before."

The top prices were for Chinese works of art including the £500,000 bid for a set of four Republican porcelain plaques by Wang Qi. It helped the Asian department to sales of £5.42m but there were significant contributions from jewellery (£3.94m), pictures (£2.96m), furniture and works of art (£2.78m) including the Upper Slaughter Manor house sale and silver (£1.9m).

The firm is currently putting the finishing touches to a new viewing space at its Castlegate warehouse site at Old Sarum.

In recent years, many lots stored in Old Sarum have been packed and moved the two miles to Castle Street, Salisbury, for sale.

The addition of a new floor to the building will increase the firm's exhibition space three-fold and becomes available in April. All auctions will still be held in Salisbury.

FELLOWS

Fellows in Birmingham reported a good year with the majority of auctions held as timed online. It ran 75 specialist sales, of which just 11 were live. Its 21 pawnbroker auctions brought the firm's total number of sales in 2021 to 96. "Our online auctions have gone from strength to strength in 2021," says managing director Stephen Whittaker. "We have seen record numbers of bidders in our weekly jewellery auctions as well as other specialist sales and achieve an average sell-through rate of 80% in both online and live auctions.

"We have kept our buyer's premium rate at 23% (27.6% inclusive of VAT), despite offering a number of services for free. Notably, we have continued to provide free international shipping as standard on the majority of the lots we sell.

"Online bidding is included in the buyer's premium, as is all other bidding types including telephone bidding. We even absorb the cost applied by thesaleroom.com for our bidders using that platform."

SWORDERS

Sworders' 2021 sales of £11.7m also amounted to the highest in the firm's 240-year history.

Chairman Guy Schooling says the firm's performance (up from £9m in 2020 and £9.4m in 2019) reflected a general increase in prices that were "consistently above pre-pandemic levels" and "the democratisation of bidding online that has led to many more private buyers".

Like other auctioneers, he notes European buying had "diminished greatly, post Brexit" but "Modern and Contemporary art sales continued their growth [the Sally Hunter and Ian Postgate collection a particular highlight] and two Asian art sales also far exceeded expectations.

The challenge next year is "to match the 2021 total, hopefully from fewer lots".

DUKE'S

Single-owner sales continued to attract high levels of interest and some of the strongest results.

Duke's of Dorchester enjoyed a strong 2021 helped by a series of country house auctions topped by the contents of Wormington Grange in the Cotswolds, family home of the veteran dealer John Evetts, sold for just over £1.5m.

The auction delivered one for the highest prices for a painting sold in the provinces last year, the record £225,000 paid for a Dorset landscape by Algernon Newton.

Turnover more than doubled from 2020 to just over £8m - a figure that excludes a number of private treaty sales which pushed the total towards £10m.

CHEFFINS

Cheffins posted the year's third seven-figure lot: the house record £1.41m for a late 16th or early 17th century Florentine bronze model of a strutting ostrich from the workshop of Giambologna.

The Cambridge firm's total hammer sales of £8.5m represented a 65% increase on 2020's £5.2m.

"As the market for antiques, artworks and collectables continues to gather pace, we have seen consistent growth in our average lot price, particularly at our monthly interiors sales," says director Martin Millard.

Challenges and opportunities of an ever-changing world

Seismic changes in bidder behaviour are causing the auction process to evolve at pace. Most firms are in a state of considerable flux.

At one end of the spectrum, this may mean 'front ending' the selling process, creating condition reports and extra images at the cataloguing stage rather than at the eleventh hour. It may also mean cutting the print run for catalogues or only publishing them for major sales.

At the other, it is questioning whether the high-street saleroom is necessary when attendances are in single figures.

For most of the top firms these changes are partial rather than absolute.

All remain committed to print (a smart catalogue is a key weapon in the battle to win the single-owner consignments) and are focused on offering clients the choice to view and bid as they wish, be that virtually or in the room.

"Viewings have bounced back and many people do come and see the items in person. The difference is they won't stay for the sale," says Gavin Strang of Lyon & Turnbull. "For example, the £1.8m Lowood House auction we held in October was a classic 'country house' sale where we might have previously expected a capacity crowd. I think we had six people in the room – the bidders were all online or on the phone."

Guy Schooling of Sworders concurs. "We are still keen to welcome potential buyers to view pre-sale and to bid live on sale day but, for reasons I quite understand, they do the former not the latter. I think this is a fundamental change which will not be reversed."

In terms of live and online sales, a combination of the two appears to be the favoured approach.

Fellows is now conducting the large majority of its sales without an auctioneer: 85% of its specialist sales in 2021 were held as timed online events.

Going forward, Dreweatts will hold timed sales for lots between £500-2000, which Jonathan Pratt says are "much easier to sell online and consigners are happy with that". However, the firm is now looking to impose minimum lot thresholds similar to those in play at 'live' sales.

Pratt adds: "We will avoid low-value timed sales. We won't increase the number of timed sales but will increase the value of the sale instead."

For many salerooms the next step in the digital revolution is to complete the circle of the buying process – covering all bases from consignment to delivery.

Improving the post-sale service with the provision of cost-effective packing and shipping is, says Richard Winterton, "going to be increasingly important but a huge challenge".

Some top firms have tackled the process already and reap the benefits: Fellows enjoys an average customer satisfaction rating of 4.7 out of 5 via almost 1800 reviews on Trustpilot with its policy of 'free international shipping as standard' on the majority of the lots it sells – including those in its Antiques, Silver & Collectables sales – being among the key reasons for positive feedback.

However, for many regional competitors, this aspect of 21st century auction business remains very much a work in progress.

"The migration to online buying has transformed us into an e-commerce business but the hole in the system has concerned me for some time," adds Schooling. "Viewing, bidding and paying online are all now perfectly straightforward. However, when the purchaser wishes to have his items delivered, there has been a void."

In an effort to adapt to a 'retail' type environment, the firm offers a post-sale delivery service at cost price. Already more than 3000 items have been shipped.

The issue is complicated by the import and export restrictions that now exist when moving art and antiques to and from Europe.

"Next to Covid, the biggest impact in the last year was Brexit," says Pratt at Dreweatts.

"It has meant greater demand for shipping, VAT refunds, proofs of export and other paperwork which is process heavy and requires a higher level of expertise. But we recognise this and are developing a strategy for in-house delivery and shipping. The Amazon generation is here to stay and they demand that kind of service."

We've seen over 1728 new buyers come to Cheffins this year, particularly as millennials and Gen Z look to purchase pieces with history and a story, while minimising their impact on the environment."

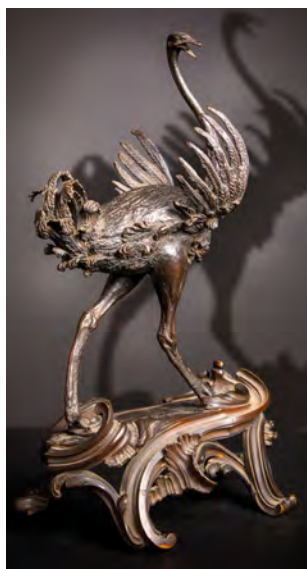

TENNANTS

Tennants in Leyburn achieved total hammer sales of £12.8m with a sold rate of 90%; among the highest in the country.

The firm's top lot of the year was the Lowry oil People in a Park which sold for £165,000. In 2020, the business achieved a hammer total of £9.9m, having cancelled a number of general auctions during the first lockdown.

However, the firm has since conducted a full roster of sales, dispersing 33,000 lots in 79 sales in 2021.

"Auctioneers who had expanded digital offerings prior to the pandemic found it a relatively simple step to switch turn of the decade when the Irish picture market, in particular, was in transition.

Managing director James O'Halloran says the firm has enjoyed success in all departments, with its rebooted Asian art sales contributing significantly to the bottom line alongside more traditional areas of strength such as Irish art and jewellery. A Guan-type porcelain vase with a Yongzheng seal mark, sold for €365,000 in June, was the best result of the year.

The firm held a total of 23 sales, blending showpiece live events with a broadening calendar of online offerings.

ADAM PARTRIDGE

North-west England auctioneer Adam Partridge posted his best figures yet with sales totalling £5.2m (£4.1m in Macclesfield and £1.1m in Liverpool). This compared to sales of £4.5m in 2020. "We are finding the market to be pretty buoyant in most areas and have had many successful sales including the studio ceramics department which continues to grow," he says.

EWBANK'S

Surrey-based Ewbank's announced a total of £4.2m in sales for 2021, up 17% on 2020.

Expanding the auction calendar with cost-effective hybrid and timed sales has allowed for significantly more sales and a one-third year-on-year increase in the number of lots offered. Entertainment and sporting memorabilia is now the firm's biggest seller, accounting for almost 30% of business. The sale of a private collection of Pokémon and other cards has also provided an unexpected opportunity in a very 21st century collecting sphere.

"One of the most important lessons we have learned across 2020 and 2021 is to be versatile and have a can-do attitude," says Chris Ewbank. "If you hesitate when opportunities arise, you risk losing them. Potential consignors need to know that you can act quickly, apply the appropriate expertise, bring in the right bidders and turn things round effectively over a short period, if needed."

REEMAN DANSIE

In Colchester, Reeman Dansie posted total sales of £4.8m for the year, including £100,000 in January for the Mary Beale portrait of her son Bartholomew – a record for the artist.

"We found the market as a whole very buoyant over the last year," says managing director James Grinter.

RICHARD WINTERTON

Richard Winterton of Lichfield, which broke through the £2m barrier for the first time in 2018, came close to passing another milestone in 2021 with total sales of £2.9m (compared to £2.75m in 2020).

Winterton says there has been no big-ticket single sale, "just good old-school auctioneering with every lot treated in the same careful way regardless of what it is".

This article presents a selection of annual hammer totals as reported by auction houses to ATG. It does not represent a comprehensive survey. Other totals we receive will be added to the online version of this article.

Meiji 10 yen pattern coin takes £260,000

Toovey's Coins, Medals & Banknotes auction on January 19 got off to a storming start as the very first lot – a Japanese Meiji 10 yen Year 3 pattern gold coin from 1870 – demolished an estimate of £50,000-80,000 to sell for £260,000 (plus 24.5% buyer's premium).

It is currently one of only five known examples.

Of the four others, one is in the Bank of Japan collection, another is in the British Museum and two were sold by Heritage Auctions in Dallas in 2011 and 2014. The first, for a hammer price of $240,000, had a provenance to the 1954 Farouk Palace collection sale and later to the Meiji coin collector Norman Jacobs. The second sold at $120,000 had been "hiding in a European family for many years".

This large flan coin pattern, with a diameter of 32mm and a weight of 15.6g, dates from just two years after the Meiji Restoration brought Japan nominally back to imperial control.

Under the New Currency Act of 1871, Meiji coins became standardised, smaller, round and identical (manufactured by Western machinery). They were known as yen – 'small round object'. The 10 yen Year 3 pattern type was originally intended for general issue and was included in the new act. However, it was decided the relatively thin gauge would cause problems and a smaller diameter coin of the same weight was produced dated Meiji 4.

Discovered on a routine house clearance valuation appointment with a group of other gold coins at a local property, Toovey's example was described as "extremely fine overall, dull mirror-like fields, sharp detailing with overall hairlining". It came by descent from George Henry Williamson (1845-1918), a former mayor of Worcester, a manufacturer and a Conservative politician. It is thought likely by the vendor, however, that this coin was originally acquired by his father, William Blizard Williamson (1811-78), a tinsmith from Cork who founded the Providence Tinplate Works in Worcester in 1858.

George and his brother William Blizard the younger took over the company after their father's death. George deposited this coin with several others for some time at Lloyds bank in Worcester, incorrectly labelling it Chinese gold piece, suggesting that he was unaware of its full significance.

The lot was contested by three phones and two room bidders in Washington, West Sussex. The majority of the bidding, however, was left to a room bidder acting for a client in China and a phone acting for a client in the US. It was the latter that won.

Armed robbers seize coins at fair

A group of coins was stolen from the London & Midland Coin Fairs taking place at the National Motorcycle Museum earlier this month.

In a statement, West Midlands Police said: "We're investigating after a large quantity of antique and collectable coins was stolen during an armed robbery in Coventry Road, Solihull, at around 2.45pm on January 9. Two masked offenders – understood to be armed with a machete – assaulted two men as they grabbed items and made off in a vehicle. Fortunately the men were not seriously injured."

Photos or details of the coins have not yet been released. Anyone with information can contact West Midlands Police via the west-midlands.police.uk website or call 101 quoting crime reference number 20/1974308/21.

Connect and BADA Week comeback

Connect Art Fair is set to return this year for its first in-person event since 2020. The fair, which is run by dealers, takes place from March 23-27 at the Mall Galleries in St James's, London.

Already nearly sold out, the fair hosts 30 exhibitors. Many are specialists in Modern British and Contemporary art, though a range of specialities is represented.

Returning dealers so far include John Iddon, Emma Mason, Mark Goodman, Elizabeth Harvey Lee, Kittoe Contemporary and Blondes Fine Art. New to the event are Long & Ryle, Kynance Fine Art and The Nonesuch Gallery.

Country-wide event

Another dealer event returning this year is BADA Week, which debuted last year. The programme of country-wide events, talks, tours and exhibitions is scheduled for October 3-9.

Last year more than 30 dealers took part in the festival of art and antiques. It included the inaugural BADA Art Prize for emerging Contemporary artists.

Bonhams targets European boost

Bonhams has made senior appointments as part of its ongoing strategy to expand in Europe and beyond.

André Bodson has joined as chief transformation officer in London and Patrick Masson is promoted as director of Bonhams' European operation.

Bodson will be responsible for the integration of the company's acquisitions, starting with Swedish auction house Bukowskis (see News, ATG No 2526).

He joins Bonhams from his 18-month role as adviser to Élisabeth Moreno, the French government's minister for gender equality, diversity and equal opportunity. Prior to this he spent nearly 10 years in senior roles at technology firm Hewlett Packard.

Bonhams was bought by private equity firm Epiris in 2018 and last year bought The Market, a digital auction platform for classic and collectable car and motorcycle auctions, and opened a saleroom in Paris in Rue de la Paix. Masson will work from Paris to "spearhead the company's expansion in Europe".

He joined Bonhams in March 2020 as managing director of Bonhams UK. He has previously worked at both Christie's and Sotheby's including as business manager for Christie's France from 1996-2006.

Replacing Masson, Bonhams has promoted India Phillips to managing director for Bonhams UK. She was previously Bonhams' global head of Impressionist and Modern art, since 2018. She joined the firm in 2014.

Five Monet works come to auction

Sotheby's is to offer five works by Claude Monet (1840-1926)

all painted during a 15-year period as the great Impressionist experimented with the effects of light and colour. The sale will be called Monet x Monet | A Distinguished American Collection and will take place on March 2 as part of Sotheby's Modern and Contemporary evening auction.

The five pictures comprise one featuring flowers, one depicting grainstacks, two landscapes painted under different weather conditions at opposing ends of the seasons and a still life of prunes and apricots. All the pictures pre-date 1900 and have a combined estimate in the region of $50m (£35m).

Hardy of Alnwick memento to reel in Angling and fishing fans will be familiar with the firm Hardy of Alnwick. In 1872 William Hardy set up shop as a gunsmith. When his brother John James Hardy (1854-1932), a passionate angler, joined the firm they began specialising in fishing equipment.

John James became the most famous angler of his day and wrote books including Champion Professional Salmon and Trout Caster of Europe and had won more championship events than any other man in the British Empire by the time of his death.

Hardy is depicted in this full-length oil painting beside a gun cabinet, holding a fishing fly, with his faithful dog lying at his feet. It was painted by Edmond Hodgson Smart in 1907.

The portrait was displayed in his house in Alnmouth, Northumberland, until his death, when it was moved to the games room at Ravenslaw in Alnwick (the home of Laurence Robert 'LR' Hardy who had become joint managing director when William retired).

At the opening of Hardy's new factory, Willowburn, in 1965 the portrait was displayed in the factory reception area where it remained until the opening of Hardy's Fishing Tackle Museum and Complete Angler Shop.

Now the Hardy family descendants wish to sell the picture and have appointed auction house Mullock's in Shropshire to offer it via private treaty. It has an estimate of £50,000.

Mullock's Ben Jones said: "It truly is a piece of angling history with him being a co-founder of the famous brand Hardy brothers. There could be interest from the art world, as well as from angling buyers."

Worldwide call to arms

International highlights including an impressive weapon on every level offered in a German saleroom and a record year at a US auction house lead a wider look at recent stand-out results. Mark Bridge reports

Munich auction house Hermann Historica (25% buyer's premium) regularly turns up show-stopping lots of arms and armour and the star of the November sales series was a weapon that was always designed to impress on every level.

The sword in question was an Indo-Persian shamshir of typical pattern, with a long, curved Damascus blade, 3ft 3in (1m) long overall.

Less typical was the quality and richness of the decoration. The blade itself was gilt inlaid just below the hilt with the first verse of the Koran, the name of the maker, Asadullah Isfahani, and a dedication to one of the greatest Middle Eastern military leaders, Nadir Shah Afshar (1688-1747).

Nadir Shah was heralded as the 'Second Alexander' and at the height of his power his dominion stretched from the Caucasus to the Indus and to the south bank of the Persian Gulf.

The blade was matched by an enamel hilt with a pommel in the form of a tiger's head and with tiger's head terminals to the quillons and chappes. This was decorated overall with raised gilt foliate motifs, inset with diamonds and cabochon rubies. The scabbard was decorated en suite.

Not surprisingly this tour de force of the sword maker's art was expected to be a sale leader, but the €160,000 (£134,455) price was several times the published estimate.

Choice examples

Some choice examples of early Western arms and armour also featured strongly in the same November 23 sale.

Armour is not all about helmets and breastplates. A very delicately conceived wrought iron horse muzzle, dated 1547, was one of the stand-out lots of the day. Made up of intricately worked sections riveted together, it incorporated several petal motifs and was topped by a winged dragon with an upturned serpent's mouth. It sold for €21,000 (£17,650).

Among the Western weapons, a south German crossbow of c.1560 with a steel bow and a fruitwood stock elaborately inlaid with bone made €22,000 (£18,490), while a South German 'langes Messer' sword of c.1530-40, with a triple-fullered blade and a bird's head pommel, reached €34,000 (£28,570).

On the following day several significant

Nadir Shah was hailed as the 'Second Alexander' and at the height of his power his dominion stretched from the Caucasus to the Indus and the south bank of the Persian Gulf firearms were on offer including an outstanding wheel-lock rifle from the armoury of the Princes Esterhazy, signed by the maker – Mathias Staper in Wienn – and decorated on the lock with engraved classical scenes.

The full walnut stock was exceptionally well figured and applied with gilt open-work panels depicting Perseus with the head of Medusa as well as the arms of the Esterhazy family. This rarity sold for €42,000 (£35,295).

Equally interesting, though without the illustrious provenance, was a pair of self-priming flintlock repeater pistols by Emanuel Wetschgin of Augsburg, c.1715.

These pistols were of high quality with slender cannon muzzle barrels and were fitted with highly distinctive serpentine-coiled reloading and cocking levers.

They sold for €23,000 (£19,330)

Firearms make big bucks

Though there is a healthy and steady market for arms and armour in the UK and the rest of Europe, there is no doubt that when it comes to firearms all the really big money is in the US.

On December 3 the Rock Island Auction Company (15% buyer's premium) rounded off a record year with a $25m (£18.8m) sale, bringing the total for the 21 auctions it held in a 12-month period to $121m (£91m).

Generally it is fine and rare American firearms that attract the really big bucks but last December the saleroom was offering one truly fine and historically significant lot of European Containing six pieces in the set – a rifled carbine, a pair of rifled carriage pistols, a pair of pocket pistols, and a "glaive" sword and scabbard, all elaborately engraved, gilded and relief-carved – it was presented to Napoléon by the Directoire of the French Republic in 1797.

December, including a presentation example of the Winchester 1866 Model lever-action rifle, ordered by President Jose Balta of Peru as a gift for President Mariano Melgarejo of Bolivia.

This exceptional rifle had a solid silver frame and is acknowledged as the masterpiece of the pre-eminent engraver of his age, Louis D Nimschke. The gun is decorated overall with relief-engraved leaf scrolls around woodland scenes and monograms and bears Nimschke's signature in seven different places.

The unique position of this rifle in the US firearms Hall of Fame was recognised by a winning bid of $850,000 (£639,000). ■

Eye-catching armour

The most unusual armour lot to emerge in recent sales was the late 16th century German brass parade cuirass which made £86,000 at Thomas Del Mar (20% buyer's premium) in London on December 8.

As reported in Pick of the Week, ATG No 2523, it is now on its way to the Chicago Institute of Art.

A selection of other recent armour highlights are illustrated here.

Right: at the same Del Mar sale in London on December 8 this field armour in the early 16th century German Maximilian style, but created in the early 20th century, sold for £15,000.

For added impact, this armour had been augmented by a modern replica of a German two-handed sword of the 16th century.

Left: the eye-catching armour at Bonhams (27.5/25/20/14.5% buyer's premium) in London on November 24 came in the form of this German composite Maximilian suit, catalogued as c.1520 and later.

Its provenance showed it had played its part in the great early 20th century American armour rush. By repute it was once part of the Hearst Collection and later entered the Joe Kindig Junior collection. At Bonhams in 2021 it sold for £50,000.

Right: a 5th-4th century BC Greek bronze breast plate and helmet sold for €60,000 (£51,280) at a sale held by Setdart (18% buyer's premium) in Barcelona on December 22.

Swords of honour: a presentation trio

A Lloyd's Patriotic Fund sword of £100 value took the honours at Bonhams' (27.5/25/20/14.5% buyer's premium) sale of arms and armour in London on November 24, writes Mark Bridge.

When these Lloyd's swords were first awarded (at values of £30, £50 and £100 according to rank) they were seen as the ultimate reward for gallantry in battle at sea "above and beyond the call of duty".

The regard in which they are now held when they do appear on the market was reflected in the £120,000 paid for the sword awarded to Philip Charles Durham, captain of HMS Defiance at the Battle of Trafalgar.

David Williams, Bonhams head of arms and armour, was certainly not taken aback by its 21st century reception: "The Lloyd's £100 Patriotic Swords were a token of the esteem in which the ships' captains at Trafalgar were held."

Durham was one of 23 captains to be given swords for their service at Trafalgar, each with its unique presentation inscription.

His read: From The Patriotic Fund At Lloyds To Philip Chas. Durham Esqr. Cap.tn Of H.M.S. Defiance For His Meritorious Services In Contributing To The Signal Victory Obtained Over The Combined Fleets Of France And Spain Off Cape Trafalgar On The 21st Oct.r 1805.

By the time of Trafalgar he had already been heavily rewarded for his exploits at sea, including a piece of plate valued at £500 for shepherding home a convoy of Indiamen from St Helena in 1801. He finished his career a full admiral and commander-in-chief at Portsmouth.

Indian service

The East India Company also presented swords on its own account for outstanding actions by both soldiers and sailors.

An example of one of these turned up at Antony Cribb's (22% buyer's premium) virtual auction on November 11.

Mounted in white metal rather than gilt, this was a much more humble weapon than the glittering Lloyd's sword, but would have made a stylish addition to an officer's equipage. It was of typical mameluke form with lion mask and mane mounts at the hilt and came with its original white metal mounted leather-wrapped scabbard, with the presentation panel April 21st BAREILLY 1816.

Its recipient, Major George Cunningham, served with the 7th Bengal Native Infantry and commanded the 2nd Rohilla Cavalry during the Bareilly Uprising of 1816.

The sword sold at Cribb's auction for £8000.

Sign of esteem

A third form of presentation sword was among the lots at Thomas Del Mar on December 8 when a handsome gold-mounted sabre reached £13,000.

In this case the award came not from an outside party but from the recipient's own subordinates, as recorded in the presentation inscription:

Presented to Lieutenant General Watson of H.M. 14th Regiment, by the Officers who had the honour to serve under him whilst he commanded the Samerang Division in the island of Java as a testimony of their esteem, December 1813.

Left: the Lloyd's Patriotic Fund £100 sword awarded to Captain Philip Charles Durham for his exploits at Trafalgar – £120,000 at Bonhams.

Below: the sword presented to Lieutenant General Watson by his officers after service in Java, 1813 – £13,000 at Thomas Del Mar.

Weapon was owned by tragic 1912 Antarctic explorer

A sword sold at Kent auction house C&T (22% buyer's premium) belonged to a British Antarctic explorer who died in 1912 – but not with Robert Falcon Scott.

Belgrave Edward Sutton Ninnis (1877-1912), who served as a lieutenant in the Royal Fusiliers and had also tried to join Scott's expedition, had a fine pedigree when it came to exploration.

He was the son of British Arctic explorer Belgrave Ninnis (1837-1922), Inspector Surgeon General of the Royal Navy and member of Captain Sir George Nares' British Arctic Expedition of 1875-76.

After serving on Ernest Shackleton's 1907 Nimrod Expedition to Antarctica, Douglas Mawson travelled to England in 1910 to raise interest and backing for an expedition concentrating on scientific purposes.

He bought the whaler Aurora and in London he loaded it with specialist equipment and 48 sledging dogs from Greenland. Ninnis joined the expedition in London as a minder of the dogs, and sailed from London to Sydney.

He was in the 36-man party that left Tasmania on December 2, 1911. He landed in Antarctica with the main party on January 8, 1912, and established the main base. The summer was spent building a hut at Cape Denison for the 18-man Adelie Land base party to winter in.

Ninnis was then part of a three-man sledging team with Mawson and fellow dog handler Xavier Mertz who travelled east on November 10 to survey King George V Land. However, after three weeks of good progress but increasingly tough conditions tragedy struck when crossing a glacier (now known as the Ninnis Glacier).

Ninnis fell into a snow-covered crevasse. He was thought to have been jogging beside a sled instead of on its runners and his body weight probably broke the lid. Six dogs, most of the party's rations, the tent and other essential supplies also perished. Mertz and Mawson spotted one dead and one injured dog on a ledge but not Ninnis.

Mawson made a remarkable, gruelling journey back to base more than 300 miles away, much of it solo after Mertz also died.

Estimate shattered

Ninnis' sword offered at C&T on November 17, estimated at £500-700, sold for £5600. The Edward VII 1897 pattern infantry officer's sword featured regulation 2ft 8in (82cm) blade supplied by E Green, London, etched with royal ciphers, scrolls and B.E.S.N. 3rd April 1908, with regulation plated guard, wire bound fish skin-covered grip, in a replated scabbard. It was catalogued as being in good condition.

How to accessorise

Arms and armour sales often throw out interesting talking points in the way of accessories. The Antony Cribb sale on November 9 produced two. Pictured above right is a late 16th or early 17th century German wheel-lock spanner which sold to an online bidder at £90. Without a spanner to wind the mechanism which rotated the serrated wheel against the sparking flint such weapons were useless, yet few wheel-locks are now to be found with their original keys.

Shown right is a Manton-type flintlock powder tester which sold for £660. In the days when gunpowder manufacture was far from standardised, this handy method of assessing the actual force of a known charge was a big step towards consistent accuracy.

Buyer chases down Russian dagger

The surprise lot at the sale held on December 11 by Ripon auction house Elstob & Elstob (22% buyer's premium) was this 19th century Russian hunting dagger. Measuring 18in (46cm) in length, it was of high quality with an etched and part-gilded blade decorated with floral motifs and two scenes of deer in woodland. The nature and quality of this decoration led to a tentative attribution to the Zlatoust arms factory which was founded in the Urals in 1815. Bidding was keen and it sold for £9000.

Stand-out lots from treen scene

Selection of these functional but fascinating objects that have appeared at recent sales

by Roland Arkell

By the early 19th century the coquilla nut had been ‘discovered’ by British craftsmen as a suitable medium for carving.

The influential taste-making journal Ackermann’s Repository of Arts, Literature, Commerce, Manufactures, Fashions, and Politics sung its praises in 1812.

“The uncommonly pleasing colour of the shell, the hardness and the native mottle which appears when it is highly polished, renders it capable of being employed, with the most agreeable effect, as it is susceptible of the most tasteful forms,” the journal stated.

“Whatever has been formed from ivory, may be produced from the shell of the coquilla, whose beauty will not fail to attract, while the price of the article will satisfy the purchaser.”

The signature coquilla carved trinket was the snuff box, and particularly the comical ‘nut men’ made across northern Europe in the first half of the 19th century.

Most depict caricatured European ‘types’. Typically, these are sold for £300-500 but the best examples, often with details picked out in bone, can bring significantly more.

A box of a rotund gentleman with a beaming jocular face took a 10-times top estimate £1500 at Hannam’s (23% buyer’s premium) in Selborne on January 4, selling to a buyer via thesaleroom.com.

A small collection of similar boxes comes for sale at Bishop & Miller in Stowmarket on January 27.

Cross purpose

A particularly good example of Irish treen surfaced at Halls (20/12% buyer’s premium) of Shrewsbury on December 8.

An 18th century Irish fruitwood ‘penal cross’ made nearly treble its low estimate to sell for £2800.

Standing 8½in (22cm), it is carved with the figure of Christ crucified in high relief, flanked by an incised ladder and spear, with ‘cock over pot’ symbols depicting the Passion.

Bursting with naive charm, the fact that it was dated verso (1749) added to its appeal greatly.

While it is thought these crosses were made to sell to pilgrims visiting the pilgrimage site at Lough Derg, they also represented a challenge to the Penal Laws that were in full force at the time.

Royal box

Another treen item with significant crossover collecting interest was a small 4in (10cm) specimen wood snuff box offered by Woolley & Wallis (25% buyer’s premium) as part of the Salisbury firm’s Furniture, Works of Art & Clocks sale on January 12.

Stamped C Stiven & Sons, Box Makers to Her Majesty, Laurencekirk for the ‘Mauchline’ ware maker Charles Stiven, it is inlaid with 22 different titled wood samples including Oak from Lord Nelson’s Ship Victory, Oak from the State Prison on Bass Rock and Oak from the Florida Ship of the Spanish Armada, destroyed at Mull 1588.

Part of the sale titled A Lifetime of Collecting – The Property of a Gentleman, it was estimated at £150-250, but took £1300 on thesaleroom.com.

From the same source was a nicely carved late 19th century fruitwood snuff box in the form of a toad with mother of pearl eyes. Animal boxes such as this are always popular, this one bringing £2000 (guide £300-400).

High demand

Among the most desirable of all Georgian and Victorian carved wood objects are ‘cigar store’ figures– the large (sometimes life-size) polychrome models designed to encourage the tobacco-buying customer.

The two Highlander models offered by Lindsay Burns (20% buyer’s premium) as part of the four-day sale in Perth on December 7-10 came with a provenance to the Rattray collection the rooms had sold in April 2017.

Charles Rattray was a tobacconist and blender of fine tobaccos at 160 High Street, Perth, between c.1915 and 1981. Former Prime Minister Harold Wilson was one of the famous names on a long list of customers.

The 2ft (60cm) high counter-top figure of a Highlander, c.1800, modelled with feather-plumed cap and holding a basket-hilted sword in his right hand, had long been on display there. It can be seen in situ on the mantelpiece in 'The Sales Salon' in an early 20th century sepia photograph.

Five years ago, when estimated at £600-800 it had sold at £7800. This time around, guided at £5000-7000, it took £6800.

Sold at £4800 (estimate £4000-6000) was a Victorian figure of a bearded Highlander taking snuff from his mull. It was larger, measuring 4ft (6in (1.34m) high, but had been repainted several times.

Decorative appeal

Carved wood lay figures also make for terrific decorative objects – guaranteed to enliven a range of interior spaces far removed from the artist's studio. The best examples command very significant sums.

The figure pictured above measures 3ft 4in (1m) high, is fully articulated, particularly well carved and exhibits a good colour and patination. It came for sale at Greenslade Taylor Hunt (19.5% buyer's premium) in Taunton on January 6 from a family home where it had been for many years. The imperfections to the toes were blamed on a hungry family pet.

Guided at £300-500, it took £7000 via thesaleroom.com. ■

Distinctive Wood miniatures emerge

Estimated at just £60-100, a pair of Georgian portrait miniatures sold online for £2900 at Amersham Auctions (17.5% buyer's premium) in Buckinghamshire on January 6.

Painted in watercolour on ivory, one (with a significant crack to the right of the image) depicts a soldier in the red and gilt braid frock coat of a British army office, the other a woman with ringlets in her hair who clutches a gold guard necklace.

Although not mentioned in the lot description, the photos that accompanied it showed that both images were signed on the backing card for William Wood of Cork Street, London, with the male subject identified as John Jebb Esq.

Wood is one of the more inventive miniaturists of the period – as well as portraits, he painted subject miniatures – and his work is quite distinctive. He is known to have been working from Bristol in 1791 and 1803 and from Gloucester in 1798 but was based in London for much of his career.

Scientist and artist

At Sworders' (25% buyer's premium) Fine Interiors sale in Stansted Mountfitchet on December 14, a family group of five plumbago miniatures by James Ferguson (1710-76) sold well over hopes of £700-1000 to bring £17,000.

As would have been his wish, Ferguson is perhaps better known today as a scientist who, despite never receiving formal training, became famed for his travelling lectures and easy-to-understand works on the basics of astronomy, mechanics and electricity.

However, being from a humble background, he made his living as a portrait painter working predominantly in Indian ink.

Single images tend to bring modest sums: a large number of Ferguson portraits were sold by Bonhams Edinburgh in May last year in groups of four and five for around £1000-2000.

However, it was the survival of these five works as a family group which appears to have been their main attraction. All images were in good condition with some small losses to the frames.

Tokens provide a rich seam of lots

Handed in by miners at the start of a shift in exchange for a Davy lamp, colliery tokens, tallies or checks provided vital information in the event of fire or explosion.

Commonly used in the late 19th century, they became mandatory in 1913 with each token stamped with a number and the colliery or company name.

In short, they are emblematic of Britain's rich industrial heritage as it fades into history.

From lowly beginnings – with most trading online for a pound or two each – these have become among the most desirable of all mining collectables and a rising star of paranumismatics. (the study of coin-like objects such as tokens and other items used for a variety of purposes including in place of legal currency).

Regional rarities

Halls' (20/12% buyer's premium) December 8 sale in Shrewsbury included a large collection and the auction house was surprised at just how much interest they generated.

Tokens come in a variety of shapes and materials but, typically, it is the pre-1947 brass or white metal tokens made before the creation of the National Coal Board (NCB) that are most desirable.

Collectors also look out for regional rarities (many will choose to focus on their local pits) and the wider range of 'checks' that were used for activities from shot firing and rescue missions to pithead baths and pints of beer.

The collection, offered in four lots, was chiefly focused on checks from Shropshire and south Wales.

A group of 202 pieces attached to a fabric-lined board was guided at £600-800 but sold online at £6500 while an album containing 51 tokens pitched at £150-250 made £3000.

Pictured above are elements from a lot of 45 tokens that included two unusually large brass checks issued by John Lancaster & Co used for day workers at the Lower Deep Pit and the No3 Griffin pits in the small village of Blaina, south Wales.

The group was pitched at £120-180 but made £2100.

Labels mark a sign of approval

Francis Towne watercolour was one of his many works to have gone through Agnews

by Alex Capon

Works with the label of a leading dealer on the back often arouse extra interest at auction.

Especially if they are pitched at lowly levels, they tend to catch the attention of potential buyers trawling through online catalogues on the look-out for a bargain.

A case in point was a watercolour that emerged at Halls (20% buyer's premium) of Shrewsbury at the end of last year.

Emerging from a local private collection and having been within the same family for two generations, the 11 x 8in (28 x 20cm) signed work on paper carried a Thomas Agnew & Sons label to the back of the frame giving the artist as Francis Towne (1739-1816) and the title as A Mountain Stream.

Agnews, of course, is one of London's most prominent and long-standing dealerships, and works by Towne featured in numerous exhibitions the firm staged over the years. These included dedicated shows such as the Paul Oppé collection of Towne works on paper in 1949 as well as Agnews' annual watercolours and drawings exhibitions held from the 1920s-90s.

Market confidence

Given that hundreds of Towne's watercolours have passed through the trade, finding a label to Agnews, Colnaghi or the Fine Art Society on one that appears at auction is therefore not unusual. Generally speaking, they bring a bit of extra market confidence.

The example in Shropshire was a small but attractive composition demonstrating Towne's trademark free-flowing hand, sense of line and flourishing colours.

The work was signed to the lower left and indistinctly inscribed and initialled to the top right but, although it was kept under glass and was not inspected out of the frame, a few condition issues were noticeable. It had two small tears and a crease running about 12cm long and also had some minor fading. However, the colours were reasonably well preserved overall.

Despite being catalogued as a fully attributed work at the sale on December 8, the auction house gave the lot a cautious £400-600 estimate. This piqued the interest of multiple parties. On the day, three online bidders were involved but eventually it came down to a battle between two phonelines, with the work selling to an American buyer at £8000.

Although watercolours by Towne can easily make strong five-figure sums, the size and condition of this work meant this example was unlikely to reach those heights.

But the sum at Halls appears to have been the highest for a Towne watercolour sold outside London in 2021 and was comparable to a slightly smaller depiction of a rural scene near Exeter that made £8500 at Cheffins in June 2018. That latter work had a few condition issues too and featured a label for Agnews.

Another small watercolour from the same source that also carried an Agnews label was a coastal view of Portland by John Warwick Smith (1749-1831). In terms of condition, again there were a few issues including three spots of pale discolouration in the sky and one small puncture – the size of a pinhole – in the sea in the bay in the foreground.

The artist was associated with Towne – they are known to have sketched together – although commercially his prices are much further down the scale.

The estimate on the 5 x 8¼in (12½ x 22cm) picture was slightly higher than the Towne watercolour at £500-700 but it drew decent bidding making a final £950 – showing how the artist is significantly more affordable than his more famous contemporary. ■

Large Bissill group provides mine of information

A significant collection of works by George Bissill (1896-1973), the Derbyshire miner who enjoyed some fleeting success as an artist in the 1920s-30s but who later died largely forgotten, came up at Mallams (25% buyer's premium) in Oxford at the end of last year.

The large group of paintings, drawings and prints was consigned by an Oxford lady whose father was an old friend of the artist and inherited the contents of his home and studio in Ashmansworth, Hampshire. Her father had been the long-time secretary of the Ilkeston Arts Club in Derbyshire where Bissill had first showed his evocative scenes of toiling miners as a young man.

Ilkeston is located near the village of Langley Mill where Bissill grew up and where his father worked as a railway brakesman. Bissill himself became a miner aged 13.

"The paintings have not been seen since they were taken from George Bissill's studio in 1983," said the vendor, Kate Pattinson.

"My father cleared out the entire body of his work – a much larger collection than is offered here – and stored it in attics and cupboards and under beds."

After her parents died Pattinson took it on herself to restore and frame many of the pictures and write a biography of the artist.

She believes Bissill has been unfairly overlooked and hopes to "restore the reputation of an artist" who produced what she described as "powerful, authentic and experimental pictures, and whose contribution to the formal recognition of mining art and artists should not be forgotten".

With this in mind, a series of exhibitions of the collection was due to be held last year but unfortunately some events had to be cancelled because of Covid. One viewing in Oxford and another in Ilkeston (at

My father cleared out the entire body of his work and stored it in attics and cupboards and under beds the Erewash Museum) did eventually take place.

Distinct periods

Mallams decided to split the works into three parts based on distinct periods of the artist's career, with the first tranche of 28 lots appearing at the Modern art and design sale on December 8-9.

This group featured mostly mining and industrial scenes, including oils, watercolours and pen and ink studies conveying the straining muscles of the coal miners with their bodies contorting as they reach into confined spaces – the kind of works that initially made Bissill's name.

Indeed, he had received some high acclaim after exhibiting a group of such pictures at Redfern Gallery in London in the mid-1920s. At around the same time he also gained commissions to design posters for railway lines, such as the LNER.

Lower profile

However, after moving to Paris and then Hampshire where he focused on different types of work such as engravings, landscapes and even furniture design, Bissill seems to have fallen out of the limelight.

Today his presence on the market is not as prominent as fellow pitman painter Norman Cornish, for example. Works do appear occasionally at auction, however, and his record stands at £2625 for a figurative sketch titled The Student (1926) that sold at Chiswick Auctions in July 2020.

Overall, the group in Oxford met with a decent response and gave encouragement to the market, although perhaps without completely transforming it. All of the lots sold for a combined £19,400, with 12 separate buyers making a purchase according to the auction house. These included a keen group of private buyers as well as a museum trust.

Mallams' specialist in charge of the sale Max Fisher said that the ink and grey wash works were most in demand. One of these dating most likely from the 1920s led the selection on offer here.

Miners Hauling Boulders was a pen, ink, and grey wash measuring 15 x 22½in (38 x 57cm).

A signed example, it was one of the largest pictures on offer and seemed to best embody the view Bissill later expressed in an interview when he commented: "A man who is artistically minded can find material with which to work wherever he might be, and the mine is full of material for the artist. He can study, for instance, the anatomy of the giant hewers, the seams of coal and the shadows cast by the miners' lamps."

Estimated at £800-1200, it drew a notable competition and was knocked down online for £2400 to a private buyer. It was the third-highest price ever recorded for the artist at auction (source: Artprice).

Also selling to a private buyer was a smaller study in the same medium titled A Fall of Bind. Its style was very much in keeping with the images he produced for posters such as Britain's Coal, 40 Per Cent Raised from Collieries Served by LNER from c.1925 which was one of his best-known designs.

Here the estimate was £600-800 and it sold for £1300.

Museum buys

Two of the lots that headed to the museum were also trademark works.

1. Miners Hauling Boulders by George Bissill – £2400 at Mallams.

2. Miners Repairing Wooden Supports by Bissill – £1300.

3. A Fall of Bind by Bissill – £1300.

4. Miner with Hammer by Bissill – £1600.

Miner with Hammer was one of only a few single-figure studies on offer and one of five oils on canvas in the group. Measuring 18 x 13½in (46 x 35cm), it was estimated at £1000-1500 but tipped over predictions when it was knocked down at £1600.

Miners Repairing Wooden Supports, a 15 x 22½in (38 x 57cm) pen, ink, and grey wash was one of the pictures depicting figures hard at work putting pit props in place. Against the same estimate, the museum secured it at £1300.

With more to come from the consignment, Mallams will be holding sales this year focusing firstly on Bissill's pictures of Paris and London before then offering pictures from the later part of his career, predominantly landscapes.

Above: a display of the original, 1836-37 parts issue of Dickens' Posthumous Papers of the Pickwick Club sold for £40,000 by Bonhams.

Right: the colourful flags from a United East India Company signal book sold in the Knightsbridge auction at £12,000.

Pickwick parts add up to £40,000

Superb set of the Dickens classic was painstakingly assembled as originally issued

by Ian McKay

An exceptional example of The Posthumous Papers of the Pickwick Club was one of the literary attractions of a December 1 sale held by Bonhams (27.5/25/20/14.5% buyer's premium).

As originally issued as 20 parts (in 19) from April 1836 to November of the following year, this set – which was painstakingly selected and assembled in the 1930s – took £40,000.

It was the star turn among Dickens lots that came from the collections of WH Collis of Liverpool, and a lot for which the detailed cataloguing was exemplary and impressive.

Potter attic find

All Harry Potter records were to be shattered only a week or so later in a US sale – as noted below – but a 1997, first-impression copy of Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone, the book that launched his spectacular career, offered in the Knightsbridge auction nevertheless did pretty well in selling at £85,000.

It had lain in the consignor's attic for many years but when quite recently re-discovered was at first stored in a saucepan for safety!

As supporting acts, the Bonhams sale presented an uncorrected proof copy of JK Rowling's first book in its yellow and white jacket together with a separate proof sheet of the proposed cover design, sold at £28,000, as well as a copy of the first paperback edition.

The latter, bid to £13,000, was inscribed "To Davey and Tommy – great to meet you at last! J.K. Rowling".

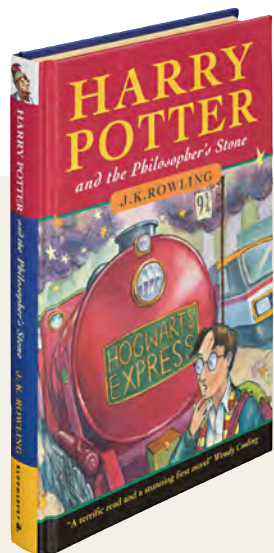

The boys were the eldest sons of Jenny Brown, who from 1996-2002 was the literature director for the Scottish Arts Council, and someone whose work included a programme of financial aid for new writers of children's fiction.

The first person to apply, though not immediately successful, was the as then unpublished JK Rowling.

Other very different lots of note in the London sale included, at £60,000, a substantially complete Latin manuscript Bible that was dated to the mid-13th century and thought to be of either English or northern French origin.

A United East India Company signal book dating from 1790 included a plate illustrating some 37 flags, along with notes of expenditure on slates, lamp oil, seeds, etc.

Contained in contemporary morocco-backed marbled boards, and bearing the printed label 'Signals for East-India Ships', it sold at £12,000. ■

Left: the immaculate, record-breaking copy of Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone sold for $380,000 (£286,575) by Heritage.

It's a Harry shocker

Bidding on an exceptionally fine, virtually mint first edition of JK Rowling's Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone offered in the special Firsts into Film section of a December 9-10 sale opened at $75,000.

However, after what Heritage (25/20/12.5% buyer's premium) later described as a "protracted round of heated bidding" they reached a staggering $380,000 (£286,575) and earned a resounding burst of applause from those present.

A report on some of the other attractions to be found in that Dallas sale will appear in a future issue.

A Rackham wonderland

Offered at Sotheby's (26/20/13.9% buyer's premium) in an online sale that ran until December 1 under the title of The Fantasy World of Arthur Rackham was a collection of 31 original ink and watercolour artworks by the artist from the collection of American photographer Shirley Carter Burden (1908-89).

Four of the more expensive lots are reproduced here, but in reporting the fact that around a third of those lots failed to sell, I should note that these were largely to be found among the illustrations that Rackham made for a 1929 edition of Oliver Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield.

Left: "The Queen never left off quarrelling with the other players, and shouting 'Off with his head!' or, 'Off with her head!'". Signed and dated '07, this illustration was made for an edition of Alice in Wonderland published in that year. Sold at £55,000.

Right: "Titania lying asleep", signed and dated '08, was the frontispiece in an edition of A Midsummer Night's Dream of that year. Sold at £38,000.

Left: "She never had so sweet a changeling", another plate from that 1908 Midsummer Night's Dream. Sold at £40,000.

Right: when reproduced in a 1912, new edition of Peter Pan in Kensington Gardens this ink and watercolour drawing appeared only as a black and white text illustration. Sold at £24,000.

Champion jockey Joe Mercer was also a keen buyer of racing memorabilia and a familiar face at Special Auction Services. The Newbury firm is offering more than 30 lots from his collection in the monthly Antiques & Collectables sale on February 1.

During his career, Mercer (1934-2021) claimed nearly 3000 domestic victories and his most successful ride was Brigadier Gerard, winner of 17 of his 18 races between 1970-72. He was champion jockey in 1979.

Along with silver- and silver-plated trophies and awards, the paintings and other horse-racing ephemera includes this Victorian oak jockey scales chair by Avery purchased by Mercer at an auction relating to English flat-race jockey Fred Archer (1857-86). Archer was champion jockey for 13 consecutive years until 1886, the year he committed suicide.

SAS notes it is believed that Archer used these scales on a weekly basis when training. Estimate £1000-2000.

More than 600 items are being offered by Ryedale Auctioneers from Beal House, the home of the late Ian Stewart, who died in 2019 aged 70. He was a businessman who lived and worked in both the UK and the Far East and amassed hundreds of antiques in the country house style over his many years of collecting.

The Grade II-listed manor house is near the village of Thornton-le-Street, between Northallerton and Thirsk. Dating to the 18th century, it was originally built as the dower house for the Gautby Estate. It was recently sold for around £2m.

The primary sale of the contents of Beal House was held in 2020 by Edinburgh auction house Lyon & Turnbull.

Highlights at Ryedale on January 28-29 include a pair of bronze busts of bacchantes with an estimate of £500-800, after Auguste Clesinger, foundry marks for Barbedienne and Rome 1857, 12in (30cm) high.

This miniature comes from a manuscript copy of the Lives of the Saints made in Netherlands or western Germany c.1460-70. The estimate is £10,000-15,000 as part of the Fine Books, Manuscripts and Works on Paper sale at Forum in London on February 10.

The scene beneath the zodiacal sign of Sagittarius shows two peat barges on a river with a townscape and a man splitting timber with other figures in foreground.

The city depicted may be Cologne or possibly Amsterdam, since it is known that peat barges were used to build the foundations of the city.

Another cutting from the same manuscript depicting Pisces above a battle scene was sold at Sotheby's in 2018.

It was attributed to the Master of Evert van Soudenbalch, a Dutch miniaturist with roots in Cologne who was active c.1460-70, or possibly to his close collaborator, the Master of Gijbsbrecht van Bredrerede.

Cambridge? It's Silicon Fen-tastic

New fair organiser says the area is now a huge market thanks to high-tech developments

by Frances Allitt

Retail is booming. The community is growing. Cambridge is ready for its own art fair.

So says dealer Charles Hart, who launches his new event, Eclectic Eye, next month at the town's University Arms hotel. Running from February 23-26, it features just four exhibitors: Ramsay Prints, 19th-21st century dealer Nicholas Holloway, Contemporary gallery artEast, and Hart himself, whose business Skymeadow Gallery offers art with an East Anglian focus.

When Hart talks about the historic university city, it is with the affection of a former student and the enthusiasm of an entrepreneur.

"Cambridge is completely transformed from when I studied there 20 years ago," he tells ATG. "It's gone from being a little fen town to 'Silicon Fen'."

The nickname was given to the area around the town as the cluster of high-tech businesses sprang up around it, starting in the 1990s, hosting businesses such as AstraZeneca. Now, Hart observes, the typical resident is ready to spend.

"The retail offering there is enormous. Whatever is trendy, is there," he adds. "Because this has all happened quite quickly, Cambridge could deal with a bigger art option and we thought there was space for an event like ours."

The right moment

The past 18 months have not been kind to fair organisers, of course. Many events have been suspended or rescheduled, while others have gone (at least temporarily) silent. News of an original event is an encouraging sign.

Hart has never taken a stand at a fair, let alone organise one until Eclectic Eye. But he is confident that this is the right moment.

"It's an idea I've had for a while. I'm interested in Cambridge as a place and I thought it was the right time to have a run at it," he says.

The four participating galleries have worked together before, notably last summer when they staged a short trial run of the event. Small numbers mean it has been easy to make decisions and work together without the overhead costs that a fair with outside ownership incurs.

And there's more to set it apart from a traditional fair. Rather than exhibiting in separate booths, all the pictures are to be integrated and hung salon-style around the walls of the exhibition space, the hotel's ballroom.

"Hanging the room as a whole gives it quite a different feel, like a gallery experience rather than a pocketed art fair. It's a friendlier space to walk into," says exhibitor Holloway.

"Since it's run by dealers you can set up on the hoof. It gives you more freedom and latitude."

Several events will take place during the event. On opening night, Frances Segelman will create a fast sculpture of psychologist Sir Simon Baron-Cohen, patron of children's art therapy charity Blue Smile, to raise awareness of the organisation.

It is followed by a display of works (some available to purchase) by BA and MA students of Cambridge School of Art. Other nights are devoted to a private view and an event for the hotel.

Assuming that the fair generates enough interest, Hart plans to scale up in years to come.

"We would like to repeat it each year and to have it grow. There's no stopping Cambridge. It's a huge, market," he says. ■

Airy force

Organiser Charles Hart of Skymeadow Gallery brings this portrait by Anna Airy of her friend and neighbour in Playford, Suffolk, Mrs David Ransome.

Airy trained under Philip Wilson Steer and was the first female war artist. Many of her works are now in the Imperial War Museum. Another of her portraits was knocked down for £14,500 over a high estimate of £3000 at Mallams in December. This picture is available for £7000.

News in brief

London Gallery Weekend has announced that it returns in May after a successful inaugural edition last year. Focusing on Contemporary art, it unites galleries from central, south and east London, which will stage exhibitions by emerging and established artists to mark the occasion. An extended public events programme includes performances, educational talks and activity packs for families.

The event has also partnered with Art Fund, which will provide travel and accommodation costs for up to 20 regional curators from across the UK to visit the event in order to encourage buying and links between London galleries and museums and institutions from other parts of Britain.

Jenny Waldman, director of Art Fund, says: "We are fortunate to have an extraordinary art ecology in the UK. The challenges of the pandemic over the last two years have shown that we can't take this for granted and must find new ways to strengthen it for the future."

Rug and tapestry dealership Boccaro has launched a new gallery in New York.

The 8000 sq ft space on East 59th street features antique and modern rugs by artists such as Sonia Delaunay, Alexander Calder and Wassily Kandinsky.

Furniture handcrafted by Jeanne Lanvin is also on show along with sculpture and Contemporary paintings. Dealer Didier Marien says: "My mission is to elevate the tapestries, so they garner the same respect that is accorded the highest levels of painting or sculpture."

A first edition of Daniel Defoe's Moll Flanders is among the works featured in Peter Harrington's new Fine Books and Manuscripts catalogue, which launched last week. The saucy classic is 300 years old this year and first editions are rare – the edition in question is offered for £97,500.

It is among 60 works included in the catalogue, which also includes a second folio edition of the King James Bible and a final revised typescript of Ian Fleming's Diamonds are Forever.

Owner Pom Harrington says: "Our first catalogue for the year always showcases the very best books and manuscripts we have acquired, and this year's has a number of fantastic finds that are truly rare."

5 Questions

Leslie Fleischman runs Vintage Watch Room London, which specialises in 20th century watches marketed as 'both affordable and stylish'.

➤ vintagewatchroom.com

1 How did you get your start?

I was apprenticed as a jeweller in Hatton Garden from the age of 15 but realised that I preferred selling to making. By the time I was 20 I owned a retail jewellery store in Baker Street retailing hand-made designer jewellery and top-end watches. After many adventures I closed the business after 12 years. I just got tired of being robbed and it happened too often for my peace of mind. I went into marketing for the next 30 plus years running my own agency.

2 When did you start your current business?

When the lockdown came in 2020 my marketing business went quiet. I'd built up a fair collection of watches over the years and thought I'd rather use my time constructively, so I spent nearly six months building an online store, The Vintage Watch Room, which specialises in affordable vintage watches. Here we are a year later and I'm really loving it.

I had done a few antiques fairs including Ally Pally a few years ago but I was inexperienced and learnt a lot of lessons. Just before Christmas we did our first fair and we envisage running a number of fairs and road shows in 2022.

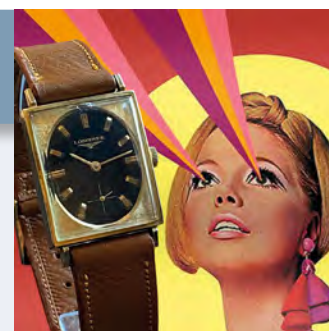

3 What sets your business apart?

Anyone looking for vintage watches will notice that most retailers and dealers in the area concentrate on the top end of the market. This area has no attraction at all for us. To us, one Rolex Daytona looks a lot like another one, so you will find our watches start at around £100 and usually the top end is around £2500. It allows us to offer a vast range of vintage timepieces at prices pretty much everyone can afford.

We focus on 20th century American-made watch brands like Bulova, Benrus and Illinois. There are also many relatively unknown French, Belgian and German brands, alongside the Swiss watches by Omega, Longines and many others.

4 What is one question it is important to ask before buying?

Besides 'does it work?' I would hope that they would ask about the watch, the brand behind it and its history. If you know that, you will feel much more connected with your timepiece. The other thing we stress is the importance of regular servicing as it not only keeps the watches alive but also the trade of watchmaking and watch repair as we need new blood in the trade to learn from their predecessors.

5 Real ale or espresso martini?

Neither: local-made distilled gin, Fever Tree tonic and lime or grapefruit (never lemon!) with lots of crushed ice. Or, failing that, a nice glass of port.

Messum's artist Alan Cotton is to receive an MBE for services to the arts in the south-west. An oil painter, Cotton has works in the collections of The Prince of Wales, the City of Plymouth Art Gallery, the Royal Albert Memorial Museum in Exeter and many others. Bury Street gallery Messum's has represented the painter for more than 30 years.

Thousands of items are available to buy from dealers online. Here we pick out one that caught our eye this week.

This original lithograph by Thomas Shotter Boys (1803-74) of St Dunstan's, etc. Fleet Street was published in 1842.

It was produced as part of a set of lithographs titled Original Views of London As It Is.

Boys was born in Pentonville, apprenticed under engraver George Cooke and went on to travel in Europe. His most important work, Picturesque Architecture in Paris, Ghent, Antwerp, Rouen, etc., drawn by him and printed by Joseph Hullmandel, was published in 1839.

Original Views of London... was drawn and lithographed by Boys. The scene in question is hand coloured and offered for £650.

It is available at antique maps and prints dealership Storey's, which launched its new website during the third wave of the coronavirus pandemic in January last year.

THE DECORATIVE ANTIQUES & TEXTILES FAIR

25-30 January, 2022
BATTERSEA PARK, LONDON

The Decorative Antiques & Textiles Fair hosts its Winter 2022 edition in Battersea Park from 25 to 30 January, a bonanza of antiques, design and art for decoration.

More than 120 exhibitors are taking part, specialist dealers in furniture, lighting, mirrors, textiles and accessories with a dateline to 1979.

Discover unusual conversation pieces and one-of-a-kind items or the perfect finishing touch. Art galleries show paintings, prints, sculpture, posters, and beautifully crafted works of art of all eras from the classical to the contemporary. Also find antique and vintage jewellery and watches.

The Decorative Fair, launched in 1985 as the first antiques event to specifically cater to the interior design industry, is the go-to fair for top international decorators and buyers wanting that special and unique piece for their homes. The exhibitors' creative displays provide inspiration and exciting ideas for using antiques in different settings. Garden designers visit to source statuary, planters, metalwork and architectural elements, tables and seating for exterior spaces.

French sales firmly on the mend

Auction totals for 2021 underline the strong recovery since the start of the pandemic

by Anne Crane

Sales totals for the year 2021 released by several French auction firms and French branches of international auction houses show a considerable increase over those recorded for 2020 and, for some, an increase over those for the pre-pandemic 2019.

In what it described as an “historic year”, Sotheby’s France chalked up a total of €424m for its public auctions in 2021, representing a 145% increase over the €173m recorded for 2020 and 19.6% by comparison to 2019.

Private sales also rose to nearly €76m, an increase of 54% compared to 2020.

In terms of individual prices, 52 lots made €1m or more, headed by the €13.09m (€11.25m/£9.7m hammer) paid for Vincent van Gogh’s Scene de rue à Montmartre which was sold in March in association with the auction firm Mirabaud Mercier.

With regard to individual departments, there were strong results for Contemporary art which achieved a total of €89.5m and Impressionist and Modern art which totalled €107.6m. The Design department realised a total of €128.7m.

In November the single-owner sale of works by Claude and François-Xavier Lalanne from the collection of their daughter Dorothee realised a total of €81m.

Christie’s France, which held 54 auctions in 2021, 15 of them online, recorded sales of €420.7m for last year. (The figure includes the premium-inclusive €11.6m realised by the Einstein Besso manuscript which was sold at the Exceptional sale in collaboration with Aguttes under the hammer of a partner, Commissaire Priseur Judiciare.)

This represents an 88% increase over the €224.2m totalled by sales in 2020 and a 63% increase over sales in 2019 making it, says Christie’s, the second-best auction result for Christie’s France since its creation 20 years ago.

The highest total for an individual auction was the €66m raised by the Michel Perinet sale, an auction record for a collection of African and Oceanic art. The highest individual price was the €14.55m (€12.5m/£10.68m hammer) realised by René Magritte’s oil painting La

1. The fossilized skeleton of a triceratops horridus dinosaur that made the highest price at the Drouot auction centre in Paris when it sold for €6.65m (€5.5m/£4.7m hammer) in an auction held by Binoche et Giquello last October.

2. Leopard I from 2005 by François-Xavier Lalanne set a new record for the artist when it took €8.32m (€7.1m/£6.01m hammer) in November at Sotheby’s auction of works from the collection of Dorothee Lalanne.

3. The highest price for an individual lot at Christie’s France last year was the €14.55m (€12.5m/£10.68m hammer) paid for this oil on canvas by René Magritte – La Vengeance – offered in the auction of the Francis Gross collection in June.

4. One of the highest-priced lots sold by Artcurial in 2021 was this portrait of David Burluk by Mikhail Larionov that made €2.99m (€2.4m/£2.05m hammer) in December.

5. Among the 20 highest-selling works offered at Drouot in 2021 was this early 16th century Limoges enamel plaque by an artist known as the Master of the Aeneid which realised €1.18m (€920,000/£800,000 hammer) in a sale held by Coutau-Begarie in May.

Vengeance in the sale of the Francis Gross collection in June.

Fifty-five lots sold for a million euros or more, compared to 27 in 2020. Around 51% of lots were sold online for a total value of €44.4m, representing 105% more than in 2020 and 279% more than the previous year. The volume of private sales initiated in France also increased by 32% over 2020.

The French firms

French auction house Artcurial, which held 104 auctions last year with 26 that were online only, recorded sales of €169m for 2021, an increase of 13% over the €149.2m for 2020 (this figure includes charity sales and estimations for 2021 sales that were still to take place). The auction house reported a 38% increase in volume of sales over the internet.

Drouot presented its figures in a different way this year. It released a sales figure for the entire Drouot Group of €523m, which represents the total product of physical auctions taking place at the Drouot auction centre plus the Live product (Groupe Drouot’s online bidding platform) for physical sales that took place outside Drouot and online-only sales (excluding industrial equipment).

The sales total for the 734 physical auctions organised by the 62 auction firms that operated at Drouot in 2021 was €333m. This compares to a figure of €205m for the 473 auctions at the Drouot centre in 2020.

Heading the list of the 20 top lots at €6.65m (€5.5m/£4.7m hammer) was Big John, the triceratops dinosaur skeleton sold by Binoche et Giquello in October last year.

Among other French auction houses reporting their results, Aguttes recorded a sales total of €77.5m, representing a 64% increase over 2020 and a 17% increase over 2019.

Osenat, which held 89 auctions across four salerooms in Fontainebleau, Versailles and Chailly en Bière, recorded sales of €36.5m, an increase of 49.66% over 2020.

Ader, which held 90 sales in 2021, realised €40m, a 25% increase over its total for the previous year.

The Ivoire group of 11 auction firms across the French regions reported a sales total of €60m. This represents a 26% increase over the previous year and, notes Ivoire, was achieved without any million-euro results for individual lots. ■

All sales totals quoted above are premium inclusive.

Dufy's double value from British sporting events

£1 = $1.35/€1.19

Two British sporting scenes by the French artist Raoul Dufy (1877-1953) were among the best-sellers in auctions held within a day of each other on either side of the Atlantic.

On December 30 in the sale of Fine and Decorative arts held by Besch (21.25% buyer's premium) in Cannes as part of its December auction series, an 18 x 21½in (45.5 x 54cm) oil on canvas depicting the regatta at Cowes in 1929 realised €82,000 (£68,910)

The following day at Nadeau's (23% buyer's premium) New Year's Day sale in Connecticut, the artist's gouache and watercolour of the racecourse at Epsom proved to be a top-seller when it sold within estimate at $100,000 (£74,075).

Besch Cannes Auction

Far left: the regatta at Cowes in 1929 by Raoul Dufy – €82,000 (£68,910) at Besch.

The work, which measured 19½in x 2ft 2in (49.5 x 66cm) and is in the catalogue raisonné of watercolours, gouaches and pastels by the artist, had a provenance to Perls Galleries

New York. It was signed and titled Epsom and bore the inscription Mr. Furse 925 Park 7C on its cardboard backing.

The Art Deco side cabinet by Jacques Emile Ruhlmann previewed in ATG No 2523 was another of the top lots at Nadeau's, selling for $40,000 (£29,630) against a guide of $50,000-100,000.

Mickey challenges pirate to a duel

A rare black and white Disney production image of Mickey Mouse will feature as one of the highlights in the Animation Art auction to be held by Heritage from February 4-7 in Dallas.

The well-preserved, hand-inked nitrate cel set-up on its hand-painted key master background comes from Shanghai'd, a theatrical short released in 1934 directed by Burt Gillett.

In the film Mickey and Minnie Mouse are captured on the ship of the ruthless pirate captain Peg-Leg Pete and Mickey challenges Peg-Leg to a duel, flinging a pack of cards around the cabin while making a raspberry noise.

The paint on the cels remains fully intact and additionally the names Fergy and Spencer are hand-written along the bottom edge. This is probably a nod to two great animators: Norman Ferguson (1902-57) and Fred Spencer (1904-38).

The lot is offered with a leather portfolio containing a set of six studio printed Shanghai'd publicity images and the estimate is $25,000+.

Milestone motors in with bike toys

Milestone Auctions recorded some buoyant prices for rare variants of toy motorcycles in its sale last October (see ATG No 2516). More are still to come in the latest auction of Toys in Willoughby, Ohio, on January 29 with nearly 130 on offer.

Among them will be some further examples of rare Marx clockwork prototypes: an Indian motorcycle and sidecar with box (pictured above left) estimated at $4000-6000 and a Red Cross bike with rider guided at $6000-8000.

The selection also features this 9in (22.5cm) British clockwork example featuring two clowns (above right). The bike, marked Made in GT Britain on the petrol tank, has an estimate of $1000-1500.

Thomas Forrester,
Director at auction house
Special Auction Services (SAS)
and Bargain Hunt specialist

The ATG has always been the constant to which I've turned for all the trends, results, stories and of course to see what's coming up for sale by auction and though the trade. A brilliant source for increasing knowledge and fair and honest reporting.

Like a true friend, it has always been there for me every Tuesday in the post. I always look forward to thumbing through it. A truly informative read, both online and in hard copy."

The original and authoritative sales listing

This is a calendar of art, antiques and general auctions to be held as live sales in the UK and Ireland over the next two weeks. It also includes timed online auctions running on thesaleroom.com.

Readers are reminded to check with the auction house directly (and refer to any local restrictions on travelling) before undertaking a journey.

Readers should bear in mind that regulations and guidelines differ across each of the devolved nations of the UK and are also different in the Republic of Ireland. They are also subject to change at short notice.

Many auction houses now require you to book an appointment before you visit. In all cases you should check with the auction house directly to understand the conditions under which the auction is taking place, including viewings, storage arrangements or delivery and collection options that are currently available.

Our online calendar is updated throughout the week, check it regularly to ensure you have the latest information.

We are also listing timed auctions that are being held on thesaleroom.com
Information accurate at the time of going to press (2pm Friday January 21).

Auctioneers are requested to contact us with details of their sales and inform us of any changes.

Artist's Resale Right

Advertisements in Antiques Trade Gazette may mention Artist's Resale Right (ARR). Please refer to the information below for details.

Living artists and the descendants of artists deceased within the last 70 years are entitled to receive a resale royalty each time their work is bought. The right applies only when the sale price reaches or exceeds the sterling equivalent of €1,000 and is calculated on a sliding scale.

Please note ARR is calculated in euros.

Auctioneers will apply current exchange rates.

Royalty	Resale price
4%	up to €50,000
3%	between €50,000.01 and €200,000
1%	between €200,000.01 and €350,000
0.5%	between €350,000.01 and €500,000
0.25%	in excess of €500,000

Royalties are also capped so that the total amount of the royalty paid for any single sale of a work cannot exceed €12,500. ARR is exempt of VAT.

Readers should expect that some of the live sales listed in this calendar will be held as live online only events whereby there is no bidding in person. Check with the auction house for details.

Find these auctioneers on thesalerom.com where you can bid on some or all of their sales

Horology dealer who will stand at Lingfield says buyers are keen to do repairs themselves

by Joan Porter

Love Fairs organiser Donny Mann is back at Lingfield Racecourse with his first antiques and vintage fair of the year on Sunday, January 30. And fully booked too, at 100 dealers.

Horology dealer Warren Wilkinson certainly shows the love when he gets up in the middle of the night to drive from his home in Devon to Love Fairs' events at both Brighton and Lingfield.

Wilkinson, who has a unit at Topsham Quay Antiques Centre near Exeter, Devon, takes a range of clocks in all shapes and sizes and from the 1930s-70s plus Edwardian and Victorian clocks, priced from £20-300. Some of his best sellers are the 1960s-70s 'starburst' wall clocks, of which he can't get enough.

Anything unusual does well and Art Deco in particular, he said. "Men's watches are more popular than women's although more women are buying men's watches from the 1920s which were considerably

I always take a small number of clocks and watches that need attention as increasing numbers of customers want to repair these smaller than men's watches today.

"I always take a small number of clocks and watches that need attention as increasing numbers of customers want to repair these themselves."

And Wilkinson's likes? "Clocks and watches that have an inscription which tell you a little about their purpose. I have a travelling compact clock inscribed To Dorky from Maurice on his going to school 20th September 1927." ■

Chorus of approval for Woking event

Stall numbers are looking good at around 160 for Grandma's Attic Fairs' new antiques and vintage fair at Woking Leisure Centre which launches on Sunday, February 6.

Co-organiser Chris Brown said this will include at least 20 dealers in Art Deco and Mid-century Modern and will be the largest fair in its portfolio of events including seven other venues in southern England.

"I must be mad launching a new fair," he said, but the event, planned to run three or four times a year, may well be a shrewd move as Take Five Fairs ran successful 20th century and Deco fairs at the Woking Leisure Centre for at least 10 years until 2017.

Well-known Deco dealers who are exhibiting at Grandma's Attic's fair include lighting specialist Dave Hornik Unger (Deco Dave), Jane Burgett with Danske silver, and Wendy and Tony Clarke of Artdecoart. The brilliant colours of Whitefriar glass will be ready to catch the eye on the stand of Dave Woodger Antiques.

News in brief

Returning after a five-year absence is the 200-pitch Stately Car Boot at Sennowe Park, near Fakenham in Norfolk on Sunday, May 1. Proceeds are in aid of the Norfolk Churches Trust, to whom traders should apply for pitches.

➤ norfolkchurchestrust.org.uk/events

The National Trust's Long Melford Stately Car Boot Sale will take place monthly from Sunday, May 10, in the grounds of the 18th century Melford Hall near Long Melford in Suffolk. Expect 100 pitches.

➤ facebook.com/statelyhomebootsale

The Chiswick Car Boot Sale is run by parents in aid of Chiswick School where the monthly Sunday boot is held.

The first this year kicks off on Sunday, February 6, at the school in Burlington Lane, W4. This is a busy event with lots of rules so buyers and sellers should check out the website first.

➤ chiswickcarbootsale.com

Jennifer Titmuss of Corky Events runs her next monthly Chiswick High Road antiques and vintage street market in the heart of Chiswick on Sunday, February 13.

Here 50-plus dealers will be selling all sorts of treasures including brocante, salvage and ephemera.

Obituary – John Gregory

On December 13, 2021, the art village of St James's lost one of its most colourful characters.

For some 20 years John Gregory had been the guardian of Georgian House in Bury Street, home to many distinguished residents, art connoisseurs and dealers. He was always welcoming, a friendly face to be seen daily shuffling his way through the enclaves of art-mongers, peers of the realm and Georgian House's international tenants.

John was much loved by most, always there to assist with any request large or small; if he didn't have the answer he always knew someone who did. With a customary cigarette hanging from his lips he always had time to chat, catch up on the local gossip, offer his help whenever he could. He was a fixer who knew where the bodies were buried.

John never moved too far from the boundaries of St James's and enjoyed the local social life very much, dividing his time between the two famous pubs, The Chequers, Duke Street, and Crown Passage's Red Lion. Always dressed immaculately, he could be found at the bar enjoying the company of others with a pint of London Pride, discussing any topic of the moment.

His breakfast at the weekend was at 45 Jermyn Street. His passions were Arsenal and Lord's Cricket Ground; he liked his politics and history, and loved his art. All workers, gallerists, art handlers and young aspiring Christie's auctioneers would be enthralled to sit with him and hear his stories.

John would listen to what you had to say and take a true interest. He could make you feel special.

'Grit and determination'

John passed away at 79 after a short illness he couldn't defeat. Seemingly constantly riddled with ailments, he refused to let them take over his life. He had fought each one off with grit and determination. He had smashed cancer, survived at least three heart attacks and lost a couple of toes.

A medical phenomenon, his powers of survival were well noted, so much so that he was the subject of an article in the Lancet.

John is survived by his ex-wife Anne, children Neil and Sarah, and his four beloved grandchildren Isla, Lucy, Freddie and Archie. A father, grandfather, mentor and a much treasured friend, St James's will never see his like again.

A memorial will be held at 2pm on February 17 at St James's Church, Piccadilly.

Timed auctions on thesaleroom.com Bidding made easy

In a timed auction, there is no auctioneer taking bids from a live audience in a room. Instead, all the bidding takes place online.

Timed auctions have an end-time displayed on the lot page. You can bid at any point from when the auction opens to when it closes.

As a bidder, you can enter a max bid – the most you are willing to bid, using our set bidding increments and we do the rest. We will bid intelligently for you, bidding only enough for you to meet the reserve or stay in the lead.

Your max bid stays secret in our system. We won't share your maximum bid with the auctioneer, the seller or other bidders. You'll see your 'current bid' when you log in and view the lot. If someone bids higher than your maximum, we will send you an 'outbid alert' via email, so you can decide whether to bid more.

If a bid is placed in the final few minutes before the auction closes for that lot, the time period will be extended by a number of minutes. The auction house can set the number of minutes, usually 10.

This is to stop 'sniping' – a practice used by bidders on some other websites whereby they rush to place bids in the last few seconds to prevent other bidders being able to respond before the auction closes.
