MASON TO BE TEMPORARY HEADQUARTERS OF BUILDERS.

Line To Convey Orude Oil From Michigan Fields To Refineries In Toledo, Ohio.

Dirt is flying in Ingham county as 100 men and modern digging machinery are working at top speed on the construction of a pipeline to carry crude oil from the central Michigan fields to Toledo, Ohlo, refineries. The line is being constructed by the Simrall Pipeline company, said to be a subsidiary of Standard Oil.

Mason is to be temporary headquarters for the pipeline builders if enough apartments and rooms can be secured to house between 40 and 50

Work is being rushed despite the protests of Michigan refiners that the operation of the pipeline will leave Michigan refineries without sufficient supplies of crude. Michigan refiners have filed protests with the state public utilities commission but construction work has not been halted.

Starts Near Alma The pipeline taps the Michigan fields near Alma and Mt. Pleasant, runs south through St. Johns and southeast across the edge of Chandlers Marsh into Ingham county and thence southeast across Ingham to Dansville and southeast to the Jackson county line.

This week the line has been placed beneath the Michigan Central tracks about a half-mile north of the Ingham Clinton county line, and a mile west of the Lansing-Meridian township line, The board of supervisors at the October session granted permission for the company to lay its line across the county farm in Meridian.

Trucks are used to haul the 40-foot lengths of eight-inch pipe to the rightof-way of the pipeline. Crews of welders join the lengths of pipe ready to be placed in the trench dug by a special trenching machine.

Caterpillar tractors and derricks are being used to hurry the construction of the line. Operations across the edge of Chandlers Marsh have been under the handicap of wet weather. 14 MILES OF BLACKTOP ON ING-HAM STRETCH.

ack Of Relief Labor May Hold Up Needed Improvement On Route

Plans for the blacktopping of 14 miles of M-36 from the intersection with the Meridian road about three miles west of Dansville to the Ingham-Livingston county line were announced in Lansing Wednesday afternoon. The highway department stated that preliminary work would begin at once. However, Fred L. Fulton, WPA executive, points out that there are only a townships the route traverses and that the project must be held up until arrangements for transporting workers from Mason, Leslie, Williamston and Holt are made.

The blacktop project calls for the employment of 318 men over a period of eight months. The estimate of cost is $211.857.00.

Specifications call for the construction of an oil aggregate surface which is similar to blacktop, it is explained. The large number of men assigned to the work is caused by reason of abandoning modern machinery in favor of hand labor. Men will screen the gravel by hand and rake out the big stones to be crushed later and placed along the shoulders of the highway.

That total makes an average cost of $15,132.00 per mile which appears out of reason. Average costs for concrete pavement are about $15,000 a mile. CIVIL SERVICE

Much is being said in the public print these days concerning the institution of civil service in Michigan state employment. In fact the generalissimos of both major political parties are doing their best to create a campaign issue for 1936 and each side evidently is intent upon stealing the other's thunder in this respect.

Civil service is a fine theory. It has its advantages certainly over the patronage system which has occupied so prominent a position in state affairs during the past three years. On the other hand voters are warned that never vet has civil service, wherever it has been instituted, done all that was claimed or is being claimed for it. In fact the records will show that so far as the taxpayer is concerned he has benefitted little, if any. Investigation of civil service systems adopted in other states proves conclusively that an increased number of employees drawing increased salaries has always followed its adoption.

Quite to the contrary the merit system where in vogue brings good results to all.

There are three distinct groups interested in public employment. There are the employees themselves, the taxpayers who pay the bills, and the citizens who do business with government, that is to say those who are forced to command the services which governmental agencies are created to perform. The employee is interested in the security of his position as well as in receiving a fair wage for his services; the taxpayer is interested in the matter of his governmental agencies producing the maximum of public service at a minimum of cost; the citizen who approaches some governmental agency for service is interested in receiving the service required at the hands of a trustworthy, competent and courteous

A civil service examination can decide only a single factor, namely that the applicant has intelligence and that his education has advanced far enough to assure the examination board that actual experience on the contemplated job has reasonable chance of producing a competent governmental agent. No civil service system can possibly guarantee either courtesy or trustworthiness.

And so after all the political fogs have been swept away there are some important outstanding factors re-

In the first place, if the governor really has tired of the patronage system, he can put a stop to it over night. All he has to do is close up his patronage office and quit sending misfits to heads of departments who owe their political position to him. No political campaign need be waged on the issue of civil service to accomplish a reform in state employment. No legislative enactment is required to remove the useless job and the political deadwood from the vicinity of the state capitol.

In the second place Michigan might have the best designed system of civil employment ever conceived, there would still remain the political appointment of heads of bureaus and commissions and even though the state possessed the best trained and most carefully selected office and technical employees possible to be assembled, all their excellent work would go for naught whenever a nincompoop commissioner, appointed for political purposes by a political governor, assumed command. After all it is the ability of the executive or administrative head of any department which decrees its successful

A commonplace office force can be whipped into a smooth running organization by a competent executive. The best trained force in the world can be ruined by an incompetent executive head.

So let not the populace become over-excited concerning this matter of civil service. It is just another manufacture ed issue designed to take the public mind away from matters of genuine public concern.

DIFFERENT VIEWPOINTS

There seems to be a difference in viewpoint between Harry Bennett of the Ford motor car company and Dr. William T. Shaw of Lansing. Each was appointed to the Michigan prison control commission by Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald. Mr. Bennett is among the high counsel to Henry and Edsel Ford, exponents of big business carried on along the most progressive industrial practices known to the business world. Dr. Shaw is of the old school of politics who for years has been able to land right side up in any political blizzard which blows. Between the two is a chasm as deep as the Royal Gorge.

Harry Bennett is the product of a great corporation builded along humanitarian lines in which the human factor plays a great part. For him to consent to give of his time and energies to guide the destinies of thousands of men incarcerated in our prisons and to guide the business of the state in the operation of these institutions and keep the cost within reason was a compliment to the governor who appointed him. Evidently the atmosphere of the politically controlled prison board was not congenial to men like Harry Bennett who is accustomed to treating business affairs from a business standpoint and not altogether as policies might or might not effect the political fortunes of some group of party henchmen.

William T. Shaw, on the other hand, is the product of the old theory of "to the victors belong the spoils." He is of the Frank McKay type. He knows how to make politics pay. As chairman of the prison commission his tactics have proved repulsive to Mr. Bennett. As a consequence, Mr. Bennett has resigned and told the governor that he will not be a party to the secret meeting practices upon which Chairman Shaw and his cohorts insist,

Mr. Bennett is right in his contentions. There is no reason on earth why the business of the state cannot be transacted in the open. Any excuse given to the contrary is a mere subterfuge to cover up the real purpose of secrecy. Secret meetings of the prison board can serve but one purpose, that of awarding fat contracts to political associates. Mr. Bennett very properly calls attention to this evil and renders a distinct service when he resigns from the board.

Incidentally it might be mentioned that one of the results of these secret meetings has been a move to install $125,000 worth of printing machinery at Ionia. The records show that there are no skilled artisans in the graphic arts trades among the convicts and less than , a score of so-called printers in all the penal institutions of the state. The move to install the printing plant at Ionia is merely an attempt to sell the state a lot of costly and intricate machinery which must either stand idle or ME surprising new discoveries have been made recently about what it takes to start a cold automobile engine-start it and warm it up to full, smooth drive-away power faster.

For many years Standard's research staff has been at work on this problem. Not satisfied with laboratory experiment alone, they have conducted thousands of road tests-in all sorts of temperatures—using all sorts of gasoline formulas.

And now they come forward with a motor fuel that is different, in many respects, from any that ever went into a gasoline tank before-a motor fuel which embodies all these newly discovered principles-which really is quick starting without the drawbacks that so often go with that quality.

This new Standard Red Crown starts at the first flash of the spark. But on top of that it has fully 35% faster warm-up speed in zero temperatures. Actually it will get your car started and under way as quickly and easily in mid-winter as in mid-summer. You'll be free from vapor lock. You'll get better winter mileage. Try it!

It's ready in the pumps now-where you see the sign of STANDARD OIL SERVICE.

One suggestion: Because this new Double-Quick gasoline does turn on full power in a cold engine so quickly, the use of a light grade of winter motor oil is desirable to assure instant, active lubrication of all moving parts. Iso-Vis "D"-10-W or 20-W -is a perfect running mate for the new Standard Red Crown.

Every age has something which is deemed more important than others at the time. In youth, it may be a game; in young manhood and womanhood, it may be the founding of the home; in middle age, financial security for self and posterity; and in age, the reflections of a life well spent.

One important thing that should be learned early in life is the necessity of judicious saving in order that old age will not find us a burden to others.

One of the important things of this bank, is our belief that our depositors should have their savings invested safely. We have always kept this important with our bank.

He also says that many sections of the United States can support a high plane of rural social and economic life which is not possible at any other place in the world.

Dr. Baker estimates that, in the years from 1920 to 1929, one-third of all farm income was transferred to the cities. Most of this wealth was in the form of young people who had been raised and educated on the income from farming. Another transfer of wealth was through the payment of city heirs of their share of the farm estate. Interest and rent payments to absentee owners drained still further wealth from rural areas

In the Public Interest

Every business exists by catering, directly or indirectly, to the public. The dealings of some are limited to a small group; but a business such as the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, which caters to every one, which keeps an important product available to all at any hour of the day or night, can be truly said to be engaged in public service.

Those conducting such a business assume an obligation which does not apply to every business; the very fact that telephone service vitally affects the public welfare, and is of daily importance in the social and business life of Michigan, places a serious responsibility upon the Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

In accepting that responsibility, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company established the following principle as its fundamental policy: To supply the people of Michigan with the best possible telephone service at the least possible cost that will maintain existing standards and assure the improvements of the future.

This is not a mere theoretical motto. It is a plain statement of the permanent policy that governs this company's activities. Its importance is shown by the improvements which a faithful observance of that policy has produced in the service.

These improvements, revealed by accurate daily records, include a greater proportion of out-of-town calls completed while the subscriber holds the line; faster repair service; better equipment; increased speed and accuracy in handling local calls; unfailing courtesy; a steady decrease in "out-of-order" reports.

Such tangible, continued progress did not come by chance; it did not "just happen." It grew directly out of a sincere desire to serve the public well; out of the belief that the only policy which can work to the permanent advantage of any business is the policy that works in the interest of the public.

Business of all kinds needs concrete roads. They appeal to taxpayers, because they cost less to build than any other roads of equal load carrying capacity. Surface maintenance costs are $114 to $469 less per mile per year than for other types. It pays to demand concrete for every road carrying 100 vehicles or more per day.

Time to consider. Time to choose wisely.

Time to avoid useless spending.

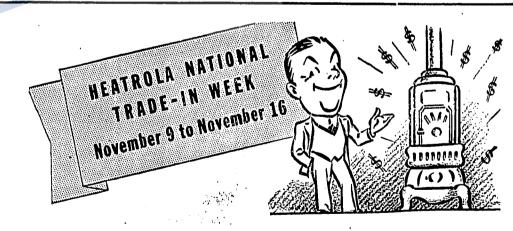

These parts do not boast a more friendly shopping place— is a place more anxious to aid in a happy solution of your gift re- 🥻

Successful gift selection depends fully as much on a wise use of your time now as on having an unlimited checking account. Careless, meaningless giving is not confined to those of modest means but to those of all purchasing groups who let time pass and then attempt a buying debauch with a useless hope that it will prove successful.

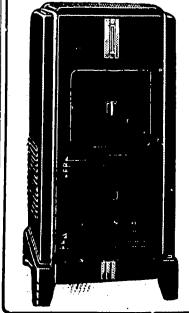

These present days should be used for sane deliberation and final decisions. Everything selected now will be the result of mature consideration, will necessitate a minimum expenditure of money and will make your holiday smile more radiant.
