Biographical/Historical Note

M. Knoedler & Co. was a successor to the New York branch of Goupil & Co., an extremely dynamic print-publishing house founded in Paris in 1827. Goupil's branches in London, Berlin, Brussels, and The Hague, as well as New York, expanded the firm's market in the sale of reproductive prints. The firm's office in New York—an initiative of Léon Goupil, the son of Adolphe Goupil, Théodore Vibert, and the agent William Schaus—was established in 1848 at 289 Broadway on the corner of Duane Street near City Hall.

In 1857, Michael Knoedler, an employee of Goupil and a manager for the firm, bought out the interests in the firm's New York branch, conducted the business under his own name, and diversified its activities to include the sale of paintings. The office was then established in a larger space at 366 Broadway. When Roland Knoedler, Michael's son, became a partner in the business in 1877, the firm became known from then on as M. Knoedler & Co. Roland Knoedler took over the firm after the death of his father in 1878 and with Charles Carstairs opened galleries in Paris and London. When Roland Knoedler retired in 1928, the management of the firm passed to his nephew Charles Henschel, Carman Messmore, Charles Carstairs and Carstairs' son, Carroll. In 1956 Henschel died and E. Coe Kerr and Michael Knoedler's grandson, Roland Balajy, took over. After a number of moves, M. Knoedler & Co. occupied its headquarters at 19 E. 70th Street for many years.

When Michael Knoedler purchased the New York Goupil office in 1857, most American museums had not yet been formed. The country was also relatively isolated from Western European centers of art exchange. As the United States witnessed a rise in personal fortunes from the steel, mining, iron, and railroad industries in the nineteenth century, more Americans had the financial means to begin forming art collections. It fueled the art market that M. Knoedler & Co. helped establish and combined with declining nobilities and changes in tax legislation in Europe, it accelerated the process of transferring artworks from Europe to the United States. In 1901, Knoedler sold an important old master, Velázquez, Don Balthazar Carlos with a Dwarf, to the Boston Museum. In 1907, in partnership with P. Colnaghi & Co., Knoedler acquired seven portraits of the Cattaneo family by Anthony van Dyck, of which three now form part of the Widener Collection at the National Gallery of Art in Washington D.C. In 1911, the firm sold Vermeer's Officer and Laughing Girl to Henry Clay Frick. By the early 20th century, the Knoedler Gallery had become one of the main suppliers of old master paintings in the United States and would continue to serve as a major conduit for the acquisition of masterworks.

Among clients of Knoedler were civic-minded collectors, including John Taylor Johnston (1820-1893), the son of a banker, who would become the founding president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; Robert Leighton Stuart (1806-1882), a major donor to the New York Public Library; and Catharine Lorillard Wolfe (1828-1887), the daughter of a real estate developer and an heir to the Lorillard Tobacco Company. Wolfe became the first donor to provide both a collection gift and an endowment to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Knoedler developed very close relationships with Henry Clay Frick and Andrew W. Mellon. A large portion of the paintings in The Frick Collection in New York were acquired during Frick's lifetime through the Knoedler Gallery. In 1900, Charles Carstairs and Roland Knoedler were present at Mellon's wedding celebrated in England. The close relationship between Knoedler and Mellon would continue throughout the collector's life, including his appointment as U.S. Secretary of the Treasury from 1921 until 1932, culminating in the purchase of twenty-one paintings from the Hermitage in Saint-Petersburg in 1930-1931. These artworks-including paintings by van Eyck, Botticelli, Raphael, Titian, and Rembrandt-would form the nucleus of the National Gallery of Art, which was established and initially funded in part by Mellon.

Early in its history, M. Knoedler & Co. chose to advocate the work of American artists. It established an educational division to promote American artists, the International Art Union, which published a journal to help publicize artists' works through print reproductions and which offered artists scholarships to study abroad. Knoedler served as a primary agent for numerous artists, and through an ongoing exhibition program actively promoted artists such as the American landscape painter and printmaker Winslow Homer and Frederic Edwin Church, a central figure in the Hudson River School of American landscape painters. After World War II, the gallery promoted the work of Willem de Kooning, Barnett Newman, Louise Bourgeois, Eva Hesse and Arshile Gorky, along with European artists, such as Salvador Dalí, Henry Moore, and Wassily Kandinsky.

In 1971 the firm was purchased by businessman, philanthropist and collector Armand Hammer. Since the late 1970s, the firm has focused increasingly on contemporary art. During the late 2000s the gallery was embroiled in lawsuits regarding allegedly forged artworks. The Knoedler Gallery closed in November 2011.

Note: Regarding the date that M. Knoedler & Co. was created in the nineteenth century, the firm has traditionally retained 1846 as founding date. This tradition was given prominence in 1946 in A Catalogue of an Exhibition of Paintings and Prints of Every Description, on the Occasion of Knoedler, One Hundred Years, 1846-1946. In his foreword to the catalogue, Charles Henschel, Michael Knoedler's grandson and then the firm's president, associated 1846 with the date of his grandfather's arrival in New York. The 1846 founding date also appears on some of the firm's labels. This date has been questioned however, in light that the earliest press announcement of an opening of a shop in New York by Goupil may date from 1848. See The Literary World (1849), Volume 5: 317. DeCourcy McIntosh is credited with first questioning the founding date of 1846. See his "Merchandising America: American Views Published by the Maison Goupil," The Magazine Antiques (September 2004): 124-133. Others have questioned whether in reference to the founding of the Knoedler Gallery the date of 1857 is not in fact more relevant than those of 1846 or 1848.

Scope and Contents Note

The records of M. Knoedler & Co. document the business of the prominent American art dealer from the mid-19th century to 1971, when the Knoedler Gallery was acquired by Armand Hammer.

The archive traces the development of the once provincial American art market into one of the world's leading art centers and the formation of the private art collections that would ultimately establish many of the nation's leading art museums, such as the Frick Collection and the National Gallery of Art. It brings to the foreground the business side of dealing as artworks shuttled back and forth among Knoedler, fellow dealers, and collectors, documenting developments in art connoisseurship, shifting tastes, the changing role of art in American society, and the essential role of private collectors in the formation of public American art collections. The records provide insight into broader economic, social and cultural histories and the nation's evolving sense of place in the world.

The Knoedler Gallery became one of the main suppliers of old master and post-Impressionist paintings in the United States. Financial records of the firm provide crucial provenance information on the large number of artworks in American museums that were sold by the gallery.

The archive includes stock books, sales books and commission books; correspondence with collectors, artists, art dealers and other associates; photographs of the artworks sold by the gallery; records from the firm's offices in London, Paris and other cities; exhibition files; framing and restoration records, and records of the firm's Print Department.

Selected portions of the archive have been digitized and made available online. Connect to selected digitized portions of the archive.

Series I.A. Paintings, 1872-1970 24 Linear Feet (11 boxes)

Scope and Contents:

The subseries contains eleven volumes of Knoedler's stock books for paintings acquired by the firm from 1872 to 1970. Beginning in January 1928, a new numbering system was adopted with the letter A preceding the numbers. The first volumes provide indices for steamers that were used for the shipment of the artworks. The later volumes provide indices for the vendors from whom Knoedler acquired the paintings. The first two books record a variety of transactions, including joint acquisitions and commissions from other dealers, such as Goupil.

Series. I.C. London, 1894-1977 36 Linear Feet (30 boxes)

Scope and Contents:

The acquisitions by the London branch of M. Knoedler & Co. are documented in several sets of stock books. These sets contain overlapping information and appear to have been used and maintained by the different offices of the firm. Before January 1928, artworks that had been assigned a stock number upon entering the stock of the London office, were assigned a different stock number when entering the stock of the New York office. Both offices developed separate numbering sequences. Beginning in January 1928 and with the stock number A1, there appears to have been an attempt to unify the numbering sequence of both offices. Other numbering systems consisting of the letters L or F preceding the number indicate inventory from the London and Paris offices, respectively. Are also included in this subseries stock books that were maintained by the London office, but which record transactions by the New York office.

Paintings and watercolors, 1863-1971
Scope and Contents:
The sales books record the sales of paintings and watercolors, which were part of the firm's stock or held on consignment at the firm. Each sales book contains an index documenting the client who purchased the artwork from Knoedler and auction houses for items that were sent to auction. The overlap in volumes with dates from 1928 to 1948 does not include duplicated information on sales. The entries in the sales books are recorded by chronological order of sales. Consulting the record of a sale for a specific stock number is facilitated by the brief notations on sales dates that are listed under stock numbers in the stock books (Series I).

Series III. Commission books, 1879-1973 24 Linear Feet (20 boxes)

Scope and Contents note:

Series III. Commission books comprises 20 volumes documenting commissions or consignments. The terms "commission" and "consignment" appear to be used interchangeably in notations appearing throughout the volumes, but the term "commission" is prevalent in the primary set of volumes, which dates from 1879 to 1973. This set records transactions with collectors, artists and other dealers. Beginning in 1946, the firm differentiated works consigned by artists from other types of consignments, recording them in separate ledgers.

Before April 1892, commissions were recorded unnumbered. In April 30, 1892, a new numbering system was adopted with the commissions inventoried by the letter C preceding the numbers. Beginning in January 1928, commissions were inventoried with the letters CA preceding the numbers. For consignments from artists from 1946 to 1972, the letter S precedes the number.

Selected commission books in Series III have been digitized and made available online. Connect to digitized commission books.

Arrangement:

Series III. Commission books is arranged in three groupings: Commission books no. 1-no. 6; Transactions with artists; Other ledgers.

Series IV. Inventory cards, 1859-1971 31 Linear Feet (72 boxes)

Scope and Contents note:

Series IV. Inventory cards contains cards that record selected acquisitions, consignments and sales of paintings and watercolors by M. Knoedler & Co.'s offices in New York, London and Paris. Notations on the cards also document void transactions, owner credits and trades, and returns to the owner (RTO). While the cards duplicate information found in the stock, sales and commission books, they facilitate the retrieval of information in these ledgers for different types of searches, such as the names of artists, buyers or stock numbers. However, cards only exist for a limited number of M. Knoedler & Co.'s transactions.

In other to facilitate the consultation of the inventory cards, the Getty Research Institute plans on digitizing the entire Series IV.

Arrangement:

Series IV. Inventory cards is filed according to seven types, which were defined by the Knoedler firm: customers; buyer-artist; artist-buyer; current alphabetical; current numerical; sold alphabetical; sold numerical.

Under the category Customers, cards contain a summary of transactions, including purchases, sales, consignments, and shared acquisitions with other dealers. Under the category Buyer-artist, each card records a single transaction.

Series VI. Correspondence, 1878-1971 633.2 Linear Feet (1626 boxes, 5 flat file folders)

Scope and Contents note:

Series VI. Correspondence, one of the largest series in the archive, consists primarily of the correspondence files maintained by the New York and the London offices of M. Knoedler & Co., but it also contains files from the firm's other offices in Paris and Chicago. The correspondence generally concerns possible sales or purchases of artworks, and occasionally features personal notes. Of particular interest is the interoffice correspondence between the New York, London, Paris, and Chicago offices, with notes or instructions directed to staff and information about sales, potential sales, clients, collectors, and collections. The archive contains interoffice correspondence files kept by each office. The correspondence of the firm's library in New York--kept separate from the firm's general correspondence--concerns requests for documentation and illustrations of artworks, inquiries about publications, and includes letters received from the firm's library in London.

Correspondence received or sent by the Knoedler firm may be part of the records of staff or associates of the Knoedler firm who subsequently worked at other institutions and may be in the holdings of these institutions. The Clark Art Institute has among its holdings records of William Collins, who worked for Knoedler before working at the Clark. The Paul Mellon Center in London holds correspondence files from the Knoedler Gallery, which were received among the records of Frank Simpson who worked at the Knoedler Gallery in London before working at the Paul Mellon Center.

Selected portions of Series VI. Correspondence have been digitized. To view online copies of letters preserved in letter copying books, connect to digitized letter copying books.

Arrangement:

Series VI. Correspondence is organized into the following subseries: Series VI.A. General correspondence; Series VI.B. Interoffice correspondence; Series VI.C. Library correspondence; Series VI.D. Copies of letters sent; Series VI.E. London office correspondence; Series VI.F. Other offices; Series VI.G. Correspondence dossiers.

Series VI.A. General correspondence, 1879-1971 343 Linear Feet (806 boxes and 1 flatfile)

Scope and Contents:

Subseries VI.A. General correspondence contains letters received by the New York office of M. Knoedler Co. from clients, artists, banks, associates and other dealers. The files also include selected copies of letters sent by Knoedler. The correspondence includes letters of inquiries about sales, negotiations of prices, appraisals, loans of artworks for exhibitions, and occasionally personal notes. For letters written by the painter Winslow Homer to M. Knoedler & Co., also see the twelve letters dating from 1900 to 1904 held by the Archives of American Art and digitized in 2014, and the letters from Homer to the firm that date from 1901-1902, 1904, 1908, and that are held at The Clark Art Institute.

Arrangement:

The correspondence files were organized first by year and by alphabetical order for each year. Large files for certain associates, in particular the art dealer P. & D. Colnaghi, are divided in certain years by month of the year and between files of letters received and letters sent (i.e. "From Colnaghi January," "From Colnaghi February," ..., "To Colnaghi January," "To Colnaghi February," ...). In each alphabetical folder, such as Ab, Ac, the documents were roughly in the order received from January to December, rather than arranged by author. Topical folders, such as asking prices, are filed at the end of the alphabetical range. The correspondence files dating from 1921 to 1971 were generally kept in strict order, while the previous years were not and these have been filed according to the order found for later years.

Notations in pencil in the upper left corner of letters indicate the expected filing location. Typically, these notations simply identify the author of the letter, but in certain cases they suggest a topical filing or a cross-reference filing. Files for specific Knoedler staff or associates often appear under the name of the author of the letter. However, personal expenses of staff or traveling documentation of certain staff may be filed under the name of the staff member rather than the agency sending the letter.

Comments in the letters (i.e. "I am enclosing a photograph of the painting") suggest that these were often accompanied by photographs illustrating the artwork discussed. However, in most instances, the photographs are no longer with the letters, having been separated by Knoedler staff and filed under artworks in a different portion of the firm's records. These photographs are filed by artist and stock number in the portion of the archive now titled Series. VII. Photographs (Series VII.A. Artist files).

Scope and Contents:

The interoffice correspondence consists of letters and cables received by the New York office from the other offices, primarily London and Paris, between 1911 and 1970. The correspondence concerns sales, clients, artworks that are available for purchase, and general business concerns of the offices. There is usually for each year, a folder containing the lists of the works sold by each office or in storage at that location.

Arrangement:

For each office, the interoffice correspondence was filed by year and month. Each year usually includes a folder containing the cables for that year and a folder containing lists of the works sold by the office or in storage at the office. There are also files for copies of letters sent by the New York office or files for copies received by each office from another one.

Series VI.C. Library correspondence, 1913-1971 14.2 Linear Feet (24 boxes and 1 flatfile)

Scope and Contents:

The library correspondence, which was filed separately from the general correspondence of the New York office, mainly consists of correspondence between M. Knoedler & Co.'s librarian, Helmut Ripperger, and clients, art dealers, and museums between 1945 and 1971, and interoffice correspondence between the library of the New York office and those at the London and Paris offices between 1913 and 1971.

Arrangement:

Arranged in two subseries: Series VI.C.1. General correspondence; Series VI.C.2. Interoffice correspondence.

Series VI.C.1. General correspondence, 1945-1971 7.9 Linear Feet (19 boxes)

Scope and Contents:

The subseries consists mainly of the correspondence of Helmut Ripperger, M. Knoedler & Co.'s librarian, between 1945 and 1971. The correspondence details requests for catalogues by Helmut Ripperger and clients, requests for reference information about and photographs of artworks, offers and gifts of books, book/journal sales and purchases, and general administration.

The subseries includes correspondence to and from institutions such as Brooklyn Museum, University of California (Berkeley), Boston Museum of Fine Arts, Szépművészeti Múzeum (Budapest), Fogg Art Museum, Frick Art Reference Library, Guggenheim Museum, Harvard University (Cambridge), Chicago Arts Club, Chicago Art Institute, Cincinnati Art Museum, Cleveland Museum of Art, Columbia University, Ny Carlsberg Glyptotek (Copenhagen), Copenhagen Royal Museum, Galerie Gerald Cramer, John Herron (Indianapolis), Currier Gallery (Manchester), Moroquin Inc., Hans Naef, Hispanic Society of America, Smith College (Northampton), National Gallery (Ottawa), Smith College, Wasmuth Antiquarian, Whitney Museum of American Art, and Yale University.

There are gaps in the correspondence for the files between 1945 and 1950.

Arrangement:

The filing is first by alphabetical order and then by year for each alphabetical letter. For institutions, the filing is geographic by city, rather than alphabetically by names. In Series VI.A. General correspondence, the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York was filed under M, while it is filed under N for New York in the Library correspondence. Names of persons are filed by last name as is the case in Series VI.A.

Series VI.D. Copies of letters sent, 1878-1958 77.1 Linear Feet (343 boxes)

Scope and Contents:

Series VI.D. Copies of letters sent includes letter copying books and loose carbon copies of letters sent by the New York office of M. Knoedler & Co. to clients, associates and other offices of the firm. The copies of these letters are numbered and can be located using indexes that record the last name of the correspondent to whom the letter was addressed. These indexes also facilitate the consultation of the letters received by the firm in Series VI.A. General correspondence. Selected copies may also be found filed with the letters received (Series VI.A).

Copies of letters preserved in letter copying books have been digitized by the Getty Research Institute and made available online and uploaded to the GRI's online catalog. Connect to digitized letter copying books.

Arrangement:

Arranged in two subseries: Series VI.D.1. Letter copying books; Series VI.D.2. Carbon copies.

Series VI.D.1. Letter copying books, 1878-1940 19.2 Linear Feet (205 volumes)

Scope and Contents:

Two hundred and five letter copying books document the letters sent by the New York office of M. Knoedler & Co. from 1890 to 1940. Although some books date from after 1931, the firm primarily switched to the use of loose carbon copies in 1931. Manufactured by H. C. Davison of New York, a firm with branches in Yokohama and Los Angeles, the copying books are bound volumes of thin, translucent tissue leaves, which Davison advertised as "Imperial fibre" or imported Japanese paper. The books are said to contain 500 leaves, but there may be inconsistencies in the numbering that was done by hand with a stamp. Knoedler staff listed the names of addressees with the corresponding number for the letter in the index located at the front of each book.

Due to their fragility, access to the letter books is restricted. The Getty Research Institute plans on digitizing the entire subseries Series VI.D.1. (205 volumes). To view online the letter copying books that have been digitized and uploaded to the GRI's online catalog, connect to digitized letter copying books.

Arrangement:

The books are arranged according to the following categories devised by the Knoedler firm: Domestic letters; Foreign letters; London; Paris; Chicago; Private letters; Telegrams and cables.

Series VI.D.2. Carbon copies, 1931-1958 57.9 Linear Feet (139 boxes)

Scope and Contents:

The subseries consists of carbon copies of letters and cables sent to clients and associates by the New York office of M. Knoedler & Co. between 1931 and 1958. There are gaps in the documentation for the following years: 1934-1941, 1949-1955, and 1957-1958.

The filing of these copies is useful as each letter is numbered and indexed, with the indices listing the recipients of the letters, such as names, institutions and companies. The index numbers may be stamped in the lower right corner of each letter or for the majority of them, handwritten. Most of the letters are single-page and single-sided, but the presence of double-sided letters and letters that have multiple pages leads to some discrepancies between index numbers and the index volume.

Arrangement:

With the exception of the copies for the year 1958, which are not numbered or indexed, the letters are arranged by index number in descending order. Each indexed section has a corresponding index volume.

There are some discrepancies in the index numbers. Where there are letters with more than one page, sometimes the first page is the only one numbered and sometimes each sheet is numbered with the same number. There are instances where, when a letter has more than one page, each page has a different index number. There are also a few occurrences of two letters having the same number, with one of the letters not matching the index.

There are instances where the numbers, the primary filing principle, is not consistent with the chronological order of the letters. The majority of the letters falls within the chronological range of the indexed section, but there are exceptions. There are also cases of sections with overlapping dates, for example, there is an indexed section for May-July 1945, and another one for June 1945, each with its own index volume.

Series VI.E.2. Interoffice correspondence, 1910-1971 54.9 Linear Feet (135 boxes)

Scope and Contents:

The Interoffice London correspondence includes letters from the New York and Paris offices to the London office and copies of letters sent from the London office to the New York and Paris offices. For copies of interoffice correspondence prior to 1910, see Series VI.E.4. Prior to 1910, the London office did not differentiate copies of letters related to the firm's other offices and London's general correspondence with its clients and associates.

Arrangement:

The arrangement of the interoffice correspondence files at the London office differs from the one that the New York office maintained. The files maintained by the New York office were arranged by year, whereas those maintained by the London office were arranged by office. Letters of the London office are arranged into four sections: New York to London; copies of London to New York; Paris to London; copies of London to Paris.

Arrangement:
For most years, incoming originals and copies of letters sent are combined and arranged chronologically. These combined letters are numbered sequentially in sets that usually correspond to a calendar year and with each set begins a new numbered sequence. These letters are indexed by subject.
For other years, files contain only incoming originals that are arranged chronologically and are neither numbered nor indexed. Copies of letters sent for these years are filed and indexed with non-Library interoffice correspondence in Boxes 1780 to 1782 for copies of letters sent from London to New York and Boxes 1843 to 1845 for copies of letters sent from London to Paris. These boxes are listed in subseries VI.E.2 Interoffice correspondence.

Series VII. Photographs, approximately 1890-1971 735.9 Linear Feet (1585 boxes)

Language of the Material: English.

Scope and Contents note:

Series VII. Photographs contains photographic materials representing artworks handled by the firm of M. Knoedler & Co. in New York, London and Paris. There are approximately 100,000 photographs, along with research and descriptive information, which document artworks purchased and sold by the firm or on consignment at the firm, as well as artworks offered for sale to the firm, but not acquired. The bulk of the photographic files are the artist files maintained by the New York office (Series VII.A. Artist files). There are photographs that document restoration work done on artworks and files related to private collections that the firm helped develop.

Inventory numbers (stock numbers and other numbers):

1 to 17039*: Knoedler ownership, 1879-December 1927

A1-A9347: Knoedler ownership, January 1928 through 1971 AT: Knoedler owned jointly with Jack Tanzer

JA: Knoedler owned jointly with one or more owners

C: Consigned to Knoedler, -December 1927

CA: Consigned to Knoedler: January 1928-

F: Paris stock number

L: London stock number

S: artist on commission

SCA: work on consignment from the artist

*It is not always possible to distinguish these numbers from other numbers, such as negative numbers, receiving numbers, or numbers assigned by the London office that are not preceded by the letter L, without consulting the relevant stock books.

Arrangement:

Series VII. Photographs is organized into the following subseries: Series VII.A. Artist files; Series VII.B. Photographic files from the London office; Series VII.C. Photographic files from the Paris office; Series VII.D. Other photographic files.

Series VII.A. Artist files, approximately 1890-1971 507.7 Linear Feet (1228 boxes)

Language of the Material: English.

Scope and Contents:

Due to its size, Series VII.A. is described in a separate finding aid. Click here for the finding aid for this series. Series VII.A. is the main subseries in Series VII. Photographs. It consists of the files maintained by the firm of M. Knoedler & Co. in New York and it primarily represents artworks handled by the New York office. The photographs, along with research and descriptive information, document artworks purchased and sold by the firm or on consignment at the firm, as well as artworks offered for sale to the firm, but not acquired. In addition to photographs, each artist file typically includes "pedigree" documentation of the artworks, such as ownership history, bibliographies, and expertise documentation. The photographs provide a visual record of the condition of the artwork at the time it was in the firm's stock and enable to distinguish works with similar titles or works whose titles have changed over time. Often they are the last record of works whose location is presently unknown.

The titles indicated for the works are derived from the titles that Knoedler staff assigned to the works in the stock books, the sales books, and the inventory cards. When possible, abbreviations of the titles in the archive have been expanded and spelling mistakes corrected, but no attempt has been made to update the titles to current standards. When different sources in the archive provided titles that differed considerably, the different versions have been listed, when possible.

The photographs were listed by inventory numbers, including stock numbers and other numbers:

1 to 17039*: Knoedler ownership, 1879-December 1927

A1-A9347: Knoedler ownership, January 1928 through 1971

AT: Knoedler owned jointly with Jack Tanzer

JA: Knoedler owned jointly with one or more owners

C: Consigned to Knoedler, -December 1927

CA: Consigned to Knoedler: January 1928-

F: Paris stock number

L: London stock number

S: artist on commission

SCA: work on consignment from the artist

*It is not always possible to distinguish these numbers from other numbers, such as negative numbers, receiving numbers, or numbers assigned by the London office that are not preceded by the letter L, without consulting the relevant stock books.

Arrangement:

Series VII.A. Artist files are arranged by alphabetical order of artist names according to the filing devised by the firm. The spelling used for artist names has been retained, as well as filings such as "American Interest," "American School,"

"Anonymous," "Bronzes," "Chinese paintings," "Flemish School, Early," "Unknown," and cross-references provided in the artist files.

The files maintained by the London and Paris offices were kept separate from those of the New York office and are described in Series VII.B and Series VII.C. However, there are photographs in Series VII.A. that appear to have been removed from the photographic materials maintained by the other offices. These have been left in situ.

The titles indicated for the works are derived from the titles that Knoedler staff assigned to the works in the stock books, the sales books, and the inventory cards. When possible, abbreviations of the titles in the archive have been expanded and spelling mistakes corrected, but no attempt has been made to update the titles to current standards. When different sources in the archive provided titles that differed considerably, the different versions have been listed, when possible.

Series VII.B. Photographic files from the London office, approximately 1900-1971 123.5 Linear Feet (90 boxes)

Scope and Contents:

Series VII.B. Photographic files from the London office primarily consists of photographs, but may also include "pedigree" documentation of the artworks and copies of related correspondence. The photographs are usually identified by the stock number assigned to them by the London office and may be annotated with the stock number used by the office in New York. If both New York and London numbers are used, the London number is often enclosed in parentheses. London stock numbers may be preceded by the letter L and are lower numerically than the New York stock numbers. Stock numbers appear on the verso of the photographs or on the original housing of the photographs.

Note that the files that were maintained by the office in New York (Series VII.A.) appear to contain files from the office in London. The London files may have been partially integrated with the New York files after the closing of the office in London. The filing system by alphabetical order of artist names, which was maintained by the office in London, is similar to the one used by the office in New York, which would have facilitated the integration of the two groups of files. Series VII.B. therefore consists of the London files that were housed separately from the files in Series VII.A. upon receipt of the archive in Los Angeles. Files in Series VII.A., which appear to be London files, have been left in situ in Series VII.A.

By contrast, the Paris office used a distinct system of filing. This may explain the relatively small size of Series VII.B. in comparison to Series VII.C.

Arrangement:

Series VII.B. London office photographic files are arranged alphabetically by artist name in a system that sometimes diverges from the one used by the office in New York. The London office's arrangement and spelling used for artist names has been retained and a note is included for each artist that is filed under a different form of name in the New York files, Series VII.A.

The photographic files maintained by the office in London that appear to have been integrated by Knoedler staff with the files maintained by the office in New York have been left in situ in Series VII.A.

Series VII.B. is arranged into two groupings: Artist files and Albums.

Access:

Items in conservation include the following files: Dance, Nathaniel; Jackson, John; Jervas, Charles.

Series VII.C. Photographic files from the Paris office, approximately 1900-1971 53.2 Linear Feet (126 boxes)

Scope and Contents:

Series VII.C. Paris office photographic files includes photographs made in Europe and duplicates of the ones maintained by the New York office. The presence of the duplicates suggests that the New York office sent copies of the photographs from its files (Series VII.A. Artist files). The photographs may be identified by the stock number assigned by the office in New York office in addition to the stock number given by the Paris office. The Paris office stock number is the same number used by the London office, with the exception of stock numbers preceded by the letter F. When both New York and Paris numbers are used, the Paris number is often enclosed in parentheses. Stock numbers are written on the verso of the photographs or on the original housing. Two different filing systems have been used by the Paris office. The earlier system consists of sets referred to as Cartons, in which photographs are arranged in groups roughly alphabetized by artist name. The later system, referred to as Envelopes, consists of separate large envelopes for each artwork arranged alphabetically by artist name. Some artists have photographs filed under both systems. Both filing systems occasionally diverge from the New York office. The Paris office's filing and spelling of artist names has been retained and a note is included for each artist that is filed under a different form of name in the New York files, Series VII.A.

Cartons consist of photographs either loose or housed in small envelopes, which were grouped together by the Paris office in rough alphabetical order by artist name and then stacked between two pieces of cardboard tied together with twine. Artist names and stock numbers were written on the top piece of cardboard, which is referred to in the finding aid as the "Carton cover."

The original groupings of the Cartons have been maintained in the arrangement. Artists within the Carton are arranged alphabetically after the Carton cover. Arrangement between the Cartons is dictated by the artist name in the group that comes first alphabetically. For example, Carton [I] includes artists ranging from Baker to Browne. It is arranged before Carton [II], containing Balaÿ to Barye because Baker precedes Balaÿ alphabetically. Roman numerals are used to identify the Cartons because the Paris office would use Roman numerals to differentiate multiple Cartons for one artist, for example, Corot I, Corot II, and Corot III.

Most photographs are duplicates of the New York office's copies cataloged in Series VII.A. Artist files and are only cataloged by artist name. The sealed envelopes contain duplicates, which can be consulted in Series VII.A. Photographs that do not appear to be duplicates are listed individually by stock number under the artist name.

Arrangement:

Series VII.C. Paris office photographic files are arranged into two groupings, per original order, the envelopes, which are arranged alphabetically by artist name, and the cartons. Most photographs are duplicates of the photographs in the files maintained by the New York office (Series VII.A. Artist files) and are only identified by artist name. Photographs that do not appear to be duplicates are listed individually by stock number under the artist name.

Scope and Contents:

Series VII.E. includes several large files of photographs, restoration photographs, collector files, files related to printmakers and printmaking, as well as glass plate negatives.

Arrangement:

Series VII.E. is arranged into four subseries: Series VII.E.1: Restoration photographs; Series VII.E.2: Collector files; Series VII.E.3: Printmaker files; Series VII.E.4. Glass plate negatives.

Series VII.E.1. Restoration photographs, 1931-1967 28.7 Linear Feet (69 boxes)

Scope and Contents:

Series VII.D. Restoration photographs documents the restoration of artworks by the main office of M. Knoedler & Co. in New York from 1933 to 1967. The photographs are identified by Plate number and often include a Receiving number for the artwork, which are written on the original envelope in a field titled "Ship. Number," whose numbering sequence corresponds to the Receiving records in Series V.A. Earlier plate numbers are preceded by the letter R, but Knoedler used this system inconsistently and later abandoned it.

Box 3161 is restricted until conservation treatment is complete.

Arrangement:

Series VII.D. Arranged by plate numbers.

Series IX. American Department records, 1913-1971 42.8 Linear Feet (86 boxes, 1 flat file folder)

Scope and Contents note:

Series IX. Within the records of the Knoedler Gallery were files labeled American Data and American Collections/Davidson papers, with the occasional reference to an "American Department." It is possible that this department may not have been a formal entity such as the Print Department, but the records in Series IX reflect the Knoedler Gallery's efforts to develop relationships with museums and collections in western and mid-western states in America and the firm's strong area of interest in 19th and 20th American art, manifested early on with the dealings of the works by Frederick E. Church, Winslow Homer, and Frederic Remington. This group of records, which consists of correspondence, photographs, ephemera, and lists maintained by William F. Davidson, who served as Vice President for the firm, particularly documents the transactions made by Davidson in Texas, Wyoming, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Arrangement:

Series IX. American Department records is arranged in two subseries, American collections and American data. These subseries were further arranged alphabetically with miscellaneous clippings at the end.

Series IX.A. American collections, 1913-1969 7 Linear Feet (14 boxes)

Scope and Contents:

Series IX.A. American collections consists of files on public and private collections in the United States and of several files relating to collections in other countries, such as the American Museum at Claverton Manor in Britain. Comprised of correspondence, photographs, ephemera, clippings, receipts, invoices, appraisals, and architectural drawings, the files usually consist of a folder or two folders of materials. Further documentation on specific collections, such as the Joslyn Art Museum in Omaha, Nebraska, and the Buffalo Bill Museum in Wyoming may also appear in Series IX.B. American data.

Arrangement:

Series IX.A. American collections is arranged geographically per original order.

Series. IX.B. American data, 1928-1971 35.8 Linear Feet (72 boxes, 1 flat file folder)

Scope and Contents:

Series IX.B. The files labeled "American data" appear to consist of files maintained by William F. Davidson, which reflect Davidson's interest in specific topics, artists and collectors. The files consist of Davidson's correspondence and of memoranda, loan agreements, bills, photographs, photostats, ephemera, clippings, and occasionally catalogs. They also document transactions made by Davidson and relationships he developed with collectors. Particularly well documented is Davidson's long-term relationship with the oil businessman Thomas Gilcrease, who founded the Gilcrease Museum in Oklahoma that houses a comprehensive collection of art of the American West.

Arrangement:

Series IX.B. American data is arranged by alphabetical order of names and topics per original order.

Series XIV. Knoedler family papers, 1866-1969 5.2 Linear Feet (17 boxes)

Scope and Contents note:

Series XIV. Knoedler family papers consists of several folders of documents, such as personal letters, copies of wills and of a birth certificate, a naturalization certificate and a cemetery plot. Included are portraits of Michael Knoedler (1823-1878), who in 1857, purchased the New York Goupil branch, conducting the business under his own name, and portraits of his wife, Léonie Knoedler. There is also preserved in these files Michael Knoedler's naturalization certificate from 1866. Documents relating to Roland Knoedler (1856–1932), son of Michael Knoedler, who took over the firm after the death of his father in 1878 and headed the firm until his retirement in 1928, include obituaries, portraits, and Roland Knoedler's 1901 légion d'honneur certificate. The series is also comprised of documents related to Roland Knoedler's wife, the French actress Louise Théo (1854-1922), his nephew Charles R. Henschel (1885-1956) who in 1928, upon Roland Knoedler's retirement, entered in a co-partnership of the firm with Carman Messmore (1882-1975), Charles S. Carstairs (1865-1928) and Carstairs's son, Carroll (1888-1948).

Some of the files were contained in folders labeled under the name of Michael Knoedler's grandson, Roland Balaÿ (1902-2004) or "Roland Balaÿ Archive," suggesting these documents may have been retained by the family at one time and kept separate from the firm's business records.

Arrangement:

Series XIV. Knoedler Family papers is arranged topically and alphabetically by first names.
